The first public meeting to be held here in several years by Alcoholics Anonymous is scheduled at 8 p.m., Oct. 21, in the reading room of the Floyd County Library. It was announced this week. An out-of-town speaker has been booked for the occasion.

"A.A." was founded 30 years ago by two chronic alcoholics, an Akron, Ohio doctor and a New York business man who discovered the simple truth that by not taking the first drink and by helping the other fellow to stay sober they themselves could stay sober. Since that time A.A. has helped nearly half a million alcoholics get sober and stay sober.

All who are interested in the problem of alcoholism are invited to attend the meeting here.

It takes 1000 tons of coal to build just 1 mile of 4-lane concrete highway!

Kentucky needs new coal markets—and new highways in the Appalachian area. Concrete brings the two together. The result? Better business. Better highways.

Modern concrete pavement is skid-resistant, smooth and solid all the way . . . is flat to stay flat. It actually has a life expectancy of 50 years and longer, with upkeep expense 75% less than for asphalt (based on Kentucky records). This is vital because the Federal Government pays 70% of initial construction cost—but not a single cent for maintenance.

Add it up. Concrete means greater coal usage, greater safety, greater driving comfort, and greater maintenance savings.

Fred Bullard of Lexington, president of the Kentucky Coal Association, says "Cement companies are major customers of the coal industry. Wherever cement or concrete is used, in roads, bridges or buildings, the coal industry benefits. Certainly paving new roads with concrete will contribute to employment and general well-being in the coal-producing areas of Kentucky."

Jean Ritchie To Sing
Tonight at College

Jean Ritchie, famed folksinger, will be appearing at Prestonsburg Community College tonight (Thursday) at 8 o'clock. Jean Ritchie is descended from one of the oldest mountain families in America (the Ritchies came to Kentucky from Scotland in 1778). She and her 12 brothers and sisters grew up on Appalachian folk music. "We sang hundreds of melodies that we thought were just old family songs," she recalls. Some of the simple, plaintively beautiful ballads discovered by collectors in the Ritchie household have since become popular favorites, including "Shady Grove" and "Pretty Saro." Jean left her hometown of Viper to attend the University of Kentucky, where she majored in sociology, made Phi Beta Kappa and was recognized as a great talent in her own right. Now a housewife and mother of two in Port Washington, N. Y. she is often consulted as an expert in American folk music. She limits her personal performances to serious concerts and seminars and accompanies herself on the dulcimer.

UK Alumni Aides
For Fund Drive
Total Over 300

With Alumni President Ervin J. Nutter (University of Kentucky '43) seeking to double the number of active alumni in 1967-'68, the UK Alumni Association has announced that about 300 graduates already have volunteered to assist in the association's current fund drive. Of the volunteers thus far, more than 200 are Kentucky residents. Acceptances to an appeal from President Nutter are still coming in and the number of volunteers, including almost 100 out-of-state, are expected to reach more than 400. The association reported over the past week-end that of 450 asked to serve, most of the few who declined did so with reluctance because of commitments to other duties or illness. Among the alumni who have volunteered to serve are Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers H. Frazier and Robert J. Wallace, all of Prestonsburg.

NATURE TRAILS By Rufus M. Reed

If you're going to ride with someone for 4 years pick a safe driver.

Too far to the left . . . or too far to the right . . . and you'll soon be in trouble. Why take a chance? Let's keep on the road to a stronger, more prosperous Kentucky by electing Henry Ward.

The great autumnal show is on! It is the grandest show on earth and lasts such a short time, ending all too soon. This is the marvelous display of autumn's colors on our hills. It is the time to get in the car and go out among the hills to see this show. I used to wonder if Mother Nature could charge us for viewing her color show, how high would be the fee. But, of course, there is never any price tag on outdoor beauty.

Our hills in October become vast outdoor studios on which are hung the magic paintings of nature's art. Nowhere but here in our hills are we privileged to see this grand display of color in all its entirety. The paintings are hung up there in full view of all eyes. In a level country one's view is somewhat restricted, but here in the hills all the glorious colors are on display in one grand panorama as far as the eye can view.

No art of man can begin to imitate the magic colors of autumn. No artist can fully portray them. Autumn is the one season in which Nature is wildly extravagant with her colors. She splashes them on the hills, as if she had suddenly overturned huge vats of many-colored dyes and let the colors spill everywhere. They make a grand symphony of beauty and harmony. They catch the eye with their brilliant appeal. They seem to sing and shout in the fullness of their glory.

I nominate the scarlet oaks and red maples as the most brilliant of the autumn trees. Their glowing scarlet catches the eye from afar and one looks at them with mixed wonder and awe. Stand near a red maple when she is fully gowned in all her scarlet glory and watch the morning sunrises strike her boughs; they seem to catch on fire and flash with brilliant flames. Sometimes the maples look so red they seemed dipped in a bath of blood.

The scarlet oaks are not far behind; their brilliant colors flaming in the bright October sun are dazzling to the eye. Running these two a close race for brilliance we have the dogwoods, the sourwoods, the black gums and the sumacs. We see these flashing crimson hues that blend with the glossy gold of the tulip-trees and the glowing gold of the hickories. A hickory tree fully decked in autumn color seems to make all the woods roundabout glow and come alive. The sumacs grow in thickets along roadsides and old fields and flame in scarlet, bringing a splash of color to the countryside.

The purple and gold of the sweetgums are fascinating to see; the wild cherries gleam in pink tinged with lavender. The old beeches wear conservative suits of tan; the stately sycmore dress sedately in sober brown. Old, dark-green pines stand somber and aloof from the flashing brilliance of autumn, lending a striking contrast in the color panorama.

The first rains that fall in November erase the gold and the glory from the hills, leaving only the dull russet of the oaks for the winter view.

Autumn brings a thrill to the heart that is often tinged with sadness. It is a time of death and the leaves die in the fullness of glory. Then they swirl away in gusts of wind and become toys for the vagaries of autumn's blustering. The high-wind hurls the leaves against tree trunks, making a loud slapping; it tosses them violently along the ground and sometimes they go like runners in their last race of death. The winds carry flocks of leaves far out over lakes and rivers and let them fall to a watery grave. Because the leaves are destined to decay and give their substance back to the earth from whence they came.

Do the lower animals have souls, do they converse with one another in a language we mortals do not even presume to understand.

These are moot questions that have come down through the ages. I shall not attempt to answer the first. Frankly, I don't know the answer. But I was deeply interested in what a leading naturalist, who who understood lower animals better than most, once said: "I looked down deep in the eyes of the animals and I saw the human soul look out upon me. I saw where it was born, away down deep there under feathers and fur, or condemned for a brief time to roam in four-footed form among the brambles. I caught the mute, appealing glances of the prisoners in fur and feathers and I swore to be faithful to them."

As to the language of the lower animals, there are as yet many sounds of nature not understood by us. We humans cannot speak the vocabulary of the lower animals. Yet we are often enchanted, even mystified, by the songs and sounds of many creatures. Take the caroling of the robin in springtime rain, the wild, strange cry of wild geese flying high over us in the fall—these sounds often haunt us with their poignancy and their mystery. These are just samples of an infinite vocabulary of which to date we humans have glimpsed but a few words.

Take the bluejay. We think he is loud and noisy, a braggart and "full of sass," as the poet Riley wrote. Around the premises of man he shrieks and scolds and warns his family and friends to beware of us. But if one slips far out in the woods where the bluejays have things all to themselves, and if we hide and listen, we will learn a different kind of bluejay talk. When alone with his fellows the bluejay talks softly to the others, in hushed, subdued voice. We even get to hear the bluejay's musical warbling, which is said to be one of the sweetest sounds heard in nature. This teaches us we have not yet scratched the surface in our knowledge of the ways of the lower creatures.

Kidd Leads Platoon In Perfect Exercise

Wilmington Nike Base soldiers recently repeated, under the leadership of Sgt. James Kidd, of Harold, their second straight perfect score in one of the Army Air Defense Command's most important evaluations. The no-points-lost performance was staged by the platoon in an evaluation at Stewart Air Force Base, New York.

Last April, the same group, led by Kidd, won the first Zero Defects award given by the First Region for a perfect performance. Purpose of the exercises is to determine if the equipment and men of the Nike Hercules missile firing battery are ready to meet the threat of aerial attack.

Sgt. Kidd is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Kidd, of Harold.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnie Adkins went to Michigan last week to spend a few weeks with relatives.

Will Hunt, who has been very ill at his home for several weeks, is much improved.

Erma Goble, who has been a patient at Prestonsburg General hospital, has returned to her home, somewhat better.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Damron last Wednesday visited their son Jeffrey, who is a patient at C. & O. hospital, Huntington.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Bailey were in Lexington on business Friday. While there they visited her sister, Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Taylor were shopping in Prestonsburg, Thursday of last week.

Mrs. Glenn Burchett, of Cow Creek, visited her sister, Mrs. Anna Burchett, here recently.

Mrs. Marion Hurd (nee, Betty Lea Lewis) is convalescing at her home after having surgery at the Methodist hospital, Pikeville.

Robert Damron spent the weekend with relatives. He attends Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes.

Crows in the wild state, when together, joke and laugh heartily among themselves. They also scold the naughty and speak softly to members of the family. Many of their sayings are entirely different from the quick, sharp caw we hear when we disturb a crow. That the crow could warble was known back in Shakespeare's day. In one of his plays he wrote: "The crow doth sing as sweetly as the lark when neither is attended."

The starting around the place often gives vent to noisy whistling and mocking other birds. But when he is far away from the premises of man he sings his own special song, which is pitched too low for any but a sharp ear to catch, and is said to be a most enchanting tune.

Many of us hear some voice or song of nature that warms the heart and gives us a special thrill. Some are enchanted by the glad whistle of the cardinal in the spring; others are thrilled by the magic wonder of the mockingbird's song; still others think, the soft, plaintive whistle of the white-throated sparrow is one of the most fascinating sounds of nature, as he whistles: "Sow wheat, Peverley, Peverley Peverley." But the warble of the bluebird in spring is one of the most touching songs heard in the bird world. Many who listen closely to the soft, sweet gurgle of the bluebird say the brief, little song holds all the strange mystery of sadness, the sweetness, the tenderness and the beauty of life combined in one handful of melody. The bird seems to have so much goodness and sweetness in its heart it is almost beyond its power to express it all in one soft gurgle. It is as if the little songster was doing his level best to tell us of the beauty of life at springtime—a beauty tinged with the melancholy sadness of a winter slowly dying in the first warm gush of spring.

USE TIMES WANT ADS FOR GOOD RESULTS!

There are a lot of good cars you can get for $3500. This is two of them.

If you don't happen to need two cars, there's only one thing that you need less. One car that costs as much as two cars. Unless you want to pay a lot of money for a lot of horsepower that you'll never use. There's only one state in the country where you can go faster than a Volkswagen—Nevada. (No speed limit—they're big gamblers out there.)

The only extra horsepower you really need is for all those power gadgets. Which you need to drive a car that size.

Which has to be that size to hold all those horses.

All of which also makes the average car cost almost as much to run as two Volkswagens. Considering a Volkswagen gets as much as 27 miles to a gallon of gas.

But if you're still not sold on the idea of two bugs for the price of one beast, why not take advantage of this special introductory offer: one Volkswagen for half the price of two.

SAFETY CHECK—One of the more than 50,000 boats registered with the Kentucky Department of Public Safety's boating division is halted in mid-cruise for a routine registration and safety check. The division employs 19 law enforcement officers in its Kentucky Water Police. They patrol the waterways of Kentucky whose 13,000 miles of navigable lakes and streams are second only to Alaska among states. A major part of the officers' duties is the enforcement of water safety laws, such as the requirement that each craft be equipped with a life preserver for each person on board.

Two School Systems Plan 200-Day Terms; 185 Days Are Required

Louisville, Ky.—Twenty-one of Kentucky's 199 public-school systems this year will have school terms longer than the minimum 185 days required by state law.

The longest school terms have been scheduled by two independent school systems in Northern Kentucky—Covington and Southgate. Each will have a 200-day term.

Both systems completed a 200-day term last year, without the need to use any of the five "family days" that state law also allows in special circumstances of local, state, or national disaster or mourning.

However, 146 other Kentucky school systems with approval of the State Board of Education reduced their last year's school terms by five days or less because of local calamities. In most cases, the schools were closed because of weather conditions that endangered the health or safety of children. Floyd county's system was among these 146.

The analysis of school-term length was made by the Kentucky Education Association (KEA) research division, using records on file in the Kentucky Department of Education at Frankfort.

One of the items in KEA's 1968 legislative program calls for the addition of five teaching days to the present required minimum school term of 185 days, with additional financing provided through the foundation program for education.

Present state law requires that 175 days of the 185-day minimum term be "teaching days" when children are present at the schools.

Last year there were 109 Kentucky school systems that had fewer than 175 teaching days because calamity days forced a reduction of the school term.

Thirty-two systems had 170 teaching days, 25 had 171, 26 had 172, 18 had 173, and eight had 174, the KEA analysis showed.

The 32 systems with 170 teaching days were all county systems—Anderson, Barren, Boyle, Breathitt, Breckinridge, Butler, Casey, Edmonson, Floyd, Garrard, Grayson, Green, Greenup, Hancock, Hardin, Hart, LaRue, Leslie, Lewis, Madison, Mason, Menifee, Metcalfe, Montgomery, Ohio, Owen, Pulaski, Russell, Scott, Warren, Washington and Wolfe.

BREATHITT STOOD ALONE

H.B. 258—THE "WIDOW COMBS" BILL.

(This bill would limit the right to destroy a mountain.)

It was proposed when an aged and frail widow in Knott county risked her life in the path of a bulldozer to save her mountain home.

Our present Representative voted to kill this bill.

I have some very strong feelings here. If we forget the past, I believe we are destined to repeat it. The beauty of our mountains is an inheritance, not ours to destroy. The gooseneck hoe and the bull-tongue plow gave us a sad harvest in the thirties—let's not repeat it with a bulldozer in the seventies.

DARBY for Representative

I was never more proud to call a man my Governor than on this occasion. When others were conspicuous by their unconcern, when compassion gave way to greed, Gov. Breathitt stood alone to stay the hand that would destroy a fair countryside and rob a widow of her mite.

I beg the voters to stand with me here, else I too shall stand alone. I could never be a traitor to this heritage or a Benedict Arnold to these hills.

A WELL-EDUCATED ARMY SEEN AS DRAFT TO CLAIM 1968 GRADUATE STUDENTS

Seventy per cent of the Selective Service quotas to be filled next summer will be made up of students who have had one year of graduate school work or who have just received bachelor degrees, Dr. Gustave O. Arlt, president of the Council of Graduate Schools in the United States, said at Morehead last week.

"Under the provisions of the Selective Service directive issued last May," he said, "any student who has been accepted for graduate school, or who is in a graduate school as of October 1, of this year, automatically becomes classified

2-S until June of 1968 when he automatically will become 1-A."

"This means," he stressed, "that, beginning next June, we will have the most highly educated Selective Service draftees in the history of our military service."

"As a result," he said, "enrollments in the nation's graduate schools in the fall of 1968 will include men not acceptable for military service, but none who have been deferred for educational purposes."

Dr. Arlt, who was on the Morehead campus for a two-day consultation with University officials in connection with the new graduate programs offered, emphasized that after next June "no deferments whatsoever will be granted graduate students with exception of medical, veterinary and dental students."

"This means that a graduate student who reads and understands the regulations knew when he entered graduate school this fall that he was classifying himself automatically 1-A for military service," he said.

"This is tragic," he went on. "The term 'Selective Service' not only means 'selected for service,' but also 'selected for deferment,' and we must devise some system under which the education of our future scientists, researchers and technical people can be continued uninterrupted."

"Unless such a system can be devised, we will lose one of the most valuable resources of our nation—its highly-trained leaders of tomorrow."

The former dean of Graduate School of the University of California at Los Angeles went on to stress the urgent need today for an ever-increasing number of trained people for the faculties of the new junior and community colleges springing up all over the country.

SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM
The scholarship program at the University of Kentucky is supported by an annual appropriation of $60,000 made by the Board of Trustees at the request of President John W. Oswald.

Numerous graduate assistantships are available at the University of Kentucky and involve participation in teaching, research or administrative work.

DOLLARS AND SENSE TALK ABOUT ELECTRIC HEATING FROM FOLKS WHO NOW HAVE IT.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Parks, No. 2 Bottom, Burdine, Kentucky, converted their 8-room-and-a-bath home to electric baseboard heat. Their average monthly bill for heating and all other uses of electricity is just $22.32. Recently, Mr. and Mrs. Parks were asked the following questions about their heat:

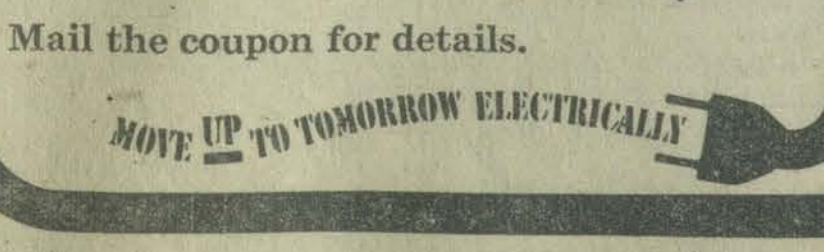

- Q: Does total electric living with flameless heating cost any more than you were paying for both fuel and electricity before?
- A: No... as a matter of fact, it costs less.
- Q: How much less?
- A: $2.68 a month less.
- Q: Apart from cost, was the switch to electricity worth it?
- A: Yes! We wouldn't go back to hauling ashes and constant cleaning for anything. We've never known a heating system as clean as electricity.
- Q: Why did you choose baseboard units and wall heaters over other types of electric heat?
- A: We talked to Kentucky Power and took their recommendations. We used baseboard heat in all rooms except bath, kitchen and utility room where wall heaters were better suited.
- Q: How much of a job was the conversion?
- A: Not as much of a job as we had expected. Our heating dealer took care of the whole job, including insulation.

Like the Parks, you can modernize your home with flameless heat. A Reddy Kilowatt Recommended Dealer or Kentucky Power Company will help you select the type heating that best suits your home and your preference.

No Guesswork on costs

Your dealer or Kentucky Power will accurately figure your monthly electric cost in advance. Then, compare for yourself the cost of safe, cleaner, more comfortable electric living with what you are presently paying for fuel and electricity.
