MAY EXTEND WATER LINE INTO EMMA

Engineers Recommend Extension of Service; City To Seek EDA Help

A move toward possible development of industrial sites at Emma and vicinity was inaugurated last Thursday by the Prestonsburg City Council when it voted to seek federal assistance toward extending water service from the Prestonsburg municipal system to that community.

Cost of the extension job was estimated by Howard K. Bell, Consulting Engineers, Lexington, at $150,000. If the project wins EDA approval, a grant of 70% of the total cost is expected to be available from the federal agency for the work.

The Prestonsburg system has already been extended to the United Fuel Gas Company pipeyard, near Sugar Loaf. The extension to Emma would require the laying of less than two miles of 10-inch line.

Recommending the extension as primarily for the development of industrial sites in the Emma area, the Bell report pointed out that it also would provide water service and fire protection for the existing residential development in Emma bottom and along the route of the proposed pipeline.

The existing Prestonsburg water treatment plant has a capacity of 1,000,000 gallons per day and is operating at less than half its total capacity. The engineering firm said improvements to the water distribution system which are now under way will strengthen the system throughout and provide adequate flows and pressures for the suggested extension.

4 Teacher Places Filled by Hiring 1

Temporary leaves of absence were granted by the Floyd County Board of Education at its meeting Saturday to four teachers, but the vacancies were filled with only one new teacher being employed. The other three teaching places were filled by teachers from schools where the enrollment did not require their services.

The situation, Supt. of Schools Charles Clark commented, came by way of confirmation of his recent statement that Floyd county has a teacher surplus. "If these requests for leaves of absence hadn't come along, it's possible somebody would have been laid off," he said.

Those granted leaves were Betty Baldrige, at Wayland, and no replacement was required for her there; Linda Turner, at Wheelwright, for whom no replacement was hired; Wanda S. Allen at Clark elementary, with Kay Ann Ecroyd being transferred from Bonanza to replace her; Judith H. Carter at Prestonsburg elementary, with Ann Lafferty Howard being

This Town... That World

We doing parents extend ourselves beyond the stretching point, spend ourselves into insolvency and generally make monkeys of ourselves, trying to keep the children happy. Then why should we gripe about a little ice and snow? They make the youngsters happy because school is out—and neither cost us a cent.

Take away the cars, the telephone poles, sidewalks, parking meters and fireplugs, see only the tobogganned youngsters climbing the slope, sleds dragging behind them, others coasting down in the snow of "Post-office Hill" here this week, and you had for yourself a scene that looked for all the world like a Grandma Moses print.

WE DON'T QUALIFY

Eastern Kentucky has been called an American frontier, but it isn't. America is a new country, as nations go, but it has no frontier, not even here in what has been described as a backwater of the stream of material progress.

We can't qualify for the honor. For on the frontier, as has elsewhere well been said, guts and loyalty are valued more than shrewdness and success.

WHO WILL MATCH THIS $25?

Red Cross "ditty bags" filled by various groups went overseas, well before Christmas, to American servicemen. And now the responses from the recipients are beginning to come in. One appreciative letter was received by Mrs. Ester Ward, of the Community Methodist Church, whose name was on the card in a bag received in Vietnam by a civilian governmental employee named George Brown. The native of Washington, N. C. wrote of "the swell job you people are doing at home. It meant so much to me to know some one was thinking of the men over here who are really doing the job."

Then, in a postscript at the bottom of the letter, was this: "Enclosed is a check to the American Red Cross for $25."

That check paid the Red Cross chapter's past-due telephone bill. A bill which had not been paid because we here at home were not appreciative enough to do our part for the Red Cross.

Babe Born In Auto Is Dead at Birth

Earl Griffith, infant son of Melvin and Arlene Stone Griffith, of Pyramid, was dead at birth Tuesday. The child was born in the family automobile, after the auto slid from the icy highway into a ditch at Buckeye en route to the Prestonsburg General hospital. An ambulance was summoned but before it arrived the child had been delivered. Survivors, other than the parents, are six brothers, James Garrett.

COLD CLOSES ALL SCHOOLS

Court Adjourns Here For Week As Travel Hampered by Weather

Near-zero temperatures and roads layered with a sheeting of ice topped by snow closed all Floyd county schools this week and halted the major portion of the Floyd circuit court activities.

The grand jury was empaneled Monday morning and it worked that day. Next morning, however, after a thin coat of snow had fallen on roads that were already ice-slick, Rudolph Spencer, grand jury foreman, showed up for the day's session, to find that other members could not reach Prestonsburg.

The same situation affected Circuit Judge Hollie Conley. So, with only one civil hearing docketed for the week, court was adjourned till next Monday.

Main roads were treacherous Monday, and "side" roads over which school buses must travel to pick up pupils remained dangerous through Wednesday, with prospects for school today (Thursday) dark.

Several minor traffic accidents were reported. The absence of major wrecks was credited to cautious driving.

AV DIRECTOR ASKS PROBE

Justice Department Told KUAC Hearings Violated Civil Rights

David Walls, of Prestonsburg, acting director of the Appalachian Volunteers, has requested a federal investigation of the hearings conducted by the Kentucky Un-American Activities Committee (KUAC), alleging that violation of civil rights in the recent KUAC hearings at Pikeville.

His request was made in a letter last week to Stephen J. Pollack, assistant attorney general in the Civil Rights Division, U. S. Department of Justice.

Walls said violations came under the Reconstruction Civil Rights Act which protests private citizens against the denial of rights under federal laws.

"We believe these laws protect the right to be free from intimidation or punishment for claiming benefits under federal or federally assisted programs guaranteed under the Civil Rights Act of 1968," he wrote Pollack.

"We believe these rights have been flagrantly violated by Kentucky officials acting through KUAC and we believe that a thorough investigation would show that the KUAC investigation and the Pikeville hearings represented a deliberate pre-planned attack on the AVs and the Pike County Citizens Association designed to stop AV federal funds and suppress activity in relation to federal programs."

Walls said the first Pikeville hearings were held in conflict with the AV all-staff meeting in West Virginia and that a request for a change of date was rejected. He informed the Justice Department that the KUAC issued a "report" calling for the complete suppression of AV programs before the second hearings were held and before the transcript of the first hearings were made available.

College To Use Gift By Anonymous Donor On Big Science Center

Dr. Thomas H. Johns, president of Pikeville College, announced this week that an anonymous gift of $100,000 has been received to be used in constructing the $2½ million Science Center on the Pikeville College campus. Presently, natural science classes share two laboratories and two classrooms with an average enrollment of 405 students, thus making present space and facilities desperately inadequate.

With the ever-increasing emphasis placed upon natural science in education, the students at Pikeville College, through the new science facility, will be able to fill the drastic need in the medical fields found in the region.

Funds received for the Science Center thus far include $82,000 from the $50 Million Fund; $380,000 from Appalachia Regional Commission; $600,784 from Title III, and the recent anonymous gift.

Donald Warrix (right), son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Warrix, of Water Gap, was chosen as a recipient of one of three awards given to Prestonsburg Community College students who exhibited their works in an art display at the college.

Originally, student works were displayed for the pleasure and entertainment of the students, faculty and visitors to PCC, but Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the college, wanted to purchase for the school an art work from each of the categories represented in the exhibit—drawing, painting and design.

Mr. Warrix won his award in the drawing category. His work was chosen by a group of faculty members acting as judges. He also exhibited works in the other categories.

The other two awards were won by Kathy Lee Montgomery, of Edna, for her design and Ronald Dee Blair, of West Van Lear, for his painting.

3 Churches, Lodge To House Classes

Temporary quarters in three churches and a lodge hall have been found by the Floyd County Board of Education to house pupils of the Martin elementary school which was destroyed by fire, early last Thursday morning.

The temporary classrooms have been approved by a representative of the Division of Buildings and Grounds, State Department of Education, but inspection of the properties by the state fire marshal, or his representative, is yet to be done.

KNOTT MAN FIRE VICTIM

Bolen Burns to Death In His Flaming Home; Rites Held at Garrett

Eighty-three-year-old Reece Bolen, well-known Knott county man, burned to death last Thursday in the fire which destroyed his home on Rock Fork Creek, a few miles from Garrett.

Mr. Bolen and his son, Theodore, who resided with his father, were the only occupants of the home when the fire struck. The younger Bolen escaped the flames. His father, whom he thought to be close behind him as he left the house, was apparently overcome by smoke.

Cause of the fire was not known but it was believed to have originated in the attic portion of the house.

Born April 5, 1885 at Boly, Knott county, the victim was a son of Wheatley and Nancy Holiday Bolen. He was married to the late Nancy Conley.

Surviving, besides Theodore Bolen, are three other sons, Andy Bolen, of Martin, Raymond Bolen, of Willard, Ohio.

Big Projects Set For Work in 1969

"Tight money" and high interest rates may cut into private construction in this county during coming months, but whatever slack results will be offset by several public projects involving the expenditure of millions.

One of the big building jobs ahead is expected to be let to contract here Friday afternoon when bids on construction of the Right Beaver high school at Eastern will be opened. Phase I of this project, the building of classrooms, lunchroom and library, will involve an estimated $900,000.

Bids will be opened here on the afternoon of January 27 for construction of the Mud Creek Water District system which will cost an estimated $1,261,000. Already under contract is the 75-unit rent-supplement housing project in the Goble-Roberts Addition here. This work, sponsored by eight Prestonsburg

GARAGE FIRE LOSS HEAVY

Sammons Safe-T-Check Building, Equipment, Cash Receipts Lost

Fire destroyed the Sammons Safe-T-Check garage here with all its contents, this morning (Thursday).

The fire was discovered by Dallas Sammons, one of the owners of the business, shortly after work had begun for the day. The flames, apparently originating in the attic of the portion of the building formerly occupied by a restaurant, spread quickly, gutting the interior and ruining all equipment. Also lost in the blaze were approximately $600 in cash and checks and a Chrysler automobile owned by Mason Moore.

No estimate of the loss had been reached today. Artie Sammons, one of the owners, said insurance amounted to only $3,000. Associated with Dallas and Artie Sammons in the business was their father, Dewey Sammons.

Walls of the structure, cracked and threatening collapse, will be razed. The owners expect to rebuild as soon as possible.

TRADES HERE READY SITE

For Power Firm Bldg.; Brown Produce Gets Site for Warehouse

Announcement by the Kentucky Power Company this week that it will construct a $100,000 office building here this year followed lengthy and three-cornered negotiations for a site for the structure and for a second lot to be built by a Prestonsburg firm.

Kentucky Power had originally planned to build on a lot on South Lake Drive which it had purchased from the Harkins estate. This property is at the rear of the Brown Produce Co., which needed the site for additional building. Brown acquired the property owned by Marvin Music and others at the corner of Dings and Lake Drive which included a former service station and a vacant lot formerly occupied by the home of the late J. P. May. The power company and Brown effected an exchange of properties.

But, adjacent to the service station lot was the home of Dr. H. E. Midkiff which was needed to afford the power company the space desired for its new installation. This was purchased, and Dr. Midkiff already has begun construction of an all-electric home on the Highland avenue extension, in the vicinity of Central avenue.

Chester Gayheart, 30, Former Floyd Resident, Dies of Gunshot Wound

LOVILL GOES TO FLANAGAN

New Reservoir Manager Was at Dewey 3 Years; 1½ Million Visit Lake

Chester Gayheart, 30, former East McDowell resident, died of a gunshot wound in the chest at his home at Plymouth, Ohio. A coroner's jury ruled that the wound was self-inflicted.

A farmer, he was born Sept. 6, 1938 at East McDowell, a son of Green Gayheart, of East McDowell, and the late Lurana Tackett. His wife, Mrs. Glenda Spencer Gayheart, survives.

Dean Murray, Dewey Reservoir manager, announced this week that George Lovill, chief maintenance man at Dewey Dam for the last three years, has been promoted to the post of reservoir manager at John Flanagan Dam, near Haysi, Virginia. Ronald Brickley, who also has worked at Dewey Dam the last three years, was named to the post vacated by Mr. Lovill at Dewey.

Mr. Murray reported the estimated number of visitors at Dewey Lake during 1968 stands at 1,506,500—145,700 more than for the preceding year.

The reservoir manager added that the 1968 visitor total would have been even higher, had adequate camping and picnic facilities been available. He said that plans for the coming season include a cooperative effort on the part of the Corps of Engineers and the Kentucky Department of Parks to provide such facilities.

Acquisition of properties in the Goble Branch area has been under way for several months to provide a large camping area but there was no word that this has progressed far enough for immediate development.

Mrs. Clark Named Purgation Clerk

Joe Helton, Democrat, and W. E. Boyd, Republican, members of the Floyd County Purgation Board, voted Monday the appointment of Mrs. Curtis Clark, of Prestonsburg, as clerk of the board. The action ended several weeks of indecision on the naming of a clerk.

The purgation board will convene for 10 days this month to begin its annual task of purging from the voting lists the names of voters who have died or moved or who for other reasons are not legal voters. Law restricts the length of its session to 36 days.

HEAD START GETS FUNDS

Floyd Summer Program Will Serve About 500; Area Counties Benefit

Floyd, Johnson, Martin and Pike counties and the city of Paintsville have received a federal grant of $571,312 for four full-year Head Start programs, and a carry-over of funds in Floyd county for continuation of this county's summer Head Start program. The announcement was made last week by W. Astor Kirk, director, Mid-Atlantic Region, OEO.

The applicant agency is the Big Sandy Community Action Program, and the local share of the grant is $152,932. Of the total federal figure, $147,900 are unexpended funds from previously approved programs.

Floyd county's program, to extend two months next summer, will benefit from 470 to 500 pre-school children. The program, as in the past, will be conducted by the Floyd County Board of Education. Harry Wallace is director of Head Start in this county.

In Johnson county the Head Start program is designed to benefit 75 pre-school children in five classes of 15 children each. The staff will consist of seven professional, and five non-professional, employees. They will be helped by 10 volunteer workers and the program will be operated by the Johnson County Board of Education.

The Martin county program will accommodate 130 pre-school children in eight classes of 16 children each. Staff will consist

Utility Rate Boost Okehed by Council

The City Council last Thursday approved the raise in water and gas rates here which was recommended by the Municipal Water & Gas Commission on the basis of income needs outlined in a report by Howard K. Bell, Consulting Engineers, Lexington.

The increase, confined mainly to minimum rates, is intended to boost revenues $38,720 above the 1966-'67 income in order to provide sufficient funds for the two city-owned utilities to meet projected operating costs, principal and interest on existing and new revenue bond issues, provide required reserves and make funds available for needed extension to the existing utility systems.

The water rate increases are: Minimum (2,000 gallons per month), from $2.25 to $3; next 3,000 gallons, from $1.20 to $1.25 per 1,000 gallons; next 5,000 gallons, from $1.05 to $1.15; next 5,000 gallons, from $1 to $1.10; all other quantities up to 100,000 gallons, increased 5c per 1,000 gallons above the previous rate.

P'BURG BLDG. COST PLACED AT $100,000

System Modernization Also Seen for Area During Current Year

Expansion of Kentucky Power Company facilities in 1969 will cost the utility about $40 million, it was announced Wednesday by Waldo S. La Fon, executive vice-president of the company.

The development will include a $100,000 office building here and modernization of distribution in this county.

"This year's expansion program represents another tremendous investment in the future of our 18-county service area where we serve 100,000 customers," Mr. La Fon said.

He pointed out that major items in Kentucky Power's construction plans include $26½ million for generation, $6 1/4 million for transmission lines, $5 million for distribution lines and more than $1 1/4 million for stations.

Under way for over two years, the $100 million addition to the Big Sandy Plant near Louisa is slated for completion this year. The 800,000-kilowatt generating Unit 2, when completed this summer, will join the 265,000-kilowatt Unit 1, raising Big Sandy's capacity to 1,065,000 kilowatts—the largest investor-owned generating station in Kentucky.

Adjacent to Big Sandy Plant is Baker Station, the 765,000/345,000-volt station named in honor of F. M. Baker who retired last year as executive vice-president of Kentucky Power. An estimated $500,000 will be spent on this station in 1969, preparatory to putting it in service when Big Sandy Unit 2 is completed.

Baker Station is a vital link in the 1,200-mile super-high-voltage system being built to serve the seven companies of the American Electric Power System, of which Kentucky Power is a part.

"The 765,000-volt network will become the world's most powerful and most efficient when completed in 1972," La Fon said. He explained that over 100 miles of the 765-kv line would cross Kentucky Power's service area. It spans Eastern Kentucky, from the Ohio River near Greenup to Big Sandy Plant and south to the Kentucky-Virginia border near Elk Horn City. It interconnects with Ohio Power to the north and Appalachian Power to the south, both sister companies in the AEP System.

An estimated $4½ million will be spent in 1969 to complete this 765-kv line in Kentucky.

Baker Station is also served by a 345,000-volt line, eight miles of it in Kentucky. This line, slated for a $200,000 expenditure in 1969, will interconnect with Appalachian Power to increase the reliability of the interconnect.

Utility Rate Boost Okehed by Council

The only change in gas rates was on the minimum (2,000 cubic feet). This item was increased from $2 to $2.75 per month.

Gas rates outside the corporate limits of Prestonsburg also were unchanged, except for the minimum change from $2.40 to $3.30.

The sewer system fee of 70 percent of the net water billing to all customers stood unchanged. Last week's increase in rates was the first made since 1957. It was calculated that to the average water user the rate increase will amount to $1.53 a month. This is based on a per-customer average consumption of 5,000 gallons of water a month. Under the old rate the charge for 5,000 gallons was $5.85, to which was added 70 percent for the sewer service, or $4.10 for a total of $9.95. The charge for 5,000 gallons of water under the new rate will be $6.75, plus $4.73 for sewer service, or a total of $11.85.

Will It Be A New "Dust Bowl"?

Impoundment of the water behind Fishtrap dam began last Friday, and this fact causes one to wonder if the lake that will result from this action will be the scenic attraction its setting graciously lends itself to or if it will become known eventually as "The Coal Dust Bowl."

That mountain lake should be a thing of beauty, set down as it is among towering hills and cradled in natural environs that would invite visitors over the years from all parts of the nation.

But, over in Virginia and possibly in the Kentucky headwaters of the stream that is now making that new lake, are coal mines which feed into the water a heavy load of coal washings. For years this has made the stream as black as the inside of the proverbial hat. That is the other, and the very sordid, side of the picture.

The coal dust can be kept out of that stream. It can be kept out of Johns Creek and Dewey Lake. The measures necessary to keep it out aren't so costly that they would bankrupt or even seriously affect the success of the mineowners.

But there is an appalling lack of interest on the part of the public. Consequently, there is a commensurate lack of interest on the part of officials. Unless these streams are protected from such pollution, all the talk of fighting pollution is, to us, so much gobbledygook.

nection between Tri-State Station, south of Ceredo, W. Va., and Baker Station near Louisa. In addition to these developments affecting the entire company, La Fon said that many other major projects are slated in 1969 to improve the reliability and integrity of electric service within the three operating divisions of Ashland, Pikeville and Hazard.

Ashland Division Highlights

About six miles of line between the Bellefonte and Raceland stations are being converted from 34,500 to 69,000 volts. An estimated $100,000 will be spent this year to complete the project.

In connection with stations, about $90,000 will be spent to increase the capacity of the South Shore Station; an estimated $60,000 will be spent to increase the capacity of the Hitchins Station; about $45,000 will be spent to construct a new station in Ashland to serve additional load in connection with the further industrial development of urban Ashland, and about $30,000 to convert Gray's Branch Station near Greenup from 34,500 to 69,000 volts and to increase its capacity.

Major distribution projects include continuation of a three-year program to convert the Ashland urban area from 4,000 to 12,000 volts. An estimated $500,000 will be spent this year on the project expected to be completed in 1970. The modernization of the Ashland street lighting system continues after one full year of the activity, with $150,000 slated to be spent in 1969, raising the total spent by the company on the program to $220,000.

The new Grayson office building, under way since last year, will be completed this year at a total cost of about $100,000.

Pikeville Division Projects

Transmission construction in the Pikeville Division includes a $500,000 expenditure to increase the capacity from 46,000 to 69,000 volts on a total of 32 miles of lines served from the Beaver Creek Station to Fleming Station in Letcher county, to Elwood Station in Pike county and to McKinney Station in Floyd county. The 12 miles of 46,000-volt line between Henry Clay and Elkhorn City stations will be rebuilt to 69,000-volt capacity, with $200,000 slated to be spent this year.

Stations in the division calling for major expenditures are the new East Prestonsburg Station (46/12 KV) to be built this year at a cost of $85,000; the new South Pikeville Station (46/12 KV) which is under construction and scheduled for completion in 1969, with $85,000 budgeted this year, and additions to existing stations in Floyd and Pike counties to total over $125,000.

Major distribution projects include the continuation of the modernization in the Prestonsburg area, converting the system to 12,000 volts with $70,000 budgeted this year on the project slated for completion in 1970 and the modernization and conversion from 4,000 to 12,000 volts in the Pikeville area with $100,000 to be spent in 1969, bringing the total cost of this project to over $170,000.

The new Prestonsburg office building, previously announced, will be built in 1969. The company recently secured a new site for the building on the corner of North Lake Drive and Dings street, across from the entrance to the Mountaineer Parkway. The new site includes an abandoned service station, an adjoining lot and the home in the back of the station. Over $100,000 will be spent on construction of the new Prestonsburg office.

Hazard Division Expansion

Already under construction in the Hazard Division, the Blackey-Cornettsville 34,500-volt line is being built to 69,000-volt capacity. An estimated $65,000 will be spent on this nine miles of line this year.

The new station at Lohair (34.5/12 KV) now under construction will be completed at a cost this year of $80,000. The new Jackson 69,000-volt station will be completed this year, with $50,000 budgeted in 1969 on the project which will have a total cost of about $190,000. In addition, a total of $186,000 will be spent this year on station improvements at Buffalo, Combs, Bluegrass and Chavies.

Modernization of the urban Hazard area distribution from 4,000 to 12,000 volts is expected to cost $230,000 in 1969. Modernization of a portion of the Jackson 12,000-volt distribution system will cost $32,000 this year. Conversion of the Leslie county 12,000-volt distribution system to 34,500-volt distribution system will cost $525,000 in 1969, with another $100,000 slated to complete the project in 1970.

This year will see the completion of the new Hazard Division service building at Lohair, at a total cost of more than $800,000. The new Whitesburg office building continues under construction and is slated for completion this year at a total cost of $190,000. Construction is scheduled to start this year on the new Jackson office, estimated at a total cost of about $100,000.

"In its report to the Water & Gas Commission, suggesting the rate increase need, the Howard K. Bell firm commented:

"Obviously, the argument will arise concerning what appears to be a high water rate, particularly in the minimum bill category. In support of a rebuttal to this argument, there are numerous cities that are finding it necessary to go to $3, $4 and even higher minimum bills with commensurate increases in the other steps in order to expand their capabilities for meeting ever-increasing demands.

"Those cities that adopted substantially higher rates some years back, such as Mt. Sterling at $2.90 since 1962, find themselves in better position for financing new expansion than those who have tried to get by with the lowest possible rates. It would appear that a $3 minimum water bill is fast becoming an average rate level for small and medium-size cities. Recently, Paris, Ky. adopted a water rate with a minimum bill of $3.40 per month, with the sewer charge being set at 70 percent of the water bill."

The water system here has 1,300 customers; the gas system, 1,080.

The engineering firm in its report pointed out that there are three bond issues presently outstanding and that a fourth has been committed to the Economic Development Administration for non-grant funds necessary for completion of waterworks improvement now under construction.

The construction work now being done will, in addition to improving water lines and service within the city limits, extend service, south of Prestonsburg, to the United Fuel Gas Company pipeyards, near Sugar Loaf, and, in the opposite direction, to the vicinity of the state-owned property, near Auxier.

Completion of improved water facilities here is expected to result in a reduction of fire insurance rates. The drop could be as much as 20 percent, officials have been told.

Funeral rites were held Dec. 23 at the Harold R. Davis Funeral Home at Auburn Heights, Mich., the Rev. Lawrence Dickens officiating. Burial was made in the Christian Memorial Estates cemetery at Rochester, Michigan.

'Whatsoever Things'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

Back several years ago I ran across what is, to me, one of the most beautiful stories I have ever heard. Maybe you are familiar with it, maybe not. I still want to pass it along. A fellow by the name of G. W. Rosenberg told it. He's now dead, but the story lives.

Dr. Rosenberg was riding a train across the state to attend a conference. There were few people on the train, and he couldn't keep from noticing a young man who seemed very nervous. Everyone seemed to notice how restless and tense he was. He would take a seat, sit for a moment, get up and move. Finally Dr. Rosenberg went over to where the young man was, sat down beside him and spoke. "What's your trouble, son? Is something bothering you? I would certainly like to be of help if I can."

isn't something white . . . I just can't look."

The train slowed for the curve and jerked a bit, stopping for the water tank. Nearly forgetting everything, Dr. Rosenberg just about shouted, "Look, son, look!"

The little farm house was there amid the trees. But you could hardly see it for the white. The parents had taken everything white they could get their hands on and hung it out on the hillside. Every sheet, bedspread, towel, sock, handkerchief—everything white they could find—was hung on that hillside.

The boy became very nervous and pale. His fingers gripped the cheap suitcase. He was out of the car before it had completely stopped. The last passengers saw of him he was running up the hill to his home as fast as his feet would carry him.

The young man looked at Dr. Rosenberg for a moment and then spoke. "I don't mind telling you. Do you know where Springvale is?" Dr. Rosenberg answered, "Isn't it the next stop?" The young man spoke again. "Yes, sir. We will be there in just a few minutes. That's my home. I lived there until three years ago. My mother and father live there still. But three years ago I had a quarrel with my father. I told him he would never see me again. I packed my bags and left. It has been hard during the past three years. Many times I have wanted to go back. I wrote mother often. I wrote her last week and told her I would be passing through. I told her I would like to stop for a moment if it was all right with Daddy. I told her that if Daddy said it was all right for them to hang something white outside the house and I could see it when the train passed. I told her not to do it unless Daddy agreed. She would do it anyway, you know."

It is an ageless story. Remember how He told it: "But while he was yet at a distance, his father saw him and had compassion, and ran and embraced him and kissed him . . ." The white sheets are still out. And so many need to come home.

There was a period of quietness. The boy looked out the window. Then the terrain became familiar. The train was nearing the house where his parents lived. He spoke to Dr. Rosenberg excitedly. "Mister, would you look for me? It is the next house, just around the bend. I just can't look. If there

Man Gets Two Years For 'Yellow Pages' Fake

A man who has sent cards designed to look like bills for Yellow Pages advertisements to businessmen in Kentucky has been sentenced to two years imprisonment by a federal judge in Baltimore, Md. according to Bill Gibson, South Central Bell manager.

Sentenced on 28 counts of illegally using mails was 26-year-old Charles G. Leopold, of Los Angeles county, California.

Leopold was convicted for sending statements to Maryland businessmen in connection with a business directory venture. The statements, sent out nationwide, contained a yellow script, yellow printing and a picture of a yellow book. They were similar to those sent out by the telephone company for Yellow Pages advertising.

A postal law amendment states that matter which could be interpreted as a bill, invoice, or statement of account due but is actually a solicitation for the order of services, is nonmailable matter unless it carries in conspicuous and legible type in contrast with the other printing a solicitation for the order of goods and/or services and not a bill, invoice, or statement of account due. You are not under obligation to make any payments on account of this offer unless you accept this offer."

Gibson said, "Mr. Leopold is not the only person operating misleading Yellow Pages solicitation in Kentucky. We have received complaints of other such solicitations for about five years. The telephone company has followed a policy of reporting such incidents to the postal inspector."

EDA DESIGNATES FIVE KENTUCKY COUNTIES AS DEVELOPMENT DISTRICT

Floyd and four other counties last week became eligible for federal assistance in planning and carrying out programs for economic growth.

The counties became eligible upon designation as an economic development district by the Economic Development Administration, an agency established in the U. S. Department of Commerce to promote economic growth in lagging areas of the Nation.

The area is officially known as the Big Sandy Economic Development District. Counties in the district are Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Pike.

The purpose of the district program is to encourage counties to pool their talents and resources to combat economic problems that cross county lines and to help create jobs and boost income in lagging areas.

The Public Works and Economic Development Act requires that a district contain at least two EDA-qualified areas. It may also include economically healthy counties.

All five counties in the Big Sandy district are qualified for EDA assistance because of high unemployment or low family income.

A district also must include at least one "growth center"—a community of not more than 250,000 persons which can contribute to the development of the lagging areas in the district.

The city of Pikeville and the Prestonsburg-Paintsville area are the growth centers for the Big Sandy District. The latter growth center area includes the cities of Prestonsburg and Paintsville and a 13-mile portion of U. S. Highway 23, which links the two cities.

The EDA designation makes these benefits possible:

1. Bonuses of 10 per cent above what they would normally receive in public works grants are available to all five counties, since they are re-development areas.

The Big Sandy Area Development Council, which has offices in Prestonsburg, prepared an Over all Economic Development Program for the five-county area. Preparation of an OEDP was required prior to designation by EDA.

The district organization includes representatives from each of the five counties. As the official economic development agency for the district, it will help develop specific projects to generate new jobs and increase incomes in the area.

SPECIAL CHILDREN... SPECIAL EDUCATION

By RICHARD D. HOWARD
 Director, Special Education, Pikeville College

Suppose a retarded person enters your office today looking for employment—what would you do? Read what some of your colleagues say.

"I like to hire mentally retarded workers," says a Los Angeles plating manufacturer. "When they don't know, they know they don't know and say so—not like many normal workers who bluff or lie. That causes mistakes and costs me money."

"Hiring retarded men and women isn't kindness or charity," insists a Somerville, Mass., electronics company president. "It's good business with us. They're good workers."

"They do a full day's work for a full day's pay," adds a New Jersey toy manufacturer. "From a purely dollars and cents viewpoint, they're unbeatable."

Enlightened union officials are also beginning to welcome retarded workers. "When I was first asked to help train 25 retarded boys to become butchers, I thought they were joking," reflected Jerry Greenfield, president of Meat Cutters Local 657 in Miami. "But I learned! Some of these boys are now journeymen butchers. And 12 will soon be holding jobs as meat wrappers, freezers and stockmen—jobs that pay well and are important but which, in this short labor market, I can never keep filled."

In a Minneapolis factory, girls once considered unemployable because of their limited abilities to learn academic subjects, now sort pieces of puzzles for painting. "They sort from memory," explains factory owner H. D. Berman. "There isn't a mark on any one of these pieces—there are 240 possible combinations and 240 chances to make a mistake. But they don't. If they did, I wouldn't keep them."

In Baltimore, department store president Albert D. Hutzler, Jr., who was named Employer of the Year by the National Association of Retarded Children, told me, "We have given on-the-job training to more than a thousand girls. Some have stayed with us as full-time waitresses. Others have gone on to better jobs in the company and community. One recently became a junior buyer in a drugstore chain."

Louis Lustenberger, president of W. T. Grant, 1964 NARC Employer of the Year award winner, whose variety stores enthusiastically employ retarded workers in many capacities, says, "They have lower turnover and seem to enjoy jobs which other workers think are beneath them or are doing as a stopgap."

Another characteristic of retarded workers is their punctuality. At Remco Industries in Harrison, N. J., one of America's leading toy manufacturers, the absenteeism of the retarded is less than 2 per cent compared to the general plant rate of 7 per cent. Furthermore, the retarded workers' lateness figure is 5 per cent below the plant average. During a heavy snowstorm several years ago, a retarded woman worker was the only one, other than the owner and foreman, who showed up.

"Sure, had doubts—I never dreamed it would work out so well," admits Remco President Saul Robbins, who began hiring retarded employees in 1956. "I know one mentally retarded woman who leaned on the shoulder of her father for 27 years. To-day, when she walks into our plant in the morning and leaves in the afternoon, leaning on her shoulder for guidance is a blind man. I was privileged to be part of this miracle."

Despite the assets of retarded workers, many employers still resist hiring them. Unfortunately, many people don't understand what mental retardation is, confusing it with mental illness. But the handicaps are entirely different. Mental illness is a disorder of the personality or emotions, the mind is "sick."

Mental retardation, on the other hand, is an impairment of the mind or intellect—a failure to develop normally. The degree of retardation ranges widely from mild to severe. Many mildly retarded persons develop skills and aptitudes which excel those of normal persons.

Today 2 million mentally retarded persons are working in private industry. A million more of America's 6 million retarded could be usefully employed, the U. S. Department of Labor recently reported. If properly trained, at least 85 per cent of the retarded between 16 and 64 could help support themselves.

In fact, many men and women with this widely misunderstood handicap show better attendance and safety records and better job attitudes after training than do some normal workers.

Because of the soaring birth rate, the number of persons whose minds stopped growing before their bodies is increasing in the U. S. About 126,000 babies born this year will be diagnosed as retarded. In future years, many will enter the job market.

During the past few years, more has been done for the retarded in America than in the past few centuries. But although 50 per cent more retarded obtained jobs this year than last year, the trend is only in its infancy. Too many job doors are still clamped tight.

But as President Johnson reminds, "Equality of opportunity in America must never be restricted by an IQ number." Sargent Shriver, who was Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, adds, "It's high time we stopped selling the retarded short and started looking at what we are doing—or not doing—to train them for work which they are perfectly capable of performing!"

NEW PROGRAM SET TO TRAIN 4,000 APPALACHIAN JOBLESS

Washington — Four thousand jobless or underemployed persons in depressed urban and rural areas of Appalachia extending through 11 states will soon begin training in two new programs announced by Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz.

The two training proposals were submitted by the AFL-CIO Appalachian Council based in Charleston, W. Va. They will affect jobless or underemployed persons in sections of Kentucky, Alabama, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

Kentucky has an allocation of $434,607 for the training of 450 persons.

The U. S. Department of Labor will invest almost $4 million in the two-year programs.

TIDITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

Little or Big?

When a history of our present-day America is written, there will have to be a chapter on the passing of small things. Whether this is wholly bad or wholly good, I will not say, for I do not know. Anyway, when we look back to earlier periods in our lives, we who are past middle-age, it is nearly always of small things that we find ourselves thinking.

Suppose we begin with our native communities. In my passion for studying maps, especially those made 40 or 50 years ago, I am somewhat amused by the smallness of such areas as my own Fidelity community. It was barely four miles to the Kentucky-Tennessee state line, and from six to eight miles to landings along the Tennessee River. But to the south of us, even though there were only four miles of Kentucky another whole community and its school seemed as firmly fixed as our Fidelity. To the east and Tennessee River there were two more communities, quite distinct when I was a boy, one of them about halfway between Fidelity and the river, the other at the river itself. To the west a small river formed a barrier, and outlined another community. Why, within a seven-mile radius there were in whole or in part some 10 communities. Each Christmas, when I take an annual Christmas Bird Count for the American Audubon Society, I am confined to an area seven and a half miles in all directions from the starting point. Three Springs, south of Bowling Green. We try to get out four parties in this area, but sometimes have to be contented with fewer. Imagine having a vast expanse like that even to know at first hand when I lived at Fidelity. There were places not over three miles away that I had never seen before I left home; and some of them remain unseen to this day.

In the area covered by the Mammoth Cave National Park there were 11 schools with portions of fully that many more. And yet the extreme length of the park is slightly under 15 miles, its width varying from three to eight miles. On one ridge, now accessible by car in a few minutes, were three one-roomed schools. And this matter of the small community was universal. I could name a dozen counties where this prevailed.

In the western counties of the state and all but some of the mountain counties, and a few bordering ones, the one-roomed school is gone. One lone one-roomed school is the exception in the western area, and its days are obviously numbered. Before we know it, the younger generation will know as little about the one-roomed school as older people know about oxtails.

With the coming of voting machines, dozens of voting places, some of them very small, have vanished. A great many people are still undecided whether this is good or bad, and some would like to see the small voting place, the small school, the small business restored. Just how they would go about this, however, no two people agree.

In some denominations the very small rural church persists. Loyalty to the older time is hard to resist. Sometimes a religious hornet's nest has been stirred up when it was suggested that two small congregations would be better off if they united. Not often have I read of any such union, in any neighboring county.

Every once in a while I hear some old-timers, while we are filling our carts with groceries at the super-market, longing for the typical country store. They remind me of a friend of mine who went to his grave horrified at the loss of the one-roomed country school; but his children attended the best school

In Memory of Lee Wallen

BECAUSE THERE IS A GOD

We'll always have another dawn When morning ends the night. We'll always know this world of ours Will somehow turn out right.

A peace will strangely fill our hearts When weary work is done. And though the storm is long and rough A bright new day will come.

Because there is a God I'm sure We'll always have a smile. And somehow we will find a way To make each day worthwhile.

A friend will bring us endless day And love will live through all— We'll have a winter wonderland Where snowflakes softly fall.

Because we live by simple faith With beauty ever near, Because we only know a trust And never have a fear.

Our hope is always just the same Our God will guide us through And we shall find a part of Him In everything we do.

I do not know why days are sad Why life must bring a care, I only know that God above Is ever watching there.

And sometimes though our hearts smile, Though dark the road you trod You'll always find your way at last

Because there is a God.

'JESSE JAMES VILLAGE' IN MAMMOTH CAVE AREA PLANNED BY P'BURG MEN

Two Prestonsburg men will in cooperation with Western Kentuckians develop a multi-million-dollar tourist attraction near Cave City, Ky., adjacent to Mammoth Cave National Park, it was announced here recently.

Involved in the development are Ed Music, Prestonsburg auto dealer who has headed the installation of skylifts at Jenny Wiley and Natural Bridge State Parks, and his son-in-law, Estill Lee Carter, president of the Prestonsburg Chamber of Commerce.

In addition to a skylift, the development in the Mammoth Cave area is planned to include construction of "Jesse James Village" and the state's first wax museum featuring historical figures.

Jesse James Village is planned as a tourist attraction because the site of the proposed development is near the spot where Jesse James and his bandit gang staged a stagecoach robbery.

Nature Trails By RUFUS M. REED

Loss of Birds Is Appalling

We are losing too many of our valuable birds, and if the loss continues nature will be wholly unable to maintain her checks and balances of the exploding insect populations, and our human life will be endangered. The indiscriminate use of DDT has almost wiped out some of our best birds. The little house wren has become exceedingly scarce during the past few years — so scarce I haven't seen one in several years; the bluebirds have been reduced in numbers until they are far too scarce; cardinals, too, have fallen victims of DDT, and the bald eagle is in grave danger of extinction from eating fish contaminated with the same insecticide.

Scientists at the University of Wisconsin recently concluded that DDT is wiping out large regional population of birds. Also, the Association for the Advancement of Science condemned the use of this pesticide as dangerous, not only to birds but to other forms of wildlife.

We are also losing far too many birds on their fall and spring migrations—a loss that is caused by the modern structures man has erected on or near their flyways. Roger Tory Peterson, author of "Field Guide to the Birds," recently wrote: "A single television tower can wipe out thousands of birds in one night; an ice storm can also destroy millions of birds; so can hurricanes wipe them out in vast numbers."

Last September, when the birds were flying south in a hurry, nearly 6,000 were killed in a single night by flying into two high TV towers at Nashville, Tenn. The whole area around the towers was littered with dead birds, mostly warblers, which migrate by night. A Nashville woman who was appalled by this sad loss, gathered up as many dead birds as she could and put them in cold storage; she sends them out to scientists and museums for study of their fall plumage and the sex of each. She says, "Our freezer is still full of the poor little victims; I have embalmed a large collection of specimens for future study."

Figure this loss wholesale: If nearly 6,000 birds were killed in one night at the Nashville TV towers, how many do you suppose were killed all over the United States during last fall's migrations.

Tall buildings, lighthouses and other modern structures kill multiplied thousands of birds on migration. Probably as many as 10,000 birds have been killed by flying into the Washington monument, which towers 555 feet and is on the flyway of several birds. One morning, 150 dead warblers were found at the foot of the Washington monument; since this monument was completed in 1885, it has been the cause of the death of multiplied thousands of birds.

Lighthouses also take a heavy toll. There are many of these along the Atlantic Coast; some of these have a brilliant white light that can be seen for miles. The white light is the kind that attracts the birds and causes them to fly into the towers to meet a sudden death.

Lighthouses with red lights that blink frighten birds away; so it would seem that all lighthouses should be required to have red lights that flash. Most birds flying at night use the stars or the moon for guiding their course; so when they see a white light suddenly burst on the horizon, they get confused and fly straight into it.

We should have a greater understanding of bird migration and a deeper desire to protect the birds from wholesale slaughter. On any night in September, when the warblers and vireos and finches are migrating south, if we could look high into the sky and could see them we would be amazed at their great flocks; high up there would be multiplied millions of birds, all flying in one general direction, heading south. These birds fly by night and stop at day to feed and rest.

The northern migration in spring presents even more hazards for the birds. While high towers take a heavy toll of the spring migrants, their worst enemy is sudden cold snaps, high wind-storms, ice storms, which may coat their wings with ice and cause them to have to come down. Many of these spring migrants are heading for the Far North to rear their families and they often run into severe ice storms that destroy multiplied thousands of them. One severe storm over Lake Michigan once struck a flock of multiplied thousands of Lapland Longspurs heading for the Far North and it killed or destroyed most of them. The water of the lake was covered with dead birds and many of their bodies drifted ashore. Once when there were millions of whistling swans—there are now but thousands—a great flock of them flying north was suddenly caught by an ice storm while miles high. Swans fly higher in migration than most other birds, several miles above the earth, so high they cannot be seen. This great flock flew into an ice storm, which coated their wings and brought them down, crippled, frozen, worn down by exhaustion. So many swans fell they covered most of four counties; those that weren't killed, were so cold and exhausted, they didn't try to escape when people ran to them to club them to death. Many were killed, but a few kind-hearted persons picked up many of the half-frozen birds, carried them home and tried to save their lives.

Birds such as purple martins, barn swallows, scarlet tanagers and bluebirds often come back a little too early and many are frozen to death by a sudden cold snap in early April. As many as seven dead martins were picked up under a large martin house one cold spring. The birds also starve during cold springs, as the weather keeps insects from flying and the birds can find no food. A man found a martin lying on the ground, too weak to fly; it was wasted away to "skin and bone," as the weather had been too cold for the insects to fly out.

We need to develop a greater feeling of sympathy for our feathered friends who come back after the long winter is over to fill the land with music and joy but often meet a tragic death from many disasters.

Radiant Rays

Psalm 34:5 — They looked unto Him and were radiant.

"Where is 1968?" "The year seemed so short." "My, my — here it is 1969 already." "And I had planned so many things for 1968."

Where has the year gone? Some would reply, "Into oblivion;" others, "Into the record books;" and still others, "Down the streams of time." All are true, but old records have a way of popping up again. The same water in today's stream may flow again a century from now. Rest assured you'll see 1968 again. It will reappear many times. It may be every day in that new baby. It may be monthly in that new magazine subscription. It could be yearly in that wedding anniversary. It may be in decades and it may only be once—in Judgment.

You could be dreading to look at 1968 again. You may hear 1968 every hour in that screeching, screaming wreck caused by drink. You may experience it daily through lustful habits begun last year, or yearly in that anniversary that reminds you of that wife and baby you had. It may show up 10 years from now in the form of lung cancer. It may be in 1968 when you are released from prison, and you may not be reminded of it until the "fullness of time." Know this! 1968 has not gone. It is only temporarily out of sight. It may never be out of mind. What can we do to redeem it or to improve upon it? One of the better ways would be to spend more time in the reflective life; in prayer, in the Word, in reading, in meditating. The less time we devote to "things" the happier we'll be at the end of 1969.

God has given us a "clean sheet." May we make the most of it. It is hoped this column may be of some assistance in providing "heavenly sunshine" on your path as you journey along Route 1969. For some of us it will take us directly to Heaven. For others it will lead through illness, grief, poverty, riches, thrills, adventure and excitement. Wherever 1969 winds — the by-ways will be more attractive if we see them through spiritual eyes.

Won't you make a date, now, to walk with me down this road? We'll lend strength to each other.

"... We are journeying unto the place of which the Lord said, I will give it you: Come thou with us and we will do thee good" (Numbers 10:29).

"We decide hourly which way our soul shall go in every emotion or thought which ripens into an act; in every act that becomes a habit; and in every habit that goes to form character. And character fixes human destiny" — (W. F.)

"Make no little plans. They have no magic to still men's blood—make big plans, remembering that a noble diagram once recorded will never die" (Daniel H. Burnham, Planner of Chicago's Lake Front).

Reed's Fifth Volume Of Verse To Appear Early Next Spring

A fifth volume of poetry entitled, "Forever To Sing," by Rufus M. Reed, will be published early in the spring by the Windfall Press, Chicago.

This volume contains more than 80 poems, ballads, lyrics and sonnets. There is a ballad about John Shell, oldest man ever known in Kentucky, who lived to age 125; also a ballad about Uncle Bill Potter, the friendly mountaineer who spoke to everyone he met and wished them well but when he went to a big city for a visit with his married daughter, he tried to speak to everybody on the street, just like he had "back in the head o' the holler," but not one would speak to him.

The announced purpose of the author is to record and preserve the song, beauty and poetry of his native Appalachia.

THEY, TOO, FOUND IT GOOD ...

One of the three history-making astronauts spoke from the lonely vastness of space last week of the earth and called it "good." He looked back, not in the perspective of time but of distance—over the miles that separated him from his native habitat.

A cartoonist soon thereafter showed the Good Earth as a jumble of wrecked cars, shacks and grime.

But whose fault is it that our world is so abused, except ours? You and I who know better should do better.
