

Four Towns And County Get $161,527 Judge Says County To Wail Information On Use of Its Share

Floyd county and its four incorporated population centers received this week a total of $161,527 in federal revenue sharing funds.

Lion's share of the federal funds went to the county. County Judge Henry Stumbo announced Monday that he had received a check for $99,398.

Prestonsburg received $44,220; Wheelwright, $10,247; Wayland, $4,962, and Martin, $2,700.

The checks received this week, it was said, represent revenue sharing for the first six months of 1972. Checks for the last six months of the year are expected early next year but they may be in smaller amounts.

The revenue sharing program, as adopted by Congress, is to be in effect for five years.

County Judge Stumbo said here Monday that he and the fiscal court will move slowly on spending of revenue sharing funds. He pointed out that he will first want to know exactly the purposes for which these funds may be expended. Budget forms and information from D. M. Magill, state finance officer, also will be awaited.

"We will not squander this money on this small project and that," Judge Stumbo said. What these funds achieve will be a later object of study by the federal government, and Floyd county hopefully will have something worthwhile to show for what it has received, he added.

He earlier indicated that repair of the courthouse roof and implementation of a solid waste program for the county will receive most of the funds in the first allocation. He said courthouse repair is necessary, if the county is to have a courthouse, and solid waste disposal is something which is important to every resident of the county.

Martin Nabbed As Transporter

The lone liquor arrest reported within the week was that of Kermit Martin, of McDowell, who was captured at Martin last Thursday by State Trooper Danny Stumbo and charged with transporting alcoholic beverages.

Martin executed bond in Martin police court. The intoxicants listed as having been taken from an auto which he was driving included two cases of whiskey, a case of vodka and several cases of beer.

Sonny Rister and a juvenile were booked at the jail here last Tuesday by State Trooper A. C. Cantrell on a grand larceny count after they had allegedly taken two tires and wheels from the Big Y Auto Sales at Martin. Kenneth Ray Isaacs was arrested two days later by County Detective Sam Hale on a charge of breaking and entering the home of Lizzie Tackett at Grethel. Mrs. Tackett accused him of taking a shotgun and pillow cases.

Two federal prisoners were jailed here last Thursday, by U. S. Deputy Marshal Stewart Combs. They are Elzie Hinkle, charged with violation of the federal explosive law, and Carl Reisner, who is accused of mail fraud.

Others booked at the county jail within the week, charges against each and names of arresting officers follow:

Charles E. Perkins, drunk driving, by Park Ranger Kilgore; Freddie Bush, drunk driving, by State Trooper Stumbo; Leroy Hamilton, reckless driving, by Deputy Sheriff Willie Hall; Jimmy Martin, no operator's license, by Deputy Sheriff Willie Hall; Jimmy Martin, no operator's license, by Deputy Sheriffs Willie Hall and James Skeans; Alfred Bentley, drunk driving by Deputies Hall and Skeans; Colin Dingus, drunk driving, by Policemen Bill Potter and Keith Lawson; James Adron Kennard, arrested on warrant charging drunk driving; Fred R. Cottrell, Jr., drunk driving and reckless driving, by Policeman Darrel J. Conley; Bennie McCoy, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Troopers Cantrell and Tucker; Richard Fairchild, drunk driving, by Policeman Conley.

County Escapes Serious Flooding

Although steady, sometimes heavy, rains over the week-end caused a flood-watch to be maintained in this and other counties of the area, no extensive flooding resulted. Yet many communities were isolated, as was the Big Branch of Abbott Creek (see photo) where lowlying roads and bridges were cut by the rising water. Creek bottom damage was reported, and County Judge Henry Stumbo said the calls for road repairs are the heaviest in years.

Greenhouse Project To Benefit Retarded

The Big Sandy Valley will soon have a thriving greenhouse industry if Mountain Mental Health has anything to say about it. And if the progress of their Greenhouse Project to date is any criteria, they will have something to say.

Several months ago, following discussions between MMHS Executive Director Dick Stai, Director of Developmental Disabilities Services Roger Marshall and Dale Anastasi, area horticulturist for the University of Kentucky Extension Service, it was agreed that a training program for the mentally retarded and others with neurological disorders should be given a high priority in the region. Accordingly, after careful consideration of existing programs around the country and surveys of local industrial and commercial needs, the Greenhouse Project was begun.

Tom Hummer, a professional educator with staff development experience, joined the Mental Health Staff in July, 1972 to head the project. Since then, Hummer has leased an existing greenhouse near Flat Gap in Johnson county; established small greenhouse light banks in each of the region's adult activity centers; added a professional horticulturist to his staff and begun the search for several more permanent greenhouse locations throughout the five-county region.

In cooperation with Marshall, Hummer also has organized a regional advisory committee, established a close liaison with the University Extension Service in the formation of commercial vegetable production cooperatives and has begun the job of planning for the first planting.

But this is only one side of the program. While Hummer and the project's horticulturist, David Gillespie, continue with their tasks, Roger Marshall and the

Information Center To Hold Open House

The Big Sandy Area Development District will be host to the public at open house to be held at the Information Center here next Wednesday from a 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., it was announced this week by Joseph R. McCauley, executive director.

The invitation is to the public, and those who not yet have visited the Information Center are being especially invited. Refreshments will be served.

region's developmental disability staff have begun planning a training program for the patients who will learn new skills and new independence.

"In a very real sense," Marshall observes, "this is not a sheltered workshop program but a training program. The patients who will be involved in the Greenhouse Project will be there to learn. In this learning process, each will be allowed to progress to the limits of his capacity. In many cases we will discover that a patient's capacity has been expanded through this work experience."

For those who gain greenhouse skills including gardening, lawn care, reforestation and commercial greenhouse experience, an effort will be made to find permanent, fulltime employment for them in the community. "We will work very closely with the Extension Service and the local vegetable industry to develop the local commercial market," Hummer said. "As the industry grows, the demand for well trained, experienced and reliable employees will grow. Our trainees will fit this description."

Bridge Repair Near Complete

Work on the access bridge connecting Ky. 114 to West Prestonsburg at the entrance of Archer Park here will be completed sometime this week, a Department of Highways spokesman said Monday.

Repair work, which has been under way for the past few weeks, was begun after several small cracks appeared in the bridge abutments. It was determined by Highway Department inspectors that the cracks had resulted over a long period of time from the extreme weight of the fill into which the abutments were set, exerting enough pressure on the abutments to make them tend to close in on one another.

To remedy the situation, which was not considered immediately dangerous, workmen sand "dead men," or concrete pillars, into excavations in the bridge fill and then placed heavy steel connecting rods from the bridge abutments into the pillars. This, it is said, will eliminate any tendency for the structure to crack or "buckle" in the future.

This Town . . . That World

Hope this doesn't shock you as much as it did me when I finally got around to realizing it, but Indian Summer apparently skipped us this year.

Men were walking on the moon Monday night, and men also were playing football. All were on television. Wanna bet on who fared best in the Hooper Ratings?

DUMB JOKE

This salesman has been telling men anecdotes for several years now, and not till last week did he ever spin one that could be laundered up enough for this column. Since he made it, I print it herewith, omitting only the nationality that is mentioned.

It seems that these two partners, neither of whom was a Sophocles, had each a horse and they were having trouble knowing one from the other. One suggested that they plait the mane of one of the horses to distinguish it from the other. They did this, but soon it rained, the plait came out and they were back where they started.

The other suggested they plait the tail of one of the horses. Again it rained. Same result. Then one of the partners had a brilliant idea. "Let's brand one of 'em," he suggested. "Then we'll always know."

But then his partner came up with the big question:

"Which shall we brand—the black one or the white?"

FUEL ON THE WAY

Having inflicted that one on you, I pass on the one Howard Church supplies. It has to do with the coal truck which cut into a funeral procession, right up next to the hearse. Looking up ahead and seeing the truck, a man in one of the long string of cars remarked to his companion:

"I knew where old Max was going, but I didn't know he had ordered any extra coal."

P'burg Assured Grant To Cover 75% Plant Cost

With Prestonsburg's secondary sewage treatment plant ready for final approval, City Council members learned Thursday night of a federal grant which will cover 75 per cent of the plant's construction cost.

The funds, part of an amount totaling just over $6 million in federal aid for 75 per cent grants, are included in one of 18 such grants awarded in the state. A total of $33 million was allotted the state of Kentucky for aid in sewer construction by the federal government and this amount will affect 40 communities throughout the state.

The sewage treatment plant, which, according to the demands of the Kentucky Water Pollution Control Commission must be completed by 1975, will cost an estimated $550,000, $482,250 of which will be covered by the grant. News of the aid was especially welcome as serious doubt as to the availability of federal help had been expressed two weeks ago.

At the meeting, Mayor George P. Archer and City Clerk Judith Archer signed a resolution of intent to cooperate with any extension of waste facilities if it is deemed practical. This would allow the possibility of inclusion of outlying districts into the city's sewage treatment system.

No beginning construction date has yet been established, since preliminary plans must first be accepted and, later, final plans submitted by Bell Engineers, Lexington, William O. Goebel, chairman of the Water & Gas Commission, said.

Enlargement of the city's water plant, which will double the facility's capacity, is yet farther in the future, though as Mr. Goebel said the work will have to be done. Enlargement of the plant, which will also be planned by Bell Engineers, would increase its capacity from 1 to 2 million gallons of water per day.

SS Office Opening Slated Here Soon

May Joins Highland Med Center Staff

Chalmers H. Frazier, administrator of Highlands Regional Medical Center here, announced Monday the appointment of William J. May, of Prestonsburg, as assistant administrator of finance for the new hospital.

Mr. May, 24 years old, is a graduate of Prestonsburg high school. He received his associate degree from Prestonsburg Community College, and earned his B. A. in business administration from Morehead State University. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill May, of Tazewell, Virginia, formerly of David. Mr. May and his wife, the former Judy Sexton, have one child, a daughter, Kristi.

5 Communities Name Members Of Committees

Floyd farmers living in five ASC communities have elected committees to serve the ASCS (Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service) program for 1973, according to Paul E. Hall, county ASC executive director.

The committees named to the communities, with chairman listed first, vice-chairman second, member third, first alternate fourth and second alternate fifth, are:

COMMUNITY A, 102 votes cast: Will Boggs, Russell Patton, Johnie Martin, Andrew Coburn and A. J. Conley.

COMMUNITY B, 82 votes cast: Rex Gayheart, Jake Bates, George D. Allen, Burton Collins, and Preston Collins.

Solid Waste Decision Expected in January

Definite action on the solid waste collection-disposal program devised for this county will await the January meeting of the fiscal court, it was decided at last Wednesday's court meeting with Spindletop Research representatives.

The delay in making a definite move to implement the program resulted from the court's suggestion that three landfills, rather than only the two proposed by

Office To Serve Three Counties, Part of Floyd

Sometime between January 15 and April 1, next year, the Social Security Administration will establish an office in Prestonsburg to serve a part of this county and all of three neighboring counties.

Plans for the new office were announced last week by Daryl Ratliff, manager of the Pikeville district office, who will also supervise the office here.

The Prestonsburg office will serve the northern section of this county as well as all of Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties. The office staff will number between 13 and 17 persons, some of whom will come from the Pikeville office.

The decision to establish an office here for the convenience of those residing some distance from Pikeville was announced a year ago by Congressman Carl D. Perkins. Mr. Ratliff said the district office at Pikeville has been employing personnel with the intent of shifting them here when the new office is established.

Because of the early opening of the office it will be necessary for Social Security to rent office space on a temporary basis. Later, it may undertake to contract with a private individual or firm for construction of a building under long-term lease. Such a building would require from 3,000 to 5,000 square feet of floor space, Mr. Ratliff said. Although the office here will be a branch of the district office, it will be a full-service operation and will actually have a slightly larger staff than the Pikeville office, the Social Security manager added.

Alarms, Threats Harass Firemen; Damage, Slight

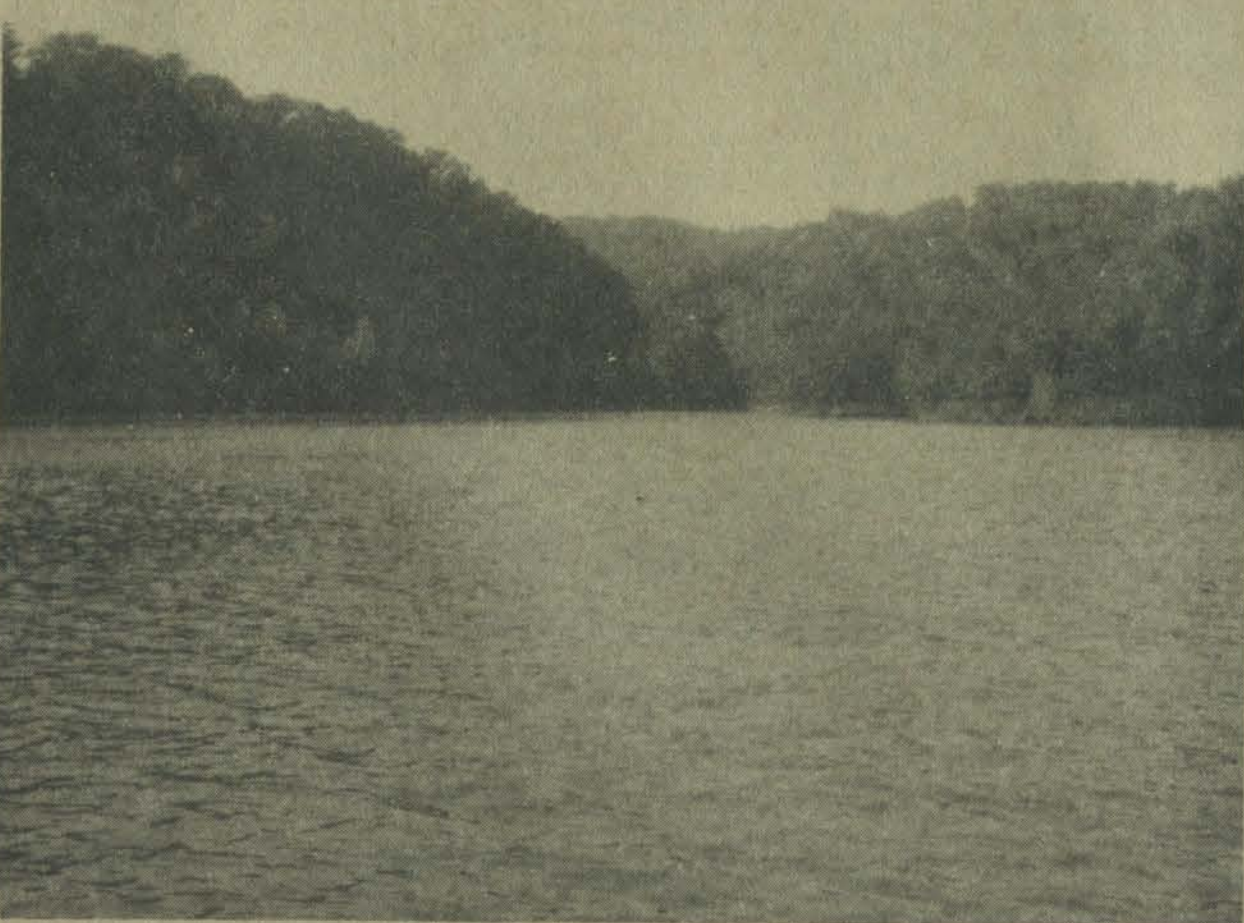

Three fire alarms and the threats of pranksters kept Prestonsburg firemen busier than usual last week and over the week-end.

Activity began last Thursday when firemen were called to the home of Joe Baker Wallen at West Prestonsburg where a small blaze, restricted to a mattress, was quickly extinguished.

The same day, the department was requested to bring a fire truck to Bert Combs Airport where a twin-engined plane piloted by a North Carolinian was unable to land, due to heavy fog. It was hoped the truck could help provide visible light for the plane but the craft had landed before the firemen's arrival.

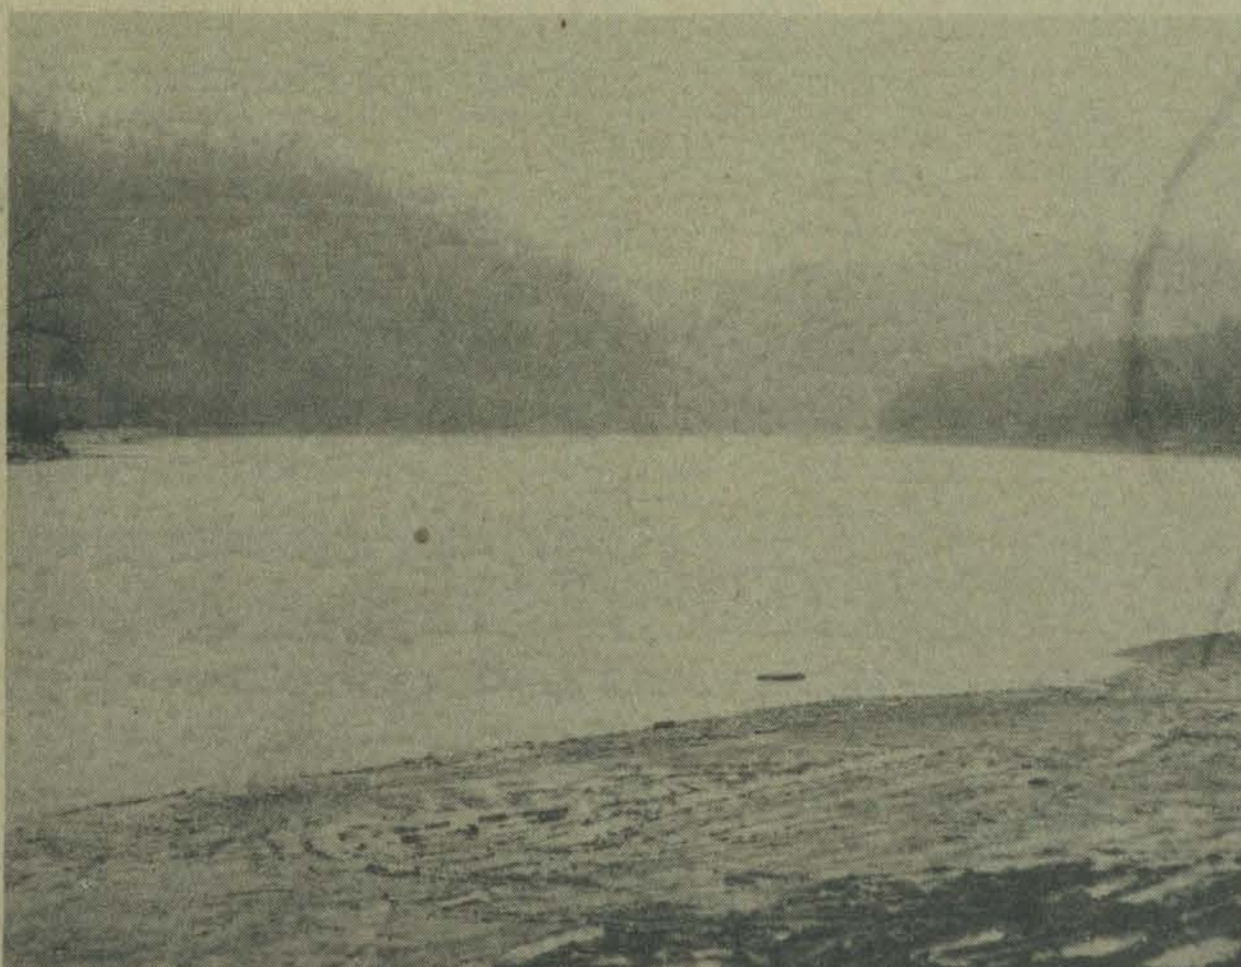

An alarm Saturday was sounded after a fire broke out at the home of Winston Ford, Jr. on Arnold Avenue. The fire was restricted to the kitchen area and damage resulted only to cabinets and the wall area near the stove.

Before and After The Scene Changed

The ravages of cold weather and the lower water level produced by the annual drawdown of Dewey Lake create a scene (right) in sharp contrast to the setting (left) of a few weeks earlier when the lake was at conservation level and the trees had not yet shed their leaves. Both photos were taken barely a month apart.

Ideally, County Judge Henry Stumbo said, the county should have one landfill for each of the four magisterial districts, but costs forbid such an arrangement.

The collection and hauling of solid wastes to the landfills may be let to franchise on competitive bids. Operation of the landfills is expected to be handled by the county.

Joseph R. McCauley, executive director of the Big Sandy Area Development District, whose office has worked with the county and Spindletop on the solid waste program, commended the court for its decision to use a portion of its revenue-sharing apportionment to carry out the program.

Pike county's fiscal court also will meet in January to review bids for franchises on the waste disposal system there.

County Judge Rutherford said both the collection and landfill operation will be franchised in Pike county.

"We had hoped, with revenue sharing money coming in, the county could maintain the landfills," he said, "but since most of the revenue sharing money went to urban areas instead of rural areas, we had to change our priorities to the maintenance of Pike county's 1,200 miles of roads."

The comprehensive plan, he added, showed it was feasible to make money in franchise operations and some people in the county expressed an interest in "taking over the franchises" for the four landfills and collection services.

Case Load May "Swamp" Court

By SAM HENSLEY

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky Court of Appeals is "about to be swamped" with cases, according to Acting Chief Justice John S. Palmore.

In a recent interview, Palmore described the effects of the rising tide of cases the high court must consider, and related details of another, hopefully more successful, attempt at court reform.

According to Howard E. Trent, Court of Appeals administrative director, a "broadly representative committee," formed last May, is working on a draft of a constitutional amendment to reform the court system. The draft will be presented to the 1974 General Assembly.

The committee is composed of interested officials, including representatives of the Court of Appeals, governor's office, Circuit Judges Association, Governor's Judicial Advisory Council, Kentucky Bar Association, Kentucky Crime Commission and the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Chief Justice Samuel Steinfield called the group together earlier this year so all those interested in constitutional improvement would not be pulling in opposite directions," Palmore said. "We now have had two meetings. Out of these meetings we have appointed a steering committee to determine just what kind of amendment would come closest to satisfying all interested people and groups, and at the same time would have a good chance of being accepted by the voting public."

The steering committee members are: Morton Holbrook, Owensboro, chairman; Amos Elben, Lexington; Judge Scott Reed, Lexington; Robert K. Cullen, Frankfort; Judge Thomas Ballantine, Louisville and Viley Blackburn, Somerset.

Past efforts, the constitutional revision in 1966 and the proposed amendment to the Judicial Article last winter, have failed. But Palmore hopes the new approach may have a better chance.

"We may not satisfy anybody completely, but we're trying to get together something that will do some good, and have some semblance of a chance of passing," he said.

Palmore said the group may hire a professional pollster to "find out what we can hope to pass and what we can't hope to pass."

"We hope to have some kind of amendment to present to the 1974 General Assembly that will represent a consensus of opinion and have a good chance of passing because we have sounded out public opinion."

Meanwhile, with the rising number of cases, the high court is faced with a situation some judges have described as "critical."

Although some cases are handled on a "current basis," many are delayed up to 20 months. Palmore indicated it soon may be as much as two years before routine cases can be reached for consideration.

The court considers two types of cases: "advanced" and "ordinary."

State law requires some cases to be advanced on the docket, such as criminal and workman's compensation cases. Some also are advanced as a matter of policy or according to the rules of the court, including child custody cases, hardship cases and cases of considerable public importance.

According to Palmore, one of the court's problems is an increase in the number of advanced cases.

"Though most advanced cases are disposed within the term of the court, the fact that we have more advanced cases means it takes longer to get to the ordinary ones," he said. "People with disputes over auto accidents, condemnation suits and contracts... these are the ones who are suffering."

According to the 1972 biennial report of the state Judiciary Council, the number of cases handled by the appellate court increased from 666 in calendar year 1961, to 1311 during calendar year 1970. This represents a 96.9 per cent increase in the workload.

The problem wasn't born overnight. The 1891 State Constitution limits the number of Court of Appeals Justices to seven. That same constitution eliminated a former judicial system that contained an intermediate court.

According to a 1966 Legislative Research Commission Report, "a major objection to the Judicial Article of the 1891 Constitution is that it contains detailed provisions which impose uniformity where diversity is needed." The report noted that the 1891 document contains a "prohibition against courts other than those specifically listed in the present Constitution," a provision which Palmore feels makes constitutional reform perhaps the only satisfactory course toward solution of the high court's present problems.

While Court of Appeals Justices have been limited to seven, the number of Circuit Court Judges has more than doubled, from 33 to 83, since 1891.

"The more trial judges you have," said Palmore, "the more trials you have, and, consequently, more appeals."

"Most people who give this matter a lot of thought, finally come to the conclusion that the only way to make a satisfactory adjustment is to provide an intermediate court between the Circuit Courts and the Court of Appeals," he said. "This would enable the Court of Appeals to take fewer cases, and, at the same time, would give nearly everyone to appeal to some court from Circuit Court."

"Of course, if we just gave these cases a 'lick and a promise,' we could do more of them, but lawyers and litigants deserve better than that; you want to give them a solid review."

"If it gets to the point where you can't do that," said Palmore, "then the first and most obvious solution is to reduce the number of cases by some measure such as raising the jurisdictional amount (the minimum monetary value which can be contested in the appellate court). For instance, instead of coming into court with a case involving $2,500, you would have to have a $10,000 case."

Palmore said such solutions have long been discussed and that court members have seen the problems coming for 20 years.

He quoted the late Chief Justice Morris C. Montgomery, who died in 1969 auto accident. "Judge Montgomery said that poor people were just as much entitled to an appellate review as people with more money involved in their cases, and there's a lot of justice in that viewpoint."

Palmore outlined a number of temporary measures that have been tried and are being tried, all intended to ease the growing caseload problem. Some of those solutions have included short "memorandum type" opinions, delegating some cases to the special Commissioner of the Court for review and limiting the right of review.

"I can't say constitutional change is the only thing which could be done, but it would be the best," Palmore said. "It's the only satisfactory solution."

A Judicial Conference, to be held in Louisville Dec. 7-9, will consider judicial reform during its concluding session.

Gov. Wendell Ford says his planned reorganization of state government will begin in about 30 days. Phase one will be to establish in the governor's office an executive policy unit to be responsible for budget, planning, fiscal management, federal relations and local government matters. The governor made the announcement at the 43rd annual Municipal League conference at Lake Barkley State Resort Park. "This will not be a large bureaucracy," he said in describing the new unit. "Instead, this will be a high-level assistance staff, responsible to the governor and to local governments."

Notice is hereby given that the Mike Little Gas Company, formerly Elzie Neely Gas Company, will accept applications for natural gas service for new customers in the Goble-Roberts Addition in Prestonsburg until the 31st day of December, 1972. The service so applied for must be commenced not later than the 1st day of March 1973.

The limitation being imposed upon new applications and service dates is necessary because of the curtailment of gas supply by the supplier of the Mike Little Gas Company, Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc., as authorized by recent order of the Public Service Commission of Kentucky, and in order to insure an adequate supply for the Goble Roberts Addition it is necessary that Columbia Gas be appraised of our future demands prior to January of 1973.

All requests for applications should be directed to the Mike Little Gas Company, P. O. Box 37, Melvin, Kentucky, 41650, or by telephone 452-2475.

LETTERS To the Editor

Commends Performances Of Chorus, Repertory Group

Editor, The Times:

Since moving to Prestonsburg, I have had the opportunity to hear the Community Chorus sing the Messiah and watch the Jenny Wiley Repertory Theater perform at both the Lodge and at the Prestonsburg Community College Variety Show, and I was greatly impressed with both groups. These talented people are a tremendous asset to your community. May they continue their excellent work in this area for a long time to come.

Tells Part Played By Health Planning Council

In the excitement and fanfare over the dedication of the Highlands Regional Medical Center, one important aspect was neglected. That aspect is the part played by the members of the Big Sandy Comprehensive Health Planning Council. This Council, which has operated in the Big Sandy Valley since 1966, sparked the move to improve health care in the medical service area centering around Prestonsburg by enlarging the sights of those planning a replacement for the Prestonsburg General Hospital.

Under the leadership of Mr. Sid Copley, chairman of the Council at that time, the Council moved forward to stress the need for a more comprehensive medical facility under non-profit status which would offer improved services to our people. In an area where 65 percent of the populace are medically indigent, federal tax dollars were sought in the amount of $4.1 million in grants and 1.1 million in loans to provide 88 conforming medical surgical beds and 49 long term care nursing beds, replacing the 34 non-conforming beds of the old hospital. At the December 13, 1967 meeting, Chalmers Frazier presented the proposal to the Health Planning Council.

The Big Sandy District can be justly proud of this achievement, but it should be borne in mind that, without the guidance of the area wide Health Planning Council, the new modern Highlands Regional Medical Center would still be only a dream. Our thanks go especially to Dr. W. R. Willard and Dr. Howard Bost, U. K. Medical School, and L. W. True, Frankfort, for the part which they aptly played in the early months of planning. Thanks go also to the members of the Council who have given tirelessly of their time and effort over the past six years.

CANNOT LOWER GRADES TO DISCIPLINE
The Office of the Attorney General has issued an opinion that teachers may not legally cut a student's academic grade because of misconduct. "Our opinion," Asst. Attorney General Carl Miller said, "is that teachers may discipline pupils in several approved ways including suspension, expulsion, detention after school and reasonable corporal punishment, but they may not use the lowering of academic grades as a disciplinary punishment." He said such action would not be commensurate with an offense of misconduct because a pupil's grades should represent an objective evaluation of the pupil's proficiency in his academic subjects, and to falsify school grades amounts to a libel against the pupil.

The Court Should Act On Behalf of the People

The Times thinks the Floyd fiscal court should follow the suggestion made by residents of Bull Creek and the Prestonsburg Branch of the American Association of University Women that it adopt, under its new Home Rule powers, legislation requiring the consent of the surface owner before mineral rights acquired under the so-called "Broad Form" deed can be exercised.

It has been argued that such action might be unconstitutional. Could be, Acts of Congress and state legislatures have been attacked, and sometimes successfully, on the same grounds. But they were voted. At least an attempt was made to do something.

The Broad Form deed itself has been held unconstitutional, for instance, by every state where it has been attacked, except in Kentucky.

This "legal" document is under attack here, almost a century after it played its part in the biggest "bargain" ever made in America, save, perhaps, the purchase of Manhattan Island for a few yards of wampum. But as long as the mining of coal was by underground methods—the only methods ever dreamed of by those who sold their mineral rights for a pittance and signed these old deeds—there was no attempt on the part of the people to repudiate the transaction.

Now, however, when surface miners come onto farms, change their general contours, decapitate hilltops and threaten the very way of life our people cherish, the attack is made on the old deed. There surely is help, somewhere, the landowners reason. So they go to their representatives, here at home.

The birds, animals & flowers are dying to tell us... "Give a hoot, don't pollute."

Join Woodsey Owls fight against pollution.

Library Notes

By ALICE HACKWORTH, Librarian

Once again the Christmas season is upon us. Amidst last-minute shopping, baking and decorating, readers at the Floyd County Library find time to enjoy the many Christmas books and materials available here.

Christmas-minded patrons discover the customs of Christmas in such books as Herbert Wernecke's "Celebrating Christmas Around the World" or Christina Hole's "Christmas and Its Customs". They find numerous decorating ideas in Better Homes and Garden's yearly "Christmas Ideas" or Dorothy Biddle's "Christmas Idea Book". Margaret Perry's "Christmas Carol Magic" offers many suggestions for the construction of homemade Christmas cards and decorative scenes.

Christmas stories abound in adult and juvenile fiction. Classics such as Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" or Robbins' "Baboushka and the Three Kings" are available as well as collections and anthologies of Christmas stories and poetry. Ask at the circulation desk and we'll be glad to locate them.

Current magazines in the periodical section offer many holiday stories as well as decorating and baking ideas for the housewife.

Many Christmas records are available by popular and country musicians. These are displayed in the main lobby near the staircase. A limited number of filmstrips and films are available and should be reserved in advance at the circulation desk.

An added attraction of the Christmas season is "December: Fine-Free Month" at the Floyd County Library. During the month of December all overdue books and materials may be returned, fine-free. We hope that people all over the county who have overdue books will take this opportunity to clear their readers' cards while they're in town Christmas shopping.

We would also like to invite all new readers to stop by and pick up a reader's card so you may check out books from the main library and the bookmobile. Check the schedule for stops in your area or call the library (886-2981; if you would like a new stop initiated.

Hancock Urges Care In Buying Presents

By ED W. HANCOCK
Attorney General of Kentucky

Frankfort, Ky.—With the Christmas season upon us, thoughts of toys and children's happiness are foremost in our minds, but be careful in selecting your children's gifts.

Statistics prove that accidents are the number one threat to the lives of children throughout the country and it is a painstaking job to select the playthings for your children that won't be dangerous.

However, if you remember four tips, your job may be somewhat easier. The four things to keep in mind are these: safety of the toy, age of the child, sturdiness of the object and its construction, and its entertainment or educational value.

When checking the toy for its safety, make sure there are no sharp edges, points or protrusions. Obviously, a dart game for a child is extremely dangerous, but doll accessories or other toy parts may be equally hazardous. Detachable parts on certain toys often are dangerous such as a whistle in a balloon that can easily be taken apart and swallowed.

Check the labels on certain toys to be sure they are flameproof. For example, certain toy tunnels and doll's hair have been found to be extremely flammable in the past. Also, make sure any coating on a toy is nontoxic. This will eliminate poisoning if the child puts the toy in his mouth.

Many times in shopping for a child's gift, we lose sight of the fact that the child may not be mature enough for a particular toy. For example, a drawing set designed for a ten to twelve year old may spell danger in the hands of a toddler.

In selecting a toy, its educational value should be considered as well as its entertainment value. For instance, simple blocks or story books may increase a child's sense of creativity.

By shopping carefully, you can fill your season with Christmas cheers, not Christmas fears.

If you have a consumer complaint or problem, you are invited to call the state consumer hotline, toll-free, Monday through Friday between 8:30 and 5:00 p.m. at 1-800-372-2960.

The Kentucky Attorney General has issued an opinion which in effect states that a school tax rate, to compensate for Homestead Exemption loss, cannot be applied to special voted school building levies passed since 1965.

Pike Girl, Cousin Drown; Relative, Told News, Dies

Tragedy dealt heavily with a Pike county family Sunday afternoon when an 18-year-old girl and a cousin apparently drowned. And elderly woman, also a relative collapsed and died after hearing of the drownings.

Officials said Mrs. Frankie Mullins and her husband, Steven, 22, accompanied by Mullins' cousin, Sammie Lee Wright, 25, of Shelby Gap, were attempting to cross a narrow log bridge over rainswollen Elkhorn Creek.

The Mullins couple apparently lost their balance and fell into the creek. Mullins was able to save himself but Mrs. Mullins was swept downstream.

Wright, in an attempt to rescue Mrs. Mullins, jumped into the creek but was caught in the current and is believed drowned.

Officials said Mullins' mother, Mrs. Laura Mullins, 70, an aunt of Wright, was informed of the tragedy shortly after it occurred. She later collapsed and died about 2 p.m. Sunday.

The body of the younger Mrs. Mullins was recovered Sunday afternoon but the body of Wright was still missing at 6 p.m. when the Pike County Emergency and Rescue Squad abandoned the search for the night.

Board-Forced Maternity Leave
 Costs Russell County Board

Louisville, Ky.—A Russell county teacher whose board of education policy forced her to take a full year's unpaid maternity leave after the birth of a child has won a federal court ruling to recover $4121 in lost salary, plus court costs.

The suit by Mrs. Eliza Chapman Garner, of Jamestown, financially backed by the Kentucky Education Association (KEA) and the National Education Association (NEA) Du Shane Emergency Fund, is the first in Kentucky to be decided in line with recent federal court rulings striking down maternity leave policies as sexually discriminatory.

KEA attorney John J. Slattery, Jr. said the ruling by U. S. District Judge Charles M. Allen, of Louisville, also establishes recent federal court rulings in maternity leave cases in Virginia and Ohio as governing the situation in Kentucky.

The Virginia case—Susan Cohen v. Chesterfield County School Board—was the first in which an educator won federal court sanction of her right to continue teaching while pregnant beyond the time limit set by school board policy.

The Ohio case—Jo Carol Le Fleur and Ann Elizabeth Nelson v. Cleveland Board of Education—overturned a board policy requiring teachers to take involuntary unpaid leave after their fourth month of pregnancy.

The federal court rulings make the point that the pregnant teacher and her doctor are the ones who should decide when she should take maternity leave and when she should return to teaching.

In the Kentucky suit, filed in June, 1970, Mrs. Garner noted that she and her attorney appeared before the Russell County Board of Education on August 6, 1968, and requested that she not be required to take a full leave of absence, since her child was expected to be born in late August or early September—before or shortly after the school term began.

The request was denied because of a board policy that "teachers pregnant at the beginning of term must take a full year leave of absence."

Mrs. Garner's daughter was born September 1, 1968, the third day of the school term. Her physician advised her she could resume teaching six weeks after the birth. The superintendent and board of education recognized that she was able to resume teaching by employing her as a substitute teacher on 17 different days during the year she was forced to take unpaid leave.

Judge Allen upheld Ms. Garner's contention that the board's maternity leave policy, which has since been rescinded, discriminated against her because of sex and held the superintendent and board of education liable for her loss of income and court costs.

Mrs. Garner resumed full-time teaching in Russell county for the 1969-'70 school year. Now a widow, she teaches reading at Union Chapel elementary school, Jamestown.

Other business dealt with by the City Council was the authorization of reconditioning of the city's 1962 Chevrolet fire truck to comply with revised state standards. Cost of the work was estimated at $5,000. Also, the Prestonsburg Fire Department hired a new fireman, Billy Green, to bring the department's employees to the required number to maintain 6 class status.

Hummer explained that for those who need the security and protection of a sheltered workshop, the Greenhouse Project will continue to have a meaningful and productive place for them in its commercial cooperative.

Executive Director Stai said, "We're excited about the project, what it can mean to our patients and what it can mean to the region. And we are learning that others are excited about it, too. Already we have been receiving inquiries from many parts of the country wanting to know more about the project. With the continued cooperation of the University Extension Service and the local vegetable industry we will have a model program for the country."

But the impetus of the Project comes from the needs of the patients and Mountain Mental Health Service's response to this need. It is summed up in the slogan designed by Project Director Hummer: "The Greenhouse Project, Where People Grow."

Three bomb threats Sunday further kept firemen on edge. At 9:55 a.m. a call was received saying that explosives had been set in Prestonsburg General Hospital. At 2:30 p.m., a second threat was called in, this time naming the Strand Theater as the endangered site. The last call was received at 8:30 p.m. when it was reported a bomb had been set in the new Highlands Medical Center. Nothing turned up in any of the investigations, however, and the threats were dismissed as the work of pranksters having "fun."

When Allan Trout died last week, thousands of us who read his column as well as all who knew him personally felt we had lost a dear friend. I do not propose to write any encomium to the memory of the man. He wrote in his "Greetings" column, some years ago, these lines which speak for Allan Trout more than any of us can write:

"A man begins to die at the top, too. He begins to die the moment he closes his mind to a new idea, the moment he first stifles his natural impulse to do the right thing. A man begins to die the first day he gives dishonest work for his hire, or short weight for his price.

"A man begins to die the first time he kicks a dog or strikes a child in blind anger. He begins to die the moment he first dodges an honest debt, or closes his purse to the poor. He begins to die when he first stops trying to attain understanding, when he first concludes that common honesty is a palliative for fools."

IN DEFENSE OF SELF AND OTHERS

A dutiful child, like a thing of beauty, is a joy forever, and my youngest daughter has qualified anew. Aware that it has been bruited about by certain low fellows that I couldn't catch a fish in a rain barrel, she has come to the defense.

Or perhaps I should more accurately say that she has handed me a defensive weapon. She sends me a copy of The National Observer wherein appears a lengthy yarn by one Robert H. Cloaninger which pertains to the "World Series of Bass Fishing" held at Percy Priest reservoir, near Nashville, Tennessee.

Twenty-four of the world's top bass fishermen were selected to compete in the tourney. (I for some obscure reason wasn't invited.) Each had the finest in equipment, identical 16-foot boats, 85-horsepower motors, electric trolling motors, fish locators, depth finders, water thermometers—you name it. After a day of practise fishing allowed them in order to get "the lay of the land" and perchance find a few hot-spots, they went to it for three solid days.

And in those three days the 24 so-called bassmasters caught exactly 208 bass of keeper size or better. That figures out to a fraction less than 2.9 bass per day per man.

It's catches such as this that have for years now sent me scurrying down back-alleys, dodging those pests who want to know how many I caught.

I should add here that a cold front moved in on Percy Priest and those fisherman during that tournament. But, cold front or behind, my gang never fails to run into something of the sort.

And we come up with an average that, in the light of this one tournament, makes us look like bassmasters—which, I grudgingly admit, we are not.

I might—harumph!—also point out that we fish without benefit of depth-finder, water thermometer and other gadgets such as the experts have. On the other hand, I must admit that we have one piece of equipment that is denied the masters. When the fishing gets too slow, we are not above dunking a minner.

Floyd County Basketball

By MARK LAFFERTY

Basketball teams from the 58th district fared poorly last week at the hands of teams from other districts as they dropped six inter-district contests while winning only two.

Allen Central lost to Breathitt County, Prestonsburg to Shelbyville, Betsy Layne to Harrison County and Franklin County, and McDowell to Shelton Clark and Brackinridge Training. Wheelwright won its two games with out-of-county teams.

Allen Central traveled to Breathitt County to take on the team they had earlier knocked from the undefeated ranks by one point in a game played here. This time, the game was the complete opposite as Breathitt rolled to victory, 70-50, after Coach Gene Frazier had been ejected from the game. Allen Central came back, though, on Friday night to defeat McDowell, here. The game was a very close affair until the third quarter when Neil Turner went to the bench with four fouls. Allen Central then built its largest lead which McDowell had no chance of overcoming.

McDowell had a "down" week as it lost all three of its games. McDowell dropped the first game of the week to Shelton-Clark, 88-76. The game was a see-saw battle until the final quarter when Shelton-Clark exploded for the winning margin. McDowell dropped its second game of the week to Breckinridge Training at Morehead, 89-67, then finished the week by losing to Allen Central, 85-67.

Prestonsburg started playing on the week-end with excellent performances by Jimmy Blackburn and Kippy McNally against Phelps. The Cats ripped Phelps, 83-69, putting together a fine game offensively and defensively. Saturday, Prestonsburg traveled to Shelbyville where the Cats were defeated, 60-49. The Cats had a 44-40 lead going into the final quarter when the game turned into a football contest with Sophomore Kippy McNally being injured. He is a doubtful starter for this week's games.

The Wheelwright Trojans had the only clear slate of the week as they downed Mullins, 69-61, and then crushed Jenkins, 92-58. Coach Frankie Francis said, "We played better these two games than in any of the preceding ones." The Trojans were led once again by Tippy Moscript and Clifford James, both of whom has fine performances.

ALC Eagles Win Two, Then Drop 2 Games

Pippa Passes, Ky.—The Alice Lloyd College cagers squeaked by Lexington Business College, 82-78, had an easy time with the Cumberland J. V., 90-71, but were defeated by Morristown Junior College, 91-66, and, minus four starters, lost to Lees Junior College, 81-67.

Eagles defeated their tough Lexington rival, Kentucky Business College, for the second time this season last Friday in Lexington. The Eagles and Kentucky Business again battled right to the buzzer with ALC on top at the end 82-78.

Monday night at Wayland, the Eagles picked up their fourth win of the year by defeating the Cumberland Indians J. V. by a lopsided score, 90-71. Cumberland held a small height advantage over the Eagles and as the first minutes ticked off it looked as if ALC was in for a long night. The Indians raced to an early 7-0 lead before the Eagles could get on the scoreboard. But with 8:15 gone in the first half, Marvin Bowman was fouled as he hit a shot from 10 feet to tie the score at 15. His freethrow put the Eagles ahead to stay.

The Eagles had their winning streak stopped at three as Morristown Junior College in Tennessee defeated ALC by a score of 91-66 Tuesday night. Morristown jumped off to an early lead and steadily increased it until they led the weary Eagles by 15 points at half time. In the second half ALC looked as if they would put on one of their now common come-from-behind wins as they closed the Morristown lead to three points.

The ALC basketball team, minus four of their starting five players, were defeated Thursday night by a fired up Lees College team at Jackson by a score of 81-67.

Starting guard Gary Ferguson was unable to play because of a lung ailment and may be out of action for some time. Three other starting players, Marvin Bowman, Greg Bedrod, and Tom Forman, were not allowed to make the trip to Jackson because of disciplinary reasons.

The state Division of Explosives and Blasting has announced it will begin enforcing a 1967 law that will allow blasting at night by permit only.

Thinks Dad, Known in the Area

A Tampa, Fla., woman believes that someone in the area may have information about her father, James Edmond Price, Jr., whom she last saw 25 years ago.

Mrs. Connie Price McCurdy, 4205 Wallis Place, Tampa, said she is sure her father, whom she remembers as being about 6-2 with blonde hair and blue eyes, came to Cincinnati in 1942 after divorcing her mother, Alline Simpson, because both his parents lived there.

The last address she had for her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Loren Gladys, was College Hill. Her grandfather, James Edmond Price Sr., lived at Whitehouse, Johnson county. The phone directories and even car registration records have been exhausted as sources of information about either her grandparents or her father, Mrs. McCurdy said.

The only other leads she has deal with her father's World War II service record. Price, about 48, enlisted in the Coast Guard in 1941 in Cincinnati, served at Iwo Jima, suffered a broken kneecap and was treated at the Veteran's Administration Hospital, Portsmouth, Va., in 1946. He was then stationed at Wallops Island, Chincoteague, Va. until he was discharged.

The war injury led to a check of veteran's hospitals and veteran disability payment records.

"I wrote him a letter in care of the Veteran's Hospital in Portsmouth hoping they would forward it to him," she said.

"When you get to be my age (29) you wonder what your father looks like and what kind of man he is," Mrs. McCurdy said.

Two years ago the Greater Victoria School District in British Columbia began an experiment in letting children choose which school they wanted to attend.

Food Stamps Value $252,060

During August, 9,394 low-income persons in Floyd county received food stamps valued at $252,060.00, the Department of Economic Security announced last week.

This record compares to 9,113 low-income persons who received food stamps valued at $242,455.00 during July 1972.

In Kentucky, the food stamp program is administered jointly by the Department of Economic Security and the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Needy families in the program exchange an amount of their own money, usually spent on food, to purchase coupons. In addition, families receive bonus coupons to boost their buying power.

During August, a total of 325,985 Kentuckians received food stamps valued at $8,675,202. In August 1971, 278,140 persons received food stamps with a total coupon value of $7,057,411.

At present, 77 counties are participating in the department's food stamp.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Allen Applegate, Jr., of LaGrange, Ky., announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Anne, to Mr. Has Slone, Jr., of Ashland, Ky., formerly of Martin, son of Mrs. G. B. Conley, of Commercial Point, Ohio, and the late Has Slone, Sr. Mr. Slone is also the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Isom Slone, of Martin.

Miss Applegate is a 1970 graduate of Oldham County high school and is presently attending Morehead State University. She is a member of Kappa Delta Sorority, Kappa Delta Pi honorary education fraternity, and Pershing Beret girls' ROTC drill team. Mr. Slone is a 1970 graduate of Boyd County high school and is presently attending Morehead State University. He is a junior ROTC cadet.

The wedding will be solemnized Sunday, December 17, at 1:30 p.m. at the LaGrange Christian Church. Friends of the family are invited.

'Meals on Wheels' Program Is Sought For Floyd County

Efforts are being made to bring to Floyd county the "Meals on Wheels" program which is now in effect in many cities throughout the country.

"Meals on Wheels," a program that serves people who are unable to prepare meals for themselves, is not necessarily for the "needy" but rather for any citizen who may be unable to cook for himself. Each recipient is charged a minimum amount for the hot noon meal and the packed cold meal brought to him five days a week. Beneficiaries of the program will be chosen on the basis of referrals from physicians, ministers, nurses, and service organizations. The referred person will then be interviewed to determine if the need is real and great enough for the service.

The need has already been shown by the number of professional referrals received, Mrs. William D. Pratt, of McDowell, a leader in the move, said last week.

"This," Mrs. Pratt said, "is another way Floyd county can meet the needs of its people."

What Reorganization Is And What It Will Do

By BARRI DUNCAN

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Anyone who has ever entered the state Capital in search of a particular agency probably remembers being directed from office to office, floor to floor throughout the building.

After 45 minutes, climbing five flights of stairs and passing the same restroom three times, he might only know that the agency was located somewhere in Frankfort, supposedly in the Capitol.

This is an example, according to Gov. Wendell Ford, of the "hodgepodge" that present state government has become—60 departments and over 200 commissions, boards and agencies going in as many different directions.

Fourteen months ago, when then Lt. Governor Ford was running for governor, he promised a reorganization of state government to eliminate that hodgepodge; to prevent duplication and overlapping of services and, thus, strengthen necessary programs.

Phase one of Kentucky state reorganization recently was initiated.

The basis of reorganization is simple. The myriad of departments and agencies have been integrated into six program cabinets structured on mutual interests and applications. Further, the Department of Finance and the Kentucky Program Development Office have been consolidated into the Executive Department of Finance and Administration. Both will be coordinated by the Secretary of the Cabinet, present Finance Commissioner Don Bradshaw.

What does it mean to the average citizen? The main purpose of reorganization, according to Governor Ford, is to eliminate duplication of services—abolishing unnecessary functions and strengthening needed programs.

Governor Ford said that, with the "spiraling" expansion of state government since the last major reorganization in 1936, efficiency, coordination and policy determination have become more difficult, at a loss of timely services to the public.

"If reorganization is accomplished," said the governor, "Kentuckians can expect improved services. There is a wide-spread belief that we can slow down the rapid growth of state government, and do more with tax dollars now being spent."

According to Governor Ford, the creation of the Department of Finance and Administration, combining planning and financing functions, is designed to insure the maximum product for each dollar expended.

The new department also will provide a comprehensive long-range analysis of policy, harmony of political and administrative decision-making and ties with local governments, other states and the federal government.

Although phase one is only a framework for further restructuring (one of the initial charges of the six program cabinets is the development of recommendations for further streamlining and unification) some programs to promote better services for the people already exist.

The Office of Local Government, an element of the Department of Finance and Administration, channels resources from the executive branch to provide technical assistance and support to Kentucky city and county governments.

The Ford Administration already has assisted in federal revenue sharing—making corrections in application errors which could have caused delays in the distribution of funds. This is a service some states are paying 10 per cent of their revenue-sharing money to receive.

The Office of Local Government will assume this responsibility, as well as helping local governments develop their own programs.

A second element of the Department of Finance and Administration, the Office of Policy and Management, combines the basic responsibilities involved in budgeting and state planning.

This office will facilitate communication between planners and budget personnel on both the state and national levels.

Another benefit of reorganization will be the cabinet structure itself. Since each department is a segment of a program cabinet of related interests, meetings need only involve the department heads concerned. In the past, all department heads had to attend all meetings and often listen to policies that in no way involved them.

Under reorganization, related departments can be better informed on the activities of each other, preventing duplication and providing a better delivery of services to the people.

The big question that concerns most people is one of money. Will it cost more? Will it save money?

"What I see," said Governor Ford, "is that we'll have the ability to provide additional services, better services and quicker services to the people. All for the same tax dollar."

The savings, he said, will come from elimination of current waste and duplication that annually cost the state many millions of dollars.

In short, what this means is that anticipated increase in governmental expenses caused by inevitable expansion—will be absorbed by a more efficient method of operation.

Tommy Preston, the governor's press secretary, compared the situation to a huge industry which, despite higher output, more workers and increased sales, finds its profits dwindling.

"The reason is that real productivity is down, so that industry tightens up all the way along the line," he said. "In the same way, the state, while not a profit maker, can increase services (productivity) with the same means of disposal."

The Kentucky Pollution Abatement Authority has approved loans to 28 Kentucky communities enabling them to qualify for $24 million in federal aid for construction of sewage treatment facilities. The state aid will allow the communities to receive a larger portion of federal assistance than if the localities were financing the projects on their own.

A White Christmas in Kentucky?

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD

If you are dreaming of a white Christmas such as Grandpa used to tell about, the chances of your dream coming true range from about six percent in the extreme western end of the state to 10-20 percent over most of the rest of Kentucky.

These percentages, according to A. B. Elam, Jr., climatologist for Kentucky at the National Weather Service Office, University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, are based on snowfall records kept for many years. He emphasizes, also, that these are probabilities, not forecasts, and warns against snow enthusiasts setting their hopes too high. Records of white Christmases past indicate that such meteorological events are not usual occurrences in the Commonwealth.

In the past 23 years, says Elam, there have been only seven Christmas Days with any significant snow cover over Kentucky—and all seven of these circumstances occurred during the past 12 years.

In 1960 and 1963, there was a snow cover of one inch or more over most or all of the state. In 1961 and 1962, snow cover was limited chiefly to the south and southeast. And, in 1966, snow cover was general except for much of the Bluegrass region and the northeast.

In 1969, snowfall on Christmas Day was general and the heaviest since the 1930's. Snow cover ranged from one to six inches over the greater part of Kentucky and probably was much deeper in the higher elevations of the southeast. On December 25, 1970, some snow fell in most sections of the state in the afternoon and evening with up to two inches in parts of the eastern third.

Christmas Day last year was snowless. Rather, it was a cloudy, drizzly day with temperatures averaging from 10 to 20 degrees above normal. As a matter of fact, except in the higher elevations of the southeast, there was little snow at all in Kentucky during the entire month of December—less than in any December since 1940.

So for those dreaming—or longing—for a white Christmas, and for others who would just as soon see it green, these are the probabilities based on records of years past, Elam says. This form of precipitation might be present this Christmas—and then again it might not.

As December 25 approaches, you can be more certain by watching for extended outlooks, and then the daily weather forecasts. The National Weather Service prepares these from current weather observations, which are periodically revised to take later information and changing conditions into account.

Christmas in Hospital Room Not Merry But It Offers Hope

It will be Christmas in a hospital room, 400 miles away from home, for little Rhonda McKenzie and her family.

Born three years ago to Mr. and Mrs. Ronald McKenzie, of West Liberty, Rhonda came into this world with many marks against her. She was the victim of multiple birth defects. She had no nose. Her eyes were located on the sides of her head, too far apart for her to focus them and see. She had extra toes on her feet and one clubbed foot. In addition, she had other miscellaneous defects.

The McKenzies happened to read an article in a newspaper one day about a similar circumstance in Tennessee. Upon discovering that plastic surgeon Dr. Milton Edgerton specialized in such cases, the young couple was able to schedule the first of many operations. In their determination to give Rhonda a normal life, they traveled to Baltimore, Maryland and borrowed $800 to cover most of the expenses. They knew that it would eventually cost thousands of dollars that they didn't have to cover the inevitable costs of such a venture. (Dr. Edgerton has generously performed each operation without charge to the family.)

Many of the community wanted to help them and so some interested citizens set up a Rhonda McKenzie Fund. A goal of $10,000 was set to cover the cost of the first 10 operations and the response was adequate to meet that goal. Contributions came from all over Kentucky and even from far-away states.

Rhonda is scheduled to enter major surgery Friday of this week for the ninth time. Even though many other operations will be required, it is obvious that the parents have not lost sight of their goal. Mrs. Bonnie Lewis McKenzie, attractive mother of Rhonda, said, "The best gift Rhonda could have for Christmas is a successful operation." Dr. Edgerton, Dr. Jane (neuro-surgeon) and their team of doctors will be moving a bone from between Rhonda's eyes to allow a better position for both eyes. They will also work on the skin around the eyes and remove spots from the left eye. The bone will be moved to the forehead area. The operation is serious because the brain will be exposed when her forehead is opened. The average operation takes about seven hours in surgery.

When the bandages on her eyes and head are removed, perhaps on Christmas Day, the family and doctors hope to find that Rhonda is one operation closer to a normal life. All of this is an effort to give Rhonda "a face to face the world."

This Christmas, Rhonda McKenzie may be a small child in a city, far away from home. But she is not a forgotten child. Many share the dream of her parents and sister for the future.

Health Dept. Says Cook with Caution

The Floyd County Health Department reminds all Floyd Countians that food poisoning, caused by improper cooking and handling frozen turkey, occurs in large numbers every year during the holiday season. The danger is especially high in school cafeterias or other establishments where large quantities of food are prepared.

Extra care must be taken in the preparation, cooking and storing of turkey because of its large size. If you buy your turkey early, be sure to freeze it immediately. If it is to be prepared within 48 hours after it was purchased, you may refrigerate it at 33 to 38 degrees. Ordinarily it takes much longer to defrost a turkey than any other kind of meat. The preferred method is to thaw it in the refrigerator for two or three days until you are sure it is completely defrosted.

Although it is safer to cook turkey and dressing separately, some homemakers still prefer to stuff the holiday bird with dressing and cook them together. In this case, a meat thermometer should be inserted in to the center of the stuffing. If the turkey is cooked alone, insert the thermometer into the center of the thigh. Cook the turkey in a 325 degree oven for the required length of time until the temperature of the stuffing reaches 165 degrees or the temperature in the center of the thigh reaches 190 degrees.

If the turkey and dressing are cooked together a day ahead of the holiday dinner, the dressing should be removed from the turkey and refrigerated separately.

Proper cooking times for a completely thawed turkey are as follows:

8-10 lb. turkey, 3 to 3½ hours; 10-14 lb. turkey, 3½ to 4 hours; 14-18 lb. turkey, 4 to 4½ hours; 18-20 lb. turkey, 4½ to 5 hours; over 20 lbs., allow approximately 20-22 minutes per extra pound.

Dying For A Smoke

More than 300,000 Americans die prematurely from the effects of cigarette smoking each year. But not many smokers believe it can really happen to them.

Maybe that is one reason why smokers persist in a habit that snuffs out life too soon. Like most people in our culture, they tend to deny the prospect of their own death. To a very great degree, our society worships youth and health and shuts one eye to sickness and death.

Deaths from coronary artery disease, chronic bronchitis, lung cancer, emphysema, and a host of other diseases are much higher for smokers than for non-smokers. Dying is a lonely business in our society.

"Our embarrassment at the individual face of death forces the seriously ill and dying person to live alone on the brink of an abyss with no one to understand him," says psychiatrist Dr. Herman Feifel. But the topic of personal death, which has been taboo for decades, is surfacing again these days. Some hospitals are training special staff to help dying patients talk openly about their needs and fears, and to help bring them closer to their families and friends. What dying people fear most is abandonment and isolation.

Denying the reality of death is no way to live—for any of us. And denying the possibility of premature death can be a fatal mistake for smokers. What we can all try to do is to live—healthfully—as long as we can.

Find out ways to stop smoking and live longer. Contact your state tuberculosis and respiratory disease association. It's a matter of life and breath.

Trouble with Names

One week, it was the Bill Stumbo, of the Middle Creek road, who was asking The Times to explain that it was not he who was arrested on an auto theft charge. Now, Bill Stumbo, of McDowell, points out that he is not the man of that name who was listed last week as a drunk driver. The McDowell man adds that he was the Bill Stumbo accused of auto theft, and that he was so accused when he took his own car.

Keep It Clean . . . Electrically!

Most people agree that one of the messiest jobs around the house is taking out the trash and garbage. Besides the smell and inconvenience involved, accumulated garbage is just plain unhealthy.

A flameless, automatic electric garbage disposal can take care of your garbage with no mess, no smell and no inconvenience. Just put the leftovers down the sink drain, turn on the cold water, flip a switch . . . and your garbage worries are over.

And how about all that litter and trash that isn't food? An electric compactor will take anything you want to get rid of: bottles, glass, cans, trash, etc. It works quietly and flamelessly, compacting your trash and garbage down to one-fourth its original bulk!

Let the economical efficiency of electric power take the dirty work off your hands, and bring "the good life" to your home.

Electricity — the cleanest energy you can use.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

Our Most Highly Colored Birds

With a number of her most select species of birds, nature is lavish with her most glamorous colors, and dresses them up to suit the wildest imagination. But to most of these gaudily colored birds nature has not bestowed the gift of song. As a general rule, the most highly colored bird is the poorest singer. Birds dressed up in brown and white, like the thrushes can outsing any of the glamorous birds; so can the dull-gray mockingbird and catbird. Even the sparrows, which are plainly dressed in brown and white streaks, can outsing the most handsome bird you might name. The painted bunting, a southern bird, is said to be the most highly colored bird of North America. This bird is a conglomeration of gaudy colors; it is violet blue on the head and is like a patchwork quilt made up of brightly colored pieces of calico. It has much green on the back and is red beneath. There are splashes of purple, indigo and yellowish-green interspersed with the other colors. It is a bird that looks like some wild artist had taken his brush and many colors and splashed them on. Unfortunately, the painted bunting, a cousin of the indigo, is rare in the Tri-State region and is rated as a much inferior songster to its closer relative, the indigo bunting, common in our region. Among our most highly colored birds common locally are:

1. The Scarlet Tanager. To oldtimers this bird was known as "the black-winged redbird." Its wings and tail are deep-black, the remainder of the body is a deep scarlet; in spring, when this bird is all dressed up in courtship colors, the scarlet is so bright it seems to flame, and it dazzles the eyes just to look at it. As Thoreau said, "The scarlet tanager seems to ignite the leaves as it glides through." Scarlet tanagers usually return a bit too early from their winter home in South America. I have seen many of them chilled down and unable to fly in an early April snow squall. This bird is also rated a poor singer and its musical offering is said to be like that of "a robin with a sore throat." The song has a peculiar burry tone, but the bird's calls are unique. If you hear a bird uttering a call that sounds like "chip-burr," it is the scarlet tanager. It also has a peculiar phrase it frequently sings, like "Tipperary."

The scarlet tanager is noted for its calm, unhurried movements through the summer trees; it is not too shy and often stops to peer curiously at its observers. It is a highly valuable bird in the forest as it destroys large quantities of the gypsy moths and their larvae. One observer reported watching a scarlet tanager devour 40 gypsy moths in an hour.

2. The Summer Tanager. Nature splashed the male of this species with bright red all over the entire body and didn't take time to add any other markings. Oldtimers called it "the summer redbird." It is bright red, all over. The male is the only bird known that is completely red—no other markings. It seems nature splashed it with a bright, rosy red and then quit—not even a crest was added to the plumage... The brilliant red blazes all summer as the bird flies about lawns or through the trees of open woods. It is rated as much superior to its cousin, the scarlet tanager, as it has a loud, spirited song which can be heard resounding over hills and valleys during spring and early summer. There is a peculiar wistfulness in this bird's song, as if it was trying hard to express the beauty of life and the glory of spring but couldn't quite do so on its song. Its peculiar call of "pick-i-tuck-i-tuck" identifies the bird at once as no other bird has such a peculiar call.

3. The Prothonotary Warbler. Though it is not common in our region but if you should go into deep swamps or low river bottoms, you might see this bird—and what an unforgettable sight! Nature splashed this bird's head and breast with golden orange but gave it plain, blue-gray wings so as not to detract from the bright colors. It is interesting to note the origin of this bird's name. If you separate the name into two parts, you get "notary", a notary public. In the old English Court of Common Pleas, the clerk or notary always wore a bright golden-orange gown and was called a "thonotary." The bird is not rated as a great songster, as it sings "tweet, tweet" about a dozen times, and all in the same key.

Brandenburg's Recipe for a Park

Brandenburg, Ky.—Take one generous portion of federal funding and blend with advice and experience from the Kentucky Program Development Office; then add 74 acres of land from the Olin Chemical Co. and stir slowly, gradually mixing in what Jim Peel, director of the Lincoln Trail Area Development District, calls "the way people here got down to work on this park."

Loosely follow that recipe and you get Olin-Meade Park, a tract on the outskirts of Brandenburg that soon will become a $400,000 county park.

Federal funding for the park was coordinated by the Program Development Office and channeled through the federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

The park idea actually was born two years ago when a county planning committee began setting priorities for water, sewage and recreational needs.

"We had to get to work on water needs first," said James Greer, chairman of the committee. "But then someone mentioned that Olin has the land here. I wrote them and received a favorable response."

In an effort to involve county citizens in planning the park, forms were distributed at the Meade County Fair so that citizens could write their opinions and ideas.

"We wanted to get the opinions of the people in the county as to what their priorities would be," Greer said. "The people filled in the forms by checking the things they wanted to see in the park."

The new park will be partially financed with federal matching funds authorized by the Land and Water Conservation Program. Much of the local share of the cost will be made up through the appraisal value ($92,500) of the land donated by the Olin Company. The difference between that amount and the full $215,803 obligation of the county will be paid in kind, with work and equipment supplied by the county.

The planning committee hopes to have the park swimming pool completed by the beginning of next summer. Under the federal funding contract, the entire park will be completed in mid-1975. The completed facility will feature a bath house, wading pool, four picnic shelters, tables and grills, a tot lot, four tennis courts, basketball courts and softball and baseball fields.

Greer said the park has brought the community together and fostered a "new sort of cooperation."

"At our last public meeting, we had the most enthusiastic group of people I've ever seen," he said. "They wanted this park and they wouldn't take no for an answer. As soon as we get something started out there, the people will be out to help. I'm sure of it."

Hawaii teachers cancelled a proposed state-wide strike after a judge issued a temporary restraining order, threatening the teachers with a $100,000 fine and an additional $10,000 for each day of the strike. The teachers had defied a court injunction on October 5, when they walked out for one day.

Mines Violating Blasting Law Are Fewer in Pike, Bureau Says

Pikeville, Ky.—The number of mines violating the new state law governing all blasters is dwindling, according to the Bureau of Mines and Minerals.

The attorney general's office recently notified 23 strip mines in the Pikeville area that they have until Dec. 18 to comply with the regulation, or face injunctive action.

The injunction is an "extreme measure to have such a small thing accomplished," said D. T. Froedge, director of the bureau's division of explosives and blasting, "but sometimes if you pester them enough, it gets the job done."

There was a flood of letters after the list went out, Froedge said. He indicated two mines were dropped from the violators list because of errors in the computer: six mines were removed because they complied; two were removed because they no longer are operating and 15 remain in violation.

Remaining on the list are Blue Bird Collieries, Inc. of Meta; Caney Branch Coal Co. of Phelps and Freeburn; Coal Contractors, Inc. No. 3 and 4 mines; G. D. B. Coal Co., Inc. of Hatfield; Gale Coal Co. No. 8 and 9 mines, Mac Mining Co. No. 2 and 3 mines, Marymounts Construction Co. of Freeburn and Majestic; Triangle Coal Co. of Ashcamp; Paramount—Elkhorn & Co. of Regina, and Hawkins Coal Co. of Ashcamp. Kentucky—Elkhorn Coals, Inc. No. 4 mine and Rowe & Goff Coal Co. were abandoned operations and removed from the violators list.

Those listed as having complied are Case Coal Co., Pounding Mill Coal Co., T. C. H. Mines No. 1, 2, and 3 and R. G. Mining Co.

The law was effected June 16 by the General Assembly and the Division of Explosives and Blasting was created within the Department of Mines and Minerals to enforce the regulation.

"We have been compiling lists of violators since the deadline," said Froedge, "but not before spreading the word through letters to the mines and mining organizations."

All mines cited for non-compliance are strip operations because the deep mine operations, by necessity, do blasting at a minimum lower than the law is aimed to cover.

"Very rarely is damage incurred when two pounds of explosives is ignited in a deep mine operation," said Froedge, "as compared to the damage a 40,000-pound open blast can do to someone's home half a mile away."

He indicated compliance has been "generally good," but several areas have been tagged "high non-compliance areas" after the district-by-district search. Pikeville, he said, is one such area.

The law regulates the intensity of mine blasting and requires licensing of blasters, through record-keeping procedures and safety regulations compliance.

The law, said Froedge, also applies to blasting on highways, construction crews and in quarries, and these, he added, are harder to ferret out and mark as complying or non-complying.

This intent of the law is to stop damage to property and personal injury and death incurred in blasting operations.

The state Legislative Research Commission's Subcommittee on Regulations has returned to the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance a set of regulations designed to implement the state Financial Disclosure Law.

The Thank Offering and Least Coin offering were taken and dedicated by Mrs. Music and Mrs. Frank H. Layne. A Christmas check for the needy was received from Mrs. Meta F. Sizemore. The Church of St. Peter

After Jesus was arrested in the Garden of Gethsemane, He was carried to the house of Joseph Caiaphas. Caiaphas was the high priest that year, although it was his father-in-law, Annas, who had the real power.

In all probability, the party walked up a flight of steps in the southern part of Jerusalem to reach the house of Caiaphas. Some steps have been excavated which lead to the spot where many believe the house of Caiaphas stood. It is possible to walk those very steps today.

The Church of St. Peter Gallicantu (Cockcrow) is a lovely little church building constructed by the Augustinian Fathers on the site which they accept as that of the house of Caiaphas. The church gets its name from the fact that Peter denied he knew Jesus three times in the courtyard before the 3 a.m. hour—the time of the cockcrow.

In the life of Jesus we have some hours between 3 a.m. and about 6 a.m. during which we don't know what happened to Him. A visitor to the Church of St. Peter Gallicantu today will be taken down into the basement to examine a pit carved from the rock. The pit is very small and has only one opening large enough for a man to enter it. The opening is at the top of the pit.

The pit was part of the jail located here. Perhaps Jesus, being tried and condemned by an illegal, make-shift Sanhedrin meeting in the early morning, was brought to this pit to spend the next few hours.

In the 88th Psalm one can read what could have been the feelings of Jesus if, indeed, He was lowered into this pit.

Peter denied his Lord that night. He did so, I feel, not so much from cowardice as from bewilderment and confusion. He didn't know what Jesus expected him to do. Did he not get rebuked by the Lord in the Garden of Gethsemane just a short time before when he fought for the safety and release of Jesus? Certainly Peter was confused as to what course of action to follow.

Standing on the balcony of the Church of St. Peter Gallicantu, you can see where the courtyard was in which Peter denied his Lord. And as you gaze in that direction you aren't quite as fast to point the accusing finger at the big fisherman. You can recall those times when you, too, denied the Lord by silence or inaction.

It is one thing to find fault and blame, it is another thing altogether to take a very deep look into one's own commitment. We aren't nearly as perfect as we sometimes think we are.

As you leave this beautiful little church building, you do so thinking that you need to spend more time on the log in your own eye and less on the splinter in your neighbor's eye. Jesus was speaking to each of us when He gave that advice.

Newsome-Wilson Vows

University Women Group Here Backs 'Broad Form' Deed Curb

The Prestonsburg Branch of the America Association of University Women at its November meeting voted its support of an earlier resolution by a Floyd group calling on the fiscal court to require consent of owners of the surface before mining under the Broad Form deed could be done.

A letter to that effect was prepared for mailing to the court this week. The resolution was adopted after a program relating to the old deed had been presented by three members of the group, Shirley Hughes, Maria Fitzpatrick and Pat Harrison, and its adoption was not by unanimous consent.

The original suggestion to the court that it restrict authority of holders of mineral rights under the old deed was made this summer on behalf of residents of the Bull Creek section by John Rosenberg, of the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund. The Times learned this week that the resolution has never been officially presented to the fiscal court but that its members are aware of it.

If the court should take the requested action, it would be under authority presumed to have been given it by the new Home Rule Act.

Dinner Theatre Curtain Falls At May Lodge

Last Friday's performance of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" rang down the curtain on the Jenny Wiley Repertory Company's season at the May Lodge dinner theatre, and it could have been the company's last appearance locally.

The decision to suspend the plays scheduled at the lodge this season was made by the Jenny Wiley Drama Association when it became apparent that attendance would not produce revenues sufficient to make the dinner theatre self-supporting. The drama association's reserves were drained by a poor season at the amphitheatre, with 25 nights of rain cutting into attendance last summer, and it could not bolster the dinner theatre group's finances.

The first dinner theatre offering, "The Owl and the Pussycat," drew capacity crowds, but subsequent offerings, though artistic successes, slumped at the box office.

"We haven't given up on the dinner theatre at May Lodge and are still hopeful it can be revived," Jack Wicker, director-manager, said. Mr. Wicker also appeared in the lead role in "The Owl and the Pussycat."

Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., of the Drama Association, pointed to the lack of community support as one reason for the theatre failure. "The people in this area simply do not come out for this type of activity," he said.

It also was pointed out that the repertory company was not financially able to pay for advertising in daily newspapers to draw theatre-goers from larger population centers.

Both Mr. Wicker and Dr. Campbell lauded the cooperation afforded by Lonnie Durbin, Jenny Wiley State Park manager. Mr. Durbin expressed the hope that the dinner theatre idea will not be abandoned but will be revived by the parks system, either here or at other parks.

Miss Adrienne Doucette and Paul Kosopoo, who played leading roles in "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," have returned to New York.

"It's not just that we're losing jobs," Miss Doucette remarked. "We're losing the whole thing we created."

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK

Attorney General of Kentucky

When you find you need repairs on your home, your car, or anything, beware of phony repairs. If you become a victim, the repairman may charge you for parts he didn't install. He may pad your bill, or charge you for work he didn't do.

Verbally, the repairman may give you one price, then, often, after he gets the appliance part, he will double the price.

If the repairman tells you he will have to take the appliance to the shop to finish the repairs, don't consent until he gives you a written estimate of the repair costs and promises, in writing, there will be no extra charge without your consent.

Many times a phony repairman will try to talk you into signing a statement that repairs have been done before they are completed to your satisfaction. If this happens, I suggest you find a reputable repairman to do the work.

Each year unaware consumers are gyped and swindled out of millions of dollars. It would, therefore, be to your advantage to keep abreast of the schemes and tactics being perpetrated by the professional con-men.

If you have a consumer complaint of problem, you are invited to call the Consumer Hotline, toll-free, at 1-800-372-2960.

Ballot Count In UMW Vote Is Under Way

Sometime next week, the results of the closely guarded balloting of thousands of United Mine Workers for new national officers are expected to be known.

The tabulation of votes has already begun, and in one area supporters of Arnold Miller, who opposed W. A. "Tony" Boyle for the top post in the union were disappointed. In another, Miller held the edge. Most observers expect Boyle to win.

The ballots cast by District 30 miners were flown from the Pikeville airport Saturday to a Department of Labor office at Silver Spring, Md., for counting.

The Department of Labor's Management Services Administration said Saturday most of the time between then and Tuesday will be spent sifting through challenges which revolve mostly around whether miners voted at assigned places or went to another poll.

If they went elsewhere, it must be ascertained that they did not vote twice, the department said. More than 1,000 agents from the department supervised the voting at some 1,500 polling places. No major incidents were reported.

The turnout was very good Friday, according to Carl Crouch who supervised balloting in District 30 in the Pikeville area. "At one smaller local we had 100 per cent turnout," he said.

Harlan county miners were the last to cast the Kentucky's final votes in the trouble-free election.

In Western Kentucky, the ballots cast in District 23 were shipped to Washington late Friday. Voting in the district ended Thursday.

But elsewhere around the state and in West Virginia, the ballots were sealed Saturday into their containers. In some places, those containers were locked into luggage compartments of buses but in Pikeville it was an airplane chosen as the mode of transportation.
