

Child-Care Gets Grant From OEO

Location of Center Proposed in County For Isolated Tots

Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced last week that a $43,313 Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) grant has been made for a new child-care demonstration center in this county.

The grant will serve to expedite services of the center which will be especially designed for children in isolated rural areas. The Times was unable to contact either Harry Green, executive director of the day-care program, or Edward E. Ellis, project director, about specific plans for the work under the new grant.

Congressman Perkins said, however, that the center will expand its facilities to accommodate more visitors and parents and a larger staff as part of the demonstration program. The grant, he said, will also serve to improve the transportation system operated for child-care.

"Finally," Mr. Perkins said, "a child development and management course will be added to the curriculum to train parents in child-care as well as to provide them with an employable skill."

Location of the new center was not known here. Child-care centers are already in operation at Auxier and McDowell.

State Police Probe Looting of Home

State Police continue the investigation begun last week after the home of Stewart Banks was broken into on KY 7, two miles from Hueysville, and robbed of three guns and approximately $300 in old coins.

Mr. and Mrs. Banks spent last Thursday night with members of their family at Dewey Lake and during the night their home was entered. Fingerprints have been found, it was said, but their identification has not been completed.

Distance Dialing Set For Part of County

The Harold Telephone Company will make available direct distance dialing to its 2300 customers in Floyd and Pike counties on August 13, Paul R. Gearheart, president of the company, announced last Friday.

South Central Bell, which already has made direct dialing on long-distance calls possible to subscribers in the Paintsville and Pikeville areas, will add to service for its Floyd county subscribers sometime during August, but the exact date had not been announced here as of this week.

Harold Telephone Company serves the upper Left Beaver Creek section of this county as far downstream as Clear Creek, as well as the Harold-Mud Creek-Big Sandy river section in southern Floyd and an adjacent section of Pike county.

Direct distance dialing was made possible, Mr. Gearheart said, at a cost of approximately $25,000. This expenditure was involved in the installation of

Floyd Countian Abducted, Slain

Magoffin Man Who Shot Self Is Jailed Here

A Magoffin county man who reportedly shot himself as he drew on a Kentucky state trooper late Saturday was jailed here Saturday night after his wound had been treated at the Prestonsburg General Hospital.

The accused man, Elmer McKenzie, 27, was accused of attempting to shoot State Trooper Roger Castle when the officer sought to arrest him and others. Castle said he had arrested three of six men in the Rockcastle section of Magoffin and that the others fled in a car. He pursued them and the auto occupied by the three wrecked. He said that McKenzie drew a revolver and somehow shot himself. The bullet entered the upper thigh, emerging above the knee, but caused only a flesh wound. McKenzie was returned Sunday to Magoffin county.

The trooper said McKenzie fired at him after accidentally shooting himself and that one of his companions pointed a shotgun at him. Castle and state troopers called to his assistance arrested five of the six men and are seeking the sixth. McKenzie was jailed here by Sgt. Flora and Trooper Bailey.

In this county the holiday week-end was unmarred by violence, although 34 were jailed from last Thursday to Monday noon. Most arrests were for drunkenness and traffic offenses.

Those jailed here on major offenses: Eddie Dean Reed, drunk driving, no operator's license and held for Pike county authorities on a charge of car-theft, arrested by State Trooper Leeman Bevins; Kendal Chaffins, drunk driving, no operator's license and resisting arrest, by Deputy Sheriffs Salisbury and Conn; Claude Ferguson, fishing with improper license, by Conservation Officer Tom Cantrell; Woodrow Dye, drunk driving, by State Trooper Williamson; Namon Samons, drunk driving, by State Trooper Rose. Six juveniles were jailed July 2 by Prestonsburg Policemen Thornsby, Hale and Allen on a charge of possessing alcoholic beverages.

Court Building Contractor May Be Suit Target

The Floyd fiscal court at its June 25 meeting authorized County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill to file suit against the contracting firm of Akers and Akers and its sub-contractor to recover for faulty construction of the roof of the new courthouse here.

The structure was occupied 7 years ago, and since that time leaks have caused considerable interior damage.

The court also accepted a reduction in the rural highway appropriation made by the state after it had been found that the 1970 census and certain statutory formulae placed the allotment correctly at $137,222 instead of the original $139,369.

At an earlier meeting the court approved the settlement of Sheriff Frank Leslie as (See Story No. 3, Page 12)

Board Employs More Than 400 For School Work

More than 400 workers were employed for the operation of the Floyd county school system at Saturday's meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education, on recommendation of Supt. Charles Clark.

The new employees include Headstart teachers, basic education teachers, bus drivers, janitors, teacher aides, school clerks and others.

Glenda Hale and Russell Shepherd were employed as science and mathematics teachers, respectively, at Prestonsburg high school, from which Danny Branson was transferred to be assistant principal at Betsy Layne high.

Joan Johnson was employed as teacher at Martin high school to replace Ronald Turner, who becomes principal at Wheelwright.

Leaves of absence were granted Paul Goble, of Betsy Layne high, for six months' reserve training, and to Nell Lawson, of Prestonsburg high school, for one year because of illness.

A special board meeting was set for July 10 to receive bids on the Betsy Layne science room work. Compensation insurance was renewed with the Hall and Clark Insurance Agency.

The list of new employees will be published in next week's edition of The Times.

Woman and Baby Wreck Victims

Another driver's apparent disregard of a traffic light resulted in the death last Saturday in Taylor, Mich., of Mrs. Josephine Hicks Meinke, 24, and her two-month-old daughter, Candy Lee. Mrs. Meinke's husband, Russell, 41, is in a Wayne, Mich. hospital and is not expected to survive his injuries.

According to reports received here, the Meinke family car had stopped for a traffic light when another car failed to stop, crashing into them.

Mrs. Meinke was born April 7, 1947 on Dry Creek, Knott county, a daughter of Freeman and Lucy Hall Hicks, of Taylor, Mich.

Surviving, besides her husband and parents, are two sons, Carl Lee and Rodney Alan, both at home; two brothers, Elaine Hicks, in the Navy, Dwayne Hicks, of Taylor, Mich.; Mrs. Emma Jean Peppers, of Romulus, Mich., and Mrs. Rose Marie Newhouse, of Taylor, Mich.

Funeral services were conducted at 10 a.m., Tuesday, at the Providence Regular Baptist church at Dry Creek. Burial was made there under direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Pays 44 Fines Here For Overtime Parking

Robert Bryant, of Martin, may hold some sort of record in the number of fines paid at one time. He paid $132 this week to Prestonsburg police court after pleading guilty to 44 separate citations for overtime parking.

This Town . . . That World

TOO TRUE

"I'm not getting any younger" . . . Now there is an expression which I have for years condemned as obviously banal. And now I have another criticism of it. It is, I find, confound it! painfully true.

WHO GOT BURNED?

The story is making the rounds telling of the man who bought a large supply of expensive cigars, then had them insured against fire. After he has smoked the lot of them, he filed a claim with the insurance company, stating, quite truthfully, that they had been destroyed by fire. The insurance company, naturally, refused to pay off, so the man sued. When the case got to court the judge decided that, inasmuch as the company had insured the cigars against fire, it was financially responsible.

Then, just as the man was pocketing his money, the insurance company had him arrested for arson!

Trio Sought After Davis' Body Found

Probers Say Victim Probably Tortured Prior to His Death

The identity of three men who kidnapped Harold Davis, 26, former Dwale man, at his service station near Ft. Mitchell, Ky. last Wednesday afternoon and later killed him and left his body in an Ohio ditchline was being sought this week by federal and state authorities.

A wide-scale search was launched immediately after the kidnapping, but no word of the missing man was received till Saturday at 6 a.m. when a fisherman seining for minnows found the body. Davis had been shot one time through his head.

FBI agents said he apparently had been tortured by his abductors. Approximately $200 on his person at the time of the kidnapping was missing.

The Floyd countian had operated a new service station at the Richwood exit on I-75, near Ft. Mitchell, less than two weeks when the crime was committed. A 61-year-old bookkeeper sat inside the station when a brown car occupied by three Negroes drove up, shortly before 1 p.m. Davis supplied gasoline and cleaned the windshield, then walked to the driver's side to collect. It is theorized that he at that point was forced into the auto at gunpoint or that the door was opened and he was asked to attend to something inside the car, then was jerked inside. The bookkeeper, who watched his movements through a two-way mirror could not say how the abduction was done, nor could he give any description of the car except to say that it was brown. He apparently first discovered that something unusual had occurred when he saw Davis' head disappearing floorward from his (See Story No. 1, Page 12)

Airman Killed In Auto Wreck

At 4 o'clock last Tuesday afternoon Airman Sanford (Sandy) Newsome, 20, of Harold, and three other servicemen were granted passes to leave Ft. Bragg, N. C. army base. Twelve minutes later young Newsome was dead, killed instantly when he apparently lost control of his car and crashed into a tree on the base.

A son of Kenneth and June Sturgill Newsome, he was born December 16, 1950. He was a graduate of Betsy Layne high school and attended Morehead State University and had been in the airborne division of the army since January, 1970.

Survivors, besides his parents, include three brothers, Lt. (j.g.) Larry Don Newsome, U. S. Naval Air Force, Honolulu, Hawaii, Kenneth Eugene Newsome, of Wyandotte, Mich., and Tim Newsome, at home; the paternal grandmother, Mrs. Lizzie Newsome, of Virgie, and the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Myrtle Sturgill, of Toler's Creek.

Funeral services were conducted at 1 p.m., Sunday, at the Harold Church of Christ by Bob Kessimer, minister, and Elder Wheeler and Elder Jack Caldwell of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Dewey Camping Plan Told by Parks Head

If Appalachian Regional Commission funds are made available for road and sewer construction within the area to be developed, work on a central campground to accommodate at least 100 camps at Dewey Lake will be begun this summer and possibly completed by late next fall, Floyd countians and others interested in Jenny Wiley State Park were told last Thursday at Frankfort.

The Floyd delegation, composed of City Manager Curtis Clark, Joseph McCauley, executive director of the Big Sandy Area Development Council, and Robert Tidwell, area planner, was joined at Frankfort by representatives from other counties for a discussion with state officials of the development of tourist facilities in the area.

Generally, the conference with Parks Commissioner Shirley Palmer-Ball developed the thought that tourism is not a subject to be attacked from the angle of only one locality or one park but as one deserving consideration on an areawide basis. Plans for all Eastern Kentucky parks and lakes were considered during the meeting.

Apparently, the Department of Parks is ready to construct a $350,000 camping facility on land made available to it in the Goble Branch area of Dewey Lake, if the Appalachian Regional Commission can be persuaded to invest upwards of $250,000 in roads and sewers there. If this is done, it was indicated, the state would drop a plan projected earlier to lease the camping area for development by private interests.

The plan, Mr. Palmer-Ball indicated, is to build facilities for 75 to 100 campsites, with all conveniences provided by the most highly developed camping areas, and also to provide possibly another 100 sites for those who prefer primitive camping in more isolated locations.

Reminded that the number of visitors at Jenny Wiley State Park is apparently more than 100,000 down this year from last, Palmer-Ball pointed out that gross receipts there for the first five months this year were $471,000—up from $417,000 for the same period last year—and that 1971 is expected to be the first million-dollar year in the history of the park. He admitted that room occupancy at May Lodge is down 2.9 per cent this year. (Others pointed out that the heavier gross receipts could result from inflation and that the drop in room occupancy could follow the slump in employment and business.)

State Parks officials said the curtailment of lakeshore camping at Dewey Lake, except at designated areas, was a deviation of the U. S. Corps of Engineers in an effort to reduce pollution and other conditions harmful to the environment.

Holiday Recreation Crowds Lake Area

Camera shot through the trees from the opposite side of Dewey Lake shows signs of activity at Stratton Branch pool and on nearby beach. The season's largest crowd brought on a traffic jam there on the Fourth.

Says Homes Create Two-Thirds Of Big Sandy River Pollution

RUSSELL L. HALL, M. D.

Dear Dr. Hall:

I am glad you showed interest in clean water. I lived on Rt. 23, near Ivel, Ky., for 13 years. I used to eat fish that came out of the river, but I quit that 8 years ago. I have been in a fishing boat and had to hold my nose when I passed almost every house on the river side—some of these homes lately built. Some nice bricks, too. This was before the mobile homes started around here. Will you please get in a fishing boat at the Pike county line travel slow by down the river, look on the bank at every house, see what kind of water you drink in Prestonsburg? When you have the bath-room outlets on the river cleaned up, that will be the job two-thirds done. Then go up the creeks and finish the other one-third.

A Bridge That Is Needed— And Two That Aren't

Aside from the service it would provide for a community and its citizens and the potential economic benefits that may be derived from resultant industrial development, the old suspension-type Emma bridge should go and be replaced by a safe, modern span.

Every bridge of that type should go, or be closed to vehicle traffic. The bridge at Emma, more than 40 years ago, collapsed beneath the weight of a wagon and team. Such a bridge across the Big Sandy at Knotley Hollow, near here, later broke under the weight of an automobile. Four persons were killed in the two incidents.

The Knotley Hollow bridge was replaced with a new span of the same suspension type, to link the Goble-Roberts Addition area with US 23, and as long as it is used for vehicle traffic it stands as a constant threat to public safety.

It may fall. Its weaknesses are hidden, and they will not be visible until it's too late.

Moreover, even if the bridge stands forever, it is a threat. Traffic on US 23 must suddenly stop for a vehicle to make the sharp turn off the highway onto the bridge, or must stop for traffic emerging from the bridge onto the highway. Numerous pileups have resulted. Only by sheer luck have fatal wrecks been avoided.

This Goble-Roberts bridge can be eliminated without damage to the community. No new construction is necessary. Nearby is the new bridge crossing the river to the Bull Creek road.

At Emma a new bridge is an imperative, and The Times hopes the Department of Highways recognizes that fact and does something about the situation.

Small-Mine Operators Attack Safety Act Constitutionality

The constitutionality of the federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act was challenged last week in a suit by 126 small operators from Appalachia.

The legal action was filed at Pikeville against Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton and Bureau of Mines Director Elbert Osborn.

Robert Holcomb, a spokesman for the small operators, said the basic contentions of his colleagues are that the 1969 federal act is discriminatory and contributes nothing to mine safety.

"I speak for the small, independent, underground operators of Eastern Kentucky, Southern West Virginia, Virginia and Tennessee who in 1970 accounted for 65 per cent of all the coal produced in these fields," Holcomb said.

He is president of Coal Operators and Associates Inc. at Pikeville and has been touring the coal areas, denouncing the federal act and contending it has doomed the coal industry of Eastern Kentucky "within six months or a year."

The small operators assert the act is so unreasonable in many provisions and applications that they cannot obey it, but that larger operators have no trouble in doing so because of greater resources.

Their suit seeks a temporary injunction against enforcement of the safety law provisions, then a trial by a three-judge U. S. district court on the merits of the case.

"Essentially, we are testing a federal law which calls for punishment of people by fines or imprisonment for legislative infractions where there are no objective standards," Holcomb said.

Specifically the suit asks that the Bureau of Mines be stopped from enforcing the ventilation, rockdust and mine closure sections of the Safety Act.

"We charge that ventilation requirements being enforced in the small, deep mines of Eastern Kentucky and West Virginia are not being enforced in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania, for example," Holcomb said.

"The law requires the use of a British dust-measuring device which was known to be inaccurate when it was written into the law and has not yet been improved on," Holcomb said. "Compare this to a lie-detecting device which is known to be not wholly accurate and therefore is not usually admissible in court."

"For example, at what point is there 'not enough' rock dust?" Holcomb said. "And just when is a mine in imminent danger because it doesn't have 'enough' roof supports?"

The suit said the companies named as plaintiffs employed 1,835 men last year and produced 5.3 million tons of coal.

Holcomb indicated the figures would be reduced rather sharply this year.

Holcomb has implied in his informal speeches a conspiracy exists among the big coal firms to drive out the small competition through oppressive or unreasonable legislation.

The suit did not say that, however.

To Whom It May Concern

To the families who have loved ones buried in the Hoot Shepherd cemetery at Dwale, Ky.:

This is to let all the people know that we have hired a caretaker since Hoot Shepherd passed away. This family has been taking care of the cemetery for the past 35 years with very little help. There is no charge for the plots in this cemetery, but we expect $5 per year for the upkeep of the cemetery.

This rule is set for everyone alike. In the past some people refused to pay their $5 because, they said, they would take care of their plots. But they failed to do so.

Also, if the excess dirt is not moved within 10 days, there will be a charge of $10 for the removal of it.

Those who do not follow these rules will not be permitted to use the cemetery as a burial place.

MRS. JOHN NELSON
Dwale, Kentucky

Court of Appeals Rules Rollback Law Constitutional

The Court of Appeals has upheld the property tax rollback law enacted by the General Assembly in 1965.

The statute was passed by a special session of the legislature after the Court of Appeals ruled that all property must be assessed at 100 percent of fair cash value, as provided in the state constitution. At that time, assessment ratios varied from 10 to 46 percent, with an average ratio of about 30 percent.

In response to public concern that school and other property taxes could conceivably be tripled as a result of the 100 percent assessment ruling, the legislature met in special session and passed the rollback law. The law provided that school districts and other local governmental units could levy property tax rates no higher than those necessary to return the same amount of revenue as was collected in 1965.

The only exceptions permitted 10 percent increases in revenue collected in 1966 and 1967, and that revenue from new property could be collected above that returned in 1965. But no additional revenue could be collected as a result of increased assessments on existing property. This meant that school districts generally have had to gradually lower their property tax rates over the years to balance out the increased value of property, especially real estate. This latter problem was corrected by a recently passed law effective January 1 of this year.

The decision upholding the rollback law was issued last Friday, June 18. Some months ago, the Louisville Board of Education requested a school property tax rate that exceeded—by 10 cents per each $100 of assessed valuation—the rate permitted by the rollback law. When the Louisville Board of Aldermen refused to levy the higher rate, the school board brought suit against the aldermen, asking that the rollback law be declared unconstitutional.

The suit contended the tax freeze constituted special legislation and also violated the U. S. Constitution's equal protection clause. It also asserted the 1965 freeze merely perpetuated existing inequities. The appellate court said, however, that taxes must be uniform only "within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax," but that the amount of the tax need not be the same among different districts. As for protection, it said, the rollback's purpose was to protect taxpayers "against sudden substantial increases in their tax burdens by action of their elected representatives."

In fact, it added, the only way this goal could have been achieved was through a freeze. "In practical effect the rollback law prohibits any local school tax not approved by popular vote, with a 'grandfather clause' exemption of existing taxes," the high court said. "This is a standard type of legislation."

Work by Scouts Changes Things

Boy Scouts from four Floyd communities and 65 Scouts and their adult leaders from the Pontiac, Mich. area have joined this summer in converting the bathhouse at the David swimming pool into a multi-purpose community center.

A second story is being added to the original structure, and both floors of the building will be available for various types of community meetings and other activities.

The Floyd county Scouts having a part in the building program are members of Troop 142, which was organized last January at David. In addition to David, members of the troop come from Garrett, Wayland and Drift. Daniel Greene, a member of the troop sponsor, St. Vincent's Mission, of David, is Scoutmaster.

Mr. Greene said last week that the actual construction work on the center was made possible through the efforts of Al Feliksa and Brother Bene Gonya, S. J., who organized the Michigan Scouts for the work at David and provided necessary materials and technical skills. The Michigan group arrived at David June 20, set up camp on St. Vincent's Mission grounds—and went to work, helping the Mission staff and the David troop members.

Aside from the work on the community center, the two groups of Scouts joined in construction of a 40-foot log walk-bridge there.

Discussing the troop which he leads at David, Mr. Greene said the purpose of organizing a troop whose members represent different areas of the county is to provide an opportunity for youths of varied backgrounds to share with one another their individuality and to develop a sense of awareness, leadership and commitment to their own communities.

recalls stories they used to tell of padded voting lists, of "bank" mules being voted.

When a complaint was lodged about such capers, one man is quoted as having said, "Well, I say, let everybody have a ballot that asks for one."

Then there is the story of the names being taken from tombstones for ultimate use at the polls. When the boys found one particularly long name, one suggested it should be split into two names.

"You think I would be that dirty?" his buddy asked.

THOUGHTFUL SUGGESTION

Then there is the story of the married man who strayed from the ways of rectitude and became enamored of a certain lady who was not his wife. While at such dalliance, one night, others of like bent sailed into him and when it was all over he was pretty well used up and bleeding, as they say, profusely from sundry cuts.

Friends arrived and carried him homeward. The man was conscious and on the way did some thinking about the reception awaiting him from his jealous wife. As they neared the yard-gate, he spoke up:

"Boys, I tell you, if you're gonna say anything about where you picked me up, maybe you'd just better put me over there in the shop-house for a spell. I've lost all the blood I can stand for a day or two."

TO VIET CONG, ANY BARK MAY BE WORSE THAN A BITE

QUANG NGAI, VIETNAM (AP)—Viet Cong propaganda is going to the dogs in Cental Vietnam. A pamphlet warns:

"People. You must kill all of your dogs. When we cross your property at night, their barking gives away our movements to the enemy. Whoever does not obey this instruction will be punished."

Maj. Jerry Sessions, who heads an American advisory team that seeks to counter Viet Cong propaganda in Quang Ngai Province, commented:

"I think we'll let that one pass. Most of the people we've talked to think it's pretty funny. Anyhow, there aren't that many dogs in the province."

United Fuel, 3
Other Companies
Losing Identities

Three Charleston-based Columbia Gas System companies with operations in West Virginia, Kentucky, Virginia and Maryland are losing their corporate identities in merging into Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation.
The companies are United Fuel Gas Company, Kentucky Gas Transmission Corporation and Atlantic Seaboard Corporation. All have had a single management in Charleston for many years and will continue as an operating unit under the new company.
However, names that have been familiar to those closely identified with the gas industry in the four states will fade from use as, in fact, their corporate identities cease.

In the final step of the System's 16-year realignment program, Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation will consolidate the operations of seven subsidiaries. The company will function as the sole System pipeline company to transport and sell interstate gas to Columbia's retail affiliates and non-affiliated wholesale customers.

Ohio Fuel Gas Company, with headquarters in Columbus, and the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company, Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company and Home Gas Company, all with headquarters in Pittsburgh, also are merged into the new company.

Columbia Gulf Transmission Company, which operates the System's large diameter lines from the Southwest, is not involved in the consolidation.

The merger of seven gas companies into one represents the last and largest step in Columbia's realignment program begun in 1955. The purpose of the latest move is to simplify Columbia's organization so that all Appalachian wholesale operations subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission will be handled through a single company, rather than through seven companies.

In the retail phase of the realignment program, completed last year with the organization of Columbia Gas of West Virginia, Inc., the System's subsidiaries were reorganized so that each retail company operates within the boundaries of one state, subject only to that state's jurisdiction.

The new company will have an initial capitalization of about $800 million. System-wide, it has approximately 3,000 employees who will operate 10,800 miles of transmission lines in West Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Maryland, Virginia and New York. The company will operate 45 underground storage fields with a total capacity of 572 billion cubic feet. Most of the gas the company transports will come from the Southwest, but Columbia Gas Transmission will operate 5,600 production wells of its own in the Appalachian area.

Within the Charleston Group, the new company will operate out of the same four division headquarters as in the past. These are at Lockwood, Ky., Hamlin, W. Va., Clendenin, W. Va. and Strasburg, Va.

Columbia Firms
In Area Winners
Of Safety Award

The safety record of the Ashland-Louisiana-Prestonsburg area employees of Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc., has contributed to the winning of a Columbia Gas System award by the company and its affiliates with headquarters in Charleston, W. Va., according to B. B. Brown, area manager.

Cecil E. Loomis, chairman of the board of the Columbia Gas System, has presented the George S. Young safety plaque for having the system's best industrial safety record in 1970 to company executives. Approximately 3,300 employees of the six companies achieved a frequency rate of 2.2 disabling injuries per million hours worked. They were in competition with other Columbia employees based in Columbus and Pittsburgh.

In addition to Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc., the other companies sharing in the award are Atlantic Seaboard Corporation, Columbia Gas of Virginia, Inc., Columbia Gas of West Virginia, Inc., Kentucky Gas Transmission Corporation and United Fuel Gas Company.

Volkswagen announces a new kind of Volkswagen. Big.

Who'd ever believe it?
A Volkswagen that's big.
And looks like a regular car.
And has four big doors.
And more room and comfort than you've ever seen in a Volkswagen.
And more power and acceleration than you've ever had in a Volkswagen.
And more features as standard equipment than you'd ever expect in a big car.

Like an automatic transmission.
Radial tires. Front disc brakes. Electronic fuel injection. Rear-window defroster.

In memory of Mom and Dad:

Today upon a small mound where grass grows and flowers wave and winds gently sigh we stood by the graves of the greatest friends we ever had. Sleeping beneath the graves are a gentle Mom and Dad, awaiting the trumpet sound. Each way the trees spread their cooling shade. While flowers fade, the memories never fade. A quiet moment of silent prayer, and there we placed the flowers, my brother, sister and I.

Kellogg Grant of $233,830 To Aid ALCOR Work in Area

PIPPA PASSES, KY.—The W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich., has awarded a three-year grant of $233,830 to ALCOR, Inc., it was announced here by Dr. William S. Hayes, president of Alice Lloyd College and ALCOR chairman.

inception as a one-college effort at Alice Lloyd in 1969, indicated that the Kellogg Foundation grant raises the level of ALCOR funding past the half-million-dollar mark and that 82 per cent of the funding is from private sources.

ALCOR is a six-college consortium operating as a non-profit education corporation. Other members of the group are Lees Junior College, Union College, Cumberland College, Hazard Community College and Southeast Community College. It operates programs of recreation, education, health, nutrition and community development in 75 isolated communities in a 24-county area in Eastern Kentucky and Tennessee.

The Kellogg Foundation grant will pay for stipends and travel for student nurses and health teams, first aid equipment and supplies for 1971-72, and the two succeeding years, according to Raymond K. LeRoux, ALCOR president.

During the summer phase of ALCOR's year-round community service program, more than 75 students in the fields of nursing, medicine, pharmacy, dentistry and special education work in the ALCOR centers. The student nurses live in the centers with local college students. The other health science students will conduct multi-phasic health screening under local health departments.

The medical component of the ALCOR program is operated in conjunction with state and county health departments and local medical authorities. The health science students were selected from over 6,000 applicants recruited with the cooperation of the Student American Medical Association and the National Student Nursing Association.

Dr. Warren G. Stumbo, of McDowell, an Alice Lloyd College graduate and a recent graduate of the University of Kentucky Medical School, is medical director of the ALCOR project.

Dr. Stumbo said that the Kellogg Foundation grant, together with another major gift from a Newark, N. J., foundation, will provide 100 per cent private funding for the medical component of ALCOR.

"We are gratified by the support of the Kellogg Foundation," Dr. Stumbo said, "and feel that his private support will produce significant results in the field of community medicine that will have major benefit for the entire state of Kentucky and other Appalachian states."

Benny Ray Bailey, 25, vice-president of ALCOR, and director of the project since its

SCS Booklet Offers Help On Farm-Pond Construction

More than two million private land users have built ponds for recreation, wildlife, livestock water, irrigation, fish production, and fire protection. A new USDA publication, "Ponds for Water Supply and Recreation," gives hints for developing successful ponds.

Agriculture Handbook 387, prepared by the Soil Conservation Service, describes what to look for during preliminary site selection, detailed site studies, construction, erosion control, and pond maintenance.

Some factors in site selection are:

1. Do not build where failure of the dam structure will mean loss of life or heavy damage to property.
2. Locate the pond where the largest storage volume can be obtained with the least amount of earthfill.
3. Locate livestock ponds in or near each pasture or grazing unit, to avoid making livestock travel long distances.
4. Locate where drainage from farmsteads, feed lots, or sewage lines will not reach and pollute the water.
5. Check for buried pipelines or cables that could be broken or punctured by excavating equipment.
6. Avoid sites under power lines; the wire might come within reach of fishing rods held by someone standing on top of the dam.

Preliminary site studies also should consider the adequacy of the drainage area and its protection from silt and soil erosion; minimum pond depth; amount of storm runoff; and adequacy of the pond size for its intended uses.

The prospective pond builder is urged to consult local engineers and local Soil Conservation Service employees for detailed information on engineering and erosion control aspects of dam and pond building.

Single copies of "Ponds for Water Supply and Recreation," AH-387, are available free from the SCS office here.

Music Theatre Offerings Here Range Far in Their Settings, End With 'Jenny Wiley' in the Hills

Three musicals—"Oklahoma," "The Sound of Music" and "Jenny Wiley"—make up the 1971 season of the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre at Jenny Wiley State Park.

The wide differences in theme and background of the three musicals are proof of the versatility of general manager C. Mitchell Douglas, who came to the theater in 1964 as an actor.

"We're surprised at how professional it all is," said Bruce Zellermyer of Miami, Fla., speaking for himself and John Long who had come to the recent "Oklahoma!" opening to lend support to their friend Paul Johnson, actor and resident photographer with the company.

This air of quality that pervades the company is attributed by Mr. Douglas to a hard-working crew and cast who feel "human pressures but none of the old-style theater temperament."

Star billing is not one of the worries of actors in the state-supported company. A star in one musical might play a minor role in another. Shirley Lightbody, choreographer for "Oklahoma!," will sing in "Sound of Music," and Stephen Hale, who was the badman in "Oklahoma!," will lend his outstanding voice to the role of Tom Wiley who woos and wins Jenny in the third production.

Douglas, besides being general manager for the summer music theater, also is director of productions, does publicity and acts in each show. He also wrote the book and lyrics for "Jenny Wiley."

In putting together the story of Jenny, Douglas had no problem finding material, for the frontier heroine has been the subject of many articles and half a dozen books. What to use and what to omit were important decisions. Included in the score are "Big Sandy Valley," "Indian Lullaby" and "Jenny Wiley."

Virginia Sellards Wiley, daughter of Hezekiah Sellards who came from Ireland in 1732 to settle the high Shenandoah, was married in 1779 to Thomas Wiley of Walker's Creek (now Tazewell county, Va.), who, like her father, was a native of Ireland.

A decade later, on Oct. 1, while her husband was away with a load of ginseng, Jenny Wiley busied herself at her loom, trying to finish a piece of cloth before taking her four children and young brother to the cabin of her sister, Elizabeth Borders, to spend the night.

Jenny was still weaving when a band of Indians broke through the cabin door and before her eyes scalped the three younger children and her brother, taking Jenny and her baby captive.

The story of the next few months in the life of Jenny Wiley is one of cruelty, torture, endurance and horror beyond the scope of fiction. But the story is not without its gentleness in the romance of Tom and Jenny and in kindnesses of one of her captors.

"Jenny Wiley" is destined to break attendance records at the park. It not only is a true story, but the heroine and her husband, the families of Mathias Harman,

Henry and James Skaggs, Daniel Boone and other pioneers connected with the blockhouse—even the Indians—have thousands of descendants in Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia and other states.

The schedules for the three shows are "Oklahoma"—June 24-July 11; "The Sound of Music"—July 15-Aug. 1; "Jenny Wiley"—Aug. 5-22. Performances are nightly, Thursdays through Sundays, at 8:30.

Condemns Water Ruling

The League of Women Voters of Kentucky has long supported measures that would improve the quality of water in our state. Therefore, we deplore the action taken by the Kentucky Water Pollution Control Commission at their June 21st meeting. In a letter to James S. Shropshire, chairman, we have expressed our concern over standards being adopted that are considered by their own legal staff to be unenforceable. The problem is that there are varying standards for waterways that have to be classified according to their use. This, obviously, could result in confusion.

More uniform standards were contained in the form designated as WP 4-2. The League regrets that the Commission did not act on the suggestion of John Sawyer, one of the commissioners, to consider modification of these standards to conform with the requirements of the Environmental Protection Agency. The important step of adopting water quality standards for the state certainly merited a full and complete discussion of all the possibilities.

The League fears that the hasty action of the Commission will not hasten the process of cleaning up our water.

Study of School Funding Begins

Frankfort, Ky.—A long-range study of the state's Minimum Foundation Program is under way to evaluate the program through which the state finances its public schools.

The study by the state Department of Education will be conducted over the next three years by 17 different subcommittees. Each will study one facet of the 15-year-old program. Each subcommittee is composed of 11 educators, plus one Department of Education staff member to furnish technical data.

James Melton, assistant state superintendent of public instruction in charge of finance and administration, and Joe Alsip, director of the Education Department's finance division, are cochairmen of the study. Study coordinator is James Sandlin, of Frankfort.

Melton said the study's recommendations will be ready for the 1974 General Assembly.

He said that after the subcommittees complete their work, their recommendations will be evaluated by citizens advisory committee which is yet to be appointed.

In addition, University of Kentucky consultants will study regional differences in school support and necessary local effort.

The 17 areas to be studied are: capital outlay, compensatory education, current expense, differential staffing, exceptional children, extended school year, growth factor, incentive programs, kindergarten, merit pay for teachers, para-professional support, pupil-teacher ratio, pupil transportation, teacher certification, urban needs, vocational education and special instruction service units.

Colleges Must Rule Campuses, Governor Says

The responsibility of writing campus regulations and seeing that they are obeyed rests with administrators of America's colleges, Governor Nunn declared recently.

Speaking at conference in Louisville of the National Association of College and University Attorneys, the governor said the American university system "is going to be destroyed" unless administrators exercise a firm hand in dealing with potential disturbances.

Nunn said some colleges have lost sight of their duty to educate and have become centers of lawlessness and forums for irresponsible opinions.

However, he said he believes this trend is passing because of the influence of mature students on the campus.

The right of the majority of students to get an education must be protected, he said.

"Until the students attain some degree of education or degree of maturing judgment, we as administrators and officials will have to provide the rules and regulations."
