Info Center May Reopen This Month

The tourist information center which ceased to function as such here last year when it was occupied by personnel of the Department of Highways will be reopened this month, it was indicated this week.

Cost of operation of the center will be shared between the state and Prestonsburg, assisted by Paintsville and Pikeville citizens, Prestonsburg Community College and the Big Sandy Area Development

The Big Sandy Development Council office will move into the center from the Prestonsburg Community College.

The center was slated for earlier opening, but the heat was turned off after highway personnel moved out, and plumbing burst during last month's sub-zero weather. A local contractor, however, will restore the plumbing at minimum cost, it was said, and this work may be completed within a week.

The Department of Public Information, Frankfort, has notified officials here that it would like a part in a formal reopening of the center when it is ready again for oc-

Mothers Plan Martin School Demonstration

Floyd county's schools reopened Wednesday morning, but absenteeism at Martin's schools was heavy, if plans made by mothers there materialized.

Between 25 and 30 mothers met there Monday and decided to picket the school grounds Wednesday and to keep their children out of school in protest of what they termed the "disgraceful condition" of school facilities.

"The mothers figure that if 30 to 35 per cent will hold their children out of school, they can get something done," Charles R. Lafferty, chairman of the Committee for the Preservation of the Martin School, said.

Superintendent of Schools Charles Chark said he and the board of education naturally would hope the parents at Martin will not interfere with the operation of the school. "Although conditions there are not ideal, we hope the parents will be patient and let us finish the school year," he added.

Clark said daily attendance reports will be received at the board offices each morning, and that the board will evaluate the situation on the basis of these reports.

THIS IS ENCOURAGING

The emphasis, as spring nears, is on the sound of "cro-" as the crocus springs up, the crows begin their noisy chatter and the peepers start croaking . . . The peepers at our place began their annual "community sing" last Saturday night, beating March by only a few hours. They briefly tuned up, then lapsed into silence, but there was the general understanding that they would begin harmonizing in earnest, along about Sunday School time next day.

CONGRESSIONAL COMMENT

Albert Moore, who had sense enough to get out of the newspaper business and who is currently kicking up his heels down in sunny Florida, sends me a clipping which records the wry comment of Iowa Congressman Scherle on the Small Business Administration's loan of $41,000 to a topless-style restaurant in Denver, Colo., which is called "The Body Shoppe." Scherle says that is one of SBA's more "outstanding" loans, and adds:

"Things must be in good shape in Denver. This loan may not return much principal but it will certainly generate a lot of interest."

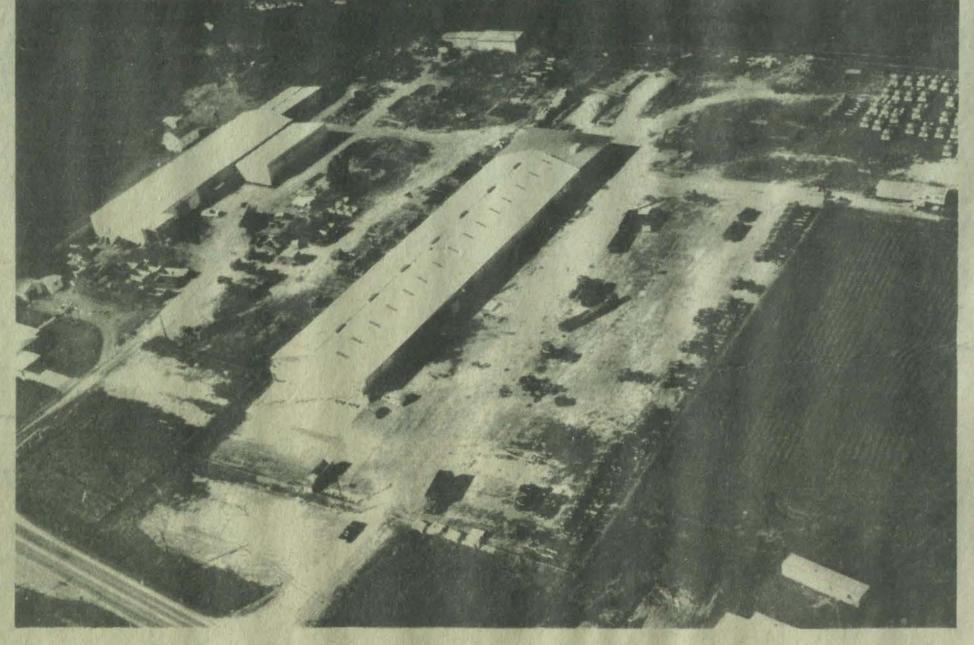

You're getting old when you decide on a sunny morning not to go fishing that afternoon because a weather forecast—which you usually relegate to the False Rumor Department-says it will be colder that afternoon.

ON SEX EDUCATION

I'm plumb enthusiastic about a book I've never seen. In fact, I didn't know it had been written till I read an AP article by Naomi Rock about it.

Titled "Sex and the Single Child," it's a book about sex education, written by humorist-philosopher-teacher Sam Levenson, and from this review I've read

I'm inclined to believe the author has the (See Story No. 1, Page 12)

Ambulance Help For This County Made Available

Floyd county funeral homes said this week they have been assured that private ambulance services will be in operation by Friday midnight when the funeral homes discontinue such services.

Greg Crum, of Prestonsburg, announced that he has formed the Appalachian Ambulance Service and that he will have ambulances in operation Friday. Ambulances also will be in operation, it was said, by Birchell Duff, of Hueysville, in the Right Beaver Creek section, and by Bill Hall, of Wheelwright, in the Left Beaver

Announcement of the private ambulance service assurances was made following a Tuesday evening meeting at May Lodge.

The Appalachian Regional Commission recently approved grants totalling $154,952 to provide ambulance service in Knott and other counties of the Pine Mountain and Buckhorn Lake regions where many funeral homes are phasing out their operation of ambulances.

Native of Wayland Car-Truck Victim

Kermit Murphy, 33-year-old native of Wayland, was killed Friday, Feb. 13, in an auto-semitruck crash at Kendallville, Indiana. He had lived in Kendallville the last three years and was employed there by the Monsanto Corporation.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Annabelle Sparkman Murphy, and seven children, Carolyn, Mitchell, Jeffrey, Kermit, Jr., Timothy, Terry and Sherry Murphy; his mother, Mrs. Pearl Murphy, of Wayland, and four brothers, T. J. and Leon Murphy, both of Wayland, M-Sgt. Lewis Murphy, Jr., of Thailand, and Mitchell Murphy, Wabash, Ind., and one sister, Mrs. Myrtie Bentley, also of Wabash.

Clark Is Optimistic With Strike Behind

Assessing effects of the teacher strike in this county, Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark said Tuesday that parents need worry no longer now about the possibility that their high school seniors will not graduate or that their children who are in other grades will not advance if scholastic requirements are met.

The full 175 days of teaching required by law can be done, and, if no further time is lost, schools will end the current year's work on Friday, June 12, he said. Seven teaching days were lost during the strike. To make up lost time, schools will not close the three days earlier allowed as vacation at state tournament time.

"We have high hopes, and are assured," Clark said, "that our teachers will go back

David Homer Crider Dies Monday at 74; Was War I Veteran

David Homer Crider, 74, retired Wayland miner, died Monday at the Paintsville hospital.

A son of Alfred and Elizabeth Wells Crider, he was an overseas veteran of World War I and was a member of the Evanston UMWA local union.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mell Branham Crider; three daughters, Mrs. Lenore Webb, Dayton, O., Mrs. Alma Jarrell, of Louisa, and Mrs. Christine Williams, California, Ky.; two brothers and two sisters, Willie Crider, Nippa, Ky., James Crider, of Staffordsville, Mrs. Judy Adkins and Mrs. Oneida Castle, both of Paintsville.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete Tuesday morning, it was said at the Merion Funeral Chapel.

without rancor and do all they can to live up to their slogan, 'Put Kids First.' " The 58th district basketball tournament began at the Prestonsburg Field House, with Maytown high school as sponsor, Wednesday evening. The competing athletes may suffer from lack of practise for more than a week while both play and practice were forbidden during the strike. But whatever troubles that may arise from the layoff may be expected to beset all the teams in the meet.

BIDS ON ROUTE ASKED

The Post Office Department announced Friday that Star Route 41569, Prestonsburg to Bannie Goble Box via the Cliff and Auxier post offices, has been advertised for bids. Those interested in bidding on the route are asked to contact the post offices at Prestonsburg, Cliff, or Auxier to obtain bid forms. Bids will be received until 10 a.m., March 13 at the office of the Director, Logistics Division, P. O. Box 1077, Cincinnati, Ohio 45201.

Floyd county teachers returned to the classrooms Wednesday morning, along with practically all teachers over Kentucky, ending a strike which was described as "the largest walkout of teachers that has ever occurred."

The strike began Feb. 23. An end of the walkout became inevitable, last week-end, as scattered boards of education in other sections of the state filed for injunctions against teachers, with the return of teachers in those districts beginning when courts granted the injunctions.

The delegate assembly of the Kentucky Education Association (KEA) met in Louisville Monday night, receiving there the KEA recommendation of a return to classes. The assembly approved the recommendation, but final action remained for the teachers in each county.

When the Floyd County Education Association met at the Strand Theatre here Tuesday morning there was not a quorum present. Michael Auxier, FCEA president, then issued an executive order, officially ending the strike. His action was applauded by the teachers present.

Mr. Auxier then conferred with Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark, and it was announced that schools would open Wednesday morning at the usual hour.

Reporting to the gathering of teachers on Monday night's Louisville meeting, O. E. Stanley said the feeling expressed there was that most of the KEA program will be voted by the General Assembly, although the 6 per cent cost-of-living pay increase has not made much progress and the increase for the present will stand at $200 for the next school year and the $100 additional, the following year, as approved in the

The prospects for teacher negotiation and sick leave benefits are favorable, he said. The House Rules committee reported favorably Monday afternoon on the teacher retirement bill, which provides that teachers may retire at age 60 without (See 12) No. 3, Par 12)

Pilot Program Gets Services to People

The Floyd County Comprehensive Health Program, a five-year, $5-million pilot venture in the area of public health, has in its two and a half years of operation made 95,440 contacts with Floyd county residents.

That the program is literally "going places" is borne out by a report made by Dr. Russell L. Hall, director, which shows that in the last four months 6,342 patients have been transported to and from doctors' offices and hospitals a total of 125,644 miles, exclusive of the miles patients were transported in ambulances.

Lovely Transfer Made To Fill Need, Says Host

The transfer last week of Mark Lovely from the managership of Jenny Wiley State Park to the same post at Carter Caves State Park was made because of an urgent need for his services at Carter Caves, said James Host, commissioner of parks, in a telephone conversation Monday with The

"We were having some very serious problems at Carter Caves where Mark came from when he became manager at Jenny Wiley," Mr. Host explained. "He did such a good job at Carter Caves, and also at Jenny Wiley, that we transferred him to the trouble spot.

Lovely, a native of this county, was replaced at Jenny Wiley, where he has been manager since last September, by Robert Copeland, of Fulton, Ky. Mr. Copeland has been manager of Pennyrile Forest State Park, near Bowling Green.

confidence that Copeland will fit well into the job here. He admitted that the park has its problems and that much needs to be Mr. Host said he met at May Lodge two weeks ago with leaders from various counties of the area, and that at that time he told them Jenny Wiley State Park had been "the worst operated" in the system.

He diagnosed much of the trouble as developing from "leaders fighting among themselves," and expressed the determination to make it "the best in the parks system." He said he was assured of cooperation in this effort.

Host, a native of Ashland, said he is familiar not only with Jenny Wiley State Park but also with the people of this and surrounding counties and that he is anxious to improve the park here. He has written chambers of commerce in the area, asking

Host also said the department is in process of making improvements in primitive camping facilities in the Stratton Branch area but that a permanent campsite cannot be put into operation at Goble Branch until further clearance from the U. S. Corps of Engineers.

The "big parade" of Jenny Wiley State Park managers began soon after May The parks commissioner expressed Lodge was opened in June, 1962. Since then no less than 13 managers have come and gone there, and that number does not include three brief periods of service by the same man. Lowell Baker served longest as manager, and that was for about 18 months. The roster of managers follows:

When the Community Methodist Church opened its doors for its first service in January, 1954, Z. S. (Dick) Dickerson tolled the bell that summoned the community to worship. Now, 16 years later, the 88-year-old Mr. Dickerson continues as the official bell-ringer for the church, and in all that time he has not been away from the job on more than 25 occasions. He rings the bell five times on Sundays for Sunday School and morning and evening services, and twice on Wednesdays for prayer meeting. Residents of the community say they can detect a different tone when "Uncle Dick" is not on the job. The church-bell, incidentally, was used for years in the old Prestonsburg grade school building before it gave way to a new structure. It was donated to the church (for the nominal $1) by the board of education.

Flu Delays Drive For Dist. 5 Scouts Until March 11th

Arthur Bradbury, vice-chairman for finance in the Jenny Wiley district, announced last week that the annual sustaining membership campaign for the local Boy Scout district has been postponed

Originally a breakfast had been planned at the First United Methodist Church on Wednesday, March 4, for the one-day campaign. Mr. Bradbury said because of the spread of flu it has been necessary to reschedule the campaign. Wednesday, March 11, at 7 a.m. will be the kickoff date.

Clyde George, Clyde Burchett, Lloyd Brown, Harold Cooley and Blaine Hall have been recruited by Mr. Bradbury to serve as majors in the campaign. Each of these will recruit five captains who also will assist in the local effort. Each of the five captains will in turn recruit five workers who will call on five citizens or businesses, to enroll them as sustaining members of the local district.

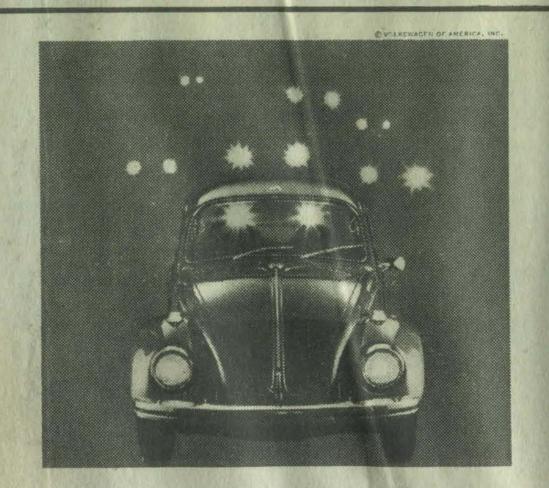

George Chidester, district Scout executive, said that Jenny Wiley district has increased its boy membership 44 per cent over the past year, with a 54 per cent increase in the number of Troop Packs and Posts as the result of the successful campaign last year.

Sometimes we get the feeling we're being followed.

Everybody's getting into the act. Everybody's making a small car.

And since we've made more of them than anyone else, we thought we'd pass along some things we've learned about the business over the years:

First off, there's no doubt about it, the only way to make an economy car is expensively.

So Rule No. 1, don't scrimp. Get yourself the best engineers in the business and then hire 9,000 or so top inspectors to keep them on their toes.

Next, try to develop an engine that's not a gasguzzler. If you can get it to run on pints of oil instead of quarts, great. If you can get it to run on air instead of water, fantastic.

Work on things to make your car last longer. Like giving it 45 pounds of paint to protect its top and a steel bottom to protect its bottom.

Important: Make sure you can service any year car you make. There's nothing worse than having someone find out that a part they need to make their car go is no longer available.

Finally, spend less time worrying about what your car looks like and more time worrying about

Perfecting a good economy car is a very timeconsuming business. So far it has consumed 25 years of our time.

Will the Pollution Problem At Jenny Wiley Be Included?

A recent news release says, in effect:

"Parks Commissioner James Host met recently with Dr. Russell E. Teague, commissioner of health, to learn how to avoid the water pollution problems that have arisen in the past at the fifteen or more public bathing beaches at state parks."

This is, of course, welcome news to Kentuckians. But we who have wondered how long Floyd and surrounding counties would escape an epidemic of hepatitis originating from the water at the Stratton Branch recreation area in Jenny Wiley State Park find little comfort in the announcement. For, if the policy that was in effect there last year remains unchanged, the water at the beach will be untreated; only signs warning the public of its pollution will stand as a mere token protection—and the beach will be open to bathers of every age. Pollution of the Stratton Branch arm of Dewey Lake, where the original Jenny Wiley State Park bathing beach is located, is nothing new. But until the state opened its community-size pool nearby health personnel had the task of adding bacteria-killing chemicals to the water. Some work was done to add motion to the water there to lessen the acbeach, with Stratton Branch bringing down pollution from the camping area farther up the small stream, was never a pristine "old swimming hole," but the danger of disease was reduced to the point that it could be used with a reasonable degree of safety.

When the state pool was opened, however, treatment of the water ended. Warning signs were posted, a fence that fenced nothing in and nobdy out was erected. And so the beach was still used.

Now, will the desire to avoid pollution problems at state park beaches include Jenny Wiley's condemned but still-used beach? The spot is popular with literally thousands of visitors to the park who prefer the open water of the lake and its sand beach to the costlier modernity of the pool which the state built at considerable expense. It will be as inviting this year as last. The warning signs will be no plainer, the fence-barrier no more effective.

Somebody whose sense of responsibility is greater than the public's should be responsible. One of two things should be done, this

1. The pollution should be reduced by elminating camping on Stratton Branch, upstream from the beach, and the water should be chemically treated; or, 2. Guards with authority to bar bathers from cumulation of pollution. The the lake should be posted at the

Major Earthslides and Minor, And the Alibis They Create

The road up Stonecoal Creek in Pike county has been blocked by an earthslide at an auger-mine operation that not only imposes hardships on residents of the community, including the aged and ailing, but also poses a big problem to Pike county.

What makes the occurrence more tragic is the ridiculous response of governmental and business leaders to the situation. For instance:

Elmore Grim, director of the Division Kentucky Reclamation, admits there's no question about augering causing the slide. But, he explains, it "old" because resulted reclamation practices were followed at the site, and he adds:

"We have not had a major slide on sites reclaimed under the latest requirements."

What about minor slides? Aren't they deserving of consideration? Then County Judge Rutherford and Robert Bartley, executive secretary of the Surface Mining and Reclamation Association in Pikeville, hazard the opinion that most of the slide resulted from natural causes. "Heavy water caused it," Judge Rutherford is quoted as saying. "It is possible," he conceded, "that this might not have come down if they hadn't augered there, but I think the hill would have come down, anyway."

One thinks what he wants to think. That hill had been there a long time and a lot of "heavy water" had run down its slopes during that time without a slide, major or minor. And a lot of other hills stood up under the same "heavy water" that is blamed for this little community's tragedy.

East Kentucky: An Awakening Area

By A. E. HAYES

Eastern Kentucky, a part of the so-called Appalachian poverty region, has finally begun to wake up with the penetration to Prestonsburg of the Mountain Parkway under Governor Combs' administration and the rapid build-up of facilities at Jenny Wiley State Park which brought an estimated two million visitors this year to this "Mountain Playground" alone.

The recently constructed dam at Buckhorn, near Hazard, and Fishtrap, near Pikeville, should become equally attractive to tourists.

This area is rapidly becoming the industrial mecca of the Applachian area. This region abounds in God-given natural resources which were formerly developed by large captive corporations.

Only in recent years have smaller truck mines assumed a dominant role in the mining industry. The trend toward these smaller operations has sparked the initiative of many local people to do their own "thing" in a sense in developing, capitalizing and processing these natural resources with local management. While the trend has greatly contributed to the prosperity of the area, most importantly it has inspired new hope and trained a leadership to pave the way for a new industrial outlook—simply taking first things first, not sitting by idly and hoping that industry would discover the area, but in planning and performance developing an area easier to access, adequate to educational needs, scenically and recreationally attractive, and with industrial sites in proximity to needed power, utility and transportation requirements.

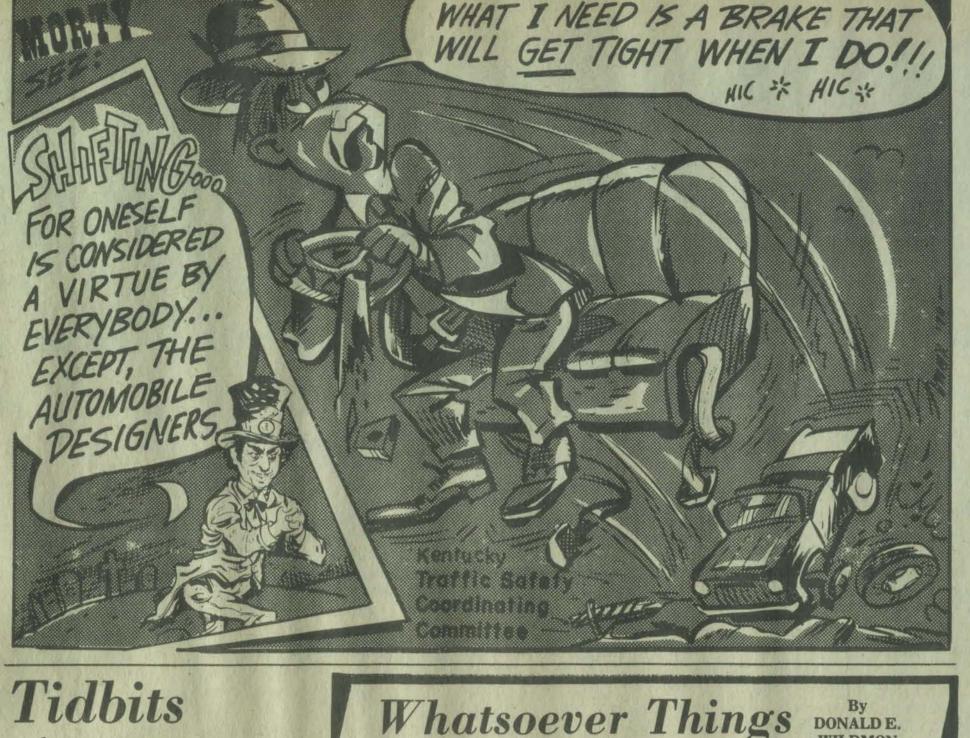

The recently expanded Big Sandy plant of the Kentucky Power Company, near Louisa, makes it the largest investor-owned generating station in Kentucky, with a capacity of 1,080,000 kilowatts. This plant is an example of the location of power plants in remote sections near ample power sources and electric energy and the use of low-cost high-voltage transmission lines to convey electric power to higher density areas where it is used. This availability of low cost electric energy is a pre-requisite to industrial development. Such a power line now under construction is the 5,200,000horsepower, 765,000-volt, 1,250 mile-long, $250,000,000 transmission system parallelling the Big Sandy River and connecting the Donald C. Cook nuclear plant on Lake Michigan with the Smith Mountain plant near Roanoke, Va., and some 36 generating stations throughout the A. E. P. System. A few years ago a man's wealth was reckoned by the number of horses he owned. With the power of millions of horses galloping over the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, is it any wonder the region can look forward to a bright future?

This brighter future is reflected in homegrown industries, locally owned and managed, such as Elkhorn Industries, Martin; Porter Electric, Allen; Reynolds Body Co. and R and S Body Co., Allen; Ranier Construction Co., Prestonsburg. These industries contribute approximately $6,000,000 to Floyd county's gross annual product, plus more than 500 jobs. Other industries are the Lycoming Shoe plant at West Liberty, employing 300, the U.S. Shoe plant at Prestonsburg, employing more than 300; Kentucky Appalachian Industries, Prestonsburg, which employs 400; Princess Manufacturing Co., Auxier, with about 200 employees, American Standard, between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

expects to employ 400. Even the Kentucky River area is beginning to prosper, The U.S. Shoe Company is planning a plant at Jackson. Kentucky has some 25,000 coal mining jobs and most of them are in Eastern Kentucky. Pikeville is making time with its Model Cities program. The new hospital addition under construction approximately two miles of U.S. 23, just north of Pikeville, is well under way. This will be the first modern road in the history of Pike county!

SOME MORE FAMILY NAMES

My study of onomastics - origin of names - has made me remember many ways in which we used to carry on this tradition, not to the extent of centuries ago but still obvious in rural areas. Some of the people whom I knew at Fidelity were never called by their names but by some shortened or comic form of them. I was grown before I knew that Ceph Winchester was named Josephus, and his brother Zannie was actually Alexander. One of my Mammoth Cave friends was called Doc; I did not know until I read his obituary, after he and I had lived as good friends for decades, that he was so called for the doctor who brought him into the world. A rather well-fed friend of mine is universally known as Fatty; his real name is James Skaggs; but I know at least six men with that name; only this one has such a distinctive name added. A host of Mammoth Cave family names arose, in pre-pioneer days, in the same way, back in the British Isles. The original Campbell was so called because he was hare-lipped; Crump was applied to a man who was bent or crooked in stature; the first Kennedy was ugly-headed; the first Scotchman named Mitchell was a "big'un," for the word is the same as Scotch MICKEL. Springs, streams, bridges, swamps played a big part in placing some Jim or Tom or Bill who might otherwise be hard to identify: Parsley lived across the water; Rich lived by the stream; Adwell lived by the well or spring; Vance lived near a swamp; also Whittle lived on or near a white hill, probably a limestone one at that; Keith lived in a forest.

In addition to such obvious names for occupations as carpenter, tailor, farmer, smith, there were many others that are not so obvious now. Jagger or Jaggers was a driver of a peddling wagon; Kidwell made wicker baskets to catch fish; Poynter or Pointer made lace for a living; Slemmons made looms for sale; Spillman was a juggler or jester, a sleight-of-hand artist; Webb was a weaver; Webster was a female

It has always been true that personal characteristics often separate some of us from the rest of our tribe or clan. The original Woolsey or Woolsie got his name from his keen eye, "wolf's eye"; Self may have looked like a sea-lion, probably because of a walrus mustache; Lyons looked or acted or roared like a lion; Pardue, originally a Frenchman, used a naughty byword-PAR DIEU-or a less naughty one-DE PARTE DIEU, which means a mere "in God's name." Maybe Barron or Barrons strutted his stuff, like a lord; Toohey was or pretended to be a greenhorn, a rustic; Clements or Clemmons had a kind bearing and was merciful; Curtis was noted for his courteous manners; Gentry acted like one well-bred; Moody was bold, as was also Mudd, both words derived from an old word that is not lost, "mod," which meant just about every good quality.

The actual giving of surnames is not at all ancient in many parts of the world. It is said that Napoleon, in the early 1800's urged Frenchmen to standardize their names. In the Scandinavian countries it is still said to be common to create a new surname for each new boy: for example, Nils Hansen might name his son Hans, but he would be Hans Nilsen rather than Hans Hansen. This is very picturesque and is definitely good enough for a local neighborhood, but it is pretty hard to keep up with beyond such narrow boundaries. Sonny Brown may live and die as Sonny Brown, so far as his village is concerned; but we have grown accustomed to having him as a responsible citizen with some name or names: James T. Brown or George Brown, Jr., or Raymond Brown III. It is very folkish, however, to be introduced, as I have been, to Baby Thompson, let us call him, a six-footer, twice as big as his pappy. And Little Mary Jones or even Sugar Jones has been introduced to me after both of us were grandparents. Now aren't family names interesting?

JOHNNY SPENCE GOT WISE

There was a boy in South Carolina named Johnny Spence. When he was 13 years old he became a seventh-grade dropout. Like most other dropouts, Johnny found it tough sailing. While he didn't have many talents, he did have one. He had a talent for golf, and he used it.

When he was 17 he was the pro at a country club. Everybody liked Johnny. And for a 17-year-old, Johnny made good money. Johnny was a faithful church member, and this meant that on Sunday he didn't show up for work till after church. One Sunday, the president of the club was waiting for him when he came to work. With the president was the governor of other people on the VIP list.

When asked where he had been, Johnny said he had been to church school and worship. His superior remarked to Johnny something like this:"Well, you will have to guit that or we will find ourselves another pro. Being a church member is all right, I'm one myself. But don't let it interfere with business." So Johnny quit letting the church interfere with his business.

Johnny soon became a golf instructor for some college coeds. Johnny fell in love with one of the girls. They began to go to parties where drinks were served. Johnny's sweet-

LETTERS To The Editor

PERHAPS ...

Editor, The Times:

I noted with some interest the poem published on Page 7 of your Feb. 12 paper. The tone of this poem seemed to be almost diametrically opposed to some of the views I have seen published in your paper in previous times. It is interesting to note that those at whom the stones are thrown seldom if ever resort to throwing stones back, and if they do, cries of foul play are heard from the other side. Perhaps if people would think before they speak whether they are a "sheep" or a "goat" and how they think they have cognizance of the fact of what they are, the air would be less full of these verbal "stones". If the TIMES is able to differentiate, perhaps it has someone on its staff of whom I was heart began to criticize him because he refused to drink with the others. So, to satisfy his sweetheart, Johnny began to drink at the parties.

Things went real well for the seventhgrade dropout. It wasn't long till Johnny Spence was making up to $5,000 some weeks. He also became not only a heavy drinker, but went the whole routemorphine, dope, you name it, he tried it.

Once his wife and mother poured his whisky down the drain. Johnny grabbed the shotgun and would have shot them, he said, had not an officer hit him on the head from behind. Soon they carried Johnny to a veteran's hospital for help. When Johnny South Carolina, the mayor of the town and tried to end it all by slashing his wrist, a guard overpowered him.

> While Johnny was in the hospital, a chaplain came to see him. The chaplain told Johnny that the Galilean still loved him, wanted to help him, would forgive all he had done. Some men from the country club where Johnny had worked who were followers of the Carpenter came to visit him, pray with him, express concern for him. Soon Johnny was going to their meetings. Before long he was once again a follower of the Man of Galilee and a person with a new lease on life.

> Johnny Spence tells his story wherever people will listen to him. Many groups want him to speak about his recovery. But some of those who want him to tell of his recovery don't want him to mention the name of the Galilean in his story. They think it is out of place to mention Him outside a church building. Funny thing about it is that it was the same type of people that helped get Johnny in the mess, to start with. The only thing different now is that Johnny Spence is wise, he doesn't listen to these people any

Maybe one day we will all get wise.

TO CUT TRIPS FOR MAIL

Trips to the post office to pick up the mail could become unnecessary for some 19,000 Kentucky families in 109 counties under a major new postal service program expanding home delivery announced by the Post Office Department. Persons living more than a quarter mile but less than a half mile from the small post offices affected who now have no city delivery will be eligible for the service. Under the old program they were not eligible for rural delivery if they lived less than a half mile from the post office.

Some people just don't like jig fishing For them there just isn't enough sport connected with this method of catching black bass. They like action with a casting rod rather than with stiff cane poles. This minority need not wait longer to get in their licks. While most people are enjoying jig fishing in most of the lakes, two others offer fishing that should delight the purist, if that be his description. It's rainbow trout fishing in Herrington and Cumberland.

These stocked fish have an idea of spawning. They have moved into the very heads of some of the creeks or tributaries that empty into these two lakes and they are there now, going through the motions of spawning, and actually spawning in many instances. Although it is believed they are wasting their eggs in such water, they nevertheless succumb to the call of nature. and when the temperature begins to rise just a bit after the long winter, they head for the most natural spawning areas in these lakes and there congregate to lav their eggs. The heads of these creeks are the most natural spawning areas.

For the past few weeks fishermen have detected their actions in these areas and have been having better than fair luck. Many know from the past year's activities that the rainbow will be in those given areas at certain times and the anglers have been there to greet them. Others, not aware of the spawning runs in these two lakes, miss much of the fun.

During the past two weeks, good catches of trout, up to three pounds, have been made at Lake Cumberland. Similar catches, but smaller fish, are reported from some sections of Herrington Lake.

It may be that the runs in these two lakes are about over, but it's worth the while of a fisherman to give it a go anyway.

The rainbow is his own worst enemy in the spawning areas. He moves into the very shallow waters, often not over a couple of feet deep, and there wallows about slashing the water and presenting to the knowledgeable fishermen a dead giveaway of the rainbow's madness.

The fisherman then has merely to move his boat into the shallow water, keeping it a fair distance from the actual spawning grounds, cast a minnow-action flashy artificial lure and retrieve swiftly.

As surely as the rainbow are there, they'll hit and they'll give the fisherman the battle he desires. In some instances the fisherman will discard the boat a few hundred feet away from the shallow water and walk the bank, casting as he quietly moves along.

And often, in place of artificial lures, worms or a soft, sticky cheese will do the job, behind a floater. The bait is allowed almost to touch the bottom and is kept moving by a slow retrieve.

It's anybody's guess as to how long the rainbow will be in the spawning mood. It may be a couple of weeks more, or it may

Anyway, it's worth a trip to find out, and if the rainbows and the fishermen meet at this pseudo spawning area, then there's bound to be a lot of action.

On many farms of our region, the beautiful and highly useful slippery elms have been almost wiped out by the all-toopersistent bark peddlers. Some of these seem to think that they have the right to go upon the lands of others and kill the slip-

The slippery elm is also known to botanists as the red elm, Ulmus Rubra, as the inner wood is tinged with red. It is also known in some parts as the sweet elm and the moose elm. It is one of the finest harbingers of spring, as it bursts out in bloom during the latter part of March, the flowers appearing ahead of the leaves. They are formed in clusters on the twigs and are small, rounded and yellowish-green. They mature to tiny "seed wafers" which are dispersed by the wind.

The inner bark of this tree is its most useful and distinguishing feature. It is white, aromatic, tender and sweet and may be eaten like candy. It is a good tonic, also a fine medicine for coughs and colds. In the

(An editorial from The Huntington Advertiser)

"We have only 20 years left for us to live in our present environment."

This chilling statement by Frank W. Holas, president and chief executive officer of Booth Fisheries, the world's largest handlers of fish and seafood products, placed the growing menace of pollution squarely on the line for the public and officials alike.

The problem was pointed up by the series of Advertiser articles last week on pollution of the Ohio River and its tributaries. It has been repeatedly emphasized by reports of dangerous contamination of the Potomac at Washington.

Last year alone, the Holas statement said, more than 15 million fish were killed by water pollution. This meant the loss not only of those killed but those that would have been propagated had they lived.

A surprising aspect of the statement was that telling of the effects of pollution in the oceans. Probably most people think there is so much water in the oceans that it will dilute pesticides sufficiently to nullify their effects.

But seafood can store up pesticides in their tissues, and the continued pollution can raise the concentration to dangerous levels. Such poisons can also be carried much farther than most people would think possible.

Residues of DDT have been found in penguins thousands of miles from the nearest point of contamination.

The poisoning of fish and seafood problems. is a serious handicap to the effort to provide more sustenance to the constantly increasing world population.

In 1968 retail sales of such food amounted to $2.8 billion.

But this is only one aspect of the rising pollution of air and water to dangerous levels for human life. In the congested metropolitan areas pollution is now causing serious health problems.

Only a few years ago emphysema, a lung ailment, was comparatively rare. Now it is a common and a serious trouble complicated by airborne irritants.

Asthma and other respiratory ailments also can be seriously aggravated by impure air.

In view of the effects of rising levels of pollution on health, self-preservation requires that the public insist upon speedier efforts to reduce the amount of injurious substances going into air and

This is especially necessary in areas of dense population. But the mounting problems arising from the concentration of people in the crowded ghettos of the big cities call insistently also for more effective national efforts to spread the population more evenly over the country.

This not only would make more adequate use of natural resources such as land and water but would contribute to the solution of many other serious problems resulting from the crowding of people together.

As the population of the nation rises to 300, 400, 500 million and even more, the increase will become more rapid, and survival will require prompt and energetic efforts to deal with mounting

The public welfare requires more effective action now to meet not only national but world difficulties.

'Voices' Return to Appalachia

It was "back to the books" Tuesday for 25 Alice Lloyd College students who returned to the campus Monday after a 10-day tour of five southern states with the "Voices from Appalachia," an a cappella choir. The students presented concerts to "live" and television audiences in 11 southern cities and spent nights visiting with friends of the college. The choir specializes in ballads, songs and hymns common to the Appalachian mountains. A tour of northern states is planned for April. Students from Floyd county who made the tour include Geraldine Hall, Melvin; Rosa Hall, Banner; Gary Johnson, Ligon; Randy Keathley, Galveston; Doug Leedy, Price; Danny Osborne, Wheelwright; Linda Thornsberry, McDowell, and Bill Stephens and Charlotte Whitaker, Hueysville.

2-Day Heart Clinic Slated Mar. 10-11th

Dr. Russell L. Hall, county health officer, announced that the Floyd County Health Department will hold its regular semiannual heart clinic Tuesday and Wednesday, March 10 and 11.

The Tuesday clinic will be for adults; Wednesday's, for children. The clinic is to serve those persons who are not financially able to go to a heart specialist and pay for such services. The only requirement is that each patient must have a written referral from a doctor stating that he be recommended to go through the clinic.

These clinics are made possible through the Kentucky Heart Association, the University of Kentucky Medical School, the Floyd County Health Department and the Floyd County Medical Society. University of Kentucky Medical School heart specialists will be present to make complete examinations, including electrocardiograms and X-rays. A complete report of findings, evaluation and recommended treatment for each patient will be made to the referring physician.

Amateur Radio Club To Meet Sunday

The Prestonsburg Amateur Radio Club (P. A. R. C.) will hold its first ham radio meeting of the year at 2:00 p.m., Sunday, March 8 in Room A-2 of Prestonsburg Community College.

Thomas E. King, President of the club, said that "we are inviting anyone interested in any type of communication to this meeting. We are also hoping to start new novice classes. Last semester we started the beginning radio classes with four area members receiving amateur licenses. Depending on interest we would like to start classes again soon."

A demonstration of amateur equipment will be presented followed by a discussion on "6 Meter F. M. - It's Use In the Valley."

Individuals desiring further information should contact Thomas E. King at P. C. C. or Kenneth Robinson at WDOC.

CRUM CHILD IS VICTIM AT MARTIN RESIDENCE

Health Department Says Trailer Parks Violations Growing

A growing problem in this area is the number of trailer parks which are in violation of the Kentucky trailer coach park law and regulations, says a statement from the Floyd County Health Department.

The following information regarding the law and regulations relating to trailer coach parks is submitted by Dr. R. L. Hall, Floyd county health officer.

"Trailer coach park" or "park" means an area of land upon which two or more occupied trailer coaches are harbored, either free of charge or for revenue purposes, and shall include any building, structure, tent, vehicle, or enclosure used or intended for use as a part of the equipment of such trailer coach park."

The trailer coach park law, enacted by the 1954 General Assembly, requires all trailer coach parks in Kentucky to be licensed. The Kentucky State Department of Health was designated by the law as the licensing agency, and the Kentucky State Board of Health was empowered to adopt reasonable regulations to carry out the intent of the law.

No one shall operate a trailer coach park without having first obtained a permit. Permits to operate shall be posted in a conspicuous place at the trailer coach park. Each trailer coach park issued a permit to operate shall: 1. Be so located that the drainage of the park area will not endanger any water

2. Dispose of all sewage and other watercarried wastes into a municipal sewage system whenever available; however, where connections are not available, disposal shall be into a private system which includes a sanitary means of disposal, the operation of which creates neither a nuisance nor a menace to health, and is approved by the department;

3. Dispose of garbage and rubbish in a manner which creates neither a nuisance nor a menace to health and which is approved by the department. Unless trailer coach parks are operated and maintained in a sanitary manner they constitute a threat to the health of the occupants of the parks and to the health of the residents of adjacent areas.

All trailer coach park operators should be thoroughly familiar with the provisions of law and regulations concerning trailer coach parks. For further information, inquire at the health department.

Water Here Not Affected by Oil

Oil which moved down the Big Sandy from the Haysi, Va. section recently and forced the temporary closing of the Pikeville water plant did not affect the Prestonsburg water supply, Dick Davis, water system manager here, said Friday.

The heavy volume of water pouring into the Big Sandy from tributaries between Pikeville and Prestonsburg was credited with dissipating effects of the oil by the time it reached here.

Ike Hall, Pikeville city manager, said residents there began complaining of the oil-taste of the drinking water, about 6 a.m. on Feb. 18. The plant was closed, and roughly half a million gallons of water were emptied from tanks, lines and hydrants during the cleaning process which required several hours.

Hall said the source of the oil was pinpointed at a spot along the tracks of the Clinchfield Railway Company tracks and that legal action was being studied. He added that it was the second time in a threeweek period that Pikeville's water supply had been threatened. The first was when Clinchfield railway cars containing chemicals wrecked and plunged into the river in the Haysi vicinity. The Pikeville plant on that occasion was closed for about six hours.

HEART DISEASE

Diseases of the heart and blood vessels are responsible for more deaths in this country than all other diseases and causes combined.

Hall Is Awarded Army Commendation

VIETNAM-Sp-4 Tommy Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Hall, Route 7, Dema, Ky., received the Army Commendation Medal while serving with the 1st Infantry Division in Vietnam. Sp-4 Hall earned the award for meritorious service as a radio relay operator in Company A of the division's 121st Signal Battalion. The award was presented Dec. 8.

HEART FUND DOLLARS

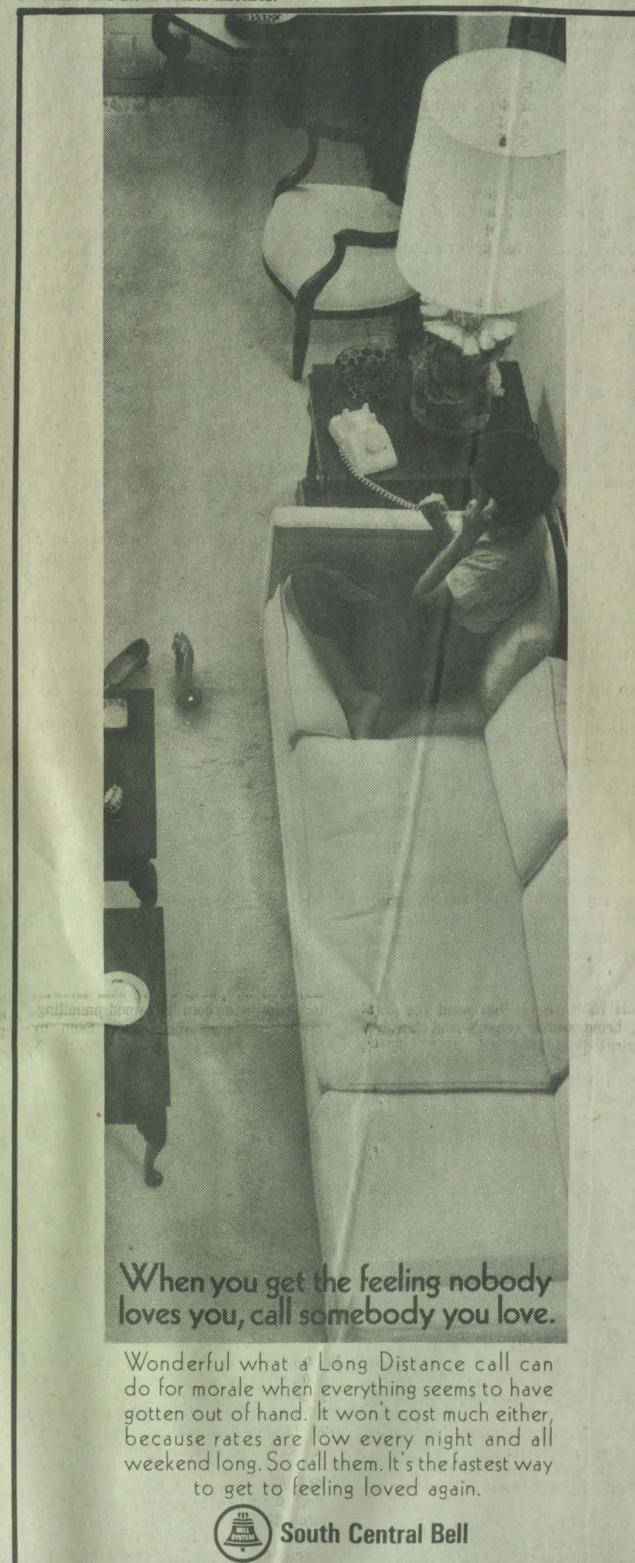

Since 1949 more than 157 million Heart Fund dollars have been channeled into medical research aimed at the conquest of the heart and blood vessel diseases.

Native of McDowell Heads Big Dayton Shopping Complex

This fellow Dan Storie has (if you'll pardon the pun) quite a success story. A native of McDowell, he was graduated from McDowell high school and Alice Lloyd College. His formal education stopped there, but not Mr. Storie.

Today, he is manager of the Dayton (O.) Mall, a shopping complex built to house 107 different businesses and covering an area of 115 acres.

Now 30, Mr. Storie went to Ohio after completing his work at Alice Lloyd and there got into the newspaper field, first as advertising and commerical printing manager for the Franklin Chronicle. From The Chronicle he went to the Middletown Journal where for three and a half years he was that daily's layout artist. Besides his regular work, he organized the Franklin Retail Merchant's Association and served it as president. At this time he is a director of the Dayton Optimist Club.

He first began eyeing the prospects with the Dayton Mall when it was little more than a set of plans in an architect's office. Behind him was his newspaper experience, plus a year as creative ad writer and salesman for Radio Station WPFB and a short personnel management stint with the Jerry Lucas Beef 'n' Shakes Chain.

Why not have a try at the Mall managership? "I always take the positive approach," says Storie. He did in this case, and the job was his. A part of the Mall will open this month. When Sears moves in, next August, the grand opening will be held. Mr. Storie is the youngest of the 12 children of Mr. and Mrs. William Storie, of McDowell. And his wife, the former Sue Maggard, is also a native of McDowell. Their daughter, Michelle, 6, is the only Ohio-born member of the family.

TOO COLD FOR DUCKS TORONTO (AP)—This winter is too cold and icy even for the ducks and geese that normally use Lake Erie, and they're going farther south, the Ontario Forestry Department reported. A survey showed the Lake Erie flock is down 63 per cent from last year—the lowest recorded in 20 years.

(Continued from Page One) suffering the penalty now in effect, and this was hailed as a victory. The legislation, if finally approved, will not become effective, however, till 1972 because of a current lack of revenues.

The KEA group censured Superintendent of Public Instruction Butler for his critical remarks directed at teachers. The Floyd County Education Association resolution calling for Butler's resignation was cited as a model for statewide action.

Mr. Stanley also reported that KEA proposed a new athletic association to replace the present Kentucky High School Athletic Association and to place the new group under KEA control. Action was deferred till April when a coach, who is a member of both the KHSAA and the KEA, asked that the present organization first be given a chance "to clean up its own house."

At Louisville strong criticism of the Legislature was voiced, Stabley said. This, he said, was summed up in the statement of one delegate to this effect:

"The Legislature has approved an appropriation of $100,000 to study us, the next 18 months. We are going to study the Legislature, the next 18 months, and give our report at the polls."

Teachers met here Monday in the last of a series of meetings held in an attempt to decide if the district basketball tournament would be held. The matter at that time was left to the several coaches. All basketball practice, as well as play, had been suspended during the strike.

answer to those who would take Little Johnny and Sissie and all their kind and show them the sordid details and perhaps miss the meaning of the whole matter. Says Levenson:

"When kids are very young-6, 7, 8that's no time to make scientists of them. It's a time for innocence, for wondering, imagining. I have no objection to sex education. But it depends on how it's taught. All the charts, and the birds and the bees-forget it! I think sex should be taught with the stress on love, not biology."

I'm told (via this article from which I quote) that the author says the subject should be love, not the mechanics, because love is what the world is all about . . . and because many children don't get enough of it. He says children should be taught that they're a chain of forever, that they're important and belong to eternity. And he sensibly points out that when a toddler asks, "Where did I come from?" he means just that-"where," and is not asking to know the "how" of the matter.

Mr. Levenson is aware of something many aren't hep to-that this sex education teaching of the "how" is, reduction absurdum, threatening to be a mere chart of male and female plumbing.

the squirrel population of the area of one of its main sources of food, but a tree-growing experiment initiated by a Prestonsburg man and later joined in by other Floyd countians may be the answer to the problem thus created.

G. A. (Arthur) Hughes began, several years ago, the growing of chinquapins at his home at Lancer. These blight-free trees flourished, and soon he was giving friends seedlings for transplanting. These grew and they yielded such a harvest of tasty nuts that eventually one man's effort became Project Chinquapin for at least one sportsmen's club. And now the State Forestry Department is interested.

This year, the Dewey Lake Fish and Game Club through a committee composed of Don Fitch and Bill Pettrey, will distribute to landowners and other fish and Seventy per cent of the nuts grew, and the trees are now about 18 months old.

> Last year, 2,600 chinquapin nuts were supplied hunters, who planted them as they walked the hills in the Dewey Lake area. A heavy percentage of these sprouted. Pettrey and Fitch planted 248 in the German bridge area where a timbering operation damaged hillside slopes. They also planted 125 in the Stratton Branch area.

The autumn olive also is being planted in the lake area to provide food for quail. Its red berries do not fall until spring and provide a wintertime food supply. Forty-eight of these have been planted by Fitch and Pettrey in the McGuire Branch area of Dewey Lake.

Plymouth, Mass., is famous as the site of, Plymouth Rock where the Pilgrims landed nearly 400 years ago. Recently, Donald Clark, formerly of Stanville, this county, gave the little town an added claim to fame.

Clark, a son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Clark, Stanville, is a lobster fisherman with a boat partnership with Willie Ogg. They put out to sea one day recently, hoping for a heavy catch of lobsters. What they caught was something else, plus.

The partners had a series of lobster pots with some ropes attached to buoys about three miles off Manomet Point, out of Plymouth, and Clark learned from the violence with which the ropes were shaking that something bigger than lobsters was enmeshed. They began to haul in the catch.

Clark's eyes popped when the sea denizen was slowly dragged to the surface. He had seen turtles but nothing to equal this giant. Ogg and Clark fought furiously to hold their catch and bring him aboard. Succeeding after a long struggle, they stood amazed on the deck. Both agreed that what they had was the biggest turtle they had ever seen or read about. They didn't know then what it weighed but hours later, when they were back at shore and technicians of the Boston Sea Laboratories of the New England Aquarium had done their work, they were told the turtle weighed 800 pounds. It was, the technicians said, the largest ever landed in New England.

However, before the Boston Sea Laboratories had examined the turtle, there had been much stirring on the wharf and lots of wireless messages. Ogg had called the harbormaster, the message had been intercepted by Capt. John Pinto of the Liberty II ship, and he hurried to the scene. Boston Sea Laboratories picked up one of the messages out of the air waves, and that institution put in a telephone to the harbormaster. They wanted that turtle, alive if

The huge turtle was finally loaded, fully tied down with ropes, on a truck dispatched by the sea laboratories, and the ride to Boston began. But the turtle died enroute.

All visible evidence of the giant turtle is gone now, with the exception of scores of photographs made by the New England Aquarium. The story of that turtle will feature New England sea tales for a long

Reynolds Explains County Judge Bill

State Representative T. P. (Tim) Reynolds pointed out last week that his support of legislation to permit higher pay for county judges has been misunderstood and that many think the increased pay would be funded from the state budget and take funds from other programs and services.

"The money would not come from the state budget, nor would it affect funds for any other service," Reynolds said. "The bill providing for county judges' pay would simply permit them to receive increased salaries, and the money would come from' state refunds of fines and forfeitures."

First Sunday Game For Floyd Teams Played at Maytown

The first Sunday afternoon basketball game ever played in this county by high school teams as a part of their regular season schedule was staged at Maytown, Sunday, and the host team not only won but the attendance was such that school officials are wondering now if Sunday-afterchurch play isn't worth considering in the future.

Maytown defeated Wayland, 95 to 67. The game, scheduled later this week, would have been cancelled, had not the teams agreed on Sunday play, since the Floyd County Education Association banned both play and practise after Sunday because of the teacher work-stoppage.

The scoring: MAYTOWN-Tallent 28, Jim Stewart 13, Hicks 16, Bailey 22, Robinson 10, Jeff Stewart 4. Blevins 2: WAYLAND-Patton 25, Banks 2, Gibson 5, Collins 19, Sexton 2, Nickells 2, Watson 8, Hansford 2, R. Patton 2, Elswick, Turner.

For Perfect Standings

Three former Prestonsburg Community College students were recently honored at a banquet in Blazer Hall at the University of Kentucky.

P.C.C. Alumni Honored

The three, all seniors, are Zella Faye Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace, of Prestonsburg; Teresa Hobson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Hobson, of Auxier, and Joan Stumbo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stumbo, Printer.

The three girls, all presently enrolled at the University of Kentucky, were awarded inscribed medals for having achieved a perfect 4.0 grade standing the first semester.

2-Day Heart Clinic Slated Next Week

A two-day consultative and diagnostic heart clinic for medically indigent patients will be held at the Floyd County Health Department Tuesday and Wednesday, March 10 and 11.

This clinic is being organized so that adults only will be admitted to the clinic on March 10, and children only will be seen on March 11.

Physicians from the departments of Medicine and Pediatrics at the University of Kentucky Medical Center will conduct the clinic.

Co-sponsored by the Kentucky Heart Association and the State and County Health Departments, this clinic provides a diagnostic service for the patient along with recommendations for treatment and management of the case. It also provides an opportunity for the referring physician to consult with the clinician regarding his

Tells Difficulties Road Crews Face

Wendell Bayes, state highway district engineer at Pikeville, said last week that the severe winter weather that has been experienced in Floyd county has caused considerable damage to state-maintained roads, particularly the roads having a surface designed for light loads. He added that the Floyd county maintenance crew is experiencing difficulty in correcting all the problems that are occurring in the county because of the large amount of time that has been spent in removing snow and ice slides and rock falls, and in facing the number of other problems that have

The engineer expressed appreciation for the patience the people of this county have shown during this very severe winter and gave assurances that the Highway Department will do all it can to keep statemaintained roads in as good condition as

Lexington Jaycees Honor Martin As Outstanding Young Educator

Joe David Martin (left), principal of Jefferson Davis elementary school, Lexington, receives the Outstanding Young Educator of the Year award from A. Norrie Wake, chairman of the Lexington Jaycees' awards committee.

Joe David Martin, principal of Jefferson Davis elementary school, Lexington, and native of Floyd county, has been named "Outstanding Young Educator" for 1970 by the Lexington Jaycees.

A natural interest has already provided Mr. Martin years of experience with young people. Before assuming his present position as principal at Jefferson Davis, he taught at Yates elementary school in Lexington, and served as waterfront director at Boy Scout Camp Shawnee in this county for several years.

Mr. Martin, 27, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley N. Martin, of Allen. A 1960 graduate of Prestonsburg high school, he received his B. S. degree from Union College and his master of arts degree in education from

NOTICE

The Kentucky Department of Highways, in order to assist those people displaced by highway construction, desires to obtain listings of available housing and building lots which are for sale, rent or lease in Pike and Floyd counties.

Information concerning property listed with the Department will be made available, free of charge, to those people displaced by highway construction and at no cost to the property owner offering the

Any property owner having property for sale, rent, or lease, is requested to send a brief description of the property, giving the lot size, type (brick, frame, block), number of rooms, type of heat, if gas and water are available, location and whether or not the house has a bathroom. If the house is for rent, state monthly rent; if house is for sale, the sale price. Be sure to indicate the name and address of the owner and telephone number, if any.

All properties listed must be safe, decent, and sanitary, and available for sale or rent without regard to race, creed, color, or national origin.

All replies should be sent to David Watson, District Relocation Assistance Agent, Department of Highways, P.O. Box 2468, Pikeville, Kentucky.

(Signed) WENDELL BAYES Eastern Kentucky University. His wife, Alice, formerly of Knott county, is a guidance counselor at Tates Creek senior high school in Lexington.

In recommending him for the award, Dr. G. S. Potts, superintendent of the Fayette county public schools, said, " . . . He did an exceptional job of relating to the needs of the children under his supervision and was very successful in working with a faculty that, on the average, was considerably older than himself.

"Several of the older teachers told me last year that he was the greatest, and there can be no greater compliment paid a young principal than to be so recognized by the 'elder statesmen' on his faculty."
