

EDA Funds Hospital To Serve 3 Counties

Med Center Work Seen During '69

Total of $5,395,000 Available for Building; Fund Drive Is Planned

Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced in Washington Tuesday that application of the Highland Hospital Corporation for Economic Development Administration funds to help finance the construction of a 150-bed regional hospital near here had won EDA approval.

Tuesday's EDA action provided a grant of $2,818,400 and a loan of $1,126,600 for construction of the five-story medical center.

A Hill-Burton grant totalling $1.3 million was made, early in November.

The only remaining financing required is the $150,000 to be raised locally.

When this is done, a total of $5,395,000 will be available for construction and equipping of what is planned to be one of the most modern hospitals in the region.

Chalmers H. Frazier, administrator of the Highland-operated Prestonsburg General hospital, said it is hoped bids on the structure can be asked in July. The firm of Nolan & Nolan, Louisville, is preparing plans which are expected to be completed soon.

Commenting on the action of EDA, Congressman Perkins, who has led the Washington fight for federal financing aid, said, "The results of much hard work by many people has finally been realized. This hospital is important to the industrial growth of the area and will serve the medical needs of the people of Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Floyd counties. It is of vital importance." FLOYD MINISTER FOUND EDGE OF TROUBLE NEAR ON WAY TO HOLY LAND

Returned to work here after a tour of the Holy Land, the Rev. Rush Sloane, pastor of the Garrett Baptist Church, said this week the experience was past his power to describe but, he added, he and his party were at least on two occasions on the edge of trouble.

Mrs. Sloane accompanied him on the tour which began on Christmas Day and ended with their arrival home, January 11. The tour was a gift of his church and his employers, the Winston Ford Company here.

"Trouble was just ahead of us," the minister said. His party arrived in Athens, Greece, only a few hours after the Lebanese slaying of Israeli at the airport there. "You could feel the tension," he said.

SHALL WE OVERCOME?
Watching those fabulous Harlem Globetrotters do their basketball magic, the other night, I wondered what would be their reaction if a body were to insist on integrating the team. Search for Youth, 16, Missing Since Jan. 22, Made Over Wide Area

The search for 16-year-old Johnny Johnson, of Hi Hat, who has been missing since Jan. 22, continued this week as no trace of his whereabouts has been found.
His father, Harold Johnson, former Floyd deputy sheriff, said inquiries in person and by telegraph and teletype have ranged a wide area. He said the boy had no money when he disappeared and bore no identification papers.
Young Johnson disappeared after his car and a pickup truck had collided at Wheelwright Junction. Bystanders said the youth remarked that he was going to a telephone to call his father.
He was wearing blue levis, a blue T-shirt and a button-type overall jacket at the time of his disappearance. The youth is 5 feet, 7 inches in height, weighs about 130 pounds, has black hair and blue eyes.

Big Sandy Search For Child in Vain

The search of the Big Sandy river for the body of seven-year-old Beverly Akers, who was drowned with her mother and sister January 25 at Emma, continued this week, with one boat of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad patrolling the stream.
The large-scale search conducted last Saturday and Sunday will be renewed this week-end. Graham Burchett, captain of the rescue squad, said.
Last week-end 85 men from seven rescue organizations operated 13 boats in the search which extended as far downriver as Paintsville. A seven-foot river some hampered operations, but some entertained the hope that the higher water level might serve to dislodge the body.
Burchett said he expects at least four squads to participate in the search this week-end. Last Saturday and Sunday the Floyd group was joined by rescue organizations from Middlesboro, Harlan, Tri-County of Corbin, Tri-City of Cumberland, Pike county, and the Left Beaver Civil Defense unit.

Bodies of the missing child's mother, Mrs. Barbara Howell Akers Pierce, and her five-year-old sister, Tammy, were recovered, shortly after the car driven by Mrs. Pierce left the highway at Emma and plunged into the river. The only survivor of the tragedy was Phillip Akers, 11.
Capt. Burchett expressed on behalf of the Floyd county squad, appreciation for the widespread support given at a time when resources of the squad were being heavily taxed by expenses incident to the search. He cited the many who made cash contributions, provided food for the searchers and gasoline used in patrolling the river.
"The response was wonderful, and I regret that we can't personally thank each one who gave when such help was of the greatest importance," he said.

Perkins Tells C.C. Hopes for Region

The Prestonsburg Chamber of Commerce and its guests, industrial and civic leaders, were told by Congressman Carl D. Perkins at the Chamber's annual Industry Appreciation banquet at May Lodge last Friday night that he anticipates no great change in the federal programs affecting Eastern Kentucky.

The congressman, here Friday for three public appearances, pointed out that much has been done for the area, that it deserves much more and that he expects to get more benefits for Eastern Kentucky through federal aid. He voiced his deep desire to work for the betterment of the region.

The annual event was attended by one of its largest gatherings, with 137 registered. Chalmers H. Frazier, administrator of the Prestonsburg General hospital, presided as toastmaster.
Preceding the installation of new Chamber of Commerce officers, outgoing president Estill Lee Carter was presented a plaque in recognition of his services during the preceding year. Clyde George was installed as president of the chamber and Homer D. Neeley, a former president, as vice-president. Blaine R. Hall remains temporarily as treasurer. Former Mayor Curtis Clark continues as executive secretary of the chamber.
The new board of directors includes W. O. Goebel, Jr., Clyde B. Burchett, Earl Castle, Burl Spurlock, Homer D. Neeley, Donald Ray Pelphrey, J. T. Hughes, Thomas Hereford, Sr., Estill Lee Carter, Marvin Music, W. W. Wallen and John F. Brown.
Weekly meetings of the Chamber of Commerce will continue to be held at noon, Wednesdays, at Penny's Drive-In, it was announced.

GROUP BUYS 125-A. TRACT

Cliff Land Purchase Made for Potential Industrial Location

Announcement was made at the Prestonsburg Area Chamber of Commerce banquet at May Lodge Friday night that the Prestonsburg Industrial Corporation has purchased a 125-acre tract of land at Cliff as a potential industrial site.
The industrial corporation was formed several months ago as a non-profit group to promote new industry here and acquire potential sites.
The tract was acquired from the Highland Coal & Land Corp., which is mainly owned by T. H. Allen, of Prestonsburg, and the estate of his brother, the late H. T. Allen. The purchase price was $25,000.
The tract includes approximately 20 acres of level land lying on both sides of the railroad, below the Cliff highway bridge. The purchase includes land from the top of the mountain to the Big Sandy, Marshall Davidson, attorney for the purchasers, and Scott Collins, legal representative of Highlands, said mineral rights on the land also were conveyed.
The new owners may seek EDA aid in the construction of a new highway approach to the property, it was said this week.

FOLEY DIES OF INJURIES

Floyd Native Victim Of Car-Truck Wreck In Ohio, January 18

Joe Foley, 23-year-old native of this county, died Tuesday night in Riverside hospital, Toledo, Ohio, of injuries sustained in an auto-truck collision there last Friday.
The victim was a passenger in a car driven by his brother, James Foley, and the car was hit by one truck, moments later by a second, and knocked over an embankment. He died without regaining consciousness. James Foley was uninjured.
The body was brought to the Floyd Funeral Home here Wednesday, and funeral rites will be conducted at 1 p.m. Friday from the Auxier Methodist Church, the Rev. James Sturgill, and others officiating. Burial will be made in the W. T. Foley cemetery at Auxier.
Foley was a son of the late Tazewell Foley, who was killed in a traffic accident about five years ago at Cleveland, Ohio. His mother, Mrs. Freda Foley, of Cleveland, survives. He also leaves his widow, his brother and one sister, Sylvia, of Charleston, West Virginia.

SCHOOL BUS LEAVES ROAD

Ten of Forty Aboard Bus Wrecked Monday Suffer Minor Hurts

Ten children were treated for what was described as minor cuts and bruises after the school bus in which they were being transported to school here overturned Monday morning on KY 1428 (the Prestonsburg-Water Gap road).
The bus carrying 37 children, a teacher, a lunchroom cook and a school janitor, overturned at a point between the Mutton Fork of Bull Creek and Water Gap. State Trooper Elmo B. Allen said his investigation showed that the driver, Odias Wallen, of Lancer, pulled onto the dirt shoulder of the road to permit an oncoming car to pass and that the shoulder gave way under the bus. The vehicle dropped over an embankment of about eight feet.
The injured children were brought to the Prestonsburg General hospital. It was said that the wreck did not break a window in the bus. The windshield was kicked out to permit passengers to evacuate the wrecked vehicle. Damage to the bus was described as minor.

Board Says No Changes In Prospect

Fourteen-year-old Gary Dale Ousley, formerly of Prestonsburg, was killed by a train at Ypsilanti, Mich., January 22, relatives here have been notified.
The report received here that young Ousley and several schoolmates were on the tracks after school and that he alone failed to jump clear as a fast train bore down on them.
The victim was a son of James Lee and Avonelle Harris Ousley, who had resided in Michigan the last eight years. Besides his parents, he is survived by two sisters, Debra Lee and Mary Sue, both of Ypsilanti. He was a grandson of the late Mary Frazier and Ollie Ousley.
His funeral was conducted from Trinity Baptist Church, Ypsilanti, January 26, the Rev. Carlos Kitchen officiating. Burial was made in Udsel cemetery.

STATE WORK KY 80 HOPE

Perkins Tells Meeting No Appalachian Funds Available for Highway

Congressman Carl D. Perkins told representatives of seven Eastern Kentucky counties in a meeting at the Prestonsburg Community College last Friday evening that their hopes of an improved KY 80 between Hazard and Allen apparently lies in the Kentucky Department of Highways.
He pointed out that the work would be entirely a state project, since KY 80 was not included in the Appalachian road program.
Congressman Perkins said he attempted in 1965 to have KY 80 included in the program so that it would benefit from Appalachian funds along with US 23, US 460 and US 119.

Board Says No Changes In Prospect

Martin High Building Renovation Planned; 2nd Building Studied

A delegation of Martin men met with the Floyd County Board of Education Saturday to voice opposition to construction of the Right Beaver high school at Eastern and the merging of Martin high with the new school.
Meanwhile, Martin women, bearing placards, marched in front of the board of education building in protest.
The discussion between the board and the delegation was described as frank but orderly. The picketing outside the building was without disturbance.
The board repeated its intention to proceed with plans for the Eastern building and pointed out that the status of Martin high school is to be decided by Special Judge Stephenson, who heard the suit filed by Martin citizens to enjoin the board.
After the meeting with the Martin delegation had ended the board authorized George Lee Shannon, architect, to plan a complete renovation of the Martin high school building. It also authorized Shannon and Superintendent of Schools Charles F. Clark to investigate the possible purchase of a building which could be erected quickly at Martin to provide temporary elementary school classrooms next fall and later serve for physical education facilities.
Martin churches and one or two other buildings have served as temporary classroom quarters for the elementary students there since the grade school was destroyed by fire, a few weeks ago.
Commenting on Saturday's demonstration, Supt. Clark said, "We feel that pickets under a democratic form of government have their right to protest in an orderly manner, which they did, but the board of education is . . ." (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Ground for construction of the $850,200 project, spoke at the exercises which were held at one of the three sites where housing units will be erected.
Paying tribute to the eight churches here for their cooperative effort to meet a community need, the congressman remarked:
"This is the first time I have found in all my travels over the Seventh district . . . that the church community has got together for a work of this kind which is of such great benefit."
Mr. Fleming spoke briefly and introduced Perkins.
The Rev. W. D. Jagers, pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church and chairman of the Housing Association, gave a brief history of the association and its work of 18 months to get approval of the building venture, and introduced special guests at the ceremony. Other items of the program included:

YEAR'S SUPPLY OF EGGS OFFERED FIRST ARRIVING AT BOY SCOUT BREAKFAST

George Chidester, local district Scout executive, announced Tuesday that a year's supply of eggs has been secured for the first man who shows up at the annual Boy Scout finance campaign breakfast here next Tuesday morning.
Breakfast will be served by the women of the First United Methodist Church to the approximately 100 men who will be doing their "good turn" for the Boy Scouts.
Chalmers H. Frazier will be chairman of the 7 a.m. breakfast. Fun and fellowship, along with instruction and prospect cards, will be shared.
Jarrett Wood, president of Lonesome Pine Council, will bring greetings from more than 2,000 Scouts and Scouters in the 13-county area served by the Council.
Funds raised as a result of the campaign will be used to make more and better Scouting available to the 4,858 boys of Scout age in Floyd county.
Arthur Bradbury, campaign chairman, said that the Prestonsburg campaign will be a one-day effort, since each person attending the breakfast will be asked to call on only five prospective donors and report back to the United Methodist Church between 6 and 9 Tuesday evening.

GOBLE-FRANKLIN VOWS SAID HERE, DECEMBER 21

In a candlelight service at 4:30 in the afternoon, December 21, at the First Presbyterian Church here, Miss Ella Louise Goble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Goble, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. Michael Howard Franklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Franklin, of Aberdeen, Ohio, were united in marriage.

The Rev. Milton E. Skiff, the pastor, officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Miss Jo Anne Ray, of Cambridge, Ohio, rendered pre-nuptial organ music, Edward Goble and Paul Osborne lighted the candles in the candelabra which flanked the dual standards of red poinsettias and white gladloll tied with large bows of white satin ribbon. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a floor-length white satin gown, empire styled, with white satin band above the waistline. The gown, with matching floor length train, was trimmed in Alencon lace. Her bouffant short veil of illusion was caught in front with a patri bow with pearls attached. Her nosegay bouquet was a single poinsettia tied with a satin bow and streamers.

Miss Alana Susan Reed, of Ashland, was her maid of honor. Mrs. Terri Wells Cool, of Louisville, and Miss Karen Sue Nelson, of Prestonsburg, served as her other attendants. Serving the groom as attendants were Mr. Kirby Wright, of Telesboro, Ky., best man, and Mr. Danny Kempin, of California, Ky., and Mr. Henry A. Szidon, of Morehead, Ky., as ushers. The bride's attendants wore red velvet dresses similar to the bride's gown. Their headdresses were red velvet bows. Their bouquets were arrangements of holly and white pompons with white satin streamers. Mrs. Goble, mother of the bride, wore a white knit suit with black accessories, and a shoulder corsage of white cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Franklin, mother of the groom, wore a white suit trimmed in gold. She wore a gold hat and white accessories, and a white cymbidium orchid.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Franklin are students at Morehead State University. After a brief honeymoon they have resumed their classes there and are residing at Morehead. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. The bride's table was covered with a cloth of white dotted swiss and organdy draped with white net. White satin balls, ribbon roses, and miniature wedding bands of silver were hung from the net with white satin ribbon. Surrounding the four-tier cake, was a pair of five-point silver candelabra with white tapers, and white ribbon roses floating in miniature brandy snifters. Punch was served from a crystal bowl by Miss Joan Reed. Cake was served by Miss Jane Osborne. A silver tray held nut cups trimmed with lace and white satin bows with miniature wedding bands of silver.

The wall behind the table was hung with white net decorated with white satin balls, white roses, and miniature wedding bands of silver. Wallen had driven the bus about two weeks, prior to the accident. School officials said they were told the bus had been slowed to six or seven miles an hour when the shoulder of the highway collapsed.

As a result of the wreck, a group of Bull Creek residents called a mass meeting Tuesday evening at the courthouse. County Supt. Charles Clark said he had been invited to the meeting and that he would attend. A driver for the school bus was slated for discussion.

Commenting on the Bull Creek accident, Supt. Clark said: "We are extremely sorry about the bus accident and we are thankful that none of the passengers were hurt more seriously. It's a great responsibility to haul more than 7,000 children over 3,481 miles of winding roads a day, but we are constantly looking at the transportation system with a view of improving transportation facilities for our young people, and we shall continue to do so."

Apparently considering the scheduled mass meeting, he added, "We welcome helpful suggestions from anyone at any time, but, since we are looking out for all our children, we must make the ultimate decisions."

Clark said that state highway engineers from the Pikeville office some time ago had made the statement they could not guarantee the safety of the bridge connecting Prestonsburg with Town Branch and the Bull Creek road under the load of a full school bus. For a time, pupil-passengers were unloaded at either end of the bridge and required to walk across. Eventually, this safety measure came under criticism and its enforcement was relaxed. But, said the superintendent Tuesday: "As of today, we have asked the children to walk across the bridge. It's inconvenient and not entirely safe in itself, but this is the best we can do under the circumstances."

He spoke of the memory of the 1963 school bus tragedy which constrains school officials to be cautious. This sometimes causes the closing of schools at a slight snowfall.

"That is why we start schools as early as possible, so that we will have several days' time in mid-winter to recess, if necessary, and avoid taking chances on the roads," he said.

FLOYD SCHOOL CHILDREN JOIN IN WORK TO GIVE BOY CHANCE FOR LIFE

There is a new rivalry between FLOYD and JOHNSON county schools, these days.

Time was, when the rivalry was bitter on the football field or basketball floor. Now, it's not true rivalry; rather, it's a spirit of compassion that is leading the youngsters as they try to outdo each other in helping a boy in his battle for life.

This week, the Prestonsburg elementary school basketball team and cheerleaders raised $586 for the fund to provide 10-year-old Keith Williamson, of Paintsville, the kidney transplant that he must have to survive. This amount was realized through advance ticket sales to a benefit supper, and the total is expected to be more.

This week, similar benefit events were being planned for young Williamson at seven other Floyd schools: Clark, Betsy Layne, Garrett, McDowell, Allen, Haroid and Humbo. And there may be more.

Next Monday, a radiothon over Station WDOC will be sponsored by the Prestonsburg Ministerial Association to help raise funds. Telephone operators will receive pledges at the station. A day-long program of music and messages will be broadcast. Contributions made by check to the Prestonsburg Chamber of Commerce and marked for the Keith Williamson Fund are tax-deductible.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Mrs. Maudie Bowling Sanders wishes to thank the many friends who so graciously loaned us their strength in our time of need. The tokens of your friendship, given in flowers, food and your presence were deeply appreciated. Even in the deepest hours of our grief, we were reminded that warm friendship, like the golden sun, does truly shed its light on everyone.

JUST BEING HELPFUL

Some of my acquaintances may say that I write this with malicious intent, to make them go about home for Florida at a time they can't go. Maybe so. But I also print these facts as a helpful hint to some of my friends who are already there and perhaps not doing as well, piscatorially speaking, as they might. Anyway, here are the statistics:

On the last day of January, in the St. Johns river, fishing out of a dock four miles south of Astor, Fla., Charlie Hensley, of Langley, landed a 15-pound bass and his fishing partner, Hance Terry, Dewey Lake dock operator, docked a 11 1/2-pounder. (I saw the pictures, even if I did get a bit misty-eyed.) A few days earlier, Truman Messer, of Martin, caught an eight-pounder.

NO COMMENT

The only visitor to this office who hasn't commented on our improved quarters is the dog. He has been hors d' combat since before Christmas and hadn't shown up for work till Tuesday afternoon. And all he did then was to bail the place with the usual bark, give the new door a solid rake with his good right paw and loudly demand entrance. Didn't give the interior a second look, once he was admitted and welcomed back into the fold. Somebody opined that when he saw me and the desk he decided it was the same old joint.

BLESS 'EM!

As long as our youngsters show the spirit evinced after learning of that Paintsville boy's sad plight, why should some of us tight-lipped oldsters ever say the younger generation is going to the eternal bow-wows?

REMINDER

And don't forget the Boy Scouts next week. They need your support. No mere nods of approval, no amens—just cold cash.

Redheads To Feature Wells Benefit Game

Dorrie Wells, 16-year-old junior and a member of the Paintsville high school football team, was paralyzed below his waist in a freak accident recently. A basketball game has been scheduled at the new Johnson County high school gym as a benefit for young Wells. The game will feature the All-American Redheads, world's champion girls' team, who will be opposed by Johnson county coaches.

Car Makes Drive-In Window

This was the scene, looking from the inside out, at the Fountain Corner Drug here, shortly after midnight Monday when an auto jumped the curb several feet high and entered the place of business via a window.

The driver, Mrs. Betty Jean Gullett, of Prestonsburg, and her sister, Miss Phyllis Henry, escaped without injury. Mrs. Gullett, a nurse, said that as she turned off US 23 into Court street she missed the brake pedal and hit the accelerator, losing control.

No estimate of the damage had been reached Wednesday afternoon by Herb, John and Joe Burke, owners of the drugstore, or by John Allen and A. B. Meade, owners of the building. Five $800 display cases were so jammed together as to be considered ruined, and the car caused havoc in the cosmetics department of the store. Damaged lipsticks alone were valued at $2,100.

portance to the health of our people that such hospitals be erected throughout Eastern Kentucky.

The hospital will be erected on a 22-acre site already purchased by the Highland Hospital Corporation, a non-profit organization, from Robert McGuire on new US 23, it will be located 3 1/2 miles north of Prestonsburg and six miles south of Paintsville.

The Rev. Milton E. Skiff, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, is chairman of the campaign soon to be begun to raise the $150,000 local contribution to the cost of the undertaking.

The hospital will attract to this section the specialists so badly needed, Mr. Frazier said. (Dr. George P. Archer, a leader in the move for a regional hospital, could not be reached for comment.)

Features proposed for the new hospital include:

A coronary care unit.
A physical therapy department.

A surgical suite of three major operating rooms.

An emergency area of four rooms which will be manned 'round the clock and which will serve as the Big Sandy emergency center.

A modern radiological laboratory service.

All-new and the most sophisticated equipment for diagnosis and treatment.

Frazier said a nursing school in connection with Prestonsburg Community College will be sought. To this end, a loan and grant will be asked for construction of a nurses' home on the hospital grounds.

VEGETABLE CROPS OFFER FARMERS OPPORTUNITIES IN '69, SPECIALISTS SAY

Vegetable crops for processing in 1969 could add $5 million to Kentucky farmers' income, according to Hubert W. Davis, University of Kentucky extension horticulture specialist.

They will have an opportunity to enter into contract agreements with vegetable processors for about 8,000 acres of crops in 1969. A market is available for 3,200 acres of cucumbers, 2,000 acres of snap beans, 1,800 acres of bell peppers, and 500 acres of tomatoes.

Buying stations are located in many areas of the state to handle the produce. Each processor operating within the state has his own marketing arrangements with local people, and he establishes buying stations based on contracted acreage in an area.

Cucumbers and probably bell peppers could be grown on contract in Northeast Kentucky counties in 1969 if there is sufficient interest by farmers. These crops offer a good opportunity for farmers interested in increasing their income, according to David Gillespie, area extension agent in horticulture. Agricultural extension agents assist in acquainting farm people of the crops desired, and also assist in providing information on cultural practices and terms of market agreements. The local representative of the processor is responsible for signing up acreage and management of the buying station.

Persons interested in the production of these or other vegetable crops should contact their local extension agent or Mr. Gillespie in Paintsville.

Soil Conservation Head Says 39,000 Landowners In State Receive Help

Conservation activities in Kentucky moved ahead in fiscal year 1968, Homer A. Taff, state conservationist, USDA Soil Conservation Service, said this week.

Thirty-nine thousand landowners were given technical help in solving soil and water conservation problems this year.

Conservationists provided technical assistance, soils information and interpretations to a rapidly increasing number of city and urban planners, land developers, health officials and other county, township and community officials. Work included completion of 1825 farm ponds, 340 miles of tile drains installed, 103 miles of open ditch built, 1506 acres of grassed waterways established, 1656 ponds stocked with fish, 5828 acres of trees planted, 464,782 acres of land adequately treated.

The Appalachian Region made gains. The Middle Creek project in this county was under this program. SCS helped 1,135 landowners in these project areas prepare conservation and development plans on 80,377 acres.

Veterans' Questions and Answers

Q.—I have been waiting to file my 1968 income tax return until I receive a statement from the Veterans Administration as to the amount of service-connected disability compensation I was paid last year. When may I expect this statement?

A.—Since your service-connected disability compensation is not taxable, you will not receive any statement from VA and need not delay filing your return. As a matter of fact, veterans' benefits generally are exempt from taxation and need not be reported on income tax returns.

Among these exempt veterans' benefits are pension payments, educational assistance allowances, grants for specially-equipped homes and cars for the severely disabled, and payments to surviving dependents of deceased veterans.

The only reportable item is the interest earned on G. I. insurance dividends left as deposit of credit with VA. This interest is not considered a veteran's benefit and must be reported as income. Veterans were advised on the anniversary date of their policy in 1968 of the amount of interest their policy earned for the year.

Q.—I neglected to have some needed dental work done while in the Army because I was anxious to get out of service. Can I get treatment from the Veterans Administration? I have been out of service three months.

A.—Under a new VA policy, a veteran may receive such treatment, without regard to supporting military records, if he applies within six months after release from service, and if it is determined professionally within eight months after separation that the condition is service-connected.

With supporting military records, a veteran may receive VA dental treatment for service-connected conditions during the first year after release from service.

Q.—I have kept my World War II National Service Life Insurance as a term policy. Is there any way I can find out now how much my premium will be increased for the next five-year period? Also, can I find out the comparative costs and advantages of permanent plan G. I. insurance policies?

A.—Yes. By writing to the VA office where you send your G. I. insurance premiums, you can obtain information about your present term policy, including the next five-year premium cost. VA insurance officials will also be happy to send you information about the comparative costs and advantages of permanent plan policies.

It will probably be to your advantage to find out about these various plans as soon as possible. In any event, you should keep in mind the fact that the modified life plan, which offers the lowest permanent plan premium, is available only through age 60.

Economist Sees Big "Ifs" Clouding Picture for 1969

Slowing the pace of inflation without creating a recession will be a tough task in the months ahead, according to Dean C. F. Haywood, of the College of Business and Economics at the University of Kentucky.

"I don't believe I have ever made a forecast that was so dependent upon the successful implementation of monetary policy," said Dr. Haywood, who left a post as director of economic research for the Bank of America to become a UK dean in 1965.

"Any forecaster who does not equivocate somewhat about the outlook this year is drawing upon an unknown, but appreciable, quantity of false courage.

"Economic trends, cost-price relationships, and policy alternatives have come to a juncture which is not auspicious for further progress in the achievement of national economic goals."

And, he noted, the change of national administrations makes the goals themselves "to some extent, yet unknown."

The dean explained that the national economy has been in a "cyclical upswing, or expansionary phase, since February, 1961" and added that "the boom is old, some imbalances have developed, and we are pressing hard upon the limit of our manpower resources." He indicated that the end of the "upswing" might be in sight.

Dean Haywood used the price index as one indication that balanced expansion "began to become unglued in the latter half of 1965."

From 1961 through 1965, he explained, the price index increased 5.5 percent, not quite 1.4 percent a year, but since 1955, it has jumped by 12.3 percent, almost 3.6 percent a year.

"But over the past year," he continued, "the increase has been 4.4 percent."

He listed "the forces responsible" for the developing imbalance as "the more active involvement of the United States in the Vietnam war and the subsequent escalation of the war, the expansion of federal programs aimed at alleviating the problems of disadvantaged groups and slow-growth areas, the expansion of consumer spending and business investment stimulated by the tax cut of 1964, and — after 1965 — the mounting failure of the federal government to reverse the direction of fiscal policy by raising taxes and curbing expenditures where at all possible."

Dr. Haywood described the 1968 surtax as "clearly too little, too late" to slow the expansion of spending and added:

"Despite the change in administration in Washington, I am not optimistic that much can be done to curtail government spending in 1969."

Declaring that "we are pressing hard upon the limit of our manpower resources" with only 3.3 percent now unemployed, the University economist continued:

"Upward pressures on wages are readily apparent. If profits are not to be squeezed, increases in costs must be passed along in the form of increased prices."

"The manpower problem limits its opportunities for significant improvements in productivity."

"There is little downward flexibility in prices. A significant slowing in spending will therefore tend to produce increases in unemployment."

"Must we accept inflation or can the inflationary expansion in which we find ourselves be moderated with precipitating recession and significant increases in unemployment?"

"The burden of national economic policy will almost certainly fall upon the monetary authorities in the months ahead. Fiscal policy, in the form of the surtax, has been tried and found wanting."

"The policy alternatives have been pretty well narrowed to (1) a restrictive monetary policy in the months ahead and (2) some further effort to curb federal spending."

With the federal budget in surplus during the first half of 1969, Dr. Haywood explained, it is not necessary to maintain a favorable money market for financing Treasury borrowings, and the monetary authorities can—as they did in raising the discount rate in December—tighten money and credit markets.

"The task of the monetary authorities is to press hard upon the credit base to slow the pace of inflation without throwing the economy into a recession," he continued.

"The very large assumption underlying my forecast is that the monetary authorities will enjoy some success in this venture."

Turning to the economic outlook for Kentucky, Dr. Haywood noted that during the past year some of his UK associates, aided by the Kentucky Department of Revenue, have developed a set of state income and product accounts comparable to the gross national product accounts, partly meeting "a significant need for better techniques and informational resources for forecasting the economic progress of our Commonwealth."

With these, he continued, "we expect to be able to make a rather detailed forecast for the Kentucky economy when we begin to look toward 1970." He estimated that the total personal income in Kentucky in 1968 was $8.36 billion and predicted that it would reach $9 billion in 1969, a gain of about 7.66 percent.

Gov. Fields' Widow Honored by Morehead As First Woman Regent

Morehead, Ky. — Friday, Jan. 24, was a day of memories for Mrs. William J. Fields. She was guest of honor at a reception in appreciation of her service as the first woman member of the Morehead State University board of regents.

The 93-year-old widow of a former Kentucky governor and congressman said she was pleased the occasion was sponsored by residents of Fields Hall, an MSU dormitory, because she had "always loved young people."

The women's residence hall, completed in 1927, was named for Mrs. Fields during her service as a regent from 1924 to 1928.

Mrs. Adron Doran, wife of the Morehead State University president, presented Mrs. Fields a bouquet of roses and expressed the university's gratitude for her work in "laying the foundation that enabled Morehead State to grow into an ever-expanding university." Mrs. Doran brought personal greetings from her husband who is confined to their campus home while recovering from surgery.

Joyce Osborne, president of Fields Hall, gave Mrs. Fields a plaque from the dormitory residents.

The reception was held at the Daniel Boone Convalescent Center where Mrs. Fields now resides. Special guests included Mrs. Jean Huffman, of Morehead, Mrs. Fields' niece.

MISS HEINTZELMAN, MR. WYATT ARE WED AT MARTIN CHURCH

Miss Ruth Ann Heintzelman, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Dan Heintzelman, of Martin, and Mr. Tipton Wyatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wyatt, of Prestonsburg, were married at 8 p.m., December 27 in the Martin United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Lori Vannucci performed the double-ring ceremony in an altar arrangement setting of branched candelabra, baskets of white gladioli and a bridal arch of white gladioli.

Mrs. Alicia Mayo was organist, and the vocalist was Mr. Douglas Smith, who sang "Always," "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of white peau-de-soie. The dress was of sheath design with radiant effect, beaded neckline and long flared sleeves. The front bodice and sleeves were decorated with re-embroidered alencon lace. The full-length chapel train fell from the center back. Her elbow-length veil was held by a petal arrangement of peau-de-soie alencon lace and seed pearls. For her bridal bouquet she carried a white orchid surrounded by white carnations, with white satin and pearl streamers tied at the ends to lilies of the valley.

Miss Carolyn Ison was maid of honor. Her dress was of gold velvet made along sheath lines. Matching color covered satin buttons decorated the bodice. The high neck line and long sleeves were edged in lace. She wore a matching velvet pillbox headpiece with a circular veil of illusion and carried a white basket of evergreens and red poinsettias.

Bridesmaids were Miss Terry Jean Akers, of Louisville, and Miss Marlene Baldrige, of Martin. Miss Kathy Lynn Heintzelman, sister of the bride, was a junior bridesmaid and her brother David lighted the candles. Their gowns and headdresses were identical to that of the maid of honor, except emerald green in color, and they carried identical baskets of poinsettias.

Mr. Steve Walters, of Prestonsburg, served as best man. Ushers were Rick Moore, and John Burke, both of Prestonsburg.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the basement of the church.

The bride and groom now reside in Ypsilanti, Michigan.

Beneficiaries May Earn Above $1680; Report Is Required

Social security beneficiaries who worked in 1968 may still receive some payment even if their earnings exceeded $1,680 last year, Daryl E. Ratliff, district manager of the Pikeville office, said today. To claim those benefits a beneficiary must file an annual report of earnings for 1968 on a form provided by the Social Security Administration.

Many beneficiaries automatically receive their annual report of earnings forms in the mail, but others who received no benefit checks last year because they estimated high earnings that would make them ineligible will have to get a form from the local social security office.

Mr. Ratliff stressed that beneficiaries who earned more than $1,680 in 1968 should file an annual report if:

1. Their actual earnings are less than original estimates, which would allow some benefits to be paid;
2. They earned less than $140 in any one month as employees;
3. As self-employed persons, substantial work was not performed in one or more months.

Beneficiaries who believe they might qualify for payment based on one of these conditions should not delay filing an annual report, Mr. Ratliff said.

The deadline for filing annual reports is April 15. Filing later than April 15, Mr. Ratliff cautioned, may result in the loss of benefits.

Beneficiaries may obtain the annual report of earnings form and additional information from the social security office at Second and Division Streets, Pikeville, Ky. 41501.

High School Juniors Have Until March 24 To Get in UK Program

High school juniors hoping to attend the University of Kentucky summer program for superior high school students must apply by March 24 for the American College Test, which will be given for the last time on April 25—if they have not already taken the test.

ACT scores are used to evaluate the applicant's ability to take college studies before he or she finishes high school. The test deadline applies only to Kentucky residents, since enough time would not remain to receive scores of out-of-state applicants, says Edwin C. Brand, UK director of admissions, and George Dexter, assistant director.

High school juniors accepted into the program may earn six hours of college credit in freshman courses and may participate in all collegiate activities during the UK summer session. Regular summer session fees are charged. Kentucky students pay $80 in registration and special fees. Adding expenses for a semi-private dormitory room, books and anticipated personal expenditures, bring the total cost to around $390, depending on the student's individual tastes.

Out-of-state students pay $260 in fees, plus room, meals and other expenses.

Dexter points out that during the first six years of the program (it began in 1963) a total of 127 superior juniors took part. All were B-plus students in high school, a requirement for admittance, and collectively they made a grade point average of 2.73, or C-plus, at UK.

"Besides getting a significant head start on his or her college career, the student also will be able to 'get his feet wet' with real college work while he still has a year of high school left. This will enable him to judge just how ready he is to undertake his full-time college career, and will give him a year to better prepare himself," Brand states.

Students interested in the program should write the UK Admissions Office for an admissions packet, or contact Brand or Dexter. Each applicant must be approved for the program by his high school principal.

Nature Trails

By RUFUS M. REED

Settling Down the Bees

Ralph Waldo Emerson once wrote: "Nothing is so rich as the inexhaustible wealth of nature; she shows us only surfaces, but she is millions of fathoms deep."

The oldtime farms back in the country, where there used to be plenty of trees and plants to furnish blooms, usually had several beehives; I've seen as many as 50 of the round bee-gums on a single farm, and these were set upright on large, flat rocks, in or near the orchard. The bees pollinated the apple blossoms and always assured plenty of fruit; they also pollinated the farmer's corn and garden crops. There were no "patent-gums" in the early days; the hives were sawed out of hollow black-gum trees, some three feet long, and roofed with boards. "Cross-sticks" were fastened in the middle to support the weight of the bees and honey. Small triangular doors were sawed in the bottom of the gum to let the bees go in and out. During the summer season, a steady stream of bees could always be seen going out or coming in; they kept the farmer's table supplied with honey, the year around, and there was usually a surplus to sell. But those old, romantic days of the round bee-gums on the farms are gone.

Talk about excitement on the farm—that was when the bees swarmed! The farmer knew the ways of bees and could tell some days ahead when one of the hives was making ready to swarm. The bees could be seen "lying out"—that is, they'd crawl outside and cover the gum, perhaps from overcrowding inside. If Pa and the boys were working out in the fields when the bees swarmed, the youngsters would run fast to tell him to run quick, the bees were swarming! What a hue and cry was there, and what a noise! The kids would ring the old dinner bell in the yard and Ma often joined in, grabbing a hammer and beating on a dishpan, plow or anything else handy. The people got about as excited as the bees. They believed that the more noise they made, the quicker would the bees settle down. Maybe the noise did confuse them and cause them to settle. By the time Pa got to the house, the swarm was usually settled down on the branch of some apple tree—so many of them in one big mass they almost broke off the tree limb.

It was then an easy matter to get them put safely in the new bee-gum. It was first wiped or washed out with crushed green peach-tree leaves, to impart an odor that was said to please the bees; then the limb was sawed off gently by Pa and lowered slowly with a rope to the mouth of the gum. The bees went quietly in, following their queen. Sometimes, however, the swarm went wild and refused to settle down. They would circle in wild confusion to gain altitude, then take off to the woods, usually to some hollow tree located in advance by the "bee scouts." The farmer was always chagrined to lose a fine swarm of bees, especially in May when a "swarm was worth a stack of hay."

Settling down a wild bee swarm presented new problems. These usually flew over fast, high in the air, going straight toward their new home selected in advance. It was the most exciting event of my boyhood to see a wild swarm fly over, following the old queen. Most of those working in the fields used whatever art or "charm" he knew to induce the swarm to come down from the sky and settle in some nearby tree.

The moment we heard the wild, weird song of the bees coming from high in the sky, all of us stopped work and began to make loud noises, hoping to bring them down. The men grabbed rocks and beat a tattoo on noses or plows. Once I remember how the old bee-hunter we called "Uncle Charley" settled down a wild swarm by using some sort of magic. The minute he sighted the swarm flying over, he threw down his hoe and turned over three large flat rocks; then he sat down on the last—just sat there, peering up at the sky while his thin lips kept muttering something which I couldn't catch. Suddenly that swarm of bees veered from their course and settled down in a tree about 100 yards away. The old man's magic had worked. He leaped to his feet crying, "I tol' you men I could settle down a swarm of wild bees! That swarm is worth a ten-dollar bill and I claim it!"

One of the men ran down to the barn to get an empty bee-gum to put the new swarm in. All agreed to let the old man have the bees. I begged him to tell me his secret. "Waal, son," he drawled, lighting up his pipe, "the first stone I turned over I named it 'Father,' and the second one, 'Son,' and the last one I named the 'Holy Sperrit,' and in the Three Highest Names I ordered them bees to settle down an' they did, by cracky!" I'm sure the old man didn't mean any irreverence, but it sounded to me like hocus-pocus; it worked for Uncle Charley, though, and he got the new swarm.

TIDITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

Dying Or Dead Companions

For a whole generation I have been writing and speaking about passing institutions, that is, customs, industries, words, attitudes that have gradually lost their former prominence, especially within the lifetime of us who are now oldsters. Suppose we look today at some figures of speech that used to be explanatory of human characteristics but now have to be explained to the younger generations. Explaining a simile, for example, after it has been used is a good deal like explaining the nub of a joke that died stillborn.

Adam's off ox has often been used as a sample of just dead or dying similes. When ox-teams were everywhere, everybody knew what you meant when you said someone was as stubborn as Adam's off ox. The off ox or horse was the one on the right of the driver of the wagon or plow. The other one was the lead horse or ox. Naturally, the off ox was just a follower and sometimes acted ox-like and refused to follow the leader.

Blunt as a pegging awl is now practically dead. When shoes were made by hand, everybody knew an awl, a sharp punch so badly needed to make holes in hard leather. A little girl of my acquaintance used to sing "Jesus paid it all" as "Jesus pegging awl" with no intention of being irreverent.

Cheerful or polite as a basket of chips used to have a meaning, for just such a basket was to be found in every home. Chips were made to start fires or to make a good blaze when cooking on the fire was the standard way to prepare victuals. And a basket of chips was good to have around when meat was being cured in the smoke-house. I have never made any effort to justify or criticize the pleasant or polite appearance of a basket of chips.

I hope that reference to bed-bugs are now passing away. Folklorist though I have been since my first grown-up days, I have yet to see a bedbug. But all my life and even fairly lately I have heard that someone is as crazy as a bedbug, that some condition, usually unpleasant, is as common as bed-bugs or as thick as bedbugs.

With horses growing less numerous, what could references to colts mean to the younger generations, except some favored ones who own saddle horses? Formerly you could be as awkward as a young colt, as frisky as a colt, as big a fool as Thompson's colt, as skittish as a colt, as lively as a colt. I am afraid that these terms will have to rely on something more familiarly known than colts now are.

Rail fences once were the commonest kind, almost the only kind except in rocky areas, where rock fences served to outline fields, or in the Barrens, where Osage orange hedges formed effective boundaries until long after wire fences came in. But old-fashioned fences could be crooked, or homely; and fence rails could be long, or skinny, or slim, or thin; and things and people somehow looked like all the fences and fence rails.

Dull people used to be as dull as a frow. On numerous occasions, among people under forty years old, I have asked what in the world a frow was or is. Most of the time I got my question pitched back at me. And it is hard to explain, without resorting to a makeshift model, with a dull blade turned at right angles to the handle. Occasionally someone says that he has seen this awkward-looking thing in a museum but had no idea what it was for.

I am afraid that references to hops are wasted, if they are to be understood well. Just why or how can you be as mad as hops? And how thick are objects when they are as thick as hops? And how common, to be as common as hops? I doubt whether a fourth of the people who read this column have ever seen hops growing or might recognize them if they were to see them.

Not only is Adam's off ox a passing or past institution; the plain ox of any description is about as big as an ox, as clumsy, as dumb, as slow, as strong, as stupid. In recent months I have tried to recall when I saw my last ox team, not one in a pageant or show of some sort but one just being used normally.

SCHOOL BUS COST UP 1%

State Has Orders For 500 New Buses From School Districts

Frankfort, Ky.—Supt. of Public Instruction Wendell P. Butler announced Saturday that orders for more than 500 new school buses for use starting next fall had been received from local school districts over the state. This is a hundred more new buses than were on order from the districts at this time last year. The combined rated seating capacity of these new buses is 32,500 pupils.

The Division of Pupil Transportation in the Department of Education receives and processes these school bus orders, and the Division of Purchases advertises for bids and establishes the price contracts in this joint project.

Bids to supply the school bus chassis and bodies for these buses were opened last week and price contracts to supply the chassis and bodies were awarded to the low bidder on the chassis and the body that, in combination, would result in the lowest price to the districts for a bus in each rated pupil capacity.

The complete bus cost per 36-passenger vehicle was $4,729.64; 48-passenger, $5,019.13; 54-passenger, $5,032.13; 60-passenger, $5,986.04; 66-passenger, $6,080.29.

These prices reflect only a one percent increase over 1968 prices. This small increase in price is offset by the additional safety equipment required this year such as additional crash padding on the seat frames and stanchions, electric windshield washers, larger air-brake chambers, automatic moisture ejectors for the primary air-brake tank, and front fender mud flaps.

It is estimated that orders for new buses will reach 550 by June 15, end of the contract period.

Notice To Bidders

The Floyd County Board of Education will receive sealed bids on the Myrtle school (building only) till 12 noon, March 1, 1969. Building is located on the Left Fork of Abbott Creek. The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Eastern Ky. Streams
Are Native Habitat
Of Unusual Minnow

The ethioma sagitta is not nearly as long as its Latin name. Known more familiarly as the arrow darter, it is an elegantly shaped, elaborately finned and riotously colored small fish. It lives in colonies which frequent the headwaters of the streams of Eastern Kentucky, but almost nowhere else in America.

During the darter's annual breeding season, May to July, its colors take on the spectrum brilliance of a gorgeous tropical fish.

The darter, along with its companion, the drab-colored minnow, is the object of an ecological population study underway by the Department of Zoology at the University of Kentucky.

The chief researcher is Victor A. Lotrich, whose doctoral thesis will describe a study of the community life of these two indigenous fishes.

Lotrich has selected a still unpolluted stream in Robinson Forest, Breathitt county, as the site for his study. He says such game fish as Big Mouth and Rock Bass are known to begin life in such streams and continue to inhabit them.

"Catching a small-stream bass is something like hooking onto a real fighting rainbow trout in Colorado," says Lotrich, a native of that state, and he claims a lifetime association with the fish-ing Rainbow.

Lotrich named the worst of the predators that decimate small young fish communities as kingfishers and raccoons, and the most predatory as the common water snake.

The UK researcher says a single stream of the third order, such as the one he is studying, may contain up to 5,000 individual fishes. Lotrich is studying them both in the field and in his laboratory at UK.

He wants to know about the feeding habits of the fish, and what elements contribute most substantially to their communal and individual growth. He is relating growth rate to the type and availability of nutrients most favored by the two types of Kentucky stream fish.

Lotrich has studied for several years the ecological aspects of fish populations, both in fresh water and salt water.

"Fish communities," he said, "act in a manner not unlike that of human communities. If some familiar element is removed from accessibility, the whole community may react to the deprivation and rebel to the extent of deserting the stream entirely."

"The nature of the community may undergo a complete change when the community deserts its habitat. Chances are a new community of fish may move into the deserted area and take up where the rebellious community left off."

It is such behavior and related activities which have interested Lotrich. He hopes to complete his work and receive his degree late this year.
