

Coal Slump Now Hinted, Tax Blamed But New Operations Starting in County, Is Report Received

A drop of 1.5 million tons in Kentucky's coal production for the month of April, the first month of the collection of the new severance tax, has been reported by The Courier-Journal, but one source later said a number of new mines are being opened in this county and that the reported slump in the industry is not visible here.

The Kentucky drop in production was 13.6 per cent last month, it is claimed. Producers are blaming the severance tax. "It was the magnitude of the tax that clobbered us," said Fred W. Luigart, Jr., president of the Kentucky Coal Association. But West Virginia, which has no severance tax, lost 13.7 per cent production for the same month. Virginia was reported down by 8.2 per cent; Tennessee, by 15.5 per cent, and Ohio by 5.1.

A U. S. Bureau of Mines spokesman said, "The number of mines is stepping up. New ones are opening on Left Beaver and Mud Creek, and by August five or six new operations will be going in Martin county." Although the spokesman said he had no production figures available, he could not by personal observation detect any slump. Mr. Luigart described the drop as "the worst since the end of World War II. . . If it continues in the months ahead, the industry is in trouble."

Efforts by The Times to contact coal company officials in this county and coal association officials in Pikeville and Lexington failed.

One coal company reported the loss of a portion of its Chicago market. This, he said, resulted from city legislation forbidding the use there of coal which has more than 1 per cent ash.

John H. Gray, public relations officer for Island Creek Coal Company, the largest producer, said the company already has lost one contract since the severance tax was imposed.

Claude A. Creech, vice president of Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co., said operators "are just now finding out what hit" (See Story 2, Back Page, Sec. 1)

This Town . . . That World

WE RISE TO PROTEST

Women's Lib has caused us little concern in the past, but now comes word so disturbing that we must protest. We grudgingly will go along with the girls in their demand that hurricanes be named for men, too, but in defense of the language must take the firm stand and cast the unblinking stare on their proposal to change the word, "hurricane," to "hizzicane."

What this country needs even more than Medicaid and Medicare is Medicine. The finest hospital or the greatest specialist does the sick little or no good if the patient can't get to them.

ON MONDAY HOLIDAYS

I am all for Memorial Day and most of the other holidays we have. But this change of holiday dates to coincide with Monday, to make a long week-end of it, is pure murder for us who have a newspaper to turn out by Tuesday night. Offices and stores closed, news sources out of pocket — try it sometime if frustration is your dish. . . . But a Monday holiday has its good points, too, even for me — it provides an excuse for my missing some of the news that I shouldn't. My gripe springs, really, from the fact that I had to work.

NOT OVER-MOTHER

The cardinal is a pretty wary bird, but a pair set up housekeeping in a shrub at the corner of the porch, up at the farm. One Sunday, when we were there, the little ones apparently were only a few days old. The next Sunday, we learned they were already gone. Somebody in our group had an idea that, maybe, we humans might learn something from this couple. They hovered over that nest, crammed the youngsters with every bite they could find — and when the little ones were strong enough to travel, they sent them packing.

DO WE CARE A HOOT?

How often do you hear an owl hoot, these days? There is a possibility that this is another American bird that is on the way to extinction. An owl, I am told, lays only two eggs a year; at best, there is no population explosion, and it may be that already changes in the environment — the cutting of certain trees, the use of pesticides, and so on — may have done the job nobody really wanted done.

Tackett, First Victim at Lake In Two Years

Eighteen-year-old Glenn Edward Tackett, of Melvin, last Thursday became the first person to drown in Dewey Lake since 1970.

Young Tackett, a student at Mayo Vocational School, Paintsville, and three other youths were swimming in the narrow inlet on the east shore of the lake, near the dam, when he submerged. Two of his companions later said he wrenched free of them when they attempted to rescue him. He drowned at 5:10 p.m. His body was recovered at 8:30 p.m. by two divers of the Floyd County Emergency Rescue Squad from approximately eight feet of water. The youth's body had lodged against a pier of an old boat landing, making dragging operations ineffectual.

The victim was said to have been a good swimmer.

The lake was without tragedy last year. One drowning was recorded in Johns Creek, below the dam.

A son of Edward A. (Cotton) Tackett and Ethel Hager Tackett, the victim was graduated from Wheelwright high school last year and at the time of his death was studying at the Paintsville trade school. Surviving, in addition to his parents, are three brothers and one sister, Allen Keith, William Leland, Stephen Ira and Dena Marie Tackett. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Leland Tackett, of Melvin, and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hager, of Weeksbury.

Funeral services were conducted at 10 a.m. Monday from the Tackett residence, ministers of the Regular Baptist Church officiating. Burial in the family cemetery at Melvin was directed by the Merion Funeral Chapel.

Garrett School Marks Its Close With Homecoming Event

Graduation is normally a time when the emotions surface; classmates part and parents look on as their sons and daughters enter upon a time of transition. This year's commencement at four Floyd county high schools — Wayland, Garrett, Maytown and Martin — has been more poignant than usual, because these high schools were having their last graduation exercises and next year will be merged in the new high school at Eastern. The old, familiar faces will be missing but gone, too, will be the old surroundings.

Garrett high school last week-end marked its last commencement with a two-day class reunion and homecoming which brought more than 1,000 former students, faculty members and present students together. Alumni from as far away as California were there. They came from Arizona, New York, Ohio, Michigan — all over. Facilities of the school were packed; the town was jammed by the influx of visitors.

Ira C. Bell, who was principal of the Garrett school in 1928-30, before the high school there was founded, came from Monticello, Ky. C. H. Farley, of Pikeville, the first principal of the high school, Curtis Owens, of New York City, and Reb Hall, of Beaver, O., who served the school as both principal and basketball coach, were unable to come. But Supt. of Schools Charles Clark, whose 15 years as principal at Garrett was longest in the history of the school, was a speaker at Saturday's meeting. Burnis Gearheart, the present principal, has served in that capacity 12 years.

W. R. Mayo, an early coach at the school, came from Michigan to have a part in both days of the reunion.

A motorcade of 125 cars left Garrett Saturday to tour the Right Beaver Creek valley. Supper was served at 5 p.m. in the school lunchroom. Lees Junior College musicians entertained the crowd later, and the day was capped by a dance which packed the gymnasium.

There was no formal program. "We played it by ear as we went along," said Shelby Draughn, a leader in the reunion move.

Sunday afternoon, Calvin Reece Gearheart, of Ashland, a former student and ex-county Attorney of Boyd county, spoke. Recognition of visitors and of residents of the area who had contributed to the progress of the community and school was made. Especially cited were Mrs. Cled Turner, mother of 15 who attended the high school, and Memory Room in the school library where old photographs, mementoes from other years and letters from alumni were stored, was a center of attention.

Five girls and as many boys nominated from this year's class for the title of Homecoming king and queen comprised a royal court, since no individual was selected. These included Janet Marie Draughn, Reba Carol Duff, Myra Lynn Green, Sherri Martin, Sandra Richter, Paul Gene Mullins, Adrian Bentley, Jr., Ronnie Baker, Bobby Whittaker, Frankie Howard. Mrs. Virginia Draughn was named permanent chairman of the alumni executive committee, and she will lead in planning for future reunions — possibly for another next year.

Seven Prisoners Brought to Jail From Breathitt

Seven prisoners were brought to the Floyd county jail from Breathitt county last week to await trial on federal charges.

Two of the seven, Charles Ott Stafford and Thomas Shepherd, face two charges each under the Dyer Act (auto theft). The other prisoners and charges against them are: Leonard Fugate, possession of illegal firearms; Danny, Kermit and Merle Hall, each for transporting firearms, and Charles North, violating the gun act.

James Jacobs was jailed May 23 by Gene Mullins on a charge of armed robbery.

The only liquor arrest of the week was that of Chester A. Kerr, who was charged by the arresting officer, Dexter Hall, with transporting (Because of the Memorial Day observance, and the closing of court-house officer, the quantity of alcoholic beverages taken was not learned.)

Others arrested, charges against each, and names of arresting officers:

Robert Wells, Ronnie Murphy and Irvin Jones, each charged as a.w.o.l.; Lon C. Gibson, motorcycle theft, arrested by Policemen Conley and Thornsbury; Randolph Jacobs, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Trooper Williamson; Freddie Stephens, drunk driving, by Policemen Conley and Herald; Billy Joe Hall, drunk driving, by State Troopers Rose and Williamson; Floyd Young, fishing without a license, by Conservation Officers Cantrell and Prater; Tommy Terry, drunk driving and assault on a police officer, by Prestonsburg Policemen Lawson.

NEW OFFICERS—Newly-elected officers of the Region II Mental Health-Mental Retardation Board, Inc., are (from left) Mrs. Roger Arnett, Salyersville, Secretary; Roy "Todd" Preston, Salyersville, 2nd Vice President; Marshall Davidson, Prestonsburg, Treasurer; and O. T. Dorton, Paintsville, President. The Board oversees the activities of Mountain Mental Health Services, which serves the mentally ill and retarded in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike Counties. Absent from the picture is Lee Keene, Pikeville, elected 1st Vice President. (Story on Page 10)

Black Lung Act To Add To Economy New Law Expected To Add to Federal Cash Reaching Area

The new black lung law may send into Floyd and other Kentucky mining counties an unprecedented flow of federal funds, beginning within the next four months, it was predicted this week.

Since 1969 upwards of 22,000 beneficiaries in Kentucky have drawn approximately $50 million old black lung legislation. With the new law, which liberalizes the benefit program, it is expected that many more thousands will be eligible for benefits and that many will receive back payments which could be as much as $9,000 each.

Black lung payments already have been exceeding welfare benefits in some counties. In this county last month welfare payments amounted to $238,000. As of last December 31, black lung checks had reached a total of $196,000 a month. Since that date, the pay to black lung beneficiaries may have equalled welfare benefits, and with the new, liberalized program their pay will be far in excess of other welfare aid.

Floyd county's black lung payments as of the end of last year stood third in the state, with Pike county's $311,000 per month the state's highest.

Much of the increase, it was explained, will take the form of retroactive payments that will be made to applicants who were turned down when they first applied but who now have become eligible under the expanded law. They will be paid from the time their claim was first filed.

Other applicants whose claims were (See Story 1, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Court Approves Road Machinery Purchase Plan

The fiscal court at its special meeting last week authorized County Judge Henry Stumbo to enter into a rental-purchase agreement with the state through which it will acquire $72,225 worth of equipment for use in county road work.

The terms of the agreement are the same as in past years. Some of the equipment will replace machinery which has been in operation 10 years or longer.

The court also accepted for maintenance the Hager Branch road, near East Point, from its intersection with US 23 to its head, a distance of one mile.

At an earlier meeting the court leased from Mr. and Mrs. Worden Collins, of Minnie, a tract of about two acres on Sizemore mountain for use as a garbage dump. The land was leased for $200 a year, and the court agreed to supervise and maintain the dump. This includes the cutting of a ditch and covering of garbage dumped there.

County Primary Vote Lowest Yet Recorded

Fewer than one of every five eligible voters in the county showed up at the polls at last Tuesday's primary election, which was perhaps the county's dullist.

Only 4,185 ballots, in all, were cast—3,789 Democratic and 396 Republican. And only 13 Floyd countians living elsewhere took the trouble to vote by absentee ballot.

But the balloting here helped other counties, where the vote also was light, name party nominees for the November showdown. Floyd county Democrats gave Walter "Dee" Huddleston, the Democratic nominee for the U. S. Senate seat now held by John Sherman Cooper, most of their votes, and Republican voters also gave Huddleston's Republican opponent at the November election, Ex-Governor Louie B. Nunn, most of the 396 ballots they cast.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins easily won the Democratic nomination over Bessie Smith, and in this county the voting was 3,604 for Perkins to 185 for his opponent. Robert Holcomb won the Republican nomination to oppose Congressman Perkins in November, and in this county he polled 213 votes to the 72 cast for his opponent, Granville Thomas.

Huddleston, with state administration support, polled 1,966 votes in this county. Sandy Hockensmith, whose main attraction to voters here lay in the fact that he was Former Governor Bert Combs' airplane pilot, ran next to him in this county with 527 votes and actually led Huddleston in two precincts, Head of Mud and Branham's Creek. Willis V. "Tobacco Bill" Johnson had 224 votes; Charles Van Winkle, 95; and James Wallace, 334.

Robert E. Gable, Ex-Governor Nunn's principal opponent for the Republican Senate nomination, received only 36 votes in this county to Nunn's 318. Thurman Jerome Hamlin, a political perennial, received 10 votes; George Wooton, 12, and W. Howard Clay, 20.

James B. Stephenson, of Pikeville, won the Democratic nomination for judge of the Court of Appeals, and Don Ward, of Hazard, the Republican. In this county Stephenson led the voting on both tickets.

The vote:
On the Democratic ballot—James B. Stephenson, 1,474; William P. Bach, 192; Edward G. Hill, 1,412; Don Ward, 251.

Republican ballot—Stephenson, 141; Hill 117; Bach, 26; Ward, 70.

And the message is this—see your doctor. Fast. These are the signals to watch for: 1. Unusual bleeding or discharge. 2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere. 3. A sore that does not heal. 4. Change in bowel or bladder habits. 5. Hoarseness or cough. 6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing. 7. Change in the size or color of a wart or mole. If you see one of these signals for more than two weeks, remember the message: see your doctor.

Work That Should Be Done

The cost to the state and the inconvenience to the travelling public that would be involved in any move to remove cliff-hanging threats to the public safety along US 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville have been given as reasons for the reluctance of the Department of Highways to correct the situation.

As matters stand, the hurriedly built highway has sheer walls of rock at several points, and from the sides and at the tops of these cliffs hang large sections of rock and individual boulders which threaten to come tumbling down at any moment.

At least one person has been killed because of a rockslide along the routes. Others have been injured, and there has been property damage. It requires no great exercise of the imagination to foresee the possibility of greater tragedy.

It is conceded that terracing along these precipitous rock walls would be costly. But one wonders if it would be more costly than the almost continuous work of clearing the highway and ditchline of fallen rock . . . not to mention the cost in human life.

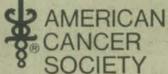

While such work would inconvenience some drivers, traffic could continue through a return to old US 23 as a detour.

All the safety slogans conjured up, and all the safe-driving practices so assiduously urged on motorists, and all the police work that may be done will not stay gravity and these boulders which may claim the "safest" driver.

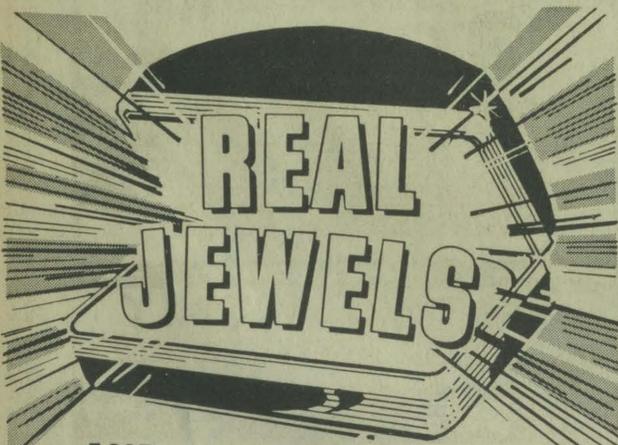

At other points in the county, and in other counties, for that matter, another danger exists, and this comes from the necessary maintenance of highways. This danger is created by repeated resurfacing of a highway while its berm, or the unpaved edge, remains several inches below the road-level. It's true, the driver's job is to keep his car on the highway surface, but there are occasions—dark, rainy nights, for example—when a tire may drop off the "table." Then there's the battle of the person at the wheel to keep from plunging over an embankment, or to get back onto the highway, and it's one too often lost when control of the car is lost.

The Times records these thoughts, not to compound the manifold troubles of the Department of Highways as it attempts a difficult job, but to suggest work which does not seem to us impractical and beyond the ability of the department to do.

Whatever Things

By DONALD E. WILDMON

In the Bible we have the story of Jesus stooping to wash the feet of His disciples. This was a very unusual act for Jesus to do. For it was not the task of the master to wash his servants' feet; rather, it was the responsibility of the servant to wash the feet of his master. It was such an unusual action that one of the disciples, Peter, was not going to let Jesus wash his feet. But Jesus would have it no other way.

There are three tremendous truths we can gain from this incident. First of all, this incident shows the purpose of power. Just what is that purpose? It is an ageless question. Well, the purpose is not to rule, as many think. Someone once said: "Every man would like to be God if it were possible; some few find it difficult to admit the impossibility." Remember Hitler? Or Caesar? And Nero?

Neither is the purpose of power to force, despite what some people think. A very wealthy industrialist once commented: "Damn the people. I have the power." Many share this attitude.

The purpose of power is to serve. Christ illustrated this so magnificently when He stooped to wash the feet of His disciples. Despite the belief to the contrary, there is more power in the open hand than in the clenched fist.

This incident also shows the goal of greatness. Again the question surfaces: What is the goal of greatness? Why do we all, in our own way, seek greatness? And after we achieve it, what do we do with it? Two disciples, James and his brother John, once asked Jesus for the preferred places in heaven. When the other ten became angry, Jesus told them: "If anyone of you wants to be great, you must be the servant of the rest." That is the goal of greatness!

The goal of greatness is not to separate one from the lowly, poor, and needy as fame and fortune so often do. Neither is it to exalt oneself to a position superior to your fellow man. But the goal of greatness is to serve. The greatest one is the one who serves most. The goal of greatness is service!

Stephen Grellet once wrote: "I shall pass through this world but once. Any good therefore that I can do, or any kindness that I can show to any human being, let me do it now. Let me not defer it or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

This story of Jesus washing the feet of His disciples also shows the height of humility. This One who had all power and greatness knelt and washed the feet of His servants. "All power is given to me . . ." He says. And yet He stoops to wash their feet.

Jesus put Himself into the role of a servant. "He who humbles himself shall be exalted," He said. How odd those words seemed back then, and even today. But whom do we exalt today? Hitler? Caesar? Napoleon? Or the lowly Christ?

Go after power. Get it. But use it right-to-serve. Go after greatness. Get it. But use it right-to-serve. And remember that if a man wants to grow tall, he must bend low. For without humility, nothing else fits in place.

Seat belt, head rest, brakes, lights, tires, but there's still a loose nut....

Health Council Leadership Role Told by Taylor

Strawn W. Taylor, state director of health planning, told members of the Big Sandy Comprehensive Health Planning Council at a recent meeting at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, that legislation enacted by the General Assembly this year designates regional health planning councils as the agency which will recommend certificates of need for all health facilities and services requiring licensure or state approval.

He emphasized the importance of regional council leadership in planning for the physical, mental and environmental health of citizens.

Allen E. Sither, director of the Region 11 council, released results of a priority survey made for Floyd, Pike, Magoffin, Martin and Johnson counties. The priorities which will receive immediate planning attention, he said, include manpower development and recruitment, family planning, community health and emergency medical services, the environment and home health care.

O. T. Dorton, of Paintsville, chairman of the Big Sandy council, was directed to set up an emergency health services committee and a community health services committee to implement planning. Area citizens as well as council members will be asked to serve on these committees.

The office of health planning for the Big Sandy region is located at Prestonsburg Community College.

Corps of Engineers To Award Contract On Work Near Dam

The U. S. Corps of Engineers' district office at Huntington, W. Va. will open bids about June 20 on construction of a fishermen's access road and a parking area below Dewey Dam. The work will consist of roadway excavation and embankment, placing dense-graded aggregates for the base course and underdrains, and bituminous paving of access roads and the parking area.

Cost of the project, it is estimated, will range from $25,000 to $100,000.

LETTERS To the Editor

As commander of Walter Karr Bowling Post 5839, I feel that we are receiving undue publicity. You will not find this Post listed in the telephone directory. Each week, we run an ad in The Floyd County Times, stating our meeting date, which is the third Friday of each month. We receive the sum of $2 for each member who belongs to Post 5839, and that is our only source of income, unless we receive donations.

The only voice we have in the building at Lancer is a place to meet every third Friday of the month.

NOT THOSE CHARLES PATTONS

The listing of a Charles Patton as having been booked at the county jail here on a charge of contributing to juvenile delinquency has caused all kinds of confusion, since there are at least six men of that name residing in the county. First of all, we were asked to explain that the defendant is not a resident of Prestonsburg. Now we add the Beaver Creeks and Auxier to the list of places where the accused man does not reside.

Food Stamps Total Increases in Floyd

During March, low-income persons in Floyd county received food stamps valued at $224,180, Economic Security's Acting Commissioner Garnett Johnson announced last week. This record compares to 8,865 received food stamps valued at $212,426 during the preceding month. In Kentucky, the food stamp program is administered jointly by the Department of Economic Security's Bureau of Public Assistance and the Food and Nutrition Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Needy families in the program exchange an amount of their own money, usually spent on food, to purchase coupons. In addition, families receive bonus coupons to boost their buying power. Kentucky's food stamp program has experienced tremendous growth during the past year. During March, 304,835 Kentuckians received food stamps valued at $7,856,353. In March 1971, 293,880 persons received food stamps with a total coupon value of $7,234,398.

FIRST THINGS FIRST

That's an old expression we use often, but rarely apply to its fullest advantage. Take the allocation of your personal income, for example. You likely pay everyone else first, then whatever is left (if any) you'll put into savings. "First things first." That's right, pay yourself first, in a regular, systematic savings account. How much money you can afford to save is up to you. The important thing to decide is on the amount, then save that much every single payday.

Again, "first things first." First National is the first place thousands of people think of concerning savings. First National is first . . . first in higher earnings, first in convenience, first in fast friendly service.

College Defines Its Requirements For 1972 Students

Graduating seniors and others who plan to attend Prestonsburg Community College as full-time students, or as part-time students in a technical program in the fall of 1972 must fulfill all application requirements in advance of registration. Each entering student must have the following on file in the Admissions Office prior to being accepted as a student: application form, health form, high school transcript or college transcript, American College Test (ACT) scores.

All of these credentials must be on file prior to August 1, 1972. These requirements must be met by students in the transfer program, as well as by students entering a two-year technical (associate degree) program.

Entering students must take the American College Test (ACT) prior to being admitted to any program. This test is administered periodically throughout the year and registration of the test dates may be obtained from the Admissions Office, the college counselor or local high school counselors. The ACT score must be on file for all entering students except those who have completed 12 or more college hours (with a grade of "C" or better) or those who are 21 years of age or more.

East Point Group Plans Playground

In a special meeting May 15, the East Point Area Development Club planned a playground on the Bear Hollow road, on land donated by Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Greer, of East Point.

Committees were appointed to investigate needs in preparing the ground for use and for obtaining equipment for the playground.

The next meeting will be held June 5 in the Masonic Temple clubroom at East Point. The business meeting will be conducted at 6:30. Following that, a community party will be held as a culminating activity for "Project Clean-Up."

All persons living in the area of the East Point Area Development Club are invited to attend.

Federal Court Rule Hits Mine Workers Leadership

Washington—Another severe legal setback hit the United Mine Workers (UMW) leadership last week when a federal judge ruled that seven of the union's regional districts are being illegally prevented from electing their own officers.

U.S. District Judge Joseph C. Waddy ruled that UMW members in the districts, two of which are in Kentucky, must be given the right to choose their own district-level officers at free elections, as federal law requires.

The suit challenging the UMW was ruled by the Department of Labor in 1964 as the result of complaints from some rank-and-file coal miners that the UMW custom of keeping regional districts in "trusteeship" violated the Landrum-Griffin Act of 1959.

If Judge Waddy's decision stands, it could represent the severest blow yet received by the embattled UMW hierarchy headed by president W.A. (Tony) Boyle, which has been hit with an array of suits and convictions.

Only two of the union's 22 districts in the United States are fully autonomous—that is, having the right to choose their own officers. Two districts have semi-autonomy; officers in the remaining 18 all are chosen by Boyle.

Reform-minded UMW members have long contended that the most essential step in returning control of the union to its rank-and-file was to achieve full autonomy at the district level.

Mike Trbovich of Clarksville, Pa., chairman of the reformist Miners for Democracy, hailed Waddy's decision as "more important...in many ways" than another federal judge's ruling last month that overturned Boyle's 1969 re-election.

"It breaks Tony Boyle's stranglehold...and will insure that the men who hold district office will be responsible to the miners and not to Boyle," Trbovich commented.

Actually, Waddy's decision apparently will directly affect only the districts specifically named by the Labor Department when its suit was filed. The decision, however, opens the way for favorable rulings in other individual districts should suits be filed.

But the districts included in Waddy's ruling are made up of about 84,000 active and retired miners—about 47 percent of the total UMW membership. About 6,000 of these men are in District 23, based at Madisonville, Ky., and 9,000 more are in District 30, headquartered at Pikeville.

Conditions in the two Kentucky districts, Judge Waddy noted, were nearly identical to conditions in the other trusteeship districts, which have been tightly controlled since 1930 by the top UMW officials in Washington.

Other districts affected by Waddy's ruling:

- District 4 (south-central Pennsylvania);
- District 6 (eastern Ohio);
- District 17 (West Virginia);
- District 7 (merged with two other districts in eastern Pennsylvania in 1969 to become District 25);
- District 31 (northern West Virginia);
- District 30 in Eastern Kentucky is headed by Carson Hibbitts of Pikeville, who is known throughout the union as one of Boyle's trusted lieutenants. He is both president and secretary-treasurer. He sits on the international executive board and also is president and secretary-treasurer of District 28 in southwest Virginia, another nonautonomous district.

Australian's pennant plan
ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Derek Sutch stood back and surveyed the result of 18 months of toil—a good-looking 36-foot houseboat.
 Just one more thing, he thought—a pennant to fly from the cabin roof.
 Two weeks later the flag arrived with a $336 bill instead of one for $10. The flag was 12 feet by 24 feet. The flagmaker explained his work team had mistaken Derek's inches for feet.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

Not many females of the birds have a voice for song, as they devote most of their time to home duties—laying the eggs and incubating them. But the female meadowlark is the one that sings her Silvery ode to spring, according to some close observers. The song is sweet and plaintive and seems to have a nostalgic strain. It consists of slurred notes and whistles as musical as the tinkle of a bell. Some lovers of the song have tried to express it in words as saying: "Spring—o—the—year;" or simply as "Spring's here, Spring's here."

The meadowlark is not found in any country of Europe but is native to the western hemisphere. It is highly popular with farmers, since it destroys such obnoxious insects as grasshoppers, crickets, woolly worms and all the species of caterpillars, which it swallows hair and all! It also destroys many obnoxious weed seeds.

The bird builds its nest in grassy places, often under a tuft of grass and weeds. The young meadowlarks are often in danger of being destroyed by the mower, as they are hard to see in grasses. Fires sometimes destroy the nests, when farmers burn off dry patches of weeds and grass. A farmer once let a fire get out of control and it had reached the nest of young. The mother lark was flying about frantically, trying to do something to save them. Finally in desperation, she settled down over her young ones and began fanning them with her wings, in a last desperate effort to save them. But she perished in the flames.

The meadowlark was once proposed as our national bird, to take the place of the bald eagle. Those in favor of adopting her as our national bird argued that she was a beautiful, clean bird, with no disgusting habits like the eagle, such as eating carrion. They pointed out that this bird is native to the United States and is found over most of the west, where it is called the Western Meadowlark. Although this bird came close to displacing the eagle as our national symbol, this huge bird of prey still reigns.

If you happen to see a chunky bird with a short, rounded tail, a back and head streaked with brown and black, a yellow breast the exact shade of a dandelion blossom, and with a black crescent adorning the yellow breast, you may be sure it is a meadowlark. The bird flies up suddenly when flushed and sails away fast, much like a quail. Although the bird is called a "lark," it is in the same family as the blackbirds and orioles. The black crescent, which is called a gorget, is conspicuous and so are the outer white tail feathers when the bird flies up out of the grass. The meadowlark never hops like the robin and doesn't run about in the meadow. It walks slowly and somewhat deliberately, with a show of dignity as befits its handsome appearance. The bird may often be seen sitting on an overhead wire or on top of a fence post as it delivers its serenade to spring. In our region, the meadowlarks seldom migrate. I have had them to visit the feeder when the snows covered the weed seeds, leaving them desperately hungry.

BIRDS AS HITCHHIKERS

It has been well established from olden times, and by reports of the American Indians, that different kinds of small birds hitch a ride on the backs of the larger ones. The Creek Indians told of seeing little birds riding on the backs of Canada geese on migration. They reported seeing these small birds flying in panic away from the geese when these were shot at. In a British magazine published in 1939, a man reported he shot a short-eared owl which had migrated across the North Sea. After he examined the owl, he told of finding a golden-crested wren clinging to the feathers on the back. He also stated that he knew of three other cases of larger birds carrying smaller ones.

A St. Louis Journal recorded in 1936 about a hummingbird being found in the feathers of a Canada goose which had been shot at Williams Lake. Another naturalist wrote an article entitled: "SOME BIRDS TAKE RIDES," which was published in John O'London's Weekly in 1939; in it he reported receiving a letter from a man in Manitoba who said he had shot a goose and had found two hummingbirds clinging to its feathers under the wings.

Back in the days when the buffalo was numerous, the cowbirds flocked around them by the thousands and often rode their backs.

Ernest Thompson Seton, the great naturalist-writer, told in his book: LIVES OF GAME ANIMALS, how the cowbirds often made "beds" in the hair of the bison, by hollowing out a place for sleeping."

4-H Style Revue Plans Complete

State To Assist Local Districts

Frankfort, Ky.—The state Department of Education is establishing 17 educational development regions to enable local school districts to offer programs they cannot presently afford.

Ken Miller, director of dissemination for the Department of Education, said the regions would make it possible for local school districts to offer courses like driver education, art and music, and science. Since some districts cannot afford to equip a science laboratory.

Each of the regions will be staffed by a regional coordinator, and Miller said all 17 regions would be staffed within five years. He said about three of the regions would be operative in the next year.

Miller emphasized that any program offered by a region would be optional and the regional development would in no way threaten the autonomy of local school districts. "We will not interfere with their existing programs," he said. The regional coordinator "will not supervise the superintendents, he is out there to serve."

Garrett Student Named To 1972 Who's Who

IN ACADEMIC CLUB

Cadet Pfc. David Colin Stephens has been elected to the Owls Club, the Greenbrier Military Academy's academic honor group. The Owls Club is open to the top four students in each class, if they have a scholastic average of 87 per cent or better.

Cadet Stephens was one of two students elected to the club from a class of 23. He is the grandson of D. C. Stephens, of Prestonsburg, and is enrolled in the junior school at Greenbrier Military School, Lewisburg, W. Va.

All You Need Is This Certificate

In a race there are two things you can count on. The unexpected and the unpredictable. So the car must respond with an almost animal quickness and sureness.

Speed alone is not enough. Every part of the car must possess the utmost in reliability. For Porsche, racing is the ultimate test of that.

We use the classic courses and tracks of the world as our research laboratories. They are the proving and improving grounds for established ideas. And the headwaters of inspiration for new ones. It is not incidental that we have been the world's champions for the last 3 years in a row.

The more we race, the more features we prove. And only when something has passed the test of the track does it ever show up on a car for the street.

Everything we've learned goes into the Mid-Engine Porsche 914 and the Porsche 911.

At Porsche we do not race to make a name, we race to build a car.

"Racing is the ultimate test."

Takes Part in Pageant Prelude

Rhonda Gale Hall, Miss Floyd County 1972, was one of 36 girls who recently received some beauty tips concerning just that as she participated in the Miss Kentucky Pageant orientation week-end in Louisville.

The program was designed to better prepare the beauties from across the state for competition in the pageant, scheduled for June 15, 16, and 17 at Louisville's Spalding Auditorium.

The 36 participants will be trying for the title and opportunity to represent the commonwealth in the Miss America Pageant at Atlantic City.

Throughout the orientation week-end, the young ladies received pointers from the pageant directors on clothing, makeup, stage walk and turns. The girls also were put through their paces in talent presentations, which comprise 50 per cent of a contestant's cumulative score.

Miss Hall, who will be a junior at the University of Tennessee, will perform a light dramatic monologue for her talent competition. A communications major, she is interested in broadcast and advertising writing.

Speaking of the pageant, the attractive coed said she's looking forward "to being a part of all the excitement and meeting all the girls. I'm flattered, honored and excited to represent my area," she added.

"It's all part of a dream I've had, like most girls, to have a chance at being Miss Kentucky."

Miss Hall, who is Miss Kentucky Apple Queen 1972, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hall, of Betsy Layne.

Two Floyd Hospitals Figure In Black Lung Treatment Plans

The McDowell Appalachian hospital and the new Highlands Regional Hospital to open near here this summer are mentioned as two such institutions which may become a part of a network of blacklung and respiratory diagnostic and treatment centers.

The Appalachian Regional Commission last Thursday called on the Senate appropriations subcommittee to authorize $10 million to help set up such a hospital network. The Methodist Hospital at Pikeville also was envisioned as one of the centers.

The commission's views were presented by West Virginia Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr., state's cochairman of the ARC, who reported "an urgent need" for more and improved medical services in the Appalachian region.

While the respiratory centers sought by the ARC would be aimed essentially at Appalachia's coal-mining population, the clinics and medical services envisioned also would be available for others.

The black-lung benefits legislation signed by President Nixon last week provides for upgrading medical services for miners to analyze, examine and treat pulmonary and respiratory ailments. The administration's proposed budget for fiscal 1973 contains no money for such a program.

Moore was joined by Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., an influential member of the subcommittee in urging the Senate to include themoney in the budget. Committee sources said the prospects for adding the funds to the budget are good.

Moore said there are now only six fully equipped pulmonary laboratories in the Appalachian coal regions but not all of them are fully staffed or operational or conveniently located for many miners.

He said 13 clinics should be established or improved in the area and at least six mobile clinics which would provide diagnostic services in more remote areas should be put into operation.

Alvin Arnett, executive director of the ARC, said that if the federal funding is approved the money would be primarily channeled into existing facilities to provide the new medical services.

The commission already has set aside $1 million of its own funds to establish a demonstration program that would provide the equivalent of four fixed clinics and one mobile unit. Total estimated cost of the 13 fixed clinics and the six mobile units is $5.8 million.

CLARK-WHITE

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Clark of Harold announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Billie Joyce, to Mr. Gerald Oliver White, son of Mr. and Mrs. James O. White, of Betsy Layne.

Miss Clark is a graduate of Betsy Layne high school and received her Bachelor of Science degree at Morehead State University in 1971. She recently completed her first year as commerce teacher at Belfry high school in Pike county.

Mr. White is a graduate of Betsy Layne high school and is employed by Bush Construction Company, of Frankfort.

approved and who now receive their monthly checks also stand to receive some retroactive lump-sum payments for money that was "offset" from their regular Social Security disability payments. The "offset"—which restricted recipients to a maximum amount—was eliminated by the new law.

An agency spokesman said that tentative instructions went to Social Security field offices last week, directing an automatic review of all previously denied individual claims for benefits.

Many of those rejected claims will now become valid as a result of the liberalized changes made in the law by Congress. Social Security estimates that the changes will make an additional 149,000 persons eligible for benefits who previously could not or did not receive payments.

A review of Social Security statistical information suggests that if the Kentucky rate of approval climbs only as high as the present national average, which is 50 per cent, a number of counties in the state would see a dramatic rise in monthly income from the payments.

Social Security estimates that some 20,000 strip miners and surface workers who previously did not qualify for benefits will become eligible under the law changes—a change sure to have a sizable impact in Kentucky.

It is estimated that more than half of previously denied claims—97,000 out of 176,000—will now become eligible for payments under the expanded definitions of the law. If that rate holds, an estimated 12,000 claims earlier denied in Kentucky might be reversed.

Local Social Security offices will be able to provide detailed information to persons who believe they may be eligible to receive the payments, which range up to $322 a month for a claimant with three or more dependents.

New applications will not be required for persons who have previously applied. The review being carried out by field offices is intended to spot cases which might require more documentation, a Social Security spokesman said, and persons involved in those situations will be notified.

Others, however—strip miners and orphans and dependents of miners not previously covered—will be required to make formal application for their benefits. If claims are approved, payment begins from the date of application.

them. Creech said the problem is aggravated by stricter enforcement of the federal Coal Mine Health and Safety act and a new state requirement for big silt catch basins, which must be professionally engineered and built at high costs in the larger watersheds.

THE VIEW FROM A ROCKING CHAIR
Who says the keenest eye sees most?

An old friend, Martha Bevins, writes from Georgia, and what she says refutes any such idea. She writes, in part:

"Now I move slowly, but it is a real treat to sit on the patio and listen to the doves and the transient birds as they stop to feed on their way north. It's truly marvelous to watch them as they bathe and dust. Now, too, I have time to see the pine trees. I did not know the changes that take place before the cone comes into being. I am trying hard to observe the different colors and changes, to tell my grandson later."

We all need to move slowly, at times—slowly enough to see what we have all these years missed.

QUESTION

I seldom pass a lawn that is being mowed but the smell of fresh-cut watermelon doesn't come my way. What I would like to know is this: Why is it that the same aroma is never wafted my way when I'm at the business end of mower?

(I believe I've asked this question before, but not this year.)

Broken Sewer Line Brings Court Action

A criminal complaint was filed May 18 by the Floyd County Health Department against David Properties, Inc., after an order to abate a sewer nuisance there had not resulted in compliance.

The complaint alleged violation of KRS 212.210 and the charge was made after residents of David had complained of a broken sewer line. Woodrow Branham was listed as agent for the company.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to thank all of our many friends, neighbors and relatives who were so thoughtful of our brother, Blaine C. Martin. We especially thank those who sent the floral offerings, and the visitations well always be remembered. A special thanks to the Rev. Floyd Tackett for his comforting words, and the beautiful singing of the choir, and we wish to thank the pallbearers and the Hall Brothers funeral home for its efficient services.

Mrs. Ellen Martin (mother) and sisters, Ann Williams, Bea Honshell and Janet Beverly.

Pike Plans Sesqui, Seeks Writer List

Pikeville, Ky.—A list of writers from Pike county is being compiled in connection with the county's sesquicentennial celebration which will take place in the first week of July this year.

Dr. Leonard Roberts, director of Appalachian Studies Center at Pikeville College, is chairman of a committee compiling the list.

A list of writers from Pike county, or with a Pike county background, is wanted. Anyone with information is asked to mail such information to Dr. Leonard Roberts, Pikeville College, Pikeville, Ky., 41501.

The information should contain the name of writer, his address if living, date of birth, educational background, family background, a list of categories of writing in which the author is or has been engaged, and the titles of any published works.

Mrs. Gladys P. White and Miss Ella Noel C. White are spending this week in Lexington with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lee Meade and family.

Land Big Cats

Johnny Slone and Mike Fannin, both of Prestonsburg, landed these two bluecats while float fishing Tuesday in the Big Sandy here. The fish weighed 7¼ and 6½ pounds and measured 24 and 25 inches.

MAY RIVAL CRIPPLE CREEK . . .

Goose Creek Now Widely Known Thru Native Musician's Work

The fact that a narrowcreek valley in this county is as well-known outside Kentucky as Jenny Wiley State Park is the result of the work and talent of a former Floyd countian.

Goose Creek, which winds back among the hills from Right Beaver Creek, near Eastern, is known nationally because Charles Gearheart, one time resident there, named the music group which he founded the Goose Creek Symphony. Personal appearances across the nation and albums of recordings have made Goose Creek a familiar name as country rock band music has grown in popularity.

Gearheart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Gearheart, former Goose Creek residents, writes music and performs as a member of the Goose Creek Symphony under the stage name, Richie Hart. His real name appears on the Symphony's new Capital album, "Words of Earnest".

The Goose Creek Symphony continues to draw heavily from the sounds of mountain music. Writes a critic:

"Their sound is perhaps the most original of country-rock bands. Much more fun than the Byrds or New Riders of the Purple Sage.

Some of the songs in the new album are, in addition to the title song, "Words of Earnest," "Rush on Love," "Mercedes Benz," "Guitars Pickin', Fiddles Playin'" and "Gearheart and God." "Fishin's my business, music's my hobby," days Gearheart.

Concert Participant

Miss Lisa Yetieve Gallagher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Golden Gallagher, of Kirtland, N. M., has been selected to participate in the "America's Youth in Concert" program of the Universal Academy for Music, Princeton, New Jersey.

Purpose of the program is to demonstrate to the world the high quality and fine character of American youth and to counteract the unfavorable image which may exist abroad because of the actions of a few.

Students are selected for "America's Youth in Concert" after participating in a nationwide audition. Following intensive rehearsals at the campus of Rider College, located near Princeton, New Jersey, the first concert will be held at Carnegie Hall in New York City. The second United States concert will be in Washington, D. C. and after visiting points of interest in the nation's capitol, the group will jet to Europe for concerts in London, Brussels, Paris, Zurich, Salzburg, Venice, Florence and Rome.

Miss Gallagher is the daughter of the former Vio Ratcliff, of Martin. She, along with her family, represented New Mexico in the All-American Family Pageant in Florida last August. She is 16 years old and has completed her junior year in high school. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ratcliff, of Martin.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd circuit court rendered at the May 4 term, 1972 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 19th day of June, 1972 at 10 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd circuit court, upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

That certain tract of land located on Big Mud Creek in Floyd county, Kentucky, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at an X on the edge of a cliff on east side of Big Mud Creek near the rock spring, thence up the creek and with the center of the same to an X on the cliff on east or left hand side of said creek and at the mouth of small dreaan and drip rock, thence up the dreaan to top of a point at head of said dreaan, thence up the center of said point to a marked locust at the lower edge of the upper flat, thence around the hill to a X on a rock, thence a straight line to a sugar tree standing on center of the ridge between Branham's Creek and Big Mud Creek, thence down the ridge to a dogwood standing on top of said ridge in a low gap, thence a straight line down the hill to a buckeye at the main or big hollow, thence on down the hollow to near a beach standing on the west side of side of said main or big hollow below the old house seat, thence a straight line across the point and flat to a planted stone near a small dreaan in the field and on the flat, thence on around the flat to an X on a flat rock, thence a straight line to a large beach tree standing on the bank just above the county road, thence straight on down and across the county road to the X on the rock or cliff at edge of said Big Mud Creek to the beginning corner.

There is excepted from this sale the family cemetery and a tract of ½ acre conveyed Paul Newsome on March 29, 1963, described as follows:

"Beginning at a drain; thence up the drain to a pine tree; thence around the hill to another pine; thence down another drain to Highway 979; thence up the highway to the place of beginning."

This property is being sold to settle the estate of the late Haley Jones Newsome.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 25th day of May, 1972.

VANISHING LANDMARK—Hendrick Hall, oldest building on the Pikeville College campus, is being torn down and its site, near the college gymnasium, will be used as an additional parking facility. The frame building, constructed about 1890 as a home for teachers and students, has deteriorated to an extent where it is no longer safe for occupancy and use, and its repair is considered impractical. The building was used as the first mission church in Pike County.

Dental Education Sessions Are Held

"Solving Cast Gold and Ceramic Problems" was the topic of a continuing education course for dentists held at the Jenny Wiley State Resort Park last Wednesday.

The morning session focused on treatment planning, preparation considerations, occlusion and morphologic relationships, soft tissue management and preventive concepts and fixed prosthodontics.

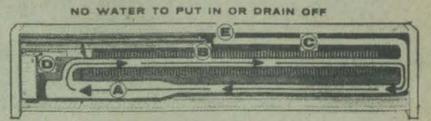

Afternoon discussions dealt with specific difficulties related to cast gold and ceramic procedures encountered in dental practice.

Faculty for this course included Dr. Harold Laswell, chairman, and Dr. Thomas Berry, both of the department of restorative dentistry at the University of Kentucky College of Dentistry.

Sponsored by the UK College of Dentistry, this was another in a series of continuing education efforts designed to keep the practicing dentist informed of the most recent dental advances.

Strip-Mining on Probation Two Years, Beach Warns

According to one knowledgeable forecast, the 1974 General Assembly will prohibit strip mining in Eastern Kentucky unless major improvements are made in pollution control and reclamation during the next two years.

That prediction was made by acting state Reclamation Director Buddy A. Beach, who recently warned coal industry leaders that strip mining is on a two-year probation in Kentucky.

"I don't know just what course the legislature might take, whether it would drastically reduce slope limits or simply ban the industry outright," Beach said. "However, I can't imagine any justification for a ban in Western Kentucky because mining produces little environmental damage there and reclamation is progressing."

Several anti-strip-mining bills, which in effect would have abolished the industry in Kentucky, were introduced during the 1972 legislative session, but none reached the floor of either house.

However, Beach feels pressure against strip mining is at an all-time high and action may be taken in 1974 unless ways are found to protect the mountains and streams.

He called for better enforcement of regulations and improved industry cooperation in controlling mine drainage, slides and revegetation.

"We need stricter enforcement of our current drainage regulations, which would effectively close some areas by making it economically unfeasible to mine there," Beach said. "And we must have better treatment to bring drainage up to acceptable levels before it leaves the mine site."

Beach said he feels important progress already is being made in controlling siltation.

New regulations now require certification of all siltation control structures by the state Division of Water to ensure keeping silt within limits acceptable to aquatic life and water supply requirements.

Although state regulations on slope and bench width limits have reduced strip mine slides in recent years, Beach said more effort is still needed.

He said stricter enforcement is required to prevent poor bench drainage and its resulting impounded water and loosened spoil material. Such action greatly increases the possibility of slides.

"Much of this problem also could be eliminated right at the beginning, when the mine application is filed," Beach said. "Better examination of proposed mine sites would delete those areas where slides might be probable or where they might threaten homes or streams."

Reclamation of strip mine sites has long been a bone of contention between miners and environmentalists and Beach said changes are needed in that area.

"We have fallen down by allowing areas to go and go from one growing season to another, waiting to see if vegetation will come up, instead of seeing that the job is done right the first time," he said.

"It was originally thought that, if you left these areas as they are, things eventually would begin to grow. This has not proven to be the case."

Beach stressed that these improvements will require increased efforts by both the industry and the Division of Reclamation, some of which already are underway.

The division now is taking greater care in inspecting proposed mine sites before applications are approved, and Gov. Wendell Ford has authorized the hiring of extra inspectors by the agency.

"We are not trying to be overly restrictive on the strip mine industry, we simply are trying to bring pollution control and reclamation up to a level acceptable to the people and to the environment," Beach said. "I think the people of Kentucky want to see the coal industry grow and prosper, but not if it means losing our mountains and streams."

Group Says Too Few Women Delegates to Convention

The Kentucky Women's Political Caucus has fired off telegrams to the chairman of the state Democratic Party protesting that too few women delegates will be attending the party's state convention in Frankfort next week.

"The new (state and national) Democratic Party reform rules require that at least 50 per cent of the convention delegates be women," said Dolores Delahanty yesterday.

"But only about 400 of the 1,994 delegates going to Frankfort are women," she said. "Some of the counties are sending slates composed of only white males."

Mrs. Delahanty is a Louisville Democrat who last month was elected one of the delegates to the state Democratic convention from the 37th Legislative District. She ran on a slate committed to the presidential candidacy of Sen. George McGovern.

But yesterday she stressed that her concern about the lack of women delegates to the state convention has nothing to do with presidential choices. It's simply a matter of women's rights guaranteed by the national Democratic Party, she said.

"I've sent two telegrams to (Democratic state chairman) J. R. Miller and haven't received any response," said Mrs. Delahanty. "I sent the telegrams as chairperson of the delegate selection committee of the Kentucky Women's Political Caucus."

Mrs. Delahanty said she asked Miller for a hearing by the Democratic State Central Committee about the charges of too few women delegates.

"If we don't get a hearing before the convention, we'll appear before the credentials committee to protest during the convention," she said.

According to state and national Democratic Party rules, delegates to all conventions—state, local and national—should reflect as nearly as possible "the proportion of women, young people and minority groups" from the particular area.

Since about half of Kentucky's population is female, Mrs. Delahanty says that about half of the state-convention delegates should also be female.

Rural Med Fund Is Increased; Dr. Hall Resigns from Board

The Rural Kentucky Medical Scholarship Fund at its 26th annual meeting held recently increased from $2,000 to $2,500 annual regular loans and from $2,500 to $3,000 the "critical county" loans. The loan agreements are to medical students who are residents of Kentucky who agree to practice in an approved rural area of the State one year for each loan received. Forgiveness features are applicable to recipients who establish practice in designated areas of critical or semi-critical need.

There are now 173 physicians in practice in 86 Kentucky counties who have received financial assistance from the fund, according to Dr. G. L. Simpson, chairman of the board of trustees.

The trustees approved 32 loans amounting to $81,500 to medical students for the coming school year. Thirteen loans were granted to first loan applicants George H. Caudill, Carcassonne; Micheal J. Collins, Bowling Green; Elzer Fuller, Jr., Feds Creek; Jake T. Hollen, Corbin; John M. Kelsch, Jr. Maysville; Robert E. McClure, Leitchfield; Michael Perkins, Louisville; Gary Spencer, Louisville; John R. Stockwell, Louisville; Jerry L. Taylor, Lexington; Bobby R. Turner, Hazard; C. Gordon Vire, Lexington; and Thomas L. Young, Harrodsburg. Seven of the new applicants will attend the University of Louisville, and six will attend the University of Kentucky.

Four new members were elected to the Board of Trustees. They are Dr. Carolyn McKinley, Glasgow; Dr. Raymond Wells, Inez; Dr. Robert Chambliss, Hardinsburg, and Dr. Westel L. Creager, Marion.

Dr. John C. Quertermous, M. D., past president of the Kentucky Medical Association, was elected vice-chairman of the board, succeeding Dr. Russell L. Hall, of Prestonsburg, whose resignation from the board was accepted with appreciation for his past services. Dr. Henry S. Spalding, of Bardstown, was named chairman of the Postgraduate Committee of the fund.

Doctor Simpson, in noting the success of the program over the past 26 years, expressed particular appreciation for the interest and support of Gov. Wendell H. Ford, Health Commissioner William P. McElwain, and members of the General Assembly.

State May Close Pike County Firm

The Johnson Bros. Limestone Co., of Elkhorn City, may become the first Kentucky industry ever shut down for violating state air pollution standards.

The Kentucky Air Pollution Control Commission is seeking a temporary injunction against continued operations by the company until it submits a plan for adequate air pollution control.

Johnson Bros. and 14 other stone quarries and asphalt plants were cited by the commission last March for failing to have operating permits as required by state law. All 15 firms were ordered to obtain permits or shut down.

A company must provide for adequate air pollution control before the commission will grant an operating permit.

Johnson Bros. applied for a permit, but the application was denied when the company's pollution control efforts were found inadequate by the commission.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Kenneth Howe, representing the commission, then filed a suit in Pike Circuit Court to shut down the company until it developed a plan for improving pollution control.

Frank P. Partee, commission technical director, said that if the suit is successful, it will be the first industrial shut-down for pollution violations in Kentucky.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

From time to time I have written in this column about words that are disappearing. A great many of them are farm words, and certainly farm life has so changed since the early years of this century that many of its words are gone except in memory or in poetry or in the speech of ancient people like me. But many other types of vocabulary have undergone great changes. Let's take foods as an illustration. Of course, in older times we grew our own foods to a great extent and did not need to buy them. As I said a long way back we, used to call things bought at the store "sugar and coffee." They were somehow looked upon as luxuries. But ordinary things we grew on the farm itself. Just suppose that I, forgetting how many decades separate me from the farm days, should go into a supermarket now and look for the things I used to know and under their old names.

Let's begin with the bread counter. Nobody now seems to say "lightbread," the thing I want. And such brand-new things I will find in that part of the store: all sorts of bread, whether lightbread or not. And the various types of "sweet cakes" is amazing, things that would have made me drool in the older days. Why, here are "doughnuts," not fried cakes. And nobody seems to sell "teacakes." There are "cookies" of all sorts and kinds. Of course, good old cornbread resists public exploitation; if I want it, I'll have to find it in some home, baked there, in all the various forms, from cornpones to corn muffins.

Now, over here in the vegetable portion of the store I see all sorts of things that I recognize and plenty that I have learned only since I left Fidelity. Here are cucumbers, still keeping their name. And summer squash is there, too, whether the flat, white kind or the crook-necked yellow kind. But "salad" is called "greens," and the "Irish" of "Irish potatoes" has been dropped, as if everybody knows that "potatoes" means just that kind. Fortunately, it is still necessary to label "sweet potatoes" as such. "Yams" somehow does not convey the same idea to many people.

"Dying Words"

One of my best helpers says that they are sweet potatoes until they are cooked; then they are yams. I do not know how widely-distributed that idea is. I look in vain for "roasting ears" but, asking for some help, I find them labeled just "corn." Why, corn, to a lot of us, means a crop, or even something in a bottle.

But look at all the newer things on these shelves and in these trays: not just oranges, such as the Fidelity storekeeper stocked up on just before Christmas, but all sorts of queer modern things: grapefruit, temple oranges, tangelos; and look at all these relatives of mustard and radishes and cabbage: cauliflower, broccoli, brussels sprouts; and here are queer things like acorn squashes and pie pumpkins.

EKU Choir Leaves For European Tour

Frankfort, Ky.—The Eastern Kentucky University Chamber Choir is in Europe for a 27-day concert and sightseeing tour of 14 cities in five countries. (Rebecca Haywood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Haywood, of Prestonsburg, is a member of the choir.) Before their departure May 25, Gov. Wendell Ford named the choir members Kentucky Ambassadors of International Good Will. Among the cities where the 29-member choir will give concerts are Berlin, Ragensburg, Heidelberg, Vienna, Lucerne, Salzburg and London. In Berlin they will sing at the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church. "Performances at this historic church are by audition only and we are extremely proud to have been selected," Dr. Bruce Hoagland, EKU choir director, said before the group's departure. "And, to add to the interest during our Berlin visit, all members of the choir will be staying in private homes of German citizens." To make the choir's stay in German cities more enjoyable, the university organized a special course in conversational German for the group last spring. The tour is being financed entirely by choir members. "These students have worked tirelessly to make the tour possible without any outside financial assistance," Dr. Hoagland said. "We have held public performances to raise funds and the rest has come from the students themselves." The choir will visit the homes of famous composers in Vienna and hold a special concert for EKU alumni stationed near Heidelberg in the U. S. Army.

Gov. Wendell Ford toured seven Kentucky cities urging motorists to be more cautious on the highways. The Governor held a series of news conferences to raise support for a "comprehensive war against violence on our highways." He called on motorists to use extreme caution during the Memorial Day weekend.

Hall's Two-Volume History Nearing Publication Date

Mitchell Hall, of Johnson county, is now publishing a two-volume history of the JENNY WILEY COUNTRY and additional genealogy of the people of the area, it was announced this year. The publisher, the Kingsport Press, of Kingsport, Tenn., has guaranteed delivery the latter part of September, and the work should be available for sale on or before the Johnson County Apple Festival, October 5-6. Mr. Hall wrote and published a two-volume History of Johnson County and Eastern Kentucky in 1928. Those books have long since been sold out. Few, if any, of that issue are left in circulation and these can be procured if at all available, only through rare bookstores at prices of $50 and up. Mr. Hall has had hundreds of requests for these now-rare books, which become more valuable with time. Since off-set printing and camera-ready methods of reproduction came into use, he considered their reproduction. But, since more than four decades have passed, he believed it best to either update and enlarge the first edition, or to write a new history that would also include the major portions of the 1928 edition. He chose to do the latter, and his

Changes Air Pollution Rules To Meet Federal Guidelines

Frankfort, Ky.—Some of Kentucky's new air pollution regulations seem headed back for a second public hearing.

The Kentucky Air Pollution Control Commission (KAPCC) says some regulatory changes, recently proposed to meet federal guidelines, may require another public hearing.

Those regulations, finalized after a January public hearing and made effective April 9, grew out of an implementation plan for air pollution control required from every state by the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

At a May 23 meeting, the KAPCC took steps to correct six areas of the plan which EPA had objected to.

If EPA does not approve any state's plan, it can write its own plan and regulations for that state and may also cut off federal funds—which make up more than half of the KAPCC budget.

One area of objection resulted in a commission move to change the regulation incorporating operational control strategies by placing them under the exemption procedure set out in existing state law.

Under that procedure, public hearings are held before granting exemptions to KAPCC regulations for up to one year. At the end of a year, the applicant can ask for another exemption.

Operational controls, a subject of much controversy at the last hearing, are methods of obtaining ambient air standards although the air pollution source does not meet emission standards.

In other action the KAPCC:

Moved to seek an injunction to prevent A & D Paving Company of Russellville from operating an unpermitted asphalt plant.

Approved 12 permits to construct, and 26 permits to operate, an air contaminate source. One permit to construct was denied.

Agreed to hear a representative of Frankfort Scrap Metal Company at its next meeting. That company appeared before a KAPCC hearing April 3 on charges of open burning, violation of cease and desist orders and operating an unpermitted incinerator.

The Kentucky Air Pollution Control Commission has altered its implementation plan for achieving air quality standards in order to meet federal objections. One of the changes will simplify the procedure by which firms or cities will be allowed to carry out their own control programs.

Receives Master's

Miss Christine Stumbo, daughter of Walker and Marie Stumbo, of McDowell, received a Master of Science degree in social work from the Raymond A. Kent School of Social Work, University of Louisville, May 15. During the two-year program, Miss Stumbo did field work at Louisville General Hospital and the Clinical Research Center (Narcotics Hospital) Lexington.

Prior to entering graduate school, Miss Stumbo worked three years for the Department of Economic Security in Prestonsburg. She will be working with the Kentucky Infant and Pre-School Project, a program of D. E. S., in Frankfort.

The newly appointed captain is the administrative officer of the Naval Hospital, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He is a graduate of the Navy's School of Health Care Administration, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Maryland.

Capt. Harris, who lived in this county till age 14, enlisted in the Navy in 1940. He plans retirement in 1974.

Inherit the wind.

If you like the idea of tooling down the open road in an open car, guess what?

The good old reliable, practical, utterly sensible Volkswagen people make a nice impractical, senseless, utterly frivolous convertible.

With the top down, the Volkswagen convertible puts the wind in your hair, the sun on your cheek, and the stars in your eyes. You are at the mercy of the elements.

But with the top up, the elements are at your mercy.

Rain won't leak in since the top overlaps the windshield frame. Cold won't seep through because the top is layered—vinyl above, leatherette below. Sound is kept to a minimum due to the good inch of padding that separates the two.

So, you see, it really isn't as drastic a character change as it may seem.

The same scrupulous inspection routine and the identical yearly improvements that go into the making of every beetle, go into the making of every convertible.

Ergo, the same economy that comes out of driving the beetle remains reassuringly intact with the topless version.

One thing more. Don't go searching high and low on the dashboard for the control that works the top.

The mechanism that raises and lowers it is right at your fingertips. In fact, it is your fingertips.

Reclamation, Sulfur Clauses Added to Major Coal Contract

Expanded strip mining and reclamation controls adopted recently by the Tennessee Valley Authority have been incorporated into a long-term contract with its largest coal supplier in the Appalachian area Falcon Coal company.

The contract had previously been renegotiated to include earlier reclamation requirements.

The agreement also is designed to improve air pollution control through a provision guaranteeing that sulfur content will not exceed nine-tenths of one percent in remaining coal deliveries under the amended contract. This will provide a nine-year supply of low-sulfur coal to reduce sulfur dioxide emissions at TVA's Bull Run Steam Plant, near Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

Falcon Coal provides the entire coal supply for the Bull Run Steam Plant from mining operations in east Kentucky. In recent years these deliveries have accounted for nearly all the coal supplied to TVA from eastern Kentucky.

The contract amendments include a price increase averaging 58 cents a ton to cover added costs of the more restrictive reclamation and sulfur content provisions plus increased costs under Federal mine safety regulations and the 1971 mine workers' wage agreement. This represents an increased total cost to TVA of $19 million on the nearly 33 million tons of coal remaining to be delivered the agency said and the recently enacted Kentucky severance tax will add about $10 million more to coal costs for TVA under this contract.

The new reclamation clause, which was described in TVA's environmental statement on coal sources published in December also has been incorporated into a much smaller contract with W. B. Spradlin Coal Company for coal from TVA-owned reserves in the Limestone Ridge area of Campbell county, Tennessee.

The nurse education program planned for more than a year at Prestonsburg Community College will be activated next January, Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the college, said Monday.

The program has been unofficially approved, and Dr. Campbell last weekend added a second M. A. in nursing as an instructor. The new addition to the staff is Madonna Carter, who will join Colette Davidson, coordinator in the new department. Miss Davidson has served at the college in that capacity since last December.

The two-year program scheduled to begin next January will lead to the R. N. (registered nurse) degree. Dr. Campbell said he expects between 30 and 40 to enroll in the first class.

Further physical expansion of the college awaits action toward acquisition of additional property adjacent to the present campus.

Urges Corps of Engineers To Curb Mining Near Reservoirs

The chairman of the House conservation subcommittee has urged the Army Corps of Engineers to place new restrictions on coal-mining activities on federally owned land around flood-control reservoirs.

The chairman Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., said current corps regulations fail to protect reservoir projects from damage by such activities.

Reuss cited the experience at the $54 million Fishtrap Reservoir in Pike County as support for his request.

Heavy siltation caused by runoff from surface mines and mine access roads has reduced the potential of the lake, and improperly constructed access roads have scarred the hills around it, the corps has said.

In a letter to Lt. Gen. F. J. Carke, chief of engineers, Reuss said new steps were necessary to deal properly with the problems posed by construction and maintenance of access and haul roads cutting of timber for road right-of-way, and surface disturbance by auger mining. The corps ordinarily does not acquire mineral rights when buying land at a reservoir site. Instead, it writes restrictions into deeds requiring that mining be done in such a way that no pollution or floatable debris "unreasonable detrimental to the project" is caused.

Reuss wrote Clarke that those restrictions were inadequate and should be revised. Reuss also said that corps regulations, in addition to deed restrictions, should be issued to govern mineral development on federal lands around reservoirs.

Col. Kenneth McIntyre, chief of the corps' Huntington, W. Va., district, has issued new rules restricting mining operations on federal lands around Fishtrap, but Reuss said McIntyre is relying on voluntary compliance.

"If the mineral operators do not voluntarily comply with these 'new regulations' at Fishtrap what recourse will the corps have but protracted litigation?" Reuss asked. "In the meantime, the damage to the project continues. . ."

Clarke contended in an earlier letter to Reuss that the deed restrictions were adequate to protect corps projects.

He also said: "Most of the problems at Fishtrap result from off-project mining operations. It is estimated that approximately two-thirds of the siltation and three-fourths of the solid waste in Fishtrap Reservoir are the result of activities on lands upstream from the project boundaries."

Reuss asked Clarke for a report on what steps the corps planned to prevent further stream damage to the reservoir from mining operations.

In December, when the siltation problem at Fishtrap first came to light, McIntyre said operations on federally owned land "in the main" were responsible.

For the Skeptics

By WILMAY

Your youngster is in school under a teacher who cares nothing and knows less than nothing about God's Word. He may exclaim in mockery, "That book! What's the name of it? You know, that book! Oh, yeah, they call it the Bible, ha! ha!" Or he may ask that students who believe the Bible stand, and then lead a big horse laugh at them because they do.

On every side, as never before, youths of all ages are confronted with those who wish to destroy their faith. Many teachers will deliberately cut grades of students who have the courage to take a firm stand in opposition to them, as a minority will. Some strive to make the parents of their students appear to be old fogies, or ignoramuses. Your youngster might ask such professors if they think the one who wrote the following excerpt and the author of the Book of John are likewise ignorant (the material comes from a small pamphlet by M. H. Duncan, author and educator, Fellow in Political Science (Yale):

"Persons who doubt that the Bible is the divinely inspired word of God should note how often the number seven is found in it. It is God's perfect number. Noah was in the ark 7 years. There were 7 years of plenty, 7 of famine. Jacob served 7 years for Leah and 7 more for Rachel. Solomon took 7 years to build the temple. In Revelation one finds 7 churches, 7 candlesticks, 7 stars, 7 trumpets, 7 plagues, 7 vials, 7 angels, 7 thunders, and a 7-headed beast.

"A study of the 17th chapter of John in the original Greek should convince anyone that the Bible came fresh from the hand of God, for the following facts in this chapter show the number could not have found its way into the structure of John 17 in the original, unless put there by an all-wise being. The chapter has 7 sections, with 7 sub-sections. The first section has 91(7x13) words, 406(7x58) letters. Section 2 has 49(7x7) words, 217(7x31) letters. Sec. 3, 35(7x5) words, 140(7x20) letters. Sec. 4, 63(7x9) words, 259(7x37) letters. Sec. 5., 70(7x10) words, 287(7x41) letters. Sec. 6., 119(7x17) words, 511(7x83) letters. Sec. 7, 63(7x9) words, 259(7x37) letters. The chapter has 49(7x7) sentences, 490(7x70) words and 2,079, (7x297) letters. It has 595(7x131) consonants, 2,079 letters in the chapter equal 7x11 cube of 3, and 3 is the number of the Trinity. The chapter contains 98 (7x14) verbs and participles, 77(7x11) nouns, 126(7x3x3x2) pronouns, 70(7x10) conjunctions, 70(7x10) articles and adverbs, 49(7x7) prepositions and double form words. Persons of the Godhead are mentioned 91(7x13) times in the chapter. Pronouns referring to Jesus number 49(7x7). All in the original Greek.

"Is it not almost incredible that the number 7 and its multiples appear so often in one chapter without divine intervention? Some persons may believe this marvelous arrangement in the scriptures is a mere 'happen-so,' but for me it is easier to believe that a hand higher than that of man shaped it. Those who look at the Bible thru doubts and clouded vision of others may question its origin, but those who come close to it, study its structure and message cannot doubt that the Bible is a book from God, our Creator. Its wonders are too many to have come from the finite hand of man. It contains hundreds of prophecies about the Jews, God's chosen people of Israel, that are being fulfilled before our very eyes today."

(Quotes from WHY I BELIEVE THE BIBLE, M. H. Duncan, Moody Press, Chicago, Illinois.)

Famed educator, the late Dr. Wm. Lyon Phelps, said no person could be considered educated unless he had a thorough knowledge of scripture.
