

Office Here To Eye Reclamation in Area

Governor Marks $75,000 To Aid PCC Expansion

Governor Wendell H. Ford in a special news release to The Times announced Tuesday morning the establishing in Prestonsburg of a Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection reclamation office and the appropriation of $75,000 from his contingency fund for an expansion program at Prestonsburg Community College.

The reclamation office, due to open April 1 in the old Lincoln-Mercury building on South Lake Drive here, will employ 16, including an area supervisor, 14 inspectors and a clerk-typist. The office will serve Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin, Wolfe, Powell, Lee, Morgan, Menifee, Lawrence, Rowan, Elliott, Boyd, Carter, Greenup and Lewis counties.

Personnel will be engaged, mainly, in the reclamation of surface-mined lands in the 17-county area.

The $75,000 check from the Governor's contingency fund for the benefit of the college here has already been turned over to the University of Kentucky Expansion of the PCC campus has long been planned, and this fund is regarded as a break in the direction of future land acquisition and construction.

Governor Ford credited State Representative W. J. Reynolds with the successful development of both projects. "The projects," he said, "resulted from the interest and leadership of Bill, who worked on both programs and personally requested that I proceed on these matters."

Mayor Asks Citizens To Attend Meeting

Mayor George P. Archer said Monday that next Tuesday's meeting of the Prestonsburg Area Chamber of Commerce will be one of special interest to the community.

Importance of the meeting, he said, arises from the fact that if Prestonsburg is to receive planning funds from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), its most significant needs and problems must be determined, and the Chamber meeting will be the occasion when such determination will be made.

Mayor Archer said he is inviting all concerned citizens to attend the Chamber of Commerce meeting and help determine the direction of Prestonsburg's planning program for the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

The meeting will be held at 12 noon at the TCT Truck Stop.

Loses 7th Class Rating

Joe D. Smith, manager of the Kentucky Insurance Services Office, has notified insurance company representatives that fire protection facilities at Wheelwright have deteriorated to the extent that the town has been re-rated eighth class instead of its former seventh class rating.

Election Costs To Rise, Result Of Redistricting

Reapportionment of legislative districts earlier this year by the General Assembly to make legislative districts conform with the federal court one-man, one-vote rule will be costly, dollar-wise, to this county and place a small section of it with a heavier voting bloc in adjacent Pike county.

The redistricting bill cut off six precincts—Harold, Toler, Tickey, Antioch, Head of Mud and Branham's Creek—from the 95th legislative district and threw them into the 94th, most of which is in Pike county.

Whitt Wounded, Drift Man Held; 3 Hit by Raiders

Fred Marshall, of Drift, was jailed here Monday afternoon, shortly after he had allegedly shot his fellow-worker at a coal operation, Rudolph Allen Whitt, at Minnie. Whitt suffered a flesh wound in his leg. He was taken to the McDowell Regional Hospital, where his condition was said to be good. State police and Sheriff Frank Leslie investigated the shooting. A family quarrel was blamed for the shooting.

Gary B. Sexton, of Kendallville, Ind., who was arrested on a charge of assault and battery with an automobile after Charles Reed, of Lexington, was critically injured March 11 in a wreck near Emma, has been released under $4,000 bond. Reed was reported still unconscious in a Lexington hospital.

Three men have been arrested within the week on charges of possessing intoxicants for the purpose of sale. Paul Tackett was jailed by State Troops Dennis Williamson and A. C. Cantrell after they had found on his premises at Tram 312 cans of beer, 56 half-pints of whiskey, 5 half-pints of gin, 15 "fifths" of wine and 28 pints wine. The following day, the same troopers arrested Junior Wells, of the Auxier road. They reported taking 328 cans of beer, 9 "fifths" of wine 4 pints of vodka and 9 pints of whiskey in the raid on his premises.

(Wells said the intoxicants were not on his premises but in an old truck on property which he had leased to Bill Hall, of Melvin. Guy Rorrer, of Cliff, stated as a basis for the search warrant, however, that he bought beer from Wells.)

The third man arrested was Lum Carr. He was jailed by Trooper Danny Stumbo and Phillip Tucker, but the amount of intoxicants found was not learned.

Others booked at the jail within the week, charges lodged against each, and names of arresting officers follow:
Ben Sellards, selling mortgaged property, arrested by Deputy Sheriff R. (See Story 3, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Drop in Enrollment Lowers Teacher Need

Prospects are dim for the employment next school year of any new teachers in Floyd county, Supt. of Schools Charles Clark said last week after comparing enrollments in the schools for the first six months of the current term with the same period a year ago.

The enrollment shows a drop of 328 pupils, and that, the superintendent said, "makes it next to impossible to employ any new teachers."

In fact, he said, the enrollment loss means 10 fewer teachers next year and if that number of teachers now employed do not retire or otherwise leave their positions, some who are not on continuing contract must be cut from the teacher list at the end of this school year. (State law provides for one teacher for every 27 children in average daily attendance.)

Enrollment gains have been recorded in only eight schools. Meanwhile, 17 schools were losing pupils and one, Bonanza, held its own with an enrollment of 63.

Highway Closed Except to Boats
Backwater from the Big Sandy helped Abbott Creek cut the highway at this point, near the home of Harris Howard, last week-end. Similar scenes existed temporarily at other points in the county.

Anonymous 'Tip' Fails Of Solution to Murder

Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said Monday new "information" is at hand in one of the county's three unsolved murders but that not enough is yet known to present the case to the grand jury when it meets here early next month.

"A woman telephoned me recently and told me two men had told her husband of the killing of Jimmy Chaffins on Arkansas Creek, but she refused to give her name, and so we are still working as much in the dark as ever," Stumbo told The Times. Chaffins was found, shot to death, two years ago. The prosecutor and others investigating the slaying have felt at times that a solution to the mystery was near, but they never have been able to name a slayer with any confidence of winning a conviction.

Judge Denies Dismiss Motion In US 23 Suit

An attempt by one of the defendants in the $4 million lawsuit concerning rejection of US 23 projects in this county in 1970 to gain dismissal of the action failed last Friday in Franklin circuit court.

The motion to dismiss was filed by Victor E. Comley, executive director of the Kentucky Association of Highway Contractors, on the grounds that the plaintiff, Mattingly Bridge Company, lacked legal standing because it was not a bidder or subcontractor in bids offered on the Floyd project.

Circuit Judge Henry Meigs held that Mattingly Bridge does have standing to maintain the suit against Comley and that its failure to be a bidder applies only to its standing with the Department of Highways. The question of whether the Highway Department should be dropped as a defendant will be decided later.

Although it was not a bidder or subcontractor in the bidding on three projects on which the J. D. Barter Construction Company offered bids, Mattingly Bridge claims it had an understanding with the Barter company to be a subcontractor on a major part of the work. (See Story 4, Back Page, Sec. 1)

This Town . . . That World

In reply to all who have asked, "Have you got straightened out after your fire?" Yes. Horizontally.

THEN IT HIT US
The patient has done better than expected. We didn't miss an issue, did right well with what we didn't have and what others had. Until last week, back in our own quarters, using our own equipment, it hit us. We printed a picture upside down on Page 1, we left a caption off the McDowell basketball team picture . . . we should, as one of the boys said, quoting Zanuck or Zukor or somebody, "have stood in bed."

BUZZARD BOUNTY
The buzzards returned to Hinckley, Ohio at 8:18 a.m. last Thursday, the same March 15 date traditionally marked for their arrival every year since the memory of man knows not when. The newspaper item about these critters recalls a yarn I heard the late "Coon" Moore tell, years ago.

It was at election time, and Mr. Moore was back home, campaigning for a relative. He was resting up from his labors at the old Valley Inn and was amusing himself and regaling his listeners with a rich store of anecdotes.

One he told was of his arrival in Elliott county to reside and of his decision to get acquainted. He noted, he said, an especially large crop of buzzards sailing about the countryside, and that gave him an idea. He passed the word around at the country store that he would pay a reward of $5 for every buzzard gizzard brought him within the next 10 days.

That did it. Money was scarce, those days, and the boys thereabouts pooled their efforts. One contributed a sheep which they killed and left on a bald point as bait. It wasn't long till the buzzards flocked in for the feast, and those interested in the reward began blasting away. Then they (See Story 2, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Hot, Wet, Cold—the Weather Poses Varied Area Problems

Two weeks of summery weather which brought flower and leaf a month ahead of schedule were broken by heavy rains last Wednesday night which threatened lowlying sections with flood, and this threatened crisis ended with snowfall Saturday and a killing frost Sunday night.

The flood damage in this county was minor, although some highways were cut by rising waters. Motor traffic on Abbott Creek was stopped by water, Saturday and Sunday, and for a time the Left Beaver Creek highway in the vicinity of McDowell was blocked. US 119 from Pikeville to Williamson, W. Va. was flooded. So was KY 1760 between US 23 and KY 32 in Lawrence county.

The flooding was widespread in the South and particularly damaging in Tennessee, Mississippi, the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama.

In this county the cold weather may have caused worse damage than high waters. Peach, plum and pear, all in bloom, may be a total loss.

In Prestonsburg, where the lowlands flood stage ranges from 35 to 38 feet, the Big Sandy crested at 1 a.m. Sunday at 34.48 feet. Pikeville and Paintsville have the same flood stage, 35 feet. At Pikeville the river crested at 8 a.m. Saturday at 34.27 feet; at Paintsville, at 9 a.m. Sunday, at 31.94.

Camp Area For Season, Lost Cause

Goble Branch Work Contract Not Let; Use, Months Away

Department of Parks' plans for a modern camping area in the Goble Branch section of Dewey Lake by camping season this year have gone awry.

"There's no way," George Barker, Jenny Wiley State Park manager, said Friday when asked if the new camping facilities will be ready as scheduled.

In fact, no contract has been awarded for making the necessary installations in the area—tent pads, water and electric facilities, and the like.

Worse, engineering as a preliminary to asking bids on the work has not been completed.

And road construction into the area is far from complete. The Department of Highways is still engaged in making a fill for the approach to the camping area and has an access road to build.

The water supply for the area will probably come from the Auxier water system, but the line is yet to be laid.

Approximately 125 camping sites have been planned for Goble Branch, and these were promised last year to be ready for use with the opening of the 1973 camping season.

Lack of such facilities at Jenny Wiley has resulted in a loss of business, Prestonsburg Mayor George P. Acher and others have claimed, urging speedy action.

Park Manager Barker indicated a temporary camping area on Stratton Branch, where water is available, may be used this season.

The only other areas available to campers in the lake area are at German and at two or three designated spots on the lake shores. At German the Corps of Engineers installed water and electricity and made various other improvements for its camping area, and its use last year was heavy. Equally heavy use is expected this year.

The number of visitors to the lake last year was 1,005,860, Dean Murray, reservoir manager, said. This was a drop of about (See Story 1, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Court Moves To Gain Entry For Span Work

Although the Floyd fiscal court has encountered difficulty in acquiring right-of-way for the proposed bridge across the Big Sandy at Emma from one property owner, the resultant delay in advertising for contractors' bids is not expected to be of more than a few weeks' duration.

A condemnation suit has been filed for approximately 2.5 acres of land owned by Ralph Leslie, appraisers are being appointed, and when their evaluation of the property is reported the fiscal court will execute bond for that amount and thus gain legal right of entry. If no settlement is reached with Leslie, the condemnation case will be heard later in circuit court.

Advertising for bids awaits only the acquisition of right-of-way. Planning is complete, the county has given permission for the old suspension span to be torn down when the new bridge is completed, and all other requirements have been met, it was said.

Acquisition of rights-of-way is at county expense. Leslie and the court are approximately $17,000 apart in the negotiations for the property. The landowner emphasized that he is interested in construction of the bridge but was not satisfied with the fiscal court's offer.

Rural Highway Commissioner said the two-lane concrete bridge will cost an estimated $400,000 and that work is planned for this year.

The club agreed with the suggestion of Mrs. D. L. Brown that pins be purchased for four past presidents who had not received them at the termination of their service.

The Prestonsburg City Council had requested that the Women's Club send a committee to a combined meeting of civic organizations. Mrs. Adams appointed Mrs. L. B. Fairchild, Mrs. Stanley Combs, Mrs. Byron Nunnery and Mrs. Paul Combs to attend this meeting.

Mrs. Adams named a nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Joe Buchanan, Mrs. Clyde Burchett, Mrs. Clyde George, Mrs. Woodrow Greenwade, and Mrs. Victor Hale. She urged all members to give serious consideration to the committee requests for service.

The Executive Board recommended that the May meeting be held April 30, in order that the club year be completed before Mrs. Adams leaves on a trip to Spain.

Mrs. Virginia Turner's Poetry Is Published Posthumously

A book of mountain poetry, titled "Cat Claws and Tree Bark," has just been published by the Pikeville College Press of the Appalachian Studies Center, Pikeville. It is a selection of poignant poems written by the late Virginia Casey Turner, wife of Virgil O. Turner, of the Pikeville College faculty and a former superintendent of Floyd county schools.

Mrs. Turner grew up in Garrard county and attended Berea College, where she was a charter member of the Writers Club. She was also instructed by the Kentucky novelist and poet, Dr. Hollis Summers, who wrote the foreword to the volume. Virginia Casey met and married Mr. Turner while he, too, was studying at Berea College. He returned to his native Floyd county schools. Mrs. Turner taught at Maytown and at Prestonsburg and, when her husband moved to Pikeville College as a professor of political science she taught in Pikeville high school.

Mrs. Turner did not publish her poetry widely, but preferred to write for herself and for those dear to her. Her poems have themes of compassion and joy and the tender feelings of agony and celebration. Dr. Summers says of the book, "It is a dreaming Mona Lisa book, often a bright telling time but it is also an assertion, a speaking out."

Some poems in the book have appeared in Poetry, Approaches, Ladies' Home Journal, Twigs, and others. But many appear here for the first time. The book, issued on March 8, has 114 pages, cloth-bound, priced at $4.50, and may be obtained from the Appalachian Studies Center of Pikeville College.

STUDENTS DEVELOP PLAN

Three years ago a professor at the University of Missouri asked his class in ceramic engineering for ideas on how to use throw-away glass bottles. Suggested one student: "Why not crush the glass and substitute it for sand and crushed stone as the aggregate in paving material?" Intrigued by the notion, the class developed a proposal, found support (from the U. S. Public Health Service and the Environmental Protection Agency), and embarked on research and development. The resulting product has been tested on university roadways and is gaining popularity as a paving material for parking lots and roads.

VERBAL ABILITY COUNTS

Stanford University economist Henry Levin recommends that school boards look for teachers with high verbal scores rather than years of experience. Levin, who conducted a study of 3,000 metropolitan teachers, found in terms of relative cost... the teachers' verbal score is ten times as efficient as teachers' experience, per dollar of expenditure, for increasing the verbal scores of white students. For black students, it is five times more efficient. Not only does Levin suggest teachers be hired on the basis of verbal ability, but suggests financial incentives be awarded to teachers with high verbal skills in order to retain them.

Poison Prevention Aim of Health Dept.

"Parents, in addition to all their other duties, need to be members of a 'poison prevention patrol' in their homes," said Floyd County Public Health Nurse, Jane Wallace. This advice came in connection with "Poison Prevention Week," set for March 18-24.

In order to make more parents aware of the potential dangers which exist in their own medicine chests and cabinets, the Floyd County Health Department released a list of some of the dangers which parents should be conscious of. These include:

1. Medicines in places where curious children can reach them.
2. Deadly insecticides and garden chemicals that are improperly stored.
3. Low cabinets containing dangerous household products.
4. Petroleum products stored in soda pop bottles that—to a child—look like something sweet to drink.
5. Old, flaking lead-based paint that, when nibbled by a child, can be poisonous.
6. Bleaches, lye and laundry room products that can make a mess as well as poison a child's system.

"If these poisons are accessible to your children, you're increasing the chances of causing illness or death in your own home," Mrs. Wallace said, and she added, "In case poisoning occurs despite your precautions, call your physician or nearest Poison Prevention Control Center at Ashland, Kentucky."

"Come Back, Next Year"— The Old Refrain

Now, we begin to wonder how long the state of Kentucky needs for the establishing of one modern camping area.

Four years ago, the Nunn administration began debating private operation of such a facility at Dewey Lake as opposed to its operation by the state. Land was acquired, but no camping except the "primitive" kind.

Last year, a few months after Governor Ford took office, a solid promise was made: the parking area will have all facilities installed, ready for the 1973 camping season.

As of last week, they hadn't finished surveying. The access road into the promised camping area has not been completed. Water isn't near the area, unless you want to count the lake. Tent "pods" aren't ready. In fact, the plans are yet to be drawn so that contractors' bids on the work can be advertised.

We are disappointed in the Department of Parks, the Department of Highways and all concerned with this gross failure to live up to a promise that was past due when it was made. Visitors from various parts of the country are going to be disappointed again, too, when they arrive at Dewey Lake and Jenny Wiley State Park and hear parks personnel apologetically confess that camping isn't ready and that if that is their dish they'll have to go to the Breaks or Buckhorn Lake or perhaps farther away even than that.

There may be extenuating circumstances. We hope there are. But that doesn't banish the disappointment. The public still is not served, the park loses visitors, the county suffers an economic loss. The old refrain again is heard: "Come back, next year."

But all this isn't anything new to us.

For several years now we have been trying to get somebody at Frankfort to consider a basic need at Dewey Lake and do something to protect it from the fate of Fishtrap—sedimentation, as a result of surface mining, which will inevitably shorten the life of the lake.

"We're keeping an eye on it," has been almost the only response to these warnings. Meanwhile, Clark Branch on Buffalo, a stream which empties into the lake, is being stripped dry; the mining is ready to move further down Buffalo; Brushy, another Johns Creek tributary which empties into the lake, has already had its face lifted. Farther upstream in Pike county, surface operations have long contributed their load of silt for deposit in the lake.

Who cares, anyhow?
Don't answer that—it might create another disappointment.

Martin County Draft Records Brought Here

The Martin county Draft Board's records have been moved to the Selective Service area office in the Post Office Building, Prestonsburg.

The pre-announced target date of June 30, 1973, for an all-volunteer armed forces will ultimately reduce the number of "draft" locations in the state from 120 to fewer than 21 area offices, according to Col. Taylor L. Davidson, Kentucky state director.

The State Director said, "Under the area concept, a local board with uncompensated members will continue to function in each county. Martin county 'Draft Board' members' duties will remain the same, mostly that of classifying registrants. Voluntary registrars will be appointed and their names with locations where registration in Inez can be accomplished will be posted in government buildings and schools."

Normally, registration can be accomplished within the home county, although the law does provide that a young man may register away from his home for convenience. He must register at the age of 18 (any time during the period of 30 days before or after his 18th birthday). Failure to register can result in prosecution in federal court. Penalties of fine and imprisonment are provided for those convicted.

Col Davidson said that, even with the closing of the Inez office, everything will go on as in the past. Any Martin county draft registrant between the ages of 18 and 26 desiring specific information from his file must obtain it from the area office in Prestonsburg. The office is open Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. through 4:30 p.m.

According to the state director, any registrant can obtain general information by calling toll free 800-372-2963.

"In the phasing down of the 'draft' to a projected standby, we are grateful that Thomas J. Hardin, Jr., chairman, Harrison H. Preece, Clay Wells, Johnny Williamson and Dan Copely have consented to continue as board members. Their 34 years of cumulative Selective Service experience will be helpful at a time that the system cannot afford to maintain an office in their county," Colonel Davidson said.

Leo A. Marcum is the adviser to registrants and in this capacity he, too, can be helpful to the young men of Martin county, Col. Davidson added.

Poisoning Threat Seen In Mushrooms

A notice received by the Floyd County Health Department from Irving Bell, assistant director, State Division of Environmental Services, alerted the department to the danger of canned mushrooms containing botulism which may be in area food stores and restaurants.

The Federal Food and Drug Administration recently confirmed the presence of clostridium botulinum, a deadly type of food poisoning, in Fred's fresh-grown sliced or whole mushrooms in four-ounce cans, and a recall has been ordered on all canned mushroom products on the market which were packed at the Fred Mushroom Products Company, of South Lebanon, Ohio.

Labels involved in the recall are Fame, Sentry, Deerwood, Dipaolo, Fred's, Niehauf's and Naaf's. The following are either imported or purchased by Fred from other manufacturers and are not subject to recall: Fred's, whole mushrooms, 4 and 8 oz., button mushrooms, 2, 4, and 8 oz., and sliced whole mushrooms in glass, 2 1/2-ounce; Fame, button mushrooms, 4-oz., and Deerwood, button mushrooms, 4-ounce.

The recall does not include frozen or fresh mushrooms, mushrooms in glass jars or imported mushrooms.

State Health Dept. Gives Preventable Disease Statistics

Kentucky's death rates from preventable diseases, such as tuberculosis, decreased significantly—nearly 100 per cent—from 1911-1971.

That's what the 1971 Kentucky Vital Statistics report shows. And Bill Mackey, director of the State Department of Health's Division of Research, Planning and Statistics, says that's a good sign. "It's an indication that our methods of preventing diseases with known causes are working," he says.

Unfortunately, rates of death from diseases such as cancer, for which medical authorities have not found methods of prevention, have risen consistently within the same 60-year period.

"We know now that about one-fourth of the deaths from cancer could be prevented by early detection and treatment," says C. Hernandez, M.D., Deputy Commissioner of Medical Programs. Cervical cancer deaths, for example, are nearly 100 per cent preventable if the disease is found and treated early. It is for that reason that women now are being offered cervical cancer screening—Pap smear tests—through most of the local health departments in Kentucky, he says.

The 60-year health figures are presented in a special "health picture" in the most recent edition of the vital statistics report prepared by the State Department of Health's Offices of Biostatistics and Vital Statistics. Such reports have been published annually since 1911 as the state's permanent public record of selected information on deaths, births, stillbirths, marriages, divorces and cases of reportable diseases occurring in Kentucky or to Kentucky residents. Because time is needed to weed out duplicate certificates as well as for publication production, the report is often distributed a little more than one year after the date it carries. Provisional vital statistics, showing only trends for 1972, will be available in June.

The 1971 report also shows:

- Live birth rate and death rate in Kentucky for 1971 were the same as in 1970—18.7 live births per 1,000 population and 10.3 deaths per 1,000 respectively. The infant death rate (death from birth to one year of age) in Kentucky was 18.9 per 1,000 live births in 1971 and 18.7 in 1972. "This is the lowest infant death rate among all the southeastern states," says Jorge Deju, M.D., director of the Division of Maternal and Child Health.
- Heart disease, the leading killer in the state and the nation, accounted for nearly 40 per cent of all Kentuckians' deaths in 1971. Cancer ranks second, stroke third, accidents fourth, influenza and pneumonia fifth.
- Suicide, which entered Kentucky's top 10 killer list in 10th place in 1970, exchanged ranks with emphysema, which had been ninth, in 1971.
- Seventeen maternal deaths were recorded in 1970, 16 in 1971.
- Infant deaths decreased from 19.6 to 18.9 per 1,000 live births.
- Stillbirths increased slightly both in number and rate, from 791 in 1970 to 816 in 1971, an increase of .2 per 1,000 total births. (A stillbirth is any product of conception which shows no sign of life after delivery. Current Kentucky State Board of Health regulations require the registration of all stillbirths of 20 or more weeks gestation.)
- Deaths from venereal disease numbered only five in 1971, but reported cases of both syphilis and gonorrhea soared. Syphilis—from 953 reported cases in 1970 to 1,203 in 1971. Gonorrhea—4,660 reported cases in 1970, 6,767 in 1971.
- Kentucky marriages numbered 35,984 in 1971, divorces 11,141.

COURT UPHOLDS DRESS CODE

The Fleming County Board of Education's dress and grooming code has been upheld in a U. S. District Court. The judge dismissed the action brought by a youth and his parents against the board which had suspended him from school because he refused to shave. The boy had contended his constitutional rights were abridged and that he had the right to continue to wear a beard irrespective of the provisions of the dress code.

RECOMMEND DRUG PROGRAM

Six persons from the Daviess county school system recently attended a 10-day seminar at the Nation Drug Abuse Training Center in Washington, D. C. and made recommendations to the local board. The group suggested a library facility for use in drug education; a special team of instructors with training in connection with drug abuse; and inclusion of teachers, school administrators and parents in a drug awareness program for the school district.

JOY TERRY MESSER

Red Cross Month, 1973

By the President of the United States of America

A Proclamation

Each year, in the spirit of good neighborliness, millions of Americans pool their resources and efforts under the Red Cross banner to help others in distress or need.

The services of the Red Cross assist many kinds of people. They help provide lifesaving blood for the ill and injured; help restore the shattered lives of disaster victims; help our servicemen, veterans, and their families in periods of emergency; and help save lives and lessen suffering through training in first aid, water safety, and simple nursing skills.

While these could be called the basic purposes of the Red Cross, the organization also seeks out new areas of concern in American life. The Red Cross has helped the elderly to obtain government food assistance, the veteran to readjust to civilian life, the drug abuser to seek help, the migrant worker to better his living standards, and the student to obtain tutoring assistance.

Although the Red Cross receives the cooperation of many Federal, State, and local agencies, it derives its major financial support from the voluntary contributions of the American people. During the past year the Red Cross has been operating under an especially heavy financial burden because of outlays for disaster relief following the flood in Rapid City, South Dakota, and the Hurricane Agnes tragedy. I urge every American to help ensure that the Red Cross has the funds and volunteer manpower to fulfill its responsibilities during the year ahead. Helping the Red Cross—the Good Neighbor—continue its wide range of assistance programs is one way in which each of us can help our communities and our country.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America and Honorary Chairman of the American National Red Cross, do hereby designate March 1973 as Red Cross Month, a month when every citizen is asked to join, serve, and contribute.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this third day of March, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-three, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-seventh.

Lexington To Cincinnati At 8 MPH

By SUE WELLES

Frankfort, Ky.—By foot, horse, train or plane, Kentuckians have always managed to get where they were going.

At times, however, "the going" wasn't quite as convenient as we find it today. In an age of supersonic jets and intercontinental flights within hours, it's sometimes hard to imagine travel as it was years ago.

According to J. Winston Coleman in his book, "Stagecoach Days in the Bluegrass," the first stagecoach line in Kentucky was opened at Lexington in August, 1803. The coach left Lexington at 4:00 a.m. for Winchester, Mt. Sterling and its final destination at Olympian Springs in Montgomery County—a 47 mile journey that the owner bragged could be made in one day.

Early roads were made from laying logs across the road and covering them with soil creating what they called a "corduroy road." This worked fine until bad weather came.

Today, we central Kentuckians think nothing of driving up to Cincinnati for the day but in the early 1900's a stagecoach trip from Lexington to Cincinnati cost 10 cents a mile and usually took two days traveling at eight miles per hour.

At the Frankfort Senior Citizens Center, there are many who have fond memories of travel "back then" and are eager to share them.

"I remember that it took the biggest part of the day just to make 25 miles in the wagon," reminisces one Senior Citizen. "It took so long to get anywhere, we usually stayed home."

"In the summer we'd take excursion trains to scenic places in the state," remembers another. "It was an all-day trip from Frankfort to Mammoth Cave by train, but it sure was fun!"

Surreys were popular in the early part of the twentieth century. Some were very fancy with the traditional "fringe on top."

"We just lived a block from the grocery store so we never needed any transportation," explains the oldest member in the Frankfort Club. "My husband would rent a surrey or a wagon sometimes and we'd enjoy a Sunday ride. For the most part, though, if we wanted to go anywhere, we walked."

A Senior Citizen remembers the emergence of the famed Model-T! "That was high style back then. Only the wealthy could afford such a luxury. After all, a Ford Roadster cost right around $300 and that was a lot of money!"

Although we've come a long way in the area of transportation and the relative convenience of today's travel cannot be denied, there seemed to be a certain amount of nostalgia among those interviewed reflecting on those "good old days."

"There's one thing the couples of today are missing out on," says one woman with a mischievous smile on her face. "When we'd go out dating with the horse and buggy on a moonlit night, my date would tie the reins around the buggy whip—the horse knew the way home!"

Overweight Trucks Barred By Court

HAZARD, Ky., March 14—A temporary injunction was issued last week barring 15 defendants from operating overweight coal trucks on nine highways in Perry county and on any highway in the state.

The injunction was issued at the close of a three-hour hearing before Perry Circuit Judge Don A. Ward in a suit brought by state Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock and two state departments.

Ward said only 15 defendants were placed under injunction Tuesday because of failure by local officials to serve summonses and process papers on the remainder.

COAL LAWYERS TO MEET

The Coal Lawyers Conference, which was reinstated last year, will meet Oct. 26-27 at the Broadmoor in Colorado Springs, Colo. Selection of the meeting site was prompted by the fast-moving coal developments in the West.

As in the past, the Conference is open to lawyers representing coal interests, whether they are house counsel or retained. Lawyers who have not yet received a notice of the meeting and wish further details should contact Robert F. Stauffer, NCA general counsel.

Whisman Sees a 'Dry Spell' Ahead in Federal Spending

Predicting a "dry spell" in federal spending in the area, Kentucky representative of the Appalachian Regional Commission, John Whisman, told a large gathering at May Lodge Monday night that what is most needed for the future progress of Eastern Kentucky as well as the Appalachian region as a whole is what he termed a "second alternative" in community partnership.

Speaking at a dinner meeting of the Big Sandy Area Development Council, Whisman confirmed the fears of civic leaders and area citizens that massive cuts in existing Appalachian programs are inevitable and told the group that for a time, at least, "you're going to get nothing" in the way of large scale federal spending in the area.

His own organization, the ARC, he said, is scheduled to be discontinued in two years, but he expressed the belief that growing federal funds in that period of time would allow the Commission's continuation. This year's budget, he said would, be slightly higher than in the Commission's previous seven years of existence.

Commenting on President Nixon's proposed budget cuts, Whisman said he hopes that the withholding of funds for programs in the mountains doesn't represent a first step in the dismantling of the war on poverty. He told the group he would consider it tragic if the United States gives up its war on poverty "just because the first campaign wasn't successful."

Reasons given by Whisman for the continued funding of ARC while other programs have been cancelled were, first, what he referred to as the political "clout of the Commission, or the strong backing that it enjoys in Washington and elsewhere. In addition, he said, the Commission has delivered its money on projects better than anyone else and in that performance has gone along with the President's philosophy to return decision making power to the states and local government.

Whisman said that through the predicted "dry spell" revenue sharing funds would comprise most of what Appalachian communities would have to work with, and he expressed the opinion that the present plan of revenue sharing would prove grossly inadequate for any significant progress in the Big Sandy and other areas. "It won't work," Whisman told the group.

Revenue sharing, commented Whisman, gives communities "a little too much of nothing." After funds are divided among the various communities of an area, he explained, no one community is left with enough to achieve any significant or long-term projects. He said the Appalachian Region needs to progress to the point where it can support its own welfare programs, educate its own children and generally take care of its own problems. But with revenue sharing funds spread so thinly over such a vast number of communities, Whisman said these objectives could never come about.

The solution to this dilemma is what Whisman referred to as the "second alternative," a plan which would entail what he called a "regional system of partnership decision" in which the communities in an area such as the Big Sandy valley would, in a sense, pool their resources and decide in which specific areas the funds were most needed. Whisman called this type of fund allotment "management by objective" and said that mountain communities must learn to cooperate and develop the ability to concentrate funds where they are most needed.

He said priorities would have to be agreed upon and decisions reached to determine which towns should receive funds first and how much should be allotted. By this method, some communities would necessarily have to "wait their turn" for funds but he stressed that improvements in any mountain community mean, first, improvement to the area as a whole.

Whisman offered this plan to ease the period of difficulty which, according to him, lies ahead for the people of the Big Sandy valley and the Appalachians as a whole—people who, he says, have had "more potential for development than prospects."

Building a New Home? Make Sure it's Heated Electrically.

If you're planning to use clean electric heat in your new home, follow these hints for safe, comfortable and economic operation.

- SIZE. Choose a heating unit that will adequately take care of your family's needs. Not too large, but not too small.
- INSULATION. Did you know electric heating costs for a fully insulated home can be as much as 55 percent lower than a home without insulation?
- CAULKING. Caulk around windows and door frames. Keep the cold air outside and the warm air in.
- THERMOSTATS. Have yours checked for proper operation. Turn off in unused rooms and close doors.

Electricity is too important to waste. Contact your Rural Electric system for money saving, electric efficiency hints.

After a half a dozen or so of the scavengers had been opened in vain by the hunters somebody ambled by to inquire what in tunket they were doing. Told of the reward offered, the newcomer almost collapsed with laughter and finally recovered enough to tell them, "You derned fools, don't you know that a buzzard ain't got no gizzard?"

"I got acquainted, all right," Coon remarked, "but I was careful to delay meetin' any of those fellows for a week or so till they had cooled down a bit."

I am encouraged. This may have come along in time.

Five Jefferson county service station operators lost their state permits to conduct motor vehicle inspections during February, according to a report released this week by the Public Safety Department. One station was also put on probation for the remainder of 1973.

22,000 from the preceding year. Flood conditions continuing into May last year and wind damage to the Terry boat dock may account for the loss, Mr. Murray said.

On the encouraging side at Dewey is work being done by the Department of Parks at the Jenny Wiley boat dock and by the Corps of Engineers on a recreation area, immediately below the dam. Concrete pilings have been poured to provide docking facilities along the shoreline for 50 boats at Jenny Wiley boat dock. The lake has been drawn down an additional 18 inches for this work and for improvements being made at Terry boat dock, but heavy rains brought the lake back up to winter pool by Friday morning.

Reservoir Manager Murray said that unless he has instructions to the contrary from the Huntington district office, Corps of Engineers, the water will continue to be held until the lake reaches its summer conservation pool, which is five feet higher than the winter stage. Normally, impoundment of this additional five feet of water begins around April 1.

The Corps of Engineers last year completed an access road into its recreation area, below the dam, and made various other improvements for the public benefit. Playground equipment for children already has been installed. A contract is expected to be awarded soon for the landscaping of approximately 10 acres downstream from the new access road. This part of the overall recreation complex will have basketball goals, a ball field and about 35 picnic tables.

Coming Events Told At Jr. Club Meeting

The regular meeting of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club was held March 15 at the Floyd County Library. The president, Mrs. C. R. Rice, presided, and the devotional was presented by Mrs. John Sammons.

Mrs. Rice made the following announcements: The 7th district contests will be held at Drift, Mar. 31, with registration from 9-10 and judging beginning at 10 o'clock; the KFWC convention, from May 14-16 at the Galt House in Louisville; a KFWC Conservation Seminar to be held at the Frankfort Sports Center, April 3; the Miss Morehead Pageant, April 12. She also reminded members of the GFWC Bicentennial Plates sale.

Mrs. John Sammons, Conservation chairman, announced that her department will be responsible for the April meeting which will feature Sgt. Hutchinson, of the Kentucky State Police, with a program on "Drugs." She asked clubwomen to bring recycled items to the April meeting for display and she briefly presented some items made by her department members. Mrs. Sammons announced that little bags had been ordered, that clean-up campaign of Archer Park was being planned, and members are planning to attend a Kiwanis meeting, possibly to help with a litter campaign in which that organization is involved. A pamphlet, entitled "How to Save on Your Electric Bill," was distributed.

It was announced that the Education Department chairman, Mrs. Ronald Johnson, had received two library cards for clubwomen. Plans for a tea honoring county librarians—the club's way of celebrating National Library Week—were also presented to the membership.

Mrs. Keith Harrison, Public Affairs chairman, spoke briefly on a discussion held by the department on the "Equal Rights Amendment" and announced plans for a public affairs meeting during the following week.

A report was given by the CIP Chairman, Mrs. Aubrey Onkst, on the progress of the club's project with high school age volunteers at the Highlands Regional Medical Center. She also reported that a canvassing of high schools in the area to find volunteers is being planned.

Special Education chairman, Mrs. David P. Allen, told clubwomen of materials which had been ordered for the special education class at Prestonsburg elementary. She also enlisted volunteers to aid the class. These volunteers will be supervising play periods, and field trips, teaching crafts, participating in story hours, showing vacation films and home movies, making room brighteners, and giving parties on special occasions. The most unusual part of the volunteer projects is the "Adopt a Child" segment in which clubwomen choose a child to which they would send card and do special things for throughout the remainder of the school year.

Two new members, Mrs. Dale McKinney and Mrs. Fred Meece, were received, Mrs. Dick Stai, Heart Fund chairman, reported on results of the county drive. She also announced that the club had joined the National Tennessee Walking Horse Association which is devoted to protecting horse show exhibitors.

During the new business session, the club voted to donate $25 to the American Red Cross and $15 to KFWC for the purpose of securing a Safety speaker for the convention, and approved plans for improving the horse show ring at Archer Park. The Nominating committee was selected.

These committee members are Mrs. David P. Allen, chairman, Mrs. John Christian, Mrs. Harold Cooley, Mrs. Roger Jurich and Mrs. Jack Stumbo. A committee was appointed to work with the Constitution and By-Laws committee chairman, Mrs. Bruce Spradlin, on possible revisions of by-laws. It was also voted by the membership to hold an auction at the next meeting and money to be used for the NARC project.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Jess Stover, Chairman; Mrs. James McConnell, Mrs. Cloyd Johnson, Mrs. Ted Hicks, and Mrs. Aubrey Onkst.

Floyd Clinics Slated

Two Outpost Clinics will be conducted the last week in March it was announced by the Floyd County Health Department. The first of these will be held March 26 in the Keathley Food Market, at the mouth of Toler Creek from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The second, a Pap Smear Clinic, will be conducted Wednesday, March 28, at the Floyd County Health Department from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

Area Administrator For Social Services

Sara Honn was recently named area administrator for social service programs in the Big Sandy Area Development District (ADD) by state Economic Security Commissioner Gail S. Huecker.

The commissioner announced the appointment as part of what she terms "the second step" in the department's internal reorganization.

Mrs. Honn sees the area administrator as a communication link between the state and local social service offices. "It is an attempt to improve lines of communication in hopes that we, as a team of administrators, can relate problems peculiar to our area, refer them to central office and come to solutions on a more timely basis."

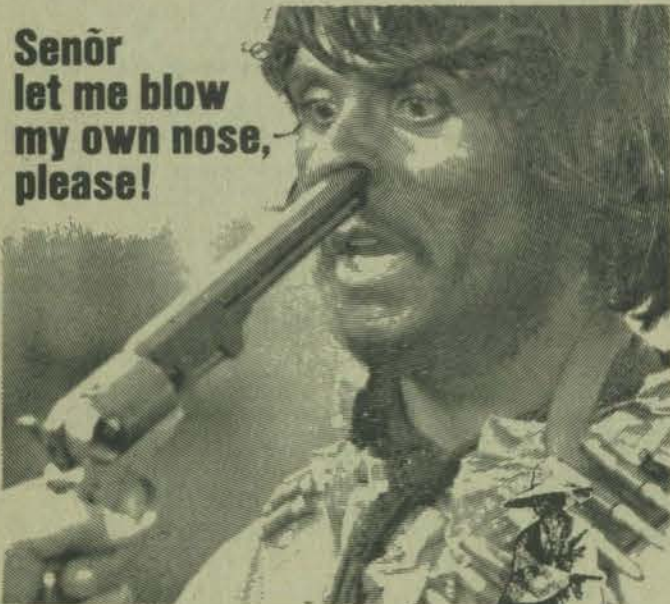

Mrs. Honn, to be headquartered in Jackson after April 1, will work closely with public assistance offices in Floyd, Martin, Pike and Magoffin counties.

"The area administrator concept will help bring the best possible social service delivery to the people of eastern Kentucky," she said. A native of Jackson, Mrs. Honn received her masters of social work from Tulane University in New Orleans. She has been with the department since October, 1956 and employed as an eligibility worker, senior field representative and most recently as an area program analyst.

IF YOU REALLY WANT TO SAVE MONEY!

To Save Broken Gas Lines

The message Janie West is holding is the one Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc., and Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation are delivering to contractors, coal stripping operators and others who move earth. It's part of the companies' new "Call Before You Dig" campaign which asks the earthmovers to call the gas companies to learn whether there are any pipelines in their excavation area. The object is to prevent accidental pipeline ruptures that could endanger a bulldozer operator and cause an outage. About 95 per cent of the companies' outages are caused by bulldozer and other heavy equipment operators.

PUPIL PERFORMANCE INCREASES

A performance contracting project conducted in two elementary schools in Dade county, Florida, is reported to have produced achievement gains twice the national norm. In the other school, 180 students gained 11.3 months in reading and 7 months in math.

BOARD FILES SUIT

A condemnation suit seeking to acquire a site for a proposed school building has been filed on behalf of the Warren County School Board. By filing suit, the board is attempting to gain what it considers the best site for the location of a $1 million school. The board alleges the owner of the property has asked too much for the land, and negotiations to transfer the property have failed.

IN APPRECIATION

We, the members of the Auxier Volunteer Fire Department, wish to thank everyone who in any way helped to make our recent chicken and dumpling dinner a success. Thanks seems so inadequate to say what your help and contributions have meant now and in our past efforts to raise money. Especially do we thank the people of the Prestonsburg area for their support—those who bought tickets and those who gave generous contributions. Also, thanks to James Paul Connors who solicited money and did a great job delivering plates. Maybe with future help and perseverance we will realize our dream of an active, fighting fire department.

We will look forward to your continued support in the future. Again, a great, big thanks to everyone. You are all REAL important to us.

Auxier Volunteer Fire Dept.

BANKING INTEREST NO BAR

Attorney General Ed Hancock has opined a person cannot be barred from serving on a school board because the board deposits money in a bank where the member is an officer, director, or stockholder. In conformance with his opinion, the attorney general withdrew opinions released in 1964, 1965, and 1972 which stated it was unlawful for a school board member to have an interest in a bank where school funds were deposited.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Model Project For Handicapped Asked by ROPES

IN APPRECIATION

Editor, The Times:

My teen-age daughter became ill while attending the recent district basketball tournament at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse, and I would like to express my thanks and gratitude to the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad for its prompt aid and assistance to her. We are indeed fortunate to have such a fine group of people serving without benefit of personal financial remuneration in our midst. They do a great job, for which I extend my thanks, and thanks also to others in attendance for their help and solicitude.

MRS. DONALD LAYNE
Ivel, Kentucky

Region 11 of the Regional Organization for Providing Educational Services (ROPES) has been invited by the state Department of Education to submit a formal application for a model demonstration project for handicapped children in fiscal year 1974.

The proposed undertaking, known as "Project Lead," would provide a supervisor to work with special education teachers and aides who would serve 477 identified handicapped children in this region.

The project was submitted to the Division of Special Education, Department of Education at Frankfort, and reviewed last month. Reo Johns, director of ROPES Region 11, and Shirley Beard, administrative assistant, will meet April 5 to review regulations for funding of the project.

The official proposal is expected to be approved or rejected by April with program implementation expected by the start of the 1974 fiscal year, July 1.

If approved, a supervisor will be placed on the ROPES staff to work with teachers, principals, counselors, parents and other agencies to expand and improve existing programs for handicapped children.

The supervisor would also be responsible for using available funds and human resources to improve the exceptional children program and upgrade handicapped teacher training programs.

In order for any local education agency to get Title VI funds, it must have a minimum of 20 teachers working with handicapped students. No local district has the minimum, it was said.

Work on the Cross-Florida canal was about one-third completed when Pres. Nixon halted construction for ecological reasons.

A new $27-million airport, capable of handling two million passengers a year, has been opened at Brasilia, Brazil.

Ford Says Coal Production Up But Strip Mining Shows Decrease

Gov. Wendell H. Ford said recently that the year 1972 saw an increase in overall coal production in Kentucky over 1971, but that there was a marked decrease in strip mine operations as well as tonnage from surface mining.

Ford said final figures from the Department of Mines and Minerals illustrate "a downward trend" in surface operations, and "an upward trend" in tonnage from underground mining.

Kentucky produced 120,271,247 tons of coal during 1972, compared to 119,167,582 tons the previous year.

Last year there were 729 surface mining operations, 113 fewer than in 1971. Surface tonnage was also down—63,739,385 tons in 1972, and 66,469,795 tons in 1971.

In contrast, while there were 410 less underground mines operating in Kentucky, deep production showed a gain of 3,834,075 tons.

"These facts prove the inaccuracy of those who say, and have written, that strip mining is increasing in Kentucky," Ford said. "They also indicate a very healthy coal economy for our state."

Mines and Minerals Commissioner H. N. Kirkpatrick reported that the 1972 average mining employment increased from the 1971 figure of 31,356 to 32,245. Of the 889 increase, all but 14 represented underground employment.

The 1971 employment figure for underground mining was 21,242 while surface mining employment was 10,114. The 1972 underground employment total was 22,117 while surface mining was 10,128.

In the Martin district the number of surface mines last year was 140, two more than in 1971, but tonnage production was down from 8,669,790 in 1971 to 6,288,458 last year. The number of underground mines in the county last year was 220 and that was 113 fewer than a year earlier. But underground mine production was 6,288,458 tons last year, as compared to 4,990,456 tons in 1971.

(The Martin district serves all of Floyd, Magoffin, Martin, Johnson, Morgan, Elliott, Lawrence, Boyd, Carter and Greenup counties and parts of Knott and Breathitt.)

In the Pikeville district according to the governor's figures, the number of surface mines increased by four, from 108 to 112 in 1972, but their production dropped from 3,759,191 tons in 1971 to 3,578,221 tons last year. Meanwhile in this district, the number of underground operations dropped from 408 in 1971 to 329 in 1972, and last year's underground tonnage was down to 13,642,844 from the 13,979,536 tons of the preceding year.

State Police Probe 275 Area Accidents, 28 in This County

Although state troopers in the area served by State Police Post 9, Pikeville, investigated 275 accidents in which 143 persons were injured during January and February, only two fatalities were recorded, and both of these were in Pike county. Twenty-eight of the accidents were in Floyd county.

Seventy-one were arrested on drunk driving charges in the five-county area, with Floyd having 14 of these, Magoffin 25, Pike 23, Martin 4 and Johnson 5.

Troopers made 49 criminal investigations, arrested 37 on criminal charges and recovered one stolen auto. Twelve of these investigations were made in Floyd, with eight arrests.

Gov. Wendell Ford has named Ron Johnson as Commissioner of the Department of Public Safety. A former newspaperman, Johnson has served as an administrative aide to the governor for the past 15 months. He succeeds acting-commissioner William O. Newman.

Golden Wedding Honorees

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Saunders, former residents of Floyd county, were guests of honor during open house Sunday, March 4, with 259 guests at the Willard junior high school, Willard, Ohio.

Their children hosted the celebration of their 50th wedding anniversary. They were united in marriage, March 2, 1923, by the late Jonathan Osborne, Methodist minister of the Horn Chapel Methodist Church, on the Auxier road, near here.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders are the parents of four children, Mrs. Phil Vanderpool, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, Mrs. Harold Holmes, of West Lafayette, Ohio, Charles Saunders, Mansfield, Ohio, and Mrs. Ogil Reed, of Plymouth, Ohio. They have 19 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders make their winter home in Florida since his retirement from the B. and O. Railroad in 1969.

Their daughter Nell and Rev. Harold Holmes also celebrated their 25th anniversary at the same time. Rev. Holmes has been an ordained minister in the Church of The Nazarene for 20 years and is the pastor of the Church of the Nazarene at West Lafayette, Ohio. Mrs. Holmes is employed at Cochocton Memorial Hospital.

The Governor's Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee has endorsed a uniform accident reporting form for Kentucky, but rejected a mandatory seat belt law for the Commonwealth.

About 20 percent or 5.4 million of the 23 million members of unions and employee bargaining associations in the United States were women as of 1970. Insurance agents holding only a vehicle insurance license cannot write any other line of insurance according to Kentucky's code.

A Man of the Mountains

By GEORGES S. MOORE
(In The Elliott County News)

Senator Douglas Hays of McDowell was my closest neighbor for more than twenty-five years. His full name was Larry Douglas Hays but they called him Sawloggin' Doug, Allan Trout, in a two page feature article about him in the Courier Journal said: "Tough timber-slashing Doug Hays is a big hearted cuss." In the interesting story that followed he gave an account of Doug's sawloggin' activities from 1901 down to 1950.

"He said that he had cut over six thousand acres of virgin timber in six mountain counties in Eastern Kentucky. He reached his high point in the loggin' business in 1915. It was at this time that he built his logging camp on Mill Creek in Knott County. It consisted of a bunkhouse for single men, a kitchen and a dining shed. He built stalls for eight mules and 26 oxen. It was here that A. O. Stanley, the successful candidate for governor of Kentucky, made a visit to Doug's shanty and spent the night with him. He arrived on horseback from Hazard. He ate the same food as the sawloggers and slept in one of their bunks. The next morning Doug replenished his saddlebags with an ample supply of drinking liquor and sent him on his way to Prestonsburg on a mule. It was on this mule that a photograph was taken of Stanley and widely circulated throughout the state."

Mr. Trout closes his account of Doug's timber-slashing activities with these words as only he could write them: "But age has slowed Doug Hays down at last. He walks through the valley of falling lights, and the mountains around him stand stripped of the hardwood giants that once were their glory and strength."

Since the senator was not only my nearest neighbor but the best personal friend I have had over the years, I would like to tell something about him that has not yet appeared in print.

During his second term as state senator another neighbor, Milton Stumbo, represented Floyd County in the General Assembly. He and Doug traveled to and from Frankfort together. It was a cold wintry Sunday and snow began to fall at noon. They left for Frankfort early before the snow blanketed the highway.

All went well till they rounded the curve in the little town of Frenchburg in Menifee County. After they had passed through the town, they were surprised to hear the siren from a police car blowing for them to pull over to the curb. It was a state trooper who told them he was placing them under arrest for speeding. He took them before the county judge.

The judge turned to the trooper and asked what the charges were. The trooper replied that they were making fifty miles an hour in a twenty five mile speed zone. The judge said that the fine would be $21.00. He began to give them a lecture on observing the law. Before the judge had spoken a half dozen words the senator stopped him: "Hold it judge and let me talk. In the first place we broke no law; we don't break the laws, we make them. I am a senator and my friend is a representative. We represent Floyd County in the General Assembly in Frankfort. "If you know any law at all—which I doubt—you must know that the Constitution of Kentucky says that no member of the legislature can be arrested on his way to and from the legislature while it is in session."

As they continued to argue back and forth, a senator from the judge's district came into the room. He spoke to Doug and asked what the trouble was. He told the judge that Senator Hays was right and that he had better dismiss the charges. He did so. Doug told him that he was going to sue Menifee County for a million dollars. The judge replied that Menifee County was not worth a million dollars. Doug said, "I'll sell this WPA courthouse right out from under you." After he had finished with the judge, he turned to the state trooper.

He said, "Now, son, if you have got a suitcase you had better start packing it for just as soon as I get to Frankfort I am going straight to the governor and have you fired."

Doug was elected Democrat caucus chairman of the senate for two successive terms. To show their esteem for a fellow member, the senators presented him with a watch with a solid gold hunting case. It may be seen today on display in the museum in the old capitol building at Frankfort. It has been said, and I agree, that Doug Hays could call more people by their first names than any man in Eastern Kentucky.

During the early fifties the assistant principal of the McDowell School and I spent a week in Frankfort representing the Floyd County Board of Education at a citizenship conference conducted by Columbia University. We took a straw poll of the restaurants in Frankfort. Without exception the proprietor in each place said that the senator was a special friend of his. We were staying at the Southern Hotel and I asked the headwaiter, John, if he knew Doug Hays. He said, "I guess I know him better than anyone in Frankfort. When he came in here for breakfast, a waiter would hand him a menu. He would throw it aside and call for me. He would always say, "John go in there and have them fix my breakfast. I always knew what to have fixed for him."

During Governor Chandler's second term there was much controversy over the budget. Chandler, as had all governors before him, had promised no new taxes. Several senators, including Senator Hays, had voiced strong opposition. As it neared the voting stage, it looked as though Doug's vote would be the deciding factor. The superintendents were alarmed. It would be disastrous for the schools if the budget was defeated. I accompanied the superintendent and the assistant superintendent from Floyd County to Frankfort to Frankfort to urge Doug to vote for it.

Three of us went to his room at the Capitol Hotel and talked with him about the matter. He would not commit himself and gave us no assurance that he would vote for the budget. The following morning we visited the state superintendent, Dr. Robert Martin, and told him of our conference with the senator. He suggested that I go alone and urge him to vote with the school people.

He was still in bed when I went to his room. I never mentioned his voting for the budget but instead I asked if there was any message he wished to send his family when I returned home. As I turned to leave he said, "Wait a minute. I don't mind telling you I am going to vote for the budget but don't you tell anybody as I intend to hold their feet to the fire until the last minute." I won't tell a soul," I lied as I hurried back to deliver the good news.

REWARD

A reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons, male or female, who stole the American Flag from my front porch.
Thank God, they left the Christian Flag.
Does anyone have an American flag to loan me until I get another? I'm still 100 percent Christian, American and Cherokee Indian—and proud as I can be of all three.

Clark's First Book Fair a Success

Children peruse books at Clark school during recent book fair.

The Clark elementary school has just completed its first book fair for children. Approximately 400 titles, ranging from pre-school to high school levels, were on display in the library for children to explore, and to make their own selections.

Mrs. Louise Howard, librarian, said that at least 300 students purchased approximately 670 books, and 111 books were also added to the library for school use by all students.

The most popular of the books displayed were those which consisted of moving activities which the child could operate on the pages, but the most popular books purchased were ghost stories for middle and upper grade children, and the old favorite fairy tales for the younger children. Books about sports were also favorites. Books purchased should arrive in about three weeks, she said.

Assisting Mrs. Howard with the fair were Pauline Hicks, the Right to Read coordinator at the school, and volunteer P. T. A. members, Carol Rice, Marlene Coleman and Alma Dillon.

One of the most encouraging aspects of the fair according to John K. Pitts, school principal, was the fact that many parents became involved with their children in making book selections. Several books were purchased by parents to be read aloud to their children who are still too young to attend school.

"This is the type of community support and attitude we are trying to build, and we hope it continues," Mr. Pitts said.

As a follow-up on the book fair, the school hopes to initiate the "Reading is Fundamental" program to complement the Right to Read activities now in progress.

This is a program of community involvement, and provides an opportunity for service clubs, unions, or fraternal organizations of the area to become involved in an educational project of national scope. The general idea of the project is to give free books to children rather than have them make purchase.

Mr. Pitts said he or another school staff member will be glad to explain the program to any organization that expresses interest in assisting. Information may also be obtained by visiting or calling the school.

Hammond Discusses "Crime Prevention"

Jim Hammond, Prestonsburg attorney and administrative trustee for the 31st Judicial District Public Defender Corporation, appeared as guest-speaker at the Feb. 19 meeting of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club. His subject was "Crime Prevention."

Mr. Hammond said that the rate of crime in Floyd County is increasing. He stressed the point that public policies must be made to protect both sides of the crime. He explained that the Big Sandy Crime Commission Council, which is composed of public citizens, with funds provided by the state. Mr. Hammond said it is important to attempt to keep the crime from happening and know what to do if the crime is committed.

During the business session following the program, Mrs. S. M. Martin, club president, read a letter concerning the "Heritage" plates to be sold by women's clubs across the nation. Mrs. Pat Duff will be in charge of sales for the Wayland club.

A nominating committee for club officers for the coming year was selected as follows: Mrs. Bill Castle, Mrs. Katherine Hughes, Mrs. Nancy Tackett, Mrs. Marie Mullins, and Mrs. Joyce Stevens.

As their annual Valentine gift, clubmembers baked and sent 12 dozen cupcakes to the Golden Rest Home, Lackey.

Members from the Wayland Club will be guests of the Wheelwright Woman's Club at a dinner in March.

The February meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Dora Reed, Wayland, with Mrs. Olga Trusty as program leader.

Those present were Mrs. Bobby Joe Castle, Mrs. Earl Castle, Mrs. Felix Coburn, Mrs. Birchell Duff, Mrs. Arville Duff, Mrs. Don Hughes, Mrs. Charles Hughes, Mrs. S. M. Martin, Mrs. Eugene Mullins, Mrs. John Reed, Mrs. Rudolph Spencer, Mrs. J. T. Spillman, Mrs. Jack Stevens, Mrs. Milton Trusty, and Mrs. Floyd Tackett, members, and Mr. Hammond, guest.

Coal Trucks Denied Appeal

Frankfort, Ky. (AP)—Even before opponents could give their side of the case, the Court of Appeals last Friday dismissed a motion seeking to allow overweight coal trucks to resume operation in Pulaski county.

The high court dismissed the motion brought by John Mandt, attorney for the coal haulers, seeking to dissolve a Pulaski circuit court injunction barring the overweight trucks from three roads in the county.

"All your clients have been enjoined from doing in this case is the breaking of the law, isn't it?" Chief Justice John Palmore asked Mandt.

"The only reason your clients could have for dissolving this injunction is that they intend to violate the law," Palmore continued. "That issue is so clear to this court that you are just wasting our time."

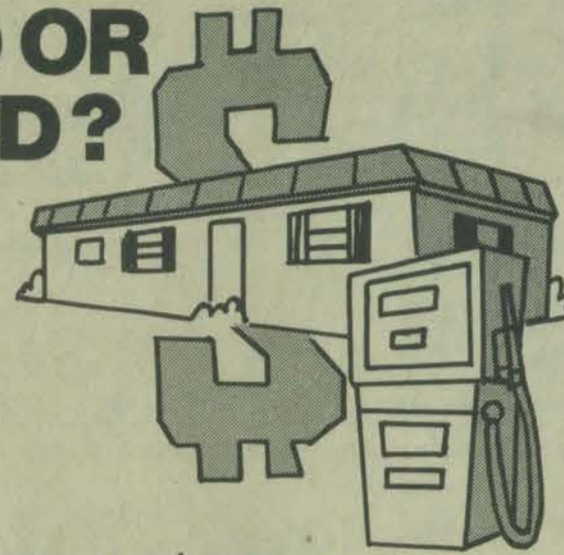

The court then dismissed Mandt's motion even before opposing arguments could be made by Asst. Atty. Gen. David Short, who had obtained the injunction for the State Highway and Motor Transportation Departments.

Mandt had claimed that complying with the weight limits set for the three roads in question—U. S. 27, Ky. 80 and Ky. 1675—would put the coal haulers out of business.

The same big trucks have been using those roads for 15 years, Mandt argued and it would make little difference to allow the trucks to continue to operate until the case comes to trial on its merits.

Democratic Women To Give Scholarship

The Floyd County Democratic Woman's Club met March 14 at May Lodge. Mrs. Roland Burchett, president presided over the business meeting. After the secretary and treasurer's report, Mrs. Burchett read the list of committees for the new year.

The scholarship committee reported that it will be contacting the high schools again this year to find a worthy student interested in this scholarship. Student recipients must be registered Democrats. Mrs. Tom G. Dingus was re-appointed as associate director of the Seventh district, and Mrs. Cliff Latta was appointed co-chairman of the Legislative committee on the board of the State Democratic Woman's Club by Ann Stephenson Bock. Next board meeting was set for April 14 in Frankfort. The next meeting of the Floyd County Democratic Women's Club will be held April 11 at May Lodge.

Plans were made for a dinner to be held in April at the Plantation Motel dining room for the benefit of the Democratic party. This is planned for a Sunday. Mrs. Rose Collins, Mrs. Ann Latta and Mrs. Mary Jane Fitzpatrick are in charge of plans.

Consumers' Arbitration Panel Is a "First"

Frankfort, Ky.—State Attorney General Ed W. Hancock has said that to his knowledge Kentucky is the first state to create a Consumers' Arbitration Panel under the Attorney General's office.

According to Hancock, when a consumer complaint is registered with the Division of Consumer Protection and reaches a point where it cannot be settled through mediation by his office, the Division contacts both the businessman and the consumer and suggests voluntary arbitration. If both parties sign an arbitration agreement, a panel is appointed to conduct the arbitration.

The panel consists of one businessman, one member of the general public and one member of the Consumer Advisory Council. Hancock added that prior to the actual arbitration meeting, both parties must sign agreements to abide by the decision of the arbitration panel. The decision, when reached by the panel, will be given to the parties involved, within 30 days.

Hancock explained that some matters, those which may involve litigation by the Division of Consumer Protection under provisions of the Consumer Fraud Law, will not be heard by the Arbitration Panel.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the family of Alfred Tackett, would like to thank our friends and neighbors who helped in any way upon the passing of our father and brother. Kentucky residents who are, or were, in a "missing status" as a result of the Vietnam conflict will be excluded from gross income subject to Kentucky Income Tax, according to an executive order issued by Gov. Wendell Ford. "The sacrifices these individuals have made and the burdens imposed upon their families will never be fully compensated. Certainly it is only proper that state government respond in whatever way it can to those who have served so well," Ford said.

Gas System Okehed, Rate Hike Denied

Mountain Investment Inc. has been officially authorized by the Public Service Commission to operate a gas system at Wheelwright and surrounding areas.

In the same order, the PSC denied the corporation's request for a gas rate increase above the rates approved by the commission on Sept. 1, 1972.

A purchase adjustment clause was made a part of the order for future use by the company.

Mountain Investment buys its gas from Kentucky West Virginia Gas and the Harvey Development Company.

UMW Suit Names Board Members

The United Mine Workers of America has filed a $10 million lawsuit against 10 former members of its International Executive Board (IEB).

The UMW charges that between January 1, 1963 and December 22, 1972 the former board members permitted "wholesale looting of the union treasury." The union seeks to recover "millions of dollars of union funds which were misused or misappropriated" by its former officers with the approval of the IEB.

The suit is a counterclaim to a suit filed February 14, 1973 against the UMW by the 10 former IEB members in which they seek reinstatement to the positions from which they were removed December 22, 1972 and $5,000 each punitive damages.

The 10 former IEB members named in the UMW suit and their salaries and expenses for 1972 were listed as: Louis Austin, District 23 (Ky.), $33,692.18; Michael DeGretto, District 2 (Pa.), $31,552.78; Bruno Olmizzi, District 3 (Pa.), $27,546.03; James Kelly, District 4 (Pa.), $28,388.95; Wilbert Killion, District 11 (Ind.), $29,548.71; James Ridings, District 19 (Ky., Tenn.), $24,552.41; Donald Lawley, District 21 (Arkansas, Oklahoma), $27,826.95; Frank Stevenson, District 22 (Arizona, Utah), $17,435.42; Emmett Thomas, District 25 (Pa.), $28,727.72; Cecil Urbaniak, District 31 (W. "Discover Wildlife" . . .
Wildlife Week Plans Set

"DISCOVER WILDLIFE: IT'S TOO GOOD TO MISS."—Urging all citizens to make a personal effort to achieve a better environment for wildlife, Gov. Wendell Ford signs a proclamation making the week of March 18-24 Wildlife Week. With Ford are (from left) wildlife conservationists Ed Thompson, Louisville, state director of the League of Kentucky Sportsmen; Reid Love, Vanceburg, president of the League; and Arnold Mitchell, commissioner of the state Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. (Steve Mitchell photo).

Plans are being readied by thousands of local and state groups across the country for participation in the 36th annual National Wildlife Week, set for March 18-24. The theme of the 1973 Wildlife Week, sponsored each year by the 3.5 million-member National Wildlife Federation and its state affiliates, is "DISCOVER WILDLIFE—It's Too Good To Miss." Focus of the week will be on the simple, yet exciting, joys that can be found by Americans of all ages in the outdoor, natural world. The executive vice president of the NWF, Thomas L. Kimball, commented on the Wildlife Week's poster symbol, a young wood duck shown just emerging from its nest. "All that newly-hatched duck has to do to break out into the natural world is take that first step out of the nest," Kimball said. "And it's nearly as easy for people to take that same step, to break out into nature and see what beauty it has to offer." During this year's Wildlife Week, Kimball urges that families "get out and enjoy our wild resources. The experience can open up an entirely new world." "Too often," Kimball said, "American families see wildlife and the rest of the natural world only through attractive magazine pictures. It's out there to be experienced right now and it really is too good to be missed!"

East Kentucky's Title Hopes Vanish in First-Round Games

Eastern Kentucky's dream of providing a dark horse winner of the Kentucky high school basketball tournament faded quickly, but it was fun while it lasted. McDowell, representing the 15th Region, lost to Madisonville, 84-69; Maysville downed Lee County, 76-65, Boyd County lost to Shawnee, 85 to 68, and Clay County bowed to Highman County, 61-59—all in first round play.

But there's 1974. As the tournament began at Freedom Hall, Louisville, the Associated Press released its all-state team for the year. Robert Mayhill, of Middlesboro, made the first team; M. C. Napier's Denny Fugate, the second team, and Betsy Layne's Danny Hall the third team.

Players from this section who received honorable mention included Prestonsburg's Jim Blackburn, John Lemaster of Paintsville, Neal Burchett and James McCarty of Johnson Central, Eugene Moore, of Inez, Tony Lowdenbeck and Brent Hall of McKell, Jim Bob Michael, Drexel Short and Scott Jenks of Louisa, Cliffy Smith and Jeff Brown of Morgan County, Terry Howard of Salyersville, Stan

Dixon and Larry Moore of Sandy Hook, Steve Banks of Whitesburg, Mike Gillum and Mike Sutton of Wurtland, Don Gibson of Greenup, Jim Kerr of Elkhorn City, Phily Pratt and Davey Wooten of Boyd County, Keith Caldwell of Catlettsburg, Miles Keller of Ashland Holy Family, Lonnie Morris of Breathitt County, Steve Dodd and Danny Evans of Ashland. The all-state team named by AP includes Louisville Male's Wesley Cox, Mayhill of Middlesboro, Ted Hundley of Lexington Bryan Station, Ernie Whitus of Louisville Doss and Kenny Higgs of Owensboro.

Block-Cut Mining Urged As Stripping Alternative

Washington—The President's Council on Environmental Quality has recommended block-cut surface mining—in which a mined-out section is filled in with earth from the next cut—as a means of avoiding the degradation of mountainous coal mining areas by strip mining.

"Except for the initial cut," says the Council report, "spoil is not deposited on the downslopes, and the land is immediately restored to its original contour." Surface mining, it says, has scarred 4 million acres of land, with half of it still unreclaimed, and with the water quality of lakes and streams degraded.

Block-cut reclamation, says the report, would cost about 56 cents per ton of coal extracted, compared to 95 cents for contour strip mining.

The report, requested Nov. 2 by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Interior Committee, says tightened controls are needed immediately on strip mining.

Biggest Ever?

This bass caught last Sunday in Dewey Lake by Dexter Music, of Hager Hill, may be the largest to be landed there all this year. In fact, it may be the largest ever caught at Dewey on hook and line. The largemouth weighed nine pounds and measured 25 inches.

Proof of Success

During his recent visit in Florida, Jesse Laferty, of Martin, joined his son-in-law, Delmar Thompson, in harvesting some of the state's heavy crop of bass. Mr. Laferty is here shown holding a 20 1/2-inch bass caught in Lake Jackson, Sebring, Fla. A purple nightcrawler did the trick.

Nature Trails

By RUFUS M. REED

THE ANACONDA. This is a gigantic boa of the lakes and streams of Tropical America and it is generally regarded as the largest and heaviest of all the snakes. A body length of 37 feet has been reported, with a weight of over 300 pounds. The usual length is about 28 to 30 feet. Such a monstrous snake could easily swallow a sheep, a goat—or a man! Their jaw muscles are flexible and can be stretched to swallow large victims. It takes more than 100 pounds of flesh to make a full meal for this snake. But after it swallows its prey, it usually lies quiescent for a week or so.

These great boas kill their victims by constriction but do not crush the bones, as some writers say. Their victims are killed by suffocation and are then swallowed whole. For such a large snake to swallow some animal with crushed bones would prove disastrous, as slivers of bone could easily puncture the stomach.

The anaconda and all the other boas bear live young, a dozen or so at each birthing. While this snake is a handsome one, it is not nearly as handsome as the boa constrictor and the highly colored pythons. Its back is sprinkled with rows of black spots; the rest of the body is light brown. The snake has the vicious habits of the water snakes and is never handled in side shows like the more docile pythons. It has been known to attack humans; a friend of mine was rowing in a boat somewhere in the tropics and a fifteen-foot long anaconda tried to get into the boat, apparently to attack him. He subdued the snake with a boat paddle and finally killed it. He brought the hide back and had it on display at Inez, Ky. for a number of years.

THE RETICULATED PYTHONS. These gigantic snakes of Asia run the anaconda a close second as being the next largest snake. Many records have shown it to attain a length of 33 feet. Such a huge snake can easily swallow a sheep, a deer or a goat. The reticulated python is one of the most handsome of the large snakes. As its name indicates, the word "reticulated" is in reference to the fancy network designs on the back, which give it a colorful appearance. Smaller specimens of the python are handled by the "snake charmers" in side shows at the circus.

The pythons are egg-layers and the female lays as many as 100 eggs. In the zoo, the eggs are hatched in incubators, but in the wild, the female piles her eggs in a near cone-shaped mound and coils about it, with her head resting on top. She remains perfectly quiescent until the eggs hatch.

THE ROCK PYTHONS. These great snakes of tropical Africa are the third largest of the snakes. Their length often exceeds twenty feet; they are docile and easily handled in the zoos, but require feeding about once each week. They are noted for having vestigial claws at the rear, which would seem to indicate their evolution from lizard-like ancestors.

The rock pythons are handsomely speckled from head to tail, with numerous spots of high color. All of the above large snakes kill their victims by squeezing them so tight the breath is shut off and they soon die of suffocation. Few of them are swift enough to capture fleet-footed animals but prey on those that are old, diseased, crippled or otherwise incapacitated. Thus they were designed by nature to help maintain the proper balance of the large herds.

TO ASSIST VETERANS

Howard R. Osborn, contact representative of the Bureau of Veterans Affairs, will be at the Employment office in Prestonsburg, March 22-23, to assist veterans and their dependents with claims for benefits due them as a result of their military service. He will be at the office from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m., each day.

Continuous Session Won't Remove Appellate Court Case Backlog

By JEANNE BECKETT
 Frankfort, Ky.—In a sweeping change from seasonal recesses, the Kentucky Court of Appeals went into continuous session, Jan. 1, the first such move in more than 75 years.

Previously there has been three terms each year with a winter, spring, and a long summer recess. Under the new schedule there will be only a summer recess.

The change in sessions will not make a big dent in the case backlog that faces Kentucky's highest court, according to Chief Justice John S. Palmore.

Palmore feels more changes will have to be made, with most possibilities resulting in a need for constitutional revision.

The chief justice favors a "spillover court." He explains the plan this way: "Let's assume the maximum capacity of the Court of Appeals is 600 cases a year and we are receiving 1200 per year, this means 600 won't be rendered until next year—and each year they get further back. The 'spillover' court would be a mini-court that would take these 600 cases, study them and present opinions for approval by the Court of Appeals."

Palmore sees two problems resulting from this plan—how to select the 600 cases the "spillover" court would handle and determining the guidelines for its operation. "Even with the 'spillover' court," says Palmore, "it will take skill, expertise and time for any group of the Court of Appeals to review the cases and select the ones that should be handled by the special court or agency," the Justice said.

Such a "spillover" court would require a constitutional amendment approved by the voters.

The only other alternative seen by the chief justice would be to ask the legislature to give the court authority to accept or reject appeals, much in the same manner as is done by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Despite its backlog, the Kentucky Court of Appeals turns out more opinions in a year's time than any other court in the United States of comparable size, says Justice Palmore.

Talking of the mental strain on a justice, Palmore says, "It never leaves you when you go home; it wakes you in the middle of the night; it occupies your mind even when you are doing things like mowing the grass. It is work that can't be judged by the hours spent in the office behind the desk."

"When court is recessed, it doesn't mean they are out loafing on the beach," says Justice Palmore. He points out that there is a tremendous amount of reading that has to be done in this type of work. "Every appellate judge in the United States uses a good deal of recess time for that purpose. I worked all but one day during the last recess of this court," Palmore says.

At the appellate level, seven justices review a circuit court trial. There is no jury. Instead, the entire case is presented to the Court of Appeals in written form—resulting in thousands of pages that must be studied and considered. Case records include every word that is said in the original trial, in addition to briefs from both attorneys.

"These justices are good, serious, hard-working professionals giving as much of their energies and abilities as you can ask of men with their age and experience," says Palmore. "Therefore, unless or until some changes are made, the court will probably have to go meet the problem by spending less time and writing shorter opinions in routine cases."

Rains Bring Respite For Area Foresters

The Division of Forestry got a breather after the heavy rains last week, but before the rains came division employees had their share of problems with forest fires.

Doug Robinson, Wess Campbell, and Tilton Johnson, and men from the Mainstream and Nelson Programs had worked long hours controlling raging fires. Many citations have been written and arrests made in the past few weeks.

COURT CHANGES—The Kentucky Court of Appeals is now conducting one continuous session. The new schedule went into operation January 1, but Chief Justice John S. Palmore says this will do little to solve the heavy caseload of the panel. He hopes for constitutional changes that will make possible more effective court reforms. (Photo by Ray Krause)

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK
 Attorney General of Kentucky

As the spring and summer months approach, many consumers begin to fall victims to "car fever." As the fever gets worse, some will purchase a new car. However, an equally large number of consumers will flock to the used car dealers to try to make a "good buy."

If you, or some member of your family, are planning on purchasing a used car, here are a few shopping tips which will help you find that "good buy."

First, look at the tires. If the tread looks new, but the sides look worn, they could be recapped tires.

Second, look for new paint jobs or touch-ups. If there appear to be bumpy spots or waves under the paint, the car has probably been in a wreck.

Third, open the door and get in behind the wheel. Grip the wheel at the top and try to move it around. If there is movement in the wheel, chances are the bearings in the wheel need replacing (or, this could be an indication of trouble in the axle).

Fourth, while you're sitting behind the wheel, take a look at the interior, floor mat, carpeting, arm rests and seats—take note of heavy wear. This could be an indication of the age of the car.

Fifth, place your foot on the brake pedal and push. If it goes down slowly, this is a good indication of a leak in the hydraulic system.

Next, watch out for odometer roll-backs. There are several ways you can check on the actual mileage of a car. Under Kentucky Law, a used car dealer must, if you request him to, furnish you with the name of the previous owner of the car. In this way you can check to see what the actual mileage and overall condition of the car was at the time it was traded. Another way to check the mileage is by looking at the oil-change sticker on the inside rim of the driver's door. It should show the exact mileage at the time of the last change.

Now, take the car out for a drive. Roll the window down and drive the car, if possible, through a tunnel or between some tall buildings. Listen for strange sounds which would indicate engine problems.

Finally, bring the car to a brisk stop. If it doesn't pull to the left or right, chances are the front end and brakes are in good shape.

Remember one thing. If a deal sounds too good to be true, it is probably neither good nor true.

How long have you had that eye shadow? How long have you had the eye liners? Do the containers have dust or dirt on them? Do you and your daughter use the same eye makeup?

The reason for these questions is simple, yet important to your health and possibly your sight. Many women suffer infection of the eyes from misuse of eye cosmetics. Many women carelessly contaminate their eye makeup.

Mascara, eye shadow or eye liners, misused, can and do lead to the growth of dangerous bacteria. When these infectious eye makeups are applied to areas around the eye, the cosmetics can cause infection and even blindness.

If you have any eye cosmetics in containers which you haven't used for several months, it would benefit your health, and the health of others, to discard them.

Regardless of where you store your containers, dust and dirt can collect in them and on them. When this is allowed to happen, the cosmetics can become contaminated.

Before you apply your eye makeup, wash your hands. Your hands may contain bacteria which can cause serious infection. Also, be certain that any instrument placed near your eyes is clean.

If any eye product causes irritation, immediately discontinue its use. If the irritation persists, see your doctor.

Many women use saliva as a means of wetting or thinning eye cosmetics. This can very easily lead to infection, since bacteria from the mouth may grow in the cosmetic.

Never use someone else's eye makeup or allow them to use yours. In one such instance, a girl used a friend's eye makeup and subsequently contracted a serious eye infection which almost blinded her.

1st. If you've got a large family plus an overgrown Afghan, the Audi has about the same headroom and legroom as the Rolls-Royce Silver Shadow.

2nd. If you get a kick out of the way a sports car handles, the Audi has the same type of steering system as the racing Ferrari.

3rd. If you're taking a weekend trip and enough luggage for 3 weeks, the Audi has the same trunk space as a Lincoln Continental Mark IV.

4th. If on that trip a scenic road turns into one bump after another, the Audi has independent front suspension like the Aston Martin.

5th. If you're impressed with luxury (and who isn't?), the Audi has a luxurious interior like the Mercedes-Benz 280SE.

6th. If getting to work on time means starting the engine on time, the Audi has the same type of reliable ignition system as a Porsche 911.

7th. If snow and slush have always meant not getting to where you want to go, the Audi, like the Cadillac Eldorado, has front-wheel drive to get you there.

STUDENTS ON FOUR-DAY WEEK

Schools are in session only four days a week in Unity District, Maine, but student achievement has reportedly gone up. A Title III project is providing inservice training in techniques of individualizing instruction to teachers on Friday of each week, while students are in classes only on the other four days. The program originally resulted from a budget crisis after taxpayers for a second year in a row voted a cut in school funds.

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Although the new year is less than three months old, it has already seen the catch of a state record-breaking fish—a 42-pound muskellunge.

The successful fisherman, Glen Terrell, Morehead, took the monster-musky out of Licking River February 23. His catch topped the previous record by 2 lbs., 2 ozs.

It would seem that Kentucky fishing is off to a pretty good start this year. With the spring season just ahead, the odds favor more record-breaking catches in the near future.

In 1972 the Kentucky record fish list was revised in four categories—channel catfish, rainbow trout, rock bass and sauger.

The new record channel catfish, which weighed 10 lbs., 2 ozs., was caught by Sollie Clifton, Jr., Owenton, at Elk Lake Shores. It replaced the previous 9 lb. channel cat caught by Miller Welch, Lexington, in 1969.

Jim Mattingly, Somerset, was the angler who landed the record 14 lb., 6 oz. rainbow which topped the previous 13 lb., 12 oz. trout taken by Danny Antle, Louisville. Both the record trout were taken in Cumberland River below Wolf Creek Dam.

Brashears Creek yielded a 1 lb., 7 oz. rock bass last year which topped the previous record by only 7 ozs. The new record is held by Rondell Pitcock, Louisville, who beat out Dick Haas, Frankfort, for the honors.

The fourth 1972 record, a 6 lb., 1 oz. sauger, was caught by William Price, Murfreesboro, Tenn., in Kentucky Lake. The previous sauger record was held by Jim Boone, Benton. Boone's fish weighed 4 lbs., 1 oz. and was caught in the Tennessee River below Kentucky Dam.

The records are there to be broken, and here is the procedure for entering what might be a state record fish:

Obtain a photo of the fish, showing the side of the specimen in detail. Have three persons witness the weighing of the fish and then send the photo, along with a statement signed by the angler and the witnesses, to the Department of Fish and Wildlife in Frankfort. The statement should include the method used in the catch, length, girth, weight and date and place taken.

Here are the current Kentucky record fish, their weights, and where they were caught:

Bluegill, 3 lbs., 6 ozs., Buchanan Pond (Taylor Co.); blue catfish, 100 lbs., Tennessee River; buffalo, 32 lbs., Kentucky River; bowfin, 3 lbs., 4 ozs., Kentucky River; carp, 54 lbs., 14 ozs., Licking River; channel catfish, 10 lbs., 2 ozs., Elk Lake Shores (Owen Co.); flathead catfish, 97 lbs., Green River; freshwater drum, 31 lbs., Kentucky Lake; gar, 40 lbs., Ohio River; Kentucky bass, 7 lbs., 10 ozs., Nelson Co.; largemouth bass, 13 lbs., 8 ozs., Greenbo Lake (Greenup Co.); muskellunge, 42 lbs., Lower Licking River; rainbow trout, 14 lbs., 6 ozs., Cumberland River; rock bass, 1 lb., 7 ozs., Brashears Creek; rockfish, 44 lbs., 4 ozs., Herrington Lake; sturgeon, 36 lbs., 8 ozs., Lake Cumberland; smallmouth bass (world record), 11 lbs., 15 ozs., Dale Hollow Lake; sauger, 6 lbs., 1 oz., Kentucky Lake; shellcracker, 2 lbs., 5 ozs.; spoonbill, 72 lbs., Lake Cumberland; walleye, 21 lbs., 8 ozs., Lake Cumberland; crappie, 4 lbs., Harrods Creek; white bass, 5 lbs., Kentucky Lake; yellow bass (open), 5 lbs., Herrington Lake.

BOARD AWARDS CONTRACT

The Barren County Board of Education has awarded the construction contract for the new Barren County vocational school. The $645,351 bid was complicated by the claim of an electrical subcontractor that a clerical error resulted in a bid about $32,000 too low, but on the advice of its attorney, the board awarded the bid and left it up to the contractor to reach an agreement with the subcontractors.

Average Family Payments Debt Held at $1020

Special to The Times

NEW YORK, Mar. 9—How much does the average family in Floyd county owe in the form of installment debt?

To what extent are local residents using the buy-now, pay-later plan in their purchases of big ticket items?

More than they did a year ago, according to the findings. There has been a steady increase in recent months, locally and elsewhere, in the use of installment credit.

What it means is that consumers have finally loosened their pursestrings, after a period of restrained buying, to purchase the cars, dishwashers, furniture, hi-fi equipment and other expensive articles that they have long been wanting. And, as spending for such items picks up, so does the demand for credit.

The net result, nationally, is that installment debt at the beginning of this year reached approximately $129 billion, or about $19 billion more than in January, 1972.

It was equivalent, on the average, to about 16 cents out of every dollar of family income, after taxes.

In Floyd county, based upon the latest local income and spending figures and upon national studies by the Federal Reserve Board and others, the amount of installment debt outstanding is estimated at $1,020 per family.

That is the average. It ranges from no debt at all, in some families, to considerably more than average in others.

For the local population as a whole, the amount of installment debt at the end of the last fiscal year was close to $10,305,000.

The largest part of it consisted of loans for automobile purchases. The remainder was for other installment buying, for personal loans and loans for home repair and modernization. Not in this category are mortgage debt, charge accounts and single payment loans.

Making repayments at a regular rate takes nearly $1 out of every $6 that a family has left after taxes.

In Floyd county, that amounts to $85 per month per family, on average.

The big question among bankers and credit men is whether the American public is taking on more debt than it can carry.
