

Two Named Auxier Co. Receivers Princess Operation Remains in Doubt; 5 Workers Jailed

Co-receivers were named Friday by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley for the Princess Manufacturing Company, and their report to Judge Conley on the financial status of the firm 30 days hence will go far toward determining its future operation.

Named receivers were Stefan Magura, who was supervisor of the garment manufacturing business when it was closed in June, and John G. Heinze, vice-president of The Bank Josephine, which has given the plant strong financial support since its founding.

An inventory will probably be the first work of the receivers. After that, a production foreman of the ability of Michael Magura, who is now physically disabled, will be sought.

The plant has sizeable contracts, but is not known at this time if it can be operated at a profit sufficient to meet its obligations.

On the same day the co-receivers were named a suit was filed by the Londontown Corp., Baltimore, Md., seeking an order of delivery for materials at the plant which are valued at approximately $84,000. Two earlier suits of the same nature had been filed.

One of these, in which National Apparel, Inc., of New York, was granted a court order to remove its raw materials from the Auxier plant, resulted in the arrest last Thursday of five Princess employees.

The company's employees in June filed suit, claiming a lien against the plant inventory for back wages and other amounts due them. When Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and deputies appeared at the plant with National Apparel representatives to remove the materials under the court order, employees protested and allegedly barred entrance.

Jailed were Pat Stambaugh, Wilma Jo Meeks, Carol Lafferty, Evelyn Blair and Rosella Gamboe. They were released Friday under $300 bond each.

National Apparel posted bond to cover the lien held by the employees, it was said.

Revenue Sharing Ups Bldg. Fund to $65,254

Slightly more than half of the $102,449 in revenue sharing funds received by Prestonsburg during the last fiscal year and the $3,236 interest it earned has been allocated to the municipal building fund, City Treasurer Jeanette McCauley's report for the period, July 1, 1973 to June 30, 1974, shows.

This and most other allocations of revenue sharing funds were made by the "old" City Council. The municipal building funds thus available have been invested in certificates of deposit and are bearing interest against the time of their use. The building fund from revenue sharing now stands at $65,254.

Prestonsburg spent or allocated all its revenue sharing funds. During the same period the town of Wayland received $5,996 and spent $4,673. This new balance of $1323 and a balance of $4914 at June 30 last year leaves a total of $6,237 unexpended by the town.

Prestonsburg expenditures and allocations of revenue funds include these:
Public Safety—police car, $3,240; balance on fire truck, $14,605; monitors, $384.

Environmental Protection—Garbage packer, $13,838; covering garbage dump, $1,985; summer cleanup program, $6,069.

Streets and Public Works—$4,650 (the $2,238 spent for concrete forms was the only item budgeted by the Council which took office last January).

Parks and Recreation—Playground equipment, $891; balance on swimming pool fencing, $551; blacktopping on tennis courts and camp area work, $2,053; concrete picnic tables, $2,300.

Financial administration—revenue sharing seminar and safe file for treasurer's office, $714.

Wayland spent $3,233 for public safety, $1,000 multi-purpose and general government, and $440 for recreation.

This Town . . . That World

There are sounds of fall in the air, these summer evenings. Generally speaking, they soothe the jangled ganglia. But, tell me, did you ever have a lovesick katydid roost outside your window and devote his energies to calling you lady-love by dragging his wing up his shin in a non-stop performance? The darkening shadows, the smells and sounds of autumn are great—only this one grates . . . going and coming.

The death of our friend, Joe Creason, may have grieved more Kentuckians than the passing of any President.

This man Creason was a great guy. There wasn't any pretense about the man. He was just plain Joe, apparently free of the crippling prejudices and animosities that affect smaller people.

Joe Creason was one of the more fortunate newspapermen. It wasn't his job to write on emotionally controversial subjects or to delve into the personal and official peccadillos of individuals.

Joe didn't even have to do these "in depth" bits of reporting. But what he wrote went deeper—to warm the heart, to tickle the fancy, to spread a smile on grim lips and make just about all of us who read him decide it all is worthwhile, after all.

IT'S THE LAW

The Texas Motorist has an article by Art Frank which interested his readers and also interested me to the point of excerpting some of what he wrote. He wrote of laws enacted when first the horseless carriage that is now full of horsepower came onto the scene. Take his word for it:

In Tacoma, Washington, there is a law that clearly states anyone coming into that city by car, who intends to: "rob a bank, or injure or murder someone, must first register with the local police." To

Bride of 3 Weeks Motorcycle Victim

Seventeen-year-old Debra Lynn Carver Keller died Sunday at Medical University Hospital in Charleston, S. C. of head injuries sustained in a motorcycle-truck collision there on the preceding Friday.

According to information given The Times, Mrs. Keller and her husband, Bruce, were riding a motorcycle when a truck cut in front of them. In the ensuing collision, Mrs. Keller was thrown from the motorcycle, her head hitting a tree.

A 1974 graduate of Prestonsburg High School, Mrs. Keller and her husband were married here three weeks ago. She was a daughter of Daniel and Betty Honeycutt Carver, of the Auxier road.

Survivors other than her husband and parents, include a brother, Danny L. Carver, of Deland, Fla., and the maternal grandparents, Hansford and Mabel Dotson Honeycutt, of the Auxier Road.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Highland Avenue Free Will Baptist Church by the Rev. Clifford Austin. Burial was made in Highland Memorial Park cemetery at Paintsville under direction of the Floyd Funeral Home.

Site Acquisition Held Next Step Toward Center

Talk by the Floyd County Recreation Board of plans for a major recreation center near Allen may be nearing the end of the talking stage, County Judge Henry Stumbo indicated here Monday.

Judge Stumbo said the fiscal court will be asked at its next meeting to name a committee with authority to negotiate on behalf of the county toward acquisition of land for the center.

The proposed site, which includes the Beaver Valley Golf and Country Club course across Beaver Creek from KY 80, outside Allen, is owned by the National Mines Corporation. Its holdings, including hillside acreage overlooking the golf course, total 30 acres or more.

Action by the court follows two developments:

Sheriff Makes Rum Raid Here, Impounds Auto

Ashland Joseph was arrested here Friday night after a liquor raid by county law officers had uncovered 47 pints of whiskey and vodka and resulted in the confiscation of an automobile.

The liquor was found in a car parked at the home of Dayton Joseph on Highland Avenue. At the time of the raid, an unidentified man was said to have run from the car, a 1962 Ford Fairlane registered in the name of Jim Adkins. Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis and Deputy Sheriffs Green Stone, Doug Lewis, John D. Martin, Linzie Hunt, Sherman Williams, and Ray Reynolds charged Joseph with possession of alcoholic beverages for purposes of sale.

Marvin Neeley, of Salt Lick, near Hueysville, who has been wanted by authorities on charges of assault and battery, robbery and striking with intent to kill in connection with the severe beating and robbery three weeks ago of Grover Shepherd, of Salt Lick, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Green Stone Saturday on an additional charge of shooting and wounding.

The later charge came as the result of an incident on Salt Lick, Thursday, in which Neeley allegedly shot his younger brother, Russell, after an argument concerning an automobile. Pellets from a shotgun blast struck the younger Neeley in the hand and shoe.

Sheriff Lewis said Monday extradition papers have been forwarded him calling for Marvin Neeley's return to Ohio to face a charge of aggravated assault on a police officer. He said Ohio authorities will be notified to come here for Neeley and that Floyd grand jury indictments will be awaiting the prisoner upon his release.

Bull Cr. Group Sues For "Strip" Damages

Nine married couples and a widower, all residents of the left fork of Bull Creek, filed Tuesday in circuit court here a suit for $100,000 damages against strip-mine operators who, they claim, have damaged their homes and lands and caused flooding of streams.

Plaintiffs also ask for a permanent injunction forbidding defendants from further actions which will fill up the left fork of Bull Creek and requiring them to dredge and clear the streams and restore them to their original condition.

Named as defendants are Hobert Potter and Walter P. Walters, doing business as the Potter and Walters Coal Co., and their successor, the Kentucky Coal Company.

Plaintiffs are Kermit Leon and Sharon Kay Hall, Forrest and Linda Porter, Bill and Alpha DeRossett, Jerry and Judy Watson, Arthur and Fanny Gray, Herman and Jessie Sue Gray, Howard and Betty Castle, Charles E. and Brenda T. Gray, Roland and Emma Lou Gray, and Green Gray, widower. Each couple and Green Gray ask $10,000 damages.

The petition alleges:

"During the years 1971, 1972 and 1973, and continuing to the present time, defendants conducted a strip mining operation in the mountains between Bucks Branch and the left fork of Bull Creek and the branches or smaller streams which drain into it. . . Defendants in the prosecution of their mining operation, and by and through their employees, agents, servants and assigns, were so careless and negligent that they completely destroyed the natural terrain and altered the topography, removing natural top soil and vegetation to the extent that the natural watershed which existed at the head of the left fork of Bull Creek was destroyed, causing the area to be susceptible to flash floods and polluting the streams with sand, silt, coal, rock, and other debris so that they filled with the same and are now subject to constant and continual overflow.

"As a result of the negligence and continuing negligence of the defendants, the left fork of Bull Creek has overflowed during the time defendants were prosecuting their operation on different occasions and has left large deposits of sand, silt, rock, coal and other debris on the lands of the plaintiffs, thereby rendering their crop lands unillable and washing away their gardens, washing out the road and their driveways, causing their homes to rot and decay prematurely from excess moisture, and generally lowering the value of real estate in the area. The acts of the defendants were wanton, willful and malicious, and were done with total and complete disregard for the rights of the plaintiffs. . ."

Massive Roof-Fall Decapitates Mullins

Funeral rites for Tillman Mullins, 36, of Price, who was decapitated Monday of last week by a massive roof-fall in the No. 1 mine of the Little & Adkins Mining Co. at Price, were conducted last Thursday from the Mullins residence.

Mr. Mullins, who was a scoop operator, was caught beneath a slab of roof which was 17 inches thick, 18 inches wide and 36 feet in length, Willard Stanley, head of the Martin office, Kentucky Bureau of Mines, said. The tragedy occurred at 3:45 p.m., and Mullins' body was not recovered till two hours later.

Eight of the 17 employed by the mine were working at the time of the accident.

A native of Bevensville, the victim was a son of Milton and Pearl Hatfield Mullins. Other survivors include his widow, Mrs. Sheila Mullins, and one son, Tillman, Jr., both of Price; three brothers and six sisters, Woodrow and

Tram Man Who Caught Paige Says Satchel Was Greatest

There's not a person on Camp Branch, or anywhere else, for that matter, who likes baseball any more than Bruce Johnson. He'll not miss a Cincinnati Reds game on television or radio if he can help it, and just the other night he dreamed he went to Riverfront Stadium to see the Reds play. "I can even remember crossing the bridge into Cincinnati," he said.

And when Mr. Bruce, as neighbors up and down the winding creek near Tram call him, discusses Cincinnati's pitching woes he speaks with considerably more authority than most baseball enthusiasts. Because he used to play some ball himself and for years he played catcher for one of the greatest pitchers in baseball history—"Satchel" Paige.

Most people even vaguely familiar with baseball history remember LeRoy Robert "Satchel" Paige as the legendary black pitcher most generally mentioned in connection with the Birmingham (Ala.) Black Barons of the old Negro National League. In 1933 Paige pitched 42 games, winning 31 and losing 4 and at one time he had a winning streak of 21 consecutive games and 62 scoreless innings.

MR. JOHNSON

By the time Paige was inducted into the major leagues as the seventh black player ever to don a major league uniform, he was already in his late 40's and in 1952, as a member of the St. Louis Browns, was named to the American League All-Star team.

But 81-year-old Bruce Johnson remembers Satchel as a teenager playing sandlot ball in and around Decatur, Alabama where Johnson was born and grew up.

"Satchel would come up with a team from Mobile to play against us," Johnson said, "but he was so good we started paying him to pitch for us." Johnson said the team would pay Satchel five dollars a game, and he added, "As long as Satchel pitched, we never lost a game."

"He was the best there was," said Johnson, "and he was just learnin' then." Johnson said Paige would throw a variety of balls but mainly "He threw them hard ones." It was the fast ball that brought Satchel his greatest success, even in the major leagues when he had long passed his prime. Referring to a special "hesitation pitch" for which Paige was well known, Johnson said, "He would sort of fake hitters out. He wouldn't let nobody see when he was gonna throw." He added, "there just wasn't nobody could hit him."

Johnson told the story of the time he and his four brothers, all members of the same team, were supposed to play a ball game 30 miles away but at the same time were obligated to work with their father gathering watermelons. "We'd travel to the games in an old wagon drawn by two

First Landfill Operation Near, Despite Delays

County Judge Henry Stumbo has been hoping to open the landfill on Turkey Creek by Sept. 1 as the initial phase of what is conceived as a countywide solid waste disposal program, but now he isn't so optimistic.

Expected soil test reports haven't arrived, and they're required—although Judge Stumbo, exasperated by a series of delays, has threatened to put the site into operation without them.

In any event, the Turkey Creek landfill can be expected to be in use soon. At first, with only one such landfill in operation, waste materials will be hauled by independent haulers and county machinery will cover the deposits.

Later, when all four proposed sites are operating, one in each magisterial district, the work of collecting and hauling waste materials will be let to contract, and fees to persons and firms served will be established.

A landfill site on the Homer D. Neeley, Jr. property on Abbott Creek is under consideration for Magisterial District 1 use, and reports on soil tests, environment study and the like are awaited.

An 18-acre site for Magisterial District 4 is located between Mare Creek and Betsy Layne and has been given consideration. But Judge Stumbo said this site is so ideal for an industry that it would not seem practical to use it for a landfill.

13 DIE IN PRISON FIRE

MADRID—At least 12 prisoners and one prison officer were killed in a fire and explosion in a prison 16 miles from Madrid yesterday, prison sources said. They said the explosion followed a fire that broke out in the prison's carpenter shop where the men who died were believed to have been working.

CONSERVATION TIP

During the summer, it's usually a good idea to schedule heat and moisture-producing activities such as dish-washing, clothes washing and drying, cooking, and operating a self-cleaning oven for early morning or late evening hours. Unvented dryers, uncovered boiling pots, unnecessary use of lights and appliances, all increase the temperature and so the cost of running your air conditioner.

American Veterans Emphasize Opinion of Search and Closure

An article in last week's issue of the Floyd County Times, stated that the clubs in their withdrawal of permission for the Sheriff to enter their clubs without a warrant, criticized Harold Stumbo, Commonwealth Attorney.

We believe the general public should be informed of the activities of Harold Stumbo and of the Sheriff in their guise of law enforcements. A few weeks ago on Saturday night as the Amvets Club was having a dance, the law enforcement officers were admitted to the club for inspection. The said club was operating according to law and according to instructions and agreement with Mr. Stumbo.

The Commonwealth Attorney, together with the Sheriff and eight Deputies, entered the club, all flourishing big clubs or nightsticks, searched the premises, demanded all veterans and the band to vacate the premises, all without any legal right or without finding any law violation.

ENERGY CONSERVATION TIP

An oven needs only about 10 minutes or less of preheating to reach any pre-set temperature. The moment it's ready, put your dinner into the oven. You don't have to preheat an oven for broiling or roasting. Only preheat your oven for foods that cook in less than one hour. Foods requiring longer cooking may be placed in a cold oven.

You should thaw most frozen foods at room temperature before cooking. Putting a frozen roast directly into the oven requires an estimated 2-3 more cooking time.

Floyd County Health Notes

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH
(Health Educator)

A public health nurse from the Floyd County Health Department will hold a free pap smear clinic next Wednesday at Ethel Osborne's store at Bypro, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The health department reminds all women that they should have at least one pap smear a year.

FREE SERVICES OFFERED

Monday, August 26, a health nurse from the Floyd County Health Department will be at the Mud Creek Clinic in Mink Branch from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The following services will be available, free of charge: TB skin tests, immunizations, diabetes screening, blood pressures and pap smears. All persons in the Mud Creek area are welcome to attend.

GLAUCOMA CLINIC

The Floyd County Health Department will conduct a glaucoma clinic Friday, August 23, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Glaucoma most frequently occurs in persons over 35 years of age and is likely to run in families. One out of every seven blind persons in the United States lost his sight due to Glaucoma because undiagnosed and untreated Glaucoma can lead to total blindness.

ADVISES PARENTS

The Floyd County Health Department issues this reminder to parents whose children will be enrolling in the first grade this fall: It is extremely important that parents check with their doctors or the county health department now, to see if their children have had all their required immunizations.

Certain immunizations are required by state law before a child can be eligible to enroll in school. All children should be immunized against diphtheria, tetanus, polio and measles. These immunizations are important because a serious illness from any of these diseases can cause death or severe complications.

Every youngster should have had all his shots by the time he is two years old—in which case only booster doses will be required before he enters school.

To be healthy, a child must eat well. That's why the Floyd County Health Department suggests that parents make sure children eat the right kind of breakfast, especially school children.

A good breakfast is more important than the extra hour of sleep a child may get by skipping the morning meal. A well-balanced breakfast includes fruit or fruit juice, cereal or eggs, bread and butter, milk or cocoa. Remember, good health and good grades begin with a good breakfast. It's worth losing a little sleep for.

Telephone Company May Offer New Service, Gearheart Says

The Harold Telephone has announced plans to offer all one-party service when and if a pending loan is approved for this purpose, and to eliminate all mileage charges.

"This will permit all customers, regardless of where they live within our operating area, to receive one-party service at the same monthly rental rate, Paul R. Gearheart, company president, said.

The plan must also be approved by the Kentucky Public Service Commission. At the same time, it was announced, the company will ask for permission to offer a new service called optional calling plan (OCP). This plan is a modification of Extended Area Service (commonly called free service) to all parts of Floyd county.

The optional calling plan, to be offered to any customer of the company, including Harold, Grethel and Wheelwright exchanges, provides:

1. A customer desiring OCP must contract with the company for such service and select the option desired.

2. Any customer who selects an option (either one-way or two-way) must make direct dialing station-to-station calls under any plan contracted for.

3. Charges for business or residence all hours (24 hours a day, seven days a week) service would be $5.35 for the first hour (per month) for one-way service and $5.85 per hour (per month) for two-way service. After hours (5 p.m. to 7 a.m.) residence-only service would be $3.35 for the first hour of one-way service.

4. One-way service means calls originating in Harold or Grethel and terminating in either Prestonsburg, Allen, Martin, Wayland, McDowell or Wheelwright.

Wheelwright; also calls originating in Wheelwright and terminating in Harold or Grethel.

5. Two-way service means all one-way service, plus calls originating in Prestonsburg, Allen, Martin, Wayland, McDowell or Wheelwright and chargeable to a customer in Harold or Grethel; or calls originating in Harold or Grethel and terminating in Wheelwright and chargeable to a customer in Wheelwright.

8. After the first hour under OCP is used, the time is broken into tenths, or six-minute increments or fraction thereof.

9. The flat rate charge for the selected option will be added to the regular monthly rental rate. The additional tenths or fraction thereof, will be charged in exact proportion to the OCP flat rate. For example: Residence one-way uses 68 minutes OCP time during a given month. The first $3.35 will show on the monthly bill as flat rate. An additional two tenths (one 6 minute plus the 2 minute fraction thereof) would cost 66 cents extra.

10. Calls under OCP will not appear on the usual monthly itemized statement.

Supper will be followed by "Once There Was Jack," a dramatic adaptation of the famous Appalachian "Jack Tales."

Balm-of-Gilead, Tree of Healing

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD (UK College of Agriculture)

Supposedly of Asiatic origin and rare exotic in Kentucky to be called an exotic, the Balm-of-Gilead tree is hardly ever seen in the wild. Usually when found, it is growing around some old homestead where in times past it was transplanted and nurtured as a shade tree, as an important source of certain types of home remedies, and for the benefit of honeybees.

Looking somewhat like the popple tree of the North, the Balm-of-Gilead (Populus balsamifera) has broad, heart-shaped leaves with fuzzy undersides and huge buds laden with a fragrant, gummy substance that smells like medicine. Some Bible scholars hint that this substance might have been the famous, expensive "myrrh" of the Scriptures.

In earlier times these buds were gathered in February or March and, according to an old prescription, made into a salve that was most effective in healing fresh wounds and old sores on man or beast.

The prescription was simple. The buds, along with a quantity of pine rosin and mutton tallow were boiled down into a thick concoction, strained, and then poured out into small crocks or containers where it congealed and became what was known as a "hard salve." When needed for a treatment, it was warmed up and applied.

Sometimes the buds were made into a "soft salve" by merely simmering them in tallow mixed with butter. This ointment was used mostly for chapped hands and minor abrasions of the skin. In either case, it was said to be equally effective for the purposes intended.

And just to show how effective the salve was is this true story of a small boy of the backwoods who was severely bitten on the leg by a copperhead snake.

The child managed to survive the first effects of the bite but the spot where the snake's fangs entered his leg refused to heal and, despite professional treatment by a country doctor, the wound went from bad to worse.

The pain was constant and, finally, in desperation, the doctor was at the point of recommending amputation as the only means of easing the child's suffering.

But luckily, in the neighborhood was a wise old woman versed in herbal lore and the doctor, before resorting to surgery, had the good sense to ask her advice. She recommended some of her "Balm-of-Gilly" salve.

Applying the salve to the child's leg, the doctor was surprised to find that the intense pain immediately began to subside and the wound to heal. In about two weeks the terrible sore healed completely leaving only a small scar to mark the spot. This "boy," although now of advanced age, is still around to exhibit the scar and tell the story.

It is remembered that old-time beekeepers always tried to have a Balm-of-Gilead tree growing near their rustic apiaries for what they called "bee glue."

The bees, they said, gathered the clear gum from the buds and used it to seal up cracks and crevices in the crude, homemade beegums.

In perusing old medical books in use 50 years ago, it was found that the fragrant buds were recommended when a tonic, stimulant, diuretic, or anti-scorbutic was needed. Also a tincture of the bark was of "proven service in gout and rheumatism."

Long ago, in a hymn of pity for the sad condition of his nation, Jeremiah the Prophet, asked the question: "Is there no balm in Gilead?" Evidently, this tree has been recognized as a tree of healing since the science of medicine began.

A CORRECTION

An item in the Martin news last week was incorrectly written by the correspondent. It incorrectly stated that Mrs. Pam Wohlford and Mrs. Johnny B. Barnett had been shopping in Pikeville for supplies for the Sunday School of the Faith Bible Church. The item should have listed Mrs. George Barnett with Mrs. Wohlford—not Johnny B. Barnett.

IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Grayce Golden was hospitalized at Central Baptist Hospital in Lexington last week after examinations. She will probably return home, the middle of this week.

Letters to the Editor

Red, White and Blue Day Founder Discusses Program for this Year

Living out on a little farm, busy raising a garden and being able to do the things I love to do, makes me appreciate my freedoms even more. As I was on my way to do my chores gathering eggs made me want to work harder toward my goal—that being our Red, White & Blue Day, so that will always remain a free country and enjoy all of life's dreams.

One of my dreams has almost come true—I predicted that my patriotic idea would go nationwide. So I received a letter from Washington, D. C., word stating that the Old Guard will be participating in our Red, White and Blue Day in Prestonsburg, Saturday, Oct. 26. It is the responsibility of the sponsoring organization to provide round trip transportation. So this is where all you good patriotic citizens come in.

We have 16,000 (?) registered voters in Floyd county, and all you good people stop and think about our beloved America and what she stands for and all the freedoms she provides. I need to raise $3,000 to bring in the Old Guard (Honor Guard) and I hope all you veterans, civic-minded people and just good, ole down-to-earth people reach in your pockets and send me $1 each to help with their expenses here. It is a great honor to have them take part in our great parade.

I have always operated on a slim-budget but now it's growing and I need financial help with it—so it will grow and grow. I feel so proud to know it has made the Kentucky Calendar of Events and also the Bicentennial Calendar of Events. I have talked to many people in high positions in other states who accept my idea with high praise and encouragement.

This promises to be a great day not only for Eastern Kentucky but for America, and I want everyone who wishes to take part in this parade to be thinking of what you can do. Wear your true colors—Red, White and Blue—we're going to dress up America.

So please send your contributions to—Marcella Bailey, founder of Red, White, and Blue Day, Rt. 1, Box 13, Langley, Ky. 41645. The deadline will be Sept. 1, 1974. May God bless America!

GRANT TO IMPROVE COURTS

Kentucky has been awarded $1.6 million in federal funds to improve prosecution and involve more citizens in the judicial process. The funds include $800,000 to provide assistant commonwealth's attorneys for most judicial districts. A total of $625,000 will be used for training judges and other court personnel. Another $166,500 will be allocated for educating criminal-justice personnel and the public and $79,692 to hire a staff and three attorneys to help the Kentucky Court of Appeals dispose of a backlog of criminal cases.

The Department of Labor expects the number of business machine service-workers to grow rapidly due to an anticipated increase in the use of many types of office machines and more complex equipment requiring increased maintenance.

HAS A PRINCESS KISSED YOU LATELY?

No? Well, we're sorry, but if that's your problem I'm afraid we can't be of much real help. It's just that princess kisses are a little out of our line. But, if your dilemma happens to be more in the way of a family bus, rather than the bus royal, that is, then hold on a second, give a listen! Here at Brown's we maintain a select stock of late-model used cars, all clean, attractive and in top mechanical condition. . . . And, you'll find that because we are a smaller dealer, with less overhead, we are able to price our cars substantially lower than our competition. This, plus our top trade-in allowance on your present car, means much more money in your pocket. So why hop all over the countryside, from dealer to dealer, in search of that just-right car buy? See us. We'll show you the car and the price to fit your needs (faster than you can say, "R-r-ribbit!").

Miss Newsome, Mr. Cox Wed

Miss Eulette Newsome exchanged nuptial vows with Mr. Mark Cox, June 22, at 2 p.m. in a ceremony in the Grethel Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Avery Newsome, of Grethel. Mr. Cox is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Cox, of Pikeville.

Rev. Fred Anspaugh officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Eileen Martin, organist, presented the pre-wedding music, and Miss Debbie Ferris, of Pikeville, accompanied the soloist, Miss Janette Stambaugh, also of Pikeville, as she sang "Each for the Other" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Escorted down the white-carpeted aisle by her father, the bride wore a traditional floor-length gown of peau de soie in an A-line silhouette. The high neckline had a look of lace. The empire waist had a high-fitted band, and the long, full venise lace sleeves were gathered into deep cuffs. Attached to the gown was a long chapel train of venise lace. The elbow-length veil of illusion was held in place by a crown of pearls and iridescents. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of orange-tinted daisies with greenery entwined throughout.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was the groom's sister-in-law, Mrs. Cindy Cox, of Pikeville. The bridesmaids were Karen Hall, of Pikeville, Ruth Martin, of Grethel, and Christine Cox, of Pikeville. The maid of honor wore a long green dress with a pinafore look. The bridesmaid wore long dresses identical in style to that of the maid of honor but in yellow. The attendants wore white picture hats with matching streams and carried a basket of daisies, carnations and baby's breath.

The flower girl, Ruthie Madson, of Pikeville, wore a long dress matching those of the attendants and carried a basket of daisies.

blue dresses of polyester with matching accessories. Their corsages were of blue mums.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church.

Allotment Acreage, Hit by Flood, May Let Disaster Pay

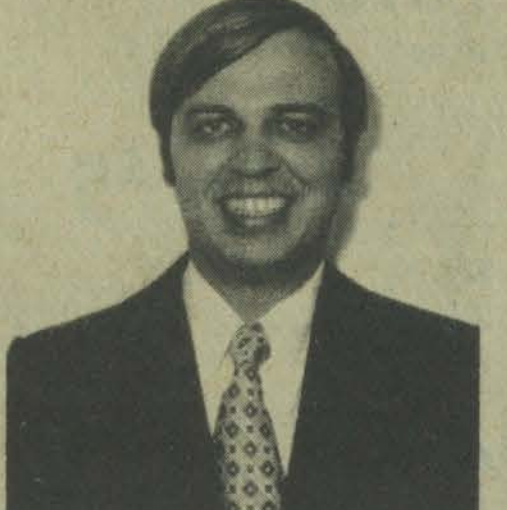

With Floyd county farms hit by flood in June, farmers having feed grain allotments may be eligible for disaster payments, according to the Floyd County ASCS office.

In connection with the U. S. Department of Agriculture's disaster payment program, it is important that a producer report the disaster conditions as early as possible to the county ASCS office.

A previous requirement for mid-summer sign-up and certification has been revised, enabling producers with corn and grain sorghum allotments to certify not later than 15 days after completing harvest in order to be eligible for payment for abnormally low yield. However, the producer's best course is to report to the county ASCS office as soon as he realizes his yield may be below normal.

Before low yield payments can be made, the county ASCS committee is required to have a field inspection made and to obtain records which verify actual production. When a producer visits the county ASCS office to report that natural disaster is affecting production of his allotment crops, he will be given the details concerning his eligibility, including inspection and the production evidence he will need.

Farmers who have not already signed should remember that next year's allotment will be reduced because ASCS has not received a report of this year's acreage corn or any annual non-conserving crop, or approved vegetative cover, will help protect the allotment.

3rd Dynamiting This Year Hits Tipple at Drift

The Martin Coal Sales tippie at Drift was reduced to ruins early Saturday morning by a dynamite blast, and its owners, Harry Martin, and his father, G. R. Martin, were offering a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of the dynamiters.

The heavy charge not only tore apart the tippie and its machinery but shattered windows 150 yards away.

State police were investigating the blast but no definite clues had been uncovered. The owners say they are not aware of any enemies and are unable to explain the reason for the dynamiting.

The tippie, one of the oldest on Left Beaver Creek, had a capacity of 1,000 tons of coal a day. The damage was unofficially placed at $35,000 to $40,000, and the loss was partially insured.

Last Saturday's dynamiting was the third of the year in this county and it was the second coal tippie to be hit. The first was the dynamiting last February of the Harris Bros. Construction Company offices here. This was followed in May by a blast which almost demolished the West Prestonsburg tippie of the Colonial Elkhorn Coal Company. Both blasts remain unsolved.

Opinions from the Office of the Attorney General

Among opinions released last week from the office of Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock were the following:

Lawyer Philip E. Wilson, of Lexington, asked the Attorney General's office to issue an opinion on the legality of a bank promotion aimed at increasing the penny supply. The bank planned to pay $1 in paper currency in exchange for 100 pennies. Additionally, the participant would receive a ticket stub for a random drawing for prizes. The Attorney General's office said that, since the promotion primarily serves only to place in circulation one-cent pieces, it is not an unlawful lottery or gift enterprise.

In response to lawyer John O. Hardin, Jr., of Hopkinsville, the Attorney General's office says that an adult member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles may legally procure and store his legally produced and possessed individual beer and whiskey in his owned, furnished or rented private individual locker on the Order's premises without being in violation of the alcoholic beverage control laws. However, Kentucky law states that it is a violation of the law for anyone in dry territory to sell, barter, loan, give, procure for or furnish another, or keep or transport for sale, barter or loan, directly or indirectly, any alcoholic beverage.

In response to Miss Lynn Eddington, of Shepherdsville, the Attorney General's office says that no private corporation is legally required to reimburse its employees for the time that they may serve as an election officer or for the time that they are allowed by law to be absent in order to vote, which is up to four hours. However, election officers are now entitled to receive not less than $15 per day in each election in which they serve, to be paid by the county.

Replying to Doris McDowell, a Louisville nurse, the Attorney General's office says that a registered nurse who has adequate instruction and experience in such procedures may administer blood transfusions under the direct supervision of a licensed physician. Likewise, a certified nurse anesthetist could administer an anesthetic, under the supervision of a licensed dentist. The decision to administer a blood transfusion would be a medical act since this is part of the diagnosis of the treatment. The nurse performing the administration of a blood transfusion under the careful eye of a physician is merely the extension of the hands of the physician.

Among those who entered Morehead State University this week were Dallas Fay and Rose Sammons, Gretchen Heinze, Debbie Lafferty, Linda Johnson, Arlene Martin, and Linda Godesy.

Truck Drivers Cited On Overweight Charges

Drivers of overweight coal trucks cited and booked in county court over the past week include the following:

Leon Hall, Wales, Ky., driver for the Bailey Mining Company, of Bypro, 20,000 lbs. overweight, by State Department of Transportation Officer E. Mullins.

Vernon Johnson, Halo, driver for Reid's Trucking Co., of Martin, 20,000 lbs. overweight, by Officer Mullins.

Jackie Ray Hall, Hall, Ky., driver for Reid's Trucking Co., of Martin, 20,000 lbs. overweight, by Officer Mullins. All the above were caught on the Goose Creek Road, and executed appearance bond.

Five coal truck drivers were booked in Magistrate Kenneth Roberts' court for overweight. All five were cited last Thursday near Garrett and all were drivers for Northeastern Coal Company hauling from Knott county to Magoffin county. The drivers executed bond and will appear in Magistrate Roberts' court September 14.

Crime Council Asks Laboratory For 5 Counties

The Big Sandy Crime Council has filed application with the Kentucky Crime Commission for a mobile crime laboratory to serve the five counties in the council area, it was announced here Monday by County Attorney James R. Allen, council chairman.

The $40,000 approximate cost of the lab would not involve funds of any of the five participating counties, Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Knott and Magoffin. Location of such a unit in the area would not only provide ballistical, microscopic, chemical and other tests but would also make such services quickly available, Mr. Allen said. Most tests of this nature are now made by the State Police Lab at Frankfort and thus findings are delayed.

Mr. Allen was re-elected chairman of the Big Sandy Crime Council, and Mrs. Fred Francis, also of Prestonsburg, was elected secretary-treasurer. Other Floyd members of the Council are Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo and County Detective Sam Hale.

Probe Is Begun As Mud Cr. Man Critically Shot

Carlos Dicky Hall, of Grethel, was reported near death Tuesday morning of a bullet wound suffered Sunday night at his home, but authorities were having difficulty establishing circumstances of the shooting.

Told by a Methodist Hospital spokesman at Pikeville that the wounded man's condition is critical, Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo and County Detective Sam Hale went to the hospital Tuesday, hoping to get from Hall a statement.

Hall was shot in his abdomen with a .45-caliber revolver bullet.

Sheriff Joe W. Lewis said he arrived at the Hall residence, about an hour after the shooting was reported, but failed to elicit from Mrs. Hall, a woman visitor at the home and a 12-year-old boy any information. By that time, Hall had been taken to the hospital.

Authorities indicated those known to have been at the scene of the shooting may be held as material witnesses if continued investigation fails to determine the circumstances of the shooting.

PADDLING "RIGHTS"

A judge in Hanover county, Virginia has ruled that a student must be given his constitutional rights of due process before he can be spanked in school. The court said that the constitutional rights of a fourth grade student were violated because he was not told he could appeal a "summary spanking sentence" or that he could demand to be represented by an attorney. A federal jury awarded the boy $200 in damages. The case is considered important because it requires due process for "summary punishment."

1. The widespread interest of citizens in the undertaking; and, 2. The opinion expressed by County Attorney James R. Allen that the court may, if necessary condemn the land for the purpose.

Two petitions addressed to the court and asking it to proceed toward establishing the recreation center bear the names of more than 200 persons. "We could get 2,000, if they're needed," one supporter of the plan was quoted as saying.

The Recreation Board was attracted to the Allen site because it is near the center of the county and is, possibly, the only one in the county that is of satisfactory size and terrain.

If the county can effect the purchase of the site, Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and other federal funds would finance its development, it is held.

Actual planning of the center has not been begun, but Recreation Board members have talked of the possibility of retaining the golf course (with grass greens added) and the addition of a swimming pool, tennis courts, a picnic area, facilities for the elderly and features which would appeal to every age-group.

Members of the recreation board are County Attorney Allen, chairman and at-large member; Richard Fitzpatrick, Magisterial District 1; Danny Stephens, District 2; Glenda Hall, District 3, and Joe Jacobs, District 4.

enter the city and commit such a crime without first registering is against the automobile laws in that city.

Still on the books is the one in Pennsylvania, enacted when the automobile first came to that state. The law reads, in part: "Any motorist driving along a country road at night must stop every mile and send up a rocket signal, wait ten minutes for the road to be cleared of livestock, and then continue."

Further, the law states: "Any motorist who sights a team of horses coming towards him must pull well off of the road, cover his car with a blanket or canvas that blends with the countryside, and let the horses pass. If the horses appear skittish, the motorist must take his car apart, piece by piece, and hide it under the nearest bushes."

In New York, the law still says that anyone sighting a car approaching from the opposite direction, must stop, and neither shall proceed until the other has passed.

mules and I remember that day, the wagon came by and Satchel was settin' up in it with his baseball cap turned around backwards." Johnson and his brothers couldn't resist the temptation, so they rigged up a board beneath the wagon bed to sit on in order to hide from their father.

Johnson played with Paige for six or seven years in the northern Alabama-southern Tennessee area and one day Satchel just didn't show. "I guess that's when he joined up with the Black Barons," Johnson said.

After his baseball days, Mr. Bruce joined the Ringling Brothers Circus where he worked for 13 years shoeing horses. He traveled all over the United States and went to Europe once. "The circus wagons would get bogged down in deep mud, and those horses would have to push them out," Johnson recalled.

Johnson came to Floyd county through contacts with kin, and a cousin, Ruby Garrett, resides at Wheelwright. Mr. Bruce and his wife, Edna, maintain a small garden, raise chickens and spend a lot of their time on their front porch "visiting" with friends and neighbors.

Meanwhile, Mr. Bruce keeps up on the Reds, who, he says, is "the only team I'll listen to," and waits for the day when he'll get to go to Riverfront Stadium.

Congress Approves $82.1 Million For 19 Projects in Kentucky

Both the Paintsville and Red River reservoirs are included in the 19 Kentucky public works projects funded last Thursday by Congress. The appropriations bill awaits President Ford's signature.

The conference committee report on appropriations for water and power development projects across the nation passed the Senate on a voice vote. The House of Representatives passed the measure last Tuesday.

Sen. Marlow Cook, positioned against the measure, explaining in a statement to his colleagues that he was opposing the bill in protest of the conference committee having included money for the Red River project in Powell county after the Senate voted last month to cancel the project's funding.

The senior Kentucky senator has opposed the project because he says it no longer would accomplish its original objectives and especially because it would involve massive disruptions of the scenic Red River Gorge and the homes of area residents.

Unless vetoed by President Ford, the following amounts would be appropriated for Kentucky projects:

$250,000 for planning the $32.9 million Big South Fork National River and Recreation Area near Whitley City in McCreary county.

$130,000 for planning the $53.4 million Campground Lake on Beech Fork in Nelson and Washington counties.

$2,650,000 for construction on the Cannelton locks and dam near Hawesville. To date $95.5 million has been allocated toward the $98.9 million project.

$3.8 million for construction on Carr Fork Lake in Knott county. To date, almost $34 million already has been allocated.

$3 million for continuing construction at Cave Run Lake. To date, $44.1 million has been allocated for Cave Run.

$25,000 for planning the conversion of Dam 3 on the Big Sandy River, near Louisa.

$6.2 million for continuing construction at Laurel River Lake west of Corbin. To date, $29.7 million has been allocated for the project.

$7 million for temporary Lock 53 on the Ohio River at Ballard county.

$3 million for continuing construction at Martins Fork Lake in Harlan county. To date, $4.2 million has been allocated toward the $12.3 million project.

$6 million for construction on the Newburgh locks and dam on the Ohio northeast of Henderson. To date, $87.1 million has been allocated toward the $12.3 million project.

$6 million for construction on the Newburgh locks and dam on the Ohio northeast of Henderson. To date, $87.1 million has been allocated toward the $94.7 million project.

$1.5 million for continuing construction on Paintsville Lake in Johnson and Morgan counties.

$500,000 for construction Lake project in Powell county.

$22.3 million for continuing construction on the $192 million Smithland locks and dam northeast of Paducah in Livingston county.

$3 million for construction of the $31.3 million Southwestern Jefferson county Local Protection Project. To date, almost $1.7 million has been allocated for the floodwall.

$1.4 million for continued construction on Taylorsville Lake in Spencer county. To date, $2.4 million has been allocated for Taylorsville.

$150,000 for planning the relocation of .3 miles of the Tug Fork River in Martin county.

$9,850,000 for continuing on replacing Locks 48 and 49 on the Ohio near Uniontown. Total cost of that project is $95.7 million.

$6 million for repairing Wolf Creek Dam at Lake Cumberland in Russell county.

$1.5 million for construction of Yatesville Lake project in Lawrence county. To date, $1.9 million has been allocated toward the $40.5 million project.

Falmouth Lake in Pendleton County was the only Kentucky project for which the Army Corps of Engineers requested funding that received no money for fiscal 1975.

The Senate Appropriations Committee had recommended no funds for the Red River and Paintsville projects as well but an amendment by Cook during Senate consideration of the bill restored money for Paintsville. The conference committee, after the House recommendation, reinstated funds for Red River.

In Loving Memory of Henry Robinson who passed away on August 2, 1972.

It broke our hearts on that day When the Lord called him away. It still hurts and we're sad, Because we really miss our "Dad." Our mother mourned for him each day, For her dear husband who has been called away. He lived in pain for many years, And he shed many tears. Through all this he gave us his love Until the Lord said from up above, It's time to stop your agony And come on home to live with me.

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK

(Attorney General of Kentucky)

At some time everyone has answered a knock on the door to find a sales person soliciting orders for magazines, periodicals, encyclopedias, books, Bibles, or other printed material.

Their sales pitch is usually that the material is on a subscription basis and can be paid for on installments or on a cash basis. Sometimes the delivery of this printed matter depends either on a down payment or one or more installment payments.

If someone knocks on your door soliciting this material, be on the lookout for certain things:

—Be skeptical of the sales person who tries to play on your sympathy by saying that he is a Vietnam veteran working for points on savings bonds, or a college student trying to earn a scholarship. In the recent movie, Paper Moon, a small girl and father, before going into a town to sell Bibles, would scan the obituaries. They would then visit those homes that had a death telling the widow or widower that before their spouse had died, he or she had ordered this Bible. Naturally the person would not refuse to pay for the Bible. This may seem only like a cut scene from a movie, but con men who play on your emotions are still around today and should be recognized as such.

—Check to see if the sales persons have registered with the local county court clerk's office.

—Check to see if an offered "package deal" of magazines for only a small amount per week is actually cheaper. Also consider whether you and your family would actually read and have an interest in that many magazines.

There are reliable door-to-door sales persons of magazines, books, and other printed material. However, because there are those who are out to deceive, it is important to exercise care with what you agree to buy. The reliable ones will pass the test; the others won't.

To contact this office for additional information regarding magazine and book sales or other consumer protection laws, Kentucky residents may write the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, Room 34, Capitol, Frankfort, Ky. 40601; or call toll-free on the consumer hotline 1-800-372-2960.

Education Had Tough Going In Early Days of Kentucky

By AVERY JENKINS

The history of Kentucky's public education system tells a story of proud people who first wanted schools and then better schools, but who didn't always get them for a number of reasons.

There were several occasions when our forebears had the chance to initiate new educational ideas and programs but in some instances managed to "snatch defeat from the jaws of victory," and wind up with less than an ideal system.

Once Kentucky started a school system, it made progress, but there were setbacks because of the Civil War, political bickering, regional and local differences, and plain indifference on the part of elected officials and others among the state's leaders. The lack of an effective local unit of government that could take action at the grassroots level was one handicap to the development of the common school system.

So says Dr. Ellis F. Hartford, University of Kentucky professor of education and former UK vice president for the Community College System, who is writing a two-volume history of education in Kentucky.

Dr. Hartford has uncovered some interesting facts while working on the state's educational past. Take, for example, the letters sent out by the Berry Committee of the 1821 legislature. One went to all the county court clerks in the state requesting any information they could gather concerning what schools were being operated, the number of pupils, and the like. Not one of the approximately 80 clerks replied. On the other hand, a circular letter to ex-presidents of the United States, outstanding U. S. senators and other leaders brought impressive letters of advice and encouragement from John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison and several other national figures.

Dr. Hartford is gathering information from the UK libraries, the Kentucky Historical Society, the Filson Club, state archives, and court house and school records and by contact with persons who have old manuscripts, photographs and recollections. During the week after UK summer school closed, he taped interviews with outstanding elderly persons in Owensboro, St. Helens and at Davison's Station in Ohio county. The county court records at Hartford yielded a three-and-a-half-page record of action by the Ohio county court which proceeded to lay out the county into school districts "agreeably to" an act of the 1821 legislature.

"This was an exciting find. I would like to receive letters from persons who have original source materials available—such as old manuscripts, records, pictures and the like," Dr. Hartford says. Historians have noted that the Kentucky General Assembly passed permissive legislation in 1830 giving counties the power to organize school districts and levy taxes and that nothing happened. An incomplete survey of county court records discloses that several courts did take steps to lay off districts but the lack of funds prevented opening of schools. Louisville had started public schools a year earlier. Lexington also had a public-supported school prior to the general law. Maysville was the third town in the state to have its own schools. Apparently, at least five cities had schools before the common school law was passed in Frankfort and further research may disclose still others.

The first effort at education in Kentucky was the old academy system which had been inherited from Virginia. The Virginia legislature chartered two academies while Kentucky was still a part of that state. They were Transylvania at Lexington and Salem Academy at Bardonia. By 1800 it was planned to have one academy in each of the then-existing counties.

"Each county was given 6,000 acres of land to use for a school. Many schools did not amount to anything and some counties just frittered their resources away," Dr. Hartford said. "It has been asserted that some of the administrators of those days sold portions of the land to their brothers-in-law."

Disagreements between religious groups brought setbacks in the state's school systems, in some cases for colleges as well as for elementary schools. The major setback for the state's school system was the Civil War which left the system about 50 per cent efficient because teachers and trustees were gone and many schools were closed.

The first public school law was passed in 1838 but it didn't amount to much for the first 10 years. During that first decade there were not many books. Pupils studied whatever was available. The question of selection and printing of textbooks was a headache for the legislature and educators for three-quarters of a century, Dr. Hartford points out.

The selection is made today by a state textbook commission based on the recommendations of teachers.

"I remember gubernatorial candidate Morrow was running for office when I was a high school freshman. He held up a geography textbook and said Kentucky was paying more for its books than Indiana and that if elected he would bring suit and make the publishers pay back every dollar that the state had been overcharged. Well, he was elected but it turned out that he couldn't bring suit," Dr. Hartford observed with amused reflection.

At about the same time, some of Kentucky's newspapers were writing editorials on the subject of textbooks and hinting that self-interests were being served and that pay-offs were being made.

"I don't believe most Kentuckians know enough about our educational background and struggles to appreciate the significance of our school system and educational institutions," Dr. Hartford stated.

Many local leaders played important parts in getting common schools established. Micajah Phillips, who lived near Monticello, was such a leader in Kentucky; he induced his county court and the people to take action to implement the common school law. Much information is probably available in old county court records and in many county and city boards offices, most of which go back beyond the beginning of the century, the educator said.

Despite the differences of opinion on how public education should be accomplished, many influential ministers of leading denominations gave strong support to the movement for common schools. Newspapers tended to give consistent support to movements to establish public schools and to efforts to improve the system during most of our history, Dr. Hartford noted.

There was a popular attitude of respect for "literary instruction" by parents whose lack of learning had cost them dearly in land deals, business affairs and prestige. They were determined to give their children a better chance to succeed with better educational opportunities.

Voc Education To Get $102,000

A total of $102,800 has been allocated to the Floyd county vocational education program from the $5,000,000 surplus funds recently allocated to the state Bureau of Vocational Education in the Kentucky Department of Education by Governor Ford.

A number of Kentucky vocational schools construction and expanding programs were bogged down as a result of the rising cost of construction. Floyd county's construction program was one of the projects affected by the rising construction costs. Of the total allocated, $92,800 is for construction and $10,000 for equipment.

If additional funds had not been appropriated for this project, programs would have been cut back, delayed, or possibly cancelled.

Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, Secretary of the Education and Arts Cabinet, said, "We're elated to have this additional money. These funds will help us carry out proposed programs to improve the quality of vocational education in Kentucky."

The front-wheel drive Subaru. Was it designed with the fuel shortage in mind?

It sure seems that way, doesn't it? Some Subaru owners have written the company claiming more than thirty miles per gallon.

On the average, the Subaru gets around twenty-five miles per gallon on regular.

The U.S. Bureau of Highways tells us the national average for gas mileage is about 13.5 per gallon.

This means that Subaru, with its Quadrozonal Engine, gets almost twice the national average. And in some cases even more.

That's our story. How's your mileage these days? Stop in and fuel-test drive a Subaru.

 The Prestonsburg Blackcats won over Greenup County, 7-0 in an abbreviated game which was a part of the Grid-o-Rama staged last Friday night at the Boyd County field. The Blackcats dominated the game in all statistics outstripping them, 93 yards to 17, and quarterback Del Jagers passed for a total of 34 yards while Greenup county had none.

Coach Eddie Radjunas substituted freely in the games; in fact, he used a total of nine backs. Prestonsburg's Danny Layne was the leading rusher with a total of 27 yards in six carries. It was a fumble that set up the lone touchdown, with Mike Calhoun recovering the fumble for the Blackcats on the Greenup County 15. Steve Campbell on a one-yard plunge through the middle put the Cats on the board. Danny Layne kicked the extra point. That was the only scoring, although the Cats threatened on two other occasions.

The Blackcats' offensive line was very impressive, and the defense held Greenup County to only two first downs, 17 yards rushing and no yardage through the air.

Other Grid-o-Rama scores:
 Boyd county 26, Russell 7; Belfry 6, Johnson Central 13; Ashland 8, Montgomery County 7.

In the Northeastern Kentucky Conference Grid-o-Rama at Raceland the scores were: Morgan County 6, Louisa 0; Raceland 13, Johns Creek 0; Fairview 7, Paintsville 0.

This week's schedule:
 Friday—Prestonsburg at Madison Central (Richmond), Virgia at Wheelwright, Jenkins at Johnson Central, Fleming Neon at Mullins, Elkhorn City at Whitesburg.

Saturday night—Boyd county vs. Dixie Heights in the Recreation Bowl at Mt. Sterling, Belfry at Johns Creek, Lynch at Pikeville.

Tallent Named New Head Coach At George Washington University

Floyd native, Bob Tallent, assistant basketball coach at George Washington University for five years, has been named the new head coach at GW.

Tallent, 28, succeeds Carl Slone, who resigned a week ago to accept the head coaching position at his alma mater, the University of Richmond.

A 1969 graduate of GW, Tallent was a star player in high school and college and has gained a reputation as an outstanding student and teacher of the game.

Announcing his appointment, Bob Paris, GW director of athletics, said, "Our selection committee felt it had to move rapidly to find a new coach because it was so late in the year. After reviewing over 50 applications, we felt the best person for the job was our own assistant, Bob Tallent. Bob has youth and an excellent rapport with the players. He was an outstanding player himself, and with this combination we feel we have gained an excellent coach."

Tallent was elated at his selection. "I am very, very happy about being named head coach at GW," he said. "This is something I have dreamed about for a long time."

The Langley native transferred to GW in 1967 after having played for three years at the University of Kentucky. While establishing a year of residence during the 1967-'68 season, he coached the freshman team and his brother Mike to a 17-2 record. Regaining his eligibility for the '68-'69 season, he led GW to its first winning campaign in nine years—a 14-11 mark. He finished as the nation's fifth leading scorer that year with a 28.9 average, became the greatest single-season player in the history of GW basketball, breaking six school records and being named to the Helms Foundation All-America team.

He was drafted in the third round by the Denver Rockets, and after a brief stint with that EBA club decided his future lay in coaching. He returned to the Washington area and worked for an engineering firm before joining Coach Slone as an assistant for the 1970-'71 season. His freshman team that year finished 6-11 (his only under-.500 mark in coaching). He followed this up with a 17-1 record the next year, this time coaching his youngest brother Pat. In 1972-'73, the Tallent-coached junior varsity finished 14-4, giving him a four-year coaching record of 54-18.

"I thoroughly enjoyed coaching that freshman team three years ago and always wanted to coach them on the varsity level," he said. "I never had any idea Coach Slone would leave, so I never thought I'd get a chance." Four of the starters from that team, which was named the No. 12 freshman team in the nation by Basketball News, will likely start next year for Tallent. This would include brother Pat—returning after successful knee surgery last year—6-11 center Clyde Burwell, 6-6 forward Haviland Harper and 6-2 guard Keith Morris.

"Next year, we have the makings of a real fine team," said Tallent. "We will have a lot of experience with five guys back who have been starters (the fifth is sophomore guard John Holloran). If we don't have any injuries to key players and Pat can come back from his knee operation, we should be in real good shape for a successful year."

As for coaching his brother, Tallent, who will be one of the youngest head coaches in the country, said he doesn't expect any problems. "Pat's a good player and wants to win first. He knows I'm not going to show any favoritism. He's a winner and a team player."

Tallent was born at Langley, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jones Tallent, and starred at Maytown High. In his senior year he averaged 40.5 points and was a first-team high school All-American. He was also valedictorian of his class. He went on to the University of Kentucky where he led his freshman team to a 17-2 record, averaging 20 points a game. During his sophomore year he was a part-time starter as Kentucky rolled to a 27-2 record and the runnerup spot in the NCAA tournament, losing to Texas Western in the finals at Maryland's Cole Field House. In his junior year he became a fulltime starter and averaged 14 points a game, teaming with Louie Dampier in the Wildcats' backcourt.

Having played for three years under Coach Adolph Rupp, Tallent admits that a lot of Rupp rubbed off on him. "I agree with Coach Rupp's philosophy of basketball quite a bit," he said. "As a player you pick a great deal up from the coach you play for. I also picked up quite a few things working for Coach Slone. However, most of the things I do as a coach, I learned from Coach Rupp."

"We will make a few minor changes here next year, but we will still be a fast breaking club, and when we can't fast break, we'll set up and run our patterns. On defense, we'll try to play more man-to-man and a lot of full-court pressure."

Tallent is single and lives in Arlington, Va. He has a degree from GW in civil engineering.

Crawford, First East Kentuckian To Win Key Club Honor

Timmy Crawford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manis Crawford, of Melvin, has been honored in Chattanooga, Tennessee by being selected "Most Outstanding Lieutenant-Governor." Young Mr. Crawford was awarded the honor by the governor of the Kentucky-Tennessee District of Key Club International, Bob Norton, of Knoxville, Tennessee.

Crawford was selected from among 15 lieutenant-governors from all over Kentucky and Tennessee. On hand to congratulate him were Roger Brown, International president, the Kiwanis governor, and the Circle-K governor. Roger Brown termed this award as "the highest honor bestowed in Key Club International."

Young Crawford's term saw him working at least 21 hours a week. It had him missing school to catch a plane to Cincinnati, Nashville, Chattanooga, or Chicago. Or maybe saw him driving 100 to 500 miles in one day on Key Club business. His area reached from Richmond to Ashland to Wheelwright, and all in between. In his area (Division 8-9) he took care of 20 schools with Key Clubs—twice as many as any other lieutenant-governor.

He was a member of the Key Club two years, high school band seven years, and was graduated from Wheelwright High School last May as co-salutatorian and president of the senior class and also president of the Band Council.

Presently he is an employee of the Kentucky Department for Human Resources here and will attend Berea College this fall. He hopes to attend Harvard Law School and later to enter politics.

He is the only Keyclubber in Eastern Kentucky to hold the "Most Outstanding" title ever.

Ramey-Endicott Vows Said

Miss Teresa Ann Ramey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ramey, became the bride of Mr. Dennis L. Endicott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Endicott, of McLeansboro, Ill., at 7 p.m., July 27, in a ceremony solemnized at the Smith Chapel Missionary Baptist Church in McLeansboro. The Rev. Roy Fleming was the officiating minister.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown with A-line skirt with chapel train of nylon organza and chiffon. Clusters of simulated pearls and sequins trimmed the bodice which was fashioned with a scalloped neckline and long, sheer sleeves of chiffon. She wore a matching cathedral-length mantilla and carried a bouquet of daisies trimmed with yellow roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Kay Mills, wore an empire-style gown, and the bridesmaid, Mrs. William E. Ramey, sister-in-law of the bride, wore a gown of green, matching that of the maid of honor. William E. Ramey served Mr. Endicott as best man, and Barry W. Ramey was groomsman, John Chapman served as usher. Nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. W. L. Widick, pianist.

The reception following the ceremony was attended by approximately 100 guests. Punch, cake, nuts and mints were served by Mrs. Carol Millenbine, Mrs. Gilbert Chapman and Mrs. Dale Atterbury. Miss Kathy Campbell acted as guest-book attendant.

Kingdom Come Country

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Kentuckians hold dear the writings of a man who came to live in the narrow valleys of southeastern Kentucky.

John Fox Jr. was born at Stony Point, near Paris, Ky., in 1863 and died at Big Stone Gap, Va., in 1919.

Eastern Kentucky and Virginia provided the settings and characters for many of his novels, which were well received, then and now. "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," "The Heart of the Hills," "Hell Fer Sartain" and "Knight of the Cumberlands" are some titles from the rich legacy he left the world of literature.

He worked and lived among miners, railroaders and lumber men, where he found a fountain of words honest in dialect and true to the heart and spirit of a strong people.

His soft, gentle phrases tell of blue-mauve hills, early morning mists curtaining the valleys, alpenglow coloring trees above the gaps. Even mountain feuds and violence are described in a rhythmic cadence.

A sense of right and wrong led Fox and a few friends from the Bluegrass to live in Letcher county, on Kingdom Come Creek and on over the mountains in Virginia. There they sought to bring law and order to the region.

At Van, a short distance from Whitesburg, those who continue to enjoy his stories can see one of his books adapted for the stage. "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" is performed at the Little Shepherd Amphitheatre, Friday through Sunday nights, closing Sept. 1

People in Whitesburg can describe a large, log house where Fox lived and made friends with people who became characters in his books. "Oh, the names were changed," they will remark, "but we know who they were."

Side roads near Whitesburg lead to Scuttle Hole Gap, while other pioneer roads lead to Virginia markets. Kingdom Come Creek still has log houses, barns and wildflowers. The Little Shepherd Trail, Big Black Mountain and Pine Mountain offer outstanding vistas to visitors to this region.

Kingdom Come State Resort Park, Jefferson National Forest, Redbird Purchase Unit of Daniel Boone National Forest and Kentenia State Forest are tourism sites within a 30-mile radius of Whitesburg.

Further information is available from Don Amburgey, Box 806, Whitesburg, Ky. 41858.

ENERGY CONSERVATION TIP

The most important tip in home entertainment is, never let the television set, radio or stereo perform to an empty room. If your TV set has an "instant-on" feature, unplug it when it is not going to be in use for an extended period, such as a vacation. A typical large screen solid-state television set uses about half the power of a similar tube-type set.

Theatre To Salute Supporters In 10th Season Curtainranger

In a salute to the people of the region who have contributed greatly to the success of the theatre, the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre will end its 10th anniversary season with a festive evening of song and dance from shows presented at the theatre over the past 10 years.

This special production, under the direction of Miss Sue Rosenstock, Eric Gustafson, and Gary L. Vance, will take place Sunday, August 25, and will include selections from such shows as "Fiddler on the Roof," "Hello Dolly," "1776," "Funny Girl," "South Pacific," "Oklahoma," and "Music Man."

The performance will begin at 8:30 central time. Tickets are now on sale at the box office, or reservations can be made by calling (606) 886-6647.

Buy large, well-fleshed turkeys and chickens rather than small ones—if you have freezer space to store what you can't use at once. Larger birds usually have more meat in proportion to bone than smaller turkeys and chickens, according to UK Extension foods specialists.

Cook roasts, turkey and other meats, meat-vegetable soups, vegetable-cereal casseroles, boiled and baked beans, carrots, beets, tomato-meat sauces, white sauces, and any other foods that freeze well in large amounts. Then divide them into the right-size portions for a family meal and freeze them. This saves both time and money, according to UK Extension foods specialists.

Uniform Crime Report Pinpoints State's 'Typical Arrested Person'

He was a young man in his late 20's and a resident of Louisville when he was fatally shot by a man his own age using a handgun during an argument one Saturday night last July.

Who was he? He was Kentucky's most frequent murder victim in 1973.

According to facts and figures contained in the recently released Uniform Crime Report (URC), prepared by the Kentucky State Police, one-eighth of the year's 320 murder victims were males between the ages of 25 and 29.

Well over half of the murder weapons used were handguns. And arguments were the cause 65 per cent of the time.

In addition, 38 per cent of all 1973 murders occurred during July and nearly 40 per cent took place on a Saturday or Sunday.

July also was a busy month for robbery, but the "typical" 1973 robber didn't become most active until a month later when the number of reported robberies peaked.

Chances are the 1973 robber was most likely to be a white male in his mid to late 20's. He roamed the streets of Louisville armed with a handgun and averaged $77 per stickup.

Together with his counterparts throughout the state last year, he committed 2,852 robberies and made away with more than $1 million in loot—or $414 per victim.

In dollars and cents, the "average" bank robber did better. His average "take" was $10,171 per hold-up. Chain store stickups were the second most profitable robbery offense with bandits getting an average $1,410 per offense.

Unlike his older, armed counterpart, the average unarmed thief last year was a teenager. He received less than the robber for his labor, managing to pocket about $90 a heist while concentrating most heavily on stealing auto parts and accessories or lifting personal articles from cars.

Pickpockets got an average $100 per pocket. Purse snatchers worked harder, but got less from their labor—about $54 per theft. Shoplifters were the least successful of all, taking home goods worth about $26 each time they ventured out.

April was the prime time for auto thefts and, again, teenagers were busier than any other single age group. Perhaps they needed some place to put the auto parts and accessories they acquired under the larceny-theft category?

The most typical auto thief was a 16-year-old boy. He stole the car in his hometown, left it there for police to recover and in most cases, got away.

Among other "typical" perpetrators of major crimes in Kentucky during 1973 was the burglar, a man most often in his late 20's who preferred to steal from private homes. Burglary, on the average, cost Kentuckians about $378 each time one occurred.

Most of these "typical" persons arrested last year for major crimes found courts a little sterner in meting out sentences than had been the case in 1972.

For example, adults arrested for murder in 1973 were found guilty in 71.4 per cent of the cases. Those charged with robbery were sent to jail 71.6 per cent of the time.

A year earlier guilty verdicts were meted out in 67.8 per cent of the murder cases and 55.2 per cent of the robberies.

Adults arrested for major crimes were found guilty 71.9 per cent of the time last year compared to 64.7 per cent in 1972.

Still, persons arrested for all crimes in 1973—major and less serious offenses—were found guilty in 84.6 per cent of the cases compared with 85.7 per cent in 1972.

While males still dominate the arrest totals—accounting for 9 out of every 10 arrests—female arrests, up by 3 per cent over 1972, accounted for a lesser 16.2 per cent of the arrest total.

Male or female, the 1973 criminal victimized two out of every 100 Kentuckians by major crimes. Or, put another way, there was one major crime committed every seven minutes last year.

Still, police solved 91 per cent of the murder cases, 65 per cent of all reported rape, 37 per cent of the robberies, 77 per cent of the aggravated assaults, 17 per cent of the burglaries, 15 per cent of the larcenies and 15 per cent of the auto thefts.

Amid all the "typicals," "averages" and "medians," there always exists the exception. For Kentucky, it was Metcalfe county where the lowest number of major crimes was reported—only eight in 1973.

WIC Food Service To Be Continued

Frankfort, Ky.—Special food services to 3,168 Kentuckians in Floyd and 22 other counties will be continued, says Laurel W. True, secretary of the Department for Human Resources.

True has announced the federal refunding of the Special Supplemental Food Pilot Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) which supplies nutritious foods through nine county health clinics and four non-state clinics to pregnant and nursing mothers, infants and children.

"We don't see WIC as a feeding program," Peggy Kidd, chief of nutrition, Bureau for Health Services, said. "We see it as a way to prescribe foods to supplement the diet and improve the quality of care available through the clinics."

As it stands, federal guidelines allow for the continuation of existing projects without increases in services

Squirrel Season Opens Saturday; Outlook Is Good

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 13—Wildlife biologists with the state Fish and Wildlife Department predict this year's squirrel hunting season, which opens Saturday, August 17, should be at least as good as last year's and probably a little better.

They base this prediction on last fall's mast surveys which indicated there was a good supply of food to carry the squirrels through the winter and thus result in a better than average population of Kentucky's most-hunted game species.

The first part of the season will continue through October 31, and will reopen Thursday, November 21. The season will then continue through February 28 except for a five-day period, December 7-11, when it will be closed due to the statewide gun deer hunt.

The daily bag limit is again six and the possession limit, after two or more days of hunting, is 12. Squirrel hunters may not use breech-loading rifles of .240 caliber or larger, or shotguns with slugs or buckshot. Any type of muzzle loading weapons may be used.

However, a certificate of recognition will be issued to persons with less than 3 years experience upon completion of the course. State Plan May Add Nutrition Program For Archer Center

The staff and several participants of the George P. Archer Senior Citizens Center attended the hearing at Hazard last week on the statewide programs for the aging for fiscal 1975. Of particular interest to the group was the state plan to have all of Kentucky declared an "impact" area by 1976. When this occurs, the center here will be eligible for a nutrition program.

The staff of the center also visited the Johnson County Senior Citizens Center in Paintsville. It is located in the new community center and has a kitchen at its disposal. According to the Johnson Center director, Mrs. Cox, this has helped them greatly in preparing covered dish dinners for their participants. It was found that both centers have many common problems. Joint trips are under consideration for the centers.

ever see one of their funerals? brrr!

Some say an Episcopal funeral is cold. It's short, simple, and taken straight from the Prayer Book. Never maudlin. The casket remains unopened. It's covered with a pall, so you don't know if it cost a hundred dollars or a thousand. And there is no eulogy for the dead. Episcopalians, though, say the funeral service affords one of the strong reasons for their faith in the Church, because it's conducted as much for the living as for the dead. In such a context, eulogies seem hardly apropos. After all, we're all children of God and equal in His sight. How important, really, is the fact that "the departed" was highly regarded by his fellow man? It seems pretty insignificant compared to God's loving promise of eternal salvation.

Like its funeral service, the Episcopal Church is conducted for living people. Afterwards, it's between you and God. Your nearest Episcopal minister would be delighted to talk with you about this "living theology."

Floyd Native Joe Begley, One Who 'Speaks His Mind'

Possibly the most vocal—certainly, the most widely known—of all the critics of Eastern Kentucky stripmining is a native of Floyd county.

This man who has made a Blackey, Ky. dateline common in many newspapers over the country is Joe Begley, a storekeeper in that Perry county village and a son of the late Sid and Amma Webb Begley who lived at Langley in this county.

The following relating to Joe Begley and his wife, Gay, is excerpted from a recent Courier-Journal feature by Irene Nolan:

It is perhaps the issue of strip mining that made Joe Begley a celebrity. His anti-stripping views have gotten national coverage. Newsmen from Chicago, New York and Washington have come to sit on his porch and talk to him. And, as one friend says, "Joe Begley might be better known in New York City than he is in Kentucky."

The Begleys were instrumental in the formation of an anti-strip mining group, the Citizens League to Protect Surface Rights. Begley has gone to Frankfort and to Washington to express his opposition to striping. In 1973 he spoke to a U. S. House of Representatives subcommittee that was considering strip mine legislation. He has accompanied state legislators and congressmen from Washington on tours of strip mines in the area.

"Joe Begley," says Jim Branscome, a native Eastern Kentuckian who has been in anti-strip mining activities with Begley, "is an ultra-American. He's a remnant of those Americans who really believe in an America as it is described in the Constitution."

"He's very dedicated. A real friend of poor people. He'd stand up and fight for them in a minute," says Jesse Am-burgey, the former executive director of LKLP who now heads the Kentucky Association of Community Action Agencies. "He's concerned about people running over other people. I think most people respect him."

Begley has neither brought an end to strip mining nor has he wrought other great changes in the plight of Eastern Kentucky. But, say many persons who know him, Joe Begley's value lies in the fact that he is not afraid to speak up. In fact, people will tell you that Joe Begley is not afraid of anyone.

The person who probably knows Joe Begley the best thinks he is a "real interesting, complicated person." She is Gaynell Caudill Begley, his wife of 33 years.

Joe Begley, 55, and Gay Begley, 57, are a study in contrasts. They are strikingly different in personality and temperament, but yet together in their views and opinions. It is easy to get the feeling that Gay Begley is quietly behind Joe Begley's public image.

Begley wears dungarees and a denim shirt, and his hair is a little long by mountain standards. It curls over his collar in back. He is tall and lanky. His face is angular with finely chiseled features, and they say in Letcher county that he looks like Abraham Lincoln.

There is nothing about Gay Begley's appearance to distinguish her. She wears a printed housedress and an old sweater. Her reddish hair is closely cropped, and her face is slightly wistful and tired. Her voice is soft and she speaks slowly and thoughtfully.

She is as low-key as her husband is flamboyant. Friends describe Joe Begley as a "common-sense person," and Gay Begley as a "real intellectual." She is well educated and well read and well informed on a variety of topics.

Gay Begley views her role as being "supportive" of her husband in his endeavors. "We talk over things and ideas all the time," she says, "but I despise going to meetings."

Begley says he gets a lot of help and a lot of information from his wife. "She reads a lot," he says. "And she's got a good education. She reads things and she sees things that are important that I would miss."

Gaynell Begley was born in Blackey, and her childhood home was on the spot where the store now stands.

Joe and Gay Begley came back to Blackey from West Virginia in 1966 to run the store after her father's death. The store still bears his name, "C. D. Caudill, General Merchandise," and it is a real landmark in the community. But Joe Begley is perhaps its most celebrated keeper.

Begley is a colorful character. An old mountaineer. He's a storekeeper, a deputy sheriff, a community organizer. Begley has made himself somewhat of a citizen's advocate for the mountain people.

It all came about, says Begley, because "I knew the people. I knew they were in trouble, and I knew they didn't know their rights." So Joe Begley set out to help them.

In his role as deputy sheriff of Letcher county, he became the guardian of the bridge across the Kentucky River at Blackey. And he has stationed himself at the bridge some 24 times, he will tell you, to stop overweight trucks from destroying it.

Gay Begley was graduated from Berea College with a degree in psychology. She did graduate work in psychology at the University of Chicago.

"I didn't get a master's though," she says. "I ran out of money. I had a small scholarship. So I thought I would work for a while and then go back. I liked it so much. It was so exciting."

She never did go back to college. It was just before the war, and she went to Hartford, Conn., to work in the laboratory of a mental hospital, where she ran one of the first electroencephalographs in the country.

It was in Hartford that Gaynell Caudill met Joe Begley.

"It's hard to believe that somebody's accent would be as noticeable and as commented on as our southern accents were," she says, explaining how she met her husband. "But that was before the war and before television, and it was like another age. This friend of mine said to me, 'I know somebody else who talks funny like you do.' And I told my friend to ask him if he were homesick and to tell him to call me and we would talk."

Three months later Joe and Gay Begley were married in Connecticut by a justice of the peace who had never performed a ceremony before.

Begley says he doesn't think his father would approve of all of his independent outspokenness. "Everybody liked him," he recalls. "But he didn't swing right or swing left." However, Begley notes that his father was probably one of the first to challenge the broad form deed. A gas company he says, owned the rights to his father's land.

"They drilled a well on him. He got some chains and locked it down against their will so they couldn't get the gas. So, of course, they got a court order against him and got him in court, and it just laid in court for several years. He couldn't get anything done."

So, Begley says, his father decided to compromise. "He asked them for more than he thought he could get, and they accepted."

Begley says his mother made sure he stayed in school, and he made it almost to the end of his senior year in high school.

"I dropped out because I couldn't go along with some of the things they were teaching. History and things like that . . . They would talk about an Indian massacre and a soldier's victory. But they couldn't tell me what the difference was."

Begley went to Mayo Vocational School in Paintsville and studied to be a machinist. He was working for the aircraft industry in Connecticut when he was married. During the war, he went into the Navy, and afterward, the Begleys lived in Blackey for a few years while Joe worked in his father-in-law's store.

"But," says Gay Begley, "Joe had liked machinists' work real well, and that's all he wanted to do."

Begley went to work for the United Fuel Gas Co., and the Begleys lived in West Virginia for 15 years. Their three children grew up there—J. T. Begley, who is now an attorney in Lexington; Janie, now Mrs. Mike Dixon, who lives in Blackey, and Jim, who is 16 and still lives at home.

Gay Begley worked in West Virginia, first as a school teacher. But she became disillusioned with education and went to work as a psychometrist for a rehabilitation center.

Since they have been back in Blackey, Gay Begley has been content to stay at the store. "I just love people," she says. She sits in the swing and watches the coal trucks, and that disturbs her.

"I just love the mountains," she says. "And I cannot think of anything in this world that would cause me to be a part of taking a bulldozer and pushing trees down senselessly and leave them lying there—some this way and some that way. And of destroying a mountain and fixing it so that dirt's going to go and those rocks are going to come tumbling down. I can't imagine it."

"A lot of good people, a lot of people we care about are working in strip mining," she continues. "It's getting closer to us all the time. At first I thought we were being hurt in our business by some of the things Joe said and some of the publications he was quoted in. But it didn't really make that much difference because we had decided whatever happened somebody was going to have to speak out. Now it's okay. We're not getting rich, but we're holding our own. They (the customers) don't seem to care. They know we're against it. And I reckon they know that we love them no matter what they do. So therefore, they are going to love us no matter what we say."

The Begleys are most outspoken on the subject of bureaucracy. They both feel strongly about local control of agencies, institutions and governments. Politicians and bureaucrats, they feel, are completely out of touch with the people they are working for. OEO, Begley feels, is a case in point.

"I didn't go along with everything OEO did here," says Begley. "We tried to get them to build some bridges and buy some buildings and some land. But that's permanent institutions that OEO can't take back to Atlanta, Ga., when they leave—and you know they're going to go. So they just put their money in beans and potatoes. The people will eat it all up and they won't have anything left."

"I think institutions take over from the people who are associated with them," says Begley. "The attitude in the social system and in government is to get people out of the community . . . And that's no good. When you leave a community, you leave reality."

"The trouble is," concludes Joe Begley, "that people want to go along with federal agencies to the extent that if you was on your way to hell, you would have to go through Atlanta, Ga., to get there."

"Sometimes, I'd rather be out of it. Sometimes I'd rather let some other people move in. We've got some characters down here that's got a good education. They need to get into it. But they won't get into it."

"But once you start the fight," says Joe Begley, "you can't get out. You got to do the best you can and that's all."

Opinions from the Office Of the Attorney General

Among opinions released last week from the office of Attorney General Ed W. Hancock were the following:

In response to Assistant Chief of Police Jeff Oliver, of Princeton, the Attorney General's office says that constables possess the same qualifications as sheriffs, and their jurisdictions shall be co-extensive with the counties in which they reside. Therefore the mayor, chief of police or the city council cannot bar an elective constable from working in the city limits.

In answer to City Attorney Edward C. Keeton Jr., of West Liberty, the Attorney General's office says that parking tickets issued within the city of West Liberty by meter maids are valid. In connection with the arrest statute, however, the meter maids can only make arrests as private individuals and not as peace officers. The meter maids in question are high school girls who patrol the metered parking areas of West Liberty on foot and issue parking tickets to automobiles whose time has expired on the meter.

Roy G. Houser, executive director of the Corbin Chamber of Commerce, was advised by the Attorney General's office that chambers of commerce in Kentucky are not "public agencies" and therefore not subject to the requirements of the open meetings law recently passed by legislation.

To Steve Robbins, of Richmond, the Attorney General's office said that a city attorney must not only be a resident at the time of his election, but must remain in residence for the prescribed time or term for which he is elected. Where residence is made a condition of eligibility to office it should exist at the time and for the period required by law.

The Labor Department reports that competition for entrance into medical school is becoming increasingly keen. In 1973, there were about 40,000 applicants for only 14,000 openings.

Strummers, Singers, Dancers Ready for Folk Festival Here

By HELEN PRICE STACY
Singers, poets, musicians, craftsmen and artists are strumming, picking and whittling in preparation for the ninth annual Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival, Aug. 30-31 and Sept. 1, at the Jenny Wiley State Park amphitheatre. "Friday and Saturday evening programs at 8 will be traditional mountain music, and we are expecting sessions of high entertainment and interest," the director, Mrs. Edith F. James, said. Mrs. James is an authority on traditional mountain music and dancing and feels it is important to nurture and preserve an ancient musical heritage. Religious heritage of the Kentucky Highlands will also be emphasized in a program starting at 5 p.m. Sept. 1. Explains Mrs. James: "We will start with the ancient dance or worship with the body, then our old hymn tunes reminiscent of early plain chant, then the Gregorian chant. Hopefully, we will have as guests the Society of Preservation of Southern Harmony Singing from Benton, Ky., with their four-note scale and a school teaching the seven-note scale of do-fa-li-so and the like, ending with a modern choir." Mrs. James and her workers are exacting purists. Students and teachers will be able to add data to research papers and perhaps authenticate other materials. The folk festival is a part of Kentucky's Bicentennial celebration. Travelers to the state park in Floyd county may take Interstate 64 from I-75 and then on to the Mountain Parkway to Prestonsburg and its junction with the park access road. Those planning to attend from the Ashland-Huntington area can travel via U. S. 23 through Lawrence and Johnson counties.

Bookmobiles Mark 20th Anniversary

Frankfort, Ky.—Twenty years ago the Kentucky Legislature appropriated funds for the state's first fleet of bookmobiles and put the state's library system on the road to success. Before bookmobiles began circulating through the counties, few rural Kentuckians had access to library materials. For example, in 1954, 80 per cent of Kentucky's rural population had no free library service. Of the 73 county libraries in existence, 31 were judged substandard according to American Library Association (ALA) criteria. But today, according to State Librarian Charles Hinds, Kentucky has one of the finest library systems in the nation, with 118 libraries meeting ALA standards and 110 bookmobiles reaching 99 counties. Unlike many other states, Kentucky began building its library system with bookmobiles. Hinds said that in other states a central town library usually came first. Then as more funds became available branch libraries were built. Finally, bookmobiles were used to extend library service to rural areas. In many Kentucky counties, however, funds were not available for a central library. Buying a bookmobile was a less expensive yet effective way to get library services started, Hinds said.
