

Bd. Studies Bldg. Needs Of School McDowell Building Need Conceded But Held 2 Years Away

The Floyd County Board of Education at its meeting Saturday began what may mean to the McDowell school a building on its campus to house a music department, a modern lunchroom and gymnasium.

After a lengthy discussion, Supt. Charles Clark was authorized to initiate the process of getting possible action on the project. But he said later that the improvement may be as far distant as two years. If it reaches the construction stage, he said, its financing will in all probability be effected through sale of bonds, since capital outlay funds are not available.

"Although we have built 20 classroom units at McDowell in the last eight years, their need is greatest, and the need of a lunchroom there is desperate," Mr. Clark said.

The "cost-estimate" working budget for the fiscal year was adopted by the board at the meeting. The budget, which includes all programs and federal funding, amounts to $6 million, plus

Otherwise, the board meeting was concerned with routine action. The board voted to match Prater PTA funds for the blacktop surfacing of a portion of the playground at the school, and the superintendent or school principals were authorized to advertise for bids on band uniforms for Allen Central and McDowell schools.

The leave of absence granted Hazel Clifton, Prestonsburg elementary teacher, because of illness resulted in two other shifts of personnel. Mrs. Bobby Jean Hale, art teacher at Osborne elementary, was transferred to take Mrs. Clifton's place, and Caralita O'Quinn was employed as art teacher at Osborne.

Non-certified personnel employed included Zina Goble as clerk at the central office; Linda Wallen, promoted from clerk to NYC bookkeeper; Fern Martin and Evelyn Akers, substitute cooks at the Martin and Prater schools, respectively; Linda Couch, clerk at Wheelwright High School; Ruth Huff, part-time lunchroom worker at Osborne elementary.

Former County Woman and Son Killed in Wreck

A former Floyd county woman and her son were killed and three other members of her family were injured, one seriously, when the auto which she was driving wrecked Monday of last week, near Ligonier, Indiana.

Dead are Mrs. Wilma Louise Stephens, 37, wife of Cletis Stephens, of Huron, O., and her son, John C., 9. Another son, Mark A., was seriously hurt, with both legs broken; his brother, Eric Ray, had a broken ankle, and his sister, Michelle Annette, suffered cuts and bruises.

The tragedy occurred, it was said, when Mrs. Stephens apparently lost control of her auto on a curve and the car smashed into a tree. She died at the scene of the wreck, and her son was dead on arrival at a Ft. Wayne hospital.

A native of Sassafra, Knott county, Mrs. Stephens was a daughter of the late Henry and Hattie Slone Amburgy.

Stumbo Files Suit On $500 Peace Bond

Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo moved last week to put teeth into the bonds executed by convicted bootleggers to keep the peace by refraining from further violation of the local option laws in this county.

He filed suit Oct. 3 against Freddie Collins, of the Lake road, and his surety, the Parrott Bail Bonding Company, to collect the $500 peace bond executed June 20 under which Collins was pledged not to violate the local option laws for a period of 12 months. The bond was executed after Collins' conviction in quarterly court.

On July 7, Collins was again convicted of a liquor law violation, and this, Stumbo contends, constitutes forfeiture of his peace bond.

Cow Creek Native Automobile Victim In Columbus, Ohio

James Everett Woods, 41-year-old Cow Creek native, of Columbus, Ohio, died at the Ohio State University hospital at Columbus shortly after being struck by an automobile at a downtown intersection.

The accident apparently occurred when a car passed a tractor-trailer at a four-way stop, striking Woods who was walking across the intersection.

A son of Rosie Endicott Woods and the late Frankie Woods, he was born in this county, January 28, 1932. Survivors include a son, Ricky Woods, of Columbus; one daughter, Sarah Ann Woods, of Columbus; two brothers, William Alton Woods, Columbus, and Franklin Lee Woods, of Emma, and three sisters, Mrs. Eula Mae Goodman, of Homestead, Fla.; Mrs. Irene Hunter, of Claypool, Ind.; and Mrs. Evelyn Mayer, Patalaska, Ohio. A grandchild also survives.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the Cow Creek Free Will Baptist Church with the Revs. Doug Burkett, Henry Crider and Abe Vanderpool officiating ministers. Burial was made in the Woods family cemetery at Cow Creek under the direction of Carter Funeral Home.

Governor's Tour Group Visits P'burg Plant and State Park

Governor Wendell H. Ford and more than 100 business leaders from throughout the state visited Prestonsburg Thursday morning on the last leg of the 28th Kentucky Chamber of Commerce Governor's Tour.

Arriving from Pikeville, where they spent the previous night, three busloads of business executives, mayors and other officials from dozens of Kentucky communities were greeted at U. S. Shoe Corporation's Prestonsburg plant by city leaders and the Prestonsburg High School band. Governor Ford joined the group after flying to Combs Airport.

U. S. Shoe Plant Manager Milford Jett and Plant Superintendent Joseph DiMichele opened the doors of the factory to the tour and Gov. Ford and other members of the group inspected plant operations and met many of the factory workers.

Boots of one of the victims bear mute witness to plane tragedy at crash scene on mountain, near the Johnson-Martin county line.

Long Search for Plane Ends

The weeks-long search in this area for a missing airplane ended early last Friday afternoon when the wreckage of the aircraft and the bodies of its four occupants were found on a mountaintop, above a strip-mine highwall, in the edge of Martin county, a few miles from Van Lear.

The chartered twin-engine Cessna which was in flight from Humbolt, Tenn. to Combs Airport, near here, apparently overshot the field and in the overcast of Sunday afternoon, Sept. 9, crashed into the hilltop. Tops of two trees were sheared off down the hillside before the plane crashed and literally wrapped itself around another tree.

The plane caught fire, and three of the bodies were badly burned. Identification of all four was effected from items of clothing or other possessions. The watch of one of the four had stopped at 4:18. At 4:11 on the afternoon of the crash the plane had radioed Tri-State Airport, Huntington, W. Va., that it was within one minute of Combs Field.

Bodies of the victims were taken to the Richmond-Callahan Funeral Home at Inez. They were listed as J. W. Milam, 42, of Humbolt, Tenn., general superintendent for the McCauley Corp., the firm which is building the Louisa General Hospital; his son, Joe Milam, 20; Robert Hall, 35, superintendent on the Louisa work, and William Wickersham, Dyersburg, Tenn., the pilot.

The wreckage was found around 1 p.m. last Friday by James David Music, Manford Cline and Alvin Butcher, of the lower Johns Creek section, who said they had been searching for the plane the last three week-ends. They said they had during these searches been in the area where the plane was found five or six times but had failed to spot the wreckage. They were driving home along a strip-mine road last Friday when the sunlight reflected from metal high on the mountain.

Graham Burchett, captain of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad, said the plane was so hidden by undergrowth, timber and rocks that he walked within a few feet of it before finding it, although he had been directed to lead a party to the scene.

The area was quickly roped off, and the Floyd and Left Beaver rescue squads maintained a guard till the following day. State troopers guarded access to the crash scene.

Capt. Burchett said all four victims lay in the wreckage, within an area six feet square.

The search by air for the missing plane had ended, a week earlier. While the hunt was under way, many leads were followed to unsuccessful conclusion and on at least two occasions cruel hoaxes were perpetrated as the plane was reported found.

A reward of $3,000 for information leading to the finding of the plane and its occupants had been posted by relatives of the four victims. After the bodies had been removed kin of the four were at

Health Care Moving Toward a New Board

Replacement of the interim Floyd County Comprehensive Health Care, Inc. board of directors has been initiated with the use of countywide area awareness meetings. The Times was informed this week.

Area awareness meetings, thus far held in the Allen-Mare Creek, Mud Creek and Martin-Maytown areas, are designed to inform interested persons what has been accomplished during the newly funded planning period and what can be expected in the near future. Building a strong planning board and designing a workable plan for Floyd county have been described as the top priorities of the current planning year, Quentin D. Allen, director, said.

Awareness meetings held this week were held Monday at Wheelwright and Garrett, and Tuesday at McDowell and West Prestonsburg-Risner.

These meetings are focusing attention on the upcoming area nomination

This Town . . . That World

THE GENERATION GAP

Least social anthropologists and others who prowl around among such matters turn up with a generation gap, I herewith list the Shirt-Tail Generation which has never had its proper due.

I refer to that generation, of which I am a relic, whose male members literally lived, at varying ages, in their shirt-tails. Younger, they played and slept in 'em. Older, they only slept. No pajamas (la, la!) in those days.

The late Irvin Cobb used to tell a story of that generation. He told of the train on which he was a passenger drawing into a station, somewhere in the Deep South, before daybreak. Outside he saw the shadowy forms of mounted men, their horses snorting in the pre-dawn chill; the men speaking in muffled tones. There was something of grim portent about the whole business.

A lanky farmer boarded the train, and Cobb turned to him.

"A lynching party, I suppose?" he queried, pointing to the men.

The man laughed. "No-siree. No lynching, this time. Old man Miller's boy Joe was 18 yistiddy, and they're tryin' to ketch him to git a pair of pants on 'im."

meetings slated for eight areas of the county. Area nomination meetings, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. November 12, 13, 14, and 15, will be held at the following locations:

November 12—at the Floyd county courthouse for Prestonsburg-Bull Creek, and at Allen elementary school for Allen-Mare Creek; November 13—at McDowell High School for the McDowell area, and at the John M. Stumbo elementary school for Mud Creek; November 14—at Clark

Speaking of Fall Colors . . .

Red, White and Blue To Mark Event Here

Come October 20, the hills surrounding Prestonsburg will be turning into their annual display of a rainbow of color, but up and down its streets red, white and blue will be predominant in the color scheme.

For that will be the date of the fourth annual Red, White and Blue Day, and the thousands who will participate will dress themselves, bedeck their floats and bands and fly the flags of these patriotic colors.

Mrs. Marcella Bailey, the Langley housewife who conceived the day as a return to the old, better days and the love of God, home and country that was a basic tenet of early America, said this week that every indication is that this year's event will draw its greatest crowd. Last year, an estimated 12,000 gathered here for the day.

It will not be strictly a Floyd county celebration, Mrs. Bailey said. "Already they're calling from other counties, wanting to take part."

"We want every one who wants to, to have a part," she added. "They must not wait for me to invite them personally. I am so busy, and it's impossible for me to ask them all."

How busy is she? Mrs. Bailey has contacted scores of groups, hundreds of individuals, and those contacts range from Floyd county to the White House.

State Gov't Comes Here Next Week

"Gov't for People" Visit Set Oct. 17th By Governor, Staff

Eastern Kentuckians will be able to discuss problems with Gov. Wendell Ford and other state officials when state government comes to Floyd county this month.

The Governor announced that he, as well as various staff members and department heads will be available from 9 a.m. until noon and from 2 until 4 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 17, in the county courtroom of the courthouse here.

Residents of this and neighboring counties can discuss matters with the Governor or any other member of the tour on a first-come basis.

The visit to Eastern Kentucky is the fourth temporary office the Governor has established across the state since beginning his "government-to-the-people" tour in August.

"The success of previous visits is extremely encouraging both from the viewpoint as a public servant and from the favorable response of the many citizens who have been helped by the availability of the branch offices," Ford said.

He also pointed out that there are many people across Kentucky who don't have the opportunity to travel to Frankfort to discuss a problem, and to fairly serve these citizens it is necessary that government be taken to them.

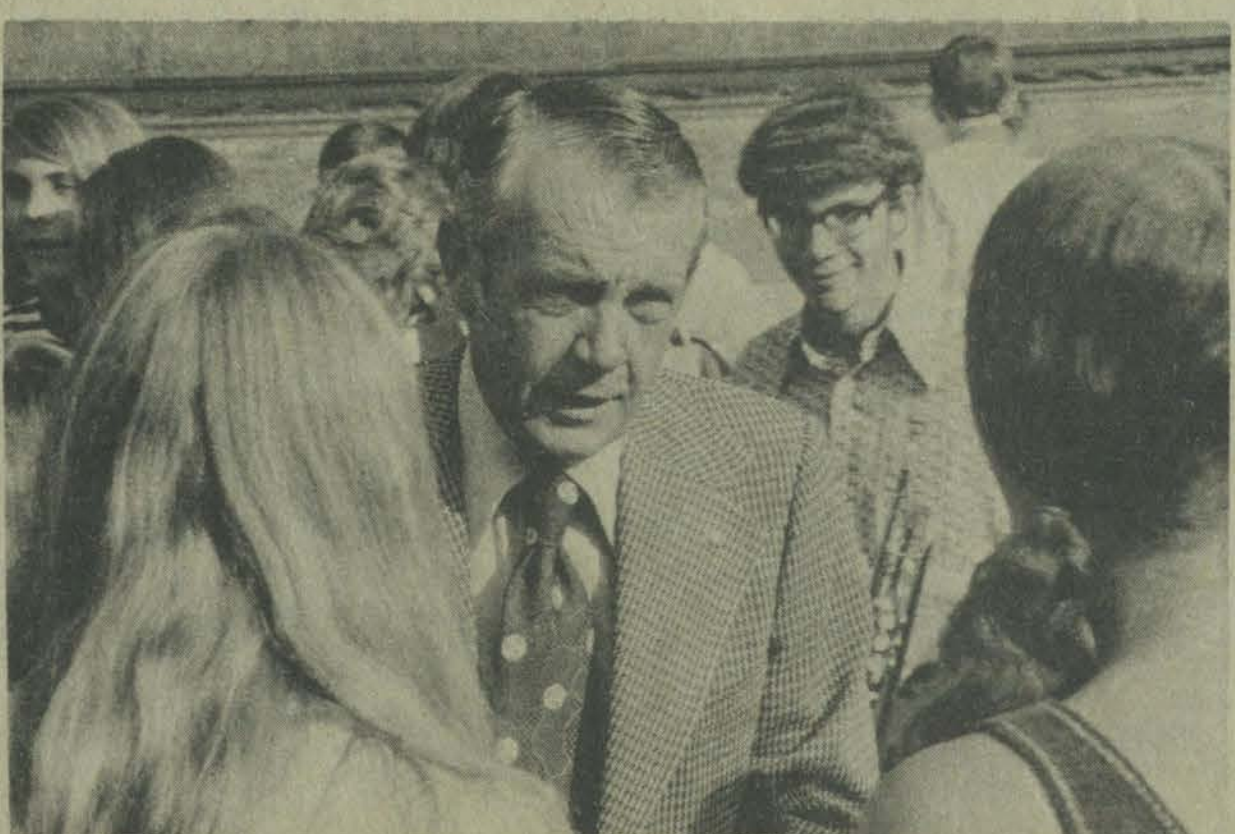

Other areas of the state will be visited by state government at later dates, the Governor said.

Eight Jailed Here As Drunken Drivers

Hasie D. Castle was jailed here last week on charges of hit-run and drunken driving, and seven others were named on drunk driving counts.

Others booked at the county jail within the week, charges against each, and names of arresting officers follow:

Elmer Spears, obtaining money under false pretense, by Deputy Sheriffs Isaacs and Napier; Edgar Johnnie Brown, destroying private property, by State Trooper Newsome; Larry McKinney, no operator's license, by State Troopers Simpson and Bevens; Ishmel Caudill, resisting arrest, by Trooper Castle; Johnnie Jackson, flourishing a deadly weapon, by Trooper Tucker; Azzie Newsome, carrying a concealed deadly weapon and drunk driving, by Troopers Castle and Estep; Gordon Gibson, drunk driving, by State Trooper E. B. Allen; Gary Lee Lawson, drunk driving, by State Trooper Bevens; William Gillespie, drunk driving, by Troopers Bevens and Simpson; Arlin Calhoun, drunk driving, by Prestonsburg Policemen Kelly and Herald; Larry Dean Spencer and Bobby Joe Spencer each charged with drunk driving, by Policeman Lawson.

Governor Ford fraternizes with Prestonsburg High School band members during his Governor's Tour stop here last week.

THE BANK JOSEPHINE . . . THE ONLY BANK IN FLOYD COUNTY, PARTICIPATING IN THE FEDERALLY INSURED STUDENT LOAN PROGRAMS

In a continuing effort to fulfill our self-imposed obligation to further the education of the future leaders of this area, we present the following as an Open Letter to all who are interested in supporting this program:

THE BANK  JOSEPHINE

SINCE 1891

P. O. BOX 471 • TELEPHONE (606) 886-2356
PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY 41653

The Bank Josephine is the ONLY financial institution in Floyd County that has participated in both the United Student Aid Fund and the Federally Insured Student Loan programs, and since 1968, has loaned over one-half million dollars to the youth of Floyd County for higher education.

As of spring 1972, financial institutions in Kentucky had made $31,800,000 in loans under the United Student Aid Fund and Federally Insured Student Loan programs. At that time, The Bank Josephine had made $415,865.08 or 1.30 percent of the loans made in Kentucky. Our deposits indicate that we would have fulfilled our obligations in comparison to the deposits of all of the commercial banks in Kentucky if we had only made .52 percent of the loans made. We had exceeded our obligation by .78 percent.

Management of The Bank Josephine is very interested in this program and wishes to continue to help our youth obtain the education they need so badly in order to progress and compete. The Bank Josephine also feels since it is the ONLY financial institution (bank, savings and loan association, etc.) in Floyd County participating in this program, it should be made known to those others who are also interested in higher education of the youth of Floyd County.

It takes deposits to provide the funds needed and the more deposits we have will mean the more student loans we can make. Help us so we can help more of our youth. We would appreciate your giving consideration to this fact.

Sincerely,

John G. Heinze

Jenny Wiley Council Members Lead State Reading Workshop

Jenny Wiley Reading Council members recently conducted a workshop in Louisville for the officers of the various Kentucky chapters of the International Reading Association. Local participants were Council President Marie Stumbo, Nadine Hicks, President-Elect Delphia Hicks and Bertha Ratliff.

One of the workshop topics concerned the means of communication to boost the relationship between local, state, and national councils. The officers were informed of some of the methods and activities by which the Jenny Wiley Council achieved this goal. Chief among these were information packets of activities sent after each session to the Kentucky State IRA, newspaper articles, and local representatives sent to state, regional and national IRA conferences.

Officers of Kentucky councils were especially interested in special projects on which the Jenny Wiley Council had worked. Following a brief discussion and display, Delphia Hicks, a Clark reading teachers, previewed to the officers' group some of the teacher-made materials and instructional games which will be the theme of the Council mini-workshops scheduled intermittently through the 1973-74 school year.

The invitation to conduct the workshop for the benefit of other reading councils came as a result of the Kentucky State IRA executive board's recognition of the Jenny Wiley Council as being the outstanding chapter in the state.

elementary school for West Prestonsburg-Risner, and at Garrett High School for the Wayland division; November 15—at Martin High School for Martin-Maytown, and at Wheelwright High School for the Wheelwright area.

According to board of director election guidelines passed by the interim board of directors and the Office of Economic Opportunity, an unlimited number of nominees may be received at area nomination meetings. Only potential users of health services are eligible for nomination. Copies of the nominee lists will be made following the completion of area nomination meetings and sent to both state and national officials with the Office of Economic Opportunity.

All participants (either nomination or election) must indicate that he or she meet O.E.O. Poverty Income Guidelines. Guidelines will be listed above the individual's signature. Nominees may be self-nominated or nominated by a second person.

Only residents of the specified areas who are over 18 years of age are eligible for participation.

The date for county-wide elections is November 27, from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., at the same sites used for area nominations. Each area will have its election of board representatives at the location where nomination meetings were held.

Two board of director members will be elected from each of the eight geographic areas. Each area has been studied and apportioned as well as possible into equal population areas in order to assure equal area representation. Eligible voters may cast two votes; ballots which three votes cast will be void. The candidate receiving a plurality and the runnerup will be designated as area board members.

A certified public accountant will receive ballots for counting at the court house here. Election officials will be supplied by the state Office of Economic Opportunity for the area election meetings.

Plurality consumer board winners will be appointed to three-year terms; runner-up members will receive two years terms. At-large consumer members, appointed by organizations selected by consumer members, will number four and have one-year terms. Provider membership on the board of directors will be selected as the at-large membership, according to O.E.O. contractual guidelines.

Area awareness meetings have called attention to the need for strong area board organization in order that broad consumer need be expressed to area representation. Eight area boards are expected to hold monthly meetings in receiving reports from area representatives and dealing with priority health needs in the respective areas.

16,426 Voters Are Reported Re-Registered

The Secretary of State's office has reported that a total of 16,426 Floyd countians had re-registered to vote as of Sept. 30, but County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson said he expects the final figure to be higher than that.

Of those who have re-registered, 14,646 are Democrats, 1,738 are Republicans and 42 registered under some other political affiliation. White voters totalled 16,321, with only 105 blacks.

Last year, the voter registration rolls listed 23,000 in this county.

The re-registration period ended Sept. 24. Hereafter, county purgation boards will not exist, their services having been shifted to the State Election Commission. Computer "print-outs" of eligible voters will be issued by the commission to the county clerks for use by election officers at the several precincts in determining who may vote.

The County Election Commission now meets monthly, but its biggest job of the year is expected on election day, Nov. 6. Those acquainted with the registration situation say there inevitably will be some confusion, this first year of the new law, and decisions will fall on the county commissioners as a result.

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

With the beginning of the 1973-'74 hunting season just around the corner, Kentucky hunters are starting to look forward to days afield, and are probably wondering what kinds of conditions they can expect his fall.

Based on a survey by the state's game biologists, Jim Durell, assistant director of the Division of Game Management for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, has compiled the following report on the abundance of some of our popular game species:

Squirrel (August 18 through October 31 and November 15 through December 31)—Both fox and gray squirrels should be abundant statewide, due to a good mast production in 1972 which afforded an ample food supply in the lean winter months, allowing a good reproduction crop in 1973.

Rabbits (November 15 through January 31)—Statewide, populations should be fair to good, with the North Central section one of the best. The high humidity and frequent rains during the reproductive season contributed favorably to the survival rate. However, floods probably depleted the population in some areas, especially extensive bottomlands.

Quail (November 15 through January 31)—Populations should be good statewide, with the western section the prime area. Like rabbits, quail benefit from frequent rains during the reproduction season.

Dove (September 1 through October 31, December 1 through December 9)—From all indications, there should be a good supply, especially in the central and western sections. However, hunting may be erratic in the first part of the season due to the lateness in cutting silage and harvesting corn.

Grouse (November 15 through February 28)—Should be as abundant as last year, when hunting was exceptionally good in some sections of Eastern Kentucky. Generally speaking, grouse populations should be fair to good throughout their range.

Deer (Archery, October 1 through October 31, December 1 through December 31; gun, November 3 through November 7)—The statewide population is continuing to increase gradually, and the supply should be at least fair throughout Kentucky and good in the central and western sections. However, there will be spotty areas even in the better sections due to a lack of suitable habitat.

Waterfowl (Seasons to be set)—Biologists have not yet completed their surveys on ducks and geese, but high waters could again effect hunter success. Crops were planted late in western Kentucky, and some grain fields could not be planted because of late floods. Waste grain will probably be scarce.

As the days grow shorter and the nights grow crisper Autumn is on its way and sorghum making time can't be far behind. Morgan County farmers are cutting cane now in preparation for the Sorghum Festival in West Liberty Oct. 12-14. The annual event draws multitudes of visitors to view handcrafted art items and to taste the mountain goodness of molasses made the old fashioned way.

Road Maintenance Costs Keep Rising

Rising prices and an increase in miles of highway are making the upkeep of Kentucky's roads a bigger job.

According to a U. S. Department of Transportation report, total costs for highway maintenance and operation increased by 11 percent in 1972 over the previous year. From 1967-1972, costs jumped 31.7 percent.

Charles J. Henry, assistant director of maintenance, State Bureau of Highways, said exact cost figures for this year aren't yet available but he's certain they are going up. Of the three cost areas—labor, equipment, and materials—the price of materials is rising fastest.

"There has been a tremendous jump in the cost of bituminous material used on road surfaces," Henry said. "The high price of wood used in the roads and structures is also affecting maintenance costs," he added.

"All maintenance equipment isn't replaced every year, but this year, the cost of new machinery has increased by approximately 11 percent," Henry said.

"Although federal aid is given to highway construction projects the entire cost of maintenance is left to the state. This year, Kentucky will spend about $60 million and employ 5,000 people on road upkeep," Henry said.

A main source of revenue for the state highways is the nine cents per gallon gasoline tax. Henry said funds from this tax are going up, as more gasoline is being sold. They haven't felt a pinch from the gasoline shortage, he said, and aren't anticipating a cut in funds.

Not only are there cost increases from inflation, but as Kentucky builds more roads the job of maintaining them gets bigger.

Of the 70,000 miles of road in Kentucky, the state is directly responsible for about 25,000 miles. The rest are city and county maintained but the state helps out, on a contract basis, in rural counties where there are shortages of personnel and equipment.

"It takes about three times as much effort to maintain an interstate highway as it does a primary (two-lane) road," Henry said. "It costs $7-8,000 per year for each mile of interstate."

These major roads not only require surface repairs, but must be striped at least once a year. Also, surrounding landscape must be maintained and worn-out signs replaced.

Henry said a big problem occurs every year with deck deterioration on bridges. When salt is applied on icy bridges, it gradually seeps into the bridge and corrodes the steel. The bridge is in danger of collapsing if the deck isn't promptly repaired.

Another problem in road upkeep is a slide, where part of the road actually breaks away. These slides occur in all parts of the state, but especially in mountainous areas, Henry said. "They've been more common this year, possibly because of the wet spring we had."

"An added burden to the highway maintenance crew is the removal of litter from the roadsides. This job costs the taxpayers over $1 million each year," Henry said, "which is about two percent of the total maintenance budget."

CALIFORNIA SCHOOLS GO METRIC

California State School Chief Wilson Rile says that conversion of the U. S. to the Metric System is "inevitable," therefore, all of California's public schools will convert to the metric system of weights and measures beginning in the fall of 1976. New state math and science textbooks will have all measurements in metric units by 1976.

EKEA To Move To Morehead

Breaking with the modern tradition of meeting annually in Ashland, the Eastern Kentucky Education Association is going to Morehead State University's campus next week for its 50th convention. Though the move has been listed as a trial, it may become permanent.

Coincidentally, Morehead State University, which will play host, is also marking its 50th anniversary this year.

Registration and a reception are set for Thursday evening, October 18, but the bulk of the program is condensed into a single day, Friday, October 19. The one-day convention, with evening before social events, has become a standard of EKEA in recent years, a departure from three-day meetings of past seasons. The main general session will be held in the Weatherby Field House beginning at 10 a.m. October 19.

Keynote speaker for the event will be Dr. Andrew Holt, president-emeritus of the University of Tennessee, who will tell teachers and administrative personnel of "The Next 50 Years." Also on the program is Dr. Lyman Ginger, Kentucky superintendent of public instruction.

Ronnie Back, EKEA president is an assistant principal at the Russell High School, and Nelson R. Allen, executive secretary, is principal of Russell Central school.

The EKEA district covers 18 counties, plus eight independent school systems, private and state supported institutions, and has more than 3,000 members. Delegates will meet on Thursday at 4 p.m. with voting hours set for 8 a.m. to 10 and 3 p.m. Friday.

Other highlight meetings of the day include a school leaders' breakfast at 8 a.m. in the Doran Student Center, with Phillip Salisbury, chairman, and the Association of Classroom Teachers' luncheon; a MSU alumni association continental breakfast at 8 a.m. Friday, Laughlin Health Building, Thursday night's reception will be open for all at 7:30 p.m. in the ballroom of the Doran Student Center.

2 Floyd Women Among First Class in Electrocardiology

Pikeville, Ky.—The Methodist Hospital's first class in electrocardiology was completed on September 27 with 10 members of the Nursing Service Department receiving a certificate as "Medical Assistant in Electrocardiology."

"The certificate means that the students have not merely memorized electrocardiographic patterns as is commonly done," said Dr. William F. Clarke, instructor of the class. "These students also have been taught the basic electrophysiology of the myocardium and are able to use this basic knowledge to evaluate and interpret unknown electrocardiograms. Holders of the certificate are not to be mistaken for technicians in electrocardiology who run electrocardiograms." The title of "Medical Assistant" indicates that they have become proficient, not only in running and mounting the electrocardiogram but also in interpreting the EKG tracings.

Dr. Clarke was assisted by Dr. William M. Johnson, internist and Mrs. Sophia Shockey, R.N., program coordinator.

Members of the class are Dorothy Epling and Mary E. Hopkins, both of Elkhorn City; Charlotte Cox, of Wolfpit; Leticia Ducusin and Aurora Santos, both of Pikeville; Queenie Epling, of Stanville; Priscilla Flanery, of Robinson Creek; Janice Stone, of Millard; Faye Morris, of Zebulon, and Melvina Thomson, of McDowell.

Dr. Clarke added, "All of us on the teaching staff believe that the entire community should feel fortunate in having the Pikeville Methodist Hospital as a teaching facility, and also in having an administrator like Lee Keene who is progressive and farsighted enough to advance these teaching programs."

"Because of this cooperation," he continued, "we are now able to go ahead with our course in coronary care and, in the future, be able to award a diploma in "Medical Assistant in Coronary Care"."

Senior Citizens Center Is Named For Late Mayor

The George P. Archer Senior Citizens Center at the park here which bears the late physician-mayor's name is expected to be in operation within the next 30 days, it was said this week.

The center will be located in one of the Archer Park buildings, leaving staffing the main preparation to be made. A director and secretary are expected to be employed this month.

The George P. Archer Senior Citizens Center began with a survey of elderly citizens' needs which was conducted by the Floyd County Human Resources Committee. This done, Gene Wright, Human Resources chairman, and Mrs. Pat Johnson, Big Sandy Area Development District planner, conferred with Mayor Archer and County Judge Henry Stumbo. The study pointed to transportation and a building to house the center as top priority needs. Mayor Archer and Judge Stumbo committed cash and in-kind contributions to be matched by federal funds on a 75-25 basis.

A grant was sought under Title III of the Older Americans Act, and funding in the amount of $20,181 was made by Henry Beach, director of the Kentucky Commission on Aging. The funds will be used for operation of the center and to purchase a mini-bus for transporting elderly citizens to the park.

Announcing that the center will be named in honor of the late Dr. Archer, Judge Stumbo said it was so named "because of his interest and enthusiasm in the planning of the center."

Judge Stumbo said the programs of the center will be publicized regularly so that all senior citizens will be aware of services to be provided. Operation of the mini-bus will be extended as far as feasible from the center.

Health Dept. Schedules Pap Smear Clinic, Oct. 17

The Floyd County Health Department will hold a pap smear clinic Wednesday, October 17, from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 2 p.m.

For this service the health department has the facilities to accommodate approximately 35 women. Patients will be seen by appointment only.

All women should have at least one pap smear a year, a department spokesman said. If an appointment is desired, call the Floyd County Health Department at 886-2788, Monday through Friday.

If an appointment is made and it is later discovered that it cannot be kept, the health department should be called so that the appointment can be rescheduled.

THE WELL-REMEMBERED

My earliest recollection of Shirt-Tail begins with the first dog that ever owned me, and that triggers a trek, as the writers of "purple prose" sometimes are wont to say, down Memory Lane.

It was Christmas morning, and this pup lay between me and a long, red, wool stocking which hung from a nail at the fireplace. I got the stocking, all right, and dashed across the cold, bare floor in bare feet toward the bed where I proposed to examine the largesse from Santa. But the pup had something to say about it. A flying shirt-tail was a great temptation, and he jumped for it. The mutt worried the garment, growling and shaking and tugging, all the inch-by-inch way to bed. And then had the cheek to jump in with me.

That dog was followed by a long procession of pets which kept me in the dog business until two or three years ago. There were hounds, a bird dog, bulldogs, shepherds, collies, mixtures of same, a cocker spaniel, a dalmatian. Strange as it may seem to many who are uneducated in the love of dogs, every one of these was a good dog. One of the hounds would cold-trail a sheep, but he always contrived to stay well behind his quarry, and died with an unsmirched reputation.

They talk about a boy and his dog. But they forget a man and the friend who cares nothing about bank accounts, or social standing, or how well the master is getting along with his wife, or anything in the whole, wide world except, perhaps, a bite to eat and a friendly pat on the head. One of these dogs of mine was the first to convince me that I could never be the Jesse James or Cole Younger about whom I read a good deal in those days. This shepherd had grown old, but he still contrived to keep up with, or near, us who were younger in woodland jaunts and on the daily trips to school. One day, he suddenly began running.

The dog was mad, the neighborhood experts declared. After he had been killed they said he "musta had the runnin' fits," which, they said, was caused by worms. Anyway, the decision was made. He must be killed, and I stoutly declared that if my dog must die I would take care of the matter. Twice I lined up the center of his forehead with the sights of my rifle, and each time the dog's trusting eyes met mine, and that "mad dog" spoke his affection with the thumping of his tail.

There is such a thing as losing face, and I lost it, but I chickened out in what I still maintain was a good cause.

And so the story goes, from the Shirt-Tail to the Bedroom Slippers generation. Dogs wander in and out of my life, even yet, but they no longer stay. Sometimes it's my fault, sometimes that of others, and then again the mutts themselves are to blame. As in the case of the little stray cocker which almost had found itself a home, a few months back, but moved on too soon. And then there was perhaps the finest gentleman of the lot, the boxer who left our street for a settled home, the other day, after wagging his way into the good graces of the whole neighborhood.

You say, I have run out of material for a column? If you don't like it, there's Watergate or the latest mass slaying to turn to.

OUR FIRST VETERANS

Clyde P. Allen, of Martin, informs us that U. S. National Archives show that as of June 1, 1840 eight Floyd county veterans of the Revolutionary War and five widows of veterans were drawing pensions.

Veterans listed were:

Anthony Hall, Reuben Thacker, Benedict Watkins, Cudbeth Stone, Sr., John Porter, Thomas C. Brown, Philip Williams, Mexico Pitts.

Names of widows of veterans were listed as Amy Justice, Sally More, Rebecca Henrel, Patey Harris, Elizabeth Preston.

AND THAT'S WHY

We would, if cornered, supply perhaps a dozen reasons for the paper failing to reach a subscriber, but the one Gypsa Lewis, of Louisville, passes on hadn't occurred to us. She says her mailman kids her when The Times is late or fails to arrive, and greets her with "No paper today—the creek's up."

their request taken to the scene of the crash.

The widow of the pilot said she had flown almost daily over this area in a fruitless search for the plane and added that this search had carried her over the spot where the craft was found on more than one occasion, but the shelter of foliage concealed it from view.

The two minister-brothers of J. W. Milam, the Revs. Guy and Jerry Milam, had spent long hours, searching the hills, afoot. Members of their congregations had come to the area to help them. When it was all over they and other weary relatives found relief that at last the bodies of their loved ones could be claimed and given burial at home.

RETURN TO FLORIDA

Mrs. Laura Virginia Collins and daughter, Judy, returned to Boca Raton, Florida last Friday after having been called here by the critical illness of her father, George T. Roberts, who had suffered a stroke. His condition is slightly improved. He is at the Highlands Medical Center.

The parade will include marching bands, antique cars, floats depicting life as it was once lived, horses, clowns, 4-H Clubs, representatives of Oleika Temple, Big Sandy Shriners, the Floyd and Left Beaver Emergency & Rescue Squads, the covered wagon, among others.

The tentative program for the day follows:

10 a.m., entertainment for veterans, Gospel singing, addresses, Blue Grass music.

12:30 p.m., Flag-raising ceremony, Pledge to Flag, national anthem, address by Adj. Gen. Richard Frymire, representing Governor Ford, "Taps."

2 p.m., beginning of parade of Gold Star mothers, veterans, floats, bands, schools, etc.

5 p.m., beginning of oldtime bean stringin', square dancing, corn huskin'.

SPEND WEEK-END HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Meade and children, of Winchester, spent the week-end here with his grandmother, Mrs. Gladys P. White, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Woods, at Emma.

Besides her husband and children, she is survived by three brothers and three sisters, Edward Amburgy, Newport News, Va., Clarence and John Amburgy, both of Dayton, O., Mr. Opal Craft, Frankfort, Ky., Mrs. Faye Messer, Porter, Ind., and Mrs. Ilene Moore, Dayton, Ohio.

Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday from the Hueysville Church of Christ, with Rondall E. Hayes the officiating minister. Burial in the Stephens-Whitaker cemetery there was under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

AAUW To Meet Thursday At Floyd County Library

The Prestonsburg Branch of the American Association of University Women will consider the subject "Woman, Searching for Self" in their October 11 meeting. The program has been arranged by Maria Fitzpatrick and members and guests are welcome. The meeting will be held at the Floyd County Library at 7:30 p.m.

Assessment Up Over Five Years By $22 Million

With people all over the country concerned over their steadily mounting property taxes, a look at the local assessment situation has just been taken by the Census Bureau as part of a nationwide survey of state and local government operations that it makes every five years. The findings, just released, are contained in its "1972 Census of Governments."

They show that, in Floyd county, where the property tax is the principal source of revenue for local government needs, the assessed value of property subject to such tax amounted to $102,033,000. This compared with the total reported five years ago, $80,077,000.

It was an increase of 27 percent. Elsewhere, in the United States assessments went up 43 percent, on the average, and in the state of Kentucky, 34 percent.

Assessed valuations are not to be taken as true market values, it is noted, since property is assessed in most communities for tax purposes at something less than actual value.

The tax rate that is applied to the assessed value is the other factor in determining how big the tax bills are.

In terms of population, the tax base in Floyd county was equivalent last year to $2,915 in taxable property per local resident.

Throughout the Southern states, the average was $2,772 per person.

Property assessments, as well as tax rates, have been increased in most parts of the country in the last few years as local communities, confronted with bigger operating costs, were forced to seek additional revenue.

Nationally, the assessed valuation of locally taxable property has jumped from its 1967 figure of $442 billion to a total of $641 billion.

As a result, property taxes collected by local communities in the past year amounted to $36.7 billion, a 46 percent increase over the $25.2 billion collected five years ago.

HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Grethel Homemakers met at the John M. Stumbo school Sept. 24 at 7 p.m. The president, Glenna Evans, presided. Devotions were led by Mrs. Cosetta Newsome. Lesson for the evening was given by Mrs. Frances Pitts, who showed colored slides of fall fashions and fabrics.

The October project will be the making of a dress by each member. Instructions will be given by Mrs. Pitts. Each member is to bring pattern, material, scissors, and pins. It was decided to discontinue the sending of flowers to shut-ins because of the lack of funds.

Mrs. Avalia Hall was appointed chairman of the selling committee.

Day of Atonement To Be Observed

A Day of Atonement will be observed Saturday, October 13 in the Floyd County Catholic Parish. There will be three hours of prayer at Saint Theodore Church in Prestonsburg, beginning at 6 p.m. Included will be Scripture-reading, homilies, hymn-singing, the rosary, silent prayer, group prayer, distribution of communion and benediction. The prayer will be preceded by a supper of bread and water upstairs of the church.

As a sign of penitence, Rev. William Poole, the pastor, will walk from Martin to Prestonsburg along old U.S. 23 carrying a hand cross before the service.

As a part of the Day of Atonement, the congregation will pray for the following intentions: personal sins, especially "hidden sins," faults, and failures; increased faith, greater charity, heightened sense of justice; whatever way in which the congregation lacks; disrespect for human life (war and abortion); lax and selfish Christians; strength to "hear the Word of God and keep it."

The pastor and people invite any interested Christian to join with them in this Day of Atonement.

To The
Floyd County

A man who holds an important public office should be trustworthy and honest with the people that he serves. Joe Wheeler has not measured up to this in the past. For example, Joe Wheeler promised the people of Floyd County that he would not appoint any deputy sheriff who had been convicted of a felony. In fact, he made a statement to this effect in the Floyd County Times. Did he stand on his word of honor? Or did he mislead the people of Floyd County? Can we, the people of Floyd County, trust a man who has gone back on his word? I think not.

Elect a man whom we can trust. Elect Hollie Barnett, a man of his word.

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK
Attorney General of Kentucky

One of the functions of the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office is to investigate and attempt to resolve complaints from consumers.

Although consumers write in about problems ranging from defective automobiles to unclear food labeling, the most common complaint concerns unfair business policies.

Many stores for example have a "no refund" policy for returned merchandise. A consumer can exchange defective or otherwise unsatisfactory goods, but the store's policy is not to give refunds in cash. This kind of policy is the store's prerogative—so long as their customers are not misled, but when the consumer does not want anything else in the store in exchange, there are problems.

The only way to avoid this kind of situation is by learning the store's policy before purchasing. If you wouldn't want to exchange your purchase for something else in the store, be sure you'll be satisfied with it.

The consumer is an important part of the process by buying and selling. Before signing a contract, he or she should have all the facts. Being hesitant to inquire about the facts makes a purchaser vulnerable to an unfair situation.

If you have a consumer complaint or problem, call the Attorney General's Consumer Hotline, toll-free, between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 1-800-372-2960.

SKETCHES

What is this life, this toil, this pain...
This time of never ending rain...
What is this life but just a scheme...
A moment spent within a dream...
What is a day, a month, a year...
But just a breath... a falling tear...
For all things pass... nothing stands still...

And so a lifetime fleets at will...
What is life but a prelude to...
Eternal life in God's great blue...
And so while pausing here prepare...
So we may all join hands up there.
Rest in peace, dear one, till we meet again.

Ky. Commission Joins Arkansas On Effort to Protect Flyway

Frankfort, Ky., August 17—The state Fish and Wildlife Commission, acting on a request from the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission, voted this morning to ask permission from the U. S. District Court for the Eastern District of Arkansas to file an amicus curiae brief in the Cache River-Bayou DeView case, according to Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Arnold Mitchell.

The "friend of the court" brief will be filed in an effort to stop the U. S. Corps of Engineers' Cache River channelization project which would destroy, Mitchell said, "one of the most important wetland areas for wintering waterfowl in the nation."

Citing studies which indicate well over 1 million mallard ducks, representing 37 per cent of the Mississippi Flyway mallard flock, winter in Arkansas (more than half of them in the Cache River-Bayou DeView area), Mitchell said preservation of the wetland area is of extreme importance to Kentucky, which lies in the same flyway.

The commission also expressed concern, he said, about the fate of the 105,000-acre White River National Wildlife Refuge which lies downstream from the project and which, it is feared, will be badly damaged and possibly destroyed because of silt-laden waters and abnormal flooding if the channelization project is carried out.

The commission approved a regulation prohibiting commercial fishing in that portion of Dale Hollow Lake which lies in Kentucky and removed the statewide February and March closed season on walleye fishing. An electric-motors-only rule was placed on Briggs Lake in Logan county and Metcalfe County Lake.

In other action, the commission voted to prohibit overnight recreational vehicle camping on all department lands, an action made necessary by recent State Health Department requirements for developed sanitary facilities at all RV campsites. Primitive camping will continue to be permitted on department areas.

Retires After 28 Years

Miss Bessie Halbert, of Martin, is retiring from the Department of Economic Security, Office of Unemployment Insurance, Pikeville, after 28 years' service.

Before her employment in the Department of Economic Security she was an elementary school teacher for 13 years in this county, a court reporter in Floyd and Knott counties, and a defense worker for two years in Jeffersonville, Ind. and Louisville during World War II.

Salisbury To Speak At Wittenburg U.

Ted H. Salisbury, of Martin, retired railway employee and former peace officer, admits that his acquaintance with college life is the scantiest, but he will be lecturing Friday at Wittenburg University, Springfield, Ohio.

The invitation to the Floyd county to appear there in a lecture on "Alcohol in Appalachia" followed a discussion which he gave on the same subject last summer while attending Alice Lloyd College at Pippa Passes for a sociology course.

Salisbury said his lecture will cover rum-running, bootlegging, moonshining and other phases of the illegal liquor traffic.

Salisbury was graduated from high school, but except for the course at Alice Lloyd his only acquaintance with college was a peace officers' training course which he attended at Eastern Kentucky State University, Richmond, a few years ago.

A daughter, Clara Helen, is a student at Henry Ford University in Michigan.

Visitors Find Kentucky "Bigger"

"Everything's bigger," commented Rosemary Bourns, an Irish school teacher asked to make some comparisons between her country and Kentucky.

Miss Bourns accompanied six of her 17-year-old girl students to Kentucky on a three-week tour for "Operation Friendship." The group came from County Down, Ireland, as guests of Lexington families.

The girls said they wanted to get a suntan because the continuous warm days they have experienced in Kentucky are not available in Ireland. "If we go home tanned, people will automatically know we have been away and it will open the door for us to tell them about our trip," explained Miss Bourns.

"Kentucky is the ideal place to visit because you can get the mixture of mountains and plains," she said. Their Kentucky hosts have given them a week-end at Cumberland Falls State Resort Park and one at Natural Bridge State Resort Park. They have also visited Shakertown, Ft. Harrod and the Bluegrass Fair.

This much travel in Ireland would be unheard of, she explained, for to travel from the girls home in Bangor to Belfast (a distance of 14 miles) is considered quite a journey. "You cannot drive on our highways and see so far straight ahead."

"Our trees don't go to the tops of the mountains," she commented. Always coming back to the bigness, she said, "Cars are bigger, roads are bigger."

Sweets with every meal are also a new experience for the Irish girls. Syrups on pancakes for breakfast and sweet sauces with meats all are new to their Irish taste buds. Also peanut butter, and sandwiches, which the girls had to admit they did not like very well.

As a teacher, Miss Bourns has taken a great interest in comparing education systems, and once more remarked on the size of Kentucky's schools. From 6 to 11 Irish students attend primary schools, similar to our elementary schools. To enter the next educational level, students must pass qualifying tests or their parents must pay for their education if they intend to proceed to "university."

Although there hasn't been much time for TV viewing the girls have noted the frequency of American commercials. Ireland gets much of its programming from the BBC (British Broadcasting Company) which has no commercials, the "other channel may interrupt a half hour program once to insert three short commercials," they say.

Most Irish families rent their television sets. "That way, if something goes wrong you just call the man up and he's right there to fix it or bring another set," she said.

Miss Bourns commented that her home in Ireland is much older than most American homes, and immediately asked what we would call an old house. She found the state shrine at Waveland the only old home she had seen in Kentucky.

Spending the day at the Capitol, the girls had a personal visit with Gov. Wendell Ford, who commissioned each a Kentucky Colonel. They considered this the highlight of their journey.

After seeing the "Legend of Daniel Boone" at Ft. Harrod, they would not leave Frankfort without visiting Boone's grave. They were fascinated with the collection of first-lady dolls in the Capitol rotunda.

How did it all happen? A newcomer to Kentucky, Debbie McGrath, a Lexington teen-ager, had been to Scotland last year through New Jersey's "Operation Friendship" program. She brought the idea to Lexington and set out on a campaign to establish it in the Bluegrass. For three months fund-raising campaigns of every kind were held in parts of Lexington to bring the Irish girls to Kentucky.

Now, the Kentucky hostesses are planning for a trip to Ireland next year.

Sturgill-Knausz

Mr. and Mrs. Ballard Sturgill, of Rt. 1, Harold, announce the engagement of their daughter, Betsy, to George S. Knausz, son of Mrs. Dan Knausz, and the late Mr. Knausz, also of Harold.

The bride-elect was graduated from Betsy Layne high school with the class of 1973 and plans to enter nursing school next January.

The prospective bridegroom, who has attended Prestonsburg Community College and Morehead State University, is now a senior at Pikeville College.

A July wedding is being planned.

PLANS HALLOWE'EN CARNIVAL

The Maytown PTA will sponsor a Halloween carnival October 26 in the Maytown gymnasium from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Proceeds will be used for the purchase of air conditioners.

To the Voters of Magisterial District

No. 1:

Throughout my campaign in Dist. No. 1 I have seen and talked to many people. They have asked many questions about the district I am running in and about my opponent. Most of the people tell me they have never seen or do not know him.

I guess the main reason for that is because he has a job with the Big Sandy RECC and has his office in Johnson county. That gives him very little time to be seen and do his job as Magistrate. I've been told he makes a salary of about $20,000 per year. Magistrate pay is very small, so how can he afford to devote his time to this office and to the people of District 1.

How can Mr. Wells go so far as to ask the people of this district to donate to him their office since a good magistrate is so badly needed?

They have also asked what precincts I am running in. They are as follows: Prestonsburg Court House No. 1, Prestonsburg Grade School No. 2, Depot No. 3, Richmond No. 4, Cliff No. 5, Porter No. 6, Auxler No. 7, Middle Cr.—Buckeye No. 8, Cow Cr. No. 9, Mouth of Beaver No. 10, Jim Banks No. 11, Rough & Tough No. 12, Abbott Cr. No. 35, Jack Allen Middle Cr.—David & Pyramid No. 36, New Allen—Dwale No. 44.

Precincts Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 mostly consist of the town of Prestonsburg, which seldom need the services of a magistrate, so they do not realize the desperate need of the people in the rural districts for roads and, most of all, the great need for law and order. At one time some of you may have lived in the country and know the need of the country people. So help your country neighbors and I'll be the magistrate for all of the people in District No. 1, regardless of where you live.

Vote for me—Leo Music—November 6, for a full time Magistrate. If I do not make a good Magistrate, Vote Against me next time.

(Pol. Adv.)

SPE Lecturer To Speak At East Kentucky Section Meeting

Donald C. Bond, head of the Oil and Gas Section of the Illinois State Geological Survey and a 1973-74 Distinguished Lecturer of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME, will be guest speaker at the meeting of the East Kentucky Section of SPE at 6:30 this evening (Wednesday) at the Paintsville Country Club.

Bond's speech will review the current technology associated with underground gas storage and will focus on how gas storage can help combat the current energy crisis. He will discuss current research that is being conducted related to the testing of cap rocks, the development of storage reservoirs, and the prevention of leaks from storage areas as well as how underground storage can be utilized to stockpile SNG and gas derived from coal gasification for use during heavy demand periods.

The Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME is an international technical and professional organization for engineers, scientists, and executives in the exploration, drilling, and production phases of the petroleum and natural gas industries with more than 20,000 members located in the major oil producing areas of the free world.

Kentucky Donates Coal For Gasification Project

By MARVA GAY

Environmental Protection Writer
Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky recently donated 50 tons of high sulfur coal for a California experiment which may result in the use of the state's coal with less environmental damage.

In making the announcement, Thomas O. Harris, commissioner of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, said the fifty tons of 4.5 percent sulfur Western Kentucky coal will be used to determine how well Kentucky coal performs in gasification projects. The state's environmental department initiated and is coordinating the project.

Coal gasification has been hailed as a means of preventing environmental damage caused by air pollution when raw coal is burned. Conventional methods of controlling air pollution are costly and often ineffective. By using conventional controls much of the ash from coal burning can be removed, however, controls for sulfur oxide removal are still experimental.

Coal gasification removes all of the ash and 99 percent of the sulfur produced by burning coal and converts the coal into a clean, pipeline-quality gas.

Rockwell International in Canoga, Calif. will use a molten carbonate solution to gasify the coal donated by Peabody Coal Company. The coal was shipped to California by train in late August. The experiment will be performed in mid October. Results will be known by November.

According to Harris, Kentucky is the first state to donate its coal for use in a gasification project. There are 20 to 25 gasification pilot projects in the United States but none are marketable. They use several substances including coke and coal. There are no pilot projects in Kentucky.

"By donating coal for this gasification project Kentucky has taken a lead in increasing the benefits that can be derived from coal and decreasing the environmental harm caused by it. We hope that this project will be a success and benefit Kentuckians and the nation as a whole. Because there is a great need for clean power and Kentucky has vast reserves of coal, Kentuckians hold a great responsibility to lead the search for ways to use coal which cause little or no environmental damage. The Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection is doing all it can to lead that search through this and other projects," said Harris.

NEW TREATMENT FOR HAIR LOSS

Frank Moran Shows He ReGrew Hair. He Did Not Have Male Pattern Baldness.

EBB'S HAIR CONSULTANT WILL EXPLAIN HAIR PROBLEMS FREE AT THE LANDMARK MOTEL, PIKEVILLE, KY. SUNDAY, OCT. 14 HOURS 1 P.M. to 8:30 P.M.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 10. Now is the time to act on this great opportunity. Every hair-worried person (man or woman) should take advantage of this FREE CONSULTATION. Many users have reported not only stopping their hair from thinning . . . but are really growing more hair.

GUARANTEED

You will be given a written guarantee on a pro-rated basis from the beginning to the end. Naturally we could not give you such a guarantee if it didn't work.

CAN'T HELP

Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Ebb Hair Specialists cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair . . . now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

FREE CONSULTATION

Just take a few minutes of your time on Sunday, Oct. 14, and go to the Landmark Motel in Pikeville, Ky. between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the Desk Clerk for E. E. Miller room number.

There is no charge or obligation . . . all consultations are private, you will not be embarrassed in any way.

Teacher Discusses Special Education

"Special Education" was the topic for discussion at the recent program meeting of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club. Mrs. Sue Holbrook, teacher of special education at Garrett elementary, was guest speaker. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. James A. Duff, with Mrs. Birchell Duff acting as program leader.

Following the Pledge to the Flag and a brief devotional by Mrs. J. T. Spillman, Mrs. Holbrook explained the meaning of "Special Education." She advised that some children through improper home environment, illness, or some other contributing factor beyond their control have learning problems, even though their intelligence may not be low. These children need special help. Their regular classroom teacher, by referring these children to the special education teacher and with the permission of both parents and through proper testing, can place these children in the special education classes where they can achieve at their individual level of learning and thus become happier, better adjusted youngsters, she said.

The club voted unanimously to assist the special education teacher at Garrett by school room visitation and by gifts of needed items for the children's self-help program.

Following the program, a business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. S. M. Martin, during which a $15 contribution was voted for the Nephrology Foundation.

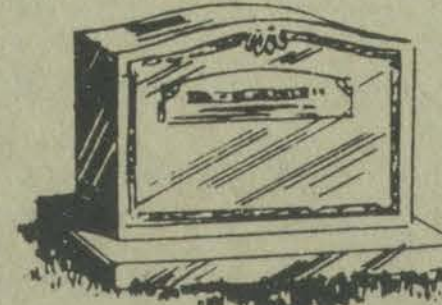

Those present were Mrs. Earl Castle, Mrs. Lula Coburn, Mrs. M. M. Collins, Mrs. Mervil Dixon, Mrs. Patricia Duff, Mrs. Elizabeth Duff, Mrs. Alice Hornsby, Mrs. Rondell Lawson, Mrs. Rex Martin, Mrs. Otto Martin, Mrs. S. M. Martin, Mrs. Eugene Mullins, Mrs. J. T. Spillman, Mrs. Milton Trusty, and Mrs. J. C. Wells, members, and Mrs. Sue Holbrook, guest.

The next club meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Hansel Bradley, Garrett, October 15.

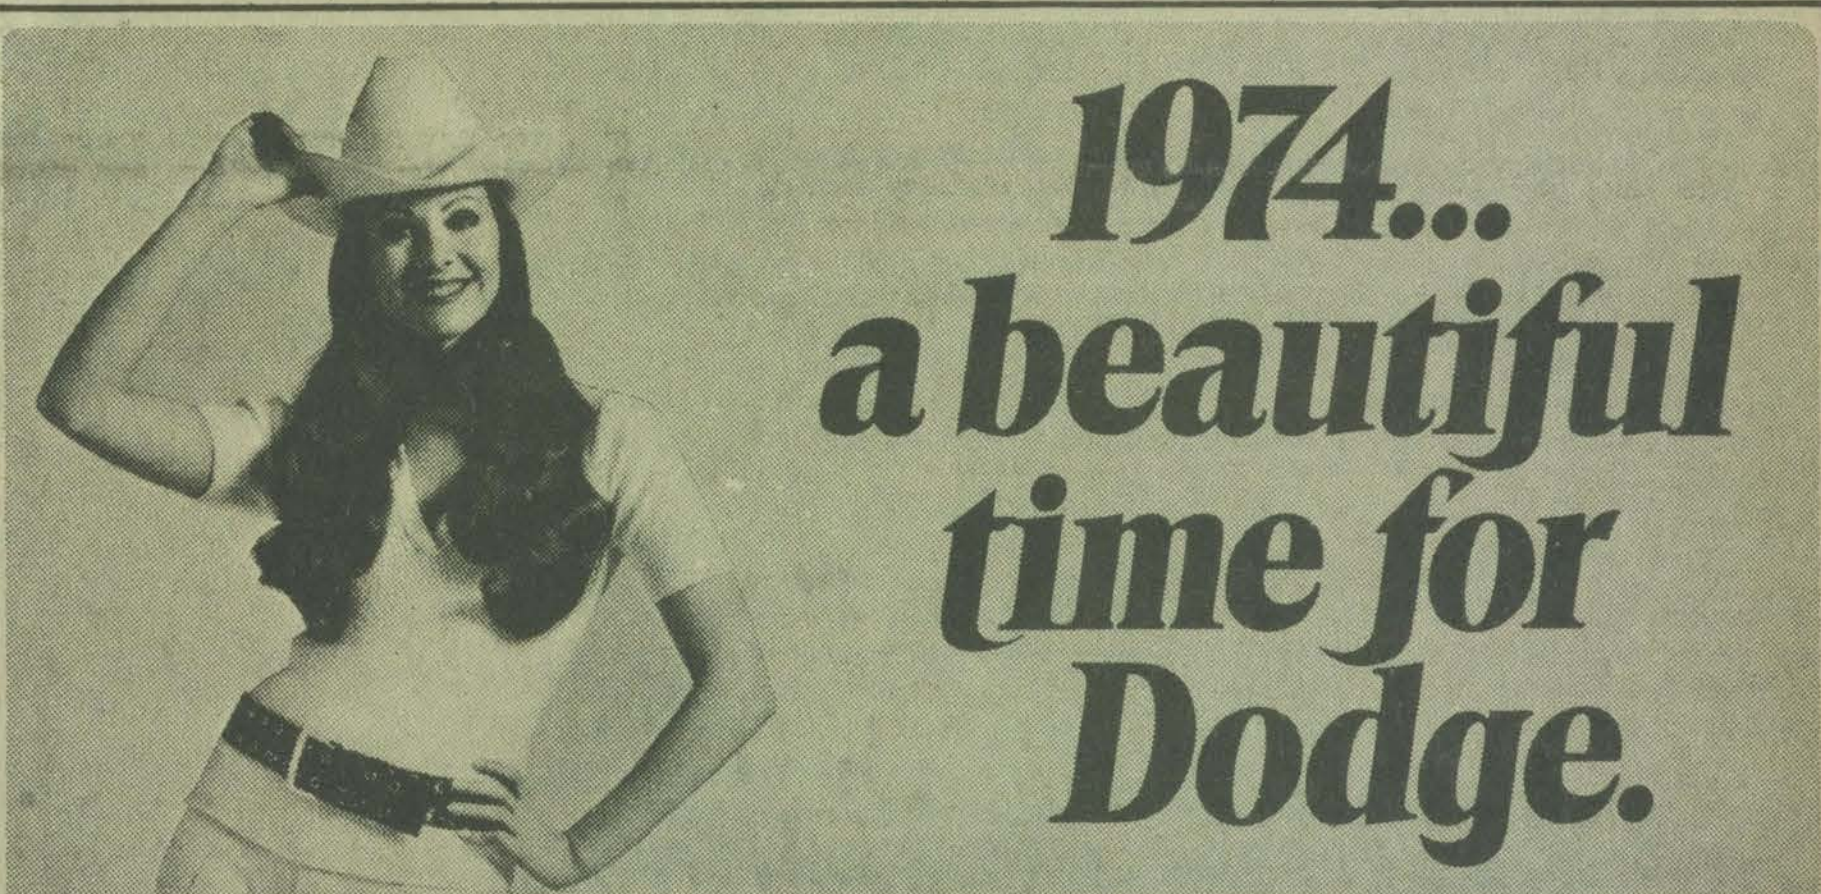

The Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution's Cooperative Game-Fish Tagging Program, which began in 1954 under the direction of Frank J. Mather III, has up to now resulted in the tagging of 9121 young blue-fin tuna—with a starting tag-return rate of 25 percent. This indicates a very heavy fishing pressure on the local stock of young bluefins.—SPORTS AFIELD

RECEIVES COMMENDATION MEDAL

The Library Is Happiness

Vernon Cooper, Hazard banker, went all out, as anyone in Perry county can tell you, to build one of the finest of the new community library centers.

But when Vernon Cooper got to the children's special area on the second floor, many local citizens and even the librarians thought he had gone too far. The painters received instructions to mix freely, bright yellows, purples, oranges, and reds, the results of which were garish enough to give an interior decorator stomach cramps.

Hazel Ward, chief librarian, and the community discovered, however, that when the multi-colored library shelves were installed the total effect was lively and in acceptable taste. Later, Cooper and the librarians installed a "library boat" in the middle of the reading area, and set up attractive displays of animals and dolls.

As one might expect, the heaviest use by children of the Perry County Library is in the summer. Advertised as "the Coolest Place in Town," on summer afternoons, which are often hot and humid in Eastern Kentucky, the children often relax over a brisk game of checkers. Later they can view a children's film and, perhaps, a favorite color cartoon, as well as read and check out books.

Special attention is provided for preschoolers, who never fail to be thrilled when Mother Goose arrives dressed in her tall, peaked hat, wire specs and gown, to tell stories and play children's games.

A little boy of nine who had read enough to feel the need for specialization, approached Mrs. Ward recently with the request for a book on the earliest Americans. Upon being shown the shelving which contained books on Indians and pilgrim fathers, he doggedly shook his head. "No," he demanded. "I don't want anything that old. I want something about people back to 1920."

Not many months before, an old man came to Perry County Library for the first time. It happened to be one of the busiest, summer afternoons of the year and both floors were packed with children of all ages involved in both quiet and noisy activities.

The new patron was silent upon being shown around the library, but upon leaving, to the librarian's relief, the old man summed up what appears to be the feelings of Perry countians toward the new library community center:

"Mrs. Ward, this is the happiest building I have ever been in in my entire life."

STUDENT TEACHER

Richmond, Ky.—Ten weeks of student teaching are now under way for 219 seniors from Eastern Kentucky University, including Kenneth T. Jackson, of Wheelwright, who has been assigned to Johnson elementary school, Lexington.

Are You Sincere?— You May Be Wrong

If you are trusting in religion or your own efforts, you are leaning on some broken reeds and ideas from hell itself. Wake up, my dear reader, to the real facts. Jesus said, "YE MUST BE BORN AGAIN." Have you been "born again"? Better wake up now to the truth and receive the Lord Jesus Christ than to wake up like the rich man did (Luke 16:23), when it was too late, in hell.

I once heard a man testify, I have been a Sunday school teacher for the past two years but I did not get saved until a few months ago. He found out the truth in time. Have you? Anything short of a real experience of the New Birth (a turn around from sin is shown in your life) through faith in the Son of God who died and rose again, is nothing but plain religion. It is not enough. It will fail you. You will die, a lost soul.

(To be continued next week)

Will you please sign and mail to one of the addresses below?

I realize the need of the New Birth. I want Christ as my Saviour. I want to repent and be baptized. I trust Jesus Christ to wash away my sins. I will stand on His promises. When I have the chance I will confess Him before all people. I will confess Him to be my Lord and Saviour.

DEAD.

But he's alive . . . thanks partly to sewage treatment plants that keep millions of tons of man-made pollutants from entering our rivers, lakes and streams. Many more plants like these that help keep his environment clean and our drinking water safe are needed to do an even better clean-up job. Our job is to produce and deliver the millions of kilowatts of electricity required to operate these and other industrial waste water treatment plants. It's a job we're trying hard to do . . . and with minimum effect on the environment. It all takes electricity . . . lots of it. When you stop to think about it, electricity is the key to cleaning up our rivers, lakes and streams.

Coin Collection Here Includes Biblical 'Mite,' Ancient Pieces

A few of Meadows' coins pictured here include the "widow's mite" (at top left), bronze pieces from the Roman empire (top center and middle row), and ancient Greek right and Parthenian coins (bottom row). Coins at far left and right are relatively "recent," being Spanish and Dutch pieces from the 18th century.

Prestonsburg coin collector Blake Meadows is not that concerned with "Indian head" pennies or "Buffalo" nickles. It's Greek, Parthenian, Roman and other coins, some dating to 480 B.C. that interest him.

Meadows, who started collecting in 1935, is now retired and his relaxed schedule allows him to devote a good deal of his time to mounting and cataloging his coins and researching historical background at the Floyd County Library.

His interest in coin collecting stems mainly from an interest in history and archaeology and it was in various parts of Europe during a World War II tour of duty that Meadows was able to acquire several coins of great antiquity.

Some of Meadows' oldest pieces include a silver coin from ancient Athens, dated 480-400 B.C. two silver Parthenian coins from shortly before the birth of Christ, and bronze coins from the Roman Empire bearing the images of several emperors, including Augustus, Vespasian, Nero and Tiberius. Many of these are practically in "mint" condition.

His collection, which includes some 600 pieces, not counting his American currency, also includes a single example of a coin known in the New Testament as the "widow's mite."

Meadows' coins represent nearly every period of history since ancient Greece. "You learn a lot of interesting things," he said, referring to the background research he does on each coin. Most of the time Meadows can be found at the Floyd County Library, a facility he praises highly.

The collection, according to Meadows, is of inestimable value to him, simply because of the great age and history behind each piece, although the coins are not of great monetary value. To Blake Meadows his coin collection is mainly "an education."

Environmentally Speaking Air Pollution

During the past few months the federal government has issued a series of clean-air regulations and proposed regulations aimed at improving all the states' clean-air plans. This has necessitated new assessments of our own air pollution regulations and the state Division of Air Pollution is currently reviewing these regulations. We want to insure compatibility with the federal requirements.

The review encompasses standards of performance for new air contaminant sources and emission standards for hazardous pollutants. Possibly the most far reaching of the new proposals concerns evaluating the impact of vehicles around traffic attracting facilities such as large apartment complexes, shopping centers and sports arenas. According to the federal proposal, we must evaluate the impact to the air caused by these complex sources. We must also have the authority to prevent construction if the air quality around the facility does not meet our standards.

Perhaps the most controversial federal proposal concerns defining significant air quality deterioration. According to the federal Clean Air Act, each state must have authority to prevent "significant air quality deterioration." Because of the vagueness of this phrase, a suit was brought against the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency. As a result, EPA is working on a revision which should be out by late October.

As these new regulations are issued and proposed ones become final, a larger work load is placed on the Division of Air Pollution. However, the final goal of a cleaner and healthier environment is worthy of sacrifice from all of us.

'Porch-Sitting Can Be Thrilling'

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD

August is the hayday of ripening fruit—a time of maturity for watermelons, summer squash, stick beans, and roasting ears. It is a month of plenty and payoff time in the garden—the month in which late winter planning and spring and early summer labors reach full fruition.

Although usually sultry and oftentimes dusty, August is still a good month in which to get things done—important things like attending county fairs, visiting kinfolks, and making arboreal surveys by laying on one's back in a hammock under the maples and studying the underside of the leaves.

Coming as it does between that frantic period of sowing and hoeing and the equal urgency the harvest, August offers a brief moment for relaxation and a time to indulge in the restful therapy of angling for bluegills in a local pond.

In August, it matters little whether or not anyfish are caught. The real reason for going fishing during this month is to get away, to listen to the sounds of the day, to watch the play of wind on water, to revel in a solitude broken only by the sounds of nature, and to reflect and remember. To be reasonably happy and content, a person—city dweller or farmer—must have some solitude and time to reflect and recall. There is no month like August in which to indulge these mental luxuries.

August is also a fine month for late afternoon back porch sitting, because the sun is gradually fading away, the evenings are mostly cool and, in the coolness, comes a vast runing up of that insect orchestra which is a musical prelude to autumn.

By August, most of the songbirds have stopped singing and many have already departed on the long journey to their winter homes in the South. Where they left off, the insects—mole crickets, katydids, and a thousand others—take over.

Porch sitting in an August twilight can be a thrilling experience. As the darkness settles down over the landscape, there is first a rasp here and a creak there as katydids start waxing their bows. Then there may be the chirp of a field cricket, the weird tremolo of a screech owl, and the ghostly call of a gray fox articulating his lonesomeness from some rocky point deep in the darkening woods. Moments later, all these sounds blend into one universal score, a sort of a threnody and a dirge, for in August summer slowly begins to die.

There are, of course, many other things that can be done in August. It is the month in which to dry beans; make pickles; sow radishes, lettuce, kale, and turnips; fix the fence; work on the compost heap; and collect flowers to dry for fall arrangements. But since you have worked hard all spring and summer, take some time off to rest and enjoy the fruits of your labors. You deserve it and, in fact, are commanded to do so for, as it is written, "You shall eat and be full and you shall bless your God for the good land he has given you."

Safety and Health Act In Operation

Frankfort, Ky.—School teachers, maintenance workers and all other public service employees are now covered under the new Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA).

"Kentucky's OSHA plan faces fewer problems than many other states," said Labor Commissioner James Yocom speaking to a group of compliance officers in Frankfort recently.

"The plan was formulated in a cooperative spirit by both labor and management in conjunction with the Kentucky Department of Labor," said Yocom. "We've worked hard to develop a viable plan for safety and health in this state and we'll work equally hard to enforce it."

He told the group that the plan, the 14th in the nation to be approved by the United States Department of Labor, received no criticism from the national AFL-CIO. In fact, Kentucky has the distinction of being the only state with a plan this national labor organization has not voiced some objection to.

Primary features of the Kentucky plan parallel those of the federal plan—except Kentucky's calls for separate divisions for compliance and education and training. Yocom said he felt that education and training would encourage more voluntary compliance and lessen the load of the compliance division.

"We feel our plan is one of the best in the nation," said Yocom. "This is an area where Kentucky can definitely be a leader."

Kentucky's plan also differs from the federal plan because it covers public employees as well as those in the private sector.

Federal and state officials will be working together to insure a smooth transition from the federal to the state plan. The federal OSHA office in Louisville won't be phased out for at least three years.

According to Yocom, the department will have 20 compliance officers and nine industrial hygienists. The compliance officers are concerned with physical plant safety, while the hygienists are concerned with noise, dust levels and toxic substances.

About $2.2 million will be needed for the new plan, with half the money coming from federal funds said Yocom.

In adopting the standards to be followed, there are 12 men appointed by the governor to head the Standards Board. Three come from labor, three from industry, three from safety and health and three from agriculture.

In the event an employer feels he has received an unjust penalty, he can contest the penalty to the review commission. This commission is independent of the Labor Department and is composed of three men appointed by the Governor.

Nature Trails By Rufus M. Reed

THE BAOBAB. This tree has the largest trunk of any known tree; the trunk is bigger at the top than the bottom. Most trees taper from the ground up but this tree presents the opposite form; it is shaped somewhat like a gigantic carrot turned upside down. The trunk attains a diameter of fifty feet and keeps on growing forever; the tree is said to be practically indestructible. In Africa, its native home, entire families carve out their huts inside the huge trunk and live comfortably while the tree keeps on living as if unmindful of its human dwellers.

This tree is often called the "baboon tree," as the baboons feast on its good-tasting fruits, which hang from the branches like an over-stuffed Christmas stocking. The pulp of the fruit is delicious and is used to flavor drinks, much as we use lemons and oranges to make a cool drink.

The baobab tree could not long survive without the help of the baboons; these animals propagate the tree by softening up the hard-hulled seeds, which they swallow when eating the pulpy fruits. This presents one of the finest examples of symbiosis found in nature. The seeds of the baobab are enclosed in such a hard hull they cannot sprout and grow unless they are first prepared for this by the digestive juices of the baboons. So the baobab tree depends on the baboons for propagation and in turn these animals depend on the tree for a major portion of their food supply.

The baobab tree is known to botanists as Adansonia Digitata; it was named for Adanson, a prominent French botanist.

Not only does the baobab tree serve the African natives as home and shelter, its bark serves them for making clothing, rope, mats and such. There are also huge baobab trees in Australia but their fruits are called "sour gourds," too acid for good eating; but these trees of Australia furnish "cream of Tartar," a white crystalline substance used in medicine and cookery.

THE BANYAN TREE. This tree is the most prolific tree ever known. It is a member of The Fig Family and is often called "the enchanted tree," also "The Wizard of the Forest." It multiplies itself thousands of times over by bending down its branches, which take root in the ground and form new trunks in every conceivable direction and shape. This tree is known to botanists as FICUS INDICA, signifying "Indian fig." It spreads out in a circle until it often covers several acres of ground, yet its crown presents a solid mass of foliage under which one thousand men may take shelter. When English explorers first found the tree, they named it "banyan," which means a trader or merchant. Many different kinds of merchants used the tree as a market place. In former times the Hindus built their pagodas (temples) under the spreading crowns of the banyan tree; it has played a great role in the lives of not only the traders but the religious devotees. It is small wonder the natives regard the tree with a superstitious awe; it often presents the appearance of some ancient ghoulish, who gathers around him offspring of every conceivable, fantastic form. This lends the tree an eerie aspect and makes the forest seem haunted by unseen ghosts and goblins.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals has approved a resolution passed by the Kentucky Bar Association (KBA) striking down its own suggested fee schedule. The current fee schedule, which has been in effect since May of 1971, suggested minimum fees lawyers were to charge for certain services.
