

Clinic Work Here Seen in 2 Weeks

Akers & Akers Get Contract For $305,000

Construction of the Prestonsburg Clinic is expected to begin here within the next two weeks and the deadline for its completion has been set for next June 1, Dr. George P. Archer, one of the doctor-members of the corporation financing the structure, said this week.

Contract for the work was awarded recently to Akers & Akers, Dana contractors, for a reported $305,000.

The two-story structure of 15,230 square feet of floor area will include offices for 13 doctors, a business office, pharmacy, treatment room, laboratory, X-ray room and conference room.

The three-acre clinic site is the former Mountain Metal Company location, opposite the entrance to the Prestonsburg Drive-In Theatre. Parking will be provided for 150 vehicles.

Eight physicians are participating in construction of the clinic, and all will be associated with the new Highlands Medical

Former Floyd Boy Victim of Accident At Cleveland, Ohio

Funeral rites for 16-year-old Julius L. Tackett, who was accidentally shot to death at the Cleveland, O. home of his parents last Wednesday, were conducted at 10 a.m. Sunday from the Clear Creek United Baptist Church.

The youth was shot in the chest when the shotgun which he was cleaning was accidentally discharged.

Surviving are his parents, Darwin and Cora Lee Hall Tackett, and four sisters, Mrs. Marcella Sheers, Miss Charolette Tackett, Mrs. Wanda K. Hamilton and Mrs. Wilma Faye Coniglia, all of Cleveland.

Ministers of the Regular Baptist Church officiated at the funeral. Burial was made in the Newman cemetery on Clear Creek by the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

INFANT IS VICTIM

Johnny Clay, infant son of Jack and Shirley Clay, of Hueysville, died at birth Sunday at Our Lady of the Way hospital at Martin. He was the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Clay, of Huntington, W. Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Troy Bolen, of Handshoe. Graveside services were held Tuesday at the family cemetery at Handshoe. Burial was made under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Floyd Benefits Under New Budget Listed

Floyd county may expect to be able to spend more money on its school foundation program, public assistance programs, child welfare and highway services and health programs as a result of the 1972-74 budget approved by the 1972 General Assembly, it was said at Frankfort this week.

For instance, a Ford administration source said, the Floyd school system will receive $941,351 more during the biennium,

Work As Librarian Begun Here Monday By Miss Hackworth

Miss Alice Hackworth was employed last Thursday by the Floyd County Library Board as fulltime librarian at the Floyd county library.

Miss Hackworth assumed her duties, Monday. In addition to supervisory work, she will begin development of an expanded library program and work to create public interest.

A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Hackworth, of the Middle Creek road, the new librarian is a graduate of Prestonsburg high school. She received her A. B. and M. A. degrees from Morehead State University. She was librarian at McDowell high school during the 1970-71 school year, returning last year for graduate work at Morehead State.

Production At Theatre In Trouble

Local Support Plea Voiced As Cutback Held a Possibility

Beset by bad weather at the outset of the season and lack of local support, the Jenny Wiley Summer Theatre faces a situation which could result in a cutback of its offerings this fall and for future years, Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., president of the Jenny Wiley Drama Association, warned area businesses and individuals in a letter mailed last week.

He requested a meeting of all interested persons at Prestonsburg Community College last Sunday afternoon, immediately following the presentation there of "The Grass Harp" by the Jenny Wiley Summer Theatre players.

Mitch Douglas, director of the theatre, said the first two weeks of the current season were a loss because of rain and cold weather. Financially, the theatre lost about $8,000. Otherwise, it lost the word-of-mouth advertising given by those who attend performances there.

But local support already is being marshalled. Prestonsburg Mayor George P. Archer has proclaimed this week Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre Week in Prestonsburg, and Prestonsburg businesses have sponsored a page advertisement in this edition of The Times, backing the theatre and its work. The week will be highlighted, Friday evening, with Bert Combs Night at the Amphitheatre. Ex-Governor Combs will speak at the UK Alumni Association meeting at May Lodge and be a special guest at the performance of "Jenny Wiley!" that evening.

Dr. Campbell in his appeal for public support pointed out:

"For the past five years, the Jenny Wiley Drama Association has attempted to put on a series of professional programs each summer for the benefit of our area. It would be difficult to actually establish the value that this summer theater brings to our area in terms of tourism and actual dollars expended during each summer. Certainly the total figure must approach a million dollars. People stay in each one of our five counties while they are attending the programs at the amphitheater. They stay in motels and hotels; they eat all of their meals; they have their cars serviced; and they buy merchandise to take home with them.

"This year during MUSIC MAN and JENNY WILEY! to date, we have had a substantial amount of support from outside the five county area, but have had very little attendance or support from our own Big Sandy Valley. If we are to continue

Miss Little Wins RECC Queen Title

The Licking Valley Rural Electric Cooperative will be represented this year at the state RECC beauty pageant by a Floyd county girl.

Miss Mikie Jane Little, 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Little, of Melvin, and a student at the University of Kentucky, won the title of Miss Licking Valley RECC, 1972 at the co-op's annual meeting held last Wednesday, near West Liberty. Her Floyd county residence normally would have excluded Miss Little from competition in the Licking Valley area, but her father's ownership of a television cable system at Royalton, Magoffin county, made her eligible.

The state RECC beauty pageant will be held during the State Fair in Louisville next month. The Licking Valley cooperative serves Magoffin, Morgan, Breathitt and Wolfe counties.

Former Resident Is Wreck Victim

Mrs. Juanita Green Meadows, 41, former West Prestonsburg resident, was instantly killed in an automobile wreck at Piketon, Ind., early Sunday morning, relatives here were notified.

The report received here said two vehicles figured in the tragedy.

Mother of five, Mrs. Meadows was the wife of Hillard Meadows and the daughter of James Green, of Piketon, and the late Mrs. Gertie Green. Besides her husband, children and father, she is survived by one sister, Mrs. Wanda Lee Hamilton, of the Auxier road; three brothers, Gerald and Burl Green, both of Indiana, and Earl Green, of Whitesburg. She also is survived by four half-brothers and two half-sisters.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at Piketon, and burial was made there.

Gets $5,000 Fellowship Award

Miss Sara Judith Smiley, of Prestonsburg, a University of Kentucky doctoral candidate in history, is writing her dissertation on the political career of Sen. Thruston B. Morton. She is using papers and materials of the former Kentucky Republican senator donated to the UK Library.

Miss Sara Judith Smiley, a University of Kentucky doctoral candidate in history, has been awarded a $5,000 fellowship by the American Association of University Women, to complete her dissertation on the political career of Former Senator Thruston Ballard Morton.

Entitled the Susan B. Riley endowed fellowship, it is one of 50 such fellowships awarded nationwide for the 1972-73 academic year.

A native of Prestonsburg, Miss Smiley is the daughter of Mrs. V. A. Smiley Sr.,

Prestonsburg, and the late Mr. Smiley.

Miss Smiley attended Prestonsburg Community College and was graduated from UK in 1969. She received her master's degree from UK in 1971, and held a National Defense Act fellowship during the earlier part of her Ph. D. program. Senator Morton has donated all of his political papers and materials to the UK Library, where Miss Smiley is doing most of her research. Dr. Holman Hamilton, UK professor of history, and an authority on American history, is supervising Miss Smiley's dissertation.

July 1, 1972 to July 1, 1974, than for the preceding two-year period. That is an increase for the two years of 13 per cent.

Public assistance funds for the county will be up 17 per cent, with $6,624,775 appropriated. Local health funds were increased by the new budget by 9 per cent, with $245,523 appropriated.

Wayne Ratliff, assistant superintendent of Floyd schools, said the increased foundation program funds will mean a 6 per cent pay increase for teachers, two years in a row, and that approximately 6 per cent will be for capital outlay, each of the two years.

Governor Ford said these specific increases in funds are indicative of the overall theme of his administration which, he said, is to serve people.

"This is only a part of what we are doing for Floyd county, but it does represent the type of leadership people are demanding," he added.

Body of Tackett Drowned in Lake Recovered Friday

The drowning late last Thursday afternoon of Gary Deane Tackett, 17-year-old Beaver youth, was the second of the season at Dewey Lake.

The first lake victim of the year bore the same family name. Edward G. Tackett, of Melvin, drowned near the dam, May 25.

Gary Deane Tackett drowned while swimming in the Goble Branch arm of the lake at 8 p.m. last Thursday. His body was recovered at 1:10 p.m., the following day, by divers of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad in 20 feet of water.

Capt. Andrew J. Reed, of the Kentucky Park Rangers, said he was told that one of young Tackett's companions, Gary Newsome, 17, of Teaberry, had swum across the lake and that Harold Newsome, 21, who was following him was almost across when he heard Tackett cry for help, behind him. Harold Newsome reached the youth and twice brought him to the surface but tired and himself barely escaped drowning.

According to the report given Reed, Newsome was saved when Grover Wireman, of Falcon, tossed him an inner tube to which Newsome clung after young Tackett had disappeared beneath the lake surface.

An unidentified drunken swimmer was reported rescued in the German swimming area last week. Swimming in unsupervised areas, at night as well as by day, presents a daily danger of tragedy, it was said.

Young Tackett was a son of Paul and Kathryn Reynolds Tackett, of Beaver, and was graduated last spring from Betsy Layne high school. Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers and one sister, Larry Douglas and Winfred Tackett, both of Beaver, and Mrs. Vivian Newsome, also of Beaver.

Funeral services were conducted Monday at 10 a.m. from the Tackett residence by ministers of the Regular Baptist Church, and burial was made in the J. S. Reynolds cemetery at Beaver under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

This Town . . . That World

During the current hot spell there has been, I am told, a move afoot locally to send me fishing, since my trips of this sort are invariably attended by unsettled weather which deteriorates into storm (snow or rain) and air movements that are definitely not in the zephyr classification. The only weakness in this plan is this: I take the bad weather with me, never leave it behind.

NO RUSH

Lenna Moore leaned too far out while fishing from the bank at Dewey Lake, the other morning, and a twig knocked his hat into the lake. A brisk wind swept the fedora out to sea, and Moore could do nothing about it. He left, bareheaded.

This hat is of such vintage that it was readily recognized, sometime later. There was the hat and there were the footprints of a man at the water's edge. A call for the Rescue Squad was in order.

"But," declares Lenna, "it was Bill Pettrey who found the hat, and he told the Rescue Squad to wait 30 minutes before coming over."

ALL FOR A FRIEND IN NEED

A hot week is in prospect as I write, and I do not propose to over-exert myself, physically or otherwise. So I turn to contributions of my friends for physical sustenance and also for material for this column. You might say, I ain't gonna sweat it, if there's any way out.

First of all, those contributions from friends to the family larder:

There were apples from Vester Fraley and Neil Allen, cucumbers from Haig Gayheart, smoked salmon and sturgeon from "Dootney" Horn, and "wild" bananas brought here from Leesburg, Fla. by Troy L. Morgan.

These have saved me from having to trade subscriptions to produce. And then Frank Harmon and T. J. Bingham have added contributions which make this column less of a chore.

Mr. Bingham's contribution is by an anonymous writer who seemed to have a yen for fishing. It runs to this effect:

"Somehow I always think more of a man when I see him fishing with his sons or daughters, showing them how to bait a hook or throw a fly and it does me good to see the expression on their faces when the younger one lands a fish. A kid may learn to (See Story 3, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Address by Combs, Discussion Of College Control Slated

Two items of the program of the Highlands Area Alumni Association, University of Kentucky, when it meets Friday evening at May Lodge here are of more than passing interest, Paul C. Combs, association president, said Monday.

In addition to the address to be delivered at the meeting by Ex-Governor Bert Combs, alumni will be given an opportunity to express their views on the possibility that administration of the state's community colleges be removed from U. K. control to that of smaller state universities.

"The alumni should make themselves heard on this question, and this will be their first opportunity," Mr. Combs said.

In addition to Ex-Governor Combs, guests at the meeting, its hospitality hour and buffet dinner will be Dr. Stanley Wall,

Brothers Knifed, Isaacs Is Jailed; Akers Arrested

Earmel Isaacs, of Teaberry, is in jail here facing trial on two warrants charging him with cutting and wounding two of his brothers with intent to kill.

He was jailed last Thursday by Constable Gillis Conn on a warrant charging him with cutting his brother, Tony. Later a warrant naming him in the more serious stabbing of another brother, William Isaacs, Jr., was served on him at the county jail. The second wounded brother has a punctured lung and is a patient at the McDowell Regional Hospital, court attaches said they were told.

Sheriff Frank Leslie and ABC Agent Arvel Nelson arrested Chester Akers, of Little Mud Creek, shortly after dawn Monday on Spurlock Fork of Left Beaver Creek and confiscated 229 cases of beer found in the truck which he was driving. Akers was charged in Magistrate Eddie Caudill's court with transporting alcoholic beverages.

Sheriff Leslie said Akers' truck was impounded. He added that Monday's arrest was Akers' second in a period of a few weeks. On the first occasion, the sheriff said, 230 cases of beer—one more case than his last cargo—were confiscated.

The only other raid of the week was that (See Story 4, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Suspect Arson In Melvin Fire

Arson is suspected in the destruction by fire last Friday night of a wrecker owned by Deputy Sheriff James Bartley, of Melvin.

While the officer was in Prestonsburg, booking at the county jail Gary Vitaeo on a reckless driving count, the wrecker burst into flames. A nearby garage also caught fire but was saved by neighbors.

Sheriff Frank Leslie said a beer can containing gasoline was found near the wrecker and that another beer can was found inside it. The wrecker, valued at around $6,000, was completely destroyed.

Leslie was joined in the investigation by J. E. Combs, arson inspector, Kentucky State Police.

vice-president for the community college system, and Jay Brumfield, director of alumni affairs.

Urging attendance of all UK alumni, the alumni association president pointed out that the occasion is an opportunity for them to express an interest in the University and to have an active part in the association.

Friday night will be Bert Combs Night at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre where "Jenny Wiley!" will be offered in Combs' honor. It was during his administration as governor that May lodge and the amphitheatre were built.

Jenny Wiley State Park Shop Offers a Variety of Crafts

By Helen Price Stacy

West Liberty, Ky.—How do you make Kentucky cornbread, sulphur apples or preserve foods the old-time way? Where can you find cornshuck dolls, poke bonnets, dulcimers and a Kentucky coloring book? What events preceded the Battle of Perryville; where are the state's sinking creeks; and, what happened 160 years ago to partially change the face of the commonwealth?

The answers to these and other questions are at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park in Eastern Kentucky.

While traveling to the park, you will enjoy the scenery of the Mountain Parkway. Traveling from Winchester the parkway leads through Red River Gorge country, and through the southern tip of Morgan county where there are signs of the abandoned O & K Railroad. It is said that the old trains went so slow you could get off, cut a switch to discipline your unruly youngster and board again without being in any hurry.

In Magoffin county there's a house more than 175 years old and Floyd county offers a large mound, site of the Battle of Middle Creek during the Civil War.

Just beyond Prestonsburg, a scenic drive leads to May Lodge at Dewey Lake. Inside the lodge the park's gift shop showcases and shelves hold everything from an inexpensive but handsome pottery mug made at the Bybee works in Madison county to a dulcimer made by Homer Ledford of Clark county.

There are tiny china pitchers, hand-painted and translucent, and small ceramics from Harlan, or you may like a fish of colored glass handmade by the Lindseys of Louisville.

Mrs. Juanita Hager and Mrs. Faye Patton, who manage the gift shop, will give assistance.

If interested in books about Kentucky, you can become completely absorbed while making a selection.

"Appalachia Revisited," written by a Kentucky mountain man, tells how folks did things 50 years ago. There's also information about making a cord bed, a rail fence, spinning wool and canning berries.

Another book, "By Their Works," gives details on dyeing yarns with roots, barks and nut hulls, carding wool, shoeing horses and mules, and sulphuring apples.

The book, "Blue Grass Recipes," tells how to prepare foods synonymous with southern hospitality as does the Farmington Cook Book. "What's Cooking in Kentucky" (compiled and published by Mrs. Irene Hayes, of Hueysville, Floyd county) explains how to make gritted bread—also the gritter—berry cobbles and Cassis Bud 12-day pickles.

If your interest is geology, the Kentucky Geological Survey of 1958 locates limestone caves, sinking creeks, natural bridges, waterfalls and mountain gaps. It also states that at 2 a.m., Dec. 16, 1811, the first shock of the New Madrid earthquake was felt through West Tennessee and Kentucky. Before the shocks ended, parts of both states had new faces and the beginning of Reelfoot Lake which was to become a mecca for sportsmen.

Art prints and plaques by many Kentucky artists can be obtained.

There are also crafts from Loretta Murray, Paducah, Nippa, Harlan, Nazareth, Cynthia and Bowling Green—and a coloring book about Kentucky.

These and hundreds of other items are available in the shop at Jenny Wiley as well as other gift shops in state parks.

State park gift shops are among the many places to relax and spend a few minutes or an hour. The quality arts and crafts are the answer to gift-giving and collecting. What you purchase from a few cents to $10 this summer could be valued two or three times as much before your next vacation or visit.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my grandbaby:

As I sit here, sad and lonely, Kelli, I can't believe you are really gone, Gone above to live with Jesus To fly around that great, White Throne.

As they walked you into heart surgery You wore a great, big smile; Little did we know that Jesus had come after you, That we had just borrowed you for a little while.

Oh, God! these things are hard to understand you never did a wrong. To see you again, it is a must. We know we can go to you but you can't come back to us. Kelli, baby, I dreamed I saw Jesus knocking at mom and daddy's door and they would not let him in. I hope and pray they find him, to ever see you again. I sat and watched your daddy place a rose in your precious hands as he looked for the last time upon your darling face. And then they closed the casket for your final resting place.

Your Granny,
STELLA HICKS

The Kentucky Air Pollution Control Commission has permanently enjoined the city of Harlan from operating its municipal incinerator. Harlan was accused of operating its incinerator without a permit from Feb. 4-17.

In Memory of James B. Click

Just a year ago today, July 20, about eight a.m., Daddy departed this life to take his flight to that unknown world, where his soul now rests under the altar of God, until Christ shall return to claim his own, but his loving memory and our deep love shall never die, and now his spirit seems to with us everywhere.

We are so thankful he was blessed to live 89 years, 2 months and 28 days. Twenty-five years of that time serving the Lord, he had been ordained as a deacon, and was a faithful member of the Old Regular Baptist Church.

We miss his presence but we knew he is now resting from all his labors, and... There is always hope of tomorrow To banish the clouds of despair, The love of a Heavenly Father To lighten the burdens we bear. There is always our faith to sustain us, The comfort that comes when we pray; There is always the hope of tomorrow And a happy reunion some day.

Mammals, Marvels of Creation

The highest order of mammals in the Primates, which include apes, monkeys, baboons and man. Mammals are highly adapted for living most anywhere and under all sorts of conditions and in all kinds of climate. Some have feet with hooves, some have padded toes and some have claws for digging or defense. Some even have webbed feet for swimming like a duck.

The lower order of mammals is the Monotremes, which lay eggs as birds do. These include the platypus and the spiny anteaters. Mammals can do most anything any other animals can do. They can fly (bats and flying squirrels are mammals); they can run, crawl, leap, swim, build houses; some can escape winter by hibernating (the bear, groundhog and chipmunk hibernate); others have a warm coat of fur for winter protection. Mammals can produce a great variety of sounds.

Once I made a list of the various kinds of emotions mammals express: Fear, alarm, hunger, anger, warning sounds. Among the many sounds to express emotion among mammals there are growling, yowling, grunting, howling, lowing (as of cattle), mewling, moaning, barking, yapping (foxes yap); roaring as of lions, chattering as of monkeys, bellowing, trumpeting, bleating, shrieking, screaming, squeaking, talking, snorting, nickering as of horses, and many others. See if you can add to this list.

The tallest mammal is the giraffe. These towering skyscrapers of the African savannah mostly eat the leaves of the acacia tree, a relative of the mimosa. Away up there where they feed on tree tops, there is no competition for the food supply. The giraffe has seven neck vertebrae, each of which is more than a foot long. These animals grow to a height of 18 feet, three times as tall as a man, and they have a tongue 17 inches long, for wrapping around tree branches. A full-grown giraffe easily weighs a ton. They are swift, graceful runners and have a long, loping flight. Each giraffe has two hair-coated horns which stick straight up from the top of the skull. They do not seem to be used for defense. Giraffes fight one another by using their long necks like a maul. They pack a powerful punch in their hind legs and can kill a lion with a well-aimed kick. The old king of beasts thinks twice before attacking a giraffe. The only sounds these animals are known to make are whistling and gurgling. The giraffe is a notable example of how a mammal can adapt itself to a special way of living. The giraffe is a popular animal with zoo visitors. The animal is so tall, I've heard it said that in order to drink water like a horse or cow, it has to get down on its knees.

The weirdest mammal known is the duckbill platypus, a strong concoction of bird and animal. The duckbill makes its home along the streams and lakes of Australia and was unknown to naturalists until the time of the first English settlement of that country. Settlers took the skin of a platypus to England and showed it to the scientists. These pooh-poohed the claim that this was the skin of any living animal and accused the settlers of sewing a duck's bill onto the furry hide of some animal they had killed. Not until they went to Australia and saw this weird critter would they believe it. Even then it was hard for them to believe their own eyes, and they gave the duckbill a name that is almost as weird as the animal itself; they named it "ornithorhynchus paradoxus," since it was truly a paradox to observers. The duckbill seemed to have been made of the left-overs after the normal animals and birds had been created. The duckbill was made with a broad bill like a duck and a furry body like a raccoon; it was made with a flat tail like a beaver and webbed feet like a goose. It was given the knowledge of how to build a nest of straw and dry grasses in which to lay its eggs. The female platypus incubates the eggs much as a goose or a duck does. But when the young hatch, they are not fed like the birds but must nurse milk from their mother, which puts them in the class of mammals. The bill is soft and rubbery, lacks teeth, but has horny ridges for crushing food. The food consists mainly of shrimp, earthworms, larvae, tadpoles, crawfish and shellfish, which it digs out of muddy stream bottoms with its shovel-like bill.

The duckbill also shows its relationship to snakes by having a poisonous spur like a fang, located on the hind leg of the male. This gives the animal the dubious distinction of being the only poisonous mammal known.

The Great Blue Whale is easily the largest mammal of them all. Even the great thunder lizards of the Age of Reptiles couldn't hold them a light for size. We can scarcely conceive of the immense size of this leviathan of the deep. It attains a length of 115 feet and may weigh more than a large-size brick house! Even its newborn baby (called a calf) weighs more than two or three elephants put together. The "calf" is more than 25 feet long at birth and nurses a thousand gallons of milk at one feeding. The whale calf doubles its size every two years and is mature at three or four. Strangely, this, the biggest of all mammals, eats the smallest-size food known, mostly plankton and krill, which it strains out of ocean water. The great blue whale belong to the family of large whales called Rorquals. It is to be regretted that this magnificent monster of the deep is now on the endangered list and must be protected or face extinction.

The most ruthless, most daring mammal known is the little mongoose, of the weasel family. Its skill and daring are shown in attacking and killing the 12-foot-long king cobra of India. Such courage is unmatched anywhere in the animal kingdom. The mongoose is as fast as "greased lightning" and plays the dangerous game with the king cobra by lunging at it in order to cause it to strike out madly. The mongoose is a shade faster than the cobra and escapes the fangs "by a hair." Then it keeps up its game of angering the cobra, getting it to repeat its strikes until the snake gradually grows slower and weaker. Then the mongoose seizes its neck just behind the hooded head and severs the spinal cord, causing instant death.

But the mongoose is also a ruthless killer and when its supply of reptiles has been exhausted, it will kill any animal it can find, such as birds, toads and pigs. The mongoose was once brought over to the West Indies and Philippines to kill out the snakes and rats. These were soon cleaned up, then the mongoose began devouring pigs, birds and domestic fowl. We see here an example of the imbalance of nature when any predator is taken out of its true habitat. It then becomes a deadly menace.

Says One-Time Sale Is Subject to Tax

District Manager Paul Spencer, of the Kentucky Department of Revenue, reminds area residents conducting garage sales, yard sales, flea markets and other such temporary or one-time selling activities that they are required by law to report and pay Kentucky sales tax.

Mr. Spencer also pointed out that the public sale of tickets by civic, charitable and religious groups for chili suppers, ham breakfasts, pancake breakfasts and similar functions open to the public, are also taxable sales under Kentucky law.

It's the Adults' Time, Next Time

Cleanup, which engaged the attention of a few last spring, has been forgotten, everybody is so busy at making another and bigger cleanup necessary next year.

Women's groups, as a rule, spearhead these drives to clean up the landscape. At Jenny Wiley State Park Boy and Girl Scouts worked in the early weeks of spring this year to clean up the mess their elders had left behind after a season of camping, visiting, sightseeing, skylarking—what have you.

We are for cleanup. We admire those who worked so hard to get something done.

But we do not believe these youngsters of ours should be expected to clean up the mess which their elders created. We believe the Scouts have done their good turn in that respect and that others should now do the work. These youngsters should not be expected to risk the dangers of tetanus from cuts by beer cans, or hepatitis from the filthy lying in refuse, or from accidental injury—all because anti-littering laws aren't enforced and because those of us who are old enough to know better insist on leaving our tracks behind us in the form of rusty cans, broken bottles, rags, papers and almost every other form of refuse.

There are unemployed men who are able to work and who need jobs. Let the governments which have control of such situations—federal, state, county, city—employ these adults to do for pay what the children have been doing for nothing.

Sure, it will cost the taxpayers. And shouldn't it? Almost every taxpayer among us is contributing to the mess that cries to be cleaned up.

Computer Instruction Held Success After Year in East Ky. Schools

After only one year's run, the first Computer Assisted Instruction (CAI) program in Floyd and 19 other Eastern Kentucky counties has proved to be effective and successful, evaluators of the program say.

According to a 10-page evaluation report released today (July 16), the Computer Assisted Instruction (CAI) program in reading and math, operated and offered by the Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corporation (EKEDC), of Ashland, proved effective in the areas of basic skills, grades, attendance and attitudes.

In addition, CAI reading students in one school tripled their growth while some CAI math students had a growth rate of 150 per cent.

"I would like to credit the success of this CAI program to the Superintendents of Eastern Kentucky," said Edwin R. Jones, EKEDC director, "for they are the people who spirited the establishment and implementation of this commitment to education to carry it on."

"They started and proceeded to work with the belief that CAI could individualize instruction, and these first evaluation results serve to prove that their convictions were correct and their efforts have not been lost."

Jones added that although the only real purpose of the CAI program is to improve the achievement of the student. The superintendents also realized the coming of the computer age and the need to incorporate it in their schools.

"They have realized that we in education are in the forefront of experimentation and research," Jones said, "and now that such successful data has begun to roll in, they are duly proud of their efforts."

The evaluation report went on to specifically cite and identify four areas of greatest growth. They are:

1. In both their "pre" and "post" tests, CAI math and reading students performed significantly better than did a group of comparison students, even though the reported intelligence of the comparison students tended to be better.

2. In grades and attendance, CAI students also improved more over the previous year than did non-CAI students.

CAI student grades improved by six per cent over the non-CAI group, while other figures for the two groups remained about the same. However, CAI students improved their attendance by nine per cent over non-CAI students, while their absentee rate declined by a whopping 16 per cent over the non-CAI students.

3. The attitudinal questionnaires indicated that the students, parents and teachers all liked CAI and want it to continue next year.

Of the students responding, 53 per cent indicated that they liked the computer terminal for arithmetic very much, while 31 per cent said they "like it o.k." In addition, 76 per cent responded that they wanted to use the computer again next year.

The parents were equally enthusiastic about CAI, with 73 per cent indicating that they thought their child did better in school this year than last and 80 per cent saying they would like to see the schools use terminals in more of the classes next year.

Surprisingly, 39 per cent said they were willing to have taxes raised to pay for CAI if necessary.

The teachers said they also liked CAI and would like to see it extended to other subject areas.

4. The CAI math students scored consistently higher than comparison groups in math skills and reading test performance, even though the project was not directly concerned with reading.

"Although the CAI program works extremely well with the average child in both these areas," said Keith Powell, EKEDC Instructional Coordinator, "the most dramatic gains occur with slow learners at grades four through seven in math and grades seven through nine in reading."

The following chart indicates how much the students in Region VII (the 20 Eastern Kentucky counties and their schools served by EKEDC) have grown through CAI math:

GRADE	Growth Before CAI	Growth After CAI
3	90 percent	100 percent
4	88 percent	125 percent
5	86 percent	113 percent
6	77 percent	125 percent
7	28 percent	150 percent
10	75 percent	175 percent

The figures presently available in CAI reading are those for grade nine, which indicate that students tripled their growth rate from 47 per cent to 150 per cent.

Basically, CAI or Computer Assisted Instruction is a one-to-one learning process involving only the student and his teletypewriter (computer typewriter) in various supplementary math and reading drills. Using a computer housed in the basement of Holy Family School in Ashland, the CAI math program was begun by EKEDC on a 2½-month trial basis during the 1970-'71 school year. Because of its trial-run success with students in grades two through six, the program was broadened for 1971-'72 to include a full year of CAI math and reading for over 3,800 elementary, secondary and vocational education students.

This, according to EKEDC Director Jones, made it the largest CAI program in the nation.

The state attorney general's office is preparing a legal opinion to relieve the confusion over state and federal employment laws relating to women. State laws specify working hours and conditions for women, while federal regulations prohibit all employment discrimination on the basis of sex. Martin Glazer, deputy attorney general, said the opinion basically will advise employers to follow federal law when conflicts arise.

LETTERS To the Editor

APPRECIATES EAST POINT STORY

Editor, The Times:
Thank you for printing the story on the history of East Point. I grew up at Auxier, but attended the Church of Christ at East Point for 20 years. But, even at that, I knew very little about the community. Unless articles like that one are written, very few people know the true history of their own community. I would like to know who wrote the article, since my father's name (the late S. C. Honeycutt) was mentioned. I have added the article to a book of mementoes I am collecting about my father.

Credit should be given to the person who got together so much valuable information and passed it on to those of us who know so little about East Point, Ky.

Best Performance 'Titanic,' Says Critic

Stuart Best, husband of the former Rita Anne Oney, of Garrett, and a member of the Vancouver (British Columbia) Symphony Orchestra, and the following from the Vancouver Sun comments on a concert given by him:

"Titanic is a description I'm tempted to use in reference to young clarinetist Stuart Best, who gave a knock-out performance at the Community Music School Saturday Night.

Best is from Philadelphia and has been playing with the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra during its current season, at the end of which he will return to the United States. His stay in Vancouver has been brief, and it's unfortunate that we haven't had the chance to hear this remarkable talent in solo appearances more often."

"Clearly, Best knows his instrument and his music inside and out. In his ambitious program of Hindemith, Saint-Saens, Poulenc and Copland, I can't recall a note that was anything but firm, round and pure even in the most whirlwind passage.

"There was a prodigy's sense of style, precision and breadth to everything he played, without ever an impression of difficulty. It was a breeze for him to toss off intricate scales and arpeggios, to sweep the bottom and top registers clean, and to produce nothing but the creamiest tone regardless how sticky the configuration of notes."

Mrs. Best is a daughter of Mrs. Reece Oney, of Garrett, and the late Mr. Oney, and a niece of Mrs. Anna Lowe, of Prestonsburg.

Rural Secondary Fund for County Set at $369,071

Governor Wendell H. Ford and Highway Commissioner Charles Pryor, Jr., last Friday announced the 1972-73 Rural Secondary Program for Floyd county. The county's share of Rural Secondary funds for the fiscal year beginning July 1 is $369,071.

The program selected provides maintenance for 105.3 miles of rural secondary roads. It also authorizes blacktop resurfacing for 5.6 miles of KY 304, the Dewey Lake Road; 1 mile of May's Branch Road; 1.9 miles of streets in New Allen and 1.5 miles of the Salyers Branch road; blacktop resurfacing for 3.5 miles and construction of a bridge on KY 122, the Martin-Buck Branch-Spurlock road; initial blacktop surfacing for 1 mile of the Upper Bull road, .8 mile of the Right Fork Bull Creek road, .6 mile of streets in Crawdad Bottom, .1 mile of streets in Lower Burton, .1 mile of a street in Burton, and 1 mile of the Simpson Branch road; construction of bridge superstructures on KY 144, the Bonanza-Prestonsburg road, and on the Spewing Camp road; and repairs to a bridge deck on KY 1498, the Jack's Creek road.

The Rural Secondary Program is supported by two cents of the state motor fuel tax. It originated in 1948 when the General Assembly recognized the need to improve farm-to-market and other rural roads. To insure fair distribution among the various counties, it enacted a statutory formula in 1962. This formula, which takes rural population, rural area and rural road mileage into account, determines each county's share.

The total revenue which the program anticipates for the coming fiscal year is $34,960,000.

New Plumbing Code Cited by Dr. Hall

The new Kentucky State Plumbing Code establishes new requirements for plumbing of all new private and public buildings to be plumbed in accordance with the new code, Dr. Russell L. Hall, county health officer, pointed out this week.

All buildings must have an acceptable sewage system, either by connecting onto a municipal sewage system or by the installation of a septic tank and properly installed disposal field. The overflow or effluent from the septic tank must drain into a properly prepared ditch and must not pool or flow on the ground surface or flow into any stream.

Plans for the construction of all public buildings must first be submitted to the Floyd County Health Department for forwarding to the State Health Department, Frankfort, for approval before construction is permitted, Dr. Hall added.

Information regarding the installation of an acceptable sewage system or installing proper plumbing may be procured from the Floyd County Health Department.

aggerate a little bit when he tells about his catch; but a fisherman without weighing scales doesn't want to underestimate the size of his fish either, so he picks out the weight he thinks will impress his friends. Fishing is a sport you can enjoy right up to the end. One of the best fishermen I know has a bad case of palsy, but he uses it to advantage. It gives his cork little jiggle that fish simply can't resist. Another thing: If you take a youngster fishing, maybe that youngster will come day take an old man fishing.

And Mr. Harmon contributes William Faulkner's masterful assessment of the rule. It follows:

"Some Homer of the cotton fields should sing the saga of the mule and of his place in the South. He it was, more than any other creature or thing, who, steadfast to the end and when all else faltered before the hopeless juggernaut of circumstance, oblivious to conditions that broke men's hearts because of his venomous and patient reoccupation with the immediate present, from the prone South from beneath the iron wheel of Reconstruction and taught it pride gain through humility, and courage through adversity overcome; who accomplished the well-nigh impossible despite hopeless odds, by sheer and vindictive patience. Father and mother he does not resemble, sons and daughters he will never have; vindictive and patient (it is a known fact that he will labor ten years willingly and patiently for you, for the privilege of kicking you once); solitary but without pride, self-sufficient but without vanity; his voice is his own derision. Outcast and pariah, he has neither friend, wife, mistress, nor sweetheart; celibate, he is unscarred, possesses neither pillar nor desert cave; he is not assaulted by temptations nor flagellated by dreams nor assuaged by vision; faith, hope and charity are not his. Misanthropic, he labors six days without reward for one creature whom he hates, bound with chains to another whom he despises, and spends the seventh day kicking or being kicked by his fellows. He performs alien actions in alien surroundings; he finds bread not only for a race, but for an entire form of behavior; meek, his inheritance is cooked away from him along with his soul in a glue factory. Ugly, untiring and perverse, he can be moved neither by reason, flattery, nor promise of reward; he performs his humble, monotonous duties without complaint, and his meed is blows. Alive, he is haled through the world, an object of general derision; unwept, unhonored and unsung, he bleaches his awkward accusing bones among rusting cans and broken crockery and worn-out automobile tires on lonely hillsides while his flesh soars unawares against the blue in the craws of buzzards."

Several shots were fired during Goble's flight from the sheriff.

Center now under construction and slated for opening next fall. Each participating doctor is a stockholder in the corporation formed to build the clinic, but each will practice independently.

Although the doctors will continue individual practice, all will use the facilities of the central business office. It was pointed out that savings will be possible to patients, since the clinic will make it possible for one doctor to have the records of another as the patient passes from one doctor to another for examination or treatment. Thus, it is explained, records and test results made by one doctor will be available to another in the clinic, making unnecessary new tests at added cost.

SENIOR CITIZENS MEET

The Senior Citizens Club, of West Prestonsburg, met July 19 at the clubroom, "the School House." They make quilts, aprons, bonnets, etc. which are for sale, the proceeds to be used for various community projects. (The public is invited to visit their clubroom and see the workers in action.) An interesting program was presented. Cake and punch were served to Eva Meadows, Roger Meadows, Ann Hurd, Vita Stewart, Ella Cisco, Joe Helton, Malta Watson, Perry Greene, Zella Greene, Rebecca Miller, Timmy J. McKenzie, Sarah Jane Elliott, Minnie Hackworth, Jo Anna Lyons, Ora A. Blackburn, Stella Shepherd, Nora Blackburn, Estill Shepherd.

Man's Reported Suicide Attempt Poses Questions

Charles Everett Jenkins, 22, who lies in critical condition in a Lexington hospital after a revolver bullet had been fired through his brain, shot himself, his mother has told authorities, but Sheriff Frank Leslie said Monday that there are unexplained aspects of the case.

Jenkins reportedly shot himself around 2 a.m. last Friday while in a stolen auto, outside his mother's home on Conley fork of Rock Fork Creek, near Garrett. His mother, Mrs. Delilah Jenkins, was quoted as having told officers that he told her, "If you don't want to see it, go in the house." A youth also said Jenkins shot himself.

But Sheriff Leslie contends that Jenkins, who is right-handed, was shot in his left temple. (State Detective Chester D. Potter said, however, nurses told him Jenkins was shot in the right temple.)

He also is curious to know why five sticks of dynamite were in the front seat of the car where Jenkins lay after the shot was fired. Another stick lay in the roadway, outside the car.

The .38-calibre revolver from which the shot presumably was fired was found inside the car. Deputy Sheriff Sollie Holbrook said he found it, almost entirely concealed, under the front seat.

Vertie Fitch, of Roack Fork, was jailed here by State Trooper Dennie Williamson on an auto theft charge. He is accused of taking the auto of Elisha Chaffins, the car in which the shooting took place.

from summer to summer, we need the restaurants, the motels and hotels, the service stations, the Chambers of Commerce, the news media, and every other citizen's support in promoting the activities of the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre.

"During the 1971 summer season, we had a very profitable year, and we were able to offer this summer's work, which is far superior to any of our previous years. I would like to ask that you help us because our future could be in jeopardy unless we can achieve the type of community support such as is evident in Bardstown, Harrodsburg, Danville, and in Gatlinburg, Tennessee... This summer is the real clue to our future. Unless, we have more local support for the remainder of this summer, it is entirely possible that we would have to begin a cutback this fall and for future years..."

This week's theatre productions are: Wednesday and Sunday, 2:30 p.m. at Prestonsburg Community College, "The Grass Harp," the critically acclaimed musical in its first summer stock production.

Thursday and Saturday, 8:30 p.m., at the Amphitheatre, "Once Upon a Mattress," the hilarious, all-family musical based on the fairy tale, "The Princess and the Pea."

Wednesday, Friday and Sunday, 8:30 p.m., at the Amphitheatre, "Jenny Wiley!" the true-life musical adventure based on the life of the frontier heroine, her courtship, capture by the Indians and her escape through the wilds of the Big Sandy valley.

Two Free After Agreeing To Give State's Evidence

After they had agreed to turn state's evidence against a man now being held in the Floyd county jail for safekeeping, Laurence E. Norton, II, Hazard attorney, and Gordon Singleton, of Stormking, Ky., won dismissal Monday of the charge of knowingly receiving stolen firearms that had been lodged against them.

Commonwealth's Attorney Tolbert Combs, of Perry county, said, in announcing that the charges had been dropped against the two men, that federal firearms control officials had suggested that the Perry county charges against Norton and Singleton be dismissed. The suggestion was made after the two had agreed to testify against Kermit Hall, a prisoner in the jail here.

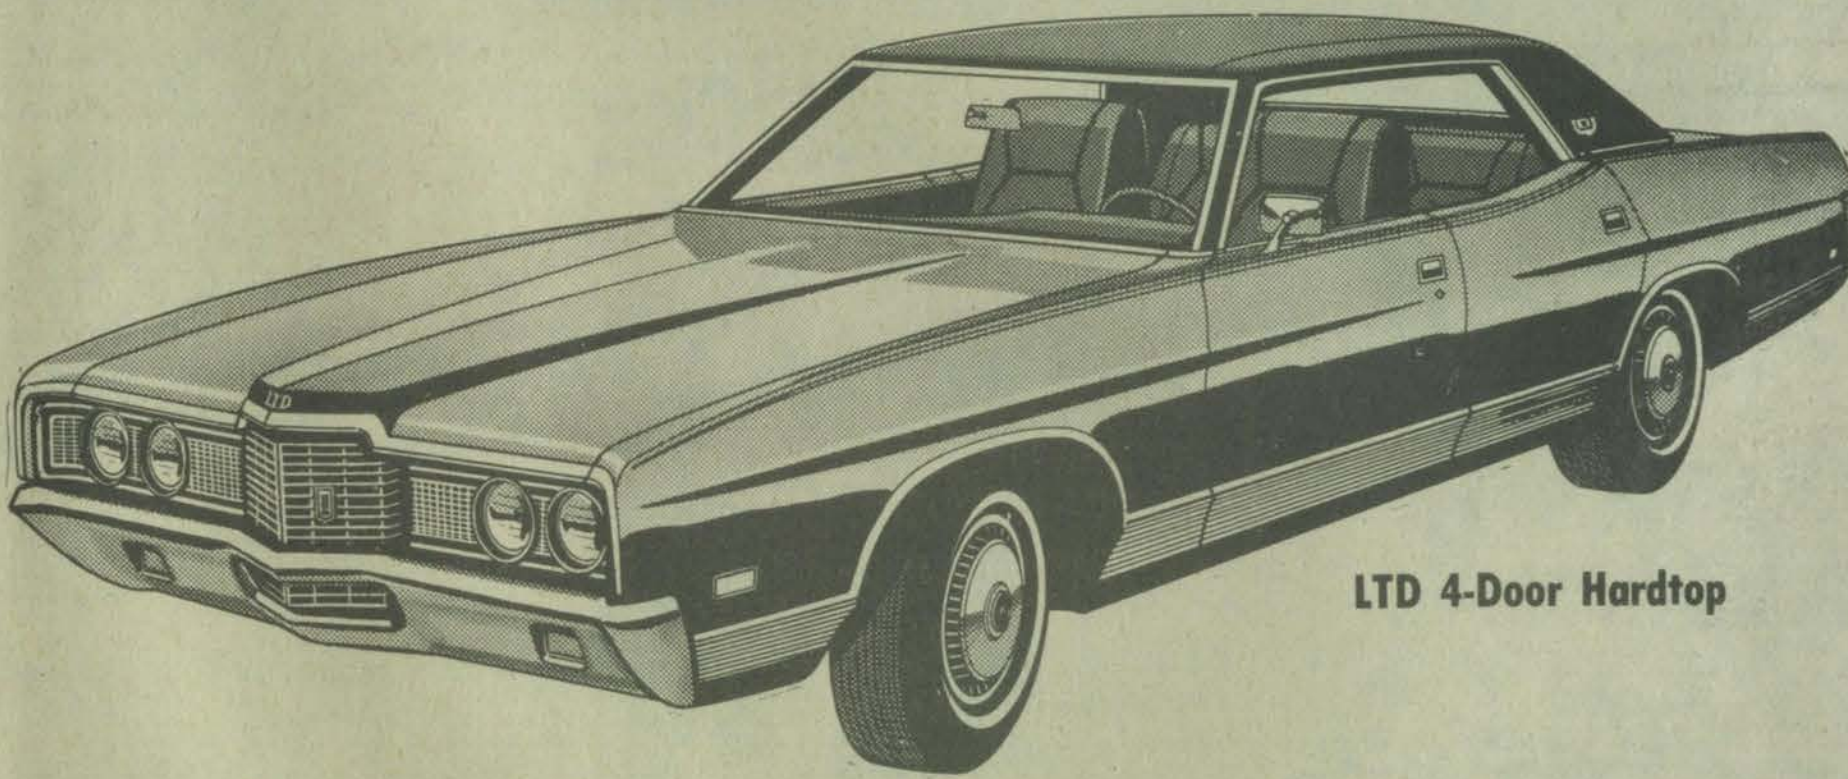

Norton is a co-founder of Mountain People's Rights, a poor people's legal organization. He and Singleton were arrested Jan. 25 on the charge of knowingly receiving eight stolen military-type rifles.

Kermit Hall and his brothers, Merle and Danny, were brought to jail here from Jackson, May 9. They are charged with transporting firearms, and all three remain prisoners here. They are natives of Rome City, Indiana.

It was said that Kermit Hall faces federal charges in Indiana which involve interstate transportation of the weapons which eventually reached Norton and Singleton.

Junior Women Again To Head Floyd Pageant

The Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club will again sponsor the Miss Floyd County Pageant in September, Mrs. Claybourne Stephens, club president, announced Tuesday.

Winner of the county pageant will enter the Miss Kentucky Pageant held annually to select the state queen, who will compete for the Miss America crown in the national competition at Atlantic City, N. J., in September, 1973.

The event this year will be the ninth annual Miss Floyd County Pageant sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club.

"We are again serving as sponsors of the pageant this year because we believe it provides a valuable contribution to the community and to the young ladies who will enter the competition," Mrs. Stephens said in announcing plans of her organization.

"We believe it serves the community well because it focuses attention on the high calibre of young ladies who are residents of our area and we believe it serves youth well because it provides the opportunity for the young ladies who compete to gain added poise through public appearances and to gain added maturity through participation in a community program such as the Miss Floyd County Pageant," Mrs. Stephens added.

"Most important, it will provide the opportunity for the girl who is the winner to continue to seek scholarship awards at the Miss Kentucky Pageant, which will aid her in obtaining an education at the college of her choice," the president said.

In announcing that this organization plans continuation of the Miss Floyd County Pageant sponsorship, Mrs. Stephens said it will be held Sept. 2, at 8 p.m. at Prestonsburg high school.

She also announced that committees to plan the program are being formed and that organizations in the area have been requested to sponsor contestants for the pageant.

"This will be a community endeavor and we in the Junior Woman's Club are sure all in the community will participate to insure its success," Mrs. Stephens commented.

Kentucky Gets Funds To Fight Alcohol Abuse

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Gov. Wendell H. Ford has announced a federal grant of more than one-half million dollars to help meet the problems of alcohol abuse and addiction in Kentucky.

In announcing the grant from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) to the state Department of Mental Health, Governor Ford pointed to this award as another step in fulfilling his campaign promise to place major emphasis on expansion of alcohol treatment and prevention programs.

The Department of Mental Health recently established a new Division of Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

The governor said Kentucky is one of the first states in the nation to have its state plan for alcohol treatment, prevention and rehabilitation approved by federal authorities.

Approval of the plan and with it the grant for $514,720 was given by the two-year-old National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, a component of the National Institute of Mental Health.

"Kentucky's mainstream approach for combating this urgent problem will be based on treatment and education programs delivered in the community with special input from the state level," the Governor said. "Included will be detoxification centers, halfway houses, group homes, individual and group counseling, family guidance, rehabilitation, job placement and after-care. Residential treatment, and rehabilitation services at state psychiatric hospitals, will also be expanded."

The Kentucky plan includes three major priorities:

Identification and help for the still employed and functioning alcoholic in an all-out effort to reach him before acute deterioration sets in. The greatest number of alcoholics are in this group.

Intensive residential treatment on state and local levels for the acute alcoholic with medical problems so severe as to require partial hospitalization or to have required full-time hospitalization.

Expansion of the Driving While Intoxicated Traffic Safety Court Schools, already operating on a pilot basis in several areas of the state.

Mental Health Commissioner Dr. Dale H. Farabee indicated that the Department will work closely with the 15 regional mental health-mental retardation boards, as well as courts and law enforcement officers, on local programs. Existing programs will be expanded and new services added at the state level.

The regional boards operate 22 comprehensive care centers throughout Kentucky with technical and financial assistance from the Department of Mental Health. All centers are required to provide assistance to citizens with alcohol problems. Four centers have received individual alcohol program grants from federal authorities, three are awaiting funding of approved requests and three others have approval pending.

Officials estimate there are more than 100,000 alcoholics in Kentucky, each seriously affecting the lives of four other persons. Thus, an estimated one-million Kentuckians are either directly or indirectly affected by alcohol addiction—almost 20 per cent of the state's entire population.

But Not in Floyd County . . . Official Says New Registration Could Boost Voter Numbers

Secretary of State Thelma Stovall thinks the number of registered voters will increase under the re-registration which will begin with the November election this year, despite the fact that the new registration is expected to do a job of purgation that purgation boards have never been able to do.

The re-registration is expected to end the "tombstone" lists, rid the rolls of dead voters, those who have moved away or otherwise become ineligible to vote. But, basing her prediction on the experience of South Carolina, where computerized registration was initiated several years ago, and where the registration jumped by 150,000, Mrs. Stovall thinks Kentucky's registration may rise from its present 1.4 million, plus, to 2 million.

Observers here cannot see Floyd county's registration increasing under the new registration system. Most think it will show a sharp drop. As of the last election, about 24,500 were on the registration rolls in this county, which has a total population of only about 35,000.

Floyd purgation boards have over the years removed the names of several thousands of voters from the lists, but there has never been an appreciable drop in the number of those registered.

The new registration must be completed 45 days prior to the 1973 November election. Mrs. Stovall said the re-registration will be the first on a statewide basis in more than half a century. Once it is completed, she added, the master registration list will be updated every month in the secretary of state's office.

State Democratic Chairman J. R. Miller of Owensboro has indicated that he will recommend formation of a bipartisan committee to study the impact of the new law and its implementation.

State Republican Chairman John Kerr of Lexington has expressed concern that the new machinery "is in the hands of the majority party." Democrats now out-register Republicans 2 to 1.

Under the new act the state must provide registration forms in each of the more than 3,000 precincts during next November's general election.

Each precinct also must have duplicate registration forms for comparison of signatures.

Thus, many voters will be able to do double duty—vote and register the same day in the same place.

Mrs. Stovall said other methods may be added to get voters to sign up again.

"The county clerks are trying to work out easy ways," she said. "There may be provision for reregistering by mail. There may be door-to-door canvassing to sign up the voters."

P'burg Woman, Daughters Hurt

Mrs. Peggy Napper, of Prestonsburg, and her three daughters were injured in a car wreck at Harold, early Saturday evening, as they returned from her son's wedding reception at Grethel.

Pinned behind the steering wheel of the car, Mrs. Napper suffered a broken hip, a broken left arm, a fractured and lacerated right arm, and other injuries. She underwent surgery Monday at the Methodist Hospital, Pikeville.

(Mrs. Napper is the "salad lady" at the new Kentucky Fried Chicken on North Lake Drive here.)

Robin Lynn, her youngest daughter, was also scheduled to undergo surgery Monday. She has a broken arm, and a severe eye injury.

Another daughter, Edna Jean lost front teeth and received minor lacerations and bruises.

Vanita Kay, the eldest daughter, has a bone fracture on the left hand.

Mrs. Napper said the auto of Boge Isaacs slid 120 to 150 feet before crashing into her car.

The day started out happily. Mrs. Napper's son, Carl Douglas, who had returned home from Panama for a 30-day leave, was married to Miss Sandra Gail Hall at the Mountain Manor Nursing Home at 5 p.m., July 22. From here the wedding party went to Grethel for the reception.

State Corrections officials are still uncertain about the future of Kentucky's 24 condemned prisoners on death row. The uncertainty stems from a Supreme Court ruling on June 27 calling existing state laws on capital punishment "unconstitutional."

New System To Benefit Taxpayers, Welfare Recipients, Lowell Says

The nation's taxpayers and the welfare population will both benefit from substantial reform in the welfare system that became effective July 1 under the Talmadge Amendments to the Social Security Act, Assistant Secretary of Labor Malcolm R. Lovell, Jr., said recently.

He told the Senate Finance Committee the amendments provide the basis for a redesign of the Work Incentive (WIN) program which will give the taxpayer "a better system and a greater accountability for their tax dollars."

"For the adult welfare population, the Talmadge amendments strengthen their opportunity for meaningful work by giving them a better chance to receive training, get a job, and have access to the social services that will allow him or her to get and keep that job," Lovell said.

He outlined the major changes instituted by the Talmadge Amendments, stressing that "the first important difference is that the states no longer have discretion over who may participate in the WIN program."

"Instead," he said, "unless specifically exempted by law, every adult and child 16 or over must register for WIN as a condition for AFDC eligibility."

Other changes in the role of the states is that they will only be required to pay 10 percent of the financial burden of the WIN program and this 10 percent can be paid in facilities or services.

State welfare agencies are also given an affirmative responsibility, he said, to provide supportive services such as child care, health care, counseling and vocational rehabilitation.

"The planning element will be an important feature in the new WIN program whereby labor market advisory councils, consisting of local business and civic interests and statewide plans will have substantial input for identifying the types of jobs available in a particular area," he said.

The Job Development tax credit which permits an employer to claim a tax credit equal to 20 percent of the first 12 months of a WIN enrollee's wages, will be an "equalizer" for WIN participants in competing for jobs which will get them off welfare rolls or materially reduce their need for public assistance.

"The emphasis," Lovell said, "is on jobs." This includes requiring public or private nonprofit agencies to sign a six-month contract with a WIN enrollee, concentrating on on-the-job training, and giving high priority to the placement process.

If a welfare recipient is eligible and available for work, he must accept work when offered or lose part of the welfare stipend.

"In addition, we are going to alter the 'in again - out again' game that some AFDC recipients now play with the current system. There will be no speedy reinstatement of AFDC benefits once an individual has been terminated for failure to participate in the program. He must wait at least 90 days after an adverse adjudication. The initial adjudication will be done by State examiners who are independent of program interests with a Federal review panel.

"This system will promote consistency of legal interpretation, protect the integrity of the work test, and assure the constitutional and statutory rights of the individual."

Lovell stressed that "the amendments represent a significant and highly desirable step in the direction of welfare reform, and embody many of the 'workfare' ideas put forward in H. R. 1."

He warned that "the welfare system is in need of even further reform—reform that was not intended by the WIN amendments and that only H. R. 1 can provide."

"The welfare system needs additional incentives to keep families together and to encourage welfare recipients to take jobs," he said. "The WIN amendments do not fully cover this situation; they do not cover families headed by unemployed fathers in most States, or the families of the working poor. In contrast, H. R. 1 would."

Under Talmadge, the benefit levels will continue to vary from state to state.

Lovell closed by saying, "WIN-Talmadge is a major step forward and we plan to administer it with all the determination we can bring to the program. In doing so, we will encourage imaginative approaches by local sponsors, and carefully evaluate their results so that when comprehensive welfare reform is a reality, we will have benefited from our experience under the WIN-Talmadge program."

Whatever Things

By DONALD E. WILDMON

The Thrill Is In Trying

Several centuries ago a man wrote, "I keep working toward that goal..." He had not arrived. Yet he continued to work at arriving. This man knew a great truth of life, a truth which kept him working at the task. Paul knew that the thrill of life was in trying.

Success in life often brings satisfaction. But the thrill which life offers is in trying to be successful. The thrill of life comes—not alone from achieving our goal—but in the attempt to achieve it. The thrill is in trying!

Our goals in life should always be a little beyond our reach. This keeps us trying. As long as we have a goal in front of us, just a little beyond our reach, we have something to work toward. This makes life worth living.

Life would be meaningless for me unless I had a goal that was a little beyond my reach. Back when I first started writing, I wouldn't even give my work away. I approached many publishers with a manuscript for my first book and not a few of them had a good laugh over it.

But I wanted to write. And, regardless of what others had to say, I continued to try. Since that first effort to sell my writing, I have been able to accomplish some tremendous goals. But, for me, the thrill is not so much in accomplishing the goal as it is in trying to accomplish it. Each time I nearly reach a goal I have set for myself, I push it a little higher. For the thrill is in trying.

We should never let the fear of failing keep us from experiencing the thrill of trying. We should never cease to try to go higher and farther because of fear we will not make it. We will be richer simply because we tried. And, also, whether we make it or not we can experience the thrill which comes from trying.

Perhaps you have wanted to do some things but have not attempted them because you were fearful you couldn't accomplish them. Attempt them! Go at them with the best you have! Don't be afraid because you might fail. Make an effort. You will be richly rewarded and you will also receive the thrill that comes from trying!

The thrill of following the Carpenter from Galilee is in trying. When you are a Christian you are always working toward a goal which you know you will never reach. But there is a tremendous thrill in trying to reach that goal. God is continually calling us to be a little bit better, a little bit bigger than we are. Like Paul, we never arrive but we keep "working toward that goal."

The Man of Galilee Himself experienced the thrill of trying. The odds against His accomplishing what He attempted to accomplish—in the manner in which He attempted it—were infinitely great. But He was willing to try. The thrill is in trying!

"Ask and you will receive; seek, and you will find; knock, and the door will be opened to you." Our fondest dreams, the dreams God has planted in our heart, can come true. And the thrill of life is in trying to make them come true!

Ginger Cites Need For Special Session

Another special legislative session, this one possibly in 1973, has been predicted by

Lyman Ginger, state superintendent of public instruction.

Basing his assumption on possible Supreme Court rulings before September, next year, to uphold lower courts which have thrown out the local property tax as a revenue source for schools, Ginger said his department would employ outside experts in the field of school finance to suggest means of changing Kentucky laws to continue, if local taxes are invalidated, school financing.

Court decisions did not invalidate the property tax completely, he said, but simply made it a state tax imposed, collected and distributed in a uniform manner. Local property taxes last year accounted for 30 per cent of the revenue for public elementary and secondary school, with the state providing 53.7 per cent and 16.3 per cent from the federal government.

Anticipating the 1973 ruling by the Supreme Court, Ginger said the outside study may be completed by next summer with interim legislative committees being advised as the study progresses.

HISTORIC MILL—Production continues full scale at Weisenberger Mill near Midway, where over 6 million pounds of flour and corn meal products were packaged in 1971. The old mill, cited as a Kentucky Landmark by the Kentucky Heritage Commission, has been operated by the Weisenberger family since 1865.

State's Oldest Flour Mill Located in Scott County

By Lois Campbell
Frankfort, Ky.—While Department of Agriculture statistics show, production-wise, that wheat isn't one of Kentucky's larger crops, more than 9 million bushels of the golden grain is expected to go this year to mills for storage and processing into flour.

The directory of Kentucky manufacturers lists more than a dozen mills that produce flour and flour products, but the oldest, continuously operating mill in the state is Scott county's Weisenberger Mill.

Located on the banks of the South Elkhorn and operated by the Weisenberger family since 1872, this flour mill is the last remaining in Scott county—a county that once had its many creeks dotted with mills.

It is recognized as a Kentucky Landmark by the Kentucky Heritage Commission whose records indicate that flour mills have been located on this site since the early 1800's.

Philip Weisenberger, great grandfather of the present owner, began milling in 1865 at nearby Spring Station, but seven years later moved the operation to its present location.

Yet in this spot steeped in history, milling today is a fully automated process. Present owner, Philip J. Weisenberger says that last year's production at the mill was near 6 million pounds of flour and corn meal products.

"While there are some slack months, we maintain operations year-round, sometimes 11 hours a day," he explains.

The mill, which employs 17 persons, delivers direct to all major chains and groceries within a 55-mile radius, and recently expanded sales into the Cincinnati area.

"We are constantly trying to upgrade and improve on our total production. The move in the last few years to flour and corn meal mixes has greatly increased our sales," Weisenberger adds.

Weisenberger Mill presently packages biscuit, pancake, cornbread, hush puppy, and yellow corn muffin mixes in addition to seasoned flour, corn meal and assorted flours.

With harvesting of the grain at its peak in the early summer months, this is a busy season at the mill. When the wheat arrived at the mill, it is given a preliminary cleaning to remove foreign material such as straw, chaff and dust and is then put into temporary storage to await milling. Weisenberger says that the main aim of flour milling is separating the starchy endosperm from the other parts of the wheat grain and pulverizing it into fine flour.

"First of all, a water conditioning process is employed to insure that the physical condition of the grain will permit the bran and the germ to be removed from the endosperm in large flakes, and the endosperm itself to be powdered," he explains.

The conditioned wheat then goes to the roller mill, a pair of iron rolls known as the "first break rolls," where the grains are broken into relatively coarse pieces, with a minimum of crushing to avoid a powdering of the bran.

The grinding and sifting process continues until almost all of the endosperm is removed. The purified particles of endosperm are then sent to reduction mills which crush the particles into flour.

The flour is then treated by the addition of minute quantities of a bleaching agent. Enrichments are blended with the flour to increase its nutritional value. The flour is then ready for packaging or mixing.

Crime Drops In County

Kentucky crime dropped during the first three months of this year from the level set for the same period of 1971, and so did Floyd county's.

This county had no slayings during the period—January, February and March—in either 1971 or 1972, and it had the same number of forcible rapes (2) in both years. One robbery was reported for the first quarter of this year, as compared with none in the same period last year, but the cases of aggravated assault dropped this year to four from seven in 1971.

Burglary and breaking and entering cases were more numerous in the first three months of last year when 43 were reported. This year, there were 34 such cases. Larcenies increased this year from 13 to 17, and auto thefts were up from two to three.

Pike and Bell counties had five murders each in the first three months of this year. Jefferson county had 19, Warren 4 and Christian 4.

The crime picture is reflected in data accumulated by the Uniform Crime Reporting Bureau, Kentucky State Police.

Of the seven major crimes on which the bureau compiles records, only forcible rape and thefts of $50 or more showed any increase, statewide, over the same period in 1971.

Forcible rapes increased 37.3 per cent during January, February and March, while thefts of $50 or more climbed 3.4 per cent.

Aggravated assaults dropped 11.3 per cent compared to last year, breaking and entering cases were down 9.2 per cent, auto thefts were down 3.3 per cent, murder cases decreased 2.8 per cent and robberies were down .6 per cent.

Heading the list of offenses reported from all counties during the first quarter of 1972 were breaking and entering (5,484), thefts over $50 (4,770) and auto thefts (2,458).

Once Upon a mattress

Music by Mary Rodgers
 Lyrics by Marshall Barer
 Book by Thompson, Barer, and Fuller

The uproarious comedy hit that made Carol Burnett a star! The "true" story of "The Princess and the Pea." No one in the kingdom can marry until Prince Dauntless finds a wife—a true Princess. Off goes Sir Harry—to the swamps where he finds a princess to end all princesses—Winnifred the Woebegone. Will she pass the Queen's test? The family will love this comedy riot!

The score includes: "Shy," "Very Soft Shoes," "Yesterday I Loved You," and "Happily Ever After."

TUESDAYS-THURSDAYS-SATURDAYS
 thru AUGUST 5

THE SHOW

Based on "The Princess and the Pea", ONCE UPON A MATTRESS was a delight of the 1959 theatre season. Not only did the show introduce Mary Rodgers, daughter of Richard Rodgers, ("a chip off the old block-buster," one critic wrote) as a composer; but it brought the talents of Carol Burnett to the attention of the world. The magical score ranged from love ballads ("Yesterday I Loved You" and "In a Little While"), to comedy numbers ("Happily Ever After," "The Swamps of Home," "Shy," and "Man to Man Talk"), to production-dance numbers ("Spanish Panic," "Opening for a Princess," "Song of Love," and "Very Soft Shoes").

Carol Burnett repeated her New York success in a television special in 1964 and plans a remake to be telecast in the fall of 1972.

JENNY WILEY!

Music by
 BENJAMIN KEATON

Book and Lyrics by
 MITCH DOUGLAS

Wednesdays - Fridays - Sundays

"Quite professional . . . after the finale the appreciative audience gave the cast, writer, composer and director a standing ovation . . . Two ballads particularly impressed me: "Let the Passing Years Fall Softly on My Love" was touchingly beautiful without being too sentimental. "Always Jenny" was equally lovely . . . This basic fundamental of musical theatre has created some notable teams of librettists and composers. Among them were Gilbert and Sullivan . . . and Rodgers and Hart . . . It is quite possible that the creators of JENNY WILEY! could be another such team."—Ross Dowden, Logan Leader.

"Designed as family entertainment, the play achieves its goal, good music and dance for all, history and enough laughs to hold any audience."—Bill Belanger, Huntington Herald Dispatch.

" . . . rich in Kentucky history and romantic folklore . . . Mitch Douglas has done an excellent job in inter-weaving the songs and dances into the story, making it an exciting adventure from start to finish . . . A good musical score, written by Benjamin Keaton, ranges from patter songs to waltzes to ballads to Indian dances . . . Using the hills surrounding the amphitheatre, the tale is made to come alive."—Betty Berryman, Winchester Sun.

" . . . the writers have managed to come up with a production that provides a true historical picture while providing an enjoyable evening of theatre for those who wish to just be entertained . . . Special effects in the production, such as the burning of the Wiley cabin as the Indians ignite it with flaming arrows shot from the hillside, create a real dramatic effect."—Jeanne Beckett, Ashland Daily Independent.

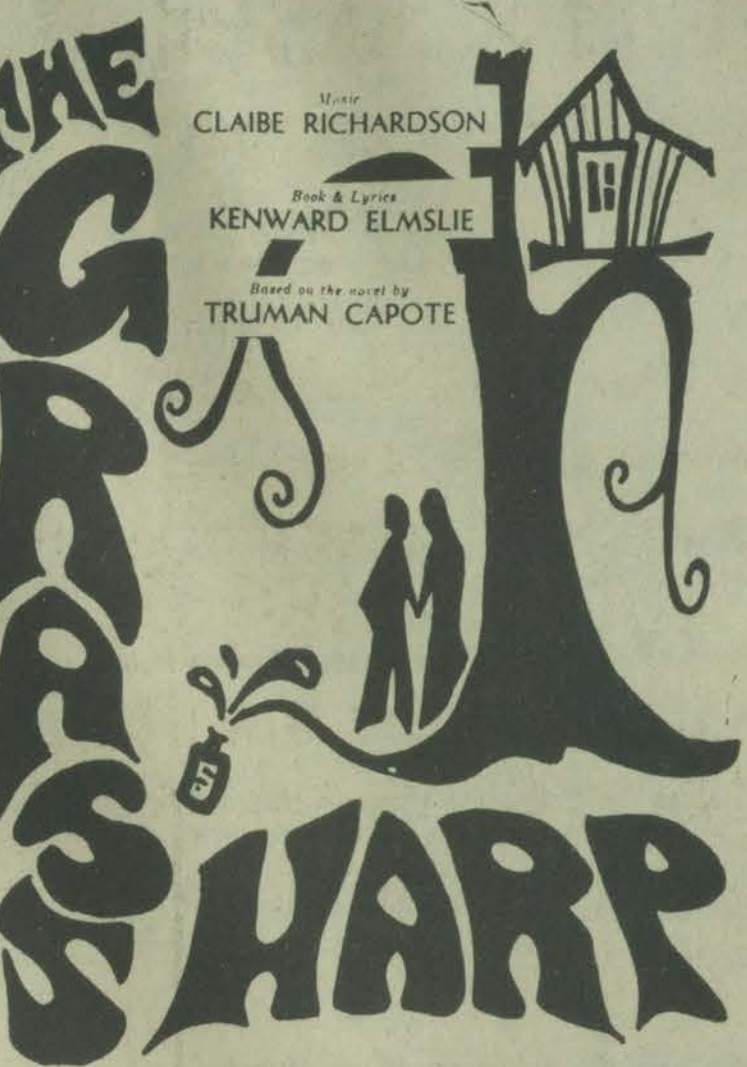

"The natural setting of JENNY WILEY! at the foot of a big mountain was breathtaking against the evening sky . . . the JENNY WILEY! setting alone makes the play well worth seeing."—Joanie Conley, The Carlisle Mercury.

"JENNY WILEY! is destined to break attendance records at the park."—Helen Price Stacy, Re-Discover Kentucky.

Suit Asks That Ex-Governor, Others Pay State $514,754 Total

A suit filed by 70 illegally fired state employes filed suit last week in Jefferson circuit court seeking to require ex-Governor Louis B. Nunn and 10 state officials during his administration to reimburse the state for the back wages it paid the workers after they had been reinstated. The amount involved is $514,754. In addition to Nunn, the former officials named as defendants are:

J. O. Matlick, former commissioner of natural resources; Shirley W. Palmer-Ball, former commissioner of alcoholic beverage control; Pat N. Miller, former deputy commissioner of personnel; W. B. Hazelrigg and Eugene Goss, former commissioners of highways; the late Dr. C. C. Howard, former chairman of the state Tuberculosis Hospital Commission; William O newman, commissioner of public safety; James E. Lockett, former commissioner of revenue; Sture B. Westerberg, former commissioner of corrections; Alex McIntire Jr., former commissioner of motor transportation.

The suit alleges that during the period Nunn was governor and the various officials held the offices named, a list of 70 state employes named in the suit were discharged contrary to the Merit System law and were replaced by other employes.

"These terminations were carried out in willful and (or) negligent disregard for the provisions of the Kentucky Revised Statutes, and were directed, ordered, approved and (or) ratified by Louis B. Nunn and (or) Pat N. Miller and (or) the other named defendants," the suit says.

The plaintiffs said demands have been made of the state attorney general to institute legal action to recover the amounts paid to reimburse these illegally discharged employes, but he has refused to bring any suit.

The suit asks the court to order the various officials to reimburse the state for the amounts paid out to the discharged employes by their various departments with interest from the dates in which the amounts were paid.

UMW Members Join Picket Line At Pike Hospital

Picket lines at the Methodist Hospital in Pikeville are being partially maintained now by members of United Mine Workers of America, Gene Layne, president of Communication Workers of America local 10317, said last week.

Layne said the UMW members man the morning shift and return to work in the afternoon. They are from several districts in the area.

A spokesman for the UMW pickets said they will support the strike, now in its sixth week, any way that is legally possible.

Layne said efforts were made recently to get a statement of support from Carson Hibbitts, president of UMW District 30. Hibbitts, who is the father-in-law of Lee D. Keene, administrator of the strike-bound hospital, was personally contacted by Layne last Friday.

"I received no satisfactory response," Layne said. "He told me he had to contact his lawyer before making a statement."

George Titler, who retired recently as vice-president of the International Mine Workers of America, was in Pikeville June 15, five days after the strike began, to tell strikers he has asked miners to boycott the hospital in support of the strike.

Layne added that Titler urged three UMW districts to support the strike. District 30 was one of those.

CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL PICNIC

The Maytown Homemaker Club held its first annual club picnic on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Bailey on Wilson Creek, the evening of July 13. Homemaker chores of other years were depicted by Minnie Gearheart who, dressed in long dress and her mother's bonnet, churned butter in an oldtime churn using a homemade wooden lid and dasher made by Mr. Fred Bailey, of Eastern. The temperature of the milk was just right, the butter came, real quick and she took off the butter, and clubmembers recalled how as children they always wanted the butter soon.

She finished churning and then went over to an old wash tub sitting on a cane-bottom chair and did the "family wash" on a washboard.

After that a pot of beans was cooked in an old iron kettle over a wood fire.

Mrs. Helen Boyd and Mrs. Marcella Bailey reported on the Cultural Arts program. With Minnie Gearheart, they attended a two-day meeting held at J. M. Feltner Camp in Johnson county.

Those attending were Minnie Gearheart, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lowe, Helen, Victor and Terry Boyd, Alda Gibson, Tom Clark and Mark Hewlett, Alta Jean and Phillip Gibson, Virgie, Joyce, Jerry and Terry Rowe, Ronda Rowe, Sandy, Dava, Paige and Bubber Bradley, Jean, Teresa, Paul, Angela and Greg Rowe, Thelma Hicks, Rhonda Ann Rowe, Trilby May, Donna Little, Eddie and Carla Boyd, Beverly and Melvin May, Sid and Marcella Bailey, Roy and Betty May.

Several of the members were on vacation and could not attend. Rufus M. Reed had planned to attend the picnic and give a short talk but could not be present. He extended an invitation for the club members to come back to his place for another wildflower study trip, Sept. 10.

Funding for manpower training contracts with unions or union-sponsored organizations has risen from $488,200 in 1963 to over $29.6 million during the first 10 months of fiscal 1972.

New State Plan Would Require Operators To Mend Highways

Apparently unable to curb highway damage through citations and court action, the Department of Motor Transportation is reported to be experimenting with a plan to require coal operators to pay for the repair and maintenance of roads damaged by overweight coal trucks.

Field representatives of the department say they have issued hundreds of citations to drivers and owners of coal trucks operating over Eastern Kentucky roads, but that few of those cited are ever penalized by the courts of the area.

The new plan, it was admitted by Motor Transportation Commissioner Elijah Hogge, is being revealed to coal operators. The new policy, it is said, applies to both surface and underground mining operations and requires the operators at the time they apply for a permit to submit to the Natural Resources Department a list of roads which their trucks will travel.

If that department decides the weight of fully loaded vehicles will exceed the legal limits, it will tell the operator to obtain a special permit from the Highway Department.

That department will then issue the permit only under two conditions:

- 1. That the operator post a performance bond equal to the value of the stretch of highway used.

2. That the operator pledge in writing to pay whatever is necessary to keep the roads in good condition.

The Motor Transportation Department will be responsible for seeing that the special permit provisions are carried out. The plan was worked out by commissioners of the departments involved.

"The governor told us to do something about the situation and this is what we've done," Hogge said in an interview. "...if you have a better suggestion, I'd like to know it."

Hogge said five special permits have been issued so far—for operations in Whitley, McCreary and Magoffin counties. The amounts of bonds posted ranged from $10,000 for a county road from a mine site to $200,000 for a stretch of KY 92 in McCreary and Whitley counties.

Three of the applications were by new operators and two by established firms.

"For those already operating, hopefully I can force them into some sort of submission to go to the Highway Department to get the special permit," Hogge said.

He added that the plan does not mean enforcement will cease.

"But if we go out and just doggedly enforce the law on every truck we find overweight, I don't think we accomplish what we're trying to do for the state," he said.

Hogge said he and two other commissioners—Charles Pryor, of the Department of Highways and Tom Harris of Natural Resources—discussed other options, such as obtaining injunctions everywhere to ban outright the use of overweight trucks.

"We felt this would be unduly suppressing an integral part of our economy," he said. "I think the coal industry has to live, too, for Kentucky to prosper," Hogge said.

The experiment will continue "until we can deem if it has succeeded or failed," he said, estimating an accurate assessment would take at least six months.

One current court action that will not be dropped is the joint Highway and Transportation departments' attempt to enjoin seven truck operators in Breathitt and Wolfe counties from using the bridge on KY 30 over the Kentucky River at Jackson.

"I can't ever envision that we could issue permits in excess of legal weight limits on the bridge," Hogge said. "If our engineers are correct in their estimates, it could very well collapse under large loads."

Senate Subcommittee Supports $15 Billion 2-Year Road Program

Senator John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.) announced this week that the Subcommittee on Roads of the Senate Public Works Committee recommended a two-year, $15 billion highway construction and safety program, containing several features that could benefit Kentucky. Senator Cooper is the ranking Republican member of the committee, which has legislative jurisdiction over Federal highways.

The legislation would establish a new $100 million program for highway projects in cities of 5,000 to 50,000 population and creates a national scenic roads program—also authorized at $100 million a year.

In addition, highway funds authorized for economic growth centers would be doubled to an annual level of $100 million. Economic growth centers are areas designated as having both the potential and need for significant economic development. In Kentucky, two areas have been so designated—the Corbin-Barbourville area in Knox county and the Campbellsville-Lebanon area in Taylor county.

The subcommittee authorized a $1 billion annual safety program. These funds, which would be administered by the states, could be used to eliminate hazards on specific highway sections and railroad crossings, and to provide more effective regulations dealing with persons driving while intoxicated, emergency medical care, and bridge replacements.

Interstate, primary, secondary, and urban systems are authorized for an additional two years. Urban areas will be able to use a portion of funds allocated to them for public transportation, including purchase of buses, preferential and exclusive bus lanes, and public parking facilities.

Senator Cooper, who has served 16 years on the committee, said, "I believe this is one of the best balanced bills the Subcommittee has reported—with more balance for old programs and new requirements for safety, rural needs, and the traffic problems in small and large communities."

Black Lung Claims Are Being Reviewed

All black lung claims that have not been approved are being reviewed to see if benefits are payable under the new black lung law recently signed by the President, according to Daryl Ratliff, social security district manager, Pikeville. He said that some coal miners and their families who did not qualify earlier may now be eligible for monthly payments under the new federal law.

"All claims that are pending, or which were turned down before, are being reviewed because eligibility rules have been changed by the new black lung law," Mr. Ratliff said. "But nothing is required at this time of the miners or their survivors who have already applied. They will be notified how their application is affected," he said.

It will take some time to review all prior claims, but notification of the new decisions will be sent to these applicants as soon as possible, Ratliff said.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

Play-Party Games

Along with numerous other things once well-known everywhere, such as log-rollings, house-raising, husking-bees, and quilting-parties, have passed the singing-games, or as they are often called, "play-party games." Only rarely now, in some secluded section of the hills or mountains, or some other place still unaffected by sophistication, can one find remnants of this type of folklore. And even more rarely still can a stranger, especially if he is from the city, get a glimpse of these plays as they were actually given by old and young.

Believing that young people would appreciate the old singing-games given under proper direction and beyond the range of their previous bad name, some years ago I revived many of them and directed them on our college campus during the summer terms. The response from the young people was in every way fine; many have helped reintroduce games from their own neighborhoods, with all the local touches that make anything of the folk pleasing. I began with about a dozen couples, to whom I taught the steps; they in turn became assistant directors of the games, in which dozens and even hundreds often participated in a single late afternoon. Those who took part in these time-honored games went into their own neighborhoods and reintroduced them. One of my students conducted a play-and-game period in his home town for five years as a result of his interest in these forms of entertainment. I have been delighted within the last few years to find that several of the mountain schools, with a desire to keep good things found in our state, have revived these games and have made them a part, along with ballad-singing, of their regular school activities.

Unlike ballads, singing games are not interested in telling a story. Not infrequently the words are mere directions, versified. Many of the singing-games imply a singing group and a dancing group. However, some of the most effective ones have the singing and dancing done by the same people, who, of course, must have plenty of breath. The words have a marked rhythm, which is usually based on four or eight counts. Normally a series of evolutions is given three times, after which another is introduced, and so on. The steps are very simple, usually a walk or skip, with very marked rhythm. The rhythm is further intensified by hand-clapping by the players or those standing in a ring awaiting their turn to dance. Sometimes there are two or three types of rhythm in a single game: one when the partner is being chosen or the whole group are marching or skipping, the other when the individual couples are performing their steps.

Though the Virginia Reel is a singing-game is some parts of the state, in most places it is a sort of cross between the square dance and the singing-game, with a prompter to call "figgers."

Pie Social Contests Net Total of $430

An old-fashioned pie social sponsored July 22 by the East Point Area Development Club, has been termed a success. Approximately 150 persons jammed the Masonic Temple on a hot, humid evening to engage not only in bidding for pies and caked prepared by "favorite girls" of the community but also to participate in other activities which netted the club approximately $430.

Much enthusiasm was shown in the selection of the prettiest girl, Miss Toni Lafferty, who was also designated "Miss East Point," and the runner-up, Miss Teresa Music.

The very entertaining "Ugly Man" contest ended with Herman Wells, local merchant, defeating Mayo State Vocational School's Director, George L. Ramey.

Raises Quail for Local Club

Russell Wells, of Auxier, is shown in photo with the approximately 1250 quail he raised for the Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club this year. The club receives the quail, free of charge, from the Kentucky Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources when the birds are only one day old, then raises the quail at its own expense until the birds are eight weeks old. Clubmembers release the quail in coveys of 8 to 10 birds in various parts of the county. The club has been in the quail-raising business since 1966. In recent years the quail population has been declining. Game biologists and sportsmen attribute this decline to the fact that there is less farming done in the county and less grain available to quail in the wintertime. The solution to this shortage of food for wildlife is to have more persons plant more food plots, the club has decided. Persons interested in food plots should contact the Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club at Box 681, Prestonsburg.

Buyers of Property Are Told To Inquire About City Services

William O. Goebel, chairman of the Prestonsburg Water and Gas Commission, pointed out this week that purchasers of building sites in or near Prestonsburg should determine what public utilities services will be available before they build. He explained that there are some areas where water or gas or sewer service, or all three, may not be available to property-owners except when they themselves bear the expense of laying lines. Purchasers of such property, he said, should know where water, gas and sewer lines are in relation to their property, the location of connections and if service can be had without extra expense. He suggested that such persons contact him or John G. Heinze, secretary of the Water and Gas Commission, or Blaine R. Hall, member.

Environmental Law Goes To Courts of the States

By Marva Gay

FRANKFORT, Ky.—In seven days in May, Ken Howe traveled 1438 miles to court polluters. In June he slowed to 1313 miles. By the first of the year he expects to split 3500 miles a month with a colleague. The Assistant Attorney General, in the new Division of Natural Resources and Environmental Law with the Attorney General's office, expects his travel to increase as he takes more polluters to court. Howe, and Assistant Attorney General-Engineer Paul Lynch, will handle air, water, solid waste and strip mining cases referred to them by the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) which will begin its operations in January. Until then, the division will handle cases referred to it by the air and water commissions. Howe, averaging two new air pollution cases a month, currently has seven water pollution and four air pollution cases, and expects the caseload to increase because DEP will be more streamlined than the present commissions. DEP will have one commissioner who can ask the division to prosecute. "Before, we had to wait for the commission to meet and decide to prosecute." Howe said, in addition to processing cases quicker, DEP will probably have more polluters to sue. "The number of cases will steadily increase until people realize that the law and regulations are there for a specific purpose and that we do have the tools and means by which we can enforce them." Howe added, "Some people are not aware of the rules. It will take an education program to reach them. Others do not believe the orders of the commission are serious and are finding out those orders can be taken seriously when they find themselves in court." "We're trying to stay objective about these cases. We do not go to court on any frivolous action. We go to court when we can't enforce the laws any other way." Howe and Lynch will be hitting the road often because the present law and the one going into effect January 1 both require them to travel to court. Usually, they can't try their cases in Frankfort at the Franklin Circuit Court. Because of this, Howe said, "By the first of the year, odds are fairly good the two of us will be traveling 3500 miles a month on litigation alone." Now the two attorneys must go to the circuit court in the county where the alleged violation occurred to prosecute air pollution cases. In water pollution cases they can go to either the Franklin circuit court or the local court. Appeals may be made in the local circuit court or in the Franklin circuit court but that's up to the person appealing. When the new law goes into effect, Howe and Lynch will always travel to the local circuit court for air, water and solid waste cases. Strip mining cases may be held in either the local circuit court or Franklin circuit court. Appeals will always be in the Franklin court. When Howe and Lynch go to court, they usually don't go alone. They take a contingent of state investigators and engineers as expert witnesses. "This gets to be a lot of travel but it gets the job done," Howe said.

Unit labor costs in U. S. manufacturing industries during 1971 rose 2.7 percent—less than one-third the rates of increase in Canada, Japan and most European countries, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports.
