SPEAKING OF AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY

This Town . . . That World

THE CRITICISM ENDS

Herbert Hoover, one of the most maligned Presidents of modern times, died Tuesday. He paid the bitter price leaders so often must pay, silently stood up under calumny and the condemnation of so many of us who chose to forget that here was a good, Christian soul whose heart went out to the suffering of all the earth. After all, though, Mr. Hoover may have been fortunate in being President when he was. The spirit of murderous hate had not at that time so filled the land as it has today.

Are the hills in their brilliant autumn dress more beautiful than ever before—or could it be that my eyesight is getting better?

WHEN HILLBILLIES GET TOGETHER

I'm afraid I gave a displaced mountaineer a case of homesickness when I spoke briefly with him in Lexington Monday. I had only that morning driven from a world that is showing for a short run only what I think is nature's grandest colorama and then had passed through the comparatively drab Blue Grass where many trees yet are green and those that have changed color have done only a halfway job of it. The new acquaintance wanted to know where I was from, and I told him and, for some reason, added, "The most beautiful place in the world at this time of year."

The man glanced out the door as if hunting for a hill and almost sighed as he said, "You can say that again, brother—I'm from Clay county, myself."

NEW SCHOOL DEDICATED

Faculty Is Charged With Success Effort; Pitts Welcomes Crowd

"Fine school buildings alone do not make good schools," Superintendent Charles F. Clark said at the dedication of the Clark elementary school building Tuesday evening.

"Buildings are but a facility in the educational program," he added. "It is you, the teachers who make a school and here and now I want to charge you with making this school a success with the finest instructional program in Eastern Kentucky."

Former Gov. Bert Combs, who was scheduled as the featured speaker of the evening, was unable to attend. Principal John K. Pitts welcomed the crowd and introduced Clark. Present and past board members, the prime contractors, Tom O. McGuire and Clyde VanHoose, and Romeyn Dyer, a subsidiary contractor, were introduced. Invocation was said by the Rev. W. D. Jagers.

Clark noted that the new school structure was the only modern one on the Mountain Parkway between Mt. Sterling and Prestonsburg. In conclusion he reviewed the accomplishments of his administration.

AREA BUSINESSMEN ATTEND PARK MEET

HOSPITALITY OF ASHLAND IS OFFERED

Ashland Group Tours Business Firms Here; Davis Geiger, Speaker

Members of the Ashland Chamber of Commerce came touring the Big Sandy last week, climaxing a day-long trip last Wednesday night with a dinner at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, but next year the procedure will be reversed.

Closing the dinner meeting, which was attended by 50 Ashland business representatives and perhaps 200 representatives of Big Sandy communities, Davis Geiger, Ashland Chamber president, invited those present to attend a similar session in Ashland next year.

"We'll send buses after you, give you lunch, a golf game or a tour of Armo or Ashland Oil, be your hosts at dinner, then return you to your homes," he told the gathering.

In Prestonsburg, members of the Ashland group visited various business houses, viewing the big improvement program under way here and meeting community leaders.

Stating the purpose of the visit, Mr. Geiger said:

"We are here to foster the friendships which have existed for a long time," he told the crowd.

Geiger noted that historically Sandy Valley and Ashland have stood together, "with the same interests and aspirations."

"But because we haven't worked together in recent years, we have seen the improvements we should," he pointed to the time Sandy banded together to construct the original Mayo Trail, but sadly noted a lack of concerted effort in recent years for needed improvement on U. S. 23.

"I wonder if too frequently we aren't too much for our own side of the street."

Dr. George Archer, of Prestonsburg, selling as he spoke, rattled off his community's improvements in rapid-fire order.

He cited low water, sewer, tax, and gas rates; Jenny Wiley Park, with its lake; a new gymnasium; floodwall and pumps; street resurfacing; community college; better roads and highways; new courthouse and jail; urban renewal; new football field and stadium; airport; 40-unit housing project.

Not only does Prestonsburg have these to offer a new industry, he said, but other improvements are being worked for.

Dr. Archer noted his long-time residence in the Big Sandy Valley and reiterated Geiger's point that commerce moves up and down U. S. 23. "It should be four-laned from Portsmouth to Jenkins," he emphasized.

"Millions of dollars that rightfully should have been spent in Ashland have poured into West Virginia. My ancestors bragged how they always traded in Ashland and Catskillsburg, but some-

COUNTERFEIT BILLS FOUND

Paintsville Man Nabbed Near London; Spurious Bills Thrown from Car

Charles V. Wheeler, of Paintsville, is under $5,000 bond after having been arrested recently, between London and Manchester, and charged with possession of counterfeit money. He was held to the January term of the Clay county grand jury after waiving examining trial.

At about the time of Wheeler's arrest counterfeit bills were passed in West Liberty, it was reported. The bills were an excellent imitation of genuine currency, except that all bore the same serial number, it was said.

George W. Henson, 62, who listed a Lexington address, was the driver of the car in which Wheeler was arrested and was charged with reckless driving but was later released.

Wheeler was later transferred to Richmond to face two old charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. The charges arrived from a promise to deliver oil paintings to a Richmond woman after she had paid him in advance.

Col. James E. (Ted) Bassett, State Police director, said Wheeler was arrested in Clay county after counterfeit money was thrown from the moving vehicle while traveling on Highway 30.

Bassett said that between $7,000 and $10,000 was tossed out of the car. Most of it was recovered by State Police.

TWO WOMEN SENTENCED

Former Postal Workers Given Terms In Prison; Steele, Hibbitts Freed

Two former Floyd county postal workers were convicted last week in U. S. district court at Pikeville and each was given a prison term of a year and a day.

Mrs. Pauline P. Jones, former clerk-in-charge of the Justell rural station of the Betsy Layne postoffice, was charged with converting postal funds to her own use and of making false entries in postoffice records. Mrs. Caroline S. Jones, former postmaster at Bevinsville, was accused of issuing money orders without receiving money in payment and of converting postal funds to her own use.

Two former residents of this area were acquitted recently in Florida of grand larceny charges. John Steele, mayor of Hallandale, Florida, and a former resident of Betsy Layne, was accused of swindling a Hallandale

VANDAL CLUE HOPES FADE

John Doe Warrant Fails To Uncover Culprits; Detector Test Negative

Hope of an imminent break in the search for those guilty of causing hundreds of dollars damage to motor vehicles and business buildings in nocturnal rock-throwing depredations faded this week with the questioning of three men, the Sheriff's office said.

A John Doe warrant was issued in the case Saturday from the County Judge's office. Monday, a Cow Creek man was arrested, but he promptly volunteered to undergo a lie detector test. Deputy Sheriff Lonnie Herald said State Police gave the test Tuesday at Paintsville and that the results were negative.

Questioning of two youths likewise failed to develop any lead to the identity of the vandals, Herald said.

Last of the vandalism acts reported took place two weeks ago on the Auxier road, near here, where windshields, windows and headlights of two state-owned pieces of machinery were smashed. Headlights of one of the vehicles were protected by metal guards, and apparently a hammer was used to smash guards and lights. In all other reported breaks rocks apparently were used.

The touring rock-throwers were ranged from Paintsville through Auxier, Prestonsburg and on to Allen, smashing windshields and windows of cars and trucks and glass fronts of business buildings.

ASSOCIATION HOLDS MEET

Baptists of Area Meet At David; Inez Pastor Presides As Moderator

Enterprise Association, composed of 13 Baptist churches in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties, met last Thursday in annual session at the David Baptist Church. The Rev. William Humphrey, pastor of First Baptist Church, Inez, presided as moderator.

Baptists attending the meeting heard from Dr. Henry Buchanan, chaplain at Central Baptist hospital, Lexington, a review of the work of that institution and a report on its needs.

The annual report from the three Baptist hospitals in Kentucky showed that the Sunday School charity fund, the only fund assisting the hospitals in their charity program, last year was only a tenth of the total written off for charity cases, bad debts and discounts. All three hospitals wrote off $326,735, and the assistance gained through the charity fund was only $32,946. The $144,000 going to the hospitals from the Cooperative Program went toward paying for two new hospitals.

The Rev. Garland Wilkerson preached the annual sermon at the morning session. Dr. Harold Sanders, executive secretary of the Kentucky Baptist Convention, spoke in the afternoon, and the closing inspirational message was given by the Rev. James Wallace, pastor of First Baptist Church, Paintsville.

TWO EVENTS SCHEDULED

Kiwanis Club Here Sets Pancake Day; Gilt Show by Club Slated

The Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club's annual Pancake Day will be held this year in conjunction with the first Yorkshire Gilt Show by members of the club's pig chain members. Pancake Day and the Gilt Show are scheduled Saturday at the Prestonsburg grade school grounds.

The swine show is slated from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Pancakes will be served between the hours of 6 a.m. and 8 p.m., it is announced by K. J. Bowles, chairman of the agricultural committee of the Kiwanis club.

All boys and girls with gilts on exhibition are members of 4-H clubs in the county. An event preliminary to the annual pancake day and the gilt show is scheduled tonight (Thursday) at Jenny Wiley State Park. All the members of the pig chain and their parents will be guests of the Kiwanians at a chicken dinner.

The pig chain project was initiated last summer by the Kiwanians in the interest of better town and country relations. The pigs, all purebred, were bought by the civic club from a breeder at Corbin.

Each recipient of a pig will return one pig to the Kiwanians from the first litter and keep the remainder. These pigs from the first litters will keep the remainder. These in turn will be given to other 4-H members who want to participate in the program.

Following the gilt show, prizes, made possible by Prestonsburg businessmen, will be awarded. Contributors to purchase of the prizes are Music-Colvin Motor Co., Wright's Jewelry store, Ye Olde Jewellery Shoppe, Francis Stores, Marvin Music, Gulf distributor, Arrowood Hardware Store, Thomas Hereford Co., (See Story No. 7, Page 6)

The Council approved the purchase of the small house owned by D. K. Harris at the proposed recreation site on the outskirts of West Prestonsburg. Because funds are not available for development of the recreation project, Mayor Archer and each member of the Council decided at the meeting to give their salaries for the remainder of this year and all of next to the playground fund.

MAY SIGN TERRITORY ALMOST NATIONWIDE

This is the same Mr. Mayo who returned to Prestonsburg 13 years ago from Portsmouth, Ohio, to begin a one-man sign-painting business. This month, he was working 12 to 15 regularly, and in the peak season he employs 21. Several months ago, with his business so taxing the capacities of his Lake Drive building that it was bulging at the seams, he looked for room, found it across the street. His wife was operating the May Paint & Wallpaper Company in a building over there, so he simply rented a downtown store-room, and moved her and that business there to make way for the sign business.

May does all sign work by the silk screen process and sometimes will turn out a thousand signs a day. This "factory" turns out five different types of signs, working with metal, plastics and wood. (The wood comes from White Oak, Morgan county.) He sub-contracts the steel frames for highway signs to a neighbor, the Coal Bit Company, and the wood frames to Oral DeLong.

Erection crews use trucks, loading signs and themselves aboard and ranging far afield. But Mayo owns a plane and he is a heavy user of the new Combs Airport, midway between Prestonsburg and Paintsville, as he contacts customers, procures materials and handles other details of the business.

Bill May, of Lancer, is his production foreman, Billy Music, of Paintsville, and two girls constitute the office force. Eighty percent of his employees were trained on the job, he says.

"We've been doing a lot of work," May said recently, adding in his best dead-pan style: "And of every dollar we make we spent 102% of it right here in Prestonsburg."

To which his interviewer replied: "Didn't know anybody else succeeded in doing that—but it isn't too hard to do, is it?"

LAKE DRAWDOWN SET TO ELIMINATE SHAD

In an effort to eliminate a bumper crop of large shad from Dewey Lake, a water drawdown will be started on the impoundment on October 31 at the rate of five feet of water per week until the 1,100-acre lake has dwindled in size to about 225 acres, Minor Clark, commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, announced this week.

Through the lake drawdown, the excess shad, which now total more than 200 pounds per acre, will be "washed down the drain," thereby permitting greater water space for game fish when the lake is permitted to refill, Bernie Carter, director of the Division of Fisheries, predicted. Fish population studies will be made of Johns Creek, immediately below Dewey Dam, during and after the drawdown to determine the type and number of fish spilled through the gates during the drawdown, Carter declared.

To offset the possible loss of black bass during the drawdown, more than 50,000 bass fingerlings are being held in the federal hatchery at Frankfort with which to restock the lake when the drawdown is completed, Carter said.

The Department of Parks, which operates Jenny Wiley State Park on Dewey Lake, will take advantage of the low waters, Commissioner Robert Bell said, to extend pipe lines from the Prestonsburg Municipal water system to the beach and beach houses. A well, which had been used as a source of supply, will be discontinued. Further improvements of the beach itself also are planned by the Parks Department while the water is low, Bell added.

John C. C. Mayo (left), of Ashland, who was on tour last week with other Ashland Chamber of Commerce members, and W. J. May, president of The Bank Josephine, exchange greetings here.

THREE CITIES CONTENDING FOR CONFERENCE CROWN

Paintsville, Pikeville and Elkhorn City are still in contention for the Class A, Region 3, District 2 football crown, despite Pikeville's 18-13 loss to Elkhorn City.

Gene Davis' Panthers fell from the unbeaten ranks, leaving Hazard the only area unbeaten team. They are 8-0, with two games remaining after an open date this week.

Hazard has annexed its sixth Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference championship in the past seven seasons and its fifth Class AA, Region 4, District 2 title. Their 25-0 conquest of Fleming-Neon was a conference game but it did not affect the district standing of either as Hazard is in AA and Fleming-Neon is an A school.

Pikeville, who meets Millersburg Military Institute at home this Friday, has a 4-1 district record. Paintsville is 3-1, and Elkhorn City is 2-1. Paintsville and Elkhorn City play in Paintsville, October 30 in the annual Big Sandy Bowl game.

Walter Brugh's Johnson county Tigers pulled somewhat of a surprise in routing M.M.I. by the lop-sided score of 33-0. M.M.I. is in the first district of the same region.

The Whitesburg Yellow Jackets evened its season record at 4-4-1 in beating Prestonsburg 47-7, after leading at halftime by a 34-7 margin.

The losing Black Cats lost four regulars via the injury route in the third period as center Wendell Howell broke his leg, and quarterbacks Steve Clark and John Clark suffered sprained ankles along with halfback Lenzie Harris.

Sophomore William Wright, the state's leading individual scorer, tallied 25 points on two pass interceptions, a 25-yard run and a 31-yard pass reception in addition to an extra point.

Morgan County scored in the last 55 seconds of play to nip Fleming County, 13-13, and Belfry overpowered Jenkins, 37-13. Hazel Green squeezed out a 20-18 win over M. C. Napier.

GOBLE AT RETREAT
Seoul, Korea—Pfc. Elder V. Goble, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elder K. Goble, Prestonsburg, Ky., attended a religious retreat at the Eighth U. S. Army Religious Retreat Center near Seoul, Korea, Oct. 2.

The purpose of the retreat is to provide the soldier with an opportunity to meditate and discuss religious matters with a chaplain of his faith. Goble, a communications center specialist in the 57th Signal Company in Korea, entered the Army in August, 1963. He completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., was last stationed at Fort Gordon, Ga., and arrived overseas in February 1964.

The 19-year-old soldier is a 1963 graduate of Prestonsburg high school.

Insurance Firm Charges Magoffin Court Failed To Pay for Building

Neighboring Magoffin county is having new courthouse troubles. The Aetna Casualty and Surety Co. filed a suit in U. S. district court at Lexington, Monday, charging that the Magoffin fiscal court breached a contract by not paying a contracting company for work it had done on a new courthouse.

The action also asked that the Aetna Company be released from paying sub-contractors that were given work on the project by Clifton and Sons, the original contractors.

Aetna entered into a bonding contract and indemnity agreement with Clifton and Sons on August 14, 1957.

On February 9, 1959, Clifton and Sons was awarded a contract from the Magoffin fiscal court to build a new courthouse.

The contractors received payment for their work until November 6 at which time a balance of $8,077.66 was remaining and the court said that it was unable to pay the balance, the suit stated.

Clifton and Sons quit working on the courthouse project immediately after the fiscal court said that it couldn't pay for the work, the suit continued.

It said the fiscal court claimed faults in the building amounting to $15,500 and said that sub-contractors on the job had not completed their work.

The sub-contractors demanded payment for their work and Clifton and Sons claim that they are entitled to withhold payment to the sub-contractors because the work is not completed, the suit said.

Aetna alleged that it is not indebted to pay any of the defendants because the fiscal court breached the contract.

Aetna asked that the federal court determine the rights of all parties involved in the action and adjudge that the Magoffin fiscal court did breach the contract.

In an alternative Aetna asked for permission to withhold payments to sub-contractors until Magoffin county pays Clifton and Sons.

The action also asked the court to adjudge that the sub-contractors have not completed the work, and that Aetna be entitled to recover $4,652.36 for labor and materials that the bonding company has paid.

Aetna asked in the suit that Magoffin county be held responsible for all money paid out by the bonding company.

The defendant contracting companies named in the action were Howard and Adams, Paintsville Heating and Roofing Co., Clifton and Sons, Broadview Acoustical Construction Co., Martina Bros. Co., Inc., Murphy Elevator Co., McCammish-Glasscock, Inc., Associated Electrical Construction, Inc., Electrical and Mechanical Supply, Inc., and Kentucky Power Co., all of Kentucky.

Tri-State Plumbing Co., and Foster-Thornburg Supply Co., of Huntington, West Virginia, were also named as defendant contractors.

The fiscal court, which is made up of Clyde Salyer, Wiley J. Salyer, Glen Moore Collinsworth, Raymine Wireman and Homer Trusty, was also named defendant in the action.

She said her desire to go to Russia was aroused on the occasion of her introduction to Mrs. Khrushchev at a luncheon in Washington. After many efforts at dissuasion by friends, many trips to the State Department and consulates for visas, her trip was arranged. Flying into Russia on a Russian plane, she was met by her inquisitor guide, a young but brilliant Russian girl who was her constant companion for her entire stay. Outstanding were her descriptions of the Russian people, the safety of Moscow streets, the University she visited, the Russian crown jewels, and the ballet at the Bolshoi theatre.

We ask Simca owners:

Why did you trade in your VW for a Simca 1000?

William Botkin, Columbus, Ohio: "On impulse, I took one out for a spin. I was delighted with the way it handled. Much better all around, especially on the turnpikes. My wife liked the all-synchro gearbox. Last week, for the 30th time, I taught a VW humility in the traffic light Grand Prix. Simca's heater—which really heats—is a godsend..."

George Stevens, Martinez, Calif.: "The VW didn't seem to fill the bill for my wife and me. The 1000 is roomier, easier getting in and out of. The day after we bought it, we took a long trip and couldn't have been more delighted with the comfort or the economy..."

Mrs. Audrey Stein-Maplewood, N.J.: "My VW needed a lot of repairs, so naturally the 5-year Simca warranty* looked awfully good to me..."

Larry Drake, Pineville, West Va.: "Extra room, better visibility. It handled better, I've been well satisfied with the change to the 1000..."

Jack White, Albany, Ohio: "I had two VWs. Now I have one, plus your Simca 1000. The 1000 rides smoother. And I get better gas mileage from it. With your warranty* I'm not afraid of an engine bill using up all the money I've saved on gas..."

STUDENT-TEACHERS FORM CLASSES IN MODERN MATH

Teachers and other school personnel in a meeting at Betsy Layne high school last Thursday evening organized three classes for orientation in modern mathematics. Each class, composed of teachers in the Betsy Layne area, will meet Thursday evenings for three hours for eight weeks to study the new method of arithmetical calculation.
Clem Martin, supervisor of the Floyd county school system, presided. Instructors named for the three classes, each with approximately 20 enrollees, are L. B. Price, Larry Short and Michael Auxier. Teacher-students who attend at least six sessions of the course will be given a certificate from the state Department of Education.

The type of class experience that is being provided is the result of a working arrangement between the Board of Education and the state Department of Education. The board is matching funds provided through the National Defense Education Act. Financial aid on the program from the federal government under the act is but one instance of aid extended the states in special fields such as science, mathematics, and guidance.

The new approach to the teaching of grade school mathematics was made necessary, educational leaders thought, by modern technology.
Price, in commenting on the new program, said:
"Modern mathematics, as it will be taught at different grade levels, involves new approaches and some new topics when compared with the traditional mathematics. Perhaps it is too early to fully evaluate the merits of the whole program. It seems we are in a trend which we could not hope to resist successfully. While learning much that is different, we will not be banning all mathematical knowledge that is possessed."
Textbooks for all schools cannot be provided next year, since only one-fourth of the present textbooks can be discarded under state regulations, it is pointed out. The first classes with the new textbooks will be taught in the Betsy Layne area.

An extension class in modern mathematics at Wheelwright is under way, Price said. It is expected that the new approach to mathematics will be taught there next year.
"It could possibly be that other groups of teachers will receive orientation in later weeks of the year," he added.

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Q. I have filed for social security benefits but I expect to earn over $4,800 this year. Can I receive any benefits this year?
A. For more details, ask your social security district office for booklet OASI-23, "If You Work While You Get Social Security Payments."

From Lovely, Kentucky, this question:
Q. What should I do if I go to work and expect to earn over $1,200 this year? I am receiving old-age benefits under social security. My wife and my children also receive benefits. What happens if they go to work?
A. You should report this information to your social security office either in person or on the card (Form OAC-669), which was given to you when you applied for social security benefits. Be sure to give the name of the person about whom the report is made and his social security claim number.

Good Advice For Coal Operators

Kentucky coal operators were told at their annual state meeting in Louisville last week to forsake their defensive attitude, to show pride in their vocation and to take their rightful place alongside those in other honorable industries.

The advice is good. It is time the coal business does a better public relations job and at least let its good points be known, since the bad always comes to light and is often magnified.

Some coal companies, notably Princess Elkhorn and Inland Steel in this county, have created a better-than-average image through scholarship programs, community improvement and other good works. But these are not the only firms in the industry, in this and other counties, that have made worthwhile contributions, though the others have done a topnotch job of keeping their candles hidden.

The coal business, of course, cannot come pleading not guilty on all counts. It has had its black marks, and some are yet being made. The old days of scrip and the company store, coercion of voting rights, long hours, bad working conditions, starvation wages and a general attitude of "the public be damned" remain in the memories of many. And, at this moment, a few—let it be repeated, the number is relatively few—are giving the entire industry a bad name by despoiling hillsides, filling streams with silt and coal-dust, turning acid waters loose upon neighboring lands and streams, generally ignoring the common good for their own financial gain.

Let the law take care of these, without exception. Pennsylvania coal men are complying with a law much stiffer than Kentucky's, and they are still in business. The complaint heard in Kentucky that "compliance will put us out of business and deprive men of jobs" fails to gain credence in the light of experience elsewhere.

But let the public take care, too, to give credit where credit is due. Let us recognize the good men, the community and civic leaders who are in the coal business, working to keep their heads above the water in a highly competitive industry and yet finding time to serve their communities, their counties and the state in many fine ways.

The advice given these men who are in the coal business is good. Indeed they can help us all to measure their worth more accurately if they will take time to take the public into their confidence and share some of their experiences, problems and goals with us all.

COAL INDUSTRY TOLD OF RECOGNITION NEED

Kentucky coal operators, who contribute $950 million a year in wages and other benefits to their state's economy, should be more aggressive in promoting their industry and seeking recognition for their achievements.

This theme was stressed by speakers—national leaders of the industry and a former Kentucky governor—at the Kentucky Coal Association's 18th annual meeting in Lexington last Friday.

William B. Sturgill, of Hazard, Association chairman, reminded the more than 100 operators present that coal-mining also was Kentucky's No. 1 industrial employer, with 29,717 employees.

Fred B. Bullard, of Lexington, KCA president, asserted, "This is a $350 million industry and it must be protected. If we are to be successful, we must present a united effort by the industry."

Former Governor Bert Combs, who was born in a coal-producing county (Clay), declared, "The mining of coal ought to be recognized as an honorable industry. You perform a great service to society and to America. I think you have been too much on the defensive."

Joseph E. Moody, of Washington, president of the National Coal Policy Conference, said: "Be proud of coal: be optimistic about its future. Tell our story at every opportunity."

Robert E. Lee Hall, of Washington, vice-president of the National Coal Association, pointed out that next January, Kentucky will have produced three billion tons of coal. He said that the state still has 33 billion tons of coal in reserve.

He suggested that Kentuckians commemorate the three-billion-ton with a special celebration and also give special notice to their vast coal reserves.

A. H. Mandt, state Commissioner of Mines and Minerals, asserted, "It is the responsibility of the Kentucky coal operators to elevate the Department of Mines and Minerals to a high level." He observed the other industries were more active than the coal operators in seeking higher state appropriations to benefit their interests.

Rev. Roberts, Speaker At Club Meeting Here

The October meeting of the Junior Woman's Club was held last Thursday in the Home Economics department of Prestonsburg high school. This year the club begins each meeting with the pledge to the flag, usually followed by the club creed or an appropriate poem.

The guest-speaker, the Rev. Adrian Roberts, spoke on "The Value of Religion for Today's Anxieties." Quoting a doctor from the Mayo Clinic to the effect that 70% to 80% of the out-patients who go there are sick because of worry and frustration, he advised clubmembers to "take time to sit down, relax, and let God speak." "Enjoy a few moments of utter, blank silence," he also advised, encouraging members to memorize favorite Bible passages affirming faith to the extent that they become a part of one's personality.

Refreshments were served, followed by a business meeting. A report was given that the Retarded Children's Drive was successful. The club project for the new regional library will be landscaping. Any remaining money will be used to purchase indoor plants.

The annual Christmas parade will be Saturday, November 28. The theme will be, "Winter Wonderland." The parade will start at 2 p.m., preceded by the pageant at which the snow queen will be named.

A report was given by Mrs. David Hereford on plans for the Cerebral Palsy Drive. The doll and wardrobe, tickets for which will be sold by club members, will be on display at the B. F. Casual Shop by Thanksgiving week-end. She and her wardrobe will be displayed in a convertible in the Christmas parade. The drawing will be held Saturday, December 19, at the B. F. Casual Shop.

New members voted into the club were Mrs. Jack Walters, Mrs. Bert Dixon, Miss Marty May, Mrs. Thomas Hereford, Jr., Mrs. Estill Lee Carter, Mrs. Yvonne Stumbo Jones, Mrs. Robert E. Bowling, Mrs. John Allen, Jr., Mrs. Randall Honeycutt, Mrs. Norman Sipes, Mrs. Phillip R. Nelson, Mrs. Robert Blackledge, Mrs. George T. Matthews, and Mrs. Larry Askins.

Members attending the October meeting were Mrs. Doug Adams, Mrs. Roger Colvin, Mrs. DeGarmo Derossett, Mrs. Garland Godsey, Mrs. David Hereford, Mrs. James Holbrook, Mrs. Earl Martin, Mrs. Marvin Music, Jr., Mrs. Jack Frost Wells and Mrs. Bobby Ray White. Hostesses were Mrs. James Allen, Mrs. John Dale, Jr., Mrs. Jack Hyden and Mrs. Robert M. Ranier.

Frankfort State Journal, who spent 18 years in the Harlan coal field, chided the operators about their public image, and challenged them to unite and improve it.

"Your public image," he said, "reminds me of a coal camp youngster who has been playing on the slate dump all day. It needs a good scrubbing."

Van Curen expressed belief that the industry "is deserving of much better treatment than it has received."

"There are many, many good things which can be called to the public's attention," he added. He cited the industry's payment of welfare funds, hospitalization, sick benefits and retirement benefits.

He recommended that the operators make more speeches and work more closely with civic clubs, industrial promotion organizations, and with the press.

The editor also questioned whether the coal operators were working closely together. "Is the best possible effort being made to unite all the coal operators in a common cause?" he asked.

Robert Montgomery, deputy state commissioner of natural resources, asked the operators to give the new state strip-mine legislation a "chance to work."

Moody said prospects for increased prosperity in the coal industry were bright. He predicted that the demand for coal for electric power alone would increase from the present 220 million tons a year to 550 million tons in 1980.

Privileges and Problems

While no two persons have the same fingerprints and each of us is a distinct individual, yet we have many similarities. On this spinning planet we find ourselves thrown together in many of the common ventures of life. The ties that bind are probably stronger than the walls that separate. We would like to think that our circumstances are unique and different from all others. But this is hardly true.

What is true is the fact that human beings react differently to the same set of circumstances. To some, life is one big problem. To others, life is a privilege. With the first fellow, the weather is bad whether the sun is shining or clouds hang heavy. Those who view life as a problem expect the worst and often find it. Failing to find trouble on any given day, they manufacture it! But those who view life as a privilege greet each day with enthusiasm, energy, and boundless hope. They are incurable optimists!

Many of us excuse our suspicious, self-centered, pessimistic way of living on the grounds that we have more trouble than others. "If the fellow who goes around singing tra-la-la all day had my burdens, he would be glum, too," we say. But that's just the point! How we face and matter of the trials we face, but our inner attitudes. So long as we blame circumstances for our glumness, we are likely to stay that way. But when we recognize that we can change our outlook EVEN THOUGH WE MAY NOT BE ABLE TO CHANGE OUR CIRCUMSTANCES, we are on the way to viewing life as a privilege and not a problem.

We know that it is true from watching other people. But do we understand ourselves? Is our daily lot a privilege or a problem? Each must answer for himself.

Examinations Slated For Officer Training

High school seniors and graduates have only until November 20 to apply for the Navy's Reserve Officer Training Corps. Applicants will take the nationwide competitive examination on December 12 as the first step toward an appointment as midshipman.

Designed to supplement the officer output of the Naval Academy, the NROTC program makes it possible for a young man to earn a regular commission while studying at one of the 52 civilian colleges which has an NROTC unit. All tuition, fees and books are furnished by the Navy, and the student receives a retainer of $50.00 per month for not more than four years. During the summers the student goes on interesting training cruises to many parts of the world. After completing a four-year college course, he is commissioned in the regular Navy or Marine Corps and goes on active duty as a career officer in the naval service. He receives the same promotional opportunities, duty assignments and benefits as Naval Academy graduates.

High school seniors and graduates who will be at least 17 but not 21 years of age on June 30, 1965, may apply for the Navy College aptitude test. Those who make a qualifying score will be given a thorough physical examination in January and February, 1965. From the number of qualified young men remaining in competition, approximately 2,000 will be selected to begin their naval careers in college next September.

B. F. Reed, of Drift, speaking for the town of Martin, said that community is the smallest in Kentucky with urban renewal and pointed out the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway yard at Martin was "for the first time not big enough."

"I'm not sure those who preceded me gave the coal business sufficient attention," he said, noting his own position as a coal operator. "It is an economy full of hills and some pretty rough valleys, but I believe the industry has a better base, is more stable, than ever before."

"My thought is based on the anchor that holds coal to steel in the operations of Inland, Republic and Bethlehem. Producers in the valley have long-term contracts over several years. There should be a good coal business in steel for 25-30 years."

"Kentucky Power Company at Louisa is our only home market, and I hope you people at Ashland will get it expanded as much as possible."

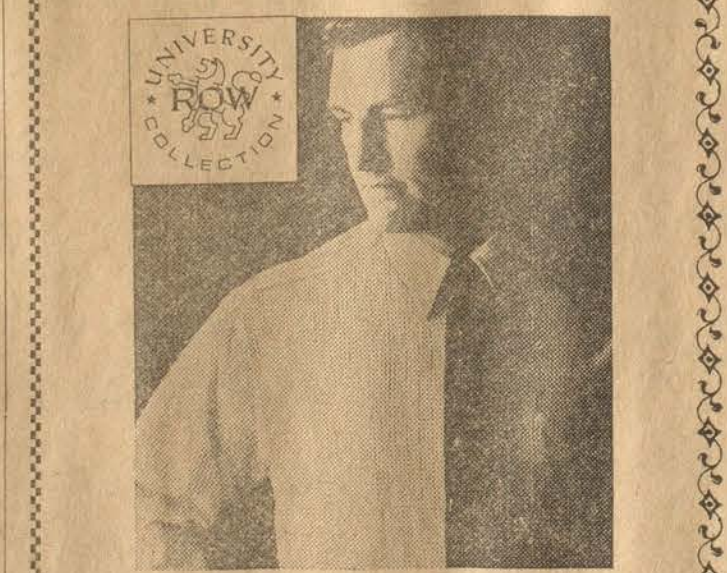

Others who spoke for their respective communities and the valley were Fred Arrington, Louisa; O. T. Dorton, Paintsville; Lon Rogers, Pikeville, and J. O. Arnett, Salyersville.

Ashland's Mayor Everett Reeves presented miniature keys to the city as mementoes for those attending the dinner.

FIRST PROGRAM MEETING

"Just because we are aging, we need not stop growing," said Mrs. J. T. Spillman last Monday evening as she conducted the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Women's Club in its first program meeting of the new club year on the subject, "Aging Usefully."

"We should use what we have learned to better our world," urged Mrs. Spillman. She admonished, however, that we "not try to shoulder too much responsibility, but take time to rest, live and have fun." She emphasized the wise use of time, the importance of taking part in community projects, the need for watching our health and visiting the doctor regularly. "Most of all, we need to find peace with God," she concluded.

Following Mrs. Spillman's part of the program, Mrs. Lillian Banks demonstrated how to decorate a cake.

A letter from Hong Kong was read, thanking the club for its "Care" offering and explaining in detail how it was used to help the Chinese children in that area.

During the business meeting following the program, the president, Mrs. J. C. Wells, announced that Mrs. Ellen Hornsby won second prize with her afghan recently displayed at the Seventh District convention of the K.F.W.C. Mrs. Earl Castle won third prize with her crocheted bedspread. The club won the sweepstakes award for having the most handwork displayed at the convention. Much of this work was also on display at this first program meeting.

Mrs. Wells also stressed the K.F.W.C. theme for 1964, "Facing the challenge of a rapidly changing world." Mrs. Wells gave as the club's local theme, "Community service with a personal sense of moral and social responsibility, stressing education not alone for high school diplomas and college degrees, but an education that will assist us to adjust to a rapidly changing world." She stressed particularly adult education.

An invitation was read from the Drift Woman's Club to an inter-club meeting October 19, at 6 p.m.

Mrs. Wells also pointed out the importance of taking part in the coming election and the obligation of Americans to vote. She reminded the clubmembers that they should be more familiar with the processes of government and learn everything possible about all office seekers in order to be informed voters.

Pecans were distributed for sale at the conclusion of the business meeting. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Marcella Bradley, Mrs. Eugene Mullins, and Mrs. Felix Cobern to 16 members and two guests, Mrs. Lillian Banks and Mrs. Byrd Colley.

Folklore of Yesterdays Recalled by University As Hallowe'en Nears

Hallowe'en—the night when former inhabitants of the earth revisit the site where they died and skeletons leave the family closet—is nearing once again.

The ghosts of former University of Kentucky students whisper from the yellowed pages of early publications or grin silently within microfilmed reproductions throughout the year. Yet it seems around the end of October these voices of prophecy and wisdom speak a bit louder, a bit more demanding.

For example, a feature story which appeared in the September 29, 1908 edition of The Idea (later to become the Kentucky Kernel) gave these suggestions for making the Hallowe'en celebration even more exciting.

The unidentified author writes: "Impartially weighed against the others it is the very best time of the whole year for discovering just what sort of husband or wife one is to be blessed with."

"Tassels of corn ears are named by the maidens, then placed over the door, and the first man to pass under the one bearing his name is supposed to be the life partner of the girl who named it."

Or the writer says by lighting two or more candles and silently naming each, one may predict which mate would be most faithful by observing which candle burnt longest. Of course the best part of any party is refreshments, and this author offers the following suggestion:

"A Dutch lunch served at midnight is attractive. Brown and rye bread, cider, coffee, potato salad with grilled herring, olives, cheese, and a great 'mystery' cake. This cake is cut by lot, it being considered a great honor to cut the first slice. Inside the cake are tiny white bags inserted before baking or icing containing flour, which indicates a rich marriage; sugar, signifying a love match; corn meal, which shows the recipient will have to work for a living, and three empty bags, which foretell single-blessedness for the next year."

Bridge Construction Contract In Martin-Co. Awarded At Frankfort

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 16 (Sp.).—A contract for the construction of a bridge over Cold Water Creek on the Inez-Middle Fork road in Martin county has been awarded by the Highway Department, Commissioner of Highways Henry Ward announced today.

Edwards & Webb Construction Company, Inc., Danville, submitted the low bid of $79,128.10. The project is being financed through the state's rural secondary program, which is operated with two cents of the gasoline tax.

SERVE A POT ROAST

Beef continues plentiful and pot roasts are especially good buys this month, according to Mrs. Letta Jasper, UK Extension marketing specialist. For a main course, try a two-inch-thick arm pot roast, served with potatoes, carrots, onions and gravy. If an entire arm roast is too big for your family, just follow the natural seams of the meat and divide it into smaller roasts.

Life's Punctuation Marks

Without punctuation marks, you could hardly read this. All the words would run together. Punctuation marks resemble traffic signs on a busy highway. They tell the reader when to start, slow down, pause, or stop.

Life, too, has its punctuation marks. Consider the exclamation points which signal those big, exciting events. First day at school! First date! Marriage! A big promotion! The birth of a child!

Then every life has its commas, a signal to slow down but not to stop. They may take the form of a long illness, a disappointment, a closed door, a change of circumstances.

And the question marks—who can ignore them? They signal misfortunes we find hard to understand and to accept. "Why am I so depressed? Why is the world so evil? Why do I suffer pain? Why do nations—and sometimes neighbors—fight?"

And there are periods, signaling a stop. We graduate, and school days end. We move to a new community, and certain friends and activities cease. Death takes a loved one, marking the end of their earthly lives.

A full life includes all the punctuation marks. Some people want only the exclamation points! But even the question marks have their places. So observes Ecclesiastes 3:1, "To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven."

Lexington, Ky. — One hundred fifteen Kentuckians will attend the annual meeting of the National Extension Homemakers Council in Hawaii, October 25-30, according to Dr. Viola K. Hansen, chairman of U. K. Extension home economics programs. Headquarters for the meeting will be the Hawaiian Village Hotel in Honolulu.

PROGRAM OF GUIDANCE SET FOR TWO COUNTIES

Some bright seventh-graders from Eastern Kentucky, who normally would not even think of going to college, will be taken by the hand and guided through high school and college under a program announced yesterday. The pupils will be chosen in Lee and Breathitt counties. They will be enrolled in special college-preparatory courses, receive stepped-up guidance and counseling services, attend cultural programs at colleges participating in the program, and possibly attend a summer boarding school.

The participating Kentucky colleges are Berea, Centre and Transylvania. The program is sponsored by them and by 14 other colleges and universities in seven other Southern states, and by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Known as Project Opportunity, the program will receive financial support from the Ford and Danforth foundations. It also calls for a substantial commitment from the participating colleges in staff time and other resources.

The Ford foundation will provide $150,000 for the first year's operation. About $18,000 of that will be spent in Kentucky. Administrative costs of the program are being underwritten by the Danforth foundation.

The first six years of the program will cost more than $4 million.

It is not known yet how many pupils will be chosen in Lee and Breathitt counties. However, the figure probably will run into the hundreds within a few years.

More than 3,000 pupils will be in the program in the eight states by 1970, according to Dr. Donald C. Agnew, director of the Educational Project Improvement division of the Southern Association. The other states are Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia.

The project will be directed and administered by the Southern Association, which is the independent accrediting organization for schools and colleges in Kentucky and 10 other Southern states.

Here are some of the ways that the project will be carried out: There will be continuous, planned contacts between the pupils and their families, and the faculties and students of Berea, Centre and Transylvania.

Teachers in the Lee and Breathitt county schools will take part in academic workshops and conferences at the three colleges. They also will be invited to make extensive use of the college libraries.

The teachers will work in the homes of the children, to raise their goals and those of their parents. The two counties were chosen because not many pupils from them now go to college.

For the first two years or so, the entire class of seventh graders will be part of the project. In Kentucky this refers to pupils in the nine consolidated schools of Breathitt county which have seventh and eighth grades, and to those in the junior high school at Beattyville in Lee county.

The classes will go to high school at Jackson and Beattyville. Near the end of the ninth grade, the more promising pupils will be picked for special attention through their high school years.

"We hope to have these children visit the college campuses over and over again during their high school years," said Dorothy Bunyan, who is in charge of field contacts for the project.

"By the time they get to the tenth grade, we hope to supervise their training very closely. By the time they finish high school, we expect they will be beautifully equipped to enter any college."

Those pupils chosen for the project will receive enough money to obtain a college degree. Miss Bunyan, who is on the staff of the Southern Association in Atlanta, called the program "the most exciting one I can recall." She came to the Southern Association this year after 15 years as guidance director of an independent school district in Texas.

Project officials hope that the program will enrich not only the pupils and schools, but the entire counties.

This hope is shared by Gordon Cook, principal of Lee County senior high school at Beattyville, who said the program "may have a profound influence on our community, and it will give the youth of our community something worthwhile to aim for."

A Kentucky liaison committee has been set up to help direct the program in the state. Its chairman is Dr. Pat W. Wear, professor of education at Berea.

The program, as now planned, will run long enough to carry six consecutive classes of seventh graders through the project. It is hoped that later the project will be expanded to other counties and continued for many years.

Governmental Changes In Constitution Plan

Frankfort—Latest developments in revising Kentucky's 1891 Constitution include the probability of more home rule for local governments and indications that the Revision Assembly is seeking opinions from qualified advisers.

The city and county subcommittees of the Assembly have given a sympathetic hearing to pleas for more home rule.

The Assembly's coordinating committee has approved in principle the future appointment of a 100-member advisory committee.

The legislative chairman of the Kentucky Municipal League, Malcolm Rhoads, Fort Thomas, told the city and county subcommittees that small towns and large cities have different problems. The voters should be allowed options in the structure of local offices, he said. Cities need to be protected from the financial burden imposed by some State laws, he added.

Some of the changes in local government being discussed include:

Merger of the prosecuting functions of the county and the Commonwealth's attorney into one office; consolidation of the jailer's and the sheriff's office; reorganization of sheriff's duties, including assignment of his tax and election duties to other offices and removal of the one-term limit; abolishing the fee system; provision for appointment of tax commissioners instead of election, and removing judicial duties from fiscal courts so that they may concentrate on the administration of county business.

Appointments to the proposed advisory committee would be made after the Assembly's work is farther advanced. Chairman of the five standing committees, however, have been authorized to call in such advisors and consultants as are felt necessary.

The coordinating committee has assigned all 266 sections of the present Constitution to study committees. The committee on health, welfare, education and corporations will meet in Frankfort November 18.

"We hope to have these children visit the college campuses over and over again during their high school years," said Dorothy Bunyan, who is in charge of field contacts for the project.

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Many of the inquiries we are receiving are from individuals who plan to retire in the near future. Some of these inquiries are:

Q. I'll be 65 in March 1965 and plan to retire. What should I take with me when I go to social security office to put in my claim?

A. Bring your social security card, a record that proves your age, and a copy of your withholding tax form for 1964. If your wife is 62 or over, she should come with you. If you have children under 18, bring their birth certificates.

Q. I'll be 62 in July and plan to begin working on a part-time basis. When should I put in for my social security checks?

A. In May.
A woman from Thelma, Kentucky, inquired:

Q. What type of record do I need to prove my age?

A. Usually any public record made a number of years ago, preferably one which shows your year, month, and day of birth. It need not be a birth certificate. Other records may be used: baptismal record, a child's birth certificate, which shows your age, or family Bible record.

A man from Epsom, Kentucky, asked:

Q. Recently I got a statement of my social security record. Some of my wages for the past two years were not credited to my account. How can I straighten this out?

A. Visit the social security office as soon as possible, or if it is more convenient contact your social security representative on the date he is in your area. Bring your withholding statements (Form W-2) for the wages not credited. If you do not have a Form W-2, bring any receipts or other evidence of wages. We'll be glad to help you get all your earnings on the record.

From Inez, Kentucky:

Q. I got a statement of my social security record and understand that I am "fully insured." Does this mean that I'll collect the maximum payment when I retire?

A. No. Your retirement check will be based on your average earnings, not just the length of time you have worked.

From Dorton, Kentucky:

Q. Why should you inquire before you retire?

A. The biggest advantage is that this gives social security an early start in processing your claim for benefits. The goal is to get your check for benefits to you at the earliest possible date.

From Hurley, Virginia:

Q. Will a person need a birth certificate before filing his claim for social security?

A. We recommend a phone call to discuss your individual needs before actually coming to the social security office. In this way you can save yourself needless effort and concern. We can also tell you what you will need. If you cannot phone, write the office.

A woman living at Jamboree, Kentucky, inquired:

Q. How soon should you check with your social security office before you retire?

A. Sixty to ninety days before retirement will generally provide enough time to best serve your needs.

A man from Hendricks, Kentucky, wanted to know:

Q. How can retirement be planned when I don't know what my benefit rate will be?

A. Use your social security office or contact the social security representative who comes to your area. The people there will be happy to furnish an estimate of your benefits.

Why Pay Twice?

You already pay taxes to support a generous federal-state medical program for those over 65 who need it. Why pay again for a plan that isn't needed?

Surprised? Chances are you never heard of the Kerr-Mills Law, passed by Congress in 1960. We call it... Health Opportunity Program for the Elderly.

This program enables individual states, with federal assistance, to guarantee to every elderly person who needs it the health care he or she requires. Thousands of people every day are being helped by its broad benefits.

Yet, the supporters of the proposed Medicare Tax would have you believe that its passage is urgent... that persons over 65 are deprived of needed medical care because they can't pay for it.

So why pay twice? Find out about the health program you're already supporting. For information on health care for the elderly in your area, ask your doctor or contact your state or local medical society.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky
By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, a Confederate States Army officer, Lt. Bennett H. Young, 21, of Nicholasville, Ky., led twenty-two other Confederate soldiers, nearly all of them Kentuckians, in an invasion of Vermont that was launched from Canada. They captured St. Albans, the largest Vermont town near the Canadian border, seized for their government $208,000 taken from three banks, and escaped across the line into Canada after a wild ride on captured horses.

The raid had been authorized by the Confederate States War Department in retaliation for the Union Army's laying waste the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, "burning, destroying, or taking away everything of value," as U. S. Maj. Gen. Wesley Merritt reported. "The Valley from Staunton to Winchester was completely devastated." Young's men attempted to start fires in St. Albans, but were not successful.

Thirteen of the Confederates were arrested by Canadian officers and $80,000 which they had was impounded. A Canadian court freed them and ordered the money returned to them. It and money carried by those Confederates who had not been arrested, amounting to the total taken from the St. Albans banks, eventually was turned over to the Confederate States government at Richmond, Va. In a second testing of the status of the raiders, some of those who had been released were arrested again and the United States sought to extradite them. A court at Montreal held that the things done at St. Albans were acts of war, and again released the soldiers.

Lt. Young and two others had arrived at St. Albans nine days before the day of action and stayed at a hotel, " casing" the place and making detailed plans. Others came in from time to time, some arriving on a train from Montreal as late as noon on October 19, the day the town was captured. At 3 o'clock, when the town clock struck, all carried out their assignments simultaneously. One man who had been taken prisoner was shot when trying to escape; he died two days later. Two others were slightly wounded. Within minutes after the clock struck, the Rebels were in complete possession of the town and had begun collecting horses on which to make their getaway.

Bennett Young after the war became a successful lawyer, author and railroad executive. In 1911 when he and his wife and daughter were in Montreal they were called upon by a delegation of leading citizens of St. Albans. He died at Louisville in 1919 at the age of 76. A bibliography published in 1958 by the Vermont Historical Society listed 93 books and articles that had been printed about the St. Albans Raid.

During the week under review a Lexington newspaper, the Observer and Reporter, suspended publication for lack of paper. A board set up by the military governor had denied it a permit to buy newsprint. It had been strongly Unionist from the beginning, but had criticized the Lincoln administration and was supporting McClellan.

MONUMENT TO BURCHETT PLANNED BY MEXICANS

Friends of Julian P. Burchett, Prestonsburg native who died in a plane crash August 3 in Northern Mexico, are raising funds to build either a landing field or other suitable monument to commemorate the life of one of Southern California's beloved pilots.

Burchett, a San Diego grading contractor, aided in founding Samaritanos Voladores de San Diego, a flying medical missionary group. It devoted itself to flying drugs and performing other missions for the isolated inhabitants of Baja California.

Vernon Wolcott, an associate of Burchett's in Samaritanos Voladores, said that Burchett flew many missions for his mercy group and was at the time of the tragedy, which took three other lives, in charge of the construction of a hospital at Colonia Cardenas in the San Quintin valley.

"Judy was known and loved all the way down the peninsula," Wolcott said. "He always had candy for the kids and good words for the adults. He did a lot of work at his own expense. He is going to be missed almost more down there than here."

Burchett, 39, was a son of the late Clyde O. Burchett and Mrs. Grace Moore Burchett, of Lemon Grove, California. He was born in Texas but his parents brought him to Prestonsburg when he was a youth. He attended both grade and high school here. He was here in July on a visit to relatives.

The story of Burchett's death struck Southern California with strong impact, so wide was his acquaintance and so well-known regionally was his good Samaritan service. The newspapers carried black headlines and seldom were there so many follow-up stories.

The plane crashed after taking off at 2:30 p.m. when its engine apparently stalled.

A dentist at Allied Gardens, Carl Tillman, was at El Rosario when the plane crashed. He was quoted widely in area newspapers.

"I knew Burchett was flying in the area although he was not on a medical trip," he said. "As I was working some Mexicans ran in to tell me of Burchett's crash."

"Some of us drove over to the airstrip," Tillman continued. "The plane's wreckage was scattered over a wide area. It looked as though everyone in the plane had been killed on the spot. The bodies were burning." The tragedy occurred at the El Rosario airstrip, the plane crashing no more than 100 yards from the end of the field. One newspaper, editorializing on the accident, said: "Samaritanos Voladores de San Diego and similar groups, such as the Flying Samaritans (Burchett's group), are performing a selfless and humanitarian service in trying to alleviate suffering, disease and hardship in Baja California. It is, as we have seen, an undertaking not without risks . . . and the crash of Burchett's plane is a sad chapter in an otherwise happy story."

TO ALL CITIZENS of FLOYD COUNTY

ALL THE IMPROVEMENTS BELOW HAVE COME TO THE FLOYD COUNTY SCHOOLS DURING THE LAST FOUR YEARS:

- Three modern, safe elementary buildings have been constructed and are being used (43 classrooms).
- Twenty-one new classrooms added to older school buildings.
- 15 old classrooms completely renovated in old buildings.
- A new vocational school at Garth where two hundred boys are trained each day.
- Construction already started on 22-room Wheelwright Elementary school.
- Sanitary sewage disposal plants provided at Betsy Layne, Wheelwright, McDowell, Clark Elementary and Harold.
- Rural school lunchroom program providing 223,000 lunches last year.
- Provided two teachers to visit homes for classes for physically handicapped children.
- Ten new contract runs and seven additional buses to improve transportation.
- Adult Education program providing training for over 200 adults.
- Seventy percent increase in salaries to best qualified teaching staff in Eastern Kentucky.
- Percentage of attendance increased to point where we gained 32,375 school child days in attendance.
- Driver training added to seven high schools.

After over a year of disunity and bickering all concerned agreed that the school children deserved these good things which come from working together. If all these improvements came through cooperation during a short period of three years just imagine how far we could travel educationally during the next three or four years.

John M. Stumbo, Billy Blair and Ross Cooley have been a very important part of the team during this period of very great improvement. We therefore wish to urge all citizens of Floyd County to rally around, vote for, and support Stumbo, Blair and Cooley in their efforts to be re-elected to the Board. Superintendent Clark was given a new four-year contract starting July 1, 1964. Let's keep the action team together so that the Great Move Forward will not grind to a sudden stop. One anti could stop the whole program. OUR CHILDREN ARE REALLY WORTH THE EFFORT.

MUSIC SERVES

Fort Knox, Ky. — Army Pvt. James M. Music, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Music, of East Point, Kentucky, completed an eight-week general supply course under the Reserve Enlistment Program at the Army Armor Center, Fort Knox, Kentucky, October 16.

Music received instruction in the receipt, storage and issue of supplies and material.

The 20-year-old private was graduated from Prestonsburg high school in 1962.

A film crew recently shot scenes of Inland Steel Company's coal mining operations at Price for a widescreen color movie, "Wonders of Kentucky." It will be distributed by Columbia Pictures to 5,000 U. S. theaters and circulated in foreign countries. Harry Foster, president of Foster Films, Inc., faces Henry Harrison, (left) assistant cameraman, and Sol Negrin, cameraman. At right are Fred B. Bullard (in white coat), of Lexington, president of the Kentucky Coal Association, and Minor Pace, of Wheelwright, general manager of coal properties for Inland Steel.

One of Eastern Kentucky's ultra-modern coal mines has been chosen by a movie firm to illustrate the role of Kentucky as the nation's No. 2 bituminous coal-producing state.

A crew from Foster Films, Inc., of New York, recently spent a day shooting scenes of Inland Steel Company's mining operations and coal preparation plant at Price. They also shot film of Wheelwright, Inland's modern mining community.

The movie, "Wonders of Kentucky" will be a 20-minute travelogue depicting the state's industrial, agricultural and recreational attractions. In widescreen color, with narration and special musical background, it will be distributed by Columbia Pictures to 5,000 U. S. theaters and will be circulated in foreign countries.

The project is sponsored by Kentucky industries and the State Department of Public Information. The Foster Films crew has been shooting scenes since last May, including the state parks, new four-lane highways, industrial plants, tobacco-growing, the Kentucky Derby and Bluegrass area horse farms.

The Inland Steel coal-mining operation embraces 31,000 acres and five mines in four counties—Floyd, Knott, Letcher and Pike. These produce each year more than two million tons of coal. About 20 percent is sold commercially and the remainder is shipped to the company's Indiana Harbor steel works near Chicago. Inland Steel employs 870 persons and has an investment exceeding $15 million in its Kentucky coal properties.

Among the scenes shot by the movie crew was the entrance to the Price No. 1 Mine, the terminus of a 60-mile network of tracks extending into four counties. Operators of the mine trains are directed via radio by a dispatcher in the central office.

Minor Pace, general manager of Inland Steel's coal properties, and Fred B. Bullard, president of the Kentucky Coal Association, worked with the movie crew. In the crew were Producer Harry Foster, Cameraman Sol Negrin and Henry Harrison, assistant cameraman. Assisting them were Henry Craig, photographer for the State Division of Industrial Promotion, and Joe Terrell, of the State Division of Forestry.

GOLDEN DAYS AHEAD WITH GOLDWATER

1. Money, real money in everybody's pocket. (Not Food Stamps, Commodities and other Dole Outs.)
2. Employment for the unemployed, cash they can spend any where.
3. Improvement Programs for our parks, rivers, streams, forests, land reclamation, rural roads, irrigation projects, general land improvement. To give our unemployed an income and at the same time help nature to provide through our improvement programs for our children and their children.
4. A Civil Rights Program that is fair to everyone, not a one-sided issue.
5. By more employment and income for everybody, we'll have more contentment and less dissension. Stop the riots in the streets.
6. Stop buying votes with tax payers money.
7. Stop so much Government intervention in private enterprise.
8. Who said Goldwater is for cutting out Social Security? He is for more and stronger Social Security. And is for more for the old aged people. They deserve more.
9. Don't be sucked in with all these gimmick schemes, which we have had since 1932. These promises only lead to false unsound Government. Real money, cash income needs to replace the dole out system. Money in every body's pocket makes a happy contented America, and that is what we want and that is what you are promised by the sound leadership of Barry Goldwater.
10. Less money thrown away in foreign lands means more money at home. Help only those countries that would help themselves and the ones that appreciate America.
11. To draw the line and deal firmly with Communism.
12. Stop the waste, make our dollar stronger by proper use.
13. Create an interest in God in our schools. Teach our children good sound moral government as we can only build a good strong nation with good children.

How about it Mr. Taxpayer? Do you want to support gimmick programs or employment improvement programs?

A LAST SERIOUS THOUGHT: Mr. Goldwater advocates at least three-man control of nuclear power. Mr. Johnson wants his finger only on the trigger, which is dangerous.

How about it Fellow Americans, shall we CONTINUE with:

1. Corruptness in Government.
2. Laxity in schools. (Moral decay—abstain teaching of God in schools.)
3. Riots in the streets.
4. The Government choking a one-sided civil rights program down our throats.
5. We are told that we cannot transact business with whom we please.
6. We are told where to send our children to school.
7. We are told how much we can grow on our farms.
8. Business is constantly harassed by government intervention.
9. Communism is constantly, silently creeping in all around us, as the present Administration believes in appeasement.
10. Bankrupting our Nation and exhausting our resources by continued waste. How could any Government Official hope to outshine a record like this?

(Pol. adv.) COMMITTEE FOR GOLDWATER

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College, Bowling Green, Ky.

D-DAY PLUS ONE
In early June, 1964, I was the special guest of the 1914 class at Western at the fiftieth reunion. Believe it or not, I had taught most of that class, since many of them took Latin under me in 1912 and 1913, the first years of my teaching at Western. Though saddened by the death of more than a third of the class, a good-sized group of us sat around a table as we ate our noontime meal and talked over old times. For many of us they were pretty hazy old times, for so many things have happened since then that the near and the far get strangely mixed.

The occasion brought back to our minds how far the attitude toward public education has come in the half century since 1914. Public colleges were still decidedly on the defensive then, and we students and teachers in a state-supported college were hardly on the top rung of any ladder. High schools were so new that thousands of our students, up until 1922, when Western and Eastern were made four-year colleges, were doing high-school work. Probably 90% of my students in my first five years of teaching were grown men and women doing high-school courses. Some counties were rather slow about establishing county high schools; some counties that I knew well put the first schools away over on the border of the county, in an enthusiastic neighborhood, but hardly within reach of very many students. Roads were mere trails then, and cars were very, very scarce. By degrees high schools grew up at most of the cross roads, but that was a long way off when I began my teaching at Western.

It would be unkind in me if I did not mention the tremendous sacrifices that were necessary for a whole generation to acquire an education that included high school and two years of college. Hundreds, maybe thousands, of my earliest students just could not raise the money or the resistance to popular apathy to stay in school until a complete college degree was in their possession. We hear a lot today about dropouts, and what we hear is true and bad enough. But I can remember, all too clearly, how the number of students leaving school without finishing anything far exceeded in percentage what is happening now. To be able to have half of one's class present on the last day of the term was, in the more elementary courses, looked upon as rather good. I have taught many classes that fell far below that lamentable average. Some of these dropouts finally managed to get back into college again and add some more credits; some were like the poet's daffodils, "ne'er to be found again." It is astonishing that some stayed on and went so far in education.

YOU KNOW HE'S RIGHT!

(An editorial in The Cincinnati Enquirer)

In the decade since he entered public life, Barry M. Goldwater has been telling the American people things that many of them have not enjoyed hearing.

For he has not seen politics as the art of misleading the American people, or as the trick of using the people's money to buy the people's votes, or as the science of manipulating public "images."

He has seen politics instead as a means of creating an environment in which man can grow.

Almost alone among the political figures of our time, he has had the audacity to suggest that man has the capacity for growth, that man has a mind and a spirit and a heart as well as a stomach.

This has represented a notable departure from the cynical diet to which the American voter has become accustomed.

For Senator Goldwater does not ask the American people to barter away one after another of their liberties in exchange for what the politicians are wont to call "security." He thinks—and so, once, did all Americans—that man has a higher purpose than to retire to a future of Federal handouts. He thinks—and so, once, did all Americans—that the American Revolution produced some ideals and principles that deserved sharing by men everywhere.

But America, we fear, has been seduced by a philosophy that is gradually hacking away at the tree of liberty. The practitioners of this philosophy long ago lost faith in the people and in the people's wisdom. Hence, they have appointed themselves to determine what the people need and what they must have. And in the process, they have, little by little, year by year, reworked the very fabric of America.

They began by "helping" the farmer. And now the farmer can no longer raise what he pleases. Indeed, he must even support a Department of Agriculture that sends planes over his property to see what he plants.

They began by "helping" the worker. And now the workingman finds himself being spoken for on a wide variety of social issues by a self-perpetuating clique of labor politicians who have forgotten what a dinner pail looks like.

They began by "helping" the businessman. And now the businessman must prostitute himself for government contracts and the forlorn hope of immunity from bureaucratic harassment.

They began by "helping" the aged. And now the retiree finds himself penalized if he earns enough to buy himself a good cigar.

They began by "helping" the restive downtrodden. And now the streets of our cities have become veritable jungles.

Is this the America we inherited?
Is this the America we want to bequeath to our grandchildren?

For daring even to ask these questions, Barry Goldwater has become the most slandered man in American political history. Arrayed against him is the whole propaganda apparatus of the Federal government, to say nothing of its allies in the "liberal" establishment.

He is portrayed as a poisoner of children, as a creature of the night-riders, as a pawn of the militarists and the warmongers.

To see the viciousness of the vilification heaped upon him is to begin to understand the desperation with which his enemies are trying to cling to the perverted political order they have been foisting upon America. Their purpose is to do considerably more than defeat him at the polls: they seek literally to crush him lest any other muster the courage to ask them to account for their sordid works.

The real issues of 1964 are far simpler than the defenders of entrenched statism would have us believe. The issues boil down to whether it is the destiny of the American people to become the servants of a leviathan state at home and to cower before totalitarian aggressors abroad.

Barry Goldwater says it is not. And in your heart, you know he's right.

This is why we believe 1964 to present one of the great opportunities in America's political history. This is why we believe Senator Goldwater's election to the presidency to be the most urgent task to which the American people can devote themselves.

AREA STUDENTS PLAN HELP TO APPALACHIA

Richmond, Ky., Oct. 18 (Sp.)—A quiet, firm counter-tide to the much-publicized losses of Appalachia is swelling steadily, led by dozens of students such as Willie Elliott, junior at Eastern Kentucky State College.

Willie has pledged himself to go back to his native Floyd county to teach, if possible in his own school, McDowell high.

Twenty-one-year-old Willie is featured in the article, "A College Education for $40 A Year," in the current (October 29) issue of Look magazine. Text and photos describe Willie at Alice Lloyd College, a privately-endowed two-year college at Pippa Passes, Kentucky, where "mountain youth are training... to help Appalachia help itself."

Willie chose Eastern for his teacher training because he felt he "could make ends meet better" on the Richmond campus. Alice Lloyd provides him with a grant; in return Willie will, two years hence, go back to Floyd county and apply what he has learned in teaching English and, he hopes, Latin.

One other man and four women students from Alice Lloyd College are also at Eastern preparing themselves to teach in Appalachia. Along with Willie, they believe education is the answer to many of the problems of that suffering region.

Jimmy Reynolds, whose family lives at Hi Hat, is majoring in social science and plans to teach high school. Mary Pat Fields from Banks, Carla Adams from Jeremiah, and Mavis Flannery, from Martin, are preparing to teach in elementary school, while Nedra Sue Amburgey, from Litter, is majoring in social science.

A missionary spirit marks all these fine Alice Lloyd classmates, according to Willie. This spirit, and their good high school records, admitted them to Alice Lloyd and, later, to Eastern.

Willie Elliott's family is typical of thousands in Eastern Kentucky counties where jobs are scarce. His father, long a miner, had to leave the area when mining jobs began to dwindle. He supports his family from Ohio, where he works as a gardener. Willie's two older sisters have

Baptist Students Set Lexington Convention; Group Head To Preside

"When Students Meet God" is the theme for the state Baptist student convention which will be held at the Calvary Baptist Church in Lexington the week-end of October 23-25. One thousand students from 22 colleges in Kentucky are expected to attend the three-day meet which opens at 6:45 p.m. on Friday, November 23 and closes Sunday noon, November 25.

State B. S. U. President Bob Vickers, a student at Eastern State College at Richmond, will preside. Students who served as summer missionaries this year on Southern Baptist mission fields will give testimonies. In conference periods, these themes will be discussed: "The Student and Worship," "What About Missions?" "Problems Facing College Youth," "Communicating Our Faith in the Academic Community," and "Student Churchmanship."

Speakers include Dr. Keith Parks of Richmond, Virginia, Dr. Jack Noffsinger of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and Dr. John R. Claypool, of Louisville.

U. S. Representative Carl Perkins, of Kentucky's Seventh Congressional District, was the principal speaker at ceremonies beginning at 2 p.m. on the camp site.

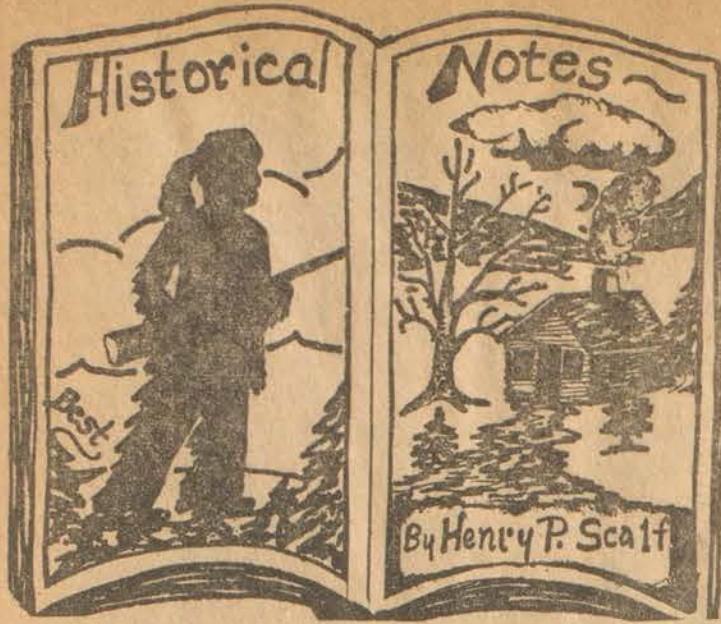

The camp will house 30 to 40 boys between the ages of 13 to 17 who have been committed to the Department of Child Welfare by state courts and found after studies at the Reception and Diagnostic Center to be mildly delinquent and most likely to benefit by the work-study-group life program and open work camp.

The first group of 12 boys, transferred from the boys' camp at Gilbertsville, have arrived at Woodsbend.

JOHN SCALF

Mrs. Elynor Holstein, Route 3, Box 553-C, Escondido, California, with whom this column has corresponded for years, sends a bit on John Scalf, Revolutionary War soldier, she picked from the 1810 Census, Floyd county.

The 1810 Census, compiled by Jonathan Mayo, lists one male under 45 years of age in the Scalf family and a female under 45. These were, of course, the parents. There were three males under 10 years, three females under 10 years, two females under 25 years.

John Scalf, who enlisted in the 10th Regiment, North Carolina Line, and served through campaigns in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York, was wounded and discharged. He married Edy Carlisle. They had 16 children.

John Scalf was a son of Lewis Scalf, who lived to 100 years, and died in Georgia.

EASTERN KENTUCKY BIOGRAPHIES

This column started to reprint biographies several months ago from Perrin, Battle and Kniffen's History of Kentucky, published in 1897. It is a rare volume and information it contains on prominent Eastern Kentuckians is a worthwhile contribution to regional history.

This week we reprint the biographies of Charles M. Parsons and Elijah Patrick.

CHARLES M. PARSONS

"Charles M. Parsons, a native of Grayson county, Virginia, was born January 21, 1847, and is a son of Caleb and Catherine (Landreth) Parsons, natives of the same state. Caleb Parsons, a farmer and stock-raiser, was a son of Solomon Parsons, a native of South Carolina, whose father came from England, but served during the Revolutionary War with Gen. Francis Marion. The ancestors of Mrs. Catherine Parsons are supposed to have been of Scotch-Irish extraction, and it is thought that the Landreths settled in Maryland with Lord Baltimore.

"Charles M. Parsons remained with his parents until 1862, in which year he enlisted in the Twenty-First Virginia Cavalry, but a year later joined the Fifty-Ninth Tennessee, and served through the war, receiving a severe saber-cut over the eye at Marion, Virginia. At the time of his enlistment, though only fifteen years of age, his physique was so well developed that he easily passed for a man who had attained his majority, his weight at twelve years of age having been 160 pounds. After the war, in 1865, he visited East St. Louis, Illinois, in 1867 he went to Kansas City, Missouri, where he attended school and subsequently taught; he then made a tour of Colorado, Mexico and Texas, and in 1870 returned to Virginia, and for two years attended school at Independence.

"In 1872 he settled in Pikeville, Kentucky, read law, and in November, 1873, was admitted to the bar. He was shortly afterward elected county attorney on the Democratic ticket, receiving a majority of 532, but declined to run at the next election. July 13, 1876, he married Miss Melissa, daughter of Samuel Cecil, deceased, of Pike county, Kentucky, and to this union were born four children, viz: Charles M., Wade Hampton, Kate and John G. Mrs. Parsons died September 6, 1885, and on the 15th of March, 1887, Mr. Parsons married Miss Minta E. Elliott, of Floyd county. In 1892, Mr. Parsons established the Pikeville Enterprise which he edited about fifteen months, securing for it a circulation of 1,500 but being unable to attend to his large law practice and his editorial duties at the same time, he allowed the newspaper to become defunct. "Mr. Parsons is now employed by a company projecting a railroad in Pike county, and gives a great deal of attention to the agitation of the question of the proposed improvement. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, is courteous and popular and is recognized as one of Pike county's most able lawyers."

ELIJAH PATRICK

"Elijah Patrick, a native of Magoffin county, Kentucky, was born April 10, 1828, a son of Meredith and Rebecca Williams Patrick, natives respectively of Russell county, Virginia, and Magoffin county, Kentucky. Meredith Patrick was born in 1804, came to Kentucky with his father and was a farmer. He served as sheriff and magistrate of Floyd county, twenty-five years. William Patrick, grandfather of our subject, was a soldier in the War of 1812, and participated in the Battle of Norfolk. His wife was Annie Rains Patrick, of Virginia. William Patrick was a son of Jeremiah Patrick, who was one of the earliest settlers of Kentucky, and died over seventy years ago. The maternal grandfather of Elijah Patrick was Isaac Williams, a farmer of Kentucky; his wife was Hannah.

"Elijah Patrick was educated in the common schools. When 25 years of age he began merchandising, which he continued until the war broke out, when he met with heavy losses. During the war he piloted Gen. Nelson from Montgomery county to Prestonsburg and stopped with him three or four days. He was in the secret service for Gen. Nelson, Gen. White, Gen. Burbridge, Col. Gallup, Col. True, and Col. Cranor, and acted as scout all through Eastern Kentucky for two years. Soon after Nelson's army had passed Mr. Patrick's dwelling, the Confederates raided it and destroyed it, and despoiled him of four thousand dollars' worth of goods in revenge for his aid to the Federal army. Mr. Patrick then removed his family to Paintsville, where his house was again raided several times and robbed of fifteen hundred dollars. Mr. Patrick also participated in the Battle of Paintsville, and at the Battle of Puntcheon against Clay, and was one of the guards who carried Clay to prison.

"In 1863 Mr. Patrick was elected to the State Senate from the Thirty-Third District of Kentucky, serving four years. He was postmaster at Burning Springs, Kentucky, from 1855 to 1861, when he resigned. After the war he engaged in merchandising for seven years, when he turned his attention to farming. In 1856 he married Louisa Rule, of Johnson county, a daughter of Andrew and Nellie Friend Rule, of Monroe county, Virginia. The following children have blessed their union, viz: Caroline, wife of Pearce Patton; Wiley, died in 1889; Kate, Ella, Fred, Bishop and Nannie. Mr. Patrick is a Republican politically, and voted for Clay and Brakey in 1850 for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor of Kentucky."
