

Half of Eligible May Vote Tuesday

Margin Cut Is GOP Hope In Floyd-Co.

Wallace Vote, Factor; School Bd. Candidates In Write-In Campaign

For all the interest in the present election campaign, which ranges the gamut from school board member to President of the United States, no more than half of Floyd county's 26,000 registered voters are expected to cast ballots at next Tuesday's election.

Floyd county is considered a safely Democratic, although most observers see a reduced majority for the party. George Wallace's American ticket is regarded as a big factor in the Floyd voting.

Statewide, the Republicans expect to win, although the faction-rent Democratic party has been staging a strong comeback in the last two weeks.

In the Seventh district Congressional race the incumbent, Democrat Carl D. Perkins, is regarded a certain winner over James D. Nickell, Ashland Republican.

Observers also predict that if Richard M. Nixon, the Republican candidate for the Presidency, piles up a big lead in the state over Hubert H. Humphrey, Democrat, Republican Marlowe Cook will defeat Katherine Peden, Democrat, for the U. S. Senate post.

Although two incumbents on the Floyd County Board of Education have no opposition on the face of the voting machines, campaigns are being waged to induce voters to write in the names of the two men who lost their places on the ballot when their petitions were ruled defective. The write-in candidates are Manis Crawford, opposing incumbent Bill Blair in Educational Division 4, and Rondal Lawson, who opposes Ross Cooley in Division 5.

In Division 3 John M. Stumbo, incumbent, is opposed by (See Story No. 6, Page 3)

Drawdown of Lake To Begin Nov. 15

The U. S. Corps of Engineers has discarded any hope of holding Dewey Lake at its summer stage, and the seasonal drawdown of five feet will begin Nov. 15, as usual.

The lowering of the water to the winter level will be gradual but will be completed by November 30, it was said.

This Town... That World

The fortune-tellers were in operation, this Halloween week. But a few pretty well-known gentlemen won't be told their till next Tuesday.

IT'S NEVER THE SAME AGAIN

An idol went and got itself smashed, the other day.

Some who waste their time with this column may recall that for some years now I have expressed a yearning for a copy of Mrs. Southworth's "Ishmael" and its sequel, "Self-Raised." These were the first works of fiction ("love stories," they called them) that I read. And the trials, tribulations and final victory of the hero shook me to the tips of my copper-toed boots.

I have offered as much as $20 for copies of the two. I have searched bookshops, second-hand stores and a variety of unlikely places for years, hoping to add these books to my collection, to re-read them and perhaps again shed a tear or so over Ishmael and the girl who seemed so unattainable.

But the bears have raided the market. I take down all bids. (See Story No. 4, Page 3)

ALC SPEAKER CITES NEEDS

Group Here Is Told Independent College Support Imperative

Prestonsburg business and professional leaders were warned last week that future greatness for higher education throughout the area will depend in large measure on their participation in the development and support of independent college programs.

Morris K. Caudill, University of Kentucky graduate student, told a May Lodge "kick-off" breakfast Friday for the Alice Lloyd College community support campaign here that the college "produces a superior product," molding the "great raw material" of Eastern Kentucky's young men and women into "inspired leadership for the area."

Mr. Caudill is a member of the ALC Class of 1959; he is married to the former Rose Worland, of Prestonsburg.

He indicated that Prestonsburg business and professional men have the opportunity to help mold the future of Alice Lloyd College much as the 50-year-old coeducational campus at Pippa Passes has "molded the lives of those students who have passed through its academic and social environments." (See Story No. 2, Page 3)

Federal Funds Use By Schools Urged

More than 25 school board members and superintendents from seven area school systems gathered at Jenny Wiley State Park Wednesday night for the annual meeting of the Eastern Kentucky (South) Region of the Kentucky School Boards Association.

Fred Williams, Kentucky's state director of Title I programs, told the school officials they were "a living demonstration of grass roots democracy."

"The constant improvement of the American school system," he added, "has always depended upon the quality of school board membership. And the most important decision that will be made by a local, elected board of education will be the selection of its superintendent."

Williams urged the school board members to support and utilize federal education programs designed to "break the chain of poverty" in Eastern Kentucky.

He noted that the seven districts represented at the dinner meeting had received $12.3 million in federal funds for the education of disadvantaged children since the start of the Title I program in 1965.

KSBA Executive Director Maurice D. Bement reported that the school boards association was "healthy, vigorous and growing," but that its membership was "facing serious problems and issues."

Bement listed school legislation and financing, kindergarten, school personnel relations, year-round schools, educational research and vocational and technical education as areas needing special attention from school boards.

"If we are to resolve these issues," he said, "if our schools are to accomplish their purpose, we must put away our petty differences. We cannot place superintendent against board. (See Story No. 3, Page 3)

Red Cross Service Curtailment Seen

Floyd county's failure to support the work of the American Red Cross may result in curtailment soon of the services normally afforded by Floyd Chapter.

This was indicated in a letter last week from a national Red Cross official to Mrs. F. L. Heinze, Prestonsburg, Floyd Chapter chairman.

Pointing out that the county last year raised only 44% of its goal and as of June 30 had net assets of only $334, the Red Cross official wrote: "Something drastic must be done to reduce your expenditures. This may mean going on a volunteer basis, dropping the nursing, first-aid and other community services. We realize that this would be a calamity to the chapter and the community but it is obvious that the... people do not support the program, and if they do not finance it the only other alternative is to cut the program to the amount that the community will support it."

The letter was written in response to the estimate made by the chapter of funds it will need for 1969 operation. The chapter set its budget at $7,022, with $3,500 of this amount to be raised in the 1969 fund-raising drive. But, the Red Cross official pointed out, this is unrealistic, because Floyd county provided only $3,061 of the 1968 budget of $6,911.

The national Red Cross official pointed out that in the last 10 years $1,030,851 has been spent in disaster relief to Floyd county residents by the Red Cross. "This," he said, "was an outright gift but should create goodwill and interest in helping the chapter become self-supporting."

Miss Ella Noel White, chapter executive secretary, emphasized the financial plight of the chapter by pointing out that she has not been paid her salary for two months.

HEART CLINIC SET 2 DAYS

Three Agencies Join In Planning Service For Area Indigents

A two-day consultative and diagnostic heart clinic for medically indigent patients will be held at the Floyd County Health Department, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 12 and 13, it was announced this week.

The clinic is being organized so that adults only will be admitted to the clinic on November 12 and children only will be seen on November 13. "Physicians from the departments of Medicine and Pediatrics at the University of Kentucky Medical School will conduct the clinic."

Co-sponsored by the Kentucky Heart Association and the state and county health department, the clinic will provide a diagnostic service for the patient along with recommendations for treatment and management of the case. It also will provide an opportunity for the referring physician to consult with the clinician regarding his patient.

Necessary expenses of the clinic are being underwritten by the Kentucky Heart Association and the State Department of Health. Clinic personnel as well as space and equipment will be provided by the Floyd County Health Department. (See Story No. 5, Page 6)

POSTHUMOUS AWARDS MADE. The Bronze Star and three other medals were awarded posthumously to Cpl. Jeff Mulkey during ceremonies last week at the Lexington-Blue Grass Army Depot, Lexington, Ky. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac L. Mulkey (shown in photo) of Banner, also received posthumously the Purple Heart Medal, Good Conduct Medal and the Combat Infantry Badge. Cpl. Mulkey received the Bronze Star Medal for outstanding meritorious service in ground operations against the North Vietnamese this year from May 4 to May 31, time of his death. He served with the 101st Airborne Division in Vietnam. Col. Earl K. Buchanan, commander of the Lexington installation, made the presentations. The soldier's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Artis Akers, witnessed the ceremony.

Peden and Perkins At Saturday Rally

Katherine Peden, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, said here last Saturday that a working team in Congress of herself and Rep. Carl Perkins would provide the force to continue progress for all of Kentucky.

Miss Peden, speaking at a Peden-Perkins rally, said, "Today I ask the voters of the Seventh Congressional District to give the Peden-Perkins partnership an overwhelming victory on November 5th."

An estimated 200 persons heard Miss Peden and Congressman Perkins at the 10 a.m. rally at the courthouse.

The senatorial candidate lauded the veteran Congressman, saying, "Carl Perkins is one of the nation's great spokesmen for the people... factory workers, farmers, miners, teachers, the young, the old, the storekeeper and the housewife."

"I want to be in Washington for the next six years to help Carl Perkins' 'People Plans' by taking up his ideas in the U. S. Senate where Kentuckians need a strong voice. Together we will seek an expansion of Appalachian Regional Development for better schools, hospitals, water and sewerage treatment, and housing.

"As commerce commissioner I worked with others in bringing more than a thousand new jobs to Floyd county, Carl Perkins and I can continue this kind of progress."

Congressman Perkins, veteran representative of the Seventh Congressional district, termed the election of Miss Peden to the United States Senate imperative.

"Miss Peden's well known ability and energy in the interest of Kentucky is much needed in the Senate," Perkins said. "Her election on November 5th is necessary if all Kentuckians are to have a voice in the Senate which they have been denied for so many years."

JURY CLEARS P'BURG MAN

Sammons Is Acquitted In Fayette; Damages Asked of His Accuser

A Fayette circuit court jury recently cleared the Rev. Denver Sammons, former Prestonsburg man, of two charges of grand larceny lodged against him by his former employer, Montgomery Ward & Company.

The minister was accused of taking two floor furnaces. He admitted at the trial that he received the furnaces but produced a check showing one had been paid for and introduced testimony of Montgomery Ward employees to corroborate his statement that the other furnace was given to him after it had been discarded as defective.

Records of the company were subpoenaed. A cancelled check bearing Montgomery Ward's endorsement was introduced as defense evidence. This was for the furnace now in use in the Prestonsburg home of Sammons' sister, Miss Agnes Sammons.

A petit larceny charge against Sammons preceded the grand larceny counts. This lesser charge was dismissed in Fayette quarterly court, and thereafter the minister filed a $1,084,000 damage suit against Montgomery Ward. (See Story No. 1, Page 3)

Plant Production Ahead of Schedule

2,500-A-Day Mark Nears At US Shoe

But Plant To Have Transport Problems During the Winter

Production at the U. S. Shoe Company plant here, now in its eighth month of operation, hit the 2,300-pairs-a-day mark this week, well ahead of schedule, G. E. Pease, manager, said.

Mr. Pease added that daily production is expected to reach 2,500 pairs during November.

When the plant was dedicated, earlier this year, Robert Stix, U. S. Shoe president, said the break-even point would be reached when production hits 3,000 pairs of shoes a day.

Pease complimented plant employees for their ability and willingness to work. "They're doing a good job," he said.

Training of workers is being done in the 64,000-square-foot plant structure. Two hundred thirty-eight are now working there.

Despite the progress made in shoe manufacture, the plant has one problem that will not be solved soon. That is the absence of satisfactory access and egress because the plant site is not connected with US 23 by a modern bridge across the Big Sandy or by an adequate highway up Bull Creek.

"Transportation will be a tremendous problem this winter," Pease predicted. Ice and snow are expected to compound present problems presented by the narrow suspension bridge across the river at Knotley Hollow and the inadequate road leading via Bull Creek to Prestonsburg.

Highway Commissioner W. B. Hazelrigg said recently that both bridge and road will be let to contract early in 1969. Rights-of-way for both are now being purchased.

Some of the participants in the training program included, from left, Lloyd McGarey, of the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, and Island Creek supervisors, Marvin Dixon, Charles Reed, Everett Tackett, David Bickford, Arnold Cooley and Clell Tackett.

EXAMINING A "CASUALTY" is Mine Supt. D. J. Patton Jr., while other trainees stand by. The man on the stretchers is Billy Wright.

Mock Disaster Conditions Used for Special Training

All supervisors of the Elkhorn Division of the Island Creek Coal Company's mine personnel received special training in the use of the all-service gas mask in a smoke-filled chamber of the Wheelwright mine recently.

A part of the mine was sealed into separate chambers, some of which were filled with dense smoke by fires built within the chambers. The new-type gas mask used in the training was equipped with a transistor speaker on the face piece which permitted the working team to be in contact with an advisor on the surface at all times.

Each team consisted of six men, one of whom was the captain who led the group. Before entering the mine, the teams were briefed on the use of the gas mask and the other apparatus necessary when using the mask.

The oxygen content of the chambers was checked with a permissible flame safety lamp. Carbon monoxide was measured by a special detector that indicates concentrations as low as five thousandths of one percent. Blank maps of the area were also furnished each team entering the mine. These maps were filled in when the exploration was completed and the teams returned to the surface.

The smoke in the chambers at times was so dense the teams had to follow the mine rail to complete the exploration. Each team was required to locate a co-worker who presumably had been overcome by the smoke, to administer first aid and to transport the simulated casualty to the surface on a stretcher. Each group was required to explore two chambers that extended approximately one thousand feet from the surface.

A total of 92 supervisors participated in the exercises, which required three days. The main purpose of the program was to acquaint each supervisor with the action to take in case of an actual fire in the mine.

The exercises were supervised by Lloyd McGarey, of the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, and by the Elkhorn Division Safety Department.

Water Dist. Work Nears Completion

Jack Branham, chairman of the Sandy Valley Water District, said Monday that construction of all water lines between Pikeville and Stanville are completed and that the only construction yet to be done is completion of the second storage tank near the Mullins school.

The lines are being filled with water for testing, after which they will be flushed and purified before the meter is attached.

The health departments of Floyd and Pike counties will test the water at various points in the system before authorizing its public use.

signers of the district expect to have the water turned on by November 15.

Repairing of streets and driveways will be made as soon as the lines are tested for leaks.

Every customer is being urged to install a cut-off valve between the meter and his home or business house. If the plumbing is not in good repair a regulator should be used, since the water pressure can go as high as 100 pounds.

All meters applied for under the construction period will be processed by November 1, and no additional applications will be considered beyond that date at the contractor's cost.

CATS WIN 7th GAME, DOWN HAZARD 26 to 0

The Prestonsburg Black Cats won their seventh game of the season last Friday night, downing the once-formidable Hazard Bulldogs, 26 to 0.

After receiving the opening kick, Hazard was forced to punt on fourth down. Prestonsburg took possession on its 43, then moved into Bulldog territory but was unable to penetrate deeper than Hazard's 30-yard line.

The Cats' first break came on Hazard's next series of downs. Mike George recovered a blocked punt on the five-yard line and went in to score. Darrell Leslie slashed through the Bulldogs' line to pick up the extra point.

Prestonsburg threatened to score again late in the first quarter, but fumbled the ball on Hazard's 31.

The Cats' offense began to click early in the second period. Wayne Brown, right end, sped down the sideline, cut to the inside, and without breaking stride snagged a 45-yard touchdown pass thrown by quarterback Mark Miller.

With time running out in the half, Miller threw another 45-yard pass to Darrell Leslie on Hazard's 20. Leslie managed to elude the Bulldog defenders and go in to score.

A tough Prestonsburg defense allowed Hazard only two first downs in the first half. Half time score: 19-0.

The third quarter developed into a defensive battle. Hard tackling caused tempers to flare on both sides. Neither team was able to score.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincerest appreciation to our relatives, friends, and neighbors for their thoughtfulness and sympathy shown us at the time of the death and burial of our sister, Willie Campbell. We are grateful to those who brought food, to the donors of the many beautiful flowers, and to all who were of service in this hour of our bereavement.

THE CAMPBELL FAMILY

A blocked punt in the fourth quarter was recovered by John Leslie on Hazard's four-yard line. Mark Miller plunged over tackle on a quarterback keeper for the score. Miller passed to Robert Bryant for the extra point.

Hazard had an opportunity to score late in the fourth quarter after intercepting a pass on Prestonsburg's 27, but the Cat defense rose to the occasion to shut them out. Final score: Prestonsburg 26, Hazard 0.

Steve Collins, first-string tackle, received a hip injury early in the game. He is expected to fully recover and be able to play in this week's Homecoming game with Louisville.

It happened like this. I was brought a copy of "Ishmael." Memory stumbled back down the years to the unforgettable day I made this book's acquaintance. I saw the room where I read, recalled the time of year, saw the girl who gave me the precious volume.

And then, almost hurrying to do so, I sat down to read, to revel in scenes conjured up by the author who one day held me as no other has ever succeeded in doing.

But the bubble went burst, a cloud rubbed out the rainbow. I waded drearily through a few pages, paused, plodded on, looking for the lost magic. Never found it. Finally laid dear "Ishmael" aside.

Never mind about the books now. They belong back there, somewhere. And I can't go back.

The magic that once lay in those pages was lost in a welter of archaisms, banalities and sentimentality, with cliches almost as frequent as commas. Perhaps it is I who is at fault, but I couldn't follow the story line for looking for the next syrup-slick . . . lashes that swept her cheeks . . . eyes of cerulean blue . . . alabaster brows . . . an assortment of faints and swoons, illness and vapors.

It's often disappointing to go back and look again. The cave with all its mystery may be a plain, old hole a few feet back in the hill. The hill itself may not be the Matterhorn it once was. And the one who goes back may not be as alive and tingling with the fullness of life and the spirit of adventure and wonder as once he was.

Perhaps you can go back, but both you and what you return to aren't ever the same. So why try?

TOLD YOU SO!

If you will recall, I predicted a nor'easter or some sort of a blow for last week-end, basing said forecast on the sound basis that I was off for a bit of fishing. Well, we got where we were going, around Thursday midnight. Skies almost clear, stars and moon doing their usual stint. We were awakened, an hour or so after retiring by ominous sounds — rain on the roof, wind kicking up its heels in the trees. Friday — cold, cloudy, windy. Saturday, cold, sunny, windy . . . It was great to get home.

WATCHFUL WAITING

The story is told of the old fellow who had been warned of the dangers of rabies and of the need to take proper precautions. One day, he got himself rather severely bitten by a rattlesnake. He fought the venom back with home remedies, finally regained his feet and hobbled into town, there to tell all and sundry the story of his encounter with the serpent.

"Did you kill the snake?" asked a listener.
"Nope—got him in a cage."
"Why are you keeping him?"
"Gonna keep him 10 days to see if he goes mad."

teacher against superintendent—and the community against all of us—just to win temporary victories."

Mrs. Rebecca Lewis, vice-chairman of the Paintsville Board of Education, was elected chairman for 1969 of the region. William D. Salyer, also of Paintsville, was chosen vice-chairman-elect of the region, and Paintsville Superintendent Oran C. Teater was named regional secretary.

The 1968 regional officers are Chairman Holmes Cassidy, Vice-Chairman James C. Muncy, and Secretary Sheldon Clark, all of the Martin county school system.

The meeting was one of 12 held annually throughout Kentucky by KSB, a statewide organization of local school boards. Attending the meeting were board members and administrators from the county school districts of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties, and the independent school districts of Paintsville and Pikeville.

The college's contribution to the community, he said, is a body of alumni possessed of both education and "that gossamer substance known as leadership." Without this source of continuing leadership, he suggested, the community must "meander into stagnation and wither into oblivion." During its half century of service to Eastern Kentucky, Alice Lloyd College has contributed nearly 100 alumni to the Prestonsburg community.

The breakfast, underwritten by "an anonymous friend of the College," was attended by volunteer solicitors recruited by campaign chairman Mrs. Russell L. Hall, herself an alumni of the college. Featured were presentations by Delmas Glenn Presley, of Prestonsburg, president of the ALC Student Government Council, and H. Clayton Ackley, assistant to the president for development.

Among the volunteers already selected for the campaign are ALC alumni Blaine R. Hall, Hollie Conley, Dr. Allen; ALC trustee Robert V. May; and long-time friends of the college Burl Spurlock, H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., Frank Harmon, Mrs. Gorman Collins, C. Ollie Robinson, Mrs. Mae Kendrick, Marvin E. Music, Edward N. Music and Dick Roberts.

Coal Group Told Boom To Continue

A continuing boom in the coal business was the prediction made in Lexington last week at the annual meeting of the Kentucky Coal Association by various speakers, including United States Senator Howard H. Baker, Jr., of Tennessee, and Kentucky candidates for the U. S. Senate, Miss Katherine Pedden and Judge Marlow Cook.

A note of caution, however, was sounded by Joseph E. Moody, of Washington, president of the National Coal Policy Conference. Moody indicated that the picture painted by some political and coal industry speakers was unrealistic.

"It is going to be a rough road," he noted. "We stand to lose several of our best markets unless we can do a better job of selling and lobbying."

He named as threats to the industry:

1. Atomic generating plants promising to continue to rival coal-burning generators as a national source of energy.
2. Air pollution controls. The muscle of the U. S. Air Quality Act of 1967, he said, will begin to be felt during the next year as pollution control agencies set new air-quality standards.

Thomas J. Spears. Names of both candidates in this division will appear on the machine.

Although General LeMay is the running-mate of Gov. Wallace on the American ticket, the face of the machine will bear the name of Marvin Griffin as the candidate for Vice-President.

This, County Clerk C. Ollie Robinson said, presents no problem, however, since it was understood that Griffin was only a stand-in candidate for the No. 2 spot pending a selection by Wallace of a running-mate.

Among the "forgotten men" whose names will appear on the ballot are Fred Halstead and Paul Boutelle, Socialist Workers party candidates for President and Vice-President, respectively; and Duane E. Olson, Independent party candidate for U. S. Senator.

Top Talent To Present 'Don Pasquale' Nov. 8th

The Kentucky Opera Association will present a full-length production of the opera, "Don Pasquale," Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Prestonsburg elementary school.

The accompanying photo depicts a humorous scene from this comic-opera which takes place in late 18th Century Rome. The story lies in its moral — namely, that it is foolish for an old man to marry a young girl, for it can only bring trouble.

Featured in the opera is Joan Volek, who began her operatic career with a Fulbright Scholarship to Vienna and continued with eight years of engagements at such leading European opera centers as Cologne, Frankfurt, Bonn and Vienna. Her repertoire encompasses major roles from classical and romantic, as well as modern, operatic literature. She is perfectly cast for her role in "Don Pasquale," which calls for a lovely, vivacious soprano.

William McDonald is a fine singer making his debut with the Kentucky Opera Association. He has built up an impressive repertoire of some 30 roles in a relatively short period of time which he has performed in such theatres as the New York City Opera Theatre, Kansas City Lyric Theatre and the Opera Society of Washington.

Another featured singer is Roy Samuelson, who has 41 roles to his credit and is well known with the Kentucky Opera Association and with Indiana Uni-

CARL PERKINS HAS EARNED SUPPORT OF THE PEOPLE

Congressman Carl D. Perkins occupies a most enviable political position. Some opposition political leaders privately admit they hope only to cut down his normal victory margin.

Few political figures enjoy such assurance of public support. But few have worked with the depth of dedication and tireless energy that have marked Congressman Perkins' service in Congress.

His leadership of the powerful committee on Health, Education and Welfare has distinguished him at the national level. His sense of duty to the "folks back home," to us of the Seventh district, Democrats or Republicans, marks him as the Washington friend of the common, ordinary citizen. Serving as Congressman has been for Carl Perkins a fulltime job, with plenty of overtime, and that is a fact known better perhaps in the nation's capital than it is known to us who look to him for service.

If ever a candidate for office could run on his record, Congressman Perkins is that man. The Times does not feel that it is indulging in politics when it urges its readers to give him their unstinted support at the polls next Tuesday.

INCH-DEEP SNOW NOT DUE TILL MID-DECEMBER, SAYS U. OF K. CLIMATOLOGIST

Kentuckians aiming for a first prize in the guessing-game of the date of the first snowfall in their particular areas might consider the predictions of University of Kentucky climatologist Allen B. Elam, Jr.

"Over the years," Allen writes, "a snowfall of one inch or more has occurred on the average in December before mid-month over much of the Blue Grass and Eastern Kentucky; before late December, over most of the rest of Kentucky."

Elam notes that the earliest snowfall on record occurred on Oct. 10, 1906, with "heavy flurries north and east." His predictions are based on a 51-year study of snowfall data.

Exceptions to the general pattern are the higher elevations in Southeast Kentucky where the first one-inch snow comes earlier. "In the Cumberland-Benham area (elevation about 1,500), the average date is around Nov. 24," Elam says.

He observes that in the past 19 years the earliest one-inch snowfall for the Cumberland-Benham area was Oct. 27, and the latest on Dec. 28, 1967. "A few snowflakes have been observed as early as Oct. 14 (1961)."

Northern Kentucky counties have a 5 per cent chance of a one-inch snowfall on or before Nov. 8; 10 per cent by Nov. 17; 30 per cent by Dec. 4; 50 per cent by Dec. 16, and 90 per cent by Jan. 18.

"For Lexington, the probability of one inch or more before Nov. 3 is five per cent; before Dec. 15, 50 per cent; before Jan. 19, 90 per cent," Elam reports. "In other terms, the first one-inch, 24-hour snowfall in Lexington will occur on the average once in 20 years before Nov. 3; once in 10 years before Nov. 12, once in three years before Dec. 2; average or once in 2 years by Dec. 15, and in 9 out of 10 years before Jan. 19."

'Whatsoever Things'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

We Americans are stupid people. We won't admit it openly, but when one looks at the facts—just the facts—there isn't any other conclusion one can come to. For we put our emphasis on some minor thing and ignore completely a major subject.

I have before me a news release. The headlines are very small and the whole story does not cover more than two column inches. I didn't find it on the front page of the paper, either. It was 'way over in the middle of the paper. The headlines read: "Drunk Driving Toll." The item went on to say that drunken driving results in 25,000 traffic deaths each year, according to the Department of Transportation. The report went on to say that alcohol is the largest single factor in highway deaths. It also stated that police records prove that drinking figures in about 800,000 accidents annually.

After reading that I went back through my files and found a couple of other news items concerning this problem. One was dated about a year earlier. It said that "excessive drinking is involved in nearly half of the 53,000 highway deaths each year, according to a government survey," Dr. William Haddon, Jr., director of the National Highway Safety Agency, told UPI that the "evidence is very clear that, as far as most fatal accidents are concerned, the most common factor is excessive drinking." And, said Haddon, "Almost a flat 70 percent of single car fatal accidents in such places as California, New York, and various other major cities, involve substantially elevated blood alcohol levels and at least half of them meet anybody's liberal definition of intoxication."

Now, with that in mind, look at where we put the emphasis. I turn on my radio and the man says for me "not to leave my keys in my car" so that I won't cause a "good boy to go bad." I pick up my paper and it tells me the same thing. I change stations on the radio and a girl sings that if I'm out of a certain kind of beer then I'm out of beer. I pick up my newspaper again and look at the ads and it tells me that their whiskey is the kind should drink over the holiday week-end.

WCS Special Service Held at Betsy Layne Church Last Sunday

Betsy Layne, Ky.—The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Betsy Layne United Methodist Church had a combined worship service and chapter meeting celebration, Sunday afternoon, October 27. The "Quiet Day" service was presented by Edith Mae Stanley. She gave an inspirational message on "Search for a Meaningful Existence."

The service of the chapter meeting celebration was led by Mary Lykins. The history concerning women of the former Evangelical United Brethren Church was presented by Clara Allen and the history of the women of the former Methodist Church was presented by Mildred Davis. Members participating in the presentation of the "Bread of Life" were Elizabeth Bailey, Hettie Johnston, Angelina George and Aileen Wallen.

After the signing of the chapter, all members adjourned to the church basement for "the Agape Feast" ceremony. A solo was sung by Billie Jean Osborne, entitled, "Let Us Break Bread Together On Our Knees."

The group returned to the sanctuary for the "Call to Prayer and Self Denial" worship service. This portion of the program was led by Elizabeth Bailey. The scripture was read by Hettie Johnston. The Meditations were presented by Edith Mae Stanley, Angelina George and Elizabeth Bailey. Talks were given by Kelsa Elliott on "Urban Ministries in Asia" and Katherine Blackburn on "Education Work and Building Funds."

A love offering was taken that will be used in the urban ministries in Asia and for education work and building fund.

At least we have begun to tell people what smoking can do to them. How is it that we have so carefully avoided telling them of the results of alcohol? And why is it that we tell a person to take his key with him to keep a "good" boy from going bad and fail to ask that man to keep from putting his key in the ignition after drinking?

Why bother wasting space on this subject? Don't I know those who are on the opposite side have more money and power than I do? Well, I said I found two news items in my files. The other one was less than a column inch. It said Johnny—his last name isn't too important—age 9, was struck and killed by a car while riding his bike home from school. It said the driver was arrested for drunken driving. At least we don't have to worry about Johnny going bad because we left our key in the car.

We Americans are stupid people.

By this time the river clearly sees its end. It is aware of the vast, unknown space out there. But it empties itself quietly, resolutely into the ocean. By so doing, it is assured of immortality. It does not wish to be like the Jordan River—going into the dead sea.

As the river follows the course chosen for it, let us also remember that the Lord in His divine wisdom has chosen a course for us, and let us through our commitment to His divine will accept the challenge in Philippians 3:13-14: "One thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Nature Trails

By RUFUS M. REED

THE GREATEST PLANTER

October is the month of falling nuts and flying seeds. It is also the time of nature's planting. One of her prime laws is, "Nature abhors a vacuum." So she has many ways of planting her trees, plants and shrubs. She does her sowing and planting in autumn, but man mostly does his in spring.

Nature equips seeds with all kinds of devices to assure that they will be widely distributed over the earth and help to cover the barren spots. Seeds like those of the cocklebur and burdock have hooks which catch hold of the hair of animals, or the clothing of persons, and are often carried a long distance. I have seen large wads of burdock seeds clinging to the tail and mane of a horse. People used to have to take a curry comb to remove these. I knew a man who once brought his horse from the pasture with its tail full of big wads of burdock seeds. After much laborious effort, he got the burrs combed out and tossed them over on the bank of a brook. The next spring, a large colony of burdock plants sprang up there.

Many seeds are "hitchhikers," as they hitch a ride on the hair of animals or man's clothing and are often carried a long distance before being removed. Such seeds are called "beggar ticks," or "stick-tights," a very fitting name. Among these are the barbed seeds of Spanish needles, the trefoils, hound's tongue and sheep-burrs. Often these seeds are carried miles before being removed and cast away to sprout and grow.

Other seeds are flyers, with two wings like birds. Among these are the maples, box elders, norbeams, and some others. These seeds fly long distances in the wind and begin new trees in many different places. A great many seeds have only one wing, such as those of the tulip poplars, the ashes, the lindens and others. These one-winged seeds may often be seen spinning around and around in a brisk wind, yet they can travel a long distance.

Some seeds are "crawlers," like those of the linden trees. They have seeds with a long, wing-like bract shaped somewhat like a hound's tongue, and when the wind blows they crawl along the floor of the forest and may go far from the parent tree. The seeds of the ashes have a long, slender, wing shaped like the oar of a boat, which can "paddle" a long distance in the breeze.

Many nuts and seeds depend upon squirrels and bluejays to plant them. Squirrels dig holes in the ground in the fall and bury tens of thousands of acorns and walnuts for use as winter food. But they do not find all they plant and these sprout in the spring, to begin new trees. Squirrels plant oaks, hickories and walnuts, perhaps hazelnuts also.

Other trees bear fruits with hard seeds, which animals swallow but cannot digest. These are often carried a great distance before being passed out. Animals eat wild plums, wild cherries and black gum seeds, digest the pulp, then pass out the seeds over a wide area. The pawpaws and persimmon fruits also depend on animals to scatter them widely.

Birds are the greatest planters of nature. They swallow all kinds of seeds for their pulp, then carry the seeds a long way before passing them out.

Nature furnishes many seeds with silk parachutes. In autumn the fluffy seeds of milkweeds are often seen sailing on every brisk wind, to go far afield. The seeds of fireweed, or pilewort, also has floss attached to the seeds for sailing on the wind. The common dandelion is widespread because its seeds are equipped with parachutes for sailing far.

The greatest agencies of nature for scattering her seeds are winds, water, animals, insects and birds. Seeds often fall in creeks or rivers and are carried downstream for miles, perhaps to find lodging on some distant shore.

A great many plants do not bear seeds and reproduce by spores, which are microscopic in size and may sail on the wind for thousands of miles. Among these are the primitive plants such as ferns, mosses, liverworts, mushrooms and the fungi. These spores often discharge small clouds into the air and may be carried great distances. Spores flying on the wind have been found miles above the earth by airplane pilots using a sticky plate to trap them.

Fruits like apples and pears, which are called "pomes," are planted widely by animals and people, who eat the fruit then toss away the core which contains the seeds.

Some of nature's ways of planting her vegetation may seem haphazard to us, yet we have to admit that she does get her seeds planted all over the face of the earth, and that there are very few places on the earth where she has not planted and established some form of plant life.

TIDITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

FOLK WAYS, BENEFICIAL OR HARMFUL?

In viewing folkways, one is impressed with the fact that most of them are harmless, even though they may seem too obviously outdated. If it were not for the harm that sometimes results from an adherence to old-fashioned things, probably the keeping of them would preserve for us some very picturesque things. For a man to plant his garden or field crops according to the phases of the moon or the position of the signs of the zodiac certainly seldom does anybody any harm; the ones who do not observe these signs are probably no better or worse off, nine times out of 10. If it does the superstitious any good to farm according to ridiculous methods, he may have his signs and welcome. If meat is butchered according to these same signs, it will probably keep just as well as it would keep anyway. These things are certainly rather harmless, but when a sick child is given a repulsive dose of some bitter folk remedy, that is a different story. I need not catalogue the numerous offensive types of drugs that folk granies have prescribed since time immemorial. A spider in a capsule will be example enough. Let us hope that the secretions of the sick person's stomach will neutralize whatever undesirable poisons the spider's body may contain. Since there are many possibilities of making mistakes, even among the most accurate ones of us, that gives a leeway for the folk remedy and its prescriber; maybe the patient will recover in spite of the granny or the doctor.

Not long ago I had a talk with a very intelligent young man who told me that everything on his father's farm was done in accordance with the positions of the stars and the phases of the moon. That boy's father is a very successful farmer, with a good farm, a much better car than I can ever afford, and with money in the bank enough to educate his fair-sized family. Who am I to ridicule his medieval beliefs? Frankly, I do not intend to make a special visit to that man's farm in my old jalopy to tell him how mistaken he is. I may have my own private opinion, and I do; but people have a way of judging a person's philosophy by the number of things which he possesses, and I do not possess very many. Maybe the boy will learn some things in college that he will gradually reveal to his father, and maybe the father will gradually adopt some modern things, particularly when they help his financial status. If the potatoes he planted in the dark of the moon turn out worse than those of his neighbor that were planted just any old time, that might cause a gradual break with his inherited notions about lunar and planetary influence. Meanwhile he may sow and reap and live to a ripe old age without ever having any occasion to put his beliefs to a serious test.

And that brings up one of the best stories I have heard lately. Mr. X, who lived up a certain creek, was not a bad man at all, but he sometimes worked his crops on Sunday. Mr. Y, who lived on the farm immediately below Mr. X's, would not have worked on the Sabbath even to get the proverbial ox out of the ditch. One Sunday, ever so many years ago, Mr. X plowed out his corn. That night there came a very heavy rain that left Mr. X's fields practically unharmed but devastated Mr. Y's. Early the next morning Mr. Y, righteously indignant, called on Mr. X and explained how the violation of the Sabbath had brought down this curse on the valley as a result. Mr. X, still unconvinced, said, "Maybe the Lord was trying to wash away your son's still down the valley."

earth by airplane pilots using a sticky plate to trap them.

For years a friend of mine, who has spent his life as a teacher of biology, and I have talked about how hard it is to break up folk beliefs about biology. In spite of textbooks that plainly say that only copperheads and rattlesnakes are our poisonous snakes; in spite of repeated articles in newspapers and on radio and television that keep travelers and campers informed, almost weekly he and I have heard people, literate people at that, tell about how poisonous are such harmless things as chicken snakes or black racers. And no amount of our assuring them that they need not be afraid avails; few ever change their minds. If it was a common belief in their families that all snakes are poisonous, that is far more to be believed than any amount of stuff in a book. I am not particularly disturbed when perfectly illiterate people make such statements, but somehow I cringe when some well-to-do person, with plenty of money, social standing, and formal education, repeats, like a yodel, the folkish beliefs as provable facts.

enabling them to start a work-experience program for educable retarded students at the senior high school level. These students worked one-half day. The first year, they paid $37,000 in income taxes. That figure is now nearing a half million.

It is said that for every $1 earned in wages that dollar causes $3 more to be spent. If this be the case it is readily apparent that the above figures represent a very sound investment. The money alone earned by rehabilitated persons is perhaps the least important item. We talk about money because most business men and leaders in the community are reluctant to spend money if there isn't going to be a profitable return.

But let's consider some of the intangible returns, the things that really count. Certainly we want the individual to be able to purchase his own clothing and food, pay his rent, provide his own transportation, pay his debts and be self-supporting, but the real gain is in the inside of that person. The feeling of, "Well, there is something I can do. I am worth something. I'm not useless. I am making a contribution." To see the expansion of the self-concept, the beginning of a spark of ego, then to see it nurture and grow into the wholesome self-concept is one of the most thrilling experiences one can have. It must be something like what God feels as He watches one of us develop from a worthless, unprofitable servant to one who is busy about his business, or like the gardener or florist feels as he sees the orchid or rose blooming after months of preparation or years of cross-breeding. There is nothing that can compare to the blooming effect of a child. To see that head that drooped for years become erect, to see eyes that once refused to look up or at anyone directly now looking you right in the face and saying, in effect—"I am your equal, I am a contributing member of society"—this is where the real worth of school or rehabilitation programs are—inside.

God created the universe and told man to take care of it, that it was for his use. He did not say to any one person that he or she could hoard, store it up and be a glutton. He meant for all of us to share in it. Won't you help Him achieve that goal? Share with, assist, boost, get to know the handicapped. They're wonderful people.

COMMUNITY OF MAYTOWN HONORS ELIZABETH ALLEN

Langley, Ky.—Mrs. Elizabeth S. Allen, who, as a registered nurse, has worked in this area for many years, was honored with a community birthday party last Thursday evening in the recreation room of the Maytown Methodist Church, of which she is a member.

Mrs. Allen, who has lived in the Maytown community for 30 years and served her fellowman in every way she could, had ample proof on "her night" that she was deeply loved and respected for her many good deeds. Lowell L. Martin, master of ceremonies, introduced Mrs. Roy May, who presented Mrs. Allen with a dozen long-stemmed red roses from the community. Next, he introduced Mrs. S. J. Faunt and some of her students who presented a play depicting one of the many times Mrs. Allen came to the rescue of distressed people who were unable to get a doctor.

Mr. Martin continued the program by presenting Mrs. Allen with a Kentucky Coinelish issued by Gov. Louie B. Nunn. Mrs. Eugene Hopkins read the cover letter sent by the Governor. Mrs. Edgar May read a proclamation of County Judge Henry Stumbo, designating Saturday, October 26, as Elizabeth S. Allen Day in Floyd county. Mrs. May then presented Mrs. Allen with a yellow corsage in appreciation of the many fine things she has meant to the Maytown community.

Mrs. Allen opened her large array of gifts and thanked each guest. Especially was she happy and pleased to receive a medical instrument, an otoscope, which she had long desired. A very appealing gift was a charcoal sketch of her three great-grandchildren, Stephen, Elizabeth Anne and Wesley Halbert. The sketch was done by Bobby Allen and presented by Mrs. Allen's granddaughter, Kathy Halbert.

The recreation room was decorated with many bouquets. The refreshment table bore a large pink-and-white birthday cake given by Mrs. Howard Ramey and Mrs. James E. Allen, and baked by Mrs. Ed Stephens, pink tapers in crystal holders and a low bowl of pink snapdragons and dahlias. HOPE FOR HANDICAPPED

By RICHARD D. HOWARD
Director, Special Education,
Pikeville College

Greetings, friends of the handicapped:

Thank you for your letters. It is obvious that this column is going to be of practical benefit. May I suggest that you tell the management of this newspaper that you appreciate its efforts on behalf of the retarded and other children.

I'm sure you noted, as I did, that Mayor Archer proclaimed last week as "Fire the Handicapped Week." This is commendable of the mayor. We hope that it will be more than a proclamation but become a reality for many handicapped in Floyd county.

You may also have noticed an article dealing with a lawsuit in Pike county in which two blind teachers had been refused employment because they were blind. The courts ruled in favor of them, asking the Board of Education to employ them, or forbidding the board to refuse to hire them if an opening existed. In effect, the court rules that a blind person is entitled to the same respect and treatment as any other person.

Isn't this typical, though? Don't most of us when we see a person crippled, blind or retarded just automatically think—"Gee, I sure feel sorry for that person. I'll bet he has a hard time. I wonder how he makes a living?"

We have stereotyped the handicapped. We look upon them as beggars or persons who can do little or nothing.

Nothing could be farther from the truth. I have former students who are now earning $5 an hour. Yet, without special training and schooling, those students would now be on the welfare rolls and heading for a life of dependency, reproducing children who would be headed for the same dismal future.

Let me throw some statistics at you. The Office of Vocational Rehabilitation in Washington reports that in a recent year they took 756 mentally retarded persons who had never worked before, put them through a training program, rehabilitated them and placed them in gainful employment. The first year, the group earned $1,265,200. The year previous to their training, they had earned $32,100.

Money talks! Dayton, Ohio received $50,000 for a pilot grant enabling them to start a work-experience program for educable retarded students at the senior high school level. These students worked one-half day. The first year, they paid $37,000 in income taxes. That figure is now nearing a half million.

The Paintsville-based South-East Coal Company last Friday won its U. S. district court damage suit against the United Mine Workers of America and the Consolidation Coal Co., Pittsburgh, and was awarded a judgment of $7,231,356.

The verdict is appealable, but no immediate decision on appeal was announced by the defendants.

After deliberating about five hours, the jury set actual damages at $2,410,452, an amount that had to be tripled under federal anti-trust laws.

In its complaint, filed in 1966, South-East contended that nationwide labor contracts since 1950 had been "tailored to fit the abilities of major producers" using automated equipment in prime coal fields.

It said that the UMW, in a conspiracy with major producers, has refused to negotiate contracts on wages and other issues to meet the needs of smaller companies, such as South-East.

The complaint alleged also that major producers have attempted to avoid buying coal from smaller operators using nonunion labor.

Until 1962, South-East said, it abided by the terms of the nationwide contracts negotiated by UMW. Financial losses caused the company to terminate the contract in that year, the complaint said.

The UMW, it said, refused to negotiate a "practical, working agreement." A strike led to four years of what the complaint described as "continuous acts of violence, mob interference, and mass picketing."

Consolidation, which owned a small percentage of the stock in South-East, then stopped handling coal produced by South-East, the complaint said. Since then, it contended, South-East has been unable to market its coal with the same success.

The UMW and Consolidation denied engaging in any conspiracy to "impose a wage agreement" on South-East or any other company.

The union contended that South-East "wanted less wages, lower standards of working conditions, and loss of . . . other benefits."

The union said it wasn't "required to gear its wages and working-condition demands to those which the weakest units in the bituminous coal industry could afford."

The defendants maintained also that South-East's financial losses stemmed from its own failings rather than from any conspiracy.

South-East alleged that the UMW has conspired with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association as well as with Consolidation and other major companies. It said the trouble for small operators began with the national bituminous coal wage agreement in 1950.

The major operators decided that nonunion firms were contributing to over-production of coal, South-East contended. It said an attempt is being made to "monopolize the bituminous coal industry for the major coal producers."

"As cost per man increased," South-East said, "smaller companies, many in marginal seams, passed out of existence."

Doran Suggestion Draws Opposition

The suggestion made by Dr. Adron Doran, president of Morehead State University, that the University of Kentucky network of 15 community colleges be reorganized and placed under the control of Morehead, Eastern, Western and Murray Universities and Kentucky State drew sharp opposition last week.

The new Kentucky Community College Advisory Council at its first official meeting in Louisville strongly opposed the plan. Community college directors have voiced their opposition, and Dr. Ellis Hartford, dean of the community college system, was emphatic in his opposition when he addressed about 300 faculty members of the various community colleges.

Dr. Doran referred to the community colleges as 'colonies' of a far-flung empire and said that they should come under the control of the state universities. Wouldn't we then be truly a colony transferred or sold by one master to another master whose ability to administer has yet to be proven?"

"ELIZABETH ALLEN DAY"
PROCLAIMED; MAYTOWN
HONORS VETERAN NURSE

A grateful Floyd county community last week honored one of its women who has been described as "a Good Samaritan to everybody."

In response to desires of her neighbors and friends, County Judge Henry Stumbo proclaimed Saturday, October 26, Elizabeth Allen Day.

And prior to her "day" itself, residents of Maytown honored her at a surprise birthday party last Thursday at the Maytown United Methodist Church.

Long a registered nurse, Mrs. Allen, friends say, has nursed with care and compassion a large part of the population of the Beaver Creeks.

Wrote Judge Stumbo in his proclamation:

"WHEREAS, the citizens of Maytown, Kentucky, being desirous to show their appreciation to one who has dedicated herself to the needs of others, and

"WHEREAS, Elizabeth Allen, having attained the love and respect of the people of Maytown, Kentucky, and

"WHEREAS, It has been shown to me that Elizabeth Allen should be recognized and honored and the community desiring this to be done, it is hereby resolved by me, Henry Stumbo, County Judge of Floyd county, Kentucky, that Saturday, October 26, 1968, is set aside to be known as 'Elizabeth Allen Day.'"

FOR CONGRESS

Here's how he stands . . .

HIGHWAYS — The irreplaceable key to the other three points shown here: Eastern Kentucky needs a SYSTEM of modern highways and not the piecemeal "highways of the twenties." Your Congressman should help!

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT — This almost totally-neglected area is another example where effective legislation can bring Federal and State aid in getting what we have too few of: JOBS in Light Industrial Parks.

EDUCATION — Hometown vocational-technical centers must be established to provide an effective tool in ending the shameful departure of our youth to other states for jobs that should be provided at home.

RECREATION — Facilities to attract tourists are fine, but what of recreation for our own people? Existing state parks must be expanded and new areas close to home must be set aside and developed for our own citizens.

Labor Supports Humphrey-Muskie Democratic Ticket

From The United Mine Workers Journal:

The Vice President of the United States has a pro-labor record of being "right" for our kind of people that is unsurpassed by anyone else who has ever run for the highest office in the land. But you, personally, shall have to decide when you step into the voting booth on November 5. And you, personally, will have to get out the vote for him. You, personally, will have to do everything you can to get the adult members of your family to vote for HUMPHREY-MUSKIE.

From AFL-CIO NEWS:

MEANY WARNS NATION ON NIXON, WALLACE

The nation's future cannot be entrusted to Richard M. Nixon who has built a career on deception and trickery or to George C. Wallace who seeks office on a platform of bigotry and hate.

"There is only one reasonable choice," AFL-CIO Pres. George Meany told the country in a pair of radio broadcasts, the Humphrey-Muskie ticket, "men who have proved themselves in the bright glare of public affairs."

Speaking over the NBC radio network on programs sponsored by the AFL-CIO and the Intl. Ladies' Garment Workers Union, Meany ran the record of the Kennedy-Johnson-Humphrey Administrations of eight years of gains and progress and Nixon's opposition to those programs.

He characterized Nixon as "the certified enemy of the labor movement, the opponent of medicare, the man who delayed federal aid to education for years, the man who throughout his career has used tricks and deception so often that the word 'tricky' has become part of his nickname."

Of Wallace, Meany declared him to be a man "who arouses the worst passions in the hearts of men, who has demonstrated in his own state his unfitness to govern, who seeks the presidency on a platform of bigotry and hate."

CARPENTERS GO HUMPHREY FOR HIS 100% RECORD

The Carpenters' executive board has unanimously endorsed Hubert H. Humphrey for the presidency, as a "tested and proven" leader who advances programs of "vital concern" to the union.

Citing Humphrey's "long public career" in support of health care, social security, jobless benefits and education, the board said "his voting record has been 100 percent in the interest of working people."

The endorsement was explained in an "open letter" to each of the union's 800,000 members. It was signed by Pres. M. A. Hutcheson, Sec.-Treas. Richard E. Livingston and all of the board members.

In studying the records of the presidential candidates, the board found that Richard Nixon "was against legislation supported by organized labor" on 59 of 69 votes. His election, it said, would "undermine" social and labor laws and unions' rights.

As for George Wallace, the board pointed out that as governor of Alabama he had "done nothing to change" anti-union laws and had increased taxes "which hit working people hardest."

"This is no time to jeopardize our gains," it concluded, "by turning over control to Nixon or Wallace, neither of whom has shown any real concern for the cause of organized labor."

STATE'S RECORD REVIEWED IN PRESIDENTIAL VOTING

Frankfort, Ky. — Some facts and figures regarding past presidential elections in Kentucky may prove interesting now that the November 5, 1968, balloting is near at hand. In any event, here they are:

Since 1912, Kentuckians have cast 12,416,047 votes in 14 presidential races. There have been 6,484,777 Democrat votes; 5,716,141 Republican votes; and minority candidates have garnered 215,129 votes.

Democrats have carried Kentucky 10 times out of the last 14 races. However, Nixon in 1960, Eisenhower in 1956, Hoover in 1928, and Coolidge in 1924 carried the state for the Republican ticket.

The only candidates who were elected president and failed to carry Kentucky were Kennedy in 1960 and Eisenhower in 1952. This fact shows that Kentucky's electoral votes have been cast for winners in 12 of the last 14 races.

The Democrat receiving the largest vote was Johnson with 669,659 when he carried Kentucky by 296,672 in 1964. The Republican with the largest vote was Nixon in 1960 with 602,607. The minority candidate with the largest vote was Theodore Roosevelt who received 102,766 in 1912. This was close to 23 percent of the total.

The 1952 presidential election in Kentucky was the cliff-hanger with Eisenhower losing the state by 700 votes to Stevenson.

The smallest vote of any minority candidate was 185 in 1948. That election had four minority candidates in Kentucky. There have been minority party candidates on the ballot in Kentucky in every national election since 1912.

This is news!—not a forest fire has been reported to forestry officials from Floyd county this fall.

A combination of good fortune resulting from breaks in the weather and cooperation of a public better educated in fire prevention was credited with the absence of destructive fires.

Some say that the absence of woodland fires has resulted in Indian Summer pervading the hills without the traditional haze that, they say, comes mainly from the smoke of forest fires.

In most years, the fire season begins in September. Sometimes, it has gone far into December. The damage to timber and wildlife has been beyond estimate.

Last spring, Floyd county had 99 reported forest fires, but the damage was held to a minimum through prompt action of forest officials and firefighting crews.

Kentucky this year won for the second year in a row the Sam Biechler Award for having made the greatest progress in fire prevention and control among 13 states of the South.

For all the absence of fires this fall, foresters aren't certain trouble may not come later in the season. So they continue to ask the cooperation of the people and cite the state forest fire laws:

1. From October 1 until December 15 it is illegal to burn any open fire within 150 feet of any woodland. If burning is done more than 150 feet from the woodland but capable of spreading to the woodland through grass or other flammable material it is still a violation of the forest fire laws. If burning must be done it is permissible between the hours of 4:30 p.m. and 12 midnight, provided all reasonable precautions are taken. Such reasonable precautions shall consist of cutting and piling flammable material and clearing around such materials to prevent spread of fire to the woodland. The fire must be extinguished at 12 midnight.

2. Setting of fires to capture any wildlife is prohibited by law. This statute includes the smoking of squirrels or other animals out of hollow trees, hollow stumps, or holes in the ground.

3. Violators when convicted are subject to both fines and imprisonment; also, they are responsible for the cost of suppressing the fire.

Division of Forestry employees will be patrolling the area to apprehend violators, and citations will be issued to individuals violating the forest fire laws. If it is absolutely necessary to burn anything, foresters ask that these suggestions be followed:

1. Don't burn until after 4:30 in the evening.

2. Stay with whatever you are burning until the fire is dead out.

3. Don't let your fire burn off your land onto the land of another. To do so might constitute a felony under statute 149-375.

4. Don't allow your children to do any burning for you.

5. Don't burn when the wind is blowing.

6. Don't fail to call your nearest Forestry employee if the fire should get out of your control. Call:

Frank Parsons, Betsy Layne, phone 478-4268; Perry Rice, Garrett, 358-4301; Earl Lyons, Garrett, 358-4512; Forrest Burchett, Allen, 874-2316; Douglas Robinson, Salyersville, 349-3372; the Paintsville office, 789-3506 and 789-3507.

Implied Consent Law Hits Drinking Drivers

Kentucky's Implied Consent Law has taken its toll among drinking drivers who refuse to submit to a chemical test, as 157 Kentucky driver's licenses have been revoked since the law became effective in June.

Under the law a motorist is deemed to have given consent to a chemical test—blood, urine or breathalyzer—to determine his blood-alcohol content if he is arrested by an officer who has reasonable grounds to believe the motorist is driving while intoxicated.

After an arrest on this charge, the officer will request the motorist to submit to a chemical test. Refusal to submit results in a six-month license suspension.

When notified of his suspension, the motorist has 10 days to appeal to the Department of Public Safety. Of the 14 appeals to date, 12 suspensions were upheld, one relief granted, and one appeal went to circuit court.

Because the law is considered an effective "tool" in dealing with the drinking driver, the Kentucky State Police, in cooperation with the Division of Drivers Licensing, are working to erase problems caused by lack of knowledge about the law.

KSP officers and other law enforcement officials have begun attending an Implied Consent Law course in conjunction with Eastern Kentucky University. The course includes training in the use of breathalyzers, instruments for determining if a motorist is intoxicated.

Thirty-two one-week courses are designed to train over 470 KSP officers by May, 1969. By then breathalyzers will be available for use by any law enforcement agency at every county seat and many police stations throughout Kentucky.

The KSP are also conducting meetings throughout the state to familiarize judges, attorneys, local law officials, and interested citizens with the Implied Consent Law.

"We are concerned to hear from many motorists they were unaware there is a law requiring them to submit to a chemical test when arrested for driving while intoxicated," says Lt. Roger L. Wilhoite, who, as Director of Drivers Licensing Division, presides over each appeal hearing.

The law states: "Whether the person was informed that his privilege to drive would be revoked or denied if he refused to submit to the test shall not be an issue."

Commissioner W. O. Newman says, however, "We in KSP feel our officers should and do inform motorists of their rights, and it is hoped all law enforcement agencies would advise any motorist charged in this offense and make certain they are aware of the consequences for refusing to submit to a chemical test."

"The KSP training courses and the public meetings should clear up any problems by educating enforcement officials and motorists in the workings of this law."

WHEELWRIGHT UPGRADING AND PLANS FOR INDUSTRY TALKED AT COUNCIL MEET

Wheelwright, Ky.—The Wheelwright City Council met October 17 and considered steps to upgrade the city. The Mountain Investment Co., which owns the surface property, is under complete new management and is represented in Wheelwright by T. L. Teate and J. P. Young.

The council is planning a clean-up campaign, and is asking all citizens to take part in cleaning property in and around their present homes and the empty houses in their vicinity.

Plans for acquiring new industry were discussed. It was said the prospects for getting a new plant that will hire mostly women are very good.

Many houses here are empty that can be rented or bought at reasonable prices. It is hoped by the council that these can be filled quickly. It is also hoped that many families that have moved out of this community will find it feasible to return. The big problem is to refill these vacant houses.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the Island Creek Coal Company has at least 33 years of future production at the present rate, with other seams of coal not yet tapped.

The problem of traffic control was discussed. Racing through the streets and double-parking are to be corrected immediately.

Wheelwright Women Honor Mrs. Gillis

Mrs. Gillis was presented a sterling silver tray in recognition of her many years of service to the club. The dinner was held at the Lantern Restaurant in Pikeville.

The honoree and the following attended: Mrs. Fred Salisbury, Mrs. T. J. Hagens, Mrs. Oscar Smith, Mrs. Delbert Davis, Mrs. Paul Watson, Mrs. Sonny Wilkinson, Mrs. Mary E. Wilson, Mrs. Elmer Ferguson and Mrs. Sue Hutchinson.

Some 15 million Americans have one or more birth defects which affect their daily lives, according to the March of Dimes.

FRIENDS, TEACHERS and FELLOW FLOYD COUNTIANS:

I was born and reared in Floyd county, and my wife and I are both graduates of Betsy Layne high school. We have always been concerned and involved in higher education. My wife has been teaching for eight years, and I am an X-ray technician and am currently enrolled in Pikeville College.

Contrary to deliberate rumors, I was not selected by a committee or urged by particular persons to become a candidate for board member to the Floyd County Board of Education, but I was persuaded by culminating events which have proved that our SCHOOLS, TEACHERS and CHILDREN do not come first in the thinking of our present administration.

School administrators spend a citizen's money and deal with his most priceless possessions: his children. A citizen has a right to know what officials are doing with both his money and his children, and he wonders:

1. Why Floyd county schools have a deficit of $43,000 when there is supposedly more available money than has ever been in history;
2. Why the administration's office staff has increased in the past few years when student enrollment has decreased, resulting in so-called "teacher surplus";
3. Why the staff worker's salaries are so out of line with teachers' salaries, and
4. Why his children's classes are being presently interrupted by those who want to campaign for the superintendent's choice candidate.

A citizen does not support that which he does not like or understand, and his understanding comes home every day with his children whom he sends to school.

We citizens can no longer pretend that our schools are not endangered! For the sake of our children we must stand for the truth and combine our efforts to remove our schools from political bondage.

CARE CENTERS REACH NEEDS OF INDIVIDUALS

A 12-year-old Madisonville boy who doesn't like himself, a Calloway county family whose lives were nearly overturned by violence, a man who went home to Pike county after 30 years — these people all have one thing in common. They found help for their problems, and perhaps a start toward a better life, at the mental health centers in their home communities.

The boy doesn't like himself because he's clumsy at sports; he's so miserable it affects his self-confidence. He's not really mentally ill or emotionally disturbed, but he needs the help he's going to get in a new program of "action therapy" just getting under way at the Midwestern Regional Comprehensive Care Center.

When a Calloway county alcoholic brandished a knife and threatened the lives of his wife and family near midnight recently, they called their minister. He knew of the 24-hour emergency service of the Community Mental Health Center of Western Kentucky, dialed the emergency number and talked to the on-duty mental health professional who is trained in emergency techniques.

Through the consultation carried on that night, the man received immediate medical attention and the crisis was averted. He was seen by a psychiatrist at the Paducah center the next morning, admitted to a local hospital for a week and is now being seen as an outpatient at the center.

The seven-day, 24-hour emergency service, utilizes an answering service, an electronic "page boy" device and two-way radio, designed to provide immediate psychiatric intervention in cases of suicide attempt, extreme anxiety attack and potentially dangerous situations. Gaylord T. Forrest, center administrator, said about 60 after-hours calls are received each month and the number is increasing rapidly. At least one-third are genuine emergencies, he added.

Emergency mental services are one of five basic services required under the terms of the federal grant used for initial staffing of the centers, according to Dr. Dale H. Farabee, M.D., state commissioner of Mental Health. The regional mental health-mental retardation boards which operate all the centers also receive funds from the Department of Mental Health and from the local community. State allocations to the boards average nearly 20 percent of their total budgets, Dr. Farabee added.

The Pike county man, a patient at Eastern State Hospital, Lexington, for over 30 years, was able to return home after a mental health worker at the Pikeville branch of the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, which has headquarters at Prestonsburg, located a family care home for him. The man had no immediate family, but a combination of efforts by the center, the hospital, the local representative of the Child Welfare Department and the Division of Public Assistance of the State Department of Economic Security provided a home for him in the community where he was born.

Mental health workers at the Pikeville branch center see the former patient three or four times a month. One other former Eastern State patient lives with the family, along with a mentally retarded man whose last relative recently died. He would have been placed in a state institution were it not for the concern of this Pike county family and the efforts of the center.

The Mountain Comprehensive Care Center offers inpatient, outpatient and partial hospitalization care as well as emergency, education and consultation services in its region. Three years ago, said Dick Stal, its executive director, the closest psychiatric care was more than 100 miles away.

The 16 community centers now operating throughout the state are offering mental health and mental retardation services to 96 of Kentucky's 120 counties, Dr. Farabee said. "Three years ago," he said, "psychiatric services were available only in Louisville, Lexington, Covington and Owensboro. Now, each of the centers has a psychiatrist available and over 7,000 people are getting help. The community programs are bringing psychiatrists, social workers and psychologists from all over the country to work in Kentucky," he said.

For the man running for President of the United States on the record of the party for the past few years?

Now, folks, I beg you not to forget what we have done for you. We have led a very colorful and exciting life for you, over the past few years. It has been blood-red, pale-green.

The blood-red means the loss of blood of our fighting men, the prime and cream of the crop, in a war which we shouldn't be in.

The pale-green means we have wrecked the value of the dollar to such an extreme it has lost its rich looking color of deep green to pale-green.

It takes some conniving to go in debt as much as we have. I know our country is in so far we can't pay the interest on the debt, much less pay off any of the principal.

And excitement—oh, boy! have we given it to you! Burning our towns and cities, looting, hollering, screaming, fighting in the streets. We've started some of the biggest bonfires since the Civil War. Strife, discontent, lawlessness, we've given you plenty of that. We have twisted people's arms, making them do things contrary to their former peaceful, contented way, to discontent, strife, hate and even warfare in the streets of our beloved country.

Free enterprise, what's that? We've harassed business, telling them what to do and what not to do. Also the poor farmer, we've given him a hard time, too, telling him what he could raise and what he could not raise, and how much, and what he has to pay to get it done. Some people would almost call that dictatorship. Sorry about that, it's just our way of using the big stick of suppression.

And when it comes to give-away, there's no nation on earth can beat us, or no party in the United States can beat us. We just simply throw the money vault doors open and say, "come and get it!" We'll give to most any country. Some of our aid even reaches Russia, who is furnishing guns and ammunition to kill our boys in Vietnam. Some we give to would not pull us out of the fire if we were all in it. And our aid program, our pride one is the Hippie, Ghetto, Bum Poverty Program. Those are our special friends, the ones that won't even wash their faces, much less do a day's work. You just vote for us and we'll let you taxpayers keep on taking care of these friends of ours.

Also, do you remember what a wonderful job we did in Cuba? We held the Russians at bay while we brought a lot of the Cubans over here to feed, house and give American jobs to, and gave Castro the beautiful island for him and Russia to put missiles on and aim down our throats. The Russians went on home, we loaded our ships and headed westward, 10,000 miles away on a new venture to a place called Vietnam. Been there so long the name is really ringing in my ears. Boy, oh boy, we've spent enough there to have put the whole western hemisphere on easy street. Just goes to show you we'd rather fight than have peace.

How long has it been since you have heard your pockets jingle with good, sound silver? Looks like we've done a bit of counterfeiting, too, took your silver dollar and gave you copper. Goes to show we are running short on resources. A few more Vietnams and you won't have anything left. We'd rather fight if it takes every lump of coal, every drop of oil, every tree, every ton of iron ore. That makes business. We don't believe in being conservative. We would rather waste it all, and it makes it exciting and miserable for you, too.

You know I said—Who are you going to trust to do all these things? As I have just said, we have led you an exciting and colorful life the past few years.

IF YOU WANT MORE OF THE SAME .

Butler Demonstrates School Lunch Quality

Frankfort — In observance of National School Lunch Week, October 13-19, Superintendent of Public Instruction Wendell P. Butler was host at a demonstration lunch for some 30 state officials, including Lt. Governor Wendell Ford.

This lunch of canned beef, green beans, cheese, raisins, apricots, cookies, bread, butter and milk was a sample menu of a "Type A" lunch. Butler said, "This lunch is just like the children have or can have in any Kentucky school."

This type of lunch is served in 300 schools in the state. It can be prepared on hotplates and served in the same room, or served in the cafeteria of our largest schools.

Butler states, "With a state enrollment of 750,000 school children, only 65 per cent are now participating in the "Type A" school lunch program. This year we hope to do better than 65 per cent."

The State expects up to $50,000 this year in special federal aid for administration of the lunch program. Financial aid will also be available to the districts for purchase of lunch room equipment.

Butler said, "This federal aid can be a major factor in reaching the goal of an adequate diet for every Kentucky child."

Recently Kentucky was visited by a Tunisian delegation and U. S. Department of Agriculture Officials to learn more about Kentucky's school lunch program.

Butler noted that this visit was due to the reputation of Kentucky for its efficient lunch programs.

Marshall Swain, assistant superintendent for Public Personnel Services, said "The unprecedented federal grants are to be used to promote and expand the school lunch concept."

R. G. Francis (left), president of Francis Stores here, is shown presenting his fifth consecutive full scholarship donation to G. A. Cowan, business manager of Prestonsburg Community College. Five years ago, Mr. Francis was the first to donate a scholarship to Prestonsburg Community College, and he has continued to support the school and the scholarship program ever since.

MRS. CLARK IS INSTALLED AS KY. CHAPTER OFFICER

Mrs. Sallye L. Clark, of Prestonsburg, was installed as first vice-president of the Kentucky Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, at the division's installation of officers held Oct. 11 during the annual meeting held, Oct. 9-12, at the Phoenix hotel, Lexington.

Other state officers installed included Miss Catherine Bond, Louisville, president; Mrs. Clarice McKinney, Cadiz, second vice-president; Mrs. Chapman Jennings, Paducah, third vice-president; Mrs. Starr Buchanan, Morganfield, recording secretary; Mrs. Walter Payne Coleman, Lexington, historian.

Greenville Davidson chapter, Prestonsburg, was represented by Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Ruth D. Sowards.

The memorial service was conducted at 2 p.m. Oct. 9 by Mrs. R. D. Short, chaplain, assisted by Mrs. Walter Payne Coleman. During the preceding year the Kentucky Division had lost 21 members to death, including two members of Greenville Davidson chapter. At this service Mrs. Clark paid tribute to Mrs. Joe M. Chapman Jennings, Paducah, a daughter-in-law of Greenville Davidson, for whom the chapter here was named, and Mrs. Mary E. Harkins Van Landingham, a great-niece of Lieut. Davidson.

KY. OPERA ASSOCIATION, FIRST OF CONCERT SERIES, TO APPEAR HERE NOV. 2

The Kentucky Concert Series will host the Kentucky Opera Association as it presents its production of the opera "Don Pasquale" here Saturday, Nov. 2.

The Kentucky Opera Association, directed by Moritz Bomhard, has produced more than 70 operas which include the cream of standard works and carefully culled contemporary ones. All of their presentations are sung in English because the Kentucky Opera Association wants its audiences to have the experience of total musical theatre. Mr. Bomhard explains that it is not possible to appreciate opera fully unless the audience is thoroughly familiar with operatic texts or is fluent in the language in which the operas are sung.

The cast includes many fine singers from the Louisville area, as well as professionals from Indiana University's Opera Theatre, the Metropolitan Opera Company and the New York City Opera. Many of these singers have had extensive operatic experience in this country as well as in European opera centers.

Following this concert, the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series will present the Metropolitan Opera Studio Ensemble on February 7, the Tucson, Arizona Boys' Choir on March 4, the Louisville Symphony Orchestra on April 20, and concert pianist Lee Luvisi on May 2. Season tickets are still available and may be procured by contacting Gus Kalos at Prestonsburg Community College.

DEMOCRATS!

It Is Time To Think and Work For the Democratic Party!

Did You Know—

That 93% of the Republicans in the House and 64% of the Republicans in the Senate voted against Medical Care for the Aged?

That 81% of the Republicans in the House and 58% of the Republicans in the Senate voted against the Appalachian Program to help Eastern Kentucky?

That 73% of the Republicans in the House voted against the Elementary and Secondary Education Act?

Do not be misled by Republicans and other candidates. SUPPORT CARL PERKINS BY GIVING HIM A DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENT AND U. S. SENATOR TO WORK FOR THE BEST INTEREST OF THE NATION AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY.

Remember last year when the Republicans said it was time for a change. What we got was a Republican 5% sales tax and other higher taxes.

Democrats, think about the future! The Democratic party has done, and will do, more for the people of Eastern Kentucky and Floyd county.

Vote for:

HUBERT HUMPHREY for President

EDMUND MUSKIE for Vice President

KATHERINE PEDEN for U.S. Senator

CARL D. PERKINS for Congress

Are Teachers
Second Class Citizens?

By VIOLET WEST SONE

(In "The Pen")

This being the year of the grand contest between the donkey and the elephant, politics pervades the air waves, usurps the front page of newspapers, and provides the prime topic for conversations. Yet in all this ferment some communities expect their teachers to remain mute.

Traditionally, teachers and politics, like oil and water, were not supposed to mix. If a teacher had any interest in politics, he was not supposed to show it. Like the oil, he never became involved or absorbed.

Today the idea that children must be taught by a clan of political neuters is being discarded—but perhaps not completely or rapidly enough. Other professionals, such as doctors or lawyers are expected to turn to practical politics, why not teachers? Just as a doctor may take heated exception to Medicare and still perform the daily tasks of healing his elderly patients, similarly a teacher can have a marked political preference and still conduct a class fairly.

Most teachers are not inclined, ideologically or intellectually, to trouble young minds with unconventional ideas. They are more likely to "play it safe." Recent studies of high school teachers made by Ronald Corwin show that most of them make it a practice to adjust their teaching to the administration's views of good educational practice and are obedient, respectful, and loyal to their principals.

Teachers who use the classroom to generate controversy and stimulate their pupils toward critical thinking are in danger of community disapproval and loss of support by the administration. No one objects to political discussions as long as they are in support of the existing system, but when they go against community views, often the teacher is reprimanded or dismissed.

Certainly a teacher should not take advantage of his captive audience to push his own partisan views in the classroom, but his after school hours should be free to campaign for others or run for office himself.

The very least that one can do as a citizen is to vote. Yet, according to surveys, less than half of the teachers to their duty at the ballot box. Perhaps each feels that one vote won't make any difference. History does not support that theory. Oliver Cromwell won control of England in 1645 by one vote in Parliament. Subsequently the king, Charles I, in 1649 was beheaded by a Tribunal of judges who voted 69 to 67. We might never have had World War II if the Nazi party had not by one vote elected Adolf Hitler their leader in 1933.

In our own country one vote has settled many issues. During the American Revolution anti-British sentiment ran so high that a bill was introduced in Congress to abolish English as the official language and adopt German instead. Andrew Johnson escaped impeachment by one Senator's vote in 1868. Three presidents, Thomas Jefferson, John Quincy Adams and Rutherford B. Hayes, were each elected by a single vote. The Hayes election was contested and referred to an electoral commission. Again he won by a single vote. That one vote was cast by a Congressman from Indiana, a lawyer elected to Congress by a single vote. The man who cast the deciding vote, a client of his, was desperately ill, but he insisted on being taken to the polls to vote.

Just one vote gave statehood to California, Idaho, Oregon, Texas, and Washington. Thus all the millions living in those five states are Americans by virtue of just one vote. What applies to the past can apply to the future. The number one duty of a first class citizen is to vote.

If every teacher voted in every election and induced at least five relatives, patrons, or friends to vote, it would guarantee financing adequate facilities and faculties, adequately paid.

In this era, as never before, continual improvement in education inevitably means government participation at some level, be it Congress, the state legislature, or local school board. Organized pressure groups or professional lobbyists cannot alone achieve their ends. Person-to-person contact is needed—a continuous effort, year in and year out, not just when a crisis is looming.

Party membership enables a teacher to use his influence as a precinct worker, campaign manager, or office holder rather than as a mere bystander. Such work gives him a greater voice in determining who the candidates will be and what the platform will include. He also will be in a key position to influence other votes in favor of crucial issues.

A Resolution adopted by the NEA Representative Assembly in 1964 reads in part:

The National Education Association believes that every teacher has the right and obligation to be an informed and active citizen. It therefore recommends that every educational system in written personnel policies guarantee to all teachers full equality with other citizens in the exercise of their political rights and responsibilities, including such rights as voting, discussing political issues, campaigning for candidates, and running for and serving in public office. . . . The Association believes that support of those teachers whose status or rights have been unfairly menaced or impaired is a major obligation of professional organizations.

With such strong backing, the day will soon come when no teacher need fear reprisals for exercising his inalienable right to be a first class participating citizen.

Honored at 94

Theop Salmon, of Allen, who observed his 94th birthday Oct. 18, was honored with a surprise birthday party Sunday, October 20, at 5 p.m. in the basement of the Allen United Methodist Church. His birthday cake represented an open Bible. On one "page" was the verse from John 8:12, "I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life;" and his name and age appeared on the other page. Mr. Salmon gave a short talk on his life in the community and the church. He has been an active member of the church for more than 60 years. He said his motto was, "Pray and give." He said he loves the Lord and the church, humorously adding he "likes politicking." Mr. Salmon received a number of cards and gifts, and cake and coffee were enjoyed by all attending.
