

All School Activities End With Monday Teacher Strike

Estimated 24,000 Teachers Leave Ky. Classrooms

The only educational activity under way in Floyd county this week was that of the Prestonsburg Community College which was not affected by the teacher strike which closed all other classrooms of the county.

Over the state, approximately 24,000 of the 32,000 teachers were idle in a massive protest against the failure of Governor Nunn and the General Assembly to provide pay increases, a professional negotiation bill and other benefits.

There never was any doubt about the position of the Floyd County Education Association which represents the Floyd teaching force. It had voted overwhelmingly for the work-stoppage, and when Monday morning came the only personnel at work was school principals, one janitor in each of the larger schools, youngsters given work with the Neighborhood Youth Corps and teachers of adult education classes. And these classes were not held in school buildings.

Michael Auxier, of Emma, president of the Floyd County Education Association, said Monday following a meeting of teachers here that the teachers are in harmony and have no conflict with the county school administration and the general public.

County Superintendent Charles Clark and the Floyd County Board of Education have maintained a neutral position and have made no attempt to influence teachers. Mr. Clark commented, Monday:

"The Floyd county teacher group has a long record of devotion to young people and they have no desire to deprive our secondary students of graduation and college entrance. We feel that when KEA has made its point sufficiently clear, our teachers will be willing to report to their classes in time to keep our students from losing credit toward graduation. The situation will be studied by the board which meets March 7, but hopefully classes will have resumed by that time."

Different teachers had different views about how long the school shutdown will last. Some declared the end of the stoppage will not come until the demands of KEA are met; others, that the teachers will return to classes at KEA direction. Some expressed the view that the return may be gradual, in scattered spots.

Floyd county teachers have voted to make the shutdown complete, ending basketball play, even practise, "for the (See Story No. 2, Page 8)

TB Clinic Scheduled Here Next Tuesday

The tuberculosis out-patient clinic will be held at the Floyd County Health Department here Tuesday, March 3, from 8 a.m. to 12 noon. Any person attending this clinic must have referral from a doctor before they may receive the services of the clinic. Those having such referrals are urged to attend this clinic.

Mobile X-Ray Unit Slated at Martin

The mobile X-ray unit, donated by the Kentucky Elk Lodges, will be in operation near Martin high school Thursday, March 5, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.

Dr. Russell L. Hall, health officer, urges all teachers, foodhandlers, known contacts of tuberculosis cases and citizens living in the Martin area to take advantage of this free service and have a chest X-ray made.

Any person who has received a letter requesting that he or she have a larger chest X-ray made should bring this letter with them and present it to the technician on duty at the trailer.

Ambulances Out In Floyd County

Unless an independent ambulance service is put into operation by midnight March 6, the sick of this county will have no means of transportation to hospitals except by private auto or truck.

This situation is developing from action taken by Floyd county funeral homes which have announced that as of the midnight March 6 date they no longer will provide ambulance service.

The decision to discontinue the service was reached at a meeting last week at May Lodge of owners of the Carter, Floyd, Hall Brothers and Merion Funeral Homes, each of which has operated an ambulance service. No reason for the action was given. "We hope some individual or private firm will organize an ambulance service," a spokesman for the group said.

Man, 2 Youths Held in Break

A Floyd county man and two juveniles have been arrested in connection with the break last Wednesday night into the Fountain Korner drugstore here from which $229 in cash was taken.

Clyde Barnett, of Middle Creek, who was arrested by Sheriff Frank Leslie and Deputy Sheriff Otto Fannin, is charged with being an accessory after the fact in the break. The juveniles were arrested by Chief of Police Bill Potter and Sheriff Leslie. Officers said Barnett later admitted connection with the youths in the robbery.

Entrance to the drugstore was effected through a small window at the rear of the building. All three cash registers in the business were rifled.

Donald DeRossett, on whose affidavit a search warrant was issued for the raid on the store of Landon Charles on the Lake road recently, was charged last week with perjury in a warrant sworn out by Charles. He was arrested by Constable Corbin Joseph and later executed bond. The warrant for DeRossett was issued by Magistrate Bill Wells after the county judge's office had refused to issue the writ. As a result of the raid sheriff's deputies and state police confiscated a reported four pints of whiskey and vodka, 49 cans of beer and 33 packages of fireworks. (The Times erroneously reported last week that 33 cartons of fireworks were taken.)

Four liquor raids were made last week, but in only two were intoxicants found. McArthur McKinney, of Toler Creek, was arrested by Deputy Sheriffs Bill Hall and Dester Hamilton who confiscated more

58th Dist. Tourney Play Depends on Strike End

The 58th district basketball tournament, with Maytown high school as host, will begin at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse, next Wednesday at 7 p.m.—if the teachers' strike which began Monday is settled by that time.

What will be the athletic situation if the work-stoppage continues beyond next Wednesday is not known. The regional tournament is scheduled to begin here, the following Wednesday, and state tournament play is slated for the week following that. If district play is banned over the state, the chain of events leading to the state championship is broken. But Ted Sanford, commissioner of Kentucky high school athletics, has asserted the tournament schedules will be carried out, even if the number of team-participants is reduced to a minimum.

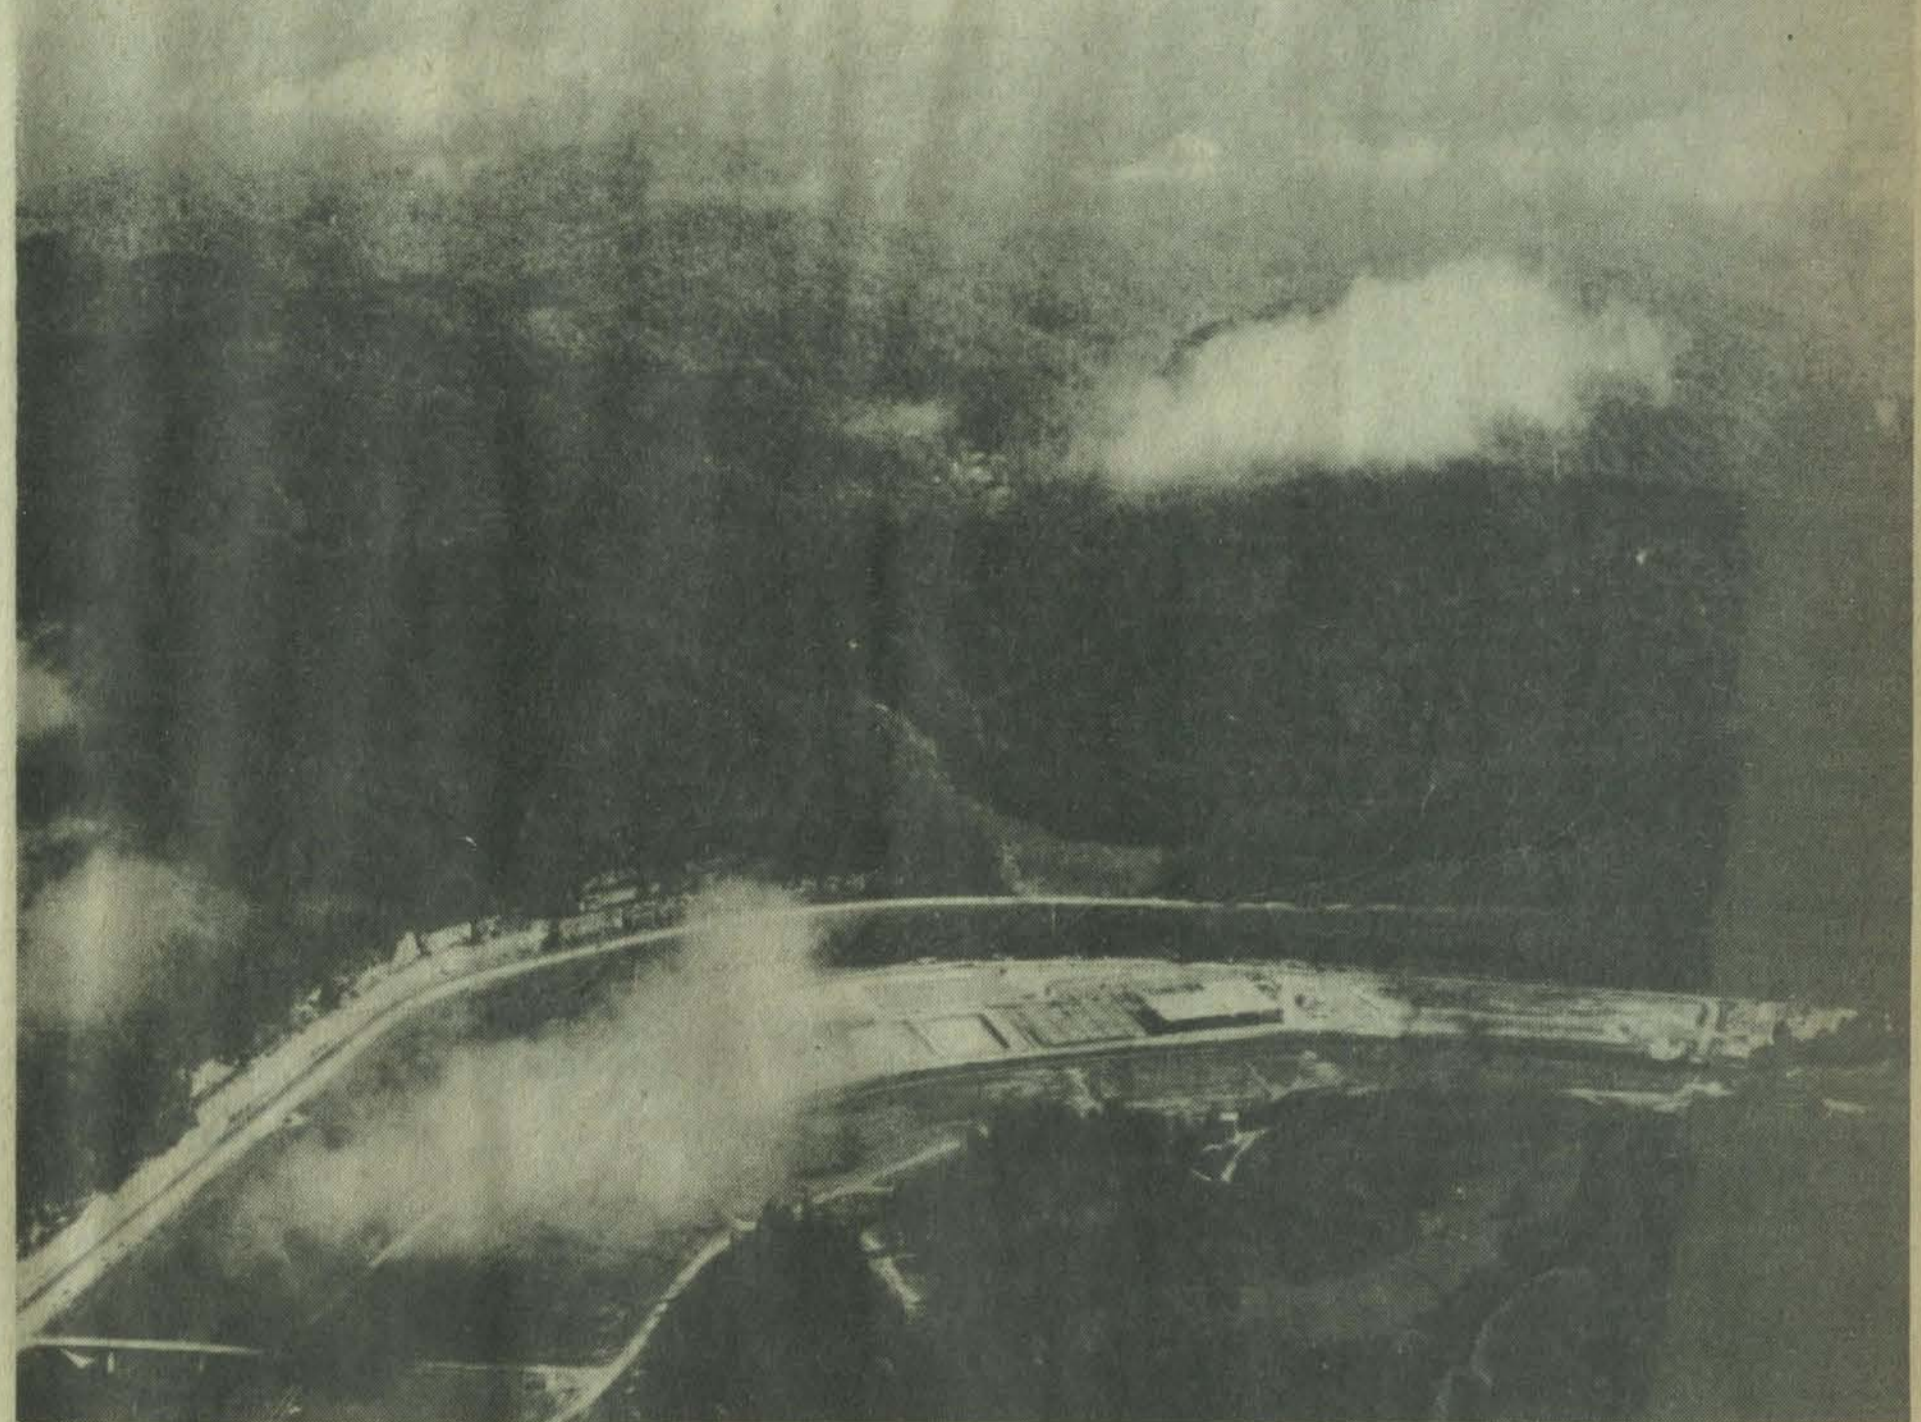

But the Floyd County Coaches Association announced, in accordance with the Floyd County Education Association, that no basketball games would be played after Feb. 22 until further notice. The Teachers Association in meeting at Allen Friday voted to end all basketball practise until the work-stoppage ends. An attempt to rescind this action was made at a special meeting held at the Strand Theatre here Monday, but the move failed by a wide margin.

Wheelwright, which on the basis of its won-lost record holds the regular season title for the county, and Maytown, almost a perennial tournament threat, are in opposite brackets in the district tourney. Wheelwright and Wayland will open the district meet at 7 p.m., next Wednesday (barring a general suspension of tournament play), and Martin will face McDowell in the second game of the evening.

Lower bracket play will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday, with Maytown meeting Betsy Layne. This game will be followed by the Prestonsburg-Garrett tilt.

The semi-finals will be played at 7 and 8:45 p.m. Friday, and the championship game is slated for 8 p.m., Saturday.

NEW PLANT IN AGE-OLD SETTING

This aerial photograph by A. E. Hayes shows the American Standard plant under construction on the so-called Kenwood site, near Paintsville, and its picturesque backdrop of mountains. Scattered clouds at 300 feet blot out a portion of the development. In left foreground is bridge constructed by the state to connect the plant site with new US 23. This is the first of a series of photographs supplied by Mr. Hayes which will appear in The Times to depict the expanding industrial picture in Floyd and other Eastern Kentucky counties. Mr. Hayes' review of area industrial progress appears elsewhere in this edition.

3 Damage Suits Seek To Recover $137,800 Total

Three damage suits filed in circuit court here within the week seek the recovery of a total of $137,800.

Two of the three actions are the result of automobile collisions. Curt Newsome and Janice Newsome and their 13-year-old son, Byron Dale, name Phylliss Richard James in a suit in which they allege that their head and body injuries suffered in a wreck near the bridge spanning the Big Sandy at Dwale was the result of defendant's negligence. Curt and Janice Newsome ask $25,000 each, and $10,000 is asked for their son.

In the second auto wreck action Georgia Salisbury sues Zadis Dean Tackett for $27,800, alleging that his negligent operation of his auto caused it to collide with her car on North Lake Drive here, causing head and leg injuries and the total loss of her auto. The wreck, it is claimed, resulted when Tackett pulled onto the highway from a side street.

Curt Tackett, doing business as the Nancy Tackett Coal Co., and his employee, Dennis Watson, are named in a $50,000 damage suit filed by Tom Carroll, who sues as next friend to his son, Gary Wayne. The complaint alleges that the boy was given a box of dynamite caps by Watson and that when these exploded the youth's neck and ears were injured and his left hand and one finger were so mutilated that amputation was necessary.

Wildlife Federation Asks Hunting Ban On Lake Waterfowl

The Seventh District Wildlife Federation took action at its recent meeting at the Floyd County Fish and Game Club's clubhouse, near Maytown, to protect Dewey Lake's wild ducks by requesting the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources to close the lake to all waterfowl hunting.

The action was taken after wild ducks—now tame ducks—at the Jenny Wiley boat dock were threatened, last duck season. Few duckhunters go to Dewey Lake, and the southward migration of waterfowl (See Story No. 5, Page 16)

Board To Talk Eastern School At March Meet

The Kentucky Court of Appeals last Friday affirmed the opinion of Circuit Judge Henry Meigs, II, of the Franklin circuit court, upholding the ruling of the Water Pollution Commission to the effect that the proposed high school at Eastern would not pollute Beaver Creek, the water supply source for the town of Martin.

Following the Appellate Court decision, Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd schools, announced that the Floyd County Board of Education will be asked at its March 7 meeting to authorize George Lee Shannon, architect, to advertise for bids on the Eastern school.

The plaintiffs in the stream pollution action, E. P. Grigsby, mayor of Martin, and others, have 20 days in which to file a petition for a rehearing of the case.

Superintendent Clark commented: "Although we expect bids to be much higher than they were when we let the contract earlier, and interest on bonds will be much higher, we must go ahead because the need is greater now."

The action decided by the Appellate Court last Friday began with a protest filed with the Water Pollution Commission, (See Story No. 1, Page 8)

Soil Dist. Asks Court To Vote Two-Cent Levy

Supervisors of the Floyd County Soil Conservation District have filed with the Floyd fiscal court a request that the court levy a tax of 2 cents per acre on all lands in the county, except for town lots, to finance soil and water conservation activities.

The request was made by J. B. Clarke, soil conservation district chairman; R. C. Barnett, vice-chairman; Billy Merritt, treasurer; Lloyd Wells, secretary, and H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., member.

Funds are urgently needed, it was explained this week, to provide fulltime clerical help and office supplies. With the county providing only $500 and the state $1231, the district is able to employ a clerk, part-time only. This requires the soil conservationist to be in the office as much as two days a week, losing time which should be spent in the field, it was said. The part-time clerk has hitherto been paid $1.25 an hour, but this wage scale has been necessarily increased to $1.50 and may rise to $1.60.

The proposed levy would increase the county's contribution to work to $4,500 from the present $500. The current budget is less than $2,000.

Among the counties which have such a levy is neighboring Johnson.

While most fishermen were perusing the sports magazines or fretting away the days when fishing was impossible, Ballard Herald, Prestonsburg man, has been busy in his basement workshop this winter, making plugs and flies in preparation for better days ahead. Some of Mr. Herald's winter production of scores of baits are shown. He had one of his most successful seasons at Dewey Lake last year.

Martin School Pupils May Extend the Strike

The Committee for the Preservation of the Martin School at a special meeting Monday evening drafted a telegram which was sent to Wendell P. Butler, Kentucky superintendent of public instruction, calling for his resignation.

The telegram reads: "Committee for the Preservation of Martin School stands with Floyd county educators in their request that you, Wendell Butler, resign as Superintendent of Public Instruction, because you have been guilty of gross neglect of duty insofar as you have demonstrated a complete lack of concern for the health and well-being of the school children of this state."

At the meeting, a "positive" course of action was charted. The capacity group of parents voted unanimously to keep their children away from school. This action is to begin the day the teachers of Floyd county end their strike and return to school.

It was also decided that volunteer mothers will picket the school classroom structures. A committee spokesman said it is convinced that this action will bring about the construction of a new grade school building replacing the one destroyed by fire in January, 1969, and the school gymnasium which burned in September, 1968.

The committee recommended that all parents concerned with the threat to the health and well-being of the school children of their community participate in this action.

The Whitley House — There lived A Remarkable Kentucky Pioneer

It's difficult to understand how William Whitley and his wife have escaped the attention of biographers. No more colorful, brilliantly alive people ever strode across the early American scene. Their story is made to order for Hollywood. It could open with two little families struggling through Cumberland Gap into Kentucky in November, 1775.

One was William Whitley's family and the other was George Clark's, Whitley's brother-in-law. It was the second trip for the men. They had been to Kentucky, early that spring, picked out a likely place to homestead and were now returning to settle.

The Clark children were old enough to ride alone, but the Whitley children were not. Elizabeth was three and she was tied onto the horse behind her mother. Isabella, a baby, had to be carried by her mother. In particularly difficult places the horses had to be unpacked and their loads carried by hand to a point where they could be again loaded and urged forward. And occasionally Mrs. Whitley's horse stumbled and fell and mother and kids went sprawling.

Esther Whitley seems to have been a perfect counterpart for her husband, strong and determined, resourceful and utterly fearless. She was not yet 21 and had been married five years when they came to Kentucky. Whitley was 26.

The going was rough and they had to fight through rain and snow. It took 33 days to get from their homes in the Valley of Virginia to their destination on Cedar Creek, about two miles west of Crab Orchard.

Several forts were built in the area that same year: St. Asaph's Station, Boiling Spring, Harrodstown (now Harrodsburg) and Boonesborough. A few lonely settlers were clearing land and planting corn.

The Whitleys and the Clarks built log cabins and planted corn, and the land was fairly peaceful at first. But the summer of 1776 saw determined efforts on the part of the Indians to run the settlers off. Marauding bands robbed, murdered and kidnapped. Isolated settlers had to abandon their places and move to the forts for protection. Whitley and Clark left ten acres of corn standing in the field and took refuge inside the stockade at Harrodstown. Levisa Whitley, the second white child born in Kentucky, was delivered at Harrodstown (the first was Betsy Menifee).

Meanwhile, Benjamin Logan had been working hard on his fort near St. Asaph's. One day he rode to Harrodstown and announced that Fort Logan was completed and needed only a few more men to make it secure. The Whitleys were among those who left with him under cover of darkness, and throughout the bloody year of 1777 they fought the marauding and besieging Indians. Whitley was a big, muscular man with strong features and a strong character. A born leader, he became outstanding as an Indian fighter. He wasn't content to just defend the fort and fight off attacks; he led daring raids into the Indians' own camps.

When George Rogers Clark was preparing for his invasion of the Northwest, Whitley joined him on Corn Island at the Ohio Falls and volunteered for three months service. He thus missed the Battle of Vincennes.

The following October, he and a small band of men, disguised in war paint and Indian clothing, crossed the Ohio into Indian country on a horse-stealing raid. They got away with 30 horses but were surprised by another group of Indians who were returning from an attack on Boonesborough. One of the white men was killed and all the horses recaptured by the Indians.

It was 1779 before the Whitleys were able to move back to their own land. Whitley had rebuilt the burned-out station, and the family carried on without seeming to miss a breath. Whitley must have prospered in the meantime because he is recorded as selling provisions to travelers on the Wilderness Road. He is also shown on several expeditions against the Indians that year.

Also in 1779 a commission appointed by the Governor of Virginia opened sessions at St. Asaph's to bring order out of the chaotic condition of land titles in the region. They issued a certificate for a 400-acre settlement to each man who could show he had raised a crop in Kentucky or lived there prior to 1778. And those who could prove they had erected a cabin or made other permanent improvements were allowed an additional 1000 acres. A charge of 10 shillings an acre was made. Whitley was able to claim 2,800 acres in this manner. He later acquired around 7,000 in Ohio.

His prowess as an Indian fighter continued to grow and his fame spread. He must have been practically tireless to carry on his farming and trading as well as spending so much time on the go, seeking out and fighting the savages and joining in rescue parties when stations and forts were besieged.

Whitley built one of the first oval race courses in America—perhaps the first—in 1788. He was extremely fond of good horses, and the racetrack must have been a tremendous hit with the people all around. The county built a road from the courthouse to Sportsman's Hill, the site of the track.

A unique American tradition was thereupon created. Whitley held an unquenchable hatred of all things Tory. So, since horses on English tracks were raced in a clockwise direction, he started racing counterclockwise, and every American race course is operated in the same manner to this day.

It must have been in that same year that Whitley began building his big house. It was the first brick house west of the Alleghenies, and he really did a job on it. It was designed to be practically impregnable against Indian attack but it was also a marvel of convenience and comfort for its day.

Clay was dug right on the place and burnt into bricks. The bricks were laid in Flemish bond rather than in the English manner. In Flemish bond the bricks are placed in alternate position endwise, lengthwise, endwise and so on along the entire row. The mortar used to set the Whitley House bricks was mixed with whiskey, but whether this was to keep it from freezing or to give it added strength, we do not know. No shrinking violet, Whitley had the huge initials W. W. set in glazed header brick on the front of the house. E. W. was likewise built into the rear wall.

Glass for the small-paned windows was brought through Cumberland Gap by pack mule. The windows are set unusually high above the ground as a defense measure.

The number 13, representing the 13 original federal states, is used frequently in the house. There are 13 carved figures over the mantel in the drawing room. On each riser of the 13 stairs an eagle is carved holding an olive branch in its beak.

There is a full basement, two main floors and an attic in the house. The basement windows were strongly barred and there was a dungeon for the safekeeping of Indian prisoners. Also from the basement there was a tunnel that provided access to the spring and an escape across the hill in the unlikely event that the invaders overran the house.

There is a secret stairway leading from the family room to the second floor and another one led to the tunnel entrance in the basement. The massive outside doors have iron cores and the walls are two feet thick. The place is now a state shrine and is open to the public. The outline of the racetrack may still be seen from the house.

The William Whitley House was a milestone of civilized achievement in its day. Sometimes the county court would hold sessions in its spacious attic and big country dances and other community festivities were held there. George Rogers Clark, Daniel Boone, Benjamin Logan and James Harrod were among the great early Kentuckians who gathered at the house to discuss problems and map strategies.

For practical reasons the redoubtable Whitleys needed a big house. They had 11 children altogether, eight girls and three boys. The mother of this brood, who often fought alongside her husband, was a deadly shot with a rifle.

One story describes how she was awakened one night to see an Indian peering in through the bedroom window. Reaching for the rifle behind the bed, she shot the man between the eyes and then went back to sleep.

On another occasion some visiting Indians challenged Whitley to a shooting contest. Much to the Indian chief's amusement, the big man suggested that his wife shoot instead of him. Esther won, hands down. The astonished Indian wondered aloud how she became such a marksman.

"By killing Indians," she answered sharply, "Let's hope no further need arises."

In 1794, stepped up harassment by the Indians convinced Whitley that a big scale attack on their home ground was the only way to stop them. Now a lieutenant colonel in command of Kentucky's state militia, Whitley mustered 200 militiamen and headed for what is now Tennessee. There he was joined by an even bigger body of Cumberland men under a Major Orr. The combined forces marched on the Chickamauga village of Nickajack where the Indians appeared to be headquartered. The savages were decisively beaten, their numbers decimated, and their village and crops destroyed.

To celebrate this victory back home, Whitley gave a huge barbecue at which he fed all his men and neighbors. Besides an abundance of vegetables and other foods the main course was whole roasted shoats, each with a potato in its mouth.

William Whitley was 64 when Governor Shelby called for volunteers to fight in the War of 1812. He had fought more than a score of Indian engagements and had been wounded only once. He rode off as a private in Johnson's Kentucky Mounted Cavalry.

Shortly before the Battle of the Thames he swam his horse across the river to collect the scalps of three Indians he had killed. At the actual Battle of the Thames, Whitley rode at the head of 19 other volunteers to draw fire from the Indians and thus guard against a major ambush of the main body of troops. He was fatally wounded, but his own last mortal blow was a telling one. He is reliably believed to have killed the famed Indian, Chief Tecumseh.

The William Whitley House is well worth visiting. It's just off US-150, a couple of miles from Crab Orchard Ky. Whitley's rifle, powder horn and shoulder belt are among the exhibits there. The rifle is inscribed with both Whitley's initials and those of his wife. And the powder horn bears this interesting inscription:

William Whitley I am your horn
The truth I love, A lie I scorn
Fill me with the best of powder
I'll make your rifle crack the louder

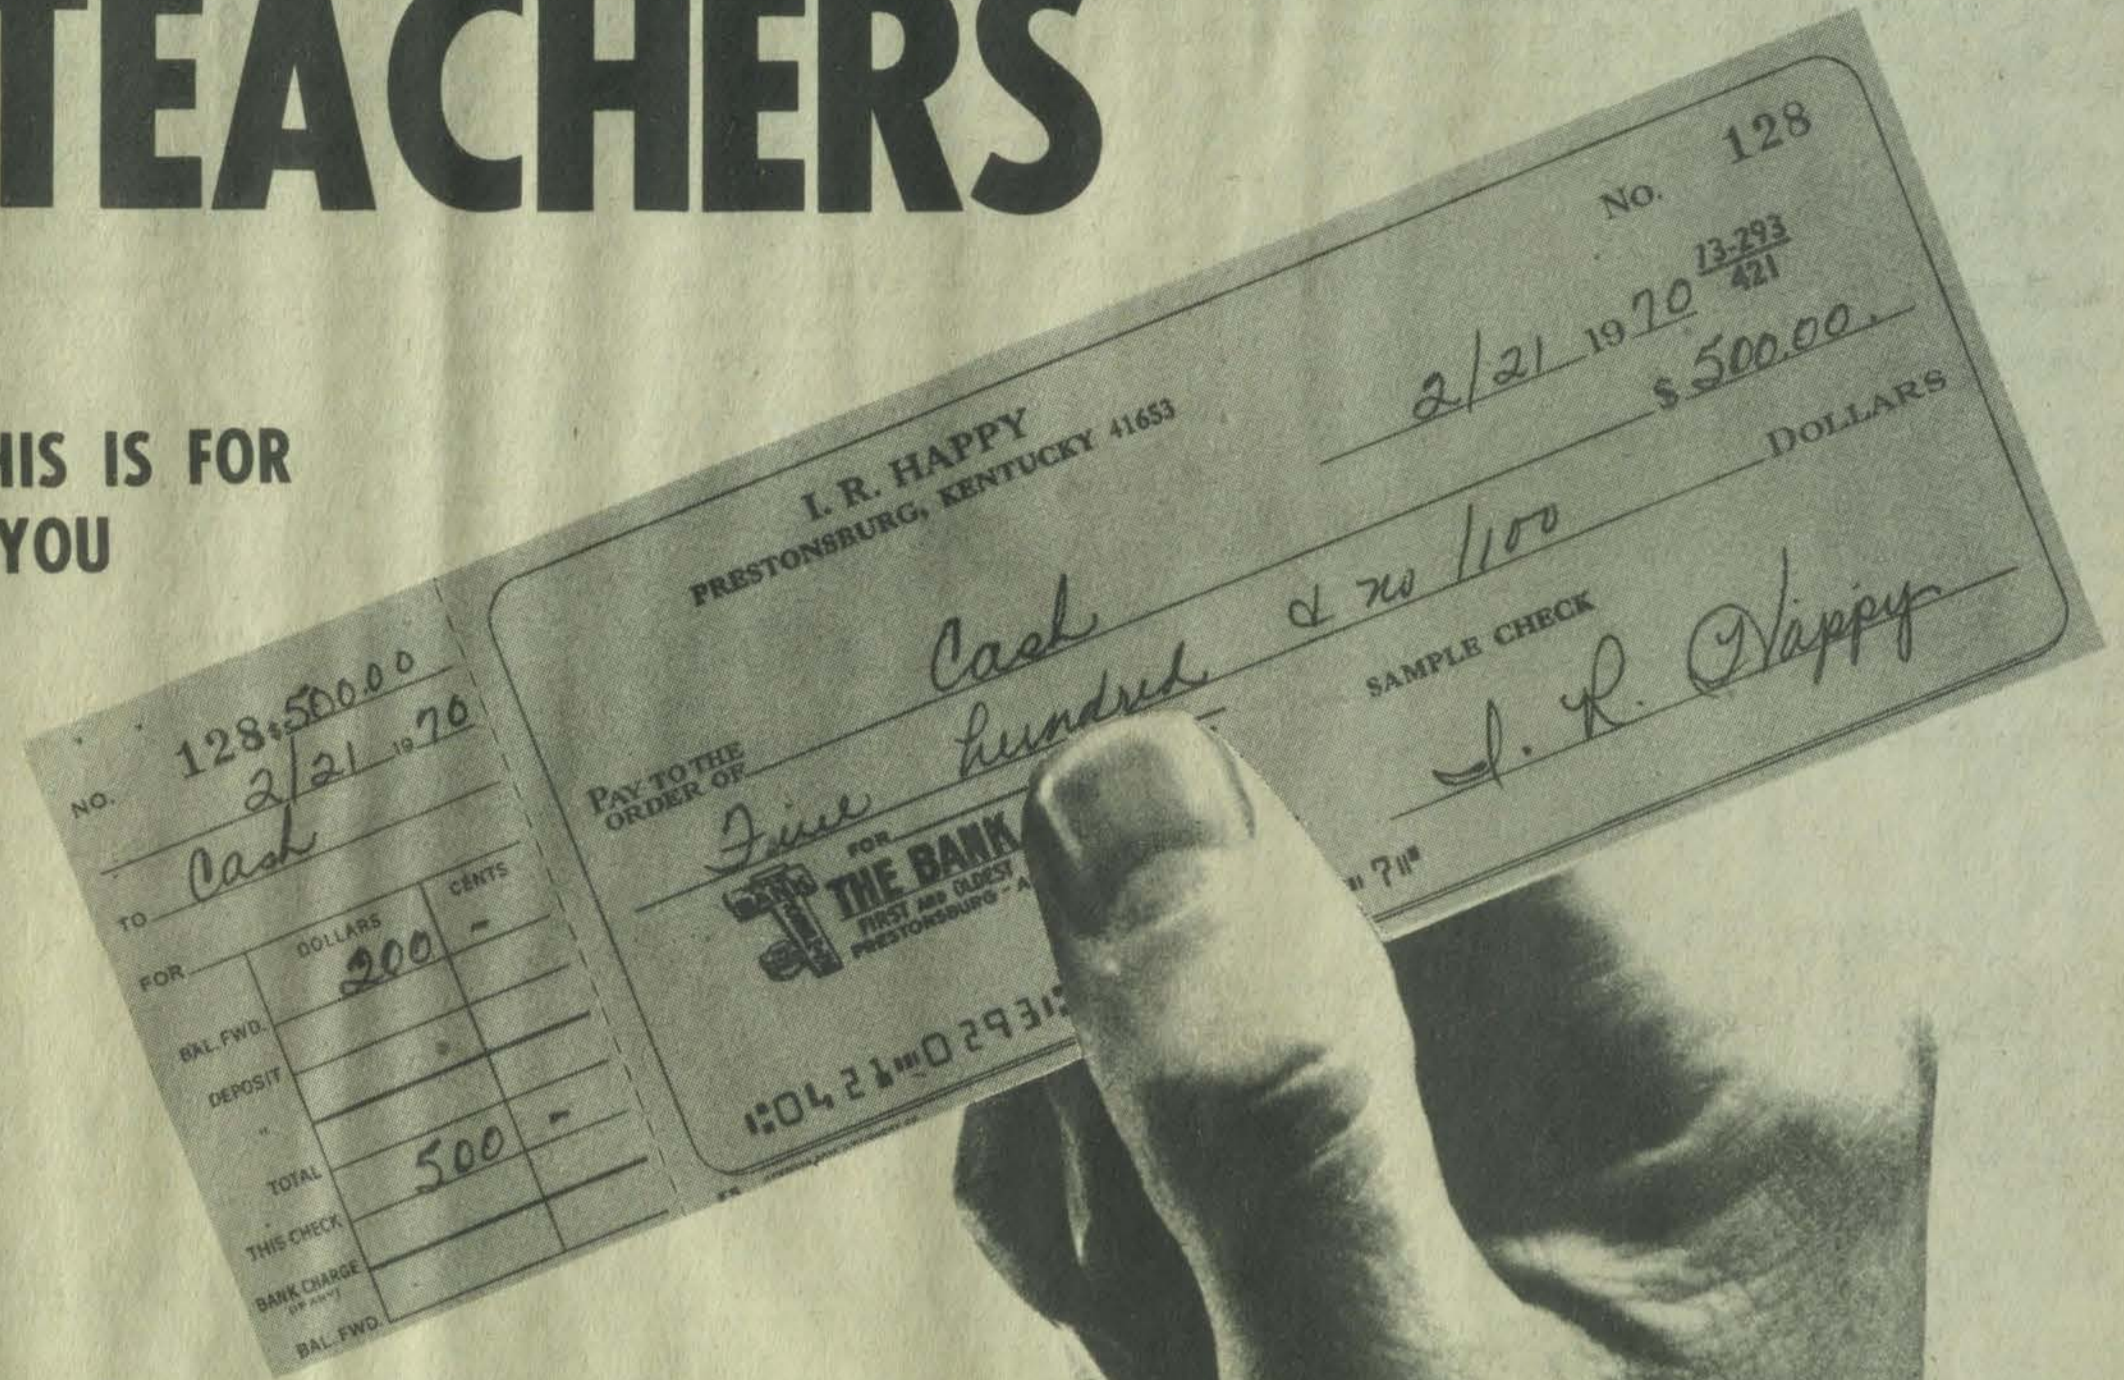

See how the dread terrifick ball
Make Indians bleed and Toreys fall
You with powder I'll supply
For to defend your liberty

This extraordinary man died in 1813. His equally remarkable wife died ten years later. Their house is a fitting monument to their life and times.

Coeds Outstrip Men at UK In Competition for Grades

Women at the University of Kentucky are making better grades than their male classmates.

Elbert Ockerman, dean of admissions and registrar, says the 69,556 separate grades for the 1969 fall semester reported to his office, a 2.51 grade point average for all students (on a 4.0 scale). He said women averaged 2.66, to the men's 2.39.

Dr. Charles Elton, UK professor of education who has done extensive research on the academic successes and failures of college students, says national research reveals that women as a group consistently make better grades than men.

"We would have to research each particular campus to determine the specific reasons why females make better grades than males," he says. But he listed four general reasons why it may be so:

1. Men tend to take more difficult courses, such as science-oriented classes in math, engineering or medicine. These classes are usually larger and graded on the normal curve.
2. Men tend to work their way through college more than women do.
3. Women are more dependable than men. They do what they are instructed to do.
4. Women tend to score higher in verbal problems while men score higher in math.

Sgt. Combs Outlines Trooper Island Work

The delayed January program meeting of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club was held recently at the home of Mrs. James E. Martin, Wayland.

Sgt. Jerry Combs of the Kentucky State Police spoke on "Defensive Driving." After displaying a number of posters on various aspects of driving and explaining each briefly, Sgt. Combs showed a film, titled, "City Driving." The film stressed the dangers of driving on wet pavements and emphasized that under such driving conditions there is loss of visibility and loss of traction and the driver should slow down.

Sgt. Combs also explained the "Trooper Island" project, sponsored by the men of the Kentucky State Patrol to give underprivileged boys a week at a boys' camp (Trooper Island) during the summer between June 1 and August 31. Forty boys a week between the ages of 11 and 14 are taken and it is hoped that this number may be increased to 80 soon. The cost is $40 per boy, and all expenses are completely financed by contributions. State Trooper, themselves donate their vacations to supervise these boys at camp.

Prior to the program Mrs. J. T. Spillman conducted devotions on the subject, "Overcoming Worry," and reminded her listeners that "underneath those who trust in God is an everlasting arm."

During a business meeting following the program four new members were accepted.

A nominating committee for the upcoming election of officers was appointed by Mrs. Dixon, composed of Mrs. Earl Castle, chairman, Mrs. Charles R. Martin, Mrs. Eugene Mullins, Mrs. Cecil Johnson, and Mrs. Hansel Bradley.

At the conclusion of the meeting a gift was presented to clubmember, Mrs. James Burge, who is moving to Jackson, Ohio.

Hostesses, Mrs. James E. Martin and Mrs. Otto Martin, served refreshments to 11 members and two guests, Mrs. Margaret Thiessen and Mrs. Anna Alexander.

1396 Driver Licenses Suspended Or Revoked During January

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Authorities suspended or revoked the licenses of 1,396 Kentucky drivers in January, according to figures released by the Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee.

The suspensions covered in the figure were for a period of at least three months. Arthur E. Beard, executive director of the committee, said more than half the total, or 672, were revoked for driving while intoxicated.

There were 97 licenses revoked in the case of drivers suspected of driving while intoxicated who refused to take the chemical test to determine the level of alcohol in their blood under the implied consent law.

Some 263 drivers drew additional suspensions for driving while under a revoked or suspended license. Another 52 were taken away because of accidents while under suspension.

Other reasons for suspension were: accumulation of 12 or more points within a two-year period (100 suspensions); speed in excess of 25 miles an hour over the posted limit (84 suspensions), and presenting false applications for driver licenses or renewals (50 suspensions).

Counties with the highest number of suspensions and revocations are Jefferson, 153; Fayette, 110; Daviess, 52; Hardin, 47; McCracken, 45, and Christian and Campbell, both with 34.

SUNDAY CLOSING POLL

Prof. Raymond A. Kemper reported that a poll conducted by 40 seniors in a consumer-research class at the University of Louisville shows that 72 per cent of 439 Jefferson county residents want Kentucky's Sunday closing law repealed or made more lenient. The poll showed 68 per cent of those interviewed shop on Sunday at least once a month, 11 per cent shop every Sunday, 9 per cent never shop on Sunday, and 23 per cent hardly ever shop on Sunday.

plaintiffs contending stream pollution would affect the Martin water supply. The commission overruled the protest, then the case was appealed to the Franklin circuit court, and after it was lost there it was taken to the Court of Appeals.

Appellate court's opinion said it found no merit to the challenge of the commission ruling and held that the burden of proof lay upon those filing the protest. Appellants pointed to various aspects of the evidence which would have sustained a finding by the commission that the proposed plant will be inadequate and unsatisfactory. The court noted, however, that unequivocal statements from qualified experts were to the effect that the plant, as designed, will adequately serve the purpose for which it is intended and that no pollution will result.

The court opinion said:
"We regard the scope of judicial review as limited to an inquiry as to whether the action of the committee was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable." It concluded that the commission's order was supported by substantial evidence and that the order "may not be characterized as arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable."

duration." An attempt to restore net practise was made Monday but it failed.

While relations between the teacher association and the school administration in this county remained cordial, the opposite was true of the relationship of the teachers of this county with State Superintendent Wendell P. Butler, who has openly opposed the strike. In a meeting at Martin last Friday the Floyd County Education Association adopted by unanimous vote resolutions calling on Mr. Butler to "resign immediately your position as Superintendent of Public Instruction of the state of Kentucky."

Elliott county teachers joined Monday in calling for Butler's resignation. The Floyd group's resolutions pointed out:

Kentucky teachers have been loyal and dedicated, though grossly underpaid; have "for many, many years remained silent and permitted only the leadership of our profession to speak," but, now that they have united in common effort to speak out for their fair share of the state's economic growth, Butler—whom they designated as "our leader"—has "seriously impaired and degraded the image of the public school teachers in Kentucky by... critical remarks through the various press media..."

In Eastern Kentucky the only counties whose schools remained open Monday were those of Martin, Lawrence, and Bath.

In Martin county tension developed as Supt. Sheldon Clark was accused of "pressuring" teachers. Two NEA representatives who were at Inez while a teacher vote was conducted Monday reported they had been threatened. Samuel Pauley, Inez elementary school principal, resigned.

The board of directors of the Kentucky School Boards Association issued a statement Sunday condemning teacher strikes as "illegal" and "disruptive," and "deploring such action taken against the children, parents and duly elected officials of the Commonwealth."

"Sanctions, strikes, work stoppages or other disruptive action to the orderly operation of our public school program in the Commonwealth is shocking and displeasing," the statement said.

In Western Kentucky injunctive action against teachers was being considered.

Meanwhile, the Legislature is looking for means to meet teacher demands. New taxes may be sought—perhaps a severance tax on coal and other minerals and an increased income tax.

At the teacher meeting held here Monday Senator Clifford B. Latta spoke, assuring the teachers of his support of all their demands except on the professional negotiations bill. State Representative W. J. Reynolds in a prepared statement handed to Mr. Auxier, president of the education association, offered his support on all teacher demands but pointed out he could not support the move to lift property tax ceilings.

UK Reports to Floyd County

The main business and the foremost service of the University of Kentucky is education. UK now has 203 graduates living in Floyd county. Local students attending the Lexington campus have numbered as many as 131, including nine in graduate school, while three have been enrolled at the Lexington Technical Institute and more than 250 have studied at Prestonsburg Community College. William G. Francis and Daniel Spurlock, both of Prestonsburg, distinguished themselves at the University in 1968 when they were initiated into Omicron Delta Kappa, the national leadership fraternity for senior men.

Ten Floyd county students received $7,830 in loans, grants or scholarships from the Office of Student Financial Aid to help finance their educations. Six extension program classes for credit were offered in Prestonsburg. Nineteen residents studied education in the fall of 1967, 35 enrolled in two education courses in 1968, five studied psychology in the spring of 1969 and 20 enrolled in two education courses that term.

Three Floyd county land surveyors attended a conference sponsored by the UK College of Engineering in 1969, and Extension work—all meshed into a coordinated program designed to develop the human and natural resources of every county in Kentucky. County Extension work, a joint effort of the Floyd county government, USDA, and UK, reached nearly every local resident through agriculture, home economics, 4-H and resource development programs.

In the past two years, UK Extension assisted Floyd county residents in the areas of agronomy, animal sciences, clothing and textiles, dairy operation, farm and home management, foods and nutrition, home furnishings, horticulture, housing and youth (4-H).

UK Extension provided help in the areas of sheep, beef cattle and forage, swine, corn and poultry production. The UK swine specialist consulted with Floyd county producers who wanted help with solving problems concerning swine diseases and expansion of facilities.

Extension assisted a greenhouse operator in Floyd county by helping select and locate particular varieties of trees and shrubs to produce for resale. The greenhouse operator had received many requests from local residents to keep certain plants on hand because of the lack of such landscape materials locally. To help promote strawberry production in Floyd county, UK Extension arranged the purchase of 7,700 strawberry plants for local residents.

An upholstery workshop was conducted by UK Extension for Floyd county women, and mothers of Head Start children were taught the techniques of clothing renovation.

Under the direction of UK Extension, homemaker clubs take part in activities and projects designed to improve family life. Local homemakers assisted the community by donating money for paint and draperies to the Floyd County Rescue Squad and the Floyd County Regional Health Clinic. The Harold Homemaker Club raised money for the Heart Fund, Red Cross and Arthritis Fund.

Floyd county in 1968 had 1,583 youths enrolled in 46 4-H clubs. Included were four clubs, consisting of 164 members, specializing in seed radiation projects.

PROFESSIONAL AID

The Kentucky Geological Survey, which works with UK, and the United States Geological Survey in 1968 produced a map which contains geologic diagrams and information useful for the development of potential mineral wealth in Floyd, Magoffin and Breathitt counties.

Each county will eventually receive a copy of its official records now being microfilmed by the Special Collections

Department of the University Libraries in cooperation with the Genealogical Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. This project is nearing completion.

RECOGNITION OF YOUTH

Through the University Alumni Association, High Scholastic Achievement Awards were given to the following Floyd county students upon graduation from high school: John D. Preston, Allen; Delona Risner, Bypro; Margaret S. Reed, Drift; Judelle Conley, Eastern; Rosalind Sharon Boggs, Garrett; Danny Beth Hall, Harold; Neil S. Watson, Hueysville; Thomas S. Stewart, Langley; Estill Thone Hall, McDowell; Rose Marie Frazier and Shirley Lee Frazier, Martin; Cecelia Louise Hall, Melvin; Jane Ellen Wright, Prestonsburg; Janet Harmon and Mabry E. Martin, Wayland.

Kentucky Crime Increase Steady But Arrest Total for 1969 Up

FRANKFORT, KY.—Statistics just released by the State Police show that troopers and detectives investigated 9,683 crimes last year.

But, while the reported annual increase in crime remains static at 27 per cent for the second straight year, arrests continue to climb and increased 36 per cent in 1969 compared to the 25 per cent increase in 1968.

Property losses due to breaking and entering, auto theft, robbery and larceny during 1969 were slightly more than $4.2 million, with nearly half that amount coming from auto theft alone. Total value of all recovered property was about $1.5 million.

Heading the list of offenses reported last year were breaking and entering, 2404; auto theft, 1457; grand larceny, 744; and unlawful possession of liquor, 553.

A breakdown of arrests by age groups revealed that 17-year-old boys (126 in all) headed the list of persons charged with breaking and entering; 15-year-olds (106) for auto theft; 19-year-old and 25-29 year old males (39 in each group) for grand larceny, and the 50 and over group (119) for unlawful possession of liquor.

Arrests of females, consistently lower than for males for all offenses, were highest in disorderly conduct (56); unlawful possession of liquor (48), and fraudulent checks (32).

Although low in the total number of offenses reported, unlawful assembly and military desertion showed the sharpest rise in activity. Unlawful assembly complaints (6) recorded a 200 per cent increase over 1968 and the number of known desertions (198) were up by 102 per cent.

Murder and non-negligent manslaughter totaled 311 for a 51 per cent increase over 1968. Negligent manslaughter showed no increase.

Among the violent crimes, aggravated assault was up 61 per cent; rape increased by 36 per cent; robbery by 18 per cent; shootings by 17 per cent, and drawing a deadly weapon by eight per cent.

A decline in reported offenses below 1968 levels was shown only in five categories: disturbing the peace, down by 86 per cent; arson, by 47 per cent; unlawful sale of liquor, by 44 per cent; gambling, by 17 per cent; and unlawful possession of liquor, by 13 per cent.

Statement By Rep. Reynolds

Floyd Co. School Teachers

I want you to know one and all my position on your K. E. A. program, now as well as the past. My four terms in the Kentucky Legislature, I have given full support to your programs, (please check with your K. E. A. leaders).

This session I voted for and pushed for passage of a whiskey consumer tax to raise your salaries $500.00 in the coming Bi-annium. I am now ready and told your K. E. A. leaders before this strike, that I would vote for and push for passage of four cents on a package cigarette tax, to raise your meager salaries which I say now and have always said are inadequate, to put it mildly.

Two years ago I voted for and helped push your P. N. Bill through the house. This Bill died in the Senate Education Committee. My position on this bill is the same now. I supported your 30-yr. Retirement Bill two years ago and I now support this measure which carries a $5,000,000 price tag and only with the purposed cigarette tax or a substitute tax, can this bill be passed. Again I say to you I support the same.

The one K. E. A. measure I refuse to support, is the 20 per cent increase in local property tax. I will oppose this bill, as strongly as I support the other measures.

I wish to convey this message to you and thank you for your services to Floyd County children in the past and I wish you success in your justified cause; however, I want my position known, not only to you but every citizen of Floyd county and I am today releasing this position statement to the Floyd County Times. Please feel free to call me in Frankfort, 564-5535, or come and see me. If I can do anything to help you, let me assure you my time is your time.

New Camaro. Feb. 26th.

We've never announced a car at this time before. But then nobody's ever announced a car like this before.

Super Hugger

If it were an ordinary sportster, we'd have introduced it at the ordinary time.

Instead, we took the time to build a whole new Camaro.

We started with a sleek new shape and a low road-hugging stance.

And added more hood. A faster fastback. Wider doors. And new deeply contoured bucket seats.

The instrument panel wraps around you. With enough dials to make you think you're piloting a 747.

There are four transmissions. And six power plants up to the Turbo-Jet 396 V8 that you can order.

Pick the one that best suits your driving. Then go pick on an open road.

And make it one with plenty of twisting turns. Because Camaro has a remarkable new suspension. And standard front disc brakes for a leech-like grip on the road.

New Camaro. The Super Hugger. Other sportsters always feared it might come to this.

And they were right. Only their timing was wrong.

Putting you first, keeps us first.

See it. At your Chevrolet Sports Dept.

 considered a cat a vicious animal, only two jumps removed from the jungle, and not worthy of my confidence. This specimen we have meets these standards pretty well, pouncing out of dark corners when you least expect it to take a nibble at a bare shin, and performing other cute little tricks of more or less lethal nature. But I've stopped referring to it as That Confounded Cat. The critter does have its points. Yet I stick by my decision—I've gone out of the pet business.

A NEW AGE
 Some day, if time lasts long enough, the ruins of an American city will be explored by archeologists who will run home yelping about what a strange civilization they've found. Paintings of nothing ever beheld outside a drunken dream... poetry with less reason than rhyme... prose that glorifies no person or thing.

This has been called the Space Age, the Machine Age, the Age of Shoddiness and a lot of other things. The Morehead News reminds us that if they keep drinking in this country at the present pace it'll become known as the Stoned Age.

 than 100 cans of beer. Elmer Clifton was arrested by Deputies Adkins and Hall near here when they found three half-pints of whiskey in his possession.

Four of five men arrested here on drunk driving charges over the week-end pleaded guilty in police court, were fined and their operator's licenses revoked. They are Ellis Wayne Robinson, Eddie Jackson Sammons, Curtis Elkins and Eugene Franklin Roberts. The fifth, Robert Lewis Patton, elected to stand trial. Hassell Tackett, who was given trial in police court Saturday on the same charge after refusing to plead guilty and pay a $100 fine, was convicted and fined $250.

Three prisoners held in the county jail were charged with destroying public property after they allegedly burned two mattresses in their cell, Sunday. They are Kenneth Isaac, Harold Mitchell and Ralph Akers.

Others booked at the jail within the week, charges against each and names of arresting officers follow:

Forrest Dyer, drunk driving, by Trooper E. B. Allen; Lawrence Amburgey, drunk driving, by Trooper Don Thornberry; Butch Bruck, reckless driving, by Trooper Gary Rose; Raymond Lee Hall, no operator's license and reckless driving, by Trooper Rose; Berman Newman, reckless driving, by Troopers Rose and Hutchinson; Curtis Elkins, drunk driving and carrying a concealed deadly weapon, by Troopers Flora, Bevins and Rose; Chalmer Hall, stealing a dog, arrested by Troy Mullins.

Police Judge Earl Blackburn explained here that drivers who, upon being arrested, refuse to submit to the breathalyzer test automatically lose their licenses for six months, even though they later are acquitted of the drunk driving charge. Conviction for those who refuse the test means loss of license for a year.

Johnson Jailed, Fined by Jury In Rum Trial

Gary Johnson drew fines of $20 and jail terms of 30 days on each charge of possessing and selling intoxicating beverages, upon his conviction in a busy session of quarterly court Monday, and four others drew fines at the hands of juries. The possession charge against German Salisbury was dismissed because of a defective search warrant.

Convicted in jury trials were: Daniel Robinson, drunk driving, $100; Paul Porter, no operator's license, $19; Randall Lee Boyd, no operator's license, $10; Noah E. Osborne, no Kentucky cab card, $19.

The Kentucky Oil and Refining Company entered a plea of guilty to two counts of stream pollution, and was fined $100 on each.

The liquor possession cases of Landon Charles and Paul Tackett were continued till March 5. These waived their cases to the grand jury: Clifford Conn, leaving the scene of an accident; Ellis and Tommie Brown, striking and wounding; David Scutchfield, Otis Wallen and Floyd Compton, grand larceny.

 seldom if ever coincides with the duck season. So, it was reasoned, closing of the lake to waterfowl hunting will not adversely affect hunters.

The threat of water pollution also was discussed at the meeting. The approximately 50 sportsmen who attended the meet were guests of the fish and game club to a buffet dinner.

The county's two game clubs asked John W. Redwine, district conservation supervisor, for a total of 3,500 quail for release in this county during the year.
