

New Span Almost Complete, Old To Go

The new $439,899 bridge which spans the Big Sandy at Emma is only a few weeks away from its opening, and that event will mean the discontinuance and early removal of the old suspension bridge (right) which has been in use since 1927. Work on the bridge itself is almost complete, but blacktopping of approaches remains to be done. The contractor, Edwards & Webb Construction Co., Danville, began the first work on the new span almost a year ago.

Officials Told Funds Must Be Wisely Handled

Gov. Wendell H. Ford announced last Thursday that Floyd county will receive $297,272 in surplus coal severance tax revenues for the 1973-'74 fiscal year. The governor said the allocation will be made from a total available amount of $6,247,705, which is to be divided proportionately among 39 coal-producing counties according to the amount of coal severance tax revenue they generated. The Executive Department for Finance and Administration will allocate funds for projects as recommended by the fiscal courts of each county and approved by the legislative advisory committee, Ford told county judges from the counties receiving allocations. "I want to challenge you to make this program, which can mean so very much to the people of your counties, work, so that it can be extended and expanded by the 1976 General Assembly," Ford said. A 1974 amendment to the state coal-severance tax law—the so-called Mountain Amendment—required that half of any surplus revenue produced by the levy be returned to coal-producing counties.

Martin Job Hits Delay As Bid High Preliminary Plans For M'Dowell Work Approved by Board

Because the lowest of two bids offered on construction of a physical education building at Martin elementary school and the renovation of the existing classroom building there was $160,000 above the architect's estimate, the bid was rejected at last Wednesday's joint meeting of the Fiscal Court and the Floyd County Board of Education.

At its Saturday meeting, however, the board of education voted to ask the court as its fiscal agent to readvertise the work but to ask bids on renovation and construction separately. The renovation project is believed to have been responsible for the bid being excessively high.

The J. A. Coleman Co., of Paintsville, submitted the low bid of $549,621. But the architect had estimated cost of the overall project at $390,000. The court will meet again today (Wednesday), and Supt. Charles Clark will at that time ask it to readvertise the two projects.

Preliminary plans for the McDowell physical education-lunchroom building were accepted Saturday, and the board instructed the architect, Forrest McCloskey Associates, Lexington, to rush work on final plans. Advertising of this project is expected this fall.

The board at its meeting Saturday adopted a teacher salary schedule which gives teachers a flat 7 per cent increase. The increase is paid for by Minimum Foundation funds.

A second kindergarten unit approved by the board will be located at Harold. (See Story 7, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Blood Program In Test Today

The Floyd County Donor Club will sponsor its first mobile blood-drawing today (Wednesday) between 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., when a mobile crew from the Central Kentucky Blood Center in Lexington will set up quarters at the Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Qualified phlebotomists (blood drawers) will draw blood from Floyd county volunteers only after each volunteer has undergone a thorough medical history examination to make sure that he is physically able to donate blood.

Any healthy adult between the ages of 18 and 66, weighing a minimum of 110 pounds, is eligible to be a blood donor.

Jametta Mounts, chairman of the Floyd County Donor Club, said that all civic, industrial, and religious organizations must participate in order to make this first mobile blood drawing successful. For further information or to make an appointment, call the Highlands Regional Medical Center.

This Town . . . That World

You don't have to be a prophet to wail a jeremiad, these days.

FOR BETTER MILEAGE

Having launched this week's column with that gloomy statement, I continue to develop the theme that this country has gone a long way down the road. One of the most incontrovertible proofs of this is the fact that government a few months ago ordered, and most of us obeyed, a speed limit of 55 miles per hour to save gas but we now forget the whole matter, since fuel apparently is plentiful—although it has been proved that the same speed limit does and will save lives.

But we shouldn't brood overmuch. The sun still shines, and for the last week the atmosphere has cleared till the most distant hilltop is visible—even if we can't see ahead beyond the end of our noses.

PEACE—IT'S WONDERFUL

Some thought my account of that series of skirmishes with the hornets last week was a fiction. It wasn't. And the hornets are all gone. Know what did the trick? I should be paid for printing this—it was Raid's Hornet Killer.

To set me apart as a period piece, one innocent asked, after reading last week's battle bulletin, "Who's Henry? What is Flit?"

The ignorance of this younger generation amazes me. (See Story 6, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Operator Asks Court for Curb, $50,000 Damages

A temporary restraining order to halt interference with the mining of coal on a Little Mud Creek lease and $50,000 damages for the work interruption already caused are asked in a suit filed here last Wednesday by George E. Barnette, doing business as the Beaver Branch Coal Company, against heirs of the late Silas Williams.

The suit involves coal underlying a tract on the Morgan Fork of Little Mud Creek. Named as defendants are the owners of the surface, Ballard Williams and Mrs. George Meade, of Printer, Ruford Williams, of Dana, Allen Williams, Shelby, O., and Stallard Williams, New London, O., who is administrator of the Silas Williams estate, and all unknown heirs of Silas Williams. Plaintiff alleges he was directed by Ballard, Ruford and Stallard Williams not to come upon the property and that they forbade him to mine the coal. The petition says defendants are owners of the surface under a deed from the heirs of Rebecca Clark, but that the coal and other minerals were excepted, and that Barnette's lease of the coal was acquired from Stallard Clark and others.

In another circuit court action Harry Short named as defendant Victor Goble, doing business as Goble's Automotive World, claiming $50,000 damages for bodily injuries incurred last August when a vehicle owned by Goble or the company collided with his car. He also asks $3000 medical expenses and $500 for damage to his auto.

Truckers' Wages Cost Fire Dept. Three Members

For one of the few times in its long history Prestonsburg was obliged this week to advertise for city employees.

With the coal industry offering high wages for truck drivers, the fire department has lost three regular firemen, two within the week. The loss cut deep into the department's trained manpower, and so the Council at its meeting last Thursday evening directed City Manager Curtis Clark to advertise for job-applicants.

One of the two who resigned last week was Assistant Fire Chief Gold Slone. The other was Paul Chaffin. William Powers had earlier left the department. Raymond Edward Joseph was transferred from the street to the fire department. (See Story 8, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Mountain Investment, Officials in Dispute

Mountain Investment Co., Jacksonville, Fla., which owns a great portion of the town of Wheelwright, and city officials of the town have a feud going—on paper.

Several weeks ago, the Wheelwright City Council enacted housing and building codes, appointed a building inspector, established certain standards, and now has issued between 40 and 50 notices to Mountain Investment, giving the company 30 days to begin repairing or razing buildings cited as unfit for human habitation or dangerous.

Mountain Investment's president, Gordon Brown, declares the city is trying to run his business and his company has notified two leaders in the housing improvement move—City Clerk Don Daniels and Terry Feathers, a development counsellor and a junior at the University of Kentucky—to vacate the homes they have leased from Mountain Investment.

The investment company, it was indicated this week, will go to court, if necessary, to enforce the evictions of the two.

The housing code adopted for Wheelwright is based on provisions of the state, Louisville and Lexington codes.

The exchange of views between those supporting the Council's program and Mr. Brown runs along these lines:

"The city is behind this 100 per cent," Mayor Elmer Ferguson said. He said the ordinances "have been passed by the whole City Council wholeheartedly. They're absolutely necessary."

"Those ordinances are not valid," Brown said. "The whole thing is a farcical parody on government. I feel very strongly about amateurs interfering in professional business administration," he said. "If they want to put up a million dollars and come in with us, fine, we'll let them have a voice in our administration."

"But what they're trying to do is run our business," Brown said, "and we're not going to let them do that."

City Clerk Daniels said Wheelwright needs the housing and building codes, and suggests that the issue behind the dispute is the question of who runs the city.

"Mountain Investment might own two-thirds of the homes," Daniels said, "and they might own the utilities, but they don't own the City Council. And we're going to do what's best for this town."

Wheelwright was built as the model coal camp of Inland Steel Co. Inland sold its mines to Island Creek Coal Co. in 1966 and the town itself to a group of local investors who later sold their holdings to Mountain Investment. (See Story 3, Back Page, Sec. 1)

He'll Be 100 Next March 14—And He Still Wants a Fiddle

J. A. Jackson didn't get the fiddle he wanted for his last birthday, but he doesn't really mind . . . he figures he can wait till next March 14 for his 100th birthday.

Jackson used to play both the fiddle and five-string banjo in the days when crowds would gather on Saturday nights at nearby houses for all-night square dances and "play parties." He still loves the old-time music and his wife, Dorothy, said that "real early" every morning her husband goes out on the front porch of their home on Stone Coal Creek, near Garrett, and sings a tune or two. "Here lately, he's been singing one called 'Heaven-Born Soldiers,'" she remarked. "This woman that lived up the hill from us said she got to where she'd use Mr. Jackson's singin' for an alarm clock."

Jackson also has something of a reputation as being an accomplished dancer and Mrs. Jackson said that at least once a week "I'll have to play a tape so he can get up and dance a jig to it. Anytime, though, he has to hold on to a table when he dances." Still, not bad for a man approaching the century mark. (See Story 2, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Born in Magoffin county in 1875, John A. Jackson has accumulated the memories of a lifetime that spans half the time that the United States has existed as a nation . . . memories from a youthful prime experienced before the isolation of the mountains was broken by the inroads of the railways.

"I was born on Coldiron Creek in Magoffin county," Mr. Jackson recalled, "and Aunt Becky Coldiron was the midwife. You know, they didn't have no doctors back then . . . just midwives to help with havin' babies."

Jackson's grandfather, whom he remembers well, came from Ireland, settling in Magoffin county as one of the early progenitors of the well-known "Scotch-Irish" stock that has always characterized a great many of the inhabitants of the Appalachians. "Grandpap said most everybody in Ireland had blue eyes and red hair," Jackson said. The physical characteristics are prominent in Jackson himself.

Center's Help-Line Open 24 Hours a Day

It's 2 a.m. The telephone log shows the last shift taking 27 calls . . . a man looking for help for his suicidal friend, a woman with a sick baby, a traveler who is lonely and drunk in a small hotel, a man worried about a lost welfare check. The lights on the switchboard bounce and flicker. A voice is answering, "Mountain Comprehensive Care Center Help-Line, may I help you?"

For the last year and a half, MCCC's toll free Help-Line has been giving service to the people of Martin, Pike, Floyd, Magoffin, and Johnson counties. Operating 24 hours a day, seven days a week, the professional staff has received literally thousands of calls from all parts of this district. In tandem with a network of "on call" counselors in each county, the Help-Line has been an instantaneous source of therapeutic services, a reservoir for bits and pieces of information ("Where is . . . ?" "How can I . . . ?" "Do you know if . . . ?"), and a clearing house for specialized agencies and organizations. But according to Terry Jackson, district ISR supervisor, there's more to come.

"As of August 1, we'll be adding two new 24-hour services. A SID unit and a Walk-In unit which will be integrated with the Help-Line services to form a fairly comprehensive 'Help Center' ". Mr. Jackson said. The two units will be located in Prestonsburg—the Walk-In unit, in the building on First Avenue which formerly housed the Prestonsburg General Hospital; the SID Unit, in a building at the rear of the hospital.

SID is an acronym for Situation, Identification, Disposition. Its purpose is to provide help to those people wishing to sober up or recover from other drug abuse. The SID's program includes a live-in facility for non-medical detoxification and for professional alcohol and drug abuse counseling and a referral system that provides medical attention, continued therapy or contact with other organizations such as AA (Alcoholics Anonymous).

The 24-hour Walk-In unit is the final component in the Help Center's three-part system. Commenting on its development, Jackson said, "We've had (See Story 4, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Judge H. David Hermansdorfer sentenced Grigsby to a prison term of one year and a day.

Herbie the Love Bug

Bug us for an autograph.

It's free at our showroom. A full-color, autographed poster of one of Hollywood's biggest stars, Herbie, The Love Bug.

The romantic lead in Walt Disney Studio's new motion picture, "Herbie Rides Again."

Who ever imagined when the Beetle made its debut back in 1949 that it would someday light up the silver screen? Surely not the critics.

"Ugly," they sneered.

"What a peculiar nose," they chortled. "The engine's in the trunk," they mocked. But over 4 million Volkswagens later, the doubters stand corrected.

After all, who can pan a car that goes so far on a gallon of gas. Has so high a resale value.

And that now, wonder of wonders, is a matinee idol.

It certainly is a moving picture.

Suspect Arson In Eagle Blaze At Whitesburg

Arson is suspected in the fire which last Thursday morning heavily damaged the offices of the Mountain Eagle, weekly newspaper at Whitesburg, and the state fire marshal's office is making an investigation which may last as long as two months.

The Eagle is printed at the Highlands Publishing Company plant here, and the fire followed by only a few hours last Wednesday's publication of the paper. The blaze, discovered at around 1:30 a.m., started in the end of a sofa in the office of Tom Gish, editor of the paper.

Mr. Gish said the fire almost totally destroyed three back rooms in the 65-year-old downtown building that The Eagle has occupied for 15 years. He said the three rooms were a storage room, a darkroom and his office. There also was smoke and water damage to the front part of the building, which contains the paper's newsroom and business office, he said.

"I think the great loss is going to prove to be The Mountain Eagle's photographs and film. We had really superb stuff," Gish said. "I had also accumulated... one of the best collections I know of books and articles on Eastern Kentucky and Appalachia." The collection was destroyed, he said.

The fire will not prevent the newspapers' being published, however. "We'll get something out next week, if we have to use just one typewriter."

Under Gish's ownership, The Mountain Eagle, which began publishing in 1907, has attracted attention throughout Eastern Kentucky for its coverage of controversial issues.

Suspect Arson In Eagle Blaze At Whitesburg

Arson is suspected in the fire which last Thursday morning heavily damaged the offices of the Mountain Eagle, weekly newspaper at Whitesburg, and the state fire marshal's office is making an investigation which may last as long as two months.

The Eagle is printed at the Highlands Publishing Company plant here, and the fire followed by only a few hours last Wednesday's publication of the paper. The blaze, discovered at around 1:30 a.m., started in the end of a sofa in the office of Tom Gish, editor of the paper.

Mr. Gish said the fire almost totally destroyed three back rooms in the 65-year-old downtown building that The Eagle has occupied for 15 years. He said the three rooms were a storage room, a darkroom and his office. There also was smoke and water damage to the front part of the building, which contains the paper's newsroom and business office, he said.

"I think the great loss is going to prove to be The Mountain Eagle's photographs and film. We had really superb stuff," Gish said. "I had also accumulated...one of the best collections I know of books and articles on Eastern Kentucky and Appalachia." The collection was destroyed, he said.

The fire will not prevent the newspapers' being published, however. "We'll get something out next week, if we have to use just one typewriter."

Under Gish's ownership, The Mountain Eagle, which began publishing in 1907, has attracted attention throughout Eastern Kentucky for its coverage of controversial issues.

ROPES Board Meets; Hears Presentations

The ROPES Region 11 board of directors met July 30 at the ROPES office in Prestonsburg, with Chairman of the Board Charles F. Clark presiding.

Board members and guests heard presentations by the following:
Mrs. Lynn Wood, director of Dissemination, Department of Education, who discussed the Division of Dissemination and the ERIC system, which provides information on programs carried out in school districts in all parts of the United States and which can be a helpful reference for any school district attempting to begin a new program.

Gayle Bowen, director of the Division of Finance, Department of Education, who explained the pupil cost ratio of funding the schools as compared to the classroom unit method. Mr. Bowen also discussed Senate Bills 247 and 280.

E. M. Overholt, microfilm marketing representative, 3M Company, in a discussion of microfilming of school records and the advantages of this method of record keeping. Mr. Overholt was invited to return to the September board meeting to display microfilming equipment.

Reo Johns, ROPES executive director, reported on the first meeting of the committee to plan the regionwide in-service meeting to be held October 7 at Paintsville High School. Johns said that the next committee meeting will be held August 15 at the ROPES office here.

We've Been "Appalachianized"

In its report of the passage of the federal strip-mine bill NEWSWEEK introduces us to a word of recent coinage.

"Appalachianize" is the word. Apparently a member of the family which includes "demoralize" and "pulverize."

NEWSWEEK used the word in this explanation of the drive for federal control of the industry:

"The strip-mining opponents feared that the coal industry would 'Appalachianize' their region: making it, as Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana warned, 'the utility backyard for the rest of the nation.'"

Said Montana's Gov. Thomas Judge, according to NEWSWEEK, "I don't believe we have to have our state ripped off, our land torn up and our water used to meet energy needs."

After an estimated 20,000 miles of highwall had been left as a sombre monument to the desecration of Appalachian states, they decide not to "Appalachianize" the rest of the country!

It is estimated that more than three million acres of land have been ravaged in these states which comprise the region known as Appalachia, that perhaps a million tons of acid pour into the streams of the region and that as many as 10,000 miles of its waterways have been rendered unfit for either people or fish.

And yet, until the West was threatened, Appalachia's martyrdom on behalf of America drew almost no official protest.

Now when another section of the nation comes under threat, the Congress enacts this law which bans strip-mining in near-desert places, the arid and semi-arid alluvial valleys of the West. The law forces mining companies to get permission from the surface-owners there in the West before they can mine the coal which the federal government itself owns and has leased to the operators.

The new law provides for the land to be returned to an approximation of what it was before it was mined, in Appalachia or elsewhere. But we are not arguing the merits or demerits of the law. It may have the effect of driving coal back to the underground mining which employs more men than machines and creates big payrolls. Or it may be a failure, as so many laws are.

But what we are wondering about, just now, is why these mountains were "Appalachianized" with few protests from the Congress of the United States until the West fell under the threat?

LONDON (AP)—For the first time, an all-woman jury was empaneled at the Ol Bailey, London's central criminal court. The jurors were sworn in by a woman clerk and a woman usher. They took only a few minutes to decide that a male dressmaker was not guilty of stealing dresses.

The Joint Interim Committee on Business Organizations and Professions has voted to request funds to hold some of its sessions around the state. Previously, all the meetings have been held in Frankfort. The decision was made to enable more citizens to participate in legislation preparation.

Cook Reverses Stand On Paintsville Dam

By CHARLES R. BABCOCK
(In The Courier-Journal)

Washington—In a sudden reversal of position, Sen. Marlow Cook yesterday (last Thursday) asked the Senate to restore to a public works bill construction funds for the Paintsville Dam project that he previously had predicted would be "the largest oil slick in the world."

Last Friday, Cook's office had put out a press release noting that funds for Paintsville and another controversial Corps of Engineers project in the Red River Gorge had been deleted from the public works bill passed by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

But yesterday, when the bill came up for a floor vote—it passed, 76-17, and now goes to conference—Cook introduced an amendment to restore $1 million for the proposed $32.9 million lake on Paint Creek in Eastern Kentucky's Johnson and Morgan counties. The amendment passed by voice vote.

In remarks on the floor, the Louisville Republican acknowledged his earlier opposition to the project but said, "The situation with regard to Paintsville has changed."

He said he had been worried about the corps' failure "to evaluate the effect of the oil and gas wells found in the area of the lake." Referring to a July 9 letter from the corps, he said, "The danger has been removed."

That letter, from the Corps' chief engineer at the Huntington, W. Va.,

district, said a survey that located more than 200 wells "will enable the district to undertake a program wherein wells and related facilities immediately adjacent to and within the reservoir acquisition limits will be plugged and treated to eliminate pollutants such as oil, gas and brine from entering the lake."

Cook said in his remarks on the floor, "Under the circumstances that existed until recently I remained convinced that the committee was justified in deleting the appropriation."

While the corps letter that apparently changed Cook's mind was written July 9, the committee didn't act to stop funding until last Friday, more than two weeks later.

Cook did not explain the delay in his change of mind.

The senator's earlier opposition to the Paintsville project seemed based on much more than the "oil slick" problem he now considers solved.

Just last April, in hearings here on the project, he said the corps' performance on the project more resembles "a Marx Brothers movie than a sober, rational government operation."

The year before he had battled powerful Kentucky Democratic Rep. Carl Perkins over financing for the project and lost.

Now, Cook says, "I am satisfied that the federal government's investment, of $32 million at Paintsville will no longer be a boondoggle, but rather a sound and worthwhile investment."

The House-passed version of the public works bill had earmarked $1.5 million for Paintsville and Cook's original amendment yesterday said the same. But when reminded that the budget request was less than $1 million, he lowered his request to $1 million and the amendment carried.

A House-Senate conference will now consider the differences in the two public works bills the major measure for construction projects all across the country.

Mrs. Tackett To Head Breath of Life Drive

Mrs. Nancy Tackett has been named Wayland chairman of the Breath of Life Campaign to fight children's lung-damaging diseases, according to Stanley H. Tichenor, president of the Mid-South Chapter National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation.

Mrs. Tackett will lead local volunteers in raising funds to support research and care programs for children affected by lung-damaging diseases such as cystic fibrosis, severe asthma, chronic bronchitis and bronchiectasis.

Breath of Life Week will be September 8-14, with a door-to-door drive scheduled during the week.

"Most people don't realize that there are millions of children in the U. S. affected by lung-damaging disease," said Mrs. Tackett. "For some of these children breathing is a struggle, rather than the natural function we, who are lucky, take for granted."

The Breath of Life Campaign supports not only research but also diagnosis and treatment of children with lung-damaging diseases in C-F Centers across the country. There are more than 110 of these centers, which also provide for educational programs and research.

Former Judge Dies Here Tuesday at 83

Henry C. Stephens, former Prestonsburg banker and county official, died early Tuesday at the Mountain Manor Nursing Home here after a long illness. He was 83 years old.

For half a century he had been a prominent figure in Democratic politics, and for 24 years held public office—first as circuit court clerk for two terms, from 1916 to 1928; as circuit judge from 1942 to 1948, after the expiration of which term he again was elected circuit clerk for a third six-year term.

A son of Alex and Delilah Hale Stephens, he was a native of the Caney Fork of Middle Creek. He attended local schools and the Eastern Kentucky Normal School at Louisa, then taught in the county's rural schools until his entry into politics. Judge Stephens studied law in the offices of Prestonsburg attorneys, W. W. Williams, B. M. James and Claude P. Stephens, and was admitted to the bar in 1918.

He became president of the First National Bank here in 1931 and held that position until his election as circuit judge in 1942.

Mr. Stephens also was a member of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, a 50-year member of Zebulon Masonic Lodge, the Shrine and the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He was first married to Julia B. Conley. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Katherine Leake Stephens, of Prestonsburg; two sons, James D. Stephens, of Georgetown, and Edgar P. Columbia Offers Budget Program

Columbia Gas of Kentucky again is offering its annual budget payment program to customers in the Prestonsburg area, and the advantages to those who join will be more significant in the coming months than ever before, according to J. B. Bowman, manager for the gas company.

"Continuing inflation and accompanying higher prices that our company must pay to obtain gas to meet the needs of customers will continue to affect the rates we charge for gas service during the coming year," Mr. Bowman explained. "The budget payment program enables residential and commercial customers who participate to spread these higher costs evenly over the entire year, while those who do not take advantage of the budget plan will face even higher bills in the colder winter heating months," he said.

"Next year and in future years, these advantages will be even greater for budget plan customers," Bowman continued, "because higher prices for future supplies of gas will mean even higher rates and, for those not taking advantage of the budget plan, still higher winter heating bills."

"The budget payment plan, meanwhile, is optional, and there is no charge to participate," he added.

He explained that the gas bill received by each Prestonsburg area customer in August or early September will indicate two amounts: (1) the amount due for gas consumed during the previous month and (2) the amount due under the budget payment program. By paying the budget amount indicated, the customer automatically will join the budget payment program and pay the same budget amount each month.

The monthly budget amount for each customer is calculated from that customer's past history of gas usage, which is adjusted to normal weather and other factors. Next April, each budget customer's account will be reviewed. If necessary, because of abnormal weather or other factors, the budget payment could be adjusted to avoid a large balance being owed by the customer at the end of the budget payment year. Normal meter reading service by gas company employees continues throughout the year for budget customers.

Letters to the Editor

Medicine and Food In Lieu of Missiles

Since the beginning of man, many men have dreamed of a world in which there would be eternal peace and all the people could live in harmony and friendship. Among the many men that come to mind, there is only room in this letter to mention a few. However, there are certain types of people who are like a bunch of jackals, who believe that the only way they can gain prominence is by constant nibbling at the heels, can bring down the strongest of men.

Alexander the Great, who dreamed of one world, one government and all people, regardless of creed, color or race, sharing equal benefits to be derived from this union.

Woodrow Wilson promised his troops in World War I that this was "a war to end all wars." He dreamed of setting up a League of Nations so that all disputes between peoples could be settled by law instead of war. When he was not able to accomplish this he died a completely frustrated and broken man.

President Truman muffed two great chances to insure world peace: (1) As we had the patent on the atomic bomb, we would have forbidden other nations to experiment with atomic energy except for peaceful purposes; (2) When he did not resist the veto provisions of the super power in the United Nations, rendering that organization totally ineffective.

Now we have President Nixon, who is working for a generation of peace, apparently to the exclusion of income tax, campaigns and other time-consuming matters and who is utilizing the greatest weapons of all time.

Remember the few short years ago when our warehouses were bulging with surplus wheat and other farm commodities at great storage expense and we were paying farmers not to produce, our balance of payment deficits, the run on the U. S. dollar. Now of course, under the Nixon Administration, all this has changed, and food is one of the world's greatest peace-making forces.

As populations in undeveloped and other countries are currently expanding rapidly and as we can expect a natural course of events—disease, famine brought on by drought and other disasters—I would like to suggest that we take certain missiles out of our arsenal and equip them with certain medical supplies and foodstuff. Thus, we would be in position to pinpoint mercy missiles wherever these disasters occur.

The effect may be to lessen the warlike image in which many peoples of the world now see us.

Explains Hospital Procedure

It has come to my attention that the procedure for a patient to enter Highlands Regional Medical Center is not well understood by everyone in the service area. This news release is being made for the purpose of describing the proper procedure to follow in order to become an in-patient at the hospital.

The hospital does not admit or discharge patients. In order to receive services as an in-patient at the hospital, one must first visit his or her family physician. The physician will determine whether or not you need hospital care. If he decides that you need hospitalization, he will write the necessary orders for treatment and then you will be admitted as a patient.

A list of physicians who have admitting privileges as members of the medical staff of Highlands Regional Medical Center are: William B. Cook, Ernest C. Holbrook, David White, James D. Adams, Ballard D. Wright, Ira B. Potter, N. Roger Jurich, Ernest Musgrave, Charles F. Arnett, Franklin K. Belhasen, Donald Park, Daniel W. Spurlock, Charles Hieronymus, Raymond Wells, Jerry Fraim, Joseph Rapier, John W. Sutherland, C. M. Rivera, Herbert Knodt, Frank Picklesimer, Claude L. Allen, John H. Mahaffy, Harold Resinger, Raleigh R. Archer and Herbert Playforth. Dentists with admitting privileges are: Herbert G. Salisbury, Edward G. Leslie, Garland D. Godsey, Fred D. Meece, Joseph Rapier, William Blair, Charles Sword, Thomas L. Roberts and Carl E. Tackett. CHALMER H. FRAZIER, Administrator

Corrects Hill Climb Story

The story about the motorcycle hill climb being the first sanctioned in Prestonsburg wasn't true. . . We (my husband, Johnny Hale and I) were a sanctioned motorcycle club by the A.M.A. and had a race track and a hill climb on the Billy Morrell farm on the Auxier road.

W'wright Key Club Helps Needy

When the Key Club of Wheelwright High School learned that the Department for Human Resources division of social services was collecting clothing for the less fortunate children in Floyd county, the club members decided to pitch in. They felt that this was a practical way of committing themselves to their international theme "Caring—Our Way of Life." Shown above are most of the boys who, giving up the latter two weeks of July vacation time, collected a 1 1/2-ton pick-up truck full of clothes from the communities of Weeksbury, Melvin, Wheelwright, and Bypro. They are from left—Jimmy Gore, Terry Hurt, Eva Allen Horn, president Floyd County Interagency, Joey Tackett, David Lee Hall, and Mike Armour. Not pictured are Robin Humphrey, Bobby Issac, and Marty Gore. The Department for Human Resources will present the boys a gold certificate of appreciation.

Youth Program Employing 300 In This County

The Floyd County Board of Education is operating, under sponsorship of the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program (EKCEP), a summer youth program for 300 high school students from low-income families.

These students are working 20 hours per week, for eight weeks at $2 per hour. The total federal cost of this program for the summer is $119,990. The enrollees work as teacher, library, maintenance, lunch room and clerical aides. Most of the work is done in the Floyd county schools, but some are working in the Wheelwright public library, the Prestonsburg regional library Archer Park, the Jenny Wiley Theater, the Nelson Mainstream Office, the local Concentrated Employment office and at the Board of Education building.

Virgil Osborne is the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment director and Estill Hall is the director for the Floyd county program.

The program stresses such good work habits as promptness, cleanliness, acceptance of responsibility, learning to follow instructions, cooperation, good employer-employee relations, the development of skills that will help in future employment, and good conduct. Enrollees are urged to spend their income wisely and are encouraged to buy clothes, take care of personal appearance, dental and doctor bills, and have enough money at the end of the summer to buy books and other school supplies.

DECIDES FOR STUDENTS

A court order, sending striking teachers back to their classrooms, resulted in some interesting comments by the presiding Colorado judge. He said that "School board members need not seek office if they don't desire; teachers are free to teach where they will and where they can; but students must go to the school in the district in which they reside; therefore, this court now finds it must opt in favor of the students and finds as a fact that their rights are being irreparably injured, damaged, and lost as a direct result of the strike. The overriding theme in all the cases the court has read and reviewed is that such a strike endangers the very roots of our society, viz., the public school system, and is therefore contrary to the best interests of society . . ."

PRYOR RESIGNS

Two Arrested In Rum Raids

Three raids by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and deputies last week resulted in the arrest of two men and the confiscation of a sizeable quantity of whiskey. Clarence Martin, of Drift, was jailed last Thursday on a possession charge after Sheriff Lewis and Deputies Doug Lewis, Green Slone and Denver Newsome found 13 half-pints of whiskey in his living room. Sheriff Lewis said it was the first time he had ever found intoxicants in Martin's home, although liquor had been on his premises on several occasions. A look beneath a coffee table uncovered the haul. Lewis said he will seek a third-offense indictment against Martin when the grand jury convenes next month.

In the second search 167 half-pints of whiskey were found by Deputy Sheriffs Green Slone, Ray Reynolds and Roland Howell on the premises of Milton Johnson, of Abner Fork, Saturday afternoon. He was booked in quarterly court on a second offense possession charge.

Prestonsburg police and the sheriff's office joined this week in an attempt to identify the person or persons who burglarized the Earl Street home here of Bill Rorrer. When Rorrer and family returned from vacation last week he found that 13 guns, 60 50-cent pieces and other smaller silver coins had been taken. Entrance had been effected through a rear window.

Terry Lynn Barnett was jailed last week on a grand larceny charge by Sheriff Lewis and Deputy Green Slone after his uncle, Boyd Barnett, had accused him of taking $2000 in cash from his truck. Before procuring a warrant for his nephew's arrest, Barnett recovered the money from him, the sheriff said.

Other arrests, charges against each defendant, and names of arresting officers follow:

John Tackett, Jr., no operator's license, by Sheriff Lewis and Deputy Doug Lewis; Avery Lowe, assault and battery with a deadly weapon, by Deputies Lewis and Slone; Earl Shepherd, reckless use of a deadly weapon; Clell Patton, drunk driving, by State Trooper Webb; Larry Howell, drunk driving, by Allen Policeman George Hall, Jr.; Delmer Greer, drunk driving, by State Trooper Simpson; Jackie Brown, and Keith Belhasen, both accused of driving without an operator's license, by Deputies Lewis and Slone; Elmer Hall, no operator's license, by Deputy Sheriff Slone; George P. Ousley, drunk driving, by State Trooper Bevins; Dan Kidd, impersonating an officer and drunk driving, by Deputies Lewis, Martin, Newsome and Williams; Homer Reynolds, drunk driving, by Deputies Martin and Newsome; Tony Isaacs, streaking, fined $10 and given a 10-day jail term by Magistrate Dewey Roberts, later released to his father; Johnny Henry Salisbury, shooting into an auto and reckless use of a deadly weapon, by State Troopers Estep and Bevins; Morris Allen Rice, overweight truck, by Transportation Officer Eugene Mullins; Milford Isaacs, drunk driving and no registration plates, by Trooper Estep; Matt Owens, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Trooper Williamson.

NASA To Make $180,000 Study Of 'Spy in Sky'

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has tentatively approved a $180,000 study to determine whether satellite imagery can be used by the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to supplement present strip mining reclamation techniques.

Through photographs taken by ERTS and other satellites and aerial pictures taken from aircraft, the department will be able to locate every strip mining operation in Kentucky. This will enable reclamation officials to locate problem areas and potential hazards without leaving their office.

Bill Kelly, of the department's office of planning and research, said the study is not aimed at removing the inspectors from the field but rather to allow them more flexibility and time for tackling problems.

"If an inspector knows where there is trouble—such as an operator working without a permit or off his permit—before he leaves the office, then he has saved maybe several hours of driving around," Kelly noted.

largely as a result of a State Department of Education study. The new unit, as well as the original which operated at Martin last year, will be prepared to accommodate 40 pupils a day—20 in the morning, the same number in the afternoon. Children who will be of school age by the opening of the 1975-76 school term are eligible to enroll. Because of split classes, parents of kindergarten pupils will be required to furnish transportation, school buses transporting to school only those who attend morning classes and returning home only those attending afternoon classes.

Four women were employed as coaches of girls' basketball teams. They are designated assistant coaches and will be paid the same supplemental salary paid assistant football coaches, $525 a year. The coaches are Patricia Murphy at Allen Central High, Bobbie Lynn Moore at McDowell, Virginia Jamerson at Wheelwright and Linda Setser at Prestonsburg. The girls' coach at Betsy Layne remains to be named.

Dr. J. V. Bolin resigned as principal of Betsy Layne High School to become the Eastern Kentucky graduate school adviser and instructor for Morehead State University. Russell Mont Frazier, assistant principal, succeeds him at Betsy Layne.

The $836 bid of Frank Little for the Skul building and grounds was accepted, and the board approved the new schedule of free and reduced-price school lunches.

The school calendar adopted at Saturday's meeting was formed with the assistance of the board of directors of the Floyd County Education Association. The 1974-75 school term will begin Monday, August 19 and is scheduled to end next May 21. Holidays include Labor Day, Sept. 2; Thanksgiving, Nov. 28; Christmas vacation, Dec. 19 through Dec. 31; New Year's, Jan. 1.

the Help-Line for some time and it has provided us with excellent emergency service by phone, but there is another dimension to the delivery of emergency services. We think there is a pattern in the way people respond to emotional crisis." "For example," he continued, "after a family quarrel or while anguishing over financial problems or in other difficult situations, people tend to get away from it all. They walk, or even more likely, drive for hours on end. They search for some immediate way to deal with their problem. The Walk-In unit is set up to meet these people's needs when they're the greatest, any time of any day."

Mr. Jackson emphasized the comprehensive quality of the Help Center. "While crisis intervention is an essential mandate, we are still a broad community service. Whatever we can do, whatever information needs to be found, the Help Center will do its best to serve the people in the community. This," Jackson noted, "includes everything from where to call for rubbish pickup to matters of life and death."

To provide this kind of extended service, the Help Center will be utilizing a professional staff of more than 30. David Eades, a psychologist of MCCC, will be the Help Center supervisor. Robert Castle, Estill Newsome and Lloyd Parker will be carrying a large share of the load as emergency specialists, while the SID unit staff will be composed of Steve Knowles, Thom Ormond, Can C. Collins, Tim Williams, Buletta Fitch and Donald L. Howard.

The Help Center is designed to be a valuable addition to the services provided by MCCC in the five-county district. Whatever the need, help is available by calling the toll free Help-Line number listed on the inside cover of your telephone book (1-800-422-1060) or by walking in at the new Mountain Comprehensive Care Center building—as Mr. Jackson says, "anytime of any day."

Opinions From Office Of Attorney General

Among opinions released last week from the office of Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock were the following:

In response to Ramon E. Black, of Richmond, the Attorney General's office has issued an opinion that the Housing Authority of Richmond is not legally required to notify the Louisville Courier-Journal when it calls a special meeting. The open meeting law states that local news media must be notified 24 hours prior to such meetings. However, the Attorney General's Office said that the Courier-Journal does not report regional news of sufficient intensity to qualify it as a local newspaper in the Richmond area.

Dr. Cornell C. Clarke, superintendent of Barren county schools, asks: All five members of the Barren County Board of Education were present—a motion to discontinue the services of the board attorney was made and duly seconded with the voting cast as follows: two for, one against, two abstained. The question is, Did the motion carry? The Attorney General's office says the motion did carry upon the basis that when a quorum of a governing body is present those members who are present and do not vote will be considered as acquiescing with the majority.

The Attorney General's office says in response to Judge R. R. Thomas, of Hardin county, that a child of a veteran who died while serving in peacetime does not qualify for education benefits. In order for the child of a serviceman to be qualified for such benefits the death of the serviceman would have to have resulted from service-connected disability incurred during wartime.

the $6.24 million Governor Ford divided among them before they heard that the money puts them on trial and they could lose it if they don't follow directions.

The counties themselves—through the fiscal courts and with approval of the Coal Producing County Development Committee—decide how their money will be spent.

It was the members of that committee who urged caution to local officials gathered in Frankfort to find out what their allotments were.

"This is the beginning of a new era," said Representative W. J. Reynolds, of Allen, chairman of the committee. "But, it could be a short era if you do not work closely with us. The fund committee, working with the Executive Department for Finance and Administration, has spent the last four months drawing up guidelines which must be followed because we must make this program work."

Reynolds warned that the committee must submit a progress report on the fund to a pre-legislative conference before the 1976 General Assembly meets. "What you do with the money returned today," said Reynolds, "will have a great effect on the next legislature when it decides if it will continue the fund or not."

"If it is not proved successful," added committee member Kelsey Friend, "this program may not be funded again. We are on trial and must not fail. We must not lose the benefits which mean so much to the future of our communities."

Anybody may recommend a project to the fiscal court of a coal-producing county. Although there is a catch-all provision which makes almost any type of project eligible, committee member Hoover Dawahare stressed that the fund was set up to promote industrial development and recreation.

Projects given highest priority include acquisition and (or) development of industrial sites; acquisition and (or) development of public recreation facilities; drainage control; land reclamation projects; construction of roads, bridges and railroad sidings; sewer and water projects in connection with the development of industrial sites and recreational facilities, and other construction and renovation projects of publicly owned facilities. Projects for which federal matching funds are available are encouraged.

The county fiscal courts take the first step in obtaining money for a project. That step—submitting a list of proposed projects to the Coal Producing County Development Fund Committee through the state Office for Local Governments—must be made by mid-September each year. On September 18, the committee will meet in Frankfort to review the projects.

If a proposal conforms with the regulations and if there is enough money, it will be approved and funded. The finance department and committee can, however, return any proposal to the fiscal court for reconsideration and can request that the fiscal court hold public hearings and present environmental impact statements on any project.

Any funds not spent by a county during one year can be used by that county later. The state finance department has invested the money at 9.45 to 10 per cent interest. The interest earned on county money not spent will be added to that county's share of the funds available the next year.

Fund committee members include Rep. Bill Reynolds, Allen; Rep. Hoover Dawahare, Whitesburg; Rep. Glenn Freeman, Cumberland; Rep. Joe Head, Providence; Sen. Kelsey Friend, Pikeville, and Sen. Kenneth Gibson, Madisonville.

The breakdown of money returned to the coal-producing counties by county, with the total severance tax yield from the county follows:

"My Dad lived to be 99," Jackson recalled, "and he dug all the coal the winter he died." Jackson's father, Robert, was also a Union soldier who took part in the Battle of Lookout Mountain, near Chattanooga. "If it wasn't for fellers like my Daddy, they wouldn't be no United States," Jackson remarked.

J. A. Jackson was a man of 30 before the first railroad came through Eastern Kentucky and he said of the days before the railway, "They wasn't nothin' much here then . . . mostly old log houses, and people kept a lot of cattle back then." He also said people and relationships between people were different in those days. "People help one another," he said, using the Elizabethan past tense of help. "They was for one another . . . everybody was good to one another and helped clear each other's fields. Yeah, they help one another."

A coal miner for 42 years, Jackson moved from Magoffin to Floyd county when he was 69 years old. In 1945 he was crushed beneath a slatefall in a mine at Weeksbury and he and his wife now subsist on his miner's pension, social security, and, more recently, black lung compensation.

Mr. Jackson likes his chewin' tobacco. There's rarely a minute that he's not working on a healthy quid and, his wife reports, "He'll get up four or five times a night to chew." Although he attributes his longevity to "livin' right and servin' the Lord," he concedes that his tobacco may have helped preserve him.

"One time when he was 'sarvice' huntin' " Mrs. Jackson related, " a copperhead bit him on the leg and I reckon that snake just rolled over and died! I guess he just had so much tobacco in him it killed the snake."

In reflecting over nearly a century of changing lifestyles in the mountains, Jackson said he believes things were better in the early days although he admits that it wasn't as easy to live then—still, people "help" one another.

Brown says the City Council's citations and codes are asking his company to do too much, too fast. He says only 156 of the 377 houses were occupied when Mountain Investment bought the town.

Now, he said, 245 are occupied, 98 sold to private owners and 147 rented.

Brown said the company has "been moving ahead conservatively on a sort of bootstrap operation, you might say, to repair houses, put them in shape and rent them. We're continuing to do this."

Mayor Ferguson and others counter with expressions of determination to keep Wheelwright worthy of its people.

IN THE ADS

Sometimes the advertisements in the public prints are a source of cheer. There is the one which came up from Texas-way this week which warned customers of a certain eatery that guest checks weren't accepted there. "We use the Keel System," the notice read. "You pay, or we keep you!"

Then there is this classic from our neighbor, The Salyersville Independent: "NOTICE. Anyone, especially strip miners or their agents trespassing on our land at the head of Dry Bread for any purposes other than coon or fox hunting, berry picking or general frolicking will be in 'big trouble.'"

THE LOST MAGIC

Now to get back to sounding the low note.

I am downright discouraged. After several years of poking around junk stores and ye olde curiosity shoppes, looking for some of the books which sent me into the ecstasies when I was a few years younger, I have found one such.

It's Mrs. Southworth's "Self-Raised," the sequel to "Ishmael," the first novel that, as they say, "swam into ken."

But where has all the magic gone? I swan, this young Ishmael is simply too, too good, too noble. I am stuck, a quarter of the way through the book, and as of inst. date am doubtful if I will ever finish it.

But I'm still looking for a copy of "Ishmael." If nothing more, it will serve to occupy a place in my bookshelf—like the flowers that you find pressed between long-forgotten pages, yet.

In an attempt to solve the traffic situation created when motorists attempt to enter from Dingus street onto US 23 at the intersection with the Mountain Parkway, the Council has temporarily provided one-way traffic for Dingus from Central Avenue to the highway. This, in effect, permits motorists to turn from US 23 onto Dingus but forestalls attempts to drive from that street onto the highway. If the one-way trial is successful, it will become permanent.

For the second time the Council failed to accept bids on the pickup truck it wants to buy. Only one bid was received and it was returned, unopened. Council held that more competitive bidding is needed, and re-advertising will be done.

Lance Gorman, of the U. S. Bureau of Highways, and Kirby Ison, of the Kentucky Department of Highways, presented the Council the results of a traffic survey made here, with recommendations. The Council is expected to act after a study of the recommendations.

The Planning Commission presented its proposed Community Improvement Program, which also will be the object of Council Study. (A review of the proposed program will be published later in The Times for convenience of the public. The one copy available may be seen at City Hall.)

Council adopted a resolution indicating its intention to comply with federal regulations required for flood insurance.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

The rhythms of Nature and the Cosmic Universe are full of beauty and music, and have the power to soothe and heal the human heart—if man tunes his heart in and listens. "The stars sing together," writes the Psalmist, "and the heavens declare the glory of God."

There is rhythm, harmony and order in all of creation, with not a single discordant note. It is said the planets of our solar system are tuned like a violin string and give forth sublime harmonies, which the soul in tune can hear.

The Cosmic Universe is sustained and kept in perfect running order by the 1st of harmony and rhythm. . . our world of Nature, there are countless rhythms of beauty and music to soothe and comfort man's soul. Let us consider some of the beautiful rhythms of nature. There is a never-ending rhythm of the summer leaves waving, dancing, to and fro. It is Nature's finest oratorio. As the poet says:

"Poplar trees upon the hill,
 With leaves a-quiver, never still,

Waving, dancing, to and fro,
 Nature's oratorio."

To sit quietly and watch the rhythm of the leaves dancing, nodding, soothes the spirit and puts man in tune with nature.

There is no more soothing rhythm than the gently falling rain. To lie quietly at night and listen to the patter of the rain on the roof is a relaxing rhythm. It induces rest and peaceful sleep. In the summer woods, the gently falling rain tap-dances on the leaves in beautiful rhythm.

No doubt you have said, "I can always sleep better when a gentle rain is falling." The poet says it better.

"It's a joy to press the pillow
 Of a cottage chamber bed
 And listen to the music
 Of the soft rain overhead."

There is rhythm in the migration of birds. To watch a flock of wild geese sailing north in spring in perfect V formation is one of the most inspiring rhythms of Nature.

Here we see the harmony and order of Nature. We see the wisdom of Nature in shaping a wedge-shaped flock, so as to cleave the air and move with less pressure. Too, we can hear the encouraging cries of the leader as he speaks to the members of the flock. Seldom do they break the rhythm of their flight as they keep steadily on to their destination.

Did you ever observe the rhythm of a field of corn in blossom? The long blades wave gently in the wind and there is sheer joy in the nuptials of the corn, as the tassels burst out to scatter the golden pollen. Some corn-growers chivarie the blossoming corn with violin solos, because they believe the music makes for a higher yield.

Did you ever observe closely the tassel of corn? One of the long fingers of the tassel always points toward the heavens, like an index finger pointing to the source of all good things.

The rhythm of a wind-song is one of the finest of Nature. The wind sings a quiet tune on listless summer days. It sings in the summer leaves; it whistles and sings through the leafless trees of winter. It sighs and sings soft solos through the tall and stately pines.

There is rhythm and beauty in the movement of animals. The running of a flock of deer has grace and beauty in every movement. The loping of a red fox across a field expresses grace and beauty. The chase of the hounds, with their tenor solos mingled with the basso-profundo of some aged hound makes a music to titillate the ears of the old foxhunter. The blowing of his ram's horn to call the hounds from the chase makes a music that reverberates from hill to hill.

The slow sailing of fleecy summer clouds across a sky of turquoise blue is a rhythm worth watching. The clouds march in perfect rhythm, like a flock of lambs grazing in a meadow.

Board Members Named Here At So. States Annual Meet

Perry Prater, of Hueysville, and Ballard Slone, of Blue River, were elected to the local Advisory Board of the Prestonsburg Farm & Home Store at the Southern States annual membership meeting held here July 19. More than 100 stockholder-members and their families attended the session.

Ballard Slone was named chairman of the board and Lloyd Wells, of Auxier, was named secretary.

Elected to the local Farm Home Advisory committee were Mrs. Ollie Wallen and Mrs. Edward Hatfield, both of Water Gap. Mrs. Junior Wells, of West Prestonsburg, was chosen as chairman of the committee and Mrs. Edward Hatfield was named secretary.

Ballard Slone was chosen as a delegate to represent the local membership at the Southern States Cooperative's 51st annual stockholders' meeting in Richmond, Va., November 13 and 14. Perry Prater was named alternate.

L. L. McClure of Huntington, W. Va., a regional staff representative of Southern States Cooperative, in reporting on the overall operations of the co-op for the fiscal year ended June 30, told the session that volume exceeded $245 million and that it would pay a 3.75 percent refund on patrons purchases for the year. He pointed out that a number of steps taken by the co-op during the past fiscal year "helped farmers in the five states that the organization operates in, from facing a catastrophic supply problem."

The report on local operation and services rendered to farmer members was given by Kenneth Meade, manager of Prestonsburg Farm & Home Store.

A special recognition ceremony for new board committee members, Farm Home Advisory board members as well as those from these groups who were retiring, was held. Door prizes were awarded and refreshments served.

If you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss. Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. If you still have hair on the top of your head, don't put it off until it's all off. It doesn't make sense for a man to let himself go bald, certainly not without seeing a National Hair and Scalp Consultant to see if we can help you.

Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. National's Hair consultant cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE If you are accepted for treatment, you will be given a written guarantee on a pro-rated basis from beginning to end.

Linda Marks as Fanny Brice and Roger Nelson as her gambler-husband, Nick Arnstein, in "Funny Girl," now showing at the Jenny Wiley Summer Theatre.

Music Theatre Begins Final 10th Anniversary Production

The Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre will open the final production of its Tenth Anniversary Season tonight (Wednesday). "Funny Girl," the musical Valentine to Fanny Brice, will continue the run beginning tonight through August 24, all performances beginning at 8:30 p.m. (CDT), Wednesday through Sunday.

Miss Sarah May, of Cleveland, Ohio, guest-director for "Funny Girl," comes to the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre with a varied and successful background in the theatrical world. She is currently the director of Youth Theatre and staff director for the Karamu Theatre in Cleveland.

Miss May says, "In order to stage the story of Fanny Brice and surround it with the glamorous era of the Ziegfeld Follies, one must do research to gain an understanding of the woman and the exciting times in which she lived." She hopes that her staging of this musical Valentine to Fanny Brice will touch and entertain audiences of all ages with a careful blend of nostalgia, humor and tenderness.

"Funny Girl" is characterized by great songs like the full of warmth and friendship "People", the humorously defiant "Don't Rain on My Parade," and the bluesy "Who Are You Now?". Numbers evoking the great Ziegfeld Follies production scenes, so good in themselves, so mocking of the old days revues, "His Love Makes Me Beautiful" and "Rat-A-Tat-Tat."

Attorney General's Opinion On Tenure Amendment

An attorney general's opinion deals with the effect of the amendment to KRS 161.740 (c) (Senate Bill 125) whereby a teacher's tenure was formerly effective only in one district. Now, as a result of the amendment, a teacher is allowed to maintain effective tenure status when moving from district to district within the state, following the optional probationary period.

ALL ABOUT VITAL STATISTICS... How to deal with them and work correctly with them was the main topic of discussion at the one-day regional Vital Statistics Seminar, held recently, at the Ashland TB Hospital, Ashland. Historic Grave in Greenup

By HELEN PRICE STACY

By late summer, trees make a canopy over a side road in Greenup county that leads to the burial ground of Lucy Virgin Downs, first white child of American parents born west of the Allegheny Mountains.

Lucy Virgin was born Sept. 17, 1769, near Beesontown, now Uniontown, Pa. Four years after the establishment of Greenup county in 1803, she and her family were residents of Oldtown in Greenup.

In June, 1845 during a family reunion in the county, Lucy described a visit by Gen. George Washington to the Pennsylvania home of her parents, Jeremiah and Lucy Virgin. The general, she said, had come to the area to survey a tract of land and visited with her father as well as in the home of a neighbor.

The surveyed tract became known as Washington's Bottom and several years later was under lease to Col. Israel Shreve of New Jersey. The colonel's son, Henry Shreve, figures in the naming of Shreveport, La.

Colonel Shreve in 1789 had commented that land in the Washington surveyed tract had not escalated greatly in value, for many people could not resist traveling on the Ohio to other locations.

The Virgin family had joined the early settlers in boating down the Ohio to Limestone (later Maysville). Lucy was 21 at the time, and two years later she and a brother Brice moved on to Cincinnati.

It was in Cincinnati on Sept. 20, 1800, that Lucy and John Downs were married, their license issued by Gen. Arthur St. Clair, governor of the Northwest Territory.

She was a resident of Greenup county by 1807 and lived in the Oldtown community until her death in 1847.

A Kentucky historical highway marker between Grayson in Carter county and Greenbo Lake State Resort Park gives a brief history of Lucy Virgin Downs. The marker was placed in accordance with terms in the will of Lucy's great granddaughter, Jennie Scott Osenton.

Visitors to the grave site could also include a visit to nearby Greenbo Lake and the state park area. The park offers a variety of recreation and outstanding scenery.

The approach from Grayson at the intersection of Ky. 7 and Interstate 64 leads past beautiful farmland and lush river bottoms. The Oldtown road is near one of the state's remaining covered bridges, not far from early iron furnaces and other historic sites.

College on Hunt for Old Photos For Its Historical Archives

Old pictures in your family photo album could become an important part of efforts under way at Alice Lloyd College to document and preserve the history of Appalachia for future generations. Photographs of the Central Appalachian region are being collected, copied and indexed to preserve the history of the region.

"One of the most pressing needs at the ALC Photographic Archives is for photographs that show mountain people 'doing things' 30, 40 and 50 years ago," says Don Anderson, staff photographer for the College's Appalachian Learning Laboratory.

"We are looking for pictures of people working on farms, logging, working on a barn-raising, quilting, working in or around a coal mine, and of children playing games or helping their parents."

Anderson is developing the archives while on leave from the University of Louisville where he is a photography instructor. He has to date collected about 3000 photos. Anderson promises that all photographs will be returned to the owner after they are photo-copied. He said he will give a copy of the photograph to the owner, at no charge, if the owner wishes.

"One specific type of picture that we have looked for but have not yet found is of a mountain wedding taken in the 1920's or 30's. We are also interested in finding old photographs that show the interior of homes and of people doing things—visiting with each other, swapping stories, or working inside their homes.

"Pictures of old buildings and homes that no longer exist also interest us. We are especially interested in locating photographs that show what Hindman, Whitesburg, Prestonsburg, Hazard, Wheelwright and Jenkins looked like years ago," said Anderson.

Persons interested in loaning photographs to the archives may contact Anderson at Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, Ky. 41844. Telephone: (606) 368-2101.

Attorney General of Kentucky HOME STUDY AND CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS

Advertisements for home study and correspondence courses leading to attractive and high-paying jobs may not live up to the consumer's expectations.

Because all home study and correspondence schools are not legitimate operations, certain precautions should be taken by those persons interested in following up advertisements or solicitations made by persons representing the schools.

If the school offers guaranteed placement in the area of your choice, the prospective student should immediately be wary of the school because such a claim is impossible to guarantee.

If you are interested in the training school, check with persons who are known to be in the same business or trade as offered by the school and who are also known to be reputable. If the salesperson of the school desires an immediate signature on a contract prior to such a check with reputable persons in the field, it may indicate that the school does not want any investigation of its activities.

Persons interested in the programs offered by home study and correspondence schools should write the National Home Study Council, 1601 18th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20009, to determine whether the school is accredited. Kentucky residents may write the Consumer Protection Division, Office of the Attorney General, Room 34, Capitol Building, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call the toll-free hotline 1-800-372-2960.

Co-Chairmen in Floyd
Of Campaign for Ford

Ford for U. S. Senate Headquarters announced this week that County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson and Juvenile Judge Richard E. Fitzpatrick have been named Ford's campaign co-chairmen in Floyd county.

In making the announcement state campaign co-chairman James E. Gray praised past efforts of both men on behalf of the Democratic party and emphasized that this was the initial appointment in a series of several that will eventually make up the entire Ford campaign organizational team in Floyd county.

"When completed, each county organizational team will be representative of all groups of people," Gray added.

Sign-Hanging
Tour Honors
Communities

Four members of the Ashland Chamber of Commerce came to Floyd county recently on a "Sign-Hanging Tour." Their visit was to present to Wheelwright and Weeksbury plaques in recognition of their winning runnerup awards in two categories of the recent contest sponsored by the Northeast Kentucky Rural Community Development Association.

"Whether it is just plain, old country fellowship, involving people in a bake sale or a community cleanup, people who belong to these clubs are pitching in and helping one another to make their community a better place in which to live," commented County Extension Agent John E. Sparks.

Linda Sue McCoy is the Extension development assistant and her primary role is to assist communities in establishing development clubs. Communities interested in such clubs are directed to the County Extension office.

Public Hearing Aug. 16 For Strip Mine Permit

Frankfort, Ky.—A public hearing has been scheduled Aug. 16 to review a Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection's denial of a strip-mining permit in the Red River drainage area.

Frederick-Kelly, Inc., of White Oak, requested the hearing after the department's Reclamation Division denied a permit application to strip-mine some 97 acres on the headwaters of Gilmore and Lacey Creeks, both of which drain into the Red River above the "wild river" section of the stream.

The order of denial, the third in the Red River watershed since June, was issued because "the proposed mining operation will adversely affect the Red River, a wild river."

The Frederick-Kelly hearing will be held at 1 p.m. in Room G-2 of the Capital Plaza Tower in Frankfort.

Pike Coal Man To Develop Big Holdings in Rowan County

By GEORGE WOLFFORD (In The Ashland Daily Independent) Morehead, Ky.—What does a Pike county coal operator do with the vast amounts of money he makes on the high price of fuel? One such man is using his income to dramatically purchase a large segment of Rowan county.

Until Saturday, Claude Canada was something of a mystery man around Morehead, known by only a few. Two days earlier, the Morehead News column, Publisher's Pen, put together some facts and rumors to ask who he was. Yesterday morning he made himself quickly known with his action at a land sale, buying 140 acres of suburban property for $186,000.

The property, which reportedly cost a trio of developers $56,500 a dozen years ago, is the sixth tract he has purchased. The other five were more quietly acquired, in the name of Canada Coal Co., since the last part of May.

All the other five tracts are in north-western Rowan, where hills begin to roll into Fleming. The total about 544 acres and according to deeds cost Canada $310,000. What's more, these farms in the Sharkey-Tar Flats section may be only the cornerstone of a super ranch which could reach 2,500 acres or more.

Who is Claude Canada? Certainly no Howard Hughes mystery man, for he travels freely and is just about as free to talk about his activity—except when he feels exposure might threaten his family or interfere with business.

Briefly, he was born in Pike county, struggled early in life at $5 a month wages, entered the mines and became a foreman by the time he was 17, then left to join the service in 1941. He settled in California, where he apparently prospered quietly but well, and returned to Pike county in 1969. "I opened up in the coal business with $11,000," he said. "Today I have about the second largest operation in the county—we put out about a half-million dollars worth of coal a day."

He would not admit or deny rumors printed in Publisher's Pen that he earns $90,000 a day and has a worth of $35 million, but expressed surprise it had been printed. But his approach to life, his free discussion of investments reveals Canada as a man comfortable dealing in high figures.

Recalling his heritage and that a great-grandfather, Deskins, was Pike county's first judge, he said he was also related through Smith and Phillips generations but credited his approach to business to his paternal side.

"I've always wanted to excel, to be first, or if I did anything, do it right," he noted, explaining why he was waiting to renovate some downtown Pikeville property. "I think it comes from my German-town Jewish background. We've always struggled to get ahead."

"I've always tried to upgrade business when I went in it, and I think the coal business improved," he said, citing wage and fringe increases. He comes to Ashland to buy "seven or eight Cadillacs each year" for use by his foremen and sees that they have suitable quarters, all in addition to salaries of $3,000-$3,500 a month.

What does he plan to do with his Rowan acreage? "I expect to benefit myself and the county here. Let me tell you how I got started here. I had never heard of this county, although my mother went to college here at Morehead, but I got a call one night at 9 o'clock and I had to make up my mind, and I came and in two minutes said, 'Let's go.'"

His basic plan is for the rumored ranch, and he already has started to keep stock there, but his major cattle investment is Charolais, and isn't yet moved in. "I have four calves in Canada, still in the hospital (where they've been inseminated)."

"We're already putting up a $250,000 barn (with Ed Mabry as constructor) and by the time I finish and furnish my home here, it will cost about a million."

Is the ranch a hobby, avocation, or write-off? "If it doesn't make money, I'll sell it." He described how he is able to plan use of heavy equipment he already owns to clear the land and develop the showcase he plans to use as a parttime home.

One of the community benefits of his location, he forecast, could be location of a veterinary medicine school at MSU. "I'd like to see the best one in the country right here."

Floyd 4-H'er Wins State Title

Anthony Moore, Allen Central 4-H Club member, won the senior championship in the state 4-H vegetable judging contest held last week at the U. K. Robinson Experiment Station. On his way to the championship he won top honors in both the disease and seed identification sections.

Carl E. Steele, Betsy Layne 4-H Club, was the third-place winner in the contest and placed tops in the vegetable judging contest.

Lance Blackburn was third in the insect identification section of the contest.

In the junior division Melvin May was second in vegetable judging, and Dwayne Moore was second in seed identification and third in insect identification.

The new state champion is the 16-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Budge Moore, of Garrett.

Other Floyd County members participating in the event included John Flanery, Tim Cooley, Lloyd Daniels, and Jeff Martin.

SID Seeks Sobering Effect On Drinkers in 5-County Area

Situation, Identification, Disposition. Cumbersome words but, starting this month, Mountain Comprehensive Care will be putting them together in a way that should be a clear advantage for the people of Johnson, Floyd, Magoffin, Pike, and Martin counties. Operating under the acronym, SID, the new service is designed to meet the special needs of alcoholics and substance abusers in the five-county district.

Located in the building just behind the old Prestonsburg General Hospital, the SID unit will have three basic functions: (1) To give assistance to those who desire help in sobering up; (2) to evaluate their immediate needs, and (3) if desired, to refer them to appropriate treatment.

James Klein, MCCC's co-ordinator of Alcohol-Drug services, said, "SID will be prepared to serve both men and women at a crucial time in their lives. Functioning as an 'entry point' to treatment, the unit will be a chance for alcoholics to gain sobriety in a relaxing, supportive atmosphere that is helpful in stimulating the desire for change that is within most abusers." He pointed out that while SID is not a medical facility and no prescriptions will be issued, a person needing medical evaluation or care will be assisted in getting it through community medical facilities.

SID will be staffed by full-time counselors and a unit manager. Tom Ormond, Don Howard, Tim Williams, Can Collins, and Steve Knowles will be working 10-hour shifts to keep the unit manned around the clock, seven days a week. They have all attended formal training programs such as the Kentucky School of Alcohol Studies as well as an educational series designed by MCCC. The counselors are quick to point out that SID experience is not an end in itself, but rather a beginning. Though people will not necessarily come to SID with the thought of pursuing treatment, statistics show that nearly half of the people leaving similar units enter treatment while the other half show a heightened awareness of the scope of their problems and become aware of treatment possibilities in the event they should desire help in the future.

The thrust of SID is a direct, uncomplicated service to those who find themselves in difficulty with alcohol or other drugs. Consistent with this approach, the entry procedure has been kept simple with a minimum of paper work. Steve Knowles, the unit's manager, notes that "Everything is streamlined in zero in on one question. Is substance abuse creating problems for

APPROVE SCHOOL TAX
 A three percent utilities tax to be used for the purpose of improving four rural schools was approved last month by Breckinridge county residents. The proposal was approved 1,468 to 870 in a voter turnout which was described by Breckinridge County Clerk Don Gedling as being heavier than that for the May primary election. The tax is expected to generate $60,000 a year and will be allocated for improvements at the Custom, Ben Johnson, McDaniels and Milner schools.

Why Letter Was Not Published by The Times
 The Lexington Herald last week published in its "Letters to the Editor" column a letter which was critical of the Highlands Regional Medical Center here. It was signed, as it appeared in The Herald, "Mrs. R. Johnson," and the writer's address was given as Toledo, Ohio.
 The letter published in The Herald stated that the same letter was being sent to The Floyd County Times.
 The Times has not published this letter, because the only signature on the letter received by us was "Mrs. Slone;" because the postmark did not show the address of the writer and the only address given, Toledo, O., does not sufficiently locate the writer.
 In short, the letter could have been written by anybody, anywhere. The Times will publish only letters fully signed, with complete address, offering us a means of identification and, if necessary, investigation.

Accepting a check for $70,020 from Gov. Wendell H. Ford are, from left, Grady Conley and Joe McCauley, representatives of the Big Sandy Area Development District which received appropriations for its new Integrated Grant Administration Program recently in Frankfort.

Gov. Wendell H. Ford recently presented a check of $70,020 to Joe McCauley and Grady Conley of the Big Sandy Area Development District (ADD).
 The funds represented the first quarter's Integrated Grant Administration (IGA) Program allotments to the Districts. This amount is only 35 per cent of the total the districts are to receive. The additional funds will be presented during the remaining three quarters of the fiscal year which began July 1.
 The allotments consist of matching state and federal funds. According to Ford, "To qualify for the funds the state must match at least 35 per cent of the federal funds . . . however, the federal funds were less than expected and as a result the state made a larger contribution than anticipated to maintain or exceed the present level of funding."
 The Big Sandy district is one of 15 in Kentucky. The districts are made up of county and local governments in the same geographical areas. The first quarter's allotments to all 15 districts totaled $1.2 million.
 Of the $70,020 received by Big Sandy ADD, $18,625 were state appropriations. Ford pointed out to the various representatives at a Frankfort conference that they were "putting money into various regional development and creating a new era of cooperation."
 "Your efforts prove that people can work together to do a job," he said. "The ADD districts are performing a valuable service." Ford indicated a desire for continuous state support to the districts.
 The federal funds were applied for through the IGA Program. Under this program the 15 districts apply to the state for funds needed to support their activities. The state in turn integrates these requests into a single grant application.
 Kentucky's General Fund for the fiscal year ending June 30 exceeded estimates by $28.9 million. Total receipts into the fund reached a new record of $818,908,696.

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

The most sought after game animal in Kentucky is the squirrel. During the 1972-73 hunting season, 115,000 went after the bushytails and they brought home 1,725,000 of them.

In this large group of squirrel hunters there are, unfortunately, more unsuccessful hunters, in relation to harvest, than there are successful ones. The difference lies not so much in marksmanship ability as it does in the ability to find squirrels. The successful hunter must know where and how to hunt the squirrels at a given time of year.

For instance, during the earliest part of the season many mast trees don't have ripened fruits which help to concentrate squirrels. Food is abundant and squirrels may be found feeding almost everywhere, but they're hard to find because of the lack of concentration and heavy foliage.

Many hunters are dissatisfied with the fruits of their effort during this time and give up, leaving the later, "easier" hunting, when the mast trees are ripe and the leaves have fallen, to the "pros" who then harvest limits almost every trip out.

This need not happen to early-season hunters, though, if they'll pick up on a few "ricks" that have been proved through the years to be effective in both early and late season hunting.

First, wear soft-soled shoes and clothing that makes a minimum of noise when rubbed against brush. Do this even in August. Then, walk very slowly and stop often to listen for noises of squirrels feeding and-or moving about. You'll almost always hear a squirrel (if you listen!) before you'll see it.

During dry periods, wading a small stream is a sure way of getting close to squirrels as they move and feed along the streambank in easy shooting distance.

Later in the season, the rifle hunter can have a hey-day by locating himself in a wooded area while squirrels are concentrated. Often a hunter can take a limit from a single stand if he's chosen his area carefully.

The kind of gun to use? Well, that's largely a matter of individual preference. Some hunters like a scattergun while others choose a rifle with iron or even telescopic sights. Those who prefer .22 caliber rifles, regardless of their choice of sights, generally have them zeroed in at 50 yards.

Those who use a shotgun with a modified or full choke tube will be satisfied with either No. 5 or No. 6 shot in a high brass hull.

There are three seasons this year for hunting squirrels and the first opens August 17 and continues through December 6. The season then will be closed for five days and reopen December 12 to continue through December 31.

The daily limit is six and there's a possession limit of 12 after two or more days of hunting. The possession limit, however may not be held while in the field.

The important thing to remember is this: "Learn the squirrels' habits so you can find them in the early part of the season as well as the last; walk softly, listen carefully, and try to get in some target practice before you go.

Another thing—if you can't use a limit, don't take them. Save some for the next time or the next fellow.

If you can't teach your cows to stay out of their drinking water, fence them out. That advice comes from extension beef cattle specialists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Court Upholds Board's Right To Be Wrong

State and federal courts are gradually issuing guidelines to be followed by school district employers to insure proper dismissal of those who are not suitable, particularly during the probationary period.

In Illinois recently the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit (Shah vs. Moline School District 40) responded to the situation by saying "We have recognized that school boards will sometimes be in error in their determinations. Such latitude is necessary because of the school board's responsibility to the students, and to the community from which the board is elected, to select the people with whom it wants the minors of the community to associate as teachers."

A Matter of Grave Concern:
Emergency Medical Care System

By PAUL S. STARK
(Administrator, Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, Ky.)

The public and health professionals have increasingly come to realize the need for drastic changes in our system of emergency medical care. For a large segment of the population, it is this portion of health care that consists of their total medical care. For others, emergency medical care is that which means the difference between life and death. For all segments, a proper system of emergency medical care should be developed to save lives, restore health, and assure the public that they will be taken care of quickly and efficiently when they require emergency medical care.

Last year Congress appropriated millions of dollars for the improvement of emergency medical care in the United States. Immediately activity began to develop to acquire these funds. Hasty meetings were called, meaningless statistics and information were gathered, and the public was led to believe a completely new system of emergency medical care was just on the horizon. Months later, there appears to be little that has taken place to improve the quality or quantity of emergency medical care.

Numerous reasons could be cited for the lack of progress in implementing an improved emergency medical care system. To promote public progress, public interest must always be placed first. The lure of large federal grants attracted many interested parties to the hastily called public meetings to discuss local emergency medical care. However, these special interest groups with their conflicting goals were quite unable to concentrate on a total picture of public concern. Thus, the early planning stages for the emergency medical system has been bogged down as vested interested groups compete for funds and power. When public welfare is placed first, amply supported by the proper technical expertise, an emergency medical system may begin to emerge.

As a start, may I suggest four major areas on which to concentrate our efforts to build and improve an emergency medical care system:

1. Communications: A network tying area health care providers and ambulance services together is a must. This would assist in seeing patients are taken to the nearest and most suitable health facility. No time need be wasted traveling from hospital to hospital shopping for available care. First aid care could be monitored by qualified staff through the communications system. A central information center would be able to direct ambulances to the right facility, and alert that facility to be ready for reception of the patient. The patient could receive emergency medical care during transit, monitored by a health professional at the central center.

2. Properly Equipped Ambulances: Patients would be transferred from the pick-up area to the proper institution in a well-equipped vehicle suitable for providing emergency medical care on the spot and in transit. Supervision of this care could be monitored by a health professional utilizing the communications system. Ambulances could be placed geographically, rather than centrally, so as to make them conveniently available to all areas, saving valuable time in reaching the patient in need. A lost minute may mean a lost life in emergency medical care.

3. A Coordination of Emergency Room Equipment by Hospitals and a Determination of the Proper Level of Care Available at Each Institution: Pooling equipment and staff could only mean upgrading what is presently available in our area. All hospitals can handle certain kinds of emergencies. Some are more capable than others to handle the more complicated procedures. Presently it is a matter of chance in choosing the proper institution as no one is quite sure as to the level of care available in the institutions. Once a well-defined level of care system is determined, procedures for transfers among the various components of the system would serve to save time and insure the patient would receive the best care possible. Lack of knowledge as to what is available in an institution can mean death to the severely injured person.

4. An Area-Wide Physician Agreement on Providing Emergency Medical Care: All hospitals provide emergency medical care, but the quality and the quantity of emergency care depends on the availability and the ability of physicians. Thus, good vehicles, modern emergency equipment, communications systems, and pre-determined hospital level of care are ineffective as patients will migrate to the institution with the best reputation to handle emergency medical care. When this happens, care diminishes in quantity and quality as there is a limit as to what one hospital can provide. Therefore, to make the most of an emergency medical care system, an area-wide physician agreement on providing emergency medical care coverage is essential.

How can we achieve these basic elements of an effective emergency medical care system? I would propose the following:

A. A Task Force of Interested Health Care Providers Be Formed. This task force would consist of physicians and hospital administrators as these are the people who can make such a system. Without their cooperation, no system can be successful. A representative of the county medical society (or societies) would certainly be a welcome member of this committee. This task force could, and should, seek the opinions of the public as to what it would like to see in its emergency medical care system. This task force, utilizing its professional expertise and the opinion of the general public, could then begin to develop a draft plan for an emergency medical system. Once developed, the plan could be publicly discussed for comments and criticisms before proceeding to the implementation stage. A task force of this composition is vital as these people are the only ones who know what is technically and administratively feasible, and have the combined skill to successfully see such a system implemented.

B. Government Sponsored Health Planners Should Become the Information Gatherers for the Task Force. Too often planners develop plans that end up in a report that neither the public nor the health providers receive or have influence in their development. Thus, the implementation process either never occurs or is a piece meal operation which retards development of a complete system. This is not to criticize the role of the health planner, but we must realize that the health planners utilize the health planners to gather statistics, information, and research. This way, the health experts would have the advantage of information provided by the planners to assist them in conceptualizing a health system. A by-product of this method, I believe, would be health planners would find their work less frustrating and more rewarding. As we know, a system developed by the persons in charge of implementing it has a far greater possibility of success than one developed by another party. Needless to say, the task force would have to bear public criticism and pressure for failure, rather than the health planners who are not in the position to implement their plans anyway.

C. Task Force Present the Plan to the Public for its Criticism and Comments: Although this has been mentioned previously, I reiterate that it is vital for the public to have its input in the development of its emergency medical care system. Professional and technical people must develop the system, but the system should meet the needs and desires of the public. Too often, professionals and technicians produce systems which are suitable for themselves, but not acceptable to the public. The opposite approach of letting the public plan a system for the professionals and technicians is just as dangerous. Therefore, it seems logical that the technicians and professionals ought to have the opportunity to develop a system, and the public must have the right to see that the system is geared towards public needs and desires.

Finally, let us remember that we can achieve anything we can mentally conceive. Good health care is available locally, but we all must work together to prove it.

Bureau Suggests Changes Made In Parking Here Following Study

The Kentucky Bureau of Highways has submitted to the City Council eight specific recommendations as a substantial part of the solution of Prestonsburg's traffic problems.

The recommendations were made after a study of congestion existing on state-maintained streets here and include improvement suggestions for several streets which are not state-maintained.

The report said that the main causes of traffic congestion are insufficient street widths left because of parking and space limitations. "Sufficient parking space is probably present in the downtown area, but the use of that parking space must be altered to accommodate both shoppers and those people who must park all day," the Bureau said.

It added that several parking spaces should be removed to allow the streets to carry the necessary traffic volume. Specific recommendations included these:

1. In order to provide two driving lanes and thus increase the capacity of Court Street, parking should be removed on the north side between College Lane and First Street. This will result in a loss of 29 parking stalls, but will allow better traffic operations at several key intersections.

2. Mark Court Street for right-and-left turn "only" movements at First Street. At this intersection, remove three parking stalls to facilitate turning movements. Improve the radii for right turns at Arnold Avenue and at First Street if possible.

3. Channelize the westbound approach of Court Street at Lake Drive into two lanes—one for "left turn only," the other for straight and right turn movements.

4. Remove five parking stalls on First Street between Graham and Ford Streets to increase capacity.

5. Prohibit parking on Third Avenue to provide sufficient width for two-way traffic and turning movements (remove six stalls).

6. The parking lot located south of Court Street between First and South Arnold Streets should have parking meters with a maximum allowed time of two hours, instead of permissive all-day parking. This will encourage a more rapid turnover and will discourage all-day parkers from using these spaces. This will provide these spaces for shoppers, and will result in more utilization of the city lot at Court and Third Streets by long-term parkers. Actually, enough parking spaces exist in the downtown area to accommodate the normal demand, but the city lot at Court and Third Streets has not been utilized to its capacity.

7. The entrance to the city parking lot on Court Street is located too close to the intersection with Lake Drive. It is recommended that this entrance be relocated to the east a sufficient distance to eliminate congestion.

8. At the intersection of Lake Drive and Court Street, provide WALK and DON'T WALK pedestrian indications.

Floyd County Health Notes

A nurse from the Floyd County Health Department will conduct an outpost clinic Aug. 12 in the basement of the Methodist Church at Wayland. Clinic hours are from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. All persons in the Wayland area are welcome to attend this clinic for the following free services: TB skin tests, immunizations, blood pressures, diabetes screening and hemoglobin tests.

FREE HOME EYE TEST

An eye test kit which enables parents to check the vision of their preschoolers at home is now available from the Kentucky Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Simple instructions prepare the parent to give the child the standard "Snellen Symbol E Chart" vision test. The test will show if a child has a vision defect, but, the Society emphasized, it in no way replaces a professional eye examination.

The home eye test kit includes a scale version of the E chart, directions for training the child to take the test, for giving the test to the child and for interpreting test results. A report form to be filled out and returned to the Society is included.

A free copy of the home eye test kit can be obtained by picking one up at the Floyd County Health Department or by writing: Home Eye Test, Kentucky Society for the Prevention of Blindness, 1102 Heyburn Building, Louisville, Kentucky 40202.

Help Preserve Mountain History

Luther Frazier (foreground), son of Mr. and Mrs. John Frazier, of McDowell, interviews Irvin Pratt, of Pinetop, Knott county, for Alice Lloyd College's Appalachian Oral History Project. Pratt used to carry mail by horseback between Pippa Passes and Upper Carr.

Pippa Passes, Ky.—Luther Frazier, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Frazier, of McDowell, is seeking the recollections of long-time mountain residents for use in a social history of Central Appalachia being prepared for publication at Alice Lloyd College. The book is tentatively titled, "Our Appalachia: An Oral History."

Joanie Dye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Dye, of East McDowell, is working in the college's Appalachian Oral History Project.

Frazier has been concentrating on historical topics which are needed to "round out" sections of the book, says Mike Mullins, Oral History Project director. Topics he is working on include out-migration, and vocations which were once prevalent in the region such as blacksmithing and gun smithing.

"He is an outstanding interviewer," said Mullins. Luther is a May graduate of Alice Lloyd College and will enter the University of Kentucky this fall to major in pre-pharmacy.

Miss Dye, a May graduate of McDowell High School, will attend ALC this fall with the help of a scholarship from the Drift Woman's Club. She plans to enter the College's new Secretarial-Office Management Program.

"Joanie has the important job of taking student-conducted tape-recorded interviews of long-time mountain residents and putting them on paper," said Mullins. "This is a meticulous and exacting work. It is done because the interviews have to be written down so they can be used by historians and other scholars interested in the history of Appalachia," he said.

The Oral History Project makes extensive use of students, most of whom are employed part time during the academic year and full time in the summer. Students do most of the actual interviews. They also transcribe and edit the tapes for publication.

"Oral History Project student interviewers are looking for mountain philosophers—people who enjoy talking about their life, their work and their concerns for the future of Appalachia," said Mullins.

Some of the material obtained by students will be included in the history of Central Appalachia which is being edited by William Weinberg, director of ALC's Appalachian Learning Laboratory, and Laurel Anderson, a former reporter for The Louisville Times.

"Specifically, we are looking for people who left their farms and hollows in the Twenties and Thirties and went to coal towns to find work," Miss Anderson said.

"We would like to talk to coal miners and their wives who had to make this move in order to survive, and we are interested in knowing how they adjusted to life in the coal town, what they missed about their home in the country, and whether they think it was a good move. We are also interested in talking to people who moved not to work in the mines, but to run a business, such as a grocery or general merchandise store, that depended on the income generated by the coal companies," she said. "Blacks and immigrants from foreign countries were also moving to the coal towns at this time and we're interested in talking with them, too, about the conditions they found, how they adjusted, and whether they feel it was a good move."

"Because of the job shortage in Central Appalachia in recent years people have had to make a choice between going on welfare or leaving their home and going to a big city in order to find work. We are very interested in talking to people who chose either welfare or out-migration," said Miss Anderson.

Persons who would like to be interviewed by students working in the ALC Oral History Project should contact Mullins at Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, Ky., 41844. Telephone: (606) 368-2101.

D.A.V. AUXILIARY MEETS AT GARRETT

The Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary Unit 128, met Friday, at Garrett, with the Unit Commander, Grace Hicks, presiding. After the meeting was called to order and the minutes were read, sickness and distress was discussed. The treasurer's report was given by Adjutant-Treasurer Florida Tackett. Much was talked about on ways and means. Plans are being made to buy Christmas gifts for the Veterans Hospital. It is very important that all unit officers be present at the next meeting, which will be August 16.

One new member, Waneta Newsome, was received. The closing prayer was read by Chaplain Emodel Boyd, and dessert and coffee was enjoyed by the unit and chapter.

Veterans or veterans wives of any war who would like to become members of Chapter 128 should contact any member of the chapter or unit.
