Innovative Lab At New Hospital To Open Tuesday

Although its official opening will not be till next Tuesday, the innovative cardiopulmonary laboratory of the Highlands Regional Medical Center that is still under construction near here is already attracting patients and its director, Dr. Ballard D. Wright, is a busy man.

The laboratory is in a special section of the new medical center, and in its 31,000 square feet of floor area has been installed computerized equipment valued at $130,000. Here, Dr. Wright will center his attention on research, diagnosis and treatment of respiratory diseases, particularly "black lung."

In addition to his work in the laboratory, said to be the first of its kind in Eastern Kentucky, Dr. Wright will head an "outreach program" which will feature a van equipped with diagnostic equipment. This mobile laboratory Dr. Wright will take into mining areas in a program which is designed to educate miners about "black lung" as well as to treat the disease.

Former Met Star Returns Here To Recreate Most Memorable Role

Broadway and Metropolitan Opera star Christine Johnson returns to the stage this week at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre to recreate her most memorable role. Miss Johnson will play Nettie Fowler in the Rodgers and Hammerstein classic, "Carousel," running Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, August 6-26.

Miss Johnson introduced both "You'll Never Walk Alone" and "June Is Bustin' Out A-Whole" in the musical set in a quaint New England fishing village. Shortly before her Broadway debut, she had gone to New York working on NBC, CBS, with the

ANOTHER LANDMARK PASSING

This Prestonsburg residence, the former home of the late Ex-Sheriff B. L. Sturgill and family, is being razed to clear the grounds for an addition to the adjacent grade school property. The home and land, which was owned earlier by the late J. W. Alley, was purchased a few months ago by the Floyd County Board of Education from the Sturgill heirs.

Clark Takes Oath of Office For Longest Tenure as Supt.

Charles Clark took the oath of office of superintendent of Floyd county schools at Saturday's meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education for his fourth year term and thus began his 13th year in the office.

Clark's tenure of office is the longest in the history of the county school system. The oath of office was administered by Assistant Superintendent Wayne Ratliff, who is a deputy county clerk.

The board implemented at Saturday's meeting the new adult education library project, which is a cooperative program undertaken with Morehead State University. The experimental program is financed by the U. S. Office of Education, and the facilities of the Floyd County Library are involved in its development.

Roland Jones, librarian at the John M. Stumbo school, was named director of the

The best thing I can say for both major political parties is, they scheduled their conventions during the summer re-run season.

I REGRET TO REPORT...

Earle B. Martin, formerly of this newspaper, now night city editor of an Orlando (Fla.) daily, has long been one of my favorite people. But now I have found a chink in his armor, so to speak, not to mention feet of clay, etcetera. He has quit fishing.

FISH TALE?

Speaking of fish and fishing, my favorite preacher was around today to show me pictorial proof of his catch "So there!" the eloquent toss of his forelock challenged me. (Now, discover the fish tale in that statement!)

Region 11 Office To Open in P'burg

Back To Classroom August 23 Is Word To Floyd Co. Pupils

Skylarking days are drawing near their end for Floyd county youngsters who will be returning to school, or entering school for the first time, this month.

Classwork at every school in the county will begin Wednesday, August 23. Monday and Tuesday of that week will be devoted to in-service conferences for teachers.

New students who have not enrolled earlier at schools are being notified to contact their school counselors or principals before the opening date.

Such students who propose to enter the Prestonsburg elementary school were asked this week to contact Mrs. Ruth Blanton, counselor, or Thomas J. Tackett, principal, at the school before August 21.

Hackworth Winner Of Johnson Action

What started out as the April term of the Johnson circuit court ended in the last week of July with the trial of the civil action of Dr. Ballard Wright, of Prestonsburg, against Joe Hackworth, contractor on a home being built for the plaintiff. At the conclusion of the four-day hearing Hackworth was awarded $11,137.56.

Length of the trial of the case made necessary continuance of two other civil cases on the docket.

Perhaps the case of widest interest to be set for hearing in the Johnson court at its

Plan To Involve School Systems Of Five Counties

Four regions composed mainly of Eastern Kentucky counties will see the first implementation of the new Regional Organization for Providing Educational Services (ROPES) in the state, and Region 11, one of these four, will have its headquarters in Prestonsburg.

Floyd Superintendent Charles Clark, who was named chairman of the Region 11 executive committee, which will serve as a board of control, said Prestonsburg was selected for the regional office site because of its central location. In addition to this county, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties comprise the region.

Financed by Appalachian Regional Commission funds and strongly promoted by State Supt. Lyman Ginger, the new program is designed to pool efforts of cooperating counties toward improved education and to link each region and its member-counties more closely with the State Department of Education.

The state has been divided into 17 regions, in all, but the first work will be in the four regions in Eastern Kentucky. It is scheduled to begin functioning this fall. Supt. Clark said the office here will have a vocations specialist and a secretary working, fulltime.

In addition to the five county school systems, Region 11 will also have the independent districts of Pikeville and Paintsville as members. The county and city

Lt. Webb, Two Others Victims Of 'Copter Crash Near Air Base

First Lt. Stephen Virgil Webb, 25, of Prestonsburg, was one of three airmen who lost their lives last Friday in the crash of a helicopter near Fairchild Air Force Base, Spokane, Washington.

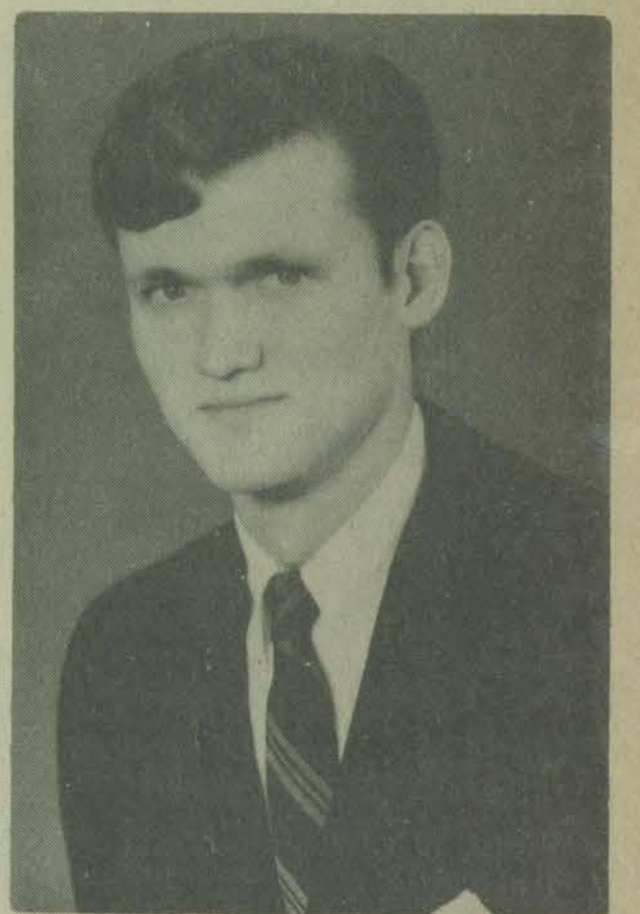

Lieut. Webb was a passenger in a helicopter which struck a power pole and careened into the Spokane River. Killed with him were Majors Allen and Kirshman.

The tragedy occurred about three months after Lieut. Webb's arrival at the base. He earlier had trained at Hill Air Force Base, Utah, at Ft. Rucker, Ft. Walters and at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Force after his graduation Dec. 11, 1970 from the University of Kentucky. In his flight training Lieut. Webb ranked first in his class.

He was a son of Virgil A. and Nancy Powers Webb, of Prestonsburg, and was a graduate of Prestonsburg high school. Surviving, besides his parents, are his widow, Mrs. Karen Dorton Webb; three sisters, Mrs. Ellis Buchanan, of Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, and Misses Jane Carter Webb and Dora Lynn Webb.

A military funeral for the three victims was held Monday at Fairchild Air Force Base, and Lt. Webb's body was later brought here, accompanied by an Air Force honor guard. Funeral rites will be conducted from the First United Methodist Church at 2:30 p.m. Friday by Dr. Harold W. Dorsey and the pastor, the Rev. William Coop. Burial will be made in the Porter cemetery here under direction of the Carter Funeral Home.

State Files Action Against Dare To Be Great Program

Last Tuesday morning, six automobiles bearing Floyd county license plates and two from Pike county parked in the Information Center's parking area here, and their occupants boarded a special bus for Lexington.

These and other area residents were on their way to attend a Dare To Be Great "opportunity meeting."

That same day, Circuit Judge James Park of the Fayette circuit court issued a temporary restraining order against Glenn W. Turner Enterprises, a Florida firm, and its subsidiary, Dare To Be Great, Inc.

The suit asking the restraining order was filed the preceding day by Assistant Attorney General Laura L. Murrell under two acts enacted by the 1972 General Assembly—the state's consumer-fraud law and the law banning referral selling.

How many Floyd countians have "invested" in Dare To Be Great is not known, but one source here estimated that at least 20 residents of Prestonsburg are participants. One man reportedly invested, then quit a job with private industry which paid a lucrative salary. An agricultural employee in a neighboring county is reported to have quit his job for participation with Dare To Be Great. He is now said to be selling cars.

Last week's action brought to 40 the number of states in which two sections of the Turner conglomerate are under legal attack in one way or another. These two operations are Turner's multi-million-dollar Koscot Interpanetary, Inc., which is the "Kosmetics" sales end of the business, and Dare To Be Great, the sales training organization.

In turn, Turner Enterprises has sued 26 attorneys general and the Council of Better Business Bureau, alleging harassment. One group of dissatisfied participants lost a suit in U. S. District Court at Lexington when the case was dismissed on the grounds of lack of evidence.

Turner, who is said to have borrowed $5,000 and to have run it into more than $100 million in a period of two years, has Orlando, Fla. as the base of his conglomerate of perhaps a hundred ventures. His Koscot and Dare To Be Great are based on a complex system of finders' fees, commissions and overrides paid to participants for recruiting others into the program. These new recruits pay anywhere from $1,000 to $5,000 to get into the program.

BUSINESS WEEK recently described the plan as a "new twist on the old chain-letter scheme, called pyramid-style investing." The Iowa Supreme Court this year barred Koscot from operation in the state, terming its methods "a cancerous vice against which the public should be protected." California has gone the injunction route against the operations. Grand juries in Michigan and Florida have indicted Turner. Great Britain has frozen Turner deposits in an English bank to prevent their transfer to numbered accounts in Switzerland.

In an affidavit filed with the Lexington suit Dr. Don M. Soule, professor of economics at the University of Kentucky, said he computed the earning potential of the Dare To Be Great Program on the basis of three sales by each participant, which is the minimum number of sales necessary to experience earnings.

Soule figured that if the progression were extended to every household in Kentucky, with a commission of $400 paid for the sale of each $1,000 course, only 3.7 per cent of the participants would make a profit, 7.4 per cent would break even and 88.9 per cent would not even recover their $1,000 investment.

He said that these percentages also apply if the progression is continued for 20 rounds, or 1.75 billion purchasers.

Loot Taken At College Recovered

Two Are Arrested After Sale Attempt; Probe To Continue

An attempt last Wednesday by a custodian at Prestonsburg Community College to sell to a faculty-member a laboratory item triggered an investigation which resulted in one arrest, the recovery of an estimated $1,500 worth of college property and the issuance of a warrant for a second man.

Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the college, said a complete inventory was begun, immediately after the thefts were discovered, and that the full list of missing items may not be known until that work is completed. Glenn Cowan, business officer at PCC, said the inventory will cover about 4,000 separate items, and that inventory may require two weeks.

The warrant of arrest was issued for Jesse Dale Baldrige, custodian, charging him with selling stolen property. Ronnie Little, of Melvin, a work-study student, was arrested Wednesday. Items missing from the college were found at Baldrige's apartment here and at Melvin.

When a faculty-member reported to Dr. Campbell that Baldrige had offered to sell him an ohmmeter, the college director contacted Sheriff Frank Leslie who advised that the purchase be made. That done, the search for the stolen property began.

Young Little was arrested at his home where several articles were found by Deputy Sheriffs Claude Flanery and Otto Fannin. At the same time Sheriff Leslie and State Trooper Elmo Allen were finding other items at the Baldrige apartment.

Five Are Taken On Rum Counts

Two men arrested last Friday by Floyd deputy sheriffs may face grand jury indictment on third-offense liquor possession charges because of previous convictions.

The two are Edgel Hall, of East McDowell, on whose premises ABC Agent Arvel Nelson and Deputy Sheriffs Claude Flanery, Otto Fannin and Dester Hamilton found 18 cases of beer in quarts and 23 cases of beer in cans; and Raleigh Barnett, Jr., of Buck's Branch, near Martin, from whose home the same officers said they confiscated 72 cans of beer, four half-pints of vodka and two half-pints of whiskey.

Earlier Friday, Deputy Sheriffs Hamilton and Jackie Bartley arrested Phillip Gary Hall, of Mousie, at Allen and confiscated 25 cases of beer and one and a half cases of whiskey. He was charged with transporting. Also booked on a transporting count was James Franklin Tackett, of Mud Creek, who was arrested July 29 by Deputy Sheriff Hamilton. He had 12 cases of beer, Hamilton said.

Gary Lawson was jailed Sunday and charged with transporting intoxicants by State Trooper Gary Rose.

Walter J. Svacina was arrested Sunday on an auto theft charge by State Trooper Leeman Bevins and is being held for federal officers.

Policemen Darrel Conley and Keith Lawson arrested Jackie Dennis Parson here last Friday and charged him with selling dangerous drugs. Lawson said the arrest was made immediately after Parson had made a sale of librium, a sedative.

Others booked at the county jail within the week:

Melvin Gill, drunk driving, by Policemen Tom Woods; Elmer McKenzie and John Timothy Hunt, contributing to juvenile delinquency, by Policemen Lawson, Campbell and Blackburn; Fonzo Turner, no operator's license, by State Trooper Rose; Glen R. Yates, destroying mortgaged property, by County Detective Sam Hale; Pink Osborne, Jr., drunk driving, by

The Patient Needs To Know What the Doctor Proposes

Eventually, zoning may become a necessity for all counties as increasing populations, construction of homes and the operation of businesses have mushrooming effects. But it isn't a step to be taken lightly.

The Floyd fiscal court hedged when the matter of zoning was suggested at a recent meeting. Members rightly held that the public should be fully informed as to the full meaning of zoning and that a program of educating the people should first be undertaken.

A subsequent experience of Letcher county in countywide zoning confirms the position taken by the Floyd court. Over there, a plan to move people out of the hollows into so-called urban centers to make way for the development of tourist attractions created a furore. After all the shouting was over, the fiscal court turned down the zoning and land usage plan that had been submitted.

The people of Eastern Kentucky are tired of moving. They're tired of getting out of the way of dams and roads and other developments that are called public improvements. They like where they are, and whether others do or not is of least concern to them. A "holler" is home and peace and quiet—and what's wrong with that? they want to know. And they're tired, too, of being studied and surveyed to death, too.

Yet that is not to say that zoning for a county may not be necessary. Sensible zoning and planning that does not propose to rout people out of their homes but, instead, seeks to protect them where they are will eventually come. Individuals will have to know where they can build homes without future danger of being rooted out by an industry. As farms become smaller and houses are built more closely together, one individual will need protection from the designs of his neighbor. Sanitation, a healthful environment, an orderly development—all these will enter into the situation creating a need for such careful planning.

But the people will need to be taken into the confidence of the planners. They will need to know what is planned for them. They will demand to know.

Grandmother of 4, Teacher Here, Gets Masters at Eastern

In the family group which attended the Aug. 3 Eastern Kentucky State University graduation exercises in Richmond at which she received her master's degree were four grandchildren of Mrs. Loretta Blackburn, Prestonsburg teacher.

A few years ago, Mrs. Blackburn was a high school dropout. She quit school after her marriage to Lloyd Blackburn to turn her attention to the role of homemaker. Then adult education classes came along and she grasped the opportunity. She earned her high school "equivalency" diploma.

And she didn't quit. She entered Eastern and received her A. B. degree there in 1968. For the last four years she has been a teacher in the Prestonsburg elementary school. Meanwhile, she has been doing the graduate work which culminated last week in the master's.

Attending the exercises at which Mrs. Blackburn received the degree were her husband, her mother, Mrs. Lonnie Burchett; her four daughters, Mrs. LaDonna Miller, Mrs. Sheryl Lyons, Mrs. Connie Burton and Miss Beverly Blackburn; and her grandchildren, Michael, Elizabeth, Todd and Jody.

APPRECIATES "WILMAY" ARTICLES

Editor, The Times:

Being a native of McDowell, Ky. Floyd county and a recent subscriber to your paper, I want to say I have thoroughly enjoyed the copies I have received. I am always thrilled with familiar names in news items of Prestonsburg, McDowell and neighboring communities since I have many relatives there. I attended high school there when Town Hall was County Superintendent and Palmer Hall our principal. Perhaps you cannot remember back that far!!

I have observed from occasional visits and now from your newspaper that many wonderful changes have taken place since my school days there. The schools were good even then but with the modern school system, new hospital facilities, improved system of roads and communications tremendous growth in Floyd county is evidenced and I am grateful of all.

However, my reason for writing is to commend you for publishing the fine articles by Wilmay—the first being EUTHANASIA in the July 16 issue and the other I'M FROM MISSOURI in the July 23 issue. (I believe I have the correct dates). We read these articles with much interest and appreciation and we agree wholeheartedly. It is certainly time some one spoke out on these vital truths.

It seems to be the trend of thinking now to die away with humanity that is incapacitated, infirmed or retarded in any way. Regardless of the opinion of those who advocate such, it would still be "murder" in God's sight.

It is my opinion that all the ills of our nation and even the world is summed up in four words: WE HAVE FORGOTTEN GOD. There will one day be a judgment at which time an account will be given for the "deeds done in the body." It is indeed sad that many people (most, it seems) possess greater knowledge about their car, home, family, community than they do of the Word of God and what He requires of them. Paul's command to Timothy was to "study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth" (II Timothy 2:15). We are not exempt from that command!!

I shall be looking forward to more good reading in future copies of your paper.

Reunion of Grads Of Extant School Planned at Auxier

Plans for a reunion of the graduates from a Floyd county school which closed more than a decade ago are being made at Auxier.

Auxier high school went out of existence in 1962 after a consolidated high school opened in Prestonsburg, and the facility was converted to a grade school which is still in operation. Now a group of graduates are planning a get-together for Labor Day (September 2) at the school. Food, refreshments and entertainment are planned for every graduate who can make it "home" for the event.

Hundreds of students have received their diplomas at Auxier since the school opened in 1927. Sponsors of the reunion are hoping that a large percentage of those graduates will return for the Labor Day event.

Mrs. Woodridge Wells and Mrs. Delano Goble, spokesmen for the committee planning the occasion are asking relatives and friends of former Auxier high students to provide addresses or contacts so that as many persons as possible may be advised of the program.

Health Department To Conduct Clinic

The Floyd County Health Department will conduct a glaucoma clinic August 10, from 9 to 11 a.m. and from 1 to 3 p.m.

Dr. Russell L. Hall, Floyd county health officer, this week urged all persons over the age of 35 to take advantage of this free service and have the eye test made.

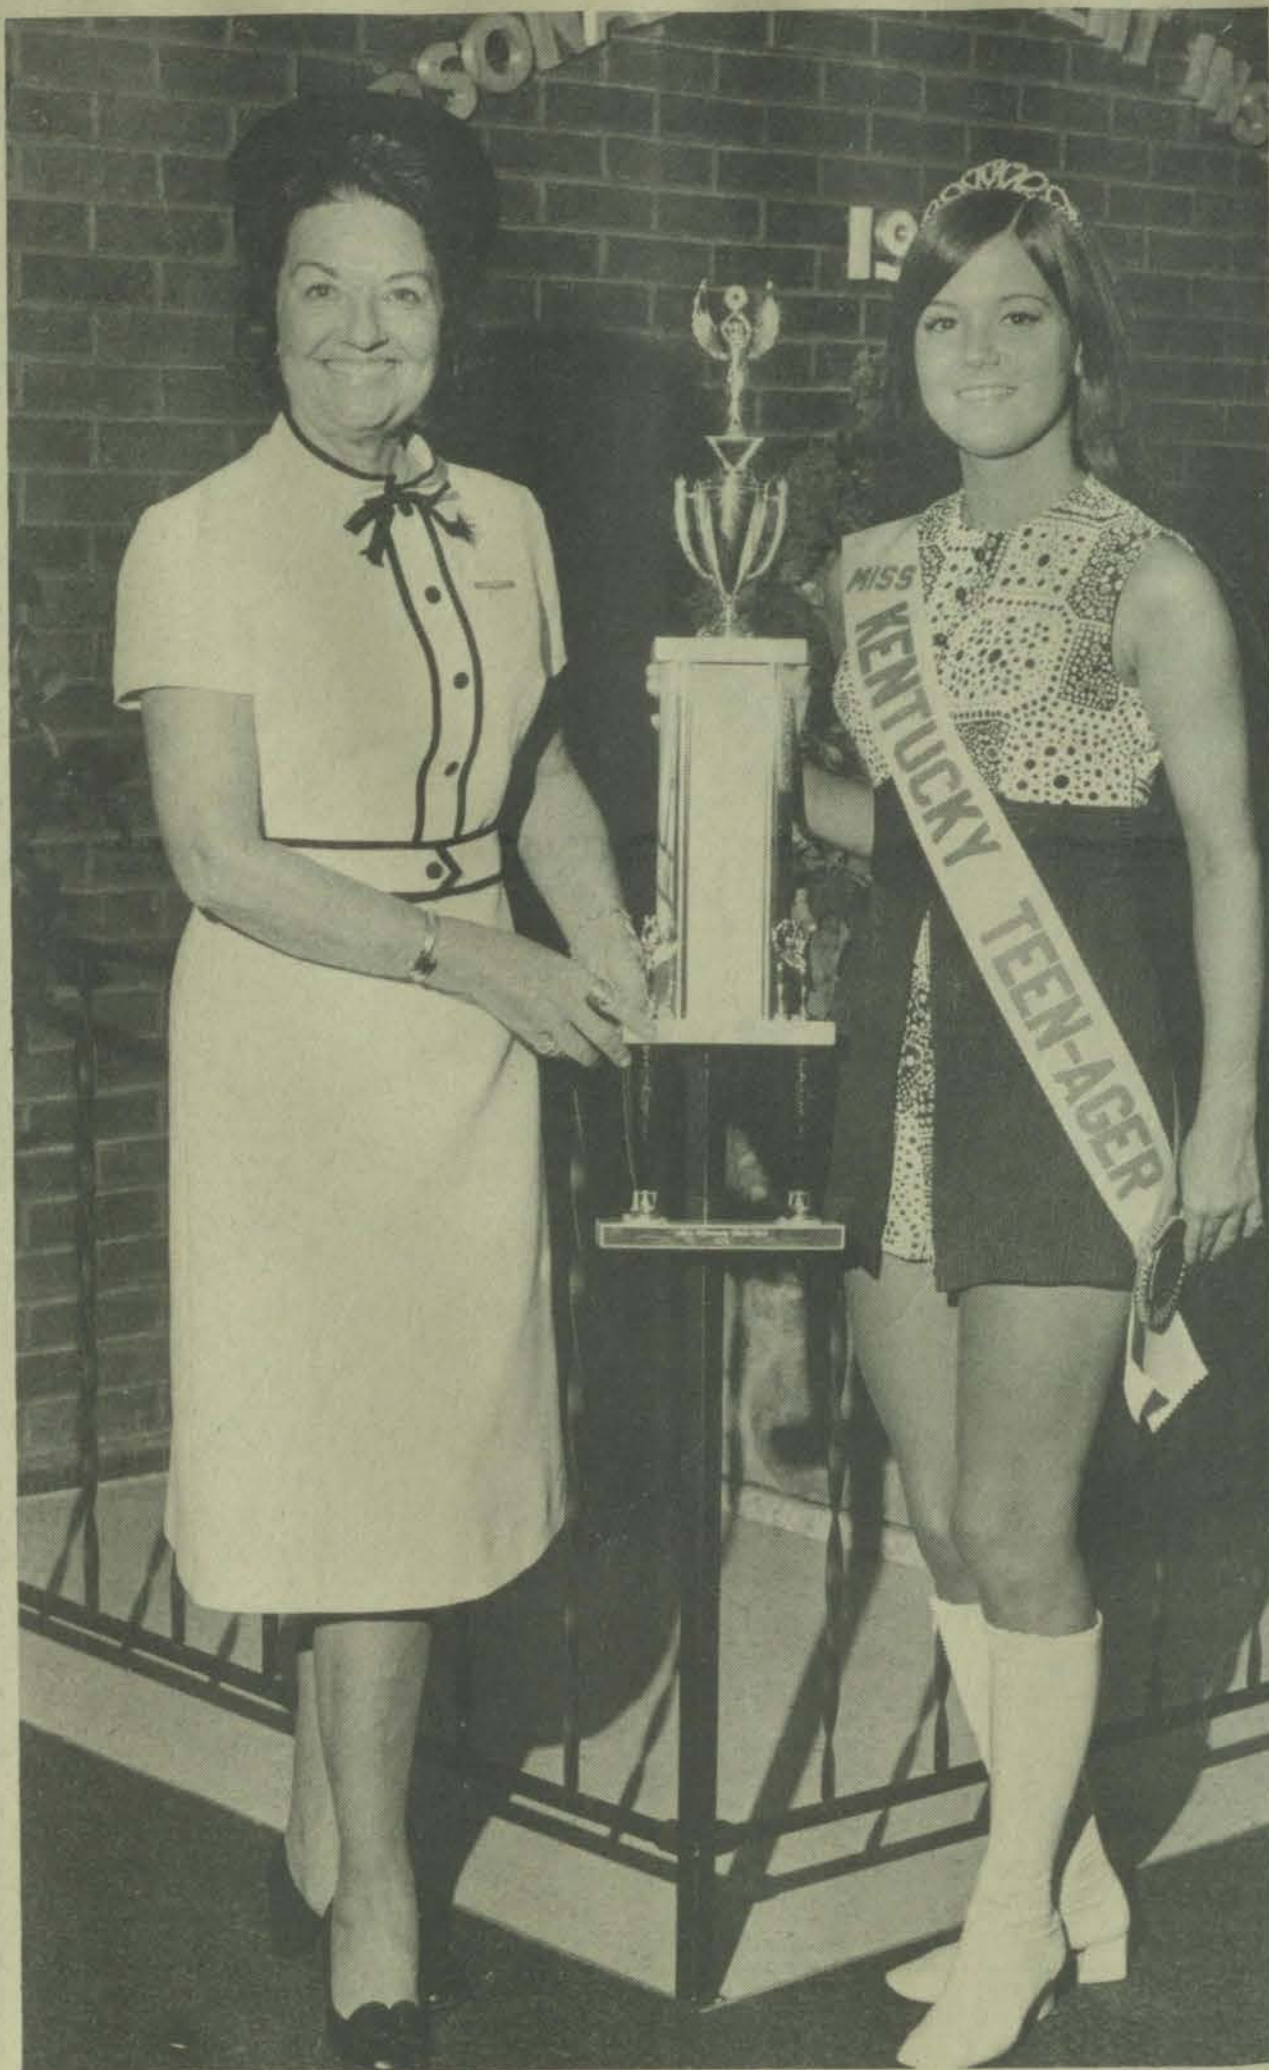

Says Doctor Hall: "Finding the disease early and getting proper treatment can control glaucoma and prevent needless blindness." Undetected glaucoma may lead to total blindness. More than half of those over the age of 35 who have glaucoma do not know it and are not under treatment. Periodic checkups which include a tonometer test are important, even for those who have no eye trouble and no warning signs of glaucoma.

Relatives of glaucoma victims are more likely to get the disease, it was pointed out.

Perkins' Office Says $147,200 EDA Grant For Magoffin Plant

Congressman Carl D. Perkins' office notified Mayor George P. Archer here Friday that the Economic Development Administration has approved a grant of $147,000 to the Magoffin County Industrial Foundation, Inc., to help develop an industrial site and create 350 new jobs at Salyersville.

A landfill and construction of parking areas will provide a site there on which the Foundation will construct a plant for the Continental Conveyor and Equipment Company. The Magoffin group will furnish $36,800 to complete the total $184,000 cost of site preparation.

WINNER AND TUTOR—Peggy Harrell, 17-year-old freshman at Morehead State University, is "Miss Kentucky Teenager of 1972." She won the title Saturday night at Lexington. Shown with her is Mrs. Adron Doran, founder and director of MSU's Personal Development Institute, who helped Miss Harrell prepare for the state pageant and is continuing to tutor her for the national pageant next month in Atlanta.

Fire Protection Rating Improved, Rates To Drop

Lower fire insurance rates are in prospect for Prestonsburg property-owners with the reclassification of the city by the Kentucky Insurance Services office from the seventh to the sixth class.

Notification of the new classification was made August 3 following an evaluation by the state office of fire protection facilities here and improvements in fire defenses.

"The results of our recent survey indicated that most of the recommendations previously submitted had been accomplished and also indicated major progress on the remainder of the recommendations," Anthony F. Gray, superintendent of the Division of Public Protection, wrote Mayor George P. Archer.

"The fire protection facilities of Prestonsburg," he added, "have been greatly improved in recent years and have now progressed from a point where the existing seventh-class classification was in severe jeopardy to a point where an improved classification can be assigned. We feel that compliments are in order to all concerned."

Part of the process of reclassification of business buildings to develop an appropriate insurance rate will involve a visit and inspection tour here Aug. 14 by two inspectors.

"Our representative," wrote Mr. Gray, "advised that you were interested in obtaining recommendations for a Class 5 fire protection classification in the future. It is suggested that upon completion of the items (recommendations) enumerated in this letter you evaluate the fire protection potential in your community, and if it is still of interest to you to obtain these recommendations, we should be happy to provide them."

Recommendations made after the recent survey here were:

"1. Fire department manning has been increased but is still somewhat short of that recommended. This circumstance is occasioned by the reduced work week your firemen are now functioning under. Our recommendation is that there be at least two men on duty at all times, aside from the Chief of the department. This would apparently necessitate provision of one additional fire-fighter.

"2. Certain items of equipment were reported to us as being on order. This included a smoke ejector and a considerable amount of fire hose. In our grading, we have construed these items to be in service, so they should be placed in service without delay.

"3. It is our understanding that we are to receive an up-to-date map of the city limits. It will be essential that we have this map in order to insure proper rating of all properties within your city limits.

"4. Hose testing should be completed within your fire department. All fire hose should be tested to at least 250 p.s.i., right away, and appropriate records should be maintained.

"5. Monitor radios for your volunteer firemen had not been provided although it was our understanding that two were on order for experimental purposes. Provision of these devices should be expedited.

"6. Two of three previously recommended water distribution system improvements had been accomplished; however, one additional line in a residential area was still needed. It is our understanding that this is actually under construction at this time."

Brown Foundation Awards Alice Lloyd $100,000 for Bldg.

Pippa Passes, Ky.—A grant of $100,000 for construction of a conference center-dining hall has been awarded to Alice Lloyd College by the J. Graham Brown Foundation of Louisville. Announcement of the grant was made by the Brown Foundation and William S. Hayes, ALC president, who said that the proposed facility will be used for symposia and other large and small gatherings to intensify the college's educational and community involvement programs.

The new facility will be called the June Buchanan Conference-Center-Dining Hall in honor of the early associate of Mrs. Alice Lloyd who continues to work with the college and the Caney Creek Community Center. The building's purpose reflects her civic and cultural service to the area.

Because the Conference Center-Dining Hall will be of area-wide civic importance, additional support is being received from many local residents and businesses. Dr. Hayes said that "Alice Lloyd College will strengthen its efforts to provide leadership education in the regional Appalachian community's development."

Alice Lloyd College received the Brown grant because the new facilities are consistent with the Foundation's goals of stimulating community-wide interest. Total cost of the construction, which will utilize the present Alumni Hall building, is estimated at $533,933. According to Dr. Hayes, funding is now within $150,000 of the total cost.

Why Not a Wildflower Garden?

By Neville Shackelford (UK College of Agriculture)

If you have a little nook or other place somewhere on the lawn too shady or otherwise unsuited or growing domesticated flowers, you might find it worthwhile to use this space for wildflowers.

Used wisely, wildflowers can yield a wealth of interest and natural beauty to the surroundings and provide an orderly succession of blooming from early spring until late autumn.

The biggest asset of wildflowers is their hardiness. Those that grow in your area are well adapted to the soil and climate there. It is from these native plants that a wildflower gardener can expect to have the best luck in getting started.

The first step in developing a wildflower garden is to learn as much as possible about the plants and their native habitats. Duplicating each plant's natural conditions encourages good growth and enhances the chances of success. Some need drier soils; some prefer shade; some a lot of sunshine; others require moist rich earth. All this information can be secured by just observing the plants in the places where they are found in their wild state.

Late summer and early fall are the best times to transplant wildflowers. This gives them time to establish their roots before winter closes down. Move wild plants with a large portion of soil about the roots. Wrap burlap about the root ball, and keep the soil moist. Also it will help if extra soil from the same area can be gathered to mix with that of the garden. Most wildflowers are accustomed to slightly acid soil with leaf mold and humus. Add these organic materials to improve soil of wilderness gardens.

Before collecting wild plants, be sure they are in such numbers that taking a few will not threaten the existence of the rest. Also be certain to get permission from the property owner before removing them. Wooded areas or fields being disturbed for highways, housing developments, or croplands are the best places to secure wildflowers. From such places, you will be doing the world a good turn by rescuing these plants from destruction.

Several nurseries specialize in wildflowers which can be ordered by direct mail. In general, plants that grow from bulbs or rootstocks are best for beginners. For the most pleasing effects in developing a wildflower garden, try to achieve a natural setting. Use rocks or logs as backgrounds. If you have a water source, try brookside plants like mint or cardinal flower. For open areas, masses of hardy field flowers like the daisy, wild ageratum, or butterfly weed give lots of beauty and color. For shaded areas, Mayapple, bellwort, adders tongue, violet, and wood geranium will do best.

A well-developed wildflower garden not only lends enchantment to the homestead, but also provides one of the best conversation pieces imaginable. Also it makes a good outdoor classroom for the study of beauty.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

Disasters and Man's Abuse of Nature

A lot of people look upon the recent flood disasters as "acts of God," and say we should accept them stoically and with a sort of helpless resignation.

Not so, say the ecologists. These disasters were brought on man by his crass violation of the laws of nature and the open abuse of her resources—rivers, oceans, earth water and minerals. The rivers of the east, flowing through heavily populated regions, had become so foul they were ripe for cleansing. Their stench rose to the heavens, polluting the earth, and their filth had killed all life in them.

The Potomac River was once the most beautiful of all streams of the U. S.; it was the pride of George Washington, who adored its beauty and built his mansion on its banks. Recently the Potomac was pronounced the filthiest stream in this land, a veritable cesspool of sewage, detergents, garbage and every kind of foul thing imaginable. It would have taken man many years to clean up this river, but the mighty forces of nature did the job in short order.

The rivers of Pennsylvania were clogged with garbage and their beds choked with silt from the bulldozed mountains. Their channels were so choked the floodwaters had nowhere to go except over the banks and to inundate the farms and cities. The Susquehanna River, once a crystal-clear stream, flows through New York, Pa. and empties its garbage into Chesapeake Bay. The Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers, which join to form the Ohio and Pittsburgh, were among the worst polluted streams of that state. Then take the Hudson, which was once fairly worshipped for its scenic beauty; it inspired Washington Irving to write his immortal classic, "The Sketch Book," in which he described the Catskill Mountains overlooking the "lordly Hudson." This river has recently been called one of the dirtiest in all the land—a running cesspool of filth, garbage, detergents and all manner of pollution. These filthy streams cried out to high heaven for relief, for cleansing, and they got it in one of the worst floods in the history of our nation.

This worst flood happened at a time of the worst pollution in the history of our land. Let us consider the source of the flood and its path up the eastern coast. It followed the Atlantic seaboard, alongside the worst-polluted area of the ocean ever known. How have we treated the Atlantic Ocean in the past? It has become the dumping ground for every conceivable form of pollution. Our government has even buried in it dangerous poisonous chemicals, nerve gas, just to get rid of it. We have scattered abroad poisons over our land, such as the deadly DDT, and the ocean is poisoned from one end to the other. We have brought about the death of many of the finest animals at live in the ocean. We have endangered the food supply of the marine animals by destroying much of the plankton on which they depend. Men, greedy after the dollar, have almost wiped out the great sea mammals by cruelly harpooning them; so today great animals like the blue whale are in grave danger of extinction. We have scattered our filth and garbage from the Gulf of Mexico northward to New England and across the Atlantic, so that floating plastic jugs and other cast-off containers are often sighted floating in mid-ocean.

The ocean was created to be a friend and benefactor of man, the main source of his oxygen supply, his rainfall, the highway for his cargoes to go and come. But how has man served his friendly benefactor? He has outraged it by filling it with poison and filth. So it strikes back! The path of the storm that destroyed so much follows the Atlantic Coast alongside the most polluted area of the ocean.

When man abuses nature she has the power to strike back and she will be avenged. Her laws are just and inexorable. When man disregards them and flaunts nature's ways right in her teeth, so to speak, she will strike back and man will learn his costliest lesson: He cannot abuse nature forever and get by.

Take our mountains. They are the stabilizers of the environment, the guardians of the valleys; they were made to bear trees and hold them as keepers of the earth, as homes for wild life. Let man rend them with bulldozers and tear down the trees, and he most surely sows the seed of his future destruction.

Man wants things to go on as they have been going; he doesn't want to stop and take time to clean up the environment; he is too busy making money to take time to clean up the rivers and restore the lands he has ruined with his bulldozers. Not until a great disaster strikes will man stop and think over his mistakes and take steps to remedy them. He begins to realize that he cannot remove the timber ten times faster than nature can replenish it, that he cannot keep on polluting the waters without having to pay severe penalties in disease, misery and suffering.

So I view the great storm, Agnes, that swept up the Atlantic Coast as a mighty protest of the abused and outraged elements—the earth, sky and sea.

You can hardly spot the difference between the interior of the Audi and that of the Mercedes-Benz 280SE.

The Audi gets the same kind of expert service the Volkswagen is famous for. Because your Porsche Audi dealer is part of the VW organization.

The Audi has just about the same headroom and legroom as the Rolls-Royce Silver Shadow.

The Cadillac Eldorado has had front-wheel drive since 1967. The Audi has had it since 1933.

The Audi is shorter than the Lincoln Continental Mark IV but believe it or not, it has just as much trunk space.

The same kind of system that steers the Ferrari 512 racing car, steers the Audi.

The Aston Martin has independent front suspension. So does the Audi.

OPEN LETTER TO ALL CITIZENS

SUBJECT: U.S. Senate Bill S.2507 and other anti-gun legislation

Are you aware that Senate Bill S.2507, also known as the Bayh Bill and the bill to ban "Saturday Night Specials," would ALSO BAN such QUALITY sporting handguns as ALL RUGER and COLT SINGLE ACTION REVOLVERS; ALL SMITH & WESSON and COLT REVOLVERS WITH BARRELS LESS THAN 3 INCHES; MOST 22 AUTOMATIC PISTOLS SUCH AS RUGER and HIGH STANDARD WHICH DO NOT HAVE ADJUSTABLE SIGHTS AND TARGET GRIPS, even those with 6 inch barrels! Are these "Saturday Night Specials?" Hardly!

This bill may come up for Congressional vote very shortly. TIME IS RUNNING OUT. If you oppose these measure write your 2 Senators and your Congressman today stating your opposition to Senate Bill S.2507 and other anti-gun legislation. ASK HIM TO REPLY STATING HIS POSITION ON THIS BILL. Solicit your friends to write their representatives TODAY. Your letters will get results.

THIS IS AN ELECTION YEAR.

Senate Bill S.2507 can be opposed on the following grounds:

- (1) The bill establishes the intent of Congress to ban all handguns not "generally recognized as particularly suitable for sporting purposes." This intent fails to recognize the citizens' need and right for self-defense. This basic right to purchase and own a handgun for self-defense must be supported. (2) The bill's title... to prohibit the sale of domestically produced Saturday Night Special handguns... is a misnomer since this bill prohibits the sale of more models of quality sporting and defense handguns that it does "heap handguns. (3) The bill gives the Secretary of Treasury discretionary power to establish "additional standards." Traditionally such bureaucratic powers have resulted in increased regulation of law abiding citizens with little effect on criminals. (4) The bill will be difficult to enforce since the legality of ownership of handguns with barrels of less than 3 inches will depend on when the barrel was shortened to less than 3 inches! Another nightmare for anyone owning a short barreled handgun. (5) The bill discriminates against the poor since it is an obvious attempt to force the price of "approved" handguns to higher and higher levels. If the goal of Congress is to disarm the poor and underprivileged then they should say so openly!

ACT TODAY. Do not delay. State your opposition by writing your representatives in Congress. Your letters can be addressed as follows:

Senators John Sherman Cooper and Marlow Cook United States Senate Washington, D.C.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins United States House of Representatives Washington, D.C.

THE HEADSTART INCIDENT

I have a feeling, sort of, that this story is on the apocryphal side, but Hassell Tackett, of Pikeville, who told it to me says it came to him as the truth and nothing but. It's supposed to have happened in Pike county.

A new Headstart class had been organized in this community, and the young woman in charge engaged herself, the first day, to become acquainted with each of her charges. She went from seat to seat in the room, quietly telling each child who she was and asking his or her name. All went well till the last boy in the room was encountered.

"I am your teacher," she quietly told him. "Now, let's get your name on this piece of paper here."

"Damit Jones," the boy replied. The teacher bristled. "Why, you — you must not say things like that in the presence of these other children. Now, please, give me your correct name."

"Damit Jones!" came back the clear voice, only a bit louder.

The teacher was fit to be tied. "I will not have such language!" she declared. The boy began to cry, and she relented enough to ask him to go home and bring his mother with him, next morning, so that this matter of his name could be settled.

Next morning, the boy showed up with his birth certificate and a curt note from his mother. His name, indeed, was Damit Jones, no less.

Well, that settled things till the day some weeks later when the supervisor showed up at the class and the teacher began putting the children through their paces. First of all, she called for the Pledge of Allegiance. One child volunteered to lead the group, and the supervisor stood amazed as he intoned the Pledge, loud and clear, while the others joined in.

"This is remarkable," the supervisor declared. "And you have had these children only three weeks."

"They've learned much more. Let me put them through a spelling drill." And as the teacher called each name, a pupil would rise, pronounce a word, spell it, then define it. "River," a large body of water; "creek," a smaller body of water; "horse," an animal, and so on.

Finally, they worked their way down to the Jones young'un, and up he rose to announce:

"That's nothin'—I can spell hippopotamus."

The teacher saw an inglorious ending to the exercise. Said she:

"Now, Damit Jones, you know you can't spell that word."

To which the instructor rejoined: "Hell, lady, give the kid a chance, anyhow."

She recalls: "Mr. Rodgers played the song and 'fed' me the lyrics as Mr. Hammerstein listened. I said that it would be helpful to have the entire thing, so Mr. Rodgers hastily added words...I shall never forget the reaction of the cast when we ran through it—and to hear that tough fellows of our stage crew actually cried opening night was a lovely tribute to the endlessness of the hymn."

The New York critics were enthralled by the production and with Christine Johnson. A tour of the country as well as an international tour gave the world an opportunity to echo the New York raves. Howard Taubman of the New York Times wrote: "Her voice is big, extensive in range...She sings with the imagination of a musician." The Associated Press wrote: "Voice is honest contralto...full of velvet...sings handsomely."

After "Carousel," Miss Johnson retired to another career—that of wife and mother. Despite attempts to lure her back to the New York stage (John Jennings wrote "Riverwind" with her in mind) she has remained in her native Owensboro, Kentucky.

Today, Christine Johnson's original recording of her numbers from "Carousel" are still selling throughout the world. During the run of "No Strings," Richard Rodgers wrote to Miss Johnson: "Somehow a voice like yours doesn't turn up very easily these days but, come to think of it, it was pretty hard to find in 1945 as well."

In addition to CAROUSEL, the theatre is performing "Jenny Wiley!" the musical adventure based on the life of the famed Indian captive on Wednesdays, Fridays, and Sundays. The nationally acclaimed production of "The Grass Harp" plays at Prestonsburg Community College at 2:30 p.m. every Wednesday and Sunday with the exception of August 9.

September session is the Paintsville-Prestonsburg Airport litigation which Judge Brady M. Stewart, of Frankfort, has been designated to hear.

The suit, Paintsville-Prestonsburg Airport Board vs. Galbraith, et al, is concerned with land in and adjacent to the airport.

A Johnson county jury heard the case in 1965, and awarded a total of $258,635 to the landowners involved. That decision was later appealed, reversed, and then the reversal was reversed, returning it to the Johnson court. The 1965 award was for 23.48 acres in the 50-acre airport site and damages to an additional 58.25 adjoining acres, plus interest.

The property was appraised prior to construction of the airport at $25,000.

Other sections of the airport site have been in litigation in federal court.

The pilot project will center on making efficient and effective the educational systems operating in each region by creating greater opportunity for them to use all available means and resources in making possible educational opportunities for the people, it was pointed out.

Besides innovative programs and providing a locally oriented base for regional and statewide long-range educational planning, ROPES is designed to make cooperative buying possible, thus reducing the per-item cost to each participating school system.

Organization of Region 11 was effected at a meeting here recently of all county and city superintendents having a part in the program. State Supt. Ginger and members of his staff met with the school heads and explained the regional concept of education.

Next day, the sheriff and Prestonsburg Policeman "Hack" Thornsby returned to the Baldrige apartment for a second look. Sheriff Leslie said a woman whose name was listed as Janet Green was alone in the apartment at the time and became highly nervous, telling the officers to take "all this Prestonsburg College stuff." Then, he said, she began pointing out items, one of which was a television set, which they had not suspected as being college property.

Listed among the stolen items, in addition to the TV, were a hi-fi, an electric drill, a radio, one unimeter set, a doctor's stethoscope and home economics equipment. Also recovered was the $15 check issued to Baldrige.

Officers said young Little and members of his family were helpful in their efforts to recover missing articles.

School Fund Shift Legal, Hancock Says

Atty. Gen. Ed Hancock says the state Education Department can transfer funds from other categories to finance an unexpectedly large number of special education units this year.

Under a 1972 law, local school districts are seeking state funds for 236 more special education units than are provided in the education budget for this fiscal year. The extra units will cost about $2.5 million above that allotted for them in the Minimum Foundation Program.

The law, which originated as Senate Bill 103, allots one special education unit for each special education teacher hired, thus removing the limit on such units provided in the education budget bill.

Hancock said in his opinion that the 1972 General Assembly, by enacting the separate law, intended to depart from any limitation otherwise written into the state budget.

Apparently the legislature intended to open up that classification, he said, but miscalculated the number of units that would result from such action.

In order to meet the financial impact of the added units, Hancock said the state may transfer allotted funds from elsewhere in the Minimum Foundation Program.

Pupils coming under the exceptional education program include both those who are gifted and those with physical, mental, emotional, or social handicaps.

Receive High Civilian Awards

For outstanding work performance, Ron Brickey (center) and Raymond Copley (right) were presented last Saturday the Sustained Performance Award by Dean Murray (left), Dewey Reservoir manager. The award is one of the highest civilian awards made to federal employees.

"Nothing gives me more pleasure than to present both of these men these awards which they so highly deserve as U. S. Corps of Engineers employees at Dewey Lake," Mr. Murray said.

Health Commissioner William McElwain, M. D., says family planning services should be made available to every Kentuckian by 1975.

Food Costs

By Marie L. Harmon

I often wonder how many dollars we have saved over the past 20 years on our grocery bill, just from growing our own fruit and vegetables.

We spent somewhat less than $10 on seed this year. Next year, it will be considerably less, as I intend to save most of my own this year. I realize this practice is frowned on by the Department of Agriculture, due to the possibility of seeds crossing, but there are no other gardens near mine and, even if there were, we grow the same beans (half-runners), then followed with Kentucky wonderpole beans, these then followed by the old standby cornfield beans. I buy no hybrid seed of any type, so can see no reason why my own seed will not be as good, if not really better.

Being grown in this area, they should be better due to the fact they have become acclimated. Seed stored in an air-tight container, with a pinch of tobacco, there can be no bug or weevil infestation.

This year from the seeds bought, I have to date sold excess beans, cucumbers, summer squash and carrots for more than double the cost of my seed. We have eaten all we need and wanted, gave to neighbors who have no gardens this year, canned up and frozen more than enough to last until the first "mess" from the garden, come spring.

Compare the price of beans, corn, pickles and carrots to the grocery shelves, multiply by 200 per can. That is the amount I figured out that I have saved. There is really no excuse why we the people can't band together, raise our own, then see if the cost of food doesn't come down to where the few unfortunate ones, who for one reason or another can't raise a garden, can buy their food for a near-decent price.

The farmer is not the one to blame for high food prices, even though he is the one stuck with the blame. He pays the same high price for his seed, fertilizer, etc. as we do. He in return has to sell his products at a price way below wholesale. The dozens and dozens of middlemen are the ones who are not only to blame for the high costs—they make sure they KEEP it high. We can help by buying all we need from the local farmers while it is still fresh enough to can or freeze. Try it.

Gov. Wendell Ford has approved a $650,000 federal grant to the Southern Cooperative Development Fund which will offer loans to minority-owned low-income cooperatives in nine southern states, including Kentucky.

Highlands Festival Designed To Keep Mountain Traditions Alive

By Helen Price Stacy

If you have a tall tale you want to tell, if you play folk music, sing the old ballads, airs and lilts or if your thing is making dolls from corn shucks, powder horns from cow horns or long rifles from native timber—the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival at Prestonsburg, Sept. 1-3, is the place to be. "Our festival is an annual event whose purpose is to help preserve and encourage the continued use and enjoyment of our Appalachian folk traditions," said Mrs. Edith James, of Prestonsburg, founder and director of the festival.

An interesting part of the seventh annual event will be an exhibit of traditional arts and crafts. "Usually when a guest views the handcrafts," explains Mrs. James, "he turns to a companion with: 'pshaw, I could have done that. Why didn't I try it?'"

One of the charms of mountain folk craft is its simplicity, believes the director.

"Home was a simple place in the days of early settlement. It might not have seemed so to the good-wife inclined to fret at her many chores and tasks, but she always found a way."

In olden days, when sheep were shorn, the wool, picked clean and carded, was spun into yarn on a large spinning wheel or a smaller flax wheel.

"Then, when the yarn was dyed with walnut hulls or tree bark, it was ready to be knitted into yarn socks and other articles of clothing or woven into coverlets," Mrs. James said. "Frequently, the mother would have a bit of wool left in the ball of yarn, and this she tied into a tiny yarn doll to please the hearts of her young daughters. Yarn and string dolls and tiny hand-carved delights which parents made from wood with a pocket knife were the toys of the frontier."

In addition to crafts displays, artists will show paintings and prints in keeping with traditions of the highlands.

The festival will take place in the amphitheatre at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, where a large stage affords musicians and dancers all the room needed to perform.

Here, where some still refer to songs of the old country as ballads, the park amphitheatre will ring and echo with the music of the hills. Musicians will play banjos, guitars and dulcimers; even a handmade gourd fiddle.

The plaintive songs brought to the Kentucky Highlands by immigrants from England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland as well as folksongs from Germany and other countries will have their place in the festival program.

Mrs. James is widely known as an authority on folk traditions of the Appalachians. She is knowledgeable in the old way of "lining" a hymn, with the leader speaking a line of a song and the congregation singing the line until the hymn is finished. She knows the old-time manner of chanting, and each year directs the Jenny Wiley Singers in a program of ancient chants.

"Here is an opportunity for singers, dancers, tale tellers, poets, musicians, artists and craftsmen to gather and share the lore of the southern Mountains," she said. "Our aim is to preserve and encourage the continued use of the traditional expressions of our people."

Two evenings will be devoted to music of Appalachia and on Saturday afternoon poets will gather for a "Poet's Corner" and workshop for regional writers.

Sunday afternoon will be highlighted by a program of religious music dating back to one of the earliest known forms of worship demonstrated by a rhythmic choir. Well-known mountain hymns, as well as modern church music, will be enjoyed.

"Our cultural heritage is one of our most precious possessions," Mrs. James emphasizes. "We cannot allow it to pass away through disinterest or neglect on our part. We believe the people of the highlands have much to offer in the way of arts, crafts, music and other culture."

Summer Theatre To Present 'Appalachia, My Sorrow' Here

Pippa Passes, Ky.—"I see a play for voices as just that..."
So begins "Appalachia, My Sorrow," a unique theatre experience to be presented to the people of the Prestonsburg area, August 18.

The Appalachian Summer Theatre at Alice Lloyd College is producing this collection of Appalachian dramas written by Lee Pennington, a former professor at Southeast Community College. Mr. Pennington was born in the mountains and he, as few other authors have been able to do, recreates the spirit of the mountains and the mountain people in the hearts of his audience. His work captures this spirit of sorrow, determination, humility and strength. Only those who can remember the wind's songs, the corn fields, the summer farms, and the winter snows will know how clearly Mr. Pennington has been able to portray these memories in his three scripts: "Appalachia, My Sorrow," "The Porch," and "The Spirit of Poor Fork."

The director, Gary Johnson, also remembers the wind he heard while growing up on a small farm near Ligon, in this county. He has wistfully recalled these sounds in his production of "Appalachian, My Sorrow," which includes all three of Pennington's scripts. The play will be presented free of charge at 8:00 p.m. Friday, August 18, in the Prestonsburg grade school auditorium.

"Appalachia, My Sorrow" is the last production of a very successful season for the Appalachian Summer Theatre at Alice Lloyd College. The Summer Theatre has already welcomed over 3,500 area residents at its productions of "Wizard of Oz," "Alice in Wonderland," "Trail of the Lonesome Pine," "The Magic Pouch," and, now, "Appalachia, My Sorrow."

Funds allocated for the School Lunch Program by the 1972 legislature should be shared by parochial schools, the attorney general's office says. Assistant Atty. Gen. Carl Miller, who wrote the opinion, noted that since counties provide free transportation for parochial schools, "the state may provide a contribution" to the lunch program of such schools.

Wins Camp Crescendo Awards

Miss Benita Joy Riley, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Niagara Riley, of Wheelwright, recently completed a week of twirling and competition at Camp Crescendo, Lebanon Junction, Ky., and while there placed in all contests entered. She was chosen to be one of the ten finalists in the Miss Crescendo contest out of 150 girls at the camp.

A Mobile Home Electric Range Cooks Cleaner!

Living in a mobile home can be great! But it can also be smoky, greasy and uncomfortable if you don't cook with a clean, flameless electric range. An electric range cooks with heat, not fire. And the heat isn't wasted in the form of smoke, flames, or just plain hot air all around the kitchen.

You won't have to worry about unsightly fuel tanks, pilot lights, or gas lines when you cook with electricity. It gives you such peace of mind, and your kitchen area stays cooler. It's all done with clean flameless electricity. And it's economical!

Contact your appliance dealer about an efficient electric range for your mobile home. Make sure your convenient life stays convenient. Cook electrically!

Electricity — the cleanest energy you can use.

5,000 4-H'ers May Participate In Kentucky State Fair Events

More than 5,000 4-H young people are expected to take part in Kentucky State Fair events, Aug. 14-26, sending examples of their project work to be judged at the Fair or going to Louisville themselves to participate in the special 4-H activities scheduled during the Fair.

State "finals" in many 4-H activities are held at the Fair each year, with state champions in these activities selected from among top junior and senior winners in each Extension Area. These include several 4-H demonstrations and judging contests and the state 4-H tractor operators' contest. Most of these 4-H events are divided into junior and senior divisions, giving junior members (those under 14 years of age) a chance to compete against their own age group while older 4-H'ers take part in separate contests.

Most of the 4-H events will be open to the public. These will show Fair-goers the wide variety of activities available to 4-H members and the accomplishments of the 4-H'ers taking part in these activities, according to state 4-H Department staff members with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture's Cooperative Extension Service.

The 4-H events at the Fair also illustrate two of the major differences between the modern 4-H program and the traditional idea of 4-H, the 4-H staff members point out. Although 4-H began as a program for rural youth, it now offers projects and activities to interest any young person, no matter where he or she lives. And 4-H participants at the Fair will be urban as well as rural youth from throughout the state.

Also, in the early days of 4-H, the center of attention was on the project or the products of the project, such as a prize-winning calf or dress. Today's 4-H program emphasizes development of the individual young person, providing an opportunity for growth in leadership, citizenship and knowledge through both projects and activities. This can be seen at the Fair in those events where the 4-H'ers themselves are judged rather than—or in addition to—finished products of their projects.

The major 4-H events that Fair-goers may want to see include the following: The 4-H Fashion Revues and 4-H Variety Shows to be presented during the Fair will be of special interest, although they are not contests in which winners will be selected. The Fashion Revues, scheduled Saturday, Aug. 19, and Sunday, Aug. 20—at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. each day on the Round Stage in the East Wing—will feature those girls selected as finalists in state 4-H Fashion Revue competition earlier this summer. These 60 girls—15 in each Revue—will model the award-winning outfits made in their 4-H clothing projects. Taking part in the 4-H Variety Shows on Friday and Saturday nights, Aug. 18-19, will be the club and speciality talent acts that won top honors in area 4-H Variety Shows earlier this year. The shows will be held in New Market Hall at 7:30 p.m. each night.

The state 4-H Horse Show will be held in Freedom Hall before the official opening of the fair—English classes on Monday, Aug. 14, and Western classes on Tuesday, Aug. 15. Other 4-H livestock events include Holsteins and Guernseys shows on Thursday, Aug. 17, in Freedom Hall; on Friday, Aug. 18, showing of Jerseys, Ayrshires and Brown Swiss in Freedom Hall and the sheep show in the West Wing's Sheep Barn; the swine show on Saturday, Aug. 19, in the Swine Barn, West Wing; and the beef show on Wednesday, Aug. 23, in the West Wing. In addition, a 4-H Dog Show will be held Sunday, Aug. 20.

State 4-H demonstration competition, for both juniors and seniors, is scheduled for Aug. 16-19, at several different locations on the Fairgrounds. A schedule of times and locations of the different demonstration contests will be available at the 4-H Office in the East Wing.

Demonstration competition will be held in 12 different subject areas: safety, photography, health, entomology, horticulture, agriculture engineering, home management, home furnishings, clothing, agronomy, animal science, and general. All the 4-H'ers competing in these contests are area winners in the different demonstration divisions.

Several state 4-H judging contests are scheduled during the Fair—foods and home furnishings judging on Thursday, Aug. 17; clothing judging on Friday, Aug. 18; and on Tuesday, Aug. 24, poultry, meats, and land judging. In these 4-H judging events, the participants qualify for the state contest by attending special judging workshops at different locations in the state. The state 4-H tobacco grading contest also will be held at the Fair Wednesday, Aug. 23.

In addition, the finals of the state 4-H dairy and meat animal judging contest are scheduled during the Fair. In each of these contests the senior 4-H'ers who scored highest in state competition at the University of Kentucky will come to the Fair for a final round of judging. And, in each contest, the individuals who have the highest total score in this final competition will represent Kentucky in national dairy or meat animal judging contests later this year. The dairy judging event is scheduled for Monday, Aug. 21, and the meat animal judging competition on Wednesday, Aug. 23.

Fair-goers also will see the colorful 4-H project exhibits in the East Wing. On display throughout the Fair will be 4-H members' exhibits in home economics (clothing, knitting, foods, food preservation, and home furnishings); photography; entomology; electricity; geology; fossils; woodcraft; tobacco; and forestry.

Holdup of Bank At Elkhorn City 4th Since April

The Elkhorn City branch of the Citizens Bank of Pikeville became last Friday the fourth Eastern Kentucky bank to be robbed since last April.

A lone man, masked with a stocking pulled over his head, robbed the bank of an estimated $9,000 and fled afoot when, demanding car keys, he discovered that all the bank employees had walked to work.

First of the series of bank robberies in this section was that of the Martin branch of the First National Bank here. The bandit in that robbery escaped with about $14,000 and has never been captured. In June the Pikeville National Bank and Trust Company was the target of an unsuccessful robbery attempt. Last month, the First and People's Bank of Russell was hit.

The Elkhorn City robbery was staged at 1:50 p.m., 10 minutes before closing time. "He walked in here and told them to fill up the bag," Dallas Layne, bank loan officer, said Layne had been sitting in his office in the rear of the bank when the man entered.

Layne said that the man appeared extremely nervous when he approached Otto Sykes, branch manager and head teller. "Judging by his voice, I would say he was from this part of the country, but his voice wasn't natural—too nervous," he said.

After being handed the money, the robber demanded car keys from the six to eight customers who were in the bank at the time.

"It seemed that everyone had walked to the bank. No one had keys," said the banker. "Someone finally said 'You're just going to have to run for it,'" he continued. It was believed that the on-foot gunman may have gone to the banks of the Russell Fork of the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River. He was described as being short and small, weighing about 130 lbs.

State Police at Pikeville and the FBI are investigating.

The Floyd circuit court will resume trial of criminal cases with the opening of the next court term, Sept. 5, after summer sessions which have been restricted mainly to the hearing of civil suits.

The grand jury session may be one of more than usual interest, since it is expected to undertake a probe into the mystery slayings of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley at Garrett and Clayton Conley, near Wayland. Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo, who suffered a heart attack recently, is expected to be able to resume work with the grand jury and court.

Car Rolls into Lake, Pettrey Has 'Close Call'

Bill Pettrey, of Prestonsburg, had a narrow escape from drowning last Tuesday noon when his automobile rolled backward into Dewey Lake at the Jenny Wiley boat dock.

Mr. Pettrey had finished feeding the ducks at the dock and was ready to drive home when suddenly the water appeared to be approaching rather than receding from view as he attempted to drive away. The brakes failed to respond—perhaps, he thinks, because the car is all-electric and the motor may have died. The window at his side was open, however, and as the car still floated in the water he contived to climb outside and scramble onto the hood. The car sank in about 10 feet of water.

Citrullus Vulgaris (What a Name!), Africa's Contribution To Eating Joy

By Nevyle Shackelford (UK College of Agriculture)
Of all products from trucks and garden patches, probably no fruit or vegetable grown enjoys greater popularity than the watermelon. Its culture goes back to prehistoric times and, as evidenced by pictures that still survive, the watermelon was grown by ancient Egyptians and other peoples about the Mediterranean and as far east as India.
This long and general culture, which stretched from North Africa to middle Asia, led to the botanical belief that the watermelon was of Asiatic origin. But finally in 1854, the great missionary-explorer, David Livingstone, settled the question of its genesis. While traveling about in central Africa, he found large patches of watermelons growing truly wild.

Historical records reveals that, to an important extent, watermelons have been grown for thousands of years in Asia Minor, the Near East, Middle East, and the warmer parts of Russia in the wide range of sizes, shapes, and colors we know today. These include yellow, white, and red-fleshed melons with white, red, brown, black, and speckled seeds.

Undoubtedly, it was also grown in all European countries for hundreds of years before being brought to North America by the first colonists. Early writings show it was being produced in Massachusetts in 1629, and when Father Marquette was probing the wilderness along the Mississippi River, in 1673, he found Indians growing watermelons in great numbers.
In America, the watermelon is used almost entirely as a dessert item of food, eaten fresh and cold much after the fashion of a musician playing a mouth organ. Sometimes the rind is made into preserves and pickles. The seeds are used only for planting.

In other countries, it is used in still other ways. In Russia, for example, the juice is boiled down to make sugar and syrup. Also, the juice is fermented into a particularly potent beer. In Egypt and elsewhere in Africa, the flesh of the melon is not only a staple food and animal feed, but also in some dry districts, an important source of water. In parts of Asia, watermelon slices are preserved for eating by pickling in brine and the seed are roasted and salted and eaten like peanuts.

Although some gardeners say a watermelon will cross with a pumpkin or a squash, C. R. Roberts, Extension horticulturist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, says this isn't likely. It will cross, however, with a citron, which is nothing more than a hard, white-fleshed watermelon, good only for preserving. Cross-pollination with a citron will do no harm, Roberts notes, unless seed from such a cross-pollination flower is planted. Such seed will produce mixed melons of poor quality.

Seedless watermelons have been produced in recent years and seeds of this variety are now available from most seed houses. But this type melon requires extra care and attention in growing and so far has not become widespread.

Nevertheless, even with its numerous seed, the watermelon—all the way from the tiny icebox midgets to the magnificent Tom Watsons—is a delightful, refreshing taste treat. Comparatively easy to grow, it has universal popularity.

Where Have all the Farmers Gone?

Where have the family farmers gone? Probably to town. And what did they do with their land? More than likely they sold it to a neighbor who was consolidating his spread into a farm factory.
Leastwise this seems to be the case from statistics recently compiled by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Bureau of Census, according to Milton D. Shuffett, agricultural economist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.
In the last 51 years, according to these statistics, the number of people living on American farms has dropped from 32 million to just under 10 million. Today, only 1 out of 21 Americans is on a farm.
At the same time, the 6.5 million farms averaging 147 acres in 1929 have been combined into 2.7 million averaging 389 acres. The Nation's total farm fields and pastures, however, have increased from 956 million acres to 1,118 million acres.

And what has been the result? Last year, the American farmer still on the job produced enough food and other products for 47 people, about 40 at home and 7 abroad, Shuffett pointed out. Ten years ago, he supplied the agricultural needs of about 26.

were driving 3.5 million cars, and by 1971, over 3 million trucks and pickups.
So as the statistics show, things have, and still are, changing drastically "down on the farm." There are fewer farmers, but bigger farm—mechanized farms highly tuned to efficiency, cost accounting, market trends, and scientific management. These new-type farms make up the world's finest food production system, with the farmers running them playing a leading role in conquering mankind's oldest enemies—hunger and malnutrition.
Food is the first law of life, and the first claim any society has on its resources is to keep its people well-fed and productive. American agriculture, in its transition from the old to the new way of farm life, is proving dramatically its ability to fulfill that vital law, Shuffett concluded.

During 1971, the number of minority youths registered in Labor Department apprentice programs rose 13 percent, or 2,337, reaching an all-time high of 20,482.

If the number of family farms is on the decline, so are the animals around the barn. While not yet at the point of becoming a vanishing species, the statistics show that milk cows are much fewer in number. At the present time the Nation's dairy herd of 12.3 million head is only half the size it was at the end of World War II. Sheep flocks total 18.5 million head, compared with 44.9 million just after the Civil War. Man-made cloth has blanketed much of the wool industry and many sheepmen of the Old West have become cattlemen.
As work animals, horses and mules may be found only on big Western ranches. The last time they were counted (in 1959) there were 3 million—about three-fourths as many as in 1840, but far less than the all-time peak of 1915 when there were 27 million of these animals on American farms.
With horses now mostly pleasure animals, their use as means of conveyance is almost nonexistent. In 1965 farmers

OPINION REVERSED

Atty. Gen. Ed Hancock, reversing an opinion by his predecessor, says State Auditor Mary Louise Foust has the authority to audit the Kentucky State Racing Commission and the Trotting Commission. Miss Foust began an audit of the commissions in 1970, but then Atty. Gen. John B. Breckinridge ruled "an expenditure of state funds (for that purpose) would be illegal."

Gassification To Clean Coal, Industry Future Held Bright

The coal industry has a bright future, despite all its ups and downs, air pollution and other environmental problems.

Its contribution to contamination of the atmosphere is being met. Coal, which emits sulphur and other objectionable pollutants, will simply be converted to gas, which has no such emissions.

The following excerpts from COAL NEWS, published by the National Coal Association, covers some of the progress being made by the industry toward a fuel which is "clean" and which can be expected to be in greater demand as the supply of oil and gas is depleted:

"The Office of Coal Research this week released an engineering evaluation of a conceptual coal conversion plant using the Consol Synthetic Fuel (CSF) process to convert high-sulfur Eastern coal to a synthetic fuel of less than 0.3 per cent sulfur by weight.

"The evaluation, including economic feasibility, was prepared by Foster Wheeler Corp. based on previous work performed for OCR. To compete with petroleum fuel residual prices (f.o.b. plant), the CSF process would have to use coal priced at about 23 cents per million Btu, which is much lower than the price of coal from new mines in the East, the report said.

"The CSF process produces a coal extract, using hydrogenated solvents derived from the coal, which is then hydrogenated to produce gas and liquid fuels. The hydrogen required is generated from the unextracted coal char. Sulfur and ammonia are recovered as byproducts."

"Bituminous Coal Research, Inc., NCA's research affiliate, this week announced the selection of Stearns-Roger, Inc., of Denver, Colo., to engineer, build and operate the coal-to-pipeline gas conversion pilot plant in Indiana County, Pa., that will be based on a process developed by BCR under sponsorship of the Office of Coal Research, Department of the Interior.

"The pilot plant project is part of a broad multipurpose research effort funded two-thirds by OCR and one-third by the American Gas Association. Construction, costing about $18,000,000, will take approximately 18 to 24 months and will be followed by approximately three years of operation, BCR said.

"The government and the gas industry are endeavoring to accelerate the development of processes to convert coal to clean pipeline-quality gas to supplement the nation's dwindling natural gas supply.

"In the... process, pulverized coal in a stream of oxygen and steam at high heat and high pressure is converted in a two-step process into a clean gas which is completely interchangeable with natural gas. The process, developed at small scale in the coal industry's laboratory at Monroeville, Pa., is relatively simple in concept. The purpose of the pilot plant is to prove the concept at a size which will provide data for the design of a commercial plant. The pilot plant will process 5 tons of coal per hour to produce 100 thousand cubic feet of clean pipeline-quality gas per hour. A commercial plant would use 12,000 tons of coal per day to produce 250 million cubic feet of clean pipeline-quality gas per day."

P'burg General Is Re-Accredited

Chalmer H. Frazier, administrator of the Highlands Hospital Corp., has been informed by the Board of Commissioners of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals that Prestonsburg General Hospital had been accredited for a period of two years. The accreditation was the result of a survey by Dr. Everett A. King, field representative of the Commission.

The notification statement added: "The Commission wishes to commend you for maintaining standards deserving of accreditation and for your continuing efforts to improve the quality of patient care."

Mr. Frazier said he was pleased that the Joint Commission found that the hospital continued to meet the high standards for accreditation so that the people of the service area would continue to be served by an accredited hospital.

FIRST AND FOREMOST

If you've been wondering where your money goes, plan a budget, first and foremost. That's the only way to really know. Plan ahead instead of worrying after. Set aside so much for food, housing, clothing, etc. Then set aside some for yourself. That's right, for yourself. Save a little each payday (the experts say 15 percent of earnings.) but whether it's 5 percent, 10 percent, 15 percent or whatever, start with something. Add to it regularly, in pre-planned amounts. Then later you can increase that amount as you can afford it. Then you're on your way to financial security. See the folks at the friendly First National.

The birds, animals & flowers are dying to tell us...

“Give a hoot, don’t pollute.”

Everywhere you look, our environment is being threatened by pollution. Wild flowers along our roadsides are being picked rather than admired.

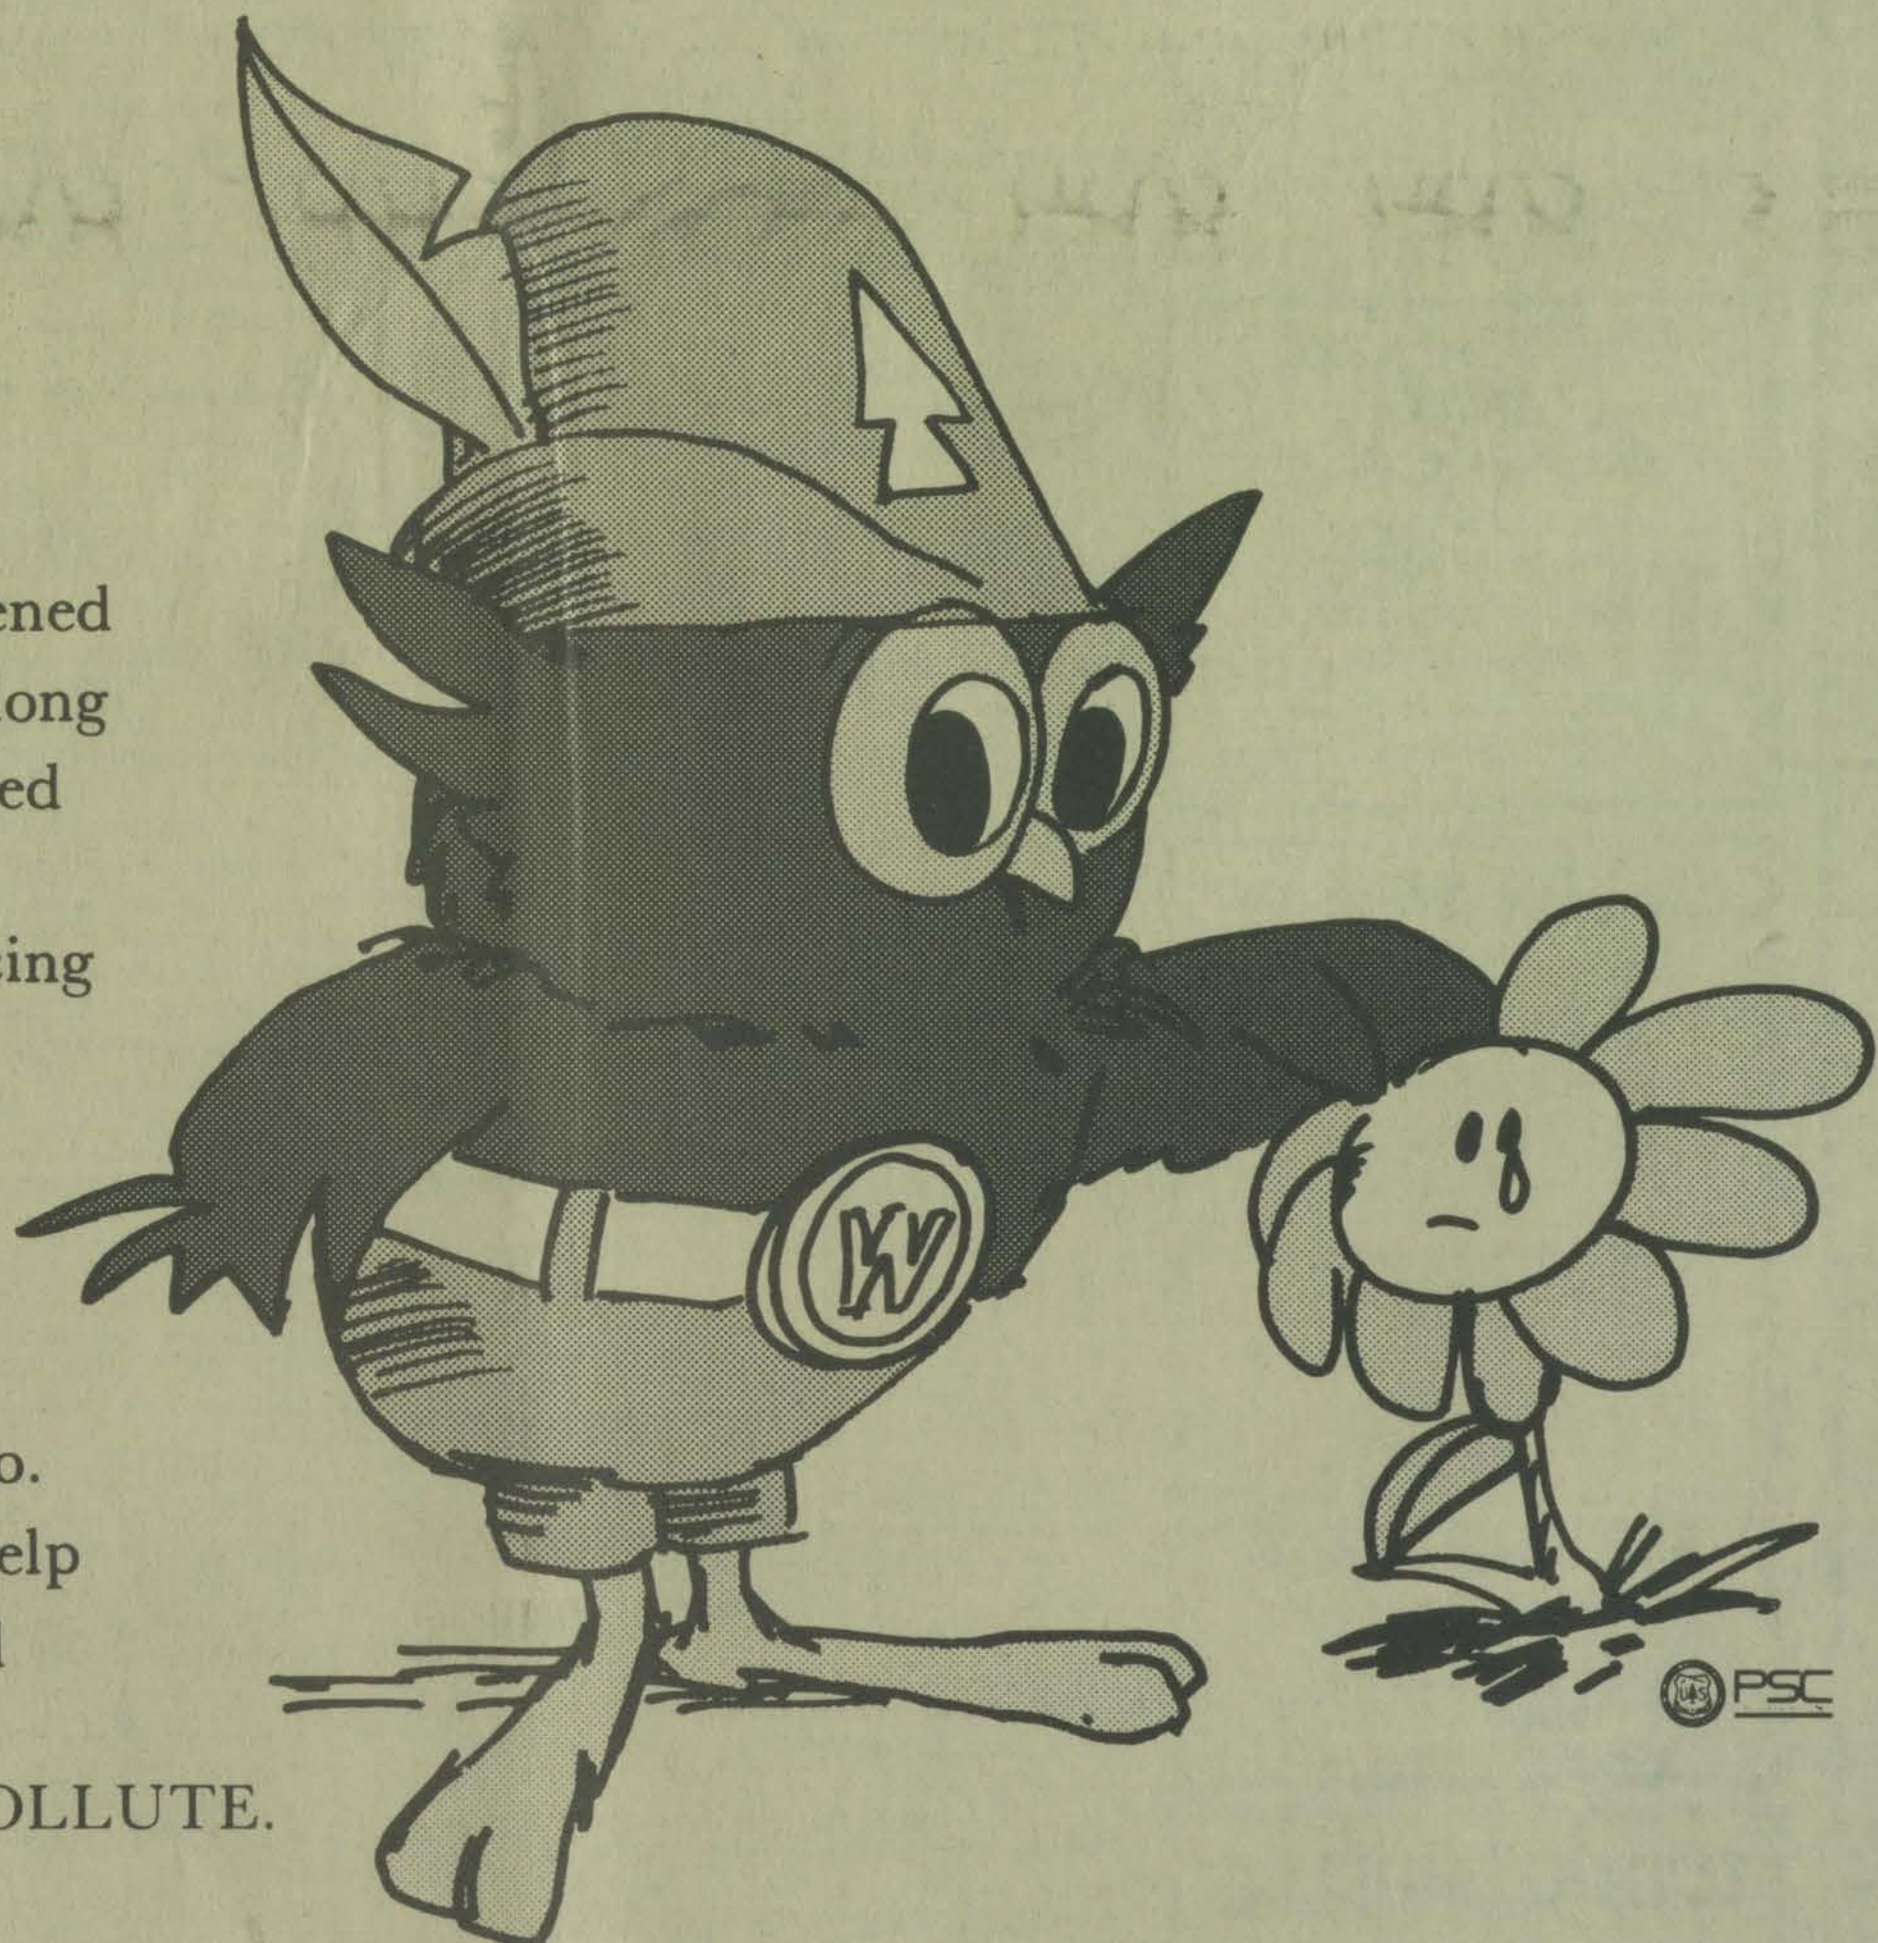

Smog is killing trees, it’s forcing birds to find new homes.

Fish are running out of clean water. Just what’s being done about it?

A lot. But we’ve got a lot more to do, a long way to go.

Let’s all do our part. And help keep the birds, animals, and flowers alive.

150 Southern States Members Attend Annual Meeting Here

Donald Hicks, of West Prestonsburg, receives new Board Member pin from Jesse Wallen, board chairman, at Southern States Cooperative meeting here.

Donald Hicks, of West Prestonsburg, and Ernest Prater, of David, were elected to the local advisory board at the Southern States annual membership meeting of Prestonsburg Farm and Home Store, July 21st. More than 150 stockholder-members and their families attended the session.

Jesse Wallen, of Prestonsburg, was named chairman of the board and James R. Shepherd, of West Prestonsburg, was elected secretary.

Elected to the local Southern States Farm Home Advisory Committee were Mrs. Billie Merritt, of West Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Junior Wells, of Prestonsburg. Mrs. Wells named chairman of the committee, while Mrs. Grace Conley, of West Prestonsburg, was named secretary.

Donald Hicks was chosen as a delegate to represent the local membership at the Southern States Cooperative's 49th annual stockholders' meeting in Richmond, Va., November 14 and 15. Jesse Wallen was named alternate.

Elected delegate and alternate to a district election meeting to be held at Jenny Wiley State Park this fall were John Wallen and Jesse Wallen.

One of the highlights of the meeting was a report on local operations and the service rendered to agriculture. The report was given by Kenneth Meade, manager of the Prestonsburg Farm and Home Store. He reported that total volume for the agency for the past fiscal year was about the same as last year and that Southern States Cooperative would pay a 1.2 per cent refund to its patron-members this year.

Food Stamp Office Disqualifies Grocer

A Fishtrap, Ky. food store, Chaney's Grocery, has been disqualified from the federal food stamp for violations, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service reports.

Owned by Mrs. Glema Chaney, the food store was disqualified for one year, starting July 24, after being charged with redeeming USDA food coupons accepted in violation of the food stamp regulations.

An FNS regional official explained that the owner may apply for reinstatement of the store in the food stamp program to take effect at or after the end of the disqualification period. Until the store is reinstated, however, he said it may not accept food coupons. Food stamps, by law, can be used only to buy food, he added.

Since 1969, the number of minority apprentices registered with the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training increased by 9,500—or 86 percent—from 11,000 to 20,500.

'Alice' Surmounts Handicaps To Play At Martin School

Pippa Passes, Ky.—Although they are young, the cast went "on with the show" in spite of numerous handicaps and the first public showing of the Martin Community Children's Theatre production, "Alice in Wonderland," was presented July 22 in the Martin high school auditorium.

Handicapped by the loss of the Duchess, due to a sprained ankle, and a subsequent shortage of stagehands, the cast nonetheless presented a memorable performance. With the injured Duchess back in the show and the "opening-night" worries out of the way, the second performance on Saturday, July 29, was even more professional as the talented young actors gained experience.

The play, directed by Miss Barbara Baker of the Appalachian Summer Theatre, will have only one more performance this summer. The play will be presented, free of charge, at 2:30 Saturday, August 12, at the Martin school.

The Martin Community Children's Theatre is a new experience for both the Appalachian Summer Theatre at Alice Lloyd College and for the people of Martin. The Summer Theatre has provided the director, Miss Baker, and technical assistants Larry Tuttle and Dorothy Howard. The cast, on the other hand, was chosen after tryouts from a group of young people from the Martin community.

Members of the Summer Theatre hope that if the response to this type of community-based theatre is favorable, it will be possible to involve other communities next summer.

IN MEMORIAM

In Memory of Ollie Wallen, who passed away Aug. 1, 1964:

The moon and the stars are shining on a lonely, silent grave
Where lies the one I dearly loved and tried so hard to save
But I know you'll be waiting at the gateway bright and fair
An I'll meet you some glad morning and join you over there
Friends may think I have forgotten, for few have seen me weep
I shed my tears with an aching heart while others are fast asleep
Forty years we spent together
God was good to let it be
You were such a sweet companion and so very good to me
So looking back in tenderness along the path we trod
I cherish the years I spent with you and leave the rest to God.

HIS WIFE,
MATTIE M. WALLEN

In the first quarter of 1972, job listing with the U. S. Employment Service totaled 1,436,000 compared with 1,257,100 in the same 1971 period.

Ferrell Successor To Chief Executive Post With Columbia

William W. Ferrell has succeeded James S. Phillips as chief executive officer of Columbia Gas of West Virginia, Inc., and Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc., while continuing to hold the position of president.

Mr. Phillips retired August 1, having been chairman of the board of the two Charleston-based Columbia Gas System companies. He will continue to serve as a director.

A third Columbia company, Columbia Gas of Virginia, Inc., had its board meeting August 4. Mr. Phillips has been chairman and chief executive officer of it also, and Mr. Ferrell is its president.

A Boone County native, Mr. Ferrell was born in Danville, W. Va., on March 9, 1924. He attended Georgetown College, Georgetown, Ky., following World War II military duty with the U. S. Naval Reserve, he graduated from West Virginia University in 1949 with a B. S. degree in oil and gas engineering.

His first taste of the natural gas industry came during summer employment on drilling rigs contracting for the former United Fuel Gas Company. Upon graduation from WVU he became a junior engineer in the company's engineering department.

His progress was marked by promotions in 1951 to engineer in the staff engineering department, in 1955 to production engineer in the production department, in 1956 to assistant superintendent and in 1959 to superintendent.

In 1962 he was elected vice president in charge of operation of Columbia's Charleston-based companies, as they then existed. He was elevated to senior vice president in 1967 in charge of all functions except legal and public relations, which remained under Mr. Phillips, then president.

On December 19, 1968, Mr. Phillips was made chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the companies. Mr. Ferrell succeeded him as president.

Prater Retires, Lowe Promoted

He is married to the former Vina Stambaugh and they and their niece, Carol, reside on their farm, near Hueysville.

Mr. Lowe

Arnold Lowe, former construction foreman for Inland, was promoted to the post of production superintendent vacated by Mr. Prater. Mr. Lowe began work with Inland as a truck driver in 1943, later became supply clerk and remained in that position till his promotion in 1952 to construction foreman.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowe, the former Alma Reffett, reside at Langley and are the parents of three sons and one daughter.

American Standard Has New Manager

Mr. Hulsmann

Jim Hulsmann, former industrial relations manager of American Standard's Louisville complex, has been appointed plant manager of American Standard's plumbing fittings plant at Paintsville, effective August 15.

The appointment was announced by Edward M. Thoben, general operations manager for the fittings and accessories division of American Standard's Western Hemisphere Plumbing and Heating Group.

Mr. Hulsmann, a 36-year-old Louisville native, joined American Standard in 1959, and has served as industrial relations manager for the company's former Plumbing Products Division as well as at the two Louisville plants. He holds both bachelors and masters degrees from the University of Louisville, and has taught personnel management courses at the University.

Mr. Hulsmann, his wife Betty, and their five children, Mark, 14, David, 13, Steve, 10, Tod, 8, and Lynn, 4, will soon move to Paintsville.

The two-year-old Paintsville plant employs nearly 700 persons in the manufacture of plumbing fittings featuring the revolutionary ceRamix water control valve, which operates without washers and virtually without wear.

A strike at American Standard's Louisville plant, which supplies parts to the Paintsville plant, resulted in the layoff of a number of workers in this area. The strike has now ended, however, and the Paintsville plant is returning employees to work.

New Strip Mine Regulations Proposed by Governor Ford

Gov. Wendell Ford has proposed two new strip mine regulations to limit the size of silt dams and speed up the reseeded of mined sites.

The new regulations would:

1. Set a 20-foot maximum height for all silt dams, requiring operators to build several small dams rather than one large structure at the base of the hollow.
2. Require seeding of strip-mined sites, including access roads, within five days after back grading has been finished.

Natural Resources Commissioner Tom Harris, explaining the new regulations at a press conference, said the limitation on dam size would prevent dams such as the one which broke last spring in West Virginia.

Under the new rule, responsibility for such dams would be shifted from the state Division of Water to the Reclamation Division.

University of Kentucky scientists say some state burley farmers still are using DDT, TDE and other insecticides now banned by the federal government for use on tobacco. Experts said continued use of the chemicals could affect Kentucky's overseas markets since some countries are placing strict limits on insecticide residues in tobacco they import.

Harris said the change would free coal operators from having to deal with two different state agencies.

He said the five-day reseeded requirement will aid reclamation because "when you wait longer than four months (for reseeded), acidic conditions develop that make it impossible to get vegetation."
