

Kennedy Visit Here Draws Big Crowd

RFK, Perkins Tour Region During Week

Congressman's Work Lauded; Senator Says P'burg Sets Example

Floyd countians got a glimpse of one of the famed Kennedy clan Wednesday afternoon when U. S. Senator Robert F. Kennedy and Congressman Carl D. Perkins stopped briefly at the courthouse here.

And the enthusiasm of the crowd that jammed the circuit courtroom and courthouse hallways and spilled onto the lawn and street outside indicated they liked what they saw and heard.

The Prestonsburg stop was not in Senator Kennedy's original itinerary. He began his fact-finding tour of mountain poverty pockets Tuesday, travelling with Congressman Perkins into Wolfe, Breathitt and Knott counties. Wednesday, he visited Hazard and other points in Perry county.

"Driving along," Kennedy in jocular vein told the courthouse crowd here, "I spoke of places I had been—Rome, Venice and others—and Carl Perkins told me, 'You haven't lived unless you visit Prestonsburg.' And so here I am—I didn't want anybody to say I was crazy."

A large part of the big crowd here was composed of youngsters, but their elders were well-represented, too, and the foxhunter's yell that went up when Kennedy mounted the courtroom rostrum wasn't voiced by a teen-ager.

The Senator spoke of his pleasure at visiting Eastern Kentucky—"to see for myself the courage, the pride and the tenacity of the people... to see them at work... facing up to their troubles."

He pointed to Prestonsburg as an example of what needs to be done throughout the region. He expressed his pleasure in finding here people who are not satisfied with the status quo.

PLANT PLANS LABOR STUDY

To Take Applications Of Potential Workers At Vocational School

An automotive supplier interested in locating a plant in the area will undertake a labor survey at Paintsville to ascertain if there are enough workers in Johnson and nearby counties to staff a plant which would employ between 500 and 700 persons.

Employment applications will be taken at the Mayo State Vocational School, Paintsville, from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Tentative job openings include tool and die making, arc welding, machine and electrical maintenance, general labor and supervisory work.

A representative of the company, which has asked not to be identified, has visited the Paintsville area twice in recent weeks. The company has expressed a strong interest in locating in this section.

The firm is a division of a company which has gross sales of $150 million a year.

Big Tent Contract To Keep KAI Busy

A near-$2 million contract for military tents came to Kentucky Appalachian Industries here last week at a time when KAI was looking on a future that wasn't exactly bright.

By the end of next month 200 workers might have been laid off, had the order not come through. But Congressman Carl D. Perkins' office in Washington supplied the good news that was needed—the Defense Department had announced that KAI was low bidder on the manufacture of 10,500 tents on its bid of $1,970,811, in the process outbidding 16 other companies scattered over the country.

The contract announced last Friday will keep the plant busy for at least another year. It puts KAI in the medium-size, general-purpose tent business, making 32x16-foot tents that weigh 275 pounds.

An a.w.o.l. service man, who was booked at the county jail as Willie Hackney, was shot in the ankle by a military policeman here Saturday when the prisoner broke guard and fled.

The wounded man was taken to the Prestonsburg General hospital. Sgt. Berry was in charge of the m.p. detail which had taken Hackney and two others from the jail to return them to military jurisdiction. Hackney's escape attempt was made in the vicinity of the Black Cat Drive in here.

One m.p. suffered a lacerated hand, and he reported the injury was sustained when he was thrown to the ground by the prisoner. Some who said they saw the incident claimed an m.p. kicked Hackney after he had fallen.

Piano Laboratory Makes Group Teaching Possible

How to beat the teacher-shortage problem as well as to supply piano instruction to a group, or any individual of a group, has been met at Prestonsburg Community College by means of a music laboratory of 13 electric pianos.

The college here is the first in the Kentucky community college system to be equipped with the new teaching device.

As many as 12 students may practise piano at the same time, since the instruments may be played audibly or, by the flicking of a switch, may be heard only by the student who wears earphones and the instructor at the master console to which each of the 12 pianos is connected.

Two-way communication is established between each pupil and the instructor who can listen to the performance of any member of the group.

The electronic lab is being used with music theory classes, music majors and elementary music teachers.

Gus Kalos, head of the Fine Arts department at the college here, said one of the goals sought is to make it possible for every student in the seven-county area served by the college to study piano if he or she desires to do so. The new teaching method enables a single teacher to instruct 12 pupils effectively within a one-hour period.

Woodwind Quint Slated For Concert Appearance

The Louisville Woodwind Quintet, which is composed of members of the Louisville Orchestra's wind section, will appear in a concert at Prestonsburg Community College Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Members of the Louisville Woodwind Quintet are: Francis Fuge, flute; Daniel McAninch, oboe; James Livingston, clarinet; John Judas, bassoon; and Kenneth Albrecht, horn. The quintet appeared for the first time during the 1964-'65 concert season in a performance with the Louisville Orchestra of Alvin Eller's "Concerto for Woodwind Quintet and Orchestra." The quintet recorded this work with the orchestra and it was released in January, 1965, in the Louisville Orchestra's First Edition Record Series.

At Sunday's concert here the Louisville Woodwind Quintet will render Introduction and Allegro (Anton Reicha), Quintet (Paul Taffanel), Quintet, Opus 24, No. 2 (Paul Hindemith), Quintet, Opus 71 (Beethoven).

This concert is made possible through the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series.

BOARD HITS WELLS SUIT

Answer to Action By Teacher Claims No Sick-Leave Due

The Floyd County Board of Education in its answer to the suit filed by James M. Wells to recover sick leave pay and damages this week asked that the action be dismissed on the grounds that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute or support a cause of action.

Wells, a teacher in Prestonsburg high school, last month sued the board for $214.91 which he claimed was wrongfully deducted from his pay check because he missed seven days' teaching time, and for $2,500 punitive damages.

The board's answer set up as defenses to the action:

1. On Oct. 19, 1967 plaintiff absented himself from his teaching position in Prestonsburg high school and notified the principal he would be absent for two days when, in fact, he was absent seven working days without any notification to the board or any of its representatives. Because of this, it is contended, Wells forfeited his contract with the board of education.

RESOLUTIONS URGE ACTION

Floyd Representatives Ask Senate, House To Support Aims

Floyd county's two state representatives, W. J. Reynolds, of Allen, and Everett Akers, of Martin, have three concurrent resolutions hopelessly on the way to adoption by both houses of the General Assembly. All three are regarded as important.

Akers, author of two of the resolutions, asks in one that the 20-year age limit for education or training of pupils in schools for the mentally retarded be removed, thus permitting the retarded, regardless of age, to benefit from state education funds. In his second resolution he calls on the State Highway Department to act immediately toward the four-lane reconstruction of US 23 through Kentucky.

Representative Reynolds' concurrent resolution calling on the state to provide its share of the funds necessary to win location in this area of a giant rehabilitation center has already been voted by the House, 91-0, and is expected to reach a vote in the Senate this week.

The $3 million rehabilitation center would be the first in Kentucky and one of the first in the nation. The state's share of the cost would be $1,080,000. So popular was the resolution introduced by Reynolds in the House that it eventually had 90 co-sponsors.

Representative Akers was joined in his resolution calling for action on US 23 by Representatives W. J. Reynolds, Ruth Wolchik, Woody May, Enoch Holbrook, Charles D. Wheeler, Ronald Halleck, Needham Saylor, Ed Lawhorne, Lawrence Lankford, Gether Irick, Jim Justice and Darwin Allen.

Mr. Akers, a native of Pike county, is a graduate of West Virginia University and has been associated with Mr. Evans the last six years.

Resignation of George E. Evans, Jr. as vice-president of Inland Steel Coal Company and as president of the Evans Elkhorn Division of Inland Steel, was announced this week.

His resignation became effective Feb. 1, exactly two years after the Evans Elkhorn Coal Company operations at Printer on Left Beaver and at Wayland were sold to Inland Steel. This transaction followed by a few weeks the acquisition by Inland Steel of the Inland Steel Company holdings in this county, including the town of Wheelwright, the Price preparation plant and approximately 30,000 acres of mineral rights.

Evans' resignation was followed by the resignations of David Bayer, vice-president of the Evans Elkhorn Division, and Daniel Slone, its comptroller.

Mr. Evans said the resignations, basically, stemmed from the personal interests which demand his attention and that of his colleagues. He added that announcement will be made, probably within a week, of a new company which he will head, with Bayer as vice-president, Neal J. Crowley, secretary, and Daniel Slone, treasurer.

This company will probably be involved in the development of large coal holdings which Mr. Evans retained when the purchase of his other operations was made by Inland Steel.

Evans, whose coal mining enterprise is one of the outstanding success stories of the industry in Eastern Kentucky, came to this county in 1940 upon his graduation from Notre Dame. He is chairman of the Kentucky Coal Association and the Big Sandy Elkhorn Coal Operators Association, is president of the Kentucky Mining Institute, a member of the advisory councils of the American Mining Congress, Washington, D. C., and the Prestonsburg Community College, and is a director of the First Guaranty Bank, Martin, and Appalachian Regional Hospitals.

Mr. Bayer, a native of Pike county, is a graduate of West Virginia University and has been associated with Mr. Evans the last six years.

County Readiness For Disaster Told

How well prepared is Floyd county to cope with natural or man-made disaster?

Leon J. Reed, deputy director of the Kentucky Division of Civil Defense, told a gathering of civic and community leaders at Prestonsburg Community College last Thursday evening that this county is better prepared than many.

Floyd's underground labyrinth of coal mines offers shelter for thousands in the event of nuclear attack, and the workings of three coal companies, plus a few public buildings, would accommodate almost 63,000 persons, it was said.

Coal operations listed as prospective shelters are the Princess Elkhorn mines at David, and those of Turner-Elkhorn and Inland Steel Coal Company mines on Left Beaver Creek. The postoffice and health department buildings here were listed as shelters, and some schools with basements can be used, Petty Thompson, Floyd county Civil Defense director, said.

But, Thompson said, shelter locations have at hand a stock of foodstuffs, medical supplies and other necessary items to accommodate only about 11,000. And there are only 37 shelter leaders while the need is for 200. Floyd county has 13 monitors trained for detection of radiation, but 267 are needed.

Said Mr. Reed: "Should the necessity arise, those within the sound of my voice tonight could receive the lives—or the blame for their credit for saving thousands of loss."

Wayne Berry, University of Kentucky Extension Division, demonstrated some methods of protection from radioactive fallout produced by an H-bomb. The greater the distance and the heavier the material between the person and the radiation, the safer he is, Berry said.

Adequate protection is available in any of the six community fallout shelters in the county, the group was told. Four are stocked with basic survival supplies consisting of food, medical supplies, portable sanitation facilities, and radiation detection instruments.

The conference participants discussed specific problems faced by Floyd county. Many of the suggestions and comments were termed extremely helpful by discussion leader C. H. Reedy and Floyd county Civil Defense director, Petty Thompson. All agreed that the biggest tasks are the training of local persons in specific survival skills and (See Story No. 10, Page 3)

Mrs. Lauda Bryant, 58, of Martin, died Monday at the McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital following an illness of 10 years.

A native of Knott county, she was born June 15, 1899, the daughter of the late Almander and Martha Thornsby Caudill. Her husband, Milford Bryant, survives.

Also surviving are a son, Norman Bryant, of Martin; a daughter, Mrs. Nell Jones, of Greensboro, North Carolina, and six grandchildren.

Funeral rites were held today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at the Little Nancy Regular Baptist Church at Hi Hat, of which she was a member, ministers of that church officiating. Burial in the Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel was directed by Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Ky. Chamber Names Four For Honors

Governor Nunn Makes Awards at Lexington Luncheon, Wednesday

Prestonsburg was designated Wednesday as an All-Kentucky City by the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce at the chamber's annual awards program held at the Continental Inn, Lexington.

The award, which climaxed a period of unprecedented progress for the community, was accepted for the city by City Manager Curtis Clark. The presentation was made by Gov. Louie B. Nunn.

Sharing in the designations as All-Kentucky Cities were Danville, Elizabethtown and Middlesboro.

Governor Nunn was luncheon speaker at the awards program, which was attended by delegations from throughout the state. Nearly 80 entries were received in the 1967 Opportunity for Progress contest. From the total number of entries submitted, 55 cities received awards of excellence. Cities entering the annual program are awarded participation certificates, excellence certificates, or All-Kentucky designation.

NUNN ASKS BIG BUDGET

Would Raise Sales Tax And Car License Fees; Reynolds Seeks Opinion

A budget of almost $2½ billion was asked by Gov. Louie B. Nunn in his budget message Tuesday night.

This amount, which is intended to cover expenditures for the two-year period beginning July 1, next, anticipates the spending of nearly $460 million more than during the current biennium which ends June 30.

To raise the additional revenues the budget calls for, Gov. Nunn asked a 5 percent sales tax, which would be an increase of 2 percent over the present tax, and an increase of auto license tags from the present $5 to $12.50.

The sales tax increase would become effective, April 1, but the new license plate fee would not take effect till next year.

Education got the lion's share of proposed increases. The Minimum Foundation Program would get an appropriation of $407 million.

Reaction to the budget, biggest ever for the state, and to the tax and license plate increases was mixed. Legislators were giving the Governor's budget a long look this week.

Akers said he had had the resolution ready for some time but had awaited a reply to a letter sent Congressman Carl D. Perkins. The latter replied, he said, that matching funds are available through the Appalachian Program on a 70-30 matching basis but that much of Kentucky's road funds have already been allocated to other Eastern Kentucky projects. Final decision as to where to apply the Appalachian funds rests with the state, he added.

The resolution points out that US 23 is a four-lane highway artery from the Straits of Mackinac, in Michigan, to Portsmouth, O., and that the portion in Virginia is now being four-laned, leaving the Kentucky sector from Portsmouth, O. to the Kentucky-Virginia line a two-lane bottleneck.

"This four-laning would attract industry and be a vital step in removing this pocket of poverty from Eastern Kentucky," Akers said.

The senator spoke briefly of dire poverty he had seen. "Only today I saw a family of six who have milk only one day a month. In this year 1968 we have a gross national product of $800 billion. We spend $2 billion on dogs alone. Surely children should have enough to eat."

Taking time to pay tribute to the work of Congressman Perkins, he early in his talk joshed his traveling companion with the promise, "Car and I are going to make sure that US 23 is four-laned, all the way."

Referring in the same mood to Perkins' loyalty and helpfulness to his brother, the late President Kennedy, the senator remarked, "Carl was not responsible for the Bay of Pigs—for everything that was good, he was."

Introducing Senator Kennedy, the congressman recalled that the Floyd county courthouse was one of the first grants made under the Accelerated Public Works program in the Kennedy administration.

Mayor George P. Archer introduced Congressman Perkins and spoke of the diligence with which Perkins has followed every hope for improvement of the county and this section "to find their place in the sun."

highway by force and violence.

A report received here Wednesday said trucks which previously had hauled the Terry Elkhorn coal via the Daniels Creek and Johns Creek roads to Van Lear began last week taking the coal to Royalton for rail shipment.

Commonwealth's Attorney Jack L. Lewis, Paintsville, said that Hovatter, and the truckers are scheduled for trial today (Thursday) in Johnson circuit court.

The coal haulers are accused of tearing up about a 10-mile stretch of state-maintained blacktop road which runs down Johns and Daniel Creeks and through Van Lear.

Lewis said that the weight limit on the road is 10 tons and 5 tons on bridges.

"The trucks have been from 23,000 to 40,000 pounds overweight," he said, adding that "from 90 to 95 per cent are overweight even when they are empty."

According to Lewis and Elmer Wells, who lives in the Van Lear area, some 20 to 25 trucks make from six to eight trips a day hauling coal from Daniels Creek to a Chesapeake & Ohio Railway siding in Van Lear and East Point.

The company has been mining in the area since mid-November.

Hovatter said that the trucks his haulers have been using are "smaller than those used in most other places" for similar purposes. He said the trucks are Ford and Mack tandems with two axles and eight tires.

"We would have to make twice as many trips and it would tear up the road twice as bad, if we had to use the single-axle, four-tire trucks" that would meet the weight limit, Hovatter said.

He contends that the trucks the company is using "do less damage to the roads."

Lewis said that the maximum penalty for hauling coal with overweight trucks is $500 for each offense.

ware and Manufacturing Company, Louisville, master of ceremonies for the awards program, extended the Chamber's congratulations to all award winners and those communities participating in the contest, saying "Your efforts, we know, represent a lot of hard work and struggle to make your community a better place in which to work and live."

President Davis pointed out that the dividing line between the cities receiving awards of excellence and those being designated All-Kentucky is a thin line and that this year it was an extremely difficult task for the out-of-state judges to make the final decision.

To be eligible for the All-Kentucky designation, the communities considered must have won certificates of excellence in four or more areas of community development.

Prestonsburg scored in 11 areas of community development—new attractions for tourists, new accommodations, entertainment, its service program, tourist promotion, building expansion, city government, sports, parades, business and hospitality.

(A detailed review of these development areas will be published in The Times next week.) Eastern and Southeastern Kentucky cities receiving Certificates of Excellence included Prestonsburg, Louisa, Beattyville, Hazard, Mt. Vernon, James-town, London, Pineville, Somerset, Harlan, Cumberland and Corbin.

Winning Certificates of Participation from this area were Paintsville and Manchester.

Raymond Porter, 62, Dies at Allen Home; Funeral Held Monday

Raymond Porter, 62-year-old farmer, died last Thursday at his home at Allen after a two-year illness.

Mr. Porter was born March 20, 1905 at Allen, a son of Mrs. Martha Branham Porter, of Allen, and the late Farris Porter. He was never married.

Surviving, besides his mother, are three brothers, Mims Porter, of Allen, Brook Porter, of Marshall, Mich., and Ralph Porter, of Kenova, W. Va., and four sisters, Mrs. Ruth Thomas, of South Shore, Ky., Mrs. Mary Baldrige, of Lebanon, Ohio, Mrs. Sadie George, Marshall, Mich., and Mrs. Edith Parks, of Louisville, Kentucky.

Funeral rites were conducted Monday at 11 a.m. from the Allen Methodist Church, the pastor, the Rev. Virgil Knipp, officiating. Burial was made in the Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel, the Hall Brothers Funeral Home officiating.

Jack Hughes, 76, Former Floyd Man, Dies at Paintsville

Jack Hughes, 76, of River, Johnson county, former Floyd county resident, died last Tuesday at the Paintsville Clinic following an illness of three months.

Born Jan. 1, 1892 in Floyd county, he was a son of Daniel and Lucinda Ousley Hughes, and was the husband of Mrs. Georgia Hughes, who survives. He was a member of the Regular Baptist Church.

Survivors, other than his widow, are three daughters, Mrs. Grace Daniel, of Richmond, Va., Mrs. Della Smith and Versie Hughes, both of Lexington, Ky.; a brother, Joe Hughes, of Martin; one half-brother, Estill Hughes, of Michigan, and a half-brother, Joe Hughes, of Martin.

He also leaves 10 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted Friday at 2 p.m. from the Preston Funeral Home, Paintsville, the Rev. O. I. Williams officiating. Burial was made in the Forest Preston cemetery at River.

Mrs. James Ward Rees, Of Millersburg, Dies After Short Illness

Mrs. Virginia Womack Rees, 57, wife of Maj. James Ward Rees, of Millersburg, Ky., died Sunday at Bourbon county hospital following a short illness.

Mrs. Rees, who was widely related here, was instructor of French and English at Millersburg Military Institute where her husband was an instructor and former athletic coach. She was a daughter of the late Clay Wade Womack and Martha Davidson Womack Carpenter and was a native of West Liberty.

She was a member of the Millersburg Methodist Church which for 20 years she served as choir director and later in varied services.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, James Ward Rees, Jr., a student at Kentucky Wesleyan College, Owensboro; a sister, Mrs. J. Vimont Layson, Millersburg, and a brother, Roger C. Womack, Carlisle.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday from the Millersburg Methodist Church, and burial was made in the Shannon Church cemetery, in Mason county.

CARD OF THANKS
"We would like to take this opportunity to thank all of those who were so kind to us upon the passing of our beloved mother, Mrs. Mallie Sizemore. Special thanks to those who sent flowers or food, to the Floyd Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service, and to the Rev. Wallace Calhoun and the Rev. Jack DeRossett for their kind and consoling words."

GUILTY—AS CHARGED

Somewhere out west, the other day, a court action was instituted which meets with my approval, if my approval amounts to anything, and I am sure it doesn't in this case, at this distance. The parents of a teen-age girl were charged with manslaughter, voluntary or involuntary, I forget—should be voluntary—because they had caught the girl in a compromising situation with a boy. To punish her they drove her, with her dog, out into the desert, gave her a gun and told her she must punish herself by killing her pet. The poor girl killed herself.

THE NECESSARY INGREDIENTS

Nicholas Murray Butler, who for many years was president of Columbia University, had some rather striking ideas about education and culture and the like. Once he summed up his impressions to this effect:

"I have boiled down the importance of education to just two things—character and good manners. A man or a woman who can develop good character with good manners is educated because everything else will come. Without these two things there is no use of having schoolhouses and teachers because you cannot do anything with people who have not developed these two important things."

If I had any ideas approaching the profundity of Dr. Butler, I would add them. That's why this column ends right here.

Undefeated Spartans Add Two Wins over Week-End

The Prestonsburg Community College Spartans made it six in a row last week-end as they rolled up two victories by convincing margins. First, they trounced winless Somerset Community College at Somerset Friday, 14-95. Then, on Saturday night, they returned home to crush Southeast Community College, of Cumberland, 96-70.

In the Somerset game, Beecher Hale and Ernie Collins tossed in 27 and 25 points, respectively, to lead a Prestonsburg attack that saw every man on the squad get into the scoring act. Roy Conn played his best game of the season as he scored 16 points, gathered 11 rebounds, and completely dominated the contest in the first half. Johnny Mayo and Doug Kretzer added nine and six points, respectively, but their passing and rebounding work set up many Spartan baskets. Mayo has suffered from shin splints throughout the season, an injury that has severely limited his playing time. Steve Clark came off the bench to spell the 6-2 guard from Martin and scored 15 points.

Somerset was led in scoring by their backcourt tandem of Barry Van Hook and Jerry Burgess, who dropped in 23 and 22 points each. Ronnie Bray scored 19 and Carlos Wheelon added 12 as the host team lost its eighth game in as many outings.

The Saturday night encounter in Prestonsburg saw the Spartans break a sticky Southeast full-court pressing defense to hold a 49-27 lead at the half. Coach Glenn Anderson, Jr. began emptying his bench as early as the 12-minute mark, when the outcome had been secured. Beecher Hale left the game with 7:37 remaining after piling up 35 points. Ernie Collins added 21 points and played an outstanding defensive game. He came through with numerous steals and blocked five shots. Game scoring honors went to Southeast's Richard Brown. The 6-3 forward scored 35 points, 23 in the second half. Bill Sundry added 14 points for the losers.

IN MEMORY

To my Dad, Luther Allen, on his birthday, February 4.

I sit in lonely thought today
 And think of one who has Passed away.
 His smile, his face, I
 Long to see—
 For, oh, he meant so
 Much to me.
 On this, his day, I softly pray—
 If he could but be here today.
 I would not cry, nor
 Would I be sad,
 If I could say I love you—
 Happy Birthday, Dad.

Your loving daughter,
BETTY

SHERIFF'S SALE

The First National Bank of Prestonsburg, Ky., Plaintiff vs. NOTICE OF SALE Virgil and Polly Ann Hall, Defendants

By virtue of execution issued in Civil Action No. 6236, to me directed, which issued from the office of the Clerk of the Floyd Circuit Court, in favor of The First National Bank, Prestonsburg, Ky., against Virgil Hall and Polly Ann Hall, I will on the 2nd day of March, 1968, at 11 a.m., at the Courthouse door in the City of Prestonsburg, Ky., expose for public sale, to the highest bidder, a tract of land, together with all improvements thereon, lying on the waters of Toler Creek of Big Mud Creek, a tributary of the Big Sandy River and described as follows: Beginning at the fence post at upper corner of Virgil Hall's yard at edge of road; thence up the county road with the fence to a point opposite a large apple tree at back of bottom; thence across the bottom to said apple tree; thence to the fence and cliff; thence down the creek with said fence and cliff to the cross fence at upper side of Virgil Hall's house; thence with said cross fence to the fence post at edge of road, the beginning corner, containing one (1) acre, more or less.

Being the same land conveyed to Virgil Hall and Polly Ann Hall, his wife, by Joe Hall and Nan Hall, by deed dated June 16, 1951, recorded in Deed Book 150, at page 48, Floyd County Court Clerk's office.

I will proceed to sell said land, or so much of it as will be necessary to satisfy said execution and the cost thereof, to the highest and best bidder on credit of six (6) months from the day of sale, the purchaser giving bond with approved surety to have the force and effect of a judgment on which execution may issue if the same is not paid at maturity, when and where due attendance will be given by me. The amount to be raised is the sum of $593.29.

Given under my hand as Sheriff of Floyd county, Kentucky, this 10th day of February, 1968.

Plans for Homecoming At Maytown Announced

Langley, Ky. — Plans for the Maytown Homecoming, July 26-28, continue to be made. Families are again asked to notify relatives and friends, also to send names and addresses to the school office for files. Letters of invitation are available there.

Last week, Principal E. V. Stewart, official host of the Homecoming, received a letter from Edgar and Hubert Wright, who graduated from Maytown high school in the early '40's. Unaware of plans for Homecoming, the brothers wrote, asking if class reunions were ever held. The two are in the insurance business in California.

The Homecoming Registration Committee will have handmade identification tags to register all visitors, plus the home folks, so everyone can recognize "the other fellow." Mesdames Theodore Gibson, Kenneth Blevins, Herbert Ousley and Ermal Hicks are making these. Original symbols or motifs are employed for the separate groups expected to attend:

1. A "little red schoolhouse" for alumni and former students of MHS; 2. A miniature school bus for visiting children and grandchildren of the first group; 3. A small log cabin for residents (past and present) of the community.

Miss Debbie Sammons, now attending Morehead State University, is designing the town flag, which her mother, Mrs. Martin Halbert, Jr., will make for the occasion. Mrs. Thomas Patrick, music teacher at MHS for many years, has been asked to write the Homecoming song.

Mrs. E. V. Stewart is serving as chairman of Histories to be written by students and others for publication in the Homecoming booklet. These will include histories of the school, its organizations, the churches, civic groups. List of topics and authors will appear shortly. Miss Eloise Allen is editor-in-chief of the Homecoming booklet. Mrs. Jones Tallent is in charge of Homecoming for the Maytown Methodist Church on Sunday, July 8.

Officers of the Homecoming Association follow:

President, Mrs. James Allen; vice-presidents, Mrs. George Patton and Mrs. Jones Tallent; secretaries, Mrs. Jean Patton and others; treasurer, Mrs. David Reed; editor, Homecoming Booklet, Miss Eloise Allen; Finance committee, Lovell Martin, Billy Patton, and others. Many committees are to be announced later. All programs will be in the gym. Mrs. James Allen, Principal E. V. Stewart, assistant county superintendent Wayne Radliff, an alumnus of Maytown high school, will preside over various programs. Supt. Charles Clark is among those who will emcee special programs. Services open to everyone will be held on Sunday, July 28, in the Maytown Methodist and Wilson Creek Baptist Churches; Mrs. Jones Tallent, program chairman for the Methodist Church, and Mrs. W. B. Day for the Baptist. Ex-officio hosts for the three-day event include: Maytown Community, Mr. and Mrs. James Allen; Maytown high school, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Stewart; Methodist Church, Rev. and Mrs. Leonard Sumner; Baptist Church, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Day.

Those wanting to mail invitations may pick them up on counters of the Allen and Hall stores here. Mrs. Tommy Jones is chairman of registration.

U. of K. Donovan Scholar, 71-Year-Old in a Hurry

When 71-year-old Cyrus Peter Francisco, of California, decided to attend the University of Kentucky he went about it in the same adventurous spirit that had characterized most of his life.

A month ago Francisco was in Pasadena, Calif. He had just finished two years at Pasadena City Junior College where he majored in mathematics and studied computer science.

He says an officer of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare recommended that he continue his education at UK as a Donovan Scholar.

"I wrote Dr. Earl Kauffman, director of the UK Council on Aging and he invited me to come to Kentucky. So here I am started toward my bachelor's degree," Francisco recalls displaying his registration card which showed him enrolled in four classes, botany, physics, art and English. He hopes to graduate in 1971 at the age of 73.

How he got to Lexington could be called a study in determination.

A retired Pacific Telephone Company employee, Francisco was on a somewhat limited budget. He was in a hurry to begin the Spring term at UK, so he asked American Airlines for a student's ticket to Lexington. When the ticket office, in view of his age, seemed reluctant to grant him the student's rate, he wrote to the home office, giving them proof of his student's status and asking again for the student's rate.

Airline officials, in recognition of his determination, awarded him a free ticket to Lexington.

Although he had never been to Kentucky, he is "completely at home here. The students are truly friendly. They accept me just as I accept them—age does not seem to make any difference. They helped me get oriented, both mentally and physically."

A native of New Jersey, he attended Rutgers University, where he played football until he joined the Navy in World War I. After the war he went West and helped lay the communication lines at Boulder Dam. His son, Kent, was captain of the UCLA football team in 1964 and after a period of pro ball, is now back at UCLA studying law. Both his daughters attended Pasadena City College. One is now teaching, the other continuing her higher education.

"Even at my age, computer science is a fascinating subject," he says. "I want to get deeper into it so I can continue a number of inventions I've been working on. They are related to the field of education and if proved out scientifically could be useful to students and teachers."

I Say What I Think

By S. C. VAN CURON

The three special education interests are presenting everything but a united front in this session of the General Assembly.

And while they are knifing one another in the hallways, their prospects have become dimmer than in any session in recent history. Legislators have about had their fill of special protection moves by the group, and at the laws that have been specifically written in past years that gives the professional educators the upper hand over the taxpayers.

The rebellion point may be nearing among legislators, for they have begun to feel the pulse of their constituents back home.

A bill that would provide reapportionment of county school board divisions along the lines of the Supreme Court ruling on the "one man, one vote" theory is being opposed by leaders of the Kentucky School Boards Association.

A law was passed in 1954 to prevent county superintendents and county school board members from gerrymandering districts just before school board elections, a habit many had at that time to stay in power. The law said that districts could not be changed in any year of a school board election, but it did not make any provision for requiring (making mandatory) reapportionment when population got out of balance. Consequently, time has done the gerrymandering of school divisions, through shifts in population, and some superintendents and boards are happy to have it that way against public demand. The reapportionment seems to be strictly permissive.

The bill introduced by Franklin county Rep. William P. Curlin, Jr. would turn the reapportionment of county school districts over to Fiscal Court. The machinery is for a petition to be presented to Fiscal Court pointing out the inequalities, and a three-man commission would be appointed to do the job if the case proved meritorious.

Another controversial measure that has the school interests opposed to one another is the professional negotiation bill introduced Monday night. The Kentucky Education Association and the National Education Association are strong for the measure since it is their defense against unions organizing teachers.

The KEA and NEA know that membership, in the form of dues, is the life-blood of their organizations have seen unions up east and in several large cities takes over the membership because the education organizations were not doing the job for the teachers.

On the other hand, the Kentucky School Boards Association is violently opposed to professional negotiation in almost any form. They claim that this is an invasion of rights conveyed upon the board by the electorate. However, the KSRA does not point out that the board has little authority on its own under the law. Practically every action of the board requires a recommendation from the superintendent.

If the board rebels against the superintendent, the best the board can hope is a stalemate if the board fails to win the superintendent over to their side.

A bill was introduced in the House that should please all of the education segment. Rep. Ralph Mitchell, D-Shepherdsville, dropped a bill in the hopper that would require full fair cash value declaration on all property transfers and provide a fee of $1.00 for each $500 valuation, with the county court clerk getting five percent of this for his fee and the remainder going to the school district where the property is located. Value of the bill is that assessments would be maintained at 100 percent, and the school tax base would not be eroded.

There is some talk of a bill being introduced to require popular election of county school superintendents.

County Histories Wanted For UK's Ky. Life Museum

(Editor's note: Gifts such as have been made to the Kentucky Life Museum are needed at the Prestonsburg Community College to make more complete its collection of Eastern Kentucky memorabilia.)

The University of Kentucky Life Museum at Waveland is seeking copies of the history of each Kentucky county about which one has been written.

Dr. Hambleton Tapp, director, acknowledging the donation by Mrs. Delphus Rawlings of Owingsville, of "History of Bath County," said these acquisitions are important, as are contributions of other rare Kentucky books. The Bath county history was written by Mrs. Rawlings' father, Adair Richards.

Other recent donors and their gifts to Waveland include:

Circuit Judge John A. Breslin, Maysville—a cane mill powered by horse or mule used for making sorghum molasses; rare folding A-harrow used for hillside harrowing where stumps exist, and an all wooden flog-over rake.

Samuel M. Cassidy, Pittsburgh—old brass compass supported by a Jacobs Ladder staff and two bobbins for lighting the compass when used in coal mine surveying.

John Craig Shelby, Lexington—a collection of old silver, including a coin silver service. (The museum now has in its silver collection pieces from almost every early Kentucky silversmith.)

Miss Mary Didlake, Lexington—six rare coin silver tea, or "toddy," spoons made by Edward West, a Virginian who moved to Lexington and died there in 1785.

Mrs. W. B. Ardery, Paris—a wooden pall used at the old Cane Ridge Meeting House.

Phillip P. Ardery, Louisville—Indian relic collection, including arrowheads and spear points, flint drills, a "skinner" for cleaning fingernails, axes, a stone pipe and knives.

Eric Munro, Lexington—copies of early Kentucky newspapers, books, letters and pictures. The newspapers include an 1880 copy of the Lexington Daily Transcript and a copy of the Clark County Democrat printed in 1838.

Dr. Maurice H. Long, Bondville—a "quaint and unusual" fence stretcher.

Dr. Maurice A. Clay, UK associate professor of physical education—ancient Oliver typewriter.

Johnson Group Protests Road Damage by Trucks

(Reprinted from The Paintsville Herald, February 2)

The issue of coal production versus road maintenance in the Daniels Creek area of Johnson county apparently is going to get hotter before it ends.

Brady Rose, chairman of the Van Lear Community Action Club, said today that petitions signed by some 400 residents may be taken before a "higher court" to assure action on load limits.

Stirring the controversy is a coal mining operation at the head of Daniels Creek. According to residents, trucks hauling coal to a Van Lear tippie have destroyed roads by loading beyond legal limits. They want the roads repaired, and Class B load limits of 15 gross tons observed.

On the other side of the coin, operators and haulers maintain that the coal operation is important to the local economy, that it provides a major payroll plus employment, and that they are making efforts to keep roads passable by hauling red dog as fill.

Square in the middle, and obviously uncomfortable about being there, is the Johnson county court. Thus far the court has attempted to satisfy both sides, by ordering the largest trucks taken out of service, and asking for state help as soon as possible to build the roads strong enough to hold heavy loads.

Commissioner Ralph Castle, at a recent meeting of the fiscal court, said that he felt industry was important to the county, and that the coal project should not be shut down. Rose says that is not the objective of the citizens.

"It is not our intention to put the operators out of business," Rose said. "What we want is the law observed, so we can use our roads without tearing up our cars. If this operation is as big as they say it is, the operators can build their own road."

"The state has cut other local haulers such as Adams Construction to 16 ton limits on Class A roads, and is enforcing it," Rose emphasized.

While the exact number is uncertain, a number of citations have been issued, about a dozen last week. The citations, according to county attorney R. B. Harrington, are for overloads and no "cab cards."

Three warrants have been served for prior violations, Harrington said.

The cab card is a document issued by the state, assigning each truck a number. Each quarter the two cent state tax on gasoline is assessed against that number, with the income going to the rural road fund and eventually back to the county, at least in part.

Rose contends that without cab cards, the coal trucks are not providing any income to the county for road repair.

Just last week, in one outcropping of the dispute, Charles Hovater, mine operator, was indicted by the grand jury here for "unlawfully but with felonious intent damaging the approach leading to the church house and school house on Daniels Creek against the will and consent of said church and school."

Hovater filed bond on that true bill this week, and the case will be heard on February 12, according to the court calendar.

Brady Rose, meanwhile, said that a meeting of Van Lear, Daniels Creek and Johns Creek residents was planned at Van Lear school 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 1, to discuss "serious and disastrous problems" confronting the area.

As it now stands, the opposing interests appear to be on a collision course. Operators say the coal production can't succeed economically with small trucks... residents say the road can't stand big trucks, and the law should be observed. A decision to enforce or ignore the law apparently is going to have to be made by Johnson county's court, before a controversy grows into a calamity.

'Whatsoever Things'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

It seems that this fellow was in the air terminal at Nashville waiting for his flight to leave. He ran upon a new computer machine and the machine caught his eye. "Your name, age, weight, and religion for one dime," he read.

"Shucks," he thought, "I know we are living in a modern world. But something like that just isn't possible." So he stepped up on the scales and dropped in a dime. Out came a little card that read, "Your name is John Simmons, your age 42 years old, you weigh 147 pounds, and you are a Baptist."

"It's unbelievable," he exclaimed. He looked over the machine to see what the catch was. He could see nothing unusual. He waited a little while and decided to try it again. He stepped up, dropped in his dime, and waited. The card came out. It read: "Your name is John Simmons, you are 42 years old, you weigh 147 pounds, and you are a Baptist." "There has got to be a trick," he thought.

Then an idea came to him. He went downtown, got some sunglasses, a fake mustache, a trench coat and a hat and returned to the air terminal. He stepped up on the machine, confident that this time the machine could not possibly give him all the information. He put in his dime. The card came out and read: "Your name is John Simmons, you are 42 years old, you weigh 147 pounds, and you are a Baptist. And you have messed around and missed your plane to Birmingham, Ala."

That's what we all do sometimes, mess around. Procrastinate is a fancy word for it. If John Simmons had not procrastinated he would not have missed his flight to Birmingham. But he was about like the rest of us. He put off something he needed to do because he was doing something he wanted to do.

One day our world, and the people in it, is going to learn to do that which needs to be done. For instance, two out of every three people in the world will go to bed hungry tonight. That may seem unbelievable to most well-fed Americans, but it is true. It doesn't have to be true because we have the potential to feed them all. Science tells us that. The reason we aren't doing it is that we have been messing around with what the Creator has given us.

We spend millions and millions to get to the moon. And I'm not against scientific progress. But I would imagine that there are millions of people who would like to get a square meal tonight who could care less if we get to the moon or not.

He who made the earth entrusted us with a great stewardship. And to a certain degree we have made a mess of it. One day we will see the wisdom of the Man who spoke and His words. "I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly." Then little children will not have to go to bed hungry.

Think about it tonight when you eat supper. Millions of others will—without any supper.

Just for the Record: '67 Was Cool, Wet and Snowy

It may not be news to most of the citizenry, but Kentuckians spent a relatively cool, wet and snowy 1967, according to Allen B. Elam Jr., FSSA Weather Bureau state climatologist at the University of Kentucky.

"Temperatures for the year as a whole averaged from about one to one and a half degrees below normal," Elam said. "Precipitation was below average in the Blue Grass area but above average elsewhere."

During the four months of January, February, March, and December, snowfall totaled from about 13 to 30 inches, depending on the location, he noted in his year-end review. "Snowfall was above average in practically all sections of the state."

Yearly temperatures were above average for the months of January, March, April and December, but fell below average in all other months, Elam said. "This was the eighth consecutive year that temperatures fell below the 1931-'60 averages."

Elam estimates that precipitation during 1967 averaged about two inches below normal in the Blue Grass region, but was two inches above normal in the western portion of the state; three inches above normal in the eastern division, and six inches above normal in the central division.

"Some areas in south central Kentucky had yearly totals of precipitation of some 20 inches above normal—partly in the form of snow," Elam said.

Conversation Piece...

Sometimes, we wonder what we would do for something to talk about if the weather did not come to the rescue. It gives rise to the most inane remarks—"Nice day," or "Cold, isn't it?"—when any but the senseless already know the truth about the situation.

And now we add our own inanity to the discussion:

Kentucky is blessed because its weather is always changing, never monotonous.

You knew that already—sure. But did you know that changing climatic conditions—heat, cold, wind and rain, snow and ice—demand homes that are well-constructed and able to stand up under the extremes of weather, in all seasons?

For those time-tested materials, strong, attractive, made especially to meet the needs of the people of this section, see us first.

Volkswagen's automatic stick shift. It's easier to use than it is to say.

It's quite a mouthful, isn't it? But once you get by the name, the rest is easy.

There isn't a clutch pedal to contend with.

And for all practical purposes, you can drive everywhere without shifting.

On the highway, you shift once. (This is like an overdrive; you go faster, your engine goes slower, and your automatic bug won't turn into an automatic hog.)

And when the going gets rough (like up a ridiculously steep hill), you can shift into low.

What could be simpler?

One thing: the automatic stick shift is an option.

So you'll have to pay a little more.

But compared to other automatics, it's a bargain.

Because with every automatic stick shift, we include a remarkable money-saving device:

Agencies To Promote Tree-Planting in 1968

A concerted drive, with four agencies cooperating, is being made to interest Floyd county landowners in reforestation work this year. The U. S. Soil Conservation Service, Kentucky Division of Forestry, the Extension Service and the Floyd Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) also have enlisted the help of vocational agriculture teachers in promoting the work.

Sign-up for tree-planting has already begun, and the ASCS again this year will cost-share with landowners.

According to the 1960 Conservation Needs Inventory, this county has 63,355 acres of land which is nonproductive because stony, with briars and broomsedge its main vegetation. This is steep, very shallow and is the type of soil sought for reclamation through reforestation.

Harry J. Wallace, conservationist, Floyd County Soil District, pointed out this week that soils of the nature described are ideal for tree-planting, will produce a timber crop and add to the beauty of the area. Specials available for planting this year are black locust, yellow poplar, black walnut, loblolly pine, short-leaf pine, white pine, scotch pine and white ash.

Only a Month Remains For Most Session Work

Frankfort, Ky. — Kentucky's 1968 General Assembly has a lot of things to do before mandatory adjournment of its regular session March 15.

First and foremost is adoption of a two-year, state-spending executive budget for fiscal 1968-'70 which will approximate $2 billion if it equals that for 1966-'68.

Then come final decisions on two issues that have generated great interest throughout the Commonwealth.

One is whether Kentucky shall go on daylight saving time with the rest of the nation from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October, or whether it shall continue on standard time.

The other is whether Kentucky shall retain, or repeal or modify, the compulsory annual vehicle inspection law passed two years ago. The law, at a hearing last week, was called both "best in the nation" and a "waste of public money."

A third decision yet to be made concerns bills to eliminate certain state holidays. Senate Bill 50, passed and sent to the House, would abolish five state holidays for state employees.

House Bill 49, passed and sent to the Senate, would abolish three such holidays but would grant 15 days annual vacation to employees with more than one year's service and 18 days to those with more than five years. All now get 12 days.

Introduced in the House by Rep. Jon Rickett, D-Elizabethown, were two "truth in lending" bills which carried the names of 57 other representatives, more than half the membership of the House, as co-sponsors.

HB 250 and HB 251 would require interest rates, both in annual percentage and in dollars, to be furnished any private citizen obtaining a loan or mortgage, or making an installment purchase up to $25,000.

The bills would require the financing company to list all other charges. They would not apply to business or personal loans over $25,000.

The Senate approved by 35-0 and sent to the House Senate Bill 110 which proposes a compact calling for the establishment by Kentucky and Indiana of an interstate park at the Falls of the Ohio River at Louisville.

Sen. Walter S. Reichert, R-Louisville, sponsor, said the park is needed to protect the area from rockhounds and fossil hunters and preserve its scientific and historic value for future generations.

Introduced in the Senate was a 17-bill package which would implement recommendations by the Kentucky Crime Commission for strengthening the state's criminal code. Endorsed by Gov. Louie B. Nunn, Senate Bills 184 through 200 would:

Provide state regulation of bail bondsmen; tighten anti-riot laws, redefine perjury, criminal conspiracy, loitering and disorderly conduct; grant immunity in some cases to persons willing to testify; authorize nonbail release in other instances; and tighten criminal procedures in line with recent court decisions.

Another package of three bills recommended by the Louisville and Jefferson County Crime Commission—HBs 219, 220 and 221—were introduced in the House by the majority floor leader, Rep. Fred Morgan, D-Paducah.

One is a "stop and frisk" bill that would permit a policeman to stop and question a felony suspect. Another would require licensing of all handguns bought or brought in the state. The third would assure anonymity to some police informants.

In efforts to strengthen the Legislature's role as an independent branch of state government, the Senate passed and sent to the governor for approval or veto HB 47. The bill empowers the Legislature to develop its own budget and appropriations act independent of the governor's overall executive budget. Senate approval by 35-1 followed a 95-2 favorable House vote.

Purpose of joint meetings last week of Senate and House Committees on Agriculture and Natural Resources was to seek ways to help Kentucky dairy farmers compete with "imitation" milk and dairy products. The problem is one of price. Imitation milk, it was said, can be produced for about 14 cents less per gallon than real milk.

HB 242, introduced by Rep. Hugh H. McGill, D-Louisville, would prevent racial or religious discrimination in the sale or rental of property. McGill said his "fair housing bill" would exempt duplexes or rooming houses occupied by the owner. The Kentucky Human Rights Commission would be empowered to investigate complaints of violation.

Presidential preference primaries now receiving attention in other states direct attention to HB 249, introduced by Rep. W. Harold DeMarcus, R-Stanford. It would provide for similar primaries in Kentucky.

NATURAL RESOURCES ASSISTANT
Frankfort, Ky. — The appointment of Welborn Adams as assistant to the commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Natural Resources has been announced by Gov. Louie B. Nunn. Adams, of Cynthiana, has been chairman of the Board of Commissioners of the Kentucky Soil and Water Resources Commission for the past year. He has also been associated with Wigglesworth Tobacco Warehouse Co. and Wigglesworth Agricultural Service, Inc. at Cynthiana, for the past 20 years.

KENTUCKY BEND

DOLLARS AND SENSE TALK ABOUT ELECTRIC HEATING FROM FOLKS WHO NOW HAVE IT.

Mr. and Mrs. Beecher Arnett of Dixie Addition, Salyersville, Kentucky, installed electric ceiling heat in their new 7-room, 3-bath home. Their average monthly electric bill for heating and all other uses of electricity is just $29.72. Recently, Mr. & Mrs. Arnett were asked the following questions about their heat:

Q: Does total electric living with flameless heating cost any more than you were paying in your previous home for both fuel and electricity?

A: Yes.

Q: How much more?

A: We didn't keep close records of heating costs in our old home, but the difference isn't great.

Q: Do you think the difference in cost is worth it?

A: As far as we're concerned, electric heat can't be beat. It was really hard to believe at first, it was so warm. Even in the coolest weather, the floors are always warm. And clean, it's so clean. I'm pleased that my wife has to spend very little time cleaning. We had fuel oil in our old house and we find this electric heat much cleaner.

Q: Why did you choose ceiling cable over other types of electric heat?

A: We liked the idea of heating units that were completely concealed.

Like the Arnetts, you can modernize your home with flameless heat. A Reddy Kilowatt Recommended Dealer or Kentucky Power Company will help you select the type heating that best suits your home and your preference.

No Guesswork on costs

Your dealer or Kentucky Power will accurately figure your monthly electric cost in advance. Then, compare for yourself the cost of safe, cleaner, more comfortable electric living with what you are presently paying for fuel and electricity.
