View 10-Acre Site For Third Project

Prestonsburg's second low-cost housing complex, Indian Hills, is expected to be opened this month, and by summer a third may be under construction, it was said here this week. The appraisal of a 10-acre site in the Goble-Roberts addition is being made by the third project. The appraisal filed with the Housing Assistance Administration by the Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission has been approved preliminary plan and is being prepared, and acquisition of the site is expected to be completed by the end of the year. The architect predicts that construction will be let in June or July.

When this third project is completed, Prestonsburg will have 160 low-rent and 75 rent-supplemental units available. The original Green Acres housing development has 40 units. Indian Hills now nearing completion at the mouth of May's Branch here will have 42, and the proposed development in the Goble-Roberts Addition will have 78 units.

3 WOUNDED BY GUNFIRE

Marsillett, Alleged Shotgun User, Names Others in Warrants

Three Magoffin county men who were wounded by shotgun blasts late Monday night on State Road Park of Middle Creek in charges of threatening another with a deadly weapon.

The charges were filed with Magistrate Bill Wells by Paul Marsillett, who was named by the wounded men as the man who shot them.

Two of the wounded — Glenn and Jim Sparks — are in the Prestonsburg General Hospital. The former was severely, though not believed dangerously, wounded. He was struck in his back and arms by an undetermined number of pellets. Jim Sparks was shot in the side and arm but not as seriously as his brother.

The third man hit by shot was Bill Shepherd, whose hands in neck and head were so severe enough to keep him out of jail.

Marsillett told Magistrate Wells the three had threatened him, that one was hidden in the barn near his home and that they were armed with shotguns.

The wounded men said Shepherd and Marsillett had had earlier trouble. They said they had driven up State Road Park and had left their car to walk where Shepherd's sister lived when they were fired upon.

A warrant for Marsillett's arrest had not been issued, Tuesday morning.

Claim Rule Could Halt Road Building

Governor Louie B. Nunn and Commissioner of Highways W. B. Hazelrigg have registered strong protests against a new ruling issued by the Federal Highway Administration which, in effect, will enable any individual or group opposed to a highway to halt it, at least temporarily.

The new rules provide that instead of a single hearing in a highway project, as has heretofore been required, most projects would henceforth be subjected to two hearings: one on the broad corridor through which the highway must be built, and on the road's detailed design and the impact of its potential construction.

The rules, issued by Federal Highway Administrator Powell K. Bridwell, would apply to all projects partly financed by federal funds. This includes Interstate System freeways as well as major improvements to city streets, primary and secondary routes. Not only would "interested persons" be able to question whether the roads should be built, or even widened, but rules also require highway departments to consider killing the road projects in favor of other forms of transportation, presumably rail rapid transit.

Jenny Wiley Park Business Manager New Pine Mt. Supt.

Larry Roger Farley, who for the last two years has been business manager at Jenny Wiley State Park, is the new manager of Pine Mountain State Park, near Pineville. He assumed his new duties, December 28. A successor at Jenny Wiley State Park has not been named, it was said Wednesday.

Farley is a native of Pike county and is a graduate of Berea College. He replaced Blueford Rice as manager at Pine Mountain. Rice resigned here last month.

Another change in park managers was announced Monday by Parks Commissioner Robert Gable. Basil B. Mullins was named manager of Levi Jackson State Park, London, Ky., succeeding William Carson.

This Town . . . That World

Now that the Day has come and gone, I have decided Christmas is a time for thinking — of past, future and presents.

THOUGHTS ON THE MOON-TRIP

While we were talking what we stouly asserted was a well-earned rest last week from publishing a newspaper, look what happened! — nothing but one of the great events of all time. Man has blasted himself clear of his natural element into orbit around the moon and has returned to tell the tale . . . in fact, told part of the tale while we earthlings, some 230,000 miles away, listened . . . Man flew up from the earth, then reached a point from which he began flying down to the moon . . . Makes the old noggin swim trying to conceive such an "impossibility" . . . Many have seen moonshine . . . these three aboard are the first known to have beheld earthshine . . . One skeptic referred to the three who dared to make this historic trip as "the astronauts" . . . Some of these selfsame skeptics now boldly predict that within a matter of years regular excursions will be taken to the moon. Even if it comes in my time, I'll not be a passenger. The only way I'd ever board such a craft, outward bound, would be, bound, head and foot, and screaming (unless they gagged me). And, if they did get me aboard, I'd hijack the thing and head for Cuba . . . What does it all mean, now that man has orbited the moon and may soon land there? Don't ask me. Remember, I'm the guy when, reading of the atom being smashed, gave with the erudite comment: "So what?"

DYING IN VAIN

This gal who objected to the reading of the Bible by the three astronauts as they circled the moon is dying the vainest of deaths — she's just dying to get her name in the papers.

Few Incidents Mar Quiet of Holidays

The holidays, generally, were quiet in Floyd county. Even the roar of "cherry bombs" and other fireworks was more scattered than usual. One pre-Christmas automobile fatality and a post-Christmas shooting in which nobody was killed ranged beyond the ordinary train of events.

In the 10-day period, Dec. 21-31, 22 persons were jailed here. Eleven of these were booked for drunkenness.

On the liquor front one raid was staged by Sheriff's deputies, two days before Christmas. This resulted in the arrest of London Charles, Brandy Keg road merchant, on a charge of possessing intoxicating beverages for the purpose of sale. Search of his premises by Deputy Sheriff Claude Flanery and John Reed and State Trooper Bevins uncovered 20½ pints of whiskey, gin and vodka and 52 cans of beer. Charles executed bond.

A 16-year-old youth, jailed here December 20, was booked on seven charges of breaking and entering. Places he is accused of looting are the Greyhound Bus Station here, Lloyd's Service Station here (two times), Twin Bridge Auto Parts, Martin, May Sign Company and the Ed Ousley Service Station, both of Prestonsburg, and Jim's Pure Oil Station, near here.

Prestonsburg police are seeking the identity of the person or persons who broke into the D. & D. Food Market here Sunday night, rifled cash registers of $270 in currency and took an undetermined number of items of Merchandise. Entry was effected by prying bolts from the prefabricated steel wall of a room containing refrigeration and other units.

Among those booked at the county jail were: Don McKinney, charged with reckless driving by Deputy Sheriff J. D. Martin and Caner Hunter; Jimmie Johnson, forgery, by Deputy Sheriff Flanery and Reed; Billy Joe Grace and Harold Jarvis, breaking custody, by State Trooper Bevins.

FLU VACCINE SUPPLY SEEN

Hong Kong Virus Not Detected Here, Spread Seen Later

The shortage of vaccine to combat an expected Hong Kong flu epidemic in Kentucky is expected to be relieved next week with the arrival of a large shipment of vaccine to go to hospitals and private physicians.

The vaccine for this particular type of influenza is almost nonexistent in this county at this time. Some vaccine has been received and used but the remaining supply was negligible, it was said Tuesday.

Dr. George P. Archer, of the Prestonsburg General Hospital, said he had found the incidence of influenza this fall no heavier than normal. He added that without isolation of the virus and tests such as are available in laboratories of larger cities it is impossible to say if flu of the Hong Kong variety has appeared in the county.

State Health Commissioner Russell Teague said Monday the big manufacturers of the vaccine have stepped up production and will release the serum on a mass basis as the new year begins.

Meantime, he said, priority is going to people 55 and older with chronic diseases such as heart or lung ailments.

They should obtain a shot immediately, he said, and it will take effect in a week or 10 days. Teague said the latest available figures indicate the current strain of influenza is climbing towards the epidemic stage — which he said probably would be reached in the third week of January.

A couple of weeks ago the flu cases reported by doctors totaled more than 400.

A week ago the count rose to more than 800 and "this week we'll probably have up to 3,000 cases reported," the commissioner said.

The actual count is considerably greater since many milder cases are not treated by physicians and never enter into the statistics.

Dr. C. Hernandez, state director of epidemiology, said a usual rule of thumb is that there are four times the number of reported cases.

Teague said one comfort despite the rising incidence is the lack of any recorded death in Kentucky from flu or pneumonia like ailments.

Nationally, he said, the death rate has been four times the expectations for the flu epidemic. The main effect in Kentucky at the moment is heavy absenteeism in industries. When schools resume in a few days, Teague said, there also will be many empty seats.

The presence of the Hong Kong flu virus has been verified officially in laboratories, especially by samples from Louisville and Lexington.

Hospitals and nursing homes have reported scattered cases of Hong Kong flu.

MARTIN HAS 2nd SCHOOL BLAZE LOSS

Grade School Burns Early This Morning; Gym Burned in Sept.

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the grade school at Martin this morning (Thursday), a few hours before classes were scheduled to be resumed after the holiday vacation.

The loss was the second within a period of four months to the Martin schools. The school gymnasium there burned, early last September.

The blaze in the two-story brick structure was discovered at 3:30 a.m., and had spread to such extent that efforts of four fire departments were unable to save the school. The Martin fire department was joined in saving other buildings — one, a small frame building between the gym site and the grade school which had been saved when the gym burned — by firemen from Prestonsburg, Allen and the Left Beaver Civil Defense group.

The nearby high school building apparently was protected from damage, but it will not open for classwork until facilities for the grade school pupils are found.

County Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark said every effort will be made to keep the grade pupils in Martin and that a search for classroom space has already been begun there. Space for 12 classrooms is needed. Any building or buildings selected for use, however, must be approved by the Division of Buildings and Grounds, State Department of Education. The superintendent expects classwork to resume within a week.

No estimate of the loss was available. The building was insured for $75,000 and its fixtures for $3,000. "That wouldn't build the first floor at today's prices," Clark commented.

Soldier Is Charged In Auto Fatality

Pfc. Michael C. Hamilton, a Fort Lewis, Washington soldier home on furlough, has been placed under $2,000 bond to answer to action of the grand jury here next week in the automobile death December 22 of Billy Bryan Adkins, 22, of Martin, and the injury of three others.

Hamilton, a former East McDowell resident, waived examining trial last Friday after he had been charged with manslaughter.

Adkins died at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin, about 2:30 a.m., shortly after the auto in which he was a passenger was forced from KY 80, near the housing development outside Martin.

Seriously injured and taken to University Medical Center, Lexington, for treatment were David Lee Grigsby, 30, of Martin, driver of the car in which Adkins and others were passengers, and band instructor at McDowell high school, and Harvey McKinney, Jr., 26, of Printer. A third passenger in the Grigsby car, Junior Hunt, of Hunter, suffered cuts and bruises and was taken to Our Lady of the Way hospital.

Grigsby, a son of Mayor E. P. Grigsby, of Martin, underwent surgery at the Lexington hospital. His right leg was twice broken and he suffered possible internal injuries. His improvement is slow. McKinney's cheek bone was fractured. He also had a broken foot and suffered a concussion.

Martin Police Chief A. J. Reed, who joined State Trooper Michael Angel in an investigation of the tragedy, told authorities here there was evidence the car driven by Hamilton and Grigsby's auto made contact prior to the wreck. It was claimed Hamilton attempted to pass Grigsby, with the result that Grigsby's auto was hit and forced from the highway.

Hamilton's injuries were described as minor.

The victim, who had ended four years of Marine Corps service only a month prior to his death, was a son of Henry Lee and Lizzie Frazier Adkins, of Martin. Other survivors are four sisters, Mrs. Wanda Lee Bent-Francis, Newark, Ohio, Mrs. Helen Stone, of Garrett, and Mrs. Myrtle Caudill, of Hindman.

Funeral rites were conducted Dec. 28 from the Hollybush Regular Baptist Church, and burial was made in the family cemetery at Pippa Passes, the Hall Brothers Funeral Home directing.

Langley Woman Dies After Attending Rites For Sister, Dec. 26th

Miss Armanda Stone, 65, of Langley, died Dec. 26 after attending the funeral that day of her sister, Mrs. Dulcinea Dudley, with whom she had resided for years. She was stricken suddenly and was dead on arrival at Our Lady of the Way hospital at Martin.

Born May 12, 1903 in Knott county, she was a daughter of John B. and Jane Burga Stone. Survivors include two brothers and three sisters, Monroe Stone, Pinetop, Ky., Mitchell Stone, of Pippa Passes, Mrs. Parthena Francis, Newark, Ohio, Mrs. Helen Stone, of Garrett, and Mrs. Myrtle Caudill, of Hindman.

Jan. Court Docket Marks Crime Drop

The steady dwindling of circuit court dockets in this county over a period of several years is emphasized by the January docket, which lists only 35 cases for trial. Several years ago, the docket regularly contained 150 or more cases, and even more recently there were as many child desertion cases set for trial at a single court term as the total number to be heard this month.

Asked what he considers responsible for the slimmer dockets, Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said this week that certainly it isn't because grand juries aren't digging into crime — it's simply because there isn't as much crime. One murder case is on the docket. The murder rate has been steadily declining in this county.

He expressed the belief that federal programs which have bettered the lot of many of the unemployed and underprivileged by meeting economic needs reduced adult thievery and the number of child desertion cases. Education, Stumbo added, is perhaps the greatest builder of a more law-abiding population. The law against carrying concealed deadly weapons also was cited.

Another factor in the reduction of court dockets is the removal of old cases from the docket. These include those cases in which the defendants have not been found — mainly, because they left the county or were removed from the docket.

Old Christmas Party At James Home Here To Continue Tradition

Mr. and Mrs. Tom James will be hosts at their home here January 6 to the Old Christmas party which has become a Prestonsburg tradition and has captured the interest of persons over a wide area.

Last June, Mrs. James presented the Old Christmas observance as a part of the Highlands Folk Festival at Jenny Wiley State Park's amphitheatre. Later, the Woman's Club of San Angelo, Texas built a part of a special program around the observance as revived here by Mrs. James. The December number of "The National Rural Letter Carrier" featured the Old Christmas and its observance by the Prestonsburg women.

Old Christmas dates back to the Julian calendar, and its observance here is in the tradition of the Old Christmas of Old England and the early American colonists. The singing of ancient carols and the wassail bowl are among its features.

FHA Okehs Work Here On 75 Units

Loan of $820,000 Made; Work Slated To Begin Here Soon

A move begun in November, 1967 by eight Prestonsburg churches to provide rent-subsidy housing in this vicinity was won last Friday when the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) approved a loan of $820,000 for the project.

The housing complex of 75 units will be built on a 4½-acre tract in the Goble-Roberts Addition, and D. H. Holbrook, contractor, said this week that work will be started "as soon as weather permits." Completion is expected by next fall.

Nine two-story buildings and one of a single story will contain the 75 housing units. Twenty-four of the units will have three bedrooms, 35 will have two, and 16 will be one-bedroom units.

The buildings will be of red-wood exterior, front and back, with brick veneer at the ends. Each unit will be equipped with kitchen range and refrigerator. In addition to the housing units, the complex will include a maintenance shop.

A Frankenstein In The Making?

America has become great as a result of its free-enterprise system, but now it appears that the same system may become an agency of destruction.

Unless industry, enjoying freedom to operate competitively, also accepts a heavy responsibility, it could destroy the land, much of the population and, consequently, itself.

How far the cycle of air, stream and soil pollution is nearing full-circle is not known. But the concern for the national safety mounts, and that concern is not expressed because those who are anxious about the situation are opposed to industry and the free-enterprise system.

Now thermal pollution of the nation's waters joins sewage, silt, detergents and a long list of pollutants which are making the water supply unfit for consumption. Insecticides, manufactured for the wholesome purpose of protecting humans and the crops, trees and plants they grow, threaten not only the wildlife, including birds, natural enemy of insects, but also human life. Even some fertilizers are now said to have their harmful effects on the nation's foodstuffs.

This is not to argue that industry close up shop, nor is it to say that all responsibility lies with the businesses of the country which produce the necessities of modern life and provide the bulk of the national payroll. The responsibility lies with us all.

But industrial America cannot evade the duty to make an earnest study of its products and by-products and quit the position from which it contends that all is well and that those who point to dangers are crackpots or professional sensation-seekers. The truth needs to be known, then decisive action must be taken.

'Whatsoever Things'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

Back several years ago an elderly couple, a man and his wife, were passing through Philadelphia. Tired, and the night half gone, they searched for a hotel where they could get some rest. Every hotel they went to told them the same thing: "Sorry, we are filled up." Finally, in desperation, the couple tried a little, third-class hotel. As they entered the hotel the man went to the night clerk and spoke. "Mister, please don't tell me that you haven't got a room. We have searched all over town for a room but the conventions have filled up our usual hotels. We are so tired. Please don't tell me that you don't have a room where we could get some rest."

Entering the room, the clerk spotted the couple. With a smile on his face he spoke. "Hope you got a good night's rest and everything was fine." Both the man and the woman thanked the clerk for his kindness. After exchanging a few words, the elderly man changed the subject. "Young man," he said, "you are too fine a hotel man to stay in a hotel like this. How would you like me to build a large, expensive, luxury hotel in the city of New York and make you the manager of it?"

The young man sat there for a moment. He did not know exactly what to say. He wondered if the gentleman's mind was right. Finally, after searching for something to say, he stammered out these words: "It sounds wonderful."

You know, that young man didn't have to put those people up for the night. He could have turned them away. He had a good reason. And people had been turned away before. Remember Bethlehem? Already every major hotel in Philadelphia had turned them away. But this young man had something about him that refused to turn them away. He wanted to help, to be kind. "Do unto others . . ." He did that. He followed the Carpenter's command.

It wasn't long after that that a new hotel went up in New York City. It was one of the greatest hotels ever built. They named it the Waldorf Astoria. And the young night clerk became the manager and one of the world's greatest hotel men. The gentleman he had shared his room with was John Jacob Astor.

TIDITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

Loyalty, Good and Bad

Loyalty is a queer thing. Sometimes it seems to be superior to all other human emotions. Sometimes it is good, sometimes it is bad, and often it is funny.

The old sectional loyalty, as in my original county, which arrayed the East Side against the West Side, seems, to an old man who has been away from the whole county for 60 years, pretty childish. Basically, it had no reason to be. Just about everybody was poor in my childhood, nearly everybody was a farmer or of his family, and our outlook on the big world was comically narrow. But this loyalty to one's immediate region caused some strange things to happen: in politics, in religion, in education, and, of course, in society. Now, the county seems like a good-sized saddle blanket in size, using a very old figure, and we former residents who have so long been on the outside find this funny loyalty as something highly the family behind him; since he was the doctor for an area that was a third or more in Tennessee; and since no one could tell the difference between a Tennesseean and a Kentuckian when some big event brought them together — because of all these things I grew up somewhat puzzled by an intense loyalty that people on the opposite sides of a man-made line had for their side of the fence. Fortunately, this prejudiced loyalty was not often ugly, only comic.

As a member of the teaching profession I have seen, hundreds of times, intense loyalty to one's alma mater that really was no better and no worse than the most ignorant prejudice in other fields. I have seen many a teacher practically snubbed because he taught in a public school or because he graduated from some Southern or Midwest university or college. And, worst of all has been the high-schoolish loyalty of colleges inside one's own state, where the origin, when it is properly understood, is often of Life will go on without you.

Not all traffic fatalities are caused from drinking while driving or speeding. But too many of them are. Even if you don't have an accident, you could be arrested . . . heavily fined . . . lose your license (and maybe your job?). You know all of the arguments against speeding or drinking while driving. If you still want to do it . . . remember: life will go on without you.

Radiant Rays

Two years ago on Christmas Eve, I stood in the stable in Bethlehem. It was now covered with marble and only the rocks directly above the Babe's crib showed through.

I am reminded that that was a small hill village. I daresay Joseph, Mary and Jesus were alluded to on more than one occasion as "hillbillies."

The animals on that fateful night, no doubt, had been removed for the advent of the Christ Child, at least removed to another part of the stable. An earlier Christian writer has suggested that this is all that is required for the advent of Christ in our lives, particularly in our lives.

There are beasts within man, "the stubbornness of the bull," "the ox of passion," "the ass of prejudice," "the stealthiness of the snake," "the slyness of the fox," "the gluttony of the vulture," "the tenacity of the octopus," and "the appetite of the goat."

Just as the Christ Child was straining in His mother's womb to be admitted entrance into the world on that epic night, so He is straining now, and has been ever since. He wants to be eternally born, universally born. He wants to enter every life—and will, if we will only remove the animals.

You will see many Nativity Scenes this Yuletide Season. Why not have one of your own? Invite the Christ Child inside. Then and only then will you experience the true Christmas Spirit—the Holy Spirit.

Nature Trails

1.—THE SPICEBUSH. This fine aromatic shrub is known locally as "spicewood." In pioneer times its red berries were used to make all-spice, and during the Civil War its twigs and bark were used by the soldiers to make an invigorating tea. It has also been a long-standing custom of the mountaineers to put the twigs of spicewood in the water when the meat of wild animals is being cooked; the twigs lend the flesh a spicy taste and is said to remove the "wild animal odor." Few people would ever cook a groundhog without adding spicewood twigs to the water.

The spicebush, a member of the laurel family, grows in dense clumps along streams or on moist hillsides. It can be transplanted with success and will reward the planter with a mass of showy yellow flowers in March, before any other trees are in bloom. The flowers are fragrant and are formed in small clusters like blobs of gold degrading the bare branches.

Both the leaves and bark of spicewood are aromatic. I have often caught the odor of spicewood on the breath of cows after they had browsed on the foliage. The spicebush produces an abundant crop of bright red berries, which make the small bush look as attractive as a dogwood with its showy red berries. The fleshy berries, called "drupes" by botanists, are a special food of catbirds and are also eaten by 30 other species of birds. The leaves are oblong and have smooth margins. The spicebush is fine for border planting and will display a wealth of golden-yellow blossoms long before any others are out. It is a bold harbinger of spring. The bark has long been used as a remedy for intermittent fevers. Spicebush is sometimes called "the fever bush."

2.—THE WILD HYDRANGEA. or "STEVENS BARKS." This colorful shrub is one of the most beautiful perfume can be tree in bloom. The wild crab can be transplanted and makes a fine ornamental; it blooms in May and produces an abundance of showy rose-colored blossoms that begin to broadcast their fragrance as soon as they burst out. The blooms produce the small, greenish-yellow "apples," which are also fragrant, waxy and very tart. The fruits are eaten by grouse, wild turkeys, chipmunks, quail and other wildlife. People used to gather the small apples to make jelly and preserves. They have a tang no other wild fruit can offer; it is a deep-down, delightful taste which the oldtimers always said "hit the right spot."

Wild crab is a fine tree for hedges; it is armed with sharp spurs, which lend it good protection. This small tree is a member of the rose family and grows in thickets or old clearings. It is sometimes found in open woods.

The hydrangea is a member of the saxifrage family and grows in moist, rich woods, usually along the banks of brooks. It reaches a height of about eight feet and often forms large clumps. Around the white flower clusters, one may often find larger white blooms with papery petals. These are sterile and are like those seen on the "snowball bush" of the lawn. The blossoms produce a seed capsule with two horns, which contain many seeds and furnish food to about 30 species of birds. The blooms are especially valuable as a food supply for both honey bees and bumblebees, since the flowers are rich in pollen. The leaves of hydrangea are heart-shaped, opposite on the stem and toothed along the margin.

3.—THE WILD CRABAPPLE. Everyone with a ret-er this small tree should have one for its pleasant fragrance. It is said to have the strongest fragrance of any other tree of the region; its sweet perfume can be found in bloom. SPECIAL CHILDREN—SPECIAL EDUCATION

By RICHARD D. IOWARD
Director, Special Education, Pikeville College

Welcome to the circle of the concerned! I trust you enjoyed a spiritually rewarding Christmas—if so, it was a good one. After Christmas is over we usually settle down and think of the year as a whole and look toward the future and wonder what next year will bring. Someone has very aptly said, "No man is an island unto himself." I believe we should consider the past year's deeds in light of others, not in light of our bank account, our real estate holdings, our personal increase. After all, we were not put here for that purpose.

I do not suggest that material gain is wrong. In fact, I think man is naturally a collecting species. We start our collecting when we're children. We collect bottle caps, string, stamps, bugs, etc. This is "second nature." And I also believe that man will prosper materially if he has everything else in proper perspective. So, I do not suggest that you have to be a pauper to be in the proper frame of reference. I'm suggesting that too many of us are too selfish, too grasping. We are trying to get more than we need or can use while we turn a deaf ear to the needs of those who cannot even get the barest of necessities.

As we reminisce could we ask ourselves some questions? What have I done for others? Has my giving been all in money? Have I given of myself? Have I suffered to a small degree for others? Has my physical strength been spent in my own work? Have I become really involved with the poor? the elderly? the retarded? the crippled? those in prison or jail? the delinquent child? the wayward girl?

Is my community a better place here in the closing days of 1968 than it was in the beginning of the year because of something I have done or given? Is my country stronger or greater because of my efforts this year? Is the community of man through the world better off today than it was 12 months ago—because I helped it to be thus?

The answer could be, No. In many instances if we're absolutely honest it will be no. Whether yes or no, 1969 comes around the bend, so we will have more opportunities. I am concerned with the handicapped. I make no apologies for it. I want to interest you in becoming concerned with the handicapped. This is the purpose of this challenge. I want you to consider doing more for the unfortunate in 1969 than you did in 1968. I don't care what you did. I challenge you to do more.

Let me suggest things you can do. I'm sure you will agree with me that there is power in numbers. 10 can get more done than one. Those in places of power listen to numbers more quickly than single voices. So—organize. Form an association in your community that says, "We want to do something about the handicapped." There are several groups you could affiliate with to add strength. The National Association for Retarded Children, The Council for Exceptional Children (deaf), or the Gifted. There is a national organization set up to deal with every single handicap—crippled, birth defects, deaf, hearing impaired, etc.

If you organize, you need a secretary. Secure the necessary information to deal with the handicap. In Kentucky, we help almost every one of this need to be done. Do try to build residential facilities for those who need to be in. But there is something tied in every community.

How about a Sheltered Workshop in each county for the retarded? How about Day Care Centers - pre-school and those not eligible for a Workshop? How about transportation for those who don't have it and need to get to the places where services are offered?

We've been writing this column for several weeks now about being concerned. Perhaps in your case and in your locale that time is January, 1969. Perhaps God in His wisdom has chosen you to do a work for Him. I don't know that. He has. I only ask that you in all honesty ask yourself—"Is there something I should be doing to alleviate the conditions under which handicapped people are living?" Then follow the guiding light.

Letters To the Editor

A SOLDIER WRITES FROM VIETNAM

EDITOR, The Times:

I have arrived in Cam Rohn Bay for my second tour of duty. This time, I'm in a trial party, N.C.O., for convoys going up in Charlie's backyard.

I see a lot of beautiful country but it would be much more beautiful if it were not war-torn.

We of the Armed Forces feel that being over here is better than being back in our own country having people look down on us for being in the service. At least we have enough nerve to serve our country.

While I was in Prestonsburg I found that a lot of guys signed up for college, just to keep from serving their country. And what got me was, when the dean of the college called them to enroll they would go but to another college. I admit, the Armed Forces don't pay much money, but they will take care of their own, good or bad.

I was talking to a sergeant last night who has been over here 1 1/2 years. He said, "I had rather be over here doing what I think is right than to be back here with the young men of today that don't know where the rubber shop is located, and most of them don't know what a razor is."

I realize I know a lot of people in Prestonsburg and the county. It might hurt a lot of people's feelings if you print this, but I have to say what I feel. Of course, I'm sorry for these poor people over here, and serving with them is the only way I know how to help. I'm sure that if a lot of guys who are protesting the war in Vietnam could see these people they would change their minds—that is, if they have any heart at all.

Sgt. ELBERT BALDRIDGE (stationed with the 566th Trucking Company in Cam Rohn Bay, Vietnam, San Francisco APO 9612)

TO CHEER THE ELDERLY

EDITOR, The Times:

Many thanks to everyone who donated gift items for the Christmas party for residents of the Golden Years Rest Home at Mackey, Ky. I am just sorry there were not more donors there to see how much happiness your gifts brought to those people.

There were enough articles left over to begin a new project for which I beg your support. That is a remembrance for each of them on their birthdays. Many people receive gifts at Christmas and their own birthdays, for which they can find no use. These things which often go to the waste basket may be very thing to "just make" birthday or Christmas tokens of our elderly friends. If you have anything of this kind, please contact me by phone or letter. Even large pieces of wrapping paper, ribbons, bows removed from your are useful and most welcome. Two of the residents want gifts for themselves, but something they could give someone else — children or other patients.

Again, thank you all, and in mind the new project and Christmas party for 1969.

(Mrs.) OTHA HOPKINS, Eastern, Ky. Phone 358-4359, after 4 p.m.

Perkins Would Halt Reduction of Benefits After Awards Are Won

Commonwealth's Attorney learned recently that it is difficult to anticipate Congressman Carl D. Perkins, especially on matters pertaining to rights of workers.

Stumbo wrote Perkins of what he terms an injustice suffered by miners who win compensation cases, only to have a part of their social security benefits deducted because of the compensation award.

In reply the Congressman pointed out that for years he has tried to eliminate this provision in the law. His most recent effort was represented by House Resolution 4706 which would eliminate the deduction from the present law. He said he expects to press the Ways and Means Committee to get his proposed legislation to the floor for a vote at the next session of Congress.

Stumbo said interested persons should write Senators Cooper and Cook to join the fight.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

of the best teachers I ever had, a world-renowned folklorist, used to say that it was certainly a queer way to judge a scholar's ability merely by the name of the school he attended. And he could have been haughty, for, a country boy in origin, he had graduated from old Harvard itself. Only when it was necessary for the record did this information ever leak out; he preferred to stand on his own record and not dodge behind his alma mater.

Somehow these evidences of grown-up men and women and their prejudices reminds me of the traditional story of the two boys who tell each other about the merits of their respective fathers: "My dad can lick your dad." Actually, with all our growing up, as individuals and as communities and as a nation, we sometimes keep the folkish attitude that we knew when we were small boys and had to rely on the prowess of some older brother or Pappy himself. I have often wished, as a college teacher, that I could dare to laugh at this loyalty that has gone wrong. No wonder some wise people who have had few opportunities to acquire an education sometimes laugh at the obvious pretensions of us inside the Inner Circle. And that reminds me of the very forceful preacher who said that if he knew that he had a drop of blood that was not Methodist—let us say, since I am a Methodist—he would open the blood vessel right then and let it out. I used to ask my students just how he would determine which drop was Methodist and which wasn't.

"Hooray for dear old Whoosis College!"

gone through the Federal Register."

Observing that the new rules can effectively delay any project through a "simple appeal" by an opponent, he added that "by making it a federal rule, it's going to make it very easy to bring litigation."

"Why, someone can even question whether you should build an eight-inch or a nine-inch pavement," Johnson said. Johnson pointed out that presently 235 miles of 6,800 miles of urban Interstate freeways are involved in controversy. "Every controversial project will be stopped," he declared. "This will encourage dissident groups to bog down any project they wish."

Asked what action AASHO intends to take, he said: "Well, every one of the State highway departments are going to be talking individually with the Governors and their Congressmen. It seems to me that anything filed with the Federal Highway Administration in opposition to these rules will have no effect whatever."

"So it looks to me as though we'll have to depend on Congress. We most certainly will make a strong appeal to Congress to abolish these rules."

Johnson observed that this latest action was particularly staggering, coming as it does in the wake of the latest cut-back in the highway program.

"It just seems that there are some people who don't want us to build any roads," he said.

Mrs. Inas Stephens, 36, of Warsaw, Ind., former resident of the Dock area, this county, died Monday at the home of a brother, Orville Ousley, at West Prestonsburg, after a long illness.

A daughter of James and Emma Frasure Ousley, of Martin, she was born in Floyd county July 14, 1932. She was a member of the Pentecostal Light-house Church at Warsaw.

Serving as pallbearers were Dennis L. Ousley, Dallas Ousley, Jack Richard Ousley, Rudolph Ousley, Parley Flannery, Jr., Paul David Derossett and Larry Dean Calhoun.

Dr. Joseph Meade, 'Poetry Storehouse,' Succumbs at Lackey

Dr. Joseph Davis Meade, the retired Inez dentist whose store of memorized verse made of him an attraction at many public gatherings in the area, died December 22 at the age of 94 at the Golden Years Rest Home at Lackey.

Dr. Meade had himself written a volume of verse, "Spirit of the Mountains in Rhyme," and his phenomenal memory of poetry amazed his acquaintances. It has been said that he could recite at least 5,000 poems, including all that he read as a schoolboy in the McGuffey Readers and every stanza ever written by Robert Burns.

A native of Johnson county, he was born November 9, 1874, the son of Henry and Zina Davis Meade. He was graduated from the Louisville College of Dentistry in 1902 as president of his class. He retired in 1959 and had resided at the Lackey rest home for the last two years.

Survivors include a son, Joseph Davis Meade, Jr., of Washington, D. C.; three daughters, Mrs. W. C. Goss, of Pikeville, Mrs. Ray Jackson, of Elkhorn City, and Mrs. Robert Hollar, of Erwin, Tenn.; a foster son, Harry Holbrook, of Hager Hill; two sisters, Mrs. Mae Best, of Paintsville, and Mrs. C. A. Riley, of Huntington, West Virginia.

Funeral rites were conducted last Thursday from the Bailey Funeral Home at Elkhorn City by the Rev. David Webb. Burial was made in Johnson Memorial cemetery.

Mr. Weinberg was graduated from Randolph-Macon Men's College and Tulane Law School where he was president of the Law School Student Government and a member of the Tulane Law Review. He is working for Total Action Against Poverty in Roanoke.

A May wedding is planned.

Senior Citizens Kitchen Weapon in Poverty Fight

A country kitchen doesn't sound like the normal site to fight a battle but at Boone Fork in Letcher county cooking has become a weapon in the war on poverty.

This particular kitchen is special. It is the Senior Citizens Kitchen, funded through the Letcher, Knott, Leslie and Perry (LKLSP) Community Action Council by the Office of Economic Opportunity for nearly $45,000 last July.

Administered by the Boone Fork Community Group, the kitchen serves seven small Eastern Kentucky communities (Seep, Whitaker, Neon, Hemphill, Fleming, McRoberts and Cromona) and, provided with modern equipment, operates out of a two-story white frame building which also houses the Boone Fork Day Care Center. The emphasis is on upgrading the food practices of the communities and the Senior Citizens Kitchen is demonstrating several different ways to do it.

Perhaps the most colorful activity of the kitchen is the five-day-a-week delivery of hot meals to indigent, house-confined elderly citizens in the surrounding hills. These free meals are delivered by staff members and are tasty examples of nutritious and economical food planning.

It is the side benefits, however, of the noon-time visits which reward the staff. Many of the elderly had previously spent day after day with no contact with the world beyond their front porch but now they dress up for company and insist on entertaining their visitor with conversation or demonstrations of handicrafts. The Senior Citizens Kitchen now brings several of these healthier elderly to Boone Fork for an occasional dinner away from their home.

The other major activity of the Boone Fork kitchen is teaching nutrition and food preparation throughout the surrounding communities. The staff of seven and Mrs. Opal Hughes, a home economist and director of the kitchen, attempt to teach women in the area nutrition and economy in cooking through lectures and community projects. Candy making and quilting draw interested residents to the kitchen for the illustrated lessons.

The Senior Citizens Kitchen also appeals to the younger people in the area. The OEO grants pay for nearly everything the kitchen needs except food. The communities served by the kitchen must finance this portion of the program and the major appeal has been to young groups to sponsor fund-raising projects. Through these projects, the youth assume their share of caring for the elderly.

By TED KESTING

Since December is not known as one of our better fishing months, except to some far-north ice fishermen and some far-south deep-lake anglers, let's talk about updating that miserable-looking tackle box you lug around last year.

It's probably bulging with stuff stashed in every inch of available space. And most of it either went unused or did very little catching when it was used.

The majority of my fish were caught on two or three dozen lures. I know the ones that came through, and so do you. So, why keep those drones cluttering up good space? Why not really get that tackle box in shape for some hardheaded fishing in '69?

The first move is to take everything out of the box. I mean everything—the oil seepage, sand, dried gobs of insecticide and so forth. Then lay all lures on a big table according to their categories, and sizes: Surface lures in this grouping, floating-diving lures there, sinking lures here and bottom-feeding types over there. Ditto with accessories, tools, stringers, lure knocker, spare odds and ends, and so on.

When everything is out of the box, you'll wonder (1) how you got all that conglomeration in the box, (2) why you carried around so much unused stuff all year and (3) how you can pare it to the bone for the coming season.

After the less-worthy lures have been eliminated, it's time to take a close look at the survivors to see if hook points are sharp, color needs touching up and spinners are bright and quick-turning.

So far as line is concerned, Homer Circle, Angling Editor of Sports Afield Magazine, recommends taking no chances that last year's line is okay. Despite some claims to the contrary, he prefers to believe that monofilament deteriorates every time it is used. And being a realist who feels the fish have enough advantage already, he chooses to go after them with as fresh line as he can muster.

So, every new year is started with all new casting, spinning and split-casting lures. Fly line, just many years, depending upon the care you give them.

Back to that previously miserable tackle box, which now is empty, swabbed clean, and ready to be refilled with renewed, reaffirmed lures and hopes for the memorable season ahead.

Replace the lures just as you grouped them, by category—surface lures in these trays, floating-diving lures in those, spinners over there, spoons in this section, and so forth. Keep all soft plastic lures such as worms, lizards and the like, in plastic bags because some of these at jack lacquered lure finishes.

Then, all the accessories are placed according to their frequency of use. The ones you reach for most often should be where they're handiest.

AMONG MY SOUVENIRS
I have been pushed into having some work done on the interior of this office. That was followed by a cleanup job done on the old desk. But history was uncovered when I had at a wire letter tray that has lain in the northwest corner of this same desk for, lol these many years. Into the waste basket went its entire contents, even those in the bottom which had been left untouched, since they weren't in the way. A few minutes after this task was completed, Jimmy Goble brought a letter to me which had reposed in the tray and asked if I recalled answering it. It was a letter from the Western Newspaper Union urgently requesting the return of used WNU plate.
"They're talking about boiler plate—wonder how old this letter is?" I mentally observed. Then I looked for the date of this letter, and there it was—December 6, 1950.
And now—help me not to forget—it's 1969.

MARTIN

By BETTY PREFLATISH

I was very happy to see that two of the young women I nominated to "Outstanding Young Women" won and their autobiographies will be published in book form very soon. I refer to Mrs. Hollie Wicker, of Eastern, who was one of the two I nominated. In my opinion she is an outstanding young woman in Floyd county or any other county, and I am real proud she won, and also my own daughter-in-law, who although born and reared in California has become a very good Floyd countian.

Mr. and Mrs. David Marrs, of Florida, were the holiday guests of his mother, Mrs. David Marrs.

Betty Preflatish and Noah Nichols, of Banner, were the Christmas dinner guests of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gene Preflatish.

Mrs. Georgia Honaker, Tram, is recuperating at her home after spending several days in Our Lady of the Way hospital here.

Drs. John J. and Frances R. Sherman are spending some time with their children, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carr and Jerome Sherman, in California.

Mrs. Carolyn Prater, employee of Our Lady of the Way hospital, has returned to work after spending the holidays with her husband in Hawaii. SP/4 Bill M. Prater had been given a furlough from his duties in Vietnam and met her in Hawaii and there they spent Christmas.

The Christmas party at Our Lady of the Way hospital is an annual affair and is usually attended by all the staff and personnel. This year was no exception. A full-course dinner was served the guests and employees. Special guests were Rev. William G. Poole, Dr. and Mrs. Lowell D. Martin, Dr. and Mrs. Edward B. Leslie.

Mr. and Mrs. Reptis Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Jenkins were the Christmas day dinner guests of her mother, Mrs. Cea Bilitier.

Tony Papano, of P.A.C.E., spent the holidays at his home in Richmond, Indiana. Mrs. Sallie A. Osborne observed her 81st birthday, Christmas Day. Open house was observed all day, and many friends and relatives dropped by to wish her merry Christmas and a happy birthday. She thanks all the guests for their many gifts and cards. Refreshments were served throughout the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Thacker, of Pikeville, were the Christmas Day guests of his mother, Mrs. Alma Coughell, and aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Crisp, at their homes here.

Mrs. Walter Preston and daughter, Mary Lee, of Ft. Myers, Fla., and Miss Jean Osborne, of California, have been the guests of their mother, Mrs. Mary Osborne, who has been very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Peters spent the week-end in Lexington with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Peters.

Rodney Salisbury, of Michigan, is spending the holidays here with his mother, Mrs. Lucy Salisbury.

Mrs. J. A. Stumbo had the following friends and relatives as Christmas day dinner guests: Mr. and Mrs. Edman Barnett and sons, Bruce and Jamie, and Mrs. Nannie Rhoton, all of Martin. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Martin, of Dayton, Ohio, Mrs. Barbara Castle, of Hamilton, Ohio, and Tamie and Tracy Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rector and Mrs. Cornelia Bailey, all of Garrett.

Rev. William G. Poole was the holiday guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Poole, of Covington.

100,000 WELFARE CLIENTS ARE IN JOBS OR TRAINING

One hundred thousand persons now on welfare are being offered opportunities for jobs and training with the beginning of the new year, Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz has reported.

He said that through the Work Incentive program (WIN), training opportunities, job placement, and intensive follow-up and supportive services are available in 500 counties having high concentrations of welfare recipients.

Authorized in early 1968 and administered by the Department of Labor's Manpower Administration, the Win program has so far been established in 37 states, including the District of Columbia, Guam, and Puerto Rico. By July 1, 1969 it will be in effect in all States.

By the end of September this year $74 million in federal funds had been invested to provide approximately 70,000 training opportunities. Participating states contributed $18.4 million in funds or services. An additional 10,000 opportunities were made available through federal and state funds at the program's inception in 1968.

Federal funds totaling $117.5 million were appropriated for the current fiscal year for work and training projects, and for day-care facilities for children whose mothers are participating in the program. WIN training opportunities, as do training opportunities in many other federal job-training programs, often serve more than one person. As the participants, through training or direct placement, move into regular full-time employment, the opportunities are made available to new participants.

It is this multiple use of opportunities, coupled with intensive job placement efforts for participants, that is expected to make possible achievement of the January goal of putting 100,000 persons into training or jobs.

Enrollments will be maintained at this level until July, 1969 when it will rise with the entry of new states into the program.

Wirtz noted that although achievement of the goal will represent a significant step forward, there are still 1.4 million persons currently receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children who are eligible for WIN participation, but for whom training opportunities do not now exist.

Some of these will be assisted in the 1970 fiscal year, which begins July 1, 1969, when WIN programs are established in all 50 states, and when coverage is expanded within states currently operating WIN programs.

Financial Pinch To Hit Ky. Poverty Programs

The war on poverty next year will feel the financial pinch and nearly all of the 22 poverty programs in Kentucky will be affected. Some, in fact, will find themselves penniless.

The U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO)—once the financial Santa Claus with a seemingly unlimited giftbag—isn't going to have enough money to go around. Consequently, OEO is taking a harder look at what each of the state's poverty programs has accomplished.

Justice Jenkins, district supervisor for Kentucky for OEO's Mid-Atlantic region, warned directors of each of the state's poverty programs to expect a cut in funds when their annual grants come up for renewal.

He said there is 20 per cent less money to be divided among the various programs. Kentucky has had as much as $17 million. Even this, Jenkins notes, is above the $14 million Kentucky should have, based on a formula for the number of poor persons in the state.

Several poverty programs have been cut back substantially already because of the money shortage and five have been permanently "defunded." Louisville's program was cut by some 25 per cent and the Knox County Economic Opportunity Council was reduced nearly 30 per cent. Both are considered by OEO as outstanding programs.

Programs which are being dropped this year include: The Rough River Area Council, Hardinsburg; the Purchase Area Economic Opportunity Council, Paducah; the Lower Cumberland Area Development Council, Kuttawa, and the South Central Kentucky Area Development Council, Glasgow.

OEO maintained that each of these programs failed in its efforts to help the poor.

Jenkins also reported that in the next few months OEO will single out 10 to 13 of the state's 22 poverty programs for special "concentrated technical assistance."

These will be programs, he said, which have demonstrated "real potential." The other programs will apparently either have to make good on their own or face eventual extinction.

Shrubs and Plants To Protect

The shrubs and small trees described herein should be well-protected for their role in feeding the birds and other wildlife, especially during winter. Many of these can be transplanted with success; some do not need this, but should be allowed to grow on the farm wherever possible.

1. THE SUMACS. These are among our finest shrubs and small trees. They produce abundantly large, red seed-pods which stand up conspicuously in winter, inviting the birds to come and dine. The robins, cardinals, towhees, catbirds and about 100 other species dine on sumac pods. These bear abundant seeds with a sour taste, but the birds don't mind this. The seed-pods are used by Boy Scouts to make "Indian lemonade."

We have three species of sumacs in our region. These grow in old fields, clearings and along streams. They often grow in poor soils of hillsides and their glowing, scarlet leaves set our hills ablaze in October. The three species are the Staghorn Sumac, the Dwarf or Wingribbed Sumac and the Smooth Sumac.

Burial in the Copley cemetery at Bonanza was directed by the Carter Funeral Home.

Levi Henson, Age 63, Orkney Miner, Dies At McDowell ARH

Levi Henson, 63-year-old miner, of Orkney, died December 22 at the McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital. He had been in failing health for some time.

Born Dec. 25, 1904 at Orkney, he was a son of the late Robert and Darkie Hamilton Henson.

He is survived by two brothers, Beverly Henson, of Orkney, and Effert Henson, of Beaver.

Funeral rites were held at 10 a.m. December 24 at the Joe Reynolds Regular Baptist Church at Beaver, ministers of that church officiating. Burial was made in the Joe Reynolds cemetery there under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

These often grow together. The Dwarf Sumac, also called the "shining sumac," is the most beautiful of all. Its long, compound leaves glisten in the bright sun like silver. Between the leaflets there are wings on the midrib of the leaf; so it is called "the wing-ribbed sumac." It blooms about July and produces a large flower pyramid with many small, greenish-yellow blossoms. These produce the large, brilliant-red seed-pods, which stand upright on the branches in winter. This is a fine tree for ornamental planting and will grow about 20 feet high. The wood is soft and stained yellow.

The Staghorn Sumac is a large-size, sprawling shrub or small tree, sometimes reaching a diameter of 10 inches. Like all the sumacs, it has compound leaves, which grow two feet long and turn a brilliant scarlet in autumn. The large leaves may have as many as 31 leaflets. This sumac can be told easily from the others, as its twigs are like the prongs of a deer covered with fine, velvet hairs. The branches of the staghorn sumac are coated with white hairs—its best distinguishing feature. This sumac blooms in May; the wood is soft and has a beautiful orange luster. The roots are yellowish-orange and were used in pioneer times to make dye. The branches have a thick pith and these are cut, the pith removed, and then they are used for spouts to draw off maple sap from trees at sugaring time. The Staghorn sumac produces red, fuzzy seed-pods, which furnish food to migrating birds and winter residents, too. There is no more glorious sight in October than the flaming glory of the staghorn sumac as it hides the drabness of the earth with a dazzling brilliance. The staghorn sumac is fine for planting for borders or as an ornamental.

The Smooth Sumac has smaller leaves than the staghorn; it also lacks the velvety hairs on the branches. It blooms in June and has greenish flowers. It also produces seed-pods with larger seeds than the others. The leaves and bark are rich in tannic acid and were used in pioneer days for tanning leather. A red dye was formerly made from the red seed-pods. The leaves turn bright-red in autumn and the clusters of seeds are scarlet. The seeds are covered with reddish hairs, rich in malate of lime, which gives them the sour taste. The seeds and bark are medicinal and have been successfully used as a gargle for sore throat. The smooth sumac is also called "Scarlet Sumac."

The Poison Sumac, fortunately, does not grow in the Tri-

State region, but is mostly found in deep, swampy areas farther north. It bears white seed pods and has a watery sap which is highly poisonous. It is related to poison ivy; some persons cannot go near the poison sumac without getting badly poisoned.

The Wild Plum. Our wild plums can be transplanted and make fine ornamentals. They bloom early in the spring and have a showy mass of sheer white blossoms, which are eagerly sought by the winter-hungry bees. This small tree furnishes the first real early food for the starving bees. It produces an abundant crop of small, red plums, sweet and edible, which are used to make jellies and preserves. The fruit is eaten by many birds and animals as well as people. The wild plum will grow in thin soils and helps to prevent erosion. It can also be used as a stock on which to graft domestic plums. The blooms have a sweet perfume and are usually swarming with many kinds of bees in early spring. The wild plum grows in thickets, along roadsides and borders of the woods. It is noted for beautifying our old fields and roadsides with white blossoms in early spring.

Hall, both of Grethel, Oliver Hall, of Grand Rapids, Ohio, Forrest Hall, of Galveston, Otis, Phil and Willie Hall, Jr., all of Lorain, Ohio; two daughters, Mrs. Ruby Keathley, of Galveston, and Mrs. Shirley Hannah, Garden City, Calif.; a brother, John B. THEY, TOO, FOUND IT GOOD . . .

One of the three history-making astronauts spoke from the lonely vastness of space last week of the earth and called it "good." He looked back, not in the perspective of time but of distance—over the miles that separated him from his native habitat.

A cartoonist soon thereafter showed the Good Earth as a jumble of wrecked cars, shacks and grime.

But whose fault is it that our world is so abused, except ours? You and I who know better should do better.

McSurelys Say Blast Was Attempt on Lives

Lexington, Ky.—Mr. and Mrs. Allan McSurely have vowed to return to their dynamite-damaged Pikeville, Ky. home "as soon as we can obtain the means to protect ourselves."

First, however, they said they would file a complaint with the U. S. Attorney for Eastern Kentucky to ask an investigation of the dynamiting.

The McSurelys, who were indicted last year on a seditious charge while doing poverty work in Eastern Kentucky, were routed from their home about 1 a.m. December 13 by a dynamite blast.

It was definitely "an assassination attempt," they told a news conference later in the day, "and not an attempt to scare us or anything like that."

They noted that two sticks of dynamite were thrown at their bedroom window, missing it by about eight inches, by someone "who had cased the joint and knew where our bedroom was and what time we retired."

They charged the attempt was a part of a "conspiracy" in Pike county "to silence us forever—and our baby."

The McSurely's son, a year old this month, was in the house at the time, but neither he nor his parents were injured.

McSurely, an employee of the Southern Conference Education Fund, said he would ask a federal probe of "the conspiracy in Pike county and the billion dollar coal field to deprive us of our constitutional rights."

"We don't expect anything to come out of this, however. Nothing came out of other complaints we filed with the FBI and the U. S. Attorney's office," he added.

McSurely and his wife, along with one other man, were arrested in August, 1967, in a raid by Pike county officials, who charged them with attempting to overthrow the government of the county violently.

That charge later was thrown out when a panel of three federal judges ruled Kentucky's seditious law, under which they had been charged, unconstitutional.

McSurely said Pikeville "is the center of an organized attempt to kill as many people as possible among those who refuse to leave the mountains."

He gave as examples deaths in mining disasters, sickness peculiar to the mining industry and said a greater percentage of mountain men are sent to Vietnam.

The mountain people, he added, know that violence is coming soon.

"Since about the time Bobby Kennedy was shot . . . there has been no doubt in anybody's mind that armed warfare was coming in the mountains," McSurely said.

He said this violence, when it comes "will be caused, promoted and provoked by the guys who run this country—by the guys who run the mountains."

"As they kill us off, they kill off the people who might be able to prevent counter-violence—the people in the ghettos and the people in the mountains," he added.

"I have no doubt that they will kill us," he concluded.

OWNERS GET BREAK ON CAR INSPECTION

Frankfort, Ky. — The Public Safety Department has decided against suspending the registration of all vehicles not inspected by the December 31 deadline under Kentucky's new inspection law.

Deputy Commissioner Robert Shirley said yesterday that although a statute empowers the agency to do so, "we don't have the force or people to implement it . . . Rather than do it halfway, it's better not to do it at all."

Shirley forecast a widening crackdown on uninspected vehicles next year, mainly through roving state police roadblocks.

An undetermined number of motorists has been caught in sporadic roadblocks the past few months, with punishment depending on local courts.

Some drivers have been required merely to show proof of inspection within a certain time. Others have been fined as much as $100, Shirley said.

Hill, Two-Time Winner With Superior Paper On Wild Game Topic

Edward P. Hill, III, formerly of Prestonsburg, this year has won for the second time the award conferred annually by the Southeastern Section of the Wildlife Society for the outstanding paper submitted on the subject of wild game by one of its members.

This year's award was won by Mr. Hill on his work, "Notes on the Life History of the Swamp Rabbit in Alabama." He first won the award in 1963 for his work on his master's degree thesis, entitled, "Effects of Kepone-Peanut Butter Baits on Bobwhite Quail and Certain Other Birds."

A son of Appellate Judge and Mrs. Edward P. Hill, of Frankfort, Mr. Hill is assistant leader of the Alabama Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at Auburn University.

Shirley, who also heads the inspection division, said he would hesitate to take such a drastic step "since this is the first year."

MOORE TO LEAD PROBE OF PESTICIDES EFFECT

Edsel Moore, formerly of Prestonsburg, will head a two-year study being undertaken by the Kentucky Department of Health and its Environmental Services Program to determine the effects of pesticides on human beings and their environment.

Kentucky is one of seven states participating in the study under a U. S. Public Health Service grant.

Four groups of pesticides are included in the study—insecticides, rodenticides, herbicides and fungicides. From the basic chemicals found in these four groups, some 90,000 different pesticide formulas can be made, Moore said.

Study activities will focus on the following: 1. A survey to learn what groups of pesticides are being used in the state, who uses them and who applies them;

2. A human monitoring program staffed by three pathologists, to collect tissue and blood samples from the general public for analyses by the US Public Health Service to determine the effects of pesticide build-up in the human system;

3. Air sampling by two monitoring stations during periods of extensive pesticide use (mid-March through mid-September), with some winter sampling to correlate findings.

4. A review of existing legislation on pesticide control.

"We don't know if present legislation is adequate," Moore said. "That's one of the reasons for this study." The only registration law now on the books is the "Economic Poison Law," passed in 1956. It requires the use of the University of Kentucky to Division of Regulatory Services license all pesticide materials coming into the state.

The university reviews labeling, warning statements, directions for use and conducts some sampling for contents.

While there are no pesticide manufacturers in Kentucky, the state has three formulating plants using materials from outside the state to mix, dilute, repackage and label pesticide formulas.

Frankfort, Ky. — Rates for lodging in Kentucky resort parks will go up next summer. The increase will be $1 to $10 a night.

"We have reviewed thoroughly the existing schedule and have concluded that our rates are too low," Parks Commissioner Robert Gable said yesterday.

"It is the policy of the department to avoid undercutting private enterprise," Gable said.

"We try to anticipate when we might be approaching a rate level that could interfere with development of high quality private facilities and try to eliminate any inequities before they exist."

Rate increases will be in effect on most lodge rooms from April 1 through October 31. Single occupancy charges will be $10 and double $16. The current $9 and $14 rates will continue until April 1 and then go into effect again November 1.

Most cottages will have increased rates for the main summer season, from June 1 through Labor Day, but again the lower rates will apply through March and after Labor Day for the off season.

Here are the current rates and the higher ones for summer: Efficiency cottages, $14 and $16; one-bedroom, $16 and $18; two-bedroom, $20 and $22 and $24 and $28; three-bedroom, $20 and $28 and $26 to $36; "executive" cottages, $39 and $48.

And the place of birth? Not a palace like we think of a palace. No servants, no wealth, they didn't even open a bottle of champagne like the royalty do today. They just said a little prayer. It was just a simple stable. The animals were there. His first home was a barn.

Visitors? There were always a few when a child was born. A few astronomers came. Men of science were they. They didn't really know why they came, except they had seen His star. And for some reason they had to follow that star. For through science they could tell His birth was an event worthy of their study. And shepherds came, too. Not many, just a few. They "saw an angel" who told them of Him. Some said they had a vision that inspired their trip. The visitors came from both extremes, the scientific and the emotional.

What did they see? A newborn baby, just as cute and as precious as any other newborn baby. They saw a mother who knew she was involved in something far greater than she could explain. But they also saw that mother express something she could explain, a mother's love. They saw a husband, a man kind and gentle. Neither could he explain it. He was surprised when the astronomers and shepherds came. He asked why they came, how they knew? He listened in half-astonishment, half-enjoyment. They saw his love for Mary. They saw his love for the Child.

What did they do? They worshipped Him. They knew not fully what they worshipped, they only knew that He was worthy of their worship. They gave gifts. Why? To express a feeling inside themselves. Several years later He was to answer the question of why they gave gifts. "It is better to give than to receive."

What did that birth do? It made me somebody. And you somebody. It made everybody somebody! It changed the course of the world. It called for the highest, and best, in mankind. It lifted men up. It gave men hope. It showed us what the One behind it all is like.

And it took place on the back side of nowhere. Greatness is found in unexpected places.

Schools Too Lax On Protesters, Freshmen Say

A poll of college freshmen shows most believe campus administrators have been too lax in dealing with student demonstrations.

The American Council on Education's Office of Research polled 301,448 freshmen at 435 colleges and universities and reported that 54.5 percent thought that college administrators have not been tough enough in dealing with campus protests.

The survey showed students at technical institutions are more inclined to criticize official laxity in dealing with campus demonstrators than students at private, liberal arts institutions.

Most of the freshmen polled, however, supported a major role for students in shaping college curricula. The survey also disclosed that most believe the chief benefit of a college education is the increase in earning power it provides.
