Old Christmas in Italy Almost Like Back Home For Floyd County Man

Thiene, Italy — Army Master Sergeant Curtis Kendrick, son of James C. Kendrick, Prestonsburg, Ky., went with other members of his unit to the Chiesotti Orphanage in Thiene, Italy, to help the children celebrate the Feast of the Epiphany.

Sgt. Kendrick is assigned to Headquarters Company of the Supply and Maintenance Group, Southern European Task Force, Vicenza, Italy. This unit sponsors the orphanage, taking them presents and useful items each Epiphany. Money is donated by the men of the group every month for needed items.

Italian children traditionally receive gifts on Epiphany, the anniversary of the day the Magi gave gifts to the Christ child, rather than on Christmas Day. Instead of Santa Claus, the good witch Befant rides her broom, January 6, to bring the gifts.

Sgt. Kendrick, chief supervisory noncommissioned officer, entered the Army in 1945 and was last stationed in Vietnam. He has received the Bronze Star Medal. The sergeant, whose wife, Giovanna, is with him in Italy, is a graduate of Prestonsburg high school.

TEACHER-TRAINING PLAN SET FOR EAST KENTUCKY

The Office of Education has approved a grant of $375,000 to conduct a training operation for school teachers in Floyd and 17 other counties of Eastern Kentucky, Congressman Carl Perkins announced last week.

The program, which is expected to touch 816 teachers directly and have a future effect upon the instruction given 90,000 pupils, will cover 28 public school districts and nine non-public school organizations.

The money will be spent for consultants, for administrators and to employ substitute teachers for the periods during which the regular school teachers are attending workshop and study courses.

Much of the work on the program will be conducted through educators at Morehead State University through its Breckinridge Educational Laboratory.

The purpose of the operation is to discover the new fields of teaching. Preliminary work will be done by a team of consultants which will find out what special courses each faculty would like to pursue. One faculty might elect to concentrate on an elementary science program which the schools of the area had never had before.

In that case, a consultant from a district in some other part of the country where the science course is already being taught would be brought in to conduct a workshop for teachers from all districts interested.

An adjoining district might elect to concentrate on pre-school education. In that case, the workshops could serve the two areas simultaneously.

School superintendents in the 18 counties are hoping that several faculties will be interested in a non-graded program for the first, second and third grades. There is no such program in the area and only three school systems in Kentucky have taken it up.

Under the ungraded system, each pupil is advanced as rapidly as his or her ability and work habits justify. There is no formal promotion at the end of the class year, no holding back of those who do not keep up.

Although the school officials of all 18 counties have played an active part in setting up the program, the Office of Education is making the grant to the Paintsville Board of Education.

In addition to Floyd and Johnson, participating counties are Bath, Boyd, Carter, Elliott, Fleming, Greenup, Lawrence, Lewis, Magoffin, Martin, Mason, Menifee, Morgan, Pike, Robertson and Rowan.

Carlos Branham, George Burchell, Jerry Lafferty, Jr., and Robert DeRossett

Otto Spears and Alex Hyden, both of West Prestonsburg, are shown working on a mobile materials laboratory for the Floyd county school system. Their efforts are a part of the Work Experience and Training Program which has developed skills of the unemployed fathers in Floyd county.

Charlie Prater and Clinton Fraley, participants in the Work Experience and Training Program for unemployed parents of Floyd county, are shown laying flooring on one of the buildings in Archer Park, West Prestonsburg. Nello Francis, county project supervisor, is seen in right background.

County Project Supervisor Nello J. Francis, Dr. George P. Archer, mayor, and City Manager Curtis Clark, of Prestonsburg, view work done on Archer Park, West Prestonsburg. The planning and drive for the project have come from Dr. Archer and Clark, with the cooperation of County Judge Henry Stumbo. The labor has come from Work Experience and Training Fathers, largely, and is one of the most dramatic examples of such work in the 19-county project.

ARCHER PARK HERE OFFERED AS A PRIME EXAMPLE OF EFFECT OF 'UNEMPLOYED FATHERS' PROGRAM WORK IN FLOYD COUNTY

Quietly, the face of Floyd county is being changed by the men of the Work Experience and Training Program, says the Kentucky Department of Economic Security.

State Economic Security Commissioner C. Leslie Dawson pointed to the broad range of results from the program as an indication of its worth, both to the county and to the men and their families.

Here are some of the specific benefits brought about by the work experience participants in this county:

Some 20 miles of forestry trails were cut and maintained. More than 374,000 trees were planted and 800 pounds of seeds were sewn on spoil banks and hill-sides.

In highways, 13 miles of primary and five miles of county roads were built and 547 more were repaired. The fathers cleared another 600 miles of right-of-way in this county alone.

Retaining walls were built, too, including 2,850 feet along secondary and county roads. In many cases the stone for the walls was cut, shaped and laid by the WE&T participants.

Fifty-seven walk-bridges were built new and another 33 were repaired; one swinging bridge was built and 11 more were repaired while 37 bridges capable of motor traffic were constructed and another 55 were restored.

In terms of recreation facilities, 15 picnic tables were built, 84 toilets and outbuildings installed, 23 litter barrels were placed, and many other benches, chairs, walls, fences and safety aids were added to complete the picture.

In other local projects, here were some of the highlights:

Unemployed fathers in Floyd county constructed 3,110 new feet of sidewalk, repaired another 500 feet of sidewalk and 715 yards of curbs and gutters. They installed 700 feet of electrical lines and laid 30 feet of water mains.

The men repaired 672 benches and chairs, erected 604 speed and traffic safety signs, and assembled 75 pieces of playground equipment.

Perhaps the most impressive project in the entire region was Archer Park, Prestonsburg, where participants built two major brick-veneer buildings housing a garage, recreation facilities, toilets and showers, and a huge picnic shelter. Many other features of the candy-striped playground and playing fields were also built by Work Experience and Training participants.

Commissioner Dawson said the WE&T program exists primarily to assist men who have been unemployed for 90 days or more to become more employable. The fathers or step-fathers must not be eligible for, nor receiving any other public assistance payment nor unemployment insurance. They must be in reasonably good health and be available for and willing to accept a fair offer of employment, he said.

In this county there were an average of 540 unemployed parents being helped by the WE&T program in 1966, including 3,064 individuals in their families.

While the training allowance is computed for each family on the amount of income compared with their real needs, the average payment during 1966 for all counties was $200 with another $15 worth of medical assistance services.

The total of training allowances and medical assistance received in the county in 1966 was $1,567,100, including $1,392,800 in money payments, and $174,300 in services to medical care vendors such as doctors, hospitals, pharmacies, dentists, and nursing homes.

Most work experience trainees also participate in the federal-state food stamp program, paying in a certain amount of their own funds and receiving a total amount of coupons which includes that contribution and a bonus amount based upon the size of family and the amount of income it has.

In a report released this week by the Department of Economic Security, the 19-county project for unemployed parents was shown to have done these things during 1966:

—More than 2.7 million trees and 13,500 pounds of seed planted to repair erosion and restore the mountains.

—More than 230 miles of road built, almost 6,400 miles of highways repaired, and 7,600 miles cleared along the right-of-way.

—In excess of 500 walking bridges, 100 swinging bridges, and 500 car bridges were built during the year and another 1,100 were repaired.

Mayor Archer examines the handwork of work experience and training participants who erected these shower stalls at Archer Park. The showers serve the pool area in the summer and will accommodate athletes using the gymnasium upstairs as well. Materials were salvaged from the county jail, torn down under Prestonsburg urban renewal.

UK COMMUNITY COLLEGES LOOK TO 33,000 STUDENTS

Long-range planning for the University of Kentucky Community College System includes an $18.4 million building program during 1967 to prepare for an eventual enrollment of 33,000 full-time students in 12 community colleges.

The program, to be financed through federal grants and state revenue bonds, was outlined by Gov. Edward T. Breathitt at a recent meeting of UK Community College Advisory Board members.

Present enrollment in the state's nine existing community colleges is 5,473 students. By 1972, total enrollment at the colleges, including new campuses at Hazard, Maysville, and Jefferson county, is expected to reach approximately 13,500.

The program, as described by Gov. Breathitt, includes:—$10.95 million for the construction of new academic buildings at Prestonsburg, Henderson, Elizabethtown, Hopkinsville, Somerset, Covington, Cumberland and Ashland.

—$2.6 million for the building of academic facilities at the sites of proposed community colleges at Hazard and Maysville.

—$1.15 million for renovation of the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary building, site of the proposed Jefferson County Community College.

—Pending acquisition of land adjoining the site of the Jefferson County Community College, $3.2 million for new academic buildings there.

—$500,000 for mobile classrooms that can be moved from campus to campus to accommodate unexpected enrollments.

Preliminary development plans for the 11 community colleges are expected to be completed this spring and submitted to the UK board of trustees and the advisory boards of the community colleges for their approval. Designs for the new buildings are currently being prepared.

Mixture of Marriage, Children and College Tried by 800 UK Women

Marriage and children and college do mix, more than 800 women students at the University of Kentucky have found.

Many mature women students at UK are not waiting until their children are grown to pursue educational goals, a recent study by Mrs. Celia K. Zyzniewski, assistant to the dean of women for continuing education of women, discloses.

In a report to Robert L. Johnson, UK vice-president for student affairs, Mrs. Zyzniewski stated that questionnaires were sent to 822 women students 25 years of age and older who were enrolled at UK during the fall semester.

A total of 557 of the women students represent 25 percent of the enrollment of the UK Graduate School, while 265 are undergraduates. Enrollment of mature women at UK is 40 percent more than in 1965.

Thirty percent, or 244, responded to the questionnaires. Mothers reported having 134 children in elementary school, plus 62 pre-school age children.

Decisions to continue their education were made by 212 of the women themselves—or 86 percent—while 127 added that their husbands had also encouraged them, and 41 reported encouragement from their children.

A total of 98 women reported study problems; 93 stated they are having problems with friends, and 70 have encountered financial difficulties.

While enrollment in the field of education showed the highest interest—27 percent—scientific and liberal arts studies also had a large following, especially at the graduate level, Mrs. Zyzniewski points out.

These and other problems involved in the continuing education of mature women will be explored during a series of programs on February 2, 9, 16 and 23, at UK.

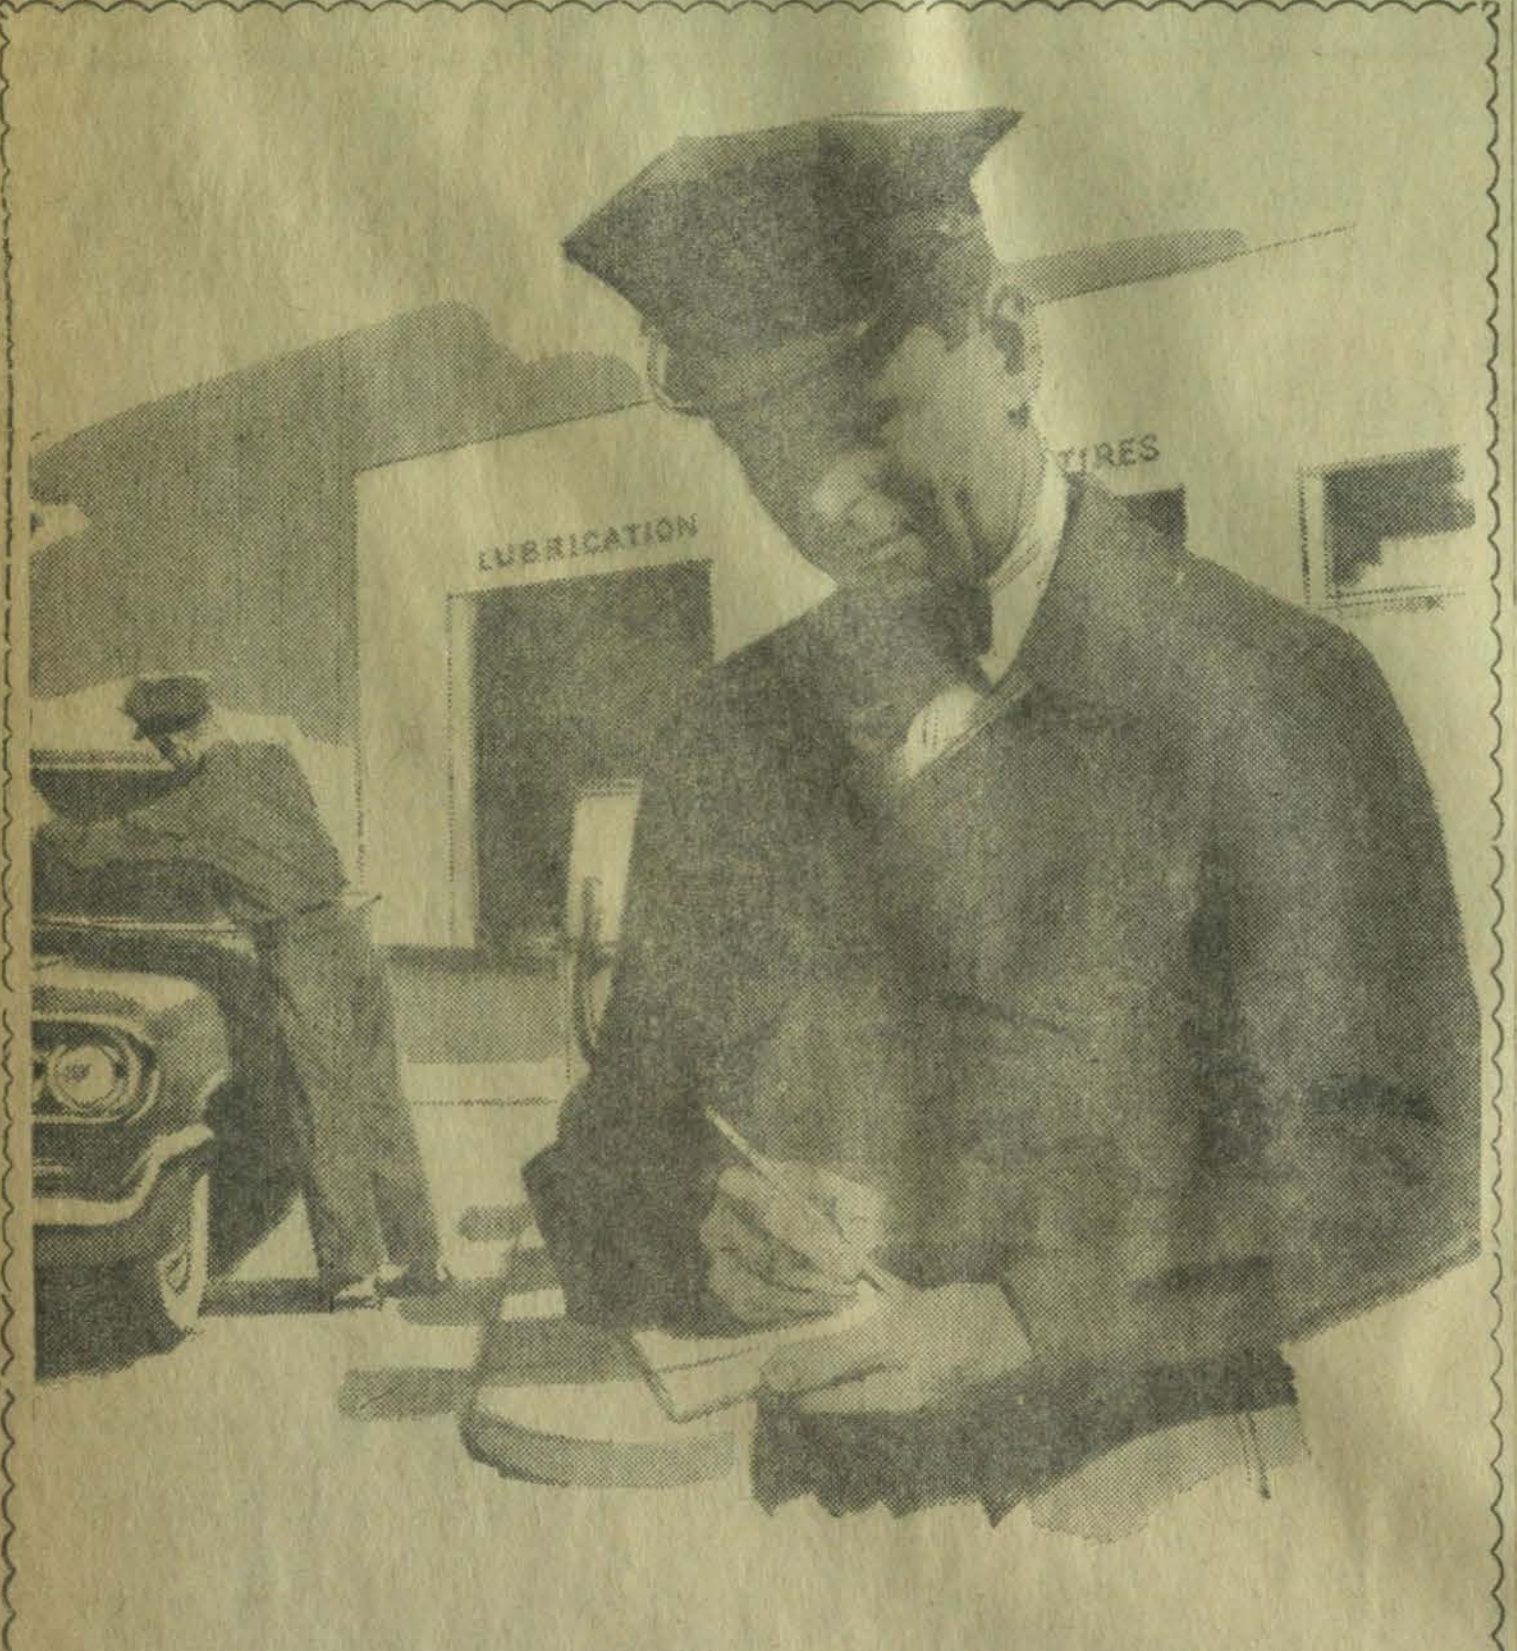

Each program features a UK faculty member offering various approaches to these questions, and discussions will be held with women visitors who are successful in their respective professional fields.

Even the ash tray rides smoother in Chevrolets

When you're down at your dealer's trying out a new Chevrolet, be sure you pull out the ash tray. Notice how nice and easy it glides, never hanging up or even scraping. The reason is, it rides on ball bearings. Four shiny little ball bearings. (Take the tray all the way out and you'll see them.) You say you don't even smoke? Then look at it this way. That ash tray is a symbol of the way we make cars: Paying extra attention to the little things as well as the big ones, as a way of making extra sure your '67 Chevrolet gives you

FORMER FLOYD MAN'S SON HERO IN VIETNAM BATTLE

(By BUDD BOYER, in
The Sun-Sentinel,
Pompano Beach, Fla.)

"Charlie" has a special meaning to our servicemen in Vietnam, since this is the common designation for the enemy Viet Cong, but some of the "good guys" are named Charlie, too, and one of these returned to his home here for Christmas.

Charles H. Osborne, Jr., specialist Fourth Class, Medical Platoon, 502nd Infantry, 1st Brigade, 101st Airborne Division, son of Mrs. Arthur Norwood, 1721 NW 1st Ave., and Charles H. Osborne, Sr., 1914 NE 48th Court, is one of the "good guys."

Osborne is a nephew of John W. Osborne, of West Prestonsburg.

Last February, Osborne, then a private first class, was serving with his unit near My Canh, Vietnam. As the unit reached the village, intense automatic weapons fire broke out from well-fortified and camouflaged positions of a Viet Cong company around the edge of it.

Osborne's platoon advanced and one soldier fell wounded, with the rest pinned down by the intense fire. The 20-year-old soldier "realizing the danger to the wounded man, courageously crawled across thirty meters of fireswept rice paddy to the side of the wounded man," the citation reads.

"While exposed to the intense hostile fire, he calmly administered first aid until the man died." The platoon leader then came forward to assist Osborne in bringing the fallen man back, and was wounded. "Private First Class Osborne immediately and without regard for his safety, administered first aid while under heavy hostile fire."

The platoon leader was wounded in a later action, and Osborne once more braved hostile fire to administer aid and evacuate him.

UK Grad Writes Book On Christian Living

A 1950 graduate of the University of Kentucky, Dr. Walter K. Price, pastor of Woodland Avenue Baptist Church in Lexington, is author of the new book, "Channels for Power," published by Broadman Press, Nashville.

"There is a feeling that much so-called Christian life is empty," Dr. Price writes, "The book begins by looking at what some popular and influential teachers say. By evaluating the teaching of these in the light of the New Testament, it seeks to show how Christians today can know the power of God's spirit in daily living."

Dr. Price has also served as pastor of First Baptist Church, Danville. A graduate of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, he served as a Southern Baptist evangelist from 1957-61, and, a few years ago, led a revival at Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here.

Rev. Poole To Join Inter-Faith Talks

The Rev. William G. Poole, of St. Theodore Catholic Church here, will join an estimated 5,000 clergymen of all faiths in an education-action mobilization on "Vietnam: the Clergyman's Dilemma," Jan. 31-Feb. 1 in Washington, D. C. A group of Kentucky ministers have chartered a bus out of Louisville for the trip.

The agenda calls for a visit to congressmen, silent prayer vigil in front of the Capitol, meal of reconciliation (tea and rice) with offering for Vietnam relief, addresses, workshop, discussions by participants on issues related to Vietnam.

Also mounted on the plaque was a gold-plated reproduction of Stewart's scorecard for that day.

Stewart got the hole-in-one October 15 at the Jenny Wiley State Park course on the 122-yard No. 6 hole.

FREE! THE STORY OF PAUL VI Vicar Of Christ- The Pilgrim Pope

From St. Peter to Pope John XXIII, of course, the Papacy has played a historic role in human affairs.

But never before has a Pontiff of the Church stirred the imagination and interest of the whole world as does the present Pope—Paul VI.

He is the first Pope since St. Peter to return to the Holy Land—to the sites made sacred by the life and passion of Jesus. The first in 525 years to meet personally with a Patriarch of the Greek Orthodox Church... the first ever to visit India... the first to set foot on the soil of the United States.

Even more historic, however, is the Holy Father's apostolate for spiritual unity and good-will among all the followers of Jesus Christ... and for renewal within Christ's Church to meet the challenges of the modern world. Leaders of all faiths are aware, of course, of the Holy Father's aims and his dedication to this great Christian cause. But the rank and file of all Christians should similarly understand... and we've put a thumb-nail story of Pope Paul into a free pamphlet.

Whatever your church affiliation may be... and even if you belong to no church at all... the quest for Christian unity will affect your world, your life, your family. And you should be interested in what Paul VI — the Vicar of Christ — is doing about it. Write today for our free pamphlet No. KC-40. It will be sent promptly, without obligation. And nobody will call on you.

Editor, The Times:

A recent incident amounting to "police brutality" has so aroused me that, not knowing any other practical way to call public attention to the matter, I write this in the hope that you will publish it. The incident of which I complain is that of a state policeman throwing a teenager in jail for a minor traffic violation, without a court order, and without ever taking him before a magistrate and giving him opportunity to file bond, and on an offense that did not carry a jail sentence.

Suppose that in the officer's judgment it is necessary to make an arrest. What then are his duties? What are the rights of the person arrested? The duty of an officer making an arrest is to take the person, "without unnecessary delay," before a magistrate (RCR 3.02). There is no discretion in the matter, so far as I know. Nothing that I have found allows an officer to jail a person without taking him before a magistrate, except at night, when no judicial officer can be found. Rarely should it be necessary to jail a person even at night, because "Magistrate" includes judges of the circuit, county and police courts as well as justices of the peace (RCR 1.06). Even if it is nighttime, the officer ought to give special consideration whether the person is likely to leave the jurisdiction. And, in case of a resident of the county, reason tells us such a person is not likely to do so.

A new Kentucky highway map has its Sunrise in the north, only one Shoulderblade and its Pride is nowhere near a fall. If the state didn't have an Index (in Morgan county), maybe even the natives would have trouble finding their Place (in Knox county). There's help for everybody who travels, though, in Kentucky's highway map for 1967, showing among other things the latest additions to Interstate highways and state parkways, and a good assortment of the interesting names.

Copies of the map may be procured from the Department of Public Information, Capitol Annex, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.)

As I understand it, it is the policy of the Legislature, which presumably speaks for the people, that whenever a summons or citation will serve the purpose such should be issued in preference to making a physical arrest (KRS 431-015). The law leaves the officer some discretion whether or not to make an arrest or issue a citation, and I am sure that an officer will get little argument when he makes an arrest involving a felony or drunk driving, or in the case of a public drunk. But in 99% of the other cases a summons or citation would serve the purpose. Few, if any, of us are going to ignore a summons or citation, especially when to do so might subject us to a penalty up to a year in jail.

Perhaps the local officers who have very little training and act without legal counsel should not be so strongly condemned, but for the state police, for whom we hire legal counsel, to commit a person, and especially a teenager, to jail without an order is inexcusable. The people have a right to expect more sophistication out of the state police. But I challenge Colonel Bassett, or any local sheriff, peace officer, or jailer, to show me one order for every hundred persons committed to jail.

Key Club Services At W'Wright Cited

Wheelwright, Ky. — The Wheelwright high school Key Club in one of its community service projects uplighted bus stops in the Wheelwright high school area which had been overturned by pranksters.

Another of the club's annual services was to help the Kiwanis Club in the sacking of candy to be distributed to children in the area by Santa. The Key Club also guarded Wheelwright high school for two nights during the Halloween season.

Members present at these community services were President Larry Tackett, Vice-President Paul D. Ruppelt, Secretary Stephen Blair, Treasurer Chuck Smallwood and members, Roger D. Johnson, Johnny Brewer, Chipper Hanger, Denzil Hall, Dennis Holbrook, Claude Conway, Jad Deaton, Gary Vittoe, Darrel Parks, Jimmy Harris and Marvin Johnson; and Ronald Meade, sponsor.

The Key Club is a junior edition of the Kiwanis Club, and is a member of the Key Club International, which is an international public school organization.

Every such instance of an officer committing a person to jail without an order ought to be called to the attention of the grand jury, either by the person arrested, or by the parents if the offended person is a child.

Some officers are going to admonish me, if this is printed, that I had better watch my step after this. But the good officers don't want to violate the law, and I am sure that the majority of the Kentucky State Policemen as well as the local officers will want to do the right thing in these matters, once they are instructed. But the "lazy" officer won't want to obey the law. Such an officer is a criminal himself — to put a person in jail without making a reasonable effort to find a magistrate is a felony. And I think that the people deserve something better than a bunch of habitual criminals out riding herd upon them.

If this is published I expect to have some officers advise me that this is the way it has always been done. But the fact that past administrations have failed to instruct their officers is no excuse for continuing a plague upon the people.

DR. WELLS FROM FLOYD EASES MARTIN-CO. PLIGHT

Mrs. Duna Combs, of Maytown, well-known artist and art instructor, will visit the class soon, as a guest, to teach the children some new techniques in art.

TIMES WANT ADS PAY—USE THEM TODAY!

A second doctor—supplied by Floyd county—and a $70,000 doctors' building—the latter via federal grant—has eased the critical shortage of medical men and facilities in Martin county.

Early this month, the new doctors' building at Inez was opened. Along with its opening came a bonus in the person of Dr. Raymond Wells, Prestonsburg native, who affords the county a second doctor.

For years, Dr. John Ford was the only physician in Martin county, which has a population of 10,000. On many days, he would see 100 patients.

Now the caseload averages 120 a day, with each doctor seeing about 60 patients. But, on many more than 200 come for treatment.

The one-floor structure has an X-ray machine, complete laboratory facilities and an emergency room. None were available before in the county.

Until the clinic opened, accident victims were taken to Louisa, Paintsville or Williamson, W. Va.—all at least 45 minutes away. The more serious cases were, and still are, taken to Huntington, West Virginia.

County Coroner John Callahan, a funeral home director, says the emergency room in many cases may be the difference between life and death.

The clinic also has space for a dentist, and the Martin County Development Association is trying to attract one.

The development association spear-headed the movement to build the clinic. Working with federal officials, the group obtained the $70,000 grant for the building.

A few years ago, a clinic was established at Warfield, but is now temporarily closed. Dr. Wells said he hopes it can be reopened.

The large waiting room at Inez has standing room only, most of the time.

He said the national average is one doctor for every 800 residents and one doctor for every 1,000 Kentuckians in most counties.

"Martin county could use at least three more doctors," Dr. Wells said.

Counties Near Floyd Face Caterpillar Blight

Landowners in three small sections of the state, including all or parts of 11 Eastern Kentucky counties, may face increased defoliation of their fruit trees this summer, a survey indicates.

The areas are Taylor county and parts of the surrounding counties of Casey, Marion, Green and Adair; Menifee, Morgan, Montgomery and parts of Powell, Wolfe, Magoffin, Elliott, Rowan and Clark, and Letcher county and parts of Knott, Perry and Harlan.

The survey was conducted by the Kentucky Department of Natural Resources' division of forestry and the U. S. Forest Service, to determine the potential for defoliation in the state this year due to the Eastern tent caterpillar.

Wild cherry trees in 30 counties across the state were surveyed to determine the presence of caterpillar egg masses.

Trees with a great deal more new egg masses than old ones can expect more defoliation this year than last year.

Assistant forestry director Harry Nadler said landowners in the three areas where increased defoliation is expected will be informed of the situation so they may undertake control action.

A follow-up survey will be conducted in May, Nadler said. Noting that the recent survey is the first ever attempted anywhere, he said one purpose of the May survey will be to test the accuracy of the system used in the first one.

Breathitt Asks U.S. To Lift Freeze On Highway Funds

Frankfort, Ky. — Gov. Edward T. Breathitt has asked U.S. Secretary of Transportation Alan S. Boyd to lift the freeze on $30 million in federal highway construction funds for Kentucky.

Kentucky was notified Nov. 23 through the Bureau of Public Roads that the funds for this fiscal year would be reduced some 17 percent. The order also froze all federal highway funds carried over from previous years. In Kentucky's case, the cutback for the current fiscal year amounted to about $14 million.

Carryover funds frozen totaled about $30 million. This, in effect, reduced Kentucky's federal aid construction funds by about $44 million for the next six months. It is the freeze of carryover funds that Breathitt wants rescinded.

The carryover funds, according to Breathitt's letter to Boyd, were due to the Highway Department's method of programming projects so as to construct them on a seasonal or calendar basis rather than a fiscal year basis.

"It is illogical to me for the federal government to penalize Kentucky for having its road building program on a sound businesslike basis so as to give its taxpayers the most for their dollars," Breathitt said.

Alumni of the University of Kentucky are represented on the board of trustees by three of its members. Those representatives are appointed by the governor.

EDUCATOR TELLS WHY KY. HAS TEACHER DEARTH

Why is there a teacher shortage in Kentucky? Increased specialization is one reason, a UK educator believes.

Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, commenting this week on the current shortage, said that "teachers are being taken out of the classroom and placed in specialist positions because of increased government funds."

The dean of the University of Kentucky College of Education agrees with Don C. Bale, Kentucky assistant superintendent for instruction, that the increased number of teachers in Kentucky this year came about largely because qualified teachers are being used to implement the U. S. Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Of the 200 Kentucky school districts, 134 are employing emergency teachers, compared with only 99 districts last year.

The specialist positions were created under Titles I and II of the Education Act. Such jobs are in areas of remedial reading, health, guidance and counseling, library service and special education to handicapped children. These and other programs already have been activated in Kentucky.

A total of $25.8 billion has been allocated to state schools this year under terms of the act.

"It is impossible to tell when the number of emergency teachers will peak, because it depends on how much the government will put into these funds in the future," Dean Ginger said.

"There is no backlog of qualified teachers," he added. "Before this drain began, Kentucky had a steady, rapid cut-back in the number of emergency teachers."

Dean Ginger also points, however, that many other states pay higher salaries and qualified teachers often migrate to those states—another reason for more emergency teachers.

He cited Indiana, which pays beginning teachers about $6,000 a year, while Kentucky pays about $1,000 less and has the same differential for more experienced teachers.

"Kentucky teachers now earn higher salaries than they used to earn, but the salary scale has not moved up as in other states scales," he noted.

Dean Ginger pointed out that Northern Kentucky has always had a problem because of its proximity to Ohio, which also pays higher teacher salaries. Louisville and Jefferson county, he said, are forced to hire emergency teachers because of the population increase and double school shifts, and the county's nearness to better-paying Indiana.

The emergency teacher situation will continue to grow for another two or three years, before it gets better," Dean Ginger believes. He said the program brought about by the new federal legislation will continue and that even more money will be put into the Kentucky program.

A Kentucky emergency teacher must have at least 96 college semester hours, plus nine hours in the subject he teaches.

Dean Ginger explains, however, that most emergency teachers are women who have college degrees, often in one of the arts and sciences fields. Most of them were married following graduation and for awhile were full-time housewives. Others were oflice workers "drafted" by local school officials into the classroom.

A few emergency teachers had classroom teaching experience, gained while certification standards were lower.

Most emergency teachers have more than the required two years of college, and could easily meet the requirements by studying during summer session or perhaps one semester, he added.

Dan Ginger said that just over 600 new teachers will graduate at UK this year. The largest scarcity is in the elementary schools, he said, with junior high schools running second. The third greatest scarcity is in the high school sciences, math and foreign languages.

He said the 66 Kentucky school districts which have not hired emergency teachers are not in as fast growing areas as those which are hiring such teachers this year.

"If the number of pupils in a district is fairly stable, officials can plan ahead for future needs. Also, he added, "there is the fact that very few of the best-paying districts have emergency teachers."
