Funds OK'd For Martin Stream Job Easements for Job

To Be Sought Soon, Judge Stumbo Says

Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced last Thursday that the fiscal 1972 federal budget recommendation for the local protection project for the town of Martin is

The project, which will extend from a point upstream from Martin and to near Clark Branch, between Martin and Allen, will cost more than $3 million.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said Monday that an engineer has been employed by the fiscal court to survey lands over which easements will be necessary but that no easements have yet been procured. This will be a work to be undertaken soon,

The $900,000 in Paintsville reservoir funds which were "frozen" last year will be released.

Other Eastern Kentucky items of the requested public works budget are: Carr Fork Reservoir, $3.6 million, down sharply from last year. Cave Run Reservoir on the Licking River in Bath and Rowen counties, $7.2 million, up nearly $1 million. Martins Fork Reservoir on the Cumberland River above Harlan, $400,000, up slightly. Red River Reservoir, in Powell county, $300,000, down slightly.

Laurel River Reservoir, on the Laurel River in Whitley and Laurel counties, $6 million, up more than $1 million.

Also included in the public-works budget South Fork of the Kentucky River in Owsley county; $175,000 for Kehoe Reservoir on Tygarts Creek, near Grayson, and $75,000 for the Yatesville Reservoir, in

Elder Goble Leaves Floyd ASCS Post

Enter Goble, of Prestonchurg, recently announced his retirement as executive director of the Floyd County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee. Mr. Goble had been with the committee office here 30 years. He said:

"After 30 years of work in the Floyd County ASCS office, Thave been forced, due to ill health, to retire. I regret that I will no longer be able to serve Floyd county farmers."

Mrs. Virginia Howard, of Prestonsburg, long an assistant to Mr. Goble, is serving as acting ASCS executive director.

A modern, three-story structure will house science instruction at Alice Lloyd College beginning Feb. 8. The staircase towers at either end of the building are high enough for the addition of a fourth level at a later date. Opening of the building will culminate five years of planning and construction. The structure cost more than $700,000.

25-Year-Old Mystery

Studio Blaze Here, Fire at McDowell Cause Heavy Loss

Heavy loss in photographic supplies and for engineering and design studies were damage to equipment and household $245,000 for the Booneville Reservoir on the belongings resulted from a fire which broke out in a room of the Strahan Studio here, shortly after noon last Wednesday.

One item of heaviest loss included film shot over a period of two months for Johnson Central high school at Paintsville. Mr. Strahan said all this work is believed lost. He said he could not give an accurate estimate of the damage.

The fire broke out near a baseboard in a front room of the First avenue structure which serves as Mr. Stranhan's home and studio. Although the fire burned only a small area, smoke from plastic floor covering and water caused damage through the house. A building occupied by Denver Newsome, janitor at McDowell high school, and owned by the Floyd County Board of Education, was destroyed by fire last Friday. The Newsome family lost all its belongings. A dog owned by the family was burned to death, and the clothing of a son of Mr. Newsome caught fire, it was reported here.

A suit filed in circuit court here last declared legally dead and her interest in Thursday recalled the disappearance of a Floyd county woman 25 years ago and the mystery surrounding her whereabouts which ever since has defied solution.

The circuit court action seeks to have Hazel Patrick, formerly of Hueysville, the estates of her father, Buck Patrick, and her grandfather, Sam Howard, adjudged the property of her next-of-kin.

Plaintiffs in the action are Claude Patrick, Janice Kennedy and Vesta Patton, half-brother and half-sisters of the missing woman, and Mrs. Edith Patrick, widow of Buster Patrick, a half-brother of Hazel, and her two children, Earline Doster and Celeste Mullins.

The petition points out that in 1944 the clothing of Hazel Patrick was mailed home from Arkansas City, Kans., and that all efforts since that time to locate her have failed. It was not known who sent her clothing home. Her father later called on the FBI for a missing persons check. Social security and employment records were included in the search.

Because she is presumed to be dead, the plaintiffs claim her father, who did not die till 1964, would have inherited the land to which she was heir in Magoffin county, and upon his death they became owners in fee of the tract, which includes mineral rights. Also involved is a 11/2-acre tract owned by Buck Patrick at Hueysville.

Convicted in closing days of the session were Toney Scott, of grand larceny, penned two years, and Alvis Lee Smith, of transporting intoxicants, fined $100 and given a 60-day jail term.

Added to earlier acquittals was that of Matthew and Emogene Kidd, who had been charged with horse theft.

The jury in the trial of Douglas DeRossett, charged with resisting arrest, was dismissed after it reported hopelessly disagreed.

Court Dissolves Temporary Bans

The temporary restraining order against the town of Martin and its officials by which a Jan. 11 meeting of the city council there was halted by Bob Hackworth was dissolved Friday, and trial of Hackworth's suit against the city was scheduled for Feb.

Hackworth, who was doubling as superintendent of the city waterworks and as night policeman, was dismissed by the council. His suit alleges he was illegally dismissed, without charges being preferred against him.

The restraining order was issued on petition filed Jan. 7 in order to prevent city officials from taking further action in his dismissal case.

Another restraining order dismissed Friday was that in which Local Union 7788 at David was accused of sending pickets to the Spurlock and Price-Wheelwright operations of the Island Creek Coal Co., causing employees of the company to stay away from work. The dismissal followed agreement reached between Island Creek attorneys and the local. The mines at David and at Island Creeks operations on Left Beaver Creek are now

On Schecter Firing Health Program Director Ousted In Jan. 28 Action

Roy Britt, president of Britt Bertram Associates, Inc., Vanceburg, Ky., con-The full 20-member board of directors of tractors on construction of the low-rent the Floyd County Comprehensive Health Services Program will meet at the courthousing complex in the Goble-Roberts Addition here, said Monday that the house at 7 o'clock Monday evening to statement published by The Times last approve or reject the action taken last week to the effect that the contractor's Thursday by its executive committee in bonding company is completing the job is dismissing Dr. Arnold Schecter as director of the multi-million-dollar program.

Meanwhile, John Burton, of the Big finished before May," Mr. Britt said. Sandy Community Action Program, is acting director.

Dismissal of Dr. Schecter was voted at a meeting held at the Floyd County Board of Education building. The vote to dismiss reportedly was 3 to 1.

The reason given for the action was the alleged insubordination of the director. It was later explained that when the project was submitted to OEO in Washington for funding Dr. Schecter was instructed by the board to present only Part A of the program, which pertained to the referral system under which the program has operated from its beginning-that is, patients are referred to doctors and hospitals for examination and treatment. This source said Schecter was instructed not to present Part B, or another portion of the program involving the employment of doctors, dentists and others, until the board completed its study of the plan.

Instead, it was claimed, the director presented both parts of the program.

Members of the board said it is probable that some parts of the plan developed by Schecter would be approved but that this could not be done until a full study was made by the program committee.

Commenting on the action, Dr. Schecter this week said, "This was done in such an obviously trumped up and peculiar way. I am a member of the executive committee, and I wasn't invited to attend, and Dr. Adams, who made the motion to dismiss, cannot be considered a member.'

"What is being done," he added, "is because I am trying to save the program by having some sort of small health facility... Unless we compromise at least a little bit, we are going to lose this program... This is the sort of thing that will guarantee-if it keeps up-that Floyd county will not have a Comprehensive Health Program.'

Mrs. Burl Spurlock is chairman of the Banquet committee and the sale of tickets ($2.50 per person). Tickets also will be available from ministers and laymen, it was said.

The banquet is planned to make it possible for lay leaders of every church to attend, meet the Philpot team, receive information about the Crusade and enjoy the inspirational program.

"This Crusade," a leader in the planning said, "can be the greatest spiritual blessing because so many Christians from all denominations will be working together to bring the message of God's love to every man, woman and child in the Big Sandy

Jenny Wiley State Resort Park soon will benefit from the Department of Parks' latest efforts toward preserving Kentucky's natural environment, Parks Commissioner James W. Host announced

A sewage dump station for boats will be built at Martin's boat dock, near May Lodge. The project will consist of construction of a small dock and ramp, handhose, water line and water hydrant.

Sewage will be collected and discharged into a nearby manhole which is a part of the park's sewage collection and treatment facilities in locations outside park property.

Should the Sale of Marijuana Be Legalized?

Writing in NEWSWEEK, Stewart Alsop paints a word-picture of a dying city.

"The smell of death." wrote Alsop, "pervades the city."

The city is New York, and the writer tells why it is on its way out. The tragic story is, basically, that one of one individual. One man, one woman, a boy or girl. He or she is introduced to heroin or other "hard" drug. One small, $3 "bag" satisfies the user for a day temporarily. But soon the addict's demands are for a large bag, which costs $10. And within a year or so four or more large bags costing $10 each are required.

Forty dollars a day, or more, for one person. And that $40 must, by some means, any means, be realized every day, 365 days a year. Roughly, $15,000 a year per addict, every other necessity of life

excluded. Few drug addicts are $40-a-day men at legitimate work. So it is that the individual who must have his daily quota of what amounts to death turns to crime-burglary, robbery, kidnapping, murder, prostitution-whatever means that will pay for his or her daily supply of dope. And this turn to crime by desperate human beings leaves others in fear of their lives. Men and women go to their places of employment under fear of imminent attack; they fear to go into the streets to make necessary purchases for the household; to seek sunshine and relief from crowded rooms and imprisoning walls. The normal functions of a human being in what is termed a civilized society becomes a matter of running a deadly gauntlet.

Because all this is true, New York is dying, and other cities will die, too, says Alsop. Businesses are failing, tax revenues dropping, residents of the city leaving for more wholesome surroundings. Unless the threat is faced up to and contained by law, what was once the world's greatest metropolitan area may become a city of the walking dead.

That is New York. It is admitted it can well be Chicago, or Los Angeles, or Philadelphia or any other large population center. But what of the small community? If 100,000 addicts, as desperate for dope as a starving man can be for a scrap of bread, can so threaten New York City, how many under the same unnatural compulsion would be necessary to put a small town under the same pall of doom?

It can happen here, or anywhere. What narcotics do to the individual is most appalling to those who have compassion for others. What they may do to the nation hits us all. It is little wonder that drug addiction is a matter of national concern.

Certainly these addicts are sick people. So are alcoholics, we are told. What so many fail to admit is the fact that dope and alcohol made them sick. These would cure the patient but would not kill the Marijuana—a word at which many shudder—is the 3.2 beer of the narcotics "family." Parents who insist on their right to indulge in "hard liquor" warn their children against experimentation with marijuana. The youngsters reply that "pot" or "grass," which is marijuana, produces an effect no more pronounced than a highball. Some speak from experience, showing the similarity of the effect of this narcotic, which is so feared, to that of alcohol, which is embraced as a friend by so many. Researchers tell them that liver damage may result from the continued use of marijunana. The same damage has for generations been known to result from the use of alcohol.

As matters stand, marijuana may receive the official all-clear and its sale and use legalized. Yet its use may be the first step toward the deadly "hard stuff," just as beer may invite the drinker to try something with more "kick."

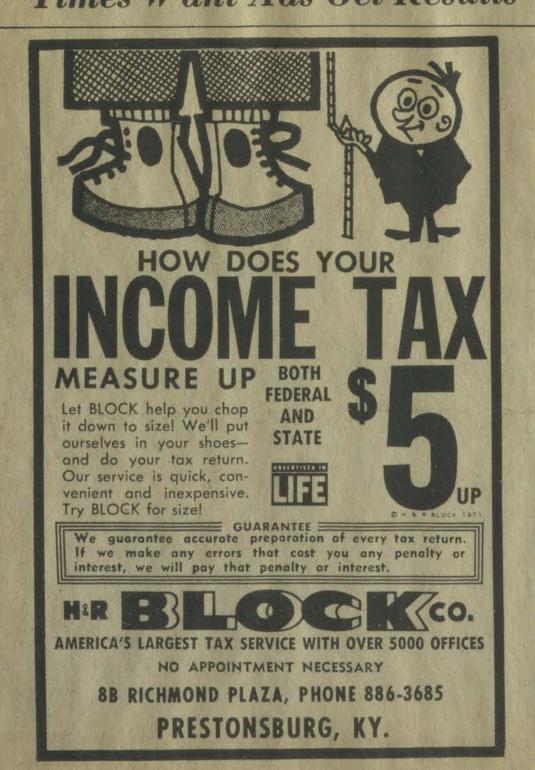

This drug problem,—deep and portending the destruction of a nation because it promises the deterioration, morally and physically, of the nation's people-poses many problems. Many questions can be asked.

One question arises in view of the attitude taken by many who argue that, since people will drink, anyhow, the sale of alocholic beverages should be legalized. It is this:

Should marijuana—"pot," "grass," or whatever you may call it be sold over the counter, legally, because they're going to smoke it,

If the answer is, "Yes"-will you have your smoke, filter-tip, or plain?

Council Decides To Accept Plan

The Prestonsburg City Council has decided to proceed with plans for construction of a municipal building on its North Lake Drive site. The decision was reached at a special meeting last Thursday evening, when George Lee Shannon, architect, submitted preliminary plans. The council set the regular meeting tonight (Thursday) for the signing of a contract with Mr. Shannon.

The architect described his building plan as "the very best we can get for $300,000." The council had set that figure as the limit of spending on the structure.

The former Albert Stephens home will be razed to make way for the proposed building. All city offices and departments will occupy the ground-level floor. Offices in the second story will be for lease.

WHO'S IGNORANT?

But why should I dwell on a show of ignorance on the part of another-I who, once upon a long time ago, wrote for a newspaper a story containing the name of the Rev. Bunyan McLeod and spelled his first-name, "Bunion." Told to read copy on my story, I still couldn't see anything wrong with it till the city editor withered me with the suggestion, "Go, see how the author of 'Pilgrim's Progress' spelled it!"

ALIAS, JONAH

I dared think of trying a bit of winter fishing-and what happened? The wind howled, the thunder rolled, then came snow and ice and the thermometer shivering around zero. I tell you, only a few unfortunate souls know from personal experience of the dark cloud under which I operate as a fisherman. These few know that when I for the first and only time in my life visited the Homosassa River in Florida for a spot of angling, the wind blew so fiercely and so long seaward for that one day that the tide did not come up to the river to our dock, as is its wont.

And yet my friends take chances with, and on, me. At hand is a note from Dr. C.R. Daley, editor of The Western Recordernormally, a very knowledgeable character—expressing the hope that we might get together for some lake fishing, a bit later. This from a man who knows so much about the original Jonah!

Angela and Deborah, like 24 other children either reared or adopted by the Crafts, call them mother and father and keep in touch at all times. Altogether, Hazel and Wardie Craft have taken 81 children into their home.

Five of the children were found through the cooperation of the Kentucky Department of Child Welfare.

"Yes, the five did well and all are making their own way now and keep in close touch. Some of our children have completed college and have good positions; others have succeeded in industry or in their own businesses," Craft said from his beautiful hillside home at Caney, near Kentucky Route 191. "Hazel and I are proud of our children. A few have been disappointing, as can happen in any family; but the disappointments are few compared with the rewards." In addition to children, the Crafts included in their big family their grandparents for as long as they lived, and a blind woman, Fanny Lee Caudill, who

There were still other children they kept for a short time until some of them were adopted by others.

It has not been love, joy, fellowship, laughter all the way. "There have been times I had to leave the house to get some peace," recalled Craft. "When several of them got to cutting up, it got pretty loud." Still, Craft said he would not have had it any other way and that he now has reason to be about 50 times as proud as most

Mrs. Craft now teaches in Indiana, near Louisville, and commutes, week-ends, to her Morgan county home. Last year she won an award for her work as a teacher in Indiana.

Years ago, when the Crafts began adding bedrooms to their home, they worked at improving the surrounding grounds, landscaping and planting native trees and shrubs. They cleaned and improved a family graveyard and made it a part of the hillside lawn. There were some who thought It unique that the couple would care for the small cemetery, but the couple had far-reaching plans. Some day they hoped to make the hillside farm and grounds into Memory Hill Pioneer Park as their contribution to the world.

With all but three of the children through college or settled in jobs and with Craft's retirement as school principal, he began to devote his time to Memory Hill. He was finally able to get two log cabins to begin his project: one the Henry log cabin at Index, near West Liberty, and the other the Billy Davis cabin near the Morgan-Wolfe county line. Both cabins figure in the region's history.

Spending his time and money, Craft dismantled the cabins and had the logs moved to Caney. He has learned that rebuilding them and restoring the cabins as they were 100 years ago in an expensive, time-consuming effort and will take years if he does it alone. He is hoping that he can get a grant or some help with the project.

As a part of Memory Hill, Craft also wants to erect an obelisk to the memory of pioneer preacher and settler Daniel Williams. Williams is considered one of the first settlers in Morgan county and preached the first sermon in the county. Pioneer Billy Davis also was a preacher and Craft, himself a minister, built Redeemed Baptist Church at Caney. The white church with a spire adds beauty to Caney Valley.

About a year ago Craft started a Daniel Williams Fund, asking for donations to erect an obelisk. To date he has $737, but hopes to get at least $10,000 so the monument will be tall and visible for miles. Williams is buried near the Craft home but not at Memory Hill. He would favor moving

A letter from a friend prompts this column. She wrote that their son now has a class under a university professor who MUST have a designer and a maker claims insists there is no God. The youth's parents the universe with its planets and myriad are concerned, although he is a Christian and a senior, which provides some comfort, since most students encounter atheism much earlier, often in high school.

Men who deny the existence of God do so because his Word makes them aware that they are lost. This disturbs them. They never pick on Aristotle, Homer, Plato, Horace or Virgil, Not one atheist in a hundred knows enough scripture to discuss it, and if he knew the whole Bible from memory he still would be ignorant of its meaning, according to the scriptures. These self-appointed, so-called authorities on the Bible are to be pitied. When an eminent space scientist like Dr. Wernher Von Braun expresses his dynamic faith in God and the hereafter, isn't it almost amusing for ordinary professors to deny the existence of a Supreme Being?

The saddest aspect of the matter is the unbelieving instructor himself. He agrees that the disassembled parts of a watch could never combine and make a watch, without human hands. He knows the wheels must work with precision to prevent collision. That requires a brain to design it. He acknowledges the planets are greater than any watch man has or can design. The comparison is ludicrous, but he wants his students to believe the solar system and human life both "just happened," that no genius was needed to create or sustain them. Does that make sense? He agrees the flower is superior to a book, for it can reproduce without aid of man. He admits he cannot make a live flower or a tree, or even the seed that becomes one. He can domesticate a wild rose but it will still be a rose, never a thorny berry. On an even higher plane is the cat. We have pure bred cats today but they will belong to the feline family until eternity. because in Genesis 1:24 the Creator of all things stated an unbroken rule, namely,

East Kentucky RECC To Increase Rates

The state Public Service Commission has approved rate increases for East Kentucky Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation and 11 of its member-cooperatives that distribute electric power in Eastern and Central Kentucky.

East Kentucky, which generates and transmits electricity to its distributive cooperatives, received approval for an average 7.8 per cent increase in basic service rates. Coal price hikes are not directly involved in this rate increase, for they are passed along to membercooperatives through a separate "fuelescalation" clause.

He said it is even now difficult for educational policy-making in the Office of Education to make itself visible at the secretary level, or to be a factor in policy making at the Cabinet level. This difficulty would be compounded by submerging education to an even lower rank through the proposed departmental reorganization.

Perkins began his 12th term last week by introducing a wide variety of bills to The measure is co-sponsored by most promote education, improve the black lung benefits delivery system under the Coal Mine Health and Safety Act, and provide a job-creating program of public service employment.

The Congressman took to the House floor to urge the new bills immediately after the session convened.

He urged Congress to give high priority to those measures improving education and stemming the rising tide of unemployment in the nation.

Perkins introduced a measure to provide substantial federal assistance to states and local districts in school construction. This is an acute need in Eastern Kentucky, the Congressman noted.

And he introduced a comprehensive bill to extend provisions of the National Defense Education Act, the Higher Education Facilities Act of 1963, the International Education Act, and the Higher Education Act of 1965, Perkins called upon Congress to enact his bill speedily, providing authority for a public service employment and training program. It would permit county and municipal governments to set up such a program for the unemployed, providing essential services in the fields of health, welfare, conservation and government administration.

Such a Perkins-sponsored provision was passed by both Houses in the Manpower Act of 1970, which President Nixon vetoed. The Congressman said this streamlined version of the jobs program should be given a high priority by the new Congress.

Perkins said several inequities have developed in administering the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969. One of these is that the so-called black lung benefits provided to victims of pneumoconiosis and their dependents, are being construed by the Social Security Administration as workmen's compensation benefits. Social security benefits of the recipients are therefore reduced.

A Perkins bill, introduced the first day of the session, would specifically state that the black lung benefits are not to be regarded as workmen's compensation. This would eliminate the social security offset, he said.

Also included in his first-day package was a measure to extend the Economic Opportunity Act, now due to expire June 30, for another five-year period. Perkins also joined a number of colleagues in introducing a bill to extend and authorize new funds for the Appalachian Regional Development program which President Nixon apparently wants phased out.

We'd like to thank the makers of the other new economy cars for giving us such a nice head start. It gave us time to develop an inspection system so ridiculously scrupulous that it expects every VW to pass 16,000 examinations.

It allowed us to find out lat a reasonably scientific pace) how we could double our horsepower without doubling the cost of your horsepower. (The VW still gets about 26 miles to the gallon and requests only a smidgen of oil.)

It permitted us to work on things that didn't even have to do with the actual making of the car. Medi-car, the Volkswagen Diagnosis System, for example. Electronic equipment that can spot trouble in a car before it gets to be trouble. When you buy a new VW, you get 4 free Medi-car checkups.

Of course, it took great fortitude to resist squandering our time on phony styling improve-

(Tax Commissioner)

I request that the taxpayers who have either BOUGHT, SOLD or BUILT to come in immediately and have your listings corrected for the year of 1971. The assessment period is from January 1, 1971 through February 28, 1971.

Also, those people who have not reported their MOBILE HOMES MUST DO SO. Failure to report these will result in possibly being penalized the 20 percent penalty; it is also possible to go back five (5) years on all property.

Also, business firms that have not reported their inventories, business furniture and fixtures, accounts receivables and other taxable information, please do so before March 1, 1971.

Keeping the tax rolls up to date is very difficult without your cooperation.

> Respectfully yours, HARRY GORDON ALLEN

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Jig fishing hasn't amounted to much so far this season, but the time is not far off when good catches will be made. Already some fishermen are catching fish, especially in Lake Cumberland and Barren and Rough River lakes.

The conventional nightcrawlers, both live and artificial, are being used in Lake Cumberland but the best results in the other two lakes, probably because more people use them, are from dollflies, garnished with a black pork rind tail. Big bass although the number caught is not great.

uninitiated, the method and tackle is hereby described. (The description may not suit the procedure of all fishermen, but the rig and the method is the most accepted, statewide.)

For the rig, a 10 to 12-foot-long rigid pole may be used, made of either bamboo or glass. To the end of this pole, attach a line of not under 50-pound test. The line may vary from four to six feet.

It is a good idea to run the line the length of the pole, wrapping it to the pole by tape, so that should the pole break, the line will be available to save the fish. To the end of the line, attach a hook of the 4-0 to 6-0 size, depending on the size of fish you're after. If you know there are lunkers around then a larger hook is advisable. The sizes given are merely the most commonly used.

Immediately above the hook place a fairly heavy sinker, which may be of the barrel variety. This is so it will ride right on top of the hook when jigged and will, therefore, tend to lessen the possibility of the hook becoming lodged in a treetop or on a stump. Usually a cork, fairly good sized, is placed about 18 inches above the hook. This is when the water color is such that have been taken in the latter two lakes, visibility stops at eight inches to one foot.

Now, the hook is garnished with night-But soon jigging will be underway in most crawlers. Some fishermen use the artificial of the major impoundments; for the type as a base, with live nightcrawlers added to give more action. Often as many as four nightcrawlers are used-and they give a better action when jigged up and down. Now the gear is ready.

Here's how a fisherman would use it: He sculls his boat (a trolling motor may be used) about eight feet from the water's edge. As he moves silently along, he dips the nightcrawler into the water around stumps and stickups and fallen trees or over cockleburrs or blackberry bushes or other cover, along the edge of the lake. He dabbles the bait into the water, picking it up and setting it down very quietly, but never allowing the cork to hit the water.

The bass, when the water is cold, will be timid in hitting and experience often may be necessary to detect the very slight knock. But when the knock comes, the fisherman sets the cork very lightly on the water surface and allows the fish to "take" the lure. "Taking" means allowing the fish to bobble the cork slightly several times and then allowing it to take off in its run. This will caause the cork to go completely beneath the water.

When the run has progressed to the point where the line becomes tight as the tip of the pole is lowered to the water's surface, then, with a mighty jerk, hoist the bass bodily out of the water and into the boat.

This is the most accepted method, although each jig fisherman will have his individual method.

State Revenue Commissioner James E. Luckett has said there is a distinct advantage to many taxpayers in filing their Kentucky income-tax returns earlyespecially those entitled to refunds.

Cold Winters Persist

According to climatology reports from the U.S. Department of Commerce, Weather Bureau, average temperatures in January, 1970 throughout the four weather regions in Kentucky were:

Western-28.4 degrees, 8.8 degrees below

Central-27.8 degrees, 8.8 degrees below

Bluegrass-26.0 degrees, 9.9 degrees below normal. Eastern-27.1 degrees, 11.0 degrees below normal.

January, 1971 calls for moderate precipitation compared to January, 1970 which was a very dry month. This situation is unusual since a dry January occurs only once every ten years. February and March followed with moderate precipitation. All three months were cold and snowy and the snows of the 1969-'70 winter season totaled much above average, according to A. B. Elam Jr., National Oceanic Atmospheric Administration climatologist for Kentucky. Snow forecasts for Kentucky this season are not available. However, the greatest season of snow occurred in the winter of 1959-60 when 108:2 inches were recorded in Benham. Louisville recorded its greatest snow season in the winter, 1917-'18 with 50.2 inches and Lexington had 53 inches in 1916-

The coldest winter in the state was in 1917-18 when the average temperatures were 11 degrees below the average normal of 26 degrees.

Experts feel, after reviewing weather patterns, existing over the past decade, Kentucky will continue to experience cool winter seasons.

Black Lung Checks In Area Up 6 Pct.

Checks delivered February 3 to the miners and widows receiving Black Lung benefits in the Prestonsburg area will be about 6 percent higher than last month, Daryl E. Ratliff, district manager of the Social Security Office, Pikeville, said this week.

The Black Lung benefit amount is tied to the minimum pay rate for federal employees in grade GS-2 Ratliff said, so the recent legislation raising federal employees pay results in an increase in Black Lung benefit amounts.

The monthly benefit for a disabled coal miner or his widow will now be raised from $144.50 to $153.10. The maximum benefit payable when there are three dependents (for example, a miner with a wife and two young children) will amount to $306.10— an increase of $17.20. A miner or widow with one dependent will be $229.60 and a miner or widow with two dependents will get $267.90.

According to Ratliff, more than $17 million is being paid each month to more than 95,000 miners and widows throughout the nation.
