Acquittal of Moore Ends Court Session

Jury Deliberates 4 Hours on Case; Rum Cases Heard

The November criminal term of circuit court ended Tuesday afternoon on an emotional note. with some relatives of Don Gayheart protesting the acquittal of his father-in-law, Orville Moore, whose trial for the slaying of Gearheart claimed the attention of the court during the last two days of the session.

The jury deliberated almost four hours before a verdict was reached.

The Commonwealth had little testimony except for that of Policeman A. J. Reed, who old of Moore's admission he had killed Gayheart, and photographs submitted by State Trooper Brenner. Burnis Martin, courtppointed attorney for the Commonwealth, gued that the Moore family was in the home, he day of the slaying, waiting Gayheart's arrival in a conspiracy to kill him.

Defense testimony claimed Gayheart had been drinking, that he had a fight with his wife, daughter of the defendant in the case, and that she fled to her father's home. This testimony added that Gayheart later approached the Moore residence, that Moore warned him to stop and Gayheart said, "I'll get you, first." The shooting that followed was in self-defense, they claimed.

The only discrepancy in defense testimony lay in the fact that some members of the family did not agree on the rooms they occupied at the time of the shooting.

Mr. Martin was named to act for the prosecution when Commonwealth's Attorney arold J. Stumbo disqualified because of relationship to the defendant. Woodrow W. Burchett was attorney for the defense.

Bill Crace, who appealed his conviction in quarterly court on liquor possession charges, entered pleas of guilty in circuit court and was ined and jailed on three counts. All three $20 tines on each count stood, but the jail terms which totalled 105 days ran concurrently, reducing the actual time in jail to 45 days.

The appeal of Frank Layne from a police court traffic conviction was upheld, and his fine was placed at $10.

Commonwealth's Attorney Stumbo last week entered a motion to revoke the probation granted William Riley Wells, Jr., after his conviction on a liquor possession charge. Wells was released from jail under probation with the understanding that he would resume private employment and quit the liquor business.

Alvin Randall Frasure entered a plea of guilty to a charge of reckless use of a deadly weapon and was fined $100. Clarence Martin was fined $50 and given a 60 day jail term for the sale of intoxicating beverages.

Cases continued: Billy Joe Crace, charged with hit-run driving, to Jan. 12; Charles Jenkins, D. Case, Darrell Martin and Corbet Slone, auto theft, to Jan. 19; Willard Hicks, three cases alleging knowingly receiving stolen property, to Jan. 14.

A special program of Eastern Kentucky history will be given at Mayo School auditorium, Paintsville, next Sunday (December 7) at 2 p.m., featuring an address, "Daniel Boone in Eastern Kentucky," by Henry P. Scalf, historian and author of KENTUCKY'S LAST FRONTIER, and a program of old Kentucky mountain Christmas songs by the Jenny Wiley Chanters directed by Mrs. Edith James.

Mr. Scalf has recently completed work on the activities of Daniel Boone in the Big Sandy valley and surrounding areas, and this will be his first major address on the subject. A native of Floyd county, he is a recognized authority on the early settlement of the Kentucky-West Virginia-Virginia region.

The "Old Christmas," to be presented by the Jenny Wiley Chanters, is taken from the program, "The Cattle Low at Midnight." Its main theme will be the old-fashion Christmas that was celebrated in the Kentucky mountains more than a century ago.

Sept. 14th Is No. 1 Date In New Draft Lottery

Men born Sept. 14 were sent to the top of the list of the draft-eligible by the lottery held in Washington Monday night.

The draw of birth dates provided a list which applies to every man who is at least 19 but not yet 26 as of Dec. 31 this year. Each man's place in the list is the number preceding his birthday. The order of call will be applied by each local draft board to the men registered in its files. Both draft boards for Floyd county are without specific guidelines, however, and personnel there said they knew only what they had heard or read about the new draft system. Both boards have 130 registrants who are classified 1A and are acceptable for service. The induction call from this county for

December demanded only seven from both boards. These left for induction Tuesday. Hitherto, draft-eligible men have been called up, beginning with 26-year-olds and working down to age 19,. Under the new lottery system this order of call is reversed, with 19-year-olds first to be called. The order of call, as determined by the draft

Floyd Co. Missed In Holiday Toll

During a long Thanksgiving week-end which saw Kentucky's traffic toll rise by at least nine, Floyd county had only minor accidents despite a homeward flow of former residents which often jammed highways.

Elsewhere in this section, Johnson county had one fatality when Charlie Ward, 73, of Salyersville, was killed in a car-truck collision on US 23, four miles north of Paintsville, last

State Police said an auto driven by Estill Howard, 62, of Magoffin county, went through a stop sign on the highway and was struck by the truck driven by Harold Robert Caudill, 25, of Louisa. The two occupants of the truck suffered minor injuries.

Estill Howard, 62, of Salyersville, driver of the auto, suffered fractured ribs and a punctured lung. He was described as in fair condition at the Paintsville Hospital. Another passenger, Gladys Howard, 53, of Salyersville, daughter of the man who was killed, had multiple head cuts.

Education Board Schedule Rewards Teacher Training

The salary schedule approved by the Floyd

County Board of Education for teaching personnel during the current school year ranges from a low of $2,035 for a teacher whose college hours range from none to 31 and no teaching experience to a high of $7,810 for one with 20 extra graduate hours and 11 years' experience. A total of 409 teachers and supervisors is covered by the new salary schedule, which is designed to reward teachers for added college work and teaching experience.

The biggest salary jump is from the undergraduate level (Rank IV) to Rank III in which those with an A. B. degree are placed. For instance: A teacher with 118 hours of college credits draws a maximum of $3,210 a year with six years' experience, while one with an A. B. degree and the same experience is

The big break in experience pay comes between the ninth and tenth years for those with bachelor's degrees and graduate work. The increase between those years ranges from $485 to $505. Teaching experience credits extend only six years for those with 56 to 118 hours' credit and five years for teachers with fewer credits than that.

The minimum pay by ranks (teacher with no experience) is:

Rank I, 1 to 9 hours graduate work beyond a master's, $6,030; Rank II, master's degree, $5,580; Rank III, bachelor's degree, $5,160; Rank IV, 56 to 106 hours, $2,930; Rank V, 64-74 hours, $2,675; Rank VI, 32-42 hours, $2,245.

Meade Indicted By Federal Jury

Former Congressman W. Howes Meade, of Paintsville, has been indicted in U. S. district court at Pikeville, it became known Tuesday when the charge against him was read in court

He is charged with making false statements in applying for loans.

Meade, a Republican, represented the Seventh district in 1947 and 1948. He served under Gov. Louie B. Nunn as state commissioner of personnel from the beginning of the administration until last January, and later was appointed to the state Workman's Compensation Board.

Mineworker Vote Set Next Tuesday

Tuesday, traditional day for elections, will end next week one of the most vitriolic campaigns in years.

The Dec. 9 election isn't political, but the attacks made by the candidates and their supporters on their opponents have been more scathing than many the ordinary political The principals in the election, which will determine the leadership of the United Mine Workers of America, are W. A. (Tony) Boyle. incumbent president of UMWA, and the challenger, Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski. In the Eastern Kentucky coal field pre-election sounding of sentiment indicates that Boyle has a stronger hold on the labor vote, and many observers predict a Boyle victory.

Boyle's re-election is predicted, despite a U. S. Department of Labor report which questioned his employment of relatives in top union positions, handling of pension funds and alleged improper reporting of a $1.4 million loan due the union. From the Yablonski faction have come demands for Boyle's resignation. Boyle will not resign. From his camp come threats of legal action to recover heavy damages from Yablonski for his statements which, Boyle supporters say, are blatant lies.

MORE TROOPERS NEEDED

State Public Safety Commissioner William O. Newman last week announced an all-out campaign to recruit qualified applicants for the State Police Trooper ranks. The Department has 32 existing Trooper vacancies and is requesting 70 new positions to meet the need for increased police services. Success of the recruiting drive would bring the force to its full strength of 698 officers.

Legislative Interim Group Proposes New Legislation

The Legislature's Interim Committee on indiciary has recommended to the 1970 General Assembly that circuit judges be given uthority to fix the fees of their master comnissioners and court receivers.

The committee asked the Legislative Research Commission staff to draft into bill form portions of the legislative program of the Louisville-Jefferson County Crime Commission for presentation to the 1970 legislature.

Among the crime commission's proposals were provisions to create a third division of criminal court; allow for a computerized court record system, and to provide for jury selection from a broader listing that would include drivers' license rolls and automobile registration rolls, as well as voter registration

The proposal also proposes that persons arrested for public drunkenness be taken to hospitals rather than to jail. A spokesman for the commission said this proposal would allow treatment of drunkenness as a health problem rather than a legal problem, and would free enforcement and court officials for duties they are better equipped to handle.

The master commissioners' pay proposal would provide that fees received by commissioners and receivers must be "reasonable," and would be set by the circuit udge based upon evidence presented.

Master receivers and commissioners now are subject to a rigid fee schedule. Committee members feel the fees are too low, but, rather than set new fees, or minimum fees in the law, hey decided to place authority in the hands of the circuit judges. The committee also has recommended epeal of a section of the state's marriage law which prohibits marriage between a white person and a Negro or mulatto. Committee members said they felt the section was unonstitutional, and should have been stricken from the law earlier, but probably had been overlooked. The section was discovered while the committee was studying the state's marriage statutes for possible revision.

Two bills to provide compensation for coal miners' pneumoconiosis (black lung) will be submitted to a special legislative subcommittee when it meets this week.

Rep. Mitchel Denham (D-Maysville) chairman of the Legislative Research Commission Subcommittee on Occupational Respiratory Diseases, has directed the LRC staff to draft a proposed law in conformance with a pending congressional act.

Sen. Francis M. Burke (D-Pikeville) a member of the subcommittee, has indicated he will submit a proposed bill of his own. Burke said his bill would revise all sections of Kentucky's occupational health and compensation

Burke said Kentucky's present law at to be changed to allow courts to reverse gs of the Workmen's Compensation Board if it seemed the board had reached an erroneous conclusion. Under present law, a ourt cannot reverse the board's finding so long is there is any evidence to back up the finding.

pensation law and Kentucky's present compensation law. The basic difference is in the placement of burden of proof, the report showed. In West Virginia, the burden is upon the mine owner. In Kentucky, burden of proof is upon the miner.

The subcommittee, composed of members from the Legislature's Interim Committees on Health and Welfare, Labor and Industry and Agriculture and Natural Resources, has conducted public hearings on the questions surrounding black lung and other occupational respiratory diseases.

The legislature's Interim Committee on State

Government has recommended that the 1970 Legislature eliminate four minor state holidays while making four others fall always on Monday in keeping with the federal Monday Holiday Act. The four holidays to be eliminated by statute are birthdays of Robert E. Lee and Franklin D. Roosevelt in January, the birthday of Abraham Lincoln in February, and the birthday of Jefferson Davis (Confederate Memorial Day) in

The four holidays scheduled to fall on Monday every year are Washington's Birthday in February, Memorial Day in May, Columbus Day in October and Veterans Day in Novem-

All eight recently were eliminated for state government by executive order by Gov. Louie

In other action, the committee recommended passage of a bill which would prohibit any governor from ordering a reorganization involving more than one state agency without prior legislative approval. The present law permits a governor to reorganize without respect to agency lines, but requires him to submit the action to the next legislature for confirmation.

Juvenile Crime Listed One of Biggest Problems

Juvenile crime is one of the area's biggest counties, which are legally "dry," listed drunk problems, says the report drafted for the Kentucky Crime Commission by James Allen, Prestonsburg attorney who is executive director of the Regional Crime Council serving Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin

The council recommended the services of a fulltime juvenile probation and parole officer and the founding of a home for juveniles in each of the counties. Such a home already has been proposed in Johnson county.

Land has been donated near Paintsville for a home to house about 30 juveniles, ages 8 to 16, and the regional crime group has voted to assist in seeking a federal grant to start the

The six-month survey has shown that grand larceny charges embracing a major portion in auto thefts are the most prevalent in the area with a heavy concentration in Pike and Floyd counties. Pike showed 34 and Floyd 19 in the charges in a half-year period. Another high incidence of criminal charges named breaking and entering with the greatest number in Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties.

Other than major felonies, the largest number of arrests for the period in the five driving charges and public drunkeness.

The director said the first survey could not obtain an accurate accounting of crime incidence because of some poor record keeping and the possibility that a number of actual arrests were not reported on the records. Allen said the study shows that the pay for officers is "appalling." There is a critical need to establish training courses and a better standard to qualifications for law enforcement officers, he reported. The report to state officials recommends that a system of radio communications be set up within police and sheriff's departments and all be linked to an area network.

It also recommends the public should be better informed of police activities through the

Which Way Did Justice Go?

The fact that a citizen on his way to hunch can be cited and subsequently med for failing to bring his car to a ull stop at a street intersection auses one to wonder why the owner or driver of an overloaded coal truck an go scot-free after drawing a itation that has the full authority of

The individual driver in the first nstance did no damage. His violation If the law certainly was not premeditated or wilful. On the other nand, the driver of an overloaded coal ruck knowingly-not maliciously, out knowingly—causes thousands of dolars' damage to costly highways and thereby infringes upon the rights of other users of these roads as well as upon the taxpayers whose money will these roads in the first place and will help repair their damage later.

It is true that coal is a vital fuel and that it is important to the industrial life of the nation. It is also true that coal is an important part of the economy of Eastern Kentucky. But no argument dwelling on this importance can justify the flouting of the law by the truckers or the closing of official eyes to such violations.

The same specious arguments attempt to justify industry, and are apparently accepted by state agencies, when it pollutes as stream or befouls the air. These firms, we are told, provide work for men, they have big payrolls, they must be protected from the harshness of the law.

If this reasoning is correct, this country has treated a lot of people rather shabbily in the past. Al Capone, for instance, had many hirelings and his payroll was pretty

Mental Health - Mental Retardation

(The information for this section is provided by the staff of Mountain Mental Health Services. If you have questions, contact your local Mental Health Office, phone 886-3893, or John E. Mason, community coordinator, Mountain Mental Health Services, 413 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg.)

Question: We read and hear of "Outpatient Services" offered by Mountain Mental Health Services. Where are outpatient services available and what are they?

Answer: "Outpatient Service" is the largest and most important service offered by the Staff of Mountain Mental Health Services. One in 20 of all Americans is hospitalized for a psychiatric disorder during his or her lifetime. However, on any one day, one of 10 could use professional help for a mental or emotional disturbance. The vast majority need services only on an outpatient basis. This means most who need help can stay at home and receive help by seeing a therapist at an outpatient unit.

Outpatient units are located at Pikeville. Prestonsburg, Salyersville, Paintsville and Inez. Outpatient services are also available monthly at the Appalachian Regional Hospital in South Williamson and bi-monthly at Mc-Dowell Appalachian Regional Hospital

The full range of diagnostic services, crisis intervention, and treatment are available by calling the outpatient units. Your local unit may be contacted by calling the number at the beginning of this section.

Question: You mention that one in 10 could use help from a therapist for a mental or emotional disturbance. Just what does this mean in terms of numbers of people in our area who need help?

Answer: There are no current figures available about the population of our area. The 1960 census taken from the "Kentucky State Plan for Health Facilities Development" list the following population for our area: Johnson county, 19,748; Magoffin county, 11,156; Martin county, 10,201; Pike county, 68,264; Floyd county, 41,642.

National authorities on mental health estimate 10 percent of the population could utilize professional help for an emotional or mental disturbance. This means that from Region 20 15,101 need help with a mental or Glassmeyer, 24, died Thursday Gulnare, died last Tuesday at emotional disturbance. #### Whatsoever Things

By DONALD E. WILDMON On Friday, November 7, 1969, Miss Isa Delle Chrestman died in Baptist Hospital, Memphis, Tennessee. She had been a patient there for approximately two weeks. She was involved in an accident. It was an accident which was totally unnecessary.

Miss Chrestman lived in Holly Springs, Mississippi. She and a companion, Ronnie Carpenter, apparently saw an ambulance which had been called to the scene of an accident and decided to follow it. The ambulance was headed for an accident which had occurred on Highway 72, south of Holly Springs, between two small towns, Hickory Flat and Potts Camp.

Arriving at the scene of the accident, Miss Crestman and Mr. Carpenter saw the results of a collision between a car and a truck which had injured three persons. A Highway Patrol car was parked across the highway near the accident to keep spectators away from the truck. It had caught fire and the Ada Williams, Lenna Howard, Shepherd, Barbara Howard, flames posed a danger to Frank Lowe, Tommy Lynn Elizabeth Smith, Melba Risner, anyone going near.

To Allot Widows More VA Pay

Bigger checks for approximately 168,000 widows are due in January, Donald E. Johnson, administrator of Veterans Affairs, announced

Signed by the President on October 27, a new law (PL 91-96) authorizes increases for most widows of servicemen and veterans who are eligible for dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC). DIC payments, Johnson explained, are authorized for widows of servicemen and veterans who died on or after January 1, 1957, of service-connected causes. The new legislation does not affect payments to survivors receiving compensation under laws that preceded the DIC program.

New DIC rates provide $167 monthly for the widow of the lowest ranking enlisted man compared to a minimum of $134 at present. Similar increases are provided for eligible widows of other enlisted men and officers.

Effective December 1, the increase will show up first in checks received in January. This increase is automatic and no application is

Date: November 27, 1969

The Maytown Woman's Club held its regular meeting Nov. 20 at the Adkins Steak House, with Mrs. Roland Burchett as hostess. The club voted to send contributions to the Veterans Hospital and for Christmas Seals. Committees reported on the Maytown high school homecoming, held the preceding Saturday evening. It was decided that lighting of the community Christmas tree will take place December 8, with Santa Claus giving out candy to the children.

The club's annual Christmas party will be held Dec. 18 at May Lodge. The next club meeting will be in January at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Blevins. Refreshments were served to Mesdames David Reed, Paul Borders, George A. Patton, and Theodore Gibson. CLUB PREPARES GIFTS The Maytown Homemakers Club is preparing gifts for patients at the Golden Years

The Red River Gorge In a Blanket of Snow

By HELEN PRICE STACY The recent early snow proved to be one of many bonuses found by more than a hundred people who love the outdoor world and were at Natural Bridge State Resort Park for a field naturalist workshop led by Jim Butler, chief naturalist for the Kentucky State Department of Parks. Butler was assisted by Dr. Roger W. Barbour, professor of zoology; Carl M. Clark, professor of agricultural economics; Bruce Poundstone, director Department of Regulatory Services, and Preston McGrain, assistant state geologist-all three of the University of Kentucky.

Adding immeasurably to the workshop staff was Rufus Reed, of Lovely, naturalist and director of a wildflower sanctuary and also columnist for the Huntington, W. Va. Herald-Advertiser.

Everyone added his bit to the three-day white wonderland workshop. A workshop to study the geological formation of the many natural bridges and the Red River Gorge, the three-day get-together was that and more. The "ologies" were out in great and interesting force: ornithology, herpetology, ecology, entomology, dendrology and a few originalologies-all a part of the history of this still-good earth. It was even brought out that a mineralogist had discovered uranium in Menifee County just over the ridge but still a part of the great plateau that lies behind the Pottsville escarpment.

Two of the most noted stone arches included in the weekend study were Natural Bridge and Sky Bridge, set in a rugged land of valley and cliffs which visually express the slow erosion of Rockcastle conglomerate. In the gorge cut by the Red River, the cliffs rise 500 feet or more from the valley floor. As ageless as seem the natural bridges (actually they are babes measured in geologic time), they too will pass away in the erosion of years, the same process which gave them birth.

Looking as if they had been there forever, it was interesting and enlightening to learn that in the madness of erosion there is great and definite method. A mass of rock breaks away, a cliff is formed; as water and weather beat against the cliff, it hollows itself until a rockhouse (overhanging shelter) is formed. As the hollowing process continues through thousands of years, the back side of the rockhouse becomes thinner and finally breaks through to form a lighthouse; as the light enlarges a bridge is left standing which, as the ages pass, continues to be eaten away bit by bit, until that age when the supports are so thinned by erosion that the great arches crack up and become a part of the rocks on the valley floorsome of them giant segments disturbing the flow of Red River, Swift's Camp Creek, Tight Hollow Creek and small streams that thread the region of Daniel Boone National Forest.

Points visited included Rock Bridge spanning Swift's Camp Creek which was not formed by the above process but at one time was the base rock under a waterfall and emerged when water leaked through the floor of rock.

Morning and afternoon tours took in the following trails in addition to those above: Double Arch, Grays Arch, Silvermine Arch. Whittleton Branch, Tight Hollow (where the diggings of a New York firm interested in finding Swift's silver mine were found). Moonshiners Arch (where Jim Jamerson, Mike Osborne, Judy and Mary Westrick, Marlene Wessels and Gary Mier, all of Hamilton, Ohio, were camping, sheltered from the snow). Star Gap Arch and Indian Stairway.

All trails were beautiful, with the landscape looking as if a Master Hand had used a giant aerosol can of snow to flock everything in sight. Some of the trails were rugged, such as the snowy one that led deep into Tight Hollow and its stand of virgin timber. There was no little drama as hikers walked icy trails less than two feet away from a rocky precipice that fell more than a hundred feet to snow-laden tops of tall hemlocks and magnolias and the boulder strewn creek.

"Such a wonderful way to go," said a naturalist as he looked at the white, white world that seemed isolated from other existences until a pileated woodpecker began to drum overhead and a jet left a vaporous snowpath through the sky.

In Tight Hollow, hikers linked hands to span a tulip tree which was 17 feet around and seemed at least 100 feet high. The tree's age was guessed at 500 years. Nearby stood a hemlock stretching 150 feet, trying to reach beyond the hollow to sky and sunshine.

"There goes a Carolina wren up the creek," a voice cried, and already the bird's flight from a tree limb had set into motion a chain reaction from limb to limb and tree to tree, sending veils of snow that looked liked sheer white silk scarves unfurling. A walk in winter woods is a rare experience—almost as unique as finding a Solidago albo-pilosa growing in West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana or some other state . . . and that's pretty unique, for, according to Dr. Barbour, this tiny flower of the golden rod family grows only in the Red River Gorge: Maianthemum canadense (Canada Mayflower) is found in northern states but in Kentucky it is found only in the gorge.

"There are 60 species of fishes in Red River and its tributaries," said Dr. Barbour, "33 species of amphibians, 33 reptiles, 225 species of birds in the river basin. There are maybe more than 1,500 species of wildflowers, thousands and thousands of invertebrates, 5,000 species of moths alone, and I can find 150 species of woody plants here in the next 60 days."

Chief Naturalist Butler and others on the snowy trail through Tight Hollow were emphatic in their stand to protect the virgin timber—all timber—on government owned land in the hollow. "I am positive should cutting of these trees begin that enough volunteers would show up to place one each to a tree to protect it." Butler said, supported by dozens of others who believe that stronger measures should be taken to preserve the timber in the national forest and all of Red River Gorge. Their belief is that God has leased His good earth to His children who should strive to be good renters. They know how difficult it is to get new wallpaper, new rugs and furniture.

None of this describes the beauty of those snowy days in the forest and in the gorge, and most of the adjectives take away rather than add to. Dr. Barbour said "pretty" was as good a word as any, and Jim Black, Pikeville physician, said it well when he said time and again, "This is paradise."

over the 1968 edition.

Guilford, Maine, has been Department of Agriculture, Food and Nutrition decorated with the Bronze Star Service, said this week that USDA food programs aid approximately 189,000 needy persons in Kentucky each month.

Sixty-three counties are taking part in the Guam. Sergeant Weston, an air Food Stamp Program, and needy families are receiving approximately $937,000 a month in bonus coupons. Floyd county's bonus coupons per month total approximately $40,000.

Fifty-six counties are participating in the Food Distribution Program. Foods distributed monthly have an estimated retail value of about $659,000, and include dairy products, canned and dried fruit and vegetables, canned meat or poultry, grain and cereal products, as well as other items such as peanut butter and scrambled egg mix.

In Kentucky the Food Stamp Program is administered by the Kentucky Department of Economic Security and the family food distribution program is administered by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, both in cooperation with USDA's Food and Nutrition Service. Horn said, "You and your neighbors have an important role in the campaign to end hunger and malnutrition in America. By helping lowincome people get and make good use of the food help available from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, you can contribute greatly to the lives of disadvantaged families in your area and thus to the life of the entire community."

American farmers produce plenty of food to provide every American with an adequate diet. The problem is to get it to all low-income people who need it-especially the aging, the disadvantaged, growing children, mothers, and unemployed workers.

Another part of the problem is to extend the Carl R. Horn, representative of U. S. reach and improve the effectiveness of family food programs in communities where they are already operating. Many poor people are not getting the benefits they should from help now available to them. Whether it's because of fear, suspicion, lack of motivation, lack of transportation, or physical handicaps—there is usually an identifiable reason, a reason that can often be dealt with by concerned citizens of good will who can lend a helping hand.

Horn said many individuals and private organizations have asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture what they can do to help, and many are already conducting well-planned service projects to help reach low-income people with the food assistance they need for better diets and better health.

Best Community Use of Fringe Lands Told

How can a community make the best use of land in ruralurban fringe areas?

The answer lies in community planning, coupled with public support, says Dr. John H. Bondurant, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Kentucky.

Dr. Bondurant suggests that nonprofit public agencies buy and hold rural-urban fringe area land for resale to private purchasers. He emphasizes that local citizens should participate in planning and development of land use controls to gain an understanding of community needs, objectives and probable consequenes of the controls that are initiated.

He adds that public or semipublic agency members can best settle questions of land use because they:

-know their community's

—can participate in establishing land use controls to fit those needs and,

—can sell land to purchasers whose ideas for land use coincide with a comprehensive community or area plan.

Dr. Bondurant calls purchase and development of land by public agencies "a means of achieving effective land use controls and of thwarting excessive land speculation profits."

In some instances, he says, this is more desirable than purchase and development of open land by local governments for rental and sale to private manufacturers.

Using nonprofit public agencies to establish subdivisions and locate public services might also be wise, he adds.

The ag economist says nonprofit private or governmental sources frequently do not have the funds necessary for such projects, which is a major obstacle. He adds that current legal procedure, however, does not hinder implementation of such a plan.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

It was a great surprise to me when I first began to study the folklore of the Mammoth Cave area to find that so many of the customs, the sayings, the bywords, even the obscene words were identical with those of Fidelity. Separated by 150 miles of land and water, the two areas were startlingly alike. I mentioned water deliverately, for only those who lived before the Cumberland and Tennessee Rivers were bridged can know how far away Mammoth Cave was from Fidelity. Rather oddly, the area east of the Jackson Purchase, known always as "Old Kentucky," was much stranger than our neighboring western Tennessee and eastern Missouri and even southern Illinois, all of them close by, only western Tennessee being

"BOUND EACH TO EACH"

From my years of study of the Mammoth Cave folklore I have come to believe that three influences made us much alike: 1. English and Scotch-Irish origins, 2. our affiliation with the same churches, especially Methodist and Baptist, and 3. the general uniformity of the public schools. There are, of course, other influences but these seem most obvious.

was only natural that old customs were brought along with the language and a few bits of furniture. Some historians, even, fail to see how widespread was the Scotch-Irish influence in most parts of the areas east of the Mississippi. The earlier British colonists had come from England; these occupied the good lands in the Tidewater area. The Scotch-Irish came later and, by necessity, had to go farther inland. When the areas west of the eastern mountains were open, and even before, these newcomers poured into Kentucky, Tennessee, and the southern parts of Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois, giving their native stamp to the earlier history of all these states. It is still almost comic to find how much alike folk customs are on both sides of the Ohio River.

The Methodists and Baptists were great pioneer churches. Other faiths came in, of course, but few of them had the missionary zeal of the Methodists and Baptists. Many preachers traveled widely, almost unbelievably reaching even the remotest settlements. The hard pioneer life was sometimes fatal to these roving ministers, but some thrived on it and rode their horses through the woods to the very edge of civilization. The traveling preacher was one of our most folkish characters, usually endowed with a strong sense of humor, a zeal for his work, and an unaccountable understanding of human nature. Both of these denominations also had many local preachers, who were usually farmers who served in their spare time ministering to needy areas. The local preachers were ofteten greatly influenced by the best-known traveling preachers and, consciously and unconsciously, adopted their methods of reaching the people. Many of the best stories I ever heard had been brought into remote places by Brother This or That and kept alive for whole generations because of their being so tellable and so appropriate. I was fairly raised on such stories, a long time after real pioneer days.

Since the same textbooks were used over wide areas, methods of teaching were alike in places far apart. A boy in Fidelity might be saying a piece from McGuffey's Fourth Reader at exactly the same time that another one, a hundred or two hundred miles away, was doing the same thing. The helpful hints to teach-ers on how to present the subjects were followed religiously, so that my spelling match and that of my contemporaries elsewhere were twin brothers, and so on down to the most inconsequential event in the one-roomed country school.

Things

By DONALD E. WILDMON We all want to be successful. And there isn't one thing wrong with that. He made us that way, implanted that desire in us when He breathed into us the breath of life. And it would be an awful dull existence if we didn't have that desire about us. For it causes us to do our best, to go to the highest, to shoot for the top. Far from repressing this desire, He encouraged it, kindled it, and set us afire with it.

The trouble comes, you see, when we misuse this desire, turn its energies in the wrong direction, seek its outlets in the wrong ways. For somehow we think that to be successful means that we have to do so according to the standards of those around us. Let me share with you a story worth passing along.

In 1923 a group of the world's most successful men-according to society's standards-met at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago. Among those present were a member of the President's cabinet, the president of the Bank of International Settlements, the head of the world's greatest monopoly, the president of the largest independent steel company in the world, the greatest wheat speculator, and the greatest "bear" on Wall Street plus the president of the New York Stock Exchange. Their meeting attracted national attention. People watched them in awe, stunned by the magic they had about them. They were envied by vast numbers of people.

Some quarter of a century later some snoopy reporter had to get involved in the thing. He decided to see what had happened during the past 25 years to these men of success. He spoiled the happy ending to the story with his findings. He found that Albert Fall, the member of the President's cabinet, was released from prison so he could die at home. The utility operator, Samuel Insull, died in virtual exile. The head of the world's greatest monopoly, Ivar Krueger, committed suicide. The president of the steel company, Charles Schwab, lived on borrowed money the last five years of his life and died broke. The wheat speculator, Arthur Patton, died abroad, insolvent. The greatest "bear" on Wall Street, Jesse Livermore, committed suicide. And the president of the New York Stock Exchange, Richard Whitney, had served a term in Sing Sing Federal Prison.

I guess many times we close the book without reading the final chapter. And when we do this we don't always get the full story. We call it a game in the fifth inning with four more innings to go. We quit singing on the third verse with two verses left. We could get the real picture if we would read the final chapter, play the last inning, sing the final verse. I guess the reason He was hung on that ugly standards. This upset the "successful" people, you know. Made them angry, set them against Him. So they tried to destroy Him only to find that Truth is eternal. Whether one is successful or not depends on what standards he uses to measure success. That's the reason He wasn't impressed by their definition. He had a better one. And He still Cumberland and Herrington Lakes. Mostly those caught by pole and line (to be within South Carolina law) averaged about two pounds each, with the largest one going a whooping 12 pounds. They were freed in the chosen lakes in the hope that they would reproduce and furnish to Kentuckians a fast growing fish to augment the present fish Cooperating with TVA biologist and with those from Tennessee the project of catching and returning adult rockfish to Kentucky waters continued and the fish did well in these lakes. They grew with great rapidity and before long 16 pound rockfish were quiet frequent in the stocked lakes. Of course, the payoff come when one that tipped the scales at better than 34 pounds was hoisted from Lake Cumberland. That weight has not yet been surpassed in Kentucky waters although a rough fish netting operation in Herrington Lake a few months ago turned up a 40 pounder which was promptly returned to the water unharmed.

The adult stocking program continued until 1966 with the hope that the fish would reproduce. No reproduction has been established, although eggs found in Kentucky Lake were determined to be fertile.

In 1966 a new method of stocking was started. That year, in cooperation with the South Carolina neighbors, over 3 million fry were transported from Monck's Corner and released in Barkley Lake (The species also was introduced to Dewey Lake. Editor.) Of course, the chances of a tiny fry surviving were small but some fish so stocked have been caught, biologists are sure. The number that survived cannot be determined. Similar stockings of fry were made in other lakes and some of them undoubtedly survived. This year a brand new method of stocking was started and it has the biologists popeyed. About 700,000 four-day old fry were furnished by the fishery personnel in South Carolina and were brought to the federal hatchery at Frankfort and there released in

They were kept in the troughs for 12 days, during which they were fed brine shrimp. At this stage 200,000 were removed to brand new Green River reservoir. The remainder were placed in the Frankfort hatchery holding ponds where alfalfa hay was used for fertilizer. Near the end of June the youngsters had reached a length of two and one - half to three inches and 23,072 were stocked in Lake Cumberland on July 1. Quite naturally, a large number of the original shipment was lost due to predation and

The young fish are now showing up in these two lakes. Two were caught from Herrington Lake on October 6. They were nine inches long. On October 8 one was taken from Lake Cumberland this one measured 10 inches in length.

These catches were made by fishermen using pole and line. The biologists are of the opinion that a great number of these small fellows survived. Next week they are to make extensive tests in these two lakes to try to determine if the survival has been up to ex-

It well could be that in a few years rockfish will be a new and welcome attraction in Kentucky's lake system.
