

Roads Dept. Asks Floyd Work Bids

36 Miles in County Listed for Surface; RS Fund, $393,985

Floyd county's share of Rural Secondary highway funds for fiscal 1973-74, beginning July 1, is $393,985, Governor Wendell H. Ford and Transportation Secretary Elijah M. Hogg announced last Friday.

Meanwhile, the Department of Highways was advertising for contractors' bids on several projects included in the program. Bids will be opened April 26 on Class I bituminous concrete surfacing of 36 miles of Floyd county roads and 3.83 miles of streets, plus painting of two bridges.

Roads scheduled for surfacing or resurfacing under the contracts to be awarded after the April 26 bid opening date are:

Right fork of Bull Creek road from approximately one mile west of the upper Bull Creek road, extending westerly .8 mile; the Martin-Buck's Branch-Spurlock road from a point 3.9 miles south of KY 114, southeast a distance of 3.5 miles; the Dewey Lake road (KY 304) from the May Lodge approach road to KY 1107, near Auxier, a distance of 5.599 miles; the May's Branch road from US 23, east a distance of 1 mile; the Simpson Branch road from KY 1426 south a distance of 1 mile; the upper Bull Creek road, from a point approximately 1.6 miles southwest of KY 1428 at end of existing blacktop, southwest a distance of 1 mile; the Salyers Branch road from KY 7, west a distance of 1.5 miles; the Steele's Creek road from KY 1086 southeast .7 mile; the Doty Creek road from KY 122 at McDowell, southwest a distance of 1 mile; the Melvin-Weeks-bury road from KY 122 at Melvin, southwest 1.545 miles; the Martin-Caney Fork-Blue River road from KY 404 near Blue River to KY 80 at Martin, 7.85 miles; the Emma-Endicott-Thomas road from the Pike county line, west a distance 4.8 miles; the Lucy Hall cemetery road at McDowell, from KY 680 a distance of 1 mile; the Glo road from KY 7, .9 mile.

Bridges to be painted are one on the Prater Creek-Harold road, 1 mile northwest of Harold, and the bridge over Toler Creek, 1.93 miles from Harold.

Street work on which bids are sought includes .95 mile at Auxier, 1.95 miles in New Allen, .25 mile in Burton-Wheelwright and .68 mile in Dwale.

Commissioner James E. Gray, head of the newly established Bureau of Highways, explained that the program selected provides maintenance for 105.8 miles of rural secondary roads. It also authorizes construction of two bridges on the Hite road; and raising the existing roadway above flood elevation on the Big Branch of Abbott road.

The Rural Secondary Program is supported by two cents of the Commonwealth's motor fuel tax. It originated in 1948 when the General Assembly recognized the need to improve farm-to-market and other rural roads. To insure fair distribution among the various counties, it enacted a statutory formula in 1962. This formula, which takes rural population, rural area, and rural road mileage into account, determines each county's share.

Woman Accuses Mud Creek Men

Two Mud Creek men, David Akers and Dan Newsome, were jailed here Monday by State Trooper Phillip Tucker on a charge of shooting into an occupied vehicle. They later executed bond to appear for trial in Magistrate Denzil Ray Hall's court.

Mrs. Hazel Shepherd, wife of Henry Shepherd, lodged the charge against the two men. A few days earlier, her husband accused Deputy Sheriffs Dester Hamilton and Ralph Howell of shooting into his car and trailer. The officers had earlier named Shepherd in warrants, alleging shooting and wounding with intent to kill.

Others booked at the county jail within the week:

Steven Michael Wade, reckless driving, arrested by Park Rangers Jack Haley and C. Kilgore; Orville Curtnette, drunk driving, by State Trooper Cantrell; Luke Woods, drunk driving, by State Trooper Dennis Williamson; Johnnie Conn, drunk driving, by State Trooper Cantrell; Dallas H. Sturgill and Carl H. Fuller, drunk driving, both arrested by Trooper Williamson; Harold Kinney, drunk driving, by Policemen Bill Potter and Lonnie Herald, of Prestonsburg; Michael Whitaker, assault on a police officer, by Prestonsburg Policeman Dickie Campbell.

ROAD SURFACING BEGUN... Perhaps the roughest sector of a rough US 23 between Prestonsburg and Allen lay until last week in the southern section of Prestonsburg. This surfacing work is curing that.

Find Made Here Last Saturday Believed Stolen Barbiturates

A jar containing an estimated 2,000 barbiturates, found Saturday morning beneath the bridge leading to the Mountain Parkway here, is believed to represent most of the narcotics haul made by thieves in a break into the Reid Pharmacy in the former Prestonsburg General Hospital building here, a week earlier.

City and state police this week were investigating a second break within a week into the old hospital building. The second entry was made last Friday night, and police said $870 in cash was taken from the office of Dr. George P. Archer. In the first break, only narcotics were taken from the pharmacy. In the second, only money. Entrance in both cases was effected from the rear of the building—last Friday night, through a window which had been left open.

Officers have no clues to the identity of the thieves. Absence of fingerprints indicates that gloves were used, officers said.

Prater's Name Omitted

The Times last week unintentionally omitted from the list of those who filed for office in this county the name of Fair Prater, of Hueysville, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Magistrate in District No. 2.

Mt. Dew Festival Draws Record Crowd

Sunny skies and relatively mild temperatures helped make this year's ninth annual Mountain Dew Festival one of the most successful ever with a record number of participating students in attendance.

Approximately 1,500 college students from 16 schools began pouring into Prestonsburg Wednesday afternoon for the start of 27 competitive events which began Thursday. Schools represented in this year's festival include the host, Prestonsburg Community College, Maysville Community College, Lexington Technical Institute, Ashland Community College, Elizabethtown Community College, Hopkinsville Community College, Somers Community College, Forest & Wood Technical School, Jefferson Community College, Alice Lloyd College, Sue Bennett College, Miami-Hamilton College, Lee's Junior College, Hazard Community College, Southeast Community College, and Southern West Virginia College.

Various outdoor and indoor athletic events were followed Thursday night at 9 a.m. by a kick-off dance at the student center featuring a rock band, the "Misfits."

Friday's schedule of competition was climaxed by a talent show at 8 p.m. at the Prestonsburg grade school auditorium. During the program each school's candidate for Mountain Dew Festival Queen was presented and each girl gave a brief biographical sketch and told their interests. Later, the contestants appeared in their special festival outfits, each depicting some aspect of the "mountain dew" theme.

Toward the end of the program, the festival queen was chosen and informally crowned with a "hillbilly" straw hat. This year's winner is Susan Johnston, of Maysville Community College. First runner-up was Carol McConnel, of Lexington Technical Institute, and second runner-up, Paula Pruitt, Ashland Community College. Debbie Brook, of Elizabethtown Community College, was selected as Miss Congeniality. Representing Prestonsburg in this part of the competition was Shirley Vaughan, of Prestonsburg.

A piece of 2 x 4-inch timber was used in the pharmacy burglary to smash plate glass separating it from the hospital lobby and hallway.

Autopsy Shows No Foul Play

A Pikeville pathologist has held that Harold Lloyd Moore, 42, who was found dead Saturday near his home at East McDowell, died of natural causes. An autopsy had been requested by Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo and State Police Detective Gary Rose. Moore had minor contusions and cuts on his body which were not regarded as severe enough to cause death, but officials asked the autopsy to determine if he was injured internally. Earlier in the day, it was said, he had been involved in a fight.

A native of McDowell, the victim was a son of Orbin Moore, of East McDowell, and the late Martha Hamilton Moore. Surviving, in addition to his father, are his daughter, Diane, of Wheelwright; one brother, Charles Moore, Indianapolis, Ind., and three sisters, Mrs. Augustine Frabutt, Ashtabula, O., Mrs. Anna

Final events in athletic competition were held on Saturday and a dance featuring the "Fanatics," was held that night. Saturday night was climaxed by the formal presentation and crowning of the 1973 Mountain Dew Queen.

When the final point count was tallied from all the festival's events, Hopkinsville Community College won the coveted Little Brown Jug Award for most points overall, edging Prestonsburg Community College by 10 points, 225 to 215. Third was Ashland Community College with 200 points and fourth, Somers Community College with 115 points.

Winners of events other than the Queen competition follow, first, second, and third places appearing in order:

Archery, male—Lexington Technical Institute, Hopkinsville Community College, Prestonsburg Community College.

BATTLE FOR THE BROWN JUG... Volley ball action was a part of the series of Mountain Dew Festival athletic events last week in which Kentucky community colleges vied for the greatest number of points, overall. Hopkinsville won the Brown Jug which is awarded annually.

Damage by Wind Slows Changes Begun at Dock

Wind damage sustained last Thursday temporarily interrupted expansion and renovation of Jenny Wiley boat dock, but work in other areas of the park continued.

Park Manager George Barker said, "just guessing," that $2-3,000 damage resulted when unusually strong winds snapped four anchoring cables and blew roofing from the dock between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

"A strong wind from the southwest began blowing through the dock hollow while at the same time the flag on the hill by the lodge was blowing hard due east," Barker said. This situation set up a whirling effect which resulted in the damage. The strength of the wind is evidenced in the fact that one gust pulled loose a full yard of concrete with post and anchor.

Work at the boat dock prior to Thursday's damage was part of a general "face lifting" being carried on in various areas of the park. A new walkway, complete with slips, had lengthened the dock considerably and preparations were being made to install permanent pilings with connecting walkways to the bank. Later, after repairs are made to the existing facility, electricity to houseboats and pontoons will be installed and fresh water will be piped to the dock and utilized for drinking water, ice and a proposed fish-cleaning area.

In another park project, approximately 1 1/2 miles of completely new horse trails are being completed near Jenny Wiley stables. These trails, according to Barker, are for the most part level, with no steep inclines as existed in the old trail. He said a wood chipper would be acquired later which would enable the park to "pave" the trails with wood chips and provisions are being made for drainage, ditches and headwalls to insure adequate drainage. The stables will house 21 horses this season. Mr. Barker expressed the hope that the former riding trails could be converted into hiking trails, and cited the beauty of the area of the old trails.

Grading and draining of the large Goble Branch camping area is also in progress and Barker reported that 120 campsites will be available, in contrast to last season's 88. Playground areas are being constructed in addition to provisions for water, sewage and elec-

Shf. Leslie Wins Change of Venue

Judge Moves Case for Trial To Martin Court

The trial of Sheriff Frank Leslie on charges of malfeasance or nonfeasance in office was shifted Monday on a change of venue motion to the Martin circuit court at Inez.

The change of venue was granted by Special Judge Jean L. Auxier, of Pikeville, on the sheriff's petition which claimed that a fair trial could not be had in Floyd county because of wide publicity given the case. The motion for the venue change was not contested by the Commonwealth.

At the same court session Judge Auxier granted Roy Branham, of Wheelwright, a continuance of his case in which he is charged with attempting to bribe a public official. Trial of Branham's case was set for Sept. 4.

Transfer of the sheriff's case to the Martin circuit court made "moot" a Commonwealth motion to consolidate the cases of Leslie and Branham.

Both defendants won a series of motions but a motion to quash was not decided, the court reserving a ruling until a technical examination of a tape recording involved in both cases is completed.

Judge Auxier sustained separate motions by both defendants for an order permitting them to inspect and copy the original tape recording referred to and to have it inspected by an expert of defendant's choosing, defense counsel to advise the attorney for the Commonwealth the name and address of the expert, also to state his qualifications and the time and place for the tape examination.

Defendants' separate motions for a Bill of Particulars was sustained, the Commonwealth's motion to amend the indictments was also upheld. Defendants did not oppose the amendment motion.

Deputy Sheriff Buddy Ward last Thursday pleaded guilty to malfeasance or nonfeasance charges. He was fined $50 and forfeited his office. Ward was one of four present or former deputy sheriffs so charged.

Trial of Virgil Conn, former deputy sheriff, was continued last Thursday

To Conduct Service At New Church

The Right Rev. Addison Hosea, bishop of the Diocese of Lexington, will conduct at 11 a.m. Easter Sunday the first official service in the new St. James Episcopal Church here by celebrating the Holy Eucharist and preaching the sermon.

There will be a confirmation of two, Everett Patton and Mrs. Faye Lessie Phillips, and John Arthur Phillips will be received into the church.

Bishop Hosea will bless the new hangings of the church which were made by Episcopal churchwomen. He will also bless the communion service, a gift from Mrs. Susan P. Elliott as a memorial to the late John J. Absher. Other items to be blessed are a candlelighter given in memory of the late Dr. Joseph Richard Short; an organ which was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Blaine R. Hall; new carpeting, a gift to the church from an anonymous donor, and the newly constructed 30 x 40-ft. Parish Hall which has been named the Susan P. Elliott Parish

This Town . . . That World

I have had a speaking acquaintance, of a sort, for some years now with Thoreau's WALDEN'S POND but not till this week did I sit down to read the entire book... If you think you and your work and all those high goals of achievement are important, or if you think time to think and see the greatness of nature aren't important, consult Thoreau.

THE MOON AND THE WEATHER

With the weather more capricious than a filly, I have heard from two or three sources within the last 10 days that all the United States has achieved by those moon landings is to throw the moon out of kilter and mess up the weather here below. This reasoning is based on the contention that taking those rocks from the moon to earth has rocked the boat. And these homespun physicists ask me if I can prove them wrong.

NO, NO...

While I am away from the local scene, let me voice my sentiments about rebuilding North Vietnam. If those people need food or medicine or clothing, I say, send it to them. All they need. But not one cent to rebuild their economy. This apologizing after the fight is over for blows we have struck is too costly, and to date it doesn't appear that any nation before North Vietnam has extended the good right hand except to take our money.

Revenue Sharing Pay More Than Expected

Floyd county received its check for the first 1973 instalment of revenue sharing funds last week, later than most counties of the area, but it was as pleasantly surprised by what it got as most of the other counties had reportedly been.

Floyd's check was for $59,580, which is for the first quarter of the year. If the sharing rate holds at this level, the county will benefit by more than $200,000 from revenue sharing this year.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said the $59,580 is being budget for these purposes:

New road equipment, $25,000; voting machines (the county has bought six), $22,000; right-of-way, $12,000; utilities account, $5,000; balance in reserve.

Prestonsburg received its revenue sharing check, March 10, in the amount of $25,118. Allocation of these funds for specific purposes is expected to be made Thursday evening at a city council meeting.

Pike county's check was for a whopping $102,143—roughly $20,000 more than had originally been earmarked for the county. County Judge Wayne Rutherford said the check was for more than anticipated. He added that the county would not have received the larger check, had not he and other officials made a trip to Washington to protest discrepancies in the allocation of funds to the county.

Johnson county's $35,934 was reportedly $7,000 more than expected. The city of Paintsville received $28,600.

Lawrence county's $53,000 may be used for road repairs. Louisa's $9,911 check is expected to be spent on recreation facilities, firefighting equipment and a landfill site.

Three from Floyd Invited . . . Name Kentuckians For Folklife Fest

Get ready, Washington, D. C!—the Kentuckians are coming!
They're coming to demonstrate the rich folklore of Kentucky to the other 49 states.

More than 150 Kentuckians, primarily craftsmen, musicians, and singers, have been selected by the Smithsonian Institution to participate in exhibits at the seventh annual Festival of American Folklife, Gov. Wendell Ford has announced. They will demonstrate their talents and crafts at an open-air festival in Washington, D. C. from July 4 to July 8.

The festival, sponsored by the Smithsonian and National Park Service, features the folklore of one of the 50 states each year. Because of Kentucky's impressive contributions to American culture, the state was chosen to be featured at the 1973 festival.

Invited from Floyd county are the Goins Brothers (Melvin and Ray) and their Blue Grass band, Prestonsburg, and Hobart Bailey, of Hippo, banjo player.

Additional Kentuckians may be invited within the next 30 to 60 days to exhibit their skills at the festival, Ford said.

One million persons are expected to visit Kentucky's exhibits, which will be at the Reflecting Pool area in front of the Lincoln Memorial. The mainstay of Kentucky's presentation will focus on folk music and crafts with additional emphasis on four of the Commonwealth's traditional features—horses, bourbon, tobacco, and inland waterways.

Those who will exhibit their crafts at the festival include Percy Beason of Bowling Green, broommaker; James Nance and his son, potters from Farmington; Lester Childress of Park City, basket maker; Frank Long of Peytonsburg, chair maker; Mrs. Milli Wilson of Calvert City, doll maker; Hubert L. Rogers of Grayson, dulcimer maker; Mrs. Ora Lowe of Huff, quilter; Walter B. Logsdon of Brownsville, basket maker; and Mack Gibson of Cave City, fiddle maker.

Russell Cartee of Greenup will make knives at the festival, while his wife will prepare sassafras candy. Others who will take part in the activities include Edgar Tolson of Campton, carver; Mrs. Herbert Jones of Pine Knot, maker of gourd head dolls; Mrs. Anthony Neal, honeysuckle basket maker; and Haskel Skaggs of Brownsville, National Park Service guide. Mrs. Hazel Miracle, James Miracle, and Jancie Miracle, all of Middlesboro, will make apple dolls, corn husk flowers and bowls.

Before the festival begins, Morris B. Wood and Cadiz and a crew of five will raise a seven-bent tobacco barn.

In addition to the Floyd county musicians, others invited to participate are the A. L. Phipps family, singers and string instrumentalists from Barbourville; Roscoe Holcomb of Daisy, musician and singer; Carson Cornett of Viper, fiddler and singer; Carlos J. Alexander of Mayfield, Gospel song leader and singer; Buddy Thomas of Emerson, fiddler; Samson E. (Hoskins) Mux of Harrodsburg, harmonica player; and Bill Williams of Greenup, guitarist.

Other musicians include Henry Miles and his jug band, Louisville; Jim Mason of Providence, guitarist; Mose Rager of Drakesboro, guitarist; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Fraley of Rush, fiddlers and guitarist; Forster and Nancy Caldwell of Roark, Gospel singers; Alfred Bailey of Flemingsburg, fiddler and guitarist; Robert Smoot of Frankfort, banjo player; Arthur D. Breeze of Tollesboro, banjo player; Buell Kazee of Winchester, banjo player and ballad singer; and Phebel Wright of Elkhorn City, singer.

Roy Lawson of Franklin will call square dances at the festival. About 12 members of the Ritchie family, including Jean Ritchie Pickow of Viper and Floyd and Edna Ritchie Baker of Winchester, will sing and play the dulcimer and string instruments. Also performing will be the noted Bluegrass musician Bill Monroe (a native of Ohio County) and his Blue Grass boys; Merle Travis (a native of Muhlenburg County), renowned guitarist and song writer; and Louis (Grandpa) Jones (native of Henderson County), his wife Ramona, and son Mark, singers.

Elder H. C. Fuller and nine others from the Sweet Leaf Primitive Baptist Church in Louisville will sing long meter hymns. Brother Ray Collins of Whitesburg and seven other vocalists will sing Old Regular Baptist hymns. John Edmonds of Bowling Green and his quartet will sing Gospel. R. L. Nichols of Calvert City will lead the Southern Harmony singers. Gerald Ray of Franklin, along with the Spiritual Way Quartet, will sing.

Also performing will be a country music trio called the Coon Creek Girls, who played in 1939 for President Roosevelt when he entertained George VI and Queen Elizabeth. Mrs. Lily May Ledford Pennington of Lexington is a member of the trio.

Representing the Kentucky bourbon area will be Charles Delaney of the Willett Distilling Company in Bardstown and Dr. Frank Kraus of James Beam Distillery. R. A. Clark of Owensboro will demonstrate the bottling of bourbon with the aid of a scale model of his patent invention.

Howard Curtis of Maysville, a tobacco twist expert, will represent the tobacco industry. Griffin Swihart of Hawesville, along with two other members of the Kentucky Sorghum Growers Cooperative Assn., Inc., will exhibit the art of sorghum making.

W. George Evans of Glasgow, a harness maker, and James Thompson, a blacksmith and farrier from Salvisa, will participate also. An additional two dozen people are expected to be invited to emphasize Kentucky's famous horse region.

Representing Kentucky waterways will be Cecil Rudd, a boatbuilder from Smithland; Carl Wolf of Brownsville, a net maker; and Rudell Jones of Gilbertsville, who will demonstrate the use of mussel brails with an assistant. The Crouse Corporation, a Paducah-based towing firm, will provide two deckhands who will demonstrate locking through and docking.

Two Pictures Tell the Story

Mrs. Gearheart—Before . . .

(From Weight Watchers' "Small Talk")
"The only fear I have is that I'll wake up and it won't be real," says pert and pretty Lenora Gearheart.

After all, losing 100 pounds is a bit mind boggling.

Lenora says she never expected it to happen to her. Yet between May, 1972 and March, 1973, the Prestonsburg women created her own kind of miracle.

Talking with her one gets the feeling of a modern day Cinderella. The glass slipper isn't the only thing that fits these days. While her shoe size did slide from 9½ D to 8½ A, Lenora's dresses have gone from 24½ to 12 and even her rings have had to be cut down.

"I can't pass a mirror without looking at myself," Lenora admits with a sheepish grin. "It's hard to believe at times."

"My husband, Joe, and my son, Charlie, are so proud of me," says Lenora. "They push me to buy clothes. Charlie, 9, asks everyone he sees, 'Did you know my Mommy used to be fat?'"

Lenora says life today is a dream compared to the nightmare she lived before her weight loss. She recalls:

"I was so unhappy with myself, I never wanted to go anywhere. I was very sensitive and easily upset. I don't require half the attention now that I did before I lost my weight."

"I used to have migraine headaches. Since I've been on the Weight Watchers Program, I've only had two. I think it is because I am less tense and much happier."

"The week before I joined Weight Watchers I had just been discharged from the hospital. I'd gone in for tests. I didn't have any energy. The doctors found nothing wrong with me. I was just too heavy."

"My doctor put me on a 1,200-calorie-a-day diet. I lost 6 pounds the first week and I was starving to death. I heard Weight Watchers was coming to

After . . .

Prestonsburg. I decided to go down and see what it was about.

"I'd had one weiner, a cup of spinach and a hard boiled egg for dinner that night. Lecturer Scottye Franklin told me I could have had six ounces of all-beef weiners if I'd been a Weight Watchers member. That sold me! I joined that night."

Lenora continues: "I really didn't believe it would work. I tried it the first week and lost 5½ pounds. I still didn't believe it would work, but I wasn't hungry so I gave it another week. I had a good loss the second week and while I still wasn't convinced, I had to admit I was losing and I wasn't hungry. I stuck with it and by the end of the eighth week I was thoroughly won over. I knew it was working!"

"I lost 52 pounds during my first 16 weeks. I'd lost weight before but never 52 pounds!"

Lenora was on her way! She credits her success to the loving encouragement of her husband and son along with that of her lecturer, Scottye Franklin. "She saved my life."

Drugs: A Frightening Situation

It can happen here, and we must go a bit farther and recognize the fact that it has already happened. The terrifying drug problem has been visited upon almost every crossroads, hamlet or village as well as upon the larger population centers. Name any place on the map, and you have a place where there are frightened people.

The mere hint of narcotics such as heroin, LSD, concoctions which terrifyingly alter and twist minds and lives, is horrifying. And those whose homes and families are under attack demand that something drastic be done.

The barbiturates, not the "harder" heroin and other narcotics which are so frightening, apparently have the strongest foothold here. These aren't commonly feared because at this very moment they may be found in a thousand medicine cabinets in this county. But these are the drugs which, says U. S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT, present the greatest problem.

Amytal, Nembutal, Seconal, tranquilizers, pep pills—ever hear of them? They're on the market, even on school playgrounds, in restrooms and hallways. The young now are gobbling up what their elders for years have been going to sleep and rising by.

Half, or more, of the drug deaths are caused, we are told, by overdoses of barbiturates such as these. Medical authorities say that withdrawal from these "less harmful" drugs is more dangerous than shaking the heroin "hook." Officers approach those who are "high" on these drugs with extreme caution because, they say, the barbiturate user often becomes more violent than the wildest drunk.

Then what is to be done? Most will agree that the problem should be attacked at the source, that "pushers" should be tracked down, that every resource of the law must be employed to find them and catch them and to put them away where they will no longer be able to create their own brand of terror. Strong laws and strong men to enforce them, on the streets and in the courts, are basic to the battle that has already been joined.

Curtailment of the production of barbiturates has been undertaken to some extent and with some success. But they cannot be eliminated, because they play a strong part in the treatment of many human ailments.

Others have called for a general cleanup to convince young America that their elders mean to abide by all law. In Prestonsburg, if the drug supply were totally dried up, under present conditions the young could turn to bootleg whiskey and beer. As has been said, "You can't clean up a garbage dump by removing only one kind of can."

Then there is the matter of drug education. This currently may be the greatest need in the whole field of education. And it may need to begin with adults, the parents who now are crying frantically for help. One 16-year-old boy told a Senate investigating group: "People we consider people to be with were doing it. . . I decided to do it, too."

Dad steadies his nerves or perks himself up with a drink of whiskey. His son knows that was bootleg whiskey. Is it any worse for him to smoke a "reefer" bought from a bootlegger popularly known as a pusher?

Some authorities are arguing that we must get back farther than the seller and buyer—back to the underlying causes which get people into the use of drugs. Does the parent shrink from reality and drown his troubles in the bottle or allay them with a pill? Are the realities of life too much for the best-fed, best-clothed, best-educated people on earth? Is "escape" the only word left in the vocabulary as the adult refuses to face up to his own problems under the watchful eyes of his children?

We are not forgetful of the importance of attacking the problem through the law. The "pusher" must be under the heaviest possible pressure. Yet we find this statement by an official in the President's Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention at once a severely frank diagnosis and a good, stiff remedy for what ails us:

"For the short run, controlling the supply of drugs is the best method we have. But the real problem is that children are learning from their parents that there is a pill for every discomfort, and you don't have to suffer. Relatively few parents these days teach their children that life does include pain—that you can't take a pill or a chemical for every problem."

Local Leaders Bring Good Fortune To Floyd and Pike Counties

(An editorial in The Licking Valley Courier, West Liberty, Ky.)

This newspaper always applauds when a neighboring county in Eastern Kentucky moves forward, commercially, educationally, religiously, agriculturally, or otherwise. For we think that if another county "can do it" maybe we can also. Anyway, it helps the GMP (gross mountain product), and some of it may trickle down our way.

So, congratulations are in order for our neighboring Floyd and Pike counties. The Social Security Administration has established a district Social Security office in Prestonsburg to serve Floyd, Martin, Magoffin and Johnson counties. Also the State Forestry Division has moved its district office to Prestonsburg along with a number of jobs. And, too, Gov. Ford has named Floyd County Judge Henry Stumbo and Pike County Judge John Wayne Rutherford on the all-important new State Manpower Council, which under revenue sharing will have charge of spending over $17 million in Kentucky. They are two of a 22-member committee that will wield a lot of power in months to come—and about the only members from northeastern Kentucky.

Floyd and Pike have a lot of voters, it is to be noted. But they are fortunate also in having some effective local leaders—leaders who have good liaison with both Washington and Frankfort, it seems. And these things always help a county, and we congratulate both counties on their good fortune.

remember the checkup you were going to have last year?

Well, it's time to have it again. Only this time, HAVE IT! Today doctors can save one in two persons when cancer is detected in time and treated promptly. If your doctor finds anything wrong, you've gained the most important thing of all: time. And if nothing's wrong, just think of the blissful peace of mind that's all yours.

The Selective Service system underwent another revamping this week as preparations were made to induct into the armed services this year every able-bodied man between the ages of 18 and 37. . . Twenty Years Ago

(April 16, 1953)

The grand jury here Tuesday indicted three members of the Louisville accounting firm of the W. M. Cotton Company, charging them with falsification of the audit made of Floyd county officials' receipts and expenses. . . Extensive development of the Stratton Branch area for the convenience of campers and picnickers at Dewey Lake is being planned by the Huntington district office, U. S. Corps of Engineers. . . Burtis Wicker, 33, former Floyd countyman, was killed last Wednesday when a bridge spanning the Big Sandy on a link in the Paintsville-Inez road, collapsed as Wicker was crossing it on a tractor pulling a trailer. . . The Prestonsburg-West Prestonsburg bridge on which an eight-ton load limit has been placed will undergo repairs starting within the next few days. . . Julia Ann Derosssett, 6, died Monday, April 13, at King's Daughters' hospital, Ashland, of burns received in an accident, February 5, when her clothing caught fire at an open fireplace at the home of her parents at Dock. . . Last Thursday night's windstorm hit Prestonsburg and vicinity with near-tornado force, causing damage of several thousand dollars. . . After being drowned, Greg Mynhier, six-year-old Martin child, was rescued from the stream and restored to life minutes after artificial respiration was administered by Red Ison, also of Martin. . . Two Floyd county high school graduates, members of the Morehead State basketball squad honored by the Morehead Kiwanis Club recently, are Jim Duff, of Garrett, and Russell Hunley, Jr., of Prestonsburg. . . Halstead, 86, former Prestonsburg man, at the home of a son, at Wales, Pike county, April 11; John Bevins, 40, at his home on Buffalo Creek at Endicott, Friday.

Wildflower Weekend At Carter Caves

Wildflower enthusiasts are packing their bags for the Wildflower Week-end scheduled for April 27-29 at Carter Caves State Resort Park near Olive Hill, Ky.

Although the workshop is billed as a wildflower week-end, there will also be time spent in bird watching and general enjoyment of nature.

"The week-end will present many opportunities for outdoor study, and should be extremely rewarding," said Charles Rippey, state naturalist.

Field leaders for the week-end will be Jim Butler, former state naturalist, John Varner, U. S. Forest Service naturalist, Dr. Mary Wharton of Georgetown College and Dr. Rober Barbour of the University of Kentucky. Drs. Wharton and Barbour co-authored the popular "Guide to the Wildflowers and Ferns of Kentucky," published in 1971.

Butler, now at Manhattanville College, Purchase, N. Y., will be in charge of programs Friday and Saturday evenings in Caveland Lodge.

His topic Friday will be, "Spring's Unique Specialties of the Appalachian Highlands," a widely encompassing program reviewing a naturalist's principal interests during a spring season in Appalachia. Saturday evening's program is entitled, "The Unique Flora and Fauna of South Florida's Big Cypress Swamp." This program reveals the ecological interrelationships of wildlife in a cypress swamp and its surroundings.

Varner, who serves as naturalist in the Red River Gorge, spring through fall, is known as an accomplished botanist.

A field trip to the Cascade Caves area in Box Canyon, as well as a session on photographing wildflowers, is also slated for the week-end. There will be plenty of free time for participants to enjoy on their own.

Reservations can be made for the Wildflower Week-end by telephoning the park, 606-286-4411, or by writing Carter Caves State Resort Park, Olive Hill, Ky. 41164. Due to the expenses incurred in presenting these programs, a registration fee of $4.00 will be charged for each adult, with a reduced $2.00 rate for students.

Statement by Squire Feltner

Squire Feltner, a candidate for president of District 30, United Mine Workers' of America, has released the following statement concerning his candidacy which the membership in the UMWA District 30 will be voting on May 5 through May 20, 1973:

Mr. Feltner states that he has been working for District 30. Immediately prior to Mr. Feltner's employment with the UMWA District 30 he was employed by the Blondell Mining Company in Hazard, Kentucky as a repairman, bulldozer operator and preparation plant worker. and was a member of Local Union 5857 at Darfork, Kentucky. Upon being transferred to the Big Sandy Area as a field representative in 1963 he transferred his membership to Local Union 1373 at Martin, Kentucky which has jurisdiction over Island Creek Coal Company's Spurlock Mine.

Feltner was endorsed or supported by nominations from 44 local unions in District 30 in the nominating elections just recently held. His closest opponent, who is the MFD candidate, was supported only by 13 local unions in District 30. Mr. Feltner states that the MFD candidate made statements in his news release that he was endorsed by the rank and file miners of District 30. Feltner also states that this is not true. The MFD candidate was selected to run at a meeting held at Millard High School in Pike County, and that only 35 to 40 people were in attendance at the meeting and that would be a far cry from all of the rank and file members in this district, and the only qualifications he was expected to have in order to run was that he had voted for and supported President Miller in the national election. Feltner further states that the MFD candidate was not even nominated or supported by his own home local union which is Local Union 5899 located at Wheelwright, Kentucky.

Feltner states that he feels that his years with the organization and the work that he had performed during those years qualifies him to serve as President of District 30. He is well liked by the membership in all areas of District 30 and by reason of him being nominated by 44 local unions in the district, his name will be placed at the top of the ballot in the No. 1 position in the May elections. Feltner urges all interested coal miners to go out and vote for him in the May elections and he will support the membership and work hard to unite District 30 and to bring back the respect for the union in this district that we once had. He urges the membership to beware of people who promise them everything in the world that they know they will not be able to deliver even if elected. Feltner also wishes to inform the National Union that the free democracy that they have supported would come about much easier if the National Union employees or any others who are arm twisting or making impossible promises in District 30 would cease to do such things and let the coal miners vote for the people that they wish to represent them. It is certainly not a true democracy in District 30 if outside sources wherever they may be from interfere with the District 30 elections. (Adv.)

Magoffin Services To Occupy Building
Near Salyersville

Richard T. Stai, executive director of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, announced last week that the agency's Magoffin county service units will soon occupy new quarters just south of Salyersville.

In action taken at the March meeting of the agency's board, approval was given for a long-term lease of a building located on Route 114, one mile south of Salyersville. The building is owned by Roland Conley and was originally built to house a supermarket.

When finished the building will house the Magoffin County Outpatient Clinic, Adult Activity Center, Children's Day Training and Adult Day Treatment programs of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center. At present Mountain Comprehensive Care Center occupies space in the Medical Clinic building, in the Magoffin County Public Library and in a remodeled house in the Dixie section of the county.

Mrs. Marie Anastasi, Magoffin county team director, said the new facility will give the team's programs far greater flexibility and allow for continued expansion of both programs and services in the Magoffin county area.

Friends, Relatives, Politicians . . .

I state plain facts. In our last Magistrate's race our present Magistrate defeated me by only 44 votes, including absentee votes.

YOU HAVE BUT ONE CHOICE. This race for Magistrate is between Edward Caudill and TED H. SALISBURY. All the candidates for this office are my friends, and this race won't change that.

YOU ARE FOR ME OR FOR EDWARD C. CAUDILL. A vote for the other candidates is a vote to keep Eddie Caudill in office as Magistrate. He has had the office for years—let me serve you, just once.

To the Voters in Floyd County Voting
For Representative in the 94th District

After talking to numerous people in Floyd County, I have found much resentment because six of your precincts have been added to Pike County. I can understand your concern about this situation, and the fear that you will not be represented.

I would like for the people to know that if I am elected I will do everything I possibly can for them as we are both Eastern Kentucky counties in which I am greatly interested. I further promise to make every effort to have their precincts returned to Floyd county as under the law it is now possible and should be done.

If my opponent is elected, he will not want to see this happen as he is expecting his largest number of votes from them and will do nothing to have it changed back for the people.

So I hope you will give this matter some serious thought and decide how you want your precincts to remain.

Again let me reassure you that you will not be let down in representation if I am elected.

Thank you,

JOHN M. PHILLIPS

SETS PUNISHMENT POLICY
A policy for administering corporal punishment to students in the Middleboro school system has been adopted by the local board of education. The policy allows "spanking" by individual room teachers for children from the third grade down. Older pupils may be spanked only by the individual school principal or his designated agent. Girls in this category must be punished by a female staff member in the presence of the principal. The board included loud outbursts, damaging school property or equipment, disrespect to school personnel name calling and obscene language as punishable offenses.

Who Does Bill Reynolds Really Represent In Frankfort?

1. DOES BILL REYNOLDS REPRESENT FLOYD COUNTY—THE SIXTH LARGEST COAL PRODUCING COUNTY IN KENTUCKY? OR DOES HE REPRESENT THE OIL AND GAS INTERESTS OF HIS EMPLOYER, UNITED FUEL GAS COMPANY? Bill Reynolds has had 10 years in Frankfort to represent the people of Floyd County. If he really has our interests at heart, why did he vote to put a severance tax on coal, while leaving it off oil and gas and all other minerals produced in Kentucky? More than 2000 Floyd Countians depend on coal for their means of livelihood, yet Bill Reynolds voted to put a crippling tax on this industry.
2. IS BILL REYNOLDS TRYING TO GET THE BEST LAWS FOR CUSTOMERS OF PUBLIC UTILITIES, OR THE BEST DEAL FOR HIS CRONIES IN WEST VIRGINIA AND WESTERN KENTUCKY WHO RUN THE PUBLIC UTILITIES? Bill Reynolds has been a member of the Public Utilities Committee in the House of Representatives every year since he went to Frankfort. This committee has total legislative power over water, telephone, electricity and gas services to Kentuckians. In all those ten years, Bill Reynolds has had the power to see that laws favorable to big business utility companies got passed, and those unfavorable (or which might help the utilities customers) were kept in committee—never getting to other members of the House for a vote. Check your own phone bill electric bill gas bill water bill. Have they been going up or down? Yet Bill Reynolds brags about being the Frankfort "roommate" of J. R. Miller, the Western Kentucky czar of rural electrification, who makes million's from this so-called "public" utility. Could this explain why J. R. Miller, a citizen of Owensboro (by way of Mississippi) has entered into this Floyd County Representative race with a vengeance—writing letters to all precinct committee men and women, urging the re-election of Bill Reynolds? This is the same J. R. Miller who is Chairman of the Democratic Party of Kentucky—a man who should by all means remain neutral in a Democratic Primary Election.

Skilled Women Serve On Ambulance Squad

MINERVA PARK, Ohio—The 20,000 inhabitants of Minerva Park, Ohio, are serviced solely by a volunteer ambulance force of women known as the "Squaw Squad."

The Squaw Squad went into action in 1969 after Minerva Park's Volunteer Fire Department decided to provide emergency medical service to the community. Trouble was, the men who make up the department mostly work outside of the town during the day, and were only available for night calls.

Says Jane Busellato, an original member of the Squaw Squad: "The need was there and the men were not available. We're all family women, and naturally we wanted protection for our children. So it was up to us to take over the job."

The Squaw Squad is in constant training, and so proficient has become Minerva Park's all-woman emergency team that it recently won first prize in the Ohio Rescue and First Aid Competition, beating an all-male team of full-time firemen.

Princess Mfg. Founders Sell Stock Holdings

W. L. Wells and R. M. Henderson, founders of the Princess Manufacturing Company at Auxier, have sold their interest in the company—162,800 shares—to Executive Wardrobes, Inc., of Concord, N. C., it was announced last week by Stefan Magura, president of the firm, in a report to stockholders.

Executive Wardrobes sells sport coats manufactured by Princess from material supplied by the North Carolina company. Mr. Magura said the North Carolina firm invested in the Floyd plant to assure it of quality of supply for its growing market. Princess Manufacturing has been selling to Executive Wardrobes and its affiliate, Craftknit Sales, since last November.

Joining Stefan Magura and his brother, Michael, on the Princess board of directors are Fred W. Suther and Fred T. Riley, both of the North Carolina group, who were elected to serve till the August stockholders' meeting.

Princess Manufacturing was founded by Wells and Henderson in 1965. The 162,800 shares which they sold to Executive Wardrobes comprises more than 23 percent of the company's outstanding stock.

The company in the first nine months of the current fiscal year showed a profit of $52,596.13 after taxes, the report to stockholders said. The plant employs about 180, mostly women.

Floyd's Daily 90-Ton Waste Load Creates Big Problem, Bailey Says

The first batch at an illegal dumping place is the worst, says John Bailey, sanitarian of the Floyd County Health Department. "It's like a magnet—it draws other trash to it. It's a lot better if a dump never gets started," he explains.

In Floyd county alone, there is an estimated 90 tons of solid waste disposed of daily. Getting rid of this garbage and trash is a problem for everyone. In heavily populated areas, the local government usually collects waste materials. In rural areas, the individual frequently must handle his own trash by taking care of it on his own property.

"But remember, Kentucky law requires all trash to be disposed of properly. Proper handling of waste protects all of us, conserves our natural resources and adds to the beauty and quality of our environment. More importantly, the right way of handling garbage prevents the spread of diseases. We all have to do our part, by seeing that solid waste is disposed of in a sanitary manner.

Roadside dumps are not only illegal and ugly, but they're dangerous, too, Bailey said. They provide breeding places for flies, mosquitos and other destructive insects. Rats often multiply to dangerous levels around dumps because they can find food and shelter in them. All of these pests spread to nearby farms and homes, where they may damage crops, contaminate food or bring disease.

Dumps also pollute. If they catch on fire, they pollute the air. Frequently the waste materials are washed into streams and pollute them.

"Even a little bit of litter is too much," Bailey added. "Floyd county would be better, healthier and prettier place to live in if every bit of trash is properly, legally disposed of."

Kentucky Grows—But Not High Court

By JEANNE BECKETT

Frankfort, Ky.—There is a side affect of the population explosion which perhaps has never occurred to the scientists and researchers—the problem of the courts.

As the population has grown, the number of people using the courts to settle disputes has also grown. To meet this increase the legislature had almost doubled the number of circuit judgeships since the present court system was formed in 1894.

This is not true of the Court of Appeals. It has remained the same, except for an early increase from five to seven justices and the employment of four commissioners approved by the legislature early in the 1920's.

Chief Justice John S. Palmore also notes the many, many changes made in the past 13 years by the Supreme Court of the United States with regard to constitutional law. "The law isn't as settled as it used to be. Our court is in the middle, we don't make the changes but we have to comply with them," Justice Palmore says.

Also, Supreme Court innovations have resulted in a national problem on the number of criminal cases being appealed or petitioned for review, and the law requires that criminal cases take precedence over civil actions.

Caseload statistics provided by the clerk of the Court of Appeals, Mrs. Frances Jones Mills, underline the chief justice's concern. In 1961 the total cases docketed for consideration by Kentucky's highest court totaled 666, while in 1972 the case load totaled 1267—nearly double.

Judge Palmore also explained how the backlog of cases is divided under present law. "Certain cases take precedence and the law designates them. We have no recourse but to process them first. These advanced cases constituted 47 percent of the total caseload for the court in 1972. "This means that 53 percent had to wait until the advanced group was totally completed," The Justice explained.

"These are civil cases and many of them involve good law-abiding citizens who have their life savings or property tied up. I think it is a shame that these people are deprived of a prompt settlement of their cases," Judge Palmore said.

Carrying the preferential treatment of "precedence" are criminal cases, workmen's compensation, and child custody. And, black lung legislation has tripled the workmen's compensation load.

Justice Palmore says this all means "a Workmen's Compensation case filed today may be completed by the summer of 1973, while 53 percent of the cases filed (mainly civil actions) may be delayed as much as 21 months."

One court innovation in the past ten years has been utilization of circuit judges in preparing high court opinions. This resulted from the last pay increase to the circuit judges, which carried with it the additional responsibility. Simultaneously, the caseload carried by these judges has grown. Justice Palmore's opinion is "They have their own work of quite a different nature and shouldn't be asked to do anything but what is strictly their own."

In the ten years the circuit judges have been working for the court, they have written about 1,000 opinions. "This constitutes about a year and a half of work for the court," says Palmore.

But, no matter where the opinions come from, (circuit judges, commissioners, or a member of the court) the full court must meet, review and vote upon each opinion.

The end result is that the Court of Appeals is dealing with more cases, which have been made more complicated by Supreme Court changes, while the court itself has remained nearly the same as it was 80 years ago.

Justice Palmore had outlined some ideas for change which would bring about a more equalized action on all cases. He would like to see a "spillover" court to handle the overflow, or power for the court to reject a case as the Supreme Court of the United States does. On either of these changes, the legislature would have to make the final decision.

Garden Clubs Of State Meet At May Lodge

Jenny Wiley State Park is hosting this week the 42nd Annual Conference of Garden Clubs of Kentucky at May Lodge. The meeting, which is being attended by clubs from throughout the state, began Tuesday and will conclude tomorrow (Thursday).

The three-day conference, which this year is carrying the theme, "Focus: Our Highlands," features as guest speaker Charles Harper, Cincinnati artist. Harper, whose work is on permanent exhibit at Frame House Gallery in Louisville, was also featured last year at an artist's week-end at May Lodge and will address a 12:30 luncheon today (Wednesday). His talk is entitled, "The Ladybug Will Save the World."

Other guest speakers include Mrs. Edward Fisher, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. C. R. Fitzwater, of Huntington, W. Va.

Participating clubs this year are displaying and decorating with articles pertaining to the Highlands theme. The Morgan County Club, for example, has made special patchwork potholders to depict the county's Scotch-Irish heritage and will use small, brown pottery jugs filled with Morgan county sorghum to publicize the annual sorghum festival held at West Liberty each October.

Individual club members are displaying various artistic creations involving plants, flowers or any aspect of gardening. They are in the form of photography, art, sewing, flower arrangements or other medium.

Members of the Paintsville Garden Club entertained with a "Highland Fling" reception at 5 p.m. Tuesday in honor of Mrs. Canton Stoner, South Atlantic regional director from Eagle Rock, Va., and Mrs. C. L. Henderson, Kentucky president, of Louisville.

Today's schedule will begin with "Focus: the Landscape," at 3 p.m., moderated by Mrs. W. J. Cartledge, of Anchorage, Kentucky. "Create a Flower Show" will follow from 4-5 p.m., directed by Mrs. Robert Burton, of Ashland, and this will be followed by "Focus on Creative Photography," by Gary Whidden, of Kenwood, W. Va., and later, "Witchery with Herbs," by Mrs. Joe Stephenson, of Ashland.

New state club officers will be elected during the conference, which is sponsored by members of the Limestone District Garden Club. The district has 37 clubs, including Ashland, Catlettsburg, Flemingsburg, Grayson, Morehead, Olive Hill, Paintsville, South Shore and West Liberty.

The conference will close Thursday with an awards brunch.

Forestry Unit Ranger Office Moves to Park

The Kentucky Division of Forestry unit ranger office at Allen is presently being moved to a new location in the old Girl Scout bathhouse building at Goble Branch, Jenny Wiley State Park.

The move comes as a result of the need of the Department of Highways which owns the office space at Allen, to utilize the building for its own expansion purposes.

District Forester Jim Winter said Monday that he hopes the move will be completed sometime next week. The former Girl Scout building, a block structure, is quite sound, according to Winter, and work on the new office will consist of painting and sealing in certain areas.

The office in the new location will serve exactly the same functions as the Allen office, said Winter—as command headquarters for the Floyd-Magoffin county ranger unit. This unit forms one of three ranger units in the Division of Forestry's six-county Eastern district, of which Winter is head. The office handles radio dispatching in Floyd and Magoffin and keeps foresters and firefighters alerted in case of woodland fire.

The new location in the state park is considered an advantage to both the Division of Forestry and to the park itself. Ranger Winter expressed the opinion that the closeness of the new office to the adjacent camping area and to the old Girl Scout lodge, which is scheduled to be renovated and developed as a recreation building for park guests, will enable the Division to reach more people with its message of fire prevention and conservation. Park manager George Barker also expressed pleasure at the move, saying that the presence of uniform-clad rangers is always pleasant and reassuring around forested public use areas.

Youth Fellowship To Present Drama

"Barabbus," a drama based on the character of the insurrectionist who was released by Pilate instead of Jesus, will be presented by the senior high United Methodist Youth Fellowship at First United Methodist Church Sunday evening at 7:30. The drama is set in the home of the parents of Barabbus soon after the crucifixion of Jesus. The Rhythmic Choir, the Youth Choir, and the Chancel Choir of the church will provide the music. The production, including the music, is directed by Mrs. Chalmers Frazier, Mrs. Fred Setser, Mrs. Dean Ward and Mrs. Arthur Haywood. The public is invited to see this dramatic production.

Rotarians Attend Meeting At Lodge

The 1973 district conference of Rotary District 674 began last Thursday at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, for three days of plenary sessions, group discussions and entertainment features. More than 300 Rotarians from eastern and central Kentucky and their wives attended the conference which was hosted by the Paintsville Rotary Club and chaired by District Governor Luther Safriet, Paintsville Rotarian.

The theme for this year's conference was, "Let's Take a New Look," and was taken from the 1973 theme of Rotary International President Roy Hickman. President Hickman's personal representative, Harry Hester, of Birmingham, Ala., addressed the conference during the three-day event.

Thursday's opening session included the annual meeting of past district governors, greetings from other Rotary districts and an address by Tom Duncan Reed, Governor of District 671 (Western Kentucky). Other sessions included an address by Mr. Hester, a Governor's banquet Friday night, and concluded at noon Saturday with an address by District Governor-Nominee Eugene Siler, of Williamsburg, Kentucky.

There are 40 Rotary Clubs in District 674.

because two witnesses, Leonard Hall and Winsell Spurlock, failed to appear. The court ordered that warrants be issued for their arrest and that no bond be allowed.

The murder trail of Adrian Burchett, charged with the slaying of George L. Kendrick at Ivel, ended Thursday in a directed verdict of not guilty. Circuit Judge Hollie Conley's acquittal order followed the hearing of all Commonwealth witnesses.

Earlier last week, Johnny Watson entered pleas of guilty to a murder charge in the death of his brother, Dennis, on Mud Creek last Feb. 6, and to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. He was sentenced last Thursday to 12 years on the murder county and three years for assault.

Larry Dean Brewer was given trial in absentia Thursday on a charge of possessing illegal drugs and was fined $500 and given a one-year jail term. Two others, Carl Bonifass and James Hall, Jr., failed to appear for trial on a charge of failing to disperse. They were given 90-day jail terms and were fined $500 each.

Lark Hunt and Joe Lykins, who entered pleas of guilty to the charge of selling intoxicating beverages, drew 30-day jail terms and fines of $100. The trial of Morgan and Harold Joseph, charged with transporting intoxicants, was continued till April 26. A second selling charge against Lykins was dismissed.

Assault and battery counts against Jimmie Fairchild and Shank Gibson were dismissed after each had executed $1000 bond to keep the peace.

Grand larceny charges against Dale Zellard Baldrige and Ronnie Little were dismissed because of lack of prosecution.

Half of the Floyd circuit court's four-case murder docket was cleared last week by pleas of guilty and "agreed" verdicts.

Johnny Watson entered a plea of guilty Monday to the slaying of his brother, Dennis, and was given a 12-year pen term. He also pleaded guilty to the charge of shooting into an auto, a few days prior to the slaying, and was given a three-year term. Both terms are to run consecutively.

The second murder case which may have been decided is that of 73-year-old Mont Robinette, who is charged with the slaying at West Prestonsburg of his wife. Robinette is ill in Louisa General Hospital, but his attorney, David White, of Louisa, came here Monday and conferred with court officials. He said his client has agreed to enter a plea of guilty and accept a 10-year pen term. Final disposition of his case, however, must await the defendant's appearance in court.

A third guilty plea resulted in a $200 fine and a 90-day jail term for Martin V. Frazier for striking and wounding.

"AG" OR "AIG"

There are several pronunciations heard in these parts of the word, "egg." The story is told of a teacher in an Eastern Kentucky school assembling a class in Agriculture, and at the first session he conducted a get-acquainted session. Finally, he inquired, "Any of you had any Ag before now?"

Back toward the rear sat an old boy who had risen early to get to school and who was in a half-doze when the question was popped. He bestirred himself, shot up his hand and replied:

"I have. Had three for breakfast."

tical facilities and Barker said that each of the three forks of the camping hollow would have its own entrance. A grocery store will later be established at the site. Mr. Baker said he didn't expect this work at Goble Branch to be fully completed before the 1974 season.

The Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre is also undergoing renovation to prepare for this summer's series of plays and musicals, and the park gift shop is being improved.

Plans for next fall include work at the former Girl Scout lodge, near Goble Branch, to provide extra indoor space for various recreational activities in the winter months as well as during the summer tourist season. Mr. Barker said that beautifully rustic location is especially suitable for state park guests and that the structure will serve as a sort of extension of May Lodge.

Sgt. Sherman Wins
Bronze Star Medal

Master Sgt. Tom M. Sherman, formerly of Wayland, has been awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious service as noncommissioned officer in charge of the Life Support Branch at Nakhon Phanom Royal Thai Air Force, Thailand, while engaged in operations against the enemy from June 6, 1971 to June 6, 1972.
 The citation accompanying the Bronze Star award noted that during this period Sgt. Sherman's achievement in organizing a central wing life support agency from four diversified sections while simultaneously maintaining uninterrupted support for air crews on combat missions greatly enhanced the flexibility of Pacific air forces stationed in southeast Asia. Survival gear modifications developed by Sgt. Sherman were approved for wide Air Force implementation.
 The sergeant is a son of Mrs. H. J. Sherman, of Beckley, W. Va., formerly of Wayland. He attended North Dakota University following graduation from Millersburg Military Institute, Millersburg, Ky.

Nature Trails By Rufus M. Reed
The Indians' Sacred Plant

The botanists named tobacco, NICOTIANA TABUCUM, after Master Jean Nicot, who sent seeds of this plant to France in 1560, to get it established there. From his comes the word "nicotine."
 In the days of the Indians there was an abundance of wild tobacco and there was the cultivated variety. Back then, tobacco was unknown to the rest of the world. The Indians used tobacco in scores of different ways, mostly as a remedy for the various ailments of their race. They also smoked it in their peace pipes on ceremonial occasions. They regarded tobacco as a gift from heaven and smoked it as a religious offering to the Great Spirit. They also smoked it as a token of peace and goodwill among the tribes. When they made treaties with the whites they sealed them by smoking tobacco. If disaster happened to strike any of the tribes, the Indians smoked tobacco to appease the "spirits." Rarely did they use tobacco to satisfy lustful craving, their use of its being mostly medicinal. They used the juice to expel worms and in an enema to relieve colic; they also used tobacco smoke to revive fainting or drowning victims.

 For piles, they used a suppository of raw fat mixed with a pinch of powdered tobacco. To stop the violent spasms of lockjaw, they used an infusion of tobacco; they also used it to ease the symptoms of rabies.

Tobacco was chewed by the Indians, mainly for its medicinal properties and as a tonic for the system. The stronger the tobacco, the more it was regarded as a great medicine. Few whites could use the strong tobacco of the Indians. Chewed-up tobacco leaves were applied to snakebite, but only after the poison had been sucked out. Pouches of tobacco leaves were bound on the chest to relieve bronchial congestion; a poultice on the jaw was used to cure toothache. As a cure for rheumatism, the patient was bathed in hot water in which a handful of tobacco leaves had been put. And there was the cure for athlete's foot, which seemed to have afflicted the redmen as well as the palefaces. To cure this, they used a dressing of tobacco leaves mixed with green grass.
 For disinfecting wounds the Indians used tobacco leaf poultices, as did our foreparents; they also used the juice to kill lice and cure the baby's colic. They also blew tobacco smoke under their clothing to stop the pain. To cure earache, they blew tobacco smoke into the ear. The Indians who got too fat to run through the woods took up tobacco chewing to cause them "to spit away their big fat."
 The most unusual use of tobacco by the Indians was that of treating stunted children. They made these chew tobacco and swallow the juice! It is said this didn't make them sick but actually cured them of being stunted. The tobacco was needed by the puny child to counteract the effects of the disease of whatever might be stunting its growth. Small wonder the Indians regarded tobacco as a gift from heaven. They taught the whites about tobacco's great value as a medicine and how to use it for various ailments.

Nicolas Monardes, the botanist who wrote many books on herbs and medicinal plants of the New World, recorded that tobacco was introduced into Spain as a garden plant in 1569. Later the Spaniards heard of its medicinal value and began to use it as a medicine.
 Jean Nicot was one of the first white men to develop tobacco remedies for diseases. He used it to cure a young man with a sore on his nose; also to heal one of his cooks who cut his thumb with a chopping knife.
 Tobacco is a member of the NIGHTSHADE FAMILY and is related to the beautiful petunias, also to ground cherry and black nightshade. From the poisonous members of the Nightshade family, some of the greatest medicines have been developed.

GOVERNOR OPPOSED AID TO VIETNAM—Gov. Wendell Ford expressed his opposition to United States aid for North Vietnam as he spoke at a Louisville luncheon honoring four former prisoners of war. "I am extremely concerned that many of our resources will be misdirected unless the American people stand up and say no," the Governor said.

Review Sought In Paintsville Housing Action

The Prestonsburg-based Appalachian Research and Defense Fund last week filed a writ of mandamus and a petition of stay in the Sixth U. S. circuit court of appeals, asking that a portion of the decision made in the Paintsville housing case March 21 in U. S. district court at Catlettsburg by U. S. District Judge H. David Hermansdorfer be reviewed.

Judge Hermansdorfer's decision called for the Paintsville Housing Authority to set up a grievance committee to hear appeals or protests of housing applicants following the housing authority's decisions.

The Research and Defense Fund case, a class action filed on behalf of Elsie Dale, a Paintsville resident, alleged that the housing authority was refusing to admit as tenants qualified applicants and was treating tenants arbitrarily and evicting tenants for improper reasons.

"We're only taking issue with part of that order," John Rosenberg, head of AR & DF, said. "We take no issue with Judge Hermansdorfer's order to establish a grievance committee for future claimants."

Rosenberg stressed his firm will comply with Judge Hermansdorfer's order.

In the original case the establishment of a grievance panel was sought.

Rosenberg noted that this section of Judge Hermansdorfer's decision was "one of the things we were after," but added that "the order, in our judgment, does not take care of all the problems we've been trying to remedy."

In effect, the attorney, the recent action in the Cincinnati Court of Appeals is a request that Judge Hermansdorfer act on "what we have asked for. We feel the court should hear and rule on testimony of past housing applicants."

"This is the way a class action should proceed," he said. "We were seeking a decision that would affect everyone... a broad order that would bear on an entire class of applicants and address itself to some of the practices and procedures rather than initially referring it to the grievance committee."

He contends that the particular people who filed the case in 1971 and other past housing applicants "have a right to have their case heard in Judge Hermansdorfer's court now, rather than having to proceed through the grievance committee."

Rosenberg stressed that "we're not trying to prevent the orderly process set down in the hearings. We're anxious to have the grievance committee work."

But he indicated Hermansdorfer's decision does not answer the question originally brought before the court. "While we hope the implementation of the grievance procedure helps present and future tenants and applicants, we hoped they would declare Elsie Dale and other original plaintiffs eligible for admission to housing."

Meanwhile, Paintsville city attorney Howes Johnson reported three of the six grievance committee members have been named and hearings may begin as early as April 23.

Johnson said he had received the names of 130 persons who would be scheduled to appear before the committee "and we're trying to set times for hearing that will fit everybody's convenience."

Already named to the committee are Russell Chandler, retired clothing merchant; William Martin, Paintsville businessman, and Lynn Jennings, retired Kentucky Power Co. sales representative.

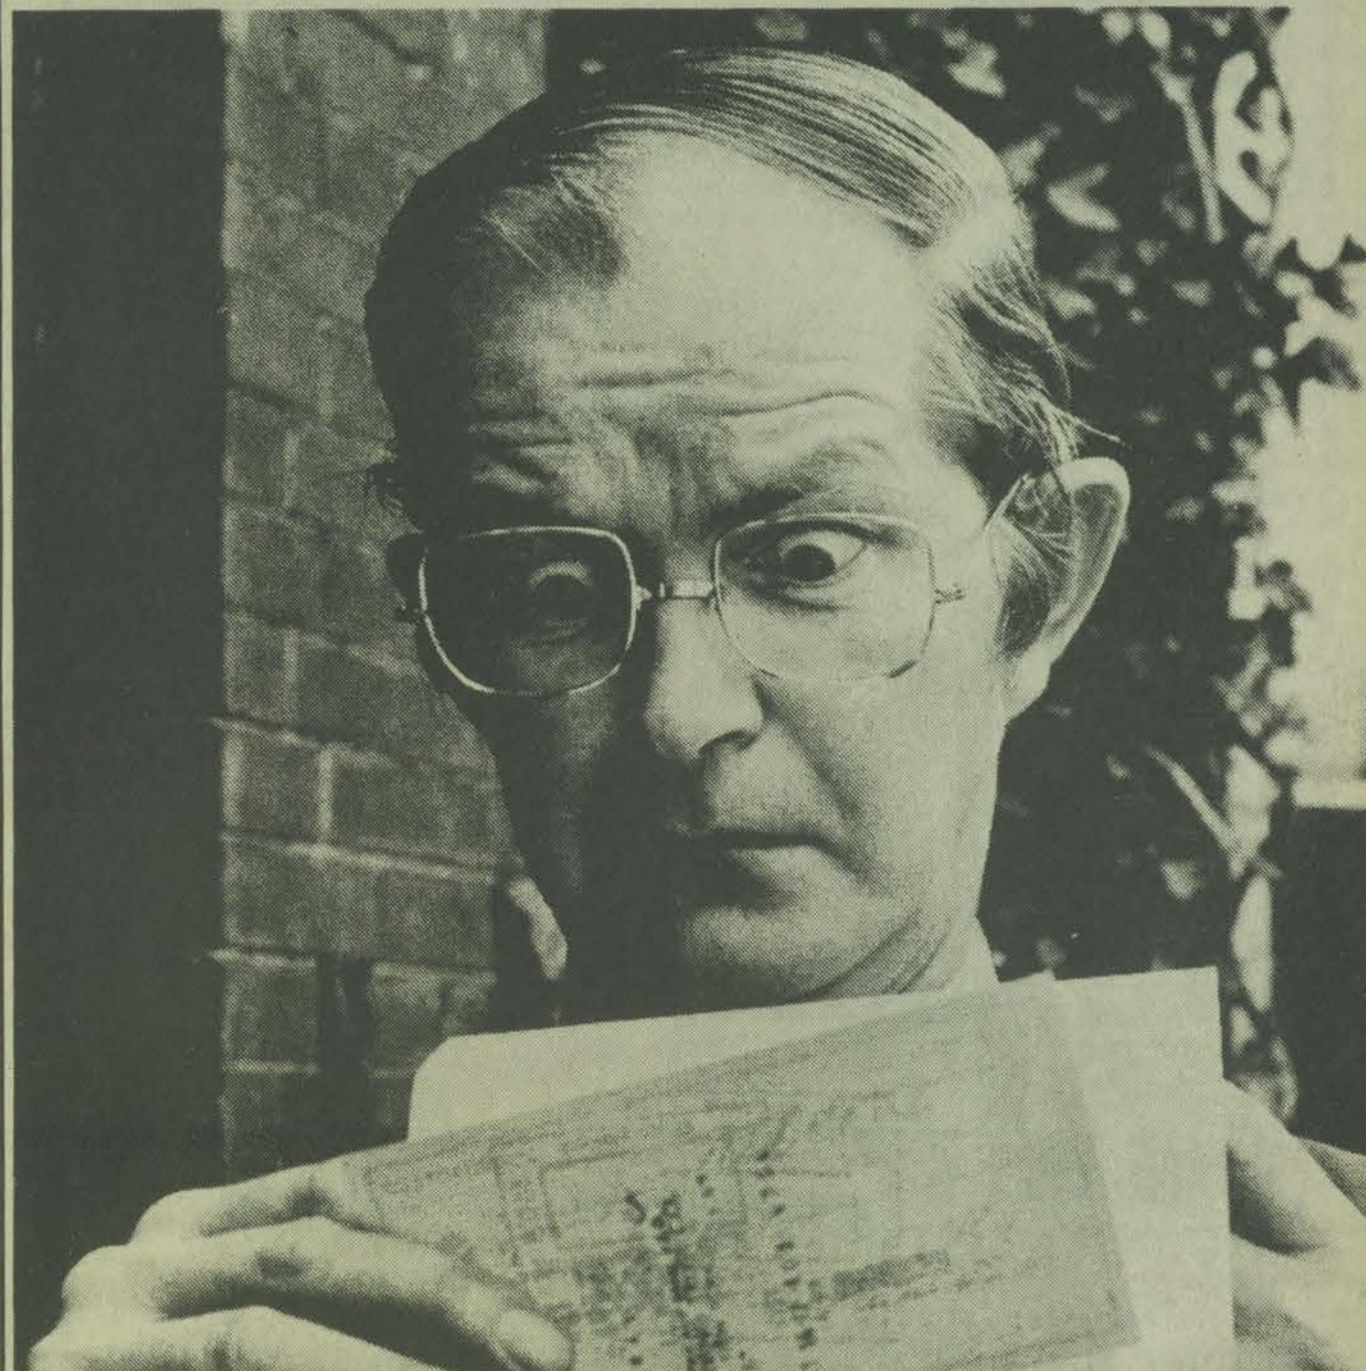

Judge Hermansdorfer stressed in his decision that, should a claimant not be satisfied with the grievance committee's decision, the matter would be heard in his court.

In the construction industry, white union members earn nearly $3,000 more than black union members. Nearly 70 percent of all white male union members were craftsmen, compared with 45 percent of black members.

The unemployment rate for black high school graduates in 1972 not enrolled in college was 34.5 percent as of October 1972, as compared to a 12.2 percent rate for whites.

GOVERNOR GIVES SUPPORT—Gov. Wendell Ford has signed a "statement of support" which recognizes "the National Guard and Reserve as essential to the strength of our nation and the maintenance of world peace." The Governor also reaffirmed state government's policy that state employees' job and career opportunities will not be limited or reduced because of their service in military units and that leaves of absence will be granted for necessary training without sacrifice of vacation time.

Shades of Paul Bunyan Recalled At Quicksand Forest Field Day

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
The rough and ready shades of Paul Bunyan, the patron saint of loggers, were recalled at Quicksand Saturday when a group of students from the University of Kentucky's College of Forestry locked cant hooks and hobsnails with students of the local Forestry and Wood Technician School.

During the festivities, which were well attended, sawdust, bark and wood chips flew and the whole course of events was marked by one ironic note. In a business that has long been regarded as an activity that separates the men from the boys, doesn't even separate the men from the women. This was borne out by the fact that four women entered into the rough and tumble competition and demonstrated with a vengeance that in this supposedly soft-muscled society, there are still some women around with sufficient stamina to manipulate a crosscut saw.

This statement, of course, refers to Shirley Griffith and Louise Oaks who contested with UK Forestry School students, Rebecca Burke and Sarah Browning, in a crosscut sawing contest.

Incidentally, perhaps, previous experience in making stovewood, a one time essential ingredient in the lives of Kentucky mountain women, Shirley and Louise ripped a block from a 12-inch log in 113 seconds to defeat their competition by almost a half minute.

Another interesting event was based upon an old-time logging practice of rigging. This was a job in which a lumberjack with special skills was some times required to skin up a tall tree, lop off the limbs and top to provide a base for attaching skid ropes by which logs could be more easily removed from the sides and crests of mountains.

In this case Saturday, it was more of a tree-climbing contest and Ron "Ginseng" Stephens of the mountains easily outpointed Bill McReynolds of the Bluegrass team, by skinning up a 40-foot pole with all the agility of a fence lizard.

Incidentally, Stephens, who hails from the lumbering county of McCreary, won four first prizes and two second spots in the contests. Some glamor, however, was deducted from one of the first prize wins. That was in the fire-building contest wherein 4-H Specialist, Jack Niece, took all the marbles. But since Jack was not a member of the Forestry Schools, he was disqualified, giving first prize to Stephens who came in second.

The local contestants won 10 first places with those from the University campus getting five. But overall, the Bluegrass team didn't do badly at all. When all the scores were added up in the log-rolling, chain-throwing, tree felling, and numerous other contests, the event ended in a draw.

According to Doug McLaren, an instructor at the Forest and Wood Technician School, the main purpose of the event was competitive fun and to show that there is a lot of pleasure to be had as a professional forester. Another purpose in mind was to draw attention to the school and toward a great natural resource which is the state's forests.

Prizes awarded to the winners in the contests included axes, handsaws, compasses, canteens, hard hats, for the men; bread boards, to the women.

Not Garrett Man

Larry Bentley, of Garrett, is not the man of the same name who was arrested recently by police on a drunk driving charge, The Times has been informed.

The proportion of black and white high school graduates going on to college was 47.6 percent and 49.4 percent, respectively, in 1972.

Ambulance Deadline Deleted

Frankfort, Ky.—"To assure that licensure standards do not prevent the continuation of emergency transportation services because of difficulties in meeting health and safety standards," the Kentucky Health Facilities and Health Services Certificate of Need and Licensure Board has agreed to delete all January, 1974 deadlines from its regulations.

The board had previously adopted minimum standards for personnel, levels of training and for maintaining equipment and records that would have been compulsory on Jan. 1, 1974.

A modification of these requirements was approved this week at the request of the Legislative Research Commission and Gov. Wendell Ford.

Under the new plan any service presently in operation, although not meeting the standards set forth, will continue to be licensed until services meeting appropriate standards can be developed and made available in the particular community and area.

Such licenses issued will include the designation of whether there is "conformance or non-conformance with standards." In the case of non-conformance the deficiencies will be identified and reported to health planning councils and appropriate agencies and officials.

To accomplish this, the board will revise its regulations and include provisions to assist and stimulate improved services. The revision will attempt to avoid any interpretation that standards are unreasonable and excessive.

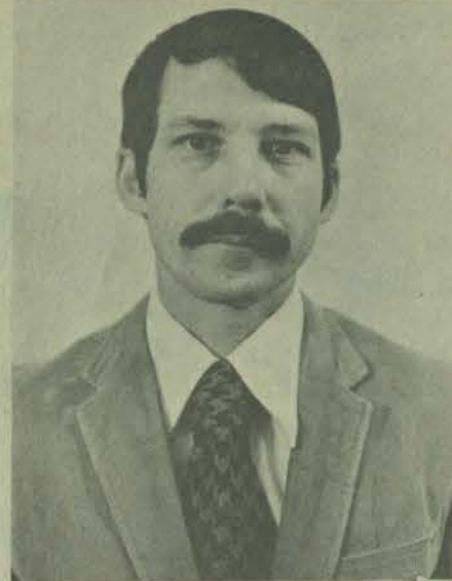

Additional provisions allow accepting plans and assurances in lieu of immediate compliance with licensure regulations.

The board's unanimous action recognized the difficulties that exist in various sections of the state where time is needed to deal with problems that have occurred as the result of the regulatory measures.

Also, in its session, the board noted that ambulance (vehicle) regulations were not effective until 1975 and required an expenditure of only $400 (approximately) in equipment for compliance. Dr. Howard L. Bost, chairman, noted that funeral homes have been the only source of ambulance service in many communities. These services have been declining, he said, but regulations have tended to accelerate that trend "creating a very real and immediate problem."

The board agreed in its revision to "attempt to be supportive and helpful to the development of improved services."

Ky. Power Warns Against Imposters

The Kentucky Power Company this week issued a warning to residents after it had been reported that a person or persons unknown have approached house-holders in this area as representatives of the company for the purpose of inspecting switch boxes.

In the incidents reported an Omaha orange pickup truck was used. Most Kentucky Power Company vehicles are painted this color and, in addition, have Kentucky Power Company decals on the side. Kentucky Power has not, does not, and will not have a representative routinely checking switch boxes in the homes and businesses in Floyd county, a company spokesman said. He advised: "Should you be approached by a stranger introducing himself as a representative of Kentucky Power Company, you may ask to see his identification. All Kentucky Power Company employees carry identification cards. It would be appreciated if you would notify Kentucky Power Company, Phone 886-3050, or the Prestonsburg Area Chamber of Commerce Phone, 886-2335, if you are approached by such an imposter."

Historymobile To Feature Kentucky's Colorful Past

By BONNI BROCKMAN

Frankfort, Ky.—More than two years ago, the Kentucky Historical Society began making plans for a historymobile which would feature the state's colorful past.

Sponsored by the Kentucky Historical Society, the 40-foot history-mobile will teach Kentuckians about their state's past through films and exhibits. This unique vehicle began a statewide tour April 16.

"Our first presentation will be on pre-historic Indians," said Tom Gatewood, curator. "The Indian exhibit will last for about six months, then we will feature Kentucky's bicentennial. Eventually, we will gear the historymobile exhibits to the area of the state we are visiting."

For example, information on coal mines will be presented in Eastern Kentucky, while items such as caves, iron furnaces and cotton will be featured in the western part of the state.

The presentation on pre-historic Indians will include exhibits of Indian artifacts and a ten-minute slide show.

The artifacts, on loan from Dr. Lathel Duffield, director of the Museum of Anthropology at the University of Kentucky, are in glass-enclosed cases on the interior walls of the historymobile. Information is given on the six Indian cultures living in Kentucky from 13,000 B. C. to 1650 A. D. The exhibit begins with the Paleo-Indian culture, composed of people who migrated from Asia to North America during the last Ice Age, and ends with the Fort Ancient Culture, whose people lived in small villages and grew beans, corn and squash.

Visitors to the historymobile will stand on the van's green checkerboard carpet while watching a ten-minute narrated slide show on Indian artifacts. The show will consist of pictures of Indian relics, and drawings by Mrs. Eugenia Blackburn, curator of the Historical Society Museum.

Gatewood, with the help of the Kentucky Department of Public Information, has taken pictures of Indian artifacts owned by Kentuckians, including Larry Meadows of Clay City and Dr. Fred Coy of Louisville.

"The exhibit is geared to adults, although eventually the programs will try to reach a happy medium between children and adults," said Gatewood, a graduate student in Southern religious history at the University of Kentucky. "Since we'll be taking the exhibit to schools, teachers can interpret the presentation for the children. Parents can do the interpreting when we stop at public places, such as state parks."

The historymobile's first stop will be at the Georgetown schools, from April 16 through April 19. The historymobile will continue its journey April 20 to 21 at the Georgetown Courthouse; April 22, Sam's Flea Market, between Georgetown and Lexington; April 23 through 25, the Lexington schools; and April 26 through 28, the Lexington shopping centers.

On permanent exhibit in the historymobile will be a replica of Daniel Boone's rifle, portraits of Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis, the Commonwealth seal, and Kentucky's first state flag.

"Another important aspect of the historymobile is its microfilm equipment," said Gen. William R. Buster, coordinator of the Historical Society.

As he travels, Gatewood hopes to microfilm family Bibles, church records, and any information on genealogy for the Kentucky Historical Society library files. The van also will carry recording equipment.

"We'd like to record people who are knowledgeable in history or who recall important events," Buster said. "For example, we might find someone in the mountains who remembers when Civil War veterans came through."

Those who spent about three years planning for the historymobile include Frank G. Ranklin, former Historical Society president; Lewis Woods of Harrodsburg, director of the Kentucky Young Historians; and Mrs. Ann Bevins, editor of the Young Historians' magazine.

Says ROPES Aim To Coordinate Vocational, General Education

Reo Johns, director of ROPES Region 11, Bronelle Skaggs, assistant director, and Shirley Beard, administrative assistant, addressed delegates at the spring conference of the Ninth District, Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers, at Allen Central high school, April 7.

Mr. Johns told the delegates that the purpose behind the ROPES organization is to provide for cooperation and coordination between general education and vocational education rather than having a dual school system. He told of his support of the "career education" concept and pointed out that eight out of every ten children will not complete an academic program in college. He expressed the belief that children who do not wish to pursue an academic career should be provided with the training needed to live satisfying, profitable lives. Mr. Johns also told the delegates that one purpose of ROPES is to help local school districts obtain services that they would not be able to obtain by themselves.

Mr. Skaggs explained the vocational education facilities available in this region and spoke of the unique geographical features of Region 11.

Miss Beard explained the specific programs and organizations that the ROPES staff has been working with to date.

Mrs. James E. Atkins, president of the Ninth District, Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers, presided at the meeting. The invocation was given by the Rev. Lee Edward Caudill. The Maytown Boy Scout Troop led the salute to the flag.

James D. Hensley, principal of Allen Central high, welcomed the delegates to the school. Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd county schools and chairman of the ROPES Region 11 board of directors, welcomed the delegates to Floyd county and gave them background information concerning the consolidation of four high schools into Allen Central. The response was given by Miss Thora Cooksey, Ninth district Cultural Arts chairman. Other officers present were: Mrs. Gene Maddox, Ashland, first vice-president; Mrs. Donald Van Horne, Ashland, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. William Sturgill, Ashland, second vice-president; and Mrs. Paul Williams, Ashland, third vice-president.

Mrs. C. B. McClaren moderated a skit, "Wrong Way PTA," enacted by Ninth district officers and chairmen. Special music was provided by Mrs. Sam Fitzpatrick and Rev. Lee Edward Caudill.

Miss Lexie Allen was presented a life membership in the PTA by Blanche Dingus on behalf of the district board of managers. Miss Dingus also presented on behalf of the district board a gift and a past president's bar to Mrs. James E. Adkins.

The following were elected officers for the coming term and were installed by Mrs. Paul Williams, third vice-president: President, Miss Blanche Dingus; first vice-president, Mrs. Gene Maddox; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Donald Van Horne.

The invitation to the fall conference was given by Johnson county. The conference will be held in Paintsville in October.

Enough Potential To Be 'Boss'— And Fred T. May Is on His Way

(The following feature article in the IBM News tells the story of a former Prestonsburg resident, Fred T. May, who two months ago became director of engineering for IBM's giant Office Products Division. Mr. May is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lee May.)

By TED GREEBAN

"That man has enough potential, that, barring any unforeseen circumstances, we'll all be working for him someday." That comment, made shortly after a 24-year-old graduate student left a University of Tennessee interviewer's office a little over a decade ago, was, admittedly, only a guesstimate at the time. The student, recall IBMers who conducted the campus job interviews, was more mature than most men of his age, and his capabilities and energies, they felt, could lead to more than just an average career. "That's the way he impressed us on the way in," they affirmed.

The career envisioned for that student, who was hired in July of 1961, as an associate engineer at OPD's Lexington facility, has been coming true ever since. One of the highlights, in fact, occurred just this month when he assumed responsibility for all of the Division's Engineering, including Development and Production at the Lexington and Austin laboratories and the Advanced Technology group at San Jose.

As the Division's director of engineering, that former student, Fred T. May, has continued to direct and refine those early energies in an ever increasing career path responsibility. After receiving his undergraduate degree in electrical engineering from the University of Kentucky in 1958, he spent the next three years doing thermonuclear research at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee. During this time, he also undertook graduate work at the University of Tennessee in the evenings, and upon receiving his Master's Degree in electrical engineering, began his IBM career.

One of the sidelights to those aforementioned energies, as explained by Mr. May, occurred right after he joined the company. "I particularly enjoyed the engineering recruiting effort when OPD was in a developing stage," he said, "and a year after being interviewed at the University of Tennessee, I was back on the campus as an IBM interviewer."

Energy

Working with him in the recruiting program was Tom Musto, recently named manager of the Austin Development Laboratory, and the man who originally recruited Fred May. "The most outstanding feature about him, even at that time," remembers Mr. Musto, "was his energy."

Mr. May, who visited a number of other schools in recruiting electrical engineers for IBM from 1962, to 1964, worked in the Electronic Development group at Lexington, starting initially in the accounting machine area, he soon became responsible for the logic and system design of the IBM Mag Card SELECTRIC Typewriter.

Offering another commentary on this early part of his career, one of Mr. May's associates remembers that, "From the day Fred got in, it was obvious that his maturity and engineering capability would take him places. He had a lot of credibility with the engineering guys," he emphasized.

Whether it was his credibility, energy, development experience, electronic technology expertise, or ability which provided the stepping stones for advancement, Fred May himself isn't certain. According to him, he has always found the present job both interesting and satisfying, and has never aspired to the next job. "Everything is a high point for me," he assured.

The high points for him, however, continued to mount in Lexington where he soon became manager of the electronics and systems aspect of the magnetic media product line. Soon afterwards, he went to Austin as manager of the Development Engineering effort with responsibility for establishing and supervising the new laboratory.

"We had a close responsibility to work with Product Management in developing many products," Mr. May explained. Initially, these included graphics and magnetic keyboards, and then dictation equipment. Mr. May, who was 31 at the time, directed this operation from August of 1968, to October of 1972, when he was named manager of development engineering for the Division. Another important occasion for him, and a fact he didn't volunteer, occurred in April of 1968, when he was honored with a First Level Invention Achievement Award. As of that date, he had filed six patents for the company.

At 35, and the director of engineering for OPD, he now heads the efforts of scores of electrical, chemical and mechanical engineers, technicians, modelmakers, chemists, administrative personnel, mathematicians and physicists.

When he has some free time away from work, Mr. May plays tennis and more recently developed an interest in photography—just the picture-taking part right now because developing takes too much time.

He and his wife, Darlene, enjoyed collecting local art at various festivals in Austin. While at that location, he was also involved in the IBM Boy Scout troop with his oldest son, Randy, who is now 14, and a 6-foot, 3-inch avid basketball player. "In another year or two," mused Mr. May, "I'll be getting back into Scouts again with David, my nine-year-old whose thing is Little League baseball and piano." The serious musician in the family, however, 12-year-old daughter Terri, a junior high school student, plays the piano and guitar. "At this point," he says, "she hopes to major in music."

Mr. May also lent some moral support to his wife who was involved with church-related work in a cultural exchange program at the University of Texas with wives of foreign students and professors. The university has a large foreign contingent among its 40,000-student enrollment. Claiming he is not involved directly, Mr. May said his wife is looking into a similar program at Lexington, which he added, was like a second home to him. It was here that he spent four years at the university and seven years with IBM prior to his assignment at Austin.

Mr. May says that experiencing the present... the moment... is what really counts, and he rarely looks back at things. If he does, it's only to see why things happen the way they did, and the glance is made at the fastest possible speed.

If Mr. May's past decade is any indication of his future, he'll be lucky if he has enough time to turn around for even a fast peek. But for Fred T. May, the most important thing is that the high point continues to be now.

'People Working Together...' Two Receive Top Scout Awards At Annual Appreciation Dinner

Members of the Auxier Road Community Development Club hear guest-speaker Gene Ball.

The Auxier Road Community Development Club met Thursday evening at Horn Chapel with 30 members present to hear a talk by guest-speaker Gene Ball, of the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service.

Mr. Ball told the group that the essence of community development is people working together for community improvement, solving problems individuals cannot solve by working alone. Ball presented a series of slides, showing some of the work being done in 12 Northeast Kentucky counties by 74 community development clubs.

One of the main points stressed by Mr. Ball was that the problems to be solved and the improvements worked for are those identified and agreed upon by the local club. He emphasized the fact that no outsider, expert or otherwise, could come into their community and tell them what their problems are, and get a positive response.

The next meeting will be Sunday, May 13, at 2 p.m. at Horn Chapel.

The two highest awards in Scouting were presented Saturday at the annual appreciation dinner of Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, held at Jenkins.

Paul E. Davidson, of Hazard, was presented the Silver Beaver Award, the highest award which the Lonesome Pine Council may bestow upon a volunteer leader.

Mrs. Elizabeth Skeen, Clintwood, Va., was awarded the Silver Fawn Award for her role as a Scouting leader.

John Chidester, a Life Scout and a member of Explorer Post 21, Prestonsburg, gave the report of accomplishments. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Chidester.

Retiring Council officers recognized by O. T. Dorton were E. M. Bane, George C. Wells, Clifford Myers, Woodrow Allen, Jack Blankenship, John M. Stevens.

David A. Zegeer was recognized as retiring district officer. He has been associated with scouting in the Lonesome Pine Council for many years.

Burlin Coleman, associated with Scouting in the Lonesome Pine Council for many years, recognized unit leaders and den mothers.

O. T. Dorton presented plaques in token of appreciation to the Francis Shoe Store, Prestonsburg; Dawahare's Department Store, Hazard, and Anderson's Department Store, Pikeville. In presenting the plaques, Dorton said, "The operation of a successful Scouting Program requires many things. The main requirement is adequate leadership, but beyond that one of the very important items is a place to secure the books, uniforms and other supplies required to carry on a good program."

Raymond Hammond presented a series of training awards to recognize those who have completed the training courses offered and use the knowledge gained to carry out their scouting responsibilities successfully. Those honored:

Mrs. Sarah Allen, Pack 21, Prestonsburg; Mrs. Sandra Music, Pack 21, Prestonsburg; Mrs. Catherine DeRossett, Pack 21, Prestonsburg; Mrs. Joyce Burchett, Pack 21, Prestonsburg; Mrs. Phoebe Wormack, Pack 323, Wittenville; Mrs. Loraine Price, Pack 323, Wittenville; Mrs. Norma Senter, Pack 47, Clintwood; Mrs. Janie Fleming, Pack 47, Clintwood.

Kenneth Smith was presented the Scouter's Key. To earn the Scouter's Key he was required to complete a series of six training experiences and serve successfully as cubmaster for at least three years. Smith is Cubmaster in Pack 47, Clintwood, Va.

Boy Scouts of America launched the Boy Power 76 program on January 1, 1968. The purpose of this program is to extend scouting to a representative 1-3 of all boys in America by December 31, 1976.

In order to achieve this goal councils and districts were asked to set monthly and yearly goals in Boys' Life subscription, Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts Explorer, total units, total trained leaders, and total national standard units.

Three districts in the council were on target at the end of the year. These were the Breaks, the Kentucky River and the Pike districts. In spite of the fact that the other two districts were not on target all the way, they did make significant gains in boy membership; therefore we wish to recognize all districts by presenting certificates of appreciation.

The Breaks district received two certificates. Breaks district was on target for all items and achieved a 48 percent gain in boy membership.

The Pine Mountain district was on target on all items except boy Scout membership and achieved a 25 percent gain in boy membership.

The Jenny Wiley district was on target on all items except explorer membership and achieved a gain in boy membership of 29 percent.

Kentucky River district received two certificates. The Kentucky River district is on target in all items and had a whopping gain of 70 percent in boy membership.

The Pike district was on target on all items and achieved a 56 percent increase in boy membership.

The Pine Mountain district had a 25 percent increase in membership. The Jenny Wiley district had a 29 percent increase in membership, the Breaks district a 48 percent increase, the Pine district 56 percent increase, and the Kentucky River district had a 70 percent increase.

D. A. Zegeer presented certificates of appreciation to these retiring district officers.

Herbert Thompson, chairman, Breaks district; Frank Heinze, chairman, Jenny Wiley district; Curtiss T. Spicer, chairman, Kentucky River district; Billy Joe Justice, finance chairman, Pike district.

By ED W. HANCOCK
Attorney General of Kentucky

Many would agree that an allowance should help a child learn how to manage money. If so, how do the experts in child rearing suggest that you handle the whole business of setting up your child's allowance?

Experts say that children become aware very early of how important money is in the lives of their parents. They know that their parents go off to work to earn money, and that this money buys toys, food and clothes. The best way to teach a child how to manage money is to let him practice using money himself. For example, when you take your child shopping, give him some change and let him pay for his own crayons.

Once your child has some understanding of numbers, let him decide whether he wants to spend his coin on one soda or two pieces of candy. The child who is ready to make choices is also ready for some simple budgeting. With your help on the numbers, your child can decide whether to blow a whole quarter on an ice cream cone, or buy two ten cent candy bars and a nickel's worth of gum.

A regular allowance takes more planning than a system of casual hand-outs, but it is usually worth the effort. For one thing, children on casual handouts have little chance to learn how to budget or save. Also, many girls and boys feel degraded if they have to ask for money every time they need it.

Children on regular allowances tend to spend more carefully because they have less feeling of "easy come, easy go."

In arranging an allowance, keep a child's responsibilities simple at the beginning. For a child under eight or nine, an allowance should be only enough to buy ice cream, inexpensive toys and other small things that make him happy.

At nine or ten, the allowance may be raised to cover more needs. You and your child might sit down together and list the items on which he spends money each week, such as lunch, movies, and so on. After listing his fixed weekly needs, be sure to add a little extra for some things he wants. This is important. After all, he won't learn much about managing money from an allowance that is completely tied into "musts."

Experts say that it is not a good idea to regularly give extra money to a child to make up for what has been spent foolishly. But, there is no harm in making an advance now and then, as long as you insist he repays you. In fact, there is even an advantage in it. Advancing money is a good way to begin to teach something about borrowing and buying on credit, and paying it back.

Teaching your child how to manage his or her money wisely now, may save them from getting themselves in financial binds as adults.
