Jones Victim At Price Mine

The first Floyd mine fatality of the year was recorded last Wednesday morning when Lonnie Jones, Jr., 43, of Hi Hat, was killed in the No. 2 mine of the Island Creek Coal Company at Price.

Death was instant as his head was caught between the mine locomotive he was operating and a roof support.

The victim was a son of Mrs. Anna Nicely Jones, of Hi Hat, and the late Lonnie Jones. He was a veteran of World War II. Besides his mother, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Goldie Johnson Jones; two stepsons and two stepdaughters, Howard Johnson, of Hi Hat, Dewey Johnson, Belleville, Mich., Mrs. Shirley McGuire, of Price, and Mrs. Janice Maniaci, Marion, O.; and two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Meade, of Hi Hat, and Mrs. Beatrice Leonard, Belleville,

THE SHADOW-UGH!

The Shadow was on the prowl, and it boded ill for all in the land. The dark thing came up out of the earth and moved slowly, inexorably into the open while the few who watched whispered in their place of hiding. This was no figment of a writer's imagination. This was the real menace men had long feared. And there was no defense against it. It had come-and the worst lay yet ahead.

The Shadow was there-dark, foreboding. And the groundhog had seen it.

The Floyd County Board of Education, which has withheld payment of $9,770.50 on the contract, pending replacement of the faulty insulation, was named as a third defendant.

In 1969 he bought $15,000 worth of ginseng and yellow root. Last year, the total was about the same. Residents of six states continue to remember that the Prestonsburg man at one time was a dealer in these, and every year the ginseng and yellow root come in-often by parcel post, sometimes brought here in person by former residents home for a visit. Kentucky is joined by Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Virginia and West Virginia in supplying his stock-in-trade. In the days when Brown dealt in a wider variety of these products, he sold to R. T. Greer and Co., of Pikeville, all except ginseng and yellow root, which were sold to an exporter. All his ginseng eventually goes to China via the free port of Hong Kong. The yellow root is sold to U. S. laboratories to become a medicinal ingredient.

The medical profession is pretty well agreed there is no medicinal property in ginseng, but the Chinese don't buy that. They cherish it as a potion which is credited with promoting both longevity and fertility. The name of the plant comes from Chinese

Only on one occasion does the Prestonsburg man recall when the Chinese refused to buy American ginseng. That was in 1969 when the price paid those who dug it rose to $42 a pound. A Louisville exporter who bought around $100,000 of the stuff that year lost about $10,000 when the Chinese balked at the price.

There are, Mr. Brown says, about 100 marketable herbs and barks in the region known as Appalachia. Of these he at one time bought, in addition to ginseng and yellow root, the following: Mayapple, lobelia, bloodroot (puccoon), sassafras root bark, wahoo (also the bark of the root), Virginia snakeroot, bethroot (which the Indians used for food), stoneroot, wild lettuce, yellow dock, tansy, burdock and stargrass root.

Sheriff Reports On Accused Man

A report from this county on Abner Gail Witt, 47, who was arrested on a first degree murder charge after the Jan. 11 slaying at Amherst, O., of his wife, Liza Jane Hall Witt, Knott county native, has been asked by Amherst Chief of Police Arthur H. Loppenhaufer with the apparent aim of seeking to establish if the slaying may have been preceded by previous trouble between the husband and wife.

Sheriff Frank Leslie said Monday he is reporting to the Amherst officer that Mrs. Witt was hospitalized at the McDowell Regional Hospital in this county last September and that she apparently was in serious condition at the time. His report did not mention her husband, in connection with her injuries, but he said the woman's relatives did. Sheriff Leslie reported that she suffered from an apparent brain "Digging 'seng" still is a more or less concussion, head wounds which appeared to have been from a "pistol whipping," a breast abrasion believed to have been caused by a bullet and other abrasions possibly resulting from the woman's having been thrown from a moving vehicle.

He said that, although Mrs. Witt's condition precluded questioning at the time of his hospital visit, she left soon thereafter in disobedience to her doctor's orders.

Special Judge To Preside Here In School Case

Special Judge Major Gardner will preside here Friday morning at the hearing of the suit filed last Aug. 4 by Martin citizens seeking a mandatory injunction to require the Floyd County Board of Education to begin construction of an 18room grade school building and gymnasium at Martin.

This phase of the suit was given unanimous support of the Martin PTA at its Jan. 25 meeting, Jake Layne, president, and Rita Laferty, secretary-treasurer, said

County Superintendent Charles Clark commented that he expects the board's architect, George Lee Shannon, to have plans ready for board approval at the March meeting on a seven-room brick building at Martin which will cost an

Disaster Spurs Relief Effort

By JIM WARREN

HYDEN, KY.—Tragedy struck this Eastern Kentucky town last December but with the proposal to raise the cost to an out of the sorrow is growing a massive relief program to help needy families

Within hours after 38 miners died in a nearby mine explosion Dec. 30, tons of food, The extra five cents would go to Clark's clothing and other relief items began pouring in to help the miners' families, many of which were left with no income. Some $9000 and many tons of provisions were donated by individuals and groups from across the country and an actual surplus of items resulted.

Now after providing for the immediate needs of the families, local leaders are planning to use the remaining provisions to help other needy impoverished families in the Clay-Leslie area.

Leaders from both counties, including representatives of religion, law enforcement and the medical profession, met recently and formed committees to determine what the needs of the people are and how best to meet them.

Mrs. C. M. Bishop, a member of the Manchester Woman's Club and one of the planners, said two committees will cover both counties to study needs and problems before distribution of provisions begins.

While a large amount of relief items still exists, Mrs. Bishop said more donations will be needed if the program is a success. All donations are welcome. The group hopes to reach every needy family in the two-county area.

Meanwhile efforts still are underway to help the families of the 38 miners.

The Clay county Jaycees have launched the Miners' Children Scholarship Fund to provide college educations for some 97 children involved in the disaster.

The group also plans to provide individual counseling to ensure the children stay in school long enough to use the college funds. Contributions may be sent to Box 273 Manchester, Kentucky 40962.

Also a group of over 30 country music stars, led by singer Loretta Lynn, native of Van Lear, are planning a benefit performance for the families. The program is set for early March in Louisville.

Crack-Down Time Is At Hand

The decision of the city of Chicago to make war on the drinking as well as the drunken driver made national news recently.

Such a decision should be news, anywhere. For it is admitted now that half of the highway fatalities in the nation are caused by drinking or drunken drivers. The ghastly toll has become of great concern, and officials are beginning to zero in on that death's head at the wheel.

The reduction in Chicago traffic fatalities already is pronounced, now that judges have cracked down. The same story can be written, anywhere. But it will require a firm hand on the part of those who write it.

Prestonsburg has a police judge whose example might well be emulated by judges everywhere. Judge D. E. Blackburn, some say, is too tough. But those who get into his court are not given a second chance to drink and weave and speed their way to their own deaths or to the serious injury or death of innocents. Conviction in his court means, in addition to a stiff penalty, automatic suspension of driving privileges. And all get the same treatment.

That is how it must be, if this senseless slaughter is even to be slowed down in a land where everybody 16 years from the cradle to the brink of the grave is permitted to have his hand at threading the bewildering maze of speeding vehicles of every description.

COUNTRY MUSIC GROUP SEEKS LOCAL CONTRIBUTIONS TO FUND FOR DISASTER-ORPHANED TOTS

Prestonsburg is being given an opportunity to share in the fund being raised for the education of more than 100 children orphaned by the Finley coal mine disaster in Leslie county which claimed the lives of 38 miners.

Melvin Goins, of the Goins Brothers, country music group, said Monday he is placing in Prestonsburg places of business containers to receive contributions which will be taken to Louisville to be added to the Loretta Lynn Foundation fund being raised for the help of the children of those killed in the mine explosion.

Miss Lynn, one of the top country music singers in the nation, and a native of Van Lear, Johnson county, has scheduled for March 1 a benefit show at the Fairgrounds, Louisville, with a goal of $500,000 set. The Goins Brothers will appear on the show, as will more than 20 Grand Ole Opery stars, including Conway Twitty, the Osborne Brothers, Bill Monroe, Roy Acuff, George Morgan, Tom T. Hall, Grandpa Jones, Jeannie Sheppard, Webb Pierce, Bill Carlisle and others.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank all of the wonderful people for the kindnesses shown us upon the passing of our beloved mother, Nancy Jane Caudill. We would like to thank the Hall Brothers Funeral Home, Martin, Ky., for its efficient service, and to express our most heartfelt thanks to the ministers who conducted the service for their kind and consoling words. WHY I AM A CANDIDATE

You, the voters of Floyd county, elected me State Representative to serve with Governor Bert Combs in 1963-'64. At that time Governor Combs said I made "one of the best Representatives Floyd county has ever had."

During this time House Bill 234 authorizing the Prestonsburg Community College was passed. I also made a contribution of $1000 to Tom Graham Dingus for this

I am proud that Gov. Bert Combs gave me that bill. Also, I am glad that you, the voters, my friends and neighbors, gave me the opportunity to serve with the greatest Governor the Commonwealth of Kentucky has ever had.

I am asking you for help and support, so that I again can serve with Bert Combs when he becomes Governor in 1972.

ONE MAN'S IDEA Now, this isn't my idea. It was submitted by a Mr. Ed Myranby, of Cincinnati, O., to the Bulletin of the Council for Basic Education, Washington, D. C. We're not going to discuss its practicability, merely comment that a suggestion such as this reflects the thinking of many in their reaction to demonstrations, rebellion, burg on February 21. violence and the like. It reads:

What the world needs is a one-year high school diploma, and a one-year college degree, so that young people can go to work at sixteen. Many thinking Americans today are saying that we are holding our young people away from the working world too long. We must get them into the work force, so that they can take part in the life of the community, and feel wanted. At the age of 16 and 17, young people should be working and using their energy in a productive meaningful work-activity, instead of lolling around high school yards, hippie joints, and rock festivals, taking drugs, and living a life of indolence and crime. The earning of money, and having money of your own, is a most necessary thing in the maturation process. Those who want additional education after graduation can get it in evening colleges, three nights a week, where they can study hundreds of elective subjects for the rest of their lives.

The auditions are scheduled for 10 a.m. at the University Center at the University of Louisville and for 2:30 p.m. at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, here.

Performers should bring one or two prepared musical numbers with music and a one-minute acting selection to auditions. An accompanist will be provided. For further information contact C. Mitchell Douglas, General Manager, 407 East Franklin Street, Chapel Hill, North Carolina 27514.

After Harry Eastburn, director of Big Sandy CAP, had commented that if a discussion of the situation could be held without creation of chaotic conditions, he thought comment from the floor should be permitted, an unidentified woman said, "You won't let us talk tonight. When you come around for our votes, we may not have anything to say then-or we may say a Challenged by Dr. Schecter was the failure of the committee to notify the one consumer member, Mr. Daniels, of the meeting at which John Burton, assistant Big Sandy CAP director, was named acting director of the Floyd health program and the resignation of Helen Wells from the program was withdrawn.

Schecter was dismissed Jan. 28 for "insubordination." The board of directors did not specify its charges against him at the meeting here when requested to do so. It was said by board members that he disobeyed its instructions in presenting the program in Washington for funding; that he had been asked to present Part A of the program and to wait on the board's study of Part B before submitting it.

Board members say, in response to Schecter's insistence that doctors, dentists and pharmacists are needed to make the program more than a mere referral agency, that the board has already voted the employment of two doctors-one on Mud Creek and one at the Bosco outpostand that Dr. Titzler, who was formerly program medical director, has begun work on Mud Creek. They also point out that the program has already moved beyond the Part A phase not only through authorization of these doctors but also by including an environmental program which views cleanup of Frasure's Creek on Left Beaver Creek and garbage disposal and other work there.

The plan outlined by Dr. Schecter to bring possibly a dozen doctors into the county, a number of dentists and the founding of a pharmacy, and expense incurred in an experiment with helicopter ambulance service are under fire.

Both Dr. Schecter and Mr. Burton were at the Wheelwright central office of the progam Monday in the role of director. Schecter said he returned after the grievance committee of the program had held his dismissal illegal and had asked investigations of the program by both the Governor and Congress.

Dr. Schecter said the contract signed by directors of the program last Friday gives Big Sandy CAP full control of policy and personnel and that this is not acceptable to the Office of Health Affairs, in Washington.

Schecter said he will go to Washington, this week or next, to discuss with Health Affairs what he termed "Irregularities" in the Floyd situation.

Meanwhile, it was said this week that funds to carry the program through next June will arrive within the next two to four

In a speech at the courthouse here last Saturday, Dr. I. E. Buff continued his "black lung" and safety crusade, blaming the "big boys" of the coal mining industry, the Nixon administration and others for what he termed poor enforcement of mine health and safety laws.

He blamed the national administration for failure to enforce existing laws and accused Senators John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.) and Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.) for opposition to the mine safety bill. Cooper tried to tear it down, Randolph tried to kill it, the West Virginia doctor alleged.

Of the mining industry itself, Dr. Buff said, "The reason you miners are in the shape your're in is not the little, dog-hole mine owner, but the giants." He accused the "giants" of the industry of opposing both enactment and enforcement of health and safety legislation.

Dr. Buff addressed an audience of about 125, mostly miners. He suggested that operators should pay property taxes on unmined coal.

Critical of doctors who, he said, fail to recognize black lung when it exists, he suggested that miners seek physicians who will certify to the existence of black lung and so permit miners to be eligible for Buff told the approximately 50 present who indicated they had black lung, "You're going to die from black lung.

"Any man who has black lung will die from it sooner or later, but the longer you live the more they have to pay," he said, referring to federal benefits.

$118,000 Plane Added to Fleet Owned by State

A used twin-engine Piper Turbo Navajo, costing $210,000 when new, has been purchased by the state for $118,000 from Cincinnati Airport, Inc., at Lunken Airport in Northern Kentucky.

The newest addition to the state's 12 planes will be used as a replacement for the craft traded in for the executive set.

Finance Commissioner Albert Christen said a near accident at Kentucky Dam Village recently may have been the spur for the purchase.

Public Safety Commissioner William Newman and three other state officials made a forced landing in Western Kentucky because of engine trouble.

Aeronautics Commissioner Robert Moore said the new plane will become the "workhorse" of the state fleet.

Southern leaf blight, which ruined some 35 per cent of Kentucky's corn crop this year, was the main cause of a $23 million drop from 1969 in the state's total farm crop value, according to projections from the Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

There are too many local, state, and federal agencies involved in environmental control, and their efforts are wastefully fragmented, according to the Kentucky Public Health Association, a private Home Economics, Technical, Trade and organization whose purpose is to promote public and personal health in Kentucky.

In a position statement issued at Frankfort last week by its board of directors, the KPHA expresses great concern with the growing enormity of environmental problems, and urges the unification of control functions at a single point in Kentucky state government. The association's position is that unification will prevent wasteful overlap and duplication of effort. It does not, however, take a position on the location of such a unit in state government. It could be in one of the existing agencies,

Phillip R. Spangler, KPHA president, Louisville, said that the association stresses the "health and well being of the environmental protection. He warns that all evironmental programs and standards should be established and evaluated on the judgement, and public health knowledge

Things are seldom what they seem.

Big cars often pose as big cars, when they're really small cars. For instance:

Notice how much bigger the big car seems than the Volkswagen Squareback Sedan.

Then count the number of suitcases it can take on: only 12. Now, notice how small the Square-back seems to be. Then count the number of suitcases it can take on: 16. That's because the Squareback has 32.8 cubic feet of carrying space.

Which is one and a half times as much as that of the largest sedan

Of course, if you really have a lot to carry you can always fold down the Squareback's rear seat. Then you'll have more than twice as much carrying space as the largest sedan

So which would you rather have? A sedan that looks like a big bully but really is a 12-suitcase weakling? Or a little fella who's really a 16suitcase giant?

Alice Lloyd Students at New Mine

Forty Alice Lloyd College sociology students recently toured the new Stinson coal mine located about five miles from the campus on Caney Creek. Talking with the mine's resident engineer, Hugh Henegar (center), are Jim F. Martin (left), Mousie freshman, and Larry Rayburn, an exchange student from Santa Ana City College in California. Mr. Henegar is a 1964 Alice Lloyd graduate.

While fishing is far removed from actuality for many sportsmen right now, it's not too early to be getting ready for the jig fishing season which is a method of catching lunker bass during the winter months.

Fact of the matter is, some fishermen, sans the murky and muddy waters that originally were thought to be requisites for jig fishing, already are catching the big ones from at least two lakes—Nolin and Rough River, via the jigging method. But they are not using the orthodox method of live nightcrawlers. They are baiting with the dollfly, made more attractive with a

pork rind tail, and they are catching good

The system may be used in other lakes, we are sure, but the fishermen around the two mentioned may have perfected the method more than others. Just for a twist, they also are using the artificial night-crawlers as jigging bait and these, too, are doing all right.

Of course, the jigging method developed on Herrington Lake in the mid-'20's and early '30's is quite different from the dollfly technique. The older jiggers, and those who have learned from them, use live night crawlers as at least a part of the lure. They make the bait more durable by adding an artificial nightcrawler or two to the hook already garnished with the live nightcrawlers, gathering their share of big black bass from just about any lake.

This type fisherman is looking for murky or muddy water without regard to weather

He drags out his jigging pole, which can be either the cane variety or glass. It's about 10 feet long and very rigid. He attaches to the pole a heavy line, one of maybe 100-pound test. The line dangles about five feet from the end of the pole. On the end a large hook is attached, sometimes a treble hook. Immediately above five feet from the end of the pole. On the end a large hook is attached, sometimes a treble hook. Immediately above this will be a fairly heavy sinker that rides just above the hook. About 18 inches higher is a cork or bobber. That's the rig

The fisherman sculls his boat alongside the shore, dabbling the tempting lure close to the bank, where the water appears to be clearer. He jiggles the lure until he feels a very faint action on it. It may very well feel like a small bluegill bothering the bait, but it can be a nine pound black bass. When he feels this action, the fisherman will stop his boat and set his bobber very lightly on the surface of the water. If the bass is going to gobble up the bait, it'll do it in two to three minutes. He'll pull the cork under the water and start on a run. That's the time to set the hook and hoist the big fellow, with pure strength, into the boat. There's no playing around in this type fishing-you've either got him or you haven't.

There are a couple of things highly necessary to be successful. The boat must be moved quietly, requiring a good sculler, and the jigging action must be most dainty, else the big bass will be spooked.

Columbia Views Coal Gasification As Studies Begin

A long-range program to identify possible coal reserves and locate possible sites for coal gasification plants in the Appalachian area has been begun by Columbia Coal Gasification Corporation, R. F. Duemler, president, announced last week.

The company has been organized to expedite commercialization of coal gasification for supplementing future gas supplies of the Columbia Gas System.

"We are initiating an exploration program to identify potentially available coal reserves," Duemler said. "This will include core drilling to determine the extent of commercially recoverable coal in acreages where Columbia owns the mineral rights. The exploration program will cover a number of states in the Appalachian area and may require several years to complete. The search for possible plant sites, which must take into account matters of coal supply, water availability and other factors, may require even a longer period," he noted.

The Columbia System has under way and is participating in a number of research studies looking to development of a commercial coal gasification process, Duemler said. He added that tremendous sums must be expended on research by the gas industry and others if commercial operation is to be realized by 1980.

Columbia Coal Gasification is headquartered in Wilmington and has field offices in Ashland, Kentucky and Chapmanville, West Virginia.

The Columbia Gas System supplies about four million gas customers through retail and wholesale operations in seven states from western Ohio to the Atlantic seaboard.

Governor Nunn has appointed a ninemember commission to work toward better fire protection and improved professional standards of firemen throughout the state.

Profile of UK Freshman Class Indicates Conservative Trend

Conservatism and moderation dominate the thinking of the 1970 entering freshmen on the University of Kentucky-Lexington more conservative in their views than the national profile and in some areas more conservative than the 1968 UK freshmen.

These findings were the result of a questionnaire distributed to the 2,903 freshmen who entered UK this fall, the same questionnaire given to 272,268 entering freshmen students at 425 colleges and universities in the nation.

Among the objectives the majority of UK freshmen considered to be most important were the developing of a philosophy of life (74.7 per cent), being an authority in their field (70.7 per cent), raising a family (66.1 per cent) and having an active social life (59.0 per cent).

The practicality of the 1970 freshmen in the area of financial security cannot be ignored. In 1968, the importance of developing a philosophy of life was noted by 80.5 per cent of the students. The importance of succeeding in one's own business was marked by 53 per cent of the 1968 freshmen and by 74.7 per cent of the 1970 freshmen.

> One area in which the 1970 students are more liberal than the 1968 class is in the legalization of marijuana. In 1968, the percentage of UK students favoring the legalization was 14.3 The 1970 UK freshmen figure rose to 29.6 per cent.

On the national level, the rise was even greater. In 1968, the national norm was 22.8 per cent. In 1970, it rose to 45.8 per cent. During the past year, the percentage of students who had taken a tranquilizing pill was 7.0 per cent; sleeping pills, 4.1 per cent; smoked cigarettes, 14.1 per cent, or cried, 6.9 per cent.

The 1970 profile also shows that during the past year 92.9 per cent attended a religious service, 27.4 per cent discussed religion, 62.5 per cent visited an art gallery or museum, 35 per cent played a musical instrument, 49.3 per cent checked out a book from the library, and 38.8 per cent discussed their future with their parents.

One immediate factor which is pointed out by the ACE questionnaire is that UK is not a rural school. Only 27.9 per cent of the UK freshmen come from a farm or small town, while 64.4 per cent come from a city of moderate size or a suburb of a large city.

The figures also show that 55.4 per cent of the fathers of UK freshmen and 43.2 per cent of the mothers have some college or even higher education. This is slightly below the national norm of 59 per cent of the fathers and 48.5 per cent of the mothers.

National norms show that 85.8 per cent of the freshmen graduated from high school with a B grade point average. The UK freshmen total 80 per cent with a B or better average in high school.

An overall look at the 1970 UK freshmen, shows that 57.2 per cent are men and 42.8 per cent are women. The majority of (99.1 per cent), are not veterans (98.9 per blocks" to enforcement of traffic laws. the driver's license of anyone for whom a cent), and are caucasian-white (97.9 per

Religious preference indicated 22.9 per cent of the UK freshmen are Baptist, 23.5 per cent Roman Catholic, 13.2 per cent Methodist, four per cent Episcopal, one per cent Jewish, 2.5 per cent Lutheran, 9.7 per cent Presbyterian, and 2.7 per cent Congregational. Only 7.4 per cent said they had no religious preference.

While in high school, 20.4 per cent served as president of an organization, 20.2 per cent received high ratings in state speech and music contests, 32.2 per cent received a varsity letter in sports, 13.1 per cent were editors of the school paper and 32.1 per cent were members of a scholastic honorary.

Those UK freshmen receiving National Merit recognition totaled 6.4 per cent. This compares with the national norm of 12.6 per cent who received such recognition.

Among the freshman men at UK, 12 per cent plan to work on medical degrees in medicine, dentistry or verterinary science, and 11.7 per cent plan to complete the Ph.D or Ed.D degrees. The UK females were more concerned with receiving the bachelors degree (60.3 per cent), and master's degree (25.4).

Career choices among the men included engineering (20.3 per cent), business (13.9 per cent), fine arts (11.9 per cent), preprofessional, such as medicine or law (16.9 per cent), and agriculture (6.6 per cent). Women's career choices included education (18.7 per cent), health professions (20.3 per cent), fine arts (9 per cent), and social sciences (10.7 per cent). It also was interesting to note that only

3.3 per cent of the UK freshmen and 2.2 per cent in the nation entered a college or university undecided as to their probable major field of study. Most UK freshmen indicated they were middle-of-the-road politically. At UK, 1.4 per cent of the freshmen marked their interests as far left. Nationally, the figure was 3.1 per cent. On the other end of the political scale, 0.7 per cent indicated they were far right-both at UK and nationally.

At the end of four years, 0.9 per cent of the UK freshmen indicated they expected to be far right, while 2.5 per cent expected to be far left. Nationally, 1.1 per cent said far right and 4.9 per cent said they expected be far left.

One area which seemed unique to Kentucky students was their interest in sports among UK freshmen the percentage was 50.2. Nationally, it was 43.9 per cent. The contrast was especially noted in females. While 36.4 per cent of the UK women discuss sports, only 29.1 per cent were listed in the national norms.

The UK students continued their conservative thinking, with 48.2 per cent favoring regulation of student publications, compared with the national norm of 32.7

They agreed with the national norm on the federal government's involvement in Southeast Asia-17 per cent of the Kentucky students felt the government should be more involved and 13.4 per cent nationally so agreed.

The government's involvement in the control of pollution found agreement in the ninetieth percentile, both nationally and at UK. More government involvement in the space program, however, ranked in the thirtieth percentile.

Extension Service News

By JACK M. FRIAR County Extension Agent

Success in almost everything you do is the result of good planning, and a garden is no exception. A well-planned garden will provide a steady and balanced supply of vegetables throughout the growing season and enough vegetables for freezing, canning, and storing for out-of-season months. Here are some things to consider in planning your garden:

1. Allow 1-40 acre (1,000 sq. ft.) per person, if space is available, for all vegetables, including potatoes. 2. Draw a map of the garden to scale. Locate the rows of vegetables and label them, showing the date to plant each. 3. Determine the yearly vegetable needs of the family.

4. Make a list of vegetable seeds and plants. Order early while high-quality

8. Some vegetables have much deeper root systems than others. Rotate crops so :* that a vegetable with a shallow-root system follows a crop with a deep-root system.

9. A well-planned garden furnishes vegetables throughout the growing season. 10. If your garden does not allow for 1-40 acre per person, use it to produce highpriced vegetables. A crop such as potatoes, which needs a large area to supply family needs, may not be a wise choice to grow. REMEMBER—an excellent garden plan, developed while sitting around the kitchen stove, is of little value unless it shows up in your garden.
