

Event Here Saturday To Stress Patriotism

Floyd Students To Join Elders In March Here

They call it, this event that is scheduled for all Floyd county to have a part in Saturday, the Veterans Day Parade. It could be called "Stand-Up-and-Be-Counted Day."

For the idea behind it all, according to leaders, is that while others are being counted against America, those taking part in the program here will assert their support of the United States, its government and way of life.

As of last Saturday, a dozen schools had indicated they would participate in the parade starting at 10 a.m. Parade entries should be at the Prestonsburg grade school grounds by 8:30 a.m. David B. Leslie, of Prestonsburg, will be parade marshal.

Col. Arthur Kelly, head of the military science department, Morehead State University, will be the principal speaker at the Prestonsburg high school fieldhouse following the parade.

The number of floats to be in the line of march is not known, but two have indicated the theme to be depicted: Allen grade school, "History of Old Glory," and Wayland high school, "Pioneers of America." Besides entering a float, Stumbo elementary will also be represented by "The Highland Fling," a group of youngsters dressed in kilts. The Joy Bible Club, of Eastern, will depict "In the beginning, God." Weeksbury and Lackey schools also will participate, as will the Maytown Homemakers and other groups.

Music will be supplied by school bands and a choral group directed by Gus Kalos, head of the Fine Arts department of Prestonsburg Community College.

Every community is invited, and each group, however small, is being asked to bear a banner showing the name of the community it represents.

Red, white and blue will be the color motif, and patriotism will be the dominant theme in music and speech.

Combs Airport Back in Court, Ruling Result

A retrial of the long-standing condemnation case involving Combs Airport between Prestonsburg and Paintsville will be held, and the Court of Appeals has ruled that when it is held admission of new evidence, once prohibited, must be permitted.

The appellate court said the trial judge in the land condemnation case misunderstood its order reversing an earlier lower court judgment in the case and refused to permit new evidence in a subsequent trial. The Court of Appeals reversed the $258,509 allowed landowners in the lower court trial.

The case involves the condemnation proceedings instituted by the Paintsville-Prestonsburg Airport Board against several landowners to procure a site for the airstrip.

The high court order also held there was insufficient evidence to support the landowners' contention that the land taken for the airfield could be used as a subdivision.

In another decision the Court of Appeals ordered a new trial of the Magoffin circuit court case in which Joe Arnett earlier was awarded $4000 damages from the Terry-Elkhorn Coal Company, a Prestonsburg-based firm. The high court rejected Arnett's claim that Terry-Elkhorn's mineral lease did not give it the right to build a road over his land. It also held that the coal company was not entitled to a directed verdict, pointing out that there was enough evidence to let a jury decide if the company had been arbitrary in its road construction.

Federal, State Stamp Program Officials Meet

Food Stamp Program officials of the U. S. Food and Nutrition Service and the Kentucky Department of Economic Security met at Jenny Wiley State Park, October 27-29, to review progress and future of the Federal Food Assistance Program in Kentucky.

Key officials from the U. S. Department of Agriculture Agency in Washington, D. C., and Atlanta, Georgia, along with top state officials from Frankfort, joined FNS representatives from Kentucky in the three-day meeting.

Carl Horn, officer-in-charge of the FNS field office here, said one of the main topics discussed was the effects of recent program changes and the federal and state agencies' response. Another subject discussed was increasing compliance work resulting from expansion of the program and increased participation by needy families. Some of the Food and Nutrition Service's work of keeping tabs on authorized grocers will be automated to (See Story No. 3, Page 12)

Stanley Facing Four Charges

Horner Stanley, Weeksbury man, who was returned here from Virginia last Wednesday, faces possible trial on four counts, and the total of bonds asked for his release pending trial is $4500.

Stanley was originally booked on an auto theft charge. Later, he was charged with assault and battery and reckless use of a deadly weapon. The sheriff's office said another warrant charging him with shooting at his wife without wounding remains to be served on him.

Eighteen were jailed on drunkenness charges within the week, and county and city shared equally in this number. Those booked on more serious offenses:

Cecil R. Bowling, no operator's license, arrested by Park Ranger Thornsbury; Verlin Shores, drunk driving and no operator's license, by Deputy Sheriff Grady Skeens; Raymond Collins, breaking and entering and assault and battery, by Deputy Sheriff Albert Salyers; George Campbell, a.w.o.l., by Sheriff Leslie; and by Prestonsburg officers—John E. Riley, drunk driving, by Policeman Nelson; Alvin Branham, Jr., no operator's license, by Policemen Sam Hale and Thomas Blackburn.

State Officials, Court To Meet; Plan Span Job

Kentucky Department of Highways officials will meet with the Floyd fiscal court November 10, to hear recommendations for the county's 1971-72 county road aid program.

Through this program, the Highway Department helps the counties maintain their roads. It does not include enough money to meet all the needs of all county roads, and in order to establish priorities, department officials meet with each county's fiscal court.

The program agreed upon is signed by an official of the Department of Highways and the county judge.

Highway Commissioner B. E. King last week announced that a new bridge will be constructed over Goose Creek with emergency county road aid funds. King explained the emergency funds are used for projects not included in the Fiscal court's county road aid program but which need immediate attention.

The bridge, which is located 14 miles south of KY 80, will be reconstructed during this fiscal year.

Teacher To Get Pay Hike After Seniority Ruling

Willie Elliott, McDowell teacher, may have added to his paycheck as much as $86 a month as a result of a ruling by Attorney General Breckinridge and compliance by the Floyd County Board of Education with that ruling.

Effect of the Breckinridge ruling was to give Elliott seniority credit for two years while he was in military service. Elliott had written the attorney general that he had taught two years at Wheelwright, then had served two years in the armed forces and after that had been employed as a teacher in the McDowell elementary school. The board of education paid him on the basis of two years' experience.

Elliott contended he should be given credit for the two years of military service, and Breckinridge agreed, holding that the teacher came within the legislative definition of a public employee.

County Superintendent Charles Clark said credit for the extra two years will be given the teacher as soon as legal clearance is effected. Elliott's pay on the basis of four years' experience will be retroactive.

The ruling may affect the standing of a number of Kentucky teachers whose classroom service has been interrupted by military service. Atty. Gen. Breckinridge was quoted as saying Elliott was the first to raise this question in the state.

City Asks Hearing On Trailer Situation

With at least 20 applications on hand from persons desiring to locate mobile homes in Prestonsburg, the City Council has directed the City Planning Commission to hold public hearings preliminary to amending the zoning ordinance determining the location of such installations.

At the same time the Council directed that mobile homes already located without authority to do so in the corporate limits of Prestonsburg be removed.

The Council directive specified that no residential lots are to be used as mobile home sites and that only mobile home

Pollution was the main topic of discussion at the meeting here Sunday of the Seventh District Wildlife Federation, and Bernard Carter, assistant director of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, blamed much of the Dewey Lake problem to a lack of state laws to protect the impoundment from pollution.

Carter referred in particular to the muddy condition of the water in Dewey Lake. He said this deterred fish growth, because game fish feed by sight and the muddy water makes forage fish almost invisible to them.

This Town . . . That World

WATCH FOR PHASE 3

By next week, unless their editors suddenly take off, screaming, and have to be run to earth by hounds, three weekly newspapers will be printed in the plant we have here.

We will huff and puff through these early press runs; it's almost certain things will get worse before they get better. Just bear with us while we're bearing up under what is euphemistically termed stress and strain.

Perhaps one of our associates, Allan Perry, of The Paintsville Herald, stated it correctly when in an editorial last week he reduced the development of newspapering hereabouts to phases. Phase 1, he said, was the conversion to "cold type"; Phase 2, the installation of the new offset press; and Phase 3 may when we all take a running jump into the Big Sandy.

Allen, Adams Board Winners

Unofficial returns from the Floyd county balloting showed Tuesday night that Dr. James D. Adams had won the Educational Division No. 1 board member post and that Dr. J. H. Allen had been reelected to the board from Educational Division No. 2.

The unofficial vote: Dr. Adams, 1636 to 1170 for O. R. (Pete) Howard in Educational Division 1; Dr. Allen, 1192 to 1070 for Donnie L. Lafferty in Division 2.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins piled up a huge lead in this county over his Republican opponent for the Seventh district Congressional seat, and is an easy winner.

The state bond issue apparently was losing in this county but held an early lead over the state.

NEA Probers Slate Hearing Here Monday

Policeman Charged On Striking Count

Trial of Policeman Thomas Blackburn, of Prestonsburg, who was charged last week by Douglas DeRossett with striking him with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, is scheduled for a hearing in quarterly court, Nov. 16.

DeRossett claimed he was struck by the officer at Archer Park.

DeRossett was booked at the county jail on a charge of improper starting of a vehicle.

Two Pike Men Begin Life Terms

Richard Bridgeman, the Pikeville man who was held in the Floyd county jail for safekeeping after the July 12 slaying of Glenn Moore, assistant Pike jailer, and one of two other men accused in the jailbreak-slaying, Eugene McCoy, also of Pikeville, last week began serving life prison terms after they had been sentenced under terms of an agreed verdict. No testimony was heard.

The third man accused in the slaying, Willie Lee Little, has been denied a change of venue and his trial has been docketed in Pike circuit court for Nov. 17. His attorneys argued that feeling in Pike county against their client was such that he could not have a fair trial there. The petition was denied last Friday.

Work To Include Hearing Citizens, Visiting Schools

A special investigating committee of the National Education Association will conduct one of its four scheduled Kentucky hearings here next Monday in the wake of a school crisis which was capped earlier in the year by a statewide teacher strike. (Public employees, including teachers do not have the legal right to strike, the Court of Appeals held last week. See separate story in this edition of The Times.)

The eight-member committee of nationally known educators assigned to the task of probing into Kentucky's educational system will first meet in Louisville Sunday, then split into two-member teams for the investigative work here and at three other regional sites.

Miss Betty J. Rowland, head of the Eastern regional office here of the Kentucky Education Association, said, citizens, students, teachers and community leaders will be heard at the hearing here. Several schools in the area will be visited for on-site investigations.

State Senator Clifford B. Latta, of Prestonsburg, is a member of a legislative sub-committee of six named to observe the NEA investigation. The other three regional hearing sites are Paducah, Bowling Green and Fort Mitchell.

The hearings will focus on charges by the Kentucky Education Association (KEA), and NEA state affiliate, that Gov. Louie B. Nunn and the general assembly "have failed in their responsibility" to the schools. Four days of hearings, including testimony from 40 witnesses called by KEA, the plaintiff, will be held in Louisville Nov. 11-14 at Holiday Inn East.

The hearings by NEA's National Commission on Professional Rights and Responsibilities (PR and R) mark the continuation of an investigation which grew out of a six-day strike of 25,000 of Kentucky's 33,000 teachers last February. At that time a three-man team from NEA's PR and R Commission investigated charges brought by Kentucky teachers that the state had failed "to provide sufficient (See Story No. 1, Page 12)

'Many Gave Up Sleeping Hours To Study'

Officer Class In Training Here

Fifteen men, most of whom are enforcement officers, completed last Friday the mobile training program conducted here during the week under auspices of the Kentucky Law Enforcement Council.

The course of instruction included criminal law and statutes, arrest, search and seizure, interviews and confessions, crime scene search, scientific aids, rights of the accused, rules of evidence, testifying in court and other subjects necessary for law enforcement.

Instructors were L. Bert Hawkins, of the Louisville Division of Police, and Charles R. Sayre, veteran officer and holder of the Jessamine county Jaycees' Certificate of Merit this year for outstanding police work. Prestonsburg became at the conclusion of the course the first in Kentucky for a city of its size to have every member of its police force a certified officer in basic law enforcement. Three of its officers—Lonnie Herald, Sam Hale and Girven Waddle—were in the class receiving diplomas last Saturday. The others—Chief of Police Bill Potter, "Hack" Thornsbury, Ray Click, Thomas Blackburn and William R. Campbell earned their certificates in earlier courses. Six members of the force have completed a week's training course in Breathalyzer operation.

Police Judge Earl Blackburn was another who completed last week's course. Bill Pettrey, though not connected with any enforcement group, also received a diploma.

Others completing the course included Roland John Perry and Henry C. Alred, of Paintsville; Bruce Cavins, Mouthcard; Letcher Taylor, Phyllis; John P. Huffman, F. J. Thacker and Calvary Runyan, Jr., Pikeville; Russell Thornsbury and Ronald C. Johnson, Jenny Wiley State Park rangers; Raymond McCarthy, Hager Hill. Mayor George P. Archer, of Prestonsburg, who presented the certificates to the group commented on the dedication of the officers, most of whom worked nights and gave up their daytime sleeping hours in order to attend the training sessions and learn how to become more efficient at their work. He commended the police officers and said they deserve the support of every citizen.

The Unholy Mess and Cleanup

They finished the cleanup job at Red River Gorge, the other day. Earlier in the season, areas surrounding Lake Cumberland were cleaned up. The Sierra Club, women's groups and others spearheaded the work of picking up after all the thousands who had messed up the landscape during the spring and summer.

It was a good work, and we congratulate those who cared enough to get down to the dirty business of cleaning after the great majority who care nothing for cleanliness and the beauty of the state's parks, woods, rivers and lakes.

But we maintain they should not have had to do it. These are public lands which were messed up, to begin with, and public agencies should have the responsibility for cleaning them up and keeping them clean. State parks have employees, workers with the Nelson Project and others are, or should be, available. These should lead the cleanup job. And state officers and all others should crack down, and hard, on every litterbug who visits all such premises in the future.

Both shores of Dewey Lake are an unholy mess. Picnic spots, places where tents were pitched, almost every place visited by people, have been left cluttered with beer cans, soft-drink cans, paper boxes, wrapping paper—anything that has been used. In some cases, campers filled every garbage container, but the accumulation of refuse was not hauled away.

Pollution of whatever kind, wherever it happens, is a tragedy, whether it is recognized as such or not. Tragically, the pollution at these lakes and parks visits the most beautiful places, because their beauty attracts more people, and people mean pollution.

That is the story this year. Next year, another installment will be written—same characters, same plot, same ending—unless state and federal agencies get down to assessing the unpleasant realities and to taking action that sometimes may be unpleasant. If these agencies lack sufficient funds to finance policing of the grounds, they may have to collect a per diem fee from every picnicker and camper in order to pay for the collection and disposal of debris. And if they expect to stop the litterers and despoilers, they inevitably will have to swing the full force of the law into action against every individual who contributes to this shameful clutter.

GOODBYE 'PRETTY BOY'—Mrs. Pearl Miller, Russell Springs, says goodbye to Pretty Boy, a white-tailed fawn she raised this summer. Pretty Boy was found, abandoned by his mother, at Lake Cumberland State Park. Mrs. Miller became the deer's foster mother. Pretty Boy is too big for her living room now though, and Mrs. Miller turned him over to the Fish and Wildlife Game Farm at Frankfort.

Progress! Isn't It Wonderful?

Progress! Isn't it a wonderful thing! For instance, abortion was once illegal except for exceptional cases. But now—now, we have progressed! In more and more of our states abortion—for any reason at all—is not only legal but encouraged! An abortion on an embryo of eight months is quite legal and accepted now, and most expectant mothers who do so have an abortion simply because they don't want the child! Maybe in the future if the mother decides shortly after the baby is born that she doesn't want it—the wrong sex, deformed, wrong color hair, ears too red—she can simply send it to an incinerator to be burned. And if you think that progress isn't getting closer, just give us time. Closer and closer we are coming to Hitler's master race. We are building what we fought to destroy. Progress! Isn't it a wonderful thing!

Or, again, see the progress in another area—freedom of expression. Our progress has legalized pornography on the newstand and in the movie while outlawing prayer and Bible reading in public schools! Isn't progress simply wonderful!

See it still on another front—this wonderful thing we call progress. It has made the criminal socially respectable and the Christian socially rejectable. We coddle the criminal and condemn the Christian. Progress! Isn't it simply wonderful!

Then there is scientific progress. Man splits the atom! And the first thing he does with his new knowledge is to make a bomb to kill his fellow man. Progress! It is so fantastic it is killing us!

We used to judge the rightness or the wrongness of a deed by a Higher Power. Now we put it up to popular vote—"everybody does it." Progress is simply great!

We build sprawling cities of architectural beauty—magnificent things! But we do not bother to learn our neighbor's name. Isn't progress simply grand!

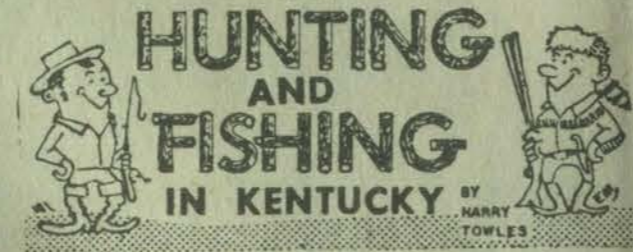

We used to rest one day in seven—most of us. A few who absolutely had to worked. Now that seventh day can hardly be distinguished from the other six. More and more businesses are opening to "serve" the people. What we did call greed is now called service. Oh, this thing called progress is simply the most!

There is still other evidence of our progress. We feel sorry for the dope addict. We protect him, defend him, provide him with some juice for his habit. And we chastise the total abstainer for being non-social. Progress! How do we manage to get so much of it!

We raise our prices so we can cut them when we put our products on sale. We run the speedometer mileage indicator back to sell the car. What we once called unethical business practices are now good business procedures. Isn't progress truly wonderful!

In the church folks used to have to give evidence that they should be admitted. Now the church officials won't let them out. Progress! How great it is!

Progress is getting to be so great and grand that one wonders how long we will be able to stand it.

FRANKFORT, KY.—Boating, and water safety, is very much a part of a fisherman's life. Every day he fishes in Kentucky's major lakes or larger streams he is subjected to the antics of the boat pilot's whims and the skier's gymnastics.

This is not to condemn boating and skiing. Those pursuits are highly recommended by most fishermen who are enthusiastic about the sport of others, as they are about fishing.

There's plenty of room for boaters and skiers and fishermen on Kentucky waters. They can get along very well provided they respect each other's rights.

The water a wonderful place to spend a few recreational days—a place to enjoy the sunshine or the drops of rain and the wonderful scenery of Kentucky.

But on the other hand it can well be a place of tragedy, heartache, pain and anguish. Each year many persons drown in Kentucky waters and many families are the sufferers.

The drownings may occur from wading streams, from falling off dams or steep embankments into deep water. Many youngsters drown while attempting to swim in farm ponds. And there are many deaths as a result of unsafe operation of fishing boats and pleasure craft on the main waterways.

The drownings need not be. They occur because of carelessness, a carelessness induced by lack of respect for the big waters. They occur because a boat operator would like to impress his watchers with his boating antics and some accidents are the result of plain lack of horse sense on the part of the operator.

The water patrol is designed to help people in trouble and to curb recklessness. This unit has arresting powers and frequently use those powers to bring a situation under control. Their mission should be respected. They are trying to make boaters safe and in carrying out their duties they undoubtedly encounter some criticism.

But, they'll check your boat, before you venture out to see that you have the proper equipment. They'll lend you a rope if you become stranded. They'll help in any way possible to make your stay on the waters safer and more enjoyable.

Just remember this when you are at the controls of a boat, be it a fishing craft, a speed boat, a pleasure craft, you are responsible for where it goes, for how it is operated, whether it is or is not safe.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore:

The Decline of Oratory

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

In the summer of 1969 I was invited to speak to a class in advanced speech on old-fashioned oratory, political and religious. I enjoyed thinking back a few decades and then trying to tell the youngsters what it was like to hear a dozen orators or even as many as twenty in one afternoon, candidates for county offices. Since everybody and his old-maid aunt in Fidelity voted the straight Democratic ticket, it was not possible for many candidates, in a primary, to bring up any big national issues. Dealing in personalities sometimes enlivened things, and occasionally brought a few bloody noses and a great deal of barnyard oratory, both in the crowd and after the speeches were over. Since most candidates were rather peaceful and harmless citizens, calling each other names was not to be expected. That left a free field for sonorous sentences that sounded big and meant very little. Or it gave the speaker, in his ten or fifteen minutes, a chance to tell a well-rounded yarn, often a rather risqué one. I am sure that many of my Fidelity friends voted for a fellow, in some race where there were six to a dozen candidates, who orated best or who told the story that created the most laughter and hand-clapping. Only rarely did a candidate speak a plain, understandable speech, tell his few qualifications, and sit down. Eagle feathers fairly flew, and we could expect just anything. Sometimes two candidates, excellent friends, had agreed to make fun of each other in a good-humored way; I recall several such pairs of speakers who actually got a lot of votes because they made the sovereign voters laugh.

On any patriotic occasion, such as the Fourth of July, more feathers were plucked, often by the handful. All the catchwords of the old-time orator appeared, so much so that we would have been disappointed if any of them were left out: home, mother, land of schools and churches, our Founding Fathers, Lee and Stonewall Jackson, and some dozen more.

Our preachers were oratorical, too, with an equal number of catchwords. The more lacking in formal education they were, the more likelihood that they would pound the pulpit and engage in flights of sonorous rhetoric. And these same orators, very much like the great poets who have written about the Hereafter, usually waxed far more eloquent when describing hell than when picturing the joys of the other place. Sometimes it actually seemed as if they got great enjoyment out of their lurid pictures. Only an occasional bad boy or man would ever imitate such reverend gentlemen; and the bad boys sometimes got a severe scolding for being so lacking in respect. The preachers who had a good memory and a reasonable education could go on for a full two hours and never lose breath; the less educated ones could go on, too, but they had often to add a few extra "Ah's" and "Uh's" to keep the flow of oratory from drying up. And this same oratory was also used when a preacher of one denomination waded in to defend his faith against his enemies and against even friendly neighboring faiths. Some of the finest stories I ever heard came from these religious services, for the preacher had first been a man before he was a minister and had learned some appropriate stories and had dry-cleaned them and made them fit into a religious setting. Again these back-country preachers were following even the greatest writers, who somehow could turn seemingly insignificant neighborhood or personal experiences into long-living poetry or prose. I am afraid that the older pulpit orators spoke somewhat unfeeling about heaven in picturing people of their faith as occupying reserved seats, while those of the congregation up the creek or out in the Flatwoods would be grudgingly allowed only secondary places if any at all. It was hard to picture heaven as above neighborhood bickerings and rather earthy emotions. As in politics, so in religion, the smooth-talking ones often had a great following; and I fear that some very unreligious quarrels resulted between partisans of Brother A as opposed to Parson B.

Right or Wrong

Once upon a time man invented the automobile. It was a noisy machine and it frightened all the horses off the road. But who needed horses any more? Horses were good for placing bets on, but they were very inefficient as a means of travel.

So we entered the age of the automobile and this wonderful, shiny, purring, luxurious machine set man free. Made him a mobile creature, a traveler with no limitations. Then a disturbing note crept into the roaring sound of the speeding monsters: They were killing people. Killing more people than all the wars we had fought. Not in hatred the way war killed men. But killing and maiming just the same.

Man became concerned. He printed posters and put up warnings. He urged caution and passed laws. But he had missed the real killer the exhaust pipe! Before man knew what was happening, the metal monster had breathed so much pollution into the atmosphere that man's cities were death traps and that beautiful orange glow around the sun was no harbinger of good things to come.

That was when man became really concerned about his wonderful invention and decided something had to be done. So the U. S. Senate now has a bill which will bar sales of new automobiles on January 1, 1975, unless they breathe clean exhaust. Ninety percent clean, anyway.

And that's good. And right. But what's bothering me is: What about my old 1958 Plymouth and its bad breath? Will there be no more fishing trips, hunting trips, camping trips? No more quick runs to the grocery or the library for this faithful old Fifty Eight?

Please, Mr. Auto Maker! Come up with a cheap filtering device in a hurry. Old Betsy isn't even listed in the book any more, but I can't afford to scrap her. Neither can I afford a coffin right away.

Nature Trails

We're in the Throes of the Garbage Era

We came into the "Garbage Era" simultaneously with the dawn of the Electronic Era and the Space Age. It seems that we were so dazzled by the magic wonders of the Electronic Era that we simply let our environment become polluted to the point where it is getting absolutely intolerable. It seems that we just sort of drifted into a lethargy about our environment; we drink pop from the throwaway bottle and we do just that—throw it away and never think what we are doing.

Not long ago, a check was made along a number of rural highways, before any clean-up campaign was launched. The check turned up some fancy figures: On an average mile of highway there were counted nearly 600 beer cans, almost 800 paper cups, over 700 empty cigarette packs, nearly 400 empty throwaway bottles, 90 cartons for carrying out beer, and numerous pieces of paper, bags and other litter. It is said that American motorists toss out each year about 15,000 pieces of garbage for each mile. This is done in the face of warnings of litterbugging, with heavy fines imposed.

I can remember how our foreparents seldom threw away an empty can; they kept the cans and jars and used them time and again, and it was a long time before they were consigned to the junk heap. But this is the age of the throwaway bottles, the plastic jugs which never decay; this is also the age of auto travel, when motorists throw away something like 100 million old tires each year!

Where do these usually come to their final rest? In the beds of the streams! They are a big factor in causing stream pollution, as it takes them a long time to decay.

The time is at hand for us to put off the yoke of the Garbage Era and try to find more uses for things we throw away. In our smug attitude we think we get rid of things by throwing them away. But they live on and on and litter up the land. Take old tires. There should be found many new uses for them; there should be a law against throwing them into streams or piling them up along roadsides. Old tires can be put to many good uses; they make a good fire for the camper or for outdoors cooking (or would this pollute the air?); they burn briskly and give out a bright light; they could probably be used for fuel in the grate or stove; they can be painted red or green and used to make flower beds; they make excellent swings for children; they come in handy for use as weights or balances. There should be many other uses for abandoned tires; and surely we can find a better use for the old worn-out car than abandoning it at the roadside or towing it to the junkyard. Each year we Americans abandon about 8 million cars. The junkyards are overrun with these and they are an open and notorious advertisement of our Garbage Era. Northing mars the beauty of the scenery like a heap of old, junk cars. Some states require the junk dealers to put a high fence around them; yet there are many places where they are heaped up in plain view of every passerby.

We Americans are the chief garbage producers of the world. We produce over 3 billion tons of garbage each year!

Today, there is far too much talk about a polluted environment and far too little action. We don't like our litter and we sternly condemn those who clutter up the highways and other places, but what do we do about it? Not much! Not nearly enough. Let George do the job!

The only way to clean up our garbage is for each man, woman, boy and girl to become a crusader for a clean environment. Suppose each person in the United States picked up two empty cartons, or two empty bottles or beer cans each day and disposed of them properly—that would amount to something like 400 million fewer items of litter. And suppose that all of us kept this up for a whole year? We'd soon have a cleaned-up country. We are going to have to change our style of living drastically; we are going to have to put our collective foot down, as it were, and demand that dealers stop selling soft drinks in the throwaway bottles and beer in the zip-top cans. The temptation is too great for these to be used by the public; one soon gets in the habit of tossing them down indiscriminately and there in the weeds they lie for years. The bottle-makers should destroy all the "no-return bottles" now on hand and go back to making the ones that require a deposit before they can be taken out. Hit the public in the pocketbook, and that's where it will hurt. All of us are going to have to hurt a lot if we are ever going to have a clean environment.

Here are some "Don'ts" to help us in our fight for a cleaner environment:

Don't throw anything away but put the empty can or bottle where they will be properly disposed of. Crush the cans flat and bury them. Don't throw away old mattresses, old beds and old clothing. Surely we can find some use for these! Perhaps many of these things could be mended and used by some charitable organization. People nowadays seem ashamed to wear clothing with patches. Our foreparents seldom threw away old shoes or pants or shirts. It was common to see these oldsters wearing pants with a patch at the knee or in the seat; they often mended their old shoes at home and wore them as long as they could. When they got through with a pair of shoes there was little left to throw away. All the homes of the old settlers used to have a pegging awl and a last for mending shoes. But where are these handy things today? It seems our time is too precious for us to use it in mending an old shoe or patching the seat of worn pants.

But patched pants and mended shoes are not half as ugly as our polluted environment!

Plays Country Music in Hawaii

HQ. PACAF, HICKMAN AFB, HAWAII—Self-styled country and western musical artist, Staff St. Billy T. Meade, 33, Bypro, Ky., performed in the Bristol-Myers variety show staged at Pearl Harbor Navy Base, Oct. 28.

The all-military program was videotaped for presentation to Ed Sullivan for consideration in his March 7 program. Meade's presentation included his own composition, "Stand Up For America," and his rendition of Johnny Cash's "Ring of Fire."

During recent weeks Meade has been entered in a series of talent contests held for Air Force personnel within Pacific Air Forces. He is a veteran staff sergeant of 16 years service, and the son of Mrs. Alma E.

Meade, Bypro.

Meade writes and composes his own music. To date, he has seven compositions which may make their way to Nashville, some day.

His musical career began as a hobby while he was stationed in Japan between 1961-1964. After exhibiting a natural talent in the country and western field, he was invited to play professional and played for pay from Japan to Georgia and back to Hawaii, wherever his military career took him.

He says Vietnam was among his most interesting "appearances." This was while he was assigned to Cam Ranh Bay Air Base during 1967-1968. "We were playing the service clubs, primarily around Cam Ranh, but occasionally were called upon to play Army stations out in the field. We were always escorted by G's with machine guns," he said.

From Vietnam, Meade was assigned to Pacific Air Forces headquarters at Hickman in 1968. He planned another musical group here with a Vietnam buddy, but because of illness his friend never arrived. Since that time he has continued his musical career as a single, and has been quite successful.

With only four years to retirement from the Air Force, Meade plans to settle somewhere in or near Kentucky where he hopes to find his first big break in the professional world.

Meade is married to the former Gladys Ann Honeycutt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Honeycutt, Marion, Ohio. The Meades have three children, William T., 10, James F., 8, and Sharon L., 4.

Aerial Photos Spot Illicit Prospecting

On a tip from the U. S. Forest Service, State of Kentucky aviators and photographers cooperated and obtained aerial pictures showing illicit strip-mine prospecting in Leslie county.

Recently the state refused a prospecting permit in the Greasy Creek area, which conservationists respect as one of the last virtually intact natural woods in the Eastern United States.

Warner Ford, state civil engineer for the Reclamation Division, and Hervie Johnson of Middlesboro, reclamation supervisor in the area, flew over Round Hole Branch and Wilder Branch of Greasy Creek and spotted violations which are being investigated.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Saffell and daughter, Susan, of New Lexington, O., and Jack Franklin Francis, Jr., of Catelettsburg, were recent luncheon guests at May Lodge of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Stapleton. While here, they visited Mr. and Mrs. Denver Daniels in West Prestonsburg.

Mrs. Mollie Grim and Mrs. Gusta Daniels, of Lowmansville, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Denver Daniels, of West Prestonsburg.

In Memory of my Daddy, Forest Childers, who passed away June 3, 1970:

My Daddy's life on earth is o'er. He now lives with Jesus on Eternity's shore.

Daddy was always so good to us. We're glad in Jesus he put all his trust.

We miss him more and more each day. Still, we wonder why he was called away.

We can't go home and find daddy there, but we know his memories still fill the air.

Daddy worked very hard for all of us, but he never complained or made a fuss.

He went to work many times and not able, so we could have clothes to wear, and food for our table.

Why he had to suffer so much we'll never understand, but he'll never more suffer in that Glory Land.

Sadly missed by daughter, MRS. HAZEL C. SHEPHERD, David, Ky. it.

Miss Lena T. Porter, of Pikeville, and Mrs. Margaret P. Alley went to Lexington last Saturday to meet their sister, Mrs. J. R. Herron, upon her return from visiting another sister, Mrs. H. A. Curtis, and Mr. Curtis in Dayton, O. They returned home that evening.

Rangers Visit Homes In Fight on Blazes

An unusually wet fall has kept to a minimum the number of forest fires, but personnel of the Kentucky Division of Forestry are fearful of what could happen after a few days of wind and sunshine, remembering the 1089 acres that were hit by fire last year.

Forrest Burchett, of the Division of Forestry, said last week that the cooperation of landowners and others toward reducing fire losses is being sought through house-to-house visits by forestry personnel this year for the first time.

"We hope that through personal contact and a display of our interest in the problems of farmers and others we can arouse their interest in preventing fire losses, not only this year but in the future," he said.

Forest fire laws in Kentucky provide:

From October 1 until December 15 it is illegal to burn any open fire within 150 feet of any woodland. If burning is done more than 150 feet from the woodland but is capable of spreading to the woodland through grass or other flammable material, it is still a violation of the forest fire laws. If burning must be done, it is permissible between the hours of 4:30 p.m. and 12 midnight, provided all reasonable precautions are taken. Reasonable precautions consist of cutting and piling flammable material and clearing around these materials to prevent spread of fire to woodland. The fire must be extinguished at midnight.

Setting of fires to capture any wildlife is prohibited by law. This statute includes the smoking of squirrels or other animals out of hollow stumps or holes in the ground.

Violators when convicted are subject to both fines and imprisonment. They are also responsible for the cost of suppressing the fire.

Division of Forestry employees will be patrolling the area to apprehend violators of the Kentucky forest fire laws and citations will be issued to them. If it is absolutely necessary to burn anything, follow these suggestions:

- 1. Don't burn until after 4:30 in the evening; 2. Stay with whatever you are burning until the fire is dead out; 3. Don't let your fire burn off your land onto the land of another (To do so might constitute a felony under statute 149-375); 4. Don't allow your children to do any burning for you; 5. Don't burn if the wind is blowing; 6. Don't fail to call your nearest forestry employee if the fire should get out of control.

Re-discover KENTUCKY

By HELEN PRICE STACY

The metered lines of poets that describe a solitary walk in autumn, taking one along a woodland path where beech and maple leaves are like bright yellow and red touches, in no way do justice to the transfiguration that has taken place in Eastern Kentucky.

For at least a few days longer, the hills along the Mountain Parkway will be monuments of color, with great patches of dark green pines sharply contrasting to the colorful autumn extravaganza.

Any nostalgic side road into the autumn of time (for those old enough to look back) would be a trip to the days when... leaves skipping along the surface of a tiny stream became great ships traveling to mysterious places... freckled-faced boys kicked at piles of multi-colored leaves to find a treasure of buried acorns, or maybe a tree toad... girls played house, using red and bronze leaves as china, in their magic tea room—the space between two tree roots.

But of course, the present has arrived, is here and now, and the hand that once may have pocketed the acorns now holds another small hand attached to a towhead who is looking wide-eyed at the bright world, and holding his other hand is the girl who made play-dishes of brilliant leaves.

Autumn 1970 is more a time for family hikes than for solitary walks. The beauty of sky and earth seems more beautiful when shared, just as great music seems greater when heard by four ears rather than by two, and poetry seems more appreciated when heard than seen on a printed page. Printed page.

Imagine a walk up one of the trails to Natural Bridge, exploring the autumnal wonders of nature; at the top, looking out over that vast panorama of yellow tinged with orange and red.

Rodburn Hollow, a picnic area near Morehead, is afire with brilliant coloring—as are those marvelous hills around this progressive university-centered city.

Daniel Boone National Forest, the Red River Gorge and those areas in Menifee, Wolfe, Rowan and Bath counties with new connecting roads are places to visit now. Even a lone hiker is made aware that nature is teeming with life. He sits on a fallen chestnut and watches a forest spider working away on his web, and an insect about to venture too close. He might hear a great rustle overhead and look upward in time to see a grouse take off through the maze of limbs and twigs.

Boaters on Grayson Reservoir, Greenbo Lake and Dewey Lake have the added beauty of water that in itself is a healing thing. Placid water imparts a particular serenity and peace of mind to the viewer.

Everything about an autumn woods seems gentle except the color. There is the velvety softness of moss-covered trees, the shag rug underfoot made by leaf layers of many years.

ENJOY REUNION IN THIS COUNTY

While these sisters and their brother were enjoying a reunion last summer after years of separation they visited in this county. The sisters — Mrs. Victor Shimidzu, of Tokoyo, Japan, (left) and Mrs. Harry J. Layne (right), of Allen Park, Michigan — were reunited for the first time in 33 years. Their brother, Victor Shimidzu (center), of Abbotsford, British Columbia, last summer saw his sister, Mrs. Shimidzu, for the first time in 44 years, and was reunited with his other sister, Mrs. Layne, in 1960 after 35 years' separation. Mrs. Layne, the former Tonia Pichugin, was reared by an aunt in Siberia. She and Mr. Layne returned to this country from China in 1940. Her sister was reared by an aunt in Japan. The Laynes and Shimidzus visited Mr. Layne's father and step-mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. Layne, of Betsy Layne, during the summer. Mr. Shimidzu was delighted with Kentucky, its mountains, scenery and friendly people. "Now I understand," he told his Betsy Layne hosts, "why the United States is the greatest country on earth."

On a bright sunny morning, following a light frost, we were impressed by the large number of dead wild animals that were to be sighted along highways. Our trip was from Frankfort to Lake Cumberland, by way of Somerset and Monticello, a distance of about 120 miles.

Here's what we were able to identify along this stretch of road—three rabbits, four opossums, a raccoon, two foxes, a skunk and possibly a mink (it was so badly mangled it was difficult to identify). The animals undoubtedly were killed the night before. Added to that casualty list were at least three squirrels and one groundhog that had felt the sting of the whirring wheels the day before.

Domestic animals included at least a half dozen house cats and as many as three dogs.

Speeding trucks and automobiles take a heavy toll of Kentucky wildlife. According to a mortality survey for last year, deer killed by vehicles on the highways totaled 255. Especially during the winter months and early spring it's not uncommon to hear reports of deer kills on the highways.

A few years ago the National Wildlife Federation produced this slogan: "Give Wildlife a Brake." That admonition received nationwide publicity and undoubtedly saved the lives of many species of wildlife. More recently, during March last year, the Federation had as its theme for National Wildlife Week: "Seen Any Wildlife Lately?" This was not meant as a slam at the agencies designed to protect and perpetuate such wildlife, or as a citation of the high mortality rate on the highways, but as a warning that when one fails to see wildlife, then man's environment is suffering greatly from the inroads of civilization.

The slogan also drew attention to the amount of wildlife available and undoubtedly had a profound impact on the average citizen who had not previously stopped to think that when wildlife is gone, the environment will not be healthy for mankind.

That is not to say wildlife is disappearing, although the possibility of that happening is multiplying daily. Perhaps, there is as much or maybe more wildlife in Kentucky today than there was 25 years ago, notwithstanding the fact that it must be shared by more people and that its habitat is being squeezed tighter and tighter each day. More wild animals are being produced on a reduced acreage, and that's the way it must be, for never again will wild animals be able to use the acres that are being gobbled up by highways, suburban areas and the sprawling and creeping encroachment of man.

So the road count along the highway, as we journeyed to Lake Cumberland, must be viewed in both a good and bad light. First, it is a shame that so much wildlife must be killed and wasted on the highways, but then again isn't it comforting to know that we still have in Kentucky, a great population of wild animals? It may indicate that the time of man is not so short as some would believe.

YOU AND THE DRAFT

Colonel Taylor L. Davidson

FRANKFORT, KY.—This week our mail included a letter from a college student inquiring whether he could change from a university to a trade school and remain eligible for a draft deferment.

At the beginning of the fall term the student's university submitted a Student Certificate showing he was satisfactorily pursuing a full time course of instruction. Based on that certification, the local board continued his student deferment. During an intramural basketball game, he sustained a leg injury which hospitalized him for several weeks. Following his release from the hospital, a faculty advisor recommended that, since his grades had dropped and because of his prolonged absence from classes, he consider withdrawing from the university and reapplying for admission at the beginning of the next semester.

He wrote that during his period of hospitalization he had given some serious thought to becoming a television technician instead of a physical education instructor. He had made some inquiries and had been informed that a new class at an electronic institute would begin in January. Before making a final decision he wanted to know if such a change would affect his deferment status.

He failed to include his date of birth and random sequence number, which are most important in making a reply to an inquiry of this type. We called in his file for review. He was born on September 8, 1947, and had a random sequence number of 184. If he decided to withdraw from the university, he would no longer be eligible for a classification of II-S. Unless he is eligible for a lower classification he would be reclassified I-A. At this time it does not appear that random sequence number 184 will be reached by his local board by the end of the current calendar year. If the random sequence number is not reached by December 31, 1970, he will go into a lower priority group and under such circumstances he could make a judgment as to whether he wanted to reapply for admission to the university or enroll in the trade school.

Q. Recently the draft board sent me a new classification card. It showed that my II-S Classification had been continued. Since I did not request a continuation of my student deferment, can I be reclassified from II-S?

A. No, unless you provide proof that you are no longer entitled to a student deferment you cannot be reclassified. It is assumed that you originally requested a student deferment and in accordance with this request your university has provided your local board with a certification that you are satisfactorily pursuing a full time course of instruction. If the university continues to furnish your local board with a certification of this type, the local board under existing regulations has no alternative but to consider you for a student deferment until you complete the requirements of the baccalaureate degree, as long as you satisfactorily pursue a full time course of instruction, or attain your 24th birthday, whichever condition occurs first.

Q. I read in our newspaper that registrants who will be in an extended priority group will be notified by their local board of this extension. I anticipate that I will be in this group. When can I expect to receive a letter?

A. We anticipate that as soon after the last call of the year is issued by the local board, which is normally in late November, the local board will begin to notify their registrants in the extended priority group. Q. Will a registrant be able to appeal from his priority group?

A. No. The Selective Service Regulations do not provide for an appeal from the priority group. The only appeal a registrant can make is from a classification and this must be made on a timely basis.

No More Standing in Line . . . Food Stamps Delivered

FRANKFORT, KY.—Food stamps by mail will be available next month to those Kentuckians now having difficulty getting to issuance offices.

Commissioner of Economic Security Merritt S. Deitz Jr. said that a new mail issuance process—effective Nov. 1—will allow participants to receive their coupons at home if they desire.

"This innovation will provide greater service to those families who, for one reason or another, have trouble procuring their food stamps each month," Deitz explained.

"Mail issuance will be of particular benefit to the aged or infirm and those with transportation and child care problems," he added.

Kentucky now has 60,000 families participating in the food stamp program, administered jointly by the Department of Economic Security and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Deitz said the mail issuance plan has been under consideration for more than a year. "We have been testing it in Clay county since June and we are sufficiently satisfied with the results to implement it on a statewide basis."

Deitz said mail issuance will not eliminate the issuance offices in 70 counties now participating in the program.

"Clients merely have the choice now of receiving their stamps at home or going to the distribution centers," he said.

Deitz pointed out mail issuance would hopefully cut down on the long lines at the issuance offices, relieving pressure on both clients and staff, particularly at the first of each month when distribution is at its peak.

Deitz explained the mechanics of the mail process: "Each month the client simply sends us a postal money order or any form of guaranteed payment and receives his food stamps through the mail."

He said a letter of explanation will be included in next month's mail-out to participants as well as a form to be filled in requesting the service.

Deitz said the mail service will not require any additional staff.

funds to support the public schools of the Commonwealth" and had "impeded local effort on the part of school boards and the organized teaching profession, to improve the quality of public education."

William P. Haubner, field investigator for the PR and R Commission, will serve as hearing examiner. The investigative committee includes J. David Eberly, a member of the National Council of State Education Associations, Montgomery County, Md.; Dr. Howard C. Seymour, superintendent of the Phoenix, Ariz., Union high school district; Francis I. Smith, a member of the Oregon State Board of Education; Joe Middleton, a mathematics teacher, Albuquerque, N. M., and Mrs. Amy Burke, a social studies teacher, Toney, Ala., both members of the Association of Classroom Teachers. Raleigh R. Steinbach, a professor of secondary education, University of South Dakota, will represent the commission on the investigative committee.

After the hearings, the committee will make its report to the PR AND R Commission which will decide, based on the committee's findings, whether or not to recommend to the NEA Executive Committee that national sanctions be imposed.

The KEA has charged that Gov. Louie B. Nunn and the General Assembly of Kentucky (1) failed to fulfill their constitutional responsibility to provide sufficient funds to support an efficient system of common schools throughout the state and (2) failed to facilitate local effort, on the part of school boards and the organized teaching profession, to improve the quality of public education. Specifically it charged that the 1970 session of the General Assembly and the governor did not enact tax measures that would make available unused revenue required to finance education and other public services. The May 12, 1970, report also charged failure to repeal inequitable and restrictive local property tax ceilings enacted in 1965, "thus severely limiting the ability of school boards to increase or equalize local school revenues."

Also included in the complaint was the charge that the governor and General Assembly had failed to enact a professional negotiation statute, thus denying the teaching profession in Kentucky the opportunity to fulfill its responsibility to participate fully in the improvement of education at the local level.

The NEA has imposed national sanctions against three states—Utah, Oklahoma, and Florida—since 1964. The reason for the infrequent imposition of sanctions, in the opinion of NEA officials, is that sanctions constitute a "last resort" tactic with "drastic" consequences. A sanction constitutes a public condemnation of an educational system and is, in effect, an attempt to rally a boycott against business and industry in the state or local school district.

EKEA Meet Scheduled, Nov. 12-13; Stewart To Become President

More than 3,000 teachers and administrators are expected in Ashland Nov. 12 and 13 for the 47th annual convention of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association.

Principal speakers for general sessions at the Paramount Theatre are Dr. William Van Til, professor of education at New York University, and Thelma L. Spencer, assistant program director of the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J.

Morehead State University's annual EKEA banquet is scheduled Thursday, Nov. 12, at 6 p.m. in the ballroom of the Henry Clay Hotel.

Dr. Van Til, a prominent author and lecturer, keynotes the convention at 9 p.m. Thursday. His topic will be, "Conflicting Ideas in American Education."

Also on Thursday night's program are Ruth Reeves of Ashland, president of the Kentucky Education Association, and Glen D. McDowell of Pikeville, outgoing EKEA president.

Miss Spencer, one of the nation's best known black educators, has been awarded the distinguished service award of the National Education Association. Her address, "Teacher Preparation-For What?," is set for 10:20 a.m. Friday.

Appearing earlier Friday will be Dr. Marvin Dodson, KEA executive secretary.

Meetings of 21 curriculum departments are scheduled Friday afternoon. President-elect Frank Stewart, of Langley, will take office during the convention. He is a supervisor in the Floyd county schools.

EKEA presently has about 3,600 members representing 18 county school districts, eight independent districts, Morehead State University one college, three community colleges and two state vocational schools.

Maytown Wildcats To Begin Season At Carr Creek Hi

The Maytown high school basketball Wildcats who managed a 22-5 record in a rebuilding year after advancing to the semi-finals of the state high school basketball tournament in 1969, will open the 1970-71 season Friday, November 6, at Carr Creek. Coach Gene Frasure reports that the team is shaping up, but that a starting line-up is not ready.

It goes without saying, however, that All-America forward-guard, Pat Tallent, who is a senior, will start, and veteran guard, Mike Bailey, a senior, will be bringing the ball up the floor. Seniors Jeff Stewart and Jerry Hicks, and Bill Robinson, a junior, are vying for starting positions with sophomores Kent Gibson, Larry Campbell, Darryl Prater, Tony Blevins, David Bailey, Hubert Prater and Bobby Gates.

The Wildcat cheerleaders who attended the A. C. A. Cheerleader Camp at Morehead University last summer are Captain Patty Gibson, Denice Blevins, Oma Reffitt, Terri Harris, Becky Stewart, and Jeanie Frasure. Their new coach, Lorena Hall, is math and social studies teacher at Maytown.

The Wildcat schedule for this season follows:

Nov. 6, Carr Creek, away; Nov. 7, Martin, home; Nov. 13, Garrett, away; Nov. 17, Wayland, home; Nov. 21, Breathitt County, away; Nov. 25-28, Jenny Tournament, Prestonsburg; Dec. 2-5, Pre-Season Tournament, Prestonsburg; Dec. 8, Wheelwright, home; Dec. 11, McDowell, home; Dec. 16-19, Johnson Central Tournament, Paintsville; Dec. 28-29, Paducah Tilghman Tournament, Paducah; Jan. 12, Betsy Layne, home; Jan. 14-16, Shelby County Tournament, Shelbyville; Jan. 22, Hindman, away; Jan. 27, Prestonsburg, away; Jan. 29, McDowell, away; Feb. 5, Garrett, home; Feb. 6, Betsy Layne, away; Feb. 9, Morgan County, away; Feb. 12, Carr Creek, home; Feb. 16, Inez, away; Feb. 19, Wayland, away; Feb. 20, Martin, away; Mar. 3-6, District Tournament Conference games.

The Volkswagen Sedan-and-a-Half.

If you need a sedan and a half to carry all your luggage, you need our Squareback Sedan-and-a-Half.

It has 50% more luggage space than any other sedan.

Including the biggest Cadillac.

That's because where other sedans waste space, ours makes space:

In back, instead of a tapered deck, our Squareback has a square back.

And in front, instead of an engine, it has an extra trunk.

Best of all, while our Sedan-and-a-Half holds 50% more luggage than the biggest sedan, it uses about 50% less gas.

So either way, it doesn't leave you holding the bag.

IN APPRECIATION

The family of Hansel Lucas would like to express their sincere appreciation to all neighbors, friends, and relatives who expressed their sympathy in so many ways upon the passing of our dear husband and father. Donors of the beautiful flowers, and food will long be remembered. We especially thank the doctor and nurses at the Methodist hospital and the Rev. Orbin Dickerson and the singers for their comforting words and beautiful songs; also, the Floyd Funeral Home for its efficient service and kindness during the time of our bereavement.

We don't put this guarantee on any old car.

Before a used car can get our guarantee, it has to pass the VW 16-point safety and performance test. Then, if anything needs fixing, we fix it. So you know the car isn't all used up.

Then we give it our 100% guarantee. To repair or replace all major mechanical parts* for 30 days or 1000 miles, whichever comes first.

And you know we wouldn't give any old car a guarantee like that.

Levels of 2 Lakes To Be Drawn Down, Engineers Announce

HUNTINGTON, W. VA.—The rate of drawdown at John W. Flannagan Reservoir, near Haysi, Va., is being increased slightly to permit construction of a boat launching ramp, and Grayson Reservoir will be dropped 11 feet below normal winter stage to permit construction of a launching ramp and a recreation area above the dam. The John Flannagan drawdown will cause a temporary increase in streamflow on Pound River which feeds into Russell Fork and Levisa Fork, all of which are tributary to the Big Sandy.

The Army Corps of Engineers' normal operating procedure is to lower the lake from its summer recreation level of 1396 feet (above sea level) to 1380 feet by November 30. A gradual discharge rate is maintained to assure stream balance.

Last Thursday, the lake elevation was at 1387. The level was reduced to 1385 by Monday and will be held at that level until November 10. From November 10 to November 30 the normal release rate will be observed and the winter elevation of 1380 will be reached.

The launching ramp is under construction in the spillway area. It will be completed by next March in time for the 1971 boating season.

Grayson Reservoir normally is held at a summer level of 645 feet above sea level. The normal winter level is 637 feet, but the Corps of Engineers has elected to drop the lake to 626 feet to permit construction.

Bids are to be opened at the Engineers' Huntington office November 5 on the ramp along with a parking lot, water treatment plant, restrooms and sewage treatment plant. The development site adjoins the existing marina.

It is planned to return to pool level at elevation 637 immediately after completion of the low water portion of the ramp.

NOTICE

Due to recent improvements in the Martin Fire Department, the Kentucky Inspection Bureau has reclassified the City of Martin for fire insurance purposes from 10th to 8th class rating. This is to advise all residents and property owners in the City of Martin to check their fire insurance invoices to make sure they are reduced accordingly on the next anniversary date of their policy.

Dimes For Darlings

"Dimes for Darlings," will you please give? A dime won't break you, and will help them to live. In a school, where they too, can learn and play. And be with others, from day to day.

"Dimes for Darlings," it's such a small gift. But will help a great big burden to lift From the heart and mind of those who care. Will you please take it to God in prayer?

"Dimes for Darlings," how happy they would be, If they knew they could depend on you and me. To keep those dimes rolling, to keep their school. Why not apply to your daily life The Golden Rule?

Sit down in the evening, think back through the day, How many dimes were just thrown away For things we surely could do without? There are plenty of them, I haven't a doubt.

Don't be deceived, it can happen to you, For that is one thing no one can do, Is to determine what will happen at birth; It could be your child, or grandchild. Then what would it be worth?

It's a wonderful life, to go to bed at night. With no doubts, no fears, no regrets, no fright, Knowing that day, you had done for a child, Something to win God's approval and smile.

Will you please open your heart and pocketbook to "The Top Rank in God's Kingdom. (St. Matthew 18:15-17). That Jesus loves so much (St. Luke 18:15-17.)

Jesus laid it on the line, didn't He? He is very specific, and perfect in every detail. I have found no fault in Him and no mistakes. I love him, he is wonderful. Won't you please consider him now as your Saviour? Tomorrow may be too late. Mail your dimes and dollars if you wish to:

The Floyd County Council, for the Mentally Retarded Children's School. Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

Thank you in the wonderful name of Jesus Christ, Saviour, Lord, and King. Let your Bible be your guide.

Howard To Assist In Holy Land Tour

Richard D. Howard, director of special education at Pikeville College, will be an associate tour director with Dr. H. A. Hanke and the Bible Lands Seminars at Wilmore, Ky., and will assist in leading a tour of the Holy Land at Christmastime. Mr. Howard has traveled rather widely and has been to the Holy Land himself. The Bible Lands Seminars have conducted tours in the Near East, Europe and other world pilgrimages yearly since 1953.

The group will leave New York City, Sunday, December 13 and visit Rome, Athens, Corinth, Cairo, Beirut, Damascus, Cyprus and Israel. Extensions in Europe are offered for those desiring an extra week abroad.

The situation in the Near East is largely discounted by Mr. Howard in that thousands of tourists have been in these lands during all the trouble and only a handful have been affected personally or even aware that hostilities existed.

Mr. Howard may be reached by telephone at 432-3367 after 4 for further information.

Virginia Historian To Speak Saturday

The first program of the Big Sandy Valley Historical Society will be held Saturday, November 14, at Johnson Central high school, Paintsville. The activities will begin at 11:00 a.m. with a meeting of the board of directors, followed at noon by a luncheon in the school cafeteria. The program, scheduled for 1:00 p.m. in the school library, will feature an address by the distinguished Virginia historian, George A. Pruner, and a rendition of early American music by the Jenny Wiley Chantresses and ballads by banjost Dannie Slone, of Allen.

Mr. Pruner will speak on the subject, "Southwest Virginia's Contribution to the Settlement of the Big Sandy Valley." The speaker has done extensive research at the Virginia State Library and at the University of Virginia relative to the history of Southwest Virginia, Kentucky and West Virginia. Since so many settlers in the Big Sandy Valley migrated from the Virginia counties of Russell, Scott, Washington, Wise and Tazewell, Mr. Pruner's address should be of interest to many people throughout the region.

The Jenny Wiley Chantresses, who will appear in pioneer attire, are a nationally known folk music group directed by Mrs. Edith James, of Prestonsburg.

CARD OF THANKS

If you're farsighted you'll switch to electric heat

$Electric heat is the only form of heating that will outlast a mortgage. $Electric heating is practically maintenance-free. $People in electrically heated homes repaint their walls only when they get tired of the color. $These are the "bonuses" that come automatically with a heating system that costs very little, if any more to operate than other forms of heating. $Get the whole story with a free estimate.
