Conservation Units Seek 2nd Project

Bull Creek, River Sections Would Gain from Plan

An application for a second Appalachian project similar to the Middle Creek project now under development to Frankfort Saturday, by the Floyd County Soil Conservation District and the Floyd County ASCS committee.

This new proposal covers the Bull Creek, Dwale and Emma sections of the county. Areas that would be included are Town Branch, Big Branch, Bull Creek, including all the land in both forks which drain into Bull Creek, and all the land from Prestonsburg to Allen on the west side of

According to the application, this will affect approximately 11,500 acres, with about 150 landowners eligible to participate. The program operates on a voluntary basis. If the project is approved, the landowners may receive up to 80 percent cost-share on the installation of conservation practices.

Similar to the Middle Creek project which is now under way, the proposed development is intended to reduce erosion, flooding, stream pollution, and sedimentation, to expand the economic opportunities and generate more employment and higher income, to improve fish and wildlife and provide recreational facilities to attract tourism and other industries, to create incentive for landusers to use all land within its capabilities. Other objectives are to encourage the development of a sanitary sewer and a water system, to preserve and restore the natural beauty of the area by proper vegetative treatment of roadbanks; and to encourage private utilities to establish vegetative cover in the rights of way suitable for wildlife food and

Among the conservation practices which can be applied, if the project is approved, are pasture seeding, pasture renovation, sod waterways, stream channel improvement-mostly stream bank protection, tree planting and timber stand improvement, ponds, wildlife habitat development, tile drainage, and many others. These practices may be installed with an 80 per-cent cost-share by the federal government.

Little Wounded, Johnson Jailed

Claude Johnson, of Weeksbury, was jailed here Sunday by State Troopers Don Thornsberry and Gary Rose after T. J. Little had been wounded in an altercation at, or near, a Weeksbury poolroom about 1 a.m. Sunday.

Little, who was shot in the back of his neck and in a foot was described as being in satisfactory condition at the McDowell Regional Hospital.

The weapon used in the shooting was not found, Deputy Sheriff Mullett said. Mullett and the two state troopers arrested Johnson on Abner Fork, shortly afterward.

Others booked at the county jail within the week:

Driver Stricken, Car Plunges into Creek

Winford Cisco, 49, of Eastern, died suddenly last Thursday at the wheel of his auto and in the wreck that followed his wife narrowly escaped injury.

While driving near Eastern, Mr. Cisco suddenly suffered an apparent heart attack. Out of control, the car left the highway and plunged into Beaver Creek, where it was partially submerged. A group of men who saw the wreck went to Mr. and Mrs. Cisco's aid. When removed from the auto. Cisco was already dead. Mrs. Cisco was

Mr. Cisco was a son of the late John and Pat Honeycutt Cisco and was a retired Gas Company employee. Survivors, in addition to his widow, include three daughters, Mrs. Veronica Ward, of Warco, Mrs. Shirley Layne, Warsaw, Ind., and Miss Connie Cisco, of Eastern; and six brothers, Esau Cisco, Redbush, Ky., Elmon Cisco, Meally, Ky., Ernest, Paris and Elmuel Cisco, all of Van Lear, and Estill Cisco, Dayton, Ohio.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday from the Meally United Baptist Church. and burial was made in the Ward cemetery at Van Lear under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

This Town . . . That World

Well, everything-not everything-looks dark from where I sit. It's still snowing.

A WELL-DONE

Floyd county's state highway workers have done a bangup job keeping the roads clear during the unusually heavy snows and freezes. I've been "riding shotgun" on trips to Winchester, where the paper is being printed-temporarily, I hope-and two weeks ago, when the snow was deepest, these boys had the Mountain Parkway cleared so well that we lit out, thinking all would be clear sailing. But as soon as Floyd county was left behind it was another story: snow and ice on almost every hill; even one toll station looked like Lower Slobbovia.

STILL MISSING

This might be called the Age of Discovery. Man has probed some far places, including the moon, and is now looking toward Mars. Homo sapiens is always searching and finding. But one thing he has never discovered, and it may evade him forever. That's a pleased tax-

LAND 'O LAKES AND NO FISH? Mrs. W. J. Lattery, Jr., the former Peggy

Reitz, writes from Minnesota: "Have you ever done any fishing in Minnesota? If so, then you probably didn't have any luck here, either, as this state is known as the State of 10,000 Lakes and—as we residents here say-only 500 fish."

I would love Minnesota. Where else would a-body have an excuse for his fishing failures, all ready and waiting for him?

Clark Slates Work On School Repairs

Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd schools, this week wrote James B. Goble, administrator of the Floyd County Health Department, assuring him corrections will be made at Martin high school in view of criticisms voiced in a report filed with the health department and with Mr. Clark.

(The report on findings at the school appears in this edition of The Times.)

Deficiencies found in the lunchroom, he said, will be corrected immediately. "In addition," Clark wrote, "I have this day called the maintenance foreman and issued orders that he should take the report and thake all corrections that can be made, immediately. This includes the installation of one large urinal in each of the boys' restrooms in the high school building." Clark added:

"We can assure you that we take this written report seriously and will give each criticism due consideration."

The superintendent expressed doubt that any school buildings in the county that are over 20 years of age really meet today's standards. "This," he told Goble, "is the real reason why we have worked diligently for the last nine years to provide improved physical facilities for our young people. The fact that in nine years we have reduced the namber of one-room rural schools . . . from 89 to 4 certainly demonstrates our desire . . . ''

Clark said the two fires on the Martin campus within one year necessitated the their trip to Martin."

use of temporary classrooms off the campus as well as relocatable classrooms. "We have done our best under the circumstances, against constant harassment, to provide the best classroom space available for the children of the town of Martin," he wrote, adding: "Consolidation is still in the offing, regardless of the wishes of a small minority in Martin." Clark said he is not persuaded that corrective measures will satisfy those opposing consolidation. "As we see it," he said, "They are trying, by their maneuvering, to forestall the consolidation of the four small high schools in the Right Beaver area."

"I am sure," he wrote the health department administrator, "you understand that the four high school buildings in question are antiquated and inadequate. having been constructed by specifications in vogue 20 or 30 years ago."

He also said the high school building at Martin will be completely renovated for an improved elementary program after the high school consolidation becomes a reality, and that this renovation would include installation of sanitary facilities meeting current standards. He added that this renovation would already have been accomplished, but for lawsuits which have been filed "by some of the same individuals who traveled with the State Health Department inspection when they made

Employes of the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital have received an "award of exceptional merit" for their support of the hospital's annual In-family Giving Campaign. T. P. ## Akers Wins Acquital In Murder Trial Here

A Floyd circuit court jury deliberated only 10 minutes last Wednesday before of Billy Joe Gayheart, Sidney Ferrell, T. Y. acquitting David Akers in the Mud Creek Jarrell, Delno Meade and Elmer Lafferty acquitting David Akers in the Mud Creek slaying last year of Charles Hall, nightwatchman on a water system project.

Willard Hall, who was with the slain man at the time of the shooting, could not identify the person who fired the shot which struck Charles Hall, and the weapon used was never found.

The Commonwealth cross-examined Michael Ray Hall, a juvenile, who had denied an earlier statement to the effect that Akers had a pistol. Harold Dean Mitchell, who was hit in the leg by a bullet presumably fired by Charles Hall, testified he, Akers and Michael Ray Hall were not stealing gasoline when the trouble started. No witness identified Akers as having fired

The quarterly court conviction of Landon Charles on a charge of possesing alcoholic beverages was reversed Tuesday in circuit court when the search warrant was found to be defective. The date of the alleged purchase of liquor was not stated in the affidavit for the search warrant, and this, Judge Hollie Conley said, had been repeatedly held defective in other cases of the same type. Judge Conley expressed his displeasure at being required to dismiss the case but said he had no other alternative.

In quarterly court this week Carmel Hall was given 60 days in jail and fined $50 on a possession charge. He also was fined $50 on a charge of possessing fireworks.

In circuit court the child desertion cases were dismissed. Also dismissed was the shooting and wounding charge against Marcus Keathley. Grand larceny and robbery counts lodged against Darrel McDonald were dismissed, subject to Larry Castle pleaded guilty to a storehouse-breaking charge and was given a one-year pen term. The speeding case of Hobert Potter was continued, the new trial date to be set later; three counts of knowingly receiving stolen property against Willard Hicks were set for trial Jan. 27, and the trial of Brack Pinks, charged with breaking and entering and grand larceny, was set for Jan. 26.

Allen Meeting Ends With Plaster Fall; Board Member Hurt

A meeting of Allen city officials with an

EDA representative on a proposed public improvement there was broken up last Thursday noon when plaster from the ceiling of the meeting-place, Ann's Bar-B-Q, fell, injuring one member of the party. James Webb, Jr., member of the town board of trustees, suffered a head laceration which required 14 stitches. Hillard Smith, of Hindman, EDA field representative, was struck lightly on the

State, City Join In Move To Close Eagles Club Here

The Commonwealth of Kentucky and the City of Prestonsburg joined Monday in a circuit court action to close the Eagles Club

The complaint, filed by Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo and City Attorney Albert A. Burchett, alleged that within the past year the premises of the Fraternal Order of Eagles here, or a portion of the premises, have been used for the purpose of unlawfully selling and (or) possessing intoxicating liquors in dry

They asked that the club be closed and declared a nuisance under KRS 242.310, and that a restraining order issue to enjoin any person or persons from operating the club.

The move to close the club has been under consideration since the fatal beating, late last year, of George Shepherd, whose body was found outside the Eagles Club door. Russell Arnett, of Magoffin county, was indicted last week on a murder charge in connection with Shepherd's death.

Not Guilty Plea Entered by Hall; Bail Plea Viewed

A plea of not guilty was entered for Bob Hall last Friday morning when Circuit Judge Hollie Conley heard testimony on Hall's motion for bail in the slaying of his father, Edgar H. Hall, and his step-mother, Mrs. Willadean Hall, at Allen last week.

When asked how did he plead, Hall remained silent. His attorney, Marshall Davidson, spoke for him and the court entered the not-guilty plea. The defendant did not speak during the entire proceeding.

Judge Conley announced at the conclusion of the hearing that he would announce his decision later. He is pondering the defense motion for bail against that of Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo, who asked that Hall be committed to a state hospital for mental observation for a period of 35 days.

Tom Hamilton, Jr., veteran employe of the Hall Concrete Products Company, told of the morning of the shooting. He said it was his understanding that Bob Hall owned 45 per cent of the block business and that his father owned the remainder. Earlier in the day of the shooting, he said, Hall had asked him the condition of the roads. Hamilton said he heard sounds such as gunfire and that Bob Hall soon came downstairs, shaking and nervous, and handed him a .38-calibre revolver, remarking, "Here, I'll give you a present." Hall then gave him a smaller revolver which he said he thought was of .32-calibre. and announced that he had killed his father and step-mother. Hamilton said he had heard no threats made by either Edgar Hall

Asked if he was aware that Edgar Hall used narcotics, Hamilton said, "Yesdaily." Edgar Hall had been semiparalyzed since suffering a gunshot wound,

Report Hits Conditions In Schools at Martin

Inadequate toilet facilities, sub-par School Board has provided temporary listed at the Martin schools by Don Dixon, supervisor of General Sanitation, Environmental Services Program of the Division of Environmental Health, in a report made after he and Aaron DeRossett, sanitarian, Floyd County Health Department, had inspected the school last month.

The inspection was made at the request of Everett Akers, who at the time was State Representative, and Charles Lafterty, chairman of the committee to maintain a high school at Martin.

Commenting on the inspection, Ex-Representative Akers said he asked it not to attack Superintendent Charles Clark or any individual but for the purpose of showing that "the children of Martin aren't getting fair treatment."

(Superintendent Clark's comment appears in a separate news-story.)

"This inspection revealed," Dixon wrote, summarizing a six-page report, "that after a fire destroyed the elementary school at Martin in January of 1969, the Floyd County lighting and a shortage of facilities are classrooms at this school for the elementary grades. Four portable classrooms were added at the school and no toilet facilities were provided to take the place of those destroyed by fire in the elementary school building. There are no urinals for the boys in the old high school building and there are only four water fountains available for the 655 students . . . The food service facilities appear to be adequately equipped, but is cramped for space in the kitchen, food storage and lunch room area."

Dixon added that the decision as to whether the high school building at Martin should be renovated for an elementary school or a new elementary and high school built, must be made by the Floyd county and state boards of education. If renovation is decided upon, he said, plans and specifications must be submitted through the Floyd County Health Department for

State Department of Health approval. The school property at Martin consists of the high school which was built in 1939, containing 10 classrooms and an auditorium; an annex built to the high school in 1959 that has the cafeteria on the first floor and two classrooms and a music room on the second; a white building with two classrooms; a tin building of two classrooms, and six portable classrooms. Two classrooms are used in the Methodist Church, one in the Masonic building and two in the Mormon Church.

Violations listed include these:

Mrs. Hughes Speaks On Health Services

The Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club held its December meeting in the Garrett Baptist Church basement, with Mrs. Shirley Hughes, social worker for the Floyd County Comprehensive Care Services, as guest speaker.

"Start with young children and encourage proper health habits", advised Mrs. Hughes. "Young people, after they become teenagers, are not very receptive to being taught."

Mrs. Hughes also pointed out that Floyd County Comprehensive Health serves 4,500 families, which when multiplied by three and one-half children and two parents, (the average family) will show the magnitude of the job confronting the social worker. The Services have been funded for five years and two and one-half of these are already passed, according to the speaker. Mrs. Hughes advised that a family in distress can receive assistance immediately by contacting her office in Prestonsburg (886-3876).

Miss Sally Horne, health educator for the Services, was also introduced by the program leader, Mrs. Don Hughes. Miss Horne spoke briefly, pointing out that the Floyd County Comprehensive Health Program deals in hope—"hope for a better tomorrow."

Prior to the program, Mrs. J. T. Spillman conducted a brief devotional period, with prayer by the Rev. James Burge, minister of the Wayland Methodist Church. At the conclusion of the meeting Christmas gifts were exchanged and refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Rudolph Spencer, Mrs. Stanley Bamer, Mrs. Donald Hughes, and Mrs. Marcellous Dunfee, after which the Reverend Burge led in group singing of Christmas carols.

Those present were: Mrs. Shirley Hughes, Miss Sally Horne, Miss Mildred Meek, Mrs. Margaret Thiesen, the Reverend James Burge, Mervil Dixion, and Miss Jennifer L. Mullins, guests; and members, Mrs. Hansel Bradley, Mrs. S. M. Martin, Mrs. Donald Hughes, Mrs. Marcellous Dunfee, Mrs. Stanley Bamer, Mrs. J. T. Spillman, Mrs. J. C. ### Area Study Set At Pike College

PIKEVILLE, KY.—A revived interest in Appalachia has led to the establishment of an Appalachian Studies Center at Pikeville College

The center, now located in the college library, is a concentrated collection of history, manuscripts, creative works, pictures and artifacts related to the vast Appalachian area and its people.

Bruce Brown, college librarian, and Dr. Leonard Roberts, chairman of the college's humanities department, are organizing the project, which is beginning to take shape after several years of discussion and exchange of ideas between interested per-

"Many local persons from time to time have expressed the desire to see Pikeville College become such a depository," said Brown. "The Appalachian Center will be the fulfillment of such wishes. Several individuals are preparing to present to the center family heirlooms, old letters, books, paintings, records and similar items. The collection will be maintained in the college library until the program is fully launched and some form of sustaining endowment materializes."

These figures are projected at 5% a year, compounded quarterly.

This is the plan:

DECIDE HOW MUCH YOU'LL SAVE each month and put that amount aside monthly before you start your spending.

IT PAYS TO REMEMBER that regularity of saving over a period of time is what really counts.

THE CHART IS BASED on saving $100 monthly for 15 years, then withdrawing $100 monthly for the next 15 years. Throughout the entire period, interest is added to the account and compounded regularly.

TO USE THE CHART to figure the effect of saving $25 a month, divide all figures by 4. For $50 a month, divide by 2. For $200 a month, multiply by 2, and so on.

This is the time:

LOOK AHEAD 15 YEARS into the future. No matter how young or old you may be, there's something you'll need money for, isn't there?

YOU CAN HAVE the money you need 15 years from now, if you start your own sensible "15-Year Savings Plan" at once. But don't put it off . . .

TIME IS THE MAGIC INGREDIENT in this practical savings plan. And, as the chart shows, time is-literally-money to you. Delay is costly.

SAVING IS EASY once you start out right with a workable plan you know will get results. Here you have the workable plan. Why not come on in and get started on it?

This is the result:

AS SUGGESTED by the example in the chart, you stop saving and start spending at the end of 15

FOR THE NEXT 15 YEARS, spend as much each month as you saved for the first 15 years.

YOU CAN STILL HAVE MORE MONEY in your account than you put in during the 15 year period.

THAT'S THE MAGIC of compound interest and the secret of the plan. Though you are withdrawing each year, your savings have built up to sizeable proportions and continue to earn substantially for you, year after year

Prostitution Should Not Be Endowed by Law

The bill introduced in the General Assembly by Senator Carroll Hubbard is, we think, one which deserves the support of every legislator who does not believe in placing a bounty on bastardy.

Senator Hubbard's bill would, after March, 1971, end state aid to mothers of more than two illegitimate children, terminate the parental rights of such mothers and make their children wards of the state.

This bill, it strikes us, has a moral meaning, inasmuch as it would remove the taxpayer from the role of supporting immorality unlimited and its consequences. At the same time it will not, as some have feared, penalize innocent victims, the children who came illegitimately but not of their volition into this world.

The provision that the children would become wards of the state certainly offers more for their future development into good citizens than the existing law could ever promise. If Senator Hubbard's bill becomes law, the money used for the care of such children would be administered directly by the state, not by a strumpet mother who looks on another child as merely an increase in her monthly check (and this monthly check is often spent on things which are a far cry from the needs of children). In many cases the state could succeed in placing the children in good homes where they would receive the love and care to which every child is entitled.

The people of Kentucky are tired of paying the premium for prostitution, and there is no valid argument to prove them wrong.

Everybody Talks About It— Who Will Do Anything?

Man's disintergrating environment as represented by air and stream pollution, destruction of natural resources, rape of the landscape and contamination of the soil through the use of noxious chemicals is getting around to the status of the weather. Everybody's talking about it but doing nothing to change it.

President Nixon has commendably jumped into the fray, declaring war-now-on those man-made conditions that will make Earth, especially the United States, untenable for human life in a dismayingly short period of time. But his entry into this war may be one as fraught with opposition and frustration as the war in Vietnam. The "almighty dollar" stands as a roadblock. Progress in this country of ours is geared to dollars-and-cents profit, and this will cause many to be blinded to

> THE TIMES believes the air can be made safely breathable again, and streams clear and pure again, and people protected again from insecticides that may kill people as well as insects, and all this without destroying industry or killing the so-called "American dream." America's people will decide. If they are willing to bear the cost of the fight—as they have borne the cost of others-it will be done. Industry will be forced to comply with strong laws, federal laws, and its increased costs will be passed on, as always, to the consumer.

> But, whatever the price, it is not a price too high to pay. If it is not paid, a grim Pay-Day lies ahead for the children of today and their children.

WHATSOEVER THINGS

By DONALD E. WILDMON We all want to be successful. And there

We all want to be successful. And there isn't one thing wrong with that. He made us that way, implanted that desire in us when He breathed into us the breath of life. And it would be an awful dull existence if we didn't have that desire about us. For it causes us to do our best, to go for the highest, to shoot for the top. Far from repressing this desire, He encouraged it, kindled it, and set us afire with it.

The trouble comes, you see, when we misuse this desire, turn its energies in the wrong direction, seek its outlets in the wrong ways. For somehow we think that to be successful means that we have to do so according to the standards of those around us. Let me share with you a story worth passing along.

In 1923 a group of the world's most successful men-according to society's standards-met at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago. Among those present were a member of the President's cabinet, the president of the Bank of International Settlements, the head of the world's greatest monopoly, the president of the largest independent steel company in the world, the greatest wheat speculator, and the greatest "bear" on Wall Street plus the president of the New York Stock Exchange. Their meeting attracted national attention. People watched them in awe, stunned by the magic they had about them. They were envied by vast numbers of people.

Some quarter of a century later some snoopy reporter had to get involved in the thing. He decided to see what had happened during the past 25 years to these men of success. He spoiled the happy ending to the story with his findings. He found that Albert Fall, the member of the President's cabinet, was released from prison so he could die at home. The utility operator, Samuel Insull, died in virtual exile. The head of the world's greatest monopoly, Ivar Krueger, committed suicide. The president of the steel company, Charles Schwab, lived on borrowed money the last five years of his life and died broke. The wheat speculator, Arthur Patton, died abroad, insolvent. The greatest "bear" on Wall Street, Jesse Livermore, committed suicide. And the president of the New York Stock Exchange, Richard Whitney, had served a term in Sing Sing Federal Prison.

I guess many times we close the book without reading the final chapter. And when we do this we don't always get the full story. We call it a game in the fifth inning with four more innings to go. We quit singing on the third verse with two verses left. We could get the real picture if we would read the final chapter, play the last inning, sing the final verse.

I guess the reason He was hung on that ugly tree was that He dared to judge by different standards. This upset the "successful" people, you know. Made them angry, set them against Him. So they tried to destroy Him only to find that Truth is eternal.

Whether one is successful or not depends on what standards he uses to measure success.

VALUABLE SPECIES GROW SCARCER By RUFUS M. REED

On the front page of The Herald-Advertiser (Huntington, W. Va.) last Sunday, Mr. Pinto, writing on air pollution, said, "Most animals and much plant life will be killed off."

This is even now taking place with some of our most valuable species. Among these are the following:

THE WHIPPOORWILL.—Last summer I drove several miles over roads leading through good whippoorwill territory but I spent several nights before I heard the call of this bird, and on all my rounds I heard only three.

I made inquiry of others in different localities and all reported a general decline of the whippoorwill. As good roads, more cars and industrial expansion proceed farther and farther into the heads of the creeks and hollows of the mountains, polluting the air, creating disturbing noises, the whippoorwills grow scarcer and retreat farther into the wilds of the mountains. I also believe that the use of pesticides has helped to decimate numbers of whippoorwills. These birds are insect eaters and no doubt many of them have succumbed to eating poisoned insects.

I would deeply regreat seeing the whippoorwill placed on the list of extinct birds. Their loud and lonely calls at dusk and again at dawn are familiar and welcomed by people throughout the bird's range. The song has inspired poets all down through the years and many famous poems about the whippoorwill have been written. The bird has also been used in novels and short stories; its return in the spring is eagerly awaited and is heralded as a good omen; the bird is a fine harbinger of spring. In rural regions, people spread the news of the whippoorwill's return by announcing to the the neighbors, "I heard the first whippoorwill last night; looks like spring is right around the corner."

Whippoorwills are slow breeders, another reason for their general scarcity. Only two eggs are laid in a small depression in the brown leaves, usually under some bush in a thicket. On being disturbed, the mother bird flops away from her nest, dragging her wings to lure away the intruder. Once I found a baby whippoorwill just out of the shell; it was a reddish-brown, fuzzy creature and reminded me of a big brown moth flopping about in the dead

The whippoorwill is one of the strangest birds of America. No other bird has such a loud, ringing call—one that gives the bird its name. The call pierces the stillness of the night and bespeaks of the solemn mysteries of deep-shadowed night woods: it is an oracle of the mountains taking tongue to speak their silent mysteries. The song holds a note of melancholy, yet it is full of beauty and rhythm. The bird is a fine ventriloquist, and the last syllable of the song, WILL, seems to leap up from the ground several feet from where the bird is singing. Some naturalists interpret the song as saying, "purple rib" but this destroys for me the beauty and romance of

P I rails

The whippoorwill has

The whippoorwill has whiskers and red eyes that shine in the dark like those of a cat. Let us hope fervently that this bird will be preserved. The nest should never be disturbed, the eggs never touched. Once I knew a boy who picked up the eggs from a nest to look at them; he put them back in the nest but the mother bird could somehow tell that her eggs had been handled, so she quit the nest. Whippoorwills have been known to repeat their calls over 1,000 times at a single performance.

THE DUCK HAWK .- Beyond doubt, this is the fastest flying bird known. It is also called the Peregrine Falcon, and it has been clocked at more than 180 miles per hour when making a power dive after its prey. This beautiful falcon has now been placed on the list of "endangered birds," and it is likely to become extinct. It is a goodly sixed hawk, dark bluish-gray above, with a prominent black mustache. Its body is compactly built, made just right for highspeed dives from the sky or some lofty perch. It is said that seeing this hawk making a power dive from high in the sky, shooting down like a bombshell, is one of the most awe-inspiring sights of the bird kingdom. This hawk has long wings ending with tapering tips. It is streamlined for high speed. It has a white throat and bars on the belly. The thighs are heavily feathered out, the feathers extending down the legs below

Overhead, the duck hawk may be recognized by its shrill cackling notes, that go like kak—kak—kak, also by its fast flight and alternate wing-beats.

The cause of the duck hawk's decline is given as pesticide poisoning and ruthless slaughter with the gun. Some persons shoot at every hawk they see—a most serious mistake, of course. This hawk eats insects as well as small birds, which accounts for the pesticide poisoning.

TRICKS OF THE TRADE

The magazines keep coming, and the experts keep showing us on television how and where to catch fish. Wonder how many feet of film have to be cut out to make it appear they're getting a strike on every cast? Wonder how many feet of film I would have to cut to get the desired effect? But I'll never know—I can't load a movie camera.

A MESSAGE FROM 1692

The following is said to have been found in Old Saint Paul's Church, Baltimore, Md., in 1692. Wherever and whenever found, it pretty well fills the bill for today, almost 300 years later. It reads:

Go placidly amid the noise and the haste and remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible without surrender, be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly: and listen to others, even the dull and ignorant; they have their story. Avoid loud and aggressive persons, they are vexations to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain and bitter; for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans. Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue is; many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism. Be yourself. Especially do not freeze affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment it is as perennial as the grass. Take kindly the council of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Mature strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself. You, a child of the universe no less than the trees and the stars-you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should. Therefore, be at peace with God, whatever you conceive Him to be. And whatever your labors and aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life, keep peace in your soul. With all its shame, drudgery and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful, strive to be

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Teacher Strike Hinted If Pay Boost Denied

Kentucky's teachers may go on strike if the state budget is not revised to include substantial pay raises, is the feeling in Frankfort.

The teachers, represented by the Kentucky Education Association (KEA), are known to be bitter about Governor Nunn's failure to include in his budget funds to meet their request for a pay raise. Asked if a strike may be in the offing, Marvin Dodson, KEA executive secretary, said it is a "little early . . . to define what steps will be taken."

KEA had asked for a basic $1,000-a-year raise for its 32,000 teacher-members.

Governor Nunn adroitly laid the teacher pay-raise issue in the lap of the Legislature. He cited teacher demands and left the task of raising the money to the legislators. He did recommend a $57 million increase for the Minimum Foundation Program and the Teacher Retirement System. The governor has an "uncommitted" $18 million reserve, but teacher pay increases was listed as only one of the items to come from this "pot."

Rep. William P. Curlin, Jr., Frankfort Democrat, who is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said that KEA is competing with other interests such as the University of Louisville, a proposed tax cut and aid to Catholic schools for a slice of this "uncommitted" $18 million fund which the governor has. KEA indicated in a statement Saturday that it will look to the General Assembly for help. "There is no other place to turn," it said. "The proposed executive budget forces legislators to choose between a negligible tax cut and a neglible salary increase for teachers. The choice is no choice at all, and we believe the legislators are aware of this."

In a harshly worded statement, KEA officials said they found it "incredible that public schools, which bear so much responsibility for the state's future, are completely excluded from participating in their fair share of Kentucky's economic

"Moreover," the statement continued, "Kentucky's public-school teachers deeply resent being cast as villains who would rob the poor and infirm and who would oppose tax exemptions for food, medicine and clothing in order to line their own pockets."

Seminar Told Mine Safety Bill Costly

"Who wants to buy a coal mine?"

That question was heard on more than one occasion Saturday as mine operators and officials of their associations met at a seminar at Pikeville College to study the new federal Mine Safety Act, its implications and its cost to the men who operate the mines.

The new law contains the most retrictive coal-dust restrictions required by any nation in the world, James Garvey, director of the Bituminous Coal Research Agency in Pittsburgh, said. The new law is three times as restrictive as the British law, which was held up as ideal before the U. S. Congress when the legislation was under discussion, he claimed.

Complying with various sections of the law within the prescribed time limits will present a serious problem, and he advised coal operators attending the seminar to make their compliance efforts a matter of record

The seminar was attended by about 200 coal operators or their representatives, or those in allied industries, from Kentucky, West Virginia, Tennessee, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Sponsor of the seminar was the Coal Industry Committee on Mine Safety, which was formed early in 1969 to provide Congress and the public with accurate information on coal-mine safety.

Under the new legislation, coal operators will be obligated to meet exceptionally stringent standards to insure the health and safety of miners.

More frequent inspections by federal inspectors and stiff fines and penalties for violations are notable features of the new

The costs of meeting the new standards—particularly those concerning dust control, increased ventilation and the use of spark-proof equipment—are expected to be substantial.

John L. Kilcullen, Washington attorney for the Coal Industry Committee on Mine Safety, reviewed the general provisions of the new legislation.

Few congressmen have a real knowledge of coal mining, said Kilcullen, adding that the Farmington, W. Va., mine disaster of 1968 brought about a demand for stringent mine-safety legislation.

He added that many lawmakers did not want to be informed of the facts about mining but were primarily interested in going on record as being for the mine-safety bill.

He declared that the new safety act makes no distinction between gassy and nongassy mines, and that compliance with the act means an unnecessary cost for operators of nongassy mine. Kilcullen said the danger of an explosion in a nongassy mine is extremely small.

"Many have received the impression that working in a mine is a suicidal job," added Kilcullen. "Working in a mine is actually 16 times safer than driving on a highway."

Goble Quits, Host New Parks Head

Frankfort, Ky.—Robert Gable resigned Friday as parks commissioner and Public Information Commissioner James Host, Lexington, was appointed as his successor.

Ken Harper, deputy commissioner of child welfare, was named by Gov. Louie B. Nunn to succeed Host.

The shift was arranged quickly. Gable's resignation was confirmed in the morning and Nunn held a news conference late in the afternoon to announce the changes.

afternoon to announce the changes.

The commissioner posts pay $18,000 each

Gable said he was resigning to devote fulltime to his family's mining interests — in the light of new federal legislation on mining health and safety which is producing financial complications. He is from Stearns.

Gable and Host have been commissioners since Nunn took over two years ago. Harper was a Northern Kentucky House member at the time.

Nunn said he was proud to be able fill the "void", left by Gable with Host and likewise to appoint an outstanding man like Harper to replace Host.

Host, 32, is the youngest member of the Republican cabinet. Reared at Ashland, he was graduated from the University of Kentucky, where he won a letter in baseball.

In the next few years he became a businessman, played professional baseball and was a network sports announcer for University of Kentucky football and basketball games.

Host is married to the former Miss Carolyn Clark, of Lexington, and they have two children.

When you buy a new car, the dealer's ability to service your car is included in the purchase. To insure the satisfactory performance of the automobile of your choice, each new car dealer must constantly invest in new testing equipment, new tools and the continual training of all service personnel. The cost of daily upgrading of facilities and service is enormous. We ask you to consider for a moment the position of the dealer who must pay for labor, equipment and parts immediately and, as in the past, has allowed the customer to charge these services and pay at a future date. In effect, we have become bankers and lenders. While the idea is flattering, the actual carrying of unpaid invoices for any length of time creates a tremendous burden. We have a job to perform in this community. That job is to sell and service motor vehicles. Help us get out of the banking and lending business. Navara, who has been exploring the mountain since 1952, said he first saw an estimated 50 tons of timbers embedded in a frozen lake in 1955 and chopped out a 5-footlong piece as proof. He returned with a larger expedition in 1969 and recovered several other pieces.

Faylor said the expedition's first task will be to map the shape of the 150-foot-thick glacier under which the timbers are buried. "Then we will study ways of removing them without damage," he said "possibly by utilizing steam from apparently volcanic heat sources on the mountain."

Floyd Case Back Home

County Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark and the Floyd County Board of Education last week won one round of their court fight with the Appalachian Volunteers, Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA) and individuals working with the two organizations.

Clark and the board scored when U.S. District Judge Bernard T. Moynahan, Jr. remanded to the Floyd circuit court the case in which they had enjoined AV's and VISTA's from trespassing or doing violence on the property of the board of education. The temporary injunction was asked, and granted, following an altercation involving the superintendent and individuals connected with the organizations last year.

The case was transferred to federal court on the contention that federal laws providing for equal rights were violated by the lower court injunction and that it restrained VISTA members as federal officers "from effectively undertaking their duties . . . and in particular restraining said federal officers from explaining and implementing rights granted to the people by the Congress."

Judge Moynahan cited a Supreme Court decision which concluded that the phrase, "any law providing for . . . equal civil rights," must be construed to mean "any law providing for specific civil rights stated in terms of racial equality." His opinion added that the petition for removal of the case from circuit court here to U.S. court "contains no averments from which it could be inferred that this action in any way involves a denial of racial equality."

The petition for removal of the case also failed to contain any allegation that any of the defendants were persons acting under an officer of the United States, it was held.

The superintendent and board asked U.S. district court to remand the case to the Floyd circuit court on the grounds that the defendants failed to file with their petition a copy of all process, pleadings and orders served upon them, that the purported verification of the petition was insufficient, that the petition failed to state facts sufficient to bring the action and that the defendants are not officers of the United

Judge Moynahan held that "this cause was removed to this court improvidently and without jurisdiction."

Still in U.S. district court is the suit filed against the superintendent and board contending that civil rights of persons in the AV and VISTA have been denied or violated.

Politics of Reviewers Tinges Comment on Nunn's Address

Frankfort, Ky. - "The governor is saying 'Either we look forward and go forward, or we look backward and stand

That's how Charles B. Upton, Williamsburg, Republican caucus chairman in the state Senate, interpreted Gov. Louie B. Nunn's "State of the Commonwealth Address" at the opening of the General Assembly.

But W. Terry McBrayer, Greenup, Democrat majority leader of the House of Representatives, had a different idea.

"Well, as you know from having heard the speech," he said, "the governor didn't have any ideas or programs to offer. It's not real easy to react to the speech, because there was almost nothing of substance in it to which one can react.'

And Representative W. J. Reynolds, of Allen, Democratic House caucus chairman, had this comment: "It was a very good speech, but he dwelled too much on progress to date. He should have spent more time pointing up problems facing the Legislature and the Commonwealth."

Reynolds charged Nunn with failure to give credit to previous administrations, those of Governors Combs and Breathitt. "for starting, for example, such highway projects as Interstates 65 and 75."

Governor Nunn, a Republican, had just told the legislators: "The state of our Commonwealth is so secure, its financial strength so completely rejuvenated, its most crucial programs on such a progressive course, that you have an option to give the people needed tax relief, or to provide new programs, or to expand existing programs, that are desirable and worthwhile.

"Kentucky has made tremendous progress in the past two years," said Upton, "and we look forward to even greater progress in the years to come. As a politician, I sincerely wish it would be possible to get along without any taxes at all, but if you dance, you must pay the fiddler - progress costs money."

Walter "Dee" Huddleston, Elizabethtown, Democrat majority leader in the Senate, limited himself to saying the Nunn address was "a positive approach to the achievements of the past two years."

Tom Garrett, Paducah, Democratic Senate Caucus chairman, added, "I thought the governor's speech placed too much emphasis on the past two years and not enough on the many problems confronting the Commonwealth.

The Republican minority leader in the Senate, Wendell Van Hoose, Tutor Key, said, "the governor spelled out in detail the rise Kentucky has made toward greatness and I, for one, am proud to be a Kentuckian, able to do a small part toward helping the Commonwealth move forward."

The Republican caucus chairman in the House, Arthur L. Schmidt, Cold Spring, said, "I think it was great - a serious and thoughtful address living up to the slogan I've often heard, 'Put Kentucky First'. For many years the legislature has asked for a greater role in state government. It got its request tonight when the governor announced he would present the budget tomorrow. It is the earliest the budget has been presented to the legislature in over a decade.

William Harold DeMarcus, Stanford, Republican minority leader in the House, rated the governor's address as "one of the great State of the Commonwealth messages because of the number of firsts he announced. The last two years have been the greatest in progress in the history of the Sheriff Frank Leslie and Deputy Sheriff Claude Flanery said the accused man talked rather freely but that some of his statements were incoherent. After taking these, he was quoted by Flanery as saying he knew nothing. Sheriff Leslie said he advised Hall of his constitutional rights but that Hall said, "Since you are my friend, it's easier to get this off my chest." He said Hall asked for a doctor at the jail and told him, "I have killed Willadean-why did I shoot my

The grand jury adjourned last week after Each of the two, the indictments pointed voting 30 indictments, three of which out, had earlier been convicted twice. named two men on murder counts.

Questioning of witnesses about the sale hit-run driving. and use of marijuana and other drugs also failed of result. The grand jury suggested that the probe into this phase of crime be continued.

No irregularities were found by the jury in its probe into the November election and the conduct of the registration and purgation board. ### To Taxpayers

It is most important that each taxpayer include all figures in the extreme lower right-hand corner of your tax notice in order to include the 2 per cent penalty required on taxes unpaid after Dec. 31,

If this total amount, including the penalty, is not paid, the Sheriff's office has no alternative but to return the check and notice to the sender. And, since the 6 per cent interest deadline is fast approaching, we may not have time to send the notice back and receive the correct amount before the 6 per cent deadline takes effect, Feb. 1, 1970.

If you send check or money order in payment of taxes, please enclose a selfaddressed envelope for prompt return of your tax receipt. A check or money order dated Jan. 31, 1970, the last day before the 6 per cent deadline, must also have the same cancellation date on your envelope, as we are governed by the stamp cancellation date on the envelope.

So, to stay ahead of the 6 per cent deadline of Feb. 1, 1970, check all figures in the extreme lower right-hand corner of your tax notice and be sure to remit the correct amount. If you are at the Sheriff's office and are in doubt, ask us; if at home, ask a friend or neighbor if you need
