

As Area Health Was Under Study

More than 175 persons attended the annual Home Health Conference sponsored by Appalachian Regional Hospitals at May Lodge last week. The two-day session, which included workshops, discussions, panel discussions, and noted speakers, involved not only members of the ARH agencies, but all other agencies dealing with health care services in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia.

Ask Freeze On New Gas Customers

Columbia Requests PSC Relief Action; Gas Shortage Seen

Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc., has filed with the Kentucky Public Service Commission for approval of a policy in effect by Columbia Gas of Kentucky since October, 1971 to deny applications for new or increased sales to commercial and industrial customers.

Columbia Gas has also requested the commission for authority to refuse service to all new residential customers in order to assure adequate service for its approximately 113,000 existing customers.

The request made to the Public Service Commission would not exclude service to residential customers who have applied for and are actually ready for the start of gas service prior to Sept. 1, 1972, nor would the freeze on new service apply to existing commitments made by Columbia.

Michael Barna, Jr., Columbia's manager, said the complete freeze on new gas sales was requested after a thorough analysis of the company's gas supply situation indicated it could not continue to take on new residential customers without the risk of impairing service to existing customers.

"Next winter we will have to live within the same volumes we now have available and the only way we can do this is to restrict new sales," Mr. Barna said.

Columbia of Kentucky has had varying degrees of limitations on new sales to large volume customers in effect since April 1970 and currently it limits new customers to the present distribution areas and to residential customers only, including apartment-type dwellings.

ARH Group Decides Here on Miners' Aid

Encouraging news for coal miners seeking to qualify for "black lung" benefits came from a tri-state health conference held at Jenny Wiley State Park last Wednesday and Thursday.

T. P. Hipkens, of Lexington, president of Appalachian Regional Hospitals, announced that his organization hopes to establish by the end of the year, a chain of five cardio-pulmonary centers capable of diagnosing 25,000 miners annually.

Appalachian Regional Hospitals is a non-profit health care system which operates the McDowell ARH hospital and eight other community hospitals in coal-mining communities of Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia.

The additional diagnostic centers would help federal and state agencies cope with a heavy backlog of claims filed by miners who have been disabled by what they suspect to be pneumoconiosis (black lung), caused by breathing mine dusts.

Hipkens said that ARH has submitted to the Appalachian Regional Commission a preliminary application for a federal grant of $1.2 million. The money would enable ARH to expand its cardio-pulmonary research laboratory at Beckley, W. Va., and to establish similar centers at Harlan, South Williamson and Whitesburg, Kentucky, and Man, West Virginia. Mobile testing units also would be operated.

These centers, he explained, could serve other important purposes. They could be used for (1) Research, (2) Diagnosing

ON GETTING UNDERAILED

The buffalo, which at one time was nearing extinction is coming back, and now it appears that we should get concerned about another animal that is getting to be a rarity. I refer to the common, ordinary mule.

This hybrid of the equine species has in time past contributed in more ways than one to the richness of life in the mountains. There was a time when only the surefooted mule could negotiate such treacherous roads as we had, and he and his part in the economy, too, as the hillside farmer behind a bull-tongue plow could trust only a mule to keep his footing on some of the steep slopes.

One reason behind the fact that the people of Eastern Kentucky never adopted the custom of a mid-day siesta was this selfsame mule. Doze off, and as sure as shootin' that misbegotten son of a jackass would take it into his head to wake up everything within a mile with a shattering bray, followed by sniggering heehaws at what he had accomplished.

The mule also did his part to lighten the hours as the subject of many the fireside tale. "Never get at the south end of a north-bound mule" became, and still is, about the soundest advice ever given in these parts. Some vowed the mule has it all over the elephant when it comes to memory. One man declared his mule waited seven years to kick him for an affront he had committed against the animal.

One mule story which comes to mind without any great effort is the one told by Watt Hale of the Carter county case, back years ago. This man's critter was elderly and was inclined to "winter porely," with both the ravages of age and the debilitating effects of a slim wintertime diet working together for no good.

patients with other lung disorders, (3) Diagnosing heart patients, and (4) Rehabilitation of patients suffering from lung and heart problems.

Hipkens spoke at the fourth annual Home Health Care Conference of Appalachian Regional Hospitals, which maintains home care agencies in ten communities.

He disclosed that ARH was developing plans for establishing a home care agency in Floyd county, based at the McDowell ARH hospital. He was hopeful that the agency could go into operation this summer.

The conference was attended by more than 175 home care coordinators, hospital administrators, physicians and other health care professionals from Kentucky, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Dr. Howard Bost, assistant vice-president of the University of Kentucky Medical Center, told the delegates that the coordinated use of physicians, nurses, social workers and other health professionals in delivering care to patients in their homes—represented the kind of organization and efficiency sorely needed in the health care industry.

Other speakers dealt with nutrition, child care, drugs, and communities' needs for additional health services.

David V. Hawpe, an associate editor of The Louisville Courier-Journal, advocated that the federal government spend more money for health services in Appalachia.

Driver, 15, Dies In Auto Wreck

A 15-year-old boy apparently was drowned late last Wednesday night when the car which he reportedly was driving left KY 979 and plunged into Mud Creek, near Grethel.

The victim was Charles Edward Foster Mitchell, son of Edward and Bernice Hamilton Mitchell, of Teaberry. State Trooper Dennie Williamson, who investigate the death, said the driver's side of the auto was completely submerged.

The victim's brother, Charles, and Randall Akers, passengers in the auto, escaped with minor injuries. They succeeded in pulling young Mitchell from the car.

Survivors, in addition to the parents, include three brothers and five sisters, Larry Dale, Lee and Wilburn Mitchell, Mrs. Mildred Howell, Misses Della and Offie Mitchell, all of Teaberry.

Funeral rites were conducted from the Mitchell home at 10 a.m. Saturday by ministers of the Regular Baptist Church. Burial was made in the Ike Roberts cemetery at Grethel under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

4 Drivers Win Cut in Charges After Appeals

In the cases of four drivers whose Prestonsburg police court convictions for drunk driving were appealed to circuit court the charges have been amended during the present term to reckless driving, with the defendants then entering pleas of guilty and being fined $20 each.

Defendants fined under the amended charges are Ronnie Conn, Thomas E. Mullins, Mary R. Howell and Elder Gary Wright.

Drunk driving appeals of James Hunt, Clay Daniels and Damon Newsome were dismissed.

Two men have been convicted during the term on liquor charges. Joe Conn was fined $20 and given a 30-day jail term for selling, and William Riley Wells, Jr. drew two $100 fines and as many 30-day jail terms for possessing intoxicants for the purpose of sale and for selling, with the jail terms to run concurrently, and he also was fined $100 on a charge of obstructing justice. Strip-Mining On Probation For Two Years Strip mining in Eastern Kentucky is now on a two-year probation, according to Buddy A. Beach, acting director of the state Division of Reclamation.

Beach made the comment during an address before the 11th annual coal conference in Lexington.

"If the operators and the enforcement agency cannot show marked improvement in the next two years, the 1974 General Assembly could take the matter out of our hands," Beach said.

He said full cooperation of coal industry will be needed to minimize the environmental effects of strip mining.

"Operators are beginning to realize the importance of protecting the environment and are going along with full and equal enforcement of the law," Beach said. "They are beginning to see that full enforcement of the law is in their own best interest in the long run."

Beach said his division now is trying to "weed out" operators who refuse to follow reclamation rules and practices.

Red Cross Lists Floyd, 5 Others As Hardest Hit

A 30-member Red Cross task force working with victims of nearly two weeks of flooding, windstorms and isolated tornadoes in eastern, north central and western Kentucky asked Sunday for more staff from neighboring states to cope with further flooding caused by week-end rainstorms.

Ben Evans, coordinating state Red Cross storm recovery efforts from Frankfort, Ky., estimated 2500 families or approximately 12,500 persons have been affected in 34 Kentucky counties. The most recent flooding was focused in Bath and Bourbon counties, east of Lexington.

The Red Cross listed the hardest hit counties are Bourbon, Floyd, Franklin, Pike, Jessamine, and Wayne.

Red Cross service centers in Prestonsburg, Paris, Pikeville, Monticello, Frankfort, Elizabethtown, Lexington, Morgantown and Nicholasville have already assisted 700 families with food, clothing, temporary shelter and emergency medical care. Evans expects the number of families seeking help will rise sharply during the coming week.

Kentucky counties affected, according to Red Cross survey teams are Floyd, Breathitt, Breckinridge, Carroll, Estill, Franklin, Garrard, Hardin, Henry, Jessamine, Johnson, Knott, Letcher, Mercer, McCreary, Owen, Pike, Trimble, Wayne, Wolfe, Woodford, Bath, Bourbon, Nelson, Rowan, Butler, Grayson, Livingston and Harrison.

REVIVAL FOR WEEK TO BEGIN, APRIL 30

The Rev. Moses Kitchen will lead the First Church of God here in a revival beginning next Sunday and continuing through Saturday, May 6, it was announced this week by the pastor, the Rev. Cecil Fox. Services will begin daily at 7 p.m., and special singing will be a feature each evening. The public is cordially invited.

Knott Craftmen's Moon Lore Exceeds Apollo Exploration

Otis Jacobs, of Pippa Passes, is shown "ripping" boards for the roof of Founder's Shack, office-home for 50 years of Mrs. Alice Geddes Lloyd, founder of Alice Lloyd College. Jacobs is using froe and "maul" in producing materials for a new roof for the small structure.

"Cut your tree when the moon is going down, and the shingles will lay down flat. Trees cut during a new moon produce shingles that curl."

Regardless of astronauts and lunar exploration, such advice is offered by Cody and Otis Jacobs, of Pippa Passes, Knott county. Long-time workers at Alice Lloyd College at Pippa Passes, they resurrected the dying craft of shingling when they recently re-roofed the Founder's Shack.

After cutting white oak trees (while the moon waned, of course), they sectioned the trees into logs called "bolts." Using a board break for leverage, they split the bolts with an iron wedge. Otis then wielded a froe and mallet to heave the shingles.

Later, Otis and Albert Sparkman, a younger workman, laid down the shingles

Holbrook To Build Two Pike Projects Costing $1.2 Million

The Holbrook Construction Company, of Prestonsburg, is the low bidder on two 50-apartment rent-supplement housing complexes in Pike county, it was announced this week.

One of the projects will be at Chloe Creek, near Pikeville, with the United Methodist Church as the sponsor. The second, to be constructed at Elkhorn City, is sponsored by District 50, United Mine Workers of America.

Each complex will cost approximately $600,000. D. H. Holbrook, head of the construction company, said both jobs will be begun almost simultaneously next month. Both are to be completed within a year.

The sponsoring organizations are being assisted in the financing by Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the Federal Housing Administration (FHA).

Criticism Sparks Health Meeting Last Thursday

Floyd county's Eula Hall provided a jarring note at last week's health conference at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, when she strenuously criticized health care in Eastern Kentucky.

"I think this whole thing is a calamity," said Mrs. Hall. "You have not gone to the trouble to invite one single person from Floyd county," Mrs. Hall told the apparently embarrassed delegates. "What's the matter, were you afraid you would step on the local medical society's toes?"

She continued her attack at times through the afternoon session, charging that the delegates were ignoring families in Floyd county, who are now homeless and threatened by disease as a result of extensive flooding a few days earlier.

"What do you want us to do today?" a delegate from the Appalachian Regional Hospital at Man, W. Va., asked sharply.

"Your guess is as good as mine," said Mrs. Hall. "We've done everything we can."

Earlier, Mrs. Hall had charged that the Appalachian Regional Hospital chain only serves those able to pay.

An unidentified spokesman defended the hospital chain by saying his grandmother was served at the Whitesburg Appalachia

Probe Continues On Both Cases, But Clues Few

Two major Floyd county crimes—the robbery of the Martin branch of the First National Bank and the shotgun assassination of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley at Garret—apparently were little nearer the arrest stage this week than they were when the search for the criminals began.

The Pikeville office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said Tuesday that there is nothing new to announce at this time on the robbery investigation. Roadblocks failed to find a getaway car, if one was used. If the 14 or more FBI operatives and cooperating State Police troopers have come up with a clue to the identity of the man who walked from the bank, shortly after noon April 14, with $14,026 in a plastic bag, they are keeping it a closely guarded secret.

Meanwhile, the investigation being made into the mystery-slaying the night of April 12 of Deputy Sheriff Conley is far from a conclusion.

But State Detective Chester D. Potter, who is working with the Sheriff's department in the probe, said he believes the case will be solved. "It's a slow process," he said. "We are eliminating people who could be termed suspects, narrowing the list down, hoping to come up with the guilty person."

Conley was shot while standing in front of his car, revolver undrawn, and for this reason some hold the theory that he faced a person whom he recognized and whom he thought to be a friend.

An auto with lights out was seen leaving the scene of the slaying, driving up KY 80, moments after the shooting, but it has not been identified.

Three Jailed As Marijuana Found Near Courthouse

Marijuana was found in the possession of three men arrested last week within the shadow of the courthouse here, officers say.

The officers said the three were found in a small tenant house, a few yards outside the courthouse parking area after they had been accused by a girl. David Justice and Larry Brewer were jailed Friday on a marijuana possession count by County Detective Sam Hale and State Trooper Dennie Williamson. Detective Hale arrested the third man, Paul Flanery, Monday morning and booked him on charges of possessing and using marijuana.

All three waived to the grand jury, and bond for each was set by County Judge Henry Stumbo at $500. Justice also was charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency.

A raid on the premises of Lark Hunt, near Hunter, Saturday by State Troopers Rose and Williamson and Detective Hale netted 523 cans of beer and 14 half-pints of whiskey.

Hale investigated Monday a week-end break into the lunchroom of the Spruce Pine school on Mud Creek from which three cases of foodstuffs reportedly were taken. Some windows of the building were smashed. A former Floyd countian now residing in Pike county is being sought, it was said.

Others jailed within the week, charges against each and names of arresting officers follow:

THE MIRACLE OF THE GREEN

In a very few days now our drab and barren winter hills will be transformed by a miracle—the miracle of the green! The trees will deck themselves in gleaming gowns of green and the old brown-leaf slopes will be covered by a mantle of sheer beauty, fresh from the waking earth.

Scarcely do we appreciate the transformation of our gray and barren hills into a scene of unsurpassed beauty. How weary grow our hearts from viewing the nut-brown landscapes, the heaps of tattered winter leaves lying like discarded garments, cluttering up the view. We see the gray-boled winter trees with their fingers lifted numb and bare to the sky, as if imploring the warmth of the sun to come and call out their hidden beauty. It often does seem that spring is long in coming, but when it comes, at last, the earth is transformed almost overnight and our hearts are gladdened by the cheerful sight of the new-born green. The baby leaves burst out of their winter buds much like a moth emerging from its cocoon. The newborn moth comes out with its wings all crimped and crumpled up, but it soon pumps a liquid into them to make them unfold and stand out so it can fly; so do our new-born leaves unfold out of the bud, all crimped and crowded together, their faces covered with a dense layer of fuzz to protect them against damage by cold winds. In a day or so, the new leaves will be growing like magic. Most of them come out in crimson colors, or sometimes pink—the flesh color of the newborn. Soon they change their color to sprightly green and make ready for a busy season of work and play.

Green is one of the finest and most restful colors of nature; it never palls on the spirit of man, never chafes him, never causes him to tire of looking. But suppose the leaves should all become a glaring red or purple or yellow and remain that way all the summer long. In time we could scarcely endure the scene. Such gaudy colors of the hills would make us restless, fidgety and we would pray to see the hills all gowned in green.

Green is nature's soothing, healing color. Go into the new, green woods of spring, sit down, relax and let the glory of the bright new green flood the heart and renew the soul. You will experience a peace you never knew.

Just what is the green in a leaf? It is the color of the chlorophyll, which is "the magic stuff of nature." No one knows precisely what it is or how it is made. Man has tried in vain to produce a leaf in the laboratory with green chlorophyll, but it can't be done. Only Nature knows how to make chlorophyll, which is the basis of all life on this earth. The green leaf is a food factory; it is a chemical laboratory for manufacturing carbohydrates. Without the work of the leaf, no life could long exist. It makes the food we eat; it makes the green grass for the cattle, from which we derive much of our food supply. (And here is another mystery: The cow eats green grass but produces white milk.)

In some mysterious, magical way, the leaf uses the power of the sun and the granules of chlorophyll to make sugars and starches. This work is begun just as soon as the sap flows up to the twigs; the tree has a two-way system of working. Its work follows a round-trip circuit. The sap flows up to the leaf, which fills it with food for the cells of the tree; the sap richly laden with food flows back to add new cells to the cambium layer. So the tree begins to grow again after its six months' sabbath.

The leaf is many things besides a food factory; it is a builder and renewer of the atmosphere; it is the chief builder of our soil; it is one of nature's finest musicians and a graceful dancer. It dances the adagio when the gentle winds blow; it dances the fast rumba when the wind blows wild. It beckons like a human hand, inviting the passerby to come to the woods and enjoy a visit with nature.

The leaf is an industrious worker and never stops during the hours of daylight. The leaf is also the lungs of the tree; it has millions of tiny doors through which it can take in air and moisture; it can release oxygen and moisture as needed. The leaf is also the nursemaid of the bud and begins to form the buds for the next year's growth early in the season. All the buds you now see on the bare trees were formed last summer and prepared for their winter dormancy by being covered with bud scales. Sometimes the leaf's stem hides the bud at its hollow base, so as to shield it against all harm. You cannot find a single bud of a sycamore tree until after the leaves fall off in autumn.

As soon as the infant leaves come out in spring, they begin to cast off the scales of the bud, which shielded them against the winter's cold. It is a stern law of nature that when anything is no longer needed, it is cast away. So we have the great "bud-scale fall" in spring, when more scales drop to the earth than there are leaves to fall in autumn. But this fall of the scales is scarcely noticed by most persons, as it is quietly done. But if one walks under a beech tree right after the new leaves have come out, he will see multiplied thousands of the bud scales fluttering away in the wind like the discarded wings of queen ants. Often the ground is littered with these scales and the carpenter ants gather them by the thousands to carry to their burrows for beds and decoration of the nest.

Let us rejoice this season when Mother Nature again clothes the trees in new gowns of green to glorify the land. The winter has been long and dreary and the spring is somewhat late. So we shall be doubly glad when the new leaves appear some fine morning, looking like millions of tiny green flags fluttering in the breeze.

COMPLETES COURSE.—Jeanne Burke Moore, Prestonsburg junior at Morehead State University, receives her completion certificate from Mrs. Mignon Doran, founder and director of MSU's Personal Development Institute. The five-week, non-credit course is a unique and pioneering venture designed to sharpen social skills and improve other personal qualities. Mrs. Doran is the wife of the MSU president. Mrs. Moore is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burke, of Prestonsburg.

CARD OF THANKS
The family of Martha Ann Cassidy wishes to express its gratitude and appreciation to their many friends and relatives for their kindness and sympathy upon the passing of our dear loved one. The lovely floral offerings and visitations will always be remembered. A special thanks to the Rev. W. D. By virtue of a judgement and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the April 11 term, 1972 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 12th day of May, 1972 at 10 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd circuit court, upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

That certain tract or parcel of land lying and being on the waters of the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River in Floyd County, Kentucky, and being certain lots in the Hatcher Addition to the Town of Allen, Kentucky, and described more particularly as follows:

Lots 66 and 67 in said addition and being the same property conveyed the late Lizzie Woods by deed of April 24, 1959 by Claude B. Fields and Ruble V. Fields, his wife, as recorded in Deed Book 171, page 429 in the Floyd County Court Clerk's Office and by a Commissioner's deed of April 21, 1972, for lots 75 and 76 in said addition, which deed is to be recorded.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 20th day of April, 1972.

The owner kept a rail leaned against his barn door—not to keep the door fast but for use of cold mornings in getting Old Maude onto her feet. After she was "railed," or got back on the tracks, so to speak, the mule would do pretty well through the day.

About that time Miller's Horse and Mule Remedy reached the community, and the farmer dosed Old Maud liberally therewith, with excellent results. She shed her shaggy coat of hair, soon was able to make it to her feet without a lift with the rail and was, generally, acting as if in her second mulehood.

But sad days fell on her owner. This particular winter, he came down with the rheumatiz, suffering great pain and keeping his wife awake, nights, with his groanings. There was no medicine in the house, the roads were in terrible shape, and the nearest doctor was 20 miles away. Something had to be done, and the resourceful woman of the house, now desperate, recalled that there was the Miller's Horse and Mule Remedy on the shelf.

She gave her husband a dose. Just what it said on the box. The dose for a mule.

The results were—well, sensational in some ways, but her ministrations left the man of the house horsed combat, so weak he could barely turn in bed. He shed his hair, and the record says it never grew back. He wanted to emulate the mule and kick his wife but couldn't get up. Finally, when she insisted that he rise and shine, he feebly murmured, "If you'll go fetch that rail up thar at the barn, and use it careful-like, it might jest be that I could make it."

BAD HEALTH DIDN'T PAY

The story that Joe Creason told in his excellent Courier-Journal column recently does not have the mule as the principal character but it is a part of the lore that the animal and his day left behind.

The story, Creason writes, comes via W. I. Gibbs, printing company executive. It runs to this effect:

Some years back, on a state road in Leslie county an elderly mountain farmer in a mule-drawn wagon was involved in an accident with an automobile. Claiming to have been grievously injured, he filed an action for his injuries against the car driver.

"But isn't it true that after the accident," the defendant's attorney asked, "you said you never felt better in your life?"

"Well, the claimant started out evasively, "that morning I got up, hitched up my mule, put my hound dog in the wagon and..."

"Give us a yes or no answer to my question," the attorney interrupted to insist.

At that point the judge stepped in and directed the lawyer to let the farmer answer in his own way.

"Wwell," the claimant began again, "that morning I got up, hitched up my mule, put my hound dog in the back of the wagon and jest had got over the rise in the road when this big car barreled into my rear end."

"My mule was knocked to one side of the road, my hound dog to the other and I was pinned under the seat. Directly a police came along, seen my mule had its leg broke, pulled out his pistol and shot it dead. He went over to my dog, seen it was bad hurt and shot it in the head."

"Then," the farmer continued, "he come over to me and asked, 'Well, how are you feelin'?' and, shore enough, I said, 'I never felt better in my life!'"

And why so much space devoted to the mule? It may be that the nearness of the Kentucky Derby has had its effect.

Regional Hospital with no questions asked although she had no money.

Dr. Huston Westover, an internist at the Whitesburg Appalachian Regional Hospital, said that although the government health services and anti-poverty programs in Eastern Kentucky are "terribly uncoordinated," the ARH homehealth program operates well for those it can reach.

David Hawpe, editorial writer and former Eastern Kentucky reporter for The Courier-Journal, called the federal government's past attempts to develop comprehensive health systems in Eastern Kentucky "a shame and a dishonor for the nation" and suggested the ARH include poor people or "consumers" on its advisory board and make use of their knowledge of the needs of the poor.

Proclamation Asks Law Day Observance

Law Day, USA will be observed nationally May 1, and Dr. George P. Archer, mayor of Prestonsburg, this week issued a proclamation urging citizens, organizations and schools locally to give appropriate recognition to the day.

"The whole structure of our business, economic, social, religious and cultural life rests upon laws," he said in the proclamation. "without these laws, predicated upon equal justice and administered by independent courts, our whole social order would collapse."

To Observe 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J. David Tufts, Sr., will observe their golden wedding anniversary at their home in Wayland, May 1.

Mr. Tufts, son of W. H. and Amanda Barney Tufts, and Bessie Mae Bates, daughter of Edward and Lida Barber Bates, were married May 1, 1922 at Grayson, Ky. by their first pastor, the Rev. Ben Harrison Lucas. Both are natives of Rush, Ky., where Mr. Tufts was born April 25, 1901, Mrs. Tufts on April 10, 1900. They came to Floyd county shortly after their marriage and have lived in the vicinity of Wayland the 50 years of their married life.

They are the parents of three sons and two daughters, John David Tufts, Jr. and Curtis Tufts, both of Wayland, Charles Tufts, Hamilton, O., Mrs. Lillian Mae Burggess, Palmyra, Mich., and Doris, deceased. They have eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mr. Tufts is a retired barber and is a local licensed preacher of the United Methodist Church. He and his wife are members of the Wayland United Methodist Church. Their hobbies include hunting and fishing in the Blue Grass and on frequent trips to Dewey Lake.

"Our company and the Columbia Gas System—in common with almost every other company in the gas industry—face gas supply problems which continue to become more intense.

"Our problem has been compounded by the fact that some of the Columbia System's interstate pipeline suppliers have not been able to meet current contract delivery schedules. We don't expect any immediate improvement in these interstate pipeline deliveries. If anything, they will probably lessen," Mr. Barna added.

Cities served include Lexington, Cynthia, Maysville, Frankfort, Georgetown, Mt. Sterling, Versailles, Winchester, Irvine, Paris, Ravenna, Ashland, Catlettsburg, Lancer, Louisa, Betsy Layne, Harold, Drift and field line customers in the Floyd county area.

Columbia Gas System is engaged in a broad, long-term program designed to increase gas supplies. There are no appreciable amounts of additional gas scheduled to be available to the Columbia System until mid-1973 when a reforming plant that will convert petroleum liquids into 88 billion cubic feet of pipeline quality gas annually is scheduled to begin operation at Green Springs, Ohio.

The importation of liquefied natural gas to a terminal at Cove Point, Md., on Chesapeake Bay, is scheduled to start in 1975 and increase in continuing steps through 1977.

Deliveries of gas from the Alaskan North Slope and Canada are anticipated for the late '70's.

Two plants planned by non-affiliates to produce synthetic natural gas located in the eastern part of Columbia's system have been announced. A Columbia affiliate will purchase their output.

Columbia and others are hard at work on the necessary research into the gasification of coal and this may become an economic reality in the 1980's.

Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation is drilling a test well in Mingo County, W. Va., that may go over 17,500 feet deep in the company's search for gas in deeper horizons in the Appalachian area.

State Banking Commissioner Lenvil Hall says he may appeal a recent lower court decision requiring public hearings for approving new bank charters and branch bank locations. Hall said the decision will make it "almost impossible" to approve such applications.

Ewell To Guide Drama at Parks

By LOIS CAMPBELL

Frankfort, Ky.—Tom Ewell, Kentucky-born star of stage, screen and television, quietly returned to his native state some two years ago, taking up residence at the family farm in Daviess county's West Louisville community.

Few Kentuckians were aware of his return, but last week Gov. Wendell Ford called statewide attention to the nationally acclaimed actor by announcing his appointment to a post in the state Department of Parks.

Ford announced that Ewell will be in charge of all theater production activities in the state park system.

"This will be a unique opportunity for the commonwealth to draw on the diversified talents of this world-famous actor, who has so well performed in many roles of comedy and drama," the Governor said.

Ewell, whose most noted performance was in the stage and screen versions of "The Seven Year Itch," has immediate plans to study and evaluate present theatrical activities within the parks system. He will then organize and advise on the production of outdoor dramas, light plays and dinner theaters at these facilities.

A self-labeled environmentalist, Ewell says, "I'm a great parks man. I've visited all of those in Kentucky and most national parks.

"Most of all," Ewell continued, "it's good to be back and involved. . . you know, I never really left Kentucky. I have such a great love for the state that I want to be a part of its dramatic and cultural events."

Ewell's return doesn't mean he has retired from his stage career. He will continue to make cameo screen appearances as well as Kentucky film promotions when time permits.

He and his wife, Marjorie, will probably be spending a great deal of their time in Louisville, Ewell adds, as that city is somewhat a hub for theatrical activities and is centrally located for the statewide travel necessitated by his new job.

Enthusiastic about the challenge and expectations, but not yet ready to make any definite announcements on his coordination of Kentucky parks drama, Ewell presently is devoting his time to studying the situation.

One thing he knows for sure. He belongs here.

And with the wry comical grin that led him to fame, he paraphrases a familiar line: "You can't take the Kentucky out of the boy!"

third-offense liquor possession charge against him was dismissed. He pleaded guilty to each of the other three charges.

James R. Johnson drew a $100 fine on his conviction of drunk driving, and Francis Gordon Rice won an acquittal on the same charge. Patricia Slone was cleared of a shoplifting charge. Grady Goble entered a plea of guilty to a hit-run driving charge and was given a 60-day jail term, but the sentence was probated on condition that he pay the complaining witness, Roger Nelson, $202.74.

Cases dismissed include those of Virgil Wiley (Riley), cold check; Elmer Lafferty, Paul Maynard and Cullen Collins, each for child desertion; Clay Daniels, forgery, and Mander Johnson, knowingly receiving stolen property.

The Second Coming

By WILMA Y

Throughout history great spiritual events have marked every 2000 years, from the creation to the flood, on the Jesus' birth. The present century will finish another 2000 years. Foremost Christian authorities, including Dr. Billy Graham, believe another incident of spiritual magnitude will occur before 2000 A. D. The majority think it will be the return of Christ. For years Dr. Graham has maintained that we are nearing the close of this, the gospel, dispensation, during which God set aside his chosen nation of Israel to deal with the church. Even secular history of Israel should convince skeptics that all scripture is true.

The return of Jesus will be in two distinct phases. The first is known as the secret rapture, or blessed hope. Titus 2:13. Then Jesus will come invisibly, into the air, to sound a trumpet for his own. The dead in Christ who were saved before death will rise from their graves to meet him in mid-air, as he will not touch earth the first trip. Mt. 24:39-44. I Thess. 4:16-17:5:2. Acts 1:11; I Cor. 15:52. Only they and the living saints will hear the trumpet. The latter will be instantly translated and never see death. Mt. 24:39-41. Their traveling speed will far surpass that of the astronauts as they disappear into the air, to meet Christ and their Christian loved ones who have gone on before.

The secret rapture will signal the beginning of the tribulation during which the most horrible atrocities and indescribable calamities ever known on earth will take place, for about seven years. Mt. 24:21-22; Mark 13, Luke 21. At this time, the anti Christ or first beast of Revelation will rule the one-world government, and the second beast, or false prophet, his partner, will control the false church, the one-world apostate church, already in the making! Born-again Christians will NOT pass through the tribulation, though times will grow continuously worse until it starts. Luke 21:36; Rev. 3:10; 4:1; I Thess. 4:16. The Bible contains hundreds of references to both events. Those without chain reference Bibles and Biblical aids for careful study concerning them can buy the novel 666, by Salem Kirban, which vividly describes them, with accurate accompanying scriptures on every page. (Read the scriptures, too.)

No one who has heard the gospel or had a chance to do so can be saved after the rapture. Lost people left on earth for the tribulation will be denied the death they seek. (Rev. 9:5-6.) while God's children join Christ for the wedding feast in heaven. God then again deals with Israel as her foes prepare for final battles. Christ came FOR his saints first, but he will come WITH them at the end of the tribulation. Rev. 19:11-16. The first time he will come near earth. The second time he will come TO earth, landing on Mt. Olivet, to rescue Israel from her last enemies. Zech. 14:1-4. The mountain where he descends will split in twain. Several in this county heard the Rev. Lee Caudill of the Lancer Baptist Chapel tell that Holiday Inn, Inc., bought land for a new motel on the mount of olives a few years past, and that about two years ago, their representative visited the location to select the exact site for the motel in the Holy Land, to find that a distinct cleavage is already appearing there.

This is but one of many indications that God may be writing finis to the period of grace in which we now live, that he must be preparing to ring down the curtain on this earthly stage, for only God himself knows the day and hour set for his Son's return. Mt. 24:36, 44. But verses 32 and 33 say the end is near when summer is nigh, when the fig tree, (nation Israel) is putting forth leaves. After being scattered for centuries, Israel has been a nation again for more than twenty years.

Ashland College Wins Title In Damp Mountain Dew Fest

Between showers of "dew" such as usually attend the event, the eighth annual Mountain Dew Festival was held at Prestonsburg Community College, April 13-15, and Ashland Community College won the Little Brown Jug which is awarded annually to the school amassing the greatest number of points in the various types of competition.

Students from Ashland placed first in five events, second in nine and three in three. Miss Cindy Forbes, a student at Lexington Technical Institute, was crowned Mountain Dew Queen. First runnerup was Miss Carol Elam, of Ashland Community College. Miss Judy Allen, of Elizabethtown Community College, was second runnerup and also the festival's Miss Congeniality. Elizabethtown Community College finished in second place and was well represented throughout the festival. In third place was Alice Lloyd College, which placed four basketball players on the all-tournament basketball team. The remaining schools in the order of their standings were: Prestonsburg Community College, fourth; Somerset Community College and Jefferson Community College, tied for fifth; Lexington Technical Institute, seventh; Maysville Community College and Wood Technical School at Quicksand, tied for eighth place, and Hazard Community College tenth. Lees Junior College, Southeast Community College, and Southern West Virginia Community College failed to score any points.

LETTERS To the Editor

As a former Floyd countian who still calls Maytown home, I would like to congratulate you on an excellent article in your April 6th issue.

I have read with great satisfaction the success of Ray Halbert and think Floyd county should be very proud of him. However, this is not the first successful product Ray has produced, or is it his first successful company.

You raised some very interesting questions in your article "Local Boy Makes Good—elsewhere". I think Mr. Halbert should answer your questions and I'm sending him a copy of this letter in hopes that he will. If he does answer, he will probably inform you that he was shown the site where American Standard is now located by another former Floyd countian who was interested in moving a small manufacturing firm to Floyd county.

Would you believe that there was not even a sign on the property advising these men where they could obtain more information on the property? One of the men wrote the Secretary of State requesting information on Eastern Kentucky manufacturing sites, and this grand lady, who was so interested in the development of Eastern Kentucky, forwarded the letter to the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce in Louisville. Needless to say, the interest was not there.

Lack of information and interest may not be the reason Mr. Halbert was not tempted to come back home, but it is an excellent reason for out of staters not to locate there.

THE LITTLE GRAVELLY LAWN TRACTOR

THAT COULD—AND DID!

A Gravelly 8 hp Lawn Tractor traveled from Washington, D.C. to New York's Central Park (mowing a lot of grass on the way)—306 measured miles. Repairs—one flat tire.

Gravelly 408 8 hp. with 34" Rotary Mower

When you think about buying a lawn tractor—ask yourself how long it would take to put 306 miles on a tractor around your yard. Put your money into the one that will last—and has proved it. Attachments for mowing, snow removal, hauling. Electric start. Let us show you why Gravelly could—and did—and will.

We maintain a complete repair shop, with over $4,000 parts inventory.

PCC Player Named To All-Conference

It was announced this week by Paul Davidson, president of the Appalachian Highlands Athletic Conference, that Prestonsburg Community College sophomore, James Wade Stewart, has been placed on the all-conference basketball team.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stewart, of Langley, Stewart is a graduate of Maytown high school. He has played on the Prestonsburg Community College team for the past two seasons, and this year averaged 19.2 points and 9 rebounds per game. His best game of the year was against St. Catherine College, of Springfield, Ky., when he scored 32 points and pulled down 16 rebounds.

Stewart was also recently named to the Mountain Dew Festival all-tournament squad.

TO OBSERVE 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Blanton, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary, May 11. Mrs. Blanton is the former Josie Hunt. The couple has eight children, of whom three survive. They are Mrs. Andy Case, of Collins, Ohio, Mrs. Carl Goble, of Norwalk, Ohio, and Billie Blanton, of Rochester, Ohio. The children will observe open house for their parents on May 13 from 2 till 5 p.m. Friends and relatives are invited.

Tackett To Play With GW Net Team

Clyde Tackett, a 6-foot-4, 175-pounder from Harold, has accepted a basketball grant-in-aid to attend George Washington University, Washington, D. C., next fall, according to GW head coach, Carl Slone.

Tackett, who averaged 17 points and 14 rebounds this year on a 32-4 team, was an all-district and all-regional selection and was named the most valuable player in the Floyd County Conference tournament. He attended Betsy Layne high school.

"Clyde is an exceptional jumper and shooter who played on a very well-balanced team," Coach Slone said. "He is a fast-breaking type of player who can play either guard or forward, and he will blend in nicely with the players we have here now. I'm extremely delighted that Clyde has decided to continue his education and basketball career at GW," said Slone.

Tackett will join four other Kentuckians at GW next year: Pat Tallent, a sophomore, and seniors Tom Stewart and Randy Click, all from Langley, and freshman coach Bob Tallent, also from Langley.

A University of Kentucky agricultural specialist says recent floods have damaged many tobacco plant beds, which could cause a "severe shortage of plants this spring."

Toyota Corolla 1200

The cost is underwhelming.
$1956

The price of the Corolla 1200 speaks for itself. Loud and clear.

But don't think that low price means sacrifice. Not when the Corolla 1200 offers you standard equipment like vinyl interior. Nylon carpeting. Fully reclining bucket seats. Padded dash. Whitewall tires. Front discbrakes. And so on.

In short: very nice. Very economy car.

LOSING HAIR? Don't Put It Off Until It's All Off! National's Hair Consultant In Pikeville, Thursday, May 4 WILL EXPLAIN HAIR PROBLEMS FREE

FREE CONSULTATION
Just take a few minutes of your time on THURSDAY, MAY 4 and go to the LANDMARK MOTEL, PIKEVILLE between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the desk clerk for F. W. DANGLER'S room number, or call for appointment. There is no charge or obligation . . . all consultations are private, you will not be embarrassed in any way.

GUARANTEED
If you are accepted for treatment, you will be given a written guarantee on a pro-rated basis from beginning to end. If you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss. Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are dead you are beyond help. If you still have hair on the top of your head, don't put it off until it's all off. It doesn't make sense for a man to let himself go bald, certainly not without seeing a National Hair and Scalp Consultant to see if we can help you.

CAN'T HELP
Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. National's Hair Consultant cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

You Know All This . . . But Ask Yourself Why This Is True.

If you study the facts, you'll have to agree that labor unions in American shoe factories have made it that way.

BECAUSE OF UNIONS OF WORKING MEN AND WOMEN, THE SWEATSHOP HAS BEEN ALL BUT WIPED OUT . . . THE EIGHT HOUR DAY IS THE RULE, THE 40 HOUR WEEK . . . WITH OVERTIME FOR ANYTHING LONGER . . . IS COMMON. CHILDREN IN AMERICA PLAY; GO TO SCHOOL; DON'T WORK IN FACTORIES. AMERICAN KIDS DON'T COMPETE AT LOW WAGES WITH ADULT MEN AND WOMEN WHO MUST WORK FOR A LIVING.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt, the "Father of Social Security," said, "If I were a working man, my first move would be to join a union," it was these very things he had in mind. He knew that unions are good for working people. MILLIONS OF SUCH MEN AND WOMEN KNOW THAT FOR THEMSELVES

Right now you do not have your own union in Prestonsburg. But you enjoy the conditions you have in your factory only because other shoeworkers, through their unions, have been setting the pattern for you. Until you have your own union you will never quite catch up with union shop conditions. And that's a fact!

AND . . . Speaking of your own union right here in Prestonsburg, you might be pleasantly surprised to see what good company you'll be in as members of your own union. Just take a look at the list of union members in the left hand column of this page to learn of only a few of those who know that unions are good for them.

Yes, brother and sister shoeworkers, unions are a good part of American life. For its own reasons, your company tries hard to make you believe otherwise. Some of the letters and literature you've been getting during your organizing campaign in Prestonsburg have been pretty wild . . . most of it twisted and untrue. But your company knows that it is twisting the facts to suit its own purpose, that of turning you against what is best for you.

A FACT THAT CANNOT BE TWISTED IS THAT LABOR UNIONS ARE GOOD FOR WORKING MEN AND WOMEN SHOEWORKERS TO BELONG TO. THERE'S JUST TOO MUCH EVIDENCE TO SUPPORT THE TRUTH OF THIS STATEMENT.

Do You Believe That All The Folks Named In The Column On The Left Hand Side Are Members Of Their Own Unions As The Result Of Trickery? Or, Will You Accept The Fact That They All Joined Their Own Unions Because Being Union Members IS GOOD FOR THEM?

UNION ELECTION DAY IS COMING UP ON APRIL 27th. Remember that you've lost some elections in the past. But, remember, too, that it's never too late to correct this. After, all, shoeworkers in every one of the Brown Shoe Company factories are now union members . . . and THEY LOST SOME OF THEIR ELECTIONS at first, and WON THEM next time around. NOW IT'S YOUR TURN TO WIN YOUR ELECTION in PRESTONSBURG.

As Your Own Union You Will Make The Decisions
On Dues . . . On Officers . . . On Negotiations . . . On Grievances . . . On Working Conditions . . . On Union Action.

Class Led School in Cancer Drive

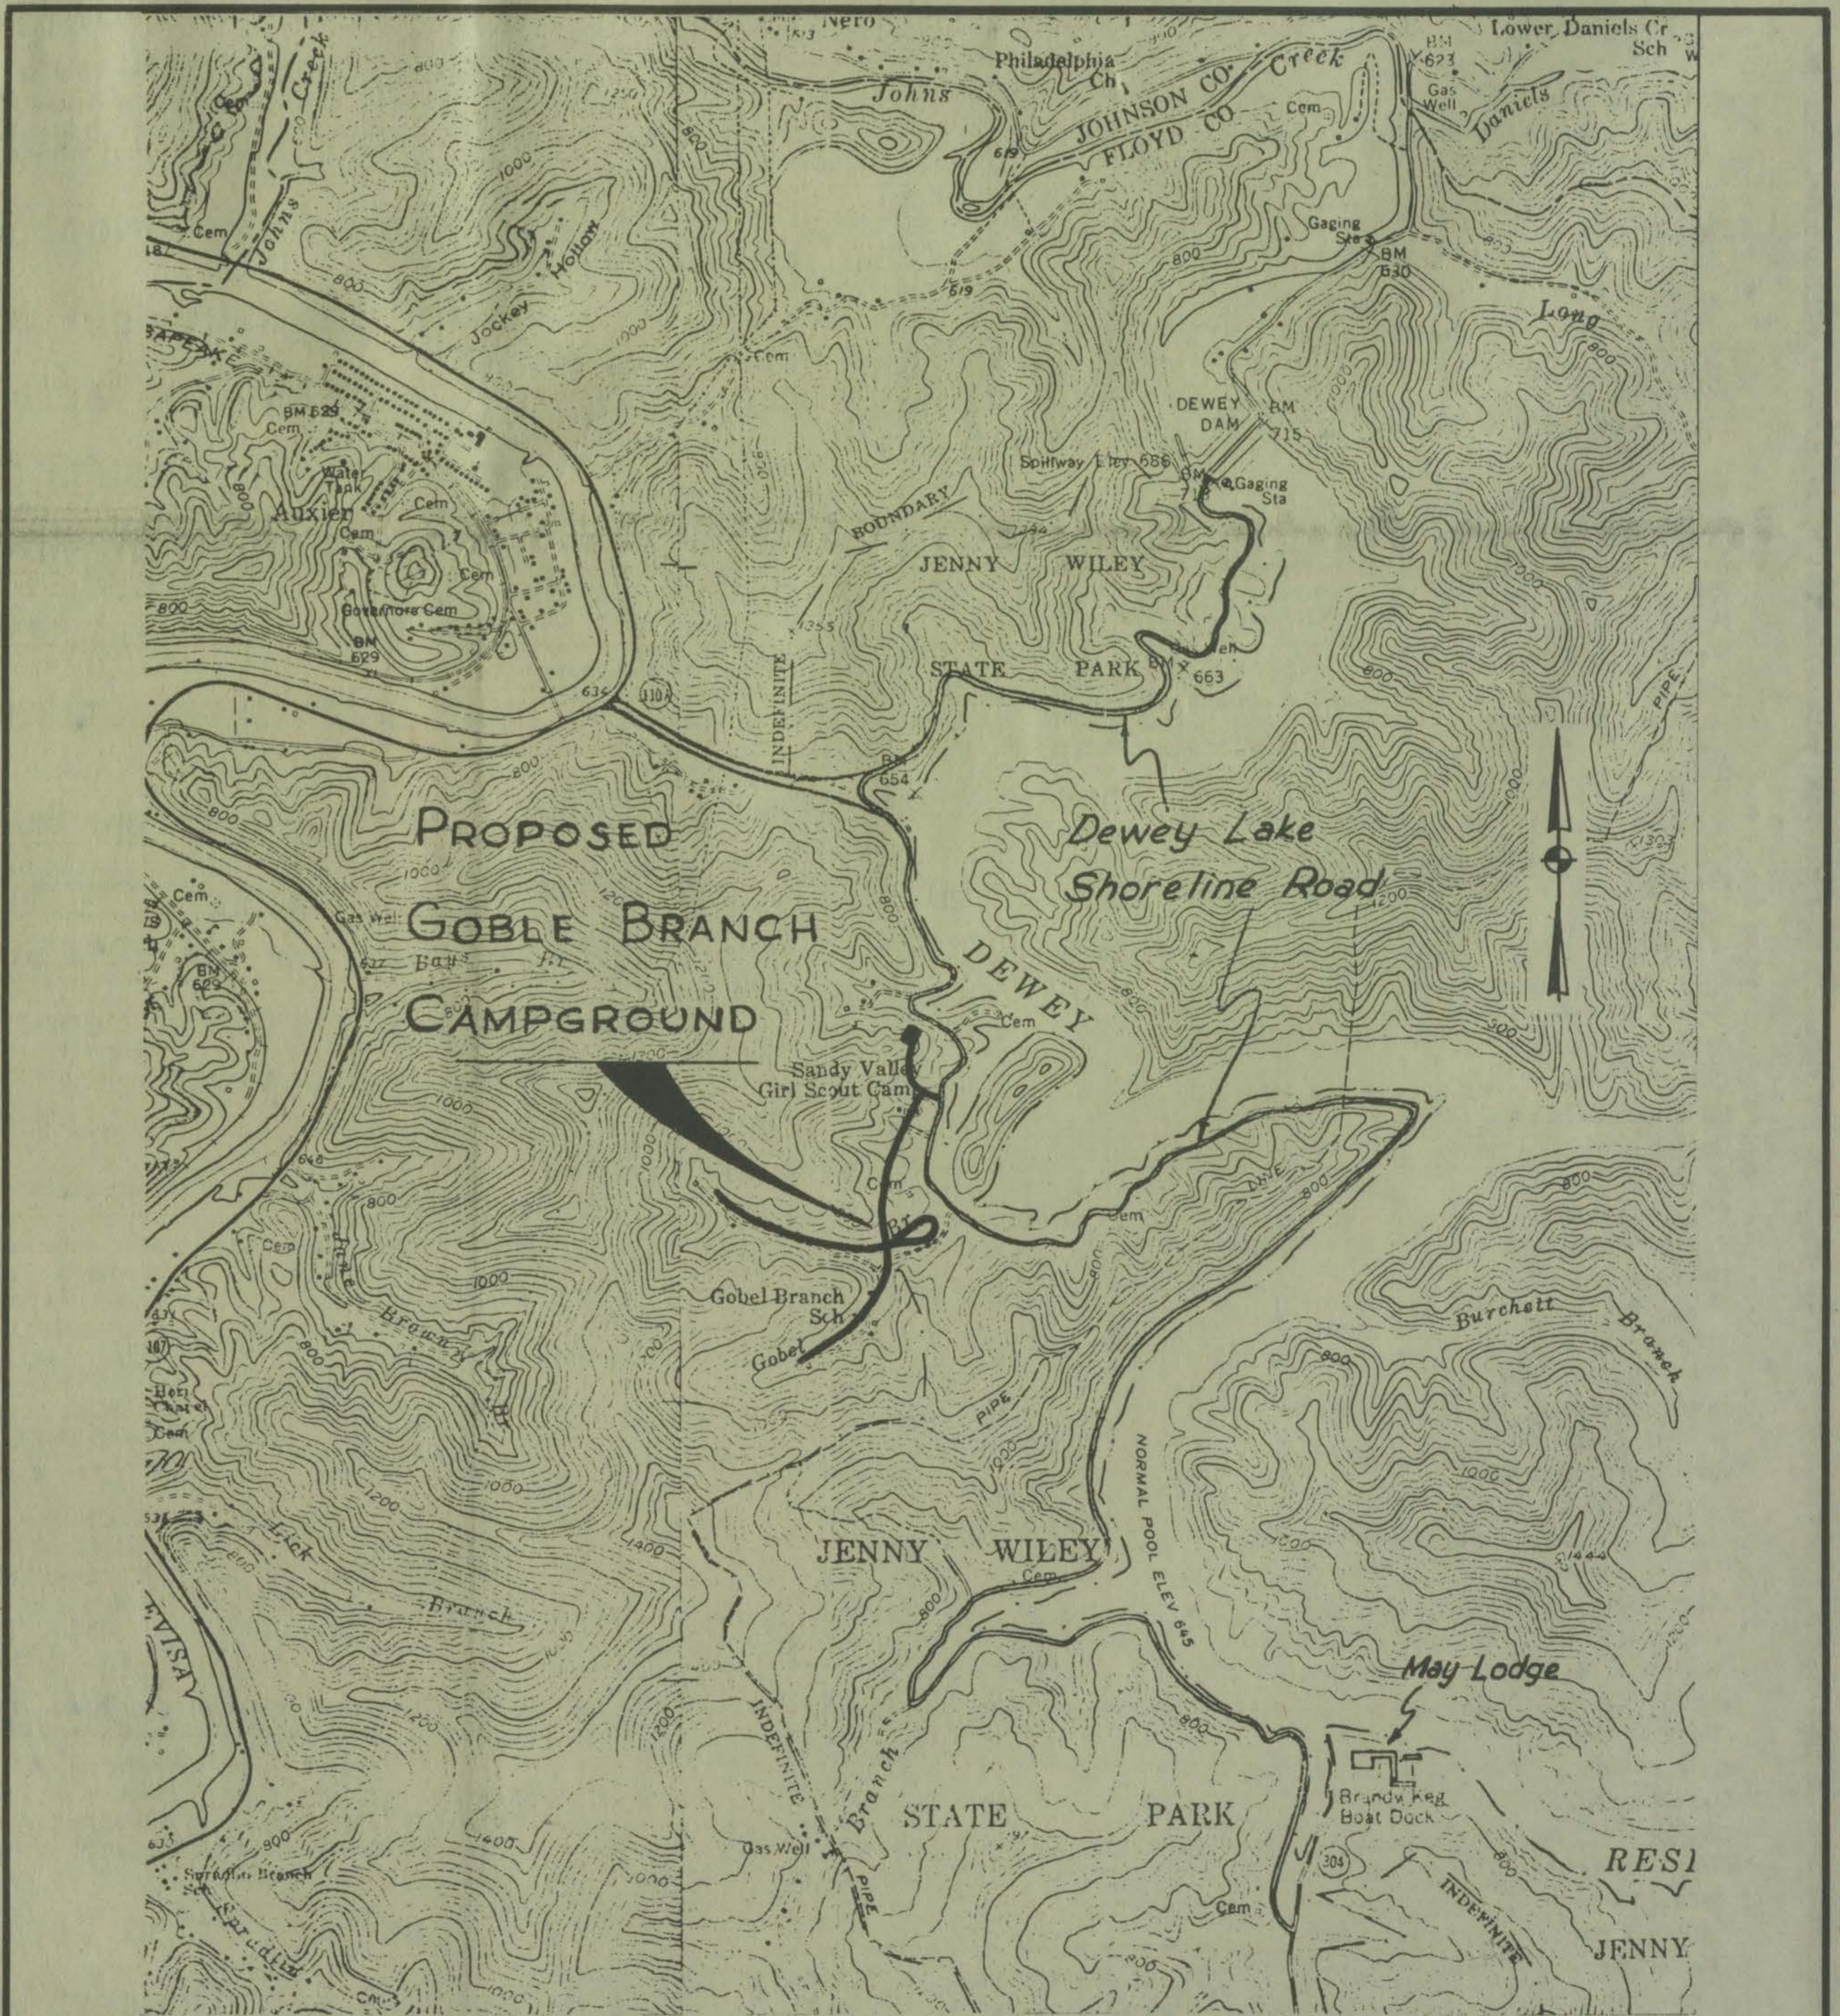

Carl Horne's eighth grade class of the Auxier elementary school (here pictured) was tops during the school's Cancer Crusade fund-raising drive. The school netted a total of $304.34. Theme of the school's campaign was, "Send a mouse to college." It was pointed out that the cost of each mouse used in research is 51 cents. James Carter, II, county crusade chairman for the American Cancer Society, expressed his thanks to the school. "Our goal this year," he said, "is $1,000. The efforts of the youngsters in the Auxier school have contributed greatly toward our meeting this quota."

LUNCHEON GUESTS
Mrs. Grace L. Burke and Mrs. Joe Buchanan entertained to luncheon at their home last Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Bittman, of New York, formerly of Prestonsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Gus Kalos. The Bittmans were concert artists at the Prestonsburg Community College, the previous evening.

JOSEPH WINS DAILY DOUBLE
Tom Joseph, Prestonsburg native, recently became the first jockey ever to win both ends of the daily double at Hazel Park, Mich. The winning rides on April 10 paid $265.40, and were the first races he had ridden in since returning to the track from a Easter vacation visit here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Joseph.

Telephone Survey Of State Hunting

Frankfort, Ky., April 18—"Is there a hunter in the house?" That's the telephone question for 3,000 Kentucky households between April 25 and May 10.

The calls will be from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' annual telephone survey, in an effort to determine how much game was harvested by Kentucky hunters during last year's hunting season.

If yours is one of the 3,000 households contacted by phone, the caller, a woman, will ask if there is a hunter in your household. If there isn't, the caller will thank you and hang up. If there is a hunter, however, she'll request that you cooperate with the Department by filling out a brief questionnaire about the number of hunting trips, and about kinds and numbers of game harvested.

The questionnaires will be mailed from the Game Management Division, according to Carl Kays the wildlife biologist in charge of the project. The information gathered in this seventh annual survey will be used by biologists in recommending lengths of future hunting seasons and bag and possession limits.

All the calls in the survey will be made between 5 and 9 p.m. And all calls will originate from the Frankfort Office on a Wide Area Telephone Service (WATS) line.

So, if you receive a phone call some evening between April 25 and May 10 and the caller asks "Is there a hunter in your household?"—it's no prank.

CARD OF THANKS
We would like to take this opportunity, to thank the third floor nurses of the Prestonsburg General Hospital and Dr. James D. Adams and Dr. Jurich for their efficiency and kindness in the illness of our mother, Anna Calhoun DeRossett, and to our many friends who contributed flowers and food upon her passing and to anyone that helped in any way. We would also thank the Floyd Funeral Home for its efficient services and the Rev. Clifford Austin, the choir of the Highland Free Will Baptist Church for their kind and consoling words.

BUILDING BLOCKS FROM MOUNTAIN ROCKS

Stonemasonry, a pioneer skill almost lost and seldom practiced today, is being preserved through a job program at Kingdom Come State Park. The park is employing local stonemasons to build walks, overlooks and retaining walls in the age-old style. At left above, Hence Halcomb watches as Robert Hensley drives rock points to split a slab of mountain sandstone. At right they pry apart the freshly split sections which will be cut into blocks. The blocks then are carefully "faced" by Alfred Shepherd, left, before being laid. The work is slow, hard and tedious but the results are ruggedly beautiful like the retaining wall below.

Morehead State's Board of Regents

The Morehead State University Board of Regents recently assembled for an official portrait. Seated, from left, are B. F. Reed, of Drift; Dr. Lyman Ginger, state school superintendent and the board chairman; Dr. W. H. Cartmell, of Maysville, and Jerry F. Howell, of Jackson. Standing are Mike Mayhew, of Morehead, the student regent; Dr. M. E. Pryor, the faculty regent; Dr. Adron Doran, MSU president; Lloyd Cassity, of Ashland; Cloyd McDowell, of Harlan, and Charles D. Wheeler, of Ashland.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

In my collection from the Mammoth Cave area I have dozens of folk beliefs and sayings about animals. Nearly all of them are practically universal in use in America, especially in the farm areas. And even the people of the cities somehow cling to them long after they have broken connections with rural life. Many of the comparisons, for example, are probably as old as the actual domestication of animals. No doubt the most ancient owners of horses and dogs and cats and sheep and goats and various kinds of domesticated fowls devised comparisons to show how some human conduct was no better or maybe much worse than the actions of animals.

The dog, man's best friend, comes in for a whole group of comparisons, many of them complimentary, and others the opposite. You can be as faithful as a dog, as friendly as a puppy, as smart as a dog; you can also be sneaky, dirty, and untrustworthy. Of course, there is always the fact that there are two distinct dogs anyway: your dog and my dog. Mine is the good dog, the one that is smarter than most people; he can almost talk and understand everything I say to him. Your dog is the underhanded one, the robber dog, the bully. Sayings about the dog include all sorts of weather suggestions, all sorts of good and bad luck ideas, all sorts of prophecies of what is to be. Since dogs hear above our level of hearing, they have often been regarded as capable of hearing spirits. When a dog suddenly arouses from sleep and barks vociferously and presents a bushy appearance with his tail and even his whole body, lots of people that are otherwise not superstitious feel that Fido or Sport has heard things that portend disaster or worse. A dog howling on a cold, cold night sets up some primitive feelings in many people; just what is he trying to say, for his own sake or to warn us? Jack London's portrayal of the howling of the sled dogs in the arctic night awakens in many of us some very primitive feelings or memories. Though the dog has been domesticated so long that he seems to have always been a tame animal, occasionally he reveals that, with all his modern dogginess, he is basically a wild wolf, just like Buck in THE CALL OF THE WILD.

Horses and mules seem to have been born as adjuncts of moral teaching. Most of the virtues belong to the horse; the mule gets credit for most of the general cussedness. Sense like a mule is one of the few complimentary similes dealing with the animals. Usually stubbornness is associated with the critter or a sort of comic hostility to the rest of creation; some moralists even attribute this to the mule's somewhat unnatural origin; maybe the brute is taking out on the rest of creation some of his spite at having been born a mule to begin with. But the noble horse, full of horse sense and grace and dignity, becomes almost an ideal to strive for rather than a four-legged brute. Some wag has suggested that a typical Kentucky Colonel, who might resent bitterly any suggestion that he shares with monkeys some remote ancestors, would accept evolution if it could be proved that man, Suh, has come down a long line of descent from the noble hoss.

Cows get most of the complimentary similes; bulls and steers and oxen have to be content with the slurs and scorns. Everything that is riotous and loud is associated with a bull; the ox may be patient but he is stubborn and hard to teach. The cow is almost deified as the symbol of protection and food; the ancient Egyptians were not the only people who felt this animal was sacred; witness the present-day Hindus, who protect the cow against all dangers, even if they suffer thereby. And the old-fashioned farm was certainly a place where the old family nag, Old Maud, and the family cow, Old Red, somehow shared the honors of being man's friends and helpers, his symbols of having possession of the earth.

CAPITOL AVENUE--This somewhat placid Sunday morning scene greeted residents of South Frankfort near the State Capitol as Kentucky River flooding necessitated evacuation of more than 125 families. Floodwaters reached 42 feet before cresting causing Gov. Wendell Ford to declare Monday an emergency holiday for state employes and allowing clean-up crews to begin removing debris from affected areas. (Steve Mitchell Photo)

DUST CHECK--Bob Stephens, state air pollution investigator, examines the dust collection unit on this air pollution monitor, located at a federal fish hatchery near Frankfort. This station, situated in a relatively pollution-free area, is used as a control in Kentucky's air monitoring network since its readings are close to optimum levels. (Henry Craig Photo)

Paint Creek Dam Runs Into Opposition from Morgan Co.

(In The Herald-Dispatch)
 Paint Creek residents in Eastern Morgan county and western Johnson county are circulating petitions protesting the proposed Paintsville Reservoir and Dam on Paint Creek.
 Though construction plans on the reservoir were recently ordered stopped, some area residents feel the halt is merely a postponement and are continuing efforts to stop construction altogether.
 At least 4,600 acres needed for the reservoir are in eastern Morgan county. County Judge Gene Allen said the county's tax base loss would be more than $500,000. Almost 14,000 acres will be acquired for the 20-mile-long lake that will displace 200 families in the two counties. About 45 of the families are in Morgan.
 A hearing is set at Johnson Central high school in Paintsville April 27 when plans for acquisition will be explained by Huntington district U. S. Engineers.

The delay to the project came when it was learned a new ruling by the engineers required long-term cost share contracts with the state. State attorneys say such agreements are contrary to the Kentucky constitution.
 Congressman Carl D. Perkins, D-7th District, is supporting the dam along with many Johnson countians who want the reservoir for flood control.
 Judge Allen is opposing the dam on the grounds that Morgan county will lose almost one-fifth of its tax evaluation to two projects—the one on Paint Creek and Cave Run Reservoir which will be completed in 1973—plus $400,000 due to the Homestead Exemption Act.
 Paint Creek residents in Morgan and Johnson counties will present the petitions protesting construction of the dam at the April 27, hearing.
 The hearing in Paintsville is necessary to comply with federal law before final construction plans are drawn and land is acquired.
 Another hearing is scheduled Saturday at 10 a. at the Morgan county courthouse to request a raise in the seasonal pool level of Cave Run Reservoir.
 Dr. Alex Spencer, president of the Cave Run Association, will preside at the meeting and officially present the request to the Louisville district U. S. Engineers. Dr. Spencer said Morgan will not receive the benefits of tourism and industrial development unless the pool level is raised.
 The water level would not be sufficient to create a pool here except when the Licking River has flood-type rainfall.

Outboard Group, PTA Sign Regatta Pact

Speedboat K-34, pictured in a S-100 class race, is one of the entrants in the regatta scheduled next summer at Dewey Lake. The driver is W. S. Holland, member of the Johnny Cash band, "the Tennessee Three."

Claude Fox, executive director of the National Outboard Association last Saturday awarded to the Prestonsburg elementary Parent-Teacher Association and Jenny Wiley State Park the northern championship speedboat races which are expected to attract around 200 members of the National Outboard Association as participants.
 Last year, 44 members of the association performed at Dewey Lake before an estimated crowd of 36,500 from Kentucky and other states. This year, because of the number of members of the National Outboard Association participating and the more favorable dates, an estimated 100,000 people are expected.
 Park Ranger Capt. A. J. Reed and Kentucky State Police Capt. Billy Lykins assured N. O. A. officials that the traffic problems experienced last year will be solved.
 The speedboat regatta at Dewey Lake will be the first major race in the history of the National Outboard Association to be sponsored by a Parent-Teacher Association.
 Park Superintendent John Combs expressed his satisfaction with the arrangements being made for the regatta.
 The National Outboard Association was represented at Saturday's meeting at May Lodge by Claude Fox, executive director; Dee Mauk, championship referee, and Bill Potts, championship starter.

 Representing Mrs. Rose Marie Collins, Prestonsburg elementary PTA president, were Mrs. Carol Holland, PTA vice-president and Regatta Reservation chairman, and Mrs. Jan Chaffin, PTA Ways and Means chairman. Also attending were John Combs, park superintendent; Barry Storm, park recreation director, and chairman of the N. O. A. championship; Dean Murray, Dewey Dam superintendent, U. S. Corps of Engineers; Ken Maderis, Kentucky Division of Boating; Capt. A. J. Reed, park ranger, Bill Pettrey, of the Dewey Lake Fish and Game Club; "Bud" Alexander, Floyd County Rescue Squad; Earl Justice, president, Big Sandy Motors, Pikeville; Curtis Clark, representative of the Prestonsburg Chamber of Commerce; Bud Dickerson, Radio Station WPRT, Prestonsburg, and Dave Cleavenger, WSAZ Television, Huntington, West Virginia.
 Information about the regatta may be procured from Barry Storm, recreation director, Jenny Wiley State Park, 606-886-2711 or 606-886-9271 or Mrs. Rose Marie Collins, president, Prestonsburg Elementary Parent Teacher Association, 606-886-2109 or 606-886-2961.

Unit Task Force On Reading Meets With Floyd Group

The Unit Task Force planning the Right to Read Program at Clark elementary school has completed another planning session with Mrs. Dixie Fried from the Office of Education's technical assistance team.
 The two-day planning session, held at May Lodge April 21 and 22, was to continue the work already begun by the Clark school personnel. So far, the needs assessment of the school has been completed, and the group is now working on ways to meet objectives set up as a result of the findings in the assessment study.

The new reading program will stress diagnosis and prescription type approaches that will enable each child to do work suited to himself, rather than the group. Reading will be stressed at all times, and not only in reading classes. Ways to improve the child's attitude toward himself and his school will also become a very important part of the program. The planning group stressed that more active parent involvement in the school program will help determine the success of it, and they ask that all parents take an active interest in their child's school work.
 Attending the planning session, in addition to Mrs. Fried, were Woodrow Allen, Floyd county schools director of instruction; John K. Pitts, principal of Clark school; Elsie Stephens, Title I reading consultant; Betsy Mynhier, state reading supervisor; Mildred Whitaker, Pauline Hicks and Nadine Hicks, teachers at Clark; Juanita Ousley and Bernice Shuff, representing parents of Clark school.

The Court of Appeals rejected a motion by the attorney general's office for an injunction to prevent higher collections by South Central Bell Telephone Co. under a recently ganted $25.5-million rate increase. The high court upheld a lower court ruling which said the interim increase is not appealable.

Federal investments in manpower programs are expected to increase by $849 million or 20 percent (to a total of $5.1 billion) in fiscal 1973. In the past decade, manpower outlays have risen by $4.8 billion. The Department of Labor will account for $3.4 billion or 66 percent of the total manpower expenditures in fiscal 1973.

VS. NOTICE OF SALE
CR8687

Paul Thurman Williams, Nora Lee Williams, Dianna Williams, and the First National Bank, Defts.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the April 7th term, 1972 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 15th day of May, 1972 at 10 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd circuit court, upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

That certain tract of land, lying and being on the waters of the Left Fork of Middle Creek in Floyd County, Kentucky, and being the same land conveyed John C. Williams and Mae Orna Williams by Moss Dempsey on October 6, 1962, as recorded in Deed Book 181, page 5 and by Nora Dempsey on May 18, 1967, as recorded in Deed Book 166, Pg. 351, and being more particularly described as follows, viz:

Beginning at State Road at twin Locust trees running up hill (300) Three Hundred feet; thence around hill to honey locust tree; thence down hill to locust post at State Road; thence up State Road line to the beginning.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $4,084.60 with interest thereon at 6 per cent annually from the 25th day of December 1971 until satisfied and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising for this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 20th day of April, 1972.

School Leaders Laud Title I Benefits

Fourth-grader Carl Blair selects a book from the many instructional materials available to his reading class. Carl is one of 2,100 Floyd county students who receive concentrated instruction in reading as part of the district's Title I program. Participation in this and other Title I programs is based on educational—not economic—need. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Blair.

Carolyn Ousley practices her multiplication tables on a teletypewriter located at Prestonsburg elementary school. Carolyn is one of 185 Floyd county students who receive computer-assisted instruction as part of the Title I program. Preliminary data show CAI students doubling normal academic progress, according to Title I Director Ray Brackett. A sixth-grader, Carolyn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Estill Ousley.

"Title I funds have been a Godsend to our educationally deprived young people."

The speaker is Supt. Charles Clark, of the Floyd county schools, and he uses only superlatives in describing the importance of Title I funds in the school program. Title I is the section of the 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) which provides funds for school districts having a high concentration of children from low income families. According to Floyd County Title I Director Ray Brackett, 62.2 percent of the district's school population comes from low income families. "Our present grant of $889,817 is the third largest Title I grant in Kentucky," Mr. Brackett added. How are the funds being used? They provide vital supplementary services, including the following:

—Forty special reading teachers serving 2,100 elementary children and 375 high school children in 17 elementary and five high schools.

—Six physical education teachers serving 3,193 children in eight elementary schools.

—Nine guidance counselors serving 3,893 elementary children in 10 schools.

—Three art teachers serving 1,499 children in three elementary schools.

—Seven librarians serving 3,322 children in 11 elementary schools.

—Two registered nurses who serve 2,500 children.

—Four social workers serving 5,000 children.

—Three special education teachers for 50 retarded children.

—Computer-assisted instruction (CAI) in math, provided to 185 children.

—Computer-assisted instruction (CAI) in math, provided to 185 children.

—Medical and psychological services.

"These services could not be possible without Title I funding," Mr. Clark stresses.

The major thrust of the local Title I effort has been to improve reading achievement. According to Clark, "In preparation for the use of Title I funds, our school administration conducted a grass roots survey to determine the greatest need of our deprived young people. Our most pressing need was determined to be in the area of reading, so our group put this need in top priority."

By using federal funds provided through Title I, the Floyd county district was able to drastically reduce the size of reading classes, provide teachers with additional training, and provide a quantity of new, up-to-date instructional materials, supplies and equipment.

Thirty-five elementary teachers each serve five reading classes of 12 children daily, and five high school teachers each serve five classes of 15 children daily. Each teacher is assisted by an aide. The classes contain those students who have the greatest deficiency in reading.

According to Mr. Brackett, "At the beginning of school year 1970-71, our aim was for the group to average at least seven months achievement in vocabulary and reading comprehension. And year end standardized testing results show the average student gain in reading to be precisely seven months. We feel that the program is doing its job."

A highly innovative educational program made possible through Title I is computer-assisted instruction. Developed by the Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corporation through ESEA Title III funds, CAI utilizes a computer in Ashland to transmit computerized math and reading lessons to some 3,800 school children throughout the region.

In this program, the child physically operates a teletypewriter located in his school for a brief period each day. His teacher determines the lessons he is to receive, and the computer constantly varies the lesson difficulty, based on his performance.

In the 2½ months during which CAI operated in the Floyd county schools last spring, students doubled normal progress with a gain of five months in math, according to Mr. Brackett. Supt. Clark pointed out that the participating students also experienced an unexplained spurt in reading skills, possibly due to improved motivation or ability to concentrate.

"This is a very effective educational tool," he said. "The students really enjoy working with the teletypewriter."

According to Clark, a common misconception concerning Title I is the idea that a child must be from a poor family in order to participate in a Title I program. "This is just not true," he stressed.

"The amount of Title I funds received by a school district is based on the number of school-age children in the district whose families earn less than $2,000 per year," he went on. "However, poverty is not a factor in determining which children will receive Title services."

"After determining the amount of Title I funds it is due, the school district conducts a needs assessment, determines educational priorities, and submits a proposal outlining its plans to the State Department of Education," Mr. Clark continued. "Any child who is performing at least one year below grade level in the area to be served by the Title I program is eligible to participate."

Clark also pointed out that the Title I programs are carefully regulated and monitored by the State Department and the U. S. Office of Education. In fact, Floyd county is one of the few Kentucky school districts which have undergone a federal audit.

The attitude of Supt. Clark and the Floyd county schools staff toward the Title I program seems to be one of gratitude—gratitude for the chance to provide their youngsters with educational opportunities which are not possible through local and state funds.

And the superintendent summarized, "Through additional materials, guidance, more library facilities, and more teacher individual attention, these special services are contributing to bringing our educationally deprived young people into the mainstream of a more dynamic learning experience."

SERGEANT RECOGNIZED

OKINAWA, Ryukyu Islands—U. S. Air Force Staff Sgt. Donald L. Foote, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orval G. Foote, Thrasher's Trailer Court, Horseheads, N. Y., has been recognized for helping the 376th Field Maintenance Squadron earn honors as the best of its kind in the Strategic Air Command for 1971.

Sergeant Foote is a survival equipment technician with the squadron at Kadena AB, Okinawa. The 376th outclassed all other field maintenance units in the command to win the annual honor.

His wife, Mary, is the daughter of Mrs. Bessie Parsons, of Allen, Ky.

'71 Travel Spending
Up to $585 Million

Gov. Wendell Ford told the annual Kentucky Travel Conference recently that in-state and out-of-state tourists spent some $585 million in Kentucky last year.

The figure represented a $43 million increase over 1970.

Governor Ford said some 35 million out-of-state visitors came to Kentucky in 1971, spending $426 million and providing $46 million in direct revenue to the state treasury.

Tourism is one of Kentucky's most successful industries, he noted, and is growing faster than the state's retail businesses.

"But merchants who cater to travelers are not the only ones who profit from the tourist trade," he said. "Ninety cents out of each tourist dollar is passed on to other concerns and individuals for payrolls, rents, supplies, taxes and other operating expenses, with lesser amounts going to other recipients."

Of the 922,000 participants in manpower programs at the end of fiscal year 1971, 92 percent were disadvantaged, 55 percent were members of minority races (excluding the Spanish surnamed), and 76 percent were under 22 years of age.

CONTRACT AWARDED

The Manpower Administration has awarded a $1,473,000 contract to Graflex, Inc., a subsidiary of the Singer Company, for the operation of a Residential Manpower Center in San Jose, California. The center, located near the San Jose State College campus, will provide job training and remedial education for low-income youth, aged 16 through 21 years.

Clipper Ship Captain Introduced First Soybeans To United States

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

Lexington, Ky.—In 1800 when an unidentified American sea captain preparing to set sail for home from the Orient included some soybeans in his ship stores, he unwittingly made a vast contribution to the future welfare of his nation. Who first planted these beans in the United States after they were unloaded is not known, but an old encyclopedia published in Philadelphia about four years later listed the soybean as being adapted to Pennsylvania and "well worthy of cultivation here."

The truth of that statement is now to be seen in the fact that more than 42 million acres of soybeans are now grown annually in this country, chiefly for stock feed and edible oil. Other uses include flour for bakery and meat products and materials for the making of plastics. Foam fire-fighting materials are also made from soybeans. Actually, the potentialities of the soybean seem unlimited and its nutritional value as a food for humans is said to be more than that of meat.

A native of southeastern Asia, the soybean has a history of cultivation that goes back for more than 5,000 years. It is puzzling, indeed, that it was so late becoming established in the West.

The first written record about the soybean comes from an old Chinese

"Materia Medica" written about 2800 B. C. There is, however, no known record of it in a European language older than 1712 A. D., when a German traveler reported finding it in Japan. But as the saying goes, "better late than never," and the valuable properties of this plant are becoming more and more appreciated as the years go by.

What a lot of people, especially home gardeners, do not know is that there are several vegetable varieties of soybeans and have been eaten as such by Orientals for at least 1,500 years. In eating quality, these varieties are far superior to the field types which are not suited at all for use as fresh vegetables.

Seed catalogs now list several varieties such as the "Kanrich," "Disoy" and others suitable for fresh use and for canning, drying, and freezing. They take a few weeks longer to mature than most other kinds of garden beans, but cultural practices are similar. And recommendations for planting and growing field soybeans are also applicable to the garden varieties.

The seeds of the soybean are a highly concentrated food exceedingly rich in oil and protein, and while the yields may not appear as great as those of many other garden beans, the true food value is as large or larger. The flavor is distinct and the texture and taste is smooth and buttery. Like with celery, okra, turnips, and other "new" foods, the soybeans may require repeated trials to appreciate its somewhat unique goodness.

Gardeners wishing to include a planting of edible soybeans in their vegetable plots this spring should consult their seed catalogs, local experts, or county Extension agent for advice on how to plant and grow this ancient "new" vegetable—a plant gift from China which has meant so much to America.

State Deadline Set For Stone Quarries

The Kentucky Air Pollution Control Commission has ordered 14 stone quarries and one asphalt plant to apply for operating permits by today (Thursday) or shut down.

Each plant could be fined up to $1000 for each day of operation over deadline, if it had no permit.

Commission Director Frank Partee said most stone and asphalt companies have cooperated in bringing both industries in line with air-pollution regulatory requirements.

"We intend to show those few remaining stragglers we mean business," Partee said. "Unfair economic competition will result unless all firms assume their share of control costs. Those companies now in compliance are demanding action and the commission is setting its legal enforcement power in motion.

Kentucky has about 114 stone quarries and 130 asphalt plants, excluding those in Jefferson county, which is governed by a local air-pollution board.

According to the commission, almost every asphalt plant and stone quarry in Kentucky was in violation of air-pollution regulations just over a year ago before the state began bringing them under control.

Gallup Poll Shows Americans Would Clean Up Environment

Washington, Kc. C.—Although only one-third of the American public are aware that they are "polluters," nearly half of them are willing to "live more simply" in order to improve environmental quality according to figures released by the National Wildlife Federation.

While 49 percent of those questioned in a national public opinion poll recently taken by the Gallup Organization said they would prefer to handle the pollution problem by "living more simply" (eg. "using less electricity, driving less powerful cars, etc."), 24 percent would prefer paying the cost to clean it up, and 12 percent would like to do both.

Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice-president of the three-million member organization, said that the NWF commissioned the survey to see if the charge that "America cannot clean up the environment because the public won't pay for it" was true. "In my judgment," Kimball said, "these findings clearly refute that charge being made by certain unenlightened members of industry, government, and the public." He added that public opinion is "obviously far ahead of large segments of government and industry."

The survey, a follow-up to an NWF-Gallup 1969 study, had eight major question areas: "Concern About Our Natural Surroundings", "Willingness to Pay Taxes to Improve Natural Surroundings", "Do People Consider Themselves Polluters", "Awareness of Present Cost of Air and Water Pollution", "Handling the Pollution Problem—Pay to Clean It Up or Live More Simply", "Power Plant Pollution—Pay More for Electricity or Use Less Electricity", "Auto Pollution—Pay More for Autos or Buy Less Powerful Cars", and "Willingness to Pay Now to Save More Later".

Kimball summarized the major findings of the study as follows:

—There is a continuing concern for the degradation of the environment and the concern is just as strong as it was in the 1969 study;

—About three out of every four adults are willing to pay additional taxes to improve environmental quality;

—More people favor "living more simply" as an alternative to "paying the cost of cleaning up pollution"; Also, the proportion of those who would buy a less powerful car is greater than the proportion who would pay $100 more for a pollution-free car;

—Most people are not informed about the damages resulting from pollution and only 33 percent of the public are aware of the fact that they are "polluters"; However, those who have attended college, younger people, and those with above average incomes show a greater willingness to pay for cleanup than the rest of the population;

—Half of those interviewed would be willing to start paying for pollution cleanup now in the prospect that savings from reduced damages would be realized later.

The latter finding was based on a pollution cost-benefit study previously done by the NWF. That study showed that the typical American family could save $113 per year with a national cleanup campaign which will reduce air pollution damages by 66 percent, and save $87 annually while slashing water pollution damages by 90 percent. The Federation estimated that the average family must invest some $500 by 1975 without any return. However, by 1979, the average family will recover this $500 and, by 1980, be realizing annual savings of approximately $200—plus having a cleaner environment.

Kimball charged that economists and others who prepare pollution estimates for industry and the government have been failing to consider benefits of pollution cleanup as well as its cost. "How can you put a dollar value on your children being able to see into the Grand Canyon?" he asked. "We're going to have to consider all benefits, economic and aesthetic, as well as the economic costs of pollution cleanup."

Harold Telephone Gets $378,000 Loan

U. S. Senators Cooper and Cook last week notified The Times that the U. S. Rural Telephone Bank has approved a loan of $378,000 to the Harold Telephone Company, Inc., of Harold, to finance facilities for its subscribers.

The improvements viewed by the company include construction of nine miles of new line and direct dialing facilities in all its exchanges.

The Rural Telephone Bank operates in conjunction with the Rural Electrification Administration to provide supplemental financing for the REA's telephone loan program.

GIRL SCOUT COUNCIL TRAINING SET TODAY

Training for Girl Scout Day Camp directors and other staff members from four counties will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. today (Wednesday) at Camp Chat-terawha on Dewey Lake. The training will be conducted by Pat Davis, Program Services director for the Wilderness Road Girl Scout Council, and Frances Carr, a volunteer trainer. The training will be in preparation for day camps to be conducted during the summer months.

More to Scouting Than Tying a Knot

Members of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club were recently made aware that there is much more to Boy Scouting than knowing how to tie knots in a rope or build a fire in the middle of a wilderness. This awareness was made possible by Phillip R. Johnson, Scoutmaster of Troop 26, Boy Scouts of America, who spoke to the club members last week at the home of Mrs. Mervil Dixon, Wayland.

Mr. Johnson spoke at some length on what scouting is all about. Taking each line of the Scout Oath, he explained how the Scout is taught to live up to that oath. Mr. Johnson also showed slides depicting camp life at the Boy Scout camp, after which he conducted a question-and-answer period. The subject for the evening was, "Youth in Conservation," and the program leader was Mrs. Otto Martin.

Following the program and refreshments, a business session was conducted by Mrs. Earl Castle, club president. Mrs. Mervil Dixon, chairman of the nominating committee, announced the committee's selections for club officers for the coming year and nominations were made from the floor.

Mrs. Castle called for and received volunteers to assist in the cancer drive. Those attending the meeting were: Mrs. Alice Hornsby, Mrs. M. M. Collins, Mrs. Stanley Bamer, Mrs. Birchell Duff, Mrs. Orville Duff, Mrs. Floyd Tackett, Mrs. John Reed, Mrs. J. T. Spillman, Mrs. Earl Castle, Mrs. S. M. Martin, Mrs. Mervil Dixon, Mrs. Otto Martin, and Mrs. Virgie Spencer, members, and Mr. and Mrs. Phillip R. Johnson, guests.

Hostesses were Mrs. Mervil Dixon, Mrs. J. T. Spillman, and Mrs. S. M. Martin

MAYTOWN NEWS

The Maytown Community will participate in the Floyd county Cancer Fund drive during the month of April. A cheerleader of the Wildcat team will be around to homes area within the next week to collect. Much progress in the cancer program has been done this past year through research. This was made possible with funds donated by the public. Please give.

Bobby Gates, who is attending Winchester high school, Winchester, Mass., spent last week here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Green Hamilton, during spring vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Webb and daughter are spending his leave here with his mother, Mrs. Beatrice Webb, and his grandmother, Mrs. Hallie Webb.

Kent Flanery, Stephen Herald and Jeff Jones attended a three-day 4-G conclave for the Order of the Arrow Boy Scouts at Portsmouth, Ohio last week.

The Maytown Woman's Club and the Maytown Boy Scouts will sponsor cleanup of the Maytown school district, Saturday, April 29. Garbage should be collected and placed by the side of the road and a county truck will pick it up the following week.

The Maytown MYF was host to the Sub-District MYF, Monday evening. Following the business meeting, the young people presented an impressive, original play depicting the life of Jesus during Holy Week. Directors were Debbie Hagans and Herbert Ousley.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Webb have received word that their son, Sgt. Kenneth Webb, has arrived at his base in Germany after being here on leave.

Miss Judy Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stewart, will represent Maytown high school as candidate for Music Queen during the festivities at Prestonsburg, Saturday, May 6. Attendants will be Denise Blevins, Delores Harmon and Terrie Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude J. Webb and Mecca spent last week-end visiting relatives in Springfield and other places in Ohio.

Sherry Salisbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Salisbury, of Lucasville, Ohio, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stewart and Beckie.

The Floyd County 4-H Rally Day will be held at the Matywon high school, Saturday, April 29.

T. J. Compton and Cecil Lester, of Kentucky Hydrocarbon Co., have been attending a two-week training school in gas measurement at Boxborn, Mass.

Jody Begley, of Bellflower, Calif., spent Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thurnal Click where two of his former classmates, Mrs. Donna Gray and Mrs. Ina Hensley, visited with him. He paid calls on several relatives and friends, visited the school and was dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. May Wednesday evening before going on to Lexington where he spent a few days visiting his brother, J. T. Begley, and family before returning to his home in California.

Reading Council Hears Discussion

The Jenny Wiley Reading Council, meeting at the Floyd County Library, heard Irene Reynolds, president of the Kentucky State Council, I. R. A., in a discussion of the Right to Read program. "Reading," she said, is the key to knowledge and power, and reading is essential in the world of work. She also showed a film on the program.

The executive board of the Jenny Wiley Reading Council met at the Prestonsburg Community College, April 4. Work was done on plans for the May meeting, membership dues, nomination of new officers, and the selection of a project for the next year. The task chosen, for the annual project of the Council was the publicizing of the Right to Read program. A committee was appointed to have bumperstickers made. The council committed itself to work to assist the Right to Read program in anyway possible.

The next meeting of the council will be held at the Maytown high school, May 2, at 7 p.m., when officers will be elected. Every member is urged to attend.

Off-Flooded Park Preparing Program For Coming Season

Although Archer Park at Prestonsburg has been partially inundated by floodwaters seven times since Jan. 1, and a big cleanup job lies ahead, a schedule of activities for the coming season is now being prepared, and new attractions will be introduced.

Softball through the summer will bring to the park from various parts of the county around 20 men's team and 12 or more women's teams. Organizational meetings will be held at the recreation hall at the park next Sunday afternoon—the men's organization at 2 and the women at 4.

Children this summer will get a taste of railroading when they visit the caboose which was donated to the park recently by the C. & O. Railway Company. The caboose will be painted the traditional red and the interior will be refurbished.

Joe P. Tackett, recreation director at the park, said Monday that the 5,000-square-foot skating rink there will be completed within two weeks. Its opening is scheduled by the end of the current school term.

The National Machine Tool Builders Association will provide on-the-job training for 1,550 people in 24 states under a new $1.2-million contract with the Department of Labor's Manpower Administration.

Drunk Driving Cure

(Deseret News, Salt Lake City)

If drunk drivers think they fare badly in the U. S., they should take a look at what their punishment would be in other places in the world.

In Australia, the tipsy motorists' names are sent to local newspapers which print them all under the heading, "Drunk and In Jail."

In Malaya, the drunk is not only jailed, but if he's married, his wife goes too. That's a sobering thought. In South Africa, the driver is given 10 years in jail and-or a fine of $2,800. And in Turkey, he is taken 20 miles away by police and forced to walk back under escort.

But San Salvador has found a way to completely discourage second offenders. It takes drunk drivers out and executes them by firing squad.

JOB SAFETY INSPECTIONS

In the first five months of fiscal 1972, the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration conducted 10,668 inspections in 9,817 establishments employing over 1.8 million workers. Of the establishments inspected, less than one in four was found to comply with job safety and health standards.

Mr. and Mrs. Ned Elkins, of Harold, Ky., announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Lana Terri, to William Larry Stott, of Sevierville, Tenn. A senior at Berea College, the bride-elect will graduate in May with a B. A. in psychology. Mr. Stott is a 1971 graduate of Berea College and is presently a manager for Colonial Corporation of America. The wedding will be May 13 in Berea, Ky. The Stotts plan to live in Sparta, Tennessee.

INSPECTION PERIOD FOR THE PROPERTY TAX ASSESSMENT ROLL

The Floyd County property tax roll will be opened for inspection from May 1 through May 5, 1972. Under the supervision of the property valuation administrator or one of his deputies, any property owner may inspect the tax roll to check the assessment of his property and compare it with the assessment of comparable property to determine whether it is equitably assessed. The tax roll may not be inspected for any other purpose.

This is the January 1, 1972 assessment on which state, county, and school taxes for 1972 will be due on September 15, 1972.

The tax roll is in the office of the property valuation administrator in the county courthouse and may be inspected between the hours 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m.

The high school group cited him for "faithful and diligent service" to the university community. The framed photo shows him helping two small children cross the street.

Whatever Things By DONALD E. WILDMON

Back more than 2300 years ago a preacher wrote these words: "My soul is bereft of peace, I have forgotten what happiness is." Well, there are millions of people who are seeking and searching for what the preacher had forgotten—happiness.

More than 2000 years later another man by the name of Charles Farrar Browne made a famous statement concerning happiness: "Let us all be happy and live within our means," he wrote, "even if we have to borrow the money to do it." And you would be surprised at the number of people who are pursuing this elusive quality called happiness by following Browne's humorous advice.

This statement seems odd but has a world of truth in it—the most unhappy people in the world are those trying the hardest to be happy. We Americans annually spend billions of dollars searching for this magic, elusive thing called happiness.

Dr. Gallup, the fellow who has a way of finding the mood of the public, took a poll on happiness once. He found that the most unhappy people around were those who frequented the taverns. How odd that seems. I was under the impression that people went to the honkytonks to have a good time. Could it be—by some strange quirk—that a good time and deep seated happiness are not the same thing?

The great truth of life is that happiness comes as a by-product. The best way in the world to miss happiness is to pursue it directly, to go searching for it in each dark bar and every tipping of the glass.

Dr. Austen Fox Riggs once said: "Happiness is a by-product of successful living." Happiness is a by-product of holiness—or, if you prefer a less religious word, wholeness. Holiness and wholeness—they both mean the same thing and bring you to the same place.

Happiness is the result of an inner state, not outer security. Happiness comes not from without but from within. Betty Barton, who had been a paralytic because of an automobile accident, once wrote for Life magazine: "We are suffocated so with things and with distractions that the real pursuit of happiness is impossible. . . Happiness is primarily an inner state, an inner achievement."

Happiness isn't the goal of life—holiness is! "Seek first the Kingdom of God," Jesus said. "Don't go after happiness or you will miss it. Seek to do God's will and live by His plan and happiness will come without seeking."

This theme of matching happiness and holiness is as old as the ages. "Happy is the man who takes refuge in the Lord," says the Psalmist. Jesus, in His Sermon on the Mountain, gave nine ways to be happy. We call them the beatitudes. You will find them in the fifth chapter of Matthew in the Bible. I suggest you learn and live them.

We spoke of Dr. Gallup and his happiness poll. He also had this observation to make: "Our survey showed that the most happy people are those who have had a real religious experience."

"Seek first the Kingdom. . ." After that comes happiness.

Burchett, Rowland Law Firm Formed

Albert Archer Burchett and Dan Rowland have formed a partnership for the practice of law, with offices in the Adams building at Martin, it was announced last week.

Mr. Burchett, a native of Prestonsburg, is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and the University of Kentucky College of Law. He was admitted to the practice of law in 1964, and has practiced in Paintsville, Prestonsburg and Martin, was assistant Floyd County Attorney and is presently Prestonsburg City Attorney. He is married to the former Carla Sturgill and they have two sons, Joe Wheeler, II, and Jason Andrew.

Mr. Rowland, a native of Maytown, is a graduate of Berea College and the University of Kentucky College of Law. Before entering law school, Mr. Rowland worked as a social worker, radio announcer, and did promotional and training work for the Girl Scouts. He is married to the former Kaye Archer, and they have one son, Hugh Thomas.

The partnership will engage in the general practice of law, with emphasis on administrative and trial practice. The offices at Martin have been occupied by Mr. Burchett for the last five years.

New KEA President Will Ask Gov. Ford To Include PN in Special Call

(In Education News Service Release)

The new president of the Kentucky Education Association (KEA), Floyd county teacher, Michael Auxier, says his first official act will be to write Governor Wendell Ford asking that KEA's proposed professional negotiation (PN) bill be included in Ford's call for a special legislative session in June.

Ford, who vetoed the negotiation bill which was passed overwhelmingly by the House and Senate, and Auxier shared the platform at the closing session of KEA's recent annual convention at the Kentucky Fair & Exposition Center, Louisville.

Ford, however, had spoken and left before Auxier's speech. In his talk Ford made no reference to earlier requests by KEA's PN Commission and Delegate Assembly that PN be on the special session agenda, but he told reporters that it won't be.

Auxier, mathematics teacher at Betsy Layne high school and past president of the Floyd County Education Association, succeeded Claude Purvis, of Louisville, assistant principal of Jefferson county's Pleasure Ridge Park high school, as KEA president. Auxier, who lives at Emma, had been KEA president-elect.

"If you were to talk with some of the classroom teachers who must accept teaching materials and texts which are handed them by people who have not been in the classroom for years, you could easily understand why they were so interested in this bill," Auxier said in urging Ford's reconsideration of the PN bill.

"Only when the actual classroom teacher who must use the texts and materials is allowed to have input as to the relevance of a text or a method of teaching for his or her class, only then will quality education become a reality," Auxier said.

"School boards need not fear that teachers are going to jeopardize their positions. Professional negotiation can guarantee that there will be two-way communications and cooperation between all, a fact denied many teachers in our Commonwealth."

Following Ford's March 28 veto of the bill, then KEA president Purvis wrote the Governor, "Some of us were especially stunned because we had understood from you in a meeting in your office, early in the legislative session, that you would not oppose the bill nor do anything to keep it from becoming law."

Ford did not address himself to the Purvis statement in his KEA convention speech. He said during the gubernatorial campaign "I stated numerous times that several different groups, all citizens of Kentucky were interested in professional negotiations. I also stated that when the committees which represent these groups join in basic agreement as to the content and process of such a PN bill, its passage would have my full support."

"Not only did most of the superintendents, principals, and school board members disagree with the classroom teachers as to content and procedure for implementing the bill, but also a large number of teachers throughout Kentucky expressed disapproval," Ford said. "Since there was a polarization involving the various segments of education, it became obvious that the conditions of my campaign promise had not been met . . . When you, in concert, resolve the issue, I will act accordingly."

"If professional negotiations are as desirable as some claim, and if it will improve schools as some advocate, I strongly recommend that superintendents, school boards, and teachers at the local level begin immediately to make arrangements for a correctly structured PN bill which can be acted upon under conditions conducive to favorable action," Ford told the convention audience.

PN Commission chairman Lloyd May, of Louisville, took issue with Ford's statements, noting that the two statewide organizations of principals had endorsed and worked for the PN bill and that the measure had been repeatedly assigned top priority by the KEA Delegate Assembly, whose members are elected by local education associations to set KEA policy.

May pointed out that the PN Commission had met numerous times with various groups, including those representing superintendents and school boards, and had made many revisions in the proposed PN bill in an attempt to meet objections and reach agreement.

"But it is obvious that most school boards and superintendents are opposed to any meaningful negotiations bill," May asserted. "This, I think, was recognized by the legislators who tried to work up the compromise measure that passed in the 1972 session."

May added, "The Governor's veto of the PN bill indicates that powerful political and economic forces have once again subverted the will of the teaching profession, this time subverting the will of the legislature as well and thus the will of the people."

The day before Ford's convention speech the KEA Delegate Assembly adopted a strongly worded resolution proposed by the PN Commission stating, "We deplore and condemn Governor Ford's unwarranted and ill-considered veto of the professional negotiation bill that was passed by the 1972 General Assembly."

"We call upon Governor Ford to rectify his action by including a professional negotiation proposal drafted by the KEA commission on Professional Negotiation in his call for a special legislative session in the summer of 1972, as the PN Commission has asked him to do," the resolution continued. "Failing such action by the Governor, we assign the highest priority to enactment of a state PN law in 1974 and enactment of the federal PN law that is part of the National Education Association's current legislative program. Such laws should establish statutory penalties for school boards that do not bargain in good faith or do not comply with negotiated contracts."

While condemning Governor Ford's veto of the professional negotiation bill and deploring his refusal to fund the 30-year retirement program for teachers, speakers at the KEA convention applauded positive action by the Governor and General Assembly on other items in KEA's 1972 legislative program.

Reviewing the legislative record, Dr. J. M. Dodson, KEA executive secretary, noted that the Governor's budget included increases of only six percent in foundation-program salary allotments rather than the 12 percent asked by KEA.

But, Dodson continued, "It says something about the attitude of legislators when every bill called for in the KEA program passed both houses by substantial majorities."

"It says something about the posture and credibility of the teaching profession when the legislature passed every bill the profession asked for if the legislators had a chance to vote on it. It says something about schoolteachers when legislators were willing to risk their political fortunes by voting for some of our legislation. . . ."

A record 1,070,400 summer jobs will be available this year to youths aged 14 to 21 through federally funded employment programs. This is nearly 89,000 more jobs than last year and calls for a budget of over $319 million.

And afterward we'll bring it home as your souvenir. We'll give you all this, free, if you do two things: One, come in and test drive a new '72 Volkswagen. You'll discover it's ahead of its time. And two, come up with the winning entry in the contest to name our new computer plug. That's the plug that will connect every new Volkswagen to our VW Computer Self-Analysis System. It's the service system of the future. Every '72 Volkswagen is already equipped for it, and the first computers will begin operation soon. Come in and let us tell you about it. And about the contest.

After all, it's probably the first time you've been able to enter a contest with a bug in it. Don't wait any longer.
