

Spring Scene

Spring arrived last Tuesday, and next day this was the scene in Prestonsburg. The snowfall was the heaviest of the year.

Searchers Find Body, Man Held

Former Floyd Child, Ohio Murder Victim, Is Buried in County

The body of 9-year-old Roxie Ann Keathley, former Floyd county child who had been the object of a wide search since her disappearance from her home near Elyria, O., March 12, was found before daybreak Saturday morning, and a 21-year-old plant worker is being held on a charge of murder.

The accused man, 230-pound, 6-4 Timothy Papp, confessed to the crime and directed officers to the spot where the child's body was found. Papp, an assembly worker at an Elyria plant, had been jailed earlier, charged with making an obscene telephone call, and under questioning admitted the slaying.

The victim's nude body was found in a wooded area, just inside the city limits of Lorain and less than two miles from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Keathley. An investigator was quoted as saying the child had been sexually assaulted, and the preliminary coroner's report said death was due to asphyxiation. The coroner added that marks on the body indicated she may have been strangled. An autopsy was later performed.

The father, who moved from this county to Sheffield Township, in the Elyria area, two years ago, spent many hours with officers and others, searching for his daughter. He was not present when her body was found. Three ponds were dragged during the search.

A first-degree murder charge was lodged against Papp, Monday morning. The Times was told by the sheriff's office at Elyria.

Body of the victim was taken Sunday to Hall Brothers Funeral Home at Martin. Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m. Tuesday by Bennie Blankenship, Church of Christ minister, from the residence of Ellis Keathley on Branham's Creek. Burial was made in the Keathley family cemetery at Galveston.

Surviving, besides the parents, are a brother, Sammy, and one sister, Tammy.

The Train Wreck At Rooster Crossing

It was at Rooster Crossing where chanticleer lifts his voice high and often, and nobody was asleep at the switch. Yet there was a train wreck.

It happened at the rail crossing, near McDowell, Tuesday morning. A string of 28 empty coal cars had been brought to that point from the Martin yards. At Rooster Crossing the engineer and perhaps other crewman left the empties and took two locomotives on to the Price mine to pick up loaded cars.

Coming back, the train was "supposed" to go up Columbia Hollow. But it didn't. It came roaring on down the main track to smash into the empties left at the crossing.

Both engines were derailed, minor damage was done to some cars and the track. The crossing was blocked for hours. And somebody's face is red.

This Town . . . That World

Here it is, March 27, and I haven't wet a line. And while tempus fugit I fidget. These characters who stop by, every day or so, and tell tales of limit catches of big ones at Cumberland, Dale Hollow and other places just out of my reach aren't helping matters.

TENSE TROUBLE

Some of our television "stars" have their troubles with cases as they glibly recount this or that event and come up with such classics as "between you and I". Chaucer had his troubles with tenses: "Holpen" for "helped," for instance. And they're still having the same trouble in these parts where you will get as near Chaucer in the usage of words as anywhere in the world. We still "holp" good neighbors that we are, when help is needed.

A prime example of "tense trouble" is the oldtimer's account telling how he bested the wildcat. Said he: "I crope around the pint and snuck up behind him."

MOUNTAIN DIALECT

This mountain dialect is something to be treasured. It's making a grudging retreat before the onslaught of book l'arnin' and when it is completely gone we will fade into the distressing

To Lead in Revival At Baptist Church

The Rev. Curtis H. Warf, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Pikeville, will lead Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here in a one-week revival, beginning next Monday and continuing through April 8.

Evening services will be at 7:30 daily, and a special service is also being scheduled at 9 a.m. each day, the pastor, the Rev. W. D. Jaggers, said. Some of the services will be heard over Radio Station WDOC from 9:15 to 9:30 a.m. Special music for all services will be led by Gus Kalos, minister of music.

The Rev. Warf is a native of Green county and a graduate of Georgetown College and Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville. He began his pastorate at Pikeville in 1969 after 17 years' service in the ministry as pastor of Friendship Baptist Church at Campbellsville, Bethel Baptist Church in Marshall county, Utica (Ky.) Baptist Church, and First Baptist Church at Sturgis.

The public is invited to each service. Nursery facilities will be provided.

Space Lacking, Social Security To Reduce Staff

Because suitable office space has not been found in Prestonsburg, the Social Administration will open in temporary quarters here about April 9 and the office staff will be composed of three instead of the 15 originally planned.

When, and if, adequate space can be leased or a building erected by private ownership for lease to Social Security, the full staff complement of 15 will be employed, it was said at the Pikeville Social Security office.

Emory Reaser, assistant manager of the Pikeville office, said five or six bids have been submitted by individuals who would erect a building for lease, but the General Services Agency, Atlanta, Ga., which is responsible for government-owned buildings or structures leased by the government, has indicated that all bids are too high. Some of the bids covered remodeling work; others were for new structures.

Government specifications require a 4,000-square-foot office area on the ground level.

Larger Campus For PCC Awaits Local Decision

Expansion of the Prestonsburg Community College campus will depend on ability of the college to acquire land adjacent to the present campus, through negotiation or condemnation action, and use of the $75,000 made available to the college for that purpose is being delayed while hope still lingers that the land may be acquired without a court hearing.

A condemnation action is pending in circuit court here against owners of the acreage desired, Graham Porter and

Judge Dismisses Case vs. Daniels

The case of the Commonwealth against Clay Daniels, Prestonsburg man, in which he was accused in a Clark county grand jury indictment of obtaining money by pretending to be an officer, was dismissed March 8 by Circuit Judge James Chenault, of the Clark circuit court.

The dismissal came when Judge Chenault was informed that the same charge arising from the "precise factual situation" had been heard in September last year by the Clark county court, that the charge had been amended on the recommendation of the complaining witness, Dr. Robert Brashear, and County Attorney Blake Page to disorderly conduct. Daniels paid a $100 fine and costs and his six-month jail term was probated.

Dismissal of the grand jury indictment was made on the grounds of "former jeopardy."

Daniels said here Tuesday that his attorneys have been asked to prepare on his behalf a $250,000 federal court suit against Clark Commonwealth's Attorney Tim Walters, Judge Chenault, the Kentucky State Police and the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Two Are Nabbed As Transporters

The arrest last Thursday morning at Grethel of Jack Akers, of Honaker, with a load of 75 cases of beer was the second of the kind made by State Troopers Rose and Estep during the week.

Three days earlier, they and Wheelwright Policeman Harold Johnson arrested Walker Newsome, of Mud Creek, and confiscated 35 cases of beer.

Both men were charged with transporting and executed bond set by Magistrate Denzil Ray Hall.

Tom Ratliff, elderly Brandy Keg resident, was booked at the jail on a warrant sworn to by Susan Ratliff, who accused him of kicking his 15-month-old grandson. The charge against him in quarterly court is assault and battery.

Five Mud Creek juveniles were jailed over the week-end and charged with breaking and entering Magistrate Denzil Ray Hall's store.

Others jailed, charges against each and names of arresting officers follow:

Raymond Weddington, destroying private property, arrested by Deputy Sheriff W. Hall; Larry Hicks, drunk driving, by State Trooper Newsome; Alonzo Jones, reckless driving and resisting arrest, by Deputy Sheriff Bill Mitchell; Ronnie Clay Bates, possession of drugs, by State Trooper Danny Stumbo; Paul Kazee, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Troopers Tucker and Stumbo; Milford Conn, assault on a police officer, by Deputy Sheriff Ralph Howell; Larry Hagan,

Forest Unit Return From Johnson Seen

Is Finalist in 1973 Teen-Ager Pageant

Miss Cathy Lynn Whitaker, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Whitaker, and a senior at Prestonsburg high school, has been selected to be a finalist in the 1973 Miss Kentucky Teen-ager Pageant to be held in Lexington, April 27-29.

Contestants will be housed at the Continental Inn and the Pageant itself will be on Saturday night, April 28, at Lafayette senior high school auditorium. The Miss Kentucky Teen-ager Pageant is the official state finals to the Miss National Teen-ager Pageant to be held in Atlanta, Georgia, next September 11.

Contestants from all over the state will be competing for the title of Miss Kentucky Teen-ager. The reigning Miss Kentucky Teen-ager, Perry Harrell, of Morehead, was first runner-up in the 1973 Miss National Teen-ager Pageant.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic achievement-leadership, poise-personality, and beauty. There is no swimsuit or talent competition.

Each contestant will recite her own essay on the subject, "What's Right About America."

Relocation Plan For Dist. Office Told by Harris

The district office of the Kentucky Division of Forestry is coming back from Johnson county to Floyd, The Times learned Tuesday.

The office, which was moved to Thelma from Prestonsburg, soon after Governor Nunn began his term of office, is scheduled to be relocated here, Tom Harris, commissioner of the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, said.

The department headed by Mr. Harris last week announced that its district reclamation office will open April 1 in the former Lincoln-Mercury building on South Lake Drive here. Since that time, forestry officials have been here to inspect possible office locations.

It is not known if space in the Lincoln-Mercury building is sufficient to house both offices.

The forestry office location here may not be in the exact geographical center of the area to be served but it will be in the center of activity, Commissioner Harris said.

Dick Hite, area supervisor, will head the reclamation office here. He will have a staff of 14 inspectors and a clerk-typist. Personnel will be engaged mainly in the reclamation of surface-mined lands in a 17-county area extending from Pike county westward to Lewis county.

Kansas Firm Gets Floyd, Knott Work

Highway Commissioner James E. Gray announced last week that a contract calling for bridge deck repairs on various roads in Floyd and Knott counties was awarded by the Bureau of Highways, Department of Transportation.

The successful low bidder was All-States Construction Services, Inc., of Shawnee Mission, Kansas. The amount of the contract to be executed is $20,269.80.

Work Seen During Summer On Mental Health Center

Contractors' bids on the construction of an 18,000-square-foot structure near here to serve as a "hub" for specialized mental health services in the region are expected to be asked next month, Richard Stai, executive director of the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, said here this week.

The one-story building, designed to cover an area 114 feet by 158 feet, will be erected on an 11-acre tract near the new Highlands Regional Medical Center on US 23. It will serve as the principal mental health training and treatment center for Floyd and Johnson counties.

Mr. Stai said it is hoped work will be begun this summer and that the center will be ready for use in the late summer of 1974.

The new facility, which will cost an estimated $500,000, is being financed through grants made by the Kentucky Department of Health, the Appalachian Regional Commission and Developmental Disabilities Services Act. The tract on which it will be built was transferred by the Department of Highways to the state Department of Mental Health.

The building will be a steel structure, packaged in brick and masonry. Marvin Crider, of George Lee Shannon & Associates, architects, said the plans provide for two open interior courts, 30 by 24 feet each, day-care facilities for small children, vocational training for adults, a community room, 18 examination rooms and staff offices.

In addition to the Floyd county outpatient clinic, the building will contain day care training programs, adult activities, diagnostic and evaluation services, speech and hearing clinics, closed circuit television for training staff and patients, indoor recreation facilities and a cafeteria.

Joining the Floyd county staff in the centralized location will be the regional specialists in Children's Services, Developmental Disabilities Services, and Staff Development. At present the Mental Health team serving Floyd county is scattered throughout Prestonsburg in four different locations. Regional administrative and business offices will remain in their present facilities in Prestonsburg for the time being, Stai said.

Mobile Home Fire Is Probed; Blaze Levels Price Hardware

A State Police investigation is underway to determine the cause of a fire at Goble-Roberts Addition early Monday morning which destroyed one mobile home and damaged another on the same trailer lot where only weeks ago, two children burned to death in a similar incident.

DeMart Music, owner of the trailer, told Prestonsburg firemen that upon returning home around 12:30 a.m., he turned on a light switch as he walked in the front door and noticed the lights suddenly brighten and then dim. He then walked to his bedroom and found that room in flames.

Prestonsburg Fire Department was alerted at 12:40 a.m. and although firemen arrived on the scene just seven minutes later, the extreme heat destroyed most of the structure. Music, who had moved the mobile home to the lot only four days earlier, lived alone and no injuries resulted.

A neighboring trailer, owned by Lonnie Ocutt also sustained considerable heat damage. Ocutt said his wiring system was melted and that part of the trailer's walls were warped.

Results of the police investigation were not available as of Tuesday afternoon but assistant Fire Chief, Thomas Blackburn, said that the unusual behavior of the trailer's lights mentioned by Music pointed to the possibility of an electrical fault.

Another fire last Wednesday evening at Price destroyed a used furniture-antique store owned by Eugene Mullins, of Hi Hat.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, began at about 6 p.m. and before firemen could arrive the two-story block structure had burned to its stone foundation. The building, erected by Jerry F. Howell about 25 years ago, formerly housed the Price Hardware.

The owner was unable to give an exact estimate of the cost of the damage to the building. He said, however, that many valuable antiques and personal belongings were lost in the fire.

This mobile home, which was gutted by fire Sunday night, stands only a few feet from the spot where two children died recently in a similar blaze in the Goble-Roberts Addition here.

Swift's Silver Mine Trails Thru Natural Bridge State Park

By HELEN PRICE STACY
Natural Bridge State Resort Park, near Slade in Powell county, could be headquarters for one of your most exciting hiking expeditions in all Kentucky. It just might lead you to a silver mine—if old legends can be believed.

Who in Kentucky—or West Virginia or Tennessee—has not heard about the long-lost silver mines reputed to have been discovered by Indians centuries ago and revealed by a French youth to Englishman John Swift?

Swift is said to have made a series of trips from Virginia into the wilderness of Kentucky to work the mines, load silver on horses and mules and carry the treasure back to his home.

A plaque on the courthouse square in Campton, seat of Wolfe county, lends credence to a legend that Swift and his party camped near the spot in the 1760's, during the time they were mining silver.

Campton is named for the camp established by the silver-seeking party, as is Swift's Camp Creek, a stream that flows through the town and into Fed River Gorge at a point beyond Rock Bridge.

Swift became ill and blind on his last trip to the workings and was never able to tell others exactly where the mines were, though he left behind a journal. Explicit directions, as well as accurate descriptions of unusually shaped rocks—Haystack Rock, Tea Kettle Rock and the like—have provided hope for treasure hunters through the years, but so far as is known, the mines have never been found.

Detailed markings such as turkey tracks mentioned by Swift have been found in the Gorge and are visible atop Rock Bridge along with faintly outlined bars to indicate rock steps and rooms in a cave.

In Tight Hollow, in Daniel Boone National Forest, leaves and brush have almost covered a hole dug in recent years by a group from New York searching for the elusive mines.

Stories have been told all the way from Lewis, Elliott, Lawrence, Johnson and Pike counties about silver mines and men who retrieved the valuable metal and made it into counterfeit dollars. Invariably, when the men were taken to court they were cleared of any charges, for assays of the coins revealed they were purer in silver than the common silver dollar.

Writers for many decades have been describing the locale of the mines and the Englishman who found out about them from a youth named Mundy, who learned about the three workings from Indians. Treasure hunters have obtained copies of Swift's journal and of maps used by his party. They point to a stream that flows contrary to nature and mines whose faces have been sealed with a particular clay.

Though many counties in Kentucky as well as other nearby states claim the lost mines, records and legends point to Swift's Camp Creek and the Red River Gorge area as likely places for the silver workings.

Natural Bridge State Resort Park's superintendent, Clarence Hensley, is knowledgeable about the lore and legend surrounding Swift. He would be glad to start you off on your "treasure hunt," provided you agree you are out more for exercise than for fortune.

The spot might have been walked over by thousands of feet, hiking mountain trails. New eyes might see a hidden link to the lost treasure that Swift said if found, "would make all Kentucky rich."

Even if you don't find the silver mines, you will have hiked in a region that abounds in other treasure—the bounty of nature. These lodges of magnificent scenery, majestic peaks and rock arches, not to mention countless wildflowers and trees, are treasure enough.

2-Day Heart Clinic Slated April 10-11

A two-day consultative and diagnostic heart clinic for medically indigent patients will be held in the Floyd County Health Department here Tuesday and Wednesday, April 10 and 11.

The clinic is being organized so that adults only will be admitted to the clinic on April 10 and children only will be seen on April 11.

Physicians from the departments of Medicine and Pediatrics at the University of Kentucky Medical Center will conduct the clinic.

Co-sponsored by the Kentucky Heart Association and the State and County Health Departments, the clinic will provide a diagnostic service for the patient along with recommendations for treatment and management of the case. It also will provide an opportunity for the referring physician to consult with the clinician regarding his patient.

Necessary expenses of the clinic are being underwritten by the Kentucky Heart Association and the State Department of Health. Clinic personnel as well as space and equipment will be provided by the Floyd County Health Department as well as the State Health Department and the Kentucky Heart Association.

Only those patients who have been referred by a physician and have a written referral will be admitted to the clinic. Counties in this clinic area are Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike.

The Best Is Behind the Facade

Kentucky has one of the best state parks systems in the nation, and in Jenny Wiley State Park this county is an integral part of this excellence.

Yet it may be that the state, its individual parks and the counties in which these parks are located are failing to capitalize fully on what they have as tourist attractions.

They've forgotten, or overlooked, those assets of local color, native customs and costumes, mountain history, the legacy of the past, a heritage that is as romantic as any western ghost town or Tombstone or Boot Hill that draws tourists from all over.

It occurs to us that when a tourist comes to Eastern Kentucky he isn't looking for a Las Vegas atmosphere or the glitter of the metropolis. It's a good bet that he wants to see the real thing, or a reasonable facsimile thereof.

But we natives, suffering from a regional inferiority complex, have hidden the real Kentucky mountains behind a facade of modernity. We forget that the visitor doesn't need to come here for bright lights, the svelte and the like; he can find that at home. And we're too unaware of what we have to realize that an ancient loom, a scene from pioneer life, a homemade "gritter" for the making of corn meal, a bull-tongue plow and a hundred other items, scenes, tunes and bits of life out of an era when life was close to nature and things were naturally tough constitute a very vital part of Americana which we hide from the rest of a nation anxious to know more about it.

Arkansas, a state without many of the natural resources possessed by Kentucky, even by Eastern Kentucky, sets an example which we might follow with more success than we have yet enjoyed. There, they stress the old ways, the old days, take the visitor into the heart and soul of the Ozark country.

Tourism there is something of an art. And the tourist loves it.

Raymond Little Killed in Ohio; Woman Accused

A shooting incident in a Columbus, Ohio bar early Sunday morning claimed the life of a 45-year-old former Weeksby man.

Raymond Little died almost instantly after being shot at about 5:30 a.m. at the Toybox Bar where he was employed. Little was shot three times—twice in the head and one time in the back.

According to Columbus police sources, his assailant, Iris Jeannette Jones, 22, of Columbus, also an employee of the bar, alleges that Little attacked her and that, fearing for her life, she seized the bar's handgun and shot him. An investigation into the slaying is now under way.

A son of Lish and Flora Click Little, of Weeksby, he was born February 11, 1928 at Weeksby. A veteran of World War II, he had lived in Columbus for the past three years. His wife, Sue Spurlock Little, survives.

Also surviving are one son, Gary Ray Little, with the U. S. Army; two daughters, Mrs. Glenda Faye Ford and Miss Patricia Little, both in Indiana; four brothers, Merle Little, of Prestonsburg, Jesse Little, of Wheelwright, and Claude Little and Claude Preston, both of Weeksby; and nine sisters, Mrs. Martha Anderson, Mrs. Mary Ann Ridout and Mrs. Leata Barnett, all of Columbus, Mrs. Betty Jo Bostic, Charleston, W. Va., Mrs. Peggy Sue Holbrook, of Virginia Beach, Va., Mrs. Rena Mae Taylor, of Neon, Ky., Mrs. Paty Ann Branham, Mrs. Lassie Hall and Miss Carol Little, all of Weeksby. Two grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services were held today (Wednesday) at 11 a.m. at the home of the parents. Burial was made in the Little family cemetery at Weeksby under the direction of Merion Funeral Chapel.

DOGS vs. BOOKS

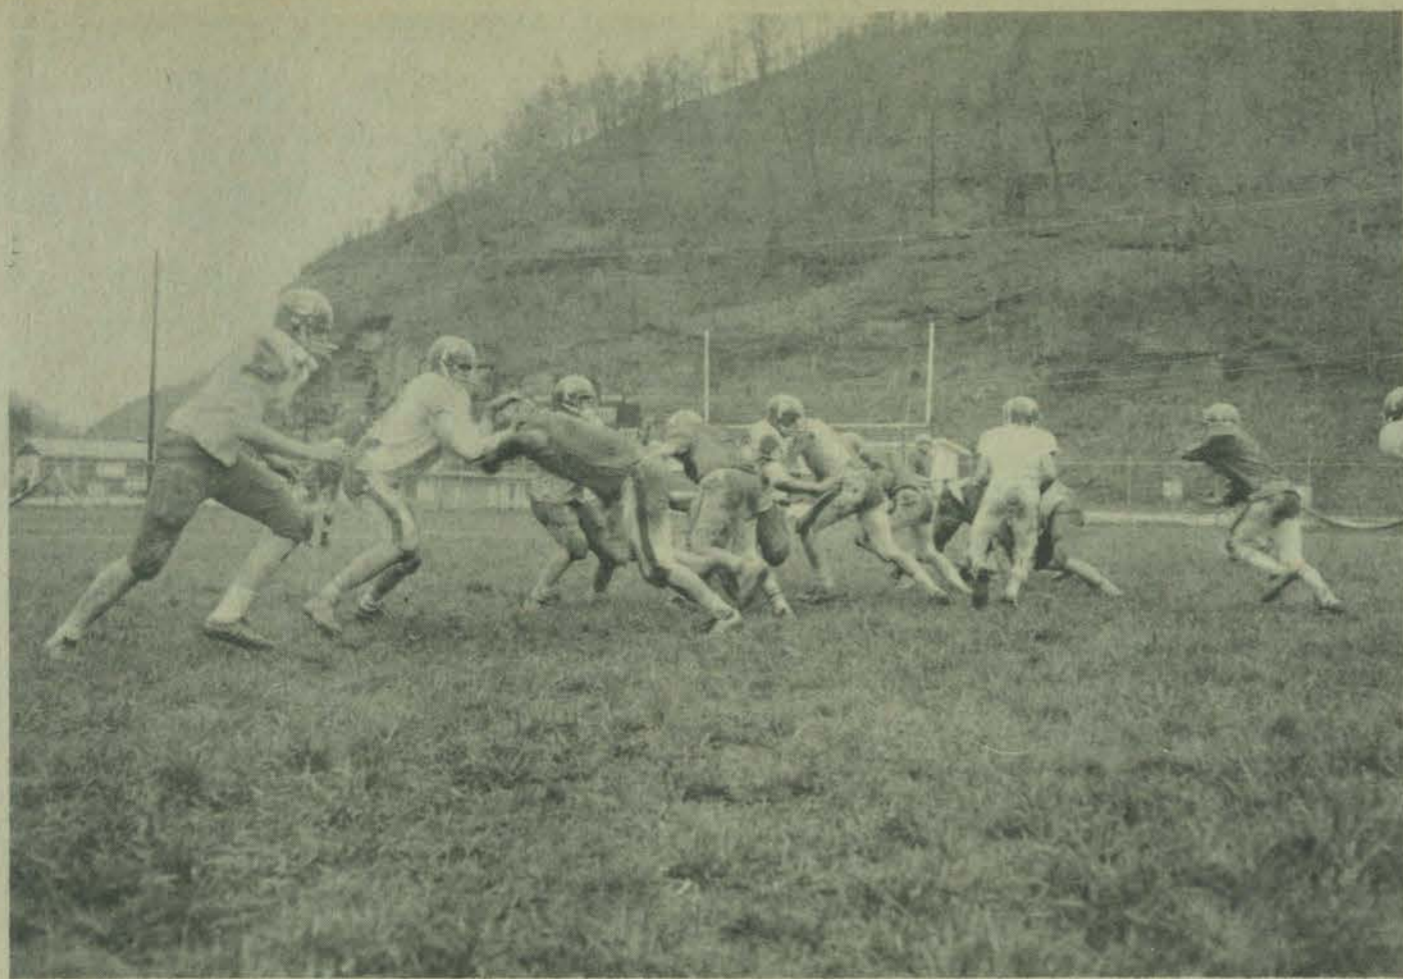

Americans spend twice as much money on food for their dogs and cats as they do on textbooks for their children. According to a survey of manufacturers, pet food expenditures for a twelve month period amounted to $969,700,000 and, at the same time, $454,680,000 was spent on textbooks, according to the American Association of Publishers.

Floyd Jaycees Pick All-Floyd Teams

The Floyd County Area Jaycees announced the selections of the All-Floyd County high school basketball teams for 1972-73 at their meeting of March 20. Membership of the first and second teams was based upon seasonal play, including conference games, tournament games and post-season play. Making the first team were:

Dan Hall, Betsy Layne high school; Darrell Prater, Allen Central; Glenn Heinisch, McDowell high; Neil Turner, McDowell; Kent Gibson, Allen Central.

The second team:
John Conley, Allen Central; Tippy Moscript, Wheelwright; Neil Moore, McDowell; Greg Roberts, Betsy Layne; Jim Blackburn, Prestonsburg.

The Jaycees will present the members of the first and second teams with mementoes commemorating their achievements during the past season.

Spring Grid Practice Greet 54 Hopefuls;

Head Football Coach Ed Radjunas, of Prestonsburg High School, was greeted by 54 freshmen, sophomores and juniors last Monday as the annual spring practice got under way.

"We were really pleased with the heavy turnout since we graduated 21 seniors from last season's team," said Radjunas. "We've got a long road ahead of us and inexperience will be our weakness." Radjunas and his lone assistant, John W. Shepherd, are concentrating mainly on offensive work. Their main objective is to fill the vacated positions and see what depth they will have.

They have scheduled 10 practice days and the annual red-white scrimmage for Friday, March 30, at the high school field. The entire squad will be divided into two teams and a regulation game played. "We play everyone in this game to get a look at what we've got for next fall," added Radjunas.

Doctors Present Six-Part Program

Drs. James Squire and Elinor Graham, pediatricians and members of Our Lady of the Way Hospital's medical staff, recently presented an educational program for the RN's and LPN's at the hospital. Guests from the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital also participated in the six-part program which covered topics such as physical examination in the newborn—abnormalities and danger signs for which to look; feeding of premature babies; jaundice in newborns; infection in newborns—what the dangers of infection are in mother and the prolonged rupture of membranes; meningitis; vitamins and iron in children—antibiotics and medicines that cause side effects in children.

Take a tip from young wood duck emerging from its nest, discover the beauty of nature.

The newly-hatched wood duck is the symbol of the recent 36th annual National Wildlife Week, which ended March 24. The duck, pictured on publicity posters, helped portray the week's theme, "Discover Wildlife—It's Too Good to Miss."

"All that newly-hatched duck has to do, to break out into the natural world, is take that first step out of the nest," said Thomas L. Kimbell, the executive vice-president of the National Wildlife Federation. "And it's nearly as easy for people to take that same first step, to break out into nature and see what beauty it has to offer."

Kentuckians have ample opportunity for taking that first step. One does not have to go miles from civilization to see and enjoy wildlife. There are parks in the midst of our largest cities which are homes for birds and squirrels, and suburbanites often share their neighborhoods with a surprisingly large variety of wildlife—shrews, field mice, squirrels, chipmunks, and an occasional rabbit or opossum, not to mention birds, frogs, toads, and other reptiles.

For those who would like to visit the woods to discover wildlife, the 640,000-acre Daniel Boone National Forest is a good place to start. In addition, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has almost 200,000 acres in wildlife management areas scattered throughout the state. These areas are open on a year-round basis, offering excellent opportunities for observing wildlife. Often just a slow stroll down a country lane will reveal several species of birds and animals.

One of the necessary requirements for observing wildlife is silence. Driving a car, jeep, or trail bike through the woods will drive away the very animals you are trying to observe, and even a hurried walk, with loud conversation, through an area abounding in wildlife species will most likely produce no sightings. But if you pick a comfortable spot, sit down and wait quietly for a while, you will very likely find yourself "discovering" wildlife.

Morgan Marks 150th Birthday

By HELEN PRICE STACY

For the past two months Lou Aiken, of Lexington, has been climbing a tall ladder in the court room at the Morgan county courthouse in West Liberty, disappearing into a small opening in the ceiling and staying out of sight for hours. He has been spending Saturday afternoons working on the clock on top of the courthouse, and on March 10 when the old clock struck the hour of noon, he was still working in the tower. Approximately 200 people in the room below gave thunderous applause as it struck.

The striking of the clock signaled Morgan county's 150th birthday. The county organized its first government as a part of the Commonwealth of Kentucky on March 10, 1823.

Approximately 500 persons were on the ground for the occasion as a letter from Governor Wendell Ford commemorating the founding of Morgan county was read. "All of you can look back with pride at the role Morgan county has played in the growth that has made Kentucky the great Commonwealth it is today," the letter read. "Morgan county has been able to retain much of the original Kentucky with its rolling hills, fertile valleys and forest."

President Nixon also sent a message to commemorate the county's founding date. The President wrote that "the first settlers of Morgan county brought with them a spirit of enthusiasm, determination and cooperation—qualities which have not only helped to build a community with a rich heritage, but also have contributed to the growth and prosperity of the United States as a great nation."

Letters from Senators Walter "Dee" Huddleston, Marlow Cook, and Congressman Carl D. Perkins were also read.

Lynn Nickell, chairman of the clock restoration committee, read a history of Morgan county. He pointed out that Morgan gave land for Johnson county in 1843, Rowan in 1856, Magoffin and Wolfe in 1860, and Menifee in 1869.

Morgan county was described as "rich in history, dedicated to her state and nation, a county of friendly, peace loving people—but people who, true to their Scotch-Irish ancestry, will rise to the occasion if need be."

Even though the clock struck the hour, eight hands—two for each of the clock's four dials—still were missing. Even as many oldtimers in the audience reached for their handkerchiefs when they heard the familiar sounds of the clock striking, the restorer remained high above them making adjustments necessary for placing the hands in proper positions.

VARIETY SHOW WINNER

Miss Connie Holbrook, a student at Island Creek School, Pike county, won second place in the Pike county 4-H talent variety show. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Holbrook and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Oaks, of Melvin.

A representative sample of the American work force was asked by the U. S. Department of Labor what contributed most to their happiness in a job. Interesting work was ranked first by a solid margin, followed by good pay, opportunity to get ahead and fringe benefits.

OBSERVES 87TH BIRTHDAY

Martha Stambaugh, of Paintsville, celebrated her 87th birthday March 11 with many relatives and friends from over the state. Those wishing her well included Rev. and Mrs. C. M. P'burg Team Wins Rook Meet

The third annual regional rook tournament held at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, last Saturday drew the largest number of participants taking part in similar tourneys in the state park system. Twenty-eight players from Floyd and surrounding counties competed for the title.

Play began at 11 a.m. and at 6:30 p.m. a new championship team, Paul Thompson and Irvin Slone, of Prestonsburg, was named. They defeated Nancy and Kenneth Blevins, of Langley, for the honor. Both teams will advance to the state finals at Lake Cumberland State Park, April 7.

Danny Caudill and Tilden Howard, who captured third place, will enter the state tourney as alternates if both the winning and runnerup teams cannot attend.

Mountain P'kway Safety Record Lowest Among 5 Major Routes

In a recent report published by the National Safety Council, five of Kentucky's parkways were rated among the top in the nation in terms of safety.

The figures cited by the Council were based on the number of fatal accidents per 100,000,000 vehicle miles. The figures were compiled from accident reports for 1971.

The Jackson Purchase Parkway in southwestern Kentucky is apparently the safest turnpike in the nation with a rating of zero. The Purchase Parkway, 53.2 miles in length, has never been the site of a fatal accident.

The Bluegrass Parkway received a rating of 1.1. Only one fatal accident was reported on the Bluegrass Parkway.

The Western Kentucky Parkway was given a 1.3 rating. On the 127.9 miles of the WK Parkway 2 fatal accidents were reported.

The rating for the Kentucky Turnpike was 1.6. A rating of 2.3 was assigned the Mountain Parkway. There were 2 fatal accidents on the Mountain Parkway in 1971.

The National Safety Council said further that fatal accidents occur mostly in rural areas. On the nation's turnpikes in 1971 there were 2.1 deaths per 100,000,000 vehicle miles. On all the nation's rural roads, the 1971 rate was 6.5 deaths per 100,000,000 vehicle miles.

Twenty-eight percent of the fatal accidents on turnpikes occurred in collisions between motor vehicles, ac-ording to reports from major turnpikes nationwide. Forty-three percent of all fatal accidents were from running off the roadway.

An estimated 50,000 persons were licensed as funeral directors and embalmers in 1972. About two percent were women.

Award-Winning Choir To Sing

The Harlan Boys' Choir, which received one of only three superior ratings awarded at the Graz, Austria International Youth Music Festival last summer, will appear here next Tuesday evening at the grade school auditorium.

The performance at eight o'clock will be the fifth sponsored this season by the East Kentucky Concert Series.

Patterned after the Vienna Boys Choir, the group, composed of Harlan school boys from grades 4 through 12, has won international recognition in their appearances in Austria and other European countries.

When David Davies, director of the choir, gathered a group of boys just for the fun of singing, he had no idea of the depth of talent at his command. And Davies didn't really plan to become a choir director. Although he sang for community and school functions, Davies field is English which he teaches at Harlan Junior high school.

Following the Harlan Boys Choir appearance here, the final presentation in this year's Concert Series will be the Tureno Opera Company performance of La Traviata in English which is scheduled for April 17.

In 1972, funeral directors and embalmers generally earned from $150 to $250-a-week. Managers generally earned from $10,000 to $15,000-a-year. Many owners earned more than $20,000.

DR. W. C. REEVES

DELIVERS INTERESTING ADDRESS AT BAPTIST CHURCH MONDAY NIGHT.

In a very interesting address at the Baptist Church Monday night in connection with the Demobilization Conference, a very interesting address was delivered by Dr. W. C. Reeves, pastor of the Baptist church of Ashland, Ky. Rev. Mr. Reeves said in part:

This is the sixth demobilization conference to be held in the Ashland district. One of the most successful of all the conferences of the state was held in your neighboring town of Ashland last week. Under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. there is to be held, and there are now being conducted, conferences similar to this in all the counties of the state, and in fact, in every county in the United States.

The purpose of this conference, as I trust has already been made clear, is to link up the community in the most thoroughgoing way with the returning soldier, so as to conserve as best possible all that the soldier has gained while away from us—that is, all that is worth conserving. He has gained much. Many of our young men have lived more during the past two years than in all their former lives put together. They have seen much. They have heard much. They have felt much. They have seen clean cities and learned to desire clean cities. They have traveled over good roads, and the best there are in the world, and they have learned to desire good roads. They have seen good school buildings, and perhaps they feel that the boys here are the boys of Ohio. They have learned that a Kentucky mountain girl is more beautiful than any Parisian artist can suggest by brush or any English hand depict by pen, and possibly they have felt that their country ought to give the chances that are equal to those offered by any community of earth. These observations and these feelings are worth conserving. They have probably felt that after all the good old religion is worth while and that it ought to be more fully appreciated and propagated. They have seen churches that were kept clean, brightly lighted, and decorated with roses, lilies or other flowers, the gifts of God's kind hands; they have listened to songs that cheered and helped; they have heard sermons that have inspired; they have learned to pray, many of them, and to work at religious enterprises. They have seen farms that made the farmer's life worth while to him, and they have longed for such farms; maybe they have NOT seen that the farms on which they were born could be made to produce a larger variety of produce and a richer income for the labor expended than those same farms they came to admire. It is a part of this conference to teach them that this is true. They have learned that cleanliness is one of the highest forms of godliness and they have come home longing to institute a campaign of cleanliness. They have learned that the house fly kills but also that the house fly can also be killed and kept out. They have learned that wicked women mean death, and that her ways take hold on hell. They know that the life they have lived in the camp has been on the whole a great deal above the life they have lived in their home communities. They have come home longing to have their many-sided community life exalted. This conference is called, in behalf of the soldier, to try to help him help his own community.

I am to speak especially tonight on "The Soldier and the Religious Life of our Communities. I am very glad to have the opportunity to speak to you briefly on this theme.

Religion is a first thing. Foundations must be laid before superstructures can be raised. Religion is foundational. Christianity is the only true religion. Religion is not Christianity. The Mohammedan is just as religious as the Christian. The kind of religion a man has is more important than that he have religion. There is no people who have chopped off heads of men and women and burned them by the score and butchered them by the tens of thousands. The trouble was that their religion was the wrong sort. Christianity means rightness, for one thing. It means that every man shall treat every other man right. It means more: It means that men who believe in the right and know the right shall see that men who will persist in doing wrong shall be prevented from doing wrong. That's why we went over the pond and pushed Wilhelm off his little stool. He kept sticking his foot into the side of his little sister Belgium and doing other naughty things. He made up his mind that because his hair was coarser than Cleopatra's he was a better man and that it would be all right for him to do anything he pleased to France. Because he was William and his folks were his folks he thought he could make us paint our ships like a clown and blow us up besides whenever it suited him. We knew that if was not right for Germany to act in this way, and we told her so plainly. She persisted and we told her that we perceived by the standards of our Christian society that she was making war on us, and we should have to proceed to put her out of the war-making business. That we did. It was Christianity that did that. For it was Christianity that gave birth to our nation. It was the principle in the heart of George Washington that led him in those weary struggles to father this good land. It was Christianity that drove slavery into hell. It was Christianity that broke the jaw of Spain and made her take her devilish jaws off the throat of Cuba. It was Christianity that put our armies in France and our navy on the heels of the German pirates. It was Christianity that winged our war birds and drove the German Zep vultures from the skies. Christianity makes free. There is not a bond on earth that binds a nation or an individual but that Christianity is set to break it.

Let me tell you this—and not as a preacher, but as a student of history, economics, finance and the science of society: The most important factor in the freeing of peoples, the enrichment of communities, the highering of individual lives, is that factor known everywhere among us as the churches of Jesus Christ—those institutions which teach that every man on earth MUST for his own highest interest and for the world's good, bow before God of this universe and make His muster before His every-flaw-detecting eye.

They were telling us during the first years of the war that Christianity had failed, for they said, "war is incompatible with Christianity." War for its own sake is incompatible with Christianity. Therefore Christianity must uproot war. That is what Christianity has been doing during these years of awful war—uprooting war. Men said in the fifties that Christianity had failed because slavery with its hellish curse existed. (I am a son of a soldier of Lee.) When we became convinced that Christianity and slavery were incompatible, we said amen to Christianity and abolished slavery forever. Hear me! I summon you to a new warfare: Pray for Wilson and our envoys at that Peace Conference over yonder. Battle against hell in your prayers as your sons and brothers battled against the Hun at Chateau-Thierry and St. Mihiel, and plead that the God of heaven shall thwart the devil there and make wars cease forever. Pray those articles shall be such that no nation may ever dare to make or to teach war again. This is Christianity's task—her first task tonight, this very hour.

I am asked what the churches shall do for their returned soldiers. First: Give them the gospel of Jesus Christ that saves from sin which makes war. The first duty of the churches, yesterday, today, forever, is to preach repentance and faith as necessary for soldier and civilian, president and unknown citizen. Give him Christ in his inner heart. That is the first thing. Spare no effort to do this. Christ intelligently housed in his soul will solve his every problem of society, of commerce, of home. Show me the rich man who in his own heart does not put a true spirit above his every possession and who would barter an unsifted conscience for a clear title to a million times his assets. Show me the statesman of winning personality, the statesman of growing fame and I will show you that he is a man who puts Christ in the heart above every thought or wish. Who has made the world rejoice in the hope of freedom for these past few years? Lloyd George, a noble church-going Christian, a faithful stand-pat Baptist, who says he would "thrice die before he would sacrifice one principle of right." Woodrow Wilson, a blue-stocking Presbyterian, who goes twice to God's house every Lord's day, and preaches the gospel of Jesus Christ as the world's only hope; Clemenceau, and Joffre and, first in the heart of every warrior, Foch, the man of prayer.

What can the church do for the returned soldier? Give him a new warfare more glorious than the battle he has won. What was the soldier fighting in Europe? We pitched our campaign against a throne beyond Berlin; we were aiming at the gates of hell, though less consciously than we ought. Have you read the letters of Eugene Casalis, that brave French lad who died on the first step of his trench in the second year of the war? He was a Christian in all that holy name implies. "To think," said he, "that I am about to do ALL that a man may do—lay down his life for his ideals. I had hoped to live for them. I had expected to do much in their propagation.

Welcome Address

For the Home Coming of Floyd County's Soldiers and Sailors April 22, 1919, by Hon. A. J. May.

HON. A. J. MAY.

Dr. Chairman, Soldiers and Sailors, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I appreciate this honor of extending to our returning soldiers and sailors, the glad hand of friendship and bidding them welcome on behalf of the people, for whose glory and freedom they have fought and made sacrifices.

As they come to us victorious and triumphant from the field of carnage and blood, they come as noble sons of a great Commonwealth, of a mighty Nation, whose flag, beautiful beyond expression, is even more glorious than beautiful. On this momentous occasion I would neither be true to my convictions or to my country did I not recall some of the history and achievements of the soldiers and sailors of other days.

The Anglo-Saxon heroes, that spurred the heel of oppression and resisted the temptations of luxury and ease, to found a nation amid hardships and misfortune, laid the foundation of this nation upon the rock of eternal right and justice, and those who come after them have ever proven themselves worthy of their noble sires.

For more than a hundred years it has been the delight of orators and statesmen to dwell upon the victories of the armies of peace, because we have been a nation of peace loving people, but when the day of strife came as it often has this nation has never faltered and its magnificent armies have been brave and true. It was the glory of Washington and his continental armies, that they suffered and fought in freedom's cause, and from the day when Cornwallis followed by a powerful army of well clothed, well armed and well fed soldiers, surrendered his sword to Washington at the head of a small band of half starved, half clad, but indomitable patriots, America's fighting men have been honored to the uttermost parts of the world.

When Napoleon the Great, the world's greatest military genius, gathered behind him the legions of France and by force and murder trampled bleeding Poland under foot and with drawn sword stood at the field of Waterloo, it was the brave armies of England and her allies that met, conquered and crushed his spirit and sent him a miserable exile to the lonely shores of St. Helena.

When secession arose and swept like a dark storm cloud over this fair land of ours it was the sons of the heroes of our revolution of 1776 that clashed swords and waged four years of terrible war, and yet when Robert E. Lee the plumed knight of our own beloved

South surrendered his sword and his crushed but unconquered followers acknowledged defeat, the world stood in wonder and admiration of the greatness of Grant when he refused to receive his sword.

Again in 1898, when treacherous and cowardly Spain with murderous intent invaded the peaceful seas and sent crashing to the bottom of the sea one of our ships laden with American sailors, this militant republic rose like an enraged lion to the combat. The Mason and Dixon line was forever obliterated, and from every nook and corner of this land came the cry, "To Arms!" and in remembrance of the dignified and cowardly deed by which American lives had been destroyed, Spanish tyranny was forever obliterated from this continent and Cuba the beautiful Isle of the sea beckons to us as the author of her liberty. In that hour of peril, Joe Wheeler and Fitzhugh Lee laid aside the gray uniform of the old army and clad in the blue uniform marched side by side with Theodore Roosevelt and Nelson A. Miles; Dewey and Schley and Sampson sailed the seas and fought beneath the same flag, and the Stars and Stripes, true to their victorious record of the past, floated triumphantly over land and sea, the emblem of an united nation that stands today colossal and great, the champion of the oppressed of all the earth, Conqueror and born of liberty, it stands majestic and erect while empires are crumbling into dust. Who shall set a limit upon the possibilities of a nation so great? A nation whose flag has never covered in defeat; that has breathed grown and wrought in the path of the just and has become as a shining light that shineth more and more into the perfect day.

Proud of its victories of peace no less renowned than its triumphs of war, we came to the crucial hour in the golden age of 1917, and when forbearance ceased to be a virtue, and the honor of our flag was again involved, there came from a million patriotic graves the summons of Washington and Lee and Lincoln and Grant, to the defense of the nation at whose altar they had bowed, and from the fields and factories, from the valleys and hills, came heroes in khaki. No longer did the cheerful response of four million fearless and daring men in gray grapple in deadly combat with the hero in blue; no longer did the rebel of the South with bayonet and gun knock at the door of the nation's capital, in mad revenge; no longer were human souls

BANQUET

One of the most pleasant affairs of the season, and one of the swiftest banquets it was ever our pleasure to enjoy, was given last Saturday night to twenty-five business and professional men of Prestonsburg by County Chairman B. F. Combs. Notices had been sent out several days in advance, but few persons seemed to realize just what was in store for those who accepted or what would be missed by those who declined. Great praise is due the Hotel Elizabeth and its popular proprietor R. C. Mink for the attractive and bounteous spread. Many said it was the prettiest table they ever saw. The banquet consisted of two kinds of meat, turkey with dressing, and fresh ham; fruit and potato salad; cheese, deviled and boiled eggs, pickles and olives, coffee, tea, grape juice, bread and crackers, lettuce, oranges and bananas, with plenty of best cream. The banquet was given by the Chamber of Commerce and Attorney Combs acting as hostmaster stated the object of the banquet was to arrange committees to take Floyd county over the top in this fifth and Victory Loan. After a brief and interesting address he asked for expressions from those present. Judge A. T. Patrick, G. P. Archer, W. W. Williams, A. J. May, Rev. William Dingus, A. C. Harlowe, J. D. Smith, and R. T. Johnson made addresses, all pledging their loyal support to Uncle Sam in this time of need.

HENRY C. HALE SERIOUSLY SICK

The many friends of Henry C. Hale will be pained to read the following telegram. He is reported seriously ill. His brother Esquire James Hale has gone to North Carolina to be with him. Gov't O'Brien, N. C.

Geo. Hale, Goodloe, Ky. Your son Henry C. Hale seriously ill this hospital with pulmonary tuberculosis. L. YLSTER, Commanding.

PUBLIC SCHOOL BUILDING SOLD

The old public school building was sold at auction Monday afternoon at one o'clock to the highest bidder. The bidding was sharp and spirited and continued until Master Commissioner S. C. Ferguson knocked it off to W. H. Jones of this city for $366. It was the general opinion that Mr. Jones paid all it was worth. He has twenty days to remove the building from the premises. It has been the long hope of many good citizens of Prestonsburg to have this beautiful and spacious lot converted into a public park. Nothing outside of paved streets and adequate water works would add more to the comfort of our people both young and old. It is hoped and believed that this is the first step in that direction. "Let all the people say Amen."

REGISTER AT THE POST HOLE!

ALL SOLDIERS AND SAILORS ARE REQUESTED TO REGISTER AT THE POST HOLE TODAY IN ORDER THAT A COMPLETE LIST OF THE FLOYD COUNTY BOYS WHO SERVED IN THIS WORLD WAR MAY BE OBTAINED FOR THE ARCHIVES OF THE COUNTY. BE SURE TO REGISTER AS THE COUNTY HAS NO RECORD OF OUR BOYS WHO SERVED.

Miss Hazel Estep of Garrett, Ky., who has been the attractive guest of Mrs. Edith Goble of Court Street expects to return to her home this week.

Nature Trails

By RUFUS M. REED

Let's all resolve to eat more wild plants, to can and preserve more wild fruits and make more jams and jellies. Nature has provided us with an abundance of good things to eat, which we can gather for food and help to bring down the high cost of living and make us healthier, to boot.

Food prices have become outrageous; eating meats is now out of the question for low-income families. But would't we all be better off to eat less meat and get our proteins from nature's larder. By banning meats, we can soon bring down high prices and take a pot-shot at the food profiteers. Look what Mother Nature has provided for us—the greatest list of health-giving foods known! There are the wild berries of many kinds. Luscious raspberries are so good and nutritious. We can eat them raw or cooked; we can preserve them in cans for future use. Wild raspberry tea was one of the favorite drinks of the Indians. Don't forget that the Indians lived in the days before such things as supermarkets were heard of and they "lived off the land," grew strong braves who could hike 60 miles without tiring.

Take the wild blackberries—one of the most delicious foods found in nature. They can be put in jars for keeping, or made into jams and jellies. A cordial made from blackberry juice was once considered the best remedy for flux. There are the wild serviceberries (sarvis), which ripen in June. They were also highly prized as food by the Indians, who mixed them with buffalo meat to make a nutritious food called "pemican."

Consider also the wild grapes and muscadines, which make delicious jams and jellies and are good eating as found. Then consider the roots of many wild plants. There are the tubers of artichokes, which may be boiled or baked, or put in soups and stews. The crisp tubers make delightful pickles. Jerusalem artichokes, as the books call them, grow wild in our region and are commonly found along river banks in rich, moist soils. They are members of the Sunflower family.

Consider also the wild plants suitable for making greens. We should eat more of these which are rich in vitamins and minerals. The ones bearing beautiful flowers should not be picked; those are made to feed the soul, not the body.

First come the crisp young shoots of poke, which may be cooked with plantain for greens or canned for winter use. The young shoots may also be cooked with yellow dock and "speckled John" ("wild beet," to the sallet-pickers). Tender poke shoots are ready for eating in latter April. They are good, fried in butter or stewed for sallet.

Consider the lowly plantain. It makes a delicious "mess" of greens and is highly nutritious. Don't consider it a pest but pick it to eat. The Indians had more than a hundred uses for the lowly plantain which we too often despise. They used it as a cure for gout; they drank plantain tea for liver trouble; they used plantain leaves to bind on snakebites and as a dressing for wounds and cuts. Old settlers called plantain the "soldier's herb," and used it as a kindney medicine. The Indians claimed, "If drunk in a brew, the powdered leaves of plantain will kill worms of the belly."

There are the dandelion and curly dock, so rich in Vitamin A, proteins and minerals. Curly dock should be cooked with other greens to take away its coarseness. The bitterness of the dandelion leaves may be removed by cooking them and draining off the water, then cooking a second time. The yellow flowers can be fried and eaten or can be used to make a delicious wine.

There is the common daisy fleabane, which some call "white top." It grows all over the place and becomes a pest, yet it makes excellent greens when cooked. The Indians used it as a tonic and stimulant, also to cure sore throat. Doctors once used a decoction of fleabane for treating diarrhea.

Origin And Importance of Hogs Goes Back To Primordial Age

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

The hog has been given credit for being the smartest animal on the farm. Whether or not this be true is something that must be left for animal psychologists to debate. One thing, however, is certain: as a domesticated animal, it has been around long enough to assimilate a lot of knowledge. A member of the Suidae, or pig family, and having its origins in the misty primordial swamps of Europe and Asia, it has a long and interesting history.

According to M. D. Whiteker, UK Extension professor of animal sciences, ancestors of today's fine porkers ranged the swamps of the Old World 40 million years ago and, in all probability, have served as an important food source for man since 25,000 years B. C.

There is also little doubt that, taken on a long-range, world-wide scale, there has never been a meat animal of greater importance in the course of human development than the hog, Whiteker points out. Down through human history the hog has been associated with man. As another authority on the animal wrote, it is no exaggeration to state that the "energy, initiative, courage, strength, and resistance to fatigue and hardship displayed by colonizers, pioneers, and explorers of the past have been due in great part to their liberal use of pork for food."

A veritable packing plant on legs and probably more prolific than any other domesticated mammal except the rabbit, the hog was first brought to the New World on the second voyage of Columbus in 1493. Eight pigs were released in Cuba but it wasn't until 26 years later that they were introduced to the mainland of North America.

Arriving with DeSoto and Cortez, and thriving in the vast forests of this new land, the pigs of these explorers multiplied rapidly, spread out, and in 1840 it was reported that, in the woods of Tennessee alone, there were three million head of hogs, mostly wild.

Hogs were also brought to North America by early English settlers and, in succeeding years, they followed closely on the heels of the tide of empire and manifest destiny. Now they are ubiquitous around the world, a meat animal of inestimable worth.

The modern hog, usually gentle and easy-going, is a far cry from its earlier ancestors. These old-timers were long-legged, long-snouted, heavy-shouldered, short-joined, light-hammed, hardy and independent creatures, vicious as rattlesnakes and short-tempered fighters without peer. The difference, according to Whiteker, is a result of long experimentation and cross breeding but he adds that, left to its own devices, a modern hog will soon retrogress back to its former state. The famous razorback that once roamed the woodlands of Kentucky and which, according to old-time hunters, could whip its weight in wildcats, outrun a deer, and crawl through a stovepipe, is one good example.

'Sportsman's Gift' Wins Film Award

Frankfort, Ky.—A Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources motion picture, "The Sportsman's Gift," has been selected the top film in the Outdoor Writers Association of America annual Film Awards program.

Selection of "The Sportsman's Gift" for OWAA's "Four-Star" rating was made at the North American Wildlife and Natural Resources Conference in Washington, D. C. early last week following a preview of the four films chosen by the judging panel to be most outstanding among the 20 entries.

The film, produced and filmed for the fish and wildlife agency by Karl H. Maslowski Cincinnati with the narration by George Laycock, also of Cincinnati, shows some of the education and recreational opportunities other than hunting and fishing which are available to the public on Kentucky wildlife management areas. It was titled "The Sportsman's Gift" because the areas are financed by license fees and taxes on sporting equipment rather than by general tax funds and are thus "gift" to the public from Kentucky sportsmen.

Charles B. Lykins

Charles B. Lykins, 63, of Celina, O., died recently in Van Wert County Hospital. He was born June 26, 1909, in Morgan county, the son of Shelby and Florence Smith Lykins, and formerly resided in Floyd county. He is survived by his widow, Harriet; three sons, Charles and Fred Lykins, both of Findlay, O., and Quentin Lykins, St. Marys, O.; two daughters, Bonnie Stone Chicago; and Mrs. Merrill Hole, Celina; one brother, Roy Lykins, St. Marys, and 15 grandchildren.

He was a member of the Baptist Church and was a retired Mercer county highway department employe.

Burial was in the Oakland Baptist Church cemetery at Kitts Hill, Ohio.

Mrs. Rennie Hall

Mrs. Rennie Hall, of Tram, who is believed to have been the county's oldest resident, died Wednesday at her home at the age of 104 after an extended illness.

Born November 12, 1868 at Beaver, she was the daughter of the late Tom and Peggy Newsome Hamilton. She was twice married—first, to Green Newsome, who preceded her in death in 1921, and then to Drew Hall, who died in 1955.

Surviving are three sons, Lee Hall, of Tram, Bert Hall, of Galveston, and Raleigh Newsome, of Ligon; two daughters, Mrs. Emma Newsome, of Michigan, and Mrs. Menda Adkins, of Galveston; one brother, Sy Hamilton, of Maryland; 47 grandchildren and 21 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday at 10 a.m. at the home of her son, Bert Hall, with ministers of the Regular Baptist church officiating. Burial was made in the Tackett Fork cemetery at Beaver under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Roger Lee Stowers

Roger Lee Stowers, 22, of Warsaw, Ind., husband of former Martin resident, Cheryl Meade Stowers, was instantly killed Saturday in an auto wreck at Warsaw.

A native of Bluefield, W. Va., he was the son of Sara Elizabeth Moore Stowers Robinson, of Prestonsburg, and the late Monroe Stowers.

Surviving, other than his mother and widow, are his stepfather, Homer Robinson, of Prestonsburg; two brothers, Gilbert Ray Stowers, of Chicago, Illinois, Kelly Monroe Stowers, with the U. S. Air Force, in England; one half-sister, Miss Betty Joe Robinson, of Prestonsburg; one half-brother Randy Robinson, of Prestonsburg; four stepbrothers, James Robinson, of Greenville, Tenn., Robert, and Charles Robinson, both of Coalwood, W. Va., and Ronald Robinson, of Gary, Ind.; three stepsisters, Mrs. Kathryn Richison, of Dayton, O., Mrs. Florine Hadley, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. Dorothy Wade, of Arlington, Texas.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. at the Carter Funeral Home Chapel, with the Revs. Moses Kitchen and Albert Fredricks officiating. Burial was made in the Richmond cemetery here.

Olga Wells Porter

Olga Wells Porter, 58, of East Point, died Sunday morning at Paintsville hospital.

A daughter of the late Evan and Ruth Wells, she was born at Auxier in 1914. She was preceded in death by three children and a brother.

Survivors include the husband, Eddie Porter; 14 children; a brother, Leflie Wells Harmon, and a half brother, in Proctorville, Ohio.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at 2 p.m. at the East Point Church of Christ. Burial was made in the home cemetery there.

Mrs. Lillie C. Miller

Mrs. Lillie Conley Miller, 71, of Prestonsburg, died Sunday at the Highlands Medical Center here after an extended illness.

Born October 26, 1901 at Oil Springs, Ky., she was a daughter of the late George and Merica Gullett. She was a member of the Church of the Nazarene.

Surviving are her husband, Rev. Jonas Miller, of Prestonsburg; two sons, William E. and Lloyd Miller, both of Prestonsburg; one daughter, Mrs. Lloyd G. Fraley, of Ashland; one brother, Bruce Conley, of Piketon, Ohio; four sisters, Mrs. Goldie Prestons, of Salyersville, Mrs. Nollie Howard, Burning Fork, Ky. Mrs. Linnie Thomas, of Lebanon, O., and Mrs. Estia Lykins, of West Liberty; four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday at 10 a.m. at the First United Methodist church, with the Revs. William Coop and W. D. Jagers officiating. Burial will be made in the Rose Hill cemetery, Ashland, under the direction of the Floyd Funeral Home.

NEW DEPARTMENT

Gov. Wendell Ford has announced another major step in the reorganization of state government with the creation of a new Department of Transportation. The agency consolidates the Departments of Highways, Motor Transportation and Aeronautics, as well as certain other programs formerly in the departments of Public Safety and Revenue. The Governor named Elijah M. Joggie, former commissioner of Motor Transportation, as secretary for the new department. Governor Ford also appointed James E. Gray as commissioner of the Bureau of Highways; Ralph Coffman, administrator of the new Executive Department of Staff Services; and B. Arnold, commissioner of the Bureau of Vehicle Regulation.

Monoxide Is Fatal To War II Veteran

Benton Eugene Ray, 51-year-old Abbott man, was found dead in his automobile Saturday morning of the Left Fork of Abbott Creek. Death was attributed to carbon monoxide poisoning.

Ray's car had apparently slipped into a ditch as he attempted to turn at the residence of Fred Howe, and fumes from the idling engine overcame him. A local resident, Malcolm Brown, Sr., discovered the body at about 7 a.m.

A son of Jeannette Conley Ray, of the Left Fork of Abbott section, and the late Gilbert Edward "Gib" Ray, he was born February 26, 1922. Mr. Ray was a veteran of World War II and a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Survivors, besides his mother, include two sons, Phillip Eugene and Danny Samuel Ray, both of Goshen, Indiana; four brothers, Beekle Ray, Abbott road, William Cletis Ray, of Louisville, Estill Ray, of Wellston, Ohio, and Ermine Ray, of Lewisburg, Ohio, and three sisters, Oma Spradlin, Abbott road, Opal Spradlin, Ada, Ohio, and Deloris LeMaster, of Allen. Also surviving are two granddaughters.

Funeral services were conducted Monday at 2 p.m. at the home, the Revs. Bruce Spencer and Lowell Pelphrey officiating. Burial was made in the Ray family cemetery on Abbott under the direction of the Carter Funeral Home.

Elihan (Tena) Hall

Funeral rites for Elihan (Tena) Hall, 71, who died March 7 at his home at Topmost after an extended illness, were conducted the following Saturday from Providence Regular Baptist Church there.

Mr. Hall was a native of Dry Creek, Knott county, and was a son of the late Andy and Susie Isaac Hall. He was a miner for 35 years and was a member of Local Union 5899 and of the Regular Baptist Church.

His survivors are his widow, Mrs. Lona Caudill Hall, of Topmost; five sons and seven daughters, Jonal Hall, of Topmost, Lawrence Hall, Schaumburg, Ill., Clarence Hall, Taylor, Mich., Russell and Freddie Hall, both of Elyria, O., Mrs. Ocia Smith, Wichita, Kans., Mrs. Socie Osborne, of Dema, Mrs. Lucy Hicks and Mrs. Daisy Hicks, both of Taylor, Mich., Ms. Norma Bergeron and Mrs. Nadine Thornsburg, both of Elyria, O., and Mrs. Joanna Collins, Indianapolis, Ind.; three brothers, Reuben Hall, Littcarr, Ky., Maryland Hall, of Dry Creek, and Dow Hall, of Bypro. He also leaves 38 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

Burial was in the Dry Creek cemetery, the Merion Funeral Chapel directing.

Richard Hurt

Richard Hurt, 68, died March 17 at his home at Weeksbury of a sudden illness.

A retired miner, he was a native of Johnson county and was a son of the late Joseph and Melissa Franklin Hurt. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Virgie Johnson Hurt, of Weeksbury; three daughters and three sons, Mrs. Norma Hamilton, Sterling, O., Mrs. Ladene Little, Groveton, Ga., Miss Deborah Hurt, Terry Lynn, Jerry Lee and Douglas Edward Hurt, all of Weeksbury, and two grandchildren.

The funeral was held March 20 from the residence, Charles Garrison and Vernon White officiating. Burial was made in the H. M. Johnson cemetery at Speight, Ky., under direction of the Merion Funeral Chapel.

Health Board To Ask Longer for Planning

The planning grant made to the now-dormant Floyd County Comprehensive Health Services is due to expire next month unless it is renewed, and a similar group operating in the Knott-Letcher-Perry-Leslie section of Eastern Kentucky has been shaken by the resignation of five top officers.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said here Saturday that the Floyd comprehensive health board met last Thursday night and, at the suggestion of OEO representative, Joseph Smith, decided to ask an extension of from six to twelve months of the time needed for reorganization, the naming of a director and preparation of a workable program.

The board has met infrequently here and the planning work has been at a standstill for months. Judge Stumbo emphasized the need for the board to get to work without farther delay if an extension of the grant term is made.

If the extension is not granted, the health program in this county may be dead. It broke up, months ago, in dissension beginning at the local level and developing into differences between the health board and OEO. A new board was formed, consumer representatives were chosen by vote of consumers, Dr. W. P. McElwain, state commissioner of health, became chairman of the board—but since that time little has been done toward putting together a program that is acceptable to OEO.

In the four Kentucky river counties where a shakeup took place a former Floyd countian, Ike Vanderpool, resigned the $16,000-a-year post of director. His and other resignations followed administrative disagreements between board and staff and among board members themselves.

Others who resigned included Peter Dueck, director of training, whose salary was $11,000 a year; Pat Morgan, personnel director, $10,500; Helen Stewart, executive secretary, $8,000; Marshal Jarnigan, chairman of the board and unsalaried representative of the consumer group; Dr. Edward Handwerger, a New York dental surgeon who has served the agency since last September as director of health services at a salary of $32,000 a year.

(Vanderpool, who is 31, is a former resident of the Emma vicinity of this county and is a survivor of the Floyd county school bus disaster. He is a graduate of Berea College.)

Mrs. Lois Baker of Whitesburg, the agency's $12,000-a-year director of purchasing and transportation, was chosen by the board after the mass resignations to serve as acting director, until a new director can be hired.

All vacancies will be advertised immediately in line with agency rules in hopes of building a new staff as soon as possible, according to new MCHC chairman, T. M. Manns of Larksville, in Knott County.

Manns, 65, a retired coal miner, said he was "shocked" at the mass resignations but said the board is committed to moving the program forward by using as many local people as possible and depending on professionals for technical advice.

The officers expressed cautious optimism about the program's future, with outgoing members blaming the agency's problems on "factionalism" among board members and those remaining promising a new "open door" policy of local control rather than control by "outsiders."

An official of the U. S. Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) Office of Health Affairs in Washington said the remaining staff and board will be expected to furnish specific plans for the future before it can be refinanced.

An agency request for a $1.2 million operating grant is now being reviewed by OEO and officials remaining with the program were summoned to Washington earlier this week to explain why the program should be funded another year in view of the current controversy.

The program, which began in the spring of 1971 with a $500,000 planning grant and received a $1 million continuation grant last year, now operates a community health center at Wootton in Leslie county which serves 1,000 indigent local residents.

It also operates a community kitchen in Letcher county that serves about 150 hot meals a day to elderly and indigent persons.

Next year's budget, if the program is refinanced, calls for comprehensive health centers in Knott and Letcher counties which, like the Wootton center, would be staffed with dentists nurses, home health aides, nutritionists and free speciality service for patients in area hospitals.

The program, when in full operation, is designed to provide models for rural health care and would serve about 5,000 patients in the four counties, officials said.

Sources said the festering controversy came to a head during two days of special board meetings March 14-15 after director Vanderpool told the board he would resign if it did not fire Dr. Handwerger, the health service's director.

A majority of the board refused to fire Handwerger and Jarnigan, Morgan Dueck and Mrs. Stewart resigned along with Vanderpool.

The board earlier had refused to accept Vanderpool's recommendation that William Dann of Nome, Alaska, be hired as temporary agency administrator under a six-month consultant contract. Under the contract, Dann would have received $100 a day, plus time and a half for overtime, plus moving and travel expenses from Alaska.

Vanderpool said Dann would have been the best man for the job and had been approved unanimously by the board's personnel committee.

Vanderpool said the agency's refusal to fire Handwerger, who he said was "incompetent," and hire Dann represented a "lack of faith" in the staff, thereby forcing his resignation.

Vanderpool, who majored in English at college and has had no previous experience in health affairs, said the agency's progress had been slowed by "bickering and political factions" among the board members and said the agency cannot move forward until the board solves its own problems.

Handwerger, who was offered the directorship of the program by a 9-to-6 vote of the board, refused when he could not get unanimous approval, officials said.

Handwerger said yesterday that the program is "solid" in its approach to health care and explained that he is leaving the program after seven months because of strong feelings that the program should be organized and operated by "local talent."

Health Department To Begin Screening Program

The Floyd County Health Department will begin its first KMAP-Early Screening and Diagnostic Program May 1-2. Children through age five will be examined during this screening and the program will include:

Height and weight to be recorded and compared for growth and development; physical inspection to observe for obvious physical defects; inspection of ears, nose, mouth, teeth, and throat; visual screening-Snellens Chart; hearing Screening-Audiometric testing; urinalysis; screening for anemia, (hemoglobin) including sickle cell when indicated; tuberculin test-Mantoux; immunization assessment and updated if necessary.

A medical report, MA-F004, will be completed when treatment and/or additional diagnostic services is indicated and taken to the family physician by the patient, or other responsible person, at the time of the referral visit. When the physician's referral has been completed and returned to the health department, follow-up services will be provided as indicated.

sameness that afflicts most of civilization. Most of these errancies of speech go back, 'way back, to the Old Country.

I have always insisted (although I could just possible be wrong) that the word, "fermest," which was once heard and understood here as meaning "opposite," comes directly from the English bent to elision or slurring of whole syllables. So it is that I call'te that "fermest" graduated from the English "over against."

In this fashion my mother, for one, used to say that it was "porth while" to do this or that. As any fool can plainly see, "porth while" is a clipped off way of saying, "poor worthwhile."

ADIEU, VALE, FAREWELL!

They hauled away the old press this week, the one which had served us—clatter, clank and pound—since the close of World War II till about two years ago for the printing of this newspaper. As I watched a truck roll down the street with it I had the feeling of watching a hearse leave for the cemetery.

This was one of several newspaper presses I've known during the years. It was an old Goss letterpress which printed eight pages and when we used it first, converting over from an ancient four-page Babcock cylinder job, it was a marvel of efficiency. We ran it slowly, so slowly, at first, feeling our way, and I'll never forget the day Jim Goble turned the thing on, full speed, for the first time. It was reeling 'em off at 3,500 an hour—imagine!

All these presses had their peculiarities—you might say, idiosyncrasies. But the first had personality. Old Dave, Printer Goble called this fugitive from a junkyard. But the old press was dependable, slow, very slow, but sure. The Prestonsburg Post was printed on it for years before The Floyd County Times got into the picture.

This was the old press which, one night, was rolling along when somebody dropped a wooden mallet on the type form. But there was something of the steeplechaser in Old Dave. As the big roller approached the barrier created by the mallet he didn't even perk an ear. The roller simply jumped the mallet and went on about its business.

I've waited a long while to lament the late, departed presses in my life, but things themselves supply an excuse. They've been right pressing.

BABY CHRISTENED

At the morning service of the First United Methodist Church Kelly Elizabeth Langford, two-month-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Norris McCormick Langford, Jr., of Louisville, was christened by the Rev. Howard Coop. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Rebecca Haywood sang "Suffer Little Children To Come Unto Me," accompanied by Mrs. Chalmer Frazier. Godparents, were Dr. and Mrs. Roger Ewing, Louisville. The grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Collins, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Norris McCormick Langford, Johnson City, Tenn., were present. A red rose on the pulpit honored the baby.

SCHEDULE MEMORIAL SERVICE

The United States Daughters of 1812, Kentucky Society, will have the spring meeting March 28, at 11 a.m. in the Stephen Foster Room at the Phoenix Hotel, Lexington. The speaker, Mrs. James W. Thornton, will review "The Squire's Sketches of Lexington," by J. Winston Coleman. A memorial service for Mrs. Claudia F. Leete will be held. Attending the meeting will be Mrs. Everett H. Sowards, historian, Mrs. Claude P. Stephens, Mrs. B. F. Combs, Mrs. Stanley Combs and Mrs. Sallye L. Clark.

Mrs. Susan Elliott, but hearing of the case has been postponed.

While enlargement of the campus remains an unsettled issue, beautification of the existing campus is under way. Dr. Henry A. Campbell, director of the college, said this week.

This work, which includes the planting of roses, evergreens and other flowers and shrubs, is being done by college maintenance employees after a contractor had failed in two attempts at landscaping and campus beautification.

Work done by the contractor at a cost of about $40,000 has been 90 percent unsuccessful, Dr. Campbell said. "We're still digging up dead trees and bushes," he added.

The first campus beautification was undertaken by the contractor in the summer of 1970. Few shrubs and flowers survived. A second attempt last year by the same contractor, under a new contract, was a complete failure, it was said.

Dr. Campbell said the college will appreciate any roses and evergreens which any individual or firm may want to donate toward completion of the beautification project.

ORDER NEW CRUISERS

Gov. Wendell Ford and Public Safety Commissioner Ron Johnson have made arrangements to place 361 new state police cruisers on Kentucky highways by July 1. The Governor said such a large order was necessary to fill a serious shortage of adequate state police vehicles and to return to a reasonable replacement schedule.

Her Art Is Eggary

Mrs. Wilford Slough, Wabash, Ind. housewife who is a native of this county was recently featured on the cover page of the magazine section of The Chronicle Tribune, Marion, Ind. daily newspaper.

Mrs. Slough, mother of three, is an artist and her "canvas" is eggs. With great patience and craftsmanship she transforms eggs of all sizes into works of art. She not only decorates eggs with her deft touch but creates in them tiny doors and peoples their interior with miniature figures.

Mrs. Slough is the former Mary Lee Triplett, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Triplett, of Garrett, and the late W. L. Triplett. She was graduated from high school at Garrett.

Eggary is an ancient art dating back to 722 B. C. in China.

Ford Names Pryor Cabinet Secretary

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Gov. Wendell Ford has named Charles Pryor, Jr. as secretary of the cabinet and commission of the Department of Finance and Administration.

Pryor replaces Donald E. Bradshaw, who resigned to return to his former position as vice-president of Dupree and Company, Lexington.

The new cabinet secretary is a native of McCracken county, a graduate of Murray State University and a former mayor of Sturgis, Union County. He took the oath of office as commissioner of Highways on December 7, 1971.

The governor named Robert Bond as acting commissioner of highways, to replace Pryor.

Governor Ford paid tribute to Bradshaw for a "job well done" and termed his leaving "a great loss."

Of Pryor, the governor said, "When I appointed him people asked 'Who's Charlie Pryor?' but in 15 months the people have learned who he is."

Pryor said, "I look forward to the challenge of getting into another major branch of state government, the Executive Department of Finance and Administration, and to coordinating Governor Ford's Cabinet, once the cabinet has been finally determined under the reorganization which is being formulated."

ALC Alumni Hold First of Floyd Dinners

The Alice Lloyd College Alumni Association sponsored its first dinner of this year in Floyd county at the Clark Elementary School Sunday, March 25. Over fifty people from the county, as well as several staff members from the college, attended the dinner.

Many enjoyed seeing, again, the television production "This is Your Life" series depicting the founding of the college by Mrs. Alice Lloyd in 1916, and its growth and service to mountain people.

Dr. Lowell Martin, president of the association, indicated that three other dinners are to be held in this county in the near future. Places for these dinners are Osborne School, Harold School and Stumbo School. Dates will be announced shortly.

Gene Stone, Director of Alumni Affairs at the college, indicated that the purpose of the dinners are two-fold: to raise money for the association's activities, and to update names and addresses of the college alumni.

The dinner at Clark School was planned and conducted by Nadine Hicks, Pauline Hicks, Sarah Lavens, Alma Wells, and John K. Pitts. Assisting them as college friends were Hazel Shepherd and Darcus Fannin.

The demand for medical record technicians with two-year associate degrees is expected to expand dramatically in the 1970's.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Safari to Surgery

I am recently out of a nine-day adventure with an old operation and a new surgeon, a new anesthetist, new nurses, new helpers of every sort, and cooks (I imagine) both old and new. I hardly see how they could get along without some of my precious friends of other days in that line locally.

I am simply overwhelmed with Highlands Regionals Medical Center,—our new hospital especially for our five-county area, with specializations commanding a far wider range, is simply wonderful. I was alerted to wonder at the start; and I have not ceased. The slogan of a well-known insurance company, "You are in Safe Hands," is true of this already great hospital with its down-to-now competence and equipment and service.

And the spirit of that services!—everywhere, in all phases, with both sexes, in all grades of advancement from beginners to specialist and our gracious Big Boss, the Superintendent, Chalmer Frazier. And I understand that he has just the "Wright" person as chief assistant, Gene Wright. Those twin sons of Henry and Virginia Wright! Normal, fine lads they were!—but bright and ambitious; and they never missed life's main drive. Hence they are arriving! Ballard Wright was one of my associated specialists.

Now my own specialist in this safari, Ernest C. Holbrook. Better watch him a little. He will do you good—as he did me—in fact and in spirit.

And back of it all, our splendid family physician and our forcefully effective mayor, Dr. George Archer.

I must mention the anesthetist, a new one to me indeed. Upon her welcome visit preceding the operation when I wasn't certain of the name I asked, Phillip with "ski" added. She said, "Right!" Mine was a spinal hence I caught much of the procedure; and I realized that she herself was right there as factors and executive every split second.

Again—a thing not immediately connected, but very vital. Mrs. Regan was struggling in an impossibility—teaching as called, visiting "friend" husband, and moving from this upstairs apartment to the completely separate apartment on first floor (order of doctor). Soon after my arrival we were rescued by the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad. They moved most of our heavier furniture down so that Lucy could settle her husband! Other friends and some dear relatives have helped thru this program.

Finally, just to stop a few seconds to glance mentally to the faces of those who have remembered us in prayer, with visits and greetings' errands, and trips with Mrs. Regan to the hospital, and so many helpful deeds. I am the charter chaplain of our Rescue Squad and our Brother Jagers is now squad chaplain. He was a true-hearted chaplain and pastor to me. And our generally beloved and appreciated Brother Bob Martin didn't overlook me. His ministry was definite and deep. I wish I could mention friends among visitors, patients, and workers that deserve it a hundred times over! They are on my heart for thought and loving prayer.

Cub Scout Powwow Slated at Jenkins

Raymond Hammond, Cub Scout chairman for Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, said this week that plans for the annual Cub Scout Powwow are now complete. The event will be held Saturday at Jenkins high school, where The Blue and Gold Banquet will also be held.

The Cub Scout Pow Wow is one of the largest educational events for leaders of 8-9-10 year old boys held annually in Eastern Kentucky and Southwestern Virginia.

Cub Scout experts in handicraft, games, pack administration, den leadership, and staging of the Blue & Gold banquets will share their knowledge and talents with leaders from the Lonesome Pine Council's 40 Cub Scout Packs.

Nine hundred six boys who belong to Cub Scouting within the following counties will benefit from the extensive one-day training events: Floyd, Pike, Martin, Magoffin, Johnson, Letcher, Perry, Breathitt, Leslie, and Knott in Kentucky. Wise, Dickenson, and Buchanan in Virginia.

The Powwow will open at 10 a.m. Saturday with a display of educational and recreational homemade games suitable for home, school, and church. John Ramsey, assisted by the Den Mothers and committee of Pack 73 in Whitesburg, will conduct this session.

Others who will assist with the Powwow are:

Bill Cole, Den Mothers, and Pack committee members of Pack 4 in Big Stone Gap, Virginia;

Mrs. Arthur Leach, of Prestonsburg, with a supply of the latest in Cub Scout literature for sale;

Bruce Lucas, Cubmaster, Den Mothers and Pack committee from Jenkins;

Horace C. VanMeter, Cubmaster, Den Mothers, and Pack committee of Grundy, Va.;

Bill Sears, Den Mothers, and Pack committee of Wise, Va.;

Mrs. Lorraine Price, Den Mother, from Paintsville;

George Chidester, district Scout executive from the Lonesome Pine Council staff.

Each of the 40 packs in the Council will have a display table of their best Cub Scout projects.

Noise, Dust Classes Slated by Bureau

Training Classes on noise and sampling and evaluation of respirable coal mine dust will be conducted by the U. S. Bureau of Mines beginning at 8 a.m. in the conference room at 218 High Street, Pikeville.

The class on noise will be held Tuesday, April 3. Respirable Dust classes will be held Tuesday through Thursday, April 10-12.

Persons interested in attending these classes should contact the U. S. Bureau of Mines District office, Pikeville, Kentucky, Tel. 437-9616.

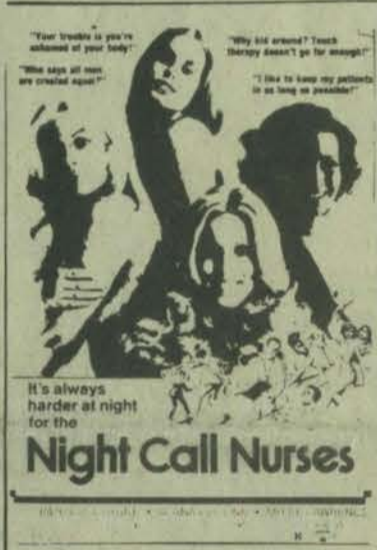

REJECT MORE CONTROL
Voters in Switzerland rejected a government proposed constitutional amendment providing for greater federal control over schools. Although textbooks and the start of the school year vary among districts, Switzerland is traditionally known for the high standard of its schools.

In debating the Equal Rights Amendment to the U. S. Constitution, state labor laws that protect women are no longer an issue. Court decisions interpreting the Civil Rights Act of 1964 have either nullified the laws or extended them to men, according to the U. S. Women's Bureau.

Only 16 Communities in State Apply for Flood Insurance

Frankfort, Ky.—Only 16 Kentucky communities have applied to make their citizens eligible for the National Flood Insurance program, according to George Bernstein, federal insurance administrator for Housing and Urban Development.

Applications have been received from Benton, Cumberland, Harlan, Harlan county, Hazard, Loyal, Middlesboro, Oldham county (unincorporated areas, Lake Louis and Crestwood, Ky.), Perry county (except Hazard), and six areas which comprised Jefferson county.

The private business owner, home owner, corporation, or church cannot receive this insurance unless the request form is filed by the appropriate branch of government.

Jack Goins, flood insurance coordinator for Kentucky, points out that Congress has an amendment presently under consideration which could change the original insurance bill to eliminate any financial aid to persons sustaining damage as a result of flooding in an area, even though it may be subsequently declared a disaster area.

According to Goins, who is also chief examiner of the Property and Casualty Division of the State Department of Insurance, a local government has to submit a request to make its residents eligible for insurance. This request states that the community will rectify the cause of its flooding by some measure such as dredging a creek bed, or building a dam or floodwall. Dredging a ditch would have to be funded by the local government, but larger projects will usually be eligible for federal funds.

When Bernstein receives a request, he notified Goins of the eligibility of a city or county. Next, two surveys are made, one by the Louisville Corps of Engineers and one by the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. These are used to help plan corrective flood prevention measures and supervise project completion. Goins said time tables for project completion are lenient.

Insurance may be secured during the surveys and planning periods.

Once a fiscal court or city government has received flood insurance eligibility, the individual then may contact the firm that is coordinating the flood insurance "pool." In Kentucky this is Continental National Insurance Company. If a local office does not exist, the property owner can go to his personal insurance agent to make his premium payments. The local insurance firm then sends the fees to Continental National.

Should the property be damaged by flooding, Continental National will cover only the actual cost of restoring the property to its condition prior to flooding. In addition, personal property such as clothing and furniture would be covered for value at the time of the flooding.

"We are not getting the response from flood-prone community governments that this program deserves," said Goins, "local governments must fear that because flood insurance is federally related, they will be the ones to eventually foot the bill. This is not so. Flood insurance is an act of Congress and it will take just that to get rid of it. The flooding season is almost upon us. If these local fiscal courts or city governments do not properly request insurance from George Bernstein, their local citizenry will not be able to insure their properties."

The Federal Housing Administration started requiring flood insurance coverage on their property loans on January 1.

NEW ENGLISH PROGRAM

The Russell County Board of Education has adopted a new high school English program for the 1973-74 school year. The curriculum for ninth and tenth grade students is to be focused on grammar, composition and spelling. Eleventh and twelfth grade students are to be offered a phase-elective literature, humanities and composition program.

BANS COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

Two decisions by the Arizona Court of Appeals have prohibited Arizona school boards from entering into binding collective bargaining agreements with unions or teacher groups. The court ruled that state law grants the power to hire teachers, fix salaries and control operations of the school districts only to the school board.

Auditions Scheduled For Summer Theatre

Gary Buttrey, newly appointed general manager for Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, has announced local auditions for positions with the summer theatre company for its 1973 season.

Sunday, April 8, at 3 p.m., he will be at the May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, to audition and interview any who are interested in working with the summer stock company. Persons interested in singing roles should prepare an up tempo song; an accompanist will be provided. Vocal projection and range are of primary importance, he said, since the theatre is out of doors.

Buttrey wishes also to hire musicians interested in musical theatre and costumes and technical crew people for the three-month season. Those who are interested may talk with him April 8 at the May Lodge.

The season this year will consist of three highly successful Broadway musicals, each with specialized needs in casting and musical accomplishment. Each play will have three-week run of 15 performances Wednesday thru Sunday nights.

Volunteer workers are also encouraged to attend the auditions and discuss their availability for the 11-week season.

"The schedule this year promises to be one of the most exciting seasons ever, so plan now to be a part of it," Mr. Buttrey said.

First of the three season offerings will be "1776," June 20-July 8, followed by "Damn Yankees," July 11-29, and "Man of LaMancha," August 1-19.

State Hunting Bag Limits, Seasons Almost Unchanged

Frankfort—Seasons and bag limits for the 1973-74 Kentucky small game season remain virtually unchanged from last year, Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Arnold Mitchell has announced.

As set today by the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission the squirrel hunting season will open the third Saturday in August, the 18th, continue through October 31 and reopen November 15 to continue through December 31. The bag limit will be six, the possession limit 12.

Opening day for rabbit, quail and grouse hunting, always the third Thursday in November, will this year be November 15. The rabbit and quail seasons will continue through January 31 but grouse hunting will be allowed through February 28.

Bag and possession limits are rabbit, six and 12; quail, 10 and 20, and grouse, four and eight.

The furbearers season, which also opens the third Thursday, will open November 15 and continue through January 31. One change in the furbearers regulation was enacted by the commission today and that change will remove the spotted skunk from the list of furbearers which may be harvested. Deletion of the spotted skunk from the list was due to the fact that it is considered an endangered species in Kentucky and is protected by the Kentucky Rare and Endangered Species regulation. The spotted skunk is found only in isolated sections of southeastern Kentucky in contrast to the stripe skunk which is prevalent throughout the state.

Seasons for waterfowl and dove hunting will not be set by the commission until the migratory bird season framework is submitted to the state by the U. S. Department of Interior. This is usually done in mid of late summer. Special seasons for military reservations and other management areas also will be announced at a later date.

Opening day for Kentucky gun deer hunting will be standardized at the first Saturday following the first Thursday in November but the length of the season may vary from year to year, Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Arnold Mitchell announced recently following a meeting of the Fish and Wildlife Commission here.

The first Saturday after the first Thursday this year falls on Nov. 3 and the season will continue through Nov. 7.

Opening dates in subsequent years, according to the standardization, will occur no earlier than the third and no later than the ninth day of November, according to calendar tables, Mitchell said.

Gun deer hunting will be allowed this year in all Kentucky counties except Jackson and Owsley and only bucks, with forked antler or antlers, may be taken. The limit is one deer per year, whether by gun or bow and arrow.

Hunters will be required to wear some visible article of "hunter" orange clothing as a safety factor. In previous years hunters were allowed the choice of red, yellow or orange clothing but hunter safety studies have shown "hunter" orange to be the most effective.

Another change in the gun deer hunting regulation requires all gun hunters who harvest a deer to leave the head attached until the carcass is processed by a locker plant, butcher or hunter. This requirement was made to ease enforcement of the "bucks only" rule.

Archery deer hunting will again this year be permitted throughout the entire months of October and December and either sex deer may be taken by the archers. This season will also be open in all counties except Jackson and Owsley.

BOARD REISSUES BONDS

The Henry County Board of Education has refinanced $770,000 in school construction bonds. The board had two bidders when the bonds were first sold in October, 1970, with the low bid being 7.266 percent.

Compensation Rate Higher in Future

The new workmen's compensation rates recently applied to the coal industry have been termed "ruinous," but they may rise still higher in the future, a group of small-mine representatives were told last week by Insurance Commissioner Harold McGuffey.

The new rates under a 1972 act of the General Assembly are double the old, and at that they may not be enough to pay for the expected flurry of black lung claims, McGuffey said at a meeting in Pikeville of Coal Operators & Associates.

He said an actuary has advised him that the new rates "are very conservative" and may be insufficient.

Deputy Commissioner Ed Fossett warned the operators that the pressure in the 1974 General Assembly will be toward making the coal industry assume an even greater share of the compensation burden.

Until last year, the coal industry didn't pay anything extra in the insurance benefit "pool" despite the fact that most workmen's compensation claims came from black-lung cases in the coal fields.

But now operators must pay 25 per cent of the special fund, and Fossett indicated would be an attempt by other industries to get the coal operators to pay more.

The operators group met to obtain clarification of the 1972 act, which by shifting black lung claims from federal jurisdiction has increased the premium rates tremendously.

(In some states black lung claims are still under federal jurisdiction.)

Big mines formerly paid $20.06 per $100 of payroll for premiums on compensation insurance. The new rate is $43.47.

Small mines used to pay $29.57. They now pay $60.60.

F. M. Burke, president of Coal Operators & Associates, said at the end of the two-hour meeting that "our own salvation is to get enough of a price for coal to stay in business." He said the increased cost ultimately will have to be paid by consumers of electricity.

Every Known Bird In State Described In New UK Volume

Every known Kentucky bird—321 have been reliably recorded in the state—is described in a new book to be published April 6 by the University Press of Kentucky.

Called, "Kentucky Bird: A Finding Guide," the volume is the third in the Kentucky Nature Series published by the University Press, a joint venture by 12 state institutions of higher education, which is headquartered on the University of Kentucky campus at Lexington.

Authors are Roger W. Barbour, UK professor of zoology, Clell T. Peterson, Murray State University professor of English, Delbert Rust, a professional bird photographer, and Herbert E. Shadown and A. L. Whitt, Jr., professors of biology at Western and Eastern Kentucky universities.

The new book provides a guide to selected localities which offer good opportunities for bird finding. The 47 localities were chosen to represent a wide diversity of habitats, from cypress swamps in west Kentucky to Big Black Mountain in east Kentucky.

The authors have provided directions for access, a description of the types of habitat in the different areas, the kinds of birds likely to be found there, and accommodations available to the traveler.

Each bird is described in concise, nontechnical terms, including approximate size, general appearance and characteristic habitat, as well as range and relative abundance over the state. Breeding times, nesting sites and the number and coloration of the eggs are given for those species that nest in Kentucky.

There are 239 color photographs, chosen to depict where possible features of recognition. Cross-references are provided to enable the reader to move quickly between text and photographs.

The jacket design is by Robert James Foote, noted Kentucky painter and UK employee. Foote has won several awards for his book jacket designs.

Photographs for the book were selected from several hundred transparencies made available to the editors by professional and amateur photographers in the state.

The first two books in the University Press' nature series are "A Guide to the Wildflowers and Ferns of Kentucky," and "Amphibians and Reptiles of Kentucky." Forthcoming titles are "Trees and Shrubs of Kentucky," to be published late this year, and "Mammals of Kentucky."

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Arnett are still confined to their home but both are improving.

Earl Edward Webb spent several days last week in Castlewood, Va. on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vale, of Dayton, Ohio were recent houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Clem Martin, of Turkey Creek. While there they were visited by family and friends, among whom were: Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Owens, Sr., of Bevinville, Mrs. Leona Fouts, of Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Owens, Jr. and children, Carolina, Nathaniel and James Walter, Mr. and Mrs. Avery Wiley, all of Prestonsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hoover, of Langley. Sharon Louetta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin, assisted her parents with the entertainment of guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Ramey and Tim, of Alexandria, Ky., spent last week-end here visiting Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ramey and Mr. and Mrs. Thurmal Click and Mr. and Mrs. Clem Martin, of Eastern.

Mrs. George A. Patton was hostess at a birthday dinner Saturday for her husband. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Patton, Jim and Leigh Ann, Mrs. Elizabeth Allen, Mrs. Lucy Patton, Mrs. Effie Post, Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Patton, Tim and Travis, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Halbert, Steven, Elizabeth Ann, Wesley and Stuart, and Jerry Patton.

Ora Bowling is recuperating at his home here after undergoing surgery at UK Medical Center, Lexington.

BIBLE DISTRIBUTION

A suit filed in U. S. District Court seeking to prevent the distribution of Bibles in the Fayette county school system has been dismissed. The suit alleged the distribution of the Bibles would violate the first amendment to the U. S. Constitution and requested both temporary and permanent injunctions to prevent their distribution. The Gideon Society withdrew its offer to distribute the Bibles, and the board withdrew its permission after the suit was filed.

Fat Loss Results In Heart Fund Gain

Weight Watchers members of Kentucky and Southern Indiana gave up 51,965 pounds of fat—more than 25 tons!—to the 1973 Heart Fund and so helped produce a donation of $1,040 to the campaign.

The pounds-lost broke down to an average of 7.4 pounds for every man, woman and child enrolled.

Weight Watchers members in the Prestonsburg area, who meet every Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church, played a prominent role in the "giving." A total of 447 pounds was lost by the class.

Kay and Jim Morrissey, directors of Weight Watchers, volunteered to donate a penny a pound for weight lost in February—"Heart Month." Actually, that amounts to $519.65.

"Because we are so proud of our members and their tremendous accomplishment," Jim said, "Kay and I decided to personally match the members' gift."

PASSES AGE REGULATION

The Henry County Board of Education has passed a regulation stating it will not hire or rehire any personnel (teachers, bus drivers, janitors, cooks, etc.) that have reached the age of 65 before July 1 of any financial year. The policy is to go into effect, next July 1.

Neither rain nor sleet nor gloom of night makes one bit of difference when you're in a 914.

You've got rack-and-pinion steering. The kind of fast-reacting steering system you find in racers.

You've got 4-wheel self-adjusting disc brakes, and independent wheel suspension. Not to mention a 5-speed gearbox, and electronic fuel injection. In other words, you've got confidence.

But you've also got it cozy. A weatherproof fiberglass roof, removable when it's sunny. And a flow-through ventilation system for when it's not.

Bucket seats that hug you like the car hugs the road. That don't just slide back and forth, but tilt up and down for whatever angle is your angle.

And all that legroom up front where the engine isn't.

And all that luggage room, too, with trunks front and back.

In short, you've got yourself a Porsche 914.

And that's a kick. Anytime.

Board of Health To Consider Reaction To Water Supply

Following its recently-established policy of holding public hearings before adopting major regulations, Kentucky's State Board of Health has set Thursday, April 5, as the date for considering public reactions to revised standards for public and semi-public water supplies.

This is the first complete revision of these standards since 1967, according to Nick G. Johnson, director of the Division of Sanitary Engineering.

Those who wish to participate in the 9:30 a.m. (EST) hearing in the State Department of Health Auditorium, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort, should limit oral statements to reasonable lengths.

Lengthy statements should be mailed to the Board, in care of the Commissioner of Health William P. McElwain at least one week before the hearing, or handed to the hearing secretary, April 5.

Copies of the revised regulation, S-ENG-1-2, may be obtained from the Office of the Commissioner, State Department of Health, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Johnson says numerous changes have been made in the regulation. Major revisions:

1. Introduce a definition of "semi-public water supply."
2. Establish a minimum sampling frequency for acceptable bacteriological and chemical surveillance.
3. Require mandatory disinfection of all water supplies serving the public and specify minimum free chlorine residual in distribution systems.
4. Require that public water supply system plans and specifications be prepared by registered professional engineers, and
5. Designate responsibility for meeting provisions of the regulation.

Deep Drilling Lends Some Hope To East Kentucky Oil Production

Salyersville—Although oil production in Magoffin is on the wane from its peak of 2,000,000 barrels produced in 1956 there is a possibility of "things looking up."

Signal Oil and Gas Co. is in the process of drilling a deep hole in Johnson county near Paintsville, and according to Frank Walker, director of the Oil and Gas Division, Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, there are "indications that it will bottom out at 16,000 feet."

Cost of the project is a whopping $1 million, Walker continued, and that's the reason that "very few wells are drilled in deep rock," he said.

Odds on hitting oil are 13-1, Walker noted. "Like 13 to 1 shot on a horse race," he added.

However, if oil is found, the economic climate of Eastern Kentucky could be stimulated considerably. Finding oil in Johnson at such a depth could also affect Magoffin, Lawrence, Boyd, Floyd, and other area counties, because it would be indicative of its presence, even though at a considerable depth.

Walker pointed out that one producing well would not pay for itself, but that other producers drilled around it is where the profit comes from.

This is the only major oil drilling activity in the Magoffin area, although several deep wells are being sunk in Lawrence and Boyd counties in hopes of finding a gusher.

Oil production in Magoffin reached climaxes in two years, Walker noted. It was first found in 1918 in the Oil Springs field, drilled by Bed Rock Petroleum Co. on the Milt Wheeler lease.

In 1922 the boom year, production was more than 1,300,000 barrels. There were 1,049 wells in Oil Springs and 1,000 in other parts of the county.

But in 1956, the oil production industry in Magoffin was resurrected, "and there's one man to thank," Walker continued. "Joe Slagel of Owensboro who now resides in Lexington."

Slagel developed the idea of forces flooding the black "liquid gold" to the surface. "Everybody thought he was crazy," Walker said, "but he wasn't, and the idea worked."

This was in 1951, and it took five years to reach its peak. Slagel was employed by Cumberland Petroleum at that time.

As of Jan. 1, 1973, Magoffin county has produced a total of 31,969,166 barrels of oil since the first gusher. In dollars and cents estimated at an average of $2.75 a barrel it has meant approximately $87,915,206.50.

Walker pointed out it's total production would last the United States only two days, based on current oil and oil products consumption.

The number of producing wells has declined to between 500 and 1,000, Walker said.

The major lessees are Ashland Oil, Wise Oil, Kentucky National Oil Co. and Amax Petroleum.

In the 1940's Cumberland has leased 200 acres in the Oil Springs area with wells producing 7,500 barrels a day. In the 1950 in L. C. Bailey Hollow there was one which produced 540 barrels a day for more than 1 1/2 years.

Turkey banned poppy cultivation and opium production by the end of 1972.

A Mother's Prayer

You stand before me, darling,
So proud, so straight, so tall,
You're telling me you're leaving
You must heed your Country's call.

I would not have you falter,
Or hesitate, my son,
To keep old Glory waving
'Neath God's eternal sun.

May your faith in God ne'er falter,
Though you stumble long life's way;
Remember, God's on foreign soil,
The same as U. S. A.

May He ever guide and direct you
And I evermore do pray,
Have compassion on your brother,
No matter what his creed or race.

For son, we're all God's children,
We're striving each his way
To reach that land eternal,
That land of endless day.

I'll clasp you close once more, dear,
Though my heart's filled with pain;
I whisper, God go with you
Until we meet again.

(I would like to dedicate this poem to all mothers who have sons in the service.)

FOR MAGISTRATE

DEWEY ROBERTS
For MAGISTRATE
In District No. 4 of Floyd County at the Democratic primary, May 22, 1973.
Qualified and Accommodating.

To Everyone In District No. 2:

I am writing this ad for everyone living in Floyd county, especially those who live in District 2. This is concerning the May election. As you all know what kind of a Magistrate you've had for quiet some time—well I'd just consider we've had none myself, but maybe some of you have had help from him, Mr. Zeb Ousley, but I have really found nothing to brag about, because I have tried many times to get him to help me get a way into my house. All I got was a promise of which he lied to me each time. He told my daughter-in-law and me he would have the bulldozer up the next day and make us a road. Well that day hasn't yet come or either I failed to wake up on that day. People, I think he has gone to sleep on his job. Now I think everyone should think of a change for this District. We have a nice, intelligent man that is out for Magistrate and I think we should stand behind him one hundred percent, and make every effort to get him elected. This is Mr. Fair Prater, of Hueysville.

You all know, that you could carry an old knife in your pocket for twelve years, never opening it, and it would be so black and dirty it wouldn't be fit to cut an apple—so why not try a new Magistrate? I can only say I KNOW Zeb Ousley being good for one thing, and that is sing, "Just One Rose Will Do." Well, he might be able to live on a rose but I haven't got to that point as yet. I think we have to have a little food along the way, both natural and spiritual to get by in this life, and I'm sure we get it mostly by serving the people. We sure can't serve God if we don't serve His people. Mr. Ousley once came up and made a road across my place for a man who lives near by me; of course he thought the man owned it, but he does not. I haven't been able to stay all night at my home this winter because the bottle gas company could not get in to fill my tank. I've just had to stay wherever I could drop in, taking my food along. I had lots of canned food in glass jars and it has all frozen and perhaps is no good. Now I am pleading to all the voters of District No. 2 to move on out to the polls in May and cast your vote for Fair Prater and give him a try. I feel he will try to help us who need it most and not just help the ones that need no help—just for a big game. Please think this over and help to elect this nice, young man.

Thanks to everyone,
LONA DUFF

Warning Sounded on Dangers Of X-Rays, Microwave Ovens

Worrying about radiation risks should be put into a realistic perspective, says Richard M. Fry, director of the Division of Occupational Environment, State Department of Health.

"Our Radiological Health Program's job is to safeguard the health of Kentucky's residents by reducing or eliminating unnecessary radiation," Fry explains. "But that doesn't mean telling people not to use microwave ovens, or not to let their doctors or dentists take x-rays. Our efforts are directed towards seeing that possible sources of radiation are operating properly and are used safely."

Fry points out that damage from radiation is a question of the amount of radiation striking the individual plus the length of time he is exposed. A low level of radiation which is maintained for a long time—or repeated frequently—can be harmful. Distance, too, is a factor: the farther a person is from a radiation source, the less radiation reaches him.

For example, federal Food and Drug Administration standards for microwave ovens set an allowable maximum level, measured about two inches from the door of the oven. At arm's distance, the FDA says that "users are exposed to less microwave radiation than allowed by the most stringent standards in the world."

Fry agrees with the FDA's Bureau of Radiological Health beliefs that microwave ovens which meet its standard are safe, as long as they are properly operated. The bureau lists a few simple precautions the user should take:

- Read the manufacturer's instruction manual carefully and follow its directions for operating the oven.
- Examine the oven for evidence of shipping damage. Also, check the door carefully—it should close tight. Worn or damaged hinges should be replaced by a qualified serviceman.
- Never insert objects (a wire or the tines of a fork, for instance) through the door grill or around the door seal.
- Never tamper with or inactivate the oven safety interlocks. Federal law requires ovens to have two safety interlocks which will shut off the oven as soon as the door is opened.
- Never operate an empty oven.
- Do not use metal cookware.
- Keep the oven clean. Use water and a mild detergent on the oven cavity, door and seals—dirty seals will leak radiation.
- Do not use scouring pads, steel wool or other abrasives.
- Have the oven regularly serviced by a qualified serviceman. He can check for signs of wear, damage or tampering, and has the equipment to test for excess radiation.
- Switch the oven off before opening the door.
- Stay at least an arm's length away from the front of an oven while it is on. In the home, don't let children stand near the oven to watch food cook. In a public installation such as a company cafeteria, give the user the chance to stand a little distance away.

Charles Hardin, director of the Radiological Health Program, adds that his staff is more concerned with possible dangers from improper operation of x-ray tubes than with the microwave ovens now in use. "Since 1961, every known x-ray tube in Kentucky has been registered with this office, and we make periodic inspections of all the x-ray machines in the state, to make sure that they meet Kentucky State Board of Health regulations," Hardin says. There are over 4,000 tubes in some 2,500 locations.

Hardin notes that federal and state radiological health officials agree that the problem of inspecting microwave ovens can and should be handled by qualified servicemen. While his office has equipment to check the safety of a microwave oven, he doesn't have the staff to take on that job along with the x-ray inspections. Anyone who is worried about his oven should contact this service representative to have the oven checked.

Reading Council Hears Report On Clark School Project

Most of the Clark elementary school staff feel they are accomplishing their goals, Jenny Wiley Reading Council members were told in a recent meeting at the Clark school. A panel consisting of Clark School Principal John K. Pitts, Joseph Clark, Right to Read coordinator from the Kentucky Department of Education teacher aides, and teachers informed council members of Right to Read activities on the national state, and local levels.

Right to Read Coordinator Clark said there have been 174 school sites funded by Right to Read. Eleven states, including Kentucky, have been funded, and indications are that all sites will be funded as planned under President Nixon's budget. The Clark school is the only school-based site in Kentucky.

Mr. Pitts delineated local Right to Read efforts. Before the program was initiated in the classroom a unit task force (composed of teachers, parents, administrators, and principals) conducted a survey or organization, techniques, and time spent in reading. The results were evaluated and a priority list was established. It was determined that four critical objectives needed immediate attention: (1) By the time a student leaves Clark school he will have improved in the skills of communication, listening, reading, writing, and speaking; (2) Parents will lend their support to the project; (3) The student will become a self-directing individual; and (4) The staff will increase its ability to work with individual students and their capabilities.

One example of attempts to attain these goals was shown in the efforts of a Social Studies teacher who, using a tape recorder, had children involved in taping research material, while others were exercising skills in listening, writing, and discussing the recorded material. Students may also go individually to learning stations placed at random throughout the classrooms and work on self-directing skills.

Other established goals included: (1) The student will connect the essentials of reading with functional vocations; and (2) The student will increase his reading rate. Prior to the initiation of the project a grade potential was established and evaluation will include comparison with these and other goals. "It is the general opinion of the staff," said Mr. Pitts, "that we are accomplishing a great deal. Therefore, there must be some degree of success."

Another example of working toward a specific goal is the newspaper program for the junior high students. Teachers were trained in the use of a newspaper in the classroom. Following completion of activities students are then free to carry the paper home for family use.

A good deal of preparation preceded the implementation of the Right to Read program in the Clark school. Last summer most of the staff participated in a six-week inservice workshop becoming familiar with materials, learning stations, game simulation activities, diagnosis of reading disabilities, and prescriptive measures. Materials, supplies, and equipment were purchased and teaching aids constructed.

One important aspect of the Right to Read program is the use of paraprofessionals. One teacher's aide has been assigned to each primary teacher, one to every two intermediate teachers, and one to every four junior high teachers. A total of ten aides and 1½ clerk typists are involved in the project. Training consisted of four weeks in-service at the Community College and one week of intensive training from Morehead University.

Two main goals were set involving the use of teacher aides: (1) Each teacher aide will be helpful to the teacher and to the student in the classroom; and (2) The teacher aide will communicate with other parents in the community.

Mrs. Bernice Shuff, teacher aide working at the intermediate level, pinpointed the duties of an aide. "Our primary task," said Mrs. Shuff, "is to work with the slow learners, aid in math and other skills, do a small amount of clerical work, and duplicate materials."

According to Mr. Pitts, the staff has attempted to incorporate their activities into the total program of the school. Mrs. Bobbie Jean Hale described to Council members how different skills, such as listening, were involved in her art program. "To summarize efforts it could be said that every teacher is a teacher of reading—social studies teacher, or art teacher, or whatever."

"And one of the better things," contributee Primary teacher Edna Davis, "is being teamed with another teacher. This relieves some of the pressures and anxieties in attempting to attain behavioral objectives."

Miss Pauline Hicks acts as Right to Read coordinator. Her duties are, among other things, to view and evaluate materials, to attend to any difficulty which may arise, and to coordinate all Right to Read efforts among the different classes into an integrated whole.

The Jenny Wiley Council is an affiliate of the International Reading Association.

Kentucky revenue receipts for the first eight months of the fiscal year increased in all areas except sales and use tax, which continues to decline because of the food exemption. The increase is 13.8 percent over last year.

County's Outstanding 4-H'ers

Judy Stewart and Dalton Howard have been selected as Floyd county's outstanding 4-H Club members for 1972 in the Courier-Journal's Award of Excellence Program.

This award, made each year, is based on academic development, moral development, civic and community development, in addition to their 4-H club work.

Miss Stewart is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stewart, Langley, and a member of the Allen Central 4-H Club. Mr. Howard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Howard, Hueysville. Both are members of the Allen Central 4-H Club.

Bracelet Collection Would Become Memorial

Chester Layne and Jean Layne, his wife, Pliffs.

VS. NOTICE OF SALE

Fred R. Conn and Eulavene Conn, his wife, John Elliott Walters, Jeffrey Neal Walters, Lois Foley Walters, their mother and next friend, Defts.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the February 23 term, 1973 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 6th day of April, 1973 at 10:30 o'clock a. m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

That certain tract or parcel of land located in the C. I. Layne Addition to Betsy Layne, Floyd County, and being the same property conveyed the parties by mesne conveyances from the heirs of John E. Walters and being more particularly described as follows, viz:

Lots 12, 12A, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 in the C. I. Layne Addition to the Community of Betsy Layne, as shown on Map No. 49 and 166 filed in the Floyd County Court Clerk's Office and based on survey of Prestonsburg Engineering Company.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 15th day of March, 1973.

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

(Hope Carleton has quoted material from Happy Hunting Ground Magazine in this week's column.)

Predators, especially hawks, appear to be among the most misunderstood of wildlife. Despite efforts to educate the public in values of such predators, reports of hawk-killings continue to plague law enforcement and other personnel of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Such a report prompted the following editorial in the March issue of Happy Hunting Ground magazine:

In mid-January 17 red-tailed hawks were illegally shot, apparently with a high-powered rifle, and strung on baling wire over Ky.-210 in Taylor County.

At this writing no arrests have been made. However, intensive investigations by Fish and Wildlife law enforcement personnel and the State Police, with cooperation from federal agents, has produced several promising leads. These, hopefully, will result in arrest in the near future, perhaps by the time this is read.

Since killing hawks is now against federal as well as state laws, penalties for conviction could be considerable—a fine of up to $500 and jail sentence of up to six months for each charge in federal court, or state fines of $15 to $100.

News coverage of the slaughter, particularly in the Louisville Courier-Journal, has been thorough and has been responsible in large part, we think for the fact that more than $1,300 in reward money has been raised or pledged.

It is encouraging to us that the news media consider the killing of 17 predatory birds "front-page" news and that readers, listeners and viewers of the news have responded in such a practical manner.

We are also heartened by the fact that a great portion of the reward money was offered by sportsmen (the Taylor County Sportsmen Club proffered $250 and is coordinating the reward fund.) This, we think is but one of many indications of concern by sportsmen for non-game species.

At the same time a feeling of disappointment, and perhaps failure, pervades the offices of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and we think the feeling is, or should be, shared by all sportsmen, sportsmen's groups, other governmental agencies and ecology-oriented organizations.

Perhaps we have done less than we should have, less than we could have, in our educational programs.

Perhaps the kind of person who would commit such a contemptible act is beyond our reach. But if we'd done more in Taylor County, for instance, to teach the value of all wild things, it's just possible that the person or persons who have evidence to give would be more eager to cooperate.

Two Left Beaver Creek girls who are almost next-door neighbors have piled up a row of outstanding successes in horse shows in Kentucky and other states.

Miss Susan Johnson, a junior at Wheelwright high school won the Kentucky Association of Fairs and Horse Shows' high point award in both 1971 and 1972, won the ladies' five-gaited class at Tampa, Fla., and the juvenile reserve championship at the Huntington, W. Va. horse show. She plans to continue the round of shows this year, riding her horse, On the Go Genius, and next fall will compete in the Alabama State Fair at Montgomery, Alabama. Miss Johnson is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Taulbee Johnson, of Wheelwright.

Miss Miki Jane Little, of Melvin, won reserve high point award for amateur walk-trot horse with her My Fancy Prize last year. Miss Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Little, and a University of Kentucky student, is also a winner outside the horse show ring. She was Miss Floyd County for 1972 and Miss Licking Valley RECC.

Harris Says Research Projects Provide Foundation For Action

Over a million dollars is now being spent on surface mining research projects by the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. I believe these projects will provide a foundation on which to build. Surface mining research provides the background necessary for making technically sound decisions and plans for the protection of our environment.

One of the most important projects is a $100,000 study which deals with an objective investigation of present practices and methods used by surface mine operators in Eastern Kentucky coal fields. As part of the project, modifications and possible combinations of various practices and methods will be studied.

The Division of Reclamation will use the study to design systems which will enable a more complete resource recovery, improved operating efficiency, and perhaps a more economical means of mining, while preventing or controlling the damaging environmental impact which surface mining can have.

I believe that through these investigations some current surface mining procedures can be changed with positive results. I foresee improvements, particularly in the area of soil removal and placement.

The division will focus careful attention on potential surface mining operations which reduce or completely eliminate the need to push or throw the soil down the hillside. Presently, there are several operations practicing promising methods in east Kentucky. These methods will be investigated further and improved through scientific analysis and evaluation.

We are not naive enough to believe that new and innovative technology will in itself solve all the problems associated with surface mining. We in the Department, and the Division of Reclamation, realize that we must take a hard look at the enforcement program and operational procedures under which we function.

Although I feel we have made considerable improvements in the administration of the reclamation program, there are still improvements which need to be made, especially in areas of inspection consistency and issuing of permits, as preliminary data from the project has thus far indicated.

We must move ahead in our efforts to protect our environment and assure the wise use of our natural resources. Although the problems facing us in surface mining are just a part of a more complex problem, I believe these research projects will help us reach our goal of a clean and healthy environment.
