

Near-complete Highlands Regional Hospital

Perkins, Others Scheduled For Med Center Dedication

Open House To Follow Dedication

Residents of Floyd and neighboring counties will have an opportunity Sunday afternoon to inspect the new Highlands Regional Medical Center near here toward the construction of which they themselves subscribed approximately $150,000 before construction was begun.

The new medical center will be dedicated in ceremonies beginning at 2 p.m., Sunday, and it will remain open to the public until 5 p.m. for inspection tours to be conducted by the staff members and auxiliary workers.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins, whose work in Washington is credited with making financing of the $5.6 million project possible, will head the group of speakers during the dedication program. Dr. George P. Archer, chairman of the hospital board, will preside. Others who will speak briefly are Dr. W. P. McIlwain, Kentucky commissioner of health; William W. Blunt, Jr., Washington, D. C., deputy assistant secretary, Economic Development Administration, and the Rev. Milton E. Skiff, of Lisbon, N. Y., who headed the drive for local financial support of the new hospital while he was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here.

The act of dedication will be conducted by the Rev. Howard Coop, pastor of the First Methodist Church here, Robert Nolan, representative of Nolan & Nolan, Louisville architects who designed the structure, will present the keys to the medical center to its administrator, Chalmers H. Frazier. Closing remarks will be made by Mr. Frazier. The invocation will be by the Rev. W. D. Jagers, pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, the benediction, by the Rev. William Thomas, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

The Economic Development Administration (EDA), which financed a major portion of the cost of the center, will

Officers Report Armed Robbery, Liquor Arrests

Arrest of one man on an armed robbery charge and three others on liquor counts featured the activities of peace officers within the week.

Bennie Red McCoy, of Little Paint, was jailed here Monday by State Trooper Phillip Tucker on a warrant in which Billy Ray Blanton accused him of taking $62 from Blanton at gun point. Bond of $2,000 was required until Nov. 30 when hearing is scheduled in quarterly court.

Two of the liquor arrests resulted from raids on as many veterans' clubs. In the first of these, which was staged at the VFW Club here last Wednesday, 60 cases of beer and a small quantity of whiskey were confiscated by Policemen Campbell and Conley from the club building and from a truck operated by Philman Caudill, of Left Beaver Creek. In the other, 1032 cans of beer were taken Saturday night from the AMVETS Club at Martin by ABC Agent Arvel Nelson and State Troopers Danny Stumbo and Dennis Williamson. Ernest G. Burchett was arrested as operator of the club.

The third liquor arrest was that of Billy Gene McCoy, of Little Paint, who was jailed here last Thursday by ABC Agents Nelson and Van.

McCoy was booked to Magistrate Wells' court and Burchett to county court. The VFW club pleaded guilty to a possession charge in police court here and was fined $100. It is appealing the verdict to circuit court. Apparently, the club was not occupied at the time of the raid. The officers reportedly saw the beer Caudill had unloaded into the club, then procured a search warrant. Caudill's $200 bond was posted in cash by Clarence Martin, of McDowell, and his trial in police court was docketed for Nov. 30.

Charles P. Keathley, who was accused last week of breaking and entering a Mud Creek service station, was jailed again after his release under bond on that charge. His return to jail was made by Parole Officer William Conn and Deputy Sheriff Virgil Conn. He was booked as a parole violator.

Roger Dale Barnette and David Lee Grigsby were arrested last week on warrants charging pandering and contributing to the delinquency of a juvenile. Each was placed under $500 bond for their quarterly court appearance.

Others booked at the county jail within the week, charges against each and names of arresting officers follow:

Billy Calhoun, drunk driving, by State Trooper Gary Rose; James Postum, reckless driving, by Trooper Rose; Ralph Collins, operating a place of entertainment without license, by Deputy Sheriffs Dexter Hamilton and Ralph Howell; Orville Ray Runyon, drunk driving by State Troopers Stumbo and Estep.

Court Action Stays Change In Old Road

Highway construction work which would in any way change the old county road on Katy Friend Branch of Middle Creek, in the vicinity of the junction of the new four-lane US 23 and the Mountain Parkway (KY 114) at the mouth of Katy Friend was halted Friday morning by restraining order granted by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley.

The temporary injunction was asked by heirs of the Hiram Harris estate, whose land holdings are on the east side of Katy Friend and which have been served by the old county road. Two other property-owners, Wayne McCarty and Donald Stambaugh, joined in the suit.

Named as defendants in the action are the Commonwealth of Kentucky, the Department of Highways, Dr. Geroge P. Archer, Edward C. Music, Archer-Music Enterprises, Inc., Tommy Ruth and the Kentucky Road Oiling Company, contractor on US 23 construction.

Pointing out that the highway department plans called for an access by which all the plaintiffs could reach the Mountain Parkway, the complaint asking a restraining order contends that Tommy Ruth and the Kentucky Road Oiling Company, acting under purported orders of the Department of Highways and at the instance and direction of Dr. Archer and Mr. Music, are attempting to alter the old road in such a way that plaintiffs will have no access to the Mountain Parkway and that their property will, in effect, be taken without any compensation. They also allege that the "sole and real" purpose for the attempt to alter the road is to improve property owned by Archer, Music and Ruth.

Plaintiffs also point out that the old county road has been in use more than 50 years and that the Floyd fiscal court has never entered an order authorizing its closing or alteration. Some of the road has

Pike Youth Held, Named in Holdup

A 15-year-old Pike county youth was jailed here Monday by State Det. Lt. Chester D. Potter on an armed robbery charge after he had allegedly drawn a revolver on a Pippa Passes woman and forced her to give him the keys to her car.

The alleged robbery took place Monday afternoon after Mrs. Sarah Patterson had inquired of the youth the whereabouts of a doctor's office at Allen where she had an appointment, according to officers. The boy told her he could direct her, entered her car and told her to drive up US 23 toward Betsy Layne.

On arriving at the Kentucky Oil & Refining bulk plant, near Betsy Layne, she stopped to ask directions and removed her car keys. It was then, state police said, that the youth drew a gun demanded the keys.

The plucky Mrs. Patterson is quoted as having retorted, "I don't think you know how to use that gun."

The juvenile then fired two shots through the counter of the service station and Mrs. Patterson, at the urging of a station attendant, surrendered the keys. The boy drove away.

The Patterson car was found about two miles from the gas station, and the youth was arrested at his parents' home.

County's Human Resources Group Names Officers

The Floyd County Human Resources Committee held its organizational meeting at the TCT Restaurant here last Wednesday it was announced by Dr. George P. Archer, Big Sandy Area Development District board chairman.

The committee will serve as the center for collecting, reviewing, recommending, and evaluating all local proposals for human services. The proposals are then submitted to the Big Sandy Human Resource Council and the Big Sandy ADD Board for additional comments before final submission to the funding agency. State agencies seeking to start local projects have also been asked to channel them through the appropriate Human Resource Committee.

Planned to provide a positive means for "grass-roots" comments on all local and regional projects, it hopefully will prevent unnecessary duplication and overlapping of services by all agencies.

Mrs. Patsy R. Johnson, Big Sandy ADD Human Resource planner, conducted the business session in which Gene Wright, of Prestonsburg, was elected chairman; Merlin Crum, Martin, vice-chairman, and Carolyn H. Francis, Prestonsburg, secretary. Mr. Wright, Irvin Stumbo, of

Dewey Next?—Pound Dead, Fishtrap Dying

A Floyd county man who is credited with being the one individual most responsible for prodding the U. S. Corps of Engineers into action in an attempt to save Fishtrap Reservoir in Pike county from death by siltation says Dewey Lake is also doomed unless immediate action is taken.

Bradis Goble, of Sugar Loaf, near here, retired ranger for the Corps of Engineers, said this of the lake:

"I'm really worried about Dewey, because of the new strip mines moving into the John Creek reservoir area. What has happened to Fishtrap will surely happen to Dewey unless immediate action is taken."

The Courier-Journal in a recent feature by David Stevens, staff writer, claimed that in the Big Sandy river basin Pound Reservoir is already dead of acid-water pollution, Fishtrap is dying of coal-laden silt, and that both John Flannagan and Dewey face potential trouble.

This Town . . . That World

It's Thanksgiving time but uptown it looks like Christmas. Beautiful.

Thanksgiving is a great day. Every day would be great if we used it to give thanks.

ROOM FOR DOUBT

The earliest of the Christmas stories heard this year has to do with the old gent who received a box of two-for stogies, every Christmas, and was duly thankful. Then came the Christmas morning when Gramps opened his gift and it was only a corn-cob (Arkansas meerchaum) pipe.

Grandpa eyed the gift, then eyed the relatives. Finally he unlimbered his tongue and quavered:

"I hate to say it at my age, but I'm beginnin' to doubt, after all, if there's a Santa Claus."

2 Projects May Share U.S. Funds Courthouse Repair, Solid Waste Plan Have Top Priority

How much Floyd county will receive from federal revenue sharing remains in the unknown quantity category, but whatever the amount is it may be expended on two projects.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said last week he will recommend to the fiscal court that the funds be spent on getting the county's solid waste disposal system working and on repairs of the courthouse which continues to suffer rain damage from leaky roof.

Repair of the courthouse must be done, he said, and he considers the waste disposal system a top priority. A suit has been filed by the fiscal court against Akers & Akers, contractors on construction of the courthouse, in an effort to fix the responsibility of the sub-contractors on the roofing job, but the case has not been heard in circuit court and the condition of the roof won't wait.

Spindletop's solid waste disposal study has been completed, but its final report to the fiscal court will not be made till Dec. 8. Advertising of waste collection franchises may be expected soon after that date.

Full details of the waste collection plan will not be known until Spindletop's report is made. Joseph E. McCauley, executive director of the Big Sandy Area Development District, said last week that Pike county's pilot waste disposal program has been fully developed by Spindletop and that bids have already been asked on franchising collection services. He said the Pike system should be in operation within a month.

Witnesses Reported Missing As Trials Ready To Begin Here

Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said Monday that two of the state's prime witnesses in the cases of Floyd deputy sheriffs and others whose trials were slated for the following day had disappeared and their whereabouts at that time were unknown.

The missing witnesses, he said, are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shepherd, of Mud Creek.

The cases docketed for Tuesday hearing are those of Roy Branham, accused of attempting to bribe a public official, and Deputy Sheriffs Virgil Conn, Dexter Hamilton and Ralph Howell on charges of malfeasance.

The malfeasance trial of Sheriff Frank Leslie has been continued to the January term of court.

Stumbo expressed confidence the two witnesses will be located, although it may require some time. Eddie Jones, who has been sought to answer robbery and rape charges, was captured Saturday in Indiana by FBI agents, he reported, and James Lee Hall, a material witness in the armed robbery case of Johnny Martin and a similar case against Eddie Jones was arrested at Estill last Friday by County Detective Sam Hale and State Detective Lt. Chester D. Potter. He was placed under $1,000 bond for his appearance Nov. 28 for the Martin trial. Jones' trial will be held later.

The trial of Mont Robinette, West Prestonsburg man who is charged with murder in the gunshot death of his wife, Laura, is scheduled for next Monday but his attorney has filed a motion for the court to order the body of Mrs. Robinette to be exhumed. This move was interpreted as indicating that the defense hopes to show that Mrs. Robinette was hit by a bullet from a gun other than that of her husband. If sufficient reason is shown, the body may be exhumed, it was said Monday.

Five defendants entered pleas of guilty Monday morning, and four of the five drew one-year pen terms. The four and charges on which they were convicted are Johnny Ray Collins, breaking and entering the Spruce Pine school; Johnny Perkins, knowingly receiving stolen property; Davie Hall and William Franklin Burke, grand larceny. The fifth, Leonard Anderson, was sentenced to six months in the county jail after he had pleaded guilty to an assault and battery charge.

Alvis Randall Frazier was convicted last Wednesday on a robbery charge and was sentenced to two years in the state reformatory. L. P. Montgomery was held not

The Corps of Engineers has tightened up on mining in the Fishtrap watershed and has gone into U. S. district court against one coal company. But one of its spokesmen has admitted that the plight of the lake may be hopeless.

Meanwhile, in the Johns Creek watershed, upstream from Dewey Lake, numerous surface mines are operating. A Jenny Wiley State Park Manager said, more than a year ago, that he personally counted 60 such mines in the Johns Creek watershed.

A Corps of Engineers spokesman told The Times, a few months ago, that there was no evidence of Dewey Lake siltation. If there has been any serious study of the situation there, it has not been publicized. The stream and the lake created by its damming are murky to muddy without heavy rainfall.

Goble, the retired ranger, bought for the Corps of Engineers most of the land acquired for Fishtrap Reservoir. He said that when he returned to the lake as a ranger two years ago he found mine roads to mines on almost every hill.

"It's the most degraded lake in the country," he said of Fishtrap.

The dams creating the four lakes were built as flood control projects at a cost of $83 million.

Meeting Houses Familiar Part Of Knott Scene

This open-style "meeting house" in Knott county, south of Wayland, may, for all its attractiveness, await warmer days before it again is used.

A structure which may be distinctly Appalachian, it is found in some sections of Eastern Kentucky on the grounds of family cemeteries.

Fairly common in parts of Knott and Letcher counties, these buildings are usually constructed in rectangular fashion of wood, are roofed but open at the sides. The meeting place and cemetery are enclosed by a wooden fence.

In a sense "all-weather," they may be used for funeral services for a deceased family member, despite foul weather, but their use is mainly seasonal—usually when the winds that blow through the latticework are balmy.

Their primary purpose seems to be to serve as a location for the yearly memorial service commonly held by some families. At these ceremonies, family members and kin gather, many travelling from places like Ohio, Michigan, and Indiana, to honor all those buried on the grounds, some dead 50 years or longer.

Floyd School Bands Among Those Asked To Pike Homecoming

Bands from Floyd and three other counties have been invited to participate in the annual homecoming activities at Pikeville College, Saturday, December 16, according to Mary Lou Vipperman, chairwoman of the homecoming committee. Other bands invited are from Johnson, and Letcher counties in Kentucky, and Mingo county in West Virginia.

Miss Vipperman said that trophies will be awarded for best playing band, best marching band, best field commander and best majorette corps.

This year's homecoming activities center around the game between Pikeville College and Northwood of Indiana. The game will be played at the college gym at 4 p.m. During half-time, the homecoming queen will be crowned by Dr. and Mrs. Robert S. Cope, Scott Purdum, president of the Student Government Association, and last year's queen, Mrs. C. J. Wilson.

Homecoming activities conclude with a dance for alumni, students, faculty, and administration.

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky hunters, as a group, are well known for their marksmanship abilities. As individuals they are apparently not only "sharp shooters" but relatively "safe" hunters, too, since Fish and Wildlife Resources records show only 11 fatalities attributable to hunting during the 1971 season.

And there were some 275,000 licensed hunters afield in Kentucky last year. But although 11 fatal accidents seems low when compared to the total number of hunters, there is no such thing as an acceptable fatal accident record unless it is zero.

There are a number of ways by which gun safety experts feel the likelihood of accidents can be reduced and at the top of the list is plain old common sense.

Firearms, like all mechanical devices, should be kept in top condition so there will be no trouble with the weapon itself. The attitude of the hunter is a prime consideration, too, and gun safety must be uppermost in his mind.

Then there are the 10 Commandments of Gun Safety which, if followed by every hunter, would go a long way toward eliminating accidents.

- The Commandments are:
1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun.
  2. Guns carried into camp or home, or when otherwise not in use, must always be unloaded, and taken down or have actions open; guns always should be carried in cases to shooting area.
  3. Always be sure barrel and action are clear of obstructions, and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying. Remove oil and grease from chamber before firing.
  4. Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle even if you stumble; keep the safety on until you are ready to shoot.

5. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger; know the identifying features of the game you intend to hunt.

6. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; avoid all horseplay while handling a gun.

7. Unattended guns should be unloaded; guns and ammunition should be stored separately beyond reach of children and careless adults.

8. Never climb a tree or fence or jump a ditch with a loaded gun; never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.

9. Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or the surface of water; when at target practice, be sure your backstop is adequate.

10. Avoid alcoholic drinks before or during shooting.

Snow In Kentucky? Wait Till December

Lexington, Ky.—Whether talk of snow reminds you of sledding or skidding, there's not much cause for concern here in Kentucky until December.

The average time of the first snowfall totalling 1-inch or more over a 24-hour period is mid-December for the eastern half of Kentucky and late December for the rest of the state. This information, based on snowfall records kept for more than 50 years, comes from A. B. Elam, Jr., climatologist for Kentucky at the National Weather Service Office, University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The exception to this is southeast Kentucky, where 1-inch snows come earlier at higher elevations. In the Cumberland-Benham area (elevation about 1,500 feet), the average date is November 26.

Of course, you may see some snow before then—these dates are just averages, Elam points out. In fact, snow flurries have already been spotted in parts of central and northeastern Kentucky, although no 1-inch depths were reported (Lexington had the earliest measurable snowfall on record in the early morning hours of Oct. 19, 1972) and last year, most sections of the state had snow on November 23-24, with total accumulations ranging from just a trace to as much as 5 inches.

However, the odds are against snow on the ground in November in most areas of Kentucky, he continues. For example, in Lexington, there's a 30 percent chance of a 1-inch snow before December 2, a 50 percent chance before December 15, and a 90 percent chance before January 19. In other words, the first 1-inch, 24-hour snowfall at Lexington will occur—on the average—once in three years before December 2 and in 9 out of 10 years before January 19, with December 15 the average date for such a snow.

The goal of the President's Veteran's Program directed by the U. S. Department of Labor is to place 1,371,000 Vietnam-era veterans in jobs or training during the year ending June 30, 1973.

Lonesome Pine Council Growth In Scouting Tops in Southeast

Lonesome Pine Council leads all councils in the Southeast Region of the Boy Scouts of America in percentage of gain in boys and units, according to E. M. Bane, president of the council.

Bane, a Grundy, Va. coal operator, said that the Lonesome Pine Council has recorded a 39 percent increase in Cub packs, Scout troops and Explorer posts and a whopping 53.8 percent increase in boy members over one year ago. This, according to the council president, is more than double the membership gain of any other council in the Southeast Region.

Lonesome Pine Council ended the month of October with 2,598 boy members in 128 Scouting units, serving boys in Buchanan, Wise and Dickenson counties in Virginia and Pike, Floyd, Letcher, Leslie, Perry, Knott, Breathitt, McGoffin, Johnson and Martin counties in Kentucky.

The Southeast Region of the Boy Scouts of America covers 12 states in the Southeastern part of the United States.

"The beautiful thing about this membership gain is that it is spread throughout the council," Bane said. "Every district is showing a large gain in membership and it should be even larger before the end of the year."

When asked what he attributed the phenomenal growth to, Bane replied, "There are many factors. First we have a good professional staff; second, we have many hard-working volunteers in each district, and, third, we have been able to organize many units in the schools. This makes Scouting available to many country boys who could not attend evening meetings."

HOBSON-CAMPBELL

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hobson, of Orkney, Ky., announce the engagement of their daughter, Sharon Rose, to Mr. Eddie Campbell, son of Mrs. Bobby Sue Campbell, of McDowell, and Mr. Edd Campbell, of Mousie, Ky.

Wedding plans are incomplete at this time.

Least Number Fires Recorded This Fall

A total of three forest fires have been recorded thus far for the fire prevention unit which includes all of Floyd and Magoffin counties, making this fall the lightest fire season in the unit's history, Douglas Robinson, unit ranger, said last week.

Robinson said the fires, two of which occurred in Floyd county, affected only 14 acres of forest land. He attributed this outstanding record to favorable weather conditions and good fire prevention practices by the people of this unit.

Hospital Adds Two Doctors to Staff

Two new doctors recently joined the medical staff of Our Lady of the Way Hospital. They are Dr. James Squire and Dr. Elinor Graham. Both are highly qualified pediatricians and will be working at Our Lady of the Way on Thursdays and Saturdays, holding clinics for adult patients as well as children.

Said a hospital spokesman: "The hospital is happy to have the new doctors on its staff and hopes that now since these two doctors, along with Dr. Grady Stumbo, have joined the staff working in its clinic, patients will be able to experience another improvement in the services Our Lady of the Way has offered to the Floyd county community during its 25-year history."

Due to the addition of the new doctors to the Medical Staff, Our Lady of the Way now operates a clinic Monday through Saturday.

The earliest authenticated strike of workers in the United States in a single trade occurred when Philadelphia printers gained a minimum wage of $6 a week in 1786.

Don't Make It a Death-Watch

Pound Reservoir, we are told, is dead—poisoned by acid. Fishtrap Reservoir is dying—choking to death on silt. Dewey Lake is threatened with the same fate.

After Pound died, the killer was named and the U. S. Corps of Engineers took action. Now that Fishtrap is literally "black in the face" as it chokes on coal-laden silt, the Engineers have again become concerned and have haled at least one alleged "assailant" into court.

That's doing Pound no good, and there's a strong suspicion that the failure of the Corps of Engineers to remember the truth of the adage about the ounce of prevention will mean no cure for Fishtrap.

These same Engineers and everybody else with the power to do something apparently learn slowly. With their experience at Pound and Fishtrap, they're doing nothing at Dewey except, as they say, to "keep an eye on the situation." That is to say, watching the patient till he is in extremis before attempting a cure.

One Floyd county man, Bradis Goble, is credited with opening official eyes to the Fishtrap situation. This newspaper has for a long time now warned of what is happening at Dewey, one of the most beautiful bodies of water in a state of many waters. But apparently we do not sound off on the wavelength used by the Corps of Engineers and the environmental people at Frankfort.

Will somebody to whom they'll listen say it, then, loud and clear—"Don't sit and watch Dewey choke till it's a death-watch!"

LETTERS To the Editor

Plea for Calvary College

Editor, The Times:

In behalf of Calvary College I make this sincere plea to everyone who reads this paper, Christians and non-Christians, to give a love gift to Calvary College, that it can stay and train Christians for tomorrow for our young people are tomorrow's Christians. Don't hold back because you may not have very much to give, for God honors little things, for little is much when God is in it, and much is nothing if He isn't there, and if He keeps His eye on the sparrow we can be sure for us He cares. Everyone can give something, for God gave everyone something to give when He gave us Jesus, the unspeakable gift, and this is a wonderful season of the year to give, and give thanks to God that you have something to give. And, most of all, we need to pray for Calvary College, for nothing will work without prayer and there is no energy crisis in prayer or in God's Divine love. We are supposed to be knit together in Christian love, and laborers together with Him, for His coming kingdom and that's what you call "Christian Togetherness." And there is no distance in prayer, and there are no small gifts if it comes from a big heart. Will you please make this a matter of prayer and then make your checks or money order payable to Calvary College, Letcher, Ky.?

In Jesus name for the poor.

SAYS TRAILER PARK BUILDING BOGGED DOWN BY RED TAPE

Editor, The Times:

All applications since July 1, 72 for the building of mobile home parks in Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Martin, and McGoffin counties have been disapproved by the State Dept. of Health, according to Norman Hedrick, plumbing insp., for the five county area. This includes my application for a three unit mobile Home park at Phyllis, Ky.

A new law affecting mobile home parks was passed and had an effective date of July 1, 72. The law itself is general in outline so the law specifies that the specific regulations for the enforcement of the law is left to the agency responsible for enforcement.

The point is that it takes some time for the regulations to be approved. As of this date, Nov. 6, 72, I assume that only a tentative draft of the regulations are available to the public, as on my inquiry to the office of Gov. Wendell Ford, only a tentative draft (MRP-1, RE: Mobile Home Parks) was furnished by the Board of Health for him to send to me. This tentative draft carried no effective date.

I formally applied for a building permit at Pikeville Health Dept. on Sept. 26, 72. Since I could not get any satisfaction on when or if my application would be acted upon, I wrote a letter of protest to Gov. Ford on Oct. 23.

My application which could have been mailed from Pikeville office to Frankfort on Oct. 4, 72 was received in Frankfort Oct. 11, 72. The Plumbing Program had approved my application by Oct. 13 and the Div. of Sanitary Eng. by Oct. 25. By Oct. 30, 72 (the date of the Governor's letter to me) the Div. of Environmental Services could advise the Governor that my plans did not meet regulations due to failure to meet new lot sizes of the "Revised Regulations" of Oct. 1, 72. Above information is from the Governor's letter. As of Nov. 6, my disapproved application has not been returned to Pikeville. I still do not have the revised regulations of Oct. 1, 72, which was mentioned by the Governor, only a tentative draft with no effective date.

Presumably the law, as far as mobile home parks are concerned, has been bogged down since July 1, 72. As of the date my application was in local office Sept. 26 to Oct. 4, the people (Norman Hedrick and Bruce Francisco) of the local Health Dept. did not know the effective date of the new law. Now the local Dept. will tell you the effective date is July 1, 72, but the Governor advises by the Frankfort Office, says the effective date is Oct. 1, 72.

If the effective date is Oct. 1, as the Governor advises, then why is my application dated Sept. 26, 72 being disapproved due to not meeting new regulations? Why has all the mobile Home Park applications for this area been disapproved since July 1, 72, a total of 15 for this local area in the last three weeks.

What is the current effective law? Nobody, not even the Governor, has cited any proof of the effective date, only a tentative draft. The effective date cited by the local office, July 1, seems unreasonable since the regulation could not have been written by then. Is the disapproval of a permit to be based on the date of filing an application on some other basis? If the State Health Dept. holds your application for four months, can the authorities then say, "Look, this application doesn't meet the current regulations?"

I have been advised by two master plumbers that it takes sometimes three months and more to get a construction permit for a mobile home park. These plumbers, needless to say, are reluctant to get involved in such massive red tape. Construction of mobile home parks is bogged down here in these mountains at the very time that the State is dislocating people by road building. The State Highway Dept. is seeking to find housing for those displaced. The State Health Dept. is bogged down in its own red tape.

Frontier Christmas In Kentucky

Washington, Kentucky, the first town in the United States to be named for President George, will again celebrate a "Frontier Christmas." The town is being restored to the way it looked in the 1700's, when Simon Kenton and Daniel Boone surveyed its land. This year's Frontier Christmas will be a two-day open house celebration, December 2 and 3. It is now an annual event, with decorations and activities as they would have been in 1790, two years before Kentucky became a state.

"Frontier Christmas in Kentucky" is notable for the throngs of people walking through the six buildings now restored and watching the ancient art of arrow making and various other crafts. These include candlemaking, broom making, weaving, quilting, woodcarving, handbasketry, and in addition, the art of portrait painting.

The Valley Bowhunters will be making their own arrows on Saturday, which they will shoot next day during their marksmanship exhibition, to be staged at 2 p.m. Sunday afternoon.

As a result of its location, just south of the Ohio River (in present-day Mason county, southwest of Maysville), Washington was a main stop for westbound settlers. Travelers left the Ohio River at Limestone Landing and traveled four miles south to Washington, where they were safe from attack by the savage Indians of Southern Ohio. Travelers could bring their homes with them down the Ohio and settle in Washington. Meffords Fort, believed to be one of the last existing flatboat houses in the nation, is now restored and open to visitors.

Both Saturday and Sunday, country ham, transparent pie and other home-cooked food will be on sale.

At 4:30 Sunday afternoon, December 3, all the bells in the village will ring, calling visitors to a candle vespers service in the old church museum. The Mason county Men's Chorus will sing spirituals. The congregation will join in traditional Christmas carols, to bring Washington's tourist season to a close.

Washington's restored buildings are open daily from Mary through Labor Day and week-ends only until December 1. Prospective visitors can contact the Cane Brake Shop, Washington, Kentucky 41096, for special tours.

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D

"What Is My Fortune?"

In the very early days of this column, a very sincere elderly lady wrote me to tell what the future held for her. In one of my early articles I had listed some folkish ways by which one can determine what is to be one's life, as to matrimony, wealth, and success. I had said a number of tongue-in-cheek things as if they were gospel truth. And this dear old soul took me literally; I cannot recall what I said in reply to her letter; the only thing I remember is that, once as I was driving to a very cultured community to deliver an address, one of the students accompanying me said that the seeker after my version of what would happen to her lived in the very community where we were going, that she belonged to an excellent family, and that I would be wise not to mention this request of the quaint old lady. Needless to say, I avoided this subject and have now even forgotten the county or the town concerned.

Back in 1935 I was in no way a prophet, a fortune-teller; I have not improved with age, unless it is knowing how hard it would have been, at any time of my life, for me or any other honest person to prophesy what would have happened by now or what is still in the future. The only safe prophesy would have been that lots of things would happen, most of them unpredictable. Nearly forty years ago, when I was being asked to tell a fortune, imagine my even suspecting the many, many changes that have occurred in that time.

In 1935, when this column started, who could have believed that four years later Germany would have been defying the world, that in 1941 we would have been drawn into the world-wide struggle? Who could have guessed the many changes in finance, in business, in basic governmental machinery? In 1935 the horse-and-buggy days were thirty-five years nearer than they now are, and it was not hard to invoke a few tears for the old family nag and the roomy old family buggy. I would be afraid to try now to write about either of these without expecting an accusation of being insincere. In 1925 when I actually first wrote "The Old Family Nag," which was to appear in this column ten years later, I not only could be sincere but actually had to restrain myself a bit to keep from letting my voice break when I spoke of an institution once so well-known and so intimate as the old family nag. And I could go on and on, showing how hopeless as a prophet I would have been. And I certainly would be no better now. I do not doubt that some person, many years from now, may find some yellowing old newspaper with one of my columns in it and have a wonderful laugh at the quaintness and ancient sound of the very articles in which I have hoped to be most modern, most appreciative of what our folk inheritance is worth to us.

My generation grew up at Fidelity or some similar neighborhood. My children have grown up and are middle-aged, never having lived a day under the actual conditions that I knew at Fidelity. Their children have a way of questioning their grandfather about his childhood as if he had been a contemporary, at least, of George Washington, for what I did and how I acted as a boy seems as remote as any cherry tree episode set down by Mason Weems. It has always been a temptation to older people to defy their own childhood, to imagine that then and only then, were conditions as they should always be. Even though I will be some months past eighty-one when this article appears, I still do not regard my childhood as the Only Time; I just try to recall it as it was, good and bad alike, for it was much mixed up. I was not born as a prophet, I have not acquired prophetic powers, I can only tell the younger generation to find a favorable seat and enjoy watching the procession of life go by, always taking turns to be a part of the show itself. To know too much in advance might spoil the romance of it all, the thrill of living through whole ages of change.

'There Shall Be Light: Bible Society Film

"There Shall Be Light," the new film of the American Bible Society, begins with former Astronaut Frank Borman reading the creation story with which he and his Apollo 8 crew electrified the world as they read from the Bible on Christmas Eve, 1968, while orbiting the moon.

As the surface of the moon passes below the voice of Col. Borman rings out again with the words from the beginning of Genesis:

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth...And God said, Let there be light: and there was light."

Returning to the earth the film presents in colorful animation, rare historic stills, and documentary footage, the never-ceasing efforts of the Society to reach people everywhere with the Scriptures, without doctrinal note or comment, in their own language or dialect.

County Judges Told of Program For State Aid

Deputy Highway Commissioner Otto Ingram said last week the Department of Highways' new Municipal Aid Program (MAP) would offer previously unavailable funds for road and street improvements in the state's unincorporated urban areas and would give some relief to the presently over-burdened County Road Aid Program.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Kentucky County Judges' Association in Louisville, Ingram pointed up Governor Wendell Ford's 1971 gubernatorial campaign promise to lend state aid to Kentucky's urban areas. He said the implementation of the MAP by the Department of Highways was a major step toward fulfilling that promise.

Ingram said MAP would channel funds into unincorporated urban areas with a population of 2,500 or more. Population figures, he said, must be based on the 1970 statistics of the U. S. Bureau of the Census.

In these areas, "county fiscal courts will have the same status as municipal officials," he continued. The fiscal courts will be responsible for administering the program under the Department's supervision.

Referring to counties with limited sources of revenue, Ingram said, "Many counties have been compelled to take some of their small town and village streets into their County Road Aid Program, simply because no other provision had been made for them. The Municipal Aid Program may allow you to eliminate some of these streets since they are eligible for attention from the new program."

"In many counties," he continued, "these village streets have been a substantial charge on the County Road Aid Program. I hope that county government can now be relieved of this cost. This will strengthen your ability to deal with those road problems which are truly county responsibilities."

The current County Road Aid Program is limited in its effectiveness, due to its fixed annual fund appropriation, the rate of inflation and the tendency for the number of miles under the Program to increase each year. Ingram said in an earlier interview that the County Road Aid Program has steadily been able to do less work per mile for these reasons.

Coal-Laden Silt Condemns Lake to Possible Early Death

Coal dust deposits will, if unimpeded, reduce the life of Fishtrap Reservoir in Pike county from a normal 100 to 1,000 years to a mere 34 years, it was testified in U. S. district court at Pikeville last week in the trial of the U. S. government's case against the Kentland-Elkhorn Coal Company.

At the end of 34 years, testimony introduced by the U. S. Corps of Engineers claimed, the $56 million reservoir will be "the finest baseball park in Pike county."

The court sessions saw the presentation of U. S. Corps of Engineers' slides showing what happens when black solids are dumped into creeks and rivers.

A study by the U. S. Engineers on the sedimentation in the Fishtrap reservoir formed the bulk of the government evidence in the case.

U. S. Attorney John Compton, in cooperation with the Corps, filed the suit last month in Lexington, charging the company has violated the 1899 Refuse Act.

The study of the Fishtrap situation, begun in May by a team of Corps biologists, charges that the company has been discharging "black particulate effluent" coal dust and coal particles into the Big Creek, a tributary of the Levisa Fork, which flows into the reservoir at Millard.

This discharge, according to the suit, has destroyed wildlife and damaged the ecological balance of the reservoir formed by the Fishtrap Dam.

The study concludes that the damage is caused by degradation of land situated in the drainage area between the dam station and the lake. The degradation takes the form of both extensive surface and deep mining.

Kimble said the study is not an indictment of surface mining but "the recent increase in surface and auger mining activity in the area has increased devastation."

The study states that coal from the operations is not transferred from one level to another by conventional conveyor equipment, but is "literally dumped over the slope and allowed to slide on the ground surface to the next lower bench level."

Other factors causing land degradation include unstabilized haul roads, almost total lack of any reclamation effort, lack of any timber clearing plan and the lack of an erosion control plan, according to the study.

"After this case, we'll move upstream against every company in the watershed," Kimble said, adding that just about every other company on the Levisa Fork operates in the same manner as the Mouthcard company.

Two other companies in the Fishtrap watershed have already been referred to the U. S. attorney's office for the same violation, he said.

Federal Judge H. David Hermansdorfer said last Wednesday that it will take several days to research evidence given in the case, and that he will render a decision based on the findings of his research.

The judge said that the evidence in the case was "not overwhelming and leaves a lot to be desired" but that the case was not necessarily "open and shut."

Jim Page, an engineer and group vice-president of Pittston Corp., the parent company of the accused company, testified that coal waste material around the railroad, tipples and head house would be carried into ditches and, in turn, carried into settling ponds.

Page added that the ponds are designed with overflow pipes to prevent heavy rains from flooding the ponds and coal waste getting into the creek, which would, in turn, flow into Fishtrap Reservoir.

Page's testimony ended the three-day case in which the government was attempting to prove that irreparable damage had been incurred to the Fishtrap Reservoir, built in 1968.

Kentland-Elkhorn's attorney asked for a six-week delay in order to present more evidence. Judge Hermansdorfer turned down the request, saying that if irreparable damage was found, more evidence would be allowed at that time.

State Highway Commissioner Charles Pryor says 16 interstate highway projects around Kentucky will be delayed because of Congress' failure to enact a new highway law. The department had hoped to get $38 million in federal funds for the projects, and planned to begin work before the end of the fiscal year. Congress, however, did not extend the highway program into the next fiscal year.

Atty. General Holds KEA May Inspect Local Dist. Budgets

The state's top legal officer has ruled the Kentucky Education Association (KEA) has a right to inspect and purchase copies of local school district budgets filed in Frankfort with the State Department of Education.

"If an interested citizen has a legal right to inspect the 'Close Estimate or Working Budget' of his local school district, we believe that the KEA has a right to inspect said document for every district in Kentucky," said the Attorney General's opinion written by Assistant Attorney General Carl Miller.

The opinion, hailed by KEA officials as a victory in the continuing battle for public access to public records, was sought by KEA attorney John J. Slattery, Jr., after State Department of Education officials attempted to impose conditions under which KEA would first have to ask local school superintendents for copies of such budgets.

Slattery told Miller that Department officials stated the local request policy should be followed "to establish better communications" between the local district and KEA.

To this, Miller responded, "Whether or not the suggested procedure has any merit functionally, there is no legal reason for making it mandatory. The State Board of Education is the custodian of public records and is legally obligated to grant inspection or furnish copies."

"From the practical standpoint," continued Miller, "it is eminently more convenient for the KEA to get copies of all of the district Close Estimates from the State Board of Education, and this is especially true in view of the fact that some local boards of education will refuse to furnish a copy of their Close Estimate."

Firemen Train In Emergency Rescue

It's not as bad as it looks as Prestonsburg firemen attend the "victim" of a staged auto mishap. The exercise Friday night was part of the department's new rescue training program.

Members of the Prestonsburg Fire Department rescued a fellow fireman Friday night from the flaming wreckage of an automobile in a dramatic exercise in emergency rescue.

Preparation for the drill began earlier Friday when a car, donated by Music-Carter-Hughes Chevrolet-Buick, was deliberately smashed by sledge hammers and repeated rammings by a wrecker. A volunteer was then placed in the auto and a gasoline fire was set under the car's hood. Firemen were quick to extinguish the blaze and soon had the "victim" out of the wreckage and onto a stretcher.

Anthony Manno, of Ashland, a representative of the state fire marshal's office, directed this practice, second in the Department's newly organized rescue school. Last Wednesday night members practiced rappelling, bounding down vertical surfaces—in this case, the walls of Prestonsburg grade school—by the use of ropes. Proficiency in this technique would improve chances of upper-story rescues in burning buildings.

Firemen of the West Van Lear Department were also present, as well as the P. & B Ambulance Service.

Actual operation of the hospital is not scheduled to begin before mid-December, but its innovative cardio-pulmonary laboratory has been in operation since Aug. 15. Headed by Dr. Ballard D. Wright, this department is designed to research, diagnose and treat respiratory diseases, including "black lung."

Those who will tour the new medical center after the dedicatory exercises will become acquainted with these features:

On the ground floor—the dietary department, employees' cafeteria, the central sterilizing department, general stores of all hospital supplies, heat and air-conditioning plant, auxiliary power generator, outpatient clinic offices and examination rooms.

First floor, ground level—Administrative offices, three-room surgical suite, recovery room, intensive care unit, emergency rooms, clinical laboratory, radiology, nuclear medicine.

Second floor—Patient rooms, physical therapy, ambulatory unit, chapel, patient examination rooms.

Third floor—Patient rooms, surgical and obstetrical department, delivery rooms, nursery, premature nursery, patient examination rooms.

Fourth floor—Patient rooms (medical), examination rooms, coronary care unit.

The 150-bed hospital is located on a 22-acre site fronting on US 23, near Auxier, and is designed to serve a four-county area of approximately 100,000 population.

NOTHING SERIOUS

Lenna Moore agreed that it would be all right for me to report that I took him to the hospital today, but he wanted me to be considerate of his public and quickly reassure the multitude that he was going there only to have Dr. Archer look at his knee. "Gee, won't Dr. George be thrilled!" he added.

WATCH IT, GIRLS!

The gals in their zeal for Women's Lib aren't keeping track of all the low and devious means men and others take to dodge the issue.

There is this reference, for instance, to a woman who presides over a committee as a chairperson. Now, if a woman can't be a chairwoman, can a man rightly be called in these days of Equal Rights a chairman? And if a woman can't be a Miss or a Mrs. but must be Ms., how about imitating the French and making Mr. just plain M.?

Who's silly?

GRIFE

I am not having another bilious attack, but I can't get away from some word usages that rile me. This new way of writing two words, "under" and "way" as one, for instance. Now, if that's correct, let's be consistent and pile other words onto each other. We could, for instance, get the show "ontheroad."

TRAFFIC INCIDENT

It must have happened some years back, because this gay blade who was zooming along at high speed in his shiny, new Cadillac to make an appointment in another town, some miles cross-country, suddenly espied a Model-T Ford in the ditch. His better impulses prevailed and he came to a skidding stop and informed the old farmer who had encountered trouble that if he could make it snappy and hook his car by chain to the Cadillac he could help him back onto the road.

The farmer finally succeeded in making the hookup, the other fuming impatiently, and so it was that by the time he started up and jerked the ancient vehicle out of the ditch he had forgotten the farmer. So he set off at 90 miles an hour down the highway, the old Ford and its driver wildly careening after him. The farmer bore down on the horn, but the sound never reached the driver up ahead.

At a crossroads a highway patrolman saw the strange sight, noted the speed being made and hurried to warn the patrolman up the road, a few miles ahead: "Harry, hold everything," he sang out. "There's a Cadillac headed your way, makin' at least 90 miles an hour. And, Harry, I know you won't believe this, but there's a Model-T Ford right on his tail and blowin' every jump for the road!"

RETIRED TEACHERS MEET

The Floyd County Retired Teachers Association met Saturday afternoon, November 11, at the Regional Library here with Mrs. Grace Conley, vice-president, presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. May K. Roberts.

The guest-speaker was Pat Miller, of the Kentucky Teachers Retirement System, Frankfort. A question and answer period followed. Refreshments were served by Miss Alice Harris.

Those present were Lola P. Ousley, Alice Harris, Pollyanna Wiley, Victoria M. Spradlin, Lucy C. Regan, Gladys Stepp, Margaret D. Collins, Polly Harmon, Grace Conley, Josephine Spradlin, Josephine S. Hill, Beatrice Collins, Alice Hornsby, Nora Martin, Anna May Mellon, Grace Sutherland, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ratliff, and Mr. and Mrs. Clem Martin.

Solid waste districts are also planned for operation, eventually, in Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties.

Revenue-sharing funds are not to be used to reduce property taxes, county officials were told in a Louisville meeting. "Congress doesn't want it that way," Ralph Tabor, of the National Association of Counties, told state's county judges at their convention.

Although $140,000 has been mentioned as this county's portion of revenue sharing funds, County Judge Stumbo and County Attorney James R. Allen said the actual amount remains unknown.

guilty. Turner Lafferty, another who was accused with them in the robbery of a fruit market here, is yet to stand trial.

Franklin Yates entered a plea of guilty after the breaking and entering and grand larceny charges against him had been reduced to petit larceny, and he was given a jail term of three months. Donald Ray Bentley was fined $200 after pleading guilty to a charge of possessing dangerous drugs for sale or sue, and James E. Vance was fined $50 on his guilty plea to a reckless driving charge (as reduced). James Conn was acquitted of a charge of knowingly receiving stolen property.

The liquor possession charge against Lon Neeley was dismissed on the ground that he had been convicted on a companion case and had served his sentence. Among other cases dismissed were these:

Tivis Neeley, grand larceny; Raleigh Barnett, shooting and wounding; Randall and Daniel Akers, Sterling Hall and Hiram Johnson, rape; Marvin Neeley, shooting into an auto.

Employment of farmers and farm-workers between 1960 and 1970 dropped by over 2 million, or by 40 percent, as the long downward trend for this occupational group continued.

Gov. Wendell Ford's office has announced that Kentucky's water safety force is being placed on temporary loan to the state Department of Motor Transportation until the boating season opens next year. The water safety officers have been assigned to the Department of Public Safety since the unit was created by the governor earlier this year. While with Motor Transportation, the officers will help enforce regulations on Kentucky's highways.

The next meeting will be held December 6 at 9 a.m., in Room 151 of the Johnson Administration Building, Prestonsburg Community College. Meetings are open to the public.

Recount of Vote Made Here Tuesday

A recount of the vote in Educational Division No. 3 was conducted by the Election Commission Tuesday after Thomas J. Spears, loser in the race there for a seat on the Floyd County Board of Education, had filed a circuit court complaint demanding a review of the vote.

The only change in the totals was in Tickey precinct where John M. Stumbo gained four votes.

An earlier recount was made of the vote between Dr. Mary Hall and Manis Crawford, loser in the Division 4 race. The recount showed no change in the voting.

General Fund revenue receipts for the first four months of the fiscal year totaled $231,916,549, for an 18.1 per cent increase over the same period last year.

LABOR UNION ORGANIZED
 In 1866, a national association of unions called the National Labor Union was organized. A federation of trades' assemblies rather than of national craft organizations, it included radical and reform groups. Drifting into social rather than trade union endeavors, it lost craftsmen's support and went out of existence in 1872.

May Among 16 State Artists Represented in Capital Exhibit

The works of 16 Kentucky artists, including those of Prestonsburg's Russell May, were on exhibit last week at George Washington University, Washington, D. C., and after their stay in the nation's capital they will move to Frankfort for display and from there go on tour of Kentucky.

U. S. Senator and Mrs. John Sherman Cooper were hosts last Tuesday night at the formal opening of the exhibit, which is being shown in Washington under auspices of the Appalachian Regional Hospitals, Inc. Fifteen of the 16 artists whose works are on display were honor guests at the reception. Paul Sawyer, whose fame has grown with the years, died in 1917. The Kentucky Society of Washington sponsored a private showing of the 60 paintings and drawings.

In the program presented by Mrs. Cooper for the Washington exhibit Russell May's work is described:

"The artist works in oils to execute his brilliant landscapes not without their subtle nuances of color. He employs sign-painter's brushes, house-painter's wide bristle brushes as well as regular artist's brushes and painting knives to create scenes of incredible, dreamlike beauty..."

Mr. May, who studied landscape painting under Gerhard Neswada in Vienna this year—"the greatest experience of my life"—says of his art:

"Some artists look for rust and rotting timbers in an old house, but I see the way a sunset leaves a gold edge on a small cabin roof or...a mellow glow over a mountain countryside."

Asked why Appalachian Regional Hospitals assumed the role of sponsor of Kentucky Heritage Artists, T. P. Hipkens, ARH president, replied with a question of his own:

"What better way to mark ARH's 10th year of service to Kentucky than to exhibit those reminders of the commonwealth's treasury of natural beauty and heritage?"

Before going to Washington, the artists were honored at a recognition dinner Oct. 10 in Lexington. Certificates of appreciation presented to them by Governor Ford read, in part:

"Your collections reflect the state's history, beauty and charm, and I know Kentuckians will benefit from your art work touring the state."

In addition to the works of Mr. May and the late Mr. Sawyer, these artists were represented in the Washington exhibit:

Ray Harm, Chenoa, Ky., A. Jack May, of Danville, Doug Adams, of Morehead, Harold Collins and Alan K. Cornett, of Lexington, Don Ensor, of Louisville, Nellie Meadows, of Clay City, C. G. Morehead, of Owensboro, Joseph Petro, of Lexington, Robert A. Powell, of Frankfort, Jim Smith, of Lexington, Helen Price Stacy, of West Liberty, John Stamper, of Lexington, and Joyce Williams, of Ashland.

Fake Soliciting Warned Against By Ky. State Police

Frankfort, Ky.—State police are warning the public to be cautious of anyone attempting to sell them advertising space in an out-of-state publication identified as the State Peace Officers' Journal.

The announcement came in the wake of recent reports by at least two Kentucky businessmen who said they were solicited under the guise that advertising in the journal would benefit state police.

State Police Director Larry G. Boucher said both solicitations were made by telephone and, in one instance, the caller reportedly identified himself as being a Kentucky state trooper. He urged that anyone being contacted by a salesman for that publication contact the nearest state police post.

"The Kentucky State Police have not authorized anyone to use their name in connection with the solicitation of any paid advertisements, nor do the state police derive any benefit from such activities," he said.

Boucher said the offices of the State Peace Officers' Journal were thought to be located at Houston, Tex. although they also may be using a Washington, D. C. mailing address.

This latest warning by state police was similar to another issued more than two years ago when almost identical tactics were used by salesmen to solicit advertising space for another Houston-based publication which was variously identified at that time as The Police Recorder or State Law Enforcement Officers' Recorder.

There's no substitute for experience

Our senior citizens have mastered a lot of the lessons of life. They've lived through the depression and two world wars. And they've seen horse-drawn buggies transformed into cars. They've seen a lot of change. And they've changed the scene a lot.

Their graying heads are the ones in which our community was planned. And much of what we have today was built by their hands. Whoever said the good die young never met our elders here.

Jackson Appointed To Supervisory Post By Mt. Mental Health

Richard Stai, executive director of Mountain Mental Health Services, announced last week the appointment of Terry Jackson as supervisor of Regional I-S-R Services for Region 11. I-S-R (Intake-Screening-Referral) is the unit in each county mental health center which initially responds to a patient's need for services, identifies precisely what the need is and which service unit or agency can best meet this need, and then refers the patient to the proper unit or agency. It also is the unit within the mental health center which responds to emergency needs.

Jackson, formerly of Morehead, is a graduate of St. Mary's College and St. Meinrad School of Theology. Prior to joining Mountain Mental Health Service, he was campus minister at Morehead State University.

According to Stai, Jackson's primary responsibility will be to organize and supervise the regional I-S-R program with particular emphasis on meeting 24-hour emergency mental health needs in the five counties served by Mountain Mental Health.

Eighteen percent or 14,000 of the 80,000 fulltime employees of the 50 State Employment Service agencies are blacks or members of other minority groups, compared with 12 percent in 1967.

What do you want... a low cost, quality built home?

The 4-bedroom COLUMBIA

Jim Walter builds a better buy!

Remember when you could buy a Coke for a nickel... twelve full-ounces of Pepsi... a 5¢ cup of coffee? Those days are gone forever, but you can still buy a low cost home... a low cost, QUALITY home built on your property. Jim Walter builds them today. Want to know something else? He's been building a better buy since way back in 1946. Twenty-six years and nearly a quarter of a million homes later, Jim Walter still builds a better buy... for you!

Oh, yes, materials are much better than they were in '46. Wood-made-better siding that you hardly ever have to paint... heavy duty shingle roofing is in... aluminum windows have replaced wooden sash windows. So what's the same? Custom building! No short cuts, no mass production... no pre-fabrication. Your home will be built on your lot one piece of lumber and one nail at a time. Good, solid construction.

All of this adds up to one thing. You want a low cost two, three or four bedroom home? If you own property on which to build, nothing is stopping you. And, if you want to keep costs even lower we'll stop at almost any stage of interior completion... you finish the rest. Do as much of the inside work as you like... the more you do, the more you save. We'll even furnish the material and include the cost in your mortgage payments.

OVER 20 "BETTER BUY" MODELS BUILT ON YOUR PROPERTY

Contact your local Jim Walter manager for complete information and the cost of building on your property. Now it's your move! Move up to a "better buy" by Jim Walter.

Invalidates Use of Test In Hiring and Firing

The Fifth Circuit U. S. Court of Appeals has upheld a federal court decision that invalidated the use of a cutoff score on the National Teacher Examination as a standard for hiring and firing teachers. The court ruled on the basis that the Columbus School District's use of the score "was unlawful under the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment because it created a racial classification and was not shown to have a manifest relation to job performance." The court did not prohibit the use of tests or other criteria to improve the quality of the staff when the test has a valid function and is applied fairly to all teachers.

The First Thanksgiving Feast

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

Despite the many details handed down by history and tradition about the first Plymouth Thanksgiving, nobody knows the date on which it was held. The year was 1621 but, apparently, the Pilgrims were too busy eating and having a good time to note the exact date. It could have occurred in November, but historians think it more likely took place sometime during the harvest months of September or October.

Although plentiful and apparently enjoyed by all, that first Thanksgiving feast was hardly sumptuous. The Indians suffered near-starvation chronically, and the Pilgrims had lived little better since arriving on the Mayflower, the previous December. According to historical records, all but 52 died of hunger, malnutrition, and associated ills during that first bitter winter.

But the situation could have been worse. When the snows finally melted and the Pilgrims faced their spring planting, they did so with little knowledge and justifiable foreboding. Most were townpeople rather than farmers, and what little they knew about farming better suited Europe than the chilly climate and flinty soils of New England. Without help from the Indians, the Pilgrims might have had a crop failure with the disastrous concomitant result of a starved-out colony.

Taking a role similar to that of the county extension agent some three centuries later, the Indians saved the day. They showed the Pilgrims how to plant corn, beans, squash, and that amazing "mellon" they named the pumpkin. Also they taught them how to fertilize their corn crops with fish from the sea, and how to catch "fatt and sweet" eels which the colonists relished and the unfamiliar lobsters which they found good but "burdensome" to the taste.

So with the end of the summer and a good crop year, "Governor Bradford sent four men on fowling so that we might after a more special manner rejoice together, after we had gathered the fruit of our labours," one Plymouth resident wrote.

The four hunters bagged wild turkeys, geese, ducks, wood pigeons, and grouse, and the Pilgrim ladies made beechnuts into stuffing, pumpkins into stew, corn into bread, and "cranberries" into sauce. Then there were stewed lobsters and oysters, baked eels and codfish, along with plenty of home-brewed beer and wine from wild grapes.

Then as the Pilgrims sat down to eat and give thanks for their good fortune, 90 Indians, no doubt attracted by the banging blunderbusses of the hunters, showed up and were invited to take part in the communal meal.

After the meal was over, as history records, Miles Standish paraded his 20-man regiment back and forth. Indians with bow and arrow and Pilgrims with ponderous firearms displayed their marksmanship. There were games and contests and everyone had a good time—so good a time, in fact, that the festivities continued for three days with some of the Indians slipping away into the woods and bringing in five deer for the festive pot.

And thus, says history, began the tradition of one of our most delightful holiday seasons. Even though this Pilgrim get-together with the Indians was not the first formal giving of thanks in the English colonies—one was held in a Virginia colony on Dec. 4, 1619—the New England feast is believed to be what President Lincoln had in mind when he proclaimed the last Thursday in November as a national holiday of Thanksgiving.

Electricycling

A smashing success.

THE CAR YOU OWN IS HEADED FOR THE JUNK HEAP. Maybe in 5 years. Maybe 10. Eventually they all wind up there, a visual cancer on the landscape. Or they did, until recycling came along.

We are a throwaway society, to the tune of 360 billion tons a year in paper, garbage, glass, cans and other wastes. We used to bury it, burn it, dump it into rivers, lakes, oceans, until the earth wouldn't hold it and rivers and lakes rebelled at such abuse. There's only one solution to such a huge disposal problem. Recycling. Reclaiming and reusing waste again and again to make new products.

IT SHOULD BE CALLED "Electricycling." Almost every recycling operation depends on electricity . . . as do virtually all other forms of pollution control. Electricity cleans smokestacks with electrostatic air filters, runs the machines to treat industrial wastes and operate sewage disposal systems. Without electricity, every major river and lake in America would be filthy.

AN IMPROVED ENVIRONMENT IS TIED TO MORE ELECTRIC POWER. Yet, some special interest groups see only the pollution caused by electricity production, overlooking the fact that its use is the only hope we all have to achieve a net improvement in our environment. In opposing more electric power production, they defeat the purpose of their own cause. And yours. And ours. We're environmentalists, too, and we're working hard at reducing or eliminating pollution caused by power generation. We want an improved environment for the same reasons you do. Because we also live here.

Youth Remains In Jail While Report Waited

The 15-year-old Pike county youth who was jailed following the fatal shooting Nov. 13 of Darwin Douglas Burchett, 8, of Phelps, formerly of this county, is still being held in jail, pending a report on a psychiatric study.

The Burchett child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Burchett, formerly of Cow Creek, was shot in the face with the charge of a .410-gauge shotgun. Parents of the boy who held the gun claimed the shooting was accidental, but officers continued the investigation which resulted in the jailing of the youth. A hearing was set but was later postponed while the accused boy was undergoing psychiatric study.

Findings from an autopsy performed on the victim's body were not disclosed. A second 15-year-old Pike boy was under bond last week after he had allegedly stabbed a fellow-student, John Paul Maynard, 16, at Johns Creek high school.

'Charlie Brown' Slated To Follow 'Owl and the Pussycat' at Lodge Perkins Moves Equipment Here For Boat Plant

The Broadway comedy, "The Owl and the Pussycat," goes into its final week-end at the May Lodge Dinner Theatre, Jenny Wiley State Park, this week. It is being presented by a core of professional actors from the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre.

"The Owl and the Pussycat" was the maiden run of the May Lodge Dinner Theatre, on an experimental basis. The first week-end of the show was successful enough for the producers, the Kentucky State Parks system and the Jenny Wiley Drama Association, to schedule a full run and a new show. The new production will be "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," the Broadway hit musical.

The member of the Jenny Wiley Repertory Company originally planned to move into May Lodge in early September for their first production, but, unexpected schedule complications made it impossible for Jenny Wiley State Park to make room available for the theatre until Nov. 1. Their first show, "The Star-Spangled Girl," opened in the Prestonsburg Community College Auditorium.

May Lodge's buffet-style dinner, the show, and the special winter rates at the Lodge resort motel make Jenny Wiley State Park an ideal place for a getaway week-end. Many guests, at first surprised to find the dinner theatre at the Lodge, said they were now planning week-ends there with the theatre in mind.

Area schools and communities have benefitted by the Repertory Theatre tour productions of their shows. Civic organizations and schools are pleased to find theatre can come to them.

For tour information and reservations call (606) 886-2711, and ask for the Dinner Theatre.

Auxier Schedules Special Delegate Assembly, Dec. 8th

Kentucky Education Association President Michael Auxier, of Emma, has scheduled a special session of the KEA Delegate Assembly, the organization's 600-member policy-making body, for December 8 and 9 at Ramada Inn's Bluegrass Convention Center here.

A report of the KEA sanctions committee, whose chairman is Middlesboro School Superintendent James Baker, will be heard at the first session, which begins at 8 p.m.

The second day will be devoted to consideration of items for possible inclusion in KEA's 1974 legislative program.

No action is expected to be taken on either topic.

Recommendations of the sanctions committee, established last April to follow up on the 1971 National Education Association sanctions investigation report entitled "Education in Kentucky: A Legacy of Unkept Promise," are to be acted upon by the KEA Delegate Assembly at its regular meeting in April, 1973.

Adoption of KEA's 1974 legislative program will take place at another special KEA Delegate Assembly on February 9 and 10 at the Ramada Inn's Bluegrass Convention Center.

Called "Little Sam"

By GEORGE L. MOORE
(In The Elliott County News)

Big Sam was a black and tan coon hound of massive size. He probably roamed over more hills and valleys than any other in Eastern Kentucky. One of his offspring was a spitting image of himself except that he was not half his size. This male pup was called Little Sam for the reason that he never seemed to grow up. Little Sam's mother was a small, light colored feist of uncertain ancestry.

Even when he was a small pup, Little Sam liked to come to our house. He would sneak away from home, crawl through the wove-wire fence and climb up in my lap as I sat under the shade of the big apple tree in our yard. Sometimes he would look through the kitchen screen door and look on when our dogs were having lunch. On rare occasions we would turn him inside and set an extra plate. However we discouraged his visits. We knew that his master was an ardent squirrel hunter and had his heart set on making a first-rate squirrel dog out of Little Sam.

While he was quite young, his master began to take him on frequent trips to the woods. He took to treeing squirrels as a duck takes to water. As time went on he began to take the dog on long trips in the pickup to new hunting grounds.

One Sunday, he made a trip from Left Beaver in Floyd county to a woods somewhere in Morgan county. On the return trip, Little Sam jumped from the truck to the pavement and broke his hip. In his struggle to walk, he fell in the ditch beside the highway. He was not missed until the truck had covered a distance of some sixty miles. Late the same afternoon, a search party found him lying helplessly in a ditch five miles east of West Liberty.

They brought him home and placed him in a lot near his master's house. A miner made a crude splint and taped it to the upper part of his hind leg with miner's tape. For some reason his master was called to Michigan and Little Sam was left alone. A few days passed and I had forgotten about the little dog. One evening as I returned from my work at Prestonsburg, I stopped in to look for the dog. His leg was horribly swollen and it was obvious he was in much pain. My wife insisted that I return and bring Little Sam to our house. I carried him over and gently laid him in the grass. I cut away the tape and removed the splint from his leg. This seem to ease the pain and he was now ready for food and water.

A couple of weeks went by and his master returned. He took one look at Little Sam and saw that he was happy and contented. He never asked us to return him. He limped badly for a month or so but in time made a complete recovery. That has been 21 years ago, and Sam is still with us.

He became an excellent squirrel dog except that he was somewhat gun shy. As he grew old, for some reason known only to dogs, he switched his interest from grey squirrels to chipmunks. When he was almost dead, he could still hear the finetuned squeak of the ground squirrel for a distance of a hundred feet.

Now at age 21, he is old, blind and helpless. It is necessary to carry him out of the house to the yard four or five times each day. But he still enjoys his bacon and eggs for breakfast and his hamburger for lunch, much as he did in his days of healthful youth and vigor.

Some have asked why we do not have the vet put him painlessly to sleep. For a dog lover, this is a difficult thing to do to a faithful servant who has been your constant companion for almost a quarter-century.

We realize that Father Time and the grim reaper have been hovering over him for over a year but they will just have to stand aside until that mysterious hand that guides the destiny of all of God's creatures turns the last page in the book of life and he silently steals away.

Old Orchards, A Haven for Wildlife

There are many old orchards in our land, most of them located on abandoned farms or in some neglected area of the farm. If you want to know more about the ways of wild creatures, spend some time in one of these. I love to walk through an old orchard in late fall or early winter, just to watch the birds that frequent it. I see the downy woodpeckers drilling on the old tree limbs, ferreting out the juicy larvae. And there are always some of the "upside down birds," the nuthatches sliding down the tree trunk, sharp eyes watching for any insect that moves. When one trip is made from the top limbs to the bottom, the bird flies back to the top and repeats the "policing." There are heaps of half-decayed apples lying on the ground and birds visit these and open them up to get the apple seeds. Chipmunks like to nibble on these mellow apples and sometimes carry the seeds away in their jaw pouches.

Deer frequently visit an old orchard looking for apples to eat. It is also a favorite spot for coons to hunt for tidbits. Most forms of wildlife love fruit and are attracted to an old orchard. Grouse often go there searching for apples to eat. Rabbits, deer, field mice and foxes are frequently seen about an old orchard. The foxes come to prey on the mice and rabbits.

An old orchard with an understory of lesser trees affords a fine shelter for quail. These eat the seeds of plants growing in an old, neglected orchard. You will note the ragged gray bark of the old trees, how it is decorated with large patches of lacy lichens, moss and other interesting fungi. Insects often hide along the scaly old trunks and here come the chickadees to have a winter banquet. Their sharp eyes peer in every crevice and under every loose piece of bark; they dine on the plant lice, beetles hiding in the bark; they also find many clusters of insect eggs to devour, and on any cold winter day, you may hear the merry call of "chick-a-dee-dee," resounding from the trunk on some old apple tree.

A variety of wild plants should be allowed to flourish in the abandoned orchard. Take the thistle, which some people despise and try to be rid of. It is highly essential for the survival of goldfinches. These birds depend on the fluff of thistles to line their nests, also feed their young on thistle seeds. The thistle blossom, consisting of a large, showy purplish blob, attracts many bees in late summer because they are rich in nectar.

Screech owls and flying squirrels often stay about an old orchard. These small owl prey on the mice and other small rodents that come to dine on the fallen fruit. Flying squirrels are also valuable little animals to have around the premises. They often spend the entire night capturing moths and noxious beetles to eat. Perhaps if we had more flying squirrels we could better control the plague of the gypsy moths, which are defoliating trees in many states.

If you have an old orchard, you should add other trees to it as an attraction for all kinds of wildlife. Variety of plants is one of the great laws of nature, which tries to provide some kind of food to suit different creatures. Among the best plants to get established in or about your old orchard are the following: pokeweed, raspberries dogwoods, persimmons, sunflowers, oats, buckwheat, millet, sudan grass and many others. Buckwheat in full bloom is like a magnet to attract the bees; some of it should be sown in or about any wildlife refuge. Ripe sunflower heads will draw many species of birds and the seeds will give them strength to get through the winter.

Old apple trees still feebly blooming and bearing some fruit attract the orchard orioles in the spring to these nest there and flood the country side with lively music.

Sad to say, man himself is the greatest predator of wildlife and destroys more than all the animal predators put together. It is high time for man to change his ways and seek to preserve the interesting creatures of the wild.

The concept provides that school buildings, rather than staying vacant when school is not in session, be put in use year round to offer children and adults of the community recreational, educational, and social services. The concept will be on an experimental basis at the Camargo Elementary School this year with its initial financing being a $16,500 grant from the Office of Health, Education and Welfare through Morehead State University.

Case in Texas Takes the Cake

(Taken from the San Angelo Standard, week of June 24, 1893)

For genuinely unique events Texas leads the world. The latest surprise grows out of a conviction for murder and has no parallel in a court of record in the world—at least no mention of a similar state of affairs has been found.

In December, 1882, Peter Meigs was tried for the murder of Mike Ferry. The trial occurred in Grimes County. On Dec. 9, Meigs was convicted of murder on circumstantial evidence and on Dec. 12 he was sentenced to life imprisonment. He is now serving his sentence in Huntsville.

A short time ago Mike Ferry, the supposed-to-have-been murdered man, was convicted of felony in western Texas. He is doing time in Huntsville. Meigs, the man convicted of the murder of Ferry, and Ferry, the man whom Meigs was convicted of murdering, are both serving their sentences in the same prison and see each other frequently.

The situation is unique. There have been many cases where a supposed murdered man has turned up in time to save the neck of the man convicted of murdering, but in this case the matter is different. Ferry is a convict; was convicted of felony; he cannot testify in court; he cannot identify himself. So far as Mike Ferry is concerned Mike Ferry is a murdered man. So far as Peter Meigs is concerned, Peter Meigs is, in the eyes of the law, a murderer. And under the law the man whom he (Meigs) was convicted of murdering cannot go into court and swear that Meigs did not murder him. Ferry cannot prove he isn't dead, even if he is a very much alive man. And the state is supporting a living corpse, and whoever heard of a corpse eating, drinking and wearing out clothing? There is a novel in this story.

Mr. Walter L. Wilson has been retained to procure a pardon for Meigs—a pardon for a crime that Meigs never committed. In referring to this case Mr. Wilson said, "I am endeavoring to get a pardon for Meigs. Here is a man who is serving a life sentence for a crime that he never committed. Alongside him is the man who was supposed to have been murdered, convicted of a felony and therefore debarred from going into court and testifying that he was not murdered. The conviction of Meigs was entirely on evidence that was circumstantial. A writ of habeas corpus ad testificandum would lie were Ferry a witness and in custody to have profert made of him in court. But Ferry, being a convict, cannot testify himself. The only way for me to proceed in the matter is to have a witness go to Huntsville and identify Ferry as the Ferry who disappeared from Grimes County. And I can see no reason why Meigs shall not be released at an early date."

The goal of the President's Veteran's Program directed by the U. S. Department of Labor is to place 1,371,000 Vietnam-era veterans in jobs or training during the year ending June 30, 1973. The fiscal 1972 program placed 1,297,851 with a goal of 1,038,000.
