SPEAKING OF AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1967

COURT TERM ENDS HERE

Salsbury Transferred For Trial in Clark Co.; Five Draw Convictions

Trial of Granville Crittendon, who was named in a murder indictment in connection with the death of his wife, was docketed last week in closing days of the November circuit court term for trial Jan. 22. Crittendon is free under bond.

The trial of Roy Salsbury for the slaying of Mallie Turner Denny apparently has passed from the Floyd county jurisdiction to that of the Clark county court. A change of venue was ordered a few weeks ago, and Salsbury was transferred Monday by state police from the jail here to the Clark county jail at Winchester. He also is expected to be given trial in January.

Those convicted last week: Alfred Tackett, plea of guilty to child desertion, one year, filed motion for probation; Junior Brown, assault and battery, $50 fine and 30 days in jail; Ray Bob Walters, assault and battery, $500 fine and 60 days in jail; Eva Halbert, and Eugene Allen, both charged with possession of alcoholic beverages, waived jury trial, each given 30-day jail terms and fined $20. The selling charge against Allen was dismissed.

The one-year term given Herbert Stone for breaking and entering a storehouse was probated for a period of three years.

WOUND CUT TRAINS

Washington—The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway asked the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for permission to discontinue six passenger trains, including its daily round-trip runs between Ashland, Ky., and Detroit and between Cincinnati and Washington.

Choristers, Band To Open College Christmas Season With Concert Here, Sunday

The University Choristers and Concert Band will open the Christmas season at Prestonsburg Community College with the annual Christmas concert Sunday, December 10, at 3 p.m. The program will include traditional, popular, and contemporary works.

The University Choristers, under the direction of John Mochnick, will open the concert with "Fanfare for a Christmas Festival" for mixed chorus and brass ensemble by Robert McCowen. The following selections include: "Thou Must Leave Thy Lowly Dwelling," from the oratorio, "The Birth of Christ," by Berlioz; "A Babe is Born," by Paul Bowman, and an exciting arrangement of "Carol of the New Prince," by Carl Sitton.

The second section of the program will be given by the Concert Band, directed by Gus Kalos. The selections presented will be: "Father, O Hear Me," by Handel; "All Men Now Sing Rejoice," by J. S. Bach; "Prelude and Fugue in G-Minor," by J. S. Bach, and "The Christmas

H. B. (Pat) Patrick Victim In 72nd Year; Burial Made at Ivel

Henry Bruce (Pat) Patrick, 71, former owner of the Prestonsburg Explosives Co., and a director of the Bank Josephine here for over 25 years, died Monday at the Prestonsburg General hospital after a long illness.

He was for several years distributor in this area for the Pure Oil Co., and was at one time associated with the Middle Creek Coal Company. A Veteran of World War I, he was a member of the First Methodist Church here and of Zebulon Lodge, No. 273, F. & A.M.

Mr. Patrick was born Feb. 22, 1896 at Salyersville, the (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

Welfare Recipients Say They Will Fight Reduction in Checks

Welfare recipients will carry their fight to prevent a $10 million deduction from benefit checks of 190,000 Kentuckians in the governor's office, the courts and up to Washington, spokesmen for national, state and Louisville welfare rights organizations said this week.

Their protests followed an announcement Monday by state Welfare Commissioner C. Leslie Dawson that welfare payments to needy aged, blind and disabled adults and dependent children would have to be cut because the state has insufficient revenues.

Gov. Edward T. Breathitt last month ordered a $24.1 million cut in state spending, including a $3.47 million cut in the budget of the Department of Economic Security, which administers state welfare programs.

The $3.47 million reduction "in fact will mean a $10 million cut because there is $7 million in matching federal funds. . . This is a $7 million loss to the state," according to Hubert James, a spokesman for the National Welfare Rights Organization and a former Louisville civil rights leader.

He charged that the cut, which would go into effect in January, would be taking money from people who desperately need it.

The state pays an average of $111 a month to families with dependent children, consequently their annual income would fall below the $3,000 a year designated as the poverty line for a family of four.

"We are fighting (the cut) because we're hungry," said Mrs. Anita Lawless, of Louisville, an officer in the state welfare rights union.

Mrs. Maebelle Potter, the head of the Louisville welfare recipients group, said that things like this cause riots. The governor "let the match," she said, "and we're going to spread the fire."

Although none of the spokesmen for the welfare groups announced any specific plans to fight the cut, it was learned that Louisville spokesmen for the state group are seeking an interview with Gov.-elect Louie B. Nunn.

Mrs. Lawless also said that there will probably be a statewide meeting of welfare recipients next week.

Suite," arranged by Harold Walters.

Performing for the first time will be a new pop vocal group, "The Collegiate Singers," organized and directed by Mr. Mochnick. A medley of popular songs, including "Let It Snow," "I'll Be Home for Christmas" and "It's Beginning to Look a Lot Like Christmas," as well as the traditional carol, "Deck the Hall," will be presented. "The Christmas Song" will be sung by soprano Jan Collins, accompanied by Miss Jane Webb.

The final section of the program by the University Choristers will include "A Boy Was Born," by Benjamin Britten, followed by "We'll Dress the House," by Alfred Burt, and two compositions by Mary Caldwell—"Sweet, Holy Child" and "The Crown." The concert will conclude with a robust arrangement by Henry Pfohl of "God Rest You Merry, Gentlemen."

The concert will be open to the public, free of charge, and all are invited to attend.

LACKEY MAN IS DROWNED

Jacobs' Body Found Wednesday, Ending Three-Day Search

Body of John Henry Jacobs, 29, who walked or fell into Right Beaver Creek at Lackey Sunday afternoon, was found about 9 a.m., Wednesday, approximately a half-mile downstream from where two small girls saw him enter the water.

The body was discovered by Ray Stone and Bill Gunnels. The Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad was called to the scene Sunday afternoon and continued its search of the rain-swollen stream during the two following days.

It was said that Jacobs drowned while in flight from arrest. He and a relative had engaged in a fight, and Constable Kenneth Roberts, of Garrett, had been called. Magistrate Zeb Ousley said he was told Roberts met Jacobs in the vicinity of the Lackey school and attempted to stop him but that Jacobs ran away.

From the school his route was traced along the creek bank, under the highway bridge and to a point near where Jones Fork enters Beaver Creek.

The victim was a son of Virgil Jacobs, of Garner, and Mrs. Ollie Stone, of Danville. Other survivors include the following half-brothers and half-sisters: Ancil Stone, of Larkslane, Arthur Holland and Emaline Holland, both of Ohio.

Funeral rites will be held Friday at 10 a.m. from the Stone Coal Regular Baptist Church. Burial will be made in the Lackey cemetery under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

This Town . . . That World

One of the old, hackneyed phrases is also the most ridiculous. It reads, "struggling, young newspaperman." If you'll show me a real, live, working newspaperman, young or old, who isn't struggling, and lucky to be able to struggle, I'll turn this struggle over to you.

That item you've just read (I hope) was written only because I needed a starter and didn't have one.

"KEPT ON EATING"

Did you see the TV newscast, the other evening, when "incidents" were staged by police to get the reactions of the public? In one scene, a man wearing handcuffs and giving the appearance of an escaped prisoner boarded a city bus, sat beside a woman, left without outcry or move against him. His seat-mate said she wasn't concerned. The bus driver said the man was bigger than he and that he had considered calling to a cop if he saw one—which he didn't.

In the other faked scene, a ten-year-old girl was snatched from a busy sidewalk in front of a hotel or restaurant, hustled, screaming, into a car and driven away. Passersby stared. Nobody moved to help or even to call police. One man inside the building admitted he saw the kidnapping. Asked what he did, he replied, "Kept on eating."

And this happens in a country where most folks have their noses into other people's business! But regard for the law and that priceless trait of compassion appear to belong to story-books, these days.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS

Bill Petrey says he wasn't too disappointed when he went to John Warix's home to get the key to Warix's freezer which had been promised him, only to find that the owner had taken off for Florida, thoughtfully carrying the key with him. But when he found (he says) a log-chain around the freezer and it securely locked, he began to have a sort of locked-out feeling.

THE MESSAGE

The world marvels this week at a miracle of surgical science and skill by which a new heart was transplanted into a man in Cape-town, Africa. The man, who was doomed to die if he went on with his old heart, apparently was doing well.

But doctors have their fears. His body may reject the new heart. If it does, he will die. (See Story No. 4, Page 3)

Hazelrigg Named Department Head

Governor-elect Louie B. Nunn last Friday named his primary running mate, Commonwealth's Attorney William B. Hazelrigg, of Paintsville, to serve as state commissioner of highways, the post Henry Ward held till he entered the gubernatorial race this year.

Another Eastern Kentuckian, Curtis Clark, former mayor and present city manager of Prestonsburg, is regarded as a likely selection for a top post in the new state administration. He reportedly has been considered for one of two posts—commissioner of the Department of Corrections or of the Department of Parks.

Other appointments made Friday by Nunn:

John W. (Boots) Young, president of the Louisville Board of Aldermen, as labor commissioner.

Robert W. Moore, Glasgow, a World War II pilot who shot down a dozen Japanese planes, aeronautics commissioner.

E. G. Adams, until recently a Hopkinsville bank vice-president, banking commissioner.

Warren Schweder, Lexington, director of the state Republican Central Executive Committee, was named the incoming governor's press secretary.

Appointments announced Tuesday:

Paul W. Grubbs, Louisville native, to succeed Katherine Peden as commissioner of commerce, and James Host, Lexington real estate and insurance man, to replace Cattie Lou Miller as director of public information.

James E. Lockett was retained as commissioner of revenue.

GRANT LOSS IS POSSIBLE

Cutback Could Cost College Here $31,195 Marked for Equipment

The Prestonsburg Community College was recommended last week by the state Commission on Higher Education as eligible for a $31,195.41 federal grant for laboratory and other special equipment, but the grant could be lost because the college may not be able to supply required matching funds.

This and other financial cramps for PCC and other state universities and colleges grows out of the $24.1 million cutback in state spending ordered recently by Governor Breathitt when anticipated revenues failed to materialize.

Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the community college here, said it is not known at this time how deeply the cutback will affect the college. He added that University of Kentucky officials (See Story No. 2, Page 6)

2 Doctor-Mayors Join Area Council

Two doctors who as mayors of neighboring Big Sandy valley county-seat towns have established reputations for getting things done will have leading roles in directing the Big Sandy Development Council during the coming year.

Dr. George P. Archer, mayor of Prestonsburg, was elected chairman of the board of directors of the council at a meeting in Paintsville Monday evening, and Dr. William C. Hambley, his Pikeville counterpart, was named vice-chairman.

O. J. Arnett, of Salyersville, was named secretary, and O. T. Dorton, Paintsville, treasurer.

Other members of the board of directors are the county judges of the five counties in the council—Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin—or their designees, mayors of the county-seat towns in the five counties, or their de-

Hazelrigg was defeated for the GOP nomination for lieutenant governor by another commonwealth's attorney, Thomas B. Ratliff, Pike county, who in turn lost in the November election to Democrat Wendell Ford.

Commonwealth's attorney of the Johnson-Martin county district for 12 years, Hazelrigg is a graduate of Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green, and the old Jefferson School of Law, Louisville. He was an attorney for the Veterans Administration for nine years and served on the attorney general's staff during the administration of the last Republican administration, that of Gov. Simeon Willis.

JUDGE'S WIFE AUTO VICTIM

Mrs. Sylvia T. Auxier, Mother of Floyd Man, Fatally Hurt, Monday

Mrs. Sylvia Trent Auxier, 66, Eastern Kentucky poet and wife of Judge Jean Auxier, of Pikeville, was fatally injured Monday morning when her auto and another collided on Bent Mountain curve, 18 miles from Pikeville. She died shortly afterward at a Pikeville hospital.

Mrs. Auxier, who was the mother of Michael T. Auxier, of Emma, Floyd county teacher, was the author of several volumes of poetry, including "Meadow Rue," "Love Vine," "No Stranger to Earth," and others.

Kermit Pinson, 45, driver of the second car, escaped injury. A daughter of the late Thomas J. and Dolly May Trent, Mrs. Auxier was a native of Pike county. A former public health nurse and high school teacher, she was a member of the Pen Women, Pikeville Woman's Club and the Order of Eastern Star.

Besides her husband and son, survivors are six brothers, Leonard Trent, of Burlingame, Calif., George Trent, of New York City, G. B. Trent, of Chattanooga, Fred Trent, of Canada, Ky., Virgil Trent, of South Williamson, Ky., and Aubrey Trent, of Meta, Ky.; three sisters, Mrs. Raymond May, of Grundy, Va., Mrs. Lula Stanley, of McAndrews, Ky., and Mrs. Ruth McCoy, of Huddy, Ky., and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Thursday at 1 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, Pikeville, with burial in the Pikeville Cemetery.

Wells Attends Meet Held in Washington

Among those who attended the recent U. S. Office of Education's symposium on operations analysis of education in Washington, D. C., was Randall L. Wells, of Cynthiaana, formerly of Prestonsburg.

Mr. Wells, who is supervisor, Division of Statistical Services, State Department of Education, was among more than 500 educators, statisticians, economists and others who attended the meeting.

FUNDS LOSS STALLS PLAN

For Hospital Project Here Until Next Year, Highlands Group Told

President Johnson's cutback in federal spending has temporarily stalled the move instituted here by the Highlands Hospital Corporation as a non-profit organization toward the construction of a new hospital in Prestonsburg.

L. W. True, director of the Health Facilities Program, Frankfort, last week called off the meeting scheduled Dec. 19 on the hospital proposal, pointing out that Hill-Burton funds for the remainder of the year have not cleared Congress.

The meeting will probably be held, early in 1968, it was indicated.

The Area 20 Comprehensive Health Planning Council will discuss overall hospital planning for the area, including the Prestonsburg plans, at its Dec. 13 meeting at the Starlite Restaurant at Pikeville.

Preliminary plans for the Prestonsburg hospital call for a five-story, 150-bed facility, including a 30-bed mental health unit. A site on May Branch for the hospital has been tentatively approved.

Licking River Plan Wins Board Okeh

The "trail-blazing" Licking River development project in Magoffin county cleared its second hurdle last week when it was approved by the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, and it appears actual work could be nearer than was at first anticipated.

The project now goes to the chief of the Corps of Engineers who, if he approves it, will forward it to the Bureau of the Budget and other federal agencies for their comments. If there is no hitch, the project could be ready for inclusion in the omnibus public works bill which Congress will consider next year.

The project is a $37 million dam and related channel improvements on the upper Licking River, 12 miles upstream from Salyersville. A principal idea is to provide flood protection for some 1,800 acres, making the land available for industrial, commercial and housing development.

The dam itself would cost $29 million. It would be located at a point near Royalton, forming a lake about 11 miles long, with a surface of about 1,000 acres. Remainder of the money would be spent on three small dams on tributaries of the Licking, and on channel improvement and land conservation work.

The Rivers and Harbors Board called the project "a radical departure" from past Corps of Engineers dam-building. It added a stipulation that the state govern-

Appalachian Volunteers Receive Field Funds

Appalachian Volunteers director Milton Ogle has announced the receipt of a $40,000 grant from the Field Foundation of New York.

The funds will be used in the general areas of welfare rights and economic self-help projects.

In a letter announcing awarding of the grant to the Appalachian Volunteers, Leslie W. Dumber, Field Foundation executive director, noted:

"It is our understanding, based on your proposal of last summer, that this project will, in selected localities, seek to develop community-based enterprises such as cooperatives, credit unions, and community industries; that the project will also instruct welfare recipients and persons entitled to welfare in their rights and will assist them in obtaining and defending these rights.

"Toward this end we understand you will recruit and train local residents as staff persons." Dumber is a member of the Citizens' Board of Inquiry on Hunger and Malnutrition in the United States, which held an investigative hearing in Hazard on August 22.

The franchise rate for utilities got a boost Monday when the fiscal court, at the request of the Floyd County Board of Education, changed the rate from 59.9 cents per $100 to 61.4 cents. The change, it was explained, was necessary to produce the same revenue that was realized in the 1966-'67 school year.

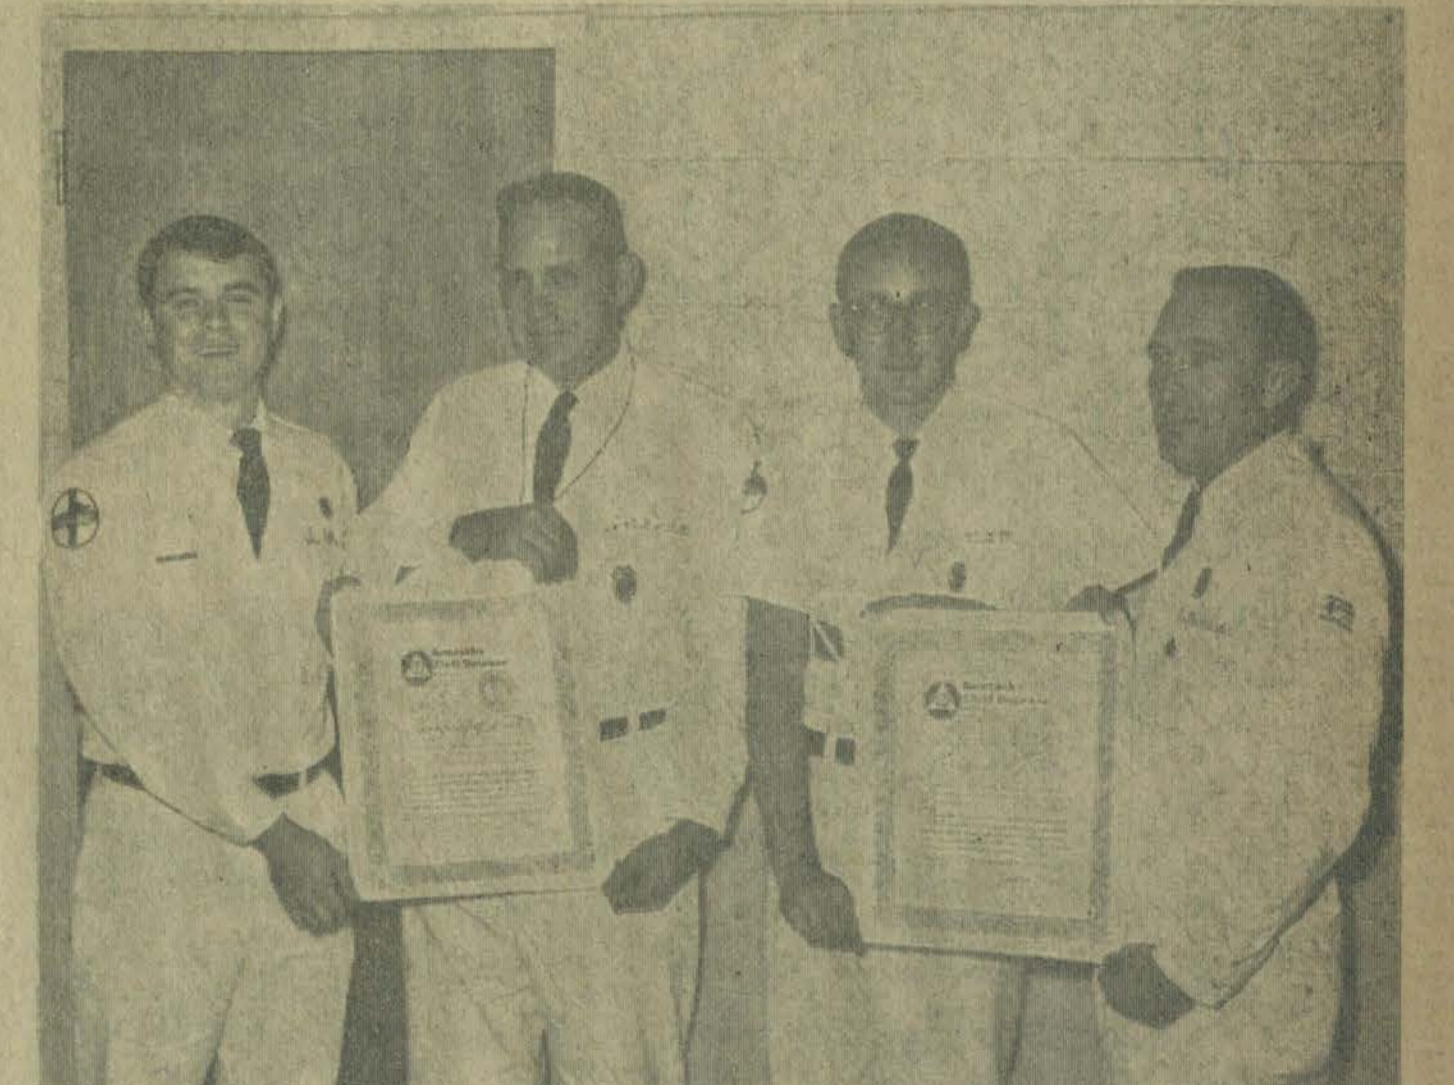

James P. Melton, assistant superintendent of instruction for administration and finance, recently notified the board that recertified public service company assessments for the Floyd school district had been reduced to the level that income from this source would be $5,555 less than that of the previous year. So the rate change was asked.

The 1966 assessment for public service companies was $37,580,088. This year, it was $37,035,936. Tax bills for these firms will come out of Frankfort.

Floyd Boys Join Group In U. K. Campus Tour

Eleven junior and senior high school boys from Floyd county joined 25 boys from surrounding counties in touring the University of Kentucky campus at Lexington recently. While on the campus the boys toured the dormitories, cafeteria, Experiment Station, experiment farms, Agricultural Science Building and library.

Attending from this county were Billy Joe Caudill and David Gibson, of Langley; Wendell Watson, of Danny Thornsbury and Steve Ousley, of Risner; Robert Beverly and Burnis Spears, of Lancer; Albert Shepherd, David; Earn-

THE PRESTONSBURG WOMAN'S CLUB'S CHRISTMAS TOUR OF HOMES and BAZAAR

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 9 (2-5 p.m., 7-9 p.m.)

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 10 (1-5 p.m.)

Homes on the Tour

Mrs. H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr. (top picture), stands on stairway of her home which was recently re-decorated in a predominantly Victorian theme. Of special interest in this home is the cutwork wood facade that makes an archway from the foyer. For Christmas Mrs. Fitzpatrick is using gold and silver to highlight her lovely antique heirlooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Burl Spurlock (center) inspect some of the items which lend a religious emphasis at Christmas to each room of their home. The home is tastefully decorated in a traditional setting for the holidays and Mrs. Spurlock has chosen to use handcrafted decorations which are meaningful as well as attractive.

Mrs. J. D. Adams (left) in her home which has recently been decorated in French Provencal furniture. The ingenious use by Mrs. Adams of a variety of handmade pink velvet roses enhances the delicate beauty of her furniture.

Tickets may be procured at any of these three homes or by contacting Mrs. L. B. Fairchild, phone 886-2801, Prestonsburg.

The old heart and certain death; a new heart offered this body. If it accepts it, the body will live. If it rejects, it will die. It's that simple. . . . Somewhere therein lies a message to a world afflicted with heart trouble.

REPORT TO HOME BASE

I've rechecked this story with Fred Francis, just to be sure nobody is misquoted.

It has to do with the young Italian who, one day, announced to his father that he proposed to go to America, the Land of Opportunity. The father agreed. America was a place where he might find fortune. Go ahead, but don't marry one of those American girls. They're lazy, they won't cook for you, or take care of your children — and, besides, they'll call you Dago.

The young man came to America, and did well. When he had paid for his home and owned a nice car and a good business, he decided to invest in a telephone call back to his father in Italy. And he reported:

"Papa, this is the Land of Opportunity. I have a good business. I own my own home, and have a good car. And, Papa, we have five beautiful children."

The old man could be heard happily gurgling about bimbos. Then he asked:

"You marry no-good American girl?"

"Yes, Papa, I married an American girl, but she is good. She cooks my meals, cares for our children, keeps the house clean. And, Papa, she never calls me Dago—except when I call her Nigger."

Pollution Problem Remains

The community initiative which is resulting in construction of a water system to serve hundreds of homes in the area from Stanville, in this county, to the outskirts of Pikeville is a splendid thing. Residents of the Mud Creek area are no less ambitious and progressive in seeking the same modern convenience for their homes.

But, good as these moves are, the mere installation of water systems does not fill a need that is companion to water. They have left undone modern waste disposal systems.

The reporting of 14 cases of hepatitis in this county within the last two months emphasizes the need of sewage disposal systems which will not only remove this source of disease from the soil but also keep it out of the streams. Modern water systems multiply the wastes to be disposed of, and in these two instances no means of meeting the urgent problem has been attempted.

Stream pollution is decreased, of course, but far from stopped by the installation of sewage disposal systems by Prestonsburg, Martin, Wheelwright and Pikeville. Other towns and villages, even scattered homes, continue to pour their sewage into the streams.

Federal and state laws have forbidden such pollution. Small communities aren't financially able to undertake the costly job of installing sewer lines and sewage disposal plants. Then the state and federal governments, either or both, must pick up the tab if their laws are to mean anything to the people at a time when waste disposal is becoming more of a perplexing and dismaying problem than ever before.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

NO DULL MOMENTS

Many times in my long life of talking and listening to people I have heard how country people used to be lonely, so shut in. Maybe some people, up some hollow or away up on the ridge, were lonely; but every day was an active one at our house. The fact that my father was the country doctor was partly responsible for this, but only partly. Our Fidelity people seemed to like each other's company; that was one of the bases of the big Sunday dinner. Cooking up a lot of good stuff, sweating over a hot stove, washing innumerable dishes—all these paid off in having people around and enjoying food and conversation. Though summers, naturally, were more active than winters, since the crops had to be grown and harvested, the food put up for winter, and the new carpets woven, winter, too, had its share of goings and comings. The good old custom of sitting (but everybody said setting) till bedtime created a fine neighborhood unity that somehow is hard to forget. Woodchoppings, barn-raising, tobacco-cuttings, wheat-threshings—just about every kind of activity, summer and winter, was a neighborhood affair, not just the work of the family alone.

Some of my friends have often remarked about the greater interest in church in those days. We went to church, of course, for it was a part of our active neighborhood life; but I am not so sure that it was any special religious duty; we liked folks and got a chance to see them in this way. And we could invite somebody to come with us to dinner; or we could be invited. There was seldom a dull Sunday with nobody to come or go. The neighborhood activities that seem, a long way off, a great evidence of charity was thought of at the time as something quite casual. Taking some food to some elderly people was a chance to make a visit, to learn some news, to get some different points of view about life. Sitting up with the sick, laying out the dead, digging the graves of our friends—all of these were normal parts of normal lives.

When the telephone finally arrived at Fidelity, along about 1904-5, a new avenue of neighborhood life was opened up. We soon got better acquainted with our own people and with folks we had only occasionally seen, as at some annual event at Sulphur Springs or at the Union Church in Fidelity when a preacher or a sleight-of-hand performer or a man with a marvelous moving-picture machine came along. For many an older person after supper hours were neighborhood hours, for a whole group could talk over the wonderful telephone, learn new jokes, tell old ones, check up on the health of our immediate community and adjoining areas. For a time some of the oldsters feared that the telephone would just about destroy our gather-

OVER HALF SCHOOL FUNDS SPENT FOR "INSTRUCTION"

Kentucky's public school districts last year used slightly more than half their total expenditures for the budget item labeled "instruction."

Data supplied by the Kentucky Education Association (KEA) research division by the State Department of Education showed 50.63 percent of the $345,059,962.26 spent by all the school systems went for instruction. This amounted to $280.06 per pupil.

Included under "instruction" are salaries of regular and substitute teachers, principals, supervisors, special and other instructional staff, secretarial and clerical assistant, and summer school staff. Also included are transfer tuition, library books and materials, audio-visual materials, tests, supplementary books, teaching supplies, and instructional travel.

The total spent for instruction during the 1966-67 school year was $174,697,270.95. The figure includes local, state and federal funds for the 200 districts in existence at that time.

with a per-pupil instructional expenditure in the state was by the Anchorage school system in Jefferson county. It spent $627.20 per pupil, nearly 2 1/2 times as much as the state average.

Ranking second in the state with a per-pupil instructional expenditure of $419.66 was the Beechwood school system in Kenton county. Third with $417.16 was the Ft. Thomas school system in Campbell county.

The other school systems among the top 15 in per-pupil spending for instruction were Lynch, $405.72; Southgate, $396.66; Louisville, $364.92; Jefferson county, $343.31; Paducah, $343.26; Owensboro, $339.81; Bardonia, $336.40; Williams-town, $335.11; Covington, $324.76; Lexington, $320.01; Elizabethtown, $314.53, and Woodford county, $309.85.

The Floyd county school system spent 50.6 percent of its total expenditure for instruction. Actual amount spent for instruction was $2,451,445.82. This was an instructional expenditure of $247.92 per pupil. Floyd county and Pike led all counties in this section in percentage of total expenditures paid to teachers.

Chinquapin To Take Place Of Chestnuts in Lake Area

Members of the Dewey Lake Fish and Game Club are trying something new in their effort to promote wildlife food and cover in this area. Bill Pettrey and Don Fitch, club members, and Harold R. Wallace and Robert L. Lum, of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, last month planted chinquapin seedlings in open areas around Dewey Lake.

G. A. Hughes, manager of the Hobbs 5 & 10 Store, produced and donated the seedlings to the club for this project. The chinquapin shrub is not to be confused with the member of the white oak family that bears the same name. The chinquapin shrub grows 15-20 feet high, starts producing nuts around three or four years after planting and provides both food and cover for wildlife. Three hundred fifty-five, one- and two-year-old shrubs have been planted to date. Another effort to establish the chinquapin shrub has been the planting of nuts, two per place, by hunters. Thirteen hundred plantings have been made in the past 18 months.

Forty-six two-year-old Cardinal Autumn Olive seedlings have been planted recently by club members. This plant was introduced in this area about two years ago by the U. S. Soil Conservation technicians on a trial basis. In states nearby that have similar weather and soil conditions, this plant was found to thrive and produce well. Cardinal Autumn Olive grows about 12-15 feet high, produces red berries in clusters for food, and the plant provides excellent wildlife cover. Berry production begins four or five years after planting. It has a beautiful pink flower in the spring and has been used in many places along roads and private lanes to farmsteads. This plant thrives quite well on strip-mined lands, it has been found.

These seedlings were grown in the backyard of Bill Pettrey here for two years prior to being transplanted.

AV Director Fires Mulloy at Meeting Here, Saturday

Acting on the recommendation of the Kentucky staff of the Appalachian Volunteers, director Milton Ogle last week fired Pike county field worker Joe Mulloy at a staff meeting held here last Saturday.

Mulloy's firing followed his statement that he expects to be drafted in the next few weeks and that he will refuse to serve in the army. He explained that this action is based on his opposition to the war in Vietnam.

Following discussion of Mulloy's stand, a staff member introduced the following resolution: "Because of Joe Mulloy's declared position on the draft and the Vietnam war and the likelihood of it being identified as a stand of the AV program, the Kentucky AV staff recommends that Joe Mulloy be fired immediately and given two months' severance pay."

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 20-19, with three abstentions, and presented to the AV director.

Ogle explained his action in a brief statement issued after the meeting: "Joe Mulloy was officially relieved of his responsibilities as an AV field man when he made known his decision to refuse to be drafted into the armed services when he is called."

"Mr. Mulloy's decision was made with full knowledge of the consequences of his contemplated actions, and it was based on his convictions about the Vietnam war. The decision was regarded by the AVs as rendering him ineffective to work with the people of the Appalachian mountains."

Last August 11, Mulloy was arrested by Pike county authorities in a midnight raid on his home and charged with sedition. He had been working with Pike county landowners in the fight to protect their land against strip mining. The AV information office at Whitesburg said investigations by the Office of Economic Opportunity and the Federal Bureau of Investigation found the charge against him to be politically motivated and groundless. Prosecution was dropped after a federal court ruled that Kentucky's sedition law is unconstitutional.

Mulloy was ordered to report for induction on Aug. 18 and appealed for reclassification as a conscientious objector. His draft board in Louisville has thus far refused his appeal (he had previously applied for occupational deferment and been refused) and he expects to receive another induction notice in a few weeks.

After the meeting at which he was fired, Mulloy released a written statement, which reads, in part:

"I have spent three years of my life working for the war on poverty in Appalachia. During this time I have seen and learned much about poverty and how our government operates. It is my considered opinion that the government of the United States is not seriously interested in doing anything about poverty or in guaranteeing a true democracy in this country. The Green Amendment, which would put anti-poverty money directly into the hands of those who prosper most from poverty, is the most recent example of the attitude of our lawmakers.

"Today I have been fired by the federally-financed Appalachian Volunteers because of my position on Vietnam and the draft. My position is that there are far too many problems, injustices and inequalities in these United States for us to play policeman of the world. If this country would only take care of its own problems, I believe that there would be no need to worry about 'isms' of the left or right . . ."

believe they will know next week what the action will mean to the university and to each of its community colleges.

As matters now stand, the college finances are pretty well frozen. "We can't order anything except on emergency basis," Dr. Campbell said.

Glenn Cowan, bursar-recorder at the college, said, soon after the fund-reduction order was made: "As of this moment, no expenditures of any nature, including travel, will be approved by this office."

The college newspaper, The Big Sandy Review, quoted him as saying a prime objective of the college will be that of eliminating all expenses that are not absolutely necessary.

The bite into anticipated funds for the college here and others of the community college system could be so deep that more than one program depending upon federal funds could be affected, since matching funds conceivably could be lacking.

will lead to more than $200 million in economic development in the next 50 years.

"The water development plan will spark the economic development of the area and aid it to become economically viable," the board said.

The lake which would be formed would have an area only 100 acres less than that of Dewey. The impoundment would extend, it is said, to a point near the mouth of the Grassy fork of Licking River, near the Magoffin-Floyd line.

THE POWER OF ADVERTISING

Eldorado, Ark. — Don Cash, owner of a photography studio, had a pair of binoculars stolen from his shop. As a joke, he put a notice in a newspaper advising the person who took the binoculars that he had forgotten to pick up the case. Sure enough, Cash got ready to close up his store the next day, and the case was gone.

High School Graduates Given Chance at Grants For Engineering Study

Kentucky high school graduates interested in a civil engineering career with emphasis on highway engineering were reminded this week of the Student Engineering Employment Scholarships available through the Kentucky Department of Highways.

According to Prof. David K. Blythe, chairman of the Civil Engineering Department of the University of Kentucky, the scholarships, awarded annually since 1948, "can continue through all four years of college."

The 30 scholarships pay eligible students $45 a month while they are in college and $293 a month as summer engineering helpers in the highway department. They are offered to high school students who rank in the upper two-fifths of their class.

Prof. Blythe estimates that the earnings from summer work, plus monthly allowances during the academic year, "should provide enough funds to cover all necessary expenses."

Scholarship students are required to work during the summer with the Department of Highways. They will sign a contract with the department covering summer employment.

Interested students, Prof. Blythe said, should write promptly if they want to be considered for the 1968 program, to Prof. David K. Blythe, Civil Engineering Department, College of Engineering, University of Kentucky, Lexington. Full information concerning application for one of the 30 scholarships then will be mailed to the prospective student.

Scholarship students will be selected on the basis of American College Test scores and their high school class standing. Final selection will be made by the University of Kentucky Scholarship Committee.

Early Diagnosis Saves Lives in Cancer Cases

Frankfort, Ky.—The State Department of Health reports that 5.4 out of every 1,000 women tested in its cervical cancer program have cervical cancer.

The report is the result of one year of operating the program. An appropriation by the Legislature for the program became effective July 1, 1966.

Dr. Donald Austin, cancer-control officer of the Department's Division of Epidemiology, says the national casefinding rate is six in 1,000.

During the first year of operation, more than 6,000 women took the Pap test in program clinics. Of 67 women whose tests showed the possibility of cervical cancer, 30 were diagnosed as having cancer, 26 as not having it, and 11 are taking further tests.

The report says that most of the 30 cancer cases were diagnosed early enough for an expected cure-rate of 100 percent.

Mrs. Conley Receives Degree at Indiana

Mrs. Lillian Griffith Conley, of Prestonsburg, is among some 2,500 fall graduates at Indiana University. She received her M.S. in education degree.

The list of degree recipients—for bachelor, master and doctoral degrees—includes 66 who received their degrees with honors.

Marathon Oil Employs 15 Morehead U. Grads

Morehead, Ky., Nov. 29 — Fifteen Morehead State University graduates in accounting, a secretary, and an administrative trainee are currently employed by the Marathon Oil Company, according to Rondal D. Hart, executive secretary and director of alumni affairs.

The secretary, Marcella Amburgey ('63), is on assignment for Marathon in Geneva, Switzerland, and the administrative trainee, David Miller ('67), was employed by the purchasing division of Marathon but is currently on military leave. He was drafted in November of 1967.

The Morehead graduates who are accountants for Marathon are:

Larry Applegate ('65), Everett Baldridge ('66), Charles Boyd ('67), Larry Cassidy ('65), E. H. Gale ('67), Carl Huntman ('65), Ron Kealey ('62), P. Kirk, Jr. ('65), B. R. Littleton, Jr. ('65), J. R. Mann ('66), Warner Manning ('63), Darrell Murphy ('63), Buford Proffitt ('67), Ken Shultz ('63), Darrell Wheeler ('67) and David Miller ('67).

Cohen's 'Hill Way Home' Reprinted by College

Pippa Passes, Ky. — A limited second edition of The Hill Way Home, a collection of poems by Alice Lloyd College assistant professor of English, William H. Cohen, has been released by the Alice Lloyd College Press.

The collection is chiefly about the Appalachian mountains of Eastern Kentucky, in which the author has taught for several years. Many of the poems have appeared in literary magazines throughout the nation.

TIPS ON INCOME TAXES

(Prepared as a public service by the Kentucky Society of Certified Public Accountants, the following offers suggestions for reducing taxes by year-end tax planning.)

Have the medical bills for you and your dependents been heavy in the 1967? It might be beneficial to make a quick calculation to determine the amount deductible on your 1967 individual income tax return.

The income tax laws permit a deduction for payment of medical expenses if they exceed three per cent of your adjusted gross income. Purchases of medicines and drugs, however, are "medical expenses" only to the extent they exceed one per cent of your adjusted gross income.

Your planning should consider any reimbursement for medical expenses you have received. Reimbursements for medical expenses paid during the year properly offset against such medical expenses in arriving at your medical expense deduction. Reimbursements for medical expenses deducted in a prior year are considered income in the year received.

If you have not paid all your medical bills, your year-end tax planning should consider whether the payments should be accelerated or deferred. If you can "bunch" your payment in one year, resulting in expenses in excess of the limitation, you will gain a medical deduction which may not otherwise have been available.

A popular and legitimate means of reducing taxes is to alternate between years in using the standard deduction and itemizing the deductions. In the year itemization will be used, payment of deductible items in December will result in a savings of income tax; while in the year the standard deduction is used, payment of items, due near the end of the year, should be postponed until January of the following year. You cannot obtain a deduction by paying for a service which has not been performed (i.e., making a prepayment of "advance payment" on medical or dental work to be performed in the following year.)

If you are considering a medical check up, new glasses, or a visit to the dentist, a quick calculation may be in order to determine if payment for such medical expenses will be advantageous this year.

Examples of medical expenses include payments to laboratories and nurses, the cost of X-rays, hearing devices, dentures, and transportation expenses relative to illness. If you use your automobile for transportation to doctors, hospitals, etc., you may use a standard mileage rate of $.05 per mile to determine the deductible cost.

One-half of insurance premiums to cover hospital and doctor bills are deductible up to $150 (if you itemize your deductions) without regard to the 3% limitation. The other one-half, plus the excess over the $150 limit, is subject to the 3% limitation.

The maximum medical deduction has been eliminated for Federal tax purposes.

One other item to consider is the likelihood of your being in a higher or lower tax bracket in 1967. Obtaining a deduction in the year of higher tax rates is the aim of tax planning.

U.K. PROJECT HELPING BIG GUN FIRE CONTROL

A University of Kentucky research project is aimed at helping the U. S. Navy modernize its pre-missile armaments in the area of fire control equipment for its big guns.

A grant from the Naval Ordnance Station, Louisville, has been awarded to two professors in the UK College of Engineering Department of Electrical Engineering.

Prof. John S. Jackson and Jon W. Petway are directing the project. They hope to develop a method for changing 60 cycle signals into 400 cycle signals.

Assisting in the research are UK engineering students Deane Blazie, Frankfort, and Rodney Cox, Louisville.

The research is expected to contribute to the Navy's program for updating the gun mount and gun fire control systems on ships. The UK objective is to adapt old control systems to the latest designed weapons.

Transistorized elements will figure prominently in the new converters to develop equipment that will be greatly reduced in size, lighter in weight, faster, and more accurate than the old mechanically-operated control devices. A further advantage is that the converters being developed at UK will eliminate many moving parts, thus adding to shock damage resistance.

Working with the UK team as liaison engineer is Carl Turner of the Louisville Naval Ordnance Station who also is working on his master's degree in electrical engineering at the University.

Big Radio Network To Carry Inaugural Of Governor Nunn

The inauguration of Gov. Louis B. Nunn next Tuesday will be broadcast on the largest radio network in the history of Kentucky. Bob Doll, executive vice-president of Radio Station WPKY at Frankfort, originating station, said that more than 80 Kentucky stations will carry the broadcast.

Inauguration day events to be broadcast will include the inaugural parade from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; the induction ceremonies from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m., and the inaugural ball from 10 p.m. to midnight. All times are Eastern Standard.

In this area inauguration will be carried by Radio Station WDOC.

In 1776, the year the American Revolution began, Kentucky was chartered as a county of Virginia.

BAKER SAYS PROPOSED ACT WOULD WEAKEN RELIABILITY

F. M. Baker, executive vice-president of Kentucky Power Company, this week described the so-called "Electric Reliability Act of 1967" as "a bad bill." He added that a more fitting title for the Federal Power Commission-proposed bill would be the "Unreliability Act."

Here again, he said, FPC's decision would be subject to Congressional hearings on the bill began in mid-November and will continue into the coming year. In the Senate the bill is designated S. 1943; in the House of Representatives, H. R. 10721.

The company's position on the bill, Mr. Baker said, is very simple: "We're against it, because it would materially impede and weaken reliability rather than strengthen it."

Mr. Baker said, "Reliability is something every electric utility aims for, and has been 99% successful in attaining. We do not quarrel with this objective of the FPC. And we agree completely with a statement made by FPC Chairman Lee White in a speech before the National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners, in which he said that the basic responsibility for meeting reliability problems rests with the industry so..."

"But," Mr. Baker continued, "under the FPC bill, the Commission would be authorized to take over decision-making in the planning, construction and operation of utility systems. We—the utility industry—cannot fairly be held accountable or responsible for reliability of service if we no longer have the authority to build the facilities we deem necessary to carry out that responsibility."

The provisions of the bill call for the establishment of regional councils, the membership of which would include representatives of every electric system in the region, including those with facilities and operations that could have no effect on reliability, he said.

The regional councils would be required to prepare plans for transmission and generation facilities in the region. These plans, which would necessarily include decisions as to the construction of generation and transmission facilities, would have to be prepared under quasi-judicial procedures requiring extended debate, the preparation of majority and minority reports, filings with FPC, possible hearings and interventions, a decision by FPC which may disapprove or modify the plans, and the further possibility of extensive court review of the FPC decision. Such procedures could extend over many years before plans and decisions could be regarded as finally approved, he declared.

In addition, according to Mr. Baker, a utility could no longer construct any transmission facilities of more than 200,000 volts unless a proposal for that construction were filed two years before it is proposed to start such construction. This construction would be held up for at least six months "after acceptance of such filing," in the bill's words, and for any additional period during which a suspense order of the Commission remains in effect. FPC would be authorized to issue such suspense orders, to call hearings on any such proposed transmission lines, to invite intervention and comments and, thereafter, to reject or modify any such proposal, extended court review, and construction of required transmission facilities could be held up during all of this time.

PHI DELTA KAPPA CHAPTER ORGANIZED AT MOREHEAD U.

MOREHEAD, Ky., Nov. 28.—A chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, a professional fraternity for men in education, has been established on the campus of Morehead State University. Making up its membership are 60 newly-initiated members and 35 who had held memberships in chapters on other campuses.

An initiation team from the University of Kentucky recently met with the candidates for admission to the fraternity and selected those who "showed unusual promise of success in career education." The UK team consisted of Elbert W. Ockerman, chairman, James Brown, Herbert Bruce, Morris Cierley and C. R. Hager.

Selected members were initiated in a morning ceremony and the charter for the fraternity was officially installed at a dinner meeting at the University's new Alumni Towers cafeteria.

Beginning in October, 1966 to organize and plan for a campus chapter of Phi Delta Kappa were the following members from Morehead, in addition to President Adron Doran, who signed the petition for admittance:

Dr. Hobart Adams, Tim Baker, Dr. Paul Borders, Leonard Burkett, Rex Chaney, William T. Clark, Dr. Marvin Cole, Dr. Milan B. Dady, Dr. Paul F. Davis, Dr. Kenneth E. Dawson, Dr. John R. Duncan, Dr. Roland Dewing, Dr. Lawrence Griesinger, Dr. C. Nelson Grote, Dr. Palmer L. Hall, William C. Hampton, Dr. Jarvis Hill, Dr. Crayton Jackson, Dr. James S. Johnson, Roger Jones, Charles L. Kincaid, Dr. Warren Lappin, Dr. James L. Latham, Jesse T. Mays, Dr. Robert C. Needham, Dr. Morris L. Norfleet, Guy D. Penny, Dr. Roscoe C. Playforth, Dr. John C. Stanley, Dr. Lawrence C. Stewart, Dr. Norman Tant, Roger Wilson, Dr. Clark Wotherspoon and Dr. Joost Yff.

Newly initiated were these members of the faculty and graduate students:

Ronald Lee Apperson, Morehead; C. J. Asbury, Flemingsburg; Reedus Back, Morehead; Charles Jerome Bailey, Maysville; S. T. Benedetto, Morehead; G. R. Burgess, Morehead; Kenneth Conn, Dana; F. H. Good prenatal care can reduce the risk of having a child born with certain defects, the March of Dimes advises in its fight against birth defects.

Many birth defects can be reduced in severity or completely corrected if detected early, says the March of Dimes in its fight against birth defects.

Damage due to defects of prenatal origin includes 750,000 born with hearing impairment, according to the March of Dimes in its fight against birth defects.

Road Mishap Fatal To James B. Hamilton, Former Martin Resident

James Butler Hamilton, 31 years old, of Ann Arbor, Mich., former Martin resident, was instantly killed Saturday in the wreck of his auto at Ypsilanti, Michigan. The accident occurred, it was said, when Hamilton's auto, a Volkswagen, skidded on a rain-slickened road and rammed into the rear of a truck.

An employee of the Fisher Body Co., at Ypsilanti, he was the son of Butler and Ceolla Hamilton, of Ypsilanti. His wife, Mrs. Eva Joann Snay Hamilton, also survives.

Surviving, besides his parents and widow, are four sons and a daughter, James Michael, James Dwayne, Gregory Butler, Jerry Ronald and Terry Ann Hamilton, all of Ypsilanti, and three sisters, Mrs. Eulene and Mrs. Vanda Ratliff, both of Martin, Mrs. Pluma Branham, of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Brenda Simms, of Ypsilanti.

Funeral rites were conducted today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. from the chapel of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home. Burial was made in the Lucy Hall cemetery at McDowell.

Included in the programs of the March of Dimes is teaching students of medicine, nursing and other health professions latest methods of treating birth defects.

Officers elected after the ceremony were:

Dr. James Latham, president; Dr. Kenneth Dawson, first vice-president; Dr. Paul Borders, second vice-president and delegate; Dr. Clark Wotherspoon, secretary; and Dr. Palmer Hall, treasurer.

Hepatitis Report Emphasizes Urgent Need In This Area

Fourteen cases of hepatitis has been reported in this county since September, and a general epidemic could develop if these outbreaks are not stopped and the sources found, Dr. Russell L. Hall, Floyd county health doctor, said Monday.

Special care should be taken at this time, because the majority of cases of infectious hepatitis has been found to occur among school-age children during the fall and winter months, he warned.

Statistics show that hepatitis occurs in cycle fashion, with peak years occurring every eight to ten years. Kentucky's peak year in the current cycle was 1961.

Infectious hepatitis is a viral disease. The disease is spread when a virus from the feces of a patient is transferred, usually by unclean hands, to another person or to some object which will eventually come in contact with a person's mouth. Epidemics have frequently been related to contaminated water, food and milk.

The beginning symptoms of this disease are similar to those of many other infectious diseases. Fever, loss of appetite, runny nose, fatigue, nausea, headache and chills are common. These symptoms may occur from 10 to 40 days after exposure to the disease. The fever usually disappears after a few days, and other symptoms may become noticeable to the patient. Often jaundice develops. This yellowing of the patient's skin and the whites of the eyes is caused by bile which escapes into the blood from the infected liver, which is greatly altered in its normal function.

Dr. Hall warns that any person having these symptoms should contact a physician immediately.

In infants and children the disease is usually mild. In older people and pregnant women, however, the disease is often more severe and lasts for longer periods of time. An adult who contracts infectious hepatitis usually requires at least six to eight weeks to recover. Treatment for hepatitis consists of bed-rest and a special diet. If a sufferer returns to normal activity too early, a relapse may occur which can be more damaging than the original illness.

Unfortunately, there is no vaccination for the prevention of hepatitis. An injection of gamma globulin may be given to the immediate household contacts, to provide immunity for several weeks.

When a serious outbreak of infectious hepatitis occurs in a school or other institution, immunization clinics are organized by the state and county departments of health to administer gamma globulin. The American Red Cross, through the State Department of Health, furnishes free gamma globulin for persons living in the same household with an infected person.

Dr. Hall said that good personal hygiene is the most important factor in preventing the spread of infectious hepatitis. Hands should be washed thoroughly after each use of the toilet and before eating. Children should be warned against placing fingers or any objects in their mouths.

Community sanitation is a very important factor in the prevention of hepatitis. High standards of sewage disposal and proper purification of water are necessary if this disease is to be eliminated, the health doctor added.

Special precautions should be taken to prevent the occurrence of hepatitis in schools, he added. Teachers and other school personnel should be acquainted with the early symptoms of the disease in children. If hepatitis is suspected, parents should be encouraged to have the children examined immediately by a physician.

Available at the Floyd County Health Department are two pamphlets dealing with infectious hepatitis. "Infectious Hepatitis or a Case of Yellow Jaundice" presents general information and offers suggestions for prevention.

Inez High Student Dies, Youth Arrested In Fatal Altercation

A sophomore at Inez high school died late Saturday night at a Huntington hospital of a head injury sustained in an altercation last Tuesday.

The Martin county sheriff's office identified the victim as James Russell Booth, 16. He was a son of Buddy Booth, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Minnie Harmon Funk, of Columbus, Ohio.

The sheriff's office reported that young Booth and another sophomore at Inez high school had engaged in a fist fight on the schoolyard during halftime of a basketball game Tuesday between Inez and Blaine high schools in the Inez gymnasium.

A sheriff's office spokesman said a 15-year-old Inez student had been arrested, but that no formal charges had been made.

According to reports, the Booth boy struck his head on the black-topped schoolyard during the struggle. He was taken home by an uncle that night, but on Thursday was admitted to the hospital.

Born in Johnson county, young Booth made his home at Inez with his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Harmon.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the Inez high school gymnasium by the Rev. Quentin Crum. Burial was in the Harmon cemetery at Pilgrim, Ky. Members of the Inez basketball team served as pallbearers.

Other survivors, all from Columbus, include two half-brothers, Chris Funk and Edward Funk; a half-sister, Patricia Funk; three step-sisters, Barbara Ann Funk, Nancy Funk and Karen Funk, and the stepfather, Bob Funk.

Mrs. Stephens Honored On 93rd Birthday

Mrs. Jane Stephens, of Cliff, was twice honored last week on the occasion of her 93rd birthday. Friends and relatives joined her at her home Wednesday evening at a birthday dinner prepared by her daughter, Mrs. Frankie S. Best, and she was remembered with many gifts. On the following day, which was her birthday, Bill Barker, of Radio Station WSP, Paintsville, renewed his annual custom of having a radio birthday party for her. His telephone conversation with her was a part of the broadcast. This is a highlight each year in the life of Mrs. Stephens, who is blind and crippled by a broken hip.

Attending the birthday party at her home were Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Baldrige, Donald Baldrige, and Mrs. David W. Allen, of Prestonsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Baldrige and Mrs. Annie Hale, West Prestonsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Blackledge and children, Jimmy and Andrea; and Mrs. Bess Wells, of Auxier; Mr. and Mrs. Gene Stanley and Glenda, of Lancer; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Baldrige, Jr., East Point; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lum and children, Maria and Richard; Cledis Beverly, Mrs. Ella Vaughan, Frankie Best and Stephen Best, of Cliff.

An estimated 15 million Americans of all ages have one or more birth defects that affect their daily lives, says the March of Dimes.

STRIP MINE REGULATIONS HEARING SLATED TODAY

A hearing on tougher new strip-mining operations has been scheduled for today (Thursday) by the Kentucky Reclamation Commission.

The purpose of the regulations, said Natural Resources Commissioner J. O. Matlick, is to help avert landslides.

He invited all active strip mine operators to attend the meeting.

The changes will include: Allowing only auger mining on slopes steeper than 33 degrees. Presently, stripping and augering is permitted on slopes up to 33 degrees.

Hospital Promotion Received by Napier

Gregory E. Napier, formerly of this county, who has been assistant administrator of University Heights Hospital, Indianapolis, Ind., was recently promoted temporarily to the position of administrator.

He is the son of the late Alonzo and Ra Perkins Napier and a brother of Mrs. Lafayette Gayheart, of Garrett, and Mrs. Haulley Conley, of Prestonsburg. He was graduated from Garrett high school, class of 1955.

The March of Dimes supports research in outstanding laboratories and institutions to determine why birth defects occur and how they can be prevented.

Frank Ned Owsley Dies at Wellington, O.

Frank Ned Owsley, 44, Wellington, Ohio, died Nov. 21 in Elera Memorial hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Owsley had lived in Wellington for the last 12 years. He was born at Lackey. He was a welder for Sterling Foundry and was a member of the Free Will Baptist Church of Wellington.

Surviving are his wife, Bernice Owsley; three children, Ellis, John and Kathryn Owsley; two brothers, Russell Owsley, Sullivan, Ohio, and Walter Owsley, Nova, Ohio; four sisters, Mrs. Rhea Rhodes, and Mrs. Margaret Gibson, both of Slagle, W. Va., Mrs. Ruby Crisp, Estill, and Mrs. Ruth Lafferty, Hamden, O., and his mother, Mrs. Susan Owsley, Estill.

Funeral services were held Nov. 24 from the Free Will Baptist Church, Wellington, the Revs. Sam Terry and John Jeffery officiating. Burial was in Greenwood cemetery.

Patton Elected Head of Sportsmen's Group

Charlie B. Patton, of Langley, was named president of the Floyd County Fish & Game Club at the club's annual election of officers and directors this week. Other officers elected:

Arnold Workman, Prestonsburg, vice-president; Ira E. Stephens, Langley, secretary; Paul Spencer, Langley, treasurer.

The board of directors is composed of Thomas R. Flannery, fish propagation; Ray Prater, game propagation; T. A. Combs, forestry; Miles McGarey, archery. All are residents of Langley.

A meeting of officers and directors has been called for 7 p.m., next Monday, at the home of Ira E. Stephens.

The club announced that it plans a start next spring on its clubhouse on its Johns Branch property, near Langley, and that completion of the building is expected before next year's fish fry. Junior Conservation club members hold rifle practice at the farm each Saturday under the supervision of Bernard Baldrige, Seventh district junior conservation director.

Turkey shoots and the skeet range will continue there each Sunday through Dec. 24.

The first $100 reward offered by the club for the arrest and conviction of any person guilty of killing a deer illegally was recently paid in a Beaver Creek violation, and the club will continue the reward offer, it was announced.

Membership cards for 1968 are now in the hands of members, and a number of boys and girls are soliciting memberships, working for a free trip to the junior conservation camp next summer.

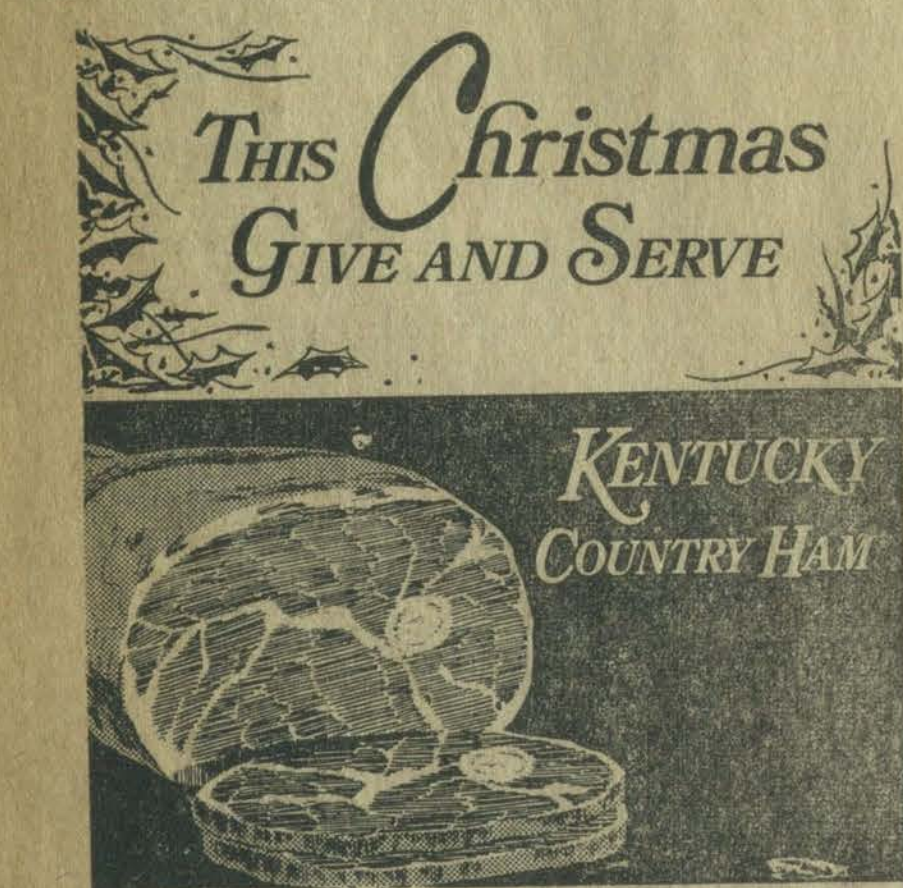

Continuing its wildlife program, the club announced it will supply grain for the feeding of birds this winter. Conservation Officers Mead and Conley reported at the meeting that rabbits appear to be more plentiful this season than last but the supply of quail shows little difference.

The annual attendance prize, a Johnson Century reel, was awarded to Conservation Officer Dalton Ray Conley.

McDOWELL WINS MEET

In 82 to 81 Squeaker Here Saturday Night; Tourney Nets $3,179

The McDowell Daredevils evened the score with Maytown's Wildcats here Saturday night in the annual Floyd county Pre-season tournament by defeating the Cats, 82 to 81.

A week earlier, Maytown had edged McDowell in the Wheelwright Invitational, also by 82-81.

In the championship game here Saturday McDowell came back from a 39-37 deficit at halftime to take a 57-54 lead at the end of the third quarter, with the issue hanging in the balance through the final period until the gun fired to end the struggle. Tom Martin and Sam Adams paced the winners with 26 and 25 points, respectively, while Maytown's guard, Randy Chick, hit from all angles to amass 37 points.

The tournament was played for the benefit of the Floyd county annual fund. It grossed $3,910, and the annual netted $3,179—approximately $600 more than a year ago. The Jenny Wiley Invitational, held here a week earlier, drew a $4,000 aggregate gate, and the Wheelwright Invitational had a gross of $3,723.

Other results of the Pre-Season tournament:

First Round
Garrett 79, Martin 66
Maytown 75, Betsy Layne 45
Second Round

Mrs. Avie Thompson Succumbs at Age 54; Funeral Held Sunday

Mrs. Avie Thompson, 54, of Garrett, died at 10:50 p.m. last Wednesday at an Ashland, Ky., hospital. She had been in failing health for some time.

Born March 5, 1913, she was a daughter of the late Craner and Maudie Collins Isaac. Her husband, Ivan Thompson, also preceded her in death.

Surviving are two sons, Gilford and Elva Smith, both of Detroit, Mich.; four brothers, Raymond Isaac, of Topmost, Millard and Lenville Isaac, both of Lima, O., and Mulkie Isaac, of Michigan, and two sisters, Mrs. Grace Harris, of Willard, Ohio, and Mrs. Delilah Jenkins, of Garrett.

She also leaves 10 grandchildren. Funeral services were held Sunday at 10 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Hattie Mosley on Jack's Creek near Bevinsville, ministers of the Regular Baptist Church officiating. Burial in the Buckingham cemetery was directed by the Merion Funeral Chapel.

By TED KESTING

What type of tackle for the novice fisherman?

Nearly all beginners now start fishing with spincast or spinning reels. A spincast is easiest and quickest to learn with—and except where extreme distance may be needed, it is excellent for fair-size bass and larger fresh-water fish.

An open-faced, under-rod spinning reel, which takes just a shade longer to learn to use well, is better for casting (with properly light line) the tiny lures that are best for trout of the size commonly found now—and the same little lures, used with it, will nearly always get you more crappies than will live bait, flies or anything else. It will also, with bigger bass plugs and such (and a heavier line—but no heavier than you must use), give more distance on the rare occasions, mainly in casting from shore, when distance is really useful.

Most anglers begin with a cheap "solid-glass" rod, which serves well enough and is almost unbreakable. But one who fishes much should soon progress to a rod of tubular glass, which can have much better action (and which will break if you don't treat it with reasonable respect).

For bass, easily the favorite game fish of Americans, and most other fresh-water species of similar or larger size, casting tackle is much the best. It gives most accuracy, and most control over both the lure and the fish you're playing—and also most distance for one who becomes really expert with it. But to use it well and comfortably calls for a lot more practice than does either spincast or spinning.

Fly fishing is admitted by all to be the last word in skillful, graceful, artistic angling, observes Jason Lucas, Angling Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. Experts regard it as the standard thing for trout in ordinary streams or rivers — though as even most of them admit, spinning tackle is generally more practical for trout in lakes.

Fly fishing is usually the most productive method for bluegills, as well as giving the most sport by miles. Fly fishing almost invariably catches most bass, though not the biggest ones, when they're feeding shallow—and it gives much the most sport with these too. When they're rather deep, it is more practical to change to casting or spincast gear.

No fisherman should be afraid to progress to fly tackle. In spite of what most think, it is actually easier to learn to use than casting tackle if—and this is a mighty big if—you get some good printed instructions, with diagrams or photos, and follow them exactly.

WHAS-TV COLOR FILM STUDIES ALC PROGRAM

WHAS REPORTS (Channel 11) examined the unique educational program of Alice Lloyd College at Pippa Passes, in a television program at 10 p.m., November 28.

WHAS News Director Jay Crouse and cameraman Bud Harbsmeier spent three days on the Alice Lloyd campus, interviewing school officials, faculty, students and former associates of Alice Geddes Lloyd. They shot more than 3,500 feet of color film preparing the WHAS special.

Crouse and Harbsmeier toured Eastern Kentucky counties, visiting representative schools to determine the impact the college has had on education in the area. One visit was to Lloyd Stumbo, principal of McDowell schools. Stumbo, a 1937 graduate of Alice Lloyd, reports that 90 percent of his faculty are also alumni of the college. The McDowell school has 1,084 students in 12 grades.

Alice Geddes Lloyd, a Boston newspaperwoman, came to Eastern Kentucky in 1916. She found a land populated by descendants of men who fought in the Revolution—proud Americans whose average income was then less than $25 a year. Only two out of every 100 people in the hills around Knott county's Caney Creek could read or write. Neither Floyd nor Knott county had a public high school.

Mrs. Lloyd first started a school, later a high school. In 1923, just six years after she came to Caney Creek, she founded a college to educate the leaders she knew were in the hills. First known as Caney Creek Junior College, the school was renamed after Mrs. Lloyd died in 1962. Its alumni now include 1,500 teachers, 21 engineers, 25 lawyers, 16 physicians, ministers, nurses and farm agents. Ninety percent of the graduates go on to complete their educations—often with Alice Lloyd scholarships—at four-year institutions.

Alice Lloyd College is now planning an expansion program that will cost an estimated $2.5 million and will run until 1970. Completion of the planned building program will enable the school to boost its enrollment to 800, against the present just-under 300. The school receives 1,500 applications for admission each year.

"WHAS Reports: Alice Lloyd College" told the story of a school founded by a frail New Englander, with the purpose of training future leaders and the dedication to carry out that purpose. For 50 years, the college has provided leaders and educators in the mountain area.

One freshman explained the serious attitude of the students very simply: "I don't care how many poverty bills we have, if we leave it's all no good. If the people in this region want help, they're going to help themselves. They've given me a chance to get an education, and I intend to pay it back."

Jackson, Ky.—A Breathitt county deputy sheriff, Irvin Clemons, was listed in fair condition yesterday following a shooting fracas late Sunday that claimed the lives of an elderly couple. Killed were Osa Carter, 64, and his wife, Melissa, 68, of Van Cleve. Police said the couple was fatally wounded during a struggle over Clemons' gun.

Pond Being Completed

A farm pond, under construction on the Ike Fitzpatrick farm on Middle Creek, is scheduled for completion this week.

Primary purpose of the pond is to provide water for livestock; however, it will be stocked with bass and bluegill to furnish family-type recreation.

The impounded area will be fenced and a watering tank will be attached to a 1 1/4-inch pipe through the pond fill. This is another practice applied through the Middle Creek ALSCP Project. The fish will be supplied by the Department of Fish & Wildlife; cost-sharing, by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and the plans and designs furnished by the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

Damage due to defects of prenatal origin includes four million Americans with diabetes, says the March of Dimes in its fight against birth defects.

Gripes, Praise Tape-Recorded For U. K. Prexy

University of Kentucky students on the Lexington campus have prepared a unique Christmas gift for UK President John W. Oswald this year.

An ad in "The Kentucky Kernel," the student daily newspaper, offers UK students, faculty and staff the opportunity to put on tape any "criticism or praise, gripe or comment that you would like to put in the Head Man's ear."

The announcement assures readers that "these tapes will be suitably wrapped and presented to Dr. Oswald.

"He wants to know what's on everybody's mind, but the size of the University makes person to person conversations impossible."

THREE GOVERNORS

At the turn of the 20th Century, Kentucky had three governors within a short space of time. William S. Taylor, sworn in as the state's 34th governor on Dec. 12, 1899, lost the post in an election contest by the legislature to William Goebel on Jan. 31, 1900. J. C. W. Beckham succeeded to the governorship upon the death of Goebel who died from an assassin's bullet on February 3, 1900.

Birth defects account for almost three million mentally damaged individuals in the U. S., according to the March of Dimes in its fight against birth defects.

Second Sunday in Advent — Dec. 10, 1967:

9:40 a.m. Sunday School and Adult Education classes.
10:30 a.m. Worship — The Order for Morning Prayer. This Sunday's sermon, "His Mark Upon Us," concerns the waning of Christian Baptism, and is the second message in the series, "Preparing Him Room" — thoughts guiding us toward a more spiritual and joyous Christmastide.

Refreshments follow the service. Put first things first—worship God in the church of your choice this Sunday. "Prepare ye the way of the Lord; make straight in the desert a highway for our God."

By RUFUS M. REED

BY VIOLENCE THEY DIE

A bad enemy of the flicker is the pilot blacksnake, which watches for the young to get just the right size for swallowing, then he climbs up and devours them—a whole nestfull of flickers at one gorging.

It seems that all such predators which live by violence often die by violence. An old outdoorsman once told me about seeing this happen in a most dramatic way.

"One spring when I was fishing on the Big Sandy River," he relates, "I became devoted to a family of flickers and enjoyed watching them while I sat fishing. Above the fishing hole stood a dead hemlock tree some sixty feet high. Its top had been broken off by a windstorm and most of the dead bark had slipped off in time, leaving the trunk half naked.

"One fine day in May I saw a pair of flickers drilling a hole in the side of the old snag, near the top. Pieces of doty wood showered down while I sat fishing. The next time I went back about a week later, I saw those flickers had finished the hole and made their nest inside it. I could see the head of the female flicker sticking out and I knew she was incubating her eggs. I got interested in watching her and next time I went back to fish I saw her little ones had hatched out; she was flying out over the countryside looking for worms, ants, bugs, anything she could find to satisfy their hunger. How fast did those young birds grow. In a week or so they had grown large enough to stick their heads out of the hole to watch for their mother. When they'd see her coming with food they set up a noisy crying but she knew which one's turn it was to be fed.

"One day when the young flickers were beginning to feather out, I went back to the fishing-hole and soon found out something had gone wrong with the flickers. I heard the startled cries of the mother bird and saw her circling about the dead tree. I ran on to the fishing hole and tried to see what was causing the trouble. Pretty soon I found out. A large pilot blacksnake began to ease his long body out of the hole. He slithered out slowly, moved onto a dead limb and stretched out full length, to enjoy his big meal. He was stuffed full of young flickers.

"I never got so mad in all my life. I had watched over that family of flickers all spring and to think that this blamed snake had sneaked there while I was away and swallowed them all made me mad enough to tear him to pieces.

"You beast!" I stormed out at him. "I wish I had my rifle handy!"

"I grabbed up some rocks and tried to knock him off the dead limb but my arm lacked the strength to do that. So I sat down and tried to figure out what to do. I meant to fix that snake. I knew the rascal would be gone into the tall timber by the time I could go to the house and get my gun.

"Suddenly as I sat there stewing I saw some pieces of dead bark falling down from the limb. The snake was stirring and stretching out his overloaded belly. Suddenly the bark slipped loose under his body, then snake and bark both fell. The long, slim body of the big snake changed ends several times as it plunged down. The body thudded on the top of a large rock and the snake lay writhing in agony. I ran over, intending to stomp him to death. But I soon saw that wasn't necessary. The snake had been so full of young flickers his body burst open when it landed on the rock.

"The little flickers spilled out while I stood there looking on. I picked up a stick and tossed the dying snake into the river. Then I turned to look for the mother bird. She was circling about the old tree, crying loudly. There would never be any answer to her cries. The big snake had lived by violence and had died in the same fashion.

Eerie Group of Monuments Among World's Strangest Memorials to the Dead

An eerie procession keeps weird watch over a single grave in Mayfield, Kentucky.

There, in Maplewood cemetery, are the Woodridge Monuments, one of the world's strangest memorials to the dead. For more than 50 years, visitors to Mayfield have paused at the cemetery to gaze at the odd assortment of 16 statues, all facing the same direction, seemingly frozen in the midst of a ghostly walk.

Every small town has had its eccentric personality, and Mayfield's was a bachelor gentleman, "Colonel" Henry Woodridge. An energetic man of aristocratic background, Woodridge was an avid hunter and sportsman and made a good living trading horses. In spite of such lively interests, he was preoccupied with death. In his later years, he determined to be remembered after passing on.

About 1892, he bought a plot in the local cemetery and erected a tombstone—a handsome shaft of marble carved with his name, date of birth, a Masonic emblem and the figure of a horse. It was the first of a series of memorials that would include figures of himself and the persons and animals he had loved.

When the Colonel died at the age of 77, he had purchased his coffin and burial robe, erected more monuments, and spent several thousands of dollars to assure his lasting memory.

The group of statues includes a standing likeness of Woodridge and another of him astride his favorite horse, "Fop." Behind these are placed the figures of his three sisters, and three of his brothers are before him. His father and mother, two small girls, a grand-niece and dear little girl friend, stand nearby. Caught in action forever are his foxhound, "Bob," chasing a stone fox, and "Tow Head," his beloved deerhound, at the heels of a fleeing deer. In the midst of this unusual aggregation is the Colonel's grave—a vault above the ground, topped with a marble slab that bears a carving of his trusty gun.

The people of Mayfield watched the growth of the immortal parade with great interest and much speculation. This seems natural, for Woodridge made a number of curious decisions in the execution of his outdoor "Hall of Fame." Even though he was determined to have lasting monuments of his loved ones, he was very offhand in his instructions to his stone cutter. When ordering the statue of himself and "Fop," he provided no more details than that his horse, long dead, was to be 15 hands high and well-proportioned. He did not even go to the cutter's place of business to confer with the man, sending only an old, faded tintype of himself as a guide for the life-size statue.

The stone faces of his sisters and brothers are all very much alike, thus giving rise to the tale that one of the women was modeled after the love of his youth, a fiancée who was accidentally felled in a fall from a horse.

Other tales about the unusual man and his monuments, whether true or not, are further proof that the Colonel succeeded in his aim—he has not been forgotten by the residents of Mayfield or its visitors.

Coal Age Editor Cites Surface Mining Challenge; Code of Ethics Adopted

Alfred E. Flowers, editor-in-chief of COAL AGE magazine, addressed 50 members and friends of the Surface Mining Division of the National Independent Coal Operators Association (NICOA) at a dinner meeting held over Thanksgiving week-end at Hazard.

The occasion marked the first formal meeting of the group and witnessed the adoption of a Code of Ethics which will govern the behavior of members of the group. In attendance were state representatives Everett Akers (D., 99th Dist., Floyd county), James C. Justice (D., 93rd Dist., Pike county), and Senator Francis M. Burke (D., 31st Dist., Pike county).

Chairman of the event was Jack Trimble who represents the James Hatcher estate and serves as secretary-treasurer of the new division. He introduced Robert Holcomb, president of NICOA, who read the proposed Code of Ethics, which was unanimously approved.

A significant section of the code pledges members not only to cooperate with the Kentucky Division of Reclamation but also to assist in the prosecution of surface-mine operators who do not conform to state conservation and reclamation laws. A final clause of the code declares that any member who does not comply "... will not be considered a member in good standing—and not be entitled to the benefits and rewards of the association."

Flowers congratulated the Surface Mining Division members for forming a business trade association to act as spokesman for this increasingly important segment of the bituminous coal industry centered in the Eastern Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee coal fields. He then briefed the audience on the present and projected production of coal, and expanding markets for the commodity and anticipated competition which may be expected from nuclear energy. On this latter point, Flowers noted that the best industry statistics available suggest that, as far ahead as 1980, nuclear energy is expected to account for the generation of only 33 percent of electrical power used for all purposes.

"In the past," Flowers observed, "the extractive mining industry has survived upheavals caused by unionization and mechanization; today, the challenge is conservation. As an industry, surface mining is of significant economic importance. As individuals,

I think you realize this economic importance must be matched by a social awareness of the consequences of your work. Social consciousness demands conservation and reclamation efforts."

Flowers cited the excellent example of reclamation achieved at Hazard where attractive and modern private housing occupies the mountaintop overlooking the town, a site which was strip mined in the 1940's. "In 20 years," he said, "this situation will probably be duplicated a hundred times within a one-hundred-mile radius of Hazard."

The speaker urged the surface miners to exchange information about reclamation with other mining associations in the West and Midwest and invite newspaper editors, government, business, fraternal and school groups to visit locations they have reclaimed after surface mining.

Prediction: people who buy Volkswagen Station Wagons will have it soft in 1968.

For the last 17 years, Volkswagen has been making a big, tough, never-say-die station wagon.

Which could grind out up to 23 miles on one gallon of gas. And take in over 176 cubic feet of whatever you wanted to carry.

Yet in spite of all that, certain people have been avoiding the VW Station Wagon. There's no need to mention names. You know who you are.

And we know why you've been avoiding our wagon.

Because driving it was something of a big, tough, never-say-die experience. The fact is, our wagon lacked luxury.

Okay, all you people. Get ready for a surprise.

We have taken the VW Station Wagon and padded the stuffing out of it. We've put extra padding on the armrests, the dash, the front of the ashtray, even the window crank knobs. And if our wagon can't exactly be called a bed of roses even now, it can at least be called a seat of them. (We went somewhat crazy with padding in that particular area.)

Then we put in 6 ventilation ducts all over. (You'll be able to give yourself airs if you own a new VW wagon.)

We also added a whole new suspension system underneath. (It'll be easy come, easy go, all the way.)

And with all of that, the new bus for sofies still has the old bus' hardy virtues.

So 1968 should be a good year for all you people who love your comfort. You've been going without the Volkswagen Station Wagon's wonderful gas mileage and storage capacity for a long time.

But you don't have to deny yourselves anymore.
