

Expansion Of Campus Is Stalled

$175,000 Is at Hand But Can't Be Spent Without UK's Okeh

Prestonsburg Community College apparently is as far from realization of the dream of an expanded campus as it was the day the plan was first conceived. There have been $100,000 of PCC funds held the last five-six years by the University of Kentucky, and that money was marked for the purchase of additional land for future construction.

On top of that, Governor Ford two months ago placed $75,000 from his emergency fund at the disposal of the college here—that, too, for land acquisition and improvements.

But the University of Kentucky holds the purse-strings, and the money is lying idle. The land which PCC trustees and others had hoped to add to the campus for activation of a long-range development plan prepared a few years ago is owned by the J. M. Porter heirs and Jack Absher. Some of the land is not for sale, and a move toward its acquisition by condemnation has been under way for months.

But if there is no money available for payment for the land, attorneys say, going to court in a condemnation case is useless.

Asked about the situation last week, Dr. Henry A. Campbell, director of the college, was far from hopeful. Another expressed the belief that Dr. Otis Singletary, UK president, "is dragging his feet."

Yet another, a PCC trustee who declined to be named, said the situation is far from encouraging because a new Council for Higher Education has been named since the first land acquisition

Plaintiffs Lose Spot on Ballot

Chief Justice Palmore, of the Court of Appeals, last Friday entered an order denying plaintiffs in the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative election litigation a temporary injunction to require the RECC's nominating committee to reconvene and place plaintiffs' names on the ballot.

The order also denied plaintiffs' motion for oral argument of the case before the court.

The action clears the way for the July 19 election of three Floyd county members to the co-op's board of directors. It also leaves three incumbent members, Bradis Goble, Hauley Scott and John Ed Shepherd, without opposition. Plaintiffs in the court action were Russell Blackburn, Ronald Frasure and Billy Reffett.

Regional Education Meeting Set Here

A report of the foundation program study on financing education in Kentucky will be presented to educators and interested citizens in fifteen regional meetings this month, one of which will be held at Prestonsburg High School.

Local school superintendents, board of education members, members of local study committees, news media and other interested citizens will learn the findings of the study and its effects on financing education in the state.

For further dissemination of the report, the state Department of Education will also meet locally with civic and professional organizations in the state, upon request, said Tom Hagler, the state Department of Education's, coordinator for the study.

The three-year study, with input from research consultants, educators and some 5,000 Kentucky citizens, was recently submitted to the National Educational Finance Project (NEFP) as part of nationwide study of school finance. The NEFP has provided funds and expertise to Kentucky and five other states selected to participate in the study.

With the project's final report, the state Department of Education will prepare legislation proposals for the 1974 General Assembly said Hagler.

The meeting here will be held July 25 at 7:30 p.m.

TROUBLE WITH NAMES

Truck Overload Charge Placed Against Four

Four drivers accused of operating overweight coal trucks were booked at the county jail last week.

Two of these were arrested last Tuesday on Ky. 2030 on Spurlock, Left Beaver Creek. Veron Case, driver for the Beaver Trucking Company, of Minnie, was charged after Dept. of Motor Transportation Officers J. Cantrell and E. Mullins reported that his truck was loaded 53,000 lbs. over the maximum legal load limit of 30,000 lbs. Arrested by the same officers in the Spurlock vicinity was Larry Hancock, who was driving a coal truck owned by George Newsom, of Paintsville. Hancock's load weighed 70,000 lbs., 40,000 over the legal maximum. Both drivers were also charged with escaping contents (coal spilling off into the road). The following day Cantrell and Mullins stopped Raymond Hunter, driver for the C. & H. Company, of Printer, and charged him with escaping contents and overweight when the coal truck's load weighed in 48,000 lbs. over the legal 30,000. Hunter was also arrested in the Spurlock area. The same day, Claude Edward Clark was charged with overweight and escaping contents on Spurlock by the same officers. His load was 81,000 lbs., 51,000 over the 30,000 limit. Clark is a driver for the L. & H. Coal Company, of Honaker. All four offenders executed bond and their trials are set for August 23.

Booked in Magistrate Bill Wells' court last Saturday were Paul Tackett and Raymond Weddington, charged with possession of alcoholic beverages. Weddington was arrested at a trailer on Mud Creek by ABC Adept Arvil Nelson and Deputy Sheriff Roland Howell.

Test Operation Set To Promote Safety in Mines

U. S. Bureau of Mines personnel here will be involved in the testing of new coal mining equipment designed for safer operations at a mine to be opened at Davella, Martin county, by the Island Creek Coal Company, it was said here Monday.

Test operation of the Martin county mine will begin in September. Another mine, which will concentrate on testing a modified continuous mining machine which eliminates the need for drilling, cutting and blasting, is scheduled to open next spring in the Springfield, Ill. area.

The Martin county mine will work with conventional mining equipment made by the FMC Corporation. This will include drills, coal-cutters, loaders and shuttle cars. Also to be tested are dust samplers, gas detectors, communications systems, rescue and survival equipment and ground control instruments and techniques.

The Bureau of Mines said the experimental equipment to be in use at the two mines represents $18 million in research.

Probers Expect Arrest In Archer Slaying Soon

Archer Death Leaves Board With Vacancy

Although appointments approved by the State Board of Health on July 5 completed the full membership of the Floyd County Board of Health, the death last week of Dr. George P. Archer leaves an appointment yet to be made.

Dr. Archer, Dr. Ernest Holbrook and Dr. Claude L. Allen were named to terms to expire Dec. 31, 1974. Other members of the board of health whose terms have not expired are County Judge Henry Stumbo, by virtue of his office; Dr. H. G. Salisbury, dentist; Mrs. Shirley Callihan, practicing registered nurse, and Mrs. Ruth Reynolds, lay member.

Local boards of health are responsible for (1) the public health laws enacted by the legislature and the regulations adopted by the State Board of Health or

Mayor Here Found Dead, Shot Victim Officers Say Probe Uncovers Suspect In Leader's Slaying

Investigators representing state, county and city governments in the probe into the slaying here last Thursday of Dr. George P. Archer, 57, mayor of Prestonsburg, were agreed this week that they have a "strong suspect" and indicated that an arrest may be expected in a matter of days.

They declined to name the suspect. Leads continued to be run down by investigators among whom are State Police Detectives Gary Rose and Chester D. Potter, County Detective Sam Hale, Prestonsburg police, Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo and County Attorney James R. Allen.

Dr. Archer was dead at around 8:50 p.m. Thursday when his body was discovered by County Judge and Mrs. Henry Stumbo as they drove onto the grounds of the new doctors' clinic which opened here recently and which Dr. Archer was instrumental in building. He had been shot through the heart with a .38-caliber bullet. The bullet, which had passed through the doctor's forearm before entering his chest, was later removed during an autopsy.

There was no evidence of a struggle at the death scene. A cigarette which had burned down to the filter remained in Dr. Archer's hand, and investigators have expressed the belief that he did not suspect danger when the shot was fired. Judge Stumbo said he had a call made for an ambulance and medical aid, thinking that Dr. Archer had suffered a heart attack, and it was not discovered that he had been shot until an ambulance driver prepared to administer artificial respiration.

The body lay, face up, on the passenger side of the slain man's auto.

The crime shocked Prestonsburg and thousands of residents of the county.

The doctor had not been robbed, nor had his auto been looted. All doors of his car were locked except the driver's. The door to the clinic, a few feet from the shooting scene, was locked, but a door on the opposite side of the building was open. An automobile was seen leaving the scene, shortly after a shot was heard, and much of the investigation centers around that circumstance.

Dr. Archer had attended a stockholders' meeting at the Bank Josephine here during a part of the day and at around 8 p.m. had made a house call.

Tributes to the character and ability of the victim poured in from officials and citizens, and his funeral at 3 p.m. Sunday drew a gathering which packed the First United Methodist Church here and its educational building.

The son of Mrs. Fannie Auxier Archer, of Paintsville, and the late Dr. Ernest E. Archer, he was born at Auxier, Sept. 10, 1915. After receiving a degree from the University of Kentucky he was graduated from the University of Louisville Medical School in 1939 and did his internship in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

This Town . . . That World

SILLY QUESTION

We reprint this one with no malice whatsoever for any Ohioan who called us hillbillies:

This Ohio farmer, a native, came chugging into town one Saturday and parked his vintage gas-drinker near the courthouse. Around an hour later, his wife chugged into town, also—afoot.

"Why doesn't your wife ride?" a courthouse loafer inquired.

The farmer gave him a pitying stare. "Cause," he replied, "she ain't got no car."

THIRD TIME AROUND

And while we're keeping score on the shortcomings of others we report on three street markers in Houston, Texas on which somebody attempted to paint the word, "Kentucky." The Houston Post told the story in photographs in a recent edition. Driving south on Dallas street, you run into this spelling "KENTUCKY." Look on the other side of the same sign, and you find it, "KENTUTCY." But try, try again. Go over to Houston Boulevard, and there you'll find what you were looking for: KENTUCKY, no less.

He Saw Poplar Rafts 'Bumper to Bumper'

In 1904, when Elmon Clark was 14 years old, the timber business was Eastern Kentucky's greatest, and many of the region's larger streams served as vehicles for the mass transportation of logs downstream to market places on the Ohio. It was at this time that Clark, now a well-known John's Creek farmer, began some 15 years of work as a raftsman on the Big Sandy.

"Back then," said Mr. Clark, "logging was the only way farmers in this country had of making money." He explained that although some large logging concerns such as the Yellow Poplar Lumber Company (named after the type of wood most commonly cut) reaped the benefits of a large amount of timber land, individuals would also cut small tracts and float the logs to market at Cattslettsburg.

"They'd sell their timber, buy things like flour, coffee and sugar, and then catch a steamboat back up river home," Clark said. The steamboat trip, he added, usually took from 12 to 14 hours from Cattslettsburg to the mouth of John's Creek.

Farmers along the entire drainage of John's Creek floated their timber down to the stream's confluence with the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy and concentrations of logs were so heavy at times that Clark said, "I've seen this creek where you could walk across it on the logs."

Each timber owner, according to Clark, identified their logs by branding them with distinctive marks in much the same way as cattle ranchers would mark their stock. Five or six employees of each owner would then wait at the mouth of John's Creek to help catch the logs and arrange them into large rafts. "I've seen 100 men or more waiting on logs or waiting to raft," Mr. Clark said.

At that time, a lower John's Creek resident, J. S. Kelly, operated a "boom" at the stream's mouth and charged for catching logs. Clark said Kelly would charge about 10 cents a log but that later, when the price was raised to 20 cents per log, timber owners refused these fees and began catching and rafting their own.

After a particular owner's logs were caught and sorted, the task of making the raft was undertaken. Rafts were constructed from 120-140 logs, which were arranged and bound together with hickory "tie-poles" and steel "chain dogs." Some of the rafts would measure as long as 200 feet, Mr. Clark said.

After a raft was constructed, two men, a bow hand and a steerman, would man the "vessel." Each man was equipped with a long oar, usually about 16 feet long, which was mounted on either end of the raft and which served to keep each end of the mass of logs straight. Clark worked mostly as a bow hand, positioned at the front of the raft while the steerman would guide the rear of the vessel.

From Clark's statements it is apparent that rafting was an extremely rugged and demanding way to make a living, although he prefers to say simply, "A man had to know what he was doing." High water was necessary for adequate water depth and the months in which such conditions existed, usually March through June, were often cold and spring rains were frequent. Too much rainfall could cause problems—especially when the Ohio river became extremely swollen. The back current from the Ohio, Clark explained, would make it almost impossible to make headway as a raft neared this river and "we'd have to grab hold of trees and pull ourselves along in the backwater."

An average raft trip from the mouth of John's Creek to Cattslettsburg, according to Clark, took from two to four days. Certain houses along the way would keep rafters overnight, charging 75 cents to $1 per night, including meals. Raftsmen took no food with them and almost never ate any kind of lunch. "Occasionally, though," Mr. Clark recalls, people would sell sandwiches along the river bank, although they weren't called that then. Instead, it was ham and biscuit or sausage and biscuit.

Elmon Clark's daughter, Mrs. Letha Wilson, will attest to the rough life the raftsmen led. As a little girl she remembers hearing the rafts approaching the house. "When we'd hear the rafts going by there was no sound like it." She also recalls raftsmen who were so hungry and exhausted from their trip that "sometimes they'd beg for food and a place to sleep."

The work was often dangerous, too. "I've known of men cutting arms off, getting them caught in cables," Mr. Clark said. Such mishaps would usually occur while tying the rafts and, according to Clark, this was the most dangerous part of the work. But Mrs. Wilson stressed that surefootedness must have been a necessary characteristic, saying, "It would scare us to death to watch them running back and forth across the rafts." Being a good swimmer

Shift of Black Lung Claims Seen as Coal Industry Threat

Kentucky coal operators were joined last week by state officials in a strong plea for an extension of the time when coal operators assume payment of black lung claims.

The burden shifted July 1 to the coal industry, and mine operators are expected to be required to assume responsibility for as many as 5,000 new claims unless an extension of time is granted.

The entire Eastern Kentucky coal industry is threatened, officials and operators told a House sub-committee.

Kentucky Labor Commissioner James R. Yocom attacked the provision of federal law that shifted obligations for payment of pneumoconiosis claims July 1 from the U. S. to the mine employer. "Frankly," he said, "I do not think that our coal industry can survive such a financial liability."

He estimated that between 5,000 and 10,000 new black lung claims may be assessed by the U. S. Labor Department to the Kentucky mine operators resulting in $18.1 million in annual assessments against them.

Most of these claims from inactive miners or miners' widows, Yocom said, would have been disallowed by Kentucky regulations, which the U. S. Labor Department said do not meet model standards.

Properly, he argued, these claims should have been filed and processed during the first four years of the program, when it was fully funded and operated by the Social Security Administration before its transfer to the Labor Department. Yocom said Congress should adopt legislation now before the committee to extend the federal program through July 1, 1975.

Asked by Rep. John N. Erlenborn, R-Ill., why the claims weren't filed and processed during the first four-year federal phase, Yocom said he didn't know the answer.

But Robert Hawkins, chief counsel for the Kentucky Labor Department's special fund that handles black lung claims, said he believed some were held back because of benefit increases that began in the state July 1.

Before July 1, he said, Kentucky benefits were about $64 weekly for a 425-week maximum, going to $81 weekly for a lifetime.

Since the increases began, he said, the number of claims filed jumped to 150 a week, and he said he expected them to level off for the remainder of the year between 75 and 125 weekly, compared to 50 a week before July 1.

"I'm sure they're saving some of their cases," said Hawkins of attorneys handling the cases. With higher benefits, he admitted the lawyers also earn higher fees, now allowed at up to 20 percent of the claim.

Kentucky has come under sharp criticism because about 20 attorneys have handled nearly all the black lung claims there, reaping millions of dollars in fees.

"This was not intended to be a program to benefit lawyers," snapped Rep. Romano L. Mazaoli, D-Ky.

In nearly all the claims the state has allowed the full 20 percent maximum fee to attorneys, whether a case was contested or not. Fee payments are "front-loaded," the lawyer getting his off the top in a lump sum.

Because of the federal reimbursement provision, Erlenborn argued the lawyer fees were subsidized by the federal government, which Kentucky officials denied.

Yocom said his department has recommended a new attorney-fee schedule to the General Assembly, providing a $750 flat fee in uncontested cases and a $4,200 maximum in contested claims.

Of $25.5 million in benefit payments from Kentucky's special fund, $23.5 million in 1972 went out for black lung benefits.

Robert Holcomb, of Pikeville, president of the Coal Operators and Associates, said it is difficult, if not impossible, to pinpoint a single mine operator as having responsibility for a black lung claim since the victim may have worked for a number of mines.

He said uncertainty is clouding the future of Kentucky's coal mining industry and that of other areas of the Appalachian mountains. His organization represents medium and small mine operators in Eastern Kentucky, Southern West Virginia, southwest Virginia and Tennessee.

Holcomb, in asking for an extension of federal payment of black lung claims, accused the Social Security Administration of dragging its feet in failing to publicize the need for coal miners now suffering from black lung to apply for benefits before the July 1 deadline.

"Had they (Social Security) acted with proper diligence in the pursuance of their service to the people, the relief we now seek would not be necessary, Holcomb told the subcommittee.

He cites as an example of what could have been done a last-ditch effort to get Pike county miners and their families to file for benefits in the last weeks of June. As a result, he said, nearly 1,000 people filed at the Pikeville office during that period.

In criticizing the changeover in benefits payments, Holcomb said "it is not that we are trying to evade a responsibility but we question whether such a responsibility is ours to assume at this time."

"If it is," he continued, "we seriously doubt whether there will be any small, underground coal industry left to kick around."

Lower Burton Road Added to Program

Deputy Commissioner Otto Ingram of the Bureau of Highways last week announced an addition to the 1973-'74 Rural Secondary Program in Floyd county.

Acting for Highway Commissioner James E. Gray, Mr. Ingram said the newly authorized project provides for initial blacktop surfacing for .1 mile of the Lower Burton No. 2 road.

Floyd county's allotment of Rural Secondary funds for the 1973-'74 Fiscal Year amounts to $393,985. Most of this sum has been committed to the program announced earlier.

Gov. Wendell Ford, in Washington this week to discuss federal programs, stopped to view the planting of Kentucky burley near the Lincoln Memorial.

'Damn Yankees' at Amphitheatre— And There's the Devil To Pay!

"DAMN YANKEES," the robust musical comedy that broke an all-time theatrical record with its original New York success, began a 19-night run last Thursday at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre in the amphitheatre at Jenny Wiley State Park. The production is the second of the 1973 season and will run through July 29. The large cast is headed by Allen Meek as Joe Hardy, Dennis Kreider as Mr. Applegate, the devil, and Kathy Herring as Lola, his beautiful assistant. In the entire history of the American stage, this is the first play or musical comedy concerned with baseball to have become a hit.

Despite its title, the musical show has nothing to do with Civil War feelings of Southerners for Northerners. It stems only from the grudge of a Washington baseball fan for the New York American League ball team called the Yankees.

The show's plot has been taken from two popular stories, one a classic, the other a recent novel. The first is the Faust legend, about an aging man (Faust) who is so drawn to a young girl (Marguerite) that he sells his soul to the devil (Mephistopheles) in return for renewed youth, so he can woo her adequately. In the legend the bargain works out poorly and everybody ends up dead, except Mephistopheles.

Roughly the same situation was worked out—but very gaily this time—in a novel by Douglass Wallop called "The Year the Yankees Lost the Pennant," on which the plot of "Damn Yankees" is based.

This told about a middle-aged real estate man so devoted to the Washington Senators that he grieves mightily whenever they lose a game. As anyone knows who reads the sports pages, this is nearly all the time. One of the songs sung in the early part of the show is called "Six Months Our of Every Year," relating how this sports fan lives in a state of constant exasperation throughout every baseball season.

When, as in the old legend, Lucifer offers the aging fellow a chance to become a young man again—not for romantic purposes, but so he can lead the Senators to a pennant over the hated Yankees—he takes up the Satanic offer, at the cost of his soul.

The Devil keeps his end of the bargain, and from then on it's Faust with spangles. It's never a question of "Who's on Faust?" because the diabolically gifted ball-player always cleans up the bases whenever he comes to bat. In fact, he can hit homers all the time, even when pitchers give him a Faust ball. His unprecedented batting transforms the last-place Senators into a team on the verge of winning the pennant.

Three women have vital parts in the story. One is the loyal wife that the diamond-fan blithely deserts to become a rejuvenated ball-player, but for whom he keeps longing after he's been transformed into a miraculous home-run hitter. Another is the fascinating temptress whom the Devil has summoned to his aid in foreclosing on the ball-player's soul. And a third is an alert feminine sports-writer who, suspecting something supernatural about the sudden appearance of so mighty a hitter, exposes him as not being all that he seems.

Some of the most popular songs of the mid-century period are sung in "Damn Yankees." Three top Hit Parade numbers in the show are "You Gotta Have Heart," "Whatever Lola Wants" and the raffish mambo number, "Who's Got the Pain?"

The show will be presented nightly except Monday and Tuesday and tickets may be purchased at the door. All seats are general admission and reservations are not required.

Receives Ph.D. Degree

Charles Robertson, assistant professor of Physics at Prestonsburg Community College, recently received the Ph.D. degree from the University of Kentucky. The title of Dr. Robertson's dissertation was, "A Study of the Levels of 96Mo and 53Mn via Gamma-Ray Spectroscopy." The study deals with the understanding of nuclear forces.

Scout Jamboree Set Next Month at Two Sites

Nearly 70,000 Scouts and volunteer leaders will head for the 1973 National Scout Jamboree in early August.

They'll be heading for seven days of excitement and adventure in northern Idaho at Farragut State Park, or in western Pennsylvania at Moraine State Park. Jamboree '73 marks the first time the Boy Scouts of America will be holding a jamboree in two different sites. It will also be the largest in the world jamboree history.

Jamboree-west is scheduled from August 1-7, while its eastern counterpart will run from August 3-9.

To the thousands of jamboree visitors expected each day from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Jamboree '73 will undoubtedly remind them of their hometowns.

However, instead of neatly kept rows of houses, Scouts will be hanging their hats on tentpoles. To a visitor, the jamboree scene will look more like a several-thousand-acre "tent city" carnival, instead of a quiet neighborhood.

No boy at the jamboree will ask, "What's there to do?" He will be trying to do everything. After all, jamboree '73 will be a lifelong experience he will be able to share with his grandchildren.

He "Left Tracks"...

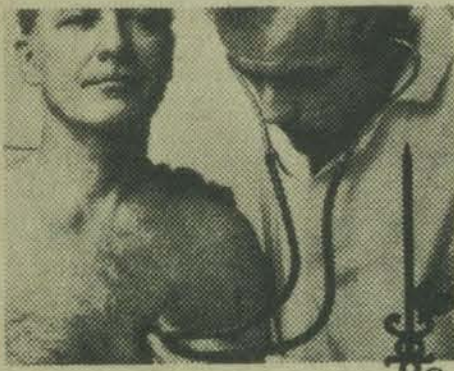

The wanton slaying of Dr. George P. Archer is a double tragedy.

His death is a heavy loss to the community which he led through years of progress. Men possessed of his capacities for leadership and plain, practical achievement do not often appear on the public scene.

But other tragedy lies in this dark happening. A murderer is yet at large, and the name of the community which Dr. Archer served so well suffers with the deliberate gunning down of its No. 1 citizen.

Dr. Archer, as physician, as mayor of Prestonsburg and as a regional leader, "left tracks," as Ex-Governor Bert Combs is wont to describe worthwhile achievement. His "tracks" are visible here in city streets, in a flood wall, a city park, a splendid, new hospital, a medical clinic, to name a few.

These are "tracks" not to be erased by neglect or plain laziness on the part of us who remain. They describe a plain pattern for us to follow in the years to come as Prestonsburg and Floyd county continue to move ahead.

remember the checkup you were going to have last year?

Well, it's time to have it again. Only this time, HAVE IT! Today doctors can save one in two persons when cancer is detected in time and treated promptly. If your doctor finds anything wrong, you've gained the most important thing of all: time. And if nothing's wrong, just think of the blissful peace of mind that's all yours.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

In Defense of "1776"

I attended "1776" twice and I thought the play and the music were excellent. In regard to Ruth Sippel and Sarah Helmantoler's comments on the manner in which Benjamin Franklin referred to his son as "that little bastard":

According to history, William Franklin, the eldest son of Benjamin Franklin, was born out of wedlock and was very active in the Royalist cause during the Revolution, which was contrary to Franklin's belief.

This correct term was used in reference to his son to show Franklin displeasure with his son's Royalist leanings.

In Defense of "1776"

Editor, The Times:

In reference to a letter in your last column from Ruth Sippel and Sarah Helmantoler, I would like to defend the drama, "1776," after seeing it myself.

Personally, that drama was amusing and totally deserved its New York awards, despite its profanity. I am not upholding profanity—in fact, I am quite against it, but in any situation that takes place, such as the writing of the Declaration of Independence, there are apt to be a few "irreligious" people who do not conform to "standards" and use profanity, despite some opinions.

This drama does not tear down the noble, Godfearing image of our country's forefathers (of which some were not so noble and Godfearing). It only portrays the fact that a few men can change the course of history.

As for Ruth Sippel and Sarah Helmantoler, they could have walked out after the first "undelicate" word was uttered. (Benjamin Franklin's remark about his son, that the above mentioned ladies stated in their letter, appeared considerably late in the drama.) I applaud the actors and actresses of the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre for their outstanding performances.

New Financial Aid Program Available for College Students

A new financial aid program—the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program—is now available to eligible Kentucky high school graduates who plan to continue their education this fall.

James Ingle, director of the University of Kentucky Office of Student Financial Aid and president of the Kentucky Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators, advised that any student entering a college, university, vocational or trade school for the first time this fall may be eligible for the Basic Opportunity Grant.

"The U. S. Office of Health, Education and Welfare has mailed application forms to high school graduates—to the extent that they could determine names and addresses," Ingle said.

Application forms also may be available through other Federal Agencies such as the post office. "If not, they can be obtained from the various student financial aid offices of Kentucky's colleges and universities," he said.

"We will send application forms to those UK students who have applied to our office for financial aid," Ingle said. "These forms, along with notification of other financial aid awarded the student, should be in the mail by July 13."

The Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program has been funded by Congress with a $122.1 million for the 1974 fiscal year. Estimates are that eligible students may receive a maximum of $500 per person, depending upon the cost of the institution the student plans to attend and his family's ability to contribute.

To determine a student's family contribution, an Application for Determining Family Contribution must be completed and sent to the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program, P. O. Box B, Iowa City, Iowa 52240.

"All students applying for this grant will be required to send a completed form to the Iowa office to determine the family contribution," Ingle said. "No individual financial aid office can decide if a student is eligible or what his family contribution should be, under this particular grant."

Within four weeks students should receive a Family Contribution Analysis Report from the B. E. O. G. Program in Iowa indicating whether or not they are eligible, and if so, the estimated amount of family contribution expected.

"When the report is received from Iowa, a student submits the report to the financial aid officer at the school he hopes to attend. That officer determines the exact amount of the student B. E. O. G. grant based on costs at the individual institution and the student's family contribution," Ingle said.

Once a student has been declared eligible for a basic opportunity grant, he may attend any institution he chooses.

"If students are undecided as to where they will enroll for fall, they may request additional copies of the family Contribution Analysis Report from the B. E. O. G. program," Ingle said.

Federal officials expect that all undergraduate students ultimately will be eligible for the grant. Because of the limited amount of money appropriated by the current Congress, however, the grant is available only to new incoming students for 1973-74.

"I would assume that the grant for the 1974-75 academic year would include sophomores," Ingle said. "The extent of the grant next year will be determined by the amount of appropriations by Congress and the President."

The ultimate intent is that students enrolled in a four-year academic program will be eligible for a basic opportunity grant for four years. Students must apply each academic year for the new grant and must be in a program which requires at least six months to complete.

Suspect's Calls Torment Mother

CHICAGO—In recent weeks Ann Moore has been getting telephone calls from a man who says he was driving the hit-and-run truck that killed the Moores' 10-year-old daughter, Denise.

"He is a malicious man," Mrs. Moore said. "He thinks he is God and can make me stop chasing him. But I tell him I'm going to keep after him."

Denise was hit by a red semitrailer truck on March 8 as she left the restaurant her parents operate. That restaurant is now boarded shut. Denise's portrait is nailed on the front door and her parents say they now devote their time to finding her killer.

Mrs. Moore and her husband Freeman began that search by placing an advertisement seeking witnesses to their daughter's death.

"My ads are getting to his feeling of guilt," Mrs. Moore said of the man who has been calling her. "He figures that if he harasses me, I'll stop advertising." Police say they have been unsuccessful in tracing the calls.

Mrs. Moore said a man called her on June 21 and said he had seen the accident but didn't want to get involved with the police. She convinced him to call her lawyer. He did, but wouldn't give his name.

In the first call, Mrs. Moore said the caller said he believed the person who killed Denise did not know that he had done it. But six days later the same voice was on the phone, this time admitting he was the driver.

"Apparently you didn't get much from your ad," Mrs. Moore quoted the man as saying. "I waited for the police to get me, but they didn't."

The Moores continued to place the ads; the caller became more cruel.

"Sometimes he calls and asks to talk with Denise," she said. "Then he says: 'Denise is here with me. She's not dead. She's alive.'"

"He uses the same expressions again and again. He keeps saying, 'You can't get Denise back. I'm no idiot. I know I can't get her back.'"

"I've had four months of horror," Mrs. Moore said. "I lost my baby. She meant everything to us, and I'm trying to learn to live with it."

"But I think for the sake of all humanity this kind of man should be stopped."

'Our Appalachia' Day $300,000 Granted Set Aug. 18 at ALC For Summer Jobs

Pippa Passes, Ky.—Eastern Kentucky residents are invited to perform in the events comprising the second annual "Our Appalachia" day at Alice Lloyd College. Scheduled for August 18, the all-day affair will involve individuals and groups who sing, play musical instruments, or do story telling or folk dancing.

Individuals and groups who wish to perform and compete for prize money should contact Bob Hall (Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, Ky. 41884 Tel. 368-2101). The emphasis is on mountain-flavored music, stories and dances.

The public is invited; there is no admission charge. Last year, more than 300 from surrounding counties attended the festival.

Economic Security Commissioner Gail S. Huecker announced last week that she has been advised by the U. S. Department of Labor's Manpower Administration that an additional $300,000 is being made available to Kentucky to provide summer jobs for disadvantaged youth.

This is the third time in the last two months that federal funds have become available for the employment of needy youth with city and county governments and local city or county school systems.

These funds will provide 791 additional summer jobs for youth in 42 counties in the state. The funds are part of a grant provided under the Emergency Employment Act passed by Congress in 1971.

With this new allocation, the total amount provided Kentucky under the program will be approximately $1,700,000.

Youth interested in obtaining one of these job slots should apply at the nearest employment service office of the Kentucky Department of Economic Security.

These summer jobs will operate only from July 15 to August 11.

"A funny thing happened when I decided to expose that phony floating Volkswagen commercial."

The ex-skeptic leaning out of the Volkswagen window is a television reporter named Stanley Siegel.

Like a lot of other people he saw our floating car commercial.

Unlike a lot of other people, he tested it. He didn't really believe that our car is made so well, it's practically airtight.

So he borrowed a Volkswagen from a local dealer, went out with a camera crew, and hoped to come back with pictures of it lying on the bottom of something called, believe it or not, Beetle Creek.

Fortunately, as you can see in the re-enactment above, that's not how things worked out.

What people watching station WLUK in Green Bay, Wis. saw on the news that night wasn't a sunken Volkswagen. It was a surprised Stanley Siegel.

In fact, as he put it himself, "These things really do float!"

What's more, the VW even started up. Without any trouble. On the first try.

So as far as we're concerned, while Stanley Siegel may not have come back with the exposé he went out for, he still produced something very worthwhile.

One of the best Volkswagen commercials we've seen in a long time.

Few things in life work as well as a Volkswagen. *It definitely floats, but not indefinitely.

must have been rather handy, also, and Mrs. Wilson recalls when her father, long after his rafting days, would swim for hundreds of yards in swollen John's Creek waters with a grandchild hanging on to his neck—"just for the fun of it."

A raftman must also have possessed just the right "touch" with his oar to avoid sand bars, rocks and fallen trees and brush, not to mention other rafts. "Hundreds of rafts would be going down river at the same time, sort of like 'bumper to bumper,'" Clark said.

After reaching market at Catlettsburg, the logs would quickly be unbound and sold and the owner of the timber would be present to collect the money and pay his raftsmen.

It was then, with money in his pocket, that raftcrews "turned on." Old Front street, Catlettsburg, with its solid array of saloons, then became to mountain raftsmen what the western town was to the cowboy after roundup and the long cattle drive. They whooped it up. But soon the roistering ended. There was the steamboat trip home, and perhaps more timber waiting.

Mr. Clark recalls that he on occasion had made as many as six rafting trips before returning home.

Prices varied for rafts of lumber, Clark said, but a small "country" raft, he reckoned, would bring between $200-225 while a large lumber company raft might earn as much as $500.

The Levisa Fork and John's Creek have changed a lot since those days when hundreds of rafts would travel "bumper to bumper" to Catlettsburg. "The river seems to have filled up a lot and isn't as deep as it once was," he said. And John's Creek, Mr. Clark reports, never use to stay muddy as long as it has in recent years. "This year it's stayed muddier longer than ever before," he noted.

With rafting days decades behind him,—when the greatest hardwood forest in the world was virtually destroyed—Mr. Clark has developed one of the area's nicer farms and his wise and effective use of several of his 200 acres of land for the growing of pine trees have earned for him three of Kentucky's top forestry and land management awards in recent years.

FROM AN OLD NEWSPAPER

Elson Kendrick has been back home from Panama City, Fla., and he brought with him a copy of one of this county's early newspapers which I wish we could reproduce. It is the Sept. 9, 1897 edition of The Floyd County News, edited by W. K. Allen, who later became a banker at Allen and a respectable citizen, in spite of his messing around with a newspaper.

The paper was found when the old Sammons home, across the river from here, was being razed several years ago. Parts of it have broken away, but let us brief you on what remains.

The list of candidates that year included R. E. Stanley for sheriff, J. C. Martin for jailer, G. T. Kendrick for county surveyor, Robert T. Vaughan for coroner, E. L. Dingus for superintendent of schools and W. A. Gearheart for representative.

And who remembers these hostilities of the day?—the Amazon, the Emery and the Bonanza. The social items speak of this person and that "stopping" at these hotels.

And the ads—there was Richmond's (boys' suits, 75 cents and up); Ford & Butler's Livery Stable ("get your horse well fed"); B. P. Carter, contractor and builder (tinner, painter, wallpaper hanger); F. A. Hopkins & Co. ("we sell only for cash, prefer gold, but if you can't get it bring on paper or silver and we will risk it only being worth 53 cents to the dollar under free coinage"); E. C. Snyder (wagon making); Dr. R. H. Leete ("teeth extracted without pain by Leete's new method").

Shades of Bryan and Free Silver! What's this we have, 75 years later, when you have to be an assayer even to find any silver?

Taken in the raid were 48 cans of beer. Three-hundred sixty cans of beer, 12 fifths of wine, and 7 half-pints of whiskey were confiscated at the home of Paul Tackett at Tram by Nelson and Howell. Both Tackett and Weddington were released on bond, and trial is set for Saturday.

In a "different" incident at the Richmond cemetery here, last Wednesday, Marsha Timple and James M. Bradfield, Florida residents, were caught and charged with "stealing flowers off of graves." Prestonsburg Policemen Lawson and Woods stopped the Volkswagen the two were driving after a call had alerted them to the couple's presence on the cemetery grounds. The officers found flowers and grave decorations in the car's trunk and back seat. The two young people explained that they were "scavenger hunting" and that some friends had dared them to do it. They said they wanted "something scary to do," and paid $50 each after pleading guilty in police court.

Others arrested, charges against them and arresting officers follow:

Ronnie J. Mullins, drunk driving, by State Trooper Bevins; Jackie Dean Endicott, drunk driving, by State Trooper Bevins; England Moore, assault and battery, by State Trooper Bevins; James F. Rice, fishing without license and failure to appear, by Conservation officers D. Conley and T. Cantrell; Hank Skeens, drunk driving, by State Trooper J. Newsome; Tommy DeRossett, attempt to elude police officer, by Prestonsburg Policeman Tommy Woods; Gordon Stanley, reckless driving, by Deputy Sheriffs Bartley, Hall and Tackett; Jackie Younce, reckless driving, by Bartley, Hall and Tackett; Michael Johnson, reckless driving, by Bartley, Hall and Tackett; Bobby Wallen, drunk driving and no operator's license, by N. Heighton, drunk driving, by City Policemen Woods and Lawson.

After World War II, during which he served in the Army Medical Corps as a major, he returned to Paintsville where he practised briefly. He then joined his uncle, Dr. John G. Archer, in the ownership and operation of the old Prestonsburg General Hospital at West Prestonsburg. In 1952 the hospital moved to its First street location here where he continued his practice until the opening of the new $6 million Highlands Regional Medical Center, early this year.

Dr. Archer was nearing the end of his third four-year term as mayor here and apparently faced no opposition for a fourth. He led in widespread municipal improvements locally which, in addition to the new clinic and hospital, included the paving of all Prestonsburg and West Prestonsburg streets, the opening of two municipal parking lots, construction of a floodwall to protect the business district, four public housing complexes and general improvement in city government. His particular pride was Archer Park here, the playing fields, pool and other facilities of which served thousands from all parts of the county.

Soon after coming to Prestonsburg, Dr. Archer was named by the Kentucky Junior of Commerce "Kentucky's Outstanding Young Man." He was chairman of the Floyd County Board of Health at the time of his death and until this year had served the Big Sandy Area Development District since its founding as chairman of its board of directors. Dr. Archer was president of the Kentucky Medical Association in 1963-'64 and in 1970 was chairman of the Kentucky State Board of Health. He was chairman and chief of medical staff at the Highlands Regional Medical Center here, a member of the board of directors of Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, and Blue Shield of Kentucky, a member of the board of directors of the Bank Josephine and of the board of stewards of the First United Methodist Church here.

Briefly, these duties include responsibility for such things as any public health problem arising from health nuisances, sources and filth or causes of sickness, for the safety and purity of water supplies and for sanitary conditions of schools.

Besides making sure health laws are enforced, the local board has the power to appoint a health officer with the approval of the State Department of Health and to advise and support the health officer and local health department.

moves were made, and it will demand a full review of the college here and its needs before giving the development plan its blessing.

In addition to the original Administration building, the PCC campus now has only two permanent structures—the Martin Student Center and the Pike Technology Building.

Reservoir Opponents Find Ally in Senator

Senator Cook may have "softened" his opposition to the dam, it was indicated last week after a meeting with supporters of the reservoir project.

Morgan county residents who have been waging what many have considered a hopeless fight against the construction of the Paint Creek dam in Johnson county found a powerful ally recently in the person of U. S. Senator Marlow Cook.

Cook issued his statement of opposition to the public works subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee which has withheld a funding decision on the project pending word from Cook.

The senator noted his stand reflects the "no less than 20 letters a day" received in his office which indicate opposition to the flood control project that would include land from both Johnson and Morgan counties.

"I have also received a petition signed by almost every businessman, professional and civic organization in Morgan County and many in Johnson County which strenuously voices opposition to the project," Cook said, adding he had received only three letters favoring the reservoir.

In his statement, Cook charges the corps "betrayed" the trust of residents in the project area by holding only three public meetings on the project in 30 years. He also cited displacement of residents and possible ecological damages as reason for his own opposition and further stated the corps has shown "total disregard" for these negative factors.

Opposition to the dam is not wholly confined to Morgan county into which waters of the lake would extend. "There are more people right in Paintsville who are against it than they think," a leader of the opposition movement said recently.

Officials in Johnson county expressed amazement and dismay over the Cook statement.

In addition, they are mobilizing to sway the senator from his stand.

Paintsville Mayor John Chandler said he was "amazed at the position he (Cook) has taken," since many Johnson county communities "have banked on and worked on this project for year."

Specifically, Chandler noted earlier that all construction costs, including those for the proposed Paintsville downtown revitalization project, would be considerably less when the flood threat is removed.

Chandler added that he hopes to speak with Cook this week and state his sentiments on the project.

Chandler charged Cook with "going off half-cocked" and not hearing both sides of the story before making the statement.

The Paintsville City Council voted unanimously Tuesday to instruct City Attorney Howes Johnson to draw up a resolution supporting the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers project.

The resolution, to be signed by council members, will be "hand carried" to Washington, D. C., next week by Johnson, who added he will also discuss the project with U. S. Sen. Walter "Dee" Huddleston D-Ky., and U. S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-7th District.

A spokesman for the city noted a halt to the project "will set back our revitalization project," a program proposed to revamp the downtown shopping area of the city and ease the city's traffic and parking problems.

It was said the neighborhood recreation facility currently under construction is in a low water area.

The Paintsville Advisory Committee, a Morgan county-based group actively seeking a halt to the project, has been instrumental in drumming up opposition to the project which would require land from Morgan and Johnson counties.

A spokesman for the U. S. Engineers, Huntington District, reported Thursday all alleged ecological threats and other issues involved in the project were discussed in a recent meeting between Corps district director Col. Kenneth McIntyre, and representatives of the advisory committee.

Conrad Ripley said the Corps "respects the senator's position" but will continue to develop what he termed a "sound project."

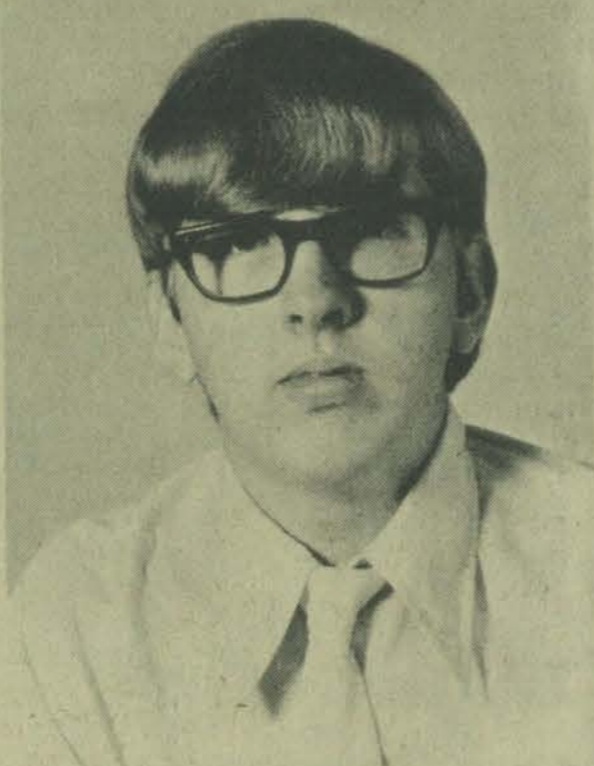

Chandler echoed the Corps' sentiments, saying he would "continue to go after the project."

The U. S. Engineers, Huntington district, told residents in the project area last week they intend to proceed with plans to develop the dam.

The $32.9 million project has received the support of Congressman Perkins and Gov. Wendell Ford.

Opponents of the reservoir project have employed an attorney to carry the fight to the courts if necessary.

Mental Health Staffing Grant Wins Approval

O. T. Dorton, president of the Big Sandy Regional Mental Health-Mental Retardation Board, Inc., which operates Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, announced last week that the agency had been notified by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare that its application for a continuation of its staffing grant had been approved for fiscal year 1973-74.

The new grant carries staff funding of $522,159 and is a supplemental funding to the agency's original mental health staffing grant, which is now in its seventh year. A total of $203,049 was included for a regional inpatient facility in affiliation with Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

In announcing the grant award Mr. Dorton said that negotiations for opening this regional inpatient facility are currently under way, "I am hopeful," he added, "that in the very near future we will be able to offer psychiatric inpatient services to residents of our region either in conjunction with Pikeville Methodist Hospital or elsewhere in the region."

Mountain Comprehensive Care Center provides mental health and mental retardation services to five Eastern Kentucky counties—Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin, and is administered by a private, non-profit board of local citizens. Among its basic services are outpatient clinics, partial hospitalization units, emergency services, children's services and alcohol and drug treatment and rehabilitation.

Miss Dorton, Mr. Moore Wed

The marriage of Miss Martha Ann Dorton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Dorton, of Georgetown, and Mr. Ronald Ray Moore, Cynthia, Ky., son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Moore, of Winchester, was solemnized at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, May 26, at the First United Methodist Church in Lexington.

The Rev. William R. Jennings performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with Fuji mums, Killian daisies, palms and white tapers in candelabra. Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler, organist, presented a program of contemporary and traditional music.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father, was attired in a floor-length gown of white organza enhanced with appliques of Peau d'Ange lace and seed pearls, fashioned with short sleeves and empire waist. Her cathedral length veil was attached to a lace edged mantilla. She carried a cascade bouquet of white sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Jackie Murphy, of Midway Park, N. C., was matron of honor. Her floor-length gown of skyblue crepe with short sleeves was accented by an empire waist banded with white venise lace doves. She carried a white wicker basket of Marguerite daisies interspersed with babies breath.

Bridesmaids were Miss Patti Bruckner and Miss Lisa Hall, cousin of the bride, of Georgetown. They were attired identically to the honor attendant, and carried identical baskets.

Miss Cynthia Moore, sister of the groom, was flower girl.

Mr. Robert E. Gregg, Jr., of Cynthia, served as best man. Ushers were Mr. Douglas Moore and Mr. Wayne Moore, of Winchester, brothers of the groom, and Mr. Alan Dorton, of Georgetown, brother of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a light blue knit dress with a matching jacket and matching accessories. The mother of the groom was attired in a mint green crepe dress with matching accessories. Each wore a white phalanopsis orchid corsage.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with an antique white table linen made by the grandmother of the groom, and held a four-tier wedding cake decorated with white roses and pale green leaves and topped with a bouquet of white sweetheart roses, Marguerite daisies, and babies breath. Assisting were Mrs. Harold Adams and Mrs. Carroll Hall, aunts of the bride. Miss Nichele Farmer presided at the guest book.

The bride chose a cream silk floral print dress with mint accessories for their wedding trip to Lake James, Michigan.

The bride is a graduate of Scott County High School, Georgetown, and attended Morehead State University. The groom is a graduate of George Rogers Clark High School, Winchester, and the University of Harrison County High School, Cynthia. The couple is residing in Cynthia.

Singing It Out, Singing It Strong

By BARRI DUNCAN

Oh, they tell me of a home far beyond the sky
Oh, they tell me of a home far away
Oh, they tell me of a home where no storm clouds rise
Oh, they tell me of an uncloudy day.

There's something in man that loves a song.

And if there was anything that had Washington raring on its hind quarters a whole week of uncloudy days, it was the songs sung by Kentuckians at the American Folklife Festival.

Hundreds of listeners sat in the hot sun to hear Bill Monroe. It was with groans that they finally let him slip away after an hour. Thousands of people crowded together every day to soak in the Bluegrass tunes of banjo, guitar and fiddle. And hundreds of enthusiasts swarmed Jean Ritchie each time she stepped from the stage after a concert with her family.

Singing as a group for the first time in public, the 12-member Ritchie family put on a show balanced with ballads, love songs and hymns.

"Since this is the first time we've performed together, other than at family reunions and front porch sings," said Jean Ritchie, "we've just been picking each others favorites—if someone doesn't know one that is chosen, they learn it from the others."

Their "first attempt" has been a crowd pleaser everyday for the week-long duration of the Festival, sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution and the National Park Service. People from age 5 to 70 on the ground, listening and patting their feet.

"It's the nicest compliment a singer can have—drawing people of all ages," said Jean. "The appeal of folk music, I guess, is that it is something real and honest and not showy."

Jean Ritchie herself participates in three major concerts a month and is well known at college campuses throughout the country for her protest songs against the destruction of the environment. Her songs, like the songs of her family, come from the mountains (area customs) of Kentucky.

Through the destruction Jean also sees

HALL BROTHERS FUNERAL HOME

AMPLE PARKING PHONE 285-3262 MARTIN, KY.

MEMBER: Kentucky Funeral Directors Burial Association Associated Funeral Directors Association National Funeral Directors Association

The altar of the First Methodist Church of Martin was decorated with brass candelabra and blue and white carnations, angel breath and ivy during the nuptials uniting Kathy Lynn Park and Clinton Ray Humphrey Saturday, July 23 at 7:30 p.m. Rev. J. T. Huffman performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ralph Park, Jr., 499 Tollwood Dr., Norton, Ohio. Mr. Humphrey is the son of Mrs. Nancy Humphrey, of Ligon.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her step-father who gave her in marriage. She was dressed in a floor-length gown of candelight baby faille with ivory embroidery featuring a scoop neckline, wrist-length fitted sleeves, and an empire waist trimmed with heavy braid, banded with pearl beads. The three-tier fingertip veil of illusion was held to a camelot cap of the same material and trim as the bridal gown. Her flowers were a cascade of blue and white carnations, angel breath, and ivy centered by a white orchid and a single string of pearls.

Maid of honor was Robin Lynn Hall, of Beaver, Ky. Bridesmaids were Miss Vicki Phillips, Columbus, Ohio; Miss Donna Humphrey, of Ligon. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Donna Clay, of Ligon, and the flower girl was Miss Beth Frazier, of Price, cousin of the bride.

The attendants wore baby blue floor-length gowns of polyester, featuring a scoop neckline, empire waist line trimmed with white lace, and puffy short sleeves. Their headpiece was a single blue bow and blue illusion veil. They carried nosegays of blue and white carnations with blue and white streamers.

The flower girl carried a white chantilly lace basket of summer flower petals. Her dress and headpiece was identical to the bridesmaids.

Best man was Mike Humphrey, of Melvin, nephew of the groom. Ushers were Ronald Gillium, of Ligon, nephew of the groom, and Danny Meade, of Wheelwright.

The bride attended Norton High School, Norton, Ohio. The groom attended McDowell high, Alice Lloyd College, and served two years in Vietnam. He is self-employed in a furnace and air-conditioner business. The couple honeymooned at Jenny Wiley State Park and are now living at Route 3, Thorns-ville, Ohio.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. William Taylor and Kim, of Norton, Ohio, sister of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Humphrey, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Phillips, Mrs. James Humphrey, all of the Columbus, Ohio area; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Langley, of Louisa.

Reception was held at the home of the brother of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Humphrey, of Melvin. Mrs. Lee Caudill, of Ligon, grandmother of the bride, honored them with a lawn luncheon on Sunday July 24.

Mrs. Parker Retires After Long Service

Mrs. Lillie Hatcher Parker, of Prestonsburg, retired June 30 after 52 years' secretarial work with county and federal governments and with private legal offices. Mrs. Parker widow of the Rev. Ben Parker, was at the time of her retirement secretary of the area Food Stamp Program headquartered here. She had worked in that capacity since 1961 when food stamps were introduced here as a pilot federal program under the aegis of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Shortly before her retirement, she was honored at a dinner given at May Lodge. Her daughter, Mrs. Catherine Poe, said of Mrs. Parker's retirement:

"I'm enjoying it—she's a mighty good cook."

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK (Attorney General of Kentucky)

Summer is the season when many printed materials salesmen take advantage of sympathy, principles, or ideals in order to prey upon consumers. Kentucky has a law designed to help consumers in dealing with such "salesmen." In order to sell printed material, the salesman must register with the local chamber of commerce or the local sheriff's office. Any orders or contracts for printed material are void and unenforceable, at the option of the consumer, if the salesman soliciting the order fails to comply with the registration law.

If such a salesman contacts you, we suggest you check with your local chamber of commerce or sheriff's office to see if he's registered. If the sales promotion appears to be "false, misleading, or deceptive," contact the Attorney General's Office on the Consumer Hotline.

For answers and suggestions to aid in dealing with consumer problems, call the Attorney General's Consumer Hotline, toll-free, between 8:30 and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 1-800-372-2960.

Clean Air Depends On Permit System

The Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection is now obtaining the compliance of the state's near 2,000 air pollution point sources with our clean air regulations. This action is far-reaching for it will bring us to our goal of clean air for all Kentuckians.

The pollution sources include asphalt plants, stone quarries, petroleum refineries, saw mills, furniture manufacturers, power generating stations, coal processing plants and grain facilities. Only about 500 remain to be brought into compliance or placed on compliance schedules. It is anticipated these will be in compliance in the next few months.

Compliance centers on the facilities applying for and receiving a permit to operate an "air contaminate" source from our Division of Air Pollution. Permit applications are solicited, received and reviewed by the division.

After a complete review, which could include field inspections, the facility is given a permit if it is in compliance or a compliance schedule is sought. The compliance schedule includes six steps which will bring the facility into compliance as soon as possible and no later than April 9, 1975 for all pollutants except sulfur oxides. Sulphur oxide sources have a deadline of July 1, 1977, '78 or '79—depending on the region of the state the facility is in.

After a public hearing on the schedule—if the schedule is approved—the facility is given a permit. When the facility receives the permit, the schedule becomes enforceable by both the state and the federal government.

I believe that by working out compliance schedules, we can achieve our air quality goals. It seems that putting time schedules on polluters is the best way to get compliance.

As Kentucky's air pollution sources complete the requirements of their compliance schedules, the air of the Commonwealth will reach the standards we have set for it. When we have reached these goals, all Kentuckians for generations to come will be assured of clean air.

Almost 3,000 in WIN Find Private Jobs

More than 2,858 welfare recipients in Kentucky have been placed in jobs since the federal workfare program went into effect last July, the Department of Economic Security announced last week.

The Work Incentive Program (WIN) requires able-bodied welfare recipients to register for work or training in an effort to reduce the welfare rolls and increase the number of individuals placed in gainful employment.

Economic Security Commissioner Gail S. Huecker said that since the program began, 18,330 individuals have been registered for work. Six hundred seventy-one have successfully completed the program which included training or job placement or both.

The tax credit incentive, applicable to employers who offer jobs to WIN participants, has induced several business firms to hire 160 recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC).

As of July 1, there were 44,798 Kentucky families receiving AFDC. This figure represents about 153,438 individuals.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tackett, of Beaver, announce that a memorial service for their son, Gary Dean, will be held July 29 at the Joe Reynolds Church by Regular Baptist ministers. The public is invited.

Baker, sons, Sean and Brett, and daughter, Sheena, of Edison, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hayes and daughters, Brenda and Annette, of Marion, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Willard Caudill and daughter Denise, of Marion, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. The Bowling Green Independent Board of Education will receive a $165,000 grant for the continuation of a research and development project for career education.

APPROVES PROGRAM

The Fayette County Board of Education has approved a new phase-elective program for its senior high schools. The plan, to be enacted in 1974, will divide the school year into three 12-week sessions and make all courses (where feasible) phase-elective. The students will have a wide range of subjects to choose from and are to base their curriculum on their own abilities, rates of progression and career goals.

A lower court order directing further enforcement of school desegregation in 17 states was upheld by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington. This action upheld a lower court decision ordering HEW to institute further enforcement proceedings against ten state college systems and 200 public school districts in 17 states.

Simpson-Branham Vows Said

The marriage of Miss Carolyn Simpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Little, of Wheelwright, to Mr. Robert Allen Branham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Branham, of Betsy Layne, was solemnized at 1 p.m. July 14 at the Methodist Community Church in Wheelwright.

The officiating minister in the double-blessing ceremony was the Rev. Cohen Campbell. Preceding the ceremony, wedding music was presented by Mrs. Dean Osborne, organist and soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white taffeta over organza. The bodice was fashioned with a stand-up, lace neckline and was accented with taffeta ruffles, lace and flower appliques. The sheer, full sleeves were caught at the wrists by deep lace cuffs which ended in ruffles. Her softly gathered skirt featured strips of lace and a ruffled hemline which swept into a chapel train. Her elbow-length veil imported illusion was held in place by a Juliette cap fashioned with pearls and flower appliques. She carried a bouquet of multi-colored spring flowers.

Miss Sharon Mitchell served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Carla Tackett and the bride's cousins, Miss Pamela Little and Miss Cherri Russell. The attendants wore identical floor-length gowns of organza. The blue skirt was accented with hot-pink flowers. The sleeveless, empire bodice was solid blue and covered with a long-sleeved, flowered jacket. Their hot pink picture hats were trimmed with a matching blue ribbon. They carried bouquets of multi-colored spring flowers. Miss Christi Stumbo and Miss Lyn Branham, nieces of the groom, served as flower girls and wore floor-length, hot-pink gowns. They carried white baskets trimmed with pink and blue ribbons and filled with rose petals.

Mr. Ronald Wallen served as best man. Ushers were Mr. Stephen Little, brother of the bride, Mr. Steve Banham, brother of the groom, and Mr. John O'Quinn, Master Stephen Branham, nephew of the groom, served as ringbearer.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Wheelwright Clubhouse. Acting as hostesses at the serving table were Mrs. Ronald Wallen, Mrs. Lester Gibson, and Mrs. Marvin Bush. Presiding at the guest register were Mr. Barry Branham, brother of the groom, and Miss Belinda Stumbo, niece of the groom.

After returning from their honeymoon in Jamaica and the Bahama Islands, the couple will reside in Martin until returning in August to Lexington, Ky., where both are students at the University of Kentucky.

CAVE FISH LIVES WITHOUT EATING FOR TWO YEARS, BIOLOGISTS FIND

By DAVID KENAMER

Louisville, Ky.—With food prices as high as they are, some of us may have at one time or another thought how nice it would be if we could live without eating.

Well, we can't, at least not for long. But other members of the animal kingdom have somehow managed to come close to doing it.

Animals that live in caves must be accustomed to going without food for long periods of time because there is very little food available in the dark stillness of a cave.

Dr. Fred Whittaker, a University of Louisville biologist, reports that he and a colleague, Dr. Loren G. Hill, now with the University of Oklahoma, kept a spring cave fish alive in an aquarium for two years without feeding it.

The spring cave fish is small, about 3 inches long when full grown, is light brown in color, and while not blind, can only detect light and dark.

It frequents sinkholes, streams, ponds and caves in the Mammoth Cave region of Kentucky. For about three months every spring it stays above ground feeding and then disappears into the caves for the rest of the year where it mates.

The fish is nocturnal when above ground, so it is accustomed to finding food in the dark. But for the nine months of the year it spends underground, food is scarce and it is very likely that it could go months without eating.

The fish that Whittaker and Hill kept was dissected after two years and found to have no stomach or intestine. According to Whittaker, the fish is able to regenerate these organs when food becomes plentiful.

This ability to survive without food is remarkable, but fairly common among cave dwellers. Dr. Whittaker says, "The ability to live without food for months at a time is very valuable in the cave environment where an animal could go months without finding food."

This ability is a good example of how cave animals have adapted to their environment. Food is extremely scarce and the water is underground pools and streams is cold and low in oxygen.

These three factors do not encourage the animals living in the water to move about a great deal. In general, cave animals have very low metabolic rates.

Dr. Whittaker reports that the fish in the aquarium was capable of remaining completely motionless in the water for weeks at a time. He points out that this "is a method of conserving energy—where the little energy the fish does get, is extremely valuable.

Ford Proposes Coal Research Crash Program

Speaking to the Midwestern Governors' Conference at Rapid City, S. D. recently, Gov. Wendell Ford called for increased use of coal as a solution to the energy crisis, but stressed the need for research to make this use "environmentally acceptable."

For proposed a federally funded "crash program" of national coal research to find ways of removing the major air pollutant, sulfur dioxide, from coal.

The governor cited the progress of a pilot project funded by the last session of the Kentucky General Assembly in the gasification and liquefaction of coal. He said, "This is a perfect opportunity for Kentucky to solve many of the national problems on energy—if we can find a way to eliminate the high sulfur dioxide content that it emitted from the stacks of utilities."

Ford said he plans to propose an extensive research and development program on energy possibilities for the coal produced in both Eastern and Western Kentucky.

Despite the need for environmental controls, Ford said that at present the technology does not exist for economically feasible removal of sulfur dioxide from coal.

He said that while "utilities are ready to buy the equipment right now, it would be irresponsible to require them to buy equipment that may not be a lasting solution."

The governor continued, "It is imperative that the consumer be protected from increased utility rates caused by hardware that may not do the job."

Kentucky ranked second nationally in coal production last year and ranked first the year before.

The Railway Labor Act, passed in 1926, requires employers to bargain collectively and prohibits them from discriminating against employees who join a union, according to the U. S. Department of Labor.

Gov. Wendell Ford broke ground this week for a new industrial plant to be located at Georgetown. Officials of Clark Equipment Company, Buchanan, Mich., joined the Governor in ceremonies initiating construction of the industrial truck manufacturing facility. It will be located on a 100-acre site and will employ over 500. Completion date is late 1974.

Entertainer Thornsby Here Visiting

Professional country music performer and former Prestonsburg policeman Jim Thornsby, of Phoenix, Arizona, has been here the past few weeks visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Thornsby, of Emma.

Mr. Thornsby has played at Magoo's, a popular Phoenix club for several years on a regular basis and has also toured in various parts of the Southwest. En route to Prestonsburg, he played Burk's Palace Theatre in the Dallas, Texas area along with other well-known performers such as Wynn Stewart. He has also appeared with such names as Tom T. Hall, Leroy Van Dyke and Bobby Bare to name a few.

An accomplished five-string banjo "picker" and lead guitar player, Thornsby, who is known professionally as Jim Beam, is also an expert vocalist. His promoter, Boyd Darnell, had this to say about Thornsby: "Truly a country boy with a ton of talent and what other entertainers call "the real thing."

Mr. Thornsby is a brother of Mrs. Bill Potter, of Prestonsburg and Prestonsburg policeman, Hack Thornsby, who is also known locally for his musical talents. His wife, the former Edna Byrd, of Phoenix, accompanied him here.

Office Studies Vets' Outreach Thru Education

The possibility of having a veterans' outreach representative work out of the ROPES Region 11 office here to assist veterans in planning their further education was studied at a meeting held July 6 at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond.

A veterans' outreach representative would be associated with the ROPES office here if the plan is adopted. Reo Johns, ROPES director, said the most immediate need apparently is for a GED course to enable veterans to acquire high school certificates.

Bronelle Skaggs, director of Vocational Education Programs, is also investigating the possibility of instituting on-the-job training in the region by working with local firms.

Tom Sexton, director of the Veterans Outreach Program in Kentucky, will discuss the possibility of extending the program into Region 11 at the July 19 meeting here of the ROPES board of directors.

At this meeting the board will be asked to approve the priority listing for proposed programs, services and activities in the region. This listing ranks priorities for regional office efforts by voting of the superintendents of the seven school districts in Region 11.

Claude Farley, retired superintendent of Pike county schools and vice-chairman of the Region 11 advisory council, will appear before the board to discuss a proposed handbook for use in Region 11 Schools. Don Burchett, regional guidance supervisor, will explain the purpose of, and encourage participation in, the Regional Counselors Planning Conference, to be held at Prestonsburg Community College, July 19 and 20.

Deskins Resigns Superintendency Of Pike Schools

Tilden Deskins, superintendent of the Pike county school system for the past four years, resigned last week for what he called "a less strenuous job and for health and personal reasons."

The board appointed James T. Dotson, assistant superintendent since July 1, to fill the vacancy.

Former Title I Director Arnold Roberts was named to succeed Dotson as assistant superintendent.

Dotson has served the school system since 1940, beginning as a teacher at Blackberry and most recently as principal at Johns Creek and Mullins high schools.

Deskins, who had been brought to Pike county from central Kentucky to replace veteran Supt. Claude Farley after a dispute between Farley and the Pike board of education, said his resignation had nothing to do with any conflicts with the current board.

Deskins will remain with the Pike county system as a supervisor.

He said Dotson's July 1 appointment had nothing to do with his resignation.

Osborne-Watkins Vows Solemnized June 30

The marriage of Miss Vicky Ann Osborne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Osborne, of Hueysville, and Mr. Robert M. Watkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Watkins, of Hindman, was solemnized June 30, at Garrett United Methodist Church. The double-ring candlelight ceremony was performed by the Rev.-James E. Watkins.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of her own design of silk organza over dulcette satin with a back skirt overlay of blue organza edged in Alencon lace which flowed from a fitted bodice with long full sleeves and mandrin lace collar. The same lace formed a ruffle around the sheer yoke and edged the Cathedral length veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of white rose buds with white and blue ribbons.

The maid of honor, Miss Teresa Lynn Osborne, sister of the bride, wore a full length gown of blue flocked nylon over taffeta, and a white hat trimmed in blue. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and blue daisies with blue and white streamers.

The bridesmaids were Miss Sherry Osborne, also sister of the bride, and Miss Deborah Williams. Their gowns and hats were identical to that of the maid of honor.

Mr. Dan Watkins, brother of the groom, served as bestman. Ushers were Mr. Michael G. Johnson and Mrs. Paul J. Johnson, both cousins of the bride. The groom wore an all white tuxedo with three-quarter tails. The best man and ushers wore all blue tuxedos with three-quarter tails. Angela Carol Osborne, sister of the bride and Melissa Ann Turner, cousin of the bride, were flower girls. They wore gowns identical to those of the bridesmaids. They carried white baskets with white and blue rose pedals. Jerry Paul Waddell was pianist and vocalist.

The mother of the bride wore a blue dress with corsage of white carnations. The mother of the bridegroom wore a pink dress with a corsage of white carnations.

Assisting at the reception held in the church social room immediately following the ceremony were Mrs. Barbara Turner, Mrs. Ann Watkins, and Mrs. Marie Stevens. Mrs. Rebecca Osborne presided at the guest register.

The couple will reside in Hindman until September when the groom begins flight training in the United States Air Force. The bride will continue her education at Prestonsburg Community College for the time being.

If He Can Fish As Well As Whittle . . .

Whittlin' and fishin' are the pastimes which make retirement days pass easily for Reuben Lafferty, of Garrett, and, as the photo would indicate, if he does as well with rod and reel as he does with his trusty Barlow the family food supply need never run low. Only the horses shown in photo were not carved by Mr. Lafferty. His knife fashioned their harness, the wagons, drivers, chairs and all other items. He is now retired after working about 40 years in the coal mines. Photo was snapped on his 60th birthday, July 8.

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

"When Sirius, the dog star, shines brightest during July and August, fully 90 percent of all bass over five pounds are caught after dark from this nation's impoundments," says Homer Circle, Angling Editor of Sports Afield. "So during the dog days, I fish for big bass at night."

Here are some perfectly logical reasons for this excellent night fishing: (1) Heavy pleasure-boating and water-sport activity spook bass into seclusion during daytime hours; (2) Ninety-degree surface waters compel bass to seek comfort and protection from bright-hot sun rays; (3) The food fish of the bass are more actively feeding at night because of the seasonal peaks of nocturnal insect hatches; (4) Under the cover of night a big bass can sneak up on his victim and grab a bigger meal.

However, there is more to catching bass at night than just busting out lures into an inky limbo. It takes thoughtful planning, certain basic tactics, proper tackle and a bassin' buddy as peculiar as you are.

So to keep you from bringing back a big gob of weeds on the majority of your casts, here are a few practical suggestions drawn from hundreds of nighttime forays, some memorable and some of them miserable.

Know your waters. You should be familiar enough with the lake, pond or stream you're fishing to be able to pick out certain landmarks—a cove, a weedy bay, a deep rocky point, special undercut banks, flooded timber and deep drop-off shores.

Hazards to beware of. Your prime concern is your eyes. Wear a pair of clear, unbreakable glasses. Here's why.

When manipulating a surface lure you're bound to get some exciting strikes close to your boat. Your natural reaction is to set the hooks with a hefty sweep of your rod. Should the bass miss your lure the power of your strike could propel the lure with damaging force into your face.

Use adequate tackle. Usually you can use your daytime reel, provided it will handle the 20-pound-test line you'll need. Too heavy? Don't you believe it. I know a ten-pound bass can't break a 15-pound-test line on a straight pull, but there are other factors. A five- or six-pound bass can pop a 15-pound-test line if it wraps it around a snag. Also, the lighter your line the sooner it weakens from abrasion caused by being dragged over limbs, weeds, roots, and rocks.

Use a rod far stiffer than you use during the day, unless you have one designed for plastic-worm fishing.

Forget colors, think sound. Lure colors mean little at night. Sound is the dimension to keep foremost in your mind. I have deliberately painted surface plugs, pink, purple, magenta and other repulsive shades and caught bass on them at night. But, every one was a noise maker, and this was what made them bass catchers.

I recommend surface lures that gurgle, burble, splutter, pop, chug or make any kind of audible sound. I suggest underwater lures with spinners that hiss, fast actions that buzz or those that have a built-in rapper that makes a continuous noise when the plug is in motion.

Kentuckians' Births and Deaths Decline in '72, Report Shows

Frankfort, Ky.—Approximately 6,000 fewer Kentuckians were born in 1972 than in 1971, according to a comparison of provisional vital statistics reports published by the State Department of Health's Division of Research, Planning and Statistics for those two years. Deaths decreased by about 100.

Provisional statistics generally reflect trends, says Bill Mackey, division director. Official, totally accurate vital statistics aren't permanent until published in a report that's usually produced one year or more after the date it carries. Weeding our duplicate birth and death certificates and publication production account for the time lag.

The provisional report says 50,852 Kentuckians were born in 1972. Kentucky's 1971 provisional figure was 56,983. The birth rate declined, then, from 17.7 in 1971 to 15.7 in 1972. (Birth and death rates are figures on a basis of number of occurrences per 1,000 population.)

The death rate also decreased from 9.8 per 1,000 population in 1971 to a provisional figure of 9.7 in 1972. Numerically, 31,458 Kentuckians died in 1972; 31,552 deaths were recorded in the provisional report the year before.

Leading causes of death remained stable. A few more Kentuckians died in 1972 from influenza and pneumonia and diabetes than in 1971. Heart disease, cancer and stroke continued to lead the list of killers. Accidents, influenza and pneumonia, and diabetes mellitus retained fourth, fifth and sixth positions. Arteriosclerosis provisionally rose to seventh place, replacing certain causes of mortality in early infancy, which dropped to eighth. Suicide was again ninth, a place it took for the first time in 1971. Emphysema was tenth.

Maternal deaths showed numerical and rate decreases in the provisional report. Maternal deaths were nearly cut in half—15 in 1971, eight in 1972. Recommends Supt. Post Be Filled by Appointment

State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Lyman Ginger, has recommended the position of Superintendent of Public Instruction be filled by appointment by the State Board of Education. "I can't possibly finish everything I start in four years and neither can the superintendent who follows me," Ginger said. A proposed constitutional amendment, that will be voted on in November, would have the State Superintendent be appointed by an elected State Board of Education. At present, the board is appointed, and the superintendent elected state-wide.

County's Food Bill Last Year Was $10,714,000

Special to The Times

NEW YORK, July 14—With Floyd county residents earning more and spending more, the local economy has been moving into higher gear. Figures just released show that per family spending for goods and services were at a relatively high level in the past year.

The details are contained in the annual market study made by the Standard Rate and Data Service. It indicates just how much was spent locally by the average family for food, cars, furniture, clothing, drugs and other items.

Comparable data is given for families in other parts of the country.

In Floyd county, it is shown, the largest part of the consumer dollar went for food. Expenditures in local grocery stores, supermarkets, delicatessens, bakeries, butcher shops and other stores selling food for home consumption added up to $10,714,000, a $314,000 increase over the previous year's $10,392,000.

In addition to this outlay, a sizeable amount was spent in restaurants, lunch rooms and other places where food and drink are consumed on the premises.

In effect, about 28 cents out of every dollar spent in local retail stores went for take-home food. It was more than in many localities.

On the average, throughout the United States, 21 cents went for such purposes and, in the State of Kentucky, 23 cents.

If the total bill for food bought for home consumption were divided equally among the local population, it would average out to $1,006 per family.

The SRDS report also shows how much was spent in the year by local consumers for various other kinds of articles.

Their expenditures for automotive equipment, including cars, motorcycles, boats and the like, amounted to $8,296,000, as against the prior year's $7,407,000.

In stores selling general merchandise, their outlays reached $5,247,000. The former total was $4,753,000.

Purchases of wearing apparel, including all kinds of clothing, shoes and hats, came to $2,051,000, compared with the 1971 figure of $1,970,000.

In stores selling furniture and other home furnishings, they spent $1,662,000. The previous total was $1,474,000.

Most retail lines ended the year on the upswing but a considerable part of the increase in their gross was due to inflation.

Bestline Banned By Court Order Entered Friday

Bestline Products, Inc., a San Francisco company which has been operating in this and other Kentucky counties, last week joined Dare To Be Great in the ill graces of a Kentucky court.

Judge Henry Meigs, II, of the Franklin circuit court, issued a temporary injunction last Friday to prohibit Bestline from selling or advertising its products in Kentucky.

Bestline was also reported by TIME Magazine last week to be under legal fire in California and other states. The firm sells home products, including cleaning agents, and is accused of employing a "pyramiding" system of local dealers recruited at sales meetings.

Glenn Turner, head of the Koscot-Dare To Be Great organization, was reported last week as seeking release from a Swiss jail. He has been ordered to repay investors in his enterprises.

In the Bestline case Asst. Atty. Gen. David Vandeventer, acting in behalf of the state Consumer Protection Division, said the firm had refused to supply all information sought about its representatives in Kentucky. Judge Meigs showed some reluctance to grant the injunction in the absence of counsel for Bestline, but Vandeventer said the company had been given notice of the hearing by mail.
