

Hearing Set For Friday On Motion Autopsy Is Asked In Conley Murder; Martin Arrested

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley will hear arguments Friday on the motion by attorneys for Eddie Jones, who is accused of the murders of two men in this county, asking the court to order an autopsy on the body of one of the victims and to bar Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo from participation in the trial of the case. Hour of the hearing had not been set Monday, one attorney said.

The motion was filed last Tuesday. The following day, Johnny Martin, of Estill, who was also indicted in the same murders, was arrested. He was released under $10,000 bond, with his father, Joel Martin, and William Slone as his sureties.

The two are accused of the slayings of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley at Garrett and James Clayton Conley, near Wayland, last year. Bonds executed by Jones in the two cases totalled $60,000.

It is the body of Lawrence Conley that the defense asks to be exhumed. He was killed by two shotgun blasts said to have been fired from an automobile. Empty cartridge cases found at the scene were identified as having been fired from a gun owned by the father of Johnny Martin.

Barring of Commonwealth's Attorney Stumbo from trial of the Jones case was asked because, the motion said, he testified at length in the examining trial of Jones, will be called as a witness in the trial itself and has "publicly pledged and staked his own personal money in the form of an award in this case."

Stumbo commented this week that he personally offered a reward for the arrest and conviction of persons guilty in any unsolved Floyd murder, not only in the Conleys' slayings.

Red Cross Calls For Contributions For Storm-Stricken

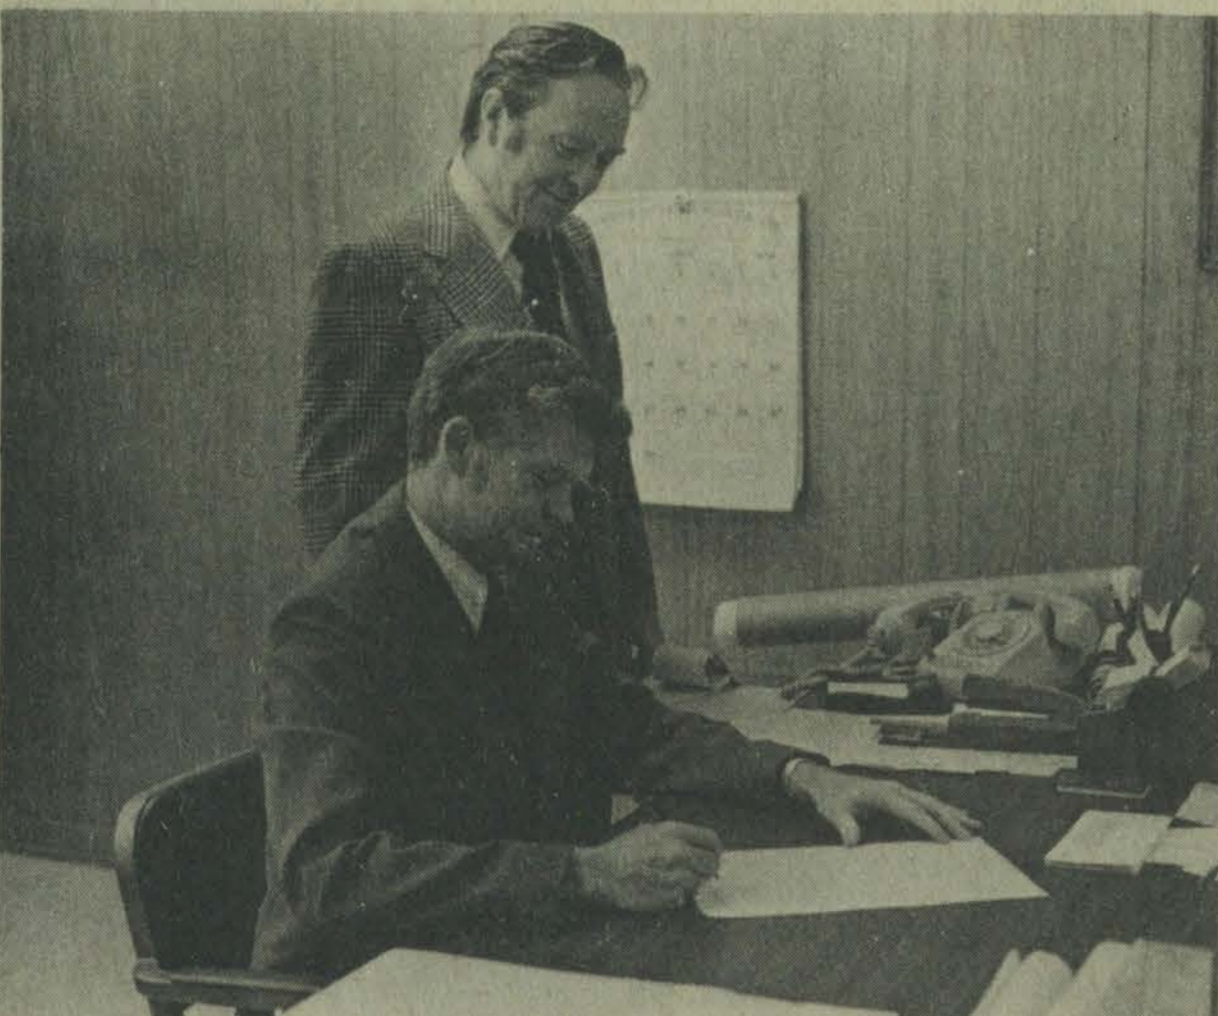

Floyd countians have already responded with several hundred dollars in contributions for the relief of those who suffered losses from storms earlier this month, and all who will be asked to give further assistance, the Rev. W. D. Jagers, disaster chairman, Floyd Red Cross Chapter, said this week. Contributions should be given or mailed to Floyd Chapter, American Red Cross, Prestonsburg.

More than 10,600 families have suffered losses from the onslaught of tornadoes which have devastated six southeastern states during the past two and a half weeks. Red Cross expects the figure to climb when surveys are completed.

Since April 3, when the worst tornadoes in many years hit the Southeast, more than 80 Red Cross staff have gone into the disaster-stricken areas to assist the hundreds of division and chapter

This Town... That World

I'm running three weeks behind on my annual bout with spring fever. Could it be that I've got so slow I can't catch it?

OF COLORS

The colors of spring beguile tired eyes. The purple-blue of redbuds, the flame of the azalea, the deep and light greens where shadows fall or don't, the pink and violet, and the white of the dogwood. And the white bass running. And a man, tied to a desk, in a blue funk or a brown study.

I would see about turning Ewell Gibbon into my stand of dandelion if I didn't fear what he might do to my pines.

THE STAKES ARE HIGH

Somebody doing his bit to clutter up the airways recently spoke of what may be done by barter, using works of art, jewels and other items instead of money. Such things, he argued, will keep pace with inflation and not become devaluated.

Over in Perry county, a salesman for a local wholesale firm says, the boys are already eschewing what once was known as hard cash for something you can depend upon. He told of poker games there, with pinto beans and pig's feet the stakes. A royal flush at such sessions would win a jar of pickled pig's feet, he said, but he didn't know what would rake in a 100-pound bag of beans.

Sewage Problems Set for Discussion; Perkins To Speak

Congressman Carl D. Perkins and representatives of the Environmental Protection Agency will discuss environmental problems developing in the valley in the area of sewage disposal the meeting Friday evening at May Lodge of the Big Sandy Area Development Council.

The meeting date was changed from Monday of this week to Friday to enable the congressman and EPA representatives to appear in a discussion of problems facing many communities. County and municipal officials and citizens are invited to attend.

A "Dutch treat" buffet will be served at 6 p.m., and the meeting itself is slated for 6:30.

Coal Boom Affects Waste Disposal Here

The surface coal mining boom and high wages stripmine operators pay bulldozer operators has created a critical garbage disposal situation for Prestonsburg which only this week was being cleared.

The lure of higher pay at strip-mining drew the bulldozer owner-operator from the contract of covering garbage accumulations at the city dump on the old Middle Creek road near here, and for three weeks a mountainous mass of waste has piled up.

Minibus for Elderly Gets Going

Ed Music (left) Monday afternoon presented keys to a new minibus to Miss Glenda Hall, director of the George P. Archer Senior Citizens Center at Archer Park. Others pictured are Marthann Damron, Lula Wallen, Dinah Hall, Trilby May, Ermine Hall and Charles Harmon. The minibus will provide county-wide transportation for senior citizens to the center here where they may enjoy a variety of activities including field trips to places of interest. Anyone interested in coming to the center may contact Miss Hall by calling 886-8386. All services of the center are provided without cost.

4 Plead Guilty In Court Here, Get Pen Terms

Four men entered pleas of guilty to charges in circuit court Monday, and all four were given pen terms.

Stiffest of the sentences were given to Irvin S. Tidwell (who says he is really Klyce McIntosh) and Frank Newsome, whose terms were set at three years each when they pleaded guilty to the grand larceny indictment against them in the theft of merchandise from Castle's Western Auto Store here. They and Eugene Thompson have also been named in warrants charging them with a jail break attempt. Thompson, who was being held here while awaiting trial in Pike county for the slaying of Mrs. Boone Deskins, has been returned to federal prison.

Others sentenced Monday on pleas of guilty are:

Jay Johnson, burglary, and Roy Randell Hamilton, knowingly receiving stolen property. Both drew one-year pen terms. The grand larceny indictment against Hamilton was dismissed.

Move To Void Leases At Lake Spurs Action

A move by the Huntington (W. Va.) district Corps of Engineers to cancel leases of three persons who have built cabins overlooking Dewey Lake in the Clark Branch area drew spirited opposition last week, and the cottage-owners found allies this week in members of the Kentucky and West Virginia delegations to Congress.

Two of those notified to move their structures from sites leased from the Corps of Engineers are Gordon Moore, of Prestonsburg, and Ex-Magistrate Denzil Ray Hall, of Grethel. The third is Douglas F. Bird, of Huntington, West Virginia.

Moore conferred later with Col.

McIntyre, chief of the Huntington district office, and by telephone enlisted the support of Congressman Carl D. Perkins, U. S. Senators Huddleston and Cook, Congressman Ken Hechler, of West Virginia, and the office of Governor Ford.

The three leases expire April 30, 1974, Moore said he was notified. Both he and Hall have their cancelled checks which were accepted by the Corps for rental expiring April 30, 1975.

The cabin-owners contend they have never created any problem for the Corps in its management of the reservoir and have never been in violation of their lease agreement. They have called on the district office to change its announced policy to permit them to continue occupancy of their cabins until the last of the nine leases on the lakeside sites expires in 1988.

"Why would anyone spend $10,000 to $12,000 if they had known the leases would not be renewed?" Moore asked. "There's no logical reason for not renewing, except that five men in the Huntington office reel off policy with a mimeograph machine."

The new policy adopted by the district office, he added, applies to Dewey, Fishtrap, Flannagan and Grayson reservoirs in Kentucky and Summersville in West Virginia. Leases for the Boy and Girl Scout camps at Dewey are to be renewed when they expire. Also slated for renewal, Moore said, are the leases on both Dewey Lake boat docks and on garden sites in the headwaters of the lake.

"The boat dock leases will be renewed, and ours cancelled, although, by the Corps' own admission, neither dock meets federal safety standards," the Prestonsburg man said.

Falls Chairlift Will Be Music's Fourth in State

When he opens a chairlift at Cumberland Falls State Park next July, Ed Music, Prestonsburg businessman, will have four such facilities operating in Kentucky.

Although the 3,000-foot round trip lift met opposition from Robert A. Blair, of Corbin, head of the Cumberland Falls Preservation Committee, State Parks Commissioner Ewart Johnson last Friday announced approval of the project.

Mr. Music said here this week that the chairlift "will be a great asset to the park," that its installation will relieve parking congestion there and that there will be no detracting from the scenic beauty of the park.

"When we installed a chairlift at Natural Bridge, which is in the Daniel Boone National Forest, there was some opposition," he recalled. "Now, the same people are pleased with it. It's a matter of record what the chairlifts we have installed have meant to parks wherever we are."

Group Slates Third Meeting Apr. 25 at PCC

The continuing discussion of problems at the Highlands Medical Center, near here, is moving from behind closed doors and off the street corners to the open forum.

A citizens' group which has held two meetings already to discuss these problems has scheduled a third meeting for 7 p.m. April 25 at Prestonsburg Community College for presentation of the hospital situation to a broader group of community leaders. The citizens' group has named James A. Combs, Prestonsburg attorney, as its chairman.

The issues discussed earlier and to be presented at the April 25 meeting are, mainly, these:

1. The physician coverage of the new hospital's emergency room, a point which has possibly created most discussion, both private and public.

2. The number of registered nurses and the nursing staff coverage.

3. The special intensive care coronary unit which has $70,000 worth of equipment that has never been used.

Prestonsburg Community College's nursing school was using Highlands as a training center till March 14 but is now sending nurse-trainees to other hospitals and clinics in the area. A member of the hospital board quoted Chalmers H. Frazier, Highlands administrator, as saying, however, that this did not mean that the college has ended its nurse training association with the hospital but is simply using other facilities as well as those at Highlands.

The hospital situation was the subject of a news-story by Ann Latta in last Sunday's Lexington Herald-Leader. She wrote, in part:

According to Frazier, who also serves on the board, the hospital presently has 14 RN's which is "enough to provide 24-hour coverage."

However, Wright (Dr. Ballard Wright, chief of the hospital staff) says as many as 15 RN's have left the hospital within the past six months and that "the nursing situation is terrible."

Back at Work, Sheriff Leads Drunk Roundup

Forty-nine persons were jailed here, Saturday and Sunday, and Sheriff Joe W. Lewis said a large percentage of these followed an apparent "spree" being indulged in by some who thought his recent illness made it safe for them to "turn on."

Lewis returned to work last Wednesday and maintained a schedule over the week-end that admittedly left him tired. Most of his work was in response to calls to communities where drunks were reportedly causing disturbances.

Three liquor possession arrests were made. Deputy Sheriff Green Slone and Constable Bob Hackworth confiscated two cases and 11 cans of beer Friday night when they arrested Orville Tom Hall on Branham's Creek and more than three cases of beer Sunday in the arrest at Teaberry of Ralph Bryant, Jr. The third person taken on a liquor charge was a juvenile who was arrested by ABC Agent Arvel Nelson. A fourth man, Larry Noble Sammons, who was arrested by Constable Hackworth, was charged with drunk driving, possession of alcoholic beverages, assault on an officer and resisting arrest.

Charlie Williamson was jailed on a rape charge by State Trooper Castle after a 17-year-old girl had alleged that he attacked her.

Others booked at the county jail, charges against each and names of arresting officers follow:

Curt Warrick, drunk driving and operating on a revoked license, by State Trooper E. B. Allen; Kenneth Gayheart, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Trooper Castle; Tex Williams, drunk driving, no operator's license and grand larceny, and Orville Thom Hall, drunk driving and no operator's license, both arrested by Deputy Sheriff Slone and Constable Hackworth; James Jerry Cantrell, drunk driving, by Policemen Hall and Rickman, of Allen; William D. Gray, fishing without license, by Con-

Rule-of-the-Thumb Agriculture More Interesting Than Reliable

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

Fortunately for all concerned, the quaint old rule-of-the-thumb method of farming and gardening is being pushed to the wall. No longer in spring is corn planted only when oak leaves reach the size of squirrel ears, potatoes put in the ground only during the dark nights of March, or watermelon seed in the hills on any Saturday in May. The signs of the zodiac are now generally disregarded and the birthday almanac no longer used as a planting guide.

This is not to say that these "thumb rules" were entirely without merit. When Mother Nature was in a good mood, they often worked well enough. Trouble was, her performances were not always consistent, and it was for that and other very good reasons that land-grant college experiment stations such as the one at the University of Kentucky, were established. These facilities were set up to take a lot of guesswork and superstition out of farming and gardening and to make the results more reliable and less subject to disappointment.

However unreliable and lacking in logic some of the old planting and harvesting rules may have been, they were interesting and seem well worthy of being remembered.

Probably one of the more interesting of the old rules of gardening was the planting of beans on Good Friday. This practice was based on the assumption that, on this day of the crucifixion of Christ, the devil has no power for evil over the soil and thus the plant will surely thrive. In some years, Good Friday comes earlier than in others and there is always danger of frosts. To circumvent this danger, Food Friday bean planters kept yarn strings over the rows. The theory was that the frost would collect on the strings and not on the tender young plants.

By the old rules, there were other particular dates for planting particular crops. Regardless of the weather the best time to plant cucumbers was May 1. Likewise, February 14 was the day for peas; July 4 for late roasting ears; July 25 for turnips; and the first Tuesday in November for winter onions. The origin of these hard-and-fast dates for planting has been obscured by time, but old diaries left behind by gardeners indicate they were widespread and followed religiously.

Some other puzzling and unexplained superstitions hold that pepper and cabbage plants should never be set out by pregnant women; that potatoes should be dug on the light of the moon; and that one should never laugh out loud while planting corn. Otherwise, there would be poor crops of pepper, cabbage, and corn and the potatoes would shrivel up in the storage bin.

Equally puzzling were the beliefs that harvesting gourds had a salubrious effect upon the mentally retarded; that apples picked in the fall by a red-headed person would keep better during the winter, and that it was lucky to have two dogs in the field while harvesting oats with a cradle. This last belief undoubtedly had some merit. Copperheads and rattlesnakes often inhabit oat and wheat fields, and the dogs smelled them out before the cradlers were bitten.

There were literally dozens of other quaint old farm and garden customs and the inclination now is to laugh at them, but they served their purpose and are as much a part of the nation's farm history as all the proclamations, provisions, rules, and regulations ever handed down by the Department of Agriculture. It could be said that they served as the roots of agricultural research in America, a research that has made this land the most productive of all nations on earth.

"THOSE CRAZY EPISCOPALIANS"

imagine reading prayers from a book!

It's true. Episcopalians base a large share of every worship service on "The Book of Common Prayer," a very UNcommon piece of literature.

The word "common," in this instance, means "together." Most churches use a hymnal because they want to sing together. Episcopalians use a prayer book, too, because they like to pray together. No one is ever asked to "lead in prayer," but each finds ample opportunity during the service to frame his own private prayers.

To those who decry written prayers, Episcopalians point out that The Lord's Prayer is just that...and yet its meaning to every Christian is undimmed by its being reproduced in print.

They believe there's good reason for following the Prayer Book's carefully-planned schedule and form of services throughout the Christian year. For one thing, an individual church is thus spared from becoming mired in its minister's "hang ups." Pretty good point, these days?

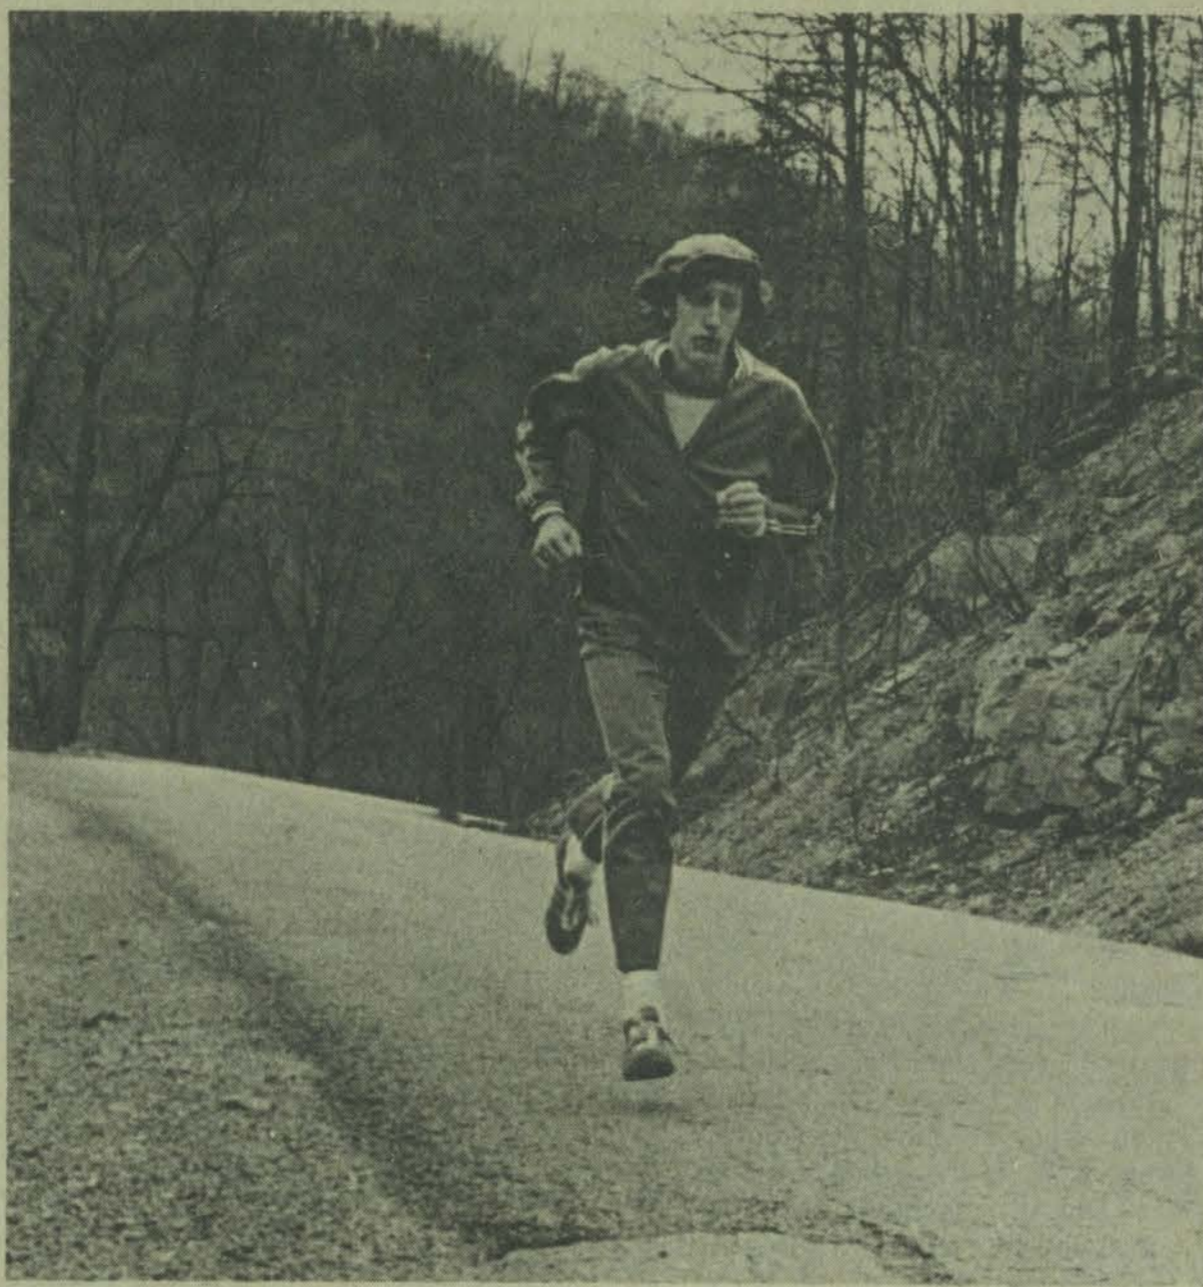

The biblical background, the history, and the simple form of the Episcopal prayer book make a fascinating story. Your nearest Episcopal minister would be delighted to cover them in detail with you. Don't be afraid he'll "twist your arm." He won't.

Pippa Passes, Ky.—Forrest Hughes, Alice Lloyd College sophomore from Langley, who is shown running up a nearby mountain as part of his training, has been named Outstanding College Athlete of the Year. He was nominated for the award by Jim Rose, ALC basketball coach. Hughes is the college's one-man track team. He runs 100 miles a week and is being considered for athletic scholarships by four Kentucky senior colleges. He hopes to use athletics as a means of completing his education. And he hopes one day to run in the Olympics.

Newsprint Costs Still Rising

NEW YORK—If the cost of your newspaper has gone up lately, you can probably blame most of it on rising paper costs.

Within the last few weeks, several of the nation's largest daily newspapers have increased their newsstand prices 5 cents a copy.

"Practically every major newspaper will be doing the same thing soon because of newsprint costs," says an official of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Newspaper executives say higher postal rates and wages are also contributing rising costs. But one of the biggest increases in their budget has been the cost of paper.

In Chicago, the Chicago Tribune, the Chicago Sun-Times and the Chicago Daily News plan to raise their newsstand prices to 15 cents per copy from 10 cents effective tomorrow.

"Our largest single increase in recent months has been the rise in newsprint," says J. G. Trezevant, executive vice president of the News and the Sun-Times. "In our case it's been an increase of $5 million a year."

The Chicago News and the Sun-Times consume at 160,000 tons of newsprint a year.

Dorothy Schiff, publisher of the New York Post, which raised its prices to 20 cents a copy from 15 cents a week ago, says her paper has seen a 33 per cent increase in paper and ink costs in the past year.

And Edward Cony, executive vice president of the Wall Street Journal says "We face a $3-million increase in newsprint and a $5-million increase in postal rates. These are our two biggest cost increases this year."

The Wall Street Journal now costs 20 cents a copy, up from 15 cents a copy.

Huntington (W. Va.) The cost of the Sunday Herald-Advertiser is now 35 cents for a single copy.

The American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA), whose members include most of the nation's daily newspapers, says the number of papers increasing their prices to 15 cents a copy or more has risen noticeably since the beginning of the year. Newsprint costs have been cited as one of the major cost factors by their membership, the ANPA says.

Right now, newsprint prices generally look like this: $200 a ton for heavy-weight paper, $213 a ton for middle-weight paper, and $225 a ton for light-weight newsprint.

A year ago a ton of heavy-weight newsprint delivered to New York City cost an average of $164.58. In 1970 the price was about $152 a ton.

In 1973 the settlement of a labor dispute at the largest Canadian mills increasing wages 17 per cent to 23 per cent over three-year contracts, sent newsprint prices up $25 a ton in one shot, the largest single increase ever.

But mills also blamed rising freight, wood-pulp and chemical costs as well as increases on fuel to run their machines.

Is a Public Informer Needed?

At the risk of becoming "dated," we recall the coining, some years ago, of the word, "scofflaw." It, of course, referred to "low fellows" who held the law in contempt and violated it.

Now, this plain matter of scoffing at certain laws has gone official. For instance:

1. Commissioner Thomas O. Harris, of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, has declared he will not enforce a regulation requiring a coal company or other enterprise to hold the solid materials they discharge into state streams to 30 parts of solid material per million. He argues that, despite the $30-$35-per-ton price of coal operators are getting, the regulation would close most coal mines in Eastern Kentucky.

2. At a meeting called in Whitesburg recently by County Judge Blair his judge pro-tem, Lexie Potter, told coal truck operators: "You're not going to be fined in Letcher county as long as you stay within your tag limit and keep the hump of coal down on your trucks." (Although truck operators can buy a tag enabling them to load their trucks up to 73,280 pounds on a few roads, most of the side roads used by the trucks have a 30,000-pound weight limit which is consistently ignored.)

3. In Eastern Kentucky counties last year 1,400 truckers were cited for overweight loads, but only 12 were fined.

4. Strip-mine laws are regularly ignored or forgotten. So runs the story of government by official whim rather than under law.

Which brings us to this conclusion: The state of Kentucky needs to (1) dispense with its Legislature whose acts are disregarded, or (2) get rid of those officials who disregard them.

The time may be near when a new office will be needed for this great bureaucracy of ours—a Public Informer whose solemn duty would be that of informing the ordinary citizen as to what law is in effect, which is to be forgotten, and who can expect to benefit from official favor.

How the ARC Could Help

The Appalachian Regional Commission has in recent months been calling on knowledgeable sources for their thinking about the direction ARC should take in its future programs.

We are not among those asked for an opinion, but we have one or more.

We have an idea that ARC can do more for the region which is called Appalachia by stressing the practical rather than the experimental, dealing with those undertakings which can mean something of direct benefit to the people of the region. Cultural benefits are not to be scorned, but the area needs to get down to the Here-and-Now.

If ARC will invest some of its resources in industrial sites, in access roads to those sites and in industry itself, this particular section of Appalachia can free itself of its utter dependence upon coal mining and provide work and a livelihood for not only those who reside here but also those who have been forced to leave to find employment in distant industrial centers.

In the long run, no area of the world can forever depend upon an extractive industry that takes away its resources, such as oil, gas and coal, which are irreplaceable. The day comes when the well runs dry, and some Eastern Kentucky counties, one of which is Floyd, is near that time of crisis.

If, as some say, there has been planned for Eastern Kentucky a program of indiscriminate strip-mining and then conversion of the ruins into lakes through the impoundment of the polluted, silt-choked streams—forget it! Make it possible for the people to live and work in a region that is home to them and one of which they yet can be proud.

One of the nation's finest labor forces—in size, ability and willingness to work—is here in these Eastern Kentucky counties. If the Appalachian Regional Commission will get down to the plain business of helping the area toward a diversification of industry, it will for all time justify its existence.

Health Notes

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH
(Health educator, Floyd County Health Department)

DIFFERENT DISEASES

The Floyd County Health Department has a message for all parents. "Red Measles" is not the same disease as Rubella. They are not related in any way. They are two separate diseases and children must be protected against both.

This is now easier than ever, with measles and rubella vaccine combined in one shot. There's one less "ouch" . . . And twice as much protection. If your child is between the ages of one and 12 and is not protected, ask your doctor or the Floyd County Health Department for the combined vaccine.

PLAN DIABETIC CAMP

The Floyd County Health Department has received information that a Diabetic Camp, sponsored by the Kentucky Diabetes Association, Inc., planned especially for boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 15 who have diabetes, will be held at Camp Hendon in Carrollton, Kentucky from June 10 - June 22, 1974.

The purpose of the camp is to help children learn about their own diabetes and how to live a full normal life. This camp is staffed with physicians, nurses, dietitians, and counselors and is very expensive to operate so the cost is $125.00. Since the cost is so high, a very hard working group of volunteers are raising money for camperships.

If you know someone who needs an application blank, send the child's name, age and address to: Mrs. James W. Powell, 3930 Brookfield Avenue, Louisville, Kentucky 40207.

The Floyd County Health Department announces that there will be no nursing services available on Thursday, April 18, when the public health nurses will be attending a workshop nursing audit at May Lodge. Regular nursing services will resume Friday, April 19 at 8 a.m.

All veterans, age 65 or over, are urged to apply for pension if they have not already done so. All service is free. Monroe Vanderpool, of Hippo, adjutant and service officer of Disabled American Veterans Chapter -128, Garrett, said.

Goble, of Prestonsburg, won first place in the VICA district talent contest held at the Mayo State Vocational-Technical School in Paintsville. Pippa Passes Girl Among Four Killed

One of four persons killed in two separate highway accidents in Elliott county was Vonda Lynn Slone, 18, of Pippa Passes, who died Sunday.

Her death resulted when the car which she and Evelyn Slone, 20, of Hindman, occupied figured in a head-on collision with an auto driven by Roy Lee Crisp. Evelyn Slone and Crisp were taken to a Morehead hospital.

Three men were drowned Monday when their auto left KY 32, two miles west of Sandy Hook, and plunged into the Little Sandy river. The victims were listed as Homer Ellis Henson, 49, of Sandy Hook, driver of the car; John Barnett Fraley, 48, of Isonville, and Luther Wagoner, Jr., 41, of Sandy Hook.

Water-Related Deaths Recorded

By PAUL HOWARD

Frankfort, Ky.—During the month of March, one boating fatality and four drownings were recorded in Kentucky.

The March drownings bring the total for the year to 13, including four boat-related fatalities and nine non-boating accidental drownings.

Water enforcement administrator Doug Shoulders says he expects warmer weather to bring out more fishermen and pleasure boaters and offers this advice for those who encounter the wind and thunderstorms common at this time of year:

"If you are on the water," he said, "and a thunderstorm or windstorm is approaching, you should put on a life preserver if you don't already have one on."

"Then, there are several things which you can do to make your boat ride smoother as you head immediately toward the nearest cove or harbor.

"First, reduce the speed of your boat to make it handle better. Then, head the bow of your boat into the waves and wind rather than paralled to them.

"In extremely rough water, the center of gravity can be made lower by sitting in the bottom of the boat," Shoulders said.

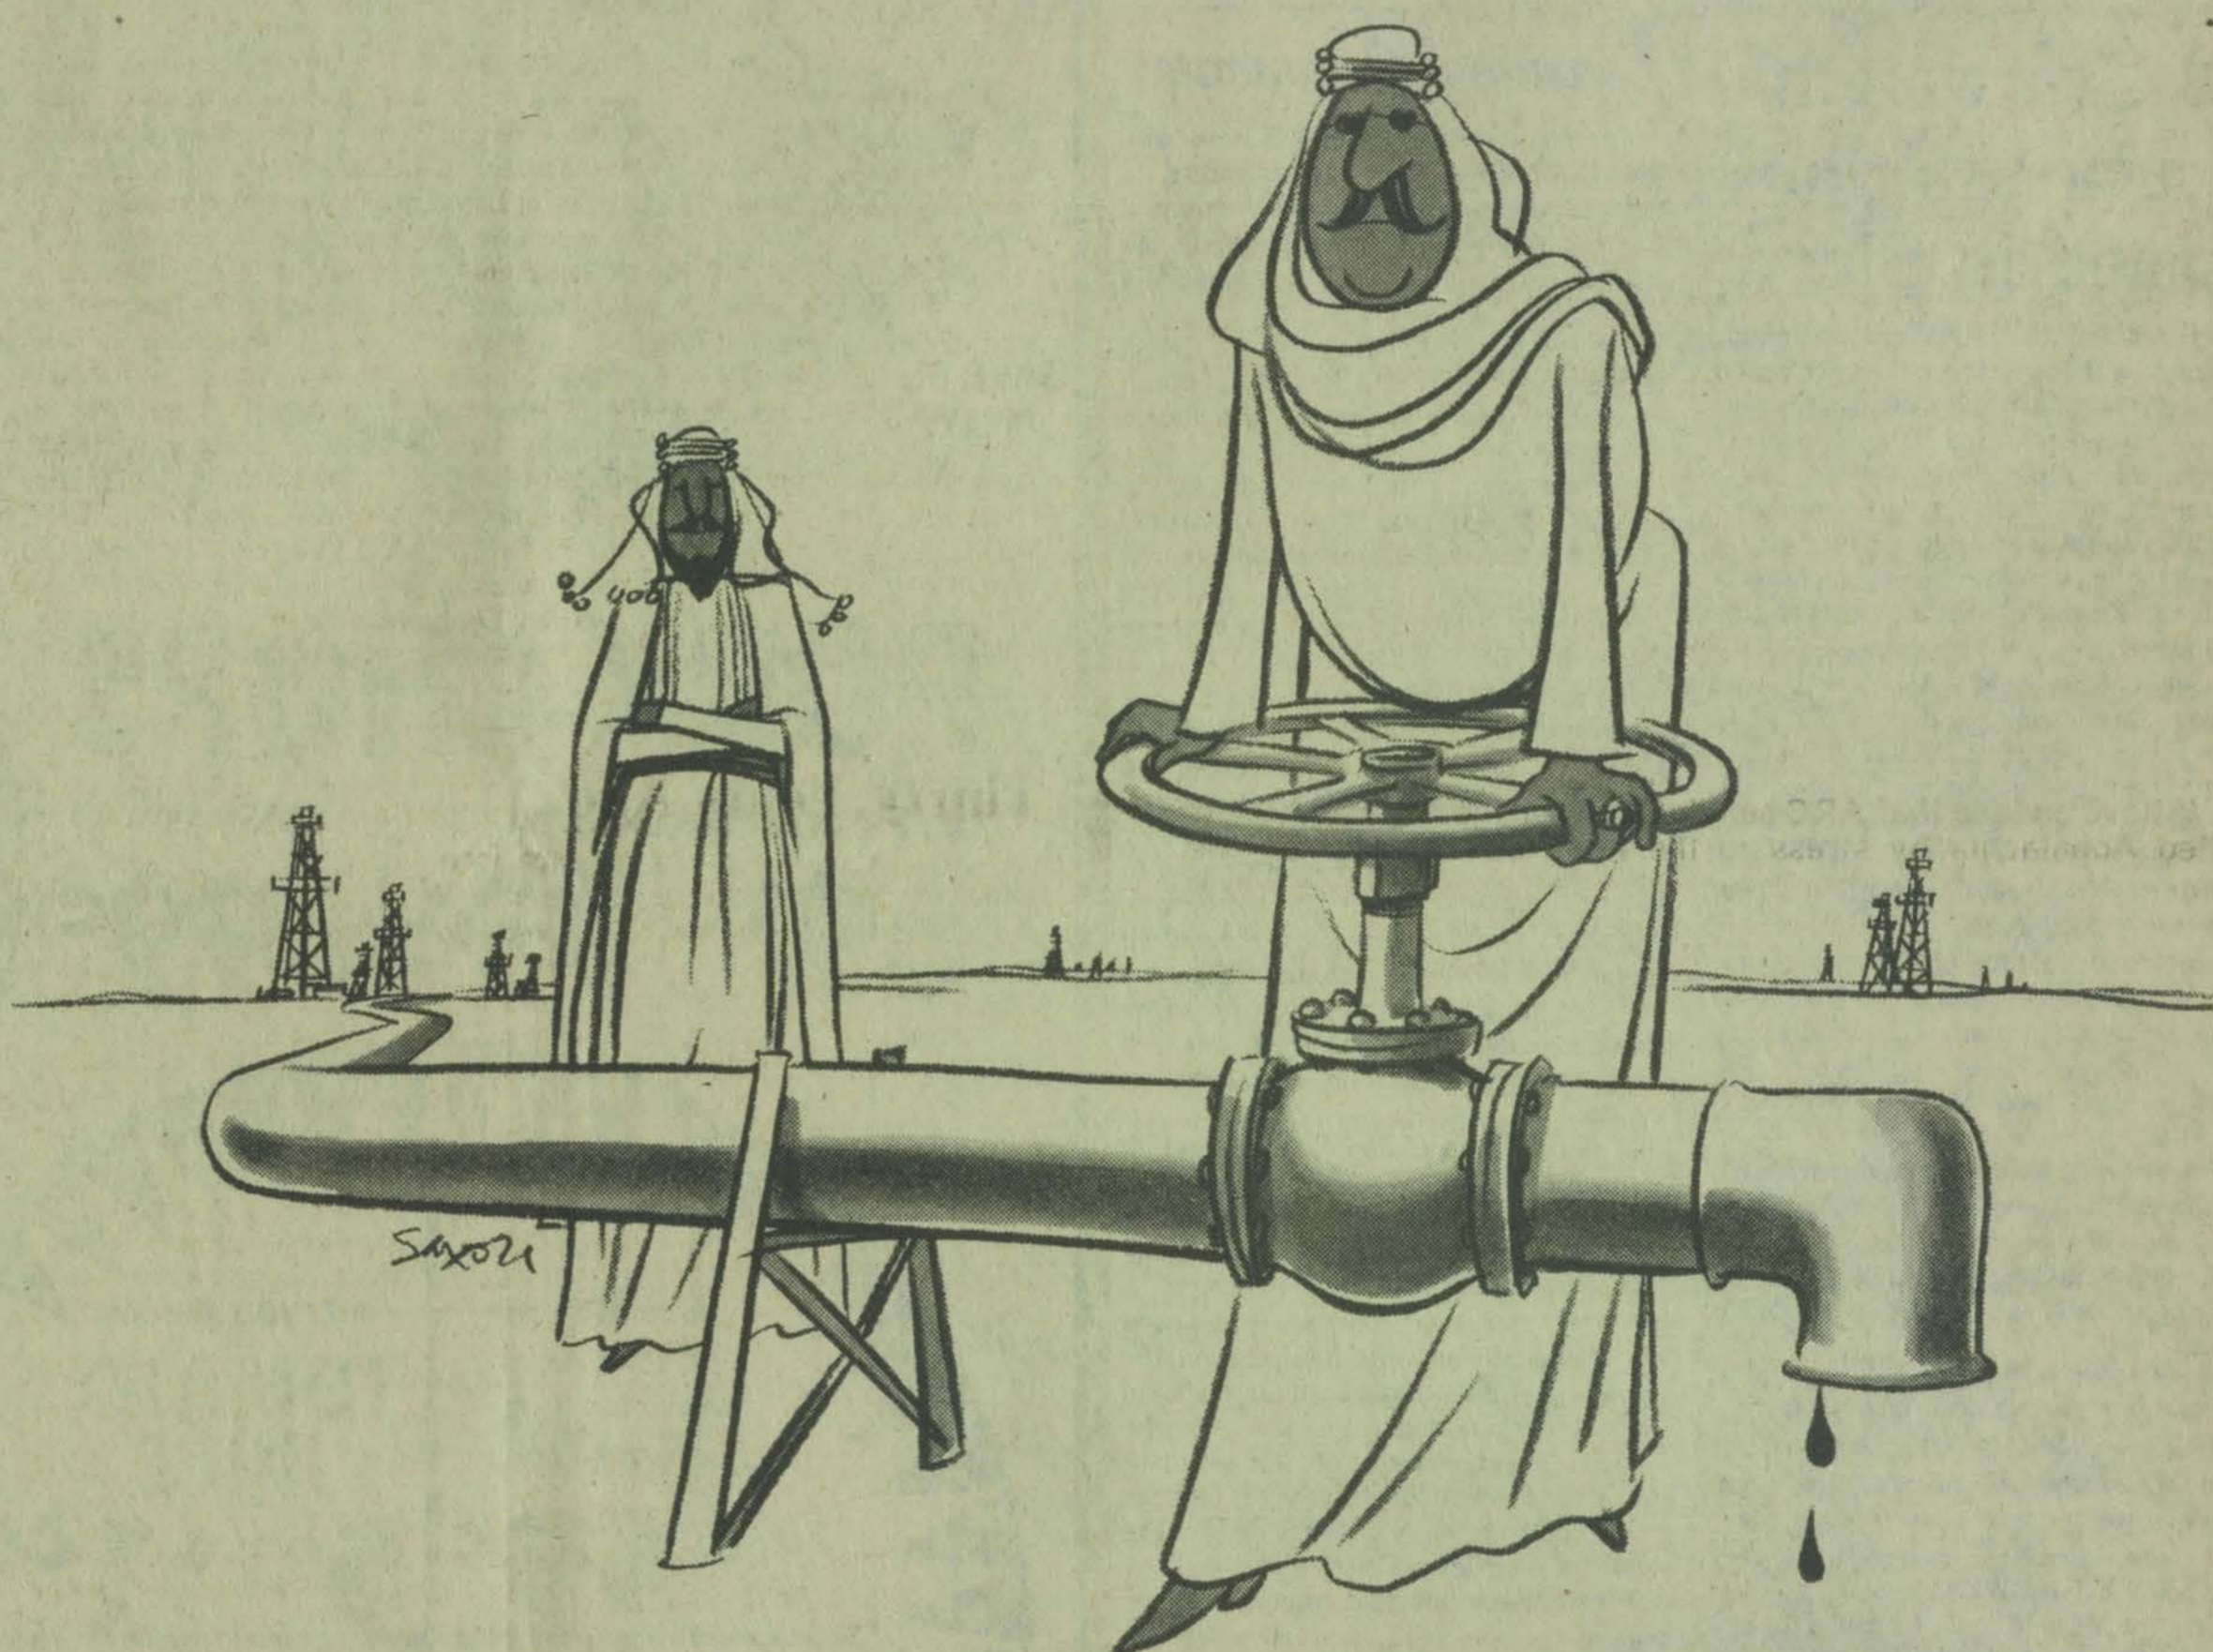

"There is little possibility of the boat capsizing due to heavy waves or high winds, however, in the event this should happen you should hang onto the boat until help arrives.

"It is not advisable to try to swim to shore because distances are deceiving in water, and help is probably just minutes away," he said.

It happened to us once.
It can happen again.
And again.

As long as we remain so dependent upon oil imports, a crippling embargo can happen again.

But not if we reassess our fuel assets and take the actions necessary to make us more self-sufficient.

What is the best and fastest way?

Not the exotic paths of geothermal, tidal or solar energy. As intriguing as they may seem they're probably decades away from being our answer.

Coal... and electricity generated by coal... is the answer.

America owns half the world's known supply. And coal composes nearly 90% of our fossil fuel resources.

We must begin a crash program to dig it and put it to work as quickly, cleanly and efficiently as possible.

We must make it practical for companies to invest in mine development and for people to work in mines.

We must make the necessary modifications in the Clean Air Act so that more of our coals may be burned.

We must release the vast resources of U.S. Government-owned low sulfur coal in the west.

Unless we do these things we will remain vulnerable to an oil embargo that can happen again.

And again.

But worse, we will create a shortage of electric power that will touch the life of every American and plunge our country into economic chaos.

That's not fiction — that's fact.

195 Families Sign For Garden Program, Get Supply of Seed

One hundred ninety-five low-income families in this county will grow gardens this year as participants in the Self-Help Garden Program headed by John Milton Stumbo.

They will receive $2,700 worth of seeds from the Big Sandy Community Action Program, and later in the year each garden will be inspected, Mr. Stumbo said.

In the six-county area approximately 900 families will grow gardens as a result of this program which is designed to enlist the underprivileged in their own support, Stumbo said. Big Sandy CAP received $16,000 for seeds to be distributed to all participants in the area.

Other counties involved are Pike, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Lawrence.

Most Easter Seal Societies have an Information, Referral and Follow-Up Program which provides advice and guidance to assist parents, employers and other persons in understanding and accepting the handicapped and in finding needed treatment for them.

22 Overweight Truck Citations Issued in Floyd

Officers of the Bureau of Vehicle Regulation have issued 22 overweight truck citations in Floyd county during the period covered in that state agency's first quarter report from last Dec. 24 to March 22, this year.

A total of 388 overweight citations were issued in the 24 coal producing counties of eastern Kentucky during this same period.

"Our enforcement officers will continue in their constant effort to eliminate overweight hauling," said Vehicle Regulations Commissioner O. B. Arnold, "by utilizing the only means they have available. That is, they will issue citations whenever violations are detected."

Arnold added that of the 1,400 overweight citations issued in the coal counties in 1973, only 12 resulted in convictions. The overweight cases are tried—or dismissed—in the county courts in which the violations occur.

The heaviest load allowed on any highway in Kentucky by law is 73,280 pounds. On most of the roads on which the overweight hauling is taking place the maximum allowable weight is 30,000 pounds.

Overweight coal trucks do around $20 million damage to the state's roads each year according to Bureau of Highways estimates. Most of this damage is to Eastern Kentucky roads.

Consumer Comments

Kentucky residents know all too well the destruction that accompanies a tornado. As residents begin returning to their homes to clean up the debris, all citizens affected should be especially careful.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), has a pamphlet entitled "When You Return to a Storm Damaged Home."

The 12-page pamphlet includes information on salvaging furniture, renovating walls, woodwork and floors, plus safety precautions for checking electrical, heating and plumbing systems.

Copies of the pamphlet are being made available free through the Regional Disaster Headquarters in Louisville and will be released as soon as possible.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division warns consumers to be very cautious of building contractors, plumbers or other persons representing themselves as service repair companies or traveling repairmen who offer unusually low prices for their work. Be sure the repairman or contractor is bonded.

Also consumers should be careful in borrowing money for repairs at this time. As Federal Disaster Funds become available consumers will be notified via the news media.

A regional headquarters has been established to answer questions on the release of funds and consumers should contact local and federal personnel at the various federal disaster centers set up in the state, before dealing with persons representing themselves with the disaster program.

Those affected should trace insurance policies to see what their coverage includes, but should not rush to purchase a policy without checking with their local agent to determine future needs.

If housing is still standing it should be checked for escaping gas. Local utility companies are checking gas mains and consumers are asked to work with them.

Don't turn on lights until a technician has checked the wiring. If the electrical system is damaged a short circuit could cause a fire.

Mother Flees With Baby

(Detroit Free Press, April 9)
 For the second time in a month, an adult has taken two-year-old Rhonda Marie Horn and fled into hiding.
 The first time, early in March, it was Linda Horn, the woman trying to adopt the baby along with her husband, Richard, who ran to Florida to keep from giving her up.
 Monday it was the natural mother, Rita Kay Harris of Auxier, Ky., who clasped the baby in her arms and said tearfully, "If the sheriff comes he'll have to shoot both of us"—and then left with the child.
 The baby, named Susan Lynette by Miss Harris, who once gave her up for adoption, has been the center of a bitter 21-month court struggle. Miss Harris changed her mind about the adoption three months after the baby's birth in an Ann Arbor hospital, and the Horns, who live in Ypsilanti, have been appealing court decisions since.
 The Horns had one dubious hope left, and they exercised it by filing an appeal

Monday morning in Ann Arbor. It was that move, apparently, that caused Miss Harris to make her unscheduled departure with the baby from a temporary foster home near Ann Arbor.
 The Washtenaw County Department of Social Services had recommended that Miss Harris only meet her child Monday, and visit her each day until Friday, then take her to Kentucky.
 "What happened today certainly is not normal procedure," David Krehbiel, county director of social services, said. "It was definitely contrary to our recommendations."
 "We wanted there to be a period of preparation, a transition time during which the child and the biological mother could get to know each other."
 The foster mother, who has been keeping the child for the past month, said Miss Harris took the baby "with only the clothes on her back."
 "I was trying to call the Social Services Department to see if it was all right for her to take the baby, but she wanted to leave right away," said the woman, who asked not to be identified.
 "She (Miss Harris) and her lawyer apparently got wind of the appeal and were afraid of a further delay. I finally convinced them to at least let me change the baby's diaper, and then they were gone."
 Ray Elevenger, attorney for the Horns, expressed dismay at the development. "We filed the appeal this morning, and that's supposed to carry with it an automatic stay," Elevenger said.
 Elevenger said it was his opinion that Miss Harris and her attorney, Franklin Shepherd, had not actually been served with the notice of appeal, and therefore were able to act as if they didn't know it.

RESOLUTION

Byron Nunnery

Byron Nunnery served for over 20 years as a member of the City Council of the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, and on March 22, 1974 submitted his resignation as a member of the City Council of the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, and, by unanimous vote, his son, Donald C. Nunnery, was appointed as a member of the City Council because of the vacancy created by the resignation of his father, which resignation was accepted by the City Council with much regret.
 On March 27, 1974, Byron Nunnery unexpectedly died and was buried on March 30, 1974.
 Byron attended the regular meetings of the City Council. His judgment on all matters was sound, and the City of Prestonsburg has lost one of its best citizens and a faithful friend.
 Other persons may succeed him but no person may take his place.
 We mourn his loss and extend to his widow and children our deepest sympathy in their bereavement.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED:
FIRST: That a page be set apart upon the records of the City Council whereon shall be recorded these resolutions.
SECOND: That no further matters be hereafter entered upon the original record book of this City Council subsequent to the minutes of the meeting at which these resolutions are adopted and entered.
THIRD: That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to the family and to the Floyd County Times for publication.
 Dated: April 4, 1974.

Mobile Home Laws Compliance Advised

James B. Goble, administrative assistant, Floyd County Health Department, advises all persons planning to construct or operate a mobile home park in Floyd county to be thoroughly familiar with the provisions of the law and regulations of the state relating to mobile home parks, including the issuance of permits, collection of fees, construction requirements, construction plan submission and approval, sanitary operations and penalties for non-compliance.
 Unless mobile home parks are constructed, operated and maintained in a sanitary manner they constitute a threat to the health of the occupants of the park and to the health of the residents of adjacent areas. Questions as to compliance with the law and regulations should be directed to the Floyd County Health Department or to the State Department of Health, Frankfort, Ky.
 "Mobile home park" means a parcel of land, under the control of any person, available to the public in which two or more mobile home lots are occupied or intended for occupancy by mobile homes.

May, Other Artists At Western Univ.

Bowling Green, Ky.—Thirty Kentucky artists, including Prestonsburg's Russell May, were invited to participate in activities in observance of the Kentucky Bicentennial at Western Kentucky University, April 11-12.

The event, sponsored by the Heritage Committee of Western's College of Education, was highlighted by free public demonstrations, displays and an informal reception to honor the artists. The art demonstrations are scheduled for Thursday afternoon from 1:30-4 p.m. (CDT) on the third floor of the Downing University Center.

The presentations began with Russell May painting a landscape in oil, and Lynn Luallen of Louisville demonstrating how she colors a lithograph.

Throughout the two-day meeting the public was encouraged to view the additional prints and original works which have been donated to Western by the honored artists.

Participating artists were guests of honor at a dinner in the Downing University Center Thursday evening at 6:30 p.m. and a luncheon Friday in the Academic Complex dining room.

Other Kentucky artists attending the meeting were Mary Byrun, Harold Collins, Mildred Colvin, Al Cornett, Charles T. Crume, Harold Davis, C. Don Ensor, Bill Granstaff, Gene Gray, D. L. Kentucky Afield
By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

It has been said that 10 per cent of the fishermen in Kentucky catch 90 per cent of the fish. Conversely, of course, this means that 90 percent of the fishermen catch only 10 per cent of the fish.

So, if you happen to be one of the "most with the least," you aren't alone. However, if you'd like to be in the "top 10," here are a few suggestions.

First, consider hiring a guide when you're on unfamiliar waters. The guide is, after all, a "pro" and he should be able to lead you to a spot where the fish are hitting. He can also advise you about what kind of fish to fish for, e.g., black bass fishing might be slow but the bluegill might be really "tearing" things up. Even the top 10 per cent of fishermen use a guide when fishing new waters and that might be one reason for their success.

Another way to build up your catch is to find a friend who is an expert angler. Fishing with someone who knows more about the sport than you do can teach you a lot, if you watch carefully and aren't afraid to ask questions.

Such a friend will be a lot more patient and eager to share his knowledge if you've done your homework before taking to the water. That is, you should have learned the basics of your sport - how to handle the equipment comfortably; how to tie knots; how to rig your line for live bait or artificial lures - and have some knowledge of the habits of the fish you seek.

All this requires a lot of practice and at least a little reading. The publications available are many and varied. A trip to your local newsstand will supply you with almost more how-to and where-to information than you'd want.

Another good idea is to find a lake that you know is productive and stick to it long enough to learn your way around. You'll find that certain places are nearly always productive and you won't spend a lot of time scouting new territory.

Be as quiet as you can, don't throw the paddle in the bottom of the boat or bang your tackle box around. And don't wear yourself out, either. Plan to spend three or four hours maybe, but try to make those hours fall during "prime" time. In late spring, summer and early fall, try early morning or late evening. In early spring or late fall, mid-morning is a good time.

The main things you need to make the "top 10" are desire and patience. Your stringer will soon show the results.

By agreement of all parties, the charge of assault and battery was added to the indictment against Bill Tom Shepherd and Larry Johnson last Wednesday when their trial on charges of rape and detaining a woman against her will was scheduled. They then pleaded guilty to assault and battery and were fined $50 each and given 10-day jail terms. The rape and detaining counts against them were dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witness.

Ten cases, most of which accused men of child desertion, were dismissed. The stream pollution case against Kentucky Coal Company and Potter & Walters Coal Co. was continued till April 25. Continued to the September court term was the charge against David Grigsby of possessing obscene material. The striking and wounding trial of Jack and Thurman Conley was continued generally.

The liquor charge against Randall Owens was transferred on motion of County Judge Henry Stumbo from quarterly to circuit court on the grounds that the case constituted a second offense against Owens, since he had earlier been convicted on the same count in Knott county. In that event, the quarterly court had no jurisdiction, Judge Stumbo pointed out.

from the pitcher's mound to the outfield so that he could come to bat regularly. Whereupon I confidently predicted that they had made another of their dumb mistakes, that they had lost a star pitcher and, taking his regular turn at the plate, Ruth would peter out as a slugger. Strange to relate, I was wrong. Despite my record for calling the shots somewhere to the left of target, I still am certain it's a good thing that I'm not a gambling man.

RECOMMENDED

All who criticize the police, ape those who carp about "police brutality" and sympathize so deeply with those who come within their grips should read the article in the current U. S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT in which a college professor tells of his experiences on the beat and in a squad car. This should be required reading for most of us.

DON'T BE A LATE HUSBAND

Saw, the other day, a line of type which told of a woman being charged "with the murder of her late husband." The sentence intrigued me, and I inquired, "How can anybody kill their late husband?"

Jimmy Goble settled the matter by remarking, "She was just trying to teach him not to be late, next time."

"Many days," he said, "the emergency room and some floors are not covered by RN's, and many days one RN is covering two floors and the emergency room all at the same time."

Dr. James D. Adams, another staff physician who also serves on the board of trustees, and Mrs. Madonna Combs, coordinator of the Associate Degree Nursing Program at Prestonsburg Community College, agreed with Wright on the figure of around 15 RNs who have left, but Frazier disputes it, terming it absolutely incorrect.

However, he admits the ideal number to have for the facility would be "about 40," and he said last week that 18 of the first class of 40 RNs to be graduated with associate degrees from PCC in May "have already been hired by the hospital."

Highlands has hired one emergency room physician, who Frazier said covers it "seven nights a week," and he said the board has authorized a second one.

Wright, however, said the present doctor works only five nights a week and that the emergency room is not covered by a physician on call on week-ends.

According to Frazier, "the availability of trained RNs has been the controlling factor in determining the date for coronary care unit. The hospital has received some criticism because this unit has not been opened—some of it from the medical staff."

"However experienced medical opinion rules out opening the unit before trained nursing personnel is available."

Dr. Jerry Fraim, Paintsville physician who has... been on Highland's medical staff for two months, said it "could be opened as soon as they had three RN's with traicing in coronary work."

The problem of communication between the hospital administration, the board of trustees and the medical staff still appears to be the core of the issue. A team of accreditation officials visited Highlands two weeks ago, and both Frazier and Wright agreed that they were told to work out the problems in this area.

The April 25 meeting will attempt to define all the issues and what the problems are, and to formulate some basic questions to be presented to both the Board and the medical staff at a future open public forum.

AAUW Chapter Extends Plans For Student Art Festival

The Prestonsburg Branch of the American Association of University Women this week announced further plans for the Floyd County Elementary and High School Art Festival to be held at Archer Park, on April 27-28.

Now being mailed out to the school chairmen are the duplicate entry sheets as well as entry tags which are to label the paintings and the crafts. Each-classroom is allowed four pictures and three crafts entered. High schools may send as many as 32 pictures and 12 crafts. Carlos Neeley, Prestonsburg High School art instructor, has assumed the responsibility of supplying the entry sheets and entry tags.

The AAUW will be further assisted by Tom Whitaker, art instructor at Prestonsburg Community College, and his Art Education 271 class. They have agreed to arrange and hang the art work after registration on Thursday, April 25.

The AAUW has secured as judges for the festival two well-qualified individuals, neither of whom is associated with the school system in Floyd county but who reside in the area. They are Mrs. T. A. Combs, Langley, who received her B. S. in Art Education from Miami University, and who has taught at Eastern Kentucky University and Johnson Central High School, and Lemaine Dingus, Martin, who has completed all but his thesis toward a master's degree. He taught art in the Cincinnati Public Schools for 13 years as well as adult and student art privately. Mr. Dingus operated an art gallery in Cincinnati for five years and promoted artists' work from the metropolitan area.

The judges of children's art will evaluate the art using as tools these areas of growth—mental, emotional, social, physical, aesthetic, and creative. The goal of evaluation is to point out those art works that are especially revealing to the trained eye with regard to the concepts, feelings and creativity of the child. The ribbons will be used to point up those instances of alertness to keen observation of and physical maturity of the student artist to his immediate environment.

Road-Building Company Sells

General Exploration Co. has purchased Greer Bros. & Young, which started with two trucks and eventually became one of the largest heavy construction firms in the nation.

The purchase price, not disclosed, also covered three subsidiaries: Greer Bros. & Woodson, London Diesel Service and GB & Y, Inc.

William G. Ferguson, chairman and chief executive officer of the Los Angeles firm, said that Elmo Greer will remain as president and chief operating officer, with Warren Greer serving as a vice president.

Bill Howard continues as chief engineer and as a vice president. Two other members of the local firm, Willie Greer and Don Young, are retiring.

Ferguson said Greer Bros. now has about 500 employees but the number climbs to 1,500 during the busy season. There are 600 to 700 pieces of heavy equipment, he continued, and "work is done in such states as Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia."

He said General Exploration conducts worldwide explorations for minerals, oil, gas and coal and that plans call for the expansion of Greer's highway construction work.

Elmo and Willie Greer started with two trucks shortly after World War II, often acting as drivers to haul road construction materials. The company's headquarters are at London, Ky. Greer Bros. & Young was one of the several.

Continue Massive Clean-Up

Frankfort, Ky.—More than a week has passed since the first in a series of devastating tornadoes ripped Kentucky, and the grim task of picking up the pieces and rebuilding continues.

April Fool's Day became a cruel reality for the 500 residents of Campbellsburg when the first of the deadly storms struck that community April 1.

Two days later, the story was repeated—much more brutally this time—when at least 18 more tornadoes cut paths of death and destruction across 27 counties in central and northern Kentucky.

The latest casualty figures list 73 people dead, hundreds injured and thousands homeless. Damage from the storms is expected to pass the $100 million mark.

Since the first disastrous storm, crews from the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection (NREP), forestry and special programs divisions, have worked with other state agencies and other groups in the massive clean-up efforts.

A dozen foresters from Stamping Ground traveled to Campbellsburg that first night. Using power saws and axes they joined highway workers and local residents in removing fallen trees and other debris that blocked ambulances' and rescue units' entry in to the area.

Wednesday night, the Stamping Ground foresters were again cleaning up after a tornado—this time, in their own back yards. Scott county was struck by the same string of twisters that set down in Franklin, Anderson, Shelby and Jefferson counties earlier in the evening.

Minutes after the storm passed through the state capital, Thomas O. Harris, NREP secretary, was sending scores of forestry crews, equipped with chain saws, into the hardest hit areas.

Men from Madisonville were dispatched to Brandenburg which suffered the greatest loss with 30 reported casualties.

Harris said he is impressed by the number of people who began calling to donate their services. "We had students from UK calling," he said, "asking, 'Where do you need us?'"

Of his own men, the secretary said, "I am as proud of them as I can be. They were willing to do what was necessary to get things done."

"We sent our Morehead crew into Northern Kentucky Wednesday night. As soon as they finished opening the roads there, one of them called and asked, 'Where do we go now?' I told them to get some sleep and then go to Richmond; but he said, 'We can grab a couple of hours sleep on the way.' And that's what they did."

In addition to the foresters, workers in the special programs division's junk car and clean-up detail moved their trucks and other heavy equipment into Franklin County to remove heavy debris.

Harris said his department "will continue to help as many people as we can as long as our help is needed."

Noting that the heaviest damage has occurred in residential areas, he said the most time-consuming problem will be in rural areas where the damage is not so concentrated.

As the foresters are working to clean-up, forestry officials are helping farmers and timberland owners recover some of their losses.

Harry Nadler, forestry director, has cautioned tree farmers whose trees were uprooted or knocked over by the tornadoes not to destroy the timber indiscriminately. Noting that lumber prices are soaring, Nadler urged the tree owners to contact their local sawmills and sell what is salvageable.

The director has offered the services of local forestry offices and the state office in determining what can be sold.

Students Named Outstanding Teenagers

Seven McDowell High School students have been selected as Outstanding Teenagers of America for 1974, according to Lloyd Stumbo, principal.

Selection for the Outstanding Teenagers awards program automatically qualifies these students for further state, regional and national honors and scholarships totaling $7,000. McDowell nominees are, from left:

Glenn Heinisch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Heinisch, of

McDowell; Alan Little, son of Mrs. Ruth Little, McDowell; Melinda Gay Grigsby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Grigsby, McDowell; Beckie Daniels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Daniels, Beaver; Gwendolynn Tackett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Tackett, East McDowell; Rita Howell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Howell, McDowell; Lana Stumbo, daughter of Mrs. Glenna Mae Stumbo, McDowell. Nominated by their principals, the Outstanding Teenagers of America are chosen from individual schools across the country for excellence in academic achievement and community service. The local students will now vie for the Outstanding Teenager of the Year Trophy to be presented by the state's governor. Similar trophies will be presented to the winners in other states. The state winners are selected by the Outstanding Teenager Awards Selection Committee, in cooperation with the Board of Advisors.

Increased Cost To Slow Repair

Frankfort, Ky.—Increased costs for patching materials will hamper Bureau of Highways maintenance efforts this summer, according to Secretary of Transportation James E. Gray.

According to Gray, the price of "hot mix" (bituminous material used for patching) has increased 56 per cent in the past year.

Gray says that recent bids show the current average price of hot mix is $12.57 per ton. "In 1973 the average price was $8.08 per ton," noted Gray.

The hot mix material is mainly used in patching potholes and making minor road surface repairs.

Gray said he has directed maintenance supervisors to review their operations and try to eliminate all sources of waste. The level of maintenance service will be kept as near as possible to its present level, he said, "but we can foresee that our maintenance dollar is simply not going to go as far as it has in the past."

Assistant State Highway Engineer for operations John Spurrier said that "the light winter has helped us because the roads have not been damaged as much as they usually are."

The Bureau of Highways will use the patching material on the most critical areas first with critical areas identified by highway district offices, Spurrier said.

Kay Blackburn has been selected as a member of the 1974 Kentucky All-State Band, according to Charles F. Campbell, Jr., All-State Band Chairman. Selection was made by auditions by tapes sent before a board of Kentucky Music Educators. Kay has played French horn in the Betsy Layne Band for the past eight years. The All-State Band will perform at Freedom Hall in Louisville, April 19, at 9 a.m. for the Kentucky Education Association.

Sociologist Questions Values Of Those Rating Kentucky Low

"There is by no means universal agreement on what constitutes a good life," said Dr. Thomas R. Ford, University of Kentucky rural sociologist, commenting on "The Quality of Life in the United States"—in which Kentucky ranks 48th among the 51 states.

If he agreed with the findings of the Midwest Research Institute, the social scholar added, "I wouldn't be living here." (His native Louisiana is ranked 46th.)

Midwest Research Institute, a Kansas City-based firm, shocked many Kentuckians last fall with its ratings of the "quality of life" in the United States. Kentucky, at 48, was followed only by Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina. The first five states in overall quality of life were California, Colorado, Connecticut, Washington and Oregon.

Nine criteria were used to rate the states: individual status, individual equality, living conditions, agriculture, technology, economic status, education, health and welfare, state and local governments. Counting categories within each of the nine indices, the researchers used about 100 different statistics to determine "the good life."

"The choices," Dr. Ford said, "reflect the values of those making the study, not necessarily the values of all." For example, he said, one criterion for excellence in a state was the number of symphony orchestras per 100,000 population. "What about the number of country music groups per 100,000?" he asked.

There is also a "bias toward metropolitan areas and toward high personal income," Dr. Ford said. Yet, "We have other data showing that 79 per cent of the American population want to live in a small town or a rural area."

As to one of the categories—agriculture—in which Kentucky was marked "C" (the lowest possible rating)—Ford observed that "even the U. S. Department of Agriculture hasn't made its mind up between high productivity and the small family farm." The component variables of the agriculture rating include such information as the number of trucks and tractors per farm, the average value of land and buildings and the average value of farm marketing per farm.

While conceding that "experts agree that it is better to use indicators to assess separate areas of quality of life rather than try to develop a single measure," Dr. Ford nonetheless maintained "that doesn't mean they (the indicators) add up to a total that means anything."

For example, while Kentucky has fewer parks and zoos than states with many metropolitan areas, "rural areas don't have as much need for parks. That's not taken into account. In Kentucky you don't have to go to a zoo to see a cow."

Ford said that "the question of validity of life quality indicators is 'tremendously complex. If 'being able to see a live ballet performance means the good life to you,' he said, "and being able to get out to the country means the good life to me, we would have to use different measures of quality."

But even when we are agreed on a given quality—say, good health—there are questions of whether the statistical indicators really measure that quality, if the data are accurate and, if more than one measure is used, whether they can be combined into what Ford called a "meaningful index."

Most of the lowest aggregate scores are made by southern states, which Dr. Ford said "reflects a choice of indicators in favor of states that have large metropolitan populations and a high concentration of employment in industry, both of which are also associated with high income."

The reason those same, and other southern states, scored low in the agricultural index, Dr. Ford said is that "if you look at the index, you find it heavily weighed in favor of large commercial farms. For example, it contains such items as per cent of farms with sales of more than $100,000, average value of land and buildings, number of vehicles per farm, all similar items which clearly are biased in favor of the large farm. On the agricultural index, Arizona, Nevada, California, Hawaii, and Florida came out as the top states, in that order. Each of these states has less than 2 per cent of its population living on farms, but they tend to be very large farms."

In summary, Dr. Ford said, "We do need to develop indicators of the quality of life" and the M.R.I. study is an attempt to do this. "We should be willing," he added, "to look objectively at their data and determine what it means for us in Kentucky with respect to our values."

"I think there are some goals we would like to obtain for the people of Kentucky—for example, good education—and it is useful to see how well we are succeeding relative to other states. Where we have serious problems, we should recognize them and work to correct them."

Earth Week, 1974 Set Apr. 21-28

"Education for Environmental Quality" is the theme for Earth Week 1974, April 21-28. Special projects and programs emphasizing learning and action for environmental improvement are to be launched and carried out during the week.

Earth Week 1974 is sponsored by the Alliance for Environmental Education, a coalition of 27 private organizations whose local units are working throughout the nation to enlist schools, youth groups, civic groups, and others in continuing efforts to understand and properly care for the environment.

A joint resolution in behalf of Earth Week 1974 has been introduced in Congress by 50 Senators. The Resolution states the purpose of Earth Week 1974 as "a time to continue the nationwide effort of education on environmental problems, to review and assess environmental progress, and to determine what further steps must be taken, and to renew the commitment and dedication of each American to restore and protect the quality of the environment."

The Alliance is stressing cooperative local action and learning programs as the most significant elements of Earth Week 1974. Member organizations of the Alliance describe Earth Week as a time to initiate a new thrust in behalf of environmental improvement through all formal and nonformal avenues of education.

Among the nationwide events scheduled during Earth Week 1974 is Scouting's Keep America Beautiful Day, Saturday, April 27. In addition to litter prevention and clean-up projects, Scouts will emphasize collection of materials for recycling, tree planting, urban wildlife habitat improvement, and other environmental improvement activities.

The Kentucky Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults owns and operates six Easter Seal facilities as a part of its programs of providing services for physically handicapped children.

Air Force Is Host To Media, Educators

The U. S. Air Force Recruiting Service in the area was host Friday night to representatives of the local news media and education at an appreciation dinner at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park.

Steak dinners were served, and brief talks were given in what M-Sgt. Dave Bush, supervisor of Air Force recruiting for Pikeville, Charleston, W. Va., and Logan county, W. Va., termed "an expression of thanks for the support you people have given our recruiting efforts."

Captain Larry Baker, advertising and public relations specialist with the recruiting service, pointed out special instances in which the USAF Recruiting Service plaque had been awarded to local members of the media. Baker pointed out that the Floyd County Times was one of only four papers in the state which had received this plaque in the past few years and "one of a handful" ever to be recognized.

The officers pointed to difficulties in recruiting, now that an all-volunteer system is in effect, and it was stressed that the help of the media, educators and local citizens will be needed now more than ever.

Baseball Roundup

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The Prestonsburg High School baseball team is off and running with a record of 5-1, and were scheduled to play Allen Central Tuesday. The Blackcats have received some excellent pitching from Roger Shepherd, David Shepherd, Greg Hall and Mike Dixon and the hitting has so far been outstanding with Mike Meade, Dell Jagers, Randy Wells, Mike Wells, Kippy McNally and John Stephens leading the way, and a fine marking the team's play. Prestonsburg's only loss was at the hands of the Paintsville Tigers by a score of 5-3, although Prestonsburg ouhit Paintsville, 10-5. In the Cats' last outing they swept a doubleheader from Wheelwright. In the first game, Prestonsburg won by a score of 22 to 2 as Mike Meade unloaded for a grand slammer and Mike Wells connected for a solo homer. Mike Dixon was the winner and struck out eight. In the second game, sophomore Greg Hall pitched a five-hitter and struck out six as Prestonsburg won the game, 12 to 5. In the second game, Mike Meade, Kippy McNally and Randy Wells connected for two hits each. The McDowell Daredevils are also off to a good start and have recorded three straight wins. All have been recorded against Wheelwright. In the first game McDowell, 7 to 3. Wheelwright was limited to two hits, while McDowell had five. Monday, McDowell swept a doubleheader from Wheelwright, winning the first game, 8 to 6. John Martin went the distance and picked up the win. Ricky Adams did the receiving, and Sam Martin, Jr., and Glenn Heinisch each had two hits. Tackett was the loser for Wheelwright, while Thornsburg of Wheelwright had two for two. In the second game, McDowell got off to a 9 to 2 lead. A Wheelwright rally fell short and McDowell won, 9 to 7. Ricky Henson started and was the winner; however, he needed relief help from Ricky Roberts, who also connected for a three-run homer. Roberts had two for four for the second game. Osborne was the loser, Harris had two for three for the young Trojans, Betsy Layne opened its schedule and lost a doubleheader to Mullins by identical scores of 7 to 2.

Allen Central picked up its first win in their first outing as the Rebels won over Mullins at Mullins, 6 to 14. Don Hansford was the winning pitcher with Acie Shepherd doing the catching.
