

When A Guard Rail Is Something Else

Although a guard rail along the Mountain Parkway, near here, penetrated from end to end the Volkswagen driven by Lonnie Taulbee, of Magoffin county, Monday afternoon, the driver required only emergency treatment at the Prestonsburg General Hospital for multiple cuts and soon was on his way home. Police said Taulbee apparently fell asleep at the wheel. He was the only occupant of the car and escaped death by a matter of inches.

Memorial Dedication Set July 4

Perkins To Speak, Army Units Slated For Participation

When the Floyd County War Memorial is dedicated July 4 at Archer Park here, Congressman Carl D. Perkins and units of the U. S. Army will join residents of the county in paying tribute to the county's war dead.

Announcing dedication plans last week, Mayor George P. Archer said a special invitation to attend is being given to all relatives and friends of the war dead whose names will appear on the memorial.

Congressman Perkins will deliver the dedicatory address, and brief remarks will be made by Mayor Archer and representatives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, AMVETS and Disabled Veterans.

A helicopter gunship such as those in action in Vietnam will have a part in the program, landing at the park and during the dedication hovering over the scene. The 194th Armored Brigade at Ft. Knox will send a color guard and drill team for a part in the exercises. Flags of all the 50 states will fly as a part of the permanent War Memorial scene, and at the conclusion of the dedication these will be lowered as the American flag is raised. Taps and a gun salute by the Ft. Knox Army contingent will follow.

The Betsy Layne high school band will play both before and after the Congressman's speech.

The War Memorial has been completed at a cost of approximately $40,000 and has been financed through public subscription. The bronze plaque which will be unveiled at the ceremony bears the names of 250 or more of this county who died in World Wars I and II and in Korea and Vietnam.

The dedication program will begin at 1 p.m. The only other planned feature for July 4 is the annual fireworks display scheduled late in the day.

Gas-Coal Clash Seen in Action

Surface mining for coal and its alleged damages to one of the area's largest producers and suppliers of natural gas resulted in legal action here last week.

The Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company sought and procured from Circuit Judge Hollie Conley a court order restraining the Marco Coal Co., Harry Martin, Kenneth Tschudy and Frank Chitti from interfering with the gas company in maintaining its pipeline system by removing it or covering it with spoil banks.

The court order was issued last Friday after the gas company had alleged the coal operation had interfered with Kentucky West Virginia's operation of a producing gas well and the lease on which it is located and with the transportation of gas.

The well in question is on the lease procured by the gas company from the late A. L. and Melvina Martin, near Drift. In addition to one producing gas well, a pipeline from the well to the gas transportation system is involved.

AN EVENT IN

Comes now Henry P. Scalf to tell the story of the truckdriver who is still shaking his head in disbelief after getting turned up Mare Creek by a detour sign which somebody had turned in the wrong direction.

This was one of those huge 60-foot-long trailer-tractor jobs, and the driver was a stranger in what he now swears is a strange land. The farther up Mare Creek's narrow, twisting road he drove, the less he thought of his chances of emerging onto the main highway again. Finally, as he approached the Scalf residence, he stopped to reconnoiter and learned that the road headed up in the head of the creek against a high mountain. There was a garden just off the

Court Orders Three To End Mine Stoppage

Sterling Hamilton, who was penalized last week by Franklin circuit court order for alleged damage created by his mining operations on Mud Creek, was at the same time seeking an order from the Floyd circuit court to restrain three Mud Creek residents from stopping the operations of his mine and coal trucks on Hollybush Branch of Big Mud.

The action was filed by Hamilton and his wife, Olga, as owners of the surface land where his mine operates, and by B. F. Reed and wife as owners of the coal which Hamilton was mining under lease.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley issued a restraining order last Tuesday, forbidding the defendants, Mahala, Sterling and

72-Year-Old Man Jailed Here In W. P'burg Slaying of Wife, 58

After she had told a policeman not to attempt to enter the house, inside which was her husband, armed with a revolver, Mrs. Laura Spradlin Robinette, 58, was shot and fatally wounded at West Prestonsburg Saturday afternoon by her husband, 72-year-old Mont Robinette.

Moments later, Robinette appeared at the doorway to the home to fire one shot at the officer, Policeman Darrel J. Conley, who said the man snapped twice again at him on empty cylinders.

The .22-caliber bullet which struck Mrs. Robinette entered the right breast and passed through her lung, spleen and kidney. The shooting took place at 3:30 p.m., and Mrs. Robinette died at the Prestonsburg General Hospital, about an hour later.

The accused man, meanwhile, had been examined at the hospital after having sustained a hand cut in a struggle with the policeman, and had been taken to jail. His examining trial will be held in Prestonsburg police court this week, possibly Friday.

Policeman Conley gave this description of the shooting and subsequent events:

When he went to the door of the Robinette home, at the rear of Foley's Store, Mrs. Robinette appeared to tell him her husband was drunk, had a gun and had been shooting inside the house. She asked him not to attempt to come inside.

"Robinette then came to the door, stuck his pistol out and asked me what I wanted. I asked for the pistol. He said, 'No,' waved the gun at me and went back inside. Then one shot was fired and I heard Mrs. Robinette cry, 'Oh, Jimmy, he has shot me!'"

(Jimmy is the 15-year-old adopted son of the couple.)

The wounded woman came to the door, and Conley said he took her to the police cruiser where Chief of Police Bill Potter waited. Chief Potter took her to the hospital, and Conley said he returned to the house and smashed a window in the hope Conley would come outside. Robinette came to the door and fired one shot at Conley, the officer said. Conley replied with a single shot and the hammer of Robinette's gun clicked twice on empty shells, Conley said.

The policeman said that when the man turned back into the house he followed and succeeded in subduing him after a struggle. Conley said Robinette did not appear to realize what had happened. He said a breathalyzer test administered the elderly man registered 12 points. The officer added that he counted four bullet holes inside the Robinette home.

The victim was a daughter of Mrs. Julia Conley Spradlin, of Denver, Johnson county, and the late Sanford Spradlin. She was first married to Moses Spradlin, who died in 1952. She was a member of the United Baptist Church.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Hester Ratliff, of Barnetts Creek, and Mrs. Anna K. Webb, Columbus, O.; and adopted son, James Roy Robinette, West Prestonsburg; three brothers, Virgil Spradlin, of Lancer, and Norman Arnold Spradlin, of Ohio; three sisters, Mrs. Arvie Fairchild, of Lancer, Mrs. Dora Ward and Mrs. Anna Mae Blair, both of Denver; one stepson, three step-daughters and eight grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday from the Barnetts Creek United Baptist Church, and burial was made in Highland Memorial Park, Staffordsville, under direction of the Paintsville Funeral Home.

Ex-Miner's D. D. Could Mean 'Doing Daily'

A former Floyd county coal miner whose formal education ended with graduation in 1950 from McDowell high school was recently honored by Midwestern Baptist College and Seminary, Pontiac, Mich., with the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

The man so honored is 41-year-old Russell Anderson whose success in the business world has been overshadowed by his work in the area of the human spirit, although he is the millionaire owner of four large businesses in Ypsilanti, Michigan.

"Never a week goes by that he doesn't win someone to Jesus Christ," Mrs. Anderson told The Times last week.

The affairs and cares of his businesses are enough to keep two men busy, but he spends an average of five nights a week in what he simply describes as "the Lord's work," and travels almost every week to speak in churches across the United States.

Mine Operator on Mud Creek To Pay Fines for 'Punch' Damage

The Franklin circuit court last week ordered Sterling Hamilton, Mud Creek mine operator, to pay fines totaling $1,700 for strip-mining without a permit, to post a $3,200 performance bond to insure reclamation of mined areas and to relocate or clean a section of Mud Creek which has allegedly suffered heavy siltation from his operations.

The court action was instituted by the state Division of Reclamation in a crackdown on what it terms "punch mining." The division agreed to dismiss its suit after Hamilton agreed to pay the fines, post bond and do work indicated by the order. The order also specified that he is to establish silt control facilities, remove spoil stacked above the creek and grade, revegetate and maintain drainage control in the mine-disturbed area to the satisfaction of the division.

"Punch mining" is described as the process of using deep-mining equipment to remove coal from a stripped seam, with augers or other automatic equipment being used to penetrate the stripmine highwall.)

Buddy A. Beach, acting director of the division and plaintiff in the suit, said the division filed the action after concluding that Hamilton had strip-mined coal at the mine regardless of his use of the technical term, "punch mine." Beach said the court action represents a stronger view by the division of the little-understood and little-controlled method of mining.

Although punch mining involves massive surface disturbance to uncover the coal as in strip-mining, punch-mining is not at present subject to the environmental

EDWARD C. MUSIC

Music Honored By Publication

By Henry P. Scalf

Edward C. Music, Prestonsburg businessman and civic leader, was honored recently with the distinction of being selected to appear in the 1972 Personalities of the South, a book listing a select group of Southern citizens whose achievements are worthy to be noted.

The book in which Music's biography will appear is published by the American Biographical Institute, Raleigh, North Carolina. Inclusion in the book is determined by the institution's executive board from nominations submitted by businesses, civic clubs and educational organizations.

safeguards provided in the state's new stripmine reclamation law, pending the drafting and approval of regulations to enforce it.

Both federal and state laws governing deep mining are concerned with safety alone with no consideration for aesthetics or the environment.

"I have reservations about punch-mining," Beach said in a telephone interview. "Maybe it should be 'permitted' like strip mines."

Beach said his division will observe such combination mining operations in the future to see that coal is not strip-mined under the guise of punch-mining, deep mining, or any of several operations that may circumvent surface mining laws.

"The environmental impact is the same regardless of what you call it," Beach said.

Beach and the division filed a similar suit in Perry Circuit court in February charging that a so-called housing project was actually a strip mine. The division dismissed that suit also, without penalties to the coal operators, in return for an agreement by the 3 T Coal Co. of Hazard, to clean up the operation.

The Hamilton mine, a hillside operation at Teaberry was the major target of a local anti-strip-mining effort in April after heavy rains left a section of Mud Creek below the mine devastated with silt and rock.

Frank Ashley, Courier-Journal reporter, wrote: "Trees, rock and soil had eroded into Mud Creek, pushing the creek from its channel in places and narrowing its natural floodplain."

Latest Murder Believed Linked With First Crime

State and county officers this week were engaged in attempting to solve a second murder mystery in the Right Beaver Creek section after the discovery last Wednesday afternoon of the bullet-riddled body of James Clayton Conley, 35, of Hindman, in an isolated area of Steele's Creek, near Wayland.

The first puzzling slaying was that of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley who was killed at Garrett April 12 by two shotgun blasts.

Investigating officers are almost unanimous in the belief that there is a direct link between the two murders. "Find the killer of one, and you've solved both cases," said one.

The body of James Clayton Conley was found about 4:30 p.m. last Wednesday by Boone Bentley while Bentley was en route to his garden in the head of Steele's Creek. The slaying had taken place on a dead-end dirt road which leads off the Wayland-Sizemore road at a point near where the main road begins the ascent of the mountain. The scene of the crime is approximately 200 feet from the junction of the two roads.

Coroner James J. Carter said Conley had been dead from 48 to 72 hours, but investigators have placed Tuesday night as the time of death. Conley had been shot in his head five times, and four of the bullets were recovered from the ground where he lay. These four bullets, officers say, entered his head in a small area surrounding the ear. The fifth bullet which entered the back of his head did not emerge. The slayer's gun was a .38 Special revolver, it is known, but the weapon has not been recovered.

Conley's car had been left by him at Garrett service station, and this helped fix the time of the slaying.

An atmosphere of fear has settled down on the Garrett-Wayland area because of the two slayings, and residents are slow to talk with officers. State Detective Chester D. Potter said Tuesday morning that the State Police have no statement to make relative to the last slaying at this time. His statement was made during a conference in the office of Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo with Mr. Stumbo, State

Shoe Company Host to 6-700

Between 600 and 700 persons were guests of the U. S. Shoe Corporation Saturday when the company was host to open house at its Prestonsburg Shoe Company plant.

Officials of the company met a great number of their visitors, and company employees took guests on tours of the plant. Visitors also were guests to refreshments served throughout the day.

Guests were told that the Prestonsburg factory is perhaps the most modern and best-equipped of its kind in the world. Their tours over the 60,000 square feet of floor space acquainted them with the more than 150 separate hand operations involved in the making of a pair of shoes and traced the work of manufacture from the cutting room to the finished product in the packing department.

U. S. Shoe was founded in Cincinnati in 1931 and has become one of the country's leading shoe manufacturers, operating upwards of 30 manufacturing facilities. Here, the company employs about 350 persons, produces almost a million pairs of shoes a year and has an annual payroll of $1½ million.

In Ypsilanti he got a job with a drywall contractor, later buying into the business and in 1957 buying his partner's interest. A year later, he married the former Maxine Ramsey, a native of Middlesboro, Ky.

"I already was a Christian; Russell was not," Mrs. Anderson said. "But in 1959 my husband was converted. He began tithing and learned a wonderful thing—that the more he gave, the more the Lord gave back."

In 1960 Anderson was practically wiped out when a building contractor went bankrupt. When he had paid all his debts he had $2,000 left. But he never ceased to tithe, started all over again, and now, 12 years later, owns not only his drywall contracting enterprise but also the Russell Anderson Apartments numbering several hundred in Ypsilanti, Anderson Materials and the Anderson Trucking Company.

"It all was something beyond his own ability," Mrs. Anderson says.

Although Mr. Anderson's formal education ended at McDowell, he is an avid student of the Bible. "He rises early every morning and spends two hours in Bible study before going to his office," his wife said.

When he conferred on the Floyd native

the honorary Doctor of Divinity degree, May 28, Dr. Tom Malone, president of Midwestern Baptist College, told the Anderson story in these words:

"Only a few times in a lifetime do you find a man who is not a preacher, not a theologian, but a great student of the Scriptures, not an educator but a wise human being, not a pastor but a personal worker supreme whose main business is soul-winning. Although he owns and operates four large businesses, grossing several million dollars last year, he spends on the average of five nights each week out in the Lord's work and travels nearly every week throughout the United States, to preach in churches. Through God's sovereign grace he has become not just a millionaire whose dollars are dedicated to God, but a man whose desire is to see other souls come to know Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour."

Mr. Anderson resides at 350 Clubview Drive, Ypsilanti, Michigan, with his wife and three daughters. His mother, Mrs. Clovia Anderson, resides at Allen.

NINE MORE STEPS...For many years Pikeville College students have tested their physical condition by climbing the 89 steps leading to the main campus. Wear and tear since the steps were installed in the late 1930's have finally taken their toll, and repairs and replacement for some of the steps became necessary. In the future there will be 98 steps because those in the top section will be narrower than their predecessors.

Music's career is a Horatio Alger story of rise from a delivery boy for his father's dairy at East Point when he was a mere grade school lad to prominence as an outstanding civic leader and successful businessman. Serving, or having served, as leader in dozens of community and area projects, he is now president of 10 corporations that are interested in automobile sales, real estate development and recreation projects.

A son of Sam K. and Nora Davis Music, of Little Paint Creek, the 48-year-old Music learned the virtue of hard work by assisting in the chores of his father's dairy business. Crawling from bed at four o'clock in the morning, he delivered milk to customers in Prestonsburg. That job done, he went home, gathered his school books, trotted off to school in town. School out for the day, he returned to perform added chores at the dairy. The going got tough at times, especially in the winter, but he is appreciative today for the training for life it gave him. It stiffened his determination to rise in the world.

There was little money in the Music home in those early days, for the Great Depression was on the land and when he had absorbed all the education local schools could give him he could not go to college. He did go a term to Mayo Vocational School at Paintsville but this education seemed to have little effect upon his career. He was thinking of opportunities that a mere trade could not offer and he procured a job as auto sales manager for Ranier Motor Sales in Prestonsburg. Prior to this job, he had operated a gasoline service station for two years.

Leaving the Ranier Motor Sales, he went with the Valley Motor Car Company until December, 1948. He was looking for something better all the time and opportunity came when the C. H. Smith Motor Company was offered for sale. That firm had the Chrysler and Plymouth dealerships and Mr. Music bought the company. It was as head of this business that he brought into play all the business acumen he had learned as salesman for others. He began to make money and civic leaders found in him a willing worker for any project that boded good for Prestonsburg and Floyd county. Recognizing that a supermarket and a top-notch motel and restaurant were prime needs of the town, he and others formed a group to erect the buildings. He had to sell his automobile business to be free enough to promote the Kroger building and the Kentucky Motel. This was in July, 1953 and he was not back into the automobile business until January, 1956 when he and Bert Colvin formed the Music-Colvin Motor Company.

His new firm prospered, and the partners branched out from used cars to take on the dealership of the Edsel car in 1957. The Edsel died, almost stillborn, and Music and Colvin became Chevrolet dealers in 1958 and added the Buick the next year. Colvin became ill and sold his interest to a new group headed by his partner. The firm is now known as Music-Carter-Hughes Chevrolet Buick, Inc. Carter is Estill Carter, Music's son-in-law, and the third member of the firm is Paul Phillip Hughes, formerly connected with another dealership. The present firm owns and uses more floor space than any automobile business east of Lexington.

A successful man is soon noticed by civic leaders and Ed Music found himself in the midst of community activities. Mayor George P. Archer once wrote of Ed: "Because of Mr. Music's success in business and interest in his community his counsel is held in high esteem and many demands are made upon his time." Which was stating it mildly for there were times when community activities took up a major portion of his time. He had an interest in Scouting, the Masons, Kiwanis, the Prestonsburg Industrial Committee of which he became chairman.

Music's civic responsibilities piled up through the years, despite the demands made upon him in business as head of 15 corporations dealing in autos, real estate and recreation. He is now vice-chairman of the Highland Regional Medical Center, chairman of the board of Archer Park, member and director of Prestonsburg's low-rent housing project, and finds time to engage in nearly a score of other community and civic projects.

One attribute of Ed Music, besides his business acumen and interest in community affairs, is his compassion for people. Not long ago when there was a drive on to present Christmas baskets to the poor of the area he contributed 108 hams. Having done that, he bought nearly a dozen for distribution himself. He went out on Christmas Eve and gave them away to families that had been overlooked in the general distribution.

A few years ago, Mr. Music found in the mail a circular asking for help to sponsor the keep and education of an orphan Korean boy. Looking for awhile at the appealing face of the war-buffed child, he wrote a check for the philanthropic agency and requested he be allowed to sponsor the boy. The child was reared and educated at Ed Music's expense. Today, that orphan boy is serving his country as a soldier.

If someone were to say that business and compassion don't mix, Ed Music's life would prove them wrong.

Parks Merit Our Appreciation

It is not a fault that is peculiar to us — others have the same failing — but there is no reason for us to continue in our unthinking lack of appreciation of some the advantages that are ours. This is not in reference to natural blessings but to advantages we have not always had.

Jenny Wiley State Park, for example. And Archer Park. One, a part of a great state system of parks, and regarded by many as the most beautiful of them all; the other, a park such as no other city in Kentucky the size of Prestonsburg has, and possessed by few communities of like size in the country. One attracts visitors from all parts of America; the other is happily a meeting place for a large part of Floyd county.

If one or both were suddenly lost, our appreciation would be expressed in our dismay and sorrow. But as long as they are here we are inclined to take them for granted. Some of the lawless or unthinking even vandalize park buildings and other installations.

Both parks are already open and attracting the usual crowds. Jenny Wiley has its magnificent lodge, its golf course, swimming pool, bridle and hiking trails, Dewey Lake, fishing and boating — you name it. Archer Park offers its playground for children, tennis courts, two recreation buildings, its swimming pool and is something of a summertime sports center with its three softball and baseball fields. It would appear that Floyd county comes nearer a rapport in common interest and enjoyment there than any other place.

These parks deserve more than an approving nod or bare tolerance.

Next week, the Jenny Wiley Summer Theatre will open its season at the state park's splendid amphitheatre. There, throughout the summer, plays of tested and recognized merit will be presented by talented performers. Many of us have driven 200 miles to witness other outdoor presentations far below the calibre of those to be seen here at home, but we fail in support of what the Jenny Wiley theatre group offers.

Then, on July 4, Archer Park will dedicate the memorial there to Floyd county's war dead. This is not only a lasting memorial to those who have died in the country's wars but it also is a monument to the determination of those who conceived it and to every individual, schoolchild or adult, who put his nickels, dimes and dollars into it in acknowledgment of a debt they cannot pay.

This event should call us all to appreciation expressed by our presence. Let's come alive in our appreciation.

Special Meetings Slated at Martin Beginning, June 14

A series of special meetings are scheduled at the First Assembly of God Church in Martin, where Lorie Vannucci is the pastor.

The singing evangelist for these special services is ADVENT recording artist Charles O. Hudspeth, of Tulsa, Oklahoma. These nights of Gospel singing and practical Bible preaching are scheduled and designed to be of spiritual benefit to you, your family and friends. Pastor Lorie Vannucci invites everyone to come and enjoy these services nightly.

Evangelist Hudspeth is an ordained minister with the Assemblies of God, recording artist with ADVENT RECORDS, musician, singer, and composer of Gospel songs. Twelve of his compositions have been recorded on a long play album with the ADVENT COMPANY, titled, "Country Gospel, My Way."

He has served as pastor, assistant pastor, sectional youth director of youth programs involving 25 churches, state youth camp speaker, Christian elementary school administrator, and Bible teacher. Mr. Hudspeth is now traveling across the nation as an evangelist. He has traveled in such places and countries as Wake Island, Hawaii, Japan, Mexico, Holland, Italy, Egypt, Cyprus, Israel and also Greece. He recently returned from a tour of the Middle East and Palestine and will be showing some color slides of Jerusalem, Israel and surrounding areas.

Mr. Hudspeth, who sings Gospel songs with a "county-western style" with guitar accompaniment has several record albums recorded and has another to be released soon this year. Evangelist Hudspeth's itinerary these past few years has taken him to many countries in the world and several times across the U.S.A. coast to coast. Most of his ministry involves evangelistic meetings here in the United States. Several months of each year will take him outside the U.S.A. to other countries for Missionary-Evangelism Good News Crusades. Future meetings being planned will take Mr. Hudspeth to Canada, Alaska, Europe, the Middle-East, and Mexico.

DON'T MISS ANY OF THESE MEETINGS! Come, bring a friend and listen as Evangelist Hudspeth sings songs he has written and recorded, plus some of your favorite old Gospel songs from the past.

Services every night, starting promptly at 7 o'clock. Pastor Vannucci extends a warm cordial welcome to all.

The revival will begin Wednesday, June 14, and continue through Sunday night, June 25. (Adv.)

Continued Economic Upswing

By Judi Ledford
Frankfort, Ky.—With the country in an economic upswing, "Kentucky personal income will continue to rise at a slightly faster pace than in the nation" during 1972, according to the University of Kentucky's Dean of Business and Economics.

Dr. Charles F. Haywood added that "as the population growth will be slower in Kentucky than in the nation, further relative improvement in Kentucky's per capita personal income is implied. Our 1973 projection is that per capita personal income in Kentucky will be $3880, which will be 80.6 per cent of the national average."

Speaking at the state Commerce Department's recent Industrial Development Institute, Haywood estimated that total civilian employment in Kentucky during 1972 will be "about 3.5 per cent above 1971—a gain of roughly 40,000 jobs. The gain in 1973 is projected to be about the same."

"The unemployment ratio (in Kentucky) is projected at 5.3 per cent for 1972 and 4.4 per cent for 1973, slightly more favorable than the U.S. average," he added.

Haywood said, national industrial production has been rising at an annual rate of seven per cent since August, 1971, while employment has expanded at a rate of about 3.5 per cent per annum. National income has grown at an annual rate close to 10 per cent, he added.

However, he noted that unemployment has shown only modest improvement, dropping from 6 per cent to 5.5 per cent.

"The single most comprehensive measure we have of the economy's performance," he said, "is the Gross National Product (GNP)—the total of spending by households, businesses and governments on goods and services."

In 1971 the GNP was $1,047 billion, a 7.5 per cent gain over 1970. The projected GNP for 1972 is $1,149 billion, a $102 billion or 9.8 per cent increase over 1971.

Haywood attributed the anticipated GNP increase to $52 billion in personal consumption expenditures, $25 billion in federal, state and local government purchases of goods and services and $25 billion from expansion in gross private domestic investment—housing, plant and equipment expenditures, and inventory building.

A $115 billion increase in the GNP is foreseen for 1973, with a projected $68 billion for consumption spending, $22 billion in government purchases, $24 billion in gross private domestic investment and a slight gain of $1 billion in net exports.

If, as projections for 1973 suggest, there is a resurgence in consumer spending, "investment spending and government spending should be damped down," Haywood said.

OLDEST HOUSE--Morgan Row in Harrodsburg, Kentucky's oldest complete row house, fronts an entire block of South Chiles Street. A row house consists of several units under one roof, separated by firewalls but connected by passageways. During its long history Morgan Row served as a stagecoach station, tavern, gambling house and inn. The north unit has been restored by the Harrodsburg Historical Society and is open to the public as a museum.

Rediscovering Kingdom Come

West Liberty, Ky.—Violets are a foot tall along the banks of Kingdom Come Creek. Trees send gnarled roots like long slender fingers reaching through leaf mounds to overhang the stream's crystal-clear water.

The road up the valley of Kingdom Come is rough and narrow like the creek, and sometimes the road becomes the creek and the creek, the road. This once was the route traveled by mountain men with their ox teams, flocks of sheep and herds of cattle, on the way across Pine Mountain and Big Black Mountain to market at the Gap.

John Fox, Jr., a native of Stony Point near Paris, roamed up and down this creek in the late 1800's. He came here to regain his health, but stayed to mine coal, to absorb the epic breadth of mountain life and to see deep within the hearts of a proud people.

Later, Fox brought those mountain folk to life for readers of his books far beyond the wilderness of Kingdom Come.

Seeking background on Kentucky's newest outdoor drama, "The Little Shepard of Kingdom Come," based on Fox's book of the same name, was excuse enough to visit the region.

Traveling up the rocky creek is easy today with four-wheel drive. Jimmy Brown, city manager of Whitesburg, and Sherry Conatser, Letcher county speech therapist, were along on the trip as well as two members of the drama cast.

Old-timers in Kingdom Come might note many changes but, for a stranger in the valley, it seemed that time had taken a holiday and left the log houses, barns and sheds as they were when John Fox rode that way.

In a quiet pool a rock bass jumped as our vehicle approached, a water snake stopped swallowing a minnow for a few seconds, and overhead a cardinal and an eastern bluebird streaked for cover in the creamy blossoms of a mountain magnolia.

This, then, was the country of Chad, the Little Shepherd of the book and the drama. With his dog and rifle, the founding travels the mountains and valleys before reaching the Bluegrass where he finds his rightful heritage. In the Civil War, the boy is torn between friends—some fighting for the North some for the South—and between his love of the mountains and his love for the Bluegrass.

The magic of the story will come alive again this summer, when the new drama opens June 30 in Little Shepherd Amphitheatre, five miles north of Whitesburg on Ky-15. The drama is being produced entirely by local citizens, who also will make up the cast.

"The script of the play follows the story in the book exactly," said Begie Breeding, a cast member and the driver of our vehicle.

We continued up the creek, until, near the head of the stream, we entered a broad, green meadow where the home of John Fox still stands.

Bees hovered over flowers and birds fluttered in the trees, but the family which once lived in the meadow had long since gone. No boys or calico-frocked girls ran through the meadow, swung in the trees or played in the forests.

Though the tiny, soft-spoken sounds of evening were beginning, there was a quietness that pervaded the hills, the house and the travelers.

Jimmy Brown got out to replace the pewter-gray bars across the lane and then the visitors traveled on. John Fox and his Little Shepherd remained there, in the lane to the house.

State Revenue Commissioner John M. Ross says compliance was "as good as we expected" during April, the first month of collections under the new coal severance tax.

7 cars for 7 brothers.

1. To carry his paints and canvases around with him, Wyatt needed a car with a large trunk. The Audi has the same amount of trunk space as the Lincoln Continental Mark IV.

2. Bernard has a problem. Not only doesn't he take care of himself (a button missing here, a cuff link lost there), he doesn't take care of his car either. No wonder he wanted a car that gets the expert service of a Volkswagen. The Audi does because it's part of the VW organization.

3. Since Edgar has a big family he needed a car with lots of room. The Audi has about the same headroom and legroom as the Rolls-Royce Silver Shadow.

4. Rolf is a first-class skier. He gets to where he's going because the Audi, like the Cadillac Eldorado, has front-wheel drive to give him the traction he needs to get through the snow to the snow.

5. Duke wanted a car that could handle mountain roads and get him up to his cabin comfortably. Because the Audi has independent front suspension like the Aston Martin, Duke gets peace of mind as well as peace of body.

6. Geoffrey the banker wanted a car with a plush interior. Since the Audi's interior bears such an uncanny resemblance to that of the Mercedes-Benz 280SE, Geoffrey is now a Senior Vice-President.

7. Lance knows the fuss women make over racing car drivers. He also knows the Audi has the same type of steering system as the racing Ferrari. (Ursula is now in seventh heaven.)

It's a lot of cars for the money.

*Suggested price, East Coast P.O.E. for 100LS $3,855. Other Audi models start at $3,085. (West Coast P.O.E. slightly higher.) Local taxes and other dealer delivery charges, if any, additional. Porsche Audi: a division of Volkswagen.

Floyd Dental Students In Externship Program

Darrell Johnson, of Garrett, and Carl Tackett, of Prestonsburg, will participate in a dental externship program sponsored by the University of Kentucky College of Dentistry at the Albert B. Chandler Medical Center. Johnson will be working with a dentist in the Cumberland area, and Tackett at Pikeville.

The externship program provides the dental student early exposure to actual dental private practice by placing him in a dental office to work with a private practitioner. In addition, the program is designed to "help the student learn and develop a philosophy for practice and to understand the fundamental administrative procedures necessary to run a practice of dentistry," according to Dr. Lee Heise, assistant professor of community dentistry and coordinator of the program.

IN APPRECIATION

The family of the late Reece Bolen would like to thank all who attended the Bolen memorial funeral meeting. Friends and relatives came from Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and from as far away as Boston, Mass.

Menace of the Japanese Beetle Present in Eastern Kentucky

Lexington, Ky.—For those who have been intrigued and have asked about the small metal, lanternlike objects seen swinging from metal posts all across the countryside, this is the answer to their question. These gadgets were insect traps erected by the University of Kentucky Department of Entomology in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

This information comes from B. C. Pass, Chairman of the UK Department, who says the purpose of these traps was to help keep track of the spread of the Japanese beetle which now infests many counties in the state.

And there's good reason for keeping check and controlling this insect. Possessing a voracious appetite and loving the taste of at least 275 plants — including many field crops, shade and fruit trees, ornamental shrubs, some weeds, and the roots of grassy lawns — the Japanese beetle does millions of dollars in damage every year throughout the United States.

This beetle that looks more handsome than dangerous is about one-half inch long with shiny copper-colored wings and a broad, metallic-green body decorated with 12 white spots. It first showed up in 1916 at a nursery in Riverton, N. J., riding aboard a shipment of lilacs from Japan, and quickly multiplied. Easily outnumbering such natural enemies as robins, starlings, moles, and skunks which dig for the grubs, and specially-imported wasps that paralyze grubs, the beetles spread clear across the country.

A notorious hitchhiker which will ride aboard almost anything that moves, the beetle has defied quarantines, transport inspections, food traps, mass sterilization, and wide use of insecticides in its westward march. It now infests at least 22 states and parts of Canada.

There are several ways of counteracting the menace of the Japanese beetle.

One of the best is inoculating the soil with the spores of milky disease, which is fatal to the grub of this and a few other closely related insects but harmless to all other forms of life. This spore dust is manufactured commercially from the bodies of infected grubs and can be purchased at many farm supply stores. When applied to the soil, it seemingly poisons the ground for future generations of beetles.

This method of control, however, is most effective when carried out on a community-wide basis. But since it may take several years for the milky disease to become fully effective, insecticides may be necessary in the meantime.

According to Pass, the adult beetle itself seldom becomes a problem where regular spray schedules are followed for control of other insects. But if there is a specific need for beetle control on plants, a spray of carbaryl or malathion may do the job.

There are other chemicals for eradicating grubs infecting lawn turfs. Anyone having problems with these insects can secure more information by contacting his local Extension agent. A publication on "Controlling the Japanese Beetle" (Home and Garden Bulletin 159) also is available, at nominal cost, from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

Unfortunately, the Japanese beetle now infests most of the counties in Eastern Kentucky, but because of the traps that told of the infestation and the quarantines set up by the state requiring certain articles—soil, turf, plants, plant parts—be treated prior to movement from an infested to a non-infested area, there has been a delay in the spread of this pest from east to west.

Our hearts still ache with sadness, Secret tears still flow, What it meant to lose you No one will ever know. When days are dark and dreary, And everything goes wrong, We seem to hear you whisper, "Cheer up and carry on." Each time we see your pictures, You seem to smile and say, "Don't cry, I'm only sleeping, We will meet again some day."

Cook-Ray Wedding Solemnized

Miss Jessa Lynn Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Cook, of Cincinnati, Ohio formerly of this county, and Michael E. Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Ray, of Lockland, Ohio, were married June 3 at Heritage Hill Baptist Church, with the Rev. R. Judson Crawford performing the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore an empire-waisted A-line gown of silk organza with long, Camelot sleeves. The skirt and train of the bride's gown was covered in daises, the bodice, sleeves, and train-trimmed in venise lace. The crown of the bridal veil was made up of daises, edged in seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white daises, and carnations with a small, white Bible given to the couple by the bride's parents. Her only jewelry was pearl earrings, a gift from the groom.

The matron of honor was Mrs. James R. Johnson, Lexington, Ky., sister of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss Robin Lynn Little, Mt. Vernon, Ill., cousin of the bride, Misses Vickie Bailey, Renee Davidson and Vada Dyle, all of Cincinnati.

The maid of honor wore a green and yellow floor-length gown of daises print, with a yellow broad-brim hat.

The bridesmaids were dressed in yellow floor-length gowns with matching head-pieces of yellow bows and nylon veils. Each carried a nose gay of yellow and white daises with green streamers.

Mr. Gary Ray, brother of the groom, served as best man.

Ushers were Curtis and William E. Cook, brothers of the bride, Michael D. Rollins, cousin of the bride, and James R. Johnson, brother-in-law of the bride.

Miss Glenda Ray, sister of the groom, presented piano selections, "Love Story", "We've Only Just Begun", "Bridal March" and the "Wedding March"

The mother of the bride wore a pink long-sleeve dress with matching accessories and wore a corsage of pink carnations and daises. The mother of the groom wore a blue long-sleeve dress with white accessories and a corsage of blue carnations with white daises.

The reception was held in the church dining room. A private dinner was given for the bride and groom and both families by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rollins later in the evening before the couple left on a honeymoon trip touring Kentucky.

Mr. Ray will leave for the Air Force, June 22. Mrs. Ray will continue working with retarded children at Leaf School for Learning in Cincinnati.

road, and the man decided therein lay his chance of turning around and heading back. Because of the wet weather, the garden hadn't been plowed or planted, so the damage wasn't too great when the driver packed into it. But getting out was another matter. The truck was stuck. The whole neighborhood foregathered to watch the proceedings. Even small children offered advice. The bucolic scene included a multiplicity of dogs of all sizes, breeds and temperaments. But all was peaceable—not even a hogfight. The folks did some "visiting" during the "stickup," and there was some whittlin' and discussions ranging from the area of agriculture on to politics, local, national and international.

Finally, a wrecker was called. It couldn't budge the mired-down monster. Then a second wrecker was called from Prestonsburg. The two together got the truck back onto the road.

The driver meanwhile had become acquainted with Ollie Goble, one of those who had tried to help. When all was clear and he was ready to head out, he shook hands with Goble and remarked, "I want to shake hands with you, for I'll never be back."

"Say, mister," grinned Goble, "you plowed half of that garden—don't you think you ought to finish the job?"

FROM CAUSE OF EFFECT

Quentin Terry tells of the oldtimer who had "figgered out" how this world would do its final fadeout. Said he:

"The Bible says this old world will be destroyed by fire, and I'll tell you exactly how. This world is spinnin' around on an axle. Anybody knows that old axle has got to have grease. But they're drillin' and takin' the oil out of the ground, and that axle, one of these days, is gonna run dry. And when she does, the whole shebang is gonna get a hot-box and fly into flinders."

THE DECISION

Preachers are traditionally in favor of getting folks into church, but Curtis May tells the story of one who varied from the norm. The occasion arose when a man died after a life of neglecting the church, refusing to attend or to have anything to do with it, despite all the pleas of his wife, friends and members of the church.

A church funeral was requested, but in view of the record, some thought the preacher should be consulted first. He took the matter under consideration, then issued his opinion:

"Since he would not come to church all his life, I don't believe we ought to take advantage of him now and carry him in."

I am not a hard man, but I think it is only fair that I warn Watt Hale and Lenna Moore that they're "laying down on the job" and that I may have to replace them on the staff unless they get busy.

Hamilton said in his petition for the court order that he has operated the mine on Hollybush since 1956 and that the defendants first stopped coal trucks on June 1, then halted them again June 5 through threat of dumping in the road any other coal hauled from the mine. In addition to the restraining order, Hamilton asked that he recover $3,000 for each day he is prevented from operation.

Red Cross Again Pays More Than Floyd Co. Gave

The story of Red Cross expenditures in this county following the recent flood in contrast to the contributions made to Floyd Chapter during its 1972 fund-raising drive is a quick lesson in how to go broke.

A total of $9,975 was spent by the Red Cross in meeting needs of flood sufferers in the county. Floyd county gave to the Red Cross during the fund drive $4,600.

Yet this year's financial campaign was more successful than any staged in the last four years. It fell only $1,100 short of its goal and there are some contributions yet expected, Miss Ella Noel White, executive secretary of Floyd Red Cross Chapter, said.

Red Cross assistance was broken down, as follows: Food, clothing and maintenance, $1,571; repairs to houses, $2,873; household furnishings, $5,531.

Assistance was granted to 44 families in this county. The Nelson Program supplied most of the labor necessary to repair owner-occupied homes damaged by hail, flood and earthslides.

The Red Cross disaster office established at Pikeville following the series of storms has been closed after meeting reported needs. Aid to disaster victims is given in the form of disbursing orders which are normally issued to local merchants. This is done, it was explained, so that the economy of the county or a community may be improved. Merchants who hold such disbursing orders are asked to send them in as soon as possible, so that payment can be made.

"Assistance granted to these families is an outright gift from the American people through the American Red Cross," Miss White pointed out.

"A seam of exposed coal high on the resulting highwall apparently had been stripped as the operation drove around the hill, and heavily loaded coal trucks serving the operation made their own muddy road through the creek, all in violation of state strip-mining laws.

State strip-mine inspectors, as well as state and federal deep-mine officials, asked about the situation by this reporter, all said they were powerless to act."

Although the operation was legally classified as a punch mine at the time, local residents charged that the mine had contributed to local flooding and sent a petition to Gov. Wendell H. Ford asking that strip-mining not be permitted in the narrow valleys of Mud Creek.

Acting reclamation director Beach said the division soon will begin drafting new regulations under a recently passed state law to bring such in-between operations as the housing project and punch mines under the reclamation law.

Beach said the division expects to begin enforcing the new law after the proper regulations are approved later this year.

The new law, which originated as House Bill 47, expands the definition of strip-mining to include all surface operations, including access roads, at any mine—deep, punch, quarry or otherwise—in the state.

The law extends surface mining regulations for reclamation and silt control to cover "the breaking of surface soil in order to facilitate or accomplish the extraction of minerals, ores or other solid materials..." and may include any or all of the surface operations.

Detective B. J. Music, Sheriff Frank Leslie and County Detective Sam Hale.

It is known, however, that the 1965 red Mercury of Edward R. Jones, of Prestonsburg, has been impounded after red paint was found on a junk car at the roadside, near the shooting scene, and glass found there fitted the broken parking lens of Jones' car. The Jones apartment also was searched. Officers were careful, however, not to make any charge against any individual. The paint and glass have been examined by the State Police laboratory at Frankfort.

Investigators are hopeful that the case is nearing a solution and that solving of the latest murder will afford a break in the mystery surrounding the assassination of the deputy sheriff at Garrett.

Conley was a son of Milton and Cordelia Layne Conley, of Hueysville, who survive, as do his widow, Mrs. Shelby Slone Conley, of Hindman; a son, James, of Mousie, and a daughter, Miss Deborah Conley, of Dayton, O.; six brothers and three sisters, Elwood, Milton, Jr., Carl, Carmel, Allen and Roger Conley, all of Hueysville, Mrs. Jackie Prater, of Martin, Mrs. Velma Hall, Willard, O., and Mrs. Belva Vanover, of Hueysville.

Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday from the Hueysville Church of Christ, with Archie Everage the officiating minister, and burial was made in the Stone cemetery at Hindman under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Mr. and Mrs. K. D. Maggard, of Narrows, Va., spent last weekend here with Mr. and Mrs. Perry Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Paris Bartley and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Meade.

The attorney general's office has again denied Jewish teachers emergency leave on their religious holidays. The opinion reaffirms another, issued earlier this year. Asst. Atty. Gen. Carl Miller said granting such leave would be a discrimination in favor of the Jewish faith.

YOU AND THE DRAFT

By COLONEL TAYLOR L. DAVIDSON

Frankfort, Ky.—If you read this column last week, you may remember we told you about the young man who preferred to serve his country in the armed forces rather than enjoy a deferment as a divinity student or an exemption as a "duly ordained minister." This week, we would like to tell you about the draft registrant who insisted that he be retained in an exempted status rather than be assigned to a lower administrative classification.

This situation will again prove there are exceptions to all rules in the application of the military draft, even with the phasing down of hostilities in Vietnam.

Wiley was born March 4, 1947, and registered for the draft in March, 1965, shortly after graduating from high school.

His first job after graduation was as an apprentice in an offset printing shop. The firm had an approved training program, and under draft regulations in force at that time, Wiley was classified 2-A Apprentice.

While continuing to learn the trade of an offset printer, he became a "regular minister of religion." That term means one who, as his customary vocation, preaches and teaches the principles of a church, religious sect, or organization, of which he is a member without having been formally ordained a minister, and who is recognized as a regular minister.

As a regular minister of religion, Wiley was classified 4-D by his local board. That classification is an exemption.

As Wiley was the regular minister of religion for a small church, it was necessary for him to supplement his income by serving as a journeyman offset printer. That did not affect his draft status.

A man born on March 4, 1947 has lottery number 275. An individual with this member under present regulations is "home safe" since the highest lottery number reached in 1970 nation wide was 195, and in Kentucky, 170.

When the military draft was extended in 1971, a new classification, 1-H, was established. For all practical purposes, this is an administrative or holding classification. In consideration of classes, 1-H is lower than 4-D and the local board, acting within regulations, reclassified Wiley from 4-D to 1-H.

Upon receipt of the reclassification, Wiley availed himself of the procedural right to appeal the change in classification. He also took advantage of the change in regulations which permits a young man appealing his classification to make a personal appearance before the appeal board.

Obviously the personal appearance was effective. The appeal board, by vote of 4 to 1, restored the 4-D classification.

The action of the appeal board should be pleasing to Wiley since it was apparent that he wanted the record to show that he was continuing to fulfill the duties of a "regular minister of religion."

Technically, the appeal board should have upheld the local board.

However, in view of the facts that Wiley has a high lottery number, and is nearing the age of 26, and his file will be destroyed when he attains that age the question is almost moot. No further action is contemplated by our office.

Move to Plaza Is Under Way

By Frank Coats

Frankfort, Ky.—state offices are now moving to the office tower in Frankfort's new Capital Plaza on a fairly rigid schedule.

William S. Coleman, executive officer of the Capital Plaza Authority, said the movers were working "round the clock" in three shifts to get everyone settled as quickly as possible.

After a number of delays, caused by everything from labor strife to a malfunctioning air conditioning system, state agencies began moving in earnest into the 28-story tower on June 1.

The Commission on Aging, Council on Public Higher Education and Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission were the first to move in, and at least one agency a day is scheduled to move for the next several weeks.

Coleman said those agencies working out of leased buildings will be the first to move. He added that all agencies will keep their old telephone numbers.

The new office tower will eventually house 1100 state workers. Officials hope to achieve total occupancy by this fall.

At present, 10 floors in the tower are completed and fully furnished. Construction on the remaining floors would be finished this summer and occupancy will proceed on a floor-by-floor basis as work is completed.

The tower's new occupants will be faced with a few minor inconveniences for a while. Much of the underground parking area is not yet ready and the cafeteria will not be operational until the first of August.

The move is the biggest for government personnel in the capital since 1941, when the State Office Building on the old State Reformatory grounds was opened for business.

Anchorage Attorney Named LRC Chief

The Legislative Research Commission has named Jackson W. White, and Anchorage attorney and fast-food-service-executive, as its new director, replacing James T. Fleming, who joined Governor Ford's staff.

White was nominated for the position by Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll, chairman of the commission.

In accepting the new position, White assured LRC members he has "no political aspirations or commitments" and said, "This office will be operated in a strictly non-partisan manner."

The commission, composed of the legislative leadership of both major political parties, directs a 60-member staff in drafting new legislation and gathering data for the General Assembly and the public.

White, a former vice president and law director for the Kentucky Fried Chicken Corp., said he took the state job "because I want to get back to my life's work, which is the law."

He said the new position will offer the opportunity to "do legal research, which is my field." While with Kentucky Fried Chicken, White helped develop a legal department for the worldwide corporation.

EFFICIENCY MEANS PROFITS ON SMALL DAIRY FARMS.

Top management practices with a small dairy herd can yield higher profits than a more slipshod operation with a big herd, according to Extension dairy specialists at the University of Kentucky. They suggest that dairymen ask their local county Extension agent for advice on how they can sharpen dairy management skills.

School Houses Supplies Needed For 200-Bed Disaster Hospital

The Drift consolidated school now contains all the materials and equipment necessary to establish a 200-bed hospital in the event of national or local disaster.

Announcement of preparations against such potential emergency was made last week by Willis Hall, of the office of Emergency Health Service, State Board of Health.

In its present form the facility is a Packaged Disaster Hospital—$50,000 worth of packaged medicines, X-ray and anesthesia equipment, beds, blankets, pillows, bandages, splints, whatever is needed. In the event of disaster all this would be moved by the Floyd county Civil Defense unit to the McDowell high school where there is room for the setting up of 200 beds.

Location of the emergency supplies at Drift was made because it is within the prescribed three-mile proximity of a 50-bed hospital. Storage at the school was made possible by the Floyd County Board of Education, without charge. The McDowell hospital serves in the capacity of a user of materials such as surgeons' gloves, pharmaceuticals and other items which deteriorate through age. The hospital replaces these supplies with new stock as it uses them.

It was emphasized that the emergency hospital is owned by the U. S. Public Health Service and that its supplies are not available except in time of disaster and then only when the administrator of the McDowell hospital and the county judge jointly agree on the need for their use.

Now stored at the Drift school are hospital supplies sufficient to maintain a 200-bed hospital for a period of 30 days without resupply. The "disaster hospital" there is one of 13 in Kentucky.

A large portion of the stock of supplies, brought there from Jackson county, is 10 years old and is being replaced with new items. Mr. Hall and four employees of the U. S. supply depot at Shelby, O. worked three days last week replacing the old stock.

Volunteer help in storing the 45,000 pounds of materials in the Drift school was supplied, Mr. Hall said, by the Left Beaver Rescue Squad, the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad, Edgar Jones, of McDowell, and Tackett Furniture Co., Allen.

Roving Poet Trips Students' Imagination

By LOIS CAMPBELL
State News Bureau

Frankfort, Ky.—"Suppose you sat on a strawberry mountain. . ."

"Outside is like being inside with hundreds of lilacs falling on you."

These are lines from children's poems, written by seventh-graders in the Corbin city school system. The youngsters, participants in the Kentucky Arts Commission's Poet in the Schools program, are students of visiting poet Malcolm Glass.

On leave as an associate professor of English and director of writing programs at Austin Peay State University, Clarksville, Tenn., Glass is the director of Kentucky's first Poet in the Schools program. The program is sponsored by the Kentucky Arts Commission in conjunction with the National Endowment for the Arts.

"Kids poems provide a fascinating glimpse into the world of childhood and make you aware of the creative potential of young minds," Glass said.

"Unfortunately, this potential is sometimes overlooked in the monotony of daily concentration on homework and classroom behavior."

In a break from the conventional mode of class instruction, Glass encourages a relaxed, open atmosphere.

Against the musical background of a classical guitarist, seventh graders at Central elementary in Corbin write their thoughts in free verse form. Prompted only by a "suppose" and encouraged to say what something is like, the youngsters—all of them—eagerly pore over their papers.

The 50 minutes with Glass is an almost unique classroom situation—free, imaginative, yet ordered. Pleased with their poems, the uninhibited, excited pupils share their ideas, new sounds and new words. And there's almost 100 per cent insistence on reading the creations aloud.

Glass noted that, aside from its creativity, the program has some very practical benefits. It helps the students think for themselves and improves vocabulary, writing and spelling.

He discourages rigid forms, such as rhyme schemes.

"Ultimately all I'm doing is getting them to stretch their minds," he said. "I keep stressing that they should be unique and say things nobody expects them to say."

Glass tries to get the students to recognize senses, emphasizing that dream sense, or even nonsense, makes a kind of sense.

"A poet goes for experience, the concrete images—smell, touch, hearing. Then the theme or conception gradually seeps out."

The seventh-graders went through a special session of the senses on a recent field trip. Exploring the nearby woods, the young poets came up with such lines as:

"Spring is like 1,000,000,000 green razor blades."

"Spring is like eating a gigantic egg and spitting out the seeds."

The Poet in the Schools program was scheduled so that Glass could visit schools in different regions of the state. This year he has been at Cloverpot, Shawnee High School in Louisville, Scottsville, Paducah and Corbin.

The program is financed by a $10,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Loans to Farmers Through FHA Seen

WASHINGTON, May 19—Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz today announced that the Farmers Home Administration may make emergency loans to eligible farmers in Floyd and nine other counties in Kentucky, through June 30, 1973.

This action follows President Nixon's declaration May 15, of a major disaster in Kentucky due to severe storms and flooding beginning April 12.

The counties are: Breathitt, Bullitt, Floyd, Franklin, Knott, Letcher, Lincoln, Madison, Pike, and Wayne.

In addition to regular emergency benefits, those eligible for assistance may have up to $2,500 of an emergency loan above the first $500 cancelled on losses not compensated by insurance or otherwise.

In nearby areas also affected by the flooding, emergency aid may be provided on an individual basis.

Loans are made to repair or replace damaged dwellings or farm buildings, and crop production, and for other expenses involved in restoring normal farming operations. Applications are being received at the Farmers Home Administration county offices serving the area. Borrowers must have sustained damage from the disaster.

Farmers or rural residents who borrow agree to repay their loans as soon as possible consistent with their ability. Loans are secured by liens as required to protect the government's interest.

The following eight counties were previously designated by the Department for emergency aid effective through June 30, 1972: Adair, Butler, Green, Muhlenberg, Ohio, Pulaski, Russell and Warren.

The service system of tomorrow. Built into every new Volkswagen today.

Imagine owning a car that can tell you how it feels. When Volkswagen dealerships start to receive their computers later this year, you'll be able to drive in, have your 1972 Volkswagen plugged into the computer, and get it straight from your car what's right or wrong.

How does it work?

Every 1972 Volkswagen has a network of sensors and check points built into critical areas like the engine and electrical system. These sensors work like nerves.

When they're attached to the computer by a simple socket in the back of the car, the sensors relay the condition of vital areas.

In the time it takes a mechanic to collect his tools, the computer checks things like front wheel alignment, engine compression, and battery voltage.

And gives you the results in plain English. The computer will be at Volkswagen dealers starting later this year, so you can come in and let our brain take the load off yours.

'Music Man' To Open New Season At Amphitheatre Next Tuesday

The Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre will open its season Tuesday, June 20, with "The Music Man." One of Broadway's biggest musical hits, the Meredith Willson show includes "Seventy-Six-Trombone," "Till There Was You," and "Wells Fargo Wagon."

The story concerns a con-man who travels to a small Iowa town at the turn-of-the-century to sell a phony boys band. In the town populated by barber shop quartets, gossiping women and a host of comic characters, Harold Hill the con-man meets Marian the librarian and loses his heart. Harold is played by William Nave and Marian is played by Barbara Mappus. The production is directed by Jay Brooks of the Metropolitan Opera.

"The Music Man" will be performed in the Amphitheatre in Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, Tuesday through Sunday, June 20-25 and Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, June 27-July 15.

"Jenny Wiley!", the musical saga of the frontier woman captured by Indians in 1789, will be performed in the Amphitheatre, Wednesdays, Fridays, and Sundays, June 28-August 25. The musical traces Jenny's life from her courtship with Tom Wiley through her Indian captivity and escape through the forests of the Big Sandy Valley.

A musical version of Truman Capote's "The Grass Harp", the story of an old woman who goes to live in a tree to escape a con-man trying to steal her drowsy cure, plays every Wednesday and Sunday at 2:30 at Prestonsburg Community College.

All Amphitheatre productions are at 8:30 p.m. For tickets call (606) 886-6647 or write Box 22, Prestonsburg Kentucky 41653.
