

Ford Sets Plans For Floyd Work

Span at Banner Seen Next Year; KY 80 Is Talked

Governor Wendell H. Ford felt "right at home" in Prestonsburg last Wednesday when he brought state government to the people in Floyd county.

He felt he was among friends—and they came to see him, 200 or more of them, for the same reason folks call on him at the Capitol in Frankfort. Every one of them wanted something.

They talked roads, bridges, black lung, the environment, strip-mining.

A delegation from the Banner area appeared to inquire when construction of a new highway bridge there, replacing the present swinging-type span, will be begun and the governor assured the group that a contract will, barring unforeseen circumstances, be awarded in late summer next year.

The only possible delay, he said, could come if condemnation proceedings for rights-of-way become necessary. This could set work back till 1975, Ford said.

"I promised this bridge in 1971, and I intend to keep my promise," Governor Ford told the Banner delegation. He said design of the span has been completed, adding that now the help of residents in the community is needed toward rights-of-way acquisition.

Reminded by Earl Hall that those whose help is needed themselves need to know the exact boundary lines of property required for the bridge, the governor said the rights-of-way lines will be staked out at once.

Asked by County Judge Henry Stumbo about the prospects for a new or a rebuilt KY 80 from Allen to Hazard, Ford told of making a trip to Washington for the sole purpose of procuring federal aid. This trip failed, but he said he now understands that the new federal highway bill offers some hope of financial aid and that one of his primary targets will be to match each dollar of federal funds with a dollar of state money for the road.

Ford said that if he has a highway priority, it is KY 80. It is estimated that the completely rebuilt route would cut the distance from Allen to Hazard by 10 miles.

This Town . . . That World

They weren't UFO's, but we have the word of a certain Floyd county man that he has seen more than one flying saucer. Says his wife has a short temper.

ANOTHER WHOPPER?

Some cynic once observed that although all liars may not be fishermen, all fishermen are liars. We had a slim hope of refuting this calumny till two fishermen down south, the other night, came up with a tale to the effect that they not only had seen travelers from outer space but that the unearthly visitors had taken one of them inside their craft... And these two, like the rest of us, solemnly declare they're telling the truth. No evidence to the contrary, I'm siding with my fellow-liars.

MAMA CHASES CAR

I haven't been what you would call an admirer of this little, black dog on our street, but her evidence of mother-love has won me over. The other day, she was out on the street, nudging her puppies with her nose, patiently herding them back into the safety of the yard. But this dog is almost as inconsistent as we humans. Next day, she was out, giving chase to cars—a thing no respectable mother should do.

THE DRINKING CUP

This may give somebody the mistaken idea that I am, as they say, "getting on," but I remember the first folding, or collapsible, drinking cups that were put to use in our country school. The owner of that cup hadn't any other distinction, but the crowd that gathered 'round would compare favorably with the modern-day admiring throng when the school hero hits a home run or scampers 75 yards for a touchdown. (Such a thing as this hadn't been seen on television yet, you see.) It wasn't long till we all had one of the new-fangled gadgets. We were obliged to for sanitary drinking facilities became a must. No more common drinking cup. Disease spreader, you know.

But, as I recall, our health did not improve. We had the same ailments, most of which showed up when the next day's lesson was particularly tough. It

Governor Says Floyd Received $22,696 in Funds, Services

Gov. Wendell Ford announced last week that, according to a state government analysis, Floyd county received $22,696,000 in state monies and services during the past fiscal year.

Governor Ford pointed out that the largest amount of this total, some $4 million, was fed into Human Resources concerns. These include $3 million in the form of services from the state Department of Economic Security, $179,500 from Child Welfare, $727,000 from Mental Health and $301,000 from Health.

Of the $3 million going to Economic Security, $651,000 was aid to the aged, $47,800 to the blind, $465,500 to the disabled and $1,114,000 to dependent children. A total of 9,640 persons in the county received $3,093,000 in food stamps.

A new service under the Ford administration, the Office of Public Defender, received $14,000 during the past year. An additional $492,000 was spent for services from the departments of Public Safety, Corrections, Military Affairs and the Administration of Justice.

The Department of Education, the report shows, allotted $5,208,000 which was funding for the foundation program, adult education, state food services and the disadvantaged in Floyd county.

Another $11,024,000 was received from the Department of Transportation, the majority of which was state road funds.

"This administration has adhered to the motto that government exists to serve people," said Governor Ford. "These county expenditures represent tax dollars being returned to the people in the form of services for the people."

Junction at Allen Held Danger Spot Says State Police

It was reported last week that since the opening of the new, four-lane US 23 between Allen and Prestonsburg 17 auto wrecks have occurred at the Allen junction at US 23 and KY 80, a spot which has been described as "a death-trap."

Kentucky State Police issued this notice for the public benefit:

"Caution lights and flashing red lights have been put up at this intersection as well as stop signs and warnings signs. Please obey and observe these warnings. Be sure to wear your seat belt."

To Subscribers

As of October 1, the subscription rate per year to The Floyd County Times was increased to $5 for Floyd county subscribers; $6 to subscribers elsewhere in Kentucky, and $7 to subscribers outside Kentucky.

Renewals at the old rates continue to be received. Credit will be given for only the amount paid, and not for the full year unless the remittance is for the amount in effect as of October 1.

Because of increasing costs statements will not be mailed regularly to subscribers, as in the past. If the subscriber will note the date opposite his or her name, information as to expiration date will be learned without a notice from us. If, for instance, the date opposite the subscriber's name reads, "Nov. 73," that subscription will expire at the end of November, this year.

Dues Collection Walkout Cause As 2,000 Strike

Some 2,000 United Mine Workers Union members walked out last Thursday from mines in three Eastern Kentucky counties, including Floyd, in a dispute over union dues collection, but by Saturday the work-stoppage had begun to recede.

The strike, which according to UMW District 30 President Squire Felner, "came as a complete surprise to me," was carried out by the miners in protest of the failure of some companies to comply with a new union dues schedule adopted September 2 at a district constitutional convention.

In Floyd county, miners walked out at the Turner-Elkhorn Mine at Drift, and the National Mines Corp. operations, near Wayland. Other Eastern Kentucky mines effected were Republic Mines, Elkhorn City, and the Island Creek Mines in Martin and Pike counties.

According to Harry Campbell, president of the Big Sandy Elkhorn Coal Operators Association, coal companies were caught in what he described as a "struggle" between Felner, a former district safety official appointed by former UMW President Tony Boyle, and UMW President Arnold Miller.

New Allen Street To Get Resurfacing

Deputy Commissioner Otto Ingram of the Bureau of Highways last week announced an addition to the 1973-74 Rural Secondary Program in Floyd county.

Acting Highway Commissioner James E. Gray, Mr. Ingram said the newly authorized project provides for blacktop resurfacing for 2 mile of Porter Avenue in New Allen.

Floyd county's allotment of Rural Secondary funds for the 1973-74 fiscal year amounts to $393,985. Most of this sum has been committed to the program announced earlier.

Sedimentation Now Admitted By Engineers

Dewey Lake is one of three Eastern Kentucky reservoirs listed by the U. S. General Accounting Office (GAO) as ripe for damage from coal mining encroachments such as Fishtrap Reservoir in Pike county has already suffered.

This, according to GAO, is the situation at Dewey:

Sixty-three underground and strip mines in the Dewey drainage basin around Johns Creek in the Big Sandy basin... Stripping is on the increase in the area and early checks there have disclosed accumulating sediment.

GAO noted that the corps intends to make a preliminary study of the situation and then a more detailed study during fiscal year 1975, but the corps' budget requests to Congress did not include money for the studies.

GAO said no mining is permitted on corps-project land at Dewey, but the environmental damage to the lake comes from mining in the adjacent drainage area.

(The Times was told last year by a Corps of Engineers spokesman that at that time there was no evidence of "appreciable" sedimentation in Dewey Lake. The statement was made when increased surface mining operations in the Dewey watershed were called to the attention of the Engineers' Huntington, W. Va. office.)

The GAO findings were made public last Saturday by Wisconsin Congressman Henry Reuss, who accused the Corps of Engineers of being "negligent" and "dragging its feet" on corrective action.

The report said Fishtrap has already been seriously damaged and that $1.2 million will be required to correct the problems there.

Dewey Lake in recent years has carried such a heavy load of sediment that its headwaters remain muddy or murky most of the year to such an extent that white bass, a species once plentiful there, will not spawn and are now extinct.

Only this year did the Corps of Engineers begin the installation there of permanent markers to gauge the accumulation of silt.

Hospital Board Ends Contract Of Dr. Wright

The action taken by the board of directors of the Highlands Medical Center last week to terminate the contract of Dr. Ballard D. Wright as director of the hospital's cardio-pulmonary function laboratory was not a dismissal or "firing" of Dr. Wright, it later was emphasized.

The contract was cancelled after Dr. Wright had opened his own private laboratory and offices in the new Hovatter building on North Lake Drive here. He continues to be chief of staff at the hospital. The contract termination, made last Wednesday, with 90 days' notice, continues the contract till next January 17.

Dr. Wright helped design and organize the laboratory and has headed it since its opening in July, 1972, prior to the completion of the 150-bed hospital. He moved out two days before the board action.

Dr. Wright described his work as "non-hospital based, which doesn't require hospital facilities. I think I can do the job which I came here to do in terms of research into pneumoconiosis (black lung) much better in private setting where there is growth potential."

Dr. Wright, a cardio-pulmonary specialist and Prestonsburg native, indicated there may be other underlying reasons for the board's action.

"It was a result of multiple problems and friction between the administrator, the governing board and myself.

"Part of the problem," he said, "is not related to the lab but involved various other actions of the hospital, including two special care units—intensive and coronary care—which contain $70,000 worth of equipment and which have not been opened."

Chalmer H. Frazier, administrator of the medical center, said, "We need a cardiologist in order to open the coronary care unit." He said the hospital will be looking for a laboratory director to succeed Dr. Wright.

Record Crowd Here Saturday For Red, White, Blue Event

Saturday's Red, White and Blue Day in Prestonsburg embodied the best of all the patriotic holidays in one as a record number of participants and spectators gathered to pay tribute to those who fought to preserve the American heritage.

From 10 a. m., when the day's program officially began, till 11 o'clock that night, when the hardest square-dancer was foot-sore, it was a time of old-fashioned, joyous homage to the basic principles, customs and pastimes that go to make America unique.

Medical Center Opens Facilities Following Delay

Two facilities planned at the new Highlands Regional Medical Center, near here, but delayed while qualified supervisory personnel was being sought, have been placed into operation within the last two weeks, Chalmer H. Frazier, administrator of the hospital, announced last Friday.

The first of these, a physical therapy department, was opened Oct. 8 and will serve outpatients as well as those in the hospital. The service is headed by Gary Knight, former Paintsville High School teacher and baseball coach, who graduated from the U. K. Medical Center as a physical therapist last May. He completed his internship at the Medical Center, Sept. 1.

The extended care facility at the new hospital opened last Wednesday, with Mrs. Sheryl Blackburn Lyons, of East Point, as director. Mrs. Lyons, who is a daughter of Lloyd Blackburn, and the wife of Larry Lyons, of East Point, received her B.S. degree in nursing from the UK Medical Center.

Extended care, Mr. Frazier explained, really serves as a hospital-based nursing home. It provides a level of care over a long period that is cheaper than acute care.

Those who love a parade saw bands from not only every school in this county but also from Rowan, Knott, and Pike county's Elkhorn City and Mullins high schools. The color guard from Ft. Campbell, which took part in the flag-raising ceremony at noon, marched, too, and these soldiers represented many states and Panama. Clowns cavorted, Shriners whooped it up, and school children marched in groups representative of pioneers, Indians, Uncle Sam and the brotherhood of all nations. Colorful floats, men on horseback, ponies hitched to carts—this was a parade with just about everything, from a beautiful horse and buggy to a vintage Model-T.

At the beauty pageant following the parade, Miss Martha Ann Shepherd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shepherd, of the Abbott road, was crowned Miss Red, White and Blue, and Miss Karen Derossett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Derossett, of Prestonsburg, was crowned Junior Miss Red, White and Blue. Miss Shepherd is a senior at Prestonsburg high school, and Miss Derossett attends Prestonsburg elementary school.

In the float competition, first place went to Disabled American Veterans, Chapter 128, of Garrett, whose entry represented the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Second place went to Allen Central High School for its entry, "Happiness Is Being an American" and third place was awarded Allen grade school for its float, titled, "It's A Small World."

The quilt made by Mrs. Nora Martin which was given away at 9 p. m., was won by Mrs. Bill Powers, of the Middle Creek Road.

The scheduled program for the day began at 10 a. m. with a veteran's prayer given by Drew Hayes, of Hindman, and the welcoming address by Gorman Collins, owner of WDOC radio station, Prestonsburg. Following special singing by Miss Janie Bailey, accompanied by Miss Susan Compton, gospel singing by Ada Allen, Mrs. Mildred Martin and singers from Estill, and the Eddie Taylor family, of Hunter, the flag-raising ceremony was held by the Ft. Campbell color guard. Adj. General Richard L. Frymire, representative of Gov. Ford, and Harold H. Friedly, veterans benefits counselor, of Louisville, addressed the gathering.

Mrs. Marcella Bailey, who originated the idea and implemented the Red, White and Blue Day celebration as an answer to critics of the American way, said, "I love these people. I told them this parade would be five miles long, and I believe it was longer. Sure, I was tired by the time the square dance was over, but I enjoyed every minute of it."

"The Good, Old Days" on Parade

This bucolic touch was added to the miles-long Red, White and Blue parade here Saturday as a horse-and-buggy "rig" was followed by a mule-drawn wagon.

Resolution Hails Dr. Allen As Board Member, Physician

Now retired after more than a half-century as a practicing physician in the Right Beaver section of the county and for 33 years a member of the Floyd County Board of Education, Dr. J. H. Allen (left) was visited recently at his Maytown home by Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd county schools, who presented Dr. Allen a resolution signed by him, assistant superintendents and all members of the board of education, expressing their appreciation of the doctor's contribution to education. The resolution, which reviewed Dr. Allen's work as a doctor and official, concluded: "...the present members of the Floyd County Board of Education extend a heartfelt 'thank-you' to a very dedicated human being who has contributed so very much to making our school system one of the most dynamic in the state of Kentucky." The board's resolution described Dr. Allen as administering "his kindness and healing abilities... when the doctor went to the sick and not the sick to the doctor" in a day when his part of the world "looked to the weekly church meeting as the major social event and the horse and buggy as the best means of getting there and back." The county's newest high school, Allen Central, was named earlier in Dr. Allen's honor.

"Decision at Friendship" and "The Questors" will be presented in the Maytown Baptist Chapel at 7 p.m., October 28th. The public is cordially invited. On October 21 the Rev. Glenn Noe conducted his last service in the new Baptist Church of Maytown, which he has pastored for almost a year. At its close, Rev. Earl Waugh, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Allen, and sponsor of the Maytown Mission, paid tribute to Rev. Noe for his ministry here. Howard Ramey, chapel director, presented Rev. Noe with a hand-carved statue as a gift from the congregation. The figure was carved by a local sculptor, Roy May. Jimmy Lynn Allen, director of the Sunday School, showed Rev. Noe his name engraved on one of the marble window sills in the new building. Sandy Bradley, editor-in-chief of the Chapel Bulletin, presented him with a booklet of letters of appreciation from chapel members. Rev. Noe responded with words of gratitude. Rev. Waugh introduced some of the visitors present from out of town, including Rev. Archie Everage, of Hindman, Rev. and Mrs. Carl Mullins, of Salyersville.

Kentucky Takes Over As Top Coal State

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky has moved into first place in the nation's coal production, according to the latest figures from the U.S. Department of Mines.

As of Sept. 15, Kentucky had edged out West Virginia, last year's leader, by nearly 10 million tons.

So far this year, Kentucky has produced more than 88 million tons of coal. This is about 3 million more tons than were produced during the same period last year. Kentucky also led the nation in coal production in 1971.

Employment in Kentucky's coal fields was also up to a record 28,700 in September, 2,100 more than the 1972 monthly average. The record production and employment totals come in spite of decreases in the number of mines licensed and presently in operation.

Figures from the state Department of Revenue show that the number of mines licensed in Kentucky, including both auger and strip, was nearly 200 below last year's total at the end of September.

As of Sept. 30, 1973, there were 1,013 mines in operation as compared to 1,160 active mines through the same period last year.

Governor Wendell Ford cited the coal production and employment figures during a recent address to the Kentucky Coal Association. "When Kentucky's coal industry shows a sharp increase in production and record levels of employment, we have to be doing things right. And this is exactly the situation, which means the economic factors are indicators of good times," he said.

Yuletide will be emphasized, and fresh flowers will be supplied by the instructor.

Classes will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. on Thursdays, November 1 to November 29, in the auditorium and Room 216 of the Pike Technology Building. For further information, contact James W. Ratcliff (886-3863).

Acid-Treated Corn Good Cattle Feed

Preserving corn with acid may be a good practice for farmers who feed their corn to beef or dairy cattle, according to two animal scientists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Nelson Gay and Ron Wendlandt note that many Kentucky farmers are interested in acid treatment of corn because fuel for drying is in short supply. Also, a lot of the corn being harvested this fall is high in moisture because of late spring planting.

The UK animal scientists explain that the acids used for preserving grain are the same as those produced in silage or the rumens of cattle. Because of this, grain preserved with acid is not harmful to cattle and has the same feeding value as regular corn.

Research in Nebraska and Illinois has shown that high moisture (20-30 percent) shelled corn treated with acid can be stored and fed successfully under proper conditions. Corn treated at harvest time has been stored successfully in bins, upright silos and bunker silos.

The keeping quality of the acid-treated corn was acceptable and the feeding value was equal to or better than dry corn. The treated corn also was fed successfully in self-feeders, but it was necessary to make sure the ration did not cake and fail to feed down properly.

Several commercial products are available for treating corn, the UK animal scientists point out. Most of the products contain propionic acid, ammonium iso-butyrate or a combination of these chemicals. The amount needed depends on the moisture content of the grain, but the manufacturer's recommendations should be followed.

The cost of acid treatment varies, but appears to be similar to regular drying costs. The main disadvantages of acid preservation are that treated grain cannot be moved through regular marketing channels and that the acid is corrosive to bins and equipment.

Carroll Lauds Alice Lloyd At Homecoming Ceremonies

Pippa Passes, Ky.—Kentucky's Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll praised Alice Lloyd College as "an educational institution all Kentuckians could be proud of" at Homecoming ceremonies on the ALC campus last week-end.

He then presented June Buchanan, president of the Caney Creek Community Center, and William Hayes, ALC president, with certificates honoring them as "Kentucky Ambassadors of Good Will."

Dr. Lowell Martin, of Martin, president of the ALC Alumni Association, presented plaques to three members of the College's first graduating class of 1923, marking the golden anniversary of ALC alumni on Sunday, Oct. 14. Receiving plaques were Dr. Chester Reynolds, a New Jersey physician; Dr. Orda Harper, also an M.D.; and Dr. Curtis Owens, formerly of Lackey, now a professor of English in New York. One other 50-year alumnus was absent and three others are deceased.

Gene A. Slone, director of alumni affairs, said about 500 people turned out for this year's Homecoming, the largest number of people in recent years.

At the Alumni Association business meeting held Sunday morning, five new members were elected to the association's board of directors. They are: Lawton Allen, a Prestonsburg accountant; Ruby Akers, of Drift, school guidance counselor; Morris Caudill, undergraduate dean at Morehead State University; Dr. James Slone, Whitesburg dentist, and Ed Madden, principal of Knott County High School, Pippa Passes.

Re-elected to two-year terms at the meeting were Freddie Lawson, Pikeville veterinarian; Jerry Saunders, formerly of Prestonsburg, now an educator in Chillicothe, Ohio, and Rosemary Ingram Francis, of Lexington.

In Memoriam

In memory of Etta Smith, who passed away October 22, 1928:

It was a great surprise to hear of her death, Sometime, someday our hearts shall see

A face we loved so well. A place is vacant in our home Which never can be filled.

What is home without a Mother? Surely there can't be any other. She carried sunshine all the while And would always laugh and smile.

Now she has gone and left us. The Lord called her to His home to dwell.

To be among the angels there And sometime we all may find her on the golden shore.

Enrollment at UK Now Totals 35,462

Enrollment at the University of Kentucky now totals 35,462 for the 1973 fall semester.

Dr. Elbert W. Ockerman, dean of admissions and registrar, said this figure includes 20,653 on the Lexington campus, 12,959 in the 15 community colleges, 550 in the extension class program, and 2,010 in the evening class program.

Noting a stabilization in the enrollment which is characteristic across the nation, the dean reported the largest increase in enrollment on the Lexington campus over last year was in the number of returning students. "A total of 14,094 students this semester are classified as returning or continuing students," he said. "Last year's figure was 13,848. New students totaled 5,803."

The Community College System enrollment shows: Prestonsburg, 522; Ashland, 1,169; Elizabethtown, 837; Hazard, 219; Henderson, 586; Hopkinsville, 808; Eagle University at Ft. Campbell, 298; Jefferson, 4,283; Jefferson's Southwest Center, 368; Lexington Technical Institute, 1,118; Madisonville, 371; Maysville, 378; Paducah, 1,048; Somerset, 597; Southeast at Cumberland, 361.

Thanks, GAO!

The General Accounting Office in Washington has made it official. Dewey Lake is being endangered by sedimentation and acid pollution from mining operations in its drainage area, the Johns Creek valley.

The Times is deeply grateful to GAO. For some years now, we have been begging, prodding for action, sometimes abusing the patience of the U. S. Corps of Engineers' district office in Huntington, W. Va., officials in both Washington and Frankfort—all the while insisting that this and other reservoirs built at a cost of millions of dollars of public funds were being victimized and that those in authority were duty-bound to stop the outrage.

But the Corps of Engineers denied any damage had resulted. Frankfort had a stock answer to our questions—"We're keeping an eye on the situation."

Somebody may have been guilty of nonfeasance or malfeasance by "foot-dragging" and "fiddling around" and wilfully closing their eyes to the obvious. Few among us have distinguished ourselves by taking a firm stand.

It is estimated that the cost of ridding Fishtrap Reservoir in Pike county of its sedimentation and pollution problems will run to one and a half millions of dollars. The cost at Dewey has not been determined, may never be known.

But why spend a cent on correction if those in authority are unwilling to use that authority to prevent more problems?

The governor spoke of the loss of gasoline tax monies as the consumption of gasoline decreases, and said the state may have to draw on revenue sharing funds to make up the difference.

It was at this meeting with the Banner delegation and county officials that Governor Ford set at rest rumors that he will be a candidate for U.S. Senator. "Regardless of what the papers say, if the Lord is willing and the creek doesn't rise, I will be governor till 1975."

Later he quipped: "Change that to, 'the Lord willing and if the Watergate doesn't open.'"

Another delegation, representing the Kentucky Black Lung Association, was sharply critical of a recently-proposed new state law on that coal miners' disease.

Mrs. Eula Hall, of Mud Creek, headed the 30-member group, which stated its opposition to mobile X-ray clinics and to filing black lung claims in state public assistance offices, among others.

Ford noted that the law has only been proposed, and asked the group to meet with Laurel True, who was present, to record all their objections before the law would be drafted.

Commissioner of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Tom Harris met with about five individuals on strip mining questions, and said the reaction was divided between those who wanted to abolish the process completely and those who wanted to compliment him on a better job of enforcement.

Ford said this was his fourth state government day since taking office.

"We've been able to solve some people's problems right on the spot," he said, "and we have not always been able to say yes, but I think the people do appreciate us coming and listening to their concerns."

State Representative W. J. Reynolds said later that Governor Ford committed not less than $15 million to Floyd county road and bridge work during the day. In addition to the Banner bridge, the governor told a delegation of Left Beaver Emergency & Rescue Squad members that a highway fill to prevent a flooding situation will be done at Orkney, on Left Beaver Creek, at an estimated cost of $130,000. Other commitments include surfacing of three miles of the Buffalo Creek road and surfacing of the Left Fork of Little Paint and the Whitaker road, the latter project to be let to contract next spring.

"Governor Ford," Representative Reynolds said, "has done more for Floyd county than any other governor, with the exception of Governor Combs."

Terms of a current company-union wage agreement prohibit UMW-affiliated firms from deducting higher dues from miners' paychecks without international union approval, Campbell said, adding that Miller has notified the companies he would not approve any dues increases until the matter is settled at the international UMW convention in December.

Feltner holds that companies should deduct the higher dues, saying, "I have no choice, I'm trying to carry out a mandate from the members."

Friday, Feltner sent telegrams to the union locals in the seven counties included in District 30, urging that action be taken to get the miners back on their jobs. Feltner also said he asked Arnold Miller to attend a membership meeting of District 30 Monday at Pikeville.

Japanese commonly work a 5 1/2 to six day week; a survey of almost 5,000 Japanese firms showed companies with a five day week had almost the same attendance rate as those with a 5 1/2 to six day week.

Corps officials admit. It is being built at a cost of $34.6 million. In its relatively small drainage basin 27 strip mines and 34 deep mines are operating, GAO said.

The report on Fishtrap: "Excessive sediment and degraded environment" is caused by 281 underground mines and 128 strip mines in the drainage basin. Completed only in 1968, the 75-year life of the project has been sharply curtailed because of large deposits of sediment.

"If sediment continues at the present rate, the primary purpose of the project may be encroached upon 7 1/2 times faster than planned," GAO said.

Recreational development has been "adversely affected" and plans for a recreational and public-access area were cancelled because sediment six feet deep accumulated in a year where a tributary runs into the lake.

GAO also found that an extensive network of roads serving underground mines in the project area was a "major source" of sediment—erosion was uncontrolled, no reclamation was carried out, slopes were too steep, natural drainage was blocked.

"The vast network of roads changed Fishtrap from a primitive-appearing lake with steep, wooded, undeveloped sides to a lake having a series of horizontal and diagonal hillside scars," the report said.

Among the problems listed as present in the reservoir drainage basins were: Unstabilized earth, rock and other material dumped down hillsides after stripping were causing erosion, stream sedimentation and unsightly scarring of mountain terrain.

Stream sedimentation was increased by tipples, chutes, conveyors and coal washing facilities and by the construction of poorly maintained or unmaintained mine roads.

Sulfuric acid, formed when air and water mix with exposed toxic materials dug up in the mining process, was causing stream damage and acid pollution in the reservoir drainage basins.

GAO's findings on the four Kentucky projects it closely studied included:

As reported by GAO, the root of the problem in East Kentucky is a land-acquisition policy adopted jointly in 1962 by the Department of Interior and Army. The policy allowed mineral development in federal project areas as long as environment was protected and as long as the government retained a regulatory role in mining around the projects to protect the federal investment and the environment.

Manpower Group Studies Training Program Results

Meeting at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, last Thursday and Friday, members of the Kentucky Manpower Council probed through reports and by field trips into work training programs under way in the area.

The meeting represented the second trip of the Council into the field to advise Governor Ford on the administration of the $17.5 million funds allocated for this fiscal year by federal Manpower Development and Training Act and Economic Opportunity Act funds, Laurel True, state secretary for Human Resources, said.

The funds were previously channeled through the U.S. Department of Labor to individual sponsors of job-training programs, but beginning next July, they will go to the state for disbursement.

The council is primarily concerned with Neighborhood Youth Corps (NYC) Nelson Mainstream, and East Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program (EKCEP) operations.

Reports presented indicated that the NYC in-school project is serving 3,418 trainees this fiscal year, the out-of-school has 812, and the summer program, originally unplanned for this year, provided on-the-job training to 17,397.

EKCEP reported plans to enroll 2,846 trainees in programs this year, with 2,092 already in training by Sept. 20. Officials noted that 82 per cent of the trainees remained on the job for 90 days.

The council divided into groups for field trips Thursday in Floyd and Johnson counties to see Nelson Mainstream and NYC programs in operation.

Friday morning, the members were in Pike county to view EKCEP operations.

All Kentucky was declared a drought area by Governor Wetherby this week as he viewed the pasture situation as the worst in 39 years. Kentucky's senior statesman Alben W. In Memoriam

In memory of my loving son, Lewis Edward Hall, who passed away, Oct. 30, 1971:

Lewis, dear, you seem so near I can almost hear your voice. God called you away from us, I know not why, But you must have been His choice. He must have had a place for you That no one else can fill; It left us with a emptiness And a new mound on a hill, A place we decorate with flowers, With tender loving care. We would give this world If it was ours to give If you were only here.

Sadly missed by Mom and Dad, Sisters and Brothers. (It.)

Lake Drawdown Begins Tuesday

Lowering of Dewey Lake to 15 feet below its summer pool stage began Tuesday morning, more than a week ahead of the date earlier announced for the drawdown.

The earlier date was decided upon only last Saturday, and some boat-owners had not learned of the new plans before the water recession began. The lake is being lowered, it was explained, to make possible the laying of water line from Hager Gap to the dam and to recreation areas in its vicinity. Start of the early drawdown was initiated in an attempt to get the line work under way, if not completed, before the coming of bad weather, Dean Murray, reservoir manager said.

The lake will be dropped at the rate of three inches every 24 hours till Nov. 1. The drop rate may be increased after that. When work now planned is completed it will be returned to its winter pool, which normally is only five feet below the summer stage.

The lower lake level also is expected to enable the state to begin work toward renovation or restoration of the Jenny Wiley boat dock.

Miss Freels Crowned Homecoming Queen; Prestonsburg Defeats Hazard, 32-14

Clear skies, crisp autumn weather, and a 32-14 Blackcat victory over the Hazard Bulldogs combined to make for a perfect Prestonsburg High School Homecoming celebration here Friday night.

A well-balanced offensive attack and "heads up" defense resulted in Prestonsburg's second grid win in as many weeks, breaking a disappointingly long series of close defeats.

Two Prestonsburg TD's accounted for the only score tallied during the first two quarters of play. The first Blackcat touchdown came as the result of a 58 yard pass from quarterback Jim Blackburn to receiver Dennis Walker. Another pass from Blackburn, this time to Mike Meade, set up a 1 yard touchdown plunge by Meade for the second P-burg score. Extra point conversions by Danny Layne following each TD resulted in a half-time score of 14-0.

Hazard's Bulldogs were also held scoreless in the third quarter while a Jim Blackburn pass to halfback Danny Layne set up Prestonsburg's third TD which came on a three-yard run by Layne. An extra point attempt failed.

Prestonsburg sustained its offensive attack early in the fourth quarter when fullback Steve Campbell picked up six more points on a one-yard plunge. A running attempt for an additional two points failed. Hazard's offense began to move in the same quarter and a short run supplemented by a two point conversion gave the Bulldogs their first points. P-burg countered this TD with another home score on an 11-yard pass from Blackburn to Dennis Walker. A final Hazard tally on a sneak by quarterback Joey Childers and an extra point resulted in the final score of Prestonsburg 32, Hazard 14.

Half-time activities were highlighted by the crowning of the new PHS

Homecoming Queen, Phyllis Freels. Phyllis is a brown eyed, brown haired, seventeen-year-old senior and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Freels, of Lancer. Her escort was Brad Kalos.

Miss Freel's court consisted of two senior maids, Sharon Branham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shag Branham, of Prestonsburg, and Brenda George, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie George, of Auxier. Junior maid was Paula Goble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Goble, of Little Paint; sophomore maid, Linda Baldrige, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Baldrige, of Prestonsburg, and freshman maid, Margie Jagers, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Jagers, of Prestonsburg.

Morehead U. Honors Reed

MOREHEAD, Ky.—B. F. Reed's contributions to Eastern Kentucky were recognized here Oct. 13 when a five-story classroom building was dedicated in his honor at Morehead State University.

John Whisman, states representative to the Appalachian Regional Commission, praised Reed's work as former chairman of the Eastern Kentucky Planning Commission.

Reed, a coal executive from Drift, said the commission "tried to change the trend in Eastern Kentucky when the only way we could go was up." He cited MSU President Adron Doran's leadership in guiding the University to "amazing growth." Dr. Doran also served on the commission.

Reed has been a member of the MSU Board of Regents for 16 years.

Whisman described the building's name as "very appropriate" because it honors "an outstanding citizen who has contributed so much to the region."

Completed this summer at a cost of $3.6 million, B. F. Reed Hall contains classrooms, offices, laboratories and two floors of enclosed parking. It houses most of MSU's technical programs.

The dedication ceremony was staged as part of Morehead State's Homecoming Week-end.

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

"You've got to be good to sell a bass on things that chug, splutter, burp, gurgle, hiss and chortle," Sports Afield's Angling Editor Homer Circle declares. "But this is the art of surface fishing. You don't appeal to his appetite as much as you do to his weakness for being duped."

Despite the wonderful variety of surface lures, they fall under a few general headings.

First are the noisemakers, and among them we find spinner types that float at rest and have one or more spinners. When pulled forward the water activates spinners causing them to splutter. The noise the lure gives off sounds like a bass slashing into a minnow, causing other bass to come and join the banquet. Then there are spinner types that sink. Some of these lend themselves nicely to surface fishing. The types of these lures that are most adaptable are: Those shaped like an open safety pin with the spinner overhead and a weighted, skirted body below; those with a weedless metal body and a propeller on the front end; and the minnow-shape bodies with one or more propellers on an in-line center shaft.

Then there are popper types that float. These are easily recognized by the hollowed, or cupped, heads. When jerked they give off a popping, or chugging sound. They come in many forms, but the basic design is the same so far as the head is concerned. Some are weedless, but most of the long-standing models have two treble hooks.

You might find your greatest success with wobblers that float. These lures float high and when retrieved they wobble with a noisy or turbulent motion which attracts the bass's attention. They could resemble a mouse, muskrat, frog or many other edible creatures that swim similarly.

Many fishermen get both pleasure and results from this group of lures because of their versatility. They can be popped, chugged, danced and wobbled in a variety of ways. And because of their wide swath, they shunt their ways through weeds and rarely get hung up, if you guide them properly.

There is yet another segment of lures that are not designed to make noises. But they do have appealing actions. Some have a lip to make them swim, while others have absolutely no action unless your impart some with your rod tip. Let's consider the stick bait that floats. It is called a stick bait because it looks like a stick and comes in like one unless you put life and action into it with your rod tip. And therein lies this lure's charm. Learning to use one of these is intriguing and challenging.

The slim-minnow types are floating and diving. The bodies are elongated with scale effects, quite slim, with a lifelike eye and a plastic lip to give the lure a natural swimming action. Some have a spinner on the tail, and others are jointed. As a surface lure they are something super.

The spoon is a sinker. Weedless spoons are one tool a bass fisherman should never be without. These are metal, shiny and most have a single hook with a weedguard. They will come through even thorn bushes most of the time.

Any one of these lures could get you tied to the biggest bass of your life. It's up to you.

The salmon's life history can be read on its scales. The scales grow in rings at the rate of about 25 a year, varying slightly with individual fish.

Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection

Damp Weather, Good and Bad

The Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection's Division of Forestry reports that this spring's unusually damp weather has had both beneficial and detrimental effects on forest insect and disease activities.

The moist, cool weather aided in reducing some insect populations such as spring feeding sawflies, forest tent caterpillar and eastern tent caterpillar.

Foliage diseases were given a boost by the moist, cool weather. For example, sycamore and ash were especially hard hit by anthracnose this spring. The division had numerous requests for assistance from property owners who were alarmed when the leaves on their sycamores turned brown and started falling.

Recently, the locust leaf miner has attacked Black locusts causing the foliage to turn brown. Though this insect does not kill trees, it does make them unsightly.

The division has been assisting the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Division of Plant Protection and Quarantine, in its Gypsy moth detection program. The division places 150 insect traps in selected counties to determine if the insect has entered Kentucky. The traps were located near state parks, national shrines, campgrounds, interstate highways and rest areas. Most initial Gypsy moth catches in other states have occurred in or near areas of intense interstate travel. The traps are being inspected this August to determine if the insect is present.

Two major surveys were recently completed. A trend survey for the forest tent caterpillar, was conducted in McLean, Muhlenberg and Hopkins counties. A survey for Comandra blister rust was just completed in Western Kentucky.

The forest tent caterpillar feeds primarily on oaks. The survey showed that 310 acres were defoliated this spring compared to 1,700 acres in 1972. Natural controls are believed to be responsible for this reduction.

The Comandra blister rust, a disease of hard pines, was first reported in Crittenden county in May, 1972. This year's survey of surrounding counties revealed no new infestations.

Warbles—Bad Part Of Squirrel Hunt

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 11—Some squirrel hunters had quite an unpleasant surprise when they began cleaning their squirrels this season. The reason—warbles, the large larval grub of the bot fly, were embedded in the skin of the animals. While the warbles are unsightly, they cause no damage to the squirrel's flesh and in no way detract from its edibility, according to Harold Barber, chief forest game biologist with the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Warble infestation is never a serious problem in Kentucky. Barber points out that the highest occurrence in bag checks during the past twenty years revealed only two percent of the squirrels were infested. On a statewide, year-to-year basis, the percent of infestation is usually less than one-half of one percent.

The squirrel bot fly which causes the warbles is not as common in Kentucky as it is farther south. There are some indications that bot fly populations built up only after a very mild winter.

Warbles usually leave the host animal by mid-October, Barber notes. By the time the second part of the squirrel season opens on November 15, even squirrels that had been host to warbles during September and October will show no sign of former infestation.

The warble is considered an external parasite since it does not burrow into the flesh of the host animal but merely forms a pouch in the outer skin layers. Barber points out that it is a "clean" parasite in that it does not bear disease and will not cause damage to a healthy animal.

The life cycle of the bot fly begins when the small, newly hatched larva burrows into the outer layers of skin of the host animal.

Former Floyd Residents, Golden Wedding Honorees

Blackfoot, Idaho—Mr. and Mrs. Tivis Frasure, native Floyd couple, were honored July 27 at an open house to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary given by their sons and their wives.

Mr. and Mrs. Frasure were born in Floyd county, Ky., where they were reared and went to school. Mrs. Frasure is one of 11 children, and Mr. Frasure is one of 14.

The Frasures met at church and were married July 26, 1923, at Amba, Ky. In 1925, Mr. Frasure and Mrs. Frasure's father drove cattle from Prestonsburg to Ashland, Ky., a distance of 100 miles, which kept them on the road six days and five nights. Sometimes, after the cattle were sold, Mrs. Frasure's father would go back home on the train, leaving Mr. Frasure to bring the horses, which required two days.

In 1929, they moved from Floyd county to Louisa, Lawrence county, and he and her father traded cattle. In 1931, the depression came, and they went broke. They stayed there another 12 years and went to the sale ring two days a week to buy sheep, cattle and hogs. They butchered and sold them.

In 1942, they moved to Nampa, Idaho and started over. They lived there four years, both laboring in the fields, and then moved to Blackfoot in March, 1946. They raised beets for five years and then Mr. Frasure went to work for the Blackfoot Livestock Commission until he retired in 1969.

Restoration of Death Penalty To Be General Assembly Decision

By ELIZABETH SMITH

The recent murders of six Kentuckians has once again raised the long-debated question of whether any crime is so heinous that only the death penalty is sufficient punishment.

The 1974 General Assembly will be faced with the controversial issue of capital punishment as a result of recommendations made by the state Penal Code Study Commission.

The commission, created by the 1972 Legislature to review and update Kentucky's Penal Code, has suggested that a mandatory death sentence be restored for certain crimes.

Norman Lawson, a member of the study group and the Legislative Research Commission, listed the recommended capital offenses punishable only by death as follows:

- Intentional murder for profit or hire.
- Intentional murder resulting in multiple deaths.
- Intentional murder committed during an act of either arson in the first degree, armed robbery, or burglary.
- Intentional murder with the use of a destructive device, such as a bomb.
- Intentional murder of a prison guard or employee by a prisoner.
- Kidnapping, unless the victim is voluntarily released alive and substantially unharmed.

Another offense still under consideration by the group is intentional murder in the course of forcible rape.

Although the Supreme Court ruled capital punishment unconstitutional in June, 1972, State Sen. Michael R. Moloney, Lexington, chairman of the study commission, contends that the recommendations are within the law.

"The ruling that the death penalty is 'cruel and unusual' punishment refers to the discriminatory manner in which it was applied in the past," Moloney said.

The commission's proposals will not leave the choice of sentence (life imprisonment or death) up to the jury as in the past. There will be only the death sentence for those convicted of these crimes, he added.

Moloney said he thinks capital punishment will be restored and that it will serve as a deterrent to serious crime.

Vice chairman of the commission, Rep. William Kenton, Lexington, asserts that "the legislature will reflect the needs of the people who are crying out for this change. Society demands a punishment with the termination of life for these heinous acts."

The death penalty has not been carried out in Kentucky since 1962, when Kelly Moss was electrocuted at the State Penitentiary at Eddyville.

There have been 162 executions in the state since the electric chair was installed at Eddyville in 1911. Of this number, 144 were given the death penalty for murder, seven for rape, six for criminal assault, and five for armed robbery. All 162 were men.

At the time of the Supreme Court ruling against capital punishment, 24 Kentucky prisoners were awaiting execution. Sixteen of the men, who had no appeals pending, were on Eddyville's Death Row.

A Corrections Department official said the men have been incorporated into the general inmate population at Eddyville, and most have had their sentences commuted to life imprisonment.

Lawson pointed out that none of the men will be affected by the new penal code if it is approved. And, no other person convicted of a capital crime will be affected if the crime was committed before July 1, 1974, the effective date of the proposed code.

Regardless of any proposals made by the states and in spite of the public outcry to the recent slayings in Kentucky, it is unlikely that anyone will be executed until the Supreme Court once again rehashes the moral and legal issues involved in the ultimate punishment.

Warning: Steer's Not All Steak

By JACKIE BONDURANT

Kentuckians interested in buying live beef or beef carcasses for home freezers to curb rising food costs are warned that a steer is not all steak.

Dr. Larry D. Jones, assistant professor of agricultural economics at the University of Kentucky, advises that consumers should consider first the cost of owning and operating a freezer, and then realize that they will be paying the same price for soup bones as they are for roasts and steaks.

"In figuring cost per pound of purchasing beef in quantity," Dr. Jones said, "meat specialists at UK explain that approximately 60 percent of the live animal weight will remain after slaughter. The 40 percent loss is accounted for by the head, hide, hooves, and internal organs."

The remaining 60 per cent is carcass weight, he continued. "Twenty to 25 per cent of the carcass weight is lost during cutting. This loss is primarily fat and bone."

Dr. Jones said these figures are only approximations. "The price and dressing percentages of each animal slaughtered will vary," he added.

Another expense which should be added to the purchase price per pound of edible beef is the charge for processing the carcass—cutting, wrapping and freezing. "Normally, processing charges range from eight to 15 cents per pound of carcass weight, the weight of the steer after it is slaughtered," Dr. Jones said.

A family interested in buying a live steer weighing 600 pounds at 64 cents per pound would take home 277 pounds of edible meat. "The cost per pound of edible meat would then be $1.38, plus an average 16 cents more per pound based on processing a 277-pound carcass," Dr. Jones said.

A live animal weighing 800 pounds and selling for 58 cents per pound, the UK economist figured, would provide 370 pounds of edible meat at $1.25 per pound, plus the 16 cents per pound processing charge. A 1,000 pound live steer selling for 52 cents per pound would yield 462 pounds of edible meat at $1.12 per pound, plus the 16 cents.

"These examples indicate that the actual price per pound paid for edible beef is substantially higher than the purchase price paid for a pound of live weight beef," Dr. Jones said. "And only about one-third of the pounds of edible beef will be steak. The remaining two-thirds will be roasts, ground beef and stewing beef."

Therefore, Dr. Jones said, a person might pay a total of $592 for 462 pounds of edible meat at $1.28 per pound. "This total includes the initial purchase price and processing, but does not include the cost of buying and maintaining a home freezer," he said. "And these figures are all based on averages."

Dr. Jones concluded, "Each consumer contemplating purchase of live or carcass beef should calculate the approximate cost per pound of edible meat and determine whether it is cheaper to buy bulk beef or meat on 'special' in the supermarket."

Interested persons should contact their local UK extension agent for more detailed information.

Gov. Wendell Ford predicted that reorganization of the state Departments of Mental Health, Health, Economic Security and Child Welfare into the Human Resources Cabinet, will save the state $5 million. The new department, headed by Laurel True, will contain Bureaus for Social Insurance, Social Services, Administration and Operations, Health Services, Manpower Services, and a newly created Office of Ombudsman.

Extension Service News

By FRANCES PITTS

Price per pound is only an indication, and a poor one, of the real cost of meat. It does not take bone and fat waste into account. One of the best ways to determine cost is to figure cost per serving. All that's needed is the price and number of servings per pound. Divide the retail price by the number of servings and you have the cost per serving. This comparison considers only cost. You'll also want to consider labor and time involved in preparation and family likes and dislikes.

When comparing costs per serving, we use a standard serving—from 2½ to 3½ ounces of cooked, lean meat. We realize that a "standard serving" is not necessarily the amount everyone eats, but it gives a basis for making cost comparisons. Boneless chuck roast usually sells at a higher price per pound than chuck with the bone in. However, the boneless cut yields half again as many servings, and often the shopper will find it a thriftier buy. The same holds true for porterhouse and round steak. When these two cuts are priced the same per pound, round steak is a better buy. Porterhouse steak yields two servings per pound, while round steak yields three and one-half.

Even though prices considerably higher, cooked boneless ham often is cheaper than "cook-before-eating" ham with twice the bone in, because it yields double the number of servings per pound.

Ground beef and spare ribs sometimes cost about the same per pound. However, ground beef will give at least twice as many servings per pound as the spare ribs. Bacon, which is mostly fat, is one of the most expensive foods you can buy in terms of protein value. Bacon has appetite appeal because of its texture and flavor, but do not depend on it for any great amount of protein.

As a general rule, you can figure on getting four servings from each pound of boneless meats. This includes liver and other variety meats, rolled roast, tenderloins, ground meats and boneless steaks.

Meats that contain a small amount of bone will furnish two to three servings per pound. This includes armor round bone pot roasts, steaks, rib roasts, pork loin, and other similar cuts.

If you're selecting meat that contains a lot of bone, such as spare-ribs, breast of lamb, lamb shanks, or short ribs, don't count on getting more than one or two servings from a pound.

In 1972, the average unemployment rate for 16 and 17-year-olds was 22.7 percent and the average for 18 to 21-year-olds 14.7 percent, according to the U. S. Labor Department.

State Dependent Children Aid To Get Three-Month Review

Frankfort, Ky.—The Department for Human Resources' social insurance staff members within the next three months, will interview 45,863 families now receiving monthly checks under Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC). The face-to-face interviews will be conducted in homes or at public assistance offices to revalidate and recertify every AFDC case throughout Kentucky.

Commissioner for the Bureau for Social Insurance Gail S. Huecker said, "the corrective action program is Kentucky's response to regulations composed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare."

Soon after the regulation was issued, caseworkers updated their files and found that a statewide average of 23 percent of their AFDC cases were receiving too much aid, 8.4 percent were receiving too little and 8.1 percent were receiving money when they were not eligible for it.

The error rate was concentrated in Lexington, Louisville and Covington, where 41 percent of Kentucky's AFDC families live.

"The error rate in these particular areas has little to do with the quality of work performed by eligibility workers," Commissioner Huecker said. "In the state's most heavily populated areas there is not enough staff to handle the high number of cases on file." Average case load in Jefferson county is 733 family units per worker. In Lexington, the average is 320 units per worker. For Covington-Newport, the average worker handles 344 family units.

"In these offices, employee turnover is most critical. It's 30 percent on the average annually. In other parts of the state, the average is 11 percent," Commissioner Huecker says.

In addition, errors result as the federal government frequently changes its guidelines concerning who is eligible for aid.

Highest rates of error come in cases that are traditionally the most difficult to handle Commissioner Huecker says. "Desertion, for example. By the time a worker can update records, the father may have been back for a while to support the family. Then he's gone again by the time the worker reviews the case."

In order for Kentucky to continue to receive federal monies to match state AFDC funds, the current error rate must be reduced one-third by Jan. 1. Ultimately, the error rate must be reduced to three percent for ineligibility and five percent for overpayment in order to meet federal requirements, Commissioner Huecker says.

Although the corrective action program is statewide, special attention will be given Jefferson, Kenton, Fayette and Hopkins counties. These four Social Insurance offices will be assisted by CERT, the Commissioner's eligibility review team, made up of 50 experienced eligibility workers. They'll work overtime to verify that all information on revalidation forms is complete. They'll receive special training for the job.

"By Nov. 1, when CERT is pulled out, 50 new workers will be ready to share the extra-heavy caseloads of workers in Jefferson, Fayette and Kenton counties," said Commissioner Huecker.

Social Insurance regional managers from the Department for Human Resources met in Frankfort last week for orientation in the corrective action program. All individuals or families benefiting from money payment will receive notification of the required face-to-face interviews with their next money payment.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN MEET

The Floyd County Womens Democratic Club held its regular monthly meeting October 10 at Jenny Wiley State Park. Mrs. Roland Burchett, president, presided. Mrs. Burchett introduced the guest-speaker, Donald Burchett, representative of the ROPES program. Mrs. Burchett announced that the membership program was now in effect. The next regular meeting will be held November 7 at May Lodge.

Shades of Ghosts Provide Stories for October Reading

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Many people at some time or other have had experience with the supernatural. They may have dreams that surprisingly have more than a "shade" of truth in them or maybe they see spirits. "I don't believe in ghosts and haunts," is an often quoted phrase, but just as often the quoter is loathe to enter a haunted house at night or walk near a cemetery after sundown. It was Charles Dana who said, "I don't believe in ghosts, but I've been afraid of them all my life."

It is well known in Morgan County that a horse and rider travel the Licking River Road, stopping suddenly near what is known as "The Hanging Tree" where a Civil War hanging was prevented. The galloping continues to be heard but no one has ever actually seen the pair.

Years ago in Lewis County a Mr. Lee took the life of a Mr. Ellis, according to historian and writer, Dr. William Talley. Lee was jailed, but a mob gathered later, removed him from his cell, took him to Dry Hollow and hung him. However, as some believe, doing in a person does not always do away with him.

The jailer, a Mr. Hisey, began to notice that every time Lee's bed was occupied by another prisoner, Lee would reappear. The old jail was also frequented by other ghosts such as the woman whose husband murdered her with an ax. After the man was put in jail, his wife began to make her appearances, greatly disturbing her husband. Finally the man was moved to the penitentiary but a ghost with his likeness returned to the old jail. Later both the man and his wife frequently appeared to prisoners in the jail.

In Green County, Eddy Pierce writes about old George Watson who could not hear or speak. Watson was in the habit of visiting in a home where the woman would feed him and he in payment for the kindness would do work around the place. The woman's two sons took advantage of Watson's condition and tormented him with their pranks.

Watson later died and was buried behind his small cabin. One night one of the woman's sons was riding home from church when a storm began. The young man stopped at the little Watson cabin to wait out the storm. He dozed and then began to hear moans and groans. He thought he was dreaming, but he plainly saw Old Watson coming near. The young man tried to get out the door, but it had stuck. He heard Old Watson moaning and in desperation, the man fell to his knees and began praying to God that he was sorry for his mistreatment of Watson. Immediately Old Watson smiled down at him, disappeared and outside the storm ceased.

In Fayette County the ghost of a man frequently appeared near a young niece he was particularly fond of. So far as the girl's parents know, the child was never aware of the presence, but both her father and mother had seen the presence of the uncle move down the hallway and enter the child's room. The parents were unafraid, knowing how much the uncle had adored the child and felt that he was near her to protect her.

For those who have experienced the supernatural, the spirit world is quite real. Even the skeptical are at a loss to explain what have been definite warnings, advice and appearances of persons from another world.

Most believers think spirits and ghosts are friendly and make an appearance only to offer help. This belief is quite different from that held by Halloweeners who are sure the goblins are out to get them if they don't watch out.

ORKNEY NEWS

A surprise birthday dinner was given for Mrs. Millie Hall by her children and grandchildren Sunday evening, Sept. 30.

Religious songs were sung by some of the members of the church to which Mrs. Hall belongs.

The dinner which was held outside, was enjoyed by many of her family and friends. Among those were the families of Randall Frasure, Bob Hobson, Jason Moore, Melvin Hall, Eddie Campbell, Dick Henson, Rondall Lawson, Johnnie Stumbo, Amos Stumbo, Cecil Stumbo, Walker Gayheart, Lem Gayheart, Leonard Hobson, Homer Howell, Junior Howell, Haskell Hall, Jimmy Howell, William Flannery, Edna Horn, Mary Smiley, Louella Martin, Edith Lawson, Viola Bailey, Polly Howell, Gail Walker and Melda Hall.

One family's extravagance is another's necessity

Because electric power has always been plentiful and cheap, it is quite human to be careless with its use. TV and radio sets that play to empty rooms; lights that burn in unoccupied areas; partially loaded washers, dryers and dishwashers that are operated (when a full load uses no more power). These are often cited as examples of unnecessary uses of electricity.

But one family's extravagance is another family's necessity. It is not within our province—or anyone else's—to tell you how much power you need, or how you should or shouldn't use it to meet your standards of comfort, safety and convenience. If the widow, living alone, feels safer sleeping with her three rooms fully lighted, it is her right to use that power. It fills her real need. It's her right to expect us to have that power available. If you elect to leave a radio playing when you leave your house, to make a prowler think someone's home, it's a purposeful use of electricity.

Our job is to supply you with that power . . . all you need, whenever you need it. But included in this job is our obligation to do our part to conserve our nation's natural resources and to cause as little disturbance as we can to the environment. We have been doing this in every way we know and we are striving to do more. For example, our new power generating units today consume only 70% of the coal required to produce the same amount of electricity 30 years ago; and one of our new 765,000-volt transmission lines carries 30 times more power than one of our older 138,000-volt lines, but uses only two times as much right-of-way—in other words, a 15-to-1 saving in land for the same amount of electricity delivered.

Waste of electricity costs us all more than money. Electric power is produced by utilizing fuel—oil, gas, coal or uranium—to produce heat or by harnessing the energy in falling water. Like all natural resources, these gifts of nature aren't limitless. When electric power is used unnecessarily these valuable resources are wasted. Also the job of preserving some parts of the environment is made a little bigger. Despite the use of today's finest technology in pollution control and enormous investments of money in its application, producing electricity has some effect on our environment.

A thinking awareness of electric service as a service to be used only when warranted can help conserve our natural resources, minimize the effect of electric power production on the environment . . . and save you dollars in the bargain.

We can make all the electric power you need . . . both for now and the foreseeable future. We have no power shortage here. And it is our intention that there never be one, even if it means taking positions that are temporarily unpopular with isolated special interest groups. We fully realize that a plentiful supply of electric power is vital to operating your homes and offices, preserving your job, and protecting your standard of living.

We're working hard to have the environmental effect of electric power production as small as possible, and we are constantly searching for new ways to do this. As they are found, we are adopting them.

For the sake of conserving natural resources, preserving the environment, saving dollars in electric bills and passing on to future generations a world that is still rich in natural energy resources, the obligation we all have to each other is to avoid unnecessary use of electricity. In doing this, there's no need to "skimp" on use of electric power. Use what you need . . . but be sure you need what you use.

To the Voters of Magisterial District

No. 1:

Last week in the Floyd County Times, Mr. Wells my opponent, said I condemned him for making a living for his family. I condemn no one for doing that because we all have to make a living. As for his neglect to the roads in Dist. 1, the roads speak for themselves. Since the primary election and now the final election is drawing near, they have been doing the same as always—they are campaigning with the taxpayers gravel. It seems that this happens every four years. Is it honest to do this??? The gravel should be used when needed instead of at election time only. I didn't know until recently that the office of Magistrate pays as much as it does. My understanding is that it pays $600.00 (six hundred dollars) per month plus mileage for road inspection in District 1 plus cost of all warrants and fines. This could easily amount to more than $1000.00 (one thousand dollars) per month which the taxpayers pay. I think for that much money we should have a full-time Magistrate. I think a Magistrate should be someone who knows about road construction. I have worked at construction jobs and know about equipment and road building. My opponent lives in West Prestonsburg and works in Johnson County and does not know the conditions of our roads. Vote for Me... LEO MUSIC Get Roads Maintenance and Gravel all year long... Have an honest office and fair judgement to all. If I am elected and fail to do my duties, then vote against me next time. One time trial is not so much. (Pol. Adv., 11-pd.)

Perkins Backing More School Aid

Washington, D.C.—Congressman Carl D. Perkins last week threw his support to "improved legislation" continuing appropriations through 1973 for federal aid to school districts with concentrations of low-income children.

Rep. Perkins, major sponsor of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, which established federal support for schools, said the improvement will make sure that no school district in Kentucky gets less than 90 percent of what it got last school year. Overall, that would be an improvement, because school districts, otherwise, would have been cut down to 85 percent of what they received in the 1972 school year.

The Eastern Kentucky Congressman had sought the higher percent, saying "it just is not right to let these programs, which have helped so many young people in our schools, fall apart, and it just is not right to lose all of the good teachers and other school personnel who are making the programs work on behalf of our school children."

He said that the original action by the House—which he opposed—would have cut Kentucky's allocation of the basic education aid funds, called Title I funds, by a considerable amount.

Kentucky received $37,131,000 in Title I money in fiscal 1972, out of a national appropriation of $1.585 billion.

Under the legislation Rep. Perkins supported, Kentucky, as a state, will not get less than 90 percent of the money it got for Title I education programs in fiscal 1972.

The legislation he opposed would have cut Kentucky down to 85 percent of the fiscal 1973 amount, if a full $1.8 billion is approved nationally for education.

The estimated figure on what Kentucky would have gotten if the 85 percent bill had been approved is $27,380,000, but the Perkins-supported proposal is expected to bring Kentucky's allocation up to $33,417,900—an increase of more than $6 million.

Because a ceiling of 115 percent was put on the amount a local school district can get, as well as a floor of 90 percent which it can't go under, the bigger, richer school districts may not receive as much as they had expected when Title I distribution amounts were announced shortly before school began this year.

This means that some of the poorer counties may get a little better than 90 percent protection, Rep. Perkins said.

He added that poorer counties may wind up getting about as much Title I money as they did last year, but the exact figures will have to wait until the state education officials complete their breakdown of entitlements under the new legislation.

Are You Sincere?— You May Be Wrong

Salvation is in the Wounded Man at God's right hand! The Lord Jesus Christ, as God's man and only Son, conquered sin, death and hell and after His death and resurrection went back to God the father, and there seated, as a real man, in a real body of flesh and bones, not as we know it, but one perfect unable to sin or die. God exalted Him at His right hand. He is God's salvation to us—not the church building nor the lodge, not any religion. To be saved, you must have the Lord Jesus Christ. If you don't have Christ, no matter what else you have, you do not have salvation offered only by God, and it's all free. God offers His Son to you. You can receive or reject Him. What you do with Him, not the church or religion, determines your eternal destiny—God's kingdom or your own hell, what ever you believe that might be. In any case, it's separation from love and God.

Will you please sign and mail to one of the addresses below?

I realize the need of the New Birth. I want Christ as my Saviour. I want to repent and be baptized. I trust Jesus Christ to wash away my sins. I will stand on His promises. When I have the chance I will confess Him before all people. I will confess Him to be my Lord and Saviour.

Kentucky's Old Turnpike Was Major Route In Stagecoach Days

A colorful stretch in Kentucky's history is the southern branch of the Old National Turnpike—a major mail and travel route during the stagecoach era of the mid-1800's.

Kentucky's branch of the turnpike extended 500 miles—beginning at Zanesville, Ohio, entering Kentucky at Limestone (which is now Maysville), running through the Bluegrass region, and eventually on to Florence, Ala.

It followed the route of present-day U.S. 68 and brought life to such small towns as Paris, Washington, and Harrodsburg.

The main street of Shakertown is the only restored portion of the road, but a stretch near Harrodsburg is still intact as a narrow, rocky path winding up the ridges that border the Kentucky River.

State Historian Col. George Chinn, whose home is near this path, said it is still used by wagons and jeeps. "It's amazing the road wasn't washed out long ago," he said. "But the original rock is still there."

attract attention. Some of the most popular lines that traveled over the old turnpike were the "June Bug Line," "Good Intent Line," and the "Old Line."

The coaches were kept bright and clean but still gave their passengers a rough ride over the steep, rugged road. Muddy stretches in summer and ice in winter were great hazards during a trip.

The average speed of the coaches was six-to-eight miles per hour with a short stop about every ten miles to change horses. The drivers often tried to run ahead of schedule and traveled at top speeds, no matter what condition the road was in.

The era of the stagecoach began to decline around 1850 when railroads started building.

Eventually, faster and more comfortable passenger trains pushed the stagecoach into oblivion and the last run in Kentucky was made in 1889.

The road originated as a buffalo track and Indian trail. "Buffalos were the first engineers," Col Chinn said. "They carved this road out of the wilderness while looking for salt."

The trail led the way for settlers coming down the Ohio River and entering Kentucky. Packtrains, consisting of six-to-eight horses piled high with the pioneer's belongings, wove their way over the steep ridges into the central part of the state.

As the area settled, residents became aware of the poor conditions of the road. Stagecoach travel was introduced around 1800, but the roads were nearly impassable.

The first state-authorized lottery for the purpose of road improvement was held in 1811 to repair the road from Maysville to Washington in Mason County.

Between 1820 and 1830 the citizens of Maysville appealed to Congress several times for national aid in building the road into a major mail route. In 1830, President Andrew Jackson vetoed a bill to provide federal funds, giving the road nationwide attention but no help in completion.

The citizens of Maysville, Lexington, Millersburg and Paris subscribed large sums to the highway, and helped by the state, eventually completed the road through Central Kentucky.

It was the state's first macadamized road, which was laid with broken stones according to a process invented by a Scotsman, John MacAdam.

Toll gates, which were then called turnpikes, were built to collect money from travelers for the road upkeep, and iron markers labeled "Zanesville, Maysville, Lexington, Nashville and Florence, Ala." were erected at every mile.

The route was busy with stagecoaches carrying mail merchants, peddlers, wealthy travelers and great statesmen to and from the East. The stages brought excitement to the towns along the way, and the residents anxiously awaited each arrival.

Inns and taverns sprang up at every stop and hosted such famous guests as Andrew Jackson and Henry Clay who frequently traveled the road enroute to Washington, D.C. Perhaps the best known and most popular stop was Postlethwait's Tavern in Lexington.

Competition among the many stage lines was intense, and the proprietors decorated their large coaches with bright landscapes, portraits and fancy names to

INDUSTRY SHOULD BE OUR FIRST PRIORITY

Needless to say our coal industry has been crippled by the punitive tax passed by the Kentucky legislature with the full support of my opponent. As a result many of our Floyd county coal miners' ability to earn a living is being threatened by this infamous tax. I am in favor and will work for the abolition of this tax on coal by placing the necessary tax on alcoholic beverages to offset the loss in revenue.

I also promise to organize a special committee made up of eastern Kentucky legislators with the objective of selling industry on the great potential in east Kentucky and especially Floyd County. We must keep our young people in our county and this can be done with more jobs and dedicated leadership in Frankfort that is not beholden to special interest groups.

If you will go to the polls and work for me, I will work for only you in Frankfort.

Your Support Will Be Appreciated.

Inservice Meet Scheduled Here

Reo Johns, Director, ROPES Region Eleven, and Audrey Pratt, Regional Special Education Supervisor, announce that an inservice meeting for special education teachers in Region Eleven will be held October 25, at the Floyd County Library in Prestonsburg. This is the first inservice for special education teachers to be held in Region Eleven and is part of the extended services in special education made possible by the funding of Project Lead through Title VI, ESEA, and the cooperation of the ROPES Region Eleven Board of Directors. All Region Eleven superintendents have expressed their approval of this inservice and have cooperated in planning for the meeting.

Region Eleven Superintendents and their administrative staff members who work with special education, principals having special education units in their schools, and the 35 special education teachers who serve the 500 children in special education classes in Region Eleven are invited and encouraged to attend this meeting.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m. and last until 2:00 p.m. Program speakers will include representatives from Title VI in Frankfort and the University of Kentucky Instructional Materials Center as well as presentations by special education teachers in Region Eleven. New materials for the use of teachers of special education classes will be displayed. It is anticipated that all special education teachers, as well as school administrators, will find much to interest them at the meeting.

IN APPRECIATION

We wish to thank all those who were so kind to us upon our recent loss. We would especially thank the ministers for their comforting words, Central Baptist hospital, and Floyd Funeral Home for its efficient service.

IF ELECTED — I will recommend to the City Council that we hold one of our two monthly meetings in a different neighborhood each month so that the people of Prestonsburg may attend and present their problems and recommendations to the Council.

IF ELECTED — I will recommend to the City Council the construction of another downtown parking lot to improve the City of Prestonsburg as a trade center.

IF ELECTED — I will continue to work with the Prestonsburg Industrial Corporation to free the KAI building in West Prestonsburg so that we may locate another industry there to employ our people. I will also continue to work to get an access road built to the industrial sites at Cliff so that we can locate industry there as soon as possible.

IF ELECTED — I will recommend to the City Council that our two primary projects this coming spring be the improvement of our city streets and sidewalks and the continuation of the city-wide clean-up program that we started this past summer.

The above programs can be accomplished with no additional revenue, and I re-emphasize my pledge: NO NEW TAXES.

Emergency Lane
Stops To Cost

State police have ordered a general crackdown on motorists and truckers found stopping in emergency lanes along the state's limited access highways.

Citing a rise in the number of serious accidents caused by vehicles parked along toll roads and interstate highways, State Police Field Commander James H. Mayes said that troopers are being instructed to write traffic citations in every instance where such a violation is observed.

Only recently, three persons in a moving vehicle were killed when their car collided with a truck parked along a limited access road near Elizabethtown, he said.

In the past, said Mayes, troopers usually told the drivers of parked vehicles of the dangers involved and asked them to move on to the nearest rest area.

"Now, those drivers are going to be ticketed," he said.

The only drivers who are likely to escape ticketing will be those who are forced to stop because of a "real emergency" such as mechanical difficulty, said Mayes. However, he also warned that the law permits the parking of a disabled vehicle for six hours only. After that, they will be towed away at the owner's expense, he said.

The new order also covers drivers who stop on entrance or exit ramps to any limited access highway.

Retail Merchants To Meet Tuesday

Local retail merchants will meet Tuesday, October 30, at the courthouse here from 10 to 11:15 a.m.
The purpose of the meeting will be to inform retailers on what type of legislation they can expect to be introduced in the 1974 Kentucky General Assembly affecting their business. Also, a concise, practical analysis will be given on several recently enacted laws and regulations applicable to merchants.
The meeting, which is free, is open to all local retail merchants. The discussion will be led by a staff member of the Kentucky Retail Federation.

EACH TIME YOU SLING A LITTLE MUD YOU LOSE A LITTLE GROUND.

Since my opponent, Hollie Barnett, is so deeply concerned about my police and conviction record, I feel I should state same to the best of my recollection. In the early 40's I paid a fine for improper headlights. In 1943 or 1944 I paid a fine for failing to appear in court as witness against city police of Allen, Ky.

In regard to my term in office, which my opponent has classed as worse than Jesse James and Pat Garret, did the primary election prove this to be a correct statement? In reference to the man who picks lead from his ear—better known as James "Red" Slone, ask James Slone whose fault it was.

If you can recall when I was a candidate in 1965 I told the people that they could pick who they wanted for their deputy in their community. All deputies were hired by a petition from the people and thoroughly investigated. The bad ones didn't stay very long. The deputy I think my opponent was talking about was Silas Derossett. Silas Derossett was recommended to me by some of the best Christian people in the area. Silas Derossett's father, Frank Derossett, who had been a life-long friend of mine, asked me to give Silas a chance. Silas was at this time a guard at the Kentucky State Reformatory. Silas was hired to escort funerals, to deliver prisoners to the State penitentiary and to deliver patients to the Eastern State Hospital. His wife donated her time to help deliver women prisoners and patients.

To The Voters of Magisterial Dist. No. 1

In last week's Floyd County Times my opponent condemned me for earning a livelihood for my family. However, he failed to show any proof of my having neglected any road or my duties as Magistrate in Dist. No. 1.

We have purchased more than $300,000 in new equipment to further our Rural Program.

My opponent states he has three children to support. Does he expect the office of Magistrate to do this, if he were elected?

My terms of office have been free from any scandal, and will continue to be.

Simply because I work 40 hours per week at another job to support my family should have little, if any, bearing on this office. Floyd county has never had a Magistrate who did not work at another occupation.

Just because I want to stay honest and not abuse this office, I will continue to work and not try to abuse the office by any dishonest act to make it pay more than the legal amount set forth by law.

SUPPORT AN HONEST CANDIDATE.

Forest Stands As Last Trace of An Era

By MARVA GAY

Blackey, Ky.—What may be the world's last trace of an era extending back 70 million years stands in Letcher county.

The Lilley Cornett Woods, 554 acres with 175 acres of virgin forest, is the largest known remnant of one of the greatest forests of all time - the Mixed Mesophytic Forest. That forest contained more species of trees than any other forest in the world outside the tropics.

Eastern Kentucky is the center of a small area in which the Mixed Mesophytic Forest was confined because of geologic and climatic changes beginning 30 million years ago. A few mountain areas in China may contain a similar forest and a few small tracts elsewhere contain some traces of the era.

However, the small tracts are not large enough to provide the environment necessary for the continuing renewal of a Mixed Mesophytic Forest with all its variety, according to Harry Nadler, director of the Division of Forestry in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, which supervises the Lilley Cornett Woods.

At least 64 species of trees have been found in the Lilley Cornett Woods, Nadler said. Of those, many were growing when Columbus discovered America. There remains a red oak 51.2 inches in diameter, a white oak 47.2 inches in diameter and 150 feet tall, and a chestnut oak 47.4 inches in diameter.

Many of the plants growing in the woods are rarely found elsewhere. Those include crested dwarf iris, pink lady's slipper, spotted mandarin, belleart and trillium.

Much of the credit for the existence of the virgin forest which bears his name belongs to Lilley Cornett. Cornett bought the woods about 1918 with money earned at 10 cents an hour as a coal miner in Virginia. After buying the land, he refused to sell it or to allow the trees to be cut. The only trees cut were chestnuts killed by the chestnut blight. Lumber needed on the farm was purchased from neighbors.

Cornett left the woods in undivided shares to his four sons, who also refused to let the timber be cut. The sons sold the woods to the state in 1969 to preserve it for future generations.

Nadler said the Forestry Division is developing several hiking trails and setting aside much of the forest for scientific study.

"We're developing the area as an outdoor scientific laboratory for investigations relating to the flora of the Mixed Mesophytic Forest and as an outdoor museum of vegetative progression and development," Nadler said. "All people can visit the area to become aware of the ecological changes in plant life and the environment in the evolutionary process."

An information and museum building was opened recently near the woods.

High School Traffic Conference Slated At Jenny Wiley Park

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 18—The first of seven regional high school traffic safety conferences was held today in Louisville, and one of the series will be held Nov. 27 at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. The conferences are being sponsored by the state Department of Transportation's Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee.

The meetings are focusing on student participation. Discussion groups are dealing with subjects such as driver education, alcohol and drugs, highways and traffic safety and traffic safety enforcement.

Doug Shoulders, executive director of the Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee, said he hopes the students attending these conferences will return to their schools and begin a traffic safety council or some other type of safety program.

Shoulders said 45 per cent of the 1,093 persons killed in traffic accidents in Kentucky last year were under the age of 25.

Lunches for the conferences are being furnished by the Louisville, Blue Grass, and Cincinnati Automobile Clubs (AAA).

Governor Refutes 'Quality of Life' Study's Low Rate for Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Gov. Wendell Ford recently refuted the Midwest Research Institute's report that listed Kentucky 47th among the states in terms of "quality of life."

Speaking at the 21st annual Kentucky Chamber of Commerce Day luncheon at the State Fair, the Governor cited the fact that the report covered only the year 1970 and often "confused quality with quantity."

In judging Kentucky's parks, the report stated that Kentucky trailed other states in the number of acres.

"Now you tell me what is better," said Ford, "a thousand acres of cactus around a dry gulch, or 500 acres of recreation where bass hit, the flowers bloom and thousands of families come to have the time of their lives."

"You and I know the status of our parks system," he continued, "and are aware that other states pattern their own systems after Kentucky."

He said the headlined report ranking Kentucky 47th is, in numerous ways, a distortion, and should be repulsive to all Kentuckians.

Ford said highlights from another report compiled by state agencies showed:

—Kentucky doubled the national rate in nonagricultural employee growth.

—Kentucky tripled the national rate of decline in unemployment.

—Kentucky led 47 other states in 1973 in personal income growth.

"At no time since the beginning of World War II, and in many cases at no time ever, have our state's economic advancements of the last year and a half been matched," said Ford.

He concluded that, "Our state is healthy, its quality of life has improved greatly in three years, but we must keep working together if this trend is to be maintained."

Not Every Scratching Dog Is Fighting Fleas

LEXINGTON, Ky.—If every dog has his flea, as the old saying goes, then it stands to reason that he will occasionally have to scratch that flea. But, according to William E. Wise, Extension specialist in veterinary medicine at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, when that occasional scratch becomes a 24-hour thumping symphony, there may be something more serious than these pesky parasites working on the dog.

In cases of continual scratching, says Wise, the first impulse of the dog's master is to grab up a can of flea powder, give the victim a genuine good dusting, and then, when the pup shows no improvement, cuss the remedy.

Instead of fleas, the trouble besetting the dog may be a type of eczema that, while most prevalent in hot weather, can occur at any time of the year and, whatever the time, cause the dog great distress. There may be several causes for this irritation—diet deficiency, allergies, environment, and even temperament, with the main symptom being extreme itchiness, manifested, of course, by the continuous scratching.

Then there may be other symptoms, says Wise. The dog's coat may become dull and dry in appearance. Bald spots may result from the scratching and biting, and pinkish rash may show up on the more exposed areas of the legs and belly.

According to Wise, when a dog shows these symptoms, there's not much advantage in using flea powder or rushing to the drug store for a bottle of mange remedy. The problem is internal, rather than external, and the flea powder and mange remedy will be useless.

If your dog shows these symptoms and no fleas or mange problems are evident, Wise advises calling on a veterinarian who may, after examination, recommend cortisone, antihistamines, vitamins, or some other drug.

However, if a veterinarian is not available, Wise says the troubled dog may get some relief by a changed diet, by the addition of some fat to the diet, by putting a few drops of wheat germ oil in the food each day, and by applying calamine lotion or cortisone ointment to areas of skin damage caused by scratching. Brush, rather than bathe the dog, he says, and cut out all exotic foods such as candy, cake, bread, and potatoes.

As Wise points out, each case of prolonged scratching may have a different cause, and finding that cause may take some doing. However, if a veterinarian is unavailable, the home remedies mentioned may help.

Education Workshop Held at College

The Floyd county school system was host to the regional Title I compensatory education workshop conducted at Prestonsburg Community College last Saturday.

Approximately 135 professional Title I coordinators, teachers, librarians and counselors attended from Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin county districts and the Paintsville independent district.

The group was welcomed by Ray Brackett, assistant superintendent, Floyd county schools, and a program coordinator from the State Department of Education, Thurman A. Bumgardner, who explained the purposes of this type of in-service training. Visiting workshop leaders were Mrs. Icie Johnson, Fayette county, and Kenneth Colwell, Perry county.

This is the second state-wide in-service program designed by the Division of Compensatory Education, of which John H. Bruce is director.

Also planned is a state convention for Title I Compensatory Education professionals to be held in Louisville, November 16-17.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

"Blessed Are The Merciful."

"He prayeth best who loveth best
All things both great and small,
For the dear God who loveth us,
He made and loveth all."—Rime of the Ancient Mariner.

One of the finest Beatitudes is, "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy."

As the hunting season this fall will soon be in full swing, multiplied thousands of hunters will take their guns and go to the woods to kill wildlife. Due to the acute shortage of meats of all kinds, I predict more wild game will be slaughtered this fall than in many years. Freezers will be stocked and running over with wild meats killed by hunters. While it is necessary to kill wild animals for food, I do implore all the hunters this year to be merciful and not kill any wild game just to see it die. The time has come when we cannot afford to kill wildlife for the sake of sport. Unless killing for fun or sport is soon stopped, there will come a time when there won't be anything left in the woods to kill.

It should never be fun to kill any wild creature. It may inflate a man's ego to shoot something and watch it die but this kind of killing harks back to the days of the cavemen.

Abe Lincoln didn't find it fun when he killed the wild turkey. When he was a gangling teenager, he heard a wild turkey gobbling in the woods. So he loaded up his trusty rifle and slipped through the woods until he saw the big gobbler which had its broad wings spread out and was gobbling to his flock. Lincoln was deeply impressed by the magnificence of the bird, but the family needed food. Taking careful aim from behind a tree, he shot the gobbler. Running forward with the excitement of the hunter who has bagged big game, he picked up the dead bird and carried him proudly to the door of his cabin home. There he laid him down and stood still for a moment, looking down as the turkey's head fell limply on the broun. Remorse smote Lincoln's tender heart as he thought: "Never again will this fine bird strut in the woods as wild and free as the wind and the clouds. I have taken something I cannot give—a life." Lincoln never killed any wild creature after that.

Often in killing wild creatures, the hunter seldom thinks of the tragedy he may cause. There is the true story of the great Russian novelist, Turgenieff, whose father wanted badly to make of him a great sportsman. One day the father gave a rifle to the boy when he was about ten and led him out across the brown stubble fields of autumn to shoot golden pheasants—a favorite sport of Russian hunters. Suddenly a beautiful female pheasant whirred up from the field near the boy. He took quick aim and fired. The bird fell, mortally wounded. Throbbing with the excitement of the kill, the boy ran to pick up the golden pheasant. But the mother instinct of the bird was stronger even than death. She had a nestful of little ones hidden in the stubble. As the boy ran toward her, the bird fluttered desperately to her nest of young, and to shield them against the intruders, she spread out her wings over her young. Then with a look of reproach at the boy, she collapsed and her head lay limp and still beside the nest. A feeling of remorse smote the youngster's heart as he saw how the mother even in death tried to protect her young. Turning to his father with a look of horror, he cried, "Look, father, what I've done. I've destroyed the mother of these little ones!"

"But that was a great shot for your first one, my son," the father said, whose many years of hunting had steeled him against the suffering of wild creatures. "You'll soon be a great sportsman."

"No, father, no!" the boy cried. "I'll never kill any living creature from now on. Life is more beautiful to me than death."

Naturalists who study wild life instead of shooting it say the challenge of studying it and photographing the animals is ten times more thrilling than shooting them. "To live and let live" is the creed of those who love the woods and the creatures that make their home there.

Kentucky sportsmen who pack away their fishing tackle when they get their hunting gear out of storage are missing some of the best fishing of the year as those dedicated to fall fishing know.

There are several advantages to fall fishing. The majority of pleasure boats are off the water after the Labor Day week-end, leaving the lakes practically free of skiers and speedboaters. The cool autumn days not only offer a welcome change from the heat of August, but the weather is also more stable and constant, the threat of sudden thunderstorms having passed.

But the biggest advantage of fall fishing is the results. As the water temperatures begin to drop, black bass seem to go on a heavy feeding spree before winter. As in the spring, they begin to cruise the shallows in search of food, offering some of the best action of the year for surface-plug casters. However, bass will also hit shallow runners and even bottom-bouncing lures such as the dolly and artificial night-crawler during the fall.

The excitement and fast action of jump fishing for black bass is often at its best in autumn. At many lakes, fishermen also take fair strings of white bass while fishing for black bass.

For the live bait fisherman, fall offers the promise of good catches of white bass and crappie. The most productive method here is night fishing with live minnows dangled under a lantern or other light.

Sauger fishermen in Western Kentucky look forward to the possibility of limit catches of this fine game and table fish from the Tennessee River below Kentucky Lake. Both trolling and fishing live bait produce good strings of sauger every fall.

Muskie fishermen also anticipate the cooler weather of late autumn. As the leaves begin to fall, muskie become active. Connecting with one of these monsters could well be the highlight of anyone's fishing season.

Fall is the time for some very good trout fishing. Many streams which are too warm to support trout during the summer are stocked by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in September and October, as are the tailwaters below the major lakes. Here, the fishing conditions are often excellent because of the low flow, and trout can be readily caught on either artificial or natural baits.

If you haven't tried fall fishing, why not schedule several trips to your favorite lake between hunting expeditions. If you're already a confirmed fall fisherman, it's time to start getting ready—fall is just around the corner.

The Lure of Country Life Calls Tom Creech Back to the Farm

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

WILLIBA, Ky.—Tom Creech, who operates a 124-acre family farm overlooking the North Fork River here, is living proof that the tired old saying "You can take a boy out of the country, but not the country of the boy," has some validity.

As a very young man, in order to make a living for his family, Tom left for the city about 30 years ago to become a success in the business world. In all those years, however, never a day passed that he did not experience a poignant longing to return.

"The land and the things of the land are in my blood and always have been," he said. "I love nature and I love to watch and make things grow. When I left the farm back in 1942, I never had any other intention but to return some day and take up where I left off."

Fortunately, Tom's wife, Creasia, was of same turn of mind. An erstwhile farm girl who went to the top in the teaching profession as her husband moved up as a transportation executive, Creasia shared the same desire as her husband and now they "are home to stay and both proud and happy to be here."

Tom said his plans for returning home some day started to materialize back in 1954 when he was able to purchase his late grandfather's picturesque but almost abandoned farm on a plain above the river.

Immediately upon gaining possession of the land, he started construction of a spacious brick home to replace the old farmhouse where his grandparents had lived and reared a large family. With this finished and as time could be spared from their jobs in Michigan, Tom and Creasia returned, cleaned up the old fields that had long since returned to wilderness, set out fruit trees and ornamentals, and restored much of the land to grass, following advice of their county extension agent as to fertilizers and cultivation practices to use.

Then two years ago, both resigned their jobs in the North and came back, Tom to farm the land and Creasia to resume her career as head of one of Lee county's largest elementary schools. With this arrangement, both are "happy and contented as larks"—the larks that fly and sing over the green, grassy fields of their farm, now called "Chestnut Hill" rather than the "Old Creech Place."

To maintain this farm, which boasts a small herd of beef cattle, 10 hogs, a tremendous truck patch, a vineyard, peach orchard, several acres of hay, about an acre of flowers, and a "thousand whippoorwills," Tom admits working from 10 to 14 hours a day.

"But I love every minute of it," he hastened to explain, "and I wouldn't trade my present way of life for all the money in the world."

Along with being good gardeners and farmers, Tom and Creasia are ardent conservationists and land beautifiers. This year they were recipients of a home beautification award in a contest sponsored by the Lee County Farm Bureau and the local Soil Conservation District, but their efforts along this line extend far beyond their house and surrounding flower garden.

Last year, soon after coming home, Tom bulldozed a road and levelled off a beautiful campsite on the river that skirts his farm. This wonderfully secluded place, as he said, was prepared for "anyone who wanted to use it" and who would first ask permission to do so and then agree to leave the place as he found it. Those who would pollute or mess up the land need not apply.

Tom explained this willingness to allow others to use his land by saying that he got a tremendous joy out of ownership of the land, but that a greater pleasure came from sharing it with others. This bit of generosity also extends to his truck patches.

"I sell a lot of stuff," he said, "but only after I have first divided with members of our families and our friends and neighbors who are short on a mess or two of vegetables."

"I love people and I love to help people," he added, "and as with the land, it gives me great satisfaction to share with them other things that I have."

Maybe this concern for people and their welfare is one of the reasons for Tom's rise from a barefoot Eastern Kentucky mountain farm boy to a high position as a business executive and public relations man. In speaking of this, Tom said anybody could fire a man but if, instead, you gave him a little help and encouragement and caused him to change for the better, then you had really done something. You not only helped him, but more so, you helped yourself, he pointed out.

Tom and Creasia are now living on the land and, to a large degree—especially insofar as eating is concerned—"living off it." They represent the avant-garde of an extraordinary movement back to the land by people who, although they have led successful lives in the cities, have found, despite this success, something lacking in their living.

State Law Requires Some Immunizations, Health Dept. Notes

Kentucky children are required by law to be immunized against whooping cough, polio, measles, lockjaw and diphtheria early in life, beginning at two months of age, the Floyd County Health Department this week reminded parents. Although not required by law, Rubella vaccine is highly recommended for children between the ages of 1 and approximately 12 years. A new combined vaccine can now give permanent protection against both measles and rubella in a single "shot."

October is Immunization Action Month. Parents of children who have not had all their shots are urged to see their private physician or the Floyd County Health Department.

Mountain Students' Ability Defended by Council Speaker

"Reading—the Backbone Subject of the Backbone Institution" was the topic of discussion at the October meeting of the Jenny Wiley Reading Council held at Allen Central High School. Assistant Superintendent of Floyd County Schools Ray Brackett introduced the guest-speaker, John Bruce, state director of Compensatory Education.

"At one time," Mr. Bruce said, "it was said that the mountain students cannot learn, that an isolated people cannot learn. But we are proving that this concept is an untrue one. Children from the hills of Eastern Kentucky can learn as well as anyone, and Congress has expressed its faith in the mountain students, too."

The compensatory education director was referring to the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA), commonly known as "Title I," which was passed in 1965 to provide federal funds for compensatory education purposes for children in areas with a high frequency of poverty. This act provided compensatory education assistance for 291,000 children in Kentucky last year, according to Mr. Bruce.

"Compensatory education under Title I is tremendous and unique," said the educator. "The greatest need among compensatory education teachers is to be involved in staff development and program improvement. Our goal is to close the gap between the achievers and non-achievers... those who have and those who have not. In an effort to meet this need the state department has scheduled five extra inservice days for compensatory education teachers." (Teachers from Floyd and neighboring counties have already been involved in two such inservice days this school year.)

Mr. Bruce lamented the inadequacy of measurement instruments in evaluating the merit of Title I services. "For example," he said, "one can't measure an attitude or behavior change by a test—only time will reveal the service these children have received."

Title I has recently adopted a new regulation that limits expenditures of Title I funds to reading and mathematics in schools where 20 percent, or more, of the students are functioning one or more years below grade level in these two subject areas. The greatest expenditure of Title I funds spent in Kentucky is in the field of reading. According to Mr. Bruce, the child is handicapped in all subject matter areas if he cannot read.

"I'm for all areas," he said, "but in their proper order. Unless a student can read, he's lost. The minimum reading ability a child should have is the ability to read the Bible, a voting ballot, labels on supermarket items, and road signs. He definitely needs to be able to follow simple directions."

Council business discussed included the decision of council members to make a contribution to the IRA building fund. Members also voted to offer tutor services in reading to college and vocational students upon request. For more information contact Marie Stumbo, McDowell, Kentucky.

Council yearbooks for 1973-74 were distributed by Delphia Hicks. Refreshments were provided by Maytown and Allen Central school personnel.

To the Voters of Magisterial District No. 1:

Throughout my campaign in Dist. No. 1 I have seen and talked to many people. They have asked many questions about the district I am running in and about my opponent. Most of the people tell me they have never seen or do not know him.

I guess the main reason for that is because he has a job with the Big Sandy RECC and has his office in Johnson county. That gives him very little time to be seen and do his job as Magistrate. I've been told he makes a salary of about $20,000 per year. Magistrate pay is very small, so how can he afford to devote his time to this office and to the people of District 1.

How can Mr. Wells go so far as to ask the people of this district to donate to him their office since a good magistrate is so badly needed?

They have also asked what precincts I am running in. They are as follows: Prestonsburg Court House No. 1, Prestonsburg Grade School No. 2, Depot No. 3, Richmond No. 4, Cliff No. 5, Porter No. 6, Auxier No. 7, Middle Cr.—Buckeye No. 8, Cow Cr. No. 9, Mouth of Beaver No. 10, Jim Banks No. 11, Rough & Tough No. 12, Abbott Cr. No. 13, Jack Allen Middle Cr.—David & Pyramid No. 14, New Allen—Dwale No. 15.

Precincts Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 mostly consist of the town of Prestonsburg, which seldom need the services of a magistrate, so they do not realize the desperate need of the people in the rural districts for roads and, most of all, the great need for law and order. At one time some of you may have lived in the country and know the need of the country people. So help your country neighbors and I'll be the magistrate for all of the people in District No. 1, regardless of where you live.

Vote for me—Leo Music—November 6, for a full time Magistrate.

If I do not make a good Magistrate, Vote Against me next time.

Where There Is SMOKE There Is FIRE

On May 6, 1965, Joe Wheeler made this promise to the people of Floyd County in the Floyd County Times, and I quote:

"I promise the people of Floyd County that if I am elected their sheriff neither Mack Lewis (Joe's brother) nor any other person who has been convicted of a felony will ever be a deputy of mine."

Joe Wheeler has stated that I have been slinging mud. Friends, slinging mud and stating the facts are two different things. A former elected official should recognize the difference. The good citizens of Floyd County recognize the difference.

I want to make it plain to the people of Floyd County that it had never occurred to me that Silas Derossett had ever committed a felony. This was not the intention of my inquiry. My interest was and still is in the fact that Joe Wheeler went back on his word to the citizens of Floyd County. Joe never asked me to help recommend his deputies. I have lived in Floyd County all of my life, and this is the first time I ever knew that Joe chose his deputies by a petition. What about you, friends. Did Joe ever ask you your opinion as to who he should choose as his deputies? But the fact still remains that Joe is not leveling with the people of Floyd County. You could not prove by me that Silas Derossett ever was convicted of a felony, but I do know of others. For instance, one of Joe's deputies killed his father-in-law. Is that a felony, Joe? I have always considered the Derossett Family my friends, and the ones I know are outstanding citizens.

Joe Wheeler says, "Don't let Billy The Kid run at large any longer. Who is he referring to? Could it be the good people of Floyd County?"

I have never been in the least concerned about Joe Wheeler's police and conviction record, but now that he has mentioned it, it makes me wonder why? By the way, James "Red" Slone should not have to explain anything. You are the man running for high public office, Joe.

If you are guilty of the least, you are guilty of the whole.

To All The People of Prestonsburg

My name is Corbin Joseph. As most of you know, I have served the public for the last twenty-four years; twelve as the operator of a truck for the City Sanitation Department and twelve as your elected Constable. I know a young man who is hard working, sincere, and dedicated. I know that he will fully utilize all of these qualities when elected as a member of your City Council. He is my nephew, Paul Joseph. However, I am not urging that you vote for him because he is my nephew; I am asking you to vote for him because I know that he will work hard for you, all the people, and base his decisions on what is best for the whole community, not for just a small portion of it.

WILL EXPLAIN HAIR PROBLEMS FREE

SAVE YOUR HAIR

Before Treatment After Treatment
George Swowers shows results by National Home Treatment.

FREE CONSULTATION
MEN and WOMEN just take a few minutes of your time on MONDAY, OCTOBER 29 and go to the LANDMARK MOTEL between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the desk clerk for F. W. DANGLER'S room number, or call for appointment.

There is no charge or obligation . . . all consultations are private, you will not be embarrassed in any way. Learn how you can treat yourself right in the privacy of your own home.

If you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. If you still have hair on the top of your head, don't put it off until it's all off. It doesn't make sense for a man to let himself go bald, certainly not without seeing a National Hair and Scalp Consultant to see if we can help you.

Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. National's Hair consultant cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE
If you are accepted for treatment, you will be given a written guarantee on a pro-rated basis from beginning to end.

electric COOPERATOR

OCTOBER, 1973

BIG SANDY RURAL ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE CORP.

PAINTSVILLE, KENTUCKY

This Is Your Cooperative

By Bill Wells

Do You Pay Your Bill By The 1st Of Each Month?

There continues to be several of our members who do not make their electric service payments on time. By scanning through our records each month it seems that most of the members who pay late are the same ones each time. This message is printed especially for these people in the hope that we may have their cooperation in paying their bills on time each month.

All meters should be read on the 20th of each month and bill paid by the 1st of each month. If the serviceman should have to make a trip to your home to collect your bill there will be a $5.00 service charge for this. If your bill is not paid and you are not home when the serviceman calls, then he has no choice but to disconnect your service. If the service is disconnected for failure to pay a bill, an additional $5.00 will be added to cover the second trip by the serviceman, to re-connect your service.

We would appreciate everyone's cooperation and understanding in this matter.

In the "Rural Kentuckian" magazine for Oct., 1973, I saw where, "This is your Cooperative," by Bill Wells, had an article on page 16A to the consumers of RECC that are always late with their payment. He stated they were most always the same people each month. I think I know the answer to that. They are people with fixed income which is very small—old and disabled people who don't receive their checks until the 3rd or 4th week of each month.

If Mr. Wells cannot understand the problems of these people then how can he understand the problems brought before him as Magistrate??

Vote for a Full-Time Magistrate and someone who can understand all the problems of the people of District 1.

I wish to take this opportunity to give you a brief sketch of who I am and what I stand for.

My name is Paul Joseph; I am married to Neadean Brown Joseph and am the father of two boys, Paul Michael, age 12, and Jeffrey Bryan, age 9. I am the owner and operator of P and B Ambulance Service of Prestonsburg and Martin. My wife manages the Factory Outlet Shoe Store in Prestonsburg.

When elected as a new member of your City Council, I will support the following programs:

1. A program to provide in this local paper a public notice to all citizens of the date, time and place of all City Council meetings;
2. A program to provide quarterly publication in this paper of an itemized statement showing how and for what your city government has used your tax money;
3. A program to improve all streets and sidewalks and to build sidewalks where they are needed;
4. A program to place more red lights at our busy intersections;
5. A program to erect "caution" signs on side streets where children may be playing; this will help protect your children as well as mine;
6. A program to provide for recreation in our low-rent housing areas;
7. A program to provide for the solicitation of good, stable industry which can assure our city that it will remain here after it begins operation.

I STAND FOR THE PEOPLE, ALL OF THEM.

VOTE for me, on the Independent ticket, number 8 on your ballot.
