Track Loss Is Blocked By Damron Commission Rejects Planned Abandoning Of 6 Miles of Rail

Floyd county learned last month the importance of having one of its residents on the Kentucky Railroad Commission. But for the fact that Robert (Bob)-Damron, chairman of the commission, is from this county and is vitally interested in it, approximately six miles of C. & O. main-line tracks on Left Beaver Creek would in all probability have been abandoned and removed.

Early in December, the railway company filed with the Railroad Commission for permission to abandon all its Left Beaver Creek line from Hi Hat to its terminal in the Wheelwright-Melvin area. The company proposed the action on the grounds that coal production in the area had ended and that the railway was not needed. Removal of the tracks would have saved C. & O. taxes paid annually on that section of line, plus the cost of maintenance.

Mr. Damron contended that rail abandonment would be fatal to the area and that future coal needs will make the line of value not only to the railway company but to industry and the people. Damron said that when the issue came up for decision Dec. 12 the protest of the Floyd fiscal court against the proposed action arrived in the proverbial nick of time. "The telegram from the court was very helpful," he said. He was joined in rejecting the C. & O. proposal by the only other surviving member of the com-mission, Shelby McCallum, of Benton. Commissioner Chester Rigsby died last year

Damron said the final result of the company's proposal was a compromise. "We agreed," he said, "to allow C. &. O. to remove its spur tracks at Jack's Creek, Wheelwright and Melvin, but these cover less than two miles, are in poor condition and have not been in use for some time."

Fiscal Court Members Take Oath

Floyd fiscal court members—two new magistrates and two veterans—took the oath of office at the office of County Judge Henry Stumbo last Friday morning. They and all other county officials except the tax commissioner will assume office next Monday. Shown in photo are, from left, Dewey Roberts, District 4 magistrate who will begin his sixth term; Kenneth Roberts, new magistrate in District 2; LeRoy Akers, also a new members of the court, representing District 3; Bill Wells, District 1 magistrate who will be beginning his third term. Judge Stumbo, who administered the oath, is at right.

Whether my daughter is gifted with prophetic vision or with a clear memory of the fix I have always been in, I do not know. Maybe it's a combination of the two. Anyway, when she began looking for something for me for Christmas, it turned out to be a placard to be hung in my office. And it reads:

Fiscal Court Enters Bid for Coal Plant

the ring in the competition for one of the proposed coal gassification plants when resolution requesting the location of such an operation in the county.

The resolution pointed out that Floyd county "is centrally located in the coal fields of Eastern Kentucky" and has several sites available. It also cited the abundant supply of labor, water resources, and such facilities as churches, schools and good roads. The court oledged its full support and assistance in finding a suitable site and in acquiring property for the plant in the event that a Floyd location is made.

Floyd county officially tossed its hat in the Hill Engineering Company as consulting engineer for the Beaver Creek (Martin) Channel Project. The fee for the its fiscal court recently adopted a service was set at $160 a day, the fee to be paid only when the services as consultant are used by the court.

The court filed a formal protest with the Kentucky Railroad Commission against the abandonment, dismantling and removal of spur railway tracks on Left Beaver Creek

Manager Tells Work at Park Slated in '74

George Barker, manager of Jenny Wiley State Park and its May Lodge, said this week that he foresees no drastic loss of business at this tourist and recreation center as a result of the fuel crisis.

"We're only a gas tank away from any place in Kentucky, and large sections of Ohio, West Virginia and Virginia are in that driving distance, too," he said, explaining his optimism.

'Reviewing the reservations we have, I can't see where the gasoline shortage has had any adverse effect," Mr. Barker said. He added that last month's business grosses $8,000 more than December a year ago and that Jenny Wiley revenues for the last six months of the year were $100,000 above those of the same period in 1972.

"It may be that we'll not be overbooked at the lodge, as in the past, but we expect to be at capacity this year," he said.

Contracts approaching $200,000 have recently been awarded on installations at the new camping area on Goble Branch, an addition which is expected to justify Barker's optimism.

The Bradley & Powers Construction Co., Paintsville, has been awarded the contract for all utilities in the camping area. This involves lights, water sewerage and a sewage treatment plant at a cost of $150,691.50. The work is to be completed by May 27

The Mays Construction Company was the successful bidder on construction of two service buildings in the camp areathe main service structure and a second smaller building to be erected for the same purpose. These will house showers, restrooms, washer-dryer facilities, and the like. The block buildings will be trimmed with cut stone and will be of such design as to contribute to the attractiveness of the camp scene. These are due for completion by April 27.

Water line from Auxier to the camping area is now being laid by the Auxier Water Company

Road and tent pad construction remain to be done. The park manager said plans specify 122 campsites but that he expects 150 sites in all to be available

William Green Hall, 20-year-old Prestonsburg truck driver, drowned in Straight Creek, Leslie county, last Saturday afternoon while two friends fought frantically to free him from the wreckage of his truck in which he was pinned.

He and Don Thornsbury were driving separate trucks for the R & S Truck Body Co., of Allen, to Middlesboro, with Thornsbury and Gordon Freels, who was in an auto, trailing him. When one or more cars in front of Hall suddenly stopped, he jammed on his brakes and his truck skidded from KY 421 into the stream

The cab was smashed onto the driver. Freels and Thornsbury could reach Hall's hand but could not pull him free

BLESS THIS MESS

A MUSIC BOX

Another appreciated gift that didn't fall through the hole in my stocking was a music box. Christmas eve, I tried it out, and the familiar "Silent Night" came tinkling into the fireplace quiet, an elfin, faraway sound that never fails to lend its own enchantment to the season. Music box...magic box. Unlike a record player, the more it runs down, the slower the notes come, the clearer, more haunting the music.

And then as I listened-a blast. The gent with the forked tail must have got a chortle out of convincing somebody, 'way back there, that the way to observe the birth of Christ is to shake somebody's windows with an explosion.

Telegrams making the request on behalf of the court were sent to Congressman Carl D. Perkins, U. S. Senators Dee Huddleston and Marlow Cook and to Governor Wendell Ford. The resolution was adopted at the recommendation of County Judge Henry Stumbo, County Attorney James R. Allen and County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson. Pike county also is making a strong bid for such a plant. To date, Western Kentucky apparently has the edge in attracting a plant, if only one is to be located in the state.

At an earlier meeting last month the fiscal court authorized the contribution of $1000 to the George P. Archer Senior Citizens Center here. It also employed

Fuel Crisis Not All Bad As Coal Upsurge Seen

The fuel crisis has the coal industry said, "is, Where is there a place for us to Toledo, O. a different type of jumping and the gasoline and oil business mine, and where is the money? jumpy

But all is not perfect even with coal, having with shortages of gasoline and other oil products is far from as bad as that experienced in the larger population centers.

Coal prices are soaring, and it's a matter of getting the production. Standing in the way are materials shortages-roof bolts, mine timbers, diesel fuel lubricants and coal cars.

In this county one leading operator said the rail car shortage that affects the Kentucky River section is no problem here. The supply here at this time is adequate, and no more. In the Kentucky River field Harry LaViers, president of the South-East Coal Co., said his mines can count on no more than three-days-aweek operation because the L. & N. Railway cannot supply enough cars.

Eastern Kentucky coal apparently has balmier days ahead for a long time, but its production can't be expected to soar overnight. New underground mines aren't put into operation quickly, and they're expensive.

"The question for us," one operator

A mining plant capable of producing and processing a half a million tons of and the troubles Eastern Kentucky is coal a year would cost $10 million, this source said. That sort of investment requires some assurance, in advance, that the coal will have a market after the investment is made.

A coal gassification plant for Eastern Kentucky-in Floyd county, if local wishes were granted-is being urged. Congressman Carl D. Perkins is pushing the area for such a plant without mentioning any specific county, and he contends President Nixon has failed to allocate enough money to get under way and hurry along the crash program that is needed.

One such plant has been on the drawing board for a mid-West location two or three years now. Planned initially is a pilot plant-which still is not built-to use only five tons of coal a day. After testing is de ie at this miniature plant, the plans call or a $750 million installation which would use 25,000 tons of coal a day-and that is equivalent to all the present Big Sandy production.

In the last six months, however Standard Oil of Ohio has developed at gassification plant which would consume only 900 tons a day.

On the trouble side remains the federal regulations applying to "gassy" mines which includes mines of this area, none of which are gassy, coal men say. And that adds $2 a ton to the cost of the fuel, all of which is passed on to the consumer.

The "real pinch" on gasoline has not yet arrived in Eastern Kentucky but it's on its way, one major oil products distributor said Monday.

In spots it is already visible. Here, for instance, a large, modern Texaco station closed around mid-December and is now a used car site. A major Gulf station at Paintsville has been closed for several days and Ousley's Gulf Service here was out of gas Monday, with the filling of its pumps seen no earlier than today (Wednesday).

Marvin Music, Gulf distributor, said he is now allocated the same volume of gasoline that was sold during a corresponding period in 1972. He added that his company is hoping for a 7 percent allocation increase this year over 1972 and that diesel oil has not yet been a problem.

Congressman Perkins listens as member of group surrounding him speaks of something more cheerful than black lung.

More than 700 persons crowded the circuit court room here Wednesday and heard renewed demands from U.S. Representative Carl D. Perkins for another federal review of black lung benefit application denials in Eastern Kentucky

Perkins' Prestonsburg appearance was one of a series of meetings in dealing with the personal complaints of miners against Social Security administration practices and black lung benefit denials in particular. Other such meetings were also held last week in Perry and Letcher counties, Pikeville and Elkhorn City.

The Seventh District Democrat charged that a review of denied applications assigned to the Social Security Administration by a 1972 law was conducted in what he termed "a haphazard way," and he vowed to "keep working until you working people have justice."

Perkins pointed out that prior to passage of the 1972 bill, which set guidelines for black lung benefit eligibility, 80 percent of all Kentucky black lung benefit applications were being denied, and although the bill has forced some review of applications, he pointed out that "we have denials in this district of several thousand. We've helped this situation a lot but we have a long way to go.

Under the 1972 bill the Social Security offices were to do a complete review of all denied applications, but Perkins said the denials were "only skimmed over." A bill now pending in Congress, sponsored by Perkins, would clarify the 1972 bill but, according to the congressman, new opposition to the bill has arisen.

Perkins' primary goal is a complete review of applications and he hopes that through his efforts to meet benefit applicants individually, he may be able to demonstrate to Social Security officials the pressing need for such a review. "I want the Social Security people to know the severity of the situation," he said. Perkins estimated that 6,000 to 8,000 miners in the seventh district alone may be affected by a review of applications.

It was estimated that about 400 of those attending the hearing actually registered complaints through Perkins concerning problems connected with black lung disabilities benefits. "I had people who could hardly breathe." said Perkins. "Most of them are eligible for assistance, but either through direct denials or indirect lack of communication they have not received any benefits," he said.

According to Perkins, "there is only one way to correct this-that's on the federal level-federal mandate."

Congressman Perkins was apparently pleased with the turnout at the courthouse. His own estimates of the crowd were "a minimum of 750 people-maybe 1,000," he said. "I expected about half that.

Another facility to be upgraded at the park is the Jenny Wiley boat dock. Materials contracted for $9,000 should be arriving soon from the Robert L. Allen Lumber Co., Louisville, for the construction of the walkway and dock "fingers" providing boat slips, Barker said. Construction work will be done by park employees. No provision has yet been made for new lockers at the dock, however.

Board Counters With Increase In Assessment

A suit protesting assessment of a new building here for taxes has resulted, temporarily at least, in an increase rather than a drop in the assessment figure.

The action was filed in Floyd county court by Proctor Brown against Thomas R. Lemaster, Harry R. Burie and Edgille "Shag" Branham, members of the Equalization Board here, Brown contending that the $250,000 assessment of the Hovatter building which he purchased is exorbitant in view of the fact that he bought the property for $151,000.

In its answer and counter-claim the board pointed out that the original assessment was $349,000 and that the board heard the complaint of Brown and lowered the assessment to $247,730. Having pointed out that fact, the board then asked that the Brown complaint be dismissed and that the assessment figure be restored to the original $349,000.

Edgille Branham, clerk of the board, in a partial report of the board's action, told how the board arrived at the $247,730 assessment. The lots on which the building was erected were valued at $31,250, and the 7,216 square feet of floor space in the structure were assessed at $30 per square feet, or $216,480.

Harry Gordon Allen, Floyd tax commissioner at the time the litigation developed, filed a statement showing that his assessment of the property for 1974 taxation was $150,000. He added that the building was not completed till late 1973.

Digest Warns That Postal Rates Will Kill Many Publications

New York, Dec. 17-The Reader's Digest, in a rare "message from the editors," warns this week that "a large number of magazines" will be forced to stop publishing if projected increases in second-class postal rates are allowed to take effect as presently scheduled. In the lead article in its January issue, the Digest characterizes the increases as "the most serious financial threat in the magazine industry's history.'

The rates, which apply also to newspapers, are already 50 percent higher than they were three years ago. Yet last September 25, the U. S. Postal Service announced its intention to more than double second-class rates over the next three years. Moreoever, some observers of postal affairs think the rates may actually triple.

Individually these increases may seem relatively small, amounting to just a few cents per copy. But cumulatively they mean many millions of dollars of added expense, which newspapers and magazines simply cannot absorb. The Digest, for example, estimates that if the ncreases go through as planned they will raise its bill for second-class postage alone from the present $7 million a year to $16 million! That's in addition to $4 million increase in first-class postage. Passing along these postal increases, along with increases for paper and other factors, could raise the price of a subscription from the present $4.97 a year to $6.97 by 1976. If other publications are forced to increase their prices in similar fashion, the result could be to create a magazine industry for the affluent only, the article says. "In other words, lowerincome Americans, the very people who perhaps most need an inexpensive means of continuing education, are the main losers.'

The article declares that magazines and newspapers are "captive customers" of the U. S. Postal Service which is a legal monopoly. Even so, much of the work of sorting, bagging and shipping magazines is done by private truckers, rather than the Postal Service. But there's a catch: "At the end of each truck's journey, it must back up to a postoffice ramp, where the bags (are) handed over to the Postal Service for the age-old give-it-to-the-mailman system of delivery.

For two centuries, it has been U.S. postal policy not to take unfair advantage of this monopoly. Following a policy first established by Benjamin Franklin, Congress has since 1782 granted rates which allowed magazines and newspapers to be mailed at less than cost, because these periodicals were considered an educational service to the nation.

In 1973, for all periodicals, this support amounted to $190 million. "Few public policies have been more successful - or a better bargain," the article declares. For an annual charge of about a dollar per capita, the Post Office helps to maintain the health of newspapers and magazines, which together constitute our most powerful medium for the continuing education of citizens.

But under terms of the Postal ization Act of 1970 the bill sponsored by Sen. Gale McGee (D., Wyo.), that would phase in the payment by magazines of their full postal costs over the next eight years instead of the next three. Rep. James Hanley (D., N.Y.), supports similar legislation.

For the longer range, the article declares: "Congress should take a hard look at its basic decision to make periodicals pay their full costs. For we don't see how anyone can logically defend a decision that is almost certain to kill off a large segment of one of this country's most fundamentally important institutions."

The article urges readers to write their Congressmen - and additionally Sen. McGee and Rep. Hanley.

At the time of World War II, India estimated it had a population of 40,000 Bengal tigers. The last census revealed less than 2000 of the magnificent animals.-SPORTS AFIELD

Service is required by law to establish rates that by 1976 will make almost every class of mail pay its own way. Many who voted for the Act did so on the assumption that modern business techniques would help the Postal Service reduce costs and improve service, and that rates would not skyrocket. In the words of Rep. Olin Teague, of Texas, "The assumption proved wrong." Instead, service remains substantially the same, costs are rising, and the Postal Service is demanding second-class rate increases that could soar 200 or 300 percent! How can disaster be averted? Raymond A. Bradbury, formerly of Wheelwright and Prestonsburg, was elected president of the Martin County Coal Corporation at a special board of directors meeting, December 5. Previously, he was vice-president and general manager, a position he had held since November 1, 1969 when he joined the company

Mr. Bradbury began his professional career with Armco Steel Corporation's Mining Division in June, 1950, immediately after graduation from West Virginia University. After Air Force service he worked at Sparta, Illinois for the Midwest Utilities Coal Corp. as mining engineer in 1955 and 1956. From there he went to David as industrial engineer for Princess Coals, Inc. in July, 1956. After 21/2 years as director of industrial engineering and then the same period as general superintendent, he returned to Armco Steel at Montcoal, West Virginia as mine superintendent and remained there until May 1, 1966 when he became manager of mines for the Evans-Elkhorn Division of Island Creek Coal Co. at Wheelwright. In February, 1969 he became division manager of the Elkhorn Division and then went to the Martin County Coal Corporation, a subsidiary of A. T. Massey Coal Company, Richmond, Virginia.

Mr. Bradbury and his wife, the former Clara Blackburn, have a son, Philip Neal, 19, and a daughter, Barbara Lynn, 14. They live at Inez, and attend the United Methodist Church.

A Challenging Job Ahead

To say that the new city administration which will take office next Monday faces a big job is merely to confirm what the new mayor and city councilmen already know. But the fact may have escaped many of us who are not directly connected with city government.

Prestonsburg has been, since the day when Bert Combs became governor of Kentucky, a shining example of community development and progress. The late Dr. George P. Archer as mayor, those who worked with him, and the consistent cooperation of Congressman Carl D. Perkins, plus a friendly state administration-all these combined to provide a community-state-federal effort that brought undeniable results.

The means of continued progress and constructive effort remains. The need also remains with us. Our neighbors, Paintsville and Pikeville, are on the move. Prestonsburg has been regarded as the potential business center of the Big Sandy alley, but it cannot attain this coveted status by standing still. It could become the rim rather than the hub.

The new city administration, we understand, is committed to the elimination of unnecessary expense to taxpayers, to ending needless spending. It will find a ready public response to this policy. The taxpayers cannot provide a bottomless pit of funds.

But the economies, desirable as they are, should not stall the forward movement that has put Prestonsburg in an enviable position, these recent years, among the county-seat towns of the valley. Paintsville has a recreation project under way, downtown business renewal work in the offing and an industrial park of some 14 acres awaiting industry. Pikeville has its giant "cutthrough" project moving, and its development in the next few years should be a model of municipal progress.

Prestonsburg cannot afford to mark time, standing still while its neighbors are on the move. Which means, this new administration has a big job on its hands.

Letters to the Editor

Agrees with Editorial

Editor, The Times:

I read with great interest your editorial in reference to Tom Harris, Commissioner for Natural Resources and the Environment. I, too, recall the Commissioner's statements of September, 1972 in respect to the devastation brought about by strip mining. Could it be that he does have a "short memory," as you intimated, or is he suddenly coming under the influence of "money bags and power politics?'

Apparently Mr. Harris is in complete accord with the so-called "broad-forms deed" and its expanded interpretations. It's drastic enough for one's land to be invaded without permission, but it's nothing short of gross criminal action when one's property is so wantonly ravished.

I grew up in Floyd county, and formerly taught school on Brush Creek and Salt Lick of Right Beaver. Although I haven't resided in my native state for 30 years, my family and I enjoy visiting those beautiful hills every summer and fall. It is, however, with great sadness that I view the barren and broken landscape that continues to replace the magnificent splendor of Eastern Kentucky.

House Majority Leader John Swinford is to be congratulated for his courageous stand. His proposed bill banning spoil from the slopes below strip-mine operations certainly deserves the unqualified support of every Kentuckian. Yes, even that of the Commissioner for Natural Resources and the Environment

As for Tom Harris preventing a depression, his ultra-liberal attitude will have just the opposite effect. A sloppy mining operation provides work for fewer men than does a well-planned, ecology-saving one.

While the "broad-forms deed" apparently does give the coal operators much leeway in extracting coal as he sees fit, it does not give him a license to destroy the environment surrounding his operations! Think about that, Mr. Harris.

The TIMES is to be complimented for its consistent position of concern and fair play in the above matters.

With the last day of 1973 Dick Davis ended 46 years as superintendent of the Prestonsburg water and gas system.

Thanks Volunteer Helpers

Editor, The Times:

During this season of the year when we finally remember to give thanks and best wishes to each other, I would like to express, in this public way, my personal thanks and best wishes to those volunteers who have served our children and school this year. I feel sure I also speak for those children and teachers who have been assisted.

Without the time and effort these people have given us, we would not be as far along in many of our school programs as we are today

It is a good feeling to know that many people care enough about their school to become actively involved in its program, and are glad to assist the school in reaching goals set for children.

Please keep the wonderful work going, volunteers!

Let George Do It—Season's Greetings

I learned another lesson. Our schools are without the Bible. Our children do not hear God's word any more. Not running our schools down-they do the best they can. But, parents, are you going to believe God's word or would you rather believe some of our modern teachers? Here are things children are learning in homes, on the streets, and even in school:

1. Let them have plenty of money to spend as they like. 2. Let them choose any companions they might desire, 3. Allow them to return home late at night. 4. Let them attend sex movies, dances, play slot machines. 5. Teach them to expect pay for all help at home, and for all service to others. No charity. 6. Let them spend Sunday hours on the streets instead of attending Sunday school and church. 7. Do not teach them the Bible in the home or try to win them to Christ. 8. By your example show them that church attendance is unimportant. Never let them hear you pray. 9. Never punish them for lying, stealing, profanity, spitefulness or disobedience.

These things on this list are childrenkillers. Also church-killers, Satan's tools for closing churches. A few weeks ago I was asked by a person who professes to be a Christian, what right my wife had in having a Christian girls club and a Ladies Christian Fellowship, a church Sunday school. I was told these things are not in the Bible. This caller said, "I'm a retired preacher.'

No wonder God retired him! God only retires hearers, not doers, of the word. I searched the Bible and could not find the name of this man's church in it, nor could I find his name listed as a preacher; so from his point of view, I must take it that he is not a preacher. I find the requirements for pastors, and other church workers. But there is no real outline as to how the church is to train people. Lead them to Christ. The Bible gives us God's plan for salvation. It also states the Lord adds to the church daily those to be saved-not just on Saturday, if you are a sabbathkeeper, or at one service on Sunday morning. It said, daily God added to the church. I have a question to be asked of some Christians, you believe and claim you want sinners saved, yet you put things in their paths to stop them. I ... ve been told I am not saved because I was not baptized on Sunday between the hours of 9:30 and 10:30 p.m. in a white robe. Another said, I'm not saved because I was not baptized by a Jew in a river running north. This list could go on for many pages.

Here's one for you to think over, if you believe these lies, here's one for you: you are not saved unless you have a written letter from Jesus and have been baptized by me. Remember God is in the saving business, not you or a church building. If you want people to be saved, help wipe out the church membership page in Floyd county. Every day I meet people and try to talk with them about Jesus. They say to me, "Never mind, I am a church member." If I asked if they are a Christian, some say, no. I'm a Baptist, Methodist, Church of God, etc.

Part of Project Apollo

Pippa Passes, Ky .- John Trusty and Helen Turner, two Alice Lloyd College Upward Bound counselors, and six area Upward Bound students, spent a recent week-end finding out about nature and themselves by participating in a unique living-learning experience called Project Apollo.

Project Apollo is operated by Murray State University and is intended to develop self confidence in Upward Bound students. The project exposes students to primeval living conditons and demonstrates that even the harshest conditions can be overcome through self reliance and team effort.

During the two days spent at Land-Between-the-Lakes, a 170,000 square mile National Recreation Area owned by the Tennessee Valley Authority about 15 miles from Murray, students and counselors hiked, camped, rapelled down a 100 foot cliff, and explored a cave.

High school students from ALC's Upward Bound program who went on the trip were: Jonathan Back, Letcher County high school; Mike Hughes, Knott County High School; Jeffery Johnson, Wheelwright High School; Ronnie Skeens, Leslie County High School; Eddie Sexton, Allen Central High School; and Gene Vanover, Carr Creek High School

Project Apollo began in September and will continue through August of next year. By the time the project is over, thousands of Upward Bound students from 18 states extending from Wisconsin to Florida will have participated, according to Project Apollo literature.

By the end of the 1973 fiscal year, the U. S. Employment Service had 34 statewide job banks that provide information about job openings and job applicants on a computerized basis through each of the States involved.

"Old" Christmas Lives on in Area

At an early Old Christmas party here the late Bill Marshall teaches Mrs. Edith F. James a few steps of the "Killikrankie," an old Scottish folk dance which he learned from Mrs. James' father. At the same gathering, Marshall also performed the wellknown Scottish sword dance which, like the other dance, had survived for generations in this section. Onlookers include (clockwise), Alice Gray Buchanan, Sarah Clay Stephens, Snookie Cross Meade, Tom James (seated), Herbert Salisbury, Jr., Porter Mayo and Bob Salisbury. (The "coverlid" hanging over the mantle was handwoven in Knott county.)

Old Christmas Party To Mark Bicentennial

"Old Christmas," a centuries-old dying mountain custom. tradition which in memory at least has remained vital in the isolation of mountain hollows and valleys in many parts of Appalachia, will be observed on the traditional date of January 6 at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, and will usher in Floyd county's part of the state's Bicentennial celebration.

Mrs. Edith Fitzpatrick James, who revived the old custom in this area, said that the first "rebirth" of the observance took place during the early "depression years" of the 1930's when she was placed in charge of a special recreation program in Prestonsburg for Christmas Day (Dec. 25), Mrs. James became ill just before Christmas and the recreational activities were cancelled. It was then that she recalled the custom of Old Christmas and decided to reschedule the activities for January 6.

"We had the biggest, finest party you ever saw," said Mrs. James. A room of the old school building on the present location of the Board of Education was decorated and "we had musicians from up and down most of the creeks" to provide traditional square dance music.

Because of her deep-seated interest in the folkways of the mountains, Mrs. James decided to make the Old Christmas ceremony an annual event, both to provide public entertainment and, more importantly, to help preserve a slowly to begin at 4 p.m.

when the people of the British Isles and other parts of Europe set the birthdate of Christ on January 6 in accordance with the original Julian calendar. When the present-day Gregorian calendar was accepted in 1752, many of the early Anglo-Saxon settlers who settled America, and especially those in the Appalachians, were not inclined to immediately discard their age-old custom, and for years mountain people continued to observe the day in the isolation of the hills.

"When I was a child," said Mrs. James, "Old Christmas didn't take the place of Christmas proper, but at Christmastime we would always hear all the old stories and legends connected with the old observance." One of the stories told of how the cattle and animals in the barn would "low" or kneel in reverence at midnight on Old Christmas eve and mystically acquire the power of speech. "Every Old Christmas we children were determined to see these things, but naturally we always fell asleep.

This year's celebration, the first to be held at May Lodge, will feature several local musicians providing traditional mountain tunes. Refreshments will also be served. Activities are scheduled

Being moved in February by fire and moving again on our own in December reminds me that if we had a cow we would have to shoe her.

This is New Year's Day, and we're working. There used to be an old Ed'ards sayin' around which ran to the effect that if you work on the first day of the year you would work the year long. "Red" Osborne and I tried that out, a few years ' back, and went fishing on Jan. 1. We didn't fish all year but didn't miss it much.

I had a New Year's resolution drafted for Lenna Moore to sign, but we seem to bug him, since Watergate sprung a leak, and he hasn't been around yet.

Happy New Year to the lot of you!

Proposed Bill Would Extend State Police Jurisdiction

Frankfort, Ky.—A special invitation might be issued to the Bureau of State Police during the 1974 session of the General Assembly.

State Sen. Carroll Hubbard (D-Mayfield) has prepared it, the Interim Committee on State Government has endorsed it, and within weeks the state legislature will consider inviting state policemen to enforce the law "anywhere within the boundaries of the Commonwealth."

The invitation, in the form of a bill authored and prefiled by Sen. Hubbard on Nov. 21, would permit state police to enforce criminal and traffic laws within cities of the first five classes (cities having a population over 1,000).

According to the present statute, "Neither the commissioner nor any officer of the Department shall exercise (full police power) within the limits of any incorporated city of the first five classes," except:

--When in "hot pursuit" of an offender or supposed offender, or searching for a suspect wanted for a crime committed outside the corporate limits of a city.

-When interviewing or seeking to interview a witness to a crime under state police investigation.

--When requested to act by the chief executive officer of the city or its police chief, or when ordered by the Governor. State police records show that troopers have already been enforcing the law, by invitation of local authorites, in most cities of the first five classes. Those communities which have not invited troopers in are:

Louisville (first class); Ashland and Covington (second class); Bellevue, Catlettsburg, Ft. Wright, Ludlow, Park Hills and Southgate (fourth class); and, Alexandria, Lynnview, St. Regis Park, Villa Hills and Wilder (fifth class).

Capt. William G. Mullins, legal counsel for the state police, said that while the number of cities asking for state police help is one the increase, there are also instances when a community may ask them to leave.

The question of overlapping jurisdiction also arises. When does the responsibility of local police end and that of state police begin?

The general rule is that if a state trooper is first on the scene, local police assist him. "If the local police arrive there first, then we (state police) assist them," Mullins said.

Mullins also pointed out that state police officers can enforce only state and federal laws, whereas city or county police can enforce local as well as state and federal laws.

"A misdemeanor might occur right in front of one of our men," Mullins said, "but if that officer doesn't have jurisdiction in that city, he is in the same position as any other citizen and cannot make an arrest. If the offense is a felony, he can, as any other citizen, make a citizen's arrest."

When the General Assembly convenes in January, opposition to Sen. Hubbard's bill may go over some of the same ground covered by detractors to the original bill in 1948.

Back then, many citizens feared that a state police force with wide jurisdictional powers would put too much power in the hands of state government. Writing into that bill a restriction on state police entering cities of the first five classes was just enough of a compromise to get the bill approved.

Ron Johnson, commissioner of the Bureau of State Police, emphasized that a bill providing for statewide jurisdiction is "theoretically an excellent idea."

"There should be provisions made, however, stating the exact responsibilities which state police, in cooperation with local police, would exercise in local jurisdictions," Johnson said.

Johnson said he was also concerned about the question of adequate manpower, if the legislature passes Sen. Hubbard's measure.

"I would hope that legislators will give state police the added resources necessary to carry out any additional responsibilities wich they see fit to assign." Johnson said

In addition to the engine, Mid-Vo will provide three days of free instruction about their engines to Bradbury at a special clinic in Columbus, Ohio and pay his expenses to the clinic. Both Safriet and Bradbury were very pleased with the donation, noting that it would be an integral part of the everexpanding instructional opportunities being offered at Mayo.

Area Residents Help Selves Thru Community Development

Combs, Ky.—Whether it involves a bake sale, a spaghetti supper, or a trash collection, many Eastern Kentuckians are pitching in and helping themselves in community development programs.

The programs, which are administered by the University of Kentucky's Cooperative Extension Service, consist of local citizens working together to solve community problems.

Community development was innovated by UK to encourage self-help. No funds are supplied by outside sources. Citizens provide their own operating capital.

Improvement efforts in Combs, where sewer lines are being installed, resulted in most residents giving $2 per month for a weekly trash collection.

An old railroad passenger car was also refurbished and now serves as the Combs Community Center.

Before community development was instituted. Combs relied on nearby Hazard for fire protection. The little community now has its own fire truck and volunteer fire department.

Other improvements in Combs include the erection of street signs, the clearing away of junked cars, and the destruction of several dilapidated and abandoned buildings.

Residents of the tiny town of Pactoles have financed a $12,000 building and the community of Whitehouse has conas concern for the community's total well being is expressed. "Many improvements are already evident and although much work

A New Year's Prayer

Unto Thee, O Lord my God, do I open my heart at this time of the turn of the year. As I review my conduct during the months that are passed, I am deeply conscious of my shortcomings. Often righteousness called to me in vain and I yielded to selfishness, anger and pride. I acknowledge my failings and I repent of them. I pray for Thy forgiveness and for the forgiveness of those whom I have wronged and hurt. Whatever life has brought me during the year now ended, grant that it may become unto me a source of strength and wisdom. O that the year now begun may be for me a new year indeed; new in consecration of purpose and in renewal of earnestness and sincerity; steadfast in rejecting all that is unworthy of me and of my heritage. Grant me strength of will to live as Thou wouldst have me live. Incline Thine ear unto me; be gracious unto me, O Lord. Lead me and guide me for my times are in Thy hand. Amen.

Community development first began in Northeastern Kentucky in 1961 when extension agents met with representatives of the Ashland Area Chamber of Commerce, the Second National Bank of Ashland and the Kentucky Power Co.

As a result of that meeting, the Northeast Kentucky Rural Community Development Association (NEKRCDA) was formed. The organization now encompasses communities in 12 Northeastern Kentucky counties and affects some 34,000 people.

NEKRCDA encourages civic development through the presentation of monetary awards to communities for various improvements.

Extension agents are quick to admit that 100 per cent participation is rare since some families will continue to dump their trash out the back door.

The success of community development programs can be measured by the steady growth of NEKRCDA, which began with 23 clubs and now has 77.

As one extension agent pointed out, "Community development programs provide double enrichment. As residents improve their town's appearance, they also become interested in their neighbor's welfare. Isolation and apathy decrease

Between Duties as State Senator And Net Arbiter He'll Be Busy

The following, from The Courier-Journal, pertains to State Senator-elect Nelson R. Allen, Floyd county native. Mr. Allen is a son of Mrs. Mallie C. Allen, of Hueysville, and the late Wayne Allen.

It will be a different season after the holidays for Nelson Allen, who over the years has been involved in enforcing rules as a basketball official in over 700 games.

Following the holidays, Allen takes on an additional role as Greenup county's first state senator in 55 years.

He and George Conley, now an official in the professional American Basketball Association, are the only native Eastern Kentuckians to reach the major college basketball officiating ranks. Conley also served a term as senator in the Kentucky legislature.

Basketball officiating has been a way of life for the likable Allen since he began shooting balls at a peach basketball goal on Brush Creek in rural Floyd county, some 35 years ago.

While attending Maytown High School, Allen began his officiating career by arbitrating after school scrimmages for coach Gene Frasure and pursued the endeavor at Morehead State University to help defray college expenses.

A hitch in the Navy in Hawaii failed to dampen Allen's enthusiasm as he worked numerous intramural service games before returning to Russell Central Junior High School as principal, a position he still holds.

"One of the toughest parts of my new assignment is leaving the youngsters in my school for 60 days," Allen said. "The majority of them sorta felt I wouldn't win. Now that I did, they're back of me 100 per cent and I'll miss the opportunity to receive their daily comments on how I missed this or that call in a college basketball game that was televised back home from Nashville, Columbus or Ann Arbor.

From his humble beginning when he, as a seventh grader, saw a whistle hanging on the gym wall and promptly blew it to stop the noise created by his fellow students, Allen worked many district, regional and state high school basketball tournaments before moving onto the Southeastern, Southern and Big Ten conferences. Allen plans to work 20 college games on Thursdays and Saturday nights from January through March this season.

One of Allen's favorite escapades in 15 years of officiating involves a college coach from a major Southern university. He was lodged in Prestonsburg and commuting with Allen, who was officiating the Perry County district tournament, to and from the games.

Along a culturally deprived route between Hazard and Dwarf, some youngsters were using a rag ball during a pickup game among themselves. Two days later when the two were again passing the spot, the college coach asked Allen to stop.

He then presented the boys with two collegiate basketballs and upon returning to the automobile, remarked, "You know, Eastern Kentucky has the greatest deposit of raw materials, probably in the Monitor Plans Deep Drilling In Morgan Co.

(From The Elliott County News) Crescent Drilling Co. of Owensboro has moved a rotary drilling rig to the Matt Blanton farm on Coon Creek near Artville to drill a deep test well for Monitor Petroleum Corp. of New York City, the first of a number of deep wells which Monitor plans to sink in Morgan and adjoining counties.

Bink Strickland, Monitor's manager in this area, said his company plans to drill the Artville well to the basement pre-Cambrian structure, estimated at about 10,000 feet in that area.

The Blanton farm formerly was known as the Pheobe Smith place and is about one mile east of the old Artville postoffice, and located on the head of Coon Creek in western Morgan county. No deep wells have been drilled in that area, and the Artville well is being sunk to test the deeper structures in western Morgan county and eastern Menifee.

Monitor commenced its operations in Eastern Kentucky in 1968, and drilled its first deep test at Stephens on Little Fork in Elliott county four years ago. Later, Monitor drilled a deep test in eastern Morgan county on the Freddy Ison farm at Moon on Docks Creek, going to the Rose Run formation at a depth of 10,019 feet

Meanwhile, Monitor has drilled a number of production wells in shallower formations in Elliott, Carter and Lawrence counties.

Strickland said this week Monitor plans to sink two more deep wells, one to

Supply of Gas To Many Hangs On Court Case

Slated for hearing in the Franklin circuit court Friday is a case on which depends future natural gas service to many residents of Floyd and other counties of the section.

The litigation began with applications of householders for gas service from the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company and a Kentucky Public Service Commission ruling to the effect that under Kentucky statute the company must supply service to any applicant if the company gas is on his or her land or if the applicant is within one-half air-mile of a well or gatherng line.

The PSC filed in Franklin circuit court for a mandamus to enforce its order. The gas company countered by filing for a restraining order. In procuring the temporary restraining order the company contended that the statute is unconstitutional. It also claimed that if new customers are added the service the company has already contracted to render to other customers will be curtailed.

Friday's hearing is expected to decide if the order restraining the PSC is to stand or if it will be dismissed.

Some new homes in Prestonsburg have been denied service, and 100 or more applications in the area are reported to have been denied.

Robert Goble was seriously injured December 19 when he fell from a ladder while pruning a tree at his home here. He sustained a broken back, a punctured lung and several broken ribs. He is improved after underoing surgery at Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington, this week

The Kentucky State Police has announced that recent tests show that drunken driving may be the main cause for highway deaths in the stae. Blood smaples taken at random from 135 drivers killed in traffic accidents from February through September show that 61 per cent were intoxicated at the time of the accident and only 21.4 per cent had no alcohol in their blood.

Court Docket For Next Term Lists 69 Cases

Unless the grand jury adds several new cases to the docket, the caseload for the circuit court term which will begin here next Monday will have one of the lightest dockets in years.

Only 67 cases are booked for trial as the term begins. There is not a murder case listed, although the grand jury is expected to hear witnesses in an attempt to pin down suspects in one or more of the county's five unsolved murder mysteries Concurrenty with the court opening, newly elected county officials will begin their terms of office. Only Lovel Hall, property valuation administrator (tax commissioner) is already in office.

The court docket includes two drug cases, two for arson involving four defendants, one auto theft, four for grand larceny involving eight persons, four breaking and entering, two striking and wounding, one stream pollution case, one rape, two forgery and six for possession, sale or transporting intoxicants.

offset the Stephens well and the other to offset the Moon well.

Both wells have been capped in. But it is reported the Moon well showed production of 75 barrels of oil and threefourths million feet of gas daily.

Monitor plans two more deep wells in a three- or four-county area where it has acquired drilling rights on leases originally owned by Shell Oil. However, their locations have not been revealed, pending more seismic work.

Meanwhile Monitor is enlarging its Eastern Kentucky office in Sandy Hook. Already Monitor has employed Wilbur Clevenger of Elliott county as superintendent in charge of its land department, and another district aide is to be named soon, Strikland said.

Also Monitor plans to drill a number of production gas wells in the coniferous on various leases it owns in Elliott and nearby counties.

Monitor now has a coniferous well going down on the Roscoe McDavid farm on the Elliott-Carter county line, and has made location for another coniferous well on the R. H. Ison lease at Blevins on Caines Creek in western Lawrence county. Homer Robinson of Louisa, is the drilling contractor on the two coniferous wells.

It is known that a number of utility companies are seeking additional gas production in this area of Eastern Kentucky, and observers predict considerable drilling in the immediate future, some deep wells and some production wells from the shallower formations.

The Legislative Research Commission has predicted that Kentucky may accumulate as much as $250 million in surplus funds over the next two fiscal years. The unappropriated funds would include a possible $166.5 million in revenue-sharing funds and $49 million in state general funds. The original estimate of $280 million was revised downward by the LRC because of the energy crisis.
