

Municipal Building Plans Under Study

Site Bought For $80,000 In Mid-Town

Structure To House All City Departments; Rentals To Pay Cost

Prestonsburg's City Council will study plans at its meeting tonight (Thursday) of the municipal building which it proposes to erect on an $80,000-an-acre site which it has purchased here.

The structure will be designed to bring every office and department of city government under one roof. It will be of two stories, with second-floor offices to be made available for lease by professional and business men of interests.

There was no true estimate of the building cost available. "I'm guessing," Mayor George P. Archer said, "but I would say it will cost around $300,000."

Whatever the figure is, it was explained, the entire venture will be financed without adding to local taxes. The old municipal building site on First avenue and the present fire department structure and site on Highland will be sold. The proceeds from these properties, plus insurance collected on the old municipal building after its loss to fire, will pay for the new site which was purchased from the heirs of the late Annie Stephens.

Dr. Archer said that while the old municipal building was occupied by city offices $1,000 in revenue bonds were retired by rentals every month. He added that the city is assured of a minimum of $2,000 rentals in the proposed new building and that these will amortize the revenue bond issue which will be necessary to finance new construction.

RIVER VICTIM YET MISSING

Seven Rescue Squads In Week-End Search For Body of Child, 7

Six member-groups of the Kentucky Association of Rescue Squads and one from West Virginia joined last week-end in a fruitless search of the Big Sandy for the body of Beverly Akers, 7.

The child's body has been missing since January 25 when she, her mother, Mrs. Barbara Howell Akers Pierce, and her five-year-old sister, Tammy, were drowned. They lost their lives when their car left the highway at Emma and plunged over a high embankment into the stream. Bodies of Mrs. (See Story No. 5, Page 3)

Cincy Firm Is Low Bond Issue Bidder

The low bid of 5.48 percent on the $690,000 bond issue to provide funds for construction of the Right Beaver school at Eastern was accepted last Thursday by the Floyd fiscal court as agent for the Floyd County Board of Education, but conclusion of the transaction must await future developments.

Seasongood & Mayer and Associates, Cincinnati, Ohio, submitted the lowest bid offered by five bond firms. All five firms based their bids on the net amount of the bonds, which was $669,600.

The situation remains inconclusive, it was explained, because the fiscal agent has 45 days in which to deliver the bonds to the bidder, and they must be accompanied by assurance that no litigation is pending that would affect their validity.

The suit filed by citizens of Martin seeking to enjoin the school board from constructing the school and from merging Martin high school with the new school at Eastern has not been decided, but Special Judge J. D. Stephenson, of Pikeville, came

The days are getting longer and there are more daylight hours, as any fool can plainly see. But what has me stumped is how I'm to emulate the busy, little bee (as the old textbook advises) and improve each of these so-called shining hours.

CULLED

The dog having deserted me for a passing fancy nearer home, and my old standbys having failed me when I most needed a story of local flavor, I shall fall back on a few items I ran across in my reading.

There's the one Kin Hubbard penned, for instance, which I maintain has an unusual amount of truth about it: "Nobody ever forgits where he buried a hatchet."

And this paragraph by Ruskin: "No amount of pay ever made a good soldier, a good teacher, a good artist or a good workman."

PHARMACIST DIES FRIDAY

C. L. Hutsinfiller, 79, Ill Since November, Victim in Lexington

Charles L. Hutsinfiller, well-known Prestonsburg pharmacist and civic leader, died Friday at Good Samaritan hospital, Lexington, at the age of 79.

He had been hospitalized since November 1, last, after suffering a leg injury in a fall here.

A son of Abraham and Catherine Louise Libbrin Hutsinfiller, he was a native of Gallipolis, Ohio, and was a boyhood acquaintance of the late O. O. McIntyre, a famous newspaper columnist. He was a graduate of the Ohio State University School of Pharmacy, and in 1913 began operation of the Modern Drug Shop, the second drug business to be established here. Later, he was a pharmacist in Ashland, subsequently returning to Prestonsburg as owner of the drug store which bore his name. At the time of his injury he was a pharmacist for the Fountain Korner Drug here.

Dr. Hutsinfiller was a member of the First United Methodist Church here, was a member of (See Story No. 6, Page 5)

HEART CLINIC SLATED HERE

Services for Indigents Of Multi-County Area Scheduled March 11-12

A two-day consultative and diagnostic heart clinic for medically indigent patients will be held at the Floyd County Health Department here, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 11 and 12.

The clinic is being organized so that adults only will be admitted to the clinic on March 11, and children only will be seen on March 12.

Physicians from the departments of Medicine and Pediatrics at the University of Kentucky Medical Center will conduct the clinic.

Co-sponsored by the Kentucky Heart Association and the State and County Health Departments, this clinic provides a diagnostic service for the patient along with recommendations for treatment and management of the case. It also provides an opportunity for the referring physician to consult with the clinician regarding his patient.

Necessary expenses of the clinic are being underwritten by the Kentucky Heart Association and the State Department of Health. Clinic personnel as well as space and equipment will be provided by the Floyd County Health Department as well as the State Health Department and the Kentucky Heart Association.

Only those patients who have been referred by a physician and have a written referral will be admitted to the clinic. Counties in this clinic area are Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike.

RETURN FROM FLORIDA

Mrs. Rainley White, Mrs. Ora Mae Schroeder and Mrs. Mabel Wheeler, all of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Beulah Moore, of Flat Gap, returned Monday from Florida where they visited their brothers, Bill and Bob Meade. They were accompanied by Mrs. White's daughter, Mrs. Mary Ann Hall, of Allen.

Former Resident Here Sues for $2.5 Million

The Rev. Denver Sammons, former Prestonsburg man, filed in Fayette circuit court at Lexington Wednesday suit seeking to recover from Montgomery Ward & Co., Inc. damages totaling $2,509,000 for what he termed malicious prosecution and slander.

Sammons, a former Ward department manager, said the store "falsely and maliciously" had him arrested, indicted and tried for the grand larceny of two of the store's wall furnaces.

Sammons was acquitted of the charges in circuit court last October.

During his trial, Sammons admitted he had the furnaces but said one was a gift and the other he bought.

A witness at the trial quoted a Montgomery Ward store manager as saying to Sammons, "If you want this furnace you can have it."

HOSPITAL FUND KICKOFF. Francis Stores gave the drive for $150,000 in area funds required for the Highlands Regional Hospital construction near here a resounding kickoff last week with a $5,000 contribution. Shown presenting the check to the Rev. Milton E. Skiff, fund drive chairman, is Gordon Francis (left), president of Francis Stores. "Huck" Francis, manager, is at right.

The response to the call for local support was described as "real good," with pledges in varying amounts being received from business firms and private citizens. Civic group support was marked this week by the announcement that the Prestonsburg Woman's Club will sponsor a style show at Prestonsburg Community College, March 13, all proceeds to go to the hospital fund.

Leaders of the fund drive emphasize the importance of the $5 million-plus hospital to the area, since its facilities will attract the specialists needed to provide a complete hospital service program.

They cite as an example of county-wide interest in a hospital Morgan county where voters by a required two-thirds vote approved a $425,000 bond issue to finance hospital construction.

Area Group Hears Shoe Plant Story

The Big Sandy Area Development Council heard Monday evening a progress report from one of the new industries which is figuring heavily in development of the Big Sandy valley.

Gerald Pease, manager of the U. S. Shoe Company plant here, told Council members at their Paintsville meeting that the new plant near here has in one year reached the halfway point in its projected production, with 250 employees producing 3,000 pairs of shoes per one-shift day.

"I'm proud to say the people here have gone beyond our expectations," he told the gathering representing the official and business life of the area. "They do as good a job as any I have seen anywhere."

Mr. Pease said his company expects a production of 5,000 pairs of shoes a day and the employment of 400 or more by the end of next year.

U. S. Shoe's million-dollar plant, located across the Big Sandy from Lancer, has a weekly payroll of $20,000, with 85 percent of its employees women. Some of these come from as far away as 40 miles.

The company has two other Kentucky plants, both older than the installation here—Vanceburg with 400 employees producing 4,000 pairs of shoes a day, and Flemingsburg where the daily production of 450 workers is 5,200 pairs.

"The facility here has come a long way," Pease said. He added that another plant may be located in Kentucky, possibly in Eastern Kentucky, but emphasized that this was his own speculation.

ROADS CHIEF MAY REMAIN

Tired, 'Not Too Happy,' But To Stay with Post 'As of Now'—Hazelrigg

Though admittedly tired and "not too happy" with some official actions taken without his knowledge, Commissioner of Highways William B. Hazelrigg last week denied that he will resign.

The former Paintsville man declared he has "no plans to leave as of right now."

"Some writer must have run out of something to write about," he said. "I may just get mad and stay another four years and beat Henry Ward's record."

Ward, a Democrat, was high-way commissioner for six years under the administrations of Governors Combs and Breathitt.

Hazelrigg's remarks fell short of a flat denial he might resign, but he said "I'm not going to close any doors . . . nothing is really final except death and taxes."

If he returned to Paintsville would he run for circuit judge? "I would hate to say no."

Is he "tired," as intimated by Larry VanHoose, Gov. Nunn's press secretary?

"This job is a hard one," Hazelrigg said. (See Story No. 4, Page 6)

Doubts Dispelled About Lancer Span

Friday, Coffee Day For Heart Fund Here

Glenn S. Anderson, Jr., Floyd county Heart Fund chairman, announced this week that tomorrow (Friday) will be Heart Fund Coffee Day in Prestonsburg.

All money received for coffee at various eating places here will be donated by owners of these businesses to the Heart Fund. Containers will also be placed on counters for other contributions.

Hazelrigg Says Bridge Up for Bids

Road To Water Gap, Harold Bridge Also In March 7th Bidding

Fears entertained locally that the Department of Highways' advertising for bids to be opened March 7 on two Floyd county projects may not include the bridge to span the Big Sandy at Lancer were allayed this week by Commissioner of Highways Hazelrigg.

Although the advertisement did not mention the bridge, Mr. Hazelrigg assured Senator Clifford B. Latta that it is a part of the project on which contractors have been asked to bid.

He explained that when the Department of Highways proposes to award a contract on a bridge and section of road at the same time, the total mileage of the highway and the points for beginning and ending of construction are stated, with the bridge itself not necessarily mentioned in the advertisement for bids. The advertisement, as published in The Times this week, calls for grade, drain and bluminous concrete surface. (See Story No. 3, Page 5)

FLOYD MINES END STRIKE

Sporlock, Wheelwright Miners Return to Work After 8-Day Stoppage

Workmen at two Floyd county mines began returning to work Monday, ending a strike of more than a week, and it was said Wednesday that both mines are back in full operation.

Upwards of a thousand workers were idled. The work-stoppage, which was described as unauthorized, reportedly began at the Sporlock mine of the Island Creek Coal Company. The grievance of the approximately 250 miners there was based on the claim that non-union coal had been loaded over the tippie there.

After that, the Island Creek mines at Wheelwright went out in sympathy with the Sporlock miners. About 700 men at Wheelwright were affected.

Carson Hibbits, Pikeville, president of District 30, United Mine Workers of America, said the charge that non-union coal was loaded at the Sporlock tippie is not true. He added that union officials checked the story and found that the coal was "handled by union men, from start to finish."

George J. Tidler, of UMW's Washington office, came to Martin Monday for a union meeting, seeking to end the strike. He asked the men to honor the contract between the union and the company and to return to work. A second vote was required, however, before a majority was polled in favor of ending the work-stoppage.

CITY'S BUSES IN LAST RUN

Bus Line Stockholders Vote To Halt Service, Dissolve Corporation

The Prestonsburg City Bus Line made its last run Tuesday afternoon as operating losses mounted to the point that its stockholders decided against further waging of a losing battle.

Discontinuance of service was voted at a stockholders' meeting Monday evening. It also was decided to dissolve the company as a corporation, effective March 1. The bus service from Prestonsburg was initiated more than two years ago. Two buses were purchased and at first both were operated, serving upriver as far as a point south of Betsy Layne and downriver to Auxier. Only one bus had been operated in recent months, and the service was restricted to upriver runs.

The buses and franchise will be offered for sale in effort to amortize outstanding indebtedness, it was said. There are 31 stockholders in the company, of which Donald Baldrige, of Prestonsburg, is president.

A similar bus service operated by the city of Pikeville into this county was discontinued, several weeks ago.

FIRST AUDITIONS SLATED FOR '69 SUMMER THEATRE TO BE HELD AT COLLEGE

The Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre has announced auditions for its 1969 season of summer musicals.

The first audition has been scheduled for March 16 at 2 p.m. at Prestonsburg Community College. Additional auditions are scheduled for Paintsville on March 22, for Pikeville on March 23, and for Lexington on March 30. Times and places will be announced.

The theatre, sponsored by the Jenny Wiley Drama Association in affiliation with Prestonsburg Community College, will be casting for productions of CARNIVAL, the musical of the romance between an orphan and a puppeteer in a tattered French circus; BYE, BYE, BIRDIE, the sage of a pop singer about to be inducted into the army; and ANYTHING GOES, the Cole Porter hit.

The series of musicals will be staged at the Jenny Wiley State Park amphitheatre, August 23.

The theatre will be casting for singers, dancers, actors, musicians, as well as for technical personnel and apprentices on all levels. There are roles available for all types and ages. Paying positions are open to key personnel, and an apprentice program offers three hours of college credit in Stagecraft through the Prestonsburg Community College.

For application forms write C. Mitchell Douglas, managing director, Jenny Wiley Drama Association, Box 186, Prestonsburg.

VOICE OF THE POOR MAY BE 'PHASED OUT,' FEAR

Congressman Carl D. Perkins is among those who sense that the voice of the poor in the poverty war is being phased out.

In Kentucky and enough other states to note a trend, purse strings for more important recovery programs financed by Washington are being controlled at the local level by political and business people.

Perkins, a champion of participation by the poor in the war on poverty, discussed the trend the past week during a visit to this district.

"Not only is the voice of the poor growing much dimmer," the Hindman Democrat said, "but I am in a position to know that some important people are working hard to take the poor out of the picture completely."

Perkins said he will work to reverse the trend when hearings open this spring on a bill to extend the antipoverty act beyond June 30. The hearings will be conducted by the House Labor and Education Committee, of which he is chairman.

"I believe the poor should be heard on every issue having to do with their lives," Perkins said. "They know best what they need."

John D. Whisman, states' representative on the Appalachian Regional Commission, agrees with Perkins that sentiment in Washington is shifting toward political control of local recovery efforts.

"Washington, I believe, is getting a little tired of dissent, protest and demonstration," Whisman said. "What almost everybody is saying now is, 'Let's get on with the show and get something done.'"

Kentucky is among the first states to adopt a system of district development boards. Under them, groups of counties are brought together to form a district. The district boards must include each county judge and the mayor of the county seat and they constitute a majority in decisions of the board. After that, a certain number of citizen members is chosen. They hold a minority in voting strength. The minority might include one, two, or more low-income members, but mostly they are business leaders.

The boards, concerned more with community development than with the grassroots poverty problem, decide what is best for their districts, then apply for money earmarked for antipoverty work.

Applications are cleared through the state's Program Development Office in Frankfort, which strives for swift clearance of requests in Washington.

Frank J. Groschelle, who heads the Frankfort office, believes the poor stand to benefit most from the community development system by acquiring improved health and education facilities, housing and, hopefully, some job opportunities—if industry likes the new atmosphere.

Development districts in the mountains presently are concentrating on finding or creating level land for possible factories and new housing.

So far, the district development plan has not disturbed the Community Action Program (CAP), which gives the poor a chance to speak up and make decisions at the community level.

The Concentrated Employment Program (CEP) concerned with job training and job hunting for the poor, remains in business.

Hartwell D. Reed, general counsel for the House Labor and Education Committee, points out that the district development plan is not covered by provisions of the Economic Opportunity Act which require participation by the poor.

However, poverty workers who direct community action programs have started a movement to get poor people seated on the district boards.

They believe that Congress intended for the poor to be closely involved in all decisions at the local level aimed at overcoming poverty problems.

Groschelle contends that the importance of the work assigned to the district boards is such that "you'd never get the job done with unskilled and uneducated people running the show."

The Kentucky development district program, started more than a year ago, seems to parallel the thinking of the new Republican administration in Washington.

Robert Finch, the new secretary of health, education and welfare, has been quoted as saying:

"Theoretically, there is nothing wrong with participation by the poor in welfare programs. That's the name of the game in a democracy. But you have to look at this pretty coldly. And when you do I think you will conclude that in our system there is no substitute for local political organizations already in existence.

"Whatever the shortcomings of local government, the structure is still there and functioning, capable of getting things done, however inefficiently."

"But when you take untrained, unprepared people and thrust them into a position of authority, you're not only placing your whole program in jeopardy, you're treating those participants with unnecessary cruelty."

The new philosophy, and the objections to it, apparently will get an airing this month when a delegation of antipoverty workers meets with Gov. Louie B. Nunn to discuss the situation. The group voted to seek the meeting during a recent statewide meeting.

Food Stamp Program Changes Offer Help To Poorer Families

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 5—Extra help for the lowest income families in Kentucky's 52 counties with food stamps is now available, Economic Security Commissioner Eugene Goss announced today.

He said changes in the Food Stamp program announced recently by the U. S. Department of Agriculture became effective February 3 in Kentucky.

Families with less than $70 a month net income will receive more bonus or free coupons than before, Goss explained.

An example, Goss noted, would be a family of four with a monthly income of $20 which previously paid $2 and received $48 worth of food stamp coupons.

Under the revised rules, the same family would pay the same and receive $58 worth of coupons, a $10 a month increase. The exchange of cash for an increased value in food coupons makes possible an improvement in diet by giving them a boost in food buying power, Goss said.

In December, 27,747 families in Kentucky paid $961,474 in cash and gained $847,243 in free coupons.

The site acquired for the new municipal center is on North Lake Drive, fronting about 150 feet on that street, which is now US 23, and extending back about 380 feet. Its size will enable the city to use a part of it for public parking, and this is envisioned as another source of income.

Council will be shown two sets of plans by the architect at tonight's meeting. One of these, the costlier, provides for a colonial front. The other, is more modern in exterior design.

Although the proposed building will house the fire department, along with all departments and offices of the city, construction of a fire station in the Lancer area will be necessary soon in order for Prestonsburg to benefit from an improved fire insurance rating, Mayor Archer said. This will probably be built on property owned by the city's Water & Gas Commission, in the vicinity of the water plant. It will be designed only to house firefighting equipment, with an upstairs apartment for the department employe to have charge of the station.

ALICE LLOYD TO PROVIDE MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIPS FOR 16 HI SCHOOL SENIORS

Alice Lloyd College trustees have established 16 Alice Lloyd memorial scholarships for graduating seniors in Floyd county high schools and those in surrounding communities.

Harold C. Doster, executive dean, said the full-tuition grants will be presented to each selected student during honors ceremonies at his or her high school. The award is to be made, regardless of whether or not the student plans to enroll in the Alice Lloyd College program of leadership education.

Criteria for selection, Doster indicated, will include:

1. Nomination by high school principal, guidance counselor or teacher.
2. Academic accomplishment.
3. Documented leadership potential.
4. Participation in extra-curricular activities.
5. Capacity to benefit from the residential, liberal arts program of the independent, two-year college.
6. Dedication to service in the Appalachian area after transfer to, and graduation from, a senior college or university.

The scholarships were established in memory of Mrs. Alice Geddes Lloyd, who founded the college that bears her name in 1923. Since then, nearly 5,000 alumni have created a record of distinguished service to the mountain region as teachers, doctors, lawyers and public officials. In many cases, their professional education was made possible by supplemental college grants after graduation.

TO FRIENDS OF EDUCATION

Secondary education in the Right Beaver section forces a very real crisis today, NOW, and if nothing is done to meet the situation, it is probable that within the next four or five years Martin, Garrett, Maytown and Wayland will all have emergency high schools. Young people attending emergency secondary schools are not admitted to colleges, except under special conditions, if at all. The Floyd County Board has planned for four years to prevent the emergency situation by consolidating these four small high schools into one plant, centrally located. This new school could be a comprehensive high school, which is the highest rank for such a school.

Four years ago, the Board, upon recommendation from the best educational minds in Kentucky, selected a twelve-acre site at Eastern for the new plant. The location is 6.7 miles from Martin and 10.1 miles from Wayland and is above all known high water. The plans have been approved by all concerned and the contract has been let and bids have been received on the $680,000.00 in bonds to pay for the Board's part of the cost. $300,000.00 has been set aside from federal sources to finish Phase I of the building program.

Further plans called for the complete renovation of the four old high school buildings so that they could more adequately house improved programs for elementary children in the four towns. Because Martin has lost its gym and elementary buildings, the Board at its last meeting directed our architect to start his plans to renovate the Martin plant first. The Board also directed the Superintendent and architect to investigate the possibility of buying a building which could be erected quickly and which could be used this fall for temporary elementary classrooms, and could be used later for a good physical education program.

Several suits have been filed with Floyd Circuit Court to delay our construction of the new facility and the names signed to the suits are, Jake Layne, Bill Wells, Eddie Taylor, J. D. Salisbury and Clinand Jones, as well as Haskell Frye, E. P. Grigsby, Glen Patrick, Ronald Reynolds, Charles Lafferty and Lori Vannucci, water commissioners, and town councilmen. These law suits do have the effect of delaying construction of the new building and the renovation of the old buildings for use by the grade school children. It is true that some of our children are being housed in temporary classrooms at Martin and these facilities were not constructed for classrooms. The churches and lodges graciously permit our temporary use of facilities for your children, for which we are very thankful. If we had not found these facilities, we no doubt would have had to transport the small children to Allen, Drift or Maytown, and put them in overcrowded classrooms. We could not permit those children to lose a year of educational progress.

The suits were filed only as a delaying tactic and that delay prevents us from making provisions for your grade school children in improved classrooms as soon as we had wished.

There can be no turning back in our plans to give our Right Beaver youth the benefit of an improved high school education. The alternative would surely be attending emergency secondary schools. Boycotts, pickets and threats against the lives of innocent children serve only to hurt those we must serve. A great majority of the people in any section of Floyd county love their children and want the best for them, but many may be misled by false propaganda or deliberate falsehood by those who have some motive other than the good of our youth.

If we had been less interested in young people than in politics, we would have stayed away from this consolidation and let the schools become emergency schools, knowing that this course would have caused less immediate misery for us. OUR LOVE FOR OUR YOUTH AND OUR KNOWLEDGE OF THE SITUATION DEMAND THAT WE MOVE FORWARD IN SPITE OF THE OPPOSITION.

It might be a good idea for those who want the new school completed to speak up and let those who are responsible for the delay know how they feel. Could we not all put the future welfare of our youth above personal consideration?

EDF GOES TO COURT

A recent number of SPORTS ILLUSTRATED tells the rather action-packed story of the Environmental Defense Fund—EDF, in this alphabetized age—and of its attorney, a fiery individual named Yannacone.

It is a story of litigation—action in courts of law—in the name of conservation and on behalf of all who are entitled to an environment free of pollution of the air, water and food on which human life depends. At issue are thermal pollution of water by atomic waste, the threat to untold thousands from DDT and other insecticides, the possibility that certain species of wildlife will be slaughtered to extinction, the rape of the land and the destruction of its natural state. Rights are asserted, justice demanded. The right to pollute, to destroy is met, head-on, by the EDF challenge to have a go at it in the courts.

"Don't write letters to the editor—do something!" cries this lawyer, Yannacone. "When somebody shoves, shove back . . . if there is something that morally must be done, there is a legal way to do it."

Thus, it is claimed, the power or weakness of the law is established. Public sentiment is galvanized. People come to grips with a situation, and a decision is ahead.

We report this—in sketchy fashion, necessarily—to posit the problem here at home and suggest that herein may lie a way to its solution. Perhaps some of that money we have been using for other things might better be invested in a good attorney who is a conservationist at heart, before the fee is discussed. If new or clearer laws are needed, let the need become apparent by testing those already on the statute books.

But it may be there are laws in sufficient number, or even too many. Perhaps the need is to stop editorializing or writing letters or complaining at the club meetings and to get down to cases—cases in court—learning what are the people's rights and how they can cease to be mere words and become an actual possession.

When George P. Shultz was sworn in as President Nixon's Secretary of Labor, he became only the eleventh Secretary in the Department's 55-year history.

Mrs. Susie Johnson, Hi Hat Resident, Dies At McDowell Hospital

Mrs. Susie Moore Johnson, 68, of Hi Hat, died last Wednesday at the McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital.

Born February 23, 1900 at Price, she was a daughter of Calvin and Rhoda Catherine Moore.

Survivors include her husband, Thomas Johnson; three sons, Edgar Johnson, of Detroit, Michigan, and Edsel and Charles Johnson, both of Dayton, Ohio; four daughters, Mrs. Marie Jackson, of Dowagiac, Michigan, Mrs. Elsie Rivait, Detroit, Mrs. Frances Cramer, of South Gate, Mich., and Mrs. Catherine Hatfield, of Allen Park, Michigan; 17 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were held at 10 a.m. Sunday at the Little Nancy Regular Baptist Church at Hi Hat, of which she was a member, ministers of that church officiating. Burial in the Newman cemetery there was directed by the Merion Funeral Chapel.

Hunting Wild Bees—A Lost Art

Concerning the sweet perfumes that attract bees, Thoreau wrote: "As I climbed up over the cliffs, when I jarred the foliage, I perceived an exquisite perfume which I could not trace to its source. Ah, those fleeting universal fragrances of the meadows and woods. Odors rightly mingled!"

Sweet perfumes like those Thoreau wrote about can soon be traced up by the bees, as they have many ways for locating blooms; obviously, one way is by a strong sense of smell.

Bees are very ancient insects. The earliest records of them date back into the mists of antiquity. A carving found on the walls of a cave in Spain showed a cave-woman taking honey from bees that had their hive in the crevice of a cliff. This was in the period called "The New Stone Age," and the people of that time evidently put great store by bees and used them as a source of their best food—honey. They housed them in crevices of rocks or in hollow trees. So we have had wild bees from prehistoric times.

When there were vast forests on the mountains of Appalachia to furnish homes for the wild bees, there were plenty of them and the old-timers knew the art of tracking them and finding the "bee-tree." The cutting of so many trees with bees living in them, plus the steady removal of the large timber for years, have made wild bees as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth. Few men today go to the woods to try to find a bee-tree.

The old settlers were versed in the art of tracking up the wild bees. They used two special ways for finding them.

One was to go to some woodland stream and find the bees' "watering places." When bees get filled with water to take back to the colony, they fly up and circle for altitude, then take a straight line for the hive. From this habit of the bee, we get the saying, "straight as a bee line." Often the colony is located half a mile or so from the watering place, so it was necessary for the bee-hunter to establish a "course," and to follow it until the tree was found.

Another way of finding wild bees was to prepare a special bait for them. This was prepared by putting moss in an iron vessel and then saturating it with urine. It was then allowed to stand until it got stale and had a loud odor. This attracted the bees from all around.

I think the bees mostly came to such bait to get the salts or minerals it contained. The man with his bee-bait would place it in some likely spot in the woods, then wait patiently for the bees to come. When they finally located the bait, they made regular trips from it to the bee-tree; the old bee-hunter would keep on moving his bait on the "course," drawing ever closer to the tree. At last with much patience and skill, he was able to pin down the tree. Usually, he called in one of the neighbors to go with him to help cut the tree and get the honey. Often a beegum was taken to the tree, to try to save the bees. More often, there were few bees left after the tree crashed, as it usually killed most of them or drowned them in the flowing honey. Sometimes the bee-hunter was lucky and the tree didn't burst and kill the bees. They were then smoked into the new gum and the honey was all taken out of the hollow tree. I have heard old bee-hunters tell of taking out a washtub full of slabs of pure lynn honey—a food fit for the gods! Most of the time, however, the hollow tree was filled with bee larvae and old, stale honeycomb, not much pure honey. But the comb was taken and melted into beeswax and sold on the market.

It was great sport to the old-timers to track the wild bees and take their hard-earned honey. They brought home many hives of bees and soon tamed them; that is, the bees soon became accustomed to living in a man-made hive instead of a hollow tree.

But, if the queen should get killed in the crash of the tree, the bees were thrown into confusion and simply refused to function as a colony. Their rule seemed to be, "no queen, no work." So they just sat on the new hive and slowly starved to death!

Wild bees often swarmed, and when I was a boy working in the fields, it was a great joy for me to see and hear a swarm passing over, high in the blue, all moving in the direction of some hollow tree which the "scouts" had found in advance. The old queen was the one leading the new swarm, as she was forced out by the new queen and had to go with her loyal subjects. Usually there were about 40,000 bees in one of these big swarms. Talk about wild, weird music! As they flew over in great excitement, swirling like black dots high in the blue, they had a music the like of which I have never heard since. The song of a wild bee swarm is one of nature's greatest musical treats.

Ranier Has 2 Cars In Daytona Event

Florida has more than its well-advertised sunshine to draw Floyd countians this week — it has the Daytona 500 coming up Sunday, and Prestonsburg's Henry Ranier has two cars going in it.

Ranier, who heads the Ranier Construction Company here, is the subject of a Courier-Journal story this week by Dave Kindred. It follows, in part:

"Now, he is ready for the big time. At least, that's why he is here at Daytona International Speedway with his two cars—both 1969 Dodge Chargers. One of them, the one that Andy Hampton, of Louisville, drove to third place in the Automobile Racing Club of America's 300-mile Sunday, is a brand new creation by Ray Nichols Engineering, of Highland, Ind. The other Charger, driven by Bobby Watson, of Louisville, conked out after 12 laps in the ARCA affair. ARCA is not what Ranier wants, either. It is a small organization of small tracks, which means the money to be won is small, too. So, come Sunday and the Daytona 500, in there with the cars sent down by Ford and Chrysler will be the Ranier racing team of Prestonsburg.

Hampton will drive the No. 58 car. Vic Eilford, of England, who won the 24 hours of Daytona two years ago, will drive the No. 8 car. "Oh, Andy's car is quite capable of winning Sunday," Ranier said. "I say that because it's a 157-hp 188-mph-per-hour car, and because Andy has had nearly 2,500 miles of driving on this track. So he's capable, too. "But the other car, well, that one belonged to Paul Goldsmith last year and so it's not as good as a new one."

Ranier explained that Bill France, president of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR), was out looking Sunday for a ride for Eilford. France asked Ronnie Householder, boss of Chrysler, for a recommendation. Householder sent him to Ranier. Hampton had already earned his spot in the 500 by finishing in the top five in the ARCA 300. The Ranier team's appearance depends more on airplanes,

"We have to change engines and springs and lots of things," Ranier said. "Like we can use only one carburetor for this race while we could use two in the ARCA race. And we will be using nine-inch wheels instead of 8½. I had to call Nichols and he's having the stuff flown down. We're going to be in pretty much of a rush the rest of the week trying to get ready."

Ranier said Hampton likely will not get to practice until Wednesday morning.

A victory in the 500—admittedly a longshot proposition, but considerably less so than a year ago when Hampton was 10th in a car not as strong as the one he'll drive this year—would hasten Ranier's team toward the goals set by the owner.

"There's only one way we would ever leave ARCA," Ranier said. "ARCA is all independent, no factory backing, supposedly. The only way we'd leave is if we'd get some factory recognition."

"To do that, I think we have to win the ARCA point championship or at least win enough races to get recognition as being good enough to run with the Grand National cars.

"And if we're ever going to do that, it will be this season." Ranier estimated his investment this year will be around $50-$55,000, including the $22,500 price tag on Hampton's new car. They will go racing in nearly 50 ARCA events, beginning next month in Texas. Their primary opposition will come from Benny Parsons, who won the ARCA 300 Sunday in a 1969 Ford Taladega. Parsons is said to receive nearly 100 percent backing from Ford.

"One way or another, we're going to beat Benny," Ranier said. "We pay for everything we get, but we do have the OK to call Nichols for advice."

MOORE-GREGG VOWS SAID

The marriage of Miss Sally K. Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DuRan Moore, of Lexington, formerly of Prestonsburg, and Robert E. Gregg, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Gregg, Williamstown, Ky., was solemnized at 3:30 p.m., Dec. 22, at the Williamstown Christian Church. The Rev. Willard Walls officiated.

Melissa Grace Wicker, of Mousie, Ky., cousin of the bride, was flower-girl, and Master Paul DuRan Moore II, brother of the bride, was ringbearer.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white crepe with a chapel train trimmed with peau d'anges lace. Her veil fell from a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a white prayer book and a bouquet of stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

Miss Rita Gregg, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of green satin with a matching satin circle headpiece with veil of illusion, and carried a bouquet of green pompons.

Misses Cheri James and Elaine Marshall, Lexington, were bridesmaids. They wore floor-length dresses of yellow linen with yellow matching headpieces of daisies and veils of illusion. They carried bouquets of yellow pompons.

The bride attends the University of Kentucky and was a "sweetheart" with the UK Marching Band and a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Grant County high school and Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond. He is high school choir director and elementary band director at Owen County high school.

The couple will live in Owen-ton.

2-Week Illness Fatal To Beckham Clark, 55, At Lexington Hospital

Beckam Clark, 55, of Prestonsburg, died Saturday afternoon at the University of Kentucky Medical Center, Lexington, following a two-week illness.

A member of the Free Will Baptist Church, Mr. Clark was born in Floyd county, Oct. 26, 1913, a son of Mrs. Lora Setser Clark, of Ironton, Ohio, and the late Bob Clark. He was married to Edna Nichols, who survives.

Surviving, besides his mother and widow, are three sons, John Clark, of Cliff, Robert Clark, of Columbus, Ohio, and Charles Clark, of Lima, Ohio; two daughters, Mrs. Linda Hackworth, of Denver, Ind., and Miss Martha Clark, of Akron, Ind.; two brothers, Grady and Goodin Clark, both of Rockcamp, Ohio; two sisters, Mrs. Charity Kendrick, of Water Gap, and Mrs. Lila Jane Burchett, of Ironton, and six grandchildren.

Funeral rites were held at 1 p.m. Tuesday at the Carter Funeral Home, the Rev. Henry Crider officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery on the Corn Fork of Brandy Keg Creek.

Pallbearers were Irvin Harris, Claude Lyons, Chadwick Spears, Bill Powers, Terry Nichols, Eddy Hackworth, Henry Meadows and Tommy Runyon.

Mrs. Hutton Victim Monday at McDowell; Rites in Pennsylvania

Mrs. Myrtle E. Hutton, 71 years old, passed away Monday at her residence at McDowell.

Born July 1, 1897, she was a daughter of the late Jacob and Susan Denzel Eichinger, and was married to John M. Hutton, Sr., who survives.

Besides her husband, she leaves two sons, John M. Hutton, Jr., of Cocoa Beach, Fla., and Robert E. Kooz, of Berlington, N. J., and a daughter, Dr. Susan Brenner, of McDowell.

Funeral rites were held at 2 p.m. today (Thursday) at the Jesse Stone Funeral Home at New Cumberland, Pa., where the victim was a former resident. Burial was made in the Mt. Olivet cemetery there.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our appreciation to all of our friends, neighbors and relatives who in any way expressed their sympathy at the passing of our dear father and husband, Lee Graham Ring. We would also thank the ministers for their consoling words, and a special thanks to the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

War Widows May Get Education, Home Loans

A reminder that war widows are eligible for G. I. Bill-type education and home loan benefits was issued by the Veterans Administration.

The education benefits are also available to wives of veterans who are permanently and totally disabled as the result of military service.

Under a new law which went into effect December 1, 1968, the widow of a man who died and the wife of a veteran who was permanently and totally disabled as the result of military service are entitled to 36 months of educational assistance from the VA.

An allowance of $130 a month is paid for full-time training with lesser sums paid for part-time training.

Unmarried widows of veterans who served in World War II, the Korean Conflict, or in the Post-Korean period (since Jan. 31, 1955) and who died in service or as the result of service are eligible for VA-guaranteed G.I. home loans.

This eligibility expires July 25, 1970, for World War II widows, with widows of Korean Conflict veterans having until January 25, 1975, to use their entitlement. Generally, widows of post-Korean service veterans have 20 years from the date of their husband's death or discharge from service to obtain loans.

The VA will guarantee 60 percent up to a maximum of $12,500—of the loan obtained by the widow. Long term mortgages (up to 30 years) and little or no down payments remain the principal advantages of G.I. loans.

The VA also listed some other benefits of particular interest to women:

Dependency and Indemnity Compensation: Monthly payments for widows and children of men who died in service or as the result of service.

Payment is generally $120 a month plus 12 percent of the monthly basic pay now being received by a serviceman whose rank and years of service are the same as those of the deceased serviceman. Minimum payment is $133 a month.

Death Pension: Monthly payment for unmarried widows and minor children of veterans whose deaths were not related to military service. The amount of the pension is keyed to income. Reimbursement of Burial Expenses: Payment not to exceed $250 may be made within two years to the widow, undertaker, or any other person who bore a veteran's funeral expenses.

Children's Education: In addition to education benefits for qualified wives and widows, an allowance of $130 a month for full-time college level training is paid to children (under 26) of veterans who died or were permanently and totally disabled as the result of military service.

its executive board and taught a Sunday School class there for several years. Last year he was presented a pin by the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club for 27 years' perfect attendance, and this year the club named him Kiwanian of the Year. He was a past master of Zebulon Masonic Lodge and was a member of the Gideons.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Maxie Allen Hutsinfiller, one daughter, Mrs. Mary Catherine Holland, and two sisters, Mrs. William Grant, Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss Edythe Hutsinfiller, Gallipolis, Ohio. He also leaves one grandchild.

Funeral rites were conducted Sunday at 3:30 p.m. from the First United Methodist Church here, the pastor, the Rev. William Pope, officiating. Burial was made in Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel under direction of the Floyd Funeral Home.

Active pallbearers were John, Hern and Joe Burke, Fred Dickerson, David Hereford, DeGarmo DeRossett, Marshall Davidson, Harris S. Howard and Cloyd Johnson.

Honorary bearers were members of the executive board of the First United Methodist Church.

Outpatient visits to Veterans Administration hospitals, clinics and physicians paid by VA increased by 300,000 over the previous year to 6,564,000.

Students attending the University of Kentucky in Lexington this fall (1969) will pay $460 per semester for room and board — if they prefer eating three meals a day in residence hall cafeterias.

STAR STUDENT AND TEACHER

MISS REYNOLDS
Because Miss Patricia Ann Reynolds, of Allen, was selected the 1969 Star Student of Martin High school through the Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition Program (STAR) of the Education Department, Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, the school also has a Star Teacher honored by the program.

Miss Reynolds won Star Student recognition on the basis of her high score made in a Dec. 2 college entrance test, and with the honor came the privilege of naming her Star Teacher.

She selected Mrs. Dortha W. Allen as Star Teacher and gave these reasons for her selection:

1. She made the classroom a joy and I looked forward each day to her classes.
2. She respected each student and treated us as responsible adults.
3. She taught her subject well and encouraged us to continue our studies outside the classroom.
4. She broadened our horizons

Leonard Jarrell, 58, Former Dana Resident, Succumbs In Michigan

Leonard Jarrell, 58 years old, of South Gate, Mich., formerly of Dana, died last Thursday at Seaway hospital, Trenton, Michigan, after a year's illness.

Born January 21, 1911, he was a son of the late John and Cord Akers Jarrell. He had been a member of the United Baptist Church for the last 15 years.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Alva Ann Jarrell; three sons, Leonard Jarrell, Jr., of Lincoln Park, Mich., Robert Jarrell, of Wyandotte, Mich., and Tommy Jarrell, of South Gate; one daughter, Mrs. Phyllis Baumgartner, of Peoria, Ill.; a brother, Ed Jarrell, of Dana, and six sisters, Mrs. Cynthia Akers, Mrs. Rosie Boyd and Mrs. Dixie Conn, all of Dana, Mrs. Dorsie Boyd, of Lebanon, Va., Mrs. Maxie Bentley, of Banner, and Mrs. Lola Boyd, of Hilliard, O. He also leaves nine grandchildren.

Funeral rites were held Sunday at 10 a.m. at the Little Salem Regular Baptist Church at Dana, the Rev. Higgins officiating. Burial was made in the Conn cemetery there under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Shepherd Begins 5th Term As Head Of AFL-CIO Group

Troy Shepherd, of Ypsilanti, Mich., formerly of Prestonsburg, began his fifth term as president of the Washenaw County AFL-CIO recently when the organization installed its 1969 officers at a dinner held at the Willow Run airport.

Shepherd is also recording secretary of Carpenters Local 512 and is a director of the Community Chest and the Industrial Corporation there.

Who Cares if Marine Dies?

The following poem was found on Hill 691 in Vietnam by some Marines of Echo Company, 2nd Battalion, 4th Marines:

Take a man, put him alone
Put him 10,000 miles from home;
Empty his heart of all his love,
Make him live in sweat and blood.

This is the life I have to live
And why my soul the devil gives;
You peace boys can't learn
From your easy chair
You don't know what it's like
Over here.

You have a ball without even trying
While over here men are dying.
You burn your draft cards, then march at dawn,
And plant signs on the White House lawn.

You all say you'd ban the bomb,
There's no real war in Vietnam!
You use your drugs, and have your fun,
And then refuse to use a gun.

There's nothing else for you to do,
But then we're supposed to fight for you.
I'll never understand you till the day I die;
You made me hear my buddy's cry.

I saw his arm a bloody shred,
And then I heard Doc say,
He's dead."
It's a big price to pay,
Not to live another day.
He had the guts to fight and die,
He paid the price, but what did he buy?

He bought your life, by losing his.
But who gives a damn what a Marine gives?
His wife, his parents, and maybe his sons,
But they're about the only ones!

Pearl Harris, 78, Retired Miner, Dies At Home Here, Friday

Pearl B. Harris, 78-year-old retired miner, passed away Friday at her residence here after a long illness.

A member of the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, she was born October 27, 1890, a son of the late Charley B. and Exer Ward Harris. His wife, Mrs. Annie Collins Harris, also preceded him in death.

Surviving are a son, Raymond Harris, of Benton, Mich.; three daughters, Mrs. Lilas Landess and Goldie Harris, both of Portland, Ind., and Mrs. June Church, of Harrison, O.; one brother, Charley Harris, of Lancer, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Burchett, of Prestonsburg. He also leaves 16 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted Monday at 1 p.m. from the Floyd Funeral Home, the Rev. W. D. Jagers officiating. Burial was made in the Harris cemetery at Brandy Keg.

Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.—Capt. John G. Coburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Coburn, Ypsilanti, Mich., has completed an ordnance officers advanced course at the U. S. Army Ordnance Center and School, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. During the nine-month course he received instruction in all areas of Army Ordnance and was trained in supply and maintenance operations.

The 26-year-old captain received his commission through the Reserve Officers' Training Corps program at Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti, where he received his B.S. degree in 1962. He is a grandson of Elbert Cox, Garrett, Ky.

Faine Promoted

Cadet Gary Faine, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Faine, has received promotion in rank to cadet corporal at Oklahoma Military Academy, Claremore, Oklahoma, it was announced by Col. John E. Horne, OMA president.

Cpl. Faine, a junior college freshman, is attending OMA for his first year. He is a graduate of Wheelwright high school.

(Continued from Page One) elrigg said. "Sure, I'm tired. You get tired in your job, too . . . but my health isn't bad."

Has internal dissension contributed to reports of his imminent departure and a subsequent shakeup among his aides?

"The governor has given me magnificent backing," the commissioner said.

At the same time he acknowledged he has not been "too happy" in the past sometimes at learning of certain transfers and dismissals carried out without his knowledge.

"Still, this is a big department," he said. "I can't be advised of everything."

Hazelrigg's fellow-townsmen, James "Slick" Melvin, is personnel director in his department.

He said it occasionally "provokes me that an employee is gone who is essential . . . we should do something to try to retain such men."

Hazelrigg said that in this context he is talking about technical employees rather than laborers and maintenance workers in the counties where, he said, there is no doubt that Democrats indulged heavily in politics.

By the estimate of acting Personnel Commissioner Russell Mobley, the GOP regime in about 14 months has cleared out 7,500 of the agency's 9,500 workers. Mobley made the statement at a Republican meeting recently.

Whether Hazelrigg goes or stays, changes among his executive assistants seem likely.

Perhaps the curtain-raiser was the transfer, announced belatedly, of Harold Finley to the Public Information Department in an unspecified role.

Others who may be affected are Melvin, Roy Smallwood and Ron Farmer plus Sandy Paniello, an attorney who is on a contract basis with the Highway Department.

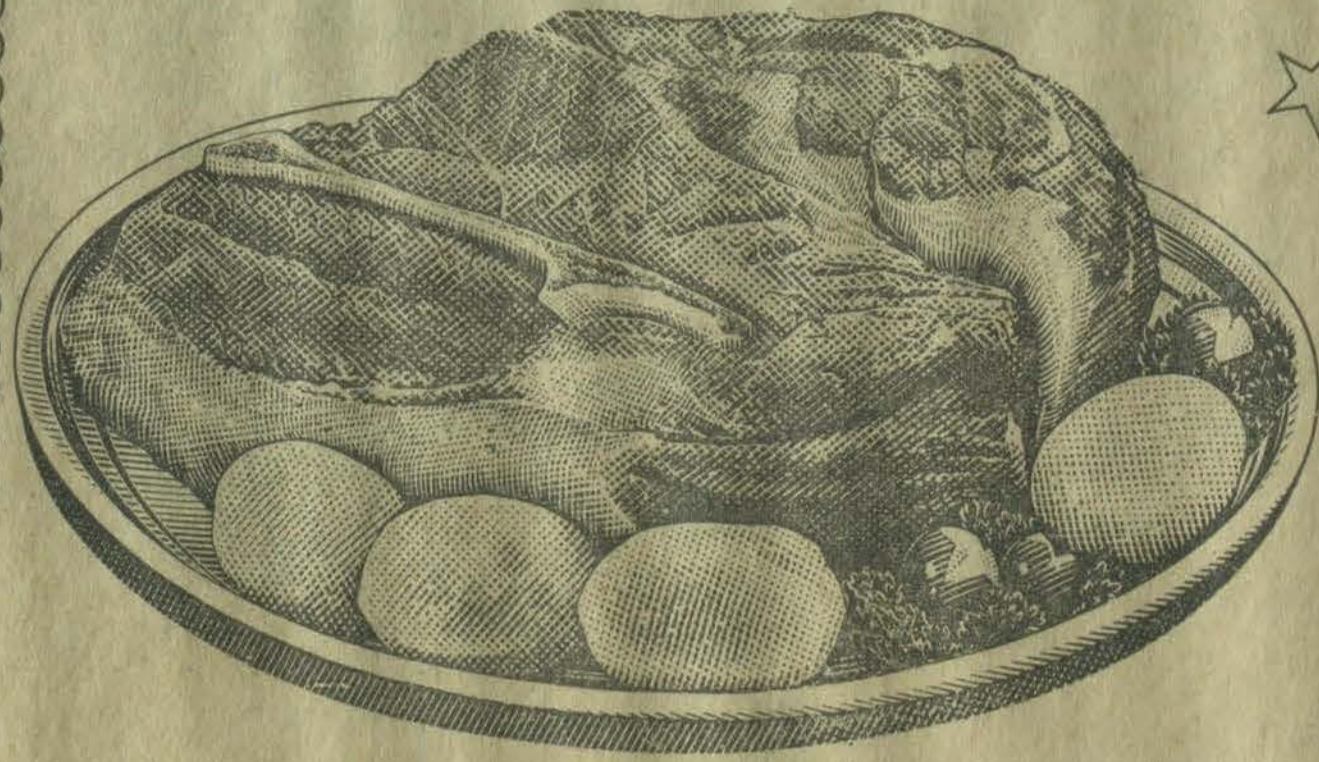

"If I'm to be responsible for the governor for getting the job done," Hazelrigg said in the interview, "I must be responsible for personnel."

The commissioner mentioned no names.

Nunn reportedly is irked by what he regards as unnecessary bickering and backbiting in the Highway Department's administrative echelon.

Libraries Implement Task Force Suggestion

Frankfort, Ky.—The State Department of Libraries in the future will have a master file on library source material in Kentucky which will be available to the public.

An inventory of all library materials in the state, including rare books and manuscripts, was begun recently as result of a recommendation by the Governor's Efficiency Task Force on economy in government.

State Librarian Miss Margaret Willis said a survey of some 130 to 150 state libraries and those in colleges and universities is being conducted by a three-member team from the A. D. Little Company, of Cambridge, Mass., which deals in professional library services. Cost of the survey is being paid from a $10,000 federal grant.

The survey also will offer suggestions on developing to the "greatest extent" interlibrary cooperative methods among all types of libraries in the state, Miss Willis said.

The survey is only a preliminary step toward actual inventory of the state's entire library materials—a long and expensive task, Miss Willis explained. She declined to say how long the job will require.

Home Loan Interest Rate Increased to 7 1/2%

An increase in the maximum G.I. home loan interest rate to 7 1/2 percent has been announced by the Veterans Administration.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs William J. Driver following consultation with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, in an effort "to insure the availability of new and existing housing for the nearly 25,000 veterans applying each month for G.I. loans."

Noting that almost one million Vietnam era veterans are expected to return to civilian life this year, Driver said "it is imperative that the G.I. home loan program continue as a viable benefit for these veterans."

"Unless the interest rates on G.I. home loans are made competitive with private financing rates throughout the country, the certificates of loan eligibility that VA will be asked to issue to our veterans this year will amount to little more than 'hunting licenses,'" Driver said.

The VA head emphasized that without 7 1/2 percent interest rate, VA would guarantee perhaps 50,000 fewer G.I. loans this year than were anticipated just a few months ago.

"Rising discount rates in recent months have meant that fewer and fewer builders of new homes and sellers of existing homes have been willing or able to accept the financial penalty which payment of these discounts demands," Driver said.

"Unchecked, this trend would have meant a diminishing number of homes available to returning veterans through no or low down payment G.I. loans."

"And the hard truth is that most of the younger post-Korea and Vietnam-era veterans, who make up the overwhelming majority of veterans applying for VA guaranteed home loans, are not in a position to meet the higher down payment requirements of most conventional loans," the VA chief said.

Driver expressed confidence that the new maximum interest rate will make G.I. loans once again competitive in the money market until such time as the current spiraling of interest rates can be checked.

P'BURG COMMUNITY COLLEGE HAS ENROLLMENT INCREASE FOR THE SPRING SEMESTER

College enrollment usually drops with the beginning of the second semester, but Prestonsburg Community College upset this trend last month with the beginning of a new semester's work. The college had an enrollment increase of 21.

For the spring semester 431 are enrolled, it was announced this week by Robert R. Allen, registrar. Of these, 276 are freshmen and 155 are sophomores. Sixteen of these students are involved in a two-year technical program.

Those enrolled:

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.
Hallowed Places

In my years of teaching English I tried to show my students that people hallow places, that rarely is the home of a great man great until he has lived in it. Rarely is there any great feeling attached to some place, except by local people, until some person or event hallows it. Folklore is forever running into this sort of thing, for some folk hero comes into the world in some unlikely place, but it is never regarded as small or insignificant after his time. And this is not only true of folklore but is equally true of history. Who had ever heard of Walden Pond, except the people of eastern Massachusetts, until Henry David Thoreau lived by it and interpreted it? And what was Gettysburg until around its small hills was fought out a severe battle that changed the course of history? In my fairly numerous travels around the United States, I have been equally interested in the actual heroes of our land and the ones made famous by legend and story and song. The first time I ever saw the Mississippi River, I set down in my diary, with the river in sight, my visions of what had happened along the very stretch of the river in front of me: Indians in their canoes, trappers and voyagers, raftsmen, steamboats, Huck and Jim on their raft, the ironclads of an earlier day that were turned back right where I was looking by deadly fire from the bluffs. On that bright spring day, ages ago, the canoe of Chief Paducah (as we now spell it) seemed to glide by as he returned to the present site of Memphis after signing away what we now know as the Jackson Purchase. But that real Indian, living in a real time, not too long ago, was no more real in my wide-awake dream than hundreds of his predecessors who had glided down that mighty current or fought it as they made their way upstream.

And the ferry that was taking people across the Mississippi, in plain view, was no more real than the vanished ones that had transported thousands of emigrants and the Cherokees on this portion of the Trail of Tears. When I stood by the modest tomb at the grave of Kit Carson some years ago, I could see, with eyes wide open, the westward throngs that he symbolized. I could almost hear the shouts of the drivers of the ox team and the grind of sand on the wheels. What was a place like the Ranches of Taos to the people of the world until Kit Carson lived and died there? A mere house, no matter how fine, no matter how expensive, is just a house until someone lives in it and makes it something else. Or a poet sees it and makes it a shrine ever after. Or some great event takes place in or near it, and it is ever after a hallowed spot. No wonder places where some great events have taken place are regarded as haunted. No matter how many times I have roamed over the old farm where Abraham Lincoln was born and lived his first years or over the one in Indiana where he grew to maturity, I never have ceased to find the places possessed of something that no monument or poem or song can exactly tell. I can see quite well why millions of people have sought out, often spending their last money, the spots associated with sacred places. I am sure that many a pilgrim to the Holy Land, especially those who have been used to lush vegetation and rich soil, have at first had a sort of disappointment at not finding things more nearly ideal. But the genuine pilgrim, who sees through mere things, brings away a feeling that hallows the plainest, even ugliest spots because those spots were a part of sacred lives. If you wonder why millions of people listen to the same folk song through the years and pay good money for copies of it and journey long distances to see interpreters of it, think again of the way some life, real or imaginary, for that matter, adds something to the landscape that a mere seeker after fact's has never and will never find.

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT
Mary Alice Coal
Company, Inc., Plaintiff
Against/NOTICE OF SALE
CR NO. 6370

Kermit Billiter, Defendant.
By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the December 27 term, 1968, in the above styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 1st day of March, 1969, at 10 o'clock, a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

- One (1) 35L Jeffery cutting machine; one (1) Kersey model tractor with two sets of batteries, including one charger, 100 K.V. Rectifier with booster transformer; one (1) tippie wash crusher and electric motors; one (1) conveyor from tippie to mine car dump; one (1) 48-inch fan, with five horsepower motor; two (2) mine cars with wheels—end dump; two (2) mine cars without wheels—end dump; approximately 1,800 feet of 4 FO aluminum power line and 1,800 feet of No. 6 wire, all switch boxes and electric hookups.

These items will first be sold separately and will then be sold in the aggregate and if the bid for the items in the aggregate be the higher and better bid than the aggregate of the individual bids, it will prevail. These items are available for inspection by prospective bidders; some are located on the premises of Mountain Metal Company, West Prestonsburg, Kentucky, and the remaining items are located near the housing project, May Branch below Prestonsburg, in Floyd county, Kentucky.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $10,000.00, less $200.00 payment, with interest thereon at 6 percent annually from the 27th day of December, 1968, until satisfied and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 5th day of February, 1969.

CAR THEFTS UP IN 1968

Of 7,625 Total Taken, All But 1,987 Were In Louisville Area

Once every 63 minutes during 1968, someone's car or truck was stolen in Kentucky, according to figures released by the Kentucky State Police.

Between January and December of 1968, the KSP recorded a statewide total of 7,625 stolen vehicle reports, an increase of eight percent over 1967. Of this total, 5,638 of those thefts occurred in Louisville and Jefferson county.

The KSP recovered 1,051 vehicles valued at approximately $11 million, bettering their 1967 recovery rate by 19 percent. Included among these vehicles were 115 automobiles stolen out-of-state and driven into Kentucky.

Heading the list of KSP Posts receiving stolen vehicle complaints were Henderson (152), Bowling Green (152) and Mayfield (151). Top recovery rates were scored by posts at Bowling Green (61), Elizabethtown (60), Mayfield (59) and Dry Ridge (57).

Auto theft, according to the National Automobile Dealers' Association last year, ranked third in frequency among all felonies committed in the United States. Nearly two-thirds of those arrested nationwide for auto theft were under 18 years of age.

The 1968 average for Kentucky may be somewhat lower, KSP records, which do not include statistics compiled by all police departments in the state, indicate about 45 percent of all auto theft arrests made by the KSP during 1968 involved the under-18 age group.

The largest number of arrests in a single age category for auto theft involved 17-year-old males. Among all females arrested, the greatest percentage fell in the age 15 category. The overall rate of arrests in the under 18 age group for auto theft rose about 22 percent over 1967.

Another factor of great concern, also pointed out by the Auto Dealers Association, is the impact of auto theft on highway safety. During 1967, about 18 percent of all stolen vehicles were involved in at least 100,000 accidents across the country. One out of five resulted in personal injuries.

Public Safety Commissioner William O. Newman, commenting on the rising number of car thefts, urges every motorist to make certain the ignition keys have been removed and all doors are locked before leaving his auto.

"Unlocked cars and cars left unattended with the key in the ignition invite theft," he said. Motorists are also being asked by the Public Safety Department, particularly now when motorists are applying for 1969 license plates, to check the auto identification number with the number shown on their registration certificate. If they are not the same, the county clerk should be notified and correction requested.

The auto identification number is each car's personal fingerprint. Only through it can police trace stolen vehicles and return them to rightful owners. Spot checks of vehicles registration files have disclosed many certificates do contain incorrect auto identification numbers.

University of Kentucky graduate students will pay $285 per semester for efficiency apartments and $323 for single occupancy, effective with the fall semester, 1969.

SHERIFF'S SALE

The Bank Josephine, Plaintiff
Vs.: NOTICE OF SALE
Taulbee and
Daisy McGuire, Defendants

By virtue of execution to me directed, which issued from the office of the Clerk of the Floyd Circuit Court on December 17, 1968, in favor of The Bank Josephine against Taulbee McGuire and Daisy McGuire, in Civil Action 6516, formerly pending on the Civil Docket of the Floyd Circuit Court styled, The Bank Josephine, a corporation, plaintiff, vs. Taulbee McGuire and Daisy McGuire, defendants, for the sum of $700, together with interest thereon at the rate of six percent per annum from September 21, 1967, until paid, together with court costs of said action amounting to the sum of $39.80, in addition thereto any costs incurred by the Sheriff of Floyd county, Kentucky, in connection with the levying of said execution and the collection thereof, and by virtue of an execution to me directed, which issued from the office of the Clerk of the Floyd County Court, on December 17, 1968, in favor of The Bank Josephine against Taulbee McGuire and Daisy McGuire in Civil Action 6811, styled The Bank Josephine, a corporation, plaintiff, vs. Taulbee McGuire and Daisy McGuire, defendants, for the sum of $2,458.57, together with interest thereon at the rate of six percent per annum from September 12, 1968, together with court costs of said action amounting to the sum of $42.20, in addition thereto any costs incurred by the Sheriff of Floyd county, Kentucky, in connection with the levying and collection of said execution and each of them, I will, on the 3rd day of March, at the hour of 10 a.m. at the courthouse door in the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, expose to public sale, to the highest and best bidder, three tracts of land, together with all improvements thereon, situated in Floyd county, Kentucky, and identified as follows:

"TRACT NO. 1. is located on the waters of the Right Hand Fork of Bull Creek, and is described as follows:
BEGINNING on a white oak and point between Rock Lick and the right-hand fork of Bull Creek; thence down the hill with the cross fence crossing the creek and a straight line to the top of the point; thence down the hill to a hickory near the corner of the fence below old John Wallens near the branch; thence with the fence to Fountain Warrix line down the hill to the Warrix Mill tract; thence with the Mill tract line around to the old Warrix former line and with that line to the top of the main big ridge on to the old back line of Isaac McGuire; thence with the old back line of Isaac McGuire to the place of BEGINNING.

TRACT NO. 2. is located on the waters of Big Sandy River and is described as follows:
BEGINNING in the Easterly right-of-way line of U.S. Highway No. 23, at a drain on the property line of Riley Hall; thence running up said drain with the orchard fence just above the end of the old haul road; thence running with the fence to the top of the hill, north with the paling fence to a small sycamore in the branch; thence in a southerly direction running with said highway right-of-way line to the place of BEGINNING.

I will proceed to sell said lands or so much of them as will be necessary to satisfy said executions and each of them, and the costs above referred to, to the highest and best bidder on a credit of six months from the day of sale.
The purchaser shall give bond with approved surety to have a force and effect of a judgment on which execution may issue if the same is not paid at maturity, when and where due attendance will be given by me.
The amount to be raised by these executions are as follows:
(1) The sum of $700 together with interest thereon at the rate of six percent per annum from September 21, 1967, and the Court costs of Civil Action 6516, amounting to the sum of $39.80.
(2) The sum of $2,458.57, together with interest thereon at the rate of six percent per annum, from September 12, 1968, together with the Court costs of Civil Action 6811, amounting to the sum of $42.20.
(3) And in addition thereto, any costs which may be incurred by the Sheriff of Floyd county, Kentucky, in connection with the levying and collection of said executions and each of them.
Given under my hand as Sheriff of Floyd county, Kentucky, this 10th day of February, 1969.

JOE W. LEWIS
Sheriff of Floyd
County, Kentucky

Ramey, Mayo Director On National Council

George L. Ramey, director of the Mayo State Vocational-Technical School in Paintsville, has been appointed to a three-year term on the President's National Advisory Council on Vocational Education.

The Council is composed of 21 persons from 17 states. Seven are one-year members, seven are two-year members, and seven are appointed for three years. Its function is to advise the various states on the problems that plague vocational instruction and to offer solutions. The first meeting was held in Washington, February 13.

Ramey has been with the Mayo school for 20 years.

BLACK LUNG LEGISLATION INTRODUCED BY PERKINS

Congressman Carl D. Perkins this week introduced legislation to facilitate payment of adequate compensation for coal miners disabled by black lung disease (pneumoconiosis). The Perkins proposal is contained in a rider attached to his "Workmen's Compensation Improvement Act of 1969" introduced Wednesday.

Perkins said that the legislation he is introducing is essential in assuring disabled workers adequate levels of income to maintain them and their families in continued health and dignity.

Perkins said he anticipated that the legislation would be referred to the Education and Labor Committee of the U. S. House of Representatives, of which he is chairman, where he intended that hearings and a full consideration of the measure would be expedited.

The Workmen's Compensation Improvement Act of 1969 is designed to encourage the states to survey serious inadequacies in present workmen's compensation programs so that workers and their survivors will not suffer economic hardship because of work-related accidents.

The bill provides for grants to states for up to 75 percent of any additional administrative costs which they incur in strengthening workmen's compensation programs.

Plan Bill To Extend Appalachian Program For Two-Year Period

The chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee last week said he and about 50 colleagues plan to introduce a bill which would extend the Appalachian Regional Commission program for two more years.

The chairman, Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.) said the bill will seek a two-year authorization of $225 million for the program, up $55 million over the past two years.

The 13-state program was begun nearly four years ago in an effort to improve the Appalachian economy.

The measure also would extend for two years total authorizations of $175 million for five other regional commissions. The two-year period would end June 30, 1971.

The five regional development commissions oversee programs in the Ozarks, the Upper Great Lakes, New England and the Four Corner region in the Southwest.

Randolph, whose state is one of the 13 in the Appalachian Regional Commission program, said the program "has already proved to be a successful experiment."

AREA PROJECT CHAMPIONS

Floyd county was represented in 14 projects in the area record-judging held recently in Paintsville. These members received 10 area championships, two were runners-up and two were third place winners.

Club members winning area championships were:

Dog, Eddie Adkins; entomology, Leslie Auxler; swine, Tim Sessly; woodwork, Lance Blackburn; boys' health, Leslie Auxler; girls' health, Deloris King; dairy food, Carla Robinson; housekeeping, Carla Robinson; horticulture, Ronald Merritt; poultry, Donald Merritt.

The two club members receiving blue ribbons and second place awards were: Clothing, Ann Flannery; electric, Dan Hall.

The two third-place winners included Ronald Merritt (beef) and Janie Bailey (foods).

These 4-H club members were in competition with county champions from nine other Eastern Kentucky counties.

4-H TALENT SHOW

The annual Floyd County 4-H Club Talent Show will be held Tuesday night, Feb. 25, in the Betsy Layne school auditorium. The program will begin at 7 p.m.

The show will be divided into two categories — specialty acts and club acts. County champions will be selected in each division to represent Floyd county at the Area Talent Show in Paintsville, March 1.

The public is invited to attend.

TWO CLUBS HONORED

Two Floyd county 4-H clubs were honored recently by the Kentucky Power Company for achievement in 1968.

The Maytown 4-H Club received recognition as the first-place club in Floyd county, second in the area, and third in the 18-county Kentucky Power region.

The officers and leaders of the Maytown club this year are: President, Danise Conley; vice-president, Verna Bowling; secretary, Carla Robinson; 4-H leaders, Mrs. Alma Lowe, Mrs. Lula Martin, Mrs. Ballard Robinson, Mrs. Thomas Flannery, Mrs. Ed Bailey, Mrs. Polly Martin.

The Betsy Layne grade 4-H Club was recognized as the second place club in this county. Its officers and leaders this year are: President, Brownie Hall; vice-president, Donna Hamilton; secretary, Kathy Dillon; reporter, Linda Hamilton; 4-H leaders, Mrs. Verbal Meeks, Mrs. Vestlene Hall, Mrs. Geneva Hamilton; Mrs. Clara Friar, Mrs. Mary Lou Spradlin, Raymond Ratliff, Mrs. Agnes Kidd, Mrs. Cora Robinette.

Craig Fields, representing the Kentucky Power Company, spoke to the clubmembers and leaders on the value of enthusiasm in being successful in all they try to achieve.

The Floyd County 4-H Club Council was honored recently by the state 4-H Council.

The Floyd Council was selected as the outstanding 4-H council in the 10-county Northeast Extension Area for 1968.

Raymond Ratliff, council member from Prestonsburg, attended the banquet and accepted the plaque for the council.

OFFICE TOWER

The University of Kentucky's new 19-story office tower, scheduled for completion in late October, will contain six elevators and 800 doors. It is located on the UK campus adjacent to, and northeast of, the present administration building. White Hall was torn down to make way for the new structure.

RESIDENTIAL COMPLEX

Some 2,700 University of Kentucky students on the Lexington campus reside in the $22 million residential complex named for Sarah Gibson Blanding, former UK dean of women and past president of Vassar College, and Dr. A. D. Kirwan, former dean of men and currently interim president of the university.

DISABLED WORKERS

During 1968, the United States Employment Service and its affiliated State Employment Service offices placed on jobs 303,000 men and women with physical and mental disabilities. This was the highest number since World War II.

More and better-educated counselors at U. S. Employment Service Offices are helping unemployed individuals find jobs. Between 1965 and 1968, the number of counselors increased by 25 percent, to 5,325. Ninety-one percent of those spending half or more of their time in counseling now hold bachelor's or advanced degrees, up from 83 percent in 1965.

Old Morrison, Transylvania College's historic administration building which was heavily damaged by fire last week, will be restored to its original Greek Revival architectural form.

The University of Kentucky's newest tower—a $13 million, 19-story structure, will be served by six high-speed elevators providing office space for 960 staff and academic personnel who will work directly with students.

'Whatsoever Things'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

A woman's scream suddenly startled a party of surveyors at dinner in a forest in northern Virginia on a calm, sunny day in 1750. The men ran in the direction of the scream. One of the first to reach the scene was an 18-year-old.

"Please, sir, please make them release me," the woman said as several held her. "My boy is drowning, and they will not let me go to save him!"

One of those holding her yelled: "It would be madness; she will jump into the river and drown herself!"

The young man threw off his coat, sprang to the edge of the bank, scanned for a moment the rocks and whirling currents, and then, catching a glimpse of the boy, plunged into the roaring rapids. "Thank God," the mother said, "he will save my boy!" Everyone watched as the young would-be rescuer fought the rocks and the whirlpools. Twice the rescuer disappeared from sight, only to come back. He was nearing the part of the river that was most dangerous. The rush of the waters was so dangerous at that spot that no one had ever dared approach it, even in a canoe. Into the middle of it he went. Finally he reached the boy, lifted him above the water with his strong right arm. But at that moment those standing on the bank cried in horror. Both the youth and child shot over the falls and vanished in the seething waters below.

Following a deadly few seconds, the mother shouted: "There they are! See! They are safe!" Soon the youth, exhausted, and the boy, unconscious, reached the bank. The friends were there to meet them. "God will give you a reward," solemnly spoke the grateful woman. "He will do great things for you in return for this day's work, and the blessings of thousands beside mine shall be yours."

We call it courage, that thing that made the youngster do what he did. When others refused, were afraid, called it hopeless, he leaped into the water without thought of any danger he might face. One thing raced in his mind above everything else—there was another human who needed help.

Courage is a wonderful thing. It is something that you don't normally get overnight. You have to work at it, make it a way of life. The Carpenter had it, too, you know. He was a Man who inspired others with His courage. When they threatened Him with bodily harm, He stood fast. When they gave Him a choice between a lie or a cross, He chose the cross and truth.

Oh, I nearly forgot. The woman's prediction about the young man proved correct. Some 39 years later he was installed as the first President of the new country, the United States of America. His name was George Washington.

I'm a prude. I will admit it. And I use the word not in the sense of its meaning in the dictionary, but in the method which it has found itself used in today's slang language. In that language, you know, a prude is someone old-fashioned, less than a modern he-man. But, like I said, I'm a prude.

I'm a prude because I still believe in honesty. I don't believe in cheating or lying to my fellow man. When I charge a bill, I believe I should pay it. It may, under trying circumstances, be in small installments but if I live long enough, I will get it paid. I have given him my word and he has accepted it as the truth. He has put his trust in me and I cannot let him down.

I'm a prude because I still believe in kindness. I still think you should be kind to your fellowman instead of hard and harsh and rough. A kind word, a small gesture of kindness, a little gift can build lasting friendships.

I'm a prude because I believe in helping. I realize it is impossible for me to help everyone in the world and I'm not responsible for the whole world. I'm only responsible for the little corner I live in. I realize my inability to be all things to all men, but I do believe I can be something to some men.

I'm a prude because I believe in decency. I can see nothing good coming from speech that is dirty and filled with profanity. Some of the words, and their implications, in some of the songs on today's market turn my stomach. Some of the trash which passes for "art" on the screen of today would make Sodom and Gomorrah look like a fairytland.

I'm a prude because I don't drink. They tell us that 65 percent indulge in it now. Maybe that's what they want us to believe, maybe that is the correct figure. It doesn't bother me if 93 and 44/100 percent do it, to me it is wrong. And I hate the whole stinking mess when I pick up my paper and see the number of innocent people who suffer and die because of drink. We scream when a few innocent people die in war, and will not speak a word when thousands die because of drink on our highways.

I'm a prude because I believe in God. And to make me more of a prude, I still believe in a good God. I believe He is like a Father, and that He loves us, wants the best for us, and suffers when we shun Him and His way. I believe we will never achieve what we long for the most apart from Him.

I told you before I began that I was a prude. Now you know why. But you know what? I'm a prude with pride!

NEW YORK MAN TO OFFER SUMMER CAMP BENEFITS TO KENTUCKY YOUTHS

George Jonas, founder of the Louis August Jonas Foundation, Inc., Walden, New York, will be in Kentucky on Monday, March 3 until Friday, March 8 to interview boys for summer camp. He hopes to be able to offer at least two scholarships to Floyd county boys.

Camp Rising Sun, an unusual camp for boys, is located near Rhinebeck, New York, about 100 miles up the Hudson River. The Catskill Mountains are 10 miles to the west and the Berkshire Mountains 15 miles east. The camp consists of 160 acres of woods, open land, a trout stream, and an attractive waterfall.

This camp provides opportunities for a good time; yet, it is based upon the belief that intelligent boys want more than "just fun" in a summer experience. Mr. Jonas says about his camp: "You see, we are not really a camp at all, but a summer school for living. Camp Rising Sun is a tiny workshop for developing better individuals for our world. We try to provide the opportunity for a very few bright, ambitious youngsters of high character—future leaders—to broaden their outlook, internationally and culturally, stimulate their intellect and imagination, and strengthen their readiness to help others."

There will be boys from various parts of the USA, Africa, Asia, Europe and Latin America. Mr. Jonas personally interviews each candidate for Camp Rising Sun. He is working in Kentucky through members of the Council of Southern Mountains, who help him find boys to be interviewed. There are two alumni from Kentucky, who attended camp in 1966—Jim Hansen, of McKee, and Joe Allen Horn, of West Prestonsburg.

This is Jonas' fourth visit to Eastern Kentucky. He will arrive in Lexington on March 3; from there, he will travel to Berea where he will interview boys at Berea from Berea, Corbin, Beattyville, Frankfort and Covington. Wednesday, March 5, he will come to Prestonsburg, where he will be available to interview boys from Floyd county. He also plans to speak at some of the high schools. March 6, he will work in Letcher county, and in Pike county on the following day.

Any boy between age 14 to 16, who is interested in a scholarship to the camp, should contact his high school guidance counselor for information or contact Mrs. Sara Hill Stumbo or Mrs. Eva Allen Horn at the Higher Education Project Office in Prestonsburg.

Allen

Mrs. Flora Gray returned home Saturday after a short stay in the Methodist hospital, Pikeville.

Mr. and Mrs. Denver Baldrige and children, of Russell, spent the week-end with Mrs. Luther Baldrige.

Mrs. Steve Hampton and children have returned to their home in Florida after an extended visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Laven.

Mrs. Laven is recovering from surgery and is much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Daniels and sons, John and Bill, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. John Snodgrass.

Those from attending the funeral of Homer Carroll, of Richmond, were Mr. and Mrs. Felix Crisp and Mr. and Mrs. Obie Crisp. Mr. Carroll was a former resident of Allen, his wife being the former Sadie Crisp.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Conn, of Covington, visited Mr. and Mrs. Troy Hall recently.

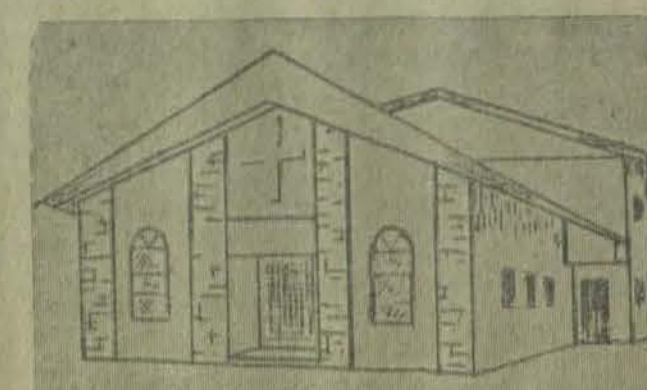

Earl Allen is improving at his home here from a recent illness.

Mrs. Dennis Lumpkins and daughter are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Chester Porter.

Mrs. Raymond Harry, of Louisville, Mrs. Nell Price, of Kenova, and Mrs. Elizabeth Billups, of Louisa, visited Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Delano Gray and Mrs. Flora Gray, Friday.

CARD OF THANKS
We would like to express our appreciation to our many friends and relatives who helped in any way when our beloved daughter and sister, Emogene Lawson Hall, passed away; to those who sent food, flowers and cards; to the ministers of the Regular Baptist Church for their consoling words. Our thanks also to the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

FATHER TIME IS OLD BUT THE YEARS ARE YOUNG

In that knowledge we, in our planning and making products to serve home and business, consider both:

- Things that are as bright and attractive as each new year that ends before it is well begun . . .
- Things that last for time that stretches out and ahead.

MED SCHOLARSHIP FUND MAY AWARD 30 GRANTS

The Rural Kentucky Medical Scholarship Fund will have at least 30 scholarships available this year to Kentucky medical students, Dr. C. C. Howard, chairman of the fund's board of trustees, has announced.

The program provides for a revolving fund designed to assist medical students who are willing to practice in rural areas in Kentucky who need financial help. It was established as a means of providing better distribution of physicians in rural Kentucky and now has recipients practicing in 80 of the 120 counties in the state.

Applicants must be residents of Kentucky who have been admitted to an accredited medical school. The fund now has three plans available:

1. A student may borrow up to $2,500 per year, provided he will agree to practice in one of 10 Kentucky counties most in need of a physician. For each year the recipient practices in one of these ten "critical" counties, one $2,500 loan will be forgiven.

2. A student may borrow $1,500 per year with the provision that one-half of the loan will be forgiven for each year of practice in a "semi-critical" county area designated by the Board. The "semi-critical" counties are selected on the basis of the ones next in greatest need.

3. A student may borrow $1,500 per year who will agree to practice in rural areas other than the "critical" or "semi-critical" counties.

For information, write to the Rural Kentucky Medical Scholarship Fund, Kentucky Medical Association, 3532 Janet Avenue, Louisville, Ky. 40205, before April 1.

BETSY LAYNE

The W.S.C.S. of the Betsy Layne United Methodist Church met in the home of Edith Mae Stanley, Feb. 6, for the regular monthly meeting. The following members and guests were present: Aileen Wallen, Mary Lykins, Kathryn Blackburn, Elizabeth Bailey, Kelsa Elliott, Mildred Davis, Hettie Johnson, Billie Jean Osborne, Clara Allen, Edith Mae Stanley and guests, Beth Furman and Meredith Furman.

The program was presented by Miss Beth Furman, who is a missionary from Africa. She showed slides and explained her missionary work with children in Africa. Miss Furman's home is in Betsy Layne and she will be returning to Africa in July for a period of four years.

Did East Kentucky's Tulip Trees Emigrate From China, Is Question

Did such naturally growing things as the tulip tree and the sweet gum, found in Floyd and other Appalachia counties, start out millions of years ago in China and stop on their way to Mexico?

A University of Kentucky botanist with 15 years' professional experience in Southeast Asia hopes to find out.

He is Dr. Willem Meijer, a native of Holland with a Ph.D. degree from the University of Amsterdam. Dr. Meijer, an associate professor of botany in the UK Hunt Morgan School of Biological Sciences, came to UK last August.

Dr. Meijer explains that such flora found in Appalachia and Mexico also is found in South China, and he wonders how this came about.

He plans to visit Mexico in the near future to study the flora there. "Very few botanists with experience in Southeast Asia could also see Mexican flora," he points out.

Dr. Meijer teaches dendrology—the study of trees—and a course in local flora. He wants to develop a complete herbarium (a collection of dried plants) of the Kentucky flora.

He hopes to interest Kentucky students at both the high school and college level in the local flora.

PRESTONSBURG CHAPTER IS OBSERVING FFA WEEK

Vocational Agriculture students at Prestonsburg high school are joining Future Farmers of America members throughout the nation in activities to focus attention on the importance of Agriculture during National FFA Week, February 15-22.

"FFA... An Opportunity for Youth" is this year's FFA Week theme. The message that these agriculturists are trying to impart to the nation is simple. They seek to inform the public of the importance they place upon the vast opportunities in American agriculture. FFA members find excitement in their role as young partners in developing a more prosperous agriculture that will better serve a growing America and an increasingly complex world.

Locally, members of Prestonsburg Chapter plan a radio program, a "dress-up" day and other activities to commemorate the week.

Membership in the FFA is made up of students of vocational agriculture in high school.

Prestonsburg Chapter has 79 members. Officers are Wess Campbell, Jr., Donald Merritt, Gene Campbell, Larry Blackburn, Ronald Merritt, Don Ed Cousley.

The National FFA organization has approximately 450,000 members, with 9,000 local chapters in 50 states and Puerto Rico.

Sign-Up Deadline For Trees, March 21; ASCS To Cost-Share

By HAROLD R. WALLACE
District Conservationist

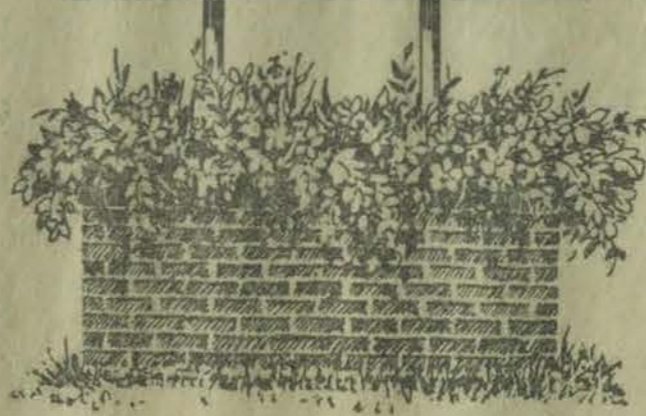

Tree planting time is here again! Vendors are available to set trees for landowners who do not have labor to do the job. This service, tree planting by vendors, is available for anyone in the county.

The Floyd County ASCS will cost share again this year—$20 per acre, of which $8 is for the purchase price and $12 for planting.

Interested landowners may sign up until March 21 by visiting the ASCS office over the Cox Department Store in Prestonsburg.

Contact the following agencies for further information: Soil Conservation Service, ASCS Office Personnel, Vocational Agriculture Teachers, Extension Service, Kentucky Division of Forestry.

Greenbrier To Send Three from County To College Football

Lewisburg, Va. — Seventeen Greenbrier Military School football lettermen from last fall's winning varsity team have already received full or partial scholarship aid from various colleges and universities. It was announced here this week by head coach Dave Ritchie.

Two Greenbrier stars should help Kentucky football fortunes. They are Mike Castle, Prestonsburg, an all-league offensive end, and Mike Marshout, Pt. Pleasant, W. Va., a fine middle guard.

John Webb, Allen, an offensive guard, plans to go to Eastern Kentucky University.

NEW BOOKMOBILES RAISE STATE FLEET TO LARGEST OPERATING IN THE NATION

Frankfort, Ky. — Eleven Kentucky counties will receive a new bookmobile this month, Gov. Louie B. Nunn has announced.

Counties receiving the bookmobiles are: Breathitt, Bullitt, Butler, Cumberland, Fayette, Johnson, Letcher, Metcalfe, Nelson, Oldham and Todd.

Bookmobiles are used to reach school children, rural families and senior citizens who may be isolated from regular public library facilities.

Gov. Nunn said, "Bookmobiles are a source of educational and recreational material for many of our citizens, both youngsters and adults. In addition to books, they can bring recordings, reproductions of paintings, films and magazines into Kentucky homes."

Each bookmobile was provided by state funds. The largest, which will serve an urban population in Fayette county, cost $22,256. The other 10 cost approximately $9,000 each.

Nunn said, "Kentucky's fleet of state-owned bookmobiles totals 105, the largest in the nation. In addition to these, there are four other bookmobiles in the state which are owned by local areas."

In all, 97 Kentucky counties receive bookmobile service.

As a result of the increased budget provided by the 1968 General Assembly, the State Department of Libraries also has funds for an additional eight bookmobiles which will be launched later this year.

Surveys reveal that the average Kentuckian read 3.5 books obtained from a public library building or bookmobile.

A typical bookmobile travels throughout a Kentucky county on a designated route. Approximately every two weeks it will make regular stops at shopping centers, country stores, post-offices, nursing homes and hospitals.

Requests which cannot be provided by the bookmobile are taken back to the main library, where the county librarian will either fill the request for delivery at the next visit or mail the requested material immediately.

If the county librarian is unable to fill the request, it is forwarded to the regional librarian who will locate what is needed or refer the request to the state library for attention.

Tackett Designated 'Soldier of the Month'

SP/4 Larry R. Tackett, of the 522nd Transportation Company at Cam Ranh, South Vietnam, has been chosen as the 124th Transportation Command Soldier of the Month. His selection for this distinction was based on his appearance, military bearing, professional knowledge and mental alertness. To achieve this position he appeared before a board of senior noncommissioned officers with a group of other candidates, and was singled out for the award.
