

Banner Bridge Had a Slump

Shortly before this picture was snapped last Friday, the bridge spanning the Big Sandy at Banner was in a severe slump, with one section drooping riverward, its supports broken. Department of Highways workmen are shown at work on the span. The bridge section gave way, moments after a truck had passed over it, Banner residents say. Although the bridge is open to traffic, the school bus has not ventured onto it all year, and some Banner residents have expressed the fear that repairs such as have been made will not hold the span together till the proposed state bridge is built there.

$98,600 Set For Waste Collection Roads Get $40,000 In Budget Planned On Revenue Sharing

Formal adoption of its revenue-sharing budget and a conference with Spindletop Research representatives prior to implementation of a solid waste program for the entire county are scheduled by the Floyd fiscal court at its special meeting tomorrow (Thursday).

The budget will include 85 percent of the $194,780 allotted to the county for the year 1972. Amounts tentatively scheduled for designated projects follow:

Solid waste collection and disposal, $98,600; county roads, $40,000; equipment repairs, $8,000; courthouse repair, $19,000; emergencies, $29,180.

The $98,600 to be allocated to the solid waste disposal work will include $35,000 for equipment, which will consist mainly of an inloader and bulldozer, $13,000 for landfill acquisition, $10,000 maintenance, $12,000 labor, $20,000 material and supplies; $8,000 supervision, $600 for auditing.

The $40,000 earmarked for county roads will be used for the purchase of gravel and pipe for drainage. The roads to benefit are routes which are not covered by the county aid program and which do not benefit from any state or federal funds.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said the fiscal court has had the benefit of advice from D. M. Magill, state finance officer, in planning the budget, and that the holding of $29,180 in reserve for emergencies has been recommended. Salary of the solid waste supervisor will be $600 a month, leaving $800 of the budgeted $8,000 to cover social security, unemployment and other taxes.

Community Chorus Rehearsals Slated

The Prestonsburg Community Chorus will begin rehearsals for the spring semester, at 7 p.m. next Monday at Prestonsburg Community College. The choir will begin work on the oratorio, "Elijah," by Mendelssohn. Those interested in singing with the chorus may come to the first rehearsal. For further information contact the director, Gus Kalos, at Prestonsburg Community College.

Sanitarian Post Vacant

The position of senior sanitarian in the Floyd County Health Department became vacant with the recent resignation of Lance Mann, and applications for the post will be accepted at the health department till Feb. 20, it was announced this week. Further information may be had by calling James B. Goble, administrative assistant, at 886-2788.

RECEIVES DOCTORATE

Council Adopts Special Budget For Revenue-Sharing Projects

Official approval of its general budget which is expected to exceed $350,000 for 1973 was not voted at last Thursday's meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council, but the city's revenue-sharing fund expenditures were decided upon at the lengthy session.

Exact amounts could not be listed for some items because they will be subject to bids. These items, to be paid for with revenue-sharing funds, include a tractor-mower, a police cruiser, a backhoe and appliances and new city mapping for tax purposes.

The revenue-sharing budget includes $20,000 for a fire truck to be purchased next year, $20,000 to be earmarked for future municipal building construction and $19,000 payment on park swimming pool bonds.

Prestonsburg's total revenues were increased $86,653 by two revenue sharing checks received for 1972. The city's share of such funds is expected quarterly this year. (Kathleen H. Hanger, clerk of the city of Wheelwright, said last week that she has received notice from Edward A. Fox, director of the Office of Revenue Sharing, that an error in the calculation of Wheelwright's allocation resulted in an overpayment to the city of $5,731. This amount will be deducted from future payments.)

Acceptance by the City Council here last Thursday of the grant of $482,250 made to Prestonsburg by the Environmental Protection Agency means that the Municipal Water & Gas System can, when ready, move ahead with construction of secondary sewage treatment facilities.

Councilman Paul Phillip Hughes was named to represent Prestonsburg at a Pikeville conference on state gasoline tax sharing. Prestonsburg's share for the period, July 1, 1972 to June 30, 1973, is estimated at $15,419.

To benefit from this sharing of funds, however, Prestonsburg must decide how the funds will be spent. New streets construction, old streets reconstruction and street markings are some of the projects eligible for such funds. A study of street

Few Arrested In Past Week

The jail population dwindled over the week as few arrests were made and fewer were charged with major offenses. Except for the arrest of three juveniles on a car theft count, most of the offenses involved drunk driving and drunkenness.

Those jailed within the week included these:

Sonny D. Rister, reckless driving and attempting to elude an officer, by State Trooper Cantrell; Randal Johnson, drunk driving, by Trooper Cantrell; Bobby Gene Robinson, Nettie Slone and Niagara Milton Riley, all charged with drunk driving, by State Trooper Estep; Lewis Hunt, drunk driving, by Troopers Williamson and Estep; Bennie Fred McCoy and Earnest Allen, each charged with drunk driving, by Prestonsburg Policemen Lawson; Johnny Ousley, drunk driving, by Policeman Darrell J. Conley.

A truck containing 95 cases of beer and three cases of whiskey was captured the night of Jan. 9 at Martin by Martin Chief of Police Hershell Lester and State Trooper Danny Stumbo, but the driver escaped. The officers said a check of license records revealed that the truck was registered in the name of Clarence Martin, of the McDowell vicinity. The case is in Martin police court.

Failure To Get Plans Approved Stalls Builders

Attempts by Floyd county builders to begin construction on buildings for public use without first obtaining approval of plans through the county health department has resulted in the halting of construction by health inspectors of several structures recently.

A spokesman for the department said that in many cases persons planning to build think it only necessary to obtain a county permit from the county clerk's office, then start building.

But before actual construction can legally begin, it is required that building plans be submitted in triplicate to the State Health Department, Frankfort, through the local health department. Depending on the type of structure being built, certain standards must be met and regulations observed, and consultation with health department personnel enables the prospective builder to learn of these responsibilities.

It is also advised by the department that persons planning to operate an existing public building contact the local health department to make certain the structure is in compliance with state and county regulations.

A statement from the Floyd County Health Department said Monday:

"It is the responsibility of the local health department authorities to stop construction or operation of public buildings if prior approval has not been given by state and local health departments."

Round-the-Clock 'Help-Line' Maintained in 5-County Area

Mountain Comprehensive Care Center began its 24-hour region-wide emergency HELP-LINE service for the residents of Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties. Since then, and with only limited distribution of the WATS telephone number, the HELP-LINE has handled calls ranging from a lost dog to a suicide attempt.

Terry Jackson, director of the I-S-R (Information-Screening-Referral) service reports that in four weeks the service has eliminated most of its "bugs" and is now ready to embark on an extensive promotional campaign to acquaint the public with the HELP-LINE telephone number and the service. 2 Floyd Offices To Begin Service On February 1st

Issuance of food stamps will be made, effective Feb. 1, from U. S. postoffices instead of room locations selected or procured by the State Department of Public Assistance.

It was announced here by Jack Stumbo, postmaster, that issuance of food stamps to Floyd county recipients will be made from the Prestonsburg and Martin postoffices. Hitherto, the food stamp office has been operated in the courthouse by personnel of the Division of Public Assistance. Any person who has a food stamp card may procure stamps at either of the two postoffices.

Public Assistance will continue to handle certification and approval of applications for the stamps, and the food stamp cards will be mailed from Frankfort to recipients. Details of the method of handling the stamps had not been detailed as of Tuesday morning. A meeting here Monday has been scheduled to define the workings of the program under the U. S. Postal Service.

Both Mr. Stumbo and Postmaster Hubert Frye, of Martin, said the work will be handled without the addition of employees. They also said the stamps will be issued at the rear of the two postoffices.

The food stamp offices will be open, Monday through Friday, each week. The hours will be announced later.

The Division of Public Assistance office here said that at the end of December 2,465 families in this county were receiving food stamps.

Murder Cases, Others Slated For April Trial

The two murder cases of the Floyd circuit court docket for trial this month have been continued, as have those of Floyd county officers and others.

The trial of Mont Robinette, accused of the slaying at West Prestonsburg of his wife, was continued till April 9. The body of Mrs. Robinette was exhumed recently on court order after Robinette's attorney had requested the removal from the body of the bullet which caused her death. Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said he has since learned that a .22-caliber bullet was removed and that it has been sent to the State Police laboratory at Frankfort for ballistics tests.

It was claimed that Robinette was firing a .22-caliber pistol at the time Mrs. Robinette was wounded and later when he allegedly fired on Policeman Darrell J. Conley.

The trial of Adrian Burchett, charged with murder, was continued to the April term but the exact date was not set.

In the cases in which officers and others are charged the trials of Sheriff Frank Leslie and Roy Branham were booked for April 16; those of Dexter Hamilton and Ralph Howell, for April 23.

The Court of Appeals has affirmed the two-year sentence of Palmer Powers, of Auxier, for manslaughter, and Powers is serving his term at Eddyville.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley entered an order Jan. 8 closing all mobile homes on a tract of land on Salt Lick Creek, and it later was reported here that two of the three trailers there have been moved. The order was entered on motion of Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo and County Attorney James R. Allen, asking an in-

School Addition Open House Held

Open house at the new Martin elementary school addition was held Sunday afternoon, January 7. Despite adverse weather conditions, approximately 400 residents of Martin and neighboring communities inspected the new classroom structure.

Because of snow and icy roads, the ceremony scheduled for 2 p.m. was cancelled. Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd county schools, and Board of Education members who previously had accepted an invitation to participate were forced to cancel because of hazardous driving conditions.

The recently completed two-story brick building houses six classroom units, two utility rooms, and two large storage centers, as well as ceramic-tiled restroom facilities on each floor. The building is completely carpeted.

Since refreshments were served in the lunchroom, visitors were also given an opportunity to observe improvements in that area. The most recent changes include installation of ceramic floor tile, automatic waste compactor, double convection ovens, automatic dishwasher and new stainless steel food-warming tables.

Adjacent to the lunchroom and to the rear of the new classroom building stands the newly constructed block storehouse which serves as a supply center for the lunchroom.

NOTICE

BEAVER-ELKHORN WATER DISTRICT is now completing its water mains from Allen to Wayland and from Martin to Hi Hat, and will begin making preparation for customer feeder lines very soon.

One of our representatives will, within the next ninety days, contact all new proposed customers and take application for water service, in order that our records will be up-to-date, and to assure that our Engineers will not plan any unnecessary customer hook-up lines.

Each applicant will be required to pay a $25.00 customer meter deposit, which amount will be credited against water usage billing.

Those who do not make application now with our representative will be required to pay a connecting fee as prescribed by order of the Public Service Commission, dated August 7, 1970, as follows: "Prior to Completion of the Project, Connection fees are to be:"

Paintsville Reservoir Agreement Expected To Be Signed This Week

Gov. Wendell Ford has already signed for Kentucky the agreement between the state and the federal government for construction of the Paintsville Reservoir, and it is believed Army Secretary Froehke will sign for the United States this month, possibly this week.

Negotiations for property acquisition could begin in 30 days, once the agreement is signed. U. S. Corps of Engineers personnel from the Huntington district office 10 days ago conducted preliminary appraisals on the 13,900 acres of land to be acquired.

The dam, which has been in the planning stages several years, will span Paints Creek, near Barnett's Creek off Ky. 460, and will impound water into Morgan county. Construction is estimated to take up to seven years.

Cost of the project is about $30 million, with nearly $2 million already allocated for the first phase of construction which includes land acquisition and road relocation. A Corps spokesman estimated the cost of original recreation to the state would be $1,014,235.

The agreement signed by Governor Ford was stalled after the Corps of Engineers instituted a regulation which required a commitment from the state to pay half the amount spent for both original and future recreational programs.

This regulation, part of the Congressional Flood Control Act, would carry the commitment from the administration which made it into future administrations. The Kentucky Constitution would not permit obligating future expenses, according to state officials.

The new agreement, patterned after a similar agreement with North Carolina, allows the Commonwealth to pay its costs over a 50-year span, beginning a year after the Corps notifies the state that the recreational aspect of the project is in operation.

A Corps spokesman added the state can raise its money through bonds, user fees or other methods and the interest is to be set, depending upon when construction is initiated.

Figures offered by the Corps show 200 families are involved, 430 tracts of land, with some tracts taken totally, others partially, and at least one cemetery on the line of the access road.

Black Lung File Has 8,900 Cases Still Unresolved

A total of 15,325 claims have been filed by miners and widows in the six county area served by the Pikeville Social Security office, and 6,400 of the cases have been processed to an allowance, Daryl Ratliff, Social Security district manager, said last week.

A decision has not been made yet on approximately 8,900 cases. Nearly all these 8,900 cases will be processed by June 30, 1973, and a decision made on eligibility, Ratliff said. As many as 60 percent of the remaining cases could eventually be paid.

Every effort is being made to expedite determinations of eligibility on the back log cases, he added. Recent production figures indicate an average of 250 cases are awarded weekly in the area serviced by the Pikeville office.

A raise in Black Lung benefit amounts will be reflected in the February 3 monthly check. A miner or widow is now eligible for $169.80; a miner or widow with one dependent, $254.70; a miner or widow with two dependents, $297.10; a miner or widow with three dependents, $339.50. This represents a 5.1 percent cost-of-living increase over the previous amounts being paid.

There are 8.9 million World War II and Korean Conflict veterans and another 7.5 million veterans who served after Jan. 31, 1955, who can benefit from legislation that restores their expired unused loan benefits.

The Allen Central Rebels dropped a 58-57, decision last week to McDowell. The game was played on the winners' floor, with Neil Turner leading the way with 16 points.

The Daredevils blasted Betsy Layne, 84-60, at Betsy Layne Saturday night. The Bobcats played without the service of 6-9 Dan Hall, who was reported out with a sprained ankle.

Allen Central evened its week's record by dumping Morgan County, 70-61, Saturday. The Rebels took an early lead and completely controlled the game as they placed five players in double figures.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats slumped Friday night against Elkhorn City as they dropped their ninth contest, 84-72, Elkhorn City jumped out to an early 12-point lead, but the Cats fought back behind the fine shooting of Jim Blackburn and Kippy McNally to come within four points in the second quarter.

The Wheelwright Trojans were crushed Friday night by Virgie, ranked No. 2 in the region, 108-79. Virgie dominated play with a 15-point first quarter lead that was almost doubled at game's end.

STUMBO-PACK VOWS SOLEMNIZED

In a candlelight ceremony performed December 23 in the Left Beaver Regular Baptist Church at Hite, Miss Karen Lynne Stumbo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Stumbo, of McDowell, was united in marriage to John Thomas Pack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Pack, of Drift.

The double-ring ceremony was performed at 4:30 p.m. by the Rev. Ray Collins, of Whitesburg, Kentucky.

Mrs. Libby Hall, pianist, and Mrs. Joan Chaffins, soloist, presented a program of nuptial music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white peau de soie in a Victorian design. The neckline was high and the sleeves were puffed. French imported beaded lace was adorned over the front of the gown.

Mrs. Lora Young, of Paintsville, cousin of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a gown of green winter crepe styled with long fitted sleeves and fitted bodice.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sharon Combs, of Wayland, Mrs. Louise Jacobs, of Wayland, Miss Martha Cook of Drift, and Miss Deborah Hall, of McDowell. Their gowns were aqua, pink, green, and red winter crepe.

JUDITH D. ARCHER Clerk, City of Prestonsburg, Ky. 1-18-3f.

Flower girls were Miss Ronda Kaye Combs and little Teresa Couch. Their gowns were of blue winter crepe, made identical to that of the bridesmaids. They carried baskets of white and red rose petals.

Mr. Stanley Gordon Pack served his brother as best man. Ushers were Barry Hall, of McDowell, Stevie Hall, of McDowell, Barry Stumbo, of Minnie, and Ritchie Cole, of Drift. Alan Pack, younger brother of the groom, was ring bearer.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at Stumbo's restaurant at Hite. The wedding cake was four tiers high and was accented with white iced roses. Punch and cake was served by Mrs. Louise Jacobs and Mrs. Sharon Combs.

The couple left, immediately following the reception, for their honeymoon.

Can Children Suffer, Too?

A booklet written by Kenneth N. Kron and published by the Bureau of School Service of the University of Kentucky's College of Education acquaints us and others, including some teachers, for the first time with the term, "culture shock."

Culture shock, we gather, is the shock sustained by a teacher upon being transferred, or employed, to teach a class composed of pupils whose appearance, conduct, language, attitudes and other attributes are at wide variance to what the teacher has known in the past. A case history used to illustrate the predicament of such a teacher refers to the unkemptness of many such pupils, to the profanities and obscenities they utter, even their smells.

The shock to many teachers is severe. Some, in desperation, quit. Even from this distance, the stresses of such conditions are recognizable. But one wonders if a study should not be made, too—if studies accomplish anything—of the "culture shock" imposed on children when they are shifted from their home classrooms and set down in a strange school, among strangers whose culture is foreign to them. Both black and white children, it would appear, suffer from such violent disruption of their lives in early school days. The effects on them might well be given serious consideration by those responsible for shifting children by skin color to effect an acceptable ethnic composition of a school.

National Severance Tax Needed

The national severance tax on coal asked by U. S. Senator Marlow W. Cook is needed by the country and in particular by states, such as Kentucky, which have already enacted their own severance tax legislation.

The tax should be imposed nationally on all natural resources which cannot be restored. This would include all minerals, oil, gas, clay, limestone and, perhaps, the trees which are felled and cannot be replaced within less than a long lifetime. The Times thinks Kentucky's severance tax would have been more just, had it applied to other resources as well as coal.

A federal severance tax is needed now to protect Kentucky coal as it competes with coal produced in other states which have no such tax.

Kentucky would not suffer by such federal taxation, since the Cook bill would afford states already paying such taxes credit on their federal tax bill; that is to say, the state severance taxes would be deducted from the federal tax bill. A national tax would encourage other states to get in line, at once—and that is needed.

Sports Afield

There's a hot old-new basscatching tactic paying off with limit catches. It's currently called "ripping," and if you haven't tried it you had better believe you've missed bass you could have caught.

What it boils down to is a method of moving certain lures faster than the average fisherman moves them. This gives a bass something new to look at. In addition, when certain lures zip past a bass's nose, they trigger a reflex action that causes the bass to strike without thinking or giving these lures the usual appraisal.

Here's why we call it an "old-new" tactic. It is old because smarter bass fishermen were doing it back in the 1930's. It is new because thousands of today's bass anglers never heard of it. There are many ways it can be done. Homer Circle, Angling Editor of Sports Afield, described some of them in the magazine's December issue.

Tom Mann, one of the nation's leading money-winners in professional fishing competition, is responsible for the latest kick and, as far as we know, coined the term "ripping."

Tom's tactic has been so effective that you won't find another pro who doesn't give it a go several times a day. These men play the odds, and when you see Mann lay limits on the scales, time after time, well, you're odd if you don't emulate him.

Tom's favorite ripping lure is one he makes himself, called Little George. It has a teardrop-shaped boyd of lead with a spinner on the tail and a treble hook suspended from the belly of the lure.

Tom's tactic is to fire a long cast and let the lure sink until it rests on the bottom. He can tell it's there because his line goes suddenly slack. As he reels the slack out of his line, he lowers his rod tip upwards and reels at the same time. This causes the lure to jump off the bottom and rip through the water at an abnormally fast speed.

If a bass doesn't blast it, he lets the lure settle and repeats the maneuver until one does. Tom doesn't do this only in open water over clear bottoms where he won't get snagged. In fact, he hopes for snags because he knows that bigger bass are found in snaggy cover.

He gears himself for the job. His spinning rod is 7½ feet long, very guty, and is teamed with a standard-size saltwater spinning reel. The reel is filled to within ½ inch of the spool's edge with fresh 20-pound-test monofilament.

Thus geared, Tom is able to do these things: 1) retrieve almost 30 inches of line with each turn of the heel handle, 2) use his guty rod and 20-pound monofilament to muscle his lure out of snags that would ensnare lighter rods and lines.

Before Tom loomed so tall on the tournament scene, the average competitor carried along upwards of a half-dozen casting rods equipped with free-spool, level-wind reels. Most still do, but they also have at least one oversize spinning rig like Tom's for ripping.

A compromise date of January 1 has been set for the Warren County-Bowling Green 3 per cent utilities tax to go into effect.

Receives Degree

Ruth Ann Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Repts B. Osborne, of Martin, received a Bachelor of Arts degree in elementary education from Morehead State University last month. She has accepted a position with the Fleming county schools, Flemingsburg, Ky.

ROWE-GAFFORD

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Rowe, of Prestonsburg, announce the marriage of their daughter, Barbara Jane, to John Gardner Gafford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe G. Gafford, of Elizabethtown, Ky., December 30.

The candlelight ceremony was performed in the chapel of the Epworth's United, Methodist Church at Lexington, Ky., by the Reverend Harold Dorsey. Mrs. Janet Rowe, sister-in-law of the bride, was maid of honor. Others attending included members of both the bride and groom's families.

After a brief honeymoon in Indiana, the couple will reside in Lexington where they are both employed.

STUDY SUPPORTS TRAINING

A recent doctoral dissertation argues for a formally organized training and preparation program for new school board members. According to the author of the study, Dr. Milton L. Snyder, "Effective membership on a board, calling for a certain amount of sophistication and knowledge, cannot be left to chance. An organized and formal training program appears to be the most viable alternative to insure more adequate performance." The KSBA and the State Department of Education will sponsor an orientation conference for new board members on January 14-15 at Holiday Inn, North in Lexington.

LETTERS To the Editor

FIRST CHRISTMAS IN NEW HOME

Christmas for the Day Care training of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center had an added delight this year. We have acquired a new home of our own located at 308 Davis street here in Prestonsburg. We would like to thank all members of the Presbyterian Church and Rev. William Thomas for the use of the church for the past year.

The holiday festivities began Monday, December 18. The following day was used in preparing and decorating for the party held on December 20.

After much anticipation and hard work, the students were rewarded by the appearance of Santa Claus. Other than Santa, several visitors joined the happy event: Roger Marshall, director of Developmental Disabilities; Miss Bonita Skaggs, supervisor of Developmental Disabilities; Chalmer Howard, employee of Mountain Comprehensive Care and member of the Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce; Paulette Pappenfus, Connie Harper, Bob Marsh, photographer for the event, and Mrs. Carolyn Ford, Kelly Ford, and Mrs. Willis Craft.

The event included singing Christmas carols by the students, aided by Susan Adams who played guitar. Santa was the center of attention.

We the staff Mrs. Janie McCoy, teacher, Mrs. Marguerite Fannin, teacher-aid, Sister Susan Adams, Volunteer worker, and Dutch Clark would like to express our deepest thanks to all the business men of Prestonsburg, Allen, and Martin for the toys and money donated to make this a very Merry Christmas. Also, thanks go to all members of the Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce for the gifts and interest shown in our center. Special thanks to Santa Claus, Alias Paul Slone, and the Prestonsburg Fire Department for the interest shown to us.

We, the students, Trey Music, Melissa Meadows, Winston Ford, Melissa Williams, Dennis Waddles, Mark Sellards, Nancy Stewart, and Linda Craft, give our special thanks to everyone and hope you had a Merry Christmas—we did!

State May Be Stuck with Trees As Planting Assistance Halted

As a result of the termination of REAP, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Environmental Assistance Program, the Kentucky Division of Forestry appears to be "stuck" with 15 million tree seedlings.

The unexpected cancellation of the 36-year-old program radically reduced the market for Kentucky's tree nurseries and Harry Nadler, director of the forestry division in the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection emphasized the extent of the problem by pointing out that his agency had "geared up for more intensive tree planting projects this year under REAP, but then the blow came."

Dropped by the Nixon administration in an effort to trim federal spending, REAP covered such things as tree-planting and timber-stand improvement. They were cost-share programs, with the government paying 80 percent in most cases and 90 percent in some Eastern Kentucky counties.

Nadler said that the state used to plant about 18 million trees a year in Kentucky but added that this figure had dropped in recent years to about 8 million. He said, however, that his agency had planned to double this figure in 1973.

"What we really want to do is plant 20 to 25 million trees a year, and it wouldn't be hard to do," Nadler said. He supported this statement by citing Soil Conservation Service figures that show Kentucky has 1,900,000 acres of open land or thinly populated woodland that badly needs to be planted.

Roger H. Karrick, with the Kentucky Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, pointed out that the state's problem is compounded by the fact that farmers have always been reluctant to plant trees and that without the incentive of the cost-share program, it will be even harder.

In spite of the problems that REAP's cancellation originated, Nadler feels that he can yet straighten things out by launching a tree-selling campaign.

Representing a total investment to the state of about $210,000, the seedlings cost about $14 per thousand to grow he said.

"We'll be selling them for $10 per thousand, and that's a good deal," Nadler pointed out. Some species such as walnut and Scotch pine would go at slightly higher prices, he said.

Time would be a vital factor in such an effort because the 1-year-old seedlings should be transplanted no later than the first week in April, Nadler said, and he also stated that he doesn't intend to burn or otherwise dispose of any of them, hinting that a "clearance sale" of sorts may be an alternative should all else fail.

Nadler said labor to plant the trees will be a major difficulty because the labor cost-sharing was the strongest point in the REAP program.

"But if we could just get 8 per cent of the some 204,000 Kentucky landowners with 100 acres or less to put a couple of acres in trees—our sales campaign would be well under way," he said.

Another alternative being considered is the possibility of employing additional state money to help finance plantings on private land.

Congress had appropriated $225.5 million for REAP, with $140 million already authorized to be spent. When the program was terminated, those funds were impounded. In Kentucky, about 3 to 5 per cent of the state's $5.5 million 1972 REAP funds was used in tree plantings on more than 3,000 farms.

The possibility exists that REAP may yet be resurrected and efforts have been under way in Congress to revive the program.

Kentucky Senator Marlow W. Cook introduced last week a bill in the form of an amendment to the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act which would prohibit the impoundment of funds appropriated by Congress for the act. The act is the supporting legislation for REAP.

Teacher Honored

Mrs. Brenda Johnson, formerly of this county, has been named an Outstanding Elementary Teacher of America, it was recently announced by George Yeager, principal of the Hebron (O.) elementary school in which she is a third-grade teacher.

Mrs. Johnson has taught at the Hebron school eight years and was selected for the honor on the basis of professional and civic achievements. She is a graduate of Betsy Layne high school and Pikeville College. Her husband, Arnold Johnson, formerly of Pike county, is assistant principal at Hebron. Her sister, Mrs. Linda Roberts, also is teaching in Ohio.

Mrs. Johnson is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Perry, of Amba.

Psychedelium Tremens

Remember when HIPPIE meant big in the hips,
And a TRIP involved travel in cars, planes and ships?
When POT was a vessel for cooking things in,
And HOOKED was what Grandmother's rug might have been?
When FIX was a verb that meant mend or repair,
And BE-IN meant simply existing somewhere?
When NEAT meant well organized, tidy and clean,
And GRASS was a ground-cover, normally green?
When lights and not people were SWITCHED ON and OFF,
And THE PILL might have been what you took for a cough?

When CAMP meant to quarter outdoors in a tent,
And POP was what the weasel went?
When GROOVY meant furrowed with channels and hollows,
And BIRDS were winged creatures, like robins and swallows?
When FUZZ was a substance that's fluffy like lint,
And BREAD came from the bakery, not from the mint?
When SQUARE meant a 90-degree angled form,
And COOL was a temperature not quite warm?
When ROLL meant a bun, and ROCK was a stone,
And HANG-UP was something you did to a phone?
When CHICKEN meant poultry, and BAG meant a sack,
And JUNK trashy cast-offs and old bric-a-brac?
When JAM was preserves that you spread on your bread,
And CRAZY meant balmy, not right in the head?
When CAT was a feline, a kitten grown up,
And TEA was a liquid you drank from a cup?
When SWINGER was someone who swung in a swing,
And a PAD was a soft sort of cushiony thing?
When WAY OUT meant distant and far, far away,
And a man couldn't sue you for calling him GAY?
When DIG meant to shovel and spike in the dirt,
And PUT-ON was what you would do with a shirt?
When TOUGH described meat too unyielding to chew,
And MAKING A SCENE was a rude thing to do?

Words once so sensible, sober and serious,
Are making the FREAK SCENE like PSYCHEDELIRIOUS
It's GROOVY, MAN, GROOVY, but English it's not,
Methinks that the language has gone straight to POT!

Looking To Summer Leaves

In the bleak and barren wintertime is when we should look ahead to the coming of the green leaves on our winter-naked hills. How we miss their beauty and splendor and long to see them again! How many leaves on all the trees when they are fully dressed in their shimmering gowns of green—the number is infinite! It is so great it staggers one's imagination.

Some naturalists have speculated there are as many as one hundred million billion leaves on all the trees of North America. That number is so stupendous it cannot be comprehended by the human mind. The green leaves on all the trees are as numberless as the sands of the sea. A few persons of a mathematical bent have counted the leaves on some trees. For instance, they say an average-size yellow poplar (tulip tree) bears 76,000 leaves, while a large birch, which has smaller leaves, may have over 200,000. A single large white oak may have as many as one million leaves. But the number of needles on a large pine is almost beyond belief. Pine needles are long and slender and so designed as to let the wind pass through gently. The needles literally caress the wind as it tiptoes through them, producing one of the great symphonies of nature. A tall, old pine with its 8,000,000 needles is like a gigantic harp that never stops playing its sibilant tunes.

The large-leaved trees have a far less number of leaves. The palms have huge fanlike leaves so that their number is much less than the others. The mature leaf of a date palm may grow 20 feet in length and weigh several pounds. The umbrella magnolias of our region have the largest leaves, which grow about two feet long and a foot wide. These trees do not need as many leaves as the oaks and hickories.

Let's suppose there will be no leaves on any tree or plant next year. (This is fearful to contemplate!) The earth would soon bake as hard as brick in the hot sun, and multiplied thousands of creatures would die of starvation and heat. Many animals, including man, eat leaves of food. The giraffe, for example, lives entirely on the leaves of acacia trees; the cute, little teddy bears of Australia live solely on the leaves of eucalyptus trees.

The moose is a leaf-eater, and so are deer, cattle, horses and many others. Multiplied thousands of species of insects live on the tissue of leaves. It is common in summer to see leaves with "shot holes" in them, where insects have taken several bites. Some insects, such as the microscopic leaf miner fly, lay their eggs in the tissues of the leaf. The larvae make serpentine tunnels in the leaf as they feed on the green chlorophyll.

All of us humans eat leaves in one form or another. In the spring our womenfolk go afield to find the leaves of tender plants, such as "speckled John" and poke and cress, to prepare a delicious feast—green leaves cooked with a piece of side meat or a hog jowl. We need the minerals and vitamins in spring greens, to renew our winter-logged bodies and give us new life. And there are some persons who eat the leaves of trees. A man told me recently that the leaves of the Chinese elm make a delicious salad. I myself have eaten the tender leaves of birch and beech and found them delicious.

Did you ever wonder why the leaves of a tree rustle and move about in every gentle wind? This is nature's way of changing the position of the lower leaves, so they can get a bit of sunshine to carry on the work of photosynthesis. And if you study trees and their leaves and how they are designed, you will conclude that the works of nature are far ahead of those of man. There is not a scientist on earth today who can make a green leaf with chlorophyll—one that lives and breathes and makes carbohydrates by using the sunlight as its power station.

Pike Co. Chamber Urges President To Support Conversion to Coal

Pikeville, Ky.—The Pike County Chamber of Commerce has wired President Nixon, urging him to call for conversion of gas- and oil-fired electric generating facilities to burn coal.

The conversion to coal-burning power plants would greatly ease the current energy crisis and help boost the coal-based economy of the entire central Appalachian region, according to the Pike County Chamber.

"In our opinion, news of the President's proposal to recommend more coal burning in power generation was purposely 'leaked' by the White House to get a feed-back on the idea before the President's Energy Message is finalized," said Hugh Collett, executive director of the Pike County Chamber. "It was most likely a trial balloon to test the reaction of ecologists and environmentalists, as well as citizens and officials in coal producing areas.

"Ecologists and coal critics will react and express their feelings strongly against the power conversion concept," Collett said, "and we urge city, county, state and federal officials in coal mining regions throughout the East to counter the anti-coal forces by respectfully requesting President Nixon to continue to back the proposal."

The plan was revealed in a story last Saturday by the Washington Star-News. The copyrighted article reported that proponents of converting a large part of the nation's power plants from oil to coal burning units have convinced officials high in the administration that relying on coal reserves for the next 15 years would end the energy crisis. "It would also help our area's economy," Collett commented.

Judge Meigs Rules In Favor of New West Liberty Bank

Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs II has ruled in favor of organizers seeking a charter for a new bank at West Liberty.

Judge Meigs held that the decision of state Banking Commissioner Lenvil R. Hall to award the charter to state Sen. Joe D. Stacy, D-West Liberty, and his associates was not "arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable" as charged in a suit brought by the existing Commercial Bank of West Liberty.

Meigs held that the hearing held by Hall on the proposed new bank last Aug. 31 adduced substantial evidence that the incorporators met the necessary qualifications to start a new bank.

Stacy, who formerly was president of the Commercial Bank of West Liberty, which is principally owned by members of his family, seeks to establish a new Bank of the Mountains at West Liberty. Other organizers of the proposed bank are David Adams and Charles Black, D. B. Gullett, all of West Liberty, and H. D. Gevedon, of Grassy Creek.

Stacy's mother, Mrs. Margaret Carter Stacy, is chairman of the board of the Commercial Bank of West Liberty and the prime mover in opposition to establishment of a new bank.

Easter Seal Leader IN MEMORIAM

FARIS PORTER and MARTHA PORTER

In memory of my wonderful father and mother, who were called out of this world to be with Jesus. Father passed away Jan. 21, six years ago, and mother passed away two years ago in November.

How we still miss you, Mom and Dad. Since you have been gone life is so empty without you both. Just waiting for God to call us home where we can say goodbye to friends and loved ones down here and good morning to you both on the other shore.

There is a ray of sunshine gone from this world today, and it has been missing since Father and Mother went away. But now you both have gone. Heaven is just waiting for us all. We'll be so glad to see you both when we answer God's call.

I know there is a land of beautiful flowers, where we will meet again, when life is over on heaven's bright, eternal shore.

We want to meet you both by the beautiful river on that happy morning in the sky, where we will live in peace with Jesus and never have to say goodbye.

So wait for me, Dad and Mom, just inside the gate. I may be coming in the morning, so you won't have long to wait.

Sadly missed by daughter, Mary Baldrige, Doug Baldrige and Grandchildren. 1t.

HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Wheelwright Homemakers Club met January 18 at the Woman's Club room. The meeting was called to order by President Della Hall. The Lord's Prayer was said by all and the Homemaker's creed was read. The roll call and minutes were read and approved. Peppermint candy sticks were taken to the Golden Years Rest Home at Lackey on December 24. The club also thanked Alma Souleyrette for the generous hospitality shown at the annual Christmas party given at her home on December 14. The lesson, needlepoint, was given by Frances Pitts. The door prize, a milk glass bud vase, was won by Linda Couch. Refreshments were served to Beverly Estep, Marie Rainey, Della Hall, Virginia Hagans, Myra Salisbury, and Frances Pitts by hostesses Barbara Gullett and Linda Couch.

The referee for the 1973 Super Bowl football game will be calling the signals in this year's Easter Seal campaign in Kentucky.

He is Thomas "Tommy" Bell, Lexington attorney. His appointment was announced by Coleman L. McGuire, Jr., Louisville, president of the Kentucky Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, which conducts the annual spring appeal.

The campaign will begin March 1 and continue through April 22, Easter Sunday.

Bell, a Lexington civic leader, is also a referee in football and basketball in the Southeastern Conference, NCAA basketball finals, and in Big Ten basketball and in numerous bowl games. A trustee of the University of Kentucky, he received B. S. and L. L. B. degrees from U. K. He is a member of the Rotary Club and past president of the Greater Lexington Area Chamber of Commerce; a member of the Fayette County, Kentucky State and American Bar Associations, Phi Alpha Delta law fraternity, and is a Mason and Shriner. Mr. Bell is a captain (Ret.) in the U. S. Air Force, was all-state in football at Henry Clay high school, Lexington, and at U. K. was on the track and football teams.

Mothers League Sponsors Santa

Santa on a Christmastime stop chats with an admirer.

"A Time For Caring" should not end with the holiday season, but should be a year-around thing, the Mothers' League of Betsy Layne has decided. So its members have pledged to bring as much happiness to children in and around the area as possible. The League works in the collection and distribution of clothing and food, as well as other projects for the benefit of children. One such project was to bring Santa Clause, to Ivel, Stanville, Tram, Betsy Layne, and Harold. The League provided treats for Santa, to give all the children, and they eagerly awaited his visit.

League Secretary Pat Conn, with members, Mrs. Mary Sanders, Mrs. Shirley Hall, and Mrs. Cherry Neade, accompanied Santa.

Mrs. Judy Stevens, chairwoman, said the mothers hope to help even more children in the coming year.

Miss Judy Sammons, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Ollie Sammons, formerly of Drift and Wayland, played a significant part recently in the opening of the new Convention Center at Dayton, Ohio, in her role as secretary to the $6 million facility director, George Demarest.

Miss Sammons, who along with Demarest, comprised the center's entire staff for a time, was formerly employed as a secretary in the Dayton city manager's office and has worked in her present position for two years.

While in this county, Judy attended school at Drift and Wayland and was later enrolled at Alice Lloyd College at Pippa Passes.

SETS UP PUBLIC ASSEMBLY

To help solve city-wide problems, the Louisville Board of Education has created a partner—the Louisville Public Schools Assembly. The assembly is designed to help the city's 21 neighborhood boards have a better overview of the system as a whole and to improve communication between the official board and the mini-boards. Final legal power still rests with the Louisville School Board, but the 70-member assembly may influence the board through its recommendations.

Alice Lloyd Offers New Night Courses

Pippa Passes, Ky.—Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, will offer three night courses in Psychology, Sports Officiating, and Recreation Leadership during its spring term. Each course is for three hours of college credits and is available to adults and high school seniors. They will meet on Monday and Wednesday from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m. at the Pippa Passes campus beginning February 5. Interested persons should contact the Alice Lloyd Registrar's Office for more information.

Severance Tax, Strip Mine Bills Introduced by Cook and Jackson

Two bills affecting the coal industry have been introduced in the U. S. Senate.

One of the measures, offered by Senator Marlow Cook, calls for a national severance tax. The other, introduced by Senator Henry M. Jackson, chairman of the Interior committee, would provide federal controls of strip mining.

Cook's legislation calls for a tax of 4 per cent on gross income from coal production, with a minimum tax of 30 cents per ton—figures which are identical to Kentucky's state coal severance tax, approved by the 1972 General Assembly.

The bill will go to the Senate Finance Committee, whose chairman, Sen. Russell Long, D-La., declined to hold hearings on the same measure Cook offered last year. Cook's aide said it appeared that Long "probably would be inclined" to do the same thing this year.

The aide said that other coal states are not interested in Cook's bill, adding that the major hope for the measure would come if environmental groups got behind it. "I'd be less than candid if I said we were optimistic," he said, referring to the bill's chances of passage.

Citing 1971 preliminary figures that indicated production of 560 million tons of coal valued at $3.5 billion, Cook said his proposed tax would have yielded over $140 million.

Cook's bill also provides for a federal tax credit, meaning state severance taxes would be deducted from the federal tax bill. "Thus the bill creates an incentive for state governments to enact their own severance taxes which in turn will create new sources of income for many of our tax-starved states," Cook said in remarks accompanying the legislation.

He said his bill does not contain the slope restrictions which were included in the bill passed by the House last October and reintroduced this year by Rep. Wayne Hays (D-Ohio). He said they would effectively ban most surface coal mining.

Sen. Jackson said the House bill "did not strike a proper balance between our energy and environmental needs. Strong actions are imperative to protect us from the specter of a ravaged land, yet we must also produce the energy needed for our homes, farms and factories."

He said his own bill has five goals:

1. To prohibit stripping where full reclamation is impossible.
 2. To set national standards, with the federal government acting if a state fails.
 3. To impose the social and environmental costs of mining on the producers...
 4. To return all areas to a condition capable of supporting at least pre-mining uses.
 5. Administrative procedures which are fair and flexible enough to cope with varying conditions in various regions.
- The bill would apply to coal 90 days after enactment, and all other surface mining within one year. There would be a moratorium on new mines until the issuance of state permits, which would require an acceptable reclamation plan and adequate bond.
- The legislation provides that persons and firms hurt by the new regulations would get first chance at reclamation contracts under a new $100 million fund to reclaim orphan lands. It would give federal grants for state land-use planning to designate parks, streams and other public areas as unsuitable for strip mining.
- The bill would also allow the President to grant special exemptions for national emergencies.
- The program would be administered by a new Department of the Interior office not involved with mineral development.

Library Notes

By ALICE HACKWORTH, Librarian

Want to name the baby? The dilemma of naming a baby sends scores of local parents to the Floyd County Library for books containing suggestions for personal names. Choosing a satisfactory name for an infant is apparently a difficult job for most parents and books offer guidelines and suggestions.

One of the newest guides to aid prospective parents in making a good choice of a name is Elsdon Smith's "Naming Your Baby," which lists over 2,500 first names, along with their meanings.

Other helpful books are "Books of Boys' Names," by Linwood Sleight; "New Treasury of Names for the Baby," by Dorothy Burton; and "Naming you Baby," by Elsdon Smith.

The origin and significance of given names and surnames is given in such books as Elsdon Smith's "Treasury of Name Lore," and Eloise Lambert's "Our Names: Where They Came From and What They Mean."

Floyd County Bookmobile Schedule:

Monday, Jan. 29—Stewart's 5 & 10 at Allen, Water Gap post office and Water Gap community; Tuesday, Jan. 30—David community; Wednesday, Jan. 31—Burchett's Grocery at Sugar Loaf, Wright's Grocery at Cow Creek and Goble Robert's Addition and Dixie; Thursday, Feb. 1—Hall's Grocery at Maytown, Hippo Post Office and Pyramid Post Office; Friday, Feb. 2—Duff's Grocery at Hueysville, and Salyer's Branch community.

Maloney's To Open Two Stores in Area

Louisa and Salyersville will be the sites of the 11th and 12th Maloney's Discount Department Stores. The stores will be located in the downtown business section of each community and are expected to open in late February. In announcing the opening of the new locations, John J. Maloney, chairman of the board of the parent company, Maloney Enterprises, Inc., said, "We will continue to show our faith in the growth of Eastern Kentucky by serving this area with our type of discount stores. Two additional stores will be opened in 1973. We will announce their locations as soon as lease negotiations are completed."

To Whom It May Concern:
Due to the short supply of gas in our system and the limited supply we are able to purchase from other producers, as of January 1, 1973 we will not be able to furnish gas to new accounts until the shortage is relieved.

Mark 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Casey Newsome, of Teaberry, observed their golden wedding anniversary October 25 at Jenny Wiley State Park here. Mrs. Newsome is the former Dakota Moore, daughter of the late Henry and Hattie Hall Moore, of Harold. Mr. Newsome is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jack Newsome, of Robinson Creek. Mr. and Mrs. Newsome were married October 22, 1922, at the home of her father. Present for the anniversary celebration were their five children, Mrs. Genevieve Roberson, Atlanta, Ga., Walker Lee Newsome, Louisville, Mr. Arzella Henson, Arkin, S. C., Z. L. (Pete) Newsome, Carrollton, Ohio, and Mrs. Sylvia Carey, of London, Kentucky. After lunch at the park dining room, the grandchildren presented a program of piano, clarinet and flute solos, and the children enjoyed relating interesting stories of their childhood, especially those involving their parents. After the couple cut their anniversary cake, they were presented an array of useful gifts.

Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky's sportsmen at this time are closing out some hunting activities and making ready for new adventures in the line of fishing. The season for dedicated squirrel hunters will close as of Dec. 31, and the archery season for deer will end at the same time. However, the duck and goose season will run to Jan. 20; the rabbit, quail and fur bearer season will continue through Jan. 31; and grouse season will continue to Feb. 28.

Some of the best hunting is still to be had on a statewide basis because there is less hunting pressure than at the beginning of the season. Also, in many places where undergrowth was so thick it was hard to see game, the weeds have been felled by the weather, making it easier for both man and dog to work.

The bleak, cold and rainy days are adding much to the hunting of waterfowl, due to the fact that both ducks and geese are more active under these conditions and will work better over decoys than on bright sunny days.

Winter is not only a hunting season but a time for the dedicated fisherman to ply his skills in the harvest of both crappie and black bass.

Crappie fishermen who will seek out the cover areas in many of the state's major lakes will find crappie around drift and debris in the heads of many of the lesser tributaries, or around old fallen trees and stickups. In the twin lakes of Kentucky and Barkley, crappie fishermen who have the "know-how" harvest slab-size crappie in the deep cover areas of stump beds.

Black bass fishermen now are having good success in many of the major lakes by jigging live nightcrawlers in the muddy waters, or jigging live minnows or dollflies in the murky waters.

Other black bass anglers are casting the clear waters of those lakes with slow moving bottom bouncers and harvesting many fine strings of black bass.

So, for the hunter or fisherman there is still a lot of hunting to be had, and the fishing season is just beginning.

Before going afield or afloat, sportsmen should be sure to have a valid hunting or fishing license.

New 1973 licenses are available at the county court clerks offices and many of the sporting goods dealers, docks and bait stores.

LOSING HAIR? National's Hair Consultant In Prestonsburg, Friday WILL EXPLAIN HAIR PROBLEMS FREE

FREE CONSULTATION
MEN and WOMEN just take a few minutes of your time on FRIDAY, JANUARY 26 and go to the BLUE SKY MOTEL, 495 SOUTH LAKE DRIVE, between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the desk clerk for F. W. DANGLER'S room number, or call for appointment. There is no charge or obligation. . . all consultations are private, you will not be embarrassed in any way. If you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss. Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. If you still have hair on the top of your head, don't put it off until it's all off. It doesn't make sense for a man to let himself go bald, certainly not without seeing a National Hair and Scalp Consultant to see if we can help you. Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. National's Hair Consultant cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

Keep Child Resistant Containers—Child Resistant

The purpose of dispensing medicines in what are called "child resistant" containers is to substantially cut down and try to prevent the ever increasing number of accidents involving children and drugs. But, this purpose is defeated when a child is given an empty medicine container with which to play.

It does not take a child too long a time of experimentation to figure out how to get an empty container open. The next time it could be one that is full. Give your children a break and buy that extra time a child-proof container gives you when they haven't had a chance to find out how it works.

Whatsoever Things

Is It Sterling?

Many times in my life, I have heard someone speak of silver, and the question will be asked: "Is it sterling?" I never really knew what the basis of the question was, except that sterling was supposed to be the best type silverware.

would defraud the buyer through the use of a baser metal. The buyer, unable to tell the difference, would often pay a large sum for something he thought was solid silver, only to find out years later that the silversmith had cheated him. Sterling was a silversmith who was a man of honesty. People who bought his products could be sure that the product was of high quality and no attempt to defraud the buyer had been made.

The word came into our language many years ago because of a silversmith named Sterling. It seems that many of the silversmiths in those days

I suppose a man is known by his deeds. It is what you do that you are known for, more than what you say. Somewhere in that Book among books we read these words: "Their end will correspond with their deeds."

Many centuries ago two men were contemporaries in history. Whether or not they ever came face to face with each other is uncertain. There is a distinct possibility that they did. The two men were named Paul and Nero. Now Paul was an itinerant preacher, traveling from town to town, proclaiming a strange new doctrine about one called the Nazarene. He was the scorn of the respectable people of the day, and often found himself leaving a town in a hurry—often to save his own life.

Nero was the ruler of the Roman Empire. He was a great man who ruled all men. He was a member of the respectable section of society. In fact, he even declared himself to be a god.

Centuries have come and gone since Paul and Nero faced each other, if indeed they did. It has been a long time since Nero burned Rome and blamed Paul and his followers. But somewhere along the way from there to here, men started calling their sons Paul and their dogs Nero.

I have never heard of a man who had the name Judas. The only usage of the name I have ever heard has been to identify one as a traitor. But before Judas Iscariot did what he did it was quite a common name—well respected.

Like I said, I guess it is true that a man is known by his deeds. And I believe I would rather have men call me Sterling than Nero—or Judas.

72 Students at PCC Named to Dean's List

Robert R. Allen, academic dean of Prestonsburg Community College, announced last week that 72 students have been named to the Dean's List for the 1972 fall semester.

This number represents 15.53 percent of the student population at the college. In order to qualify for the Dean's List, a student must attain a 3.5 (B+) or better standing on all courses taken during the 1972 fall semester and be a fulltime student.

Only Grouse Season Left After Jan. 31

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 17—Almost all of Kentucky's hunting seasons will end in January, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources reminded hunters this week. The closing date for waterfowl hunting was January 20, but quail and rabbits may be taken through January 31.

Because of poor weather conditions, waterfowl hunting has been generally less successful than last year. Since excessive autumn rains prevented the harvesting of many crops, ducks and geese found it unnecessary to move around to search for food, thus presenting hunters with fewer targets.

The heavy rains also caused the flooding of many pits and blinds, particularly in the Ballard County Wildlife Management Area and around Barkley and Kentucky Lakes, and the high waters generally created problems for waterfowl hunters in the western part of the state.

Apparently, quail and rabbit hunters have, for the most part, fared a little better. Although the final tallies are not in, the quail and rabbit populations and the hunter success ratio appear to be about the same as last year, according to officials in the Game Management Division of Fish and Wildlife.

Game biologists estimate that the deer harvest was also about the same as last year's, while squirrel hunting was generally better than during the previous season.

The grouse season will remain open until February 28, and its close will mark the official end of the 1972-73 hunting season.

DEPARTMENT HEAD APPOINTED

President Nixon has named Casper W. Weinberger secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Weinberger is former director of the Office of Management and Budget; he replaces Elliot L. Richardson who was named secretary of defense.

Companies Must Submit Pollution Schedules

Frankfort, Ky.—About 550 Kentucky companies not in compliance with state air pollution regulations have been put on notice to submit compliance schedules by Feb. 15.

Potential air pollution sources in the state which do not hold a permit to operate must submit a compliance schedule and obtain a permit from the Division of Air Pollution of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

Each schedule must contain the following information:

The date of the first discussion between the air pollution source and the company which will furnish and install the control equipment for that source.

The date that an order for control equipment will be placed.

The date the air pollution source will approve the detailed plans for control equipment.

The date when all materials necessary for installing controls will be delivered at the air pollution source.

The date installation of controls will be completed.

The date when performance tests will be made to determine if the controls are working correctly. According to Bill Gatewood, acting director of engineering in the Division of Air Pollution, every company must prove each step is being taken at the earliest possible date before a permit will be granted.

If approved by the Division of Air Pollution, the compliance schedule then goes to a public hearing for citizen comment. A public hearing is planned for 20 companies Feb. 27.

Gatewood said a hearing would probably be held on 25 to 50 schedules every two weeks starting in mid-March.

Within 21 days of each hearing, a list of the companies involved will be published in a newspaper in each air quality control region where at least one of those companies is located.

A copy of each company's compliance schedule will be available for review at the Division of Air Pollution, Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection in Frankfort. The newspaper advertisement will specify locations in each region where compliance schedules may be reviewed for specific sources within each region.

CENSUS BUREAU REPORT The Census Bureau has issued evidence of an educational transformation in the U. S. since 1940. According to the report, the proportion of Americans completing at least four years of high school has more than doubled, and the proportion of Americans completing four years of college has almost tripled in the past 30 years. The Census Bureau's report differs from the Jencks report in that it found a strong relationship between schooling and income.

Who will be number seven?

According to national statistics, one person out of every seven will require hospital treatment this year. Hospitalization is not something you can plan on. But it is something you can plan for. By enrolling in the Kentucky Blue Cross and Blue Shield health protection program, you're assured of having quality health care protection to help meet today's health care costs.

BLUE CROSS offers a variety of plans that pay from $25 to $40 a day for your hospital room, plus comprehensive benefits that pay in full for all covered hospital services. Blue Shield has two plans: one that provides up to $270, and one that provides up to $405 for surgical expense, both include in-hospital medical, x-ray and anesthesia allowances.

With comprehensive Blue Cross and Blue Shield, Schedule C or D, you are eligible to apply for additional protection available through the Extended Benefits Endorsement. This Endorsement adds and increases specified benefits out-of-the-hospital, during hospitalization and following hospitalization.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield are the standards by which most other health care plans are measured. For eligible individuals and families not covered under an employee group plan, you can select the right plan for you.

There is a program for college students, growing families (includes maternity benefits) even a plan for those over 65 that supplements health expenses not covered under Medicare. Send today for details of the plans that fit your needs. There's no obligation. No salesman will call.

*1973 Volkswagen Sedan III suggested retail price, P.O.E. Local taxes and other dealer charges, if any, additional. Volkswagen of America, Inc.

The road that doesn't scare a Volkswagen.

Because of its unique construction water doesn't bug the Beetle as it does most cars.

Although a Volkswagen won't float indefinitely, it will definitely float. It's the only car with a sealed steel bottom that leaves nothing exposed beneath it.

If anything gets past the bottom we put special rubber seals and plugs all over. Around the doors. Around the fenders. Around the hood. Everywhere.

We also paint places you can't see but rust can find.

Like behind the door panel. Behind the dashboard. Along all edges and seams.

For extra corrosion protection we don't just dip our cars in paint. We use a special electric coating process. (The paint sticks better.)

Finally when we go to put each Beetle together, 1000 inspectors watch to make sure the Volkswagen fits practically airtight.

And at only $2059*, a Volkswagen helps you keep your head above water in more ways than one.

Few things in life work as well as a Volkswagen.

In Memory of Mother and Brother

Mom passed away Jan. 31, 1970; Troy passed away March 30, 1972.

Sadly years have come and gone since the days they went away. The sadness still lingers in our hearts since they went away.

For it Broke our hearts to see them go. But they didn't go alone, because part of us went with them the day God called them home. So, please, dear God, let them know that we down here do not forget, for we love and miss them so much. They say time heals all broken hearts and helps forget. But time, so far, has only proven how much we miss them yet. As we wonder by their grave sides and breathe a silent prayer, we ask, dear God, please help us carry our burdens here.

Missed by her daughters and sisters,
MAUDIE EDMONDS, HAZEL LANGLEY,
MALLIE ALLEN

Essay, Poster Contest Winners

Winners of the "Hire the Handicapped" essay and poster contests, sponsored by the Kentucky Commission on Employment of the Handicapped in conjunction with The First National Bank, were honored January 17 with awards presented by Burl Wells Spurlock, executive vice-president of the bank.

Mr. Spurlock presented $25 Savings Bonds to Sue Jett Jagers, Prestonsburg high school, winner of the essay contest, and to Pamela Muncy, Sheldon Clark high school, poster contest winner. Second and third place cash prizes of $10 and $5, respectively, were awarded to Cathv Lynn Whitaker and Carlos Ann Wise, both of Prestonsburg high school, for their essays, and to Polly Ward and Vicki Pack, both of Sheldon Clark, for their posters. All prizes were donated by the bank.

Essay entries were limited to three double-spaced typed pages, challenging the student with concise expression on the theme, "Handicapped at Work: Tomorrow's Challenge." Miss Jagers' essay will be placed in the state competition, sponsored by the Kentucky Commission, where the winner will receive a $150 Savings Bond and a free trip to Washington, D. C., for the National Awards Banquet sponsored by the President's Committee for the Handicapped.

Conference Studies School Management

Approximately 316 school board members, superintendents and other educators took to the classroom while attending the orientation conference for new school board members, January 14-15, at the Holiday Inn, North in Lexington.

The conference participants attended courses in school law, school finance and school community relations, and heard addresses by state school officials, including Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, state superintendent of public instruction.

Sponsored by the Kentucky School Boards Association and the Kentucky Department of Education, the conference was designed to provide a basic background in school management and operation for school board members elected in last November's general elections. A number of veteran school board members and administrators also attended the conference, however, to become further acquainted with school policy-making.

Dr. Ginger, in a keynote address, spoke on the problems and progress of public education in Kentucky and included points on vocational education, special education, the Foundation Program Study, school finance court cases and federal funding.

The state Health Department says a lack of funds and the need for a public review may delay full implementation of a new state law to combat sickle cell anemia.

US Steel Makes Gift Of $15,000 to College

Pikeville, Ky.—United States Steel Foundation of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania has given a $15,000 gift to Pikeville College according to Dr. Robert S. Cope, president.

President Cope added the money would be used in connection with the Pikeville College Mining Technology Program, a two-year old associate degree program.

General Health In Floyd Better, National Health Figures Indicate

Special to The Times
 New York, Jan. 13—Are residents of Floyd county getting healthier, year by year? Judging by the amount of time taken out by them for illness, are they in better shape now than they were a few years ago?

Just how healthy the people in one section of the country are, as compared with those in other sections, is determined by the government through a continuing survey, based upon weekly samplings.

It is conducted by the National Center for Health Statistics, which is a division of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

A "disability days index" is used to estimate the general health in each area. This takes into account the number of days that people are forced by illness or injury to stay home from work or school, to stay in bed or otherwise to cut down on their normal activities.

According to the latest figures, in Floyd county's regional area there has been noticeable improvement in the health of the local population since 1965.

Their restricted activity time averaged 15.9 days per person in 1970, including 7.2 days in bed, the report shows. This compares with 16.9 restricted days, 6.7 of them in bed, in 1965.

Elsewhere throughout the country, people were on the disability list for an average of 14.6 days, of which 6.1 were bed days.

In Floyd county, applying the regional average locally, the current rate of disability is causing an overall loss of 555,000 activity days per year.

In general, it appears, the state of health of a family is linked with its economic and social well-being.

According to an analysis of the statistics, made by the American Medical Association in its publication "Update," the healthiest people in the nation are those living on farms in the midwest, with incomes of more than $10,000.

This matter of health, together with the means to improve it, is looming up as one of the major subjects to be taken up by the new Congress. It is in line with the Administration's move to develop programs that will provide quality care for all citizens, rich or poor.

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT CR 8728

Floyd Federal Savings and Loan Association...PIF.

VS. NOTICE OF SALE

Charles R. Hall and Linda H. Hall... Defs.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court, rendered at the November 20 term, 1972 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 5th day of February, 1973 at 10 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd circuit court, upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

That certain tract or parcel of land lying and being on the waters of Jacks Creek in Floyd County, Kentucky, and being the same land conveyed from Bobby Hall, et al, to Charles R. Hall and wife, by deed dated August 14, 1971 and recorded in Deed Book 206, page 187, Floyd County Court Clerk's office, and being more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at the mouth of Jacks Creek going up the point to Seton Crisp line; thence down the hill to the C & O Railroad; thence down the railroad track to the Whistle Post; thence down the middle of creek to the starting point; excluding the parcel of land starting at the railroad crossing; thence up the hill 100 feet to a planted stone; thence around the hill up the creek 100 feet to the C & O Railroad right of way; thence down the creek 100 feet with said right of way to the beginning, so as to include all land in said boundary.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $2,564.60 with interest thereon at 8 percent annually from the 20th day of November, 1972 until satisfied and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 12th day of January, 1973.

MARSHALL DAVIDSON
 Master Commissioner
 Floyd Circuit Court

Art Weekend Slated To Begin January 26

The third annual Winter Week-End for Artists and Photographers will be held at the Jenny Wiley State Park, January 26 and 27.

The week-end will consist of group and individual exhibits, demonstrations by Cliff Johnson, Alra Alexander, and Russell May, judging of art and photography, and guest speakers, including Jack May, Jack Coleman, and Joe Descher.

There will be eight first prizes, eight second, and eight third-place winners in the Art section, plus a grand prize winner. Each artist may submit a total of five paintings for judging. Any artist may set up separate exhibits in the lodge, but away from the judging area. The private exhibits will be limited to seven paintings per artist.

Each photo exhibitor will be allowed a total of five pieces. There will be nine first awards, nine second, and nine third awards, plus two grand prizes—one black and white, one color.

Art prints and original paintings will be presented as door prizes.

For further information contact: Mrs. Nellie Meadows, Clay City, Ky. or Ted Hall, Recreation Director, Jenny Wiley State Park, Prestonsburg.

University Women Hear Morton Career Discussed

Miss Judy Smiley brought a sense of political history to the January A. A. U. W. meeting when she spoke to the group here of her biographical work on Thurston B. Morton. Miss Smiley focused her presentation on Morton's U. S. Senate career, highlighting his role in the Republican National Conventions of 1960, 1964 and 1968.

Miss Smiley has become the biographer of Ex-Senator Morton in connection with her Ph. D. studies at the University of Kentucky. An A. A. U. W. fellowship has helped Judy Smiley with her graduate work.

Mrs. Kathryn Frazier introduced the program. Others attending were Helen Ankrom, Betsy Rennick, Jean Rosenberg, Kathy Hatfield, Jinny May, Sandra Robertson, Madonna Carter, Louise Rarick, Roberta Davidson, Marge Sammons, Jane Combs, Orelia Smiley, Pat Harrison and Boots Adams.

The February 8 program will be a panel on community problems. Boots Adams will be the moderator.

In Memoriam

In memory of my dear mother, Rushie (Akers) Hall, who passed away January 11, 1933 at Dana, Ky., in Floyd county.

I only knew her fourteen years
 And then she had to go;
 She left me in my tender years
 And, oh, I missed her so!
 A loving mother's tender care
 Is what she gave to me.
 Thank you mother for being
 Such a lovely memory.

Ledford To Check Quality of Foods From Coin Machines

Frankfort, Ky.—Your coins slide down the throat of that metal monster, the vending machine, and what pops out for lunch? A moldy sandwich? A rotten apple?

Not if Ken Ledford can help it. He's the state food inspector who is handling the big job of implementing House Bill 536, "An Act Relating to Vending Machines," that was passed last spring by the General Assembly.

The act requires all those who operate vending machines that dispense certain types of food in Kentucky to obtain a permit to operate and to comply with regulations the State Board of Health adopts under the new law.

Already 70 companies, or about half the number contacted thus far, have applied for permits and paid the required fee of $10 to $150, depending on the number of machines the company operates in the state.

"This doesn't mean the others aren't complying with the law," Ledford says. "We're checking now to determine whether those companies that haven't responded are selling only cigarettes, bottled or canned soft drinks, chewing gum, nuts, candies or other exempted foods. If so, they're exempt from the law."

"Complaints we've heard deal with unsatisfactory food" in vending machines," explains E. P. Conyers, D. V. M., director of the Division of Environmental Services' Food Program in the State Department of Health. "Vending machines are a large source of food at factories and filling stations, particularly those near interstate exits. Besides checking on companies' compliance with permit requirements, Ken will be checking vending machine commissaries, the places where food and beverages that go into the machines are prepared. He'll also serve as a liaison between local sanitarians and vending machine operators."

A native of Hazard, Ledford spent most of his life in Clay county. He taught social sciences for one year in Williamsburg, Ohio, after receiving a bachelor's degree from Eastern Kentucky University.

One family's extravagance is another's necessity

Because electric power has always been plentiful and cheap, it is quite human to be careless with its use. TV and radio sets that play to empty rooms; lights that burn in unoccupied areas; partially loaded washers, dryers and dishwashers that are operated (when a full load uses no more power). These are often cited as examples of unnecessary uses of electricity.

But one family's extravagance is another family's necessity. It is not within our province—or anyone else's—to tell you how much power you need, or how you should or shouldn't use it to meet your standards of comfort, safety and convenience. If the widow, living alone, feels safer sleeping with her three rooms fully lighted, it is her right to use that power. It fills her real need. It's her right to expect us to have that power available. If you elect to leave a radio playing when you leave your house, to make a prowler think someone's home, it's a purposeful use of electricity.

Our job is to supply you with that power . . . all you need, whenever you need it. But included in this job is our obligation to do our part to conserve our nation's natural resources and to cause as little disturbance as we can to the environment. We have been doing this in every way we know and we are striving to do more. For example, our new power generating units today consume only 70% of the coal required to produce the same amount of electricity 30 years ago; and one of our new 765,000-volt transmission lines carries 30 times more power than one of our older 138,000-volt lines, but uses only two times as much right-of-way—in other words, a 15-to-1 saving in land for the same amount of electricity delivered.

Waste of electricity costs us all more than money. Electric power is produced by utilizing fuel—oil, gas, coal or uranium—to produce heat or by harnessing the energy in falling water. Like all natural resources, these gifts of nature aren't limitless. When electric power is used unnecessarily these valuable resources are wasted. Also the job of preserving some parts of the environment is made a little bigger. Despite the use of today's finest technology in pollution control and enormous investments of money in its application, producing electricity has some effect on our environment.

A thinking awareness of electric service as a service to be used only when warranted can help conserve our natural resources, minimize the effect of electric power production on the environment . . . and save you dollars in the bargain.

We can make all the electric power you need . . . both for now and the foreseeable future. We have no power shortage here. And it is our intention that there never be one, even if it means taking positions that are temporarily unpopular with isolated special interest groups. We fully realize that a plentiful supply of electric power is vital to operating your homes and offices, preserving your job, and protecting your standard of living.

We're working hard to have the environmental effect of electric power production as small as possible, and we are constantly searching for new ways to do this. As they are found, we are adopting them.

For the sake of conserving natural resources, preserving the environment, saving dollars in electric bills and passing on to future generations a world that is still rich in natural energy resources, the obligation we all have to each other is to avoid unnecessary use of electricity. In doing this, there's no need to "skimp" on use of electric power. Use what you need . . . but be sure you need what you use.
