

47 Workers Tie Up Mine For Wages

Suit Claims Firm Owes Oct. Payroll; Equipment Attached

Operation of the Spurlock mine of Tri-County Mining, Inc., on Left Beaver Creek, was suspended last week when 47 of its employees filed suit to collect wages totaling $30,786.53 and attached its entire stock of coal and operating machinery, including trucks and the mine tipples.

Also named in the workers' circuit court action were the Trico Mining Corporation and Island Creek Coal Company.

Island Creek was named as owner of the tipples used by the operators of the mine.

Neither of the two operators of the mine, Clarence Mollette and Gary Cartt, had been located Monday, it was said here. They had operated the mine since last spring, soon after Island Creek ended its work at Spurlock. Fifty or more men were employed there.

Island Creek Coal Company officials could not be contacted by The Times when it sought details of its working arrangement with the new company. An attempt also was made to confirm a report that Island Creek had provided funds to Trico to pay workers for the month of October, but this also failed. Workers said they have learned that Mollette told Island Creek officials the men had refused to accept his company's check for their wages and that he was given a certified check approximating $35,000, but this report also could not be substantiated.

While Spurlock had run into financial difficulties the Price mine, formerly operated by Island Creek and now under new ownership, was strikebound. It was said workers there were demanding that the new owners execute bond to insure payment of wages.

The workers who have attached the Spurlock properties were listed by their attorney, W. W. Burchett, as James N. Adkins, Charles E. Boyd, James L. Griffith, Munk Smith, Jr., James P. Connors, Charles Harvey, Roger Hicks, Leonard (See Story 1, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Groundbreaking for the new St. James Episcopal Church at Cliff will be made at 2:30 this (Wednesday) afternoon, it was announced Tuesday.

Estimated cost of the work is $35,000.

At the groundbreaking ceremonies today the Lexington diocese will be represented by Canon David Webb, of Beattyville, former vicar of St. David Episcopal Church, Pikeville.

The highway death toll in the state for the 10 months is up by 103 from the same period a year ago.

Pike county had 15 highway fatalities this year as of Oct. 31 Johnson county had 8, Magoffin 8 and Martin 5.

In this county State Police made 22 drunk driving arrests, made 20 criminal investigations and 15 criminal arrests, investigated 74 accidents, assisted 15 motorists, issued 245 warnings, made 106 moving hazard violation arrests and arrested 181 persons on other traffic offenses.

Circle I of the Women's Society of Christian Service will serve the breakfast.

To meet its share of the $105,000 budget of the Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, Prestonsburg needs to raise $4,000. Any resident here who will help in the fund campaign should contact one of the committee members here listed.

Leaders Eye Reports On Population Trend

Doctors disagree, and so do statisticians and particularly those who attempt to look down the years and decide on the future growth, if any, of states and their subdivisions.

The truth of this statement was emphasized when population projections made by the Kentucky Program Development Office and released only a few days ago were compared to projections made three years ago by Spindletop Research.

The KPDO projections (see separate story in this edition) set Floyd county's population in the year 2000 at 25,076; Johnson county's at 17,731; Magoffin's at 14,539; Martin county, 9,288; Pike, 54,120. But three years ago Spindletop Research saw a different picture in each of these counties in the same year 2000:

Floyd, 55,900; Johnson, 21,900; Magoffin, 17,200; Martin, 18,000; Pike, 93,500.

The lowest projection given by Spindletop at that date, 28 years distant, for Floyd county was 52,300. Each county promises population growth, according to Spindletop.

Former Theater To House Store

A new business, Southern Dollar Stores, has leased the Abigail Theater building on Court Street here and is slated to open sometime in February.

Part of a chain of 53 stores which also includes the S-Mart, at Paintsville, the Richmond, Ky. based firm has taken a long-term lease on the structure from owners, Joe Weddington, Ervin Akers and George Lee Shannon.

Complete renovation of the building's interior, being carried out by Prestonsburg contractor, Tom O. McGuire, includes the installation of new plumbing, a new heating system and air-conditioning. In addition, the inclined theater floors are being rebuilt and leveled. The second floor of the structure will be used for office spaces.

The theater building has, for the most part, been unoccupied for the past 10 years. The only business displaced by the new establishment is Howard's Barber Shop which has merged with Wright's Barber Shop, on the same street.

TO OPEN MEN'S SHOP ON FIRST AVENUE

Beecher L. Hale announced this week that he will shortly open a men's shop in the Harlowe building on First avenue, next to the Bank Josephine. Mr. Hale is the son of Jailer and Mrs. Lawrence Hale.

The shop, which will be known as The U. S. Male, will be managed by Steve Clark.

Principal Tells How Computer Saved Records

"We lost all our valuable information in the fire—master class lists, teacher and class rosters, files, etc.; in short, everything but the student schedules. 'We felt hopeless and lost, and would have been had it not been for EKEDC and its computerized files.'"

The words are those of Ronald Hager, principal of Prestonsburg high school, as he described how the Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corporation helped re-supply him with all the school records and information lost in a recent fire.

The blaze resulted when an inflammable substance was tossed through a window of the principal's office. The subsequent arson investigation failed to uncover any clues, it was said.

"We had contracted with EKEDC earlier in the year to do computerized grade reporting, and had supplies them with all the necessary information about students, teachers and classes," Hager said, "but when the fire came, we lost almost everything."

"Luckily, though, it took only a phone call and a matter of a day or two before EKEDC's computer center, which keeps all this information ready for instant use, was able to re-supply us with the information we needed—and our grade reporting was only a little late."

This is the first year Prestonsburg high has done computerized grade reporting, and the second year it has done computerized student scheduling.

Both these services, along with computerized payroll, Computer Assisted Instruction (CAI) in math and the Computerized Vocational Information System (CVIS), are available to school districts both within and outside of Kentucky.

The Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corporation (EKEDC) is one of eight Title III ESEA regions in the state.

Floyd Woman, Declared Dead, Is Found Living in Florida

A Floyd county woman who had been declared legally dead has been found in Florida, not only alive but attending college.

The missing woman, Mrs. Hazel Patrick Maltempo, had been the object of intermittent search by members of her family for 28 years. The last trace of her whereabouts came in 1944 when her clothing was mailed back to her father, the late Buck Patrick, at Hueysville, from Arkansas City, Kansas. It was learned that she had been employed in 1942 at Langley Air Force Base, Virginia.

A few weeks ago, the guidance counselor at the new Allen Central high school was asked for the school records of a Hazel Patrick Maltempo who had applied for admission to a Florida college to study real estate. He in turn notified Mrs. Vesta Patton, of Langley, a half-sister of the missing woman. Mrs. Patton then called her sister, Mrs. Janice Kennedy, in Detroit, and the two left for Florida.

The reunion of the sisters was on Oct. 28 at the Maltempo home in Tarpon Springs, Florida. Other relatives now living in Florida joined them. One of these, Mrs. Alice Patrick Moore, an aunt, lives in Tampa, 35 miles from Tarpon Springs. Mrs. Moore's daughter, Henrietta, had driven past the Maltempo home, a week earlier.

Mrs. Patton said her sister gave no explanation of her long silence. "We didn't question her, because we felt that if she wanted to give any explanation she would do so without questioning."

Mrs. Maltempo is coming home for a visit, next spring, she told Mrs. Patton and Mrs. Kennedy.

The missing woman was adjudged legally dead last year after heirs of her father's estate, despairing of finding her, filed a circuit court action here to settle the estate.

Although the court action is final, Mrs. Patton said she and one or two other heirs whom she has contacted are willing for Mrs. Maltempo to hold her rights in the estate. She added, however, that she could not speak for those whom she has not reached.

In the long search the Federal Bureau of Investigation was asked to make a missing persons check, and Social Security and employment records were searched. All arrived at dead end.

Sandy, The Problem Child, Comes Home

By HELEN PRICE STACY
Frankfort, Ky.—Sandy Myers (not his real name) was born in a small Kentucky town, grew up in an out-of-state city, and later returned to his home state only to become, according to some, the meanest boy on the block.

It seemed that every time the boy's hand moved, it returned to his pocket with something that rightfully belonged to another. Sandy's father administered almost daily spankings. After being spanked, Sandy often ran away from home.

The boy was assigned to the Frenchburg Boy's Center in Menifee County, but his troubles continued. Sandy found it difficult to settle down and soon he was stealing and running away again.

The last time he ran away from the center, Sandy went with two other boys. They committed a minor theft, then began walking up a rough creek bed.

Sandy's steps became slower and slower, until at last he thought he heard a car stop on the highway above the creek. He told the other boys he was going for a ride back to the center.

"I'm tired of running all the time," he said.

Sandy's is only one of many success stories encountered by workers of the state Department of Child Welfare.

When Child Welfare Commissioner Evans D. Tracy heard about Sandy's decision, he was especially proud, for Tracy was present five years ago when the keys to the center were turned over to the department.

The Menifee County center has served in many varied ways throughout its history. For several years it was the Jane Cook Memorial Hospital and performed a much-needed service in the rugged country. Earlier, it served as a school, bringing enlightenment to local children.

But, now, as a place where slow-learning, delinquent boys can get another opportunity in life, the center may be serving in its most important capacity.

How many places are there in Kentucky, or in the nation, where a boy can, in a sense, fall from grace time and time again and still be considered worthy of redemption?

Sandy's case was a puzzle. He was well cared for by his mother and father. While not a wealthy one, his home was comfortable.

He has a sister and brothers, and, if there was a reason behind his constant incorrigibility, it likely was jealousy.

Sandy has a big nose and freckles, while his brothers and sister have dark curls and olive skin. He stated later that his parents were always "pettin' around on Timmy and Sissy."

The boy's delinquency pattern began in 1971 with petty larceny. A short time later, he was picked up for curfew violations. He was apprehended for running away from home, then for shoplifting. The pattern continued and he began taking money from parking meters, then from cars.

Sandy's parents worried about the boy because they loved him. His mother cried at each offense and the father whipped, thinking that was the solution.

Then, a consultant psychiatrist told the parents he believed Sandy would benefit by a six-month stay at the Frenchburg Center.

Even after arriving at the center, Sandy continued to run away and get into trouble. But it was decided that he would remain at the center until "he learns to care and respect himself as well as others."

If you should go looking for Sandy at the center these days, you won't find him. He went home in October and, according to latest department reports, is preparing to enroll in a school re-entry program. He also is looking for a part-time job.

"Some boys at the center never have a visitor from home," said Frenchburg superintendent Robert Gally. "But Sandy's parents wrote regularly and came to see him."

Jack Lewis, director of Residential Services in the Child Welfare Department, credited the letters, visits and individual and group counseling with the change in Sandy's behavior.

"We don't expect to win every boy," Lewis said. "But we can hope."

$500 a Year, Tax-Free, Question Posed by Speaker

Wayland, Ky.—“How would you like for you and your husband to each receive $500 tax free each year?” With this intriguing question, Mrs. Don Hughes captured the attention of her hearers at the recent October meeting of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club at her Garrett residence.

Mrs. Hughes was speaking on “What the National Dividend Plan Means to You.” She explained that under the plan each registered voter will receive $500 a year. This will be made possible by the following:

1. Putting a 50 percent limit on federal corporate income taxes.
2. Removing federal personal income taxes from all stock dividends.
3. Redistributing all federal corporate income tax collections on a per capita basis and freeing all federal personal income taxes to all persons who regularly vote in the federal general elections every two years.
4. The program will be phased in over a five-year period at 20 percent per year.
5. The program will be suspended in the time of war.

“This is a plan which is felt by the Federation of Women's Clubs to be not a gimmick but a solution to most of the country's economic problems,” explained Mrs. Hughes.

The club program was initiated by the pledge to the flag led by Mrs. Don Hughes and devotions by Mrs. J. T. Spillman.

At a business meeting following the program a contribution was voted to the Kentucky Society for Blindness. A discussion was held concerning the forthcoming 7th District Meeting and delegates and alternates were appointed. Telephone note pads and pens were distributed to be sold by clubmembers, and the president, Mrs. S. M. Martin, reported that pecans had been ordered for sale by the club.

Those attending the club meeting were: Mrs. Josephine Bukovich and Mrs. Debby Hughes Warburton, guests, and Mrs. Lula Coburn, Mrs. J. T. Spillman, Mrs. James A. Duff, Mrs. Rudolph Spencer, Mrs. John Reed, Mrs. Floyd Tackett, Mrs. S. M. Martin, Mrs. Earl Castle, Mrs. Jack Stevens, Mrs. Gene Mullins, Mrs. M. M. Collins, Mrs. H. H. Population 16,000—Pooley!

Short of catastrophe, natural or manmade, there is only one way for Floyd county to drop by the year 2020 to the measly population of 16,400 as predicted by the Kentucky Program Development Office.

And that is for us all, now and in the years ahead, to sit very, very still, watch the coal reserves dwindle, do nothing to preserve the land and nothing to provide work for our people after the coal is gone.

Civilization would die under the blight of such apathy, not to mention a mere segment of the United States, but we are not expecting this to happen.

Within the last ten years, Floyd county alone has seen the founding and successful operation of half a dozen industries that are separate from coal-mining. Businesses such as these have come to Floyd county and other counties of the region, not because they begged to be a part of the local scene in preference to all others but because energetic leaders literally went hunting for new business.

These leaders are still around. They aren't quitting, and it's up to us who do more following than leading not to give up, either.

The air is cleaner, here in the mountains. The water could be cleaner, and it must be. The landscape has a charm peculiarly its own, but it needs protecting. There's work to do, to make the place more inviting.

Whatever is necessary must be done.

Floyd county down to 16,000 souls by A. D. 2020? Wanna bet? Just you wait and see!

Data on Pesticides Results Not Conclusive, Statement Says

Frankfort, Ky.—It's hard to tell how many Kentuckians are getting sick from the highly toxic organophosphate pesticides that have come into widespread use since the nationwide curb on DDT.

In fact, unprecise methods of reporting and recording illness resulting from pesticide misuse have always made it difficult to know how many people are negatively affected by pesticides, says E. Edsel Moore, director of the State Department of Health's Pesticides Program.

"Annual reports from the National Clearinghouse for Poison Control Centers showed we had fewer than 50 cases of nonfatal exposure to pesticides from 1968-71," Moore says. The report is compiled from records of state poison control centers at Ashland, Ft. Thomas, Harlan, Lexington, Louisville, Owensboro and Paducah.

"To check whether this was an accurate count, we surveyed hospital records in or near areas of considerable pesticide usage and in small agricultural communities. We wanted to determine the extent of the problem, and to confirm or deny whether organophosphate pesticides were responsible for any recent increase in illness attributed to pesticide misuse," Moore said.

What Moore and James E. Peters, public health adviser with the Pesticides Program, found among nearly two million records at the 40 Kentucky hospitals they surveyed were 387 incidents of exposure severe enough to require a physician's attention. That's nearly eight times the number reported by Kentucky's seven poison control centers.

Moreover, survey results showed no alarming recent increase in the number of exposure cases of agricultural users to highly toxic organophosphate insecticides. Poison control centers and other sources had indicated that such an increase was an important problem.

"We estimate that if all of the state's 118 hospitals had been surveyed and all records reviewed for the 1968-71 period, more than 1200 exposure cases requiring a physician's attention would have turned up," Moore said. "And this doesn't include cases that people didn't consider severe enough to go to a hospital for treatment."

During the survey, Moore and Peters found that emergency treatment room records are not systematically coded, so checking individual records or log books was time consuming. These records were studied for 1970-71.

In-patient records, screened for the four-year period 1968-71, are most often coded in one of seven categories, Moore said. "Data from these records was easier to compile."

"Considering both emergency room and in-patient cases, there were 168 and 174 total pesticide incidents documented at the 40 hospitals during 1970 and 1971 respectively," the report said, indicating only a "token increase." Forty-one incidents specifically identified chlorinated hydrocarbon (DDT-like) insecticides as agents responsible for nonfatal poisonings. Fifty-two of the reported incidents were attributed to organophosphate insecticides, the more potent types used to replace DDT and other similar chemicals.

Of the incidents requiring a physician's attention, 281 were emergency room cases. One hundred six involved hospitalization of

New Patton Museum Building Continues Legend at Fort Knox

By BETTY ELLISON

A monument to George S. Patton, Jr., built of concrete hard as his character and grey as his early days in the Battle of the Bulge, will be dedicated Saturday, November 11—his birth date—at Fort Knox.

The new Patton Museum of Cavalry and Armor opens still another chapter in the legend that was the great World War II general.

A "Patton Museum" at Fort Knox is not entirely new. Its nucleus came from enemy tanks and armor captured by Gen. Patton and the Third Army during W. W. II, and the collection was formally opened in May of 1949, in one of Fort Knox's indoor firing ranges.

Constructed at a cost of about $250,000, all from private contributions raised by the Cavalry-Armor Foundation, the new museum covers 10,000 square feet. This is the first phase of a four-phase project that will eventually cover 40,000 square feet and house a wide range of armor items.

A fund-raising dinner will be held after the dedication ceremonies by the Cavalry-Armor Foundation to bring in additional money for the second phase of the museum.

The more than 1,500 items in the museum include a Civil War muzzle-loading rifle with a telescope; the only collection of autographed photographs of Hitler's field marshals, captured by Patton; a complete display of service medals of the U. S. Army, including an 1862 Congressional Medal of Honor; the 1939 French Cadillac Patton was riding in when he was fatally injured in an accident, and the van he used for field quarters.

A special feature of the museum is a 99-seat "Old Ironsides" theater, where a 33-minute film on Patton's life will be shown every hour. The theater will also be used for lectures.

Outside the museum, in a 40-acre park-like setting, are exhibits ranging from a World War I Renault tank to a Honest John missile. There are swings and slides for children, picnic tables for family outings and rest room facilities.

Community Meetings Scheduled By C.A.P.

Locations and time of Big Sandy Area Community Action Program community meetings were announced this week by program coordinator, Clifford Austin. Upcoming meetings are as follows: former Comprehensive Health outpost, Nov. 9, 3 p.m.; McDowell School, Nov. 13, 7 p.m.; Auxier Fire Department, Nov. 14, 7 p.m.; West Prestonsburg Senior Center, Nov. 15, 1 p.m. All recipients of anti-poverty program benefits are urged to attend.

Gov. Wendell Ford says he will establish a state trust fund that will allow an estimated $9.2 million more in federal revenue-sharing funds to be distributed to Kentucky cities and counties.

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

FRANKFORT, Ky.—With the opening of Kentucky's inland game season less than a month away, many hunters will find themselves poorly prepared unless they begin now to condition their equipment, their dogs and themselves.

Many sportsmen who are in the forty-years-old and up class spend most their days behind a desk. Such people, as a rule, aren't too active and the seldom-used muscles and tender feet make a day of strenuous physical activity an extreme hardship, if not an impossibility.

Such persons should first of all see their doctor for a complete physical checkup. Assuming no problems are encountered there, the prospective hunter should begin an exercise program which will tone up those muscles gradually and sufficiently to undertake and enjoy a day's hunt.

If new hunting boots are needed, don't wait until the day before the season opens to get them. Buy ahead and wear ahead. Blisters make poor hunting companions.

Hunting dogs, too, get out of shape and in addition to a gradual increase in the dog's exercise routine, a visit to the vet should be routine for him, also. Perhaps, immunization shots will be needed and the dog will be checked for such things as parasites and other disorders as well.

Of utmost importance to the hunter should be the condition of his firearms, especially from the safety standpoint. Guns stored since last season should be inspected carefully to see that the barrels are free of obstructions such as mud dauber nests, gobs of lint from the gun cases, etc.

Lastley, the hunter should familiarize himself with hunting rules and regulations and begin to scout his territory. It isn't too early now to check with landowners and request permission to hunt later on. Hunting is, after all, a privilege and not a right and the landowner's property should be respected at all times.

A brief rundown of the 1972-73 seasons, (all dates inclusive) follows:

Rabbit, quail, Nov. 16-Jan. 31; Squirrel, first phase continues through Oct. 31, second phase Nov. 16-Dec. 31; Grouse, Nov. 16-Feb. 28; Gun deer, for deer with forked antler or antlers only, all counties open except Jackson and Owsley, Nov. 11-Nov. 15; Archery deer, first part continues through Oct. 31, second part open Dec. 1 and continues through Dec. 31, either sex deer in all counties except Jackson and Owsley; Furbearers, Nov. 16-Jan. 31; Doves, first part continues through Oct. 31, second part, Dec. 1-9.

Bag and possession limits: Rabbit, 6 and 12; Quail, 10 and 20; Squirrel, 6 and 12; Grouse, 4 and 8; Deer, one per year per hunter whether by gun or bow; Furbearers, no limit, and Doves, 12 and 24.

There is a closed season on all species of wildlife, protected and unprotected, except deer, water fowl and raccoon from Nov. 1 until midnight Nov. 15.

Further information on hunting seasons may be obtained by writing the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Dept. H, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

pretty thing, even though it does cost eight cents... Wonder what some of our people would say if they had added the boys' old companion, Jim, to the scene?

WHY?

After weeks of intermittent attempts to fathom the matter, I am unable to understand why the word, "finalize" is any better than the old and simple "complete." Maybe it's just because I'm getting set in my ways. For instance, I still refuse to write the name of that fish, "croppie." I maintain that if we are so dumb that we can't learn to give an "a" the "ah" sound, we could be consistent and spell such words as "swap" with an "o," too.

And may I add this: Please, please don't send my way anything written altogether in capitals!

SO HELP ME...

I sometimes wonder about G. W. Would he, returning home from a fishing trip, empty-handed, have said, "Father, I cannot tell a lie"?

Well, I was accompanied by others, so I will not dare contradiction. Last Saturday night, I was looking for a notary, bound on taking the pledge against further safaris of the sort. A few hours later, I was wishing we had another day or two.

Between catching fish—and there were several of these intervals, I must admit—we figured how long at least a part of our gang have been hitting Norris and other lakes, wildeyed and rarin' to go. As best we can calculate, we've been making these trips 26 years now, every year, and sometimes twice.

That goes back to days when yours truly was considerably younger. Some of those on this most recent trip recalled when I would hit the floor at 4 a.m., demanding that everybody rise, shine and ready themselves to greet the dawn, out there on the lake. "And now look at him," another in the bunch said as I found the bunk more inviting than the deck.

It would appear that I may have roughed it till the edge has sorta worn off.

State Auditor Asks Suspension of Pay

Retirement payments to Mrs. Olga May Latta, of Prestonsburg, as a former state employee were questioned last week by State Auditor Mary Louise Foust.

Miss Foust recommended that her monthly retirement of $69.04 be suspended until she proves she earned the salary paid her while employed by State Auditors Joe Schneider, Henry Carter and Clyde Conley.

Mrs. Latta was transferred to the State Insurance Department July 31, 1969, and Miss Foust claims she did no work there.

But Robert Preston, state insurance commissioner while she was so employed, said that as far as he knew she did her work as one of several employees who checked licenses of insurance agents around the state.

Persons acquainted with Mrs. Latta said she did her work while employed.

Forestry To Distribute Seedlings in November

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Although most trees are planted in the spring, fall also is a good time for planting, according to Harry Nadler, director of the state Division of Forestry.

The division operates three tree nurseries, located at Gilbertsville, Pennyrile State Forest near Dawson Springs and in Morgan County. The facilities annually produce 10-12 million tree seedlings for use in reforesting idle land.

Nadler said the nurseries will start shipping tree seedlings to the state forestry districts for distribution in mid-November.

"Anyone considering fall planting should be aware that it requires a good ground cover (grass or other vegetation) to be successful," Nadler said. "The ground cover is necessary to protect the seedling from being pushed out of the ground by freezing and thawing during winter."

Anyone wishing to purchase tree seedlings from the Division of Forestry can obtain an order blank from any of the division's local offices, County Extension, Soil Conservation Service, or Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices.

Order blanks also are available at the division's main office in Frankfort.

Species available this fall include cottonwood, black locust, cherrybark oak, white oak, white pine, shortleaf pine, loblolly pine, scotch pine, Virginia pine, yellow poplar, black walnut, sweetgum and sycamore.

Seedlings sell for $10 per thousand, with the exception of black walnut and scotch pine, which are $15 per thousand. All orders should be in multiples of 500.

Landowners desiring more information on fall tree planting or assistance should contact the nearest Forestry office or write the Frankfort office.

D. B. Greenfield, assistant engineer with the U. S. Corps of Engineers, points out details on a map of Cave Run Reservoir for newsmen. The lake, which will be Kentucky's fifth largest when completed, will be impounded behind Cave Run Dam, now under construction on the Licking River near Morehead. The corps recently sponsored a tour of the dam site and lake area for the news media. Facilities around the lake will include marinas, boat docks and ramps and camping areas. The lake area will be the only one in the nation administered by the U. S. Forest Service.

State's Fifth Largest Lake To Open Near Morehead In 1974

SALT LICK, Ky.—There's little to see now, only tons of mud and miles of bulldozer tracks, but in 1974 the waters of Kentucky's fifth largest lake will begin rising here behind Cave Run Dam.

And residents of the Bath, Rowan, Menifee, Morgan and Elliott county area hope their local economy will begin rising right along with the waters of Cave Run Reservoir.

The U. S. Corps of Engineers, describing the project for newsmen during a recent tour, say the dam will be finished late next year. They hope to begin impounding the reservoir in January of 1974 so that the lake will be at least partially ready for fishermen and swimmers in the summer.

It's been a long time coming. Congress originally authorized the Licking River project almost 40 years ago, but construction did not begin until 1965. Bad weather, labor problems and federal fund shortages have forced the projected completion date to be moved back several times.

Spindletop Research, in a study of the project, estimates the lake could bring one million people per year into the area. The U. S. Forest Service, which will administer the lake area, estimates the facility could bring annually $5 million into the five counties the lake will touch.

That could be a big shot in the arm for an area of the state that long has been generally underdeveloped.

To lure visitors to the area, recreational facilities are being planned that will include a lodge, swimming pool, campgrounds, picnic areas, a 2000-foot beach, hiking trails, boat ramps and a marina.

When filled, Cave Run will cover some 8270 acres, making it Kentucky's fifth largest lake, with an estimated shore line of about 200 miles. The final cost of the project will be about $45 million.

Just below the dam, the state Department of Fish and Wildlife is putting the finishing touches on its $2 million Minor Clark Fish Hatchery, a 300-acre facility which could become quite a tourist attraction itself.

Built entirely with revenue from license fees and taxes on fishing equipment, the hatchery primarily will be used to produce four species of game fish: largemouth bass, striped bass, walleye and muskie.

According to the department's fisheries division, the hatchery will produce about one million largemouth bass per year when fully operational. About 150,000 each of the other three species also will be produced each year.

One of the largest and most modern warm-water hatcheries in the nation, the facility includes more than 100 acres of brood ponds and holding basins for forage fish.

According to Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Arnold Mitchell, Cave Run Reservoir should be one of Kentucky's cleanest lakes, offering high water quality and plenty of good fishing. Corps of Engineers officials say they expect no strip-mine siltation problem at the reservoir and that acid drainage into the lake will be minimal.

There are few strip-mine operations near the lake, since most of the reservoir lies within Daniel Boone National Forest.

The U. S. Forest Service says it will make every effort to keep the lake area clean and to preserve its natural atmosphere. They're considering some stringent camping and boating regulations to do just that.

Under regulations now being considered, no camping would be allowed along the lake shore, except at designated camping areas. Private boat docks would not be permitted on the lake.

To promote fishing, water skiing would be limited to certain areas of the lake and to certain periods of the day.

Another rule being considered might effectively eliminate house boating on Cave Run by prohibiting persons from living on boats at the lake.

While the rules are strict, and may draw protests from recreationists, Forest Service officials feel they may be necessary to keep the lake clean and beautiful.

They stress that the regulations are only under consideration and no final decision has yet been reached.

The Forest Service plans to build some of the facilities around the lake, but will let a contract for private construction and operation of the lodge-marina complex.

Part of a planned Twin Peaks Recreation Area near the dam, the complex would include a 120-unit lodge, pool, restaurant and a 100-slip marina. Another private marina is planned upstream in Morgan county.

Ask Floyd Court To Join Attack On Old Deeds

The Floyd fiscal court has been asked to adopt under its Home Rule powers a resolution which would require the written consent of the landowner before a coal operator who does not own the surface would be permitted to strip or auger mine the land. The court had not taken any action as of this week.

The request, made by the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, could, if complied with, in effect kill the so-called broad-form deed under which mineral rights were acquired three-quarters of a century ago.

The Appalachian Research and Defense Fund has represented landowners on Bull Creek who have opposed strip-mining in that area. Permits for strip-mining those lands apparently have not been issued as a consequence of this opposition.

If the fiscal court should adopt the suggested resolution, it would become effective within 60 days unless an appeal to higher courts delayed the effective date or made the resolution of no effect.

"Where Confidence Gets Business and Satisfaction Keeps It"

A Grain of Sand, And A Mustard Seed

A little drop of water, a little grain of sand, makes a mighty ocean and a pleasant land. A rhyme from the past inspires a message for the now. You can own a very expensive watch and everyone knows the very delicate mechanism inside a watch. You can get one little grain of sand in there and it will stop that watch. And that's the wonderful spiritual illustration of the very delicate inside of the human heart and mind one little sin can stop the spiritual growth of a christian and if this dreaded disease gets infested in enough hearts it will stop the growing of grace in the home and in the church and then the town, but the little grain of mustard seed planted at the right time, in the right place can stop the growth of sin, and Jesus Christ can and will make a new heart, new home, and new town, for God made a world in six days, and I am absolutely sure He can make new hearts, new homes and new towns in much less time, for He is the greatest carpenter that ever was or ever will be, the greatest architect that ever drew a blue print, (and incidentally, He has a blue print of me and you). He is also the greatest interior decorator that ever lived. Read the last two chapters of the Revelation and see how Jesus has furnished His Father's house that has many mansions (St. John 14: 1-6) no wonder God said "who can build me a house, for Jesus said His Father's House had many mansions, nice size house isn't it? It must undoubtedly be for we are living on His footstool what kind of material are we using to cover God's footstool. It sure needs a new cover for the old one is sure messed up and God didn't make it that way. Apostle Paul says, "We are fools for Christ sake," don't apologize for being a fool for the devil for it makes a 100 percent fool for Christ. That's another thing I know by "born again" salvation, and daily experience with the best teacher that ever taught anyone a lesson, and I want Him always for my homeroom teacher for I have given Him my home, and I now have plenty of room for Him, for when I got to comparing my sins and faults and mistakes with the size of God's footstool, I found more and more room for Him in my heart and in my home, and when He poured my sin sick heart full of His love, I could not hold it and that's why it continues to overflow day and night for Him to others. If you really want to know God, give Jesus first place in your heart, home, and pocket book and He will do the rest.

A-men to A-man, for Jesus Christ was and still is A-man, He laid it on the line and that same line is still drawn and still straight, He was not and is not a compromising coward, and that very same Jesus that went away is coming back, and very soon, thank God. It is already spoken, it is already written, change it, if you can. If we can get our eyes off idolatry and abomination long enough, and take a look at issues and answers in God's Book, we will find a world full of numbers, because the Bible is full of numbers, and all of them compiled from 10 little digits from 1-0, and I declare on the authoritative word of Almighty God that its the zero hour all over the world. Every hair on our head is numbered, short or long they are still numbered, and I also wish to remind you that somewhere in this world there is a man with a number, and if we don't quit playing church and setting up the competitive religious groups and get back to God's way, we are going to be tricked right into the very depth of the Anti-Christ, before we know what has happened to us. I don't know who or where that man is but I know The Man that does know, and His name is Jesus, and if you don't know Him, I prayerfully suggest that you had better know Him, for He is the only answer to the issues of this life and life eternal, He is not a politician, He is Jesus Christ the Virgin born Son of The Living God and His blood that cleans and keeps clean. He owns this footstool that man does all his boasting on spreading like a green bay tree, and Jesus disciples and apostles, many of them have what He wanted when He needed it, and He can do the very same to the green bay tree. He still hasn't lost any power. We have lost our vision. If Christian people did half as much praying and praising God, as they do praising abomination and idolatry we could have a christian America again, before Jesus comes. God's heart is broken by the insults of His people. He said, "if I be lifted up" and He also said, "these people praise me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. In vain do they worship, and Paul said, his people were worshipping and unknown God, and you know something Jesus disciples and apostles, many of them were unlearned and ignorant. Isn't it amazing the scripture that is left out today, you know something else, we just have part of the books that were written about Jesus' works on earth. If we had the rest of them, we might every one be on our way to hell, but this we can be sure of, God has all the books of what Jesus began to teach and do, and they are neatly stacked in God's Big Library.

I am over weight physically, but I feel I am underweight spiritually "weighed in the balance and found wanting." God's scales are perfect, I sure wish all the merchants in all the world would start using God's scales, not only the merchants but the "keepers at home." Time is running out, set your clock with God's clock for its almost midnight, it is written in Jesus' name for others.

By MRS. LOUCILLE MONTGOMERY
Gods private secretary, and Christian Home, Evangelist,
22 E. Burchett St.
Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653

The fields are white, the laborers few,
God is reaping, how about you? Sow in Tears, Reap in Joy.

"Its Harvest Time In Kentucky" and speaking of scales, if all the preachers, in all the world would preach all the truth and practice what they preach every day like Jesus did, Jesus would sure have a big family reunion for He only has one family and one heaven, and Jesus said, "when I go, I'll send you the comforter that will guide you into all truth. I heard on TV the other day, within the next year 35,000 Americans would go blind. There's many more than that already blind, God said of hearing, they hear not, and seeing, they see not. They are not hearing because they don't want to listen and they are not seeing because they don't want to, they would rather go to hell in style than to obey God, and there will be no style shows in hell. That's a terrible place, you don't have to go, and it's wonderful to be a Christian, its wonderful to be saved, it's priceless to know Jesus and possess the life He gave. It's popular to stand for the world, but its divine to stand for Jesus.

State Fire Losses Equalling 1971 Pace

Frankfort, Ky.—More than $11 million went up in smoke during the first six months of 1972. That comes to around $30,100 per day.

According to figures compiled by the state Fire Marshal's office, losses due to fire in Kentucky will be about the same this year as last. Total fire losses in the state for 1971 were more than $21 million, and Old Man Fire is still rolling along.

Fires were distributed throughout the state according to population. The figures range from 464 fires in Jefferson County, to no fires in Owsley County. In all, the figures show about 2130 fires during the first six months of this year, about 10 fires per day.

Three quarters of the fires, and the great majority of deaths due to fires, occurred in homes.

Motor vehicles were the scene of 157 fires between January and June. There were about 400 vehicle fires last year, and the state seems headed for that number again.

The major causes of fires were electric malfunctions, hot grease and lightning. Those three causes accounted for more than a third of the fires reported in Kentucky. Another third resulted from unknown causes.

Twice as many fires occurred in frame buildings as in concrete and brick structures, but the loss figures are about the same, around $2.5 million each.

Fire took the lives of more men than women, 42 out of 71 total fatalities. Most victims were either the elderly or the young; only about 25 per cent of those who died in fires were between the ages of 20 and 60.

Of 12,200 people who died in U. S. fires last year, 3000 were children.

The state Fire Marshal's Office continually inspects new construction in the state for compliance with fire prevention standards in methods and materials used for construction. It also inspects all boilers, major LP gas installations, schools, hospitals, and nursing homes.

They suggest that homes should be checked by their owners for unsafe conditions and practices. Some of the major causes of household fires are overloaded electric circuits, untended stoves or other appliances, aerosol cans with flammable contents, and smoking in bed.

Intra-Mural Athletics Involve 13,000 U. of Kentucky Students

It was about 4 o'clock on a fall afternoon, and University of Kentucky students were beginning to arrive at one of the Campus Recreation Department's exercise rooms in the Seaton Recreation Center to prepare for tryouts for the UK gymnastics team.

Freshman Glenn Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Robin Price, Lexington, a gymnast while a student at Bryan Station high school, was practicing, and he would be until 6 p.m. He then would work from 6:30 to 8:30, keeping the room open and helping other students with the equipment.

Alice Welch, freshman daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Welch, Middlesboro, was practicing, with the help of a friend. The former twirler at Middlesboro high school said she did not have a gymnastics program in high school.

Alice's friend, Joe Appling, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Appling, Ft. Mitchell, has a degree in sociology, and currently is working on a master's degree in health, physical education and recreation. A UK assistant coach of gymnastics, he also conducts a program at the Lexington Aquatic Club. He is a graduate of Simon Kenton high school, Independence, and competed in gymnastics for two years as a UK undergraduate.

Another student in the exercise room, sophomore Kane Hale of Harold, participates in gymnastics, speed ball, flagball, soccer and wrestling. Hale played soccer as a student at Betsy Layne high school.

The gymnastics team and other teams compete with teams from other colleges.

The UK basketball intramural teams will number 275 to 300 this year, and involve 13,000 students. Yet, intramurals is only one activity of the UK Campus Recreation Department, which operates under the Office of the Dean of Students.

The Seaton facilities are a long-time dream to Campus Rec's director, Bernard Johnson. When he came to UK in the summer of 1946, fresh from the U. S. Army where he served as a captain, he did not foresee that the then 6,000 member student body would have grown to nearly 20,000 on the Lexington campus by 1972.

Johnson immediately founded the now famous UK Troupers, and through the years has served as director of professional curriculum, recreation curriculum and service curriculum in the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation in the College of Education.

Non-competitive activities include archery, the Blue Marlins (a swimming group), the Tau Sigma dance society, and a scuba diving group, which is just being organized.

Competitive activities for men are cricket, gymnastics, rugby, soccer, volleyball, weight lifting, wrestling and fencing. Women's activities are basketball, field hockey, gymnastics, golf, tennis, track, volleyball and swimming.

A polo team has just been started. It will be under the direction of Kob Ryan, Johnson said.

Rugby is new this year, and already has 75 participants. The team has competed against Centre College, Danville. Another new team, soccer, has 65 participants, and has played this fall against some of Kentucky's regional universities and Indiana University.

"We have a good girls' tennis team this year," Johnson said. "The team is winning all its games and some individual players will rank high in the state. We have a better won-lost record in women's basketball than Rupp's team had. We have more girls participating in track now, and our track team went to the regionals last year. This is because the girls' high school track program is good."

In the Aquatics division, the Coliseum pool is open to faculty, staff and students and swimming periods for children three nights each week and on week-ends.

Johnson has three full-time assistants. Jim Daopoulos, a native of Marlboro, Mass., is in charge of scheduling and equipment. Daopoulos, who has two degrees from UK, said "I probably could be on duty 24 hours a day. I am always here from 8 to 5 and spot check other times. We have lots of equipment now, much more than we formerly had."

Miss Sue Feamster, a Frankfort native, directs women's intramurals and extramurals. Bill Pieratt, a native of Mt. Sterling, administers the men students and faculty-staff intramural programs, and the budget for the residence halls and their intramural programs. They are assisted by seven graduate students.

George Eyster (left), director of the Appalachian Adult Education, Demonstration Center at Morehead State University, is shown receiving the Mohammad Reza Pahlavi Prize, a UNESCO medal awarded for outstanding activities in reducing illiteracy in the United States. Making the presentation is Dr. Robert M. Worthington, the U. S. Office of Education's Associate Commissioner for Adult, Vocational, and Technical Education.

The citation accompanying the honorable mention medal, the second awarded in the United States, said the Appalachian Center was honored "for its activities as a whole, and more especially for its methodological research and its training of various types of literacy personnel, whose action does not cover only the Appalachians but sometimes extends beyond this region and even beyond the national border."

Roland Jones, director of the Adult Basic Education project in Floyd county, is credited by Mr. Eyster with contributing materially to the award-winning effort.

Four State Parks Offer Vacation Plan

Kentucky's Department of Parks makes it easy to plan a mini-vacation for this fall, winter and spring, by offering vacation packages with special price tags. It's called "Four for Fun" because the plan is available in only four of the state's resort parks...some of the finest in the nation.

The four resort parks are located within the driving pattern of many of Kentucky's most traveled areas during the winter season. They are: Cumberland Falls, Corbin; Lake Cumberland, Jamestown; Natural Bridge, Slade; and Carter Caves, Olive Hill. Five other resort parks that are open all winter will offer reduced, off-season daily rates, but not the "Four for Fun" package.

The Family Vacation Package Plan becomes effective November 15 and runs through March 31, 1973. (All parks will be closed during the Christmas holidays, December 22-26)

Two package rates offer reduced prices for everyone. One adult pays $35, two adults

(in the same room) pay $59, and each additional adult in the same room pays $21 more. From children 3 to 12 years old, accompanied by two or more adults, the price is $10. For children under 3 years old, there is no charge. All prices are, of course, subject to Kentucky State sales tax.

For the one low price, here's what you get: Lodging for two nights and all meals from evening dinner on the day of arrival through lunch the third day. Meals may be ordered from the menu.

There are no stipulations about the time of week you want to start your holiday; you may begin during the week or on a weekend. You may use the package plan more than once in a week by visiting more than one of the four parks.

The parks Central Reservations Service in Frankfort will help make reservations and can be reached by phone, toll-free, from any point in Kentucky by dialing 1-800-372-2961. Neighboring states call toll-free by dialing 1-800-626-2911.

And something very easy, too. You just make regular weekly deposits — any sum you choose — and collect a nice check next November. Then. You can play Santa in a relaxed sort of way. Make sense? You just bet it does.

"The Harpes of Hell"

(Second of three installments)
By BETTY B. ELLISON

Neither jail nor cabin could hold Micajah and Wiley—those "Horrible Harpe" brothers—for very long as ruthless demons of the devil drove them across Kentucky in the late 1700's, killing, robbing, burning and terrorizing early settlers.

After their reunion with the women and their newborn babes, the Harpes continued their catiff activities. Accumulated crimes began to make the wayward life difficult for them as they were pursued by bands of armed men—some under orders from Gov. James Garrard of Kentucky.

While others killed for profit or revenge, the Harpes committed their heinous crimes with a sadistic delight. One of their favorite methods of disposing of their victims' bodies was to disembowel them, fill the abdominal cavity with rocks and throw the corpse into a body of water.

Stephen Langford's brutal murder by the Harpes near Crab Orchard occurred at just the right time to arouse Kentuckians' demand for law and order along the Wilderness Road. Entire settlements were thrown into instant panic at stories that the Harpes might be lurking nearby, and men would immediately drop their work to take up arms to catch them.

Pursuit did not bother the Harpes as their band spread waves of terror over Central Kentucky. They probably wandered through the places we now know as Bernheim Forest and Knobs State Forest, near Bardstown; trod over what was already Lincoln country (the President's forebears) near Springfield, and what was to become Abraham Lincoln's birthplace at Hodgenville; and cavorted over the Barrens, where now Kentucky's newest state resort park, Barren River Lake, welcomes travelers near Glasgow.

Whether they cared or not, the Harpes' trail was not unnoticed. Captain Joseph Ballenger, in Stanford, again organized a posse to search for the Harpes, and they set off before news arrived that Gov. Garrard had issued an executive order for Ballenger to pursue the killers. Ballenger's posse had a sudden scrimmage with the Harpes at the Rolling Fork of the Salt River about 10 miles south of Shepherdsville.

Riding hell-bent-for-leather, the posse came upon the Harpes, who, although surprised, were prepared to shoot. Recognizing that, in this instance, retreat was the better part of valor, the posse adjourned to the farm of Henry Skaggs to collect some dogs to track the hunted killers.

Skaggs, one of the posse, had been among the famous "Long Hunters" who came to Kentucky in 1770 with Col. James Knox. Skaggs lent his name to a Kentucky frontier trail (Skaggs Trace, also called Cumberland Trace) that began near Danville, crossed the Little Barren and Red rivers and continued on to Nashville, where it became the more famous Natchez Trace.

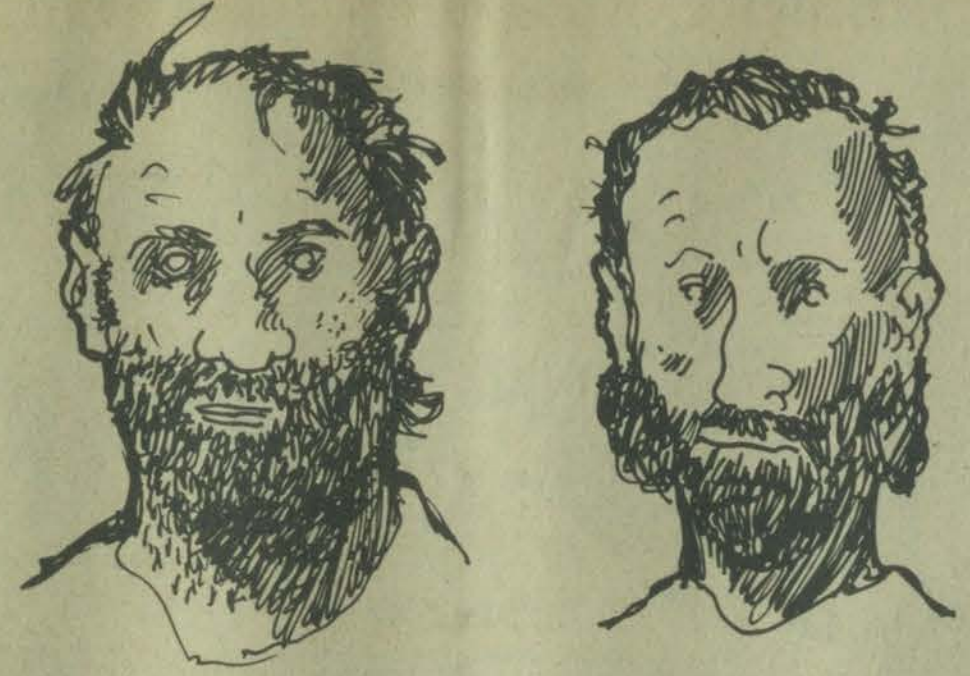

At Skaggs' urging, the men resumed the search for the Harpes; but they were forced to turn back when they encountered an impenetrable canebrake, where the hunted had taken refuge.

Skaggs later rode to the farm of Daniel Trabue, near Columbia, to raise more men for the posse. Trabue, like Skaggs, was a Revolutionary War veteran, and while they were laying their battle plans, the Harpes were committing another murder—of Trabue's 13-year-old son.

Young Trabue had been sent by his father to a neighbor's house to borrow some flour and seed beans. After he failed to return, efforts to find him proved futile. Evidence of the Harpes turned up, though, where they had killed a calf on the East Fork of the Barren River and had made moccasins out of the hide, but there was not trace of the boy.

Two weeks later, chopped bits of John Trabue's body were found in a sinkhole along an old buffalo trail.

Gov. Garrard again appealed for volunteer help and this time offered a reward of $300 each for the Harpes' capture. Before the report of the reward had time to circulate over the state, the Harpes killed another man near Edmonton and committed the famous Stump murder along the Barren River.

THE HORRIBLE HARPE—An artist's conception provides a chilling look at the Harpe brothers, perhaps the most infamous of Kentucky's early outlaws. Micajah, left, and Wiley were credited with 35 to 50 murders during the late 1700's. Micajah's career ended when he was shot in 1799, and Wiley was hung five years later. Both were beheaded.

The Barrens were not the best place in Kentucky to settle in the spring of 1799, but it was a fresh start in life for a man remembered by his last name only—Stump. A lonely bachelor, Stump was fishing along the river bank below his recently finished cabin when he noticed a wisp of smoke across the river. In those days, smoke usually meant that neighbors were settling nearby.

Stump pulled his string of fish out of the water, picked up a turkey he had just shot, changed his clothes, stuck his fiddle under his arm and went whistling out to greet the newcomers. Stump probably never had a chance to utter his words of welcome before the Harpes stabbed him.

They finished him off with their customary surgery, stuffed him with stones and threw the body in Barren River, where low water later uncovered the crime.

Continuing their villainous voyage along the Barren and Green rivers to Henderson, the Harpes were embarking upon the last chapter of their unequalled careers in crime. They would join forces with the Cave-In-Rock gang to pillage the Ohio River; Micajah would lose his head; and Kentucky would gain an infamous landmark.

When it comes to an improved environment, there is no Santa Claus

Everybody wants an improved environment, but wishing won't make it so. There is much to be done and it's going to cost everybody a lot of money.

Many people say "I" don't cause pollution... "they" do. "They" should give me back my clean air and pure water, and "they" should pay for it. The truth is all of us are polluters and all of us must pay for improving our environment.

The price tag attached is going to be a stiff one. Controlling pollution, whether by a device in a car, a new sewage disposal plant, or equipment at a power plant, will have an inevitable cost to each of us as a consumer. We should make sure the benefits are worth the price.

WHAT ABOUT THE ENVIRONMENTAL PRICE TAG ON ELECTRIC POWER? The cost of new pollution control equipment at power generating plants will show up in all of our electric bills. How high the price will be cannot be forecast. Much depends on government regulations. In our opinion, some are unrealistic because they can't be met, and if they could be met would be unnecessary. AN EXAMPLE: We must burn coal to make electricity. New government regulations say our burning coal puts too much sulfur oxides in the air—and this is harmful. The fact is that only high concentrations of sulfur oxides at ground level—not in the upper atmosphere—can be harmful. Sulfur oxides exhausted from plant stacks high in the atmosphere are quickly diffused so as to meet strict government regulations. We are and will continue to protect against harmful ground-level concentrations of sulfur oxides.

However, there's no commercially successful way to remove sulfur oxides from power plant stacks on a continuous basis in the amounts specified by the new government regulations. Millions are being spent on research to find a way, and we are taking a significant part in that research. We have no doubt a way will be found, but more time is needed. When science finds a way, we'll promptly adopt it.

We, like you, want to protect our environment... make it better than it is today. But, there is no Santa Claus, when it comes to an improved environment. We need to be sure that sought-after improvements are possible and worth their cost. We need to avoid unnecessary increases in our electric bills.

Understanding of the possible and the impossible together with the inevitable price tag is the first step toward a sensible approach to protecting and improving our environment.

Supermarkets Shop for the best price, too

As you read over our food ad, you've already begun to shop for the best values to buy for yourself and your family. If we can offer you a better value than anyone else, then maybe we'll earn the right to serve you.

This is why a super market tries to give you the best value possible. And to bring those values to you, the super market goes shopping, too. Our shopping list is much longer than yours, of course, and we look for values all over this country and the world.

In the average super market today, there are about 8,000 separate items on the shelves. And many thousands more are introduced every year. You can see that the competition is enormous. And to show you just how strong competition really is, here's an interesting statistic: of those 8,000 super market items, about two thirds are brand new or improved over ten years ago.

So while you're bargain hunting among all the many values on this page or in our store, remember that to bring you these values, the super market must bargain hunt, too, among all the processors, manufacturers, and supplier of the products you buy.

The super market bargains for you, bringing you the best there is for the lowest price possible. Super markets shop for the best price, too.

I-75—From The River to The Woods

By BETTY ELLISON

From the churning Ohio River in the north to the southernmost tip of Daniel Boone National Forest, Interstate 75 rolls through 185 miles of varied Kentucky landscape.

But the ease of traveling on the four-lane superhighway can lure you past many a turnoff that can lead to adventure and discovery. For instance: After traveling through lake-dotted northern Kentucky, take the Georgetown interchange of I-75 and either head west for 22 miles on US-460 to Kentucky's capital city, Frankfort, or turn east on US-460 for 18 miles to Paris in historic Bourbon County.

Kentucky's Capitol building, of Greek and French architecture, is one of the handsomest statehouses in America and is open to visitors daily. A floral clock and reflecting pool grace the lawn of the Capitol Annex.

Sharing the grounds with these state buildings is the Governor's Mansion, to some extent styled after Marie Antoinette's villa, the Petit Trianon.

Duncan Tavern in Paris, open 10-5 daily, is a museum of early Kentucky furnishings—including items that belonged to Isaac Shelby, the first governor, and the Clays of Virginia and Kentucky. Built in 1788, Duncan Tavern is on US-68, which meets US-460 at Paris.

Stoner Creek Stud, east of Paris, is a home of both thoroughbred and trotter champions. Also near Paris is Claiborne Farm, where Bold Ruler stood and where Damascus is stabled.

North of Lexington at the I-64 junction, the traveler can again head east, this time on the Mountain Parkway, to Natural Bridge State Resort Park at Slade. Located in the Red River Gorge of the Daniel Boone National Forest, Natural Bridge features complete vacation facilities and offers guests sights of massive sandstone arches, hollowed by centuries of erosion. Natural Bridge is well worth the 50-mile drive from I-75.

Today, all over the world, Kentucky and horses are one and the same, and Lexington is the horse capital of America. More than 300 horse farms cover the Bluegrass landscape around Lexington. Kentucky bred horses have won 75 of 98 Kentucky Derbies, and although they constitute less than one-fourth of the continent's thoroughbreds, they win more than one-half the important stake races in North America.

Such names as Citation, Whirlaway, Oil Capitol, Tom Fool, Nashua and, of course, Man O'War, are spoken softly and with reverence in Lexington. Some horse farms in the Lexington area are open to the public, some aren't—seasonal conditions make all the difference, so local inquiry is the only answer. One sure way to get inside the farms is by Blue Grass Tours, which conducts tours of the horse farms and historic Lexington spots daily, leaving the Chamber of Commerce building at 1 p.m.

White Hall State Shrine, the restored 19th-century home of Kentucky's great abolitionist Cassius Marcellus Clay, and Fort Boonesborough State Park are off I-75 at the US-227-421 junction, 18 miles south of Lexington. You turn west and in less than a mile there is White Hall; east six miles takes you to Fort Boonesborough.

Authentic mountain music lures travelers off I-75 at Renfro Valley. The Renfro Valley Barn Dance breaks into a foot-stompin' musical show each Saturday night that is not encumbered with the commercialism that plagues other country music establishments. A museum of mountain lore, and a country store complete with cracker barrel, are pleasant bonuses at Renfro Valley. The Valley also has a KOA campground, just off the Mount Vernon-Renfro Valley interchange.

William Whitley built what was probably the first oval race track in Kentucky, and the first brick house, which is still standing. Remains of the track can be seen at William Whitley House State Shrine on US-150, 18 miles from the Mount Vernon interchange.

Levi Jackson Wilderness Road State Park, six miles off I-75 at London, houses a museum complex that is a tribute to the early settlers in the "land west of the mountain." Complete camping facilities are available here along with a planned recreation program. I-75 forms the dam for Wood Creek Reservoir, north of London, that offers good quiet fishing. This section of I-75 is nestled between two portions of the Daniel Boone National Forest.

Kentucky's southern portion of I-75 leads travelers to the "land of the falls." From Corbin west on US-25W and Ky.-90, is Cumberland Falls State Resort Park, where the Cumberland River drops 67 feet into a wooded gorge. The park is one of Kentucky's quieter vacation resorts; an enormous lounge in DuPont Lodge is filled with easy chairs facing an immense fireplace.

And east of I-75, traveling 25 miles on US-25E and Ky-459, is Dr. Thomas Walker State Shrine, with a reproduction of the first log cabin any pioneer built in Kentucky. It's a modest monument to the man who was Kentucky's first tourist—who started the happy habit so many people now have—sightseeing in Kentucky.

Hog Cholera Epidemic Ends

By SAM HENSLEY

Frankfort, Ky.—If you walked into the State Veterinarian's office in the early part of August, you might have seen an impressive certificate on the wall. There is a picture hanging in that space now. The certificate, which proclaimed Kentucky's "hog cholera free" status, was taken down after Aug. 17.

Now, however, all indications are that the epidemic, which began on that day, has ended.

The last federal quarantine, affecting portions of Breckinridge, Hardin, and Meade counties, was lifted Oct. 28. Kentucky will have hog cholera-free status again in six months, provided there are no further outbreaks of the disease.

Swine from Kentucky should soon be able to move freely into other states again.

During the epidemic, which lasted slightly more than two months, an estimated 5300 hogs were destroyed at a cost to state and federal authorities exceeding a quarter of a million dollars. Kentucky's share alone totaled $88,732.

When the outbreak first began, the state paid 10 per cent of the cost of indemnity and federal authorities paid the balance. Later the state's share totaled 50 per cent of the payments to farmers.

After 90 days without a case of hog cholera, the state's share will again become 10 per cent, according to J. D. Wolf, administrative assistant to the state veterinarian.

Dr. Tom S. Maddox, State Veterinarian, feels that restrictions placed on the movement of swine during the latter part of August and the month of September account in large part for the epidemics ending now. Maddox said states that did not apply such restrictions are still experiencing outbreaks of the disease.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the nationwide indemnity total is more than $1.28 million.

Kentucky farms lost 16 herds to depopulation during the recent epidemic. In other states, even more herds were involved — 44 herds have been destroyed in Indiana, 25 in Ohio, 21 in Tennessee, and 77 in North Carolina.

All the states above, except Kentucky, still have federal quarantines in effect.

A representative of the U. S. Department of Agriculture said that a factor in Kentucky's success in fighting the epidemic has been the cooperation authorities received from the state's hog farmers and markets.

The last case of the disease reported in Kentucky occurred on Sept. 20. That case was on a farm under quarantine at the time, and it came as no surprise, according to authorities in the U. S. D. A.

Federal authorities declared a state of emergency recently to make more federal resources available to fight the spread of the disease.

Gov. Wendell Ford has approved five federal grants totaling $1 million to assist anti-poverty programs in several Kentucky counties.

WE BELIEVE . . .

. . . the Bible is the inspired and only infallible and authoritative Word of God.

. . . there is one God, eternally existent in three persons: God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost.

. . . in the deity of our Lord Jesus Christ, in His virgin birth, in His sinless life, in His miracles, in His vicarious and atoning death, in His bodily resurrection, in His ascension to the right hand of the Father, and His personal future return to this earth in power and glory to rule a thousand years.

. . . in the Blessed Hope—the Rapture of the Church at Christ's coming.

. . . the only means of being cleansed from sin is through repentance and faith in the precious blood of Christ. We believe in water baptism by immersion.

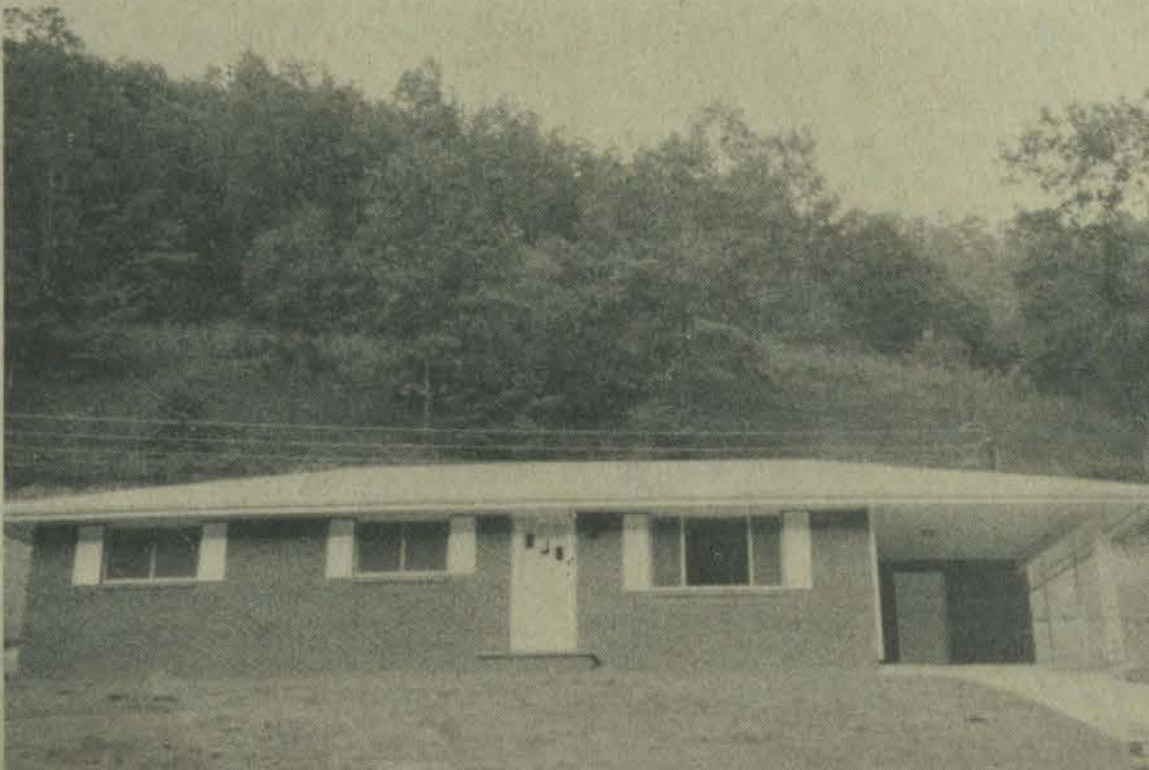

. . . regeneration by the Holy Spirit is absolutely essential for personal salvation. . . the redemptive work of Christ on the cross provides healing of the human body in answer to believing prayer.

. . . the baptism of the Holy Spirit, according to Acts 2:4, is given to believers who ask for it.

. . . in the sanctifying power of the Holy Spirit by whose indwelling the Christian is enabled to live a holy life.

. . . in the resurrection of both the saved and the lost, the one to everlasting life and the other to everlasting damnation.

Imagine! Floyd Census To Be Lower Than Magoffin's (They Say)

The Big Sandy Area Development District is projected to suffer a loss of 30,000 population within the next 45 years, and the two heaviest losers will be Floyd and Pike counties.

And (they say) by 2020 both Magoffin and Johnson counties' populations will exceed Floyd's.

These and other predictions, many of which are discouraging, are contained in the Kentucky Populations Projections 1975-2020, recently released by the Kentucky Program Development Office.

Floyd county, according to the study, will drop from its 35,889 population in 1970 to 16,400 in the year 2020, and Pike county will decline from its present 61,059 population to 43,663, 45 years hence.

Says the report:

"The Big Sandy Area Development District is projected to decline by two percent from 1970 to 1980. Magoffin and Johnson counties are expected to grow slightly because of the influence of the Mountain Parkway. Martin county will remain at about the same level until 1990, then decline.

"Floyd and Pike counties are projected to lose population as they have during the past 20 years. These are coal-mining counties, and, although the demand for coal will continue to be strong for the next decade or two, it is thought that mining employment will not be sufficient to generate population increases or even to maintain stability. Coal mining is becoming increasingly mechanized, so fewer and fewer workers are needed to produce a given quantity of coal."

(It was not explained how the Mountain Parkway could contribute to the population growth of Johnson county, since the Parkway does not touch that county. This highway terminates in Floyd county with junction here with US 23.)

A memorandum attached to the population projection study points out that the projections merely show present trends, can be used to evaluate the impact of various programs but cannot be accepted as final because changing conditions "should affect rates of population change, resulting in a population different from that projected."

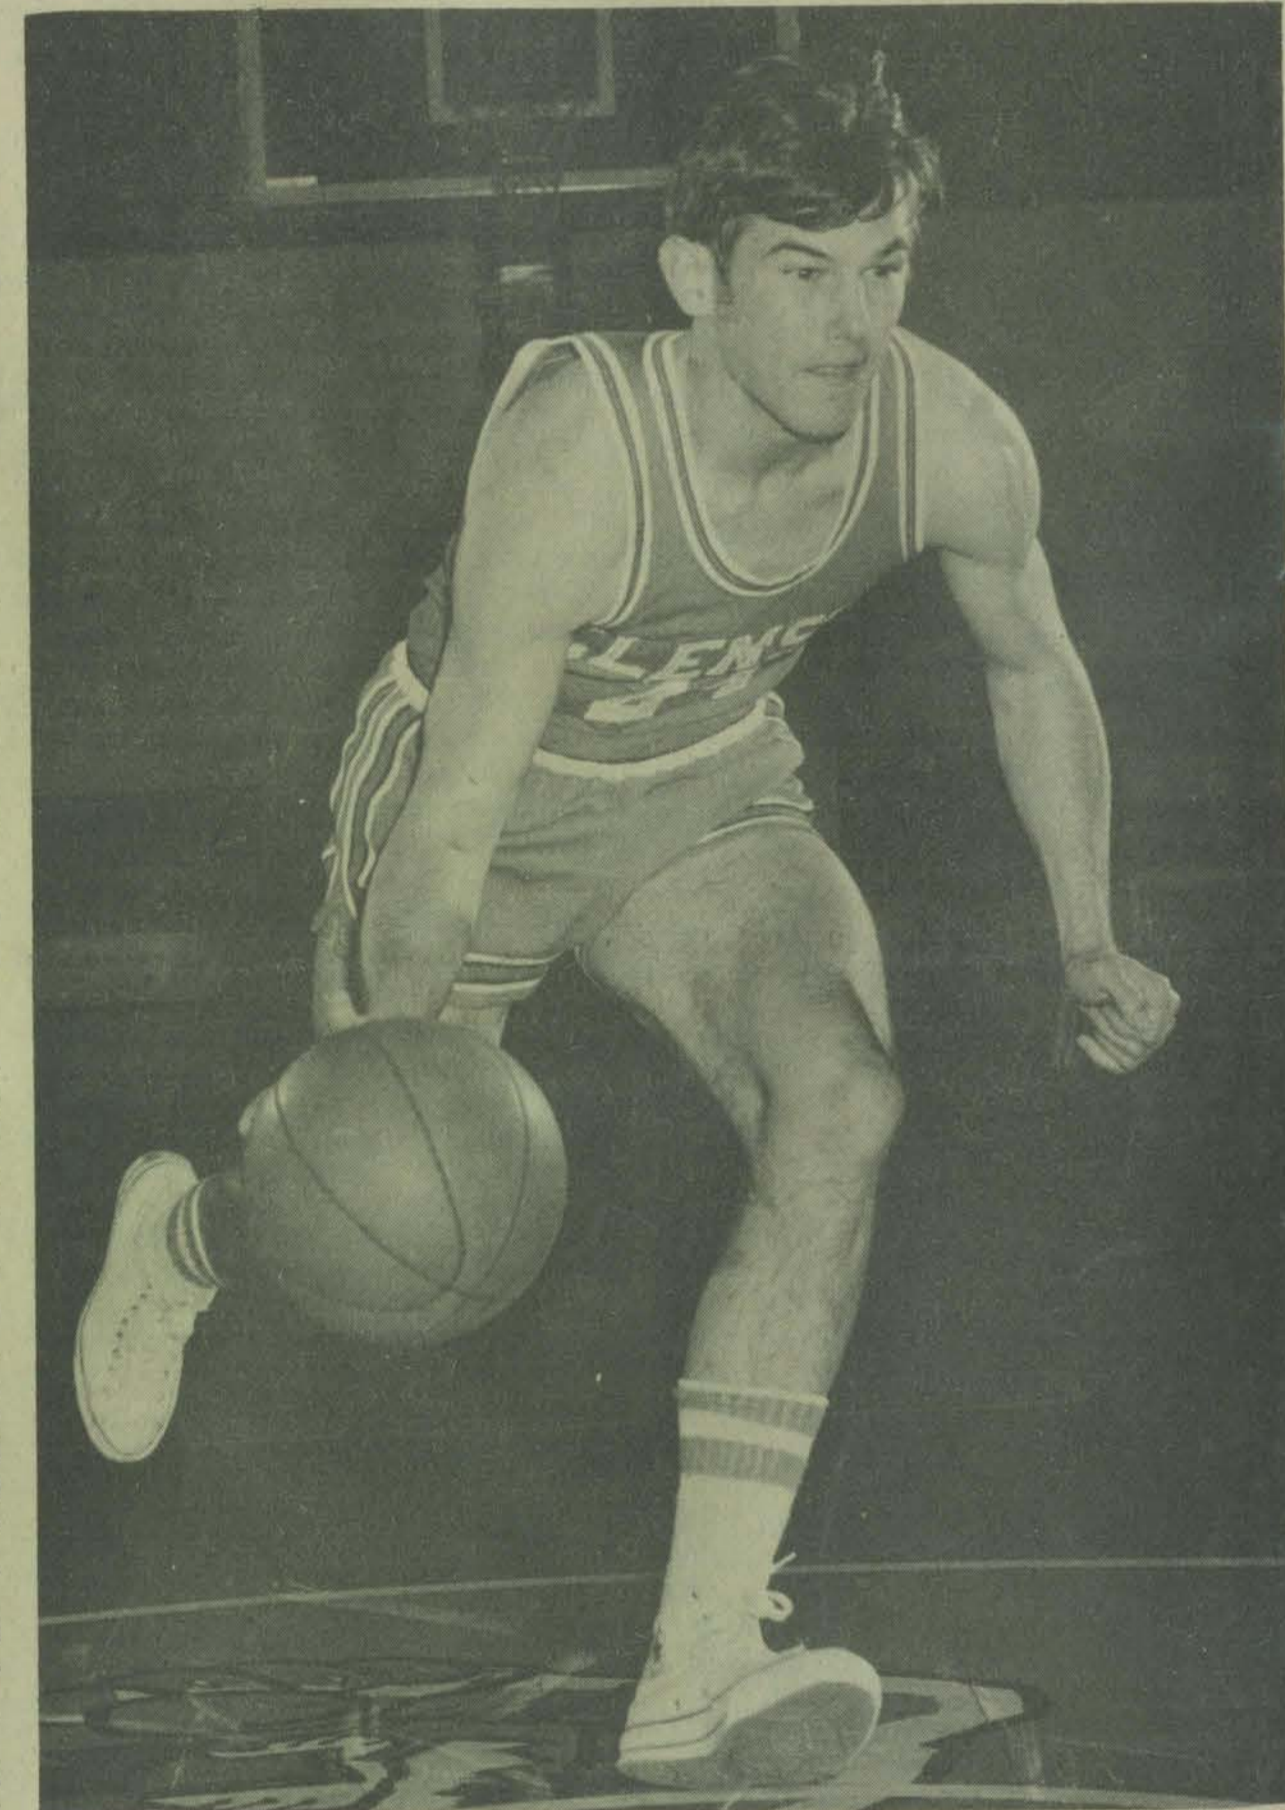

The projected population figures shown below for the five counties in the Big Sandy Area Development District are, in order for the years 1970, 1975, 1980, 1990, 2000 and 2020:

Floyd	35,889	34,577	33,137	29,477	25,076	16,400
Johnson	17,539	17,622	17,713	17,751	17,731	17,666
Magoffin	10,443	10,782	11,380	12,843	14,539	17,981
Martin	9,377	8,353	9,395	9,404	9,288	8,608
Pike	61,059	60,723	60,102	57,879	54,120	43,663

The Big Sandy district as a whole is projected to drop from a total 1970 population of 134,307 to 104,318 in 2020.

Other development districts projected to lose population are Buffalo Trace in northern Kentucky and Kentucky River. Statewide, the population is projected to rise from its present 3,218,745 to 5,757,634.

Depended Upon by Clemson

Bud Martin, senior guard from Wayland, is one of the returning starters for Clemson University's varsity basketball team this season. Last season Clemson's Most Valuable Player, he is described as "a tremendous defensive player who consistently held down all the Atlantic Coastal Conference high-scoring guards last year." He and a bumper crop of freshman talent, the returning starters and a group of talented transfers have Clemson fans excited as the team prepares to make a real run at the ACC title. Martin is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Mabrey Martin, of Wayland.

Home Ec Teachers To Attend Meeting

Home economics teachers from the region will attend a conference at General Electric Company's Consumers Institute, Appliance Park in Louisville, November 9-10.

The program, jointly sponsored by GE and Kentucky Power Company, combines instruction and demonstration of features of the five major appliances provided without charge to the schools by Kentucky Power. The five appliances are range, washer, dryer, dishwasher and refrigerator-freezer.

Cats Lose Last Game of Season To Old Rivals, Paintsville Tigers

By MARK LAFFERTY
 The football season for the Prestonsburg Blackcats came to a close last Friday as they were routed, 30-6, by arch-rival Paintsville. The Cats finished the season with a record of seven wins and four losses. The Blackcats ran into misfortune early in the first quarter when they had the game's first touchdown called back on a holding penalty. After this the Cats never regained their momentum. The Tigers picked up the lost tempo as Runyon scored from 55 yards away for a quick 7-0 lead. Paintsville completed the scoring in the first half with "P-Nut" Lemaster scoring on a 22-yard pass and a 55-yard punt return.

 The Blackcats played on even terms with the Tigers the second half as both quarterbacks scored for each team. Paintsville's score was by Ward from nine yards out. The Blackcat quarterback, Jim Blackburn, scored the Cat's only touchdown from the 15 yard line. Neither team scored in the fourth quarter.
 The Blackcats will graduate 20 seniors this year from their largest squad in recent years.

And Now for Basketball— New Coach Ponders Situation

By MARK LAFFERTY
 The cheers of the football season that awakened the outdoor echo now are to ring indoors as basketball takes over.
 Many teams have been practicing for a few weeks and are hopefully prepared for the opening of the season that comes for most teams this week.
 At Prestonsburg a warm-up for the season will be staged Wednesday night when the PHS faculty take on the All-American Redheads. The Blackcats open their season on the following Friday at home against Millard.

The Blackcats are being guided by new head coach, Fred Setser. Coach Setser is a native of Auxier and played basketball at Prestonsburg high school. For the last two years Mr. Setser has been coaching at Memphis Treadwell in Memphis, Tennessee. Returning with him to his home are his wife, Linda, and 16-month-old son, Bryan.

Upon returning here Coach Setser said, "To return home to coach would be very satisfying and challenging." He has been practicing with this year's squad for a few weeks now.

Coach Setser feels that he has an excellent group of boys to work with. "The attitude of the boys is up 100 percent over recent years," he said. "It's a young team that lacks experience and height, but they work hard at doing the things they're capable of," he commented.

 Setser indicated he would employ the fast break much more than in the past. He feels the team has good speed and shooting ability, although some problems may bob up until he completes his squad with players from the football team.
 The school has initiated an intramural program for boys in high school who are not yet ready for high school competition. This league will play every Saturday morning at the PHS gym. Both coaches and school officials are optimistic about this program.

Six-Year-Old, Twice a Champion

Six-year-old Sheri Mahan, of Lexington, won the titles of "Little Miss Majorette of Kentucky" and "Little State Strutting Champion" in baton competition in Lexington, October 29. In competition only six months, she has won 26 trophies. Her baton teacher is Miss Leigh McCray, of Lexington. Sheri is also a member of the "Lady Bugs," a twirling corps from Lexington that won second place in state competition. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Carl Mahan, both formerly from Floyd county. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. M. C. Mahan, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones, of Betsy Layne. She is the great-granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Tankersley, of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Tommy Robinson, of Betsy Layne.

Consumer Comment

"Good afternoon, I'm working my way through college . . ." Sound familiar? This is one of the oldest and most frequently used pitches by con-men and women selling magazine subscriptions.

This approach is prevalent in door-to-door sales where the pitch may vary from the "Poor College Boy" to the "Out-of-Work Father," but the intent is the same—to overcome your sales resistance by playing upon your sympathy.

Although there are many legitimate door-to-door salesmen and saleswomen, there are many professional swindlers operating in the same manner. Organized crews are trained to sell sob stories. Once you sign, they move on to the next town.

However, a recently passed bill now helps protect the consumer by making it mandatory for the salesman of printed material to register with the local Chamber of Commerce of Sheriff's office before selling in a community. This bill protects the consumer in two ways.

First, it provides a means by which the salesman and his company can be identified.

Second, it makes all orders or contracts for magazines, periodicals, encyclopedias, books, Bibles or other printed matter or material void and unenforceable at the option of the consumer if the salesman does not register with the stated authorities.

Kentucky residents who have consumer complaints or problems are invited to call the Consumer Hotline, toll-free, at 1-800-372-2967.

What To Do in November

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD UK College of Agriculture

LEXINGTON, KY.—November, which Henry David Thoreau called the "twilight month" and the early Saxons, the "wind month," is a time when all nature seems to be holding its breath in anticipation of the arrival of turbulent winter.

Harvesting season is over, crops are secure in the barn, fruits from the orchard are packed away, and most farm and garden activities are at a standstill. This is the month in which country people once yearned for the snows to come so they might feel the fatness and the comfort of their long preparation for winter.

But if time hangs heavy after a busy summer, there are still some things that can be done with profit in November. Late falling leaves can be raked from the lawn and composted before they freeze. Turnips can be pulled and holed up in the garden or stored in boxes of sand. If stored by the latter manner, they could be kept in a room that will maintain a temperature of between 33 and 40 degrees. Also it is well to bring in some garden soil for potting plants and sowing seeds later in the winter.

If dahlia tubers haven't already been dug up and stored, this will be about the last chance to complete the job. Do not, however, pull them up by the stems. Instead, dig the tubers with a hoe or potato fork. If dahlia stems are broken off too near the roots, the tubers will not sprout and grow when planted next spring.

Then if there are young fruit trees around the place, it is also a good idea to wrap the trunks with burlap or wire mesh. This will prevent them from being girdled by hungry rabbits that depend upon young tree bark for food during the time of deep winter snows. Since field mice are not above digging down and gnawing bark from the roots of young fruit trees, it will be well, while wrapping the trunks, to rake away any mulch that may be around them. Mice love to burrow down in soil made softer by layers of mulch.

The slowdown in November is a good time to round up lawn and garden tools and equipment and move them into a shelter where they will be handy come springtime. If any of the equipment, especially lawn mowers and rototillers, needs repairing, now is the best time to do it or have it done. Later in the winter it may be too cold to work outside on this machinery; early in the spring, times may be too busy. Get this job done now.

There are other things that can be done around the place, but after a busy spring, summer, early fall getting ready for winter, the month shouldn't be devoted entirely to work. While November has also been referred to as the "melancholy month," it is not without attractions. Many find the hazy mystical days of Indian Summer the most delightful season of the year. The advice is that when these halcyon days appear, drop everything, get out, and enjoy them.

State Veterinarian Tom Maddox says Kentucky is once again free of hog cholera. Maddox said he believes the state's recent hog cholera epidemic is over. Kentucky will attain "hog cholera free" status again in six months if there are no further outbreaks of the disease.
