

4 BUILDINGS STARTED FOR P'BURG CAMPUS

CLASSROOMS AND OFFICES IN PLANNING

Television Studio Readied at College For Use This Year

Four steel buildings are due to be erected on the campus of Prestonsburg Community College by mid-August to provide office and classroom space.

The U. S. Steel Homes Division of U. S. Steel Corporation has contracted to construct the portable-type classrooms and offices at the college here and similar structures at Covington, Henderson, Elizabethtown and Somerset community colleges for $340,997, it was announced recently.

Two of the Prestonsburg structures will house seven faculty offices each. The other two will contain two classrooms and three faculty offices each.

The new buildings will be located on the east side of the original college structure. Construction of sidewalks, connecting the steel buildings with the main structure, will be another project this summer.

Prestonsburg Community College will implement its instructional program with the use of closed-circuit television, beginning with the new term in September, it was announced last week. TV reception will be available in three classrooms with the opening of the term, and by January it will be extended to all classrooms.

The college already has its own camera, and a 23-inch receiver will be installed in each classroom. Equipment at hand makes possible instant playback use of film and video tape recordings to transmit lectures and other instructional programs.

One faculty office in the main building has been converted into a TV studio. The equipment will be of special use when the state-wide Educational Television system becomes operational next year.

The Prestonsburg college is the first in the community system to install TV. Ashland and Somerset colleges have equipment on order.

No Driver Education Pupils Are Involved In Fatal Accidents

Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett said here this week that in the three years since the program has been in effect in Floyd county high schools not a driver education pupil has figured in a traffic fatality.

More than 800 students in seven high schools of the county have participated in the program, he said. The driver education program includes six weeks of classroom, followed by up to six weeks of driver training on the highways.

Each of the seven participating schools supplies an instructor. Autos used are supplied by Floyd county automobile dealers without charge.

Mr. DeRossett said the only conclusion to be reached, in the absence of major accidents, is that the program is one of the most effective yet initiated in the interest of highway safety.

COUPLE HELD UNDER BOND

Raiders Nab Two, 5 Places Searched, 4 on Left Beaver

John P. and Edith Meade were arrested last Thursday by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis at their home near Printer on a warrant charging them in a morals case involving a 13-year-old Floyd county girl.

They executed $1,000 bond each to appear here next Monday for examining trial before County Judge Henry Stumbo.

Meanwhile, warrants charging them with unlawful transportation out of the state in violation of Kentucky law have been placed with Sheriff Lewis for arrest of the couple.

They are accused by the girl of taking her to an Ironton, O. motel and of there attempting unnatural sexual acts with her. The two, Sheriff Lewis said, are also wanted by Ironton authorities.

A series of liquor raids which began last Thursday and ended Saturday resulted in confiscation of intoxicants at three places and the arrest of two persons. Of four places raided in the head of Left Beaver Creek area, intoxicants were found at only two.

Floyd Blackburn had fled his premises at Melvin when they were raided last Thursday. Twenty-four cans of beer and two half-pints of whiskey were confiscated. A warrant has been issued for his arrest.

Johnny Thornsbury was arrested at Melvin, the same day, when a pint of Mellow Corn was found by the searching party. He executed bond after being booked at the county jail on a possession charge.

Eva Halbert was arrested on charges of selling and possessing intoxicants after 16 pints and a fifth of whiskey were found Saturday at her premises at Arkansas, near Martin. She also executed bond.

Taking part in the raids with Sheriff Lewis were Sgt. Sword, Sgt. Ross, and Trooper Herron, of the State Police, ABC Agent C. A. Flanery, Deputy Sheriffs Tommy Engle and Silas Derosssett.

Show time is 8 p.m. BY HEX will also be shown on Friday evening, July 21.

Appearing in the title role of Jonas will be Steve Atkinson, of Lexington. Opposite him in the role of Nancy will be Carol McKay. ETB GIVES AID TO JINK RAY

In Pike Mining Case After Owner of Land Loses Court Decision

Defeated in court where an order was handed down banning interference with strip-mining operations on his Island Creek land by the Puritan Coal Co., Jink Ray found an ally Tuesday in the person of Gov. Breathitt.

The situation grew tense as two of his neighbors, Don Branham and Carl West, stood firm as earth-moving machinery approached them Tuesday. Then came word from Frankfort that Gov. Breathitt had used a provision of the new state strip mine law and had ordered the coal company's permit suspended on the ground that it constituted a threat to property.

Breathitt acted soon after receiving a wire from Ray, saying, "Bulldozers are working. If you intend to help us, please do it now."

The governor's action is expected to ease the tension for a period of at least 20 days.

Fon Johnson, head of the mining company, expressed surprise at the governor's action. He said the order was delivered to him in person by Elmore C. Grim, director of reclamation. Johnson added that Grim told him he had (See Story No. 7, Page 3)

JUDGE LOWE HOLDS WETS VIOLATED ACT

Circuit Clerk Pays $16,009 for Year's Fines, Forfeitures

Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett made public this week figures derived from an audit made by Landon Whittaker, field auditor, office of Henry Carter, state auditor of public accounts.

The audit shows that from Jan. 1, 1966 to Dec. 31, 1966 a total of $16,009.81 was paid to the state treasurer in fines and forfeitures collected by DeRossett's office.

Mr. DeRossett said his record of such payments for each year of his term of office are on file and are available.

DRY MARGIN THOUGHT 13, GROUP TOLD

Wednesday's Decision Climaxes Suit Begun After 1966 Election

Floyd county Wet forces Wednesday morning lost their contest of the Dry victory in last year's local option election.

Special Judge Charles E. Lowe handed down an oral opinion at Pikeville, holding that the contestees had proved that the contestants were guilty of violation of the Corrupt Practices Act and, therefore, could not maintain the action they had filed.

The opinion was heard by a handful of attorneys and persons interested in the case.

Judge Lowe also said, in a statement not made as a part of his opinion, that in his opinion the Drys won the election by 13 votes.

Joe Hobson, attorney for the Drys, said a formal opinion would be prepared later in the day Wednesday and presented to Judge Lowe for his signature.

Attorneys for the Wets moved immediately to appeal to the Court of Appeals.

The local option election was held July 27, and on the face of the returns Drys won it by 85 votes. A contest suit was filed by 14 adherents of the Wet cause, Aug. 25, naming the county election commission as defendants. Later, the Rev. Adrian J. Roberts, chairman of the Floyd County Christian Dry League, (See Story No. 1, Page 3)

This Town ... That World

"WALK THE CHALK LINE"

Now that this column has been pretty widely credited with establishing what the white line in the middle of the highway is for, we inquire if any of our readers have ever had their old man assert his authority and demand that they walk the chalk line. Now, that was walking real straight, for, as you may recall, a chalk line is made by builders by means of chalking a line which has been drawn taut between two points, then lifted and used—pinst—to make the straightest line imaginable on the ground or whatever surface is beneath it.

A GOOD WORD

Here's a good word, the other day: "Norate." It means to spread the word around; to announce. My partner in conversation remarked, "If you norate it around that you want some of these people to work, they'd run as if the sheriff was comin' after them with a warrant."

YOUNG MR. DICKERSON

Prestonsburg's "Uncle Dick" Dickerson is 86 today. We usually eschew that expression, "86 years young," but we use it advisedly and correctly about Mr. Dickerson. He is not old. The depth and cheeriness of his laugh, which comes often, deny all these years, even if he doesn't.

FISHING

Somebody had a hit-play on Broadway last year which was entitled, "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." Well, I've found that this title applies to fishing with a plastic worm. The title of the piece is, "How To Succeed in Fishing Without Trying at All." You simply cast the worm over there, near the water's edge, oil your reel while it's sinking, or perform some other chore, then idly turn (See Story No. 3, Page 3)

NEW PROGRAM HAS STARTED IN COUNTY

The Floyd County Community Action Office has announced the beginning of a beautification and improvement program for Floyd county.

The Nelson Improvement Program, under the Economic Opportunity Act, makes federal assistance possible to employ persons of low income in activities which will improve or beautify the community. Projects may include:

1. Improvement and beautification of parks and open-spaces in low income neighborhoods.
2. Development and improvement of community service centers or recreation facilities.
3. Street improvement and roadside beautification.
4. Maintenance, improvement and protection of forest and wildlife areas and national, state and local park facilities.

Projects that give a clear promise of visible and lasting impact on the physical environment, and which benefit the general public—as opposed to limited number of potential users of a site or facility—will ordinarily be preferred.

No projects may primarily or directly serve the financial interest of a private individual or profit-making organization. Projects to improve privately owned land or buildings are ineligible, unless the land or building is dedicated to or available for public use.

Claude Swiney, project director, said that 33 men in Floyd county have been selected from the Work Experience and Training Program to work on eligible projects. These men will work 30 hours a week and receive $1.40 (See Story No. 6, Page 3)

Nursery Firm Gets Landscaping Work On State Road 114

Wearren Nurseries, Jefferson town, submitted the low bid of $31,565.35.

The project will begin near Salyersville and extend to US 23 at Prestonsburg, a distance of 19.547 miles.

YOUTH LOOT FOUND HERE

Juveniles in Series Of Breaks, 2 Nabbed; Warrants Out for 3

Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and Chief of Police Bill Potter spent a good part of Tuesday recovering loot taken by four juveniles in a series of thefts which apparently began July 12 and did not end till Monday night.

One boy confessed having had a part in most of the offenses and named his accomplices. Two have been arrested.

At the same time warrants were out for T. Y. Jarrell, Junior Joseph and Mike Stamper, who are accused of breaking into the Middle Creek home of "Fiddlin'" Dewey Shepherd last Sunday and of taking $50 in cash, a rifle and shotgun. The warrants were issued on an affidavit signed by Polly Howell, who said she, another girl and a fourth boy accompanied the three from Prestonsburg to the Shepherd home, that she saw the trio break open a door, enter the house and emerge, carrying the weapons and six bottles of home brew or beer.

Shepherd said further damage was created by their leaving the door open and letting inside three sheep which foraged on his belongings.

None of the three named in the warrants had been located Tuesday afternoon.

Part of the juveniles' loot was found in a car owned by the parents of one of the four, some was found hidden at the rear of one of the places looted. Jim's Laundromat here. Their haul included wrenches, soft drinks, cigarettes, candies, copper wire, tires and a radio-phonograph taken from a church-operated youth center at Auxier. Other places from which items were stolen were listed as the Pure Oil Service Station, near Auxier, the laundromat, Music-Colvin Motor Co., and Press Hughes' garage, all in Prestonsburg.

BALLOTS IMPOUNDED IN RECC ELECTION

Last week's election held to name three directors of the Big Sandy RECC has wound up in the courts, the ballots have been impounded and nobody knows the results of the poll.

The vote count was scheduled to be held here last Thursday, but the faction headed by Bradis Goble procured a restraining order to prohibit removal of the ballots from the RECC office in Paintsville to Prestonsburg for the tally. After a hearing held Saturday, Judge W. D. Sparks, of the Johnson circuit court, made the injunction permanent.

The restraining order was issued on the basis of reports to the effect that the ballots would be counted in this county, then destroyed. It also was provided that each faction in the election be represented at the vote-count when it finally is held.

The opposing slate of candidates — Hobert Younce, Arnold

Lowe and Jim Crager — have asked the Court of Appeals for relief from the order.

The RECC election commission, which was named in the injunction action, is composed of John Howard, of Paintsville, and Bill Wells, Prestonsburg, both former employees of the co-op, and James Witten, Paintsville, a former candidate for a directorship. The commission was named by the incumbent board of directors.

The ballots were either mailed by voting members of the cooperative to the Paintsville RECC office or were taken there by persons interested in the election.

Posts of four members of the board of directors, all Johnson countians, are not at stake. These directors are Mort Mullins, Burl Ward, Russell Goble and Cecil Daniels.

A meeting of the directors is scheduled Saturday, and out of that may come a major personnel change, it was said this week.

View from KY 80 of new million-dollar hospital facility constructed at Martin by Sisters of Divine Providence.

NEW HOSPITAL TO OPEN FRIDAY AT MARTIN

The new 40-bed Our Lady of the Way Hospital will open at Martin (Friday).

Work on the new facility began in June, 1966, and its construction and equipping has entailed the expenditure of nearly a million dollars.

Entire cost of the new hospital is being borne by the Sisters of Divine Providence who rejected Hill-Burton funds which were offered if they would move to another location.

"We like Martin, we were there, we wanted to stay," a spokesman briefly commented.

The new hospital structure is of brick construction, of two stories and has 26,000 square feet of floor space. Its 40 beds are 15 more than were available in the old hospital farther uptown. A parking area to accommodate 40 cars in addition to hospital and staff vehicles has been provided.

What will be done with the old building was not disclosed.

The newly completed hospital has resulted in expanded and modernized surgical, laboratory and clinical facilities. Practically every item of equipment is new.

The surgical recovery room and the intensive care unit permit better supervision of the post-operative and critically ill patient. The hospital laboratory is four times larger than that in use at the old hospital.

The entire hospital, it was said, has thermostatically controlled heat and air-conditioning. Each bed has a "tale-mike" which permits patient-nurse communication. Each room has its own television set, and each also is equipped with oxygen and suction at each bed.

"It was designed," commented a staff spokesman, "primarily to upgrade the quality of medical and surgical care and update patient services. The purpose of the hospital to help the patient recover health. Our aim is to give better patient care, and the hospital is dedicated to the sick and their needs."

The old hospital, operated by the Sisters of Divine Providence for 20 years, suffered from seasonal flooding or isolation by floodwaters from Beaver Creek. The new, built on high ground, will have no such problem.

Sister Mary Janet is administrator of the hospital. It will employ 36 lay personnel, among whom are six registered nurses, 12 licensed practical nurses and a records librarian.

All doctors of the county have been invited to become members of the hospital staff.

Dedication of the new hospital and open house will be held Sept. 17, it was said.

Lee Owens, Age 59, Passes Away Monday After Weeks' Illness

Lee Owens, 59 years old, owner of Owen's Texaco Service Station, near West Prestonsburg, died Monday at St. Joseph's hospital, Lexington, after an illness of several weeks.

A native of Blue River, Mr. Owens was a son of Mrs. Lou Stone Owens, of West Prestonsburg, and the late Rev. James Owens. His wife, Mrs. Lessie Prater Owens, survives.

He was a member of the Regular Baptist Church.

Surviving, besides his mother and widow, are a son, Hurshel Owens, of West Prestonsburg; two brothers, Henry and Butler Owens, both of Blue River, and two sisters, Mrs. Ada Adams, West Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Salie Combs, of Postoria, Ohio. He also leaves one grandchild.

Funeral services were conducted from the residence Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, the Revs. Wallace Calhoun and Paris Music officiating. Burial in the Jack Arnett cemetery on Middle Creek was directed by the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

How Important Are Hospitals?

Completion of a new hospital by the Sisters of Divine Providence at Martin is another chapter in the history of a Floyd county community which has been marked by advances in medical services.

Hospitals there have benefitted the people of this and neighboring counties, and at the same time have contributed substantially to the economic life of the town. The town of Martin is fortunate, in that the Sisters insisted that their new facility would be built there and not moved to some distant site.

It was at Martin that Dr. Edward L. Stumbo and Dr. W. L. Stumbo built the first hospital in this county. Since that time, Dr. Orris Gearheart built and operated the Gearheart Hospital, which later became known as Martin General Hospital and, still later, as Our Lady of the Way Hospital. After the deaths of the Stumbo brothers, Drs. Casebolt, Gronnerud, Sirkle and others operated the Beaver Valley Hospital which, in more recent years, has been owned and operated by Dr. C. L. Allen and Dr. Lowell Martin.

In that one paragraph is sketchily recorded years of hospital service dating back to soon after World War I—a service which has never been interrupted, although the Beaver Valley Hospital is soon to close its doors as a hospital and to exist only as a clinic.

It is doubtful that the people of Martin have ever fully realized what these hospitals have meant to the community, not to mention their meaning in times when life and death were the issue to so many. The same thing could well be said of any community.

At West Liberty, where the tragic death of Dr. Murray closed the town's one hospital, the loss has become very real not only to West Liberty itself but also to all Morgan county. Citizens there are so concerned about the situation that they, not doctors, have assumed responsibility, have organized the Morgan County Hospital Association, are seeking funds for a new hospital and are ready to put their own money into the effort.

Here, in Prestonsburg, Prestonsburg General Hospital has served long and well. Closing of the Beaver Valley Hospital at Martin and the hospital at West Liberty are factors contributing to over-taxing of the facilities of the Prestonsburg hospital. A new and larger hospital is needed, and Hill-Burton funds are available, since the facility is now a non-profit enterprise, under community ownership. But there is a prerequisite to the appropriation of Hill-Burton funds, and that is that the community itself raise its share of the cost.

That gets us back to the thought that seldom is any hospital and its services fully appreciated. On the community's interest will depend the development of a complete hospital program here, with new and larger facilities to meet a growing need.

Another installation being made at the college provides for electronic control of pianos in the music department so that several students may practice at the same time, in the same room, without disturbing each other. The device permits the sound of a piano to reach only its player, who uses headphones plugged into the instrument. The instructor, with the use of headphones, may listen to any student while excluding the others.

Remodeling in the main college building this summer is converting faculty offices into administrative offices, moving the bookstore and converting the admissions office into a conference room. The admissions office will be moved into a room formerly used as a faculty office.

Informant says the miserable wretch was caught washing the dishes, the other night. And that isn't all. Ouster proceedings will describe in detail the figure he cut in full flight, apron swishing and his knobby knees showing below the shorts. OFF TARGET
From this certain barber shop comes the story of the heaped husband who finally rebelled at certain caustic remarks the frau was directing toward him as she bent over a washboard.

Snatching up the family shotgun, he announced, "I'm a-go'in' up there on the p'int and shoot myself and end my sufferin'."

The wife continued at work without an upward glance. Several minutes later the shotgun boomed. She missed not a scrub at the tub. Some time elapsed, then there came a funeral halloo from up the hill:

"Hey, Suzze, fetch me another ca'tridge. I missed myself."

entered the case as contestee, and a counter-suit was filed in which Corrupt Practices Act violation was alleged against the Wets.

Both sides accused the other of fraud, intimidation and permitting persons to vote in precincts where they were not legal voters.

This latter contention produced the most heated sessions of the long action. On one occasion Judge Lowe ordered four persons jailed when they declined to tell how they voted. Soon afterward, he cited Circuit Judge Hollie Conley for contempt because Conley had honored a habeas corpus writ filed on behalf of the four ordered jailed.

The record in the case was voluminous, and Judge Lowe had had it under study for weeks.

Telephone Talk

Your Telephone Manager

Have you been to see the "Plays of the People" at the Jenny Wiley amphitheatre? If not don't let the summer pass without attending.

See you there!

"CALL" ISTHENICS, ANYONE? For the ladies, here are a few simple exercises that fit into a brief sit-down time—such as while you're talking on the phone:

- Sitting erect, inhale while pulling in stomach; exhale and relax muscles. Repeat several times, while the other person is talking.
- With shoes off, raise legs level with chair seat and rotate feet in circles from ankles.
- Shoes off and legs up, curl toes under. Hold about ten seconds, then relax.

See how great your feet feel after the last two exercises? Another great foot-saver: shopping by phone.

THE YEAR OF THE TELEPHONE . . . In New York City's Chinatown stands the house of DEEN WAH (Electric Talker)—a telephone booth, built like a small pagoda. At its opening, incense was burned and a paper tiger frightened away evil spirits so that telephone users would enjoy good luck in their business, social and romantic affairs.

With or without tigers, a telephone—properly used—usually helps insure good luck in most enterprises.

SEWER PLAN DEADLINE SET

Pollution Commission Gives Salyersville 15 Days for Report

The Kentucky Water Pollution Control Commission this week gave the city of Salyersville 15 days to report its plans for finishing a sewer system.

If the report is not received in 15 days or is unsatisfactory, the commission authorized its staff to begin legal proceedings to force completion.

In addition, the commission will not approve any further construction at Salyersville until the problem is solved.

Ralph C. Pickard, executive director of the commission, said the problem is serious because raw sewage is being dumped in streams and ditches at Salyersville. The new system is designed to prevent pollution of the Licking River.

The commission has approved sewer installations for one or two plants, a residence and other places, but these have not been connected to the system, Pickard said.

The $685,000 project is being financed partly by federal funds, and the federal government "is ready to close out," Pickard said.

The city received a federal grant in late 1963 to build the system and also issued bonds to help finance the project.

Unpaid bills to contractors total $71,276.74.

Robert Meyer, Newport, fiscal agent for the project, said the city has made payments on bonds and interest regularly.

Meyer said the city has authority to require users to connect to the lines. "There is nothing we can do as long as the city is making payments," he said.

Contractors installing the lines said they quit work when they weren't paid. They need to complete work totaling $28,000 to finish the contract, they said.

In the Medical building at the University of Kentucky visitors may see lectures and classrooms, student and research laboratories, designed to fulfill the demands of medical, dental and nursing education.

KENTUCKY VACATIONLAND OFFERS HIKING TRAILS

Frankfort, Ky. — Kentucky offers top-notch opportunities for hikers, and some of its best hiking trails can be found within 16 state parks.

The State Parks Department has developed 82 miles of hiking trails at 15 parks, and another, Lake Malone State Park at Greenville, has a natural hiking trail, which skirts the edge of the 800-acre lake.

Other state parks with hiking trails are Floyd county's Jenny Wiley, Carter Caves near Olive Hill, Cumberland Falls at Corbin; John James Audubon at Henderson; Natural Bridge at Slade, Pine Mountain at Pineville, General Butler at Carrollton, Lake Cumberland at Jamestown, Pennyroyal Forest near Dawson Springs; Blue Licks Battlefield near Mt. Olivet, Columbus-Bellmont Battlefield at Columbus, Greenbo Lake near Greenup, Kingdom Come near Cumberland, General Burnside Island near Burnside and Levi Jackson Wilderness Road at London.

Depending on the location of individual parks, the hiking trails lead to scenes of great natural beauty or to sites where historical events took place.

Naturalists employed by the Parks Department conduct daily hikes to points of particular interest at five parks during the summer tourist season. These five parks are: Carter Caves, Cumberland Falls, Audubon, Natural Bridge and Pine Mountain. Extraordinary geological formations, wildlife and wild flowers are identified by the naturalists during the course of the hikes.

Besides well-defined, neat trails hikers are attracted to Kentucky parks for these other reasons:

1. Bountiful wildlife, such as deer, smaller animals and more than 300 specimens of birds.
2. A profusion of wildflowers and flower shrubs in the spring with foliage changing to autumn.
3. Wending trails through tall timberland and alongside lakes and streams.
4. Numerous caves, natural bridges, unusual rock formations and mountains (in the Eastern region of the state).
5. Indian lore, pioneer, civil war and other trails with historical significance.

Twig Blight Hits State's Sycamores

Twig blight has been attacking sycamore trees in Kentucky more than usual this spring but there is little cause for alarm.

Harry Nadler, state associate forestry director, says the disease, known technically as anthracnose, "very seldom, if ever, causes mortality."

It is caused by a fungus and results in defoliation of the tree. By mid-summer, he said, a second crop of leaves will appear. Spraying to protect sycamore shade trees must be done in early spring, Nadler said persons should ask their district forester what spray to use.

LOWE RULES FARLEY OUT

Judge Holds Contract Of Superintendent Void; Ruling Being Appealed

Pikeville, Ky. — Pike Circuit Judge Charles E. Lowe ruled last Friday that C. H. Farley, county superintendent of schools, is serving under an invalid contract.

He permitted execution of a supersedeas bond, however, which will let Farley stay in office pending an appeal of his judgment.

Joe Hobson, Prestonsburg attorney, who brought the ouster action against Farley for the three-man majority on the Pike Board of Education, said he questions the validity of the bond and will ask the Court of Appeals to quash it.

Judge Lowe based his opinion holding the Farley contract void in which the high court held that on a Pendleton county decision a board loses control of a contract once it is executed.

He said the board cannot renegotiate the contract before its termination, nor can it terminate it without cause.

Farley, serving under a contract due to expire June 30, 1966, was given a new contract in January, 1965, dated to expire July 1, 1969. The action had the effect of renewing his contract while the old one still had one year to run.

Kelsey Friend, Pikeville attorney representing Farley, said both the state attorney general and the state Department of Education had approved the renewed contract as being valid. He served notice of appeal shortly after Judge Lowe handed down his decision.

Friend commented that the regrettable aspect of the decision will be an added delay in Pike county's $5 million school building program.

Notice To Bidders

The Floyd County Board of Education will accept the lowest and best sealed bid until 12 noon, August 5, 1967, for the following:

Approximately $4,950.00 miscellaneous classroom materials and supplies.

The Board reserves the right to buy at the same bid price during the 1967-68 school year and the right to reject any or all bids.

Bid price includes delivery to the larger schools, and the delivery of materials for rural schools to our central office or to our materials depot at Allen, Kentucky.

Further information may be secured by contacting Harry J. Wallace, superintendent's office. CHARLES CLARK, Superintendent, Floyd County Schools 7-6-37

GOV. BREATHITT URGES RESOURCES MANAGEMENT

Frankfort, Ky.—Because of expanding population, "the demands on our land and water resources in the next few decades will be staggering," according to Gov. Edward T. Breathitt.

Speaking to the Farm Press and Radio Association of Kentucky in Frankfort, Breathitt said the most conservative estimators of population forecast an additional 600,000 Kentuckians by 1980, five million more by the year 2,000 and a total U. S. population of 330 million by the turn of the century.

Breathitt said that by 1980 the expanding population will demand a 120 percent increase in farm products from 50 million fewer cropland acres than in 1960; 215 percent more land for homes, schools and factories; 125 percent more land for transportation; 300 percent more land for recreation; and 180 percent more land for reservoirs.

"Prospects are that by the year 2,000 municipal water use may double, manufacturing use of water may quadruple, and irrigation withdrawals may increase by half," the Governor said.

He said these demands are the reason the 1966 General Assembly passed "the most comprehensive natural resources legislation in the state's history—the strip-mining bills, the water resources authority act, the air pollution bill and the water pollution control bill."

Breathitt said the increased need for food and farm products that require more irrigation water is being overlooked by federal government, pointing out that water can be provided in Army Corps of Engineer reservoirs for almost any need—except for agricultural use.

Breathitt said he has recommended to U. S. Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman that irrigation water be a primary consideration in planning federal reservoirs and that enough money be appropriated to provide adequate water storage for irrigation.

Other special week-ends, the parks at which they will be held, and the dates are:

Sept. 8-9, Bridge week-end, Pine Mountain, Pineville; Sept. 15-17, Invitational Golf Tourney, Carter Caves, Olive Hill; Sept. 22-24, Invitational golf tourney, Pennycyle Forest, Dawson Springs; Oct. 20-22, Bridge week-end, Kenlake, Hardin; Oct. 20-22, Photo-Scenic week-end, Pine Mountain, Pineville; Oct. 27-29, Parliamentary Law Workshop, Cumberland Falls, Corbin; Nov. 17-19, Bridge week-end, General Butler, Carrollton.

That's the price of a new Volkswagen. Some people won't buy one because they feel they deserve something costlier. That's the price we pay for the price we charge.

And some people are afraid to buy one because they don't see how we can turn out a cheap car without having it turn out cheap.

This is how:

Since the factory doesn't change the bug's shape every year, we don't have to change the factory every year.

What we don't spend on looks, we spend on improvements to make more people buy the car.

Mass production cuts costs. And VWs have been produced in a greater mass (over 11 million to date) than any car model in history.

Our air-cooled rear engine cuts costs, too, by eliminating the need for a radiator, water pump, and drive shaft.

There are no fancy gadgets, run by push buttons. (The only push buttons are on the doors. And those gadgets are run by you.)

When you buy a VW, you get what you pay for.

What you don't get is frills. And you don't pay for what you don't get.

JOHNSON NAMES POSTMASTERS

Washington — President Johnson has submitted to the Senate for approval the nominations of Lorene J. Elkins, Magnolia, and Charles H. Walker, Rumsey, as postmasters.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

THREE GENERATIONS

In linguistic tests three groups of people are usually thought of: 1. those who are 60 and upwards, a large group, larger than at any other time in history; 2. those between 40 and 60; and 3. those under 40; in other words, old, middle-aged and young. These divisions are especially useful in word studies such as I have been doing for years, very intensively since my retirement in 1959. To get a correct view of regional usage, it is necessary, in most cases, to be aware of these ages, for each one will have its own sphere. In this system, the older people, in this system, grew up in horse-and-buggy days, chiefly before a high-school system had been worked out sufficiently to allow everybody to have done some study beyond the limits of the old-fashioned one-roomed school. A person now barely 60 was born just a year after I left home to make my own way in the world. In 1907 automobiles were nine-days' wonders; I saw my first one then. It was years before I saw a truck and several more before I saw a tractor. A paved road was something hardly imaginable; you should have seen the mud and dust of those days. Think of the barriers in the way of rivers that shut in much of Kentucky, especially the Jackson Purchase, where only railroad bridges were known until long after 1906. As late as 1928, when I drove down to see my mother, in Calloway county, I returned by way of Dover, Tennessee, where the contract was to be let the next day for a bridge across the Cumberland River. For years I crossed the Ohio River on ferries unless I went by way of Louisville or Cincinnati. Naturally, the vocabulary of people who are now 60 and beyond was basically that of the old days, when nearly everybody lived on the farm, when farming itself was largely a way of life but not a business, when self-support rather than profit seemed to be the goal. In my early days of teaching at Western a very large percentage of my students were mature men and women who were doing high school work, just as I myself had worked off my high school subjects after I was grown and away on my own.

The middle generation seem like youngsters to me now, for they have all arrived on earth since I was grown. They, for the most part, were born late enough to get many advantages that my generation had to work for years to have or else do without. By the time most of them were grown, there was a family car, maybe a humble one but one anyway. And what used to be impossible distances had become a part of their lives, especially after they had grown to their late teens. The older ones were here soon enough to know at first hand the first World War and its tremendous effect on our lives. Many of them became the first high school and college graduates of their families. Hosts of them made journeys into what used to seem the very ends of the earth, for the family car was well used. A tremendous vocabulary of world-wide importance came to be, for we were actually citizens of the world and not, like our immediate forebears, largely citizens of some remote ridge or hollow.

The third generation are very numerous. Just think, a man barely 40 arrived in 1927, after we oldsters already seemed like old-timers. And the hordes of people under 40 make the older two groups seem small indeed. When I began to teach school, in a one-room school, the Civil War was no farther away than World War I now is. And Oklahoma became a state that year, with four more of our 50 states to be added later, two of them—Alaska and Hawaii—very much later. No wonder the vocabulary of the third generation often seems strange to us who belong in the first one; think what has happened in local and regional and world affairs since we were young. I have often said that in my later years of teaching I often had to spend more time explaining older words and ideas than in actually getting at the heart of any given poem or story. If the youngsters do not know "Gee" and "Haw" and "Whoa" as we used to, so what?

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

THE MIGHTY TULIP POPLARS
Back in the days of the virgin forests, about the time the logging industry was getting started in our region, the mighty tulip poplars reigned as the queen of the Appalachian forests. Along the rich coves and fertile bottomlands of the Ohio and the Big Sandy Rivers, these great trees towered like silver columns to heights of two hundred feet. Many had a trunk diameter up to 10 feet. They were the backbone of the early logging industry of the Sandy Valley region; they became the leading timber tree and ruled the industry until the early part of this century.

The leading lumbermen called the tulip trees, "yellow poplar," and one of the lumber companies was named "The Yellow Poplar Lumber Company." The heartwood is a rich, golden yellow. Many of the old pioneer homes were built of these logs, which were hewn flat on opposite sides with a "broad axe." The pioneer log houses were often built in a single day, at one of the old-time "house raisin's," when the men all gathered in to help a neighbor put up the walls of his new log house. A few of these old log houses are still standing, and the yellow poplar wood is as sound as ever.

The tulip poplar is the state tree of Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee. The large, greenish-yellow tulip blossom, which has six petals and a splash of rich orange deep in the throat, gives the tree the name of "tuliptree." The big blossoms are rich in nectar and pollen, so the bees work busily gathering the nectar from the blooms. These produce upright seed cones which stud the branches far into the winter. When the cones burst apart in winter, the one-winged seeds are whirled away by the winds and widely dispersed. The tuliptrees are hardy and prolific and soon begin a new colony in old fields, open areas, or most any place they can gain a foothold.

Today we are fast using up the second and third stands of the highly valuable poplars. The wood is always in strong demand and has many uses, such as paper pulp, building materials, radio and TV cabinets, crates, boats and many others. Our postal cards and many of our books are made from tulip poplar pulp. Tuliptrees can also be transplanted and make fine trees for lawn or park. The trunk often grows as straight as an arrow for 100 feet and entirely free of knots or branches. The trunks are beautiful, even in winter, and stand tall and straight, like slim-bodied nymphs of winter woods.

All the great stands of the virgin poplar that once graced the slopes of our region were sacrificed to the old-time logging industry that thrived in the last decades of the last century and ended about the year 1905. In those days the logging men built great "splash dams" across the smaller streams and rivers. They closed in these dams in the fall, to catch up a large "head of water" during the winter season. Then they cut down the big trees and hauled them from the woods to the dams with work oxen. All winter long, the hard, grueling work went on. It took about eight yokes of strong oxen to haul one of the big logs from the woods to the splash dams. When the dams were filled with logs, they were opened and the logs were floated down to the main rivers, where they were caught and held by a "boom," so they could be rafted together. About 50 logs were fastened together with "dog chains," and then the rafts were floated down the rivers to the lumber markets at Catelettsburg or Frankfort, Ky.

Today, when I see a log truck passing with a load of logs, I give thanks for the liberation of the work oxen from the slavery of hauling the heavy logs to the splash dams. I saw this done often when I was a boy some 60 years ago and my heart was often melted with pity. The oxen worked as a team and had heavy yokes of wood; they moved along at a snail's pace, often through belly-deep mud, or through rain or snow. It was a slow, agonizing work and it had to go on all winter long, no matter how cold or wet the weather got.

The other day, along one of the old brush-grown logging trails, I picked up an old, rusty ox-shoe—a relic of a bygone era. The younger generation of today never saw an ox-shoe and not many would know it took eight shoes to shoe each ox. They had to be shod with heavy steel shoes to give them traction for pulling the heavy logs; also to keep them from splitting their hoofs in a hard pull. It took a man specially trained to shoe an ox. Before one could be shod, he had to be fastened in "stocks," and then lifted clear off the ground with ropes and pulley, until his feet dangled. Then the eight shoes were nailed on, one on each side of his cloven hoof.

I've often heard the oxen moan and beg to the driver not to whip them with his long lace-leather whip, which had a cracker on the end that made a noise like a pistol shot. Many oxen pulled so hard they fell dead in the yoke. I'm glad that is all in the past.

FELLOWSHIP DINNER OBSERVED

The first quarterly conference of the Maytown Methodist Church was held following the morning worship service Sunday morning. Dr. Steadman Bagby, district superintendent, presided over the worship service and business session. Following the business meeting, a covered dish dinner was held in the church recreation room. A surprise to everyone was the presentation of a second anniversary cake to Rev. and Mrs. Leonard Sumner, honoring their return to the Maytown-Martin charge. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Ira Stephens and featured an open Bible motif, with praying hands. It was large enough to serve the approximately 150 guests. A smaller cake with a replica of the Maytown church was given the honorees to take home. Mrs. Violet Allen gave a short resume of Rev. Sumner's activities during his past two years on this charge. Several members from the Martin and Salsburg churches stayed for the dinner. Among the other out-of-town guests were: Dr. and Mrs. Steadman Bagby, Ashland; Mr. and Mrs. Homer Dalton, Pikeville; Mrs. Mildred Osborne and Jim. Hindman; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Snoddy and Pam, Nitro, W. Va.; and Mrs. Allene Combs, Lexington. The congregation was thrilled at the presence of Mrs. Viola Stewart and Mrs. Thomas Patrick, both of whom have been seriously ill for several months.

MRS. ALLEN, HOSTESS
The regular monthly meeting of the Maytown W.S.C.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Allen last Tuesday evening. Mrs. Allen was also program leader on the theme, "Faith." Each member will be responsible for getting five books. Following the business meeting the hostess served refreshments to members, Mesdames Henry L. May, Tom Patrick, Edgar Herald, Ira Stephens, James Allen, George Patton, Jones Tallent and Hubert Halbert.

Floyd Co. Attorney On Corrections Group In Frankfort Meeting

The new Kentucky Commission on Law Enforcement and Crime Prevention got down to work this week when two of its four committees met for the first time.

The committee on assessment of crime and the committee on corrections met in Frankfort to take up the challenge given them by Gov. Edward T. Breathitt.

Floyd County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill is a member of the Committee on Corrections.

When Breathitt swore in the members of the commission, he asked them to develop "a viable, intelligent and effective strategy for a war on crime."

The 40-member commission, created by the Governor's executive order, is under the direction of chairman M. R. (Mike) Mills, of Madisonville, and executive director Charles Owen, of Lexington.

The other two committees, the committee on corrections and the committee on courts, will meet July 25 and July 27 respectively.

STEAMBOAT INVENTOR

A Kentuckian, John Fitch, made the trial trip in his first steamboat in 1785. Robert Fulton did not operate his steamboat on the Hudson River until 1807. Yet Fulton is credited with inventing the steamboat and a Kentucky county is named after him.

AIR CLEAN-UP PROGRESS EXPECTED WITHIN YEAR

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky's air pollution control program should be moving well in a year or less, predicts Ralph C. Pickard, executive secretary of the State Air Pollution Control Commission.

Although off to a slow start, Pickard says that the state air pollution control program will move faster than its water control program started in 1950. "The main holdup," he said, "is the scarcity of trained personnel to work in air pollution." "And once you find them, you have to out-compensate other states and private industry to get them—and keep them."

Pickard says that the main problem has always been manpower rather than technology. Another impediment has been lack of equipment. Pickard says his staff will have the bulk of this equipment when all of that ordered—costing $100,000—is received. Much of this will be out in the field this month, he adds.

Prior to 1966, only 11 states had any regulatory authority to control air pollution. During 1966 and 1967, 25 additional states, including Kentucky, joined in. "Of those that started the same time as we did, none is ahead of us," he adds.

The University of Kentucky Medical Center Library houses more than 80,000 volumes and 1,575 current serials.

PLENTY OF FISH

Rough River Reservoir in west-central Kentucky has 69 species of fish in its 4,860 acres of water, according to the State Department of Parks.

RESULT OF BATTLE

The Battle of Tippecanoe in 1811 broke the power of the Indians north of the Ohio River and thus made Eastern Kentucky attractive to settlers.
