State OK's Bid on Part Of Highway

Ford Pact Delayed Because of Utilities In Vicinity of Allen

Commissioner of Highways B. E. King announced last Thursday that contract for construction of 3,357 miles of four-lane US 23 from the Mountain Parkway at the mouth of Katy Friend Branch to Water Gap has been awarded to the low bidder, the Kentucky Road Oiling Co., Georgetown. The bid was $3,212,696.79.

The Awards Committee did not approve the contract on the remaining 5.9 miles of the highway to Allen, but this is expected within the week. The low bidder on this phase of the Allen-Prestonsburg sector of US 23 was the Winston Ford Company, Prestonsburg, which submitted a bid of $4,762,747. This bid included bridges at Allen and Water Gap.

It was said here that approval of the Ford bid has been delayed because removal of utilities lines from the right-of-way has not been completed. If Ford is awarded the contract, as expected, construction of the bridges on the route, including the four-lane span across the Big Sandy at Allen, will be done by the Dixie Bridge Co., Lexington, as subcontractor.

Work on the projects, last to be awarded on US 23 between Prestonsburg and Pikeville, is expected to begin by early Commissioner King also announced a 1971-'72 county road aid program allotment of $139,369 for Floyd county.

Included in the program are 159 maintenance projects providing for the maintenance of 155.6 miles of county roads and five bridges.

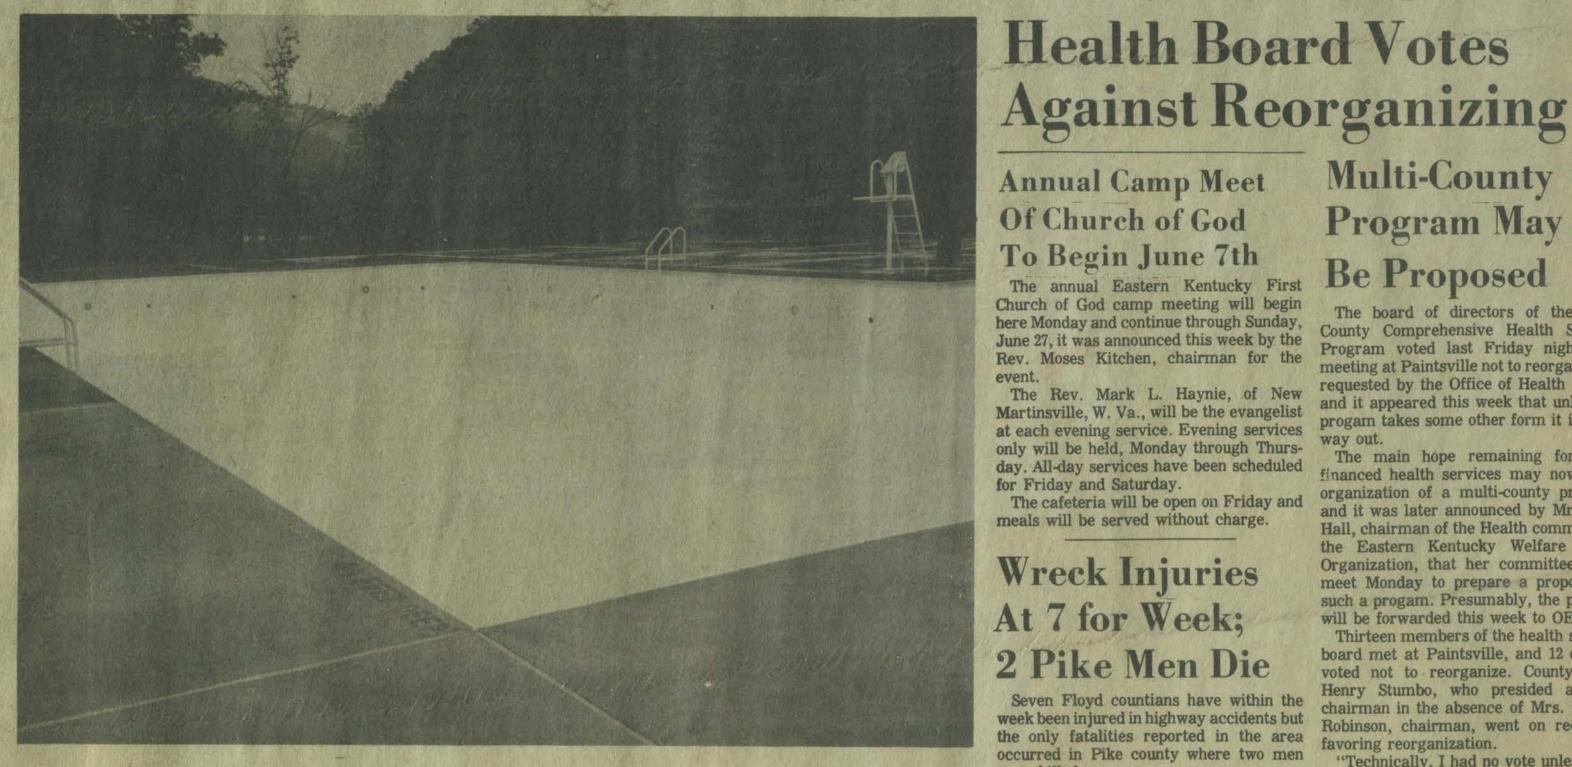

The County Road Aid Program was established by a general assembly appropriation of $13 million annually to help the counties meet their responsibility for county roads.

the Democratic nomination for Railroad Nelson R. Allen, of Greenup, Ky., the Secretary of State's office announced last

The official tabulation of the primary vote shows that Damron won by 334 votes. He polled a total of 13,014 votes to 12,680 for Allen, his nearest opponent in a field of five.

The election is the second to be lost by a narrow margin by Nelson Allen in the last in return. A restraining order is asked and, four years. In 1967 he lost in the primary to Douglas C. Combs by only 20 votes.

Flood Victim . . . Swimming Pool At State Park

The community-size swimming pool at Jenny Wiley State Park has not been in use this year after having suffered flood damage in early May. The footer sagged while flooded and spidery cracks appeared in the bottom of the pool. Park Manager Robert Copeland said Tuesday the pool is expected to be repaired and ready for opening, Saturday of this week.

Suit Attacks Move To Sell TV Franchise

president, Paul R. Gearheart, filed Monday a circuit court action seeking to enjoin Mayor Elmer Ferguson and the board of trustees of the town of Wheelwright from accepting bids on the television system franchise at Wheelwright and from awarding a franchise for its operation.

Robert (Bob) Damron, of Ivel, has won advertising by Wheelwright for bids on the franchise is illegal and without statutory Commissioner from the 44-county Third provision, basing this argument on the district over a former Floyd countian, contention that television systems are not 1968 and that she earlier had purchased Public Service Commission and such franchises are not authorized by state law.

Gearheart points out that Tel-Com purchased the system and all its equipment and properties in June, 1967 from Mountain Investment Company for $35,000 and that it was given a bill of sale and easement deed in the event that the officials are not restrained by the court from their proposed

Tel-Com, Inc., of Harold, through its action, the award of $40,000 to cover cost of the system and improvements made.

Tel-Com says it has approximately 165 customers at Wheelwright and that it provides, in all, television service to 1400 homes and businesses.

In another suit filed this week Mrs. Minta Burke, of Prestonsburg, names the First Tel-Com's complaint argues that the National Bank as defendant, seeking to recover a total of $68,000. Mrs. Burke alleges a certificate of deposit in the amount of $14,000 was issued her on Jan. 3, public utilities subject to regulation by the another certificate of $23,000 value. She says she has been advised both certificates have been cashed through forgery of her name by a person unnamed in the action. She also alleges that $6,000 in savings and checking accounts have been withdrawn without her signature.

In addition to these amounts, the plaintiff asks $25,000 punitive damages, claiming that shock at learning of her loss caused a breakdown.

This Town . . . That World

My old Dalmatian having gone to wherever good dogs go, we have now become afflicted with cats. We had one beautiful, white cat-as deaf as the departed Dal ever was-but, like the fellow with the rabbits, it didn't stop there. Anybody want a kitten?

Something I am unable to explain is why I waste my time on the so-called Big Red Machine. They're going nowhere—they've already arrived, down there in the cool confines near the cellar. A newspaper item, the other day, announced two tryout camps they will hold. One of these is at Somerset. The other should be at Riverfront Stadium-and guess who I would suggest should be trying out!

THE TREATMENT

Watt Hale was over for a few minutes, the other morning, merely to pass the time of day and tell me about the woman who was more than somewhat emotionally disturbed. Said her husband's friends and neighbors assured him that if he didn't mind his step, she would kill him. So he took her to a psychiatrist.

The woman promptly went into a tantrum there, kicked over chairs, overturned a table or so and was measuring her breezed in, clasped her to his bosom in a Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of bear-hug, bent her backward and landed a America. Some 300 Scouts from burning kiss smack on her lips.

The old gal quieted down immediately. "Now, you see," the psychiatrist remarked to the wide-eyed husband. "That's what your wife needs. Love, affection, man! And let me add, this must be done on schedule. . .um-m, let's say, every Monday, Thursday and Saturday.'

Duly impressed, the husband agreed. "O. K., doc," he said. "I can bring her in to you, every Monday and Thursday, but I'm afraid you'll have to skip Saturday-that's my day to go fishin'."

THE INJUSTICE OF IT ALL!

I am not a born pessimist, but a recent event supports my contention that there's little justice left in this world. To prove this

One of those arrested by police, and not included in these figures, since the arrest was made Monday of last week, was Lora Vanderpool, Hueysville woman, who was fined $57 after she allegedly had shoplifted $6 worth of merchandise at the Dollar General Store here.

State Claiming Utility Removal Debt vs. P'burg

The state has little or no hope of collecting, but it has sent the Prestonsburg Utilities Commission a bill for $11,000 for what it lists as cost of relocating utilities lines which were on the right-of-way of highway construction.

A bill will be sent later to the Allen City Water Commission, it was said.

The Floyd county billings are among a flock of "duns" sent, or to be sent, cityowned utilities across the state. State Highway Commissioner B. E. King expressed sympathy with the utilities, but he isn't writing off the debts. The state claims the utilities were permitted to lay lines without charge on state right-of-way and that they should be responsible for moving costs. The Louisville Water Company, however, won a judgment of $120,465 for relocation of facilities along I-64. The state has appealed. Governor Nunn vetoed a bill enacted by the General Assembly last year which would have required the Highway Department to bear all these relocation costs. He contended the utilities operate at a profit and use state right-of-way without charge and so should be responsible for relocation of lines.

"I guess we could file suit on all of these," Commissioner King said of the bills the Department of Highways holds against utilities, "but I don't think that would do a bit of good. We'll just have to hope that we can get the money when we can.'

Multi-County Program May Be Proposed

The board of directors of the Floyd County Comprehensive Health Services Program voted last Friday night in a meeting at Paintsville not to reorganize, as requested by the Office of Health Affairs, and it appeared this week that unless the progam takes some other form it is on its

The main hope remaining for OEOfinanced health services may now lie in organization of a multi-county program, and it was later announced by Mrs. Eula Hall, chairman of the Health committee of the Eastern Kentucky Welfare Rights Organization, that her committee would meet Monday to prepare a proposal for such a progam. Presumably, the proposal will be forwarded this week to OEO.

Thirteen members of the health services board met at Paintsville, and 12 of them voted not to reorganize. County Judge Henry Stumbo, who presided as vicechairman in the absence of Mrs. Eleanor Robinson, chairman, went on record as favoring reorganization.

"Technically, I had no vote unless there was a tie vote," Judge Stumbo later explained. "But I did not feel I could go along as county judge with a vote that may lose medical services for the poor and employment for many people.

Is Pollution Within Bounds?

At a Rotary Club meeting in Louisville, the other day, Dr. William P. McElwain, Kentucky commissioner of health said-if he was quoted correctly—that his department is keeping pollution within bounds, that the water "is in fairly good shape," that "we know where we are and where we are going."

It is always refreshing to find an optimist in this world of trouble and shadow. But sometimes optimism for public consumption is mere whistling past the graveyard.

Is everything under control? Do those charged with protecting the people and their environment against pollution,-air, water, soil, food-know enough to be certain?

The Times may be little about this matter, seeing individual instances of pollution and failing to get the broad picture, but it can't resist thinking of the threat to bodies of water such as Dewey Lake from acid mine waters; of the 10 miles of Middle Creek in this county which are as dead as the Dead Sea from acid waters pouring from an underground, abandoned mine; of the hundreds of mobile homes in this and other counties which are pouring their sewage, raw, into the streams; of the streams that periodically run black from coal washings.

Dr. McElwain, of course, knows the general picture better than we. But can he see the trees for the forest?

We would like to see some individual "bushes" shaken. That would include, for instance, a look at the acid content of Dewey Lake, at the source of whatever pollution may be there, and some firm determination about what to do-now, not later, after it has gone the way of Pound Reservoir. Just that, for a starter.

Are you the Volkswagen Type 3 type?

Don't let the fact that this car might look like Indy 500 material throw you off the track.

Those racing stripes are a con. That sports car back is a front. The Volkswagen Type 3 can no more fly down a racetrack than it can fly through the clouds. What, then, can it do, and who, then is it for?

If you're more concerned with slowing down than speeding up, it has standard front disc brakes.

All 4 wheels are independently suspended so it holds the road better when cornering.

It has the most advanced system of distributing gasoline in the engine: electronic fuel injection.

Shifting on the VW Type 3 is less sticky; 4-speed synchromesh transmission is standard.

And in keeping with Volkswagen standards, it gets around 26 miles to a gallon of gas, uses very little oil, and even less water or antifreeze-

But contrary to Volkswagen tradition; it isn't bad looking. In fact, equipped with all the options as you see it in the picture, you can make it look like the menacing, overpowering creature of the road that it isn't.

So if you're looking for a racy little sports car, look somewhere else.

If you're in the market for just an economy sedan, this isn't it. But if you're the type who wants a racy, economical, little, sporty sedan,

College Publishes Floyd Man's Poems, "Tinker Fork Portraits"

Lloyd College graduate, Scotty Lee Hamilton, of Floyd county, has been published by the college and printed on the campus. Entitled "Tinker Fork Portraits," the book contains 14 poems, and is illustrated with sketches by Bruce Peters, of Dayton, Ohio.

Hamilton, who grew up on Tinker Fork, was graduated from McDowell high school and completed his two years at Alice Lloyd in May.

Most of the poems in "Tinker Fork Portraits" were written as an individual class project in a creative writing course at Alice Lloyd in 1970. The poems evolved under the direction of Albert Stewart, associate professor of English at ALC.

According to Prof. Stewart, "The book sketches the joys and sorrows, the rewards and hardships, the quiet humor and wry wit, the sense of mystery, the different ways in which the folks of Tinker Fork made, and make, their adjustments to life in the rough

Don't answer yet.

The car in the picture is a Volkswagen. And, as you can see, it has four doors. It's our new 411 4-Door sedan. Like most 4-door sedans, our 411 gives the people in the back almost as much room as the people in the front. Unlike most 4-door sedans, though, there's also room for luggage in the front as well as in back.

Like most 4-door sedans, our 411 has

Unlike most 4-door sedans, our engine gets about twenty-two miles to a gallon

Like most 4-door sedans, our 411 offers a lot of options. Automatic transmission, radial tires, rear-window defogger, to name a few.

Unlike most 4-door sedans, those options are included in the price of the car. Now you can answer if you like:

Idle Caseload 'About Normal' Here, Is Report

Floyd county unemployment is near normal at this season of the year, although the caseload at the Kentucky Unemployment Office here is rather heavy, Glenn S. Anderson, manager of the state agency's local office said Monday.

More than half of the caseload of unemployment benefit applicants has been filed by idle workers from other states, he said. Summertime jobs for students are difficult to come by here, as well as elsewhere, but those needing odd jobs done say they find capable workers employed and many unemployed who are unwilling to

Mr. Anderson said an increase in applications at his office is normal for summertime. He said no recruitment by out-ofstate employers is expected this year, but this is not unusual. Labor recruiters have not been here for several years.

Kentucky will raise its maximum unemployment pay on July 5 from $56 a week to $60 for a period of 26 weeks. When Mr. Anderson began work with the Employment Service here in 1944 the maximum pay was $16 a week for a period of 16 weeks.

FIRST CATCH A BIG ONE

Eleven-year-old Lynn Haywood broke in with a bang as an angler, Monday of last week at Dewey Lake, when the first fish she ever caught in her young life was a 20-inch, 41/2-pound bass. She and her brother, Greg, 8, were fishing with their father, Bill Haywood, of Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek, when the big bass latched onto the plastic worm she was casting. Mr. Haywood sat back and let his daughter fight the fish to the boat, and her brother got into the act by netting it.

representing the Floyd County Medical Society, warned that doctors and dentists brought into the county for such a progam would be "rejects who can't make it anywhere else." He recommended that the board go on record as bitterly opposed to the progam as proposed by Health Affairs. "I'm sick and tired of being called a thief and a liar and a cheat and everything else,"

Judge Stumbo later commented that the board had worked hard and made a number of trips to Washington in an effort to save the program. The health progam, he said, was affording good service to the poor until the employment of Dr. Arnold Schecter as director. "Our treatment by Health Affairs has been ridiculous. Many people don't know how bad it has been.'

Dr. Adams has suggested a congressional investigation into the reasons for the OEO requirements and the suspension of funds. He said after the Paintsville meeting that there was nothing wrong with the program that sufficient funds and "less outside interference" would not cure. The doctor also commented that statements made by consumer group representatives at the meeting indicated they were satisfied with the program as it had been operated.

If a multi-county progam is effected, Floyd county and adjacent counties might be included in the service area. Such a progam would, in all probability, follow guidelines similar to those suggested for the Floyd county program.

Every bird and beast imaginable in Pulaski county where some 100 unknown a prehistoric forest is represented in their Confederate troops were buried by Union zoomorphic effigy on pottery, pipes and soldiers after a Civil War battle. Occasionally, one spots a mound in a country cemetery, and evidence of at least one few pictographs, scattered about, we know mound burial has been found on a Mercer practically nothing.

Generally, in such cases, however, there is a simple explanation for the mound's identity of these prehistoric people, like the presence—be it for convenience's sake or awesome mounds themselves, lie wrapped an idiosyncrasy on the part of some family

Certainly the most unusual, the most revealing and yet the most puzzling of all mounds in Kentucky are those of the Ancient Buried City, near Wickliffe.

Here, on a lofty bluff above the junction of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, an unknown and forgotten people erected their monuments to earth. Many of these mounds are still intact but others have been opened revealing the remains of a race of prehistoric people who walked in western Kentucky some 1000 years ago.

The excavated mounds have been opened with such care that all remains are in their original positions. The Burial Mound, now sheltered by a modern building, contains 153 skeletons. It is believed that the burials were upon, rather than within, the soft alluvial soil. Charcoal found here indicates that fire was used in some manner in connection with the burials.

There are three distinct types of burials: some bodies were fully extended, some were in bundles and some were cremated. Many articles of pottery, tools, bone implements and jewelry found beside the bodies indicate that the race who lived here had reached a high degree of culture.

The Council Mound has three fire pits and post moulds suggestive of platforms for a priest and his audience. Nearby is the outline of a building surrounded by a drainage ditch. Seven pieces of pottery were found here during excavation, all graduated in size. Of the uncovered mounds the Temple Mound is the largest. Three rectangular clay altars are found here carrying out the Trinity idea that is seen in both the Burial and Council House Mounds. In front of the altars are post molds indicating a prayer rail where the suppliants knelt in devotion to their gods.

Another mound has also been excavated. Obviously this was the children's mound, for many smaller skeletons have been uncovered. One infant had a string of shell beads around its neck and near the hand of another lay a tiny, beautifully carved white

This mound is rectangular in shape and its greatest height is six feet. It measures about 105 by 55 feet. It was built over many building sites as is indicated by different outlines. Five fire pits were found in this mound.

Many unusual articles have been uncovered, including a turkey bone collar with an antler tip which produces modulated tones when blown. Perhaps this was a musical instrument as all races are said to have had music of some kind.

Who were these people that roamed within the present boundaries of our state so long ago?

Since so many items foreign to this area are evidenced, it seems reasonable to assume that this was the center of some established trade route. History tells us that an extensive inter-tribal traffic in merchandise existed even at this early

Mica from the Carolinas; jewelry, cannel coal and copper from the borders of Lake Superior; sea shells from the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic coast, and hematite and quartz from distant mines have been found. Many of the excavated pottery pieces and copper ornaments are

Mexican in design. Charred remains of Indian corn, the remnants of timber used in house construction, and the still existing fireplaces and fragments of wooden furniture all tell of a non-migratory life. Very few weapons Shop in your home community

Home Life In the Mountains Still Holds Its Fascination

By HELEN PRICE STACY

WEST LIBERTY, KY.-Life as it was lived a number of years ago continues to have a fascination. The reason for its intrigue is not known exactly, but the spell remains. When traveling through the countryside at dusk, the hills making deep shadows in the valleys, it is pleasant to look through the distance to a far hill and if there is a light in sight to imagine all sorts of things. Maybe there's a small fire in the fireplace to take away the evening chill; perhaps a coal oil lamp on a table and a white haired grandma doing her mending by its pale light, her companion dozing in his rocking chair nearby. They have done their day's chores and now comes the quiet time of day, inside, where night is like a soft, hand-tacked comforter. Could I but see into the lighted room on that far hill, the actual picture might be different. The couple might be enjoying the movie on TV while a record player makes music in another oom; heat might be provided by electricity, with the same power making brilliant light throughout the room. Still, I continue to put old time people and old time ways into those mysterious lighted rooms on those far away hills.

a master at describing the kind of life I have in mind. It's not that I would want to revert to the iron kettle, skillet and lid, churning milk with a dasher to make in his early years and every time a peddler butter, heating an iron on the wood range and drawing water from a well in the yard—but it's interesting to think about.

"Memories, still they linger," wrote Click who many years ago moved west and settled in Prescott, Arizona. He is nearing 90 years of age. meals in an iron kettle. In one of Click's five springs for one bed. All of us wanted to get books he tells how she would place the in that bed." kettle on the fire to cook meat, potatoes, chicken. "We also had a large skillet and lid (Dutch over)," he wrote in EARLY HOME LIFE IN THE HILLS.

"She would heat the skillet and lid on the fire then shovel large hot coals on the hearth, set the skillet on, put in corn meal dough, then put the lid on and shovel coals on top.

"Well do I remember the brown old pone of thick corn bread-no better ever bakedand the sweet potatoes she baked in the old skillet, the pitcher of milk and large dish of

Sugar was a commodity rare in country homes of years ago and at the Click farm as well as other farms in the region, "each farmer raised a patch of cane from which he made a barrel of sorghum molasses for domestic use. Later cane mills were run till late hours at night which afforded a favorite place for gathering of both old and young."

The neighborly act of borrowing was as much a practice back then as today. It was customary, said Click, to borrow meal, flour, salt, soda or a cup of green coffee. The coffee then had to be put in a small skillet on a hot fire and stirred until brown and ready for the coffee mill.

As strange as it might seem, fire was the thing most often borrowed as it was difficult to keep matches between trips to the store. Keeping live coals overnight was taken for granted, but occasionally when "one got up and found the fire out he went to the nearest neighbor to borrow live coals." On one occasion the Click household had early visits from two neighbors whose fires had gone out during the night. "So they both came to our house and each got a live coal between two chips or on a small shovel and kept it alive until he got home."

Click was sixth in a family of 12 children of Dock and Jane Click. Born on Ruin Creek in Elliott county, he attended rural schools and later became a teacher and a minister. He wrote five books including regional history, poetry and sermons. It is his account of his early home life that is outstanding. That and his description of in-

In "Rising from the Rough," Click said that "a field of corn can be so interwoven with morning glory vines, or with wild sweet potato vines that one would have to but shake one stalk of corn to set the entire field in motion."

He goes on. "This may well compare with some genealogical trees which are native to the hills. . . One young couple, whom I knew well, married. They were cousins and even more. Their mothers were sisters and their fathers were first cousins. The bride's father and mother were first cousins and the groom's father and mother were first

"The bride's father was first cousin to the groom's mother and the groom's father was first cousin to the bride's mother. It would require more than an ordinary education to determine the relationship the Elliott county's Rufus Henderson Click is children of this couple had to each other, to their parents, grandparents, uncles and aunts."

The Click home was in a remote section stopped at the farm, it was talked about for weeks. The family had made straw ticks for all the beds; each tick (mattress) was covered with another made of feathers.

"I remember our first bed springs," recalled Click. "An agent came along trading springs for feathers and Ma partly His mother Jane Stegall Click cooked emptied one feather bed and gave them for
