

Jury Names Turnkey for Fund Theft Worker, Fines Fund Disappear from Jail, 3 Accused of Rape

Embezzlement was charged in a grand jury indictment last week to Joseph Smith Tanner, of St. Albans, W. Va., who was accused by Jailor Lawrence Hale of taking $257 in public funds from the county jail during his brief work there as a turnkey.

Jailor Hale said Tanner was employed Dec. 22, worked two shifts and disappeared Dec. 23. The money, collected in fines, disappeared at the same time. Until the indictment was reported the alleged theft had not become generally known.

The grand jury recessed last Thursday till Jan. 28.

Among the 21 indictments reported at its recess was one charging rape, detaining a Prestonsburg woman and assault and battery against Thomas Howard Cesco. Two indictments against Bill Tom Shepherd and Larry Johnson accuse them of statutory rape and detaining a female against her will. One of the indictments was made on testimony of a 14-year-old girl; the other, on that of a girl, age 12. Both girls claim they were taken from the high school gym here, driven to a hollow in the vicinity of Pyramid and there attacked. Both men had earlier been arrested and placed under $5,000 bond each.

Irvin S. Tildwell and Frank Newsom were named in a grand larceny bill accusing them of stealing 56 guns and other items from the Western Auto Associate Store here. Others indicted and charges against each follow:

Jay Johnson and Carl Rowe, burglary of the dwelling of Lillian Fleming; Homer Thacker, $209.99 cold check issued to Maloney's of Prestonsburg; Jimmy Adams, breaking and entering the store of Geraldine Bentley; Crit Butler, cutting and wounding Ronald

Adkins Elected To Bank Board

Orville Adkins, Hueysville coal operator, was named a director of the First Guaranty Bank of Martin at the annual election of directors and officers last Tuesday.

Mr. Adkins was the only new member elected to the board. After ending his Army service following World War II, he was a merchant in the Maytown and Hueysville vicinities and in more recent years has been highly successful in the mining business.

Other directors of the bank are B. F. Reed, Glenn C. Spradlin, Jake C. Cooley, L. B. Brashear, B. Alvin Reed, Harry O. Zimmerman, George E. Evans, Jr., Harold J. Stumbo, Ben J. Spradlin, Digna Mandt, Julius C. Martin and Nick A. Cooley.

Officers of the bank, all of whom were re-elected, are B. F. Reed, chairman of the board; Glenn C. Spradlin, president; L. B. Brashear, vice-president; Ben J. Spradlin, vice-president and cashier; B. Alvin Reed, secretary; Wanda F. Hayes and Charles D. Johnson, assistant cashiers.

Total assets of the bank are in excess of $17 million, and the bank had a $2 million-plus growth last year.

Secret Witness Plan May Be Adopted Here

An anonymous letter from a resident of Garrett to Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo may result in the use of the "Secret Witness" plan to solve some of Floyd county's murder mysteries.

The letter-writer, apparently referring to the shotgun slaying of a deputy sheriff at Garrett and the slaying, a week later, of a man at Wayland, wrote:

"People know but are afraid to tell." Accompanying the note were pages from The Reader's Digest telling of the "Secret Witness" plan developed by The Detroit News and later adopted in 40 other cities across the country. Seventeen apparently insoluble murder mysteries have since that time been solved.

In the Detroit case the informant in the first case, that of the bomb-killing of a woman, simply tore off a corner of his letter to the city editor of The News. The person named as the killer was investigated and his guilt established. Then the informant mailed to the editor a

When Beaver Creek Came to Town

When this photo was taken last Friday, Beaver Creek was running 21 inches deep in Martin. Business there was at a standstill and residents, remembering the 1957 trial by water, were anxious. Water rose into three business buildings (on right side of street in picture) but actual damage was negligible.

This Town... That World

The streams rose last week, you might say, to the occasion.

AND THAT'S THAT

My friend, Richard Howard, who is doing graduate work at the University of Alabama, sends proof that Women's Lib has reached out into the hinterlands, down that way. As an example, he tells of a divorce case in a rural county in which the wife, 75, sued her husband, 82. The judge was curious. "Maggie," he asked, "tell me why, after 49 years of marriage, you want to divorce Jim."

"Well, Judge," she replied, "enough is enough."

WHY WORRY?

While all about me others were losing their cool last week at predictions that a loaf of bread will soon sell for a dollar, I viewed the situation without any alarm whatsoever. When the cost of a pone of cornbread skyrockets I'll begin to get excited. And when the price of pintos goes haywire I'll write my congressman.

TROUBLE ON THE HOME FRONT

Amid reports of fuel shortages, war in the Near East, the failure of the comet to shine as expected and a flock of other miseries, I hear of the troubles a certain businessman here has been having with a she-rat.

It has been war for months now, and the man is determined to fight it out if it takes all next summer. To date, his feud with this old rat has been defeat after defeat for the man.

"I've killed off three of her litters and three old he-rats she was runnin' with," he said. "Trapped 'em. Wiped 'em all out, except this she-devil that won't fall for any bait I set."

The rat hasn't any taste for poison, either. "See that oil drum out there? Well, the day after I fixed up a nice batch of hamburger for her, she sat there for an hour, preening herself like a cat, and eyein' me. People would pass, and she wouldn't stir an inch, just eye em, cold-like."

"That's one of the things that gets next to me, the contempt that old heilion has"

Stumbo Says Flood Damage Unassessed

Although the town of Martin was perhaps the county's most dramatic flood scene, with almost two feet of Beaver Creek water running down its main street, last week's heavy rains brought heavy damage to dozens of hollows and creeks.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said Monday he could make no accurate assessment of the damage to roads and bridges but that he expects each of the county's four magistrates to supply the picture at Wednesday's meeting of the fiscal court.

"We spent about $10,000 of our own funds to repair the damage done by flood, a few weeks ago, but if last week's damage runs to $15,000, say, we will need to apply for aid," he said.

One bridge which washed out on Middle Creek will require $6-$8,000 to restore, and there are between 25 and 30 culverts and drain-pipes out, Judge Stumbo said he had learned in a survey of his own.

At Martin it was mainly a cleanup job, worry over what might happen and the work of replacing business stocks at their normal levels after they had been moved before the rising water.

But the 1957 experience there when the Big Sandy backed up Beaver Creek's water into a disastrous flood did not materialize last week. Upriver dams were credited with holding the river stage down, permitting Beaver Creek and other tributaries to run out.

No estimate of the damage saved downstream communities by the heavy volume of water held behind Fishtrap, Pound and John Flannagan dams was available, but officials agreed they saved valley towns from a major flood disaster. Dewey Lake, held back 34 feet of Johns Creek water.

The Big Sandy crested here at 10 a.m. Saturday at 36.38 feet, approximately three feet below flood stage. Archer Park, except for its main buildings and swimming pool, was under water. Prestonsburg's floodwall and the pumps which threw water accumulating behind it into the river—that and the reduced river stage because of upriver reservoirs—prevented damage here.

Bill Harvey Howard, superintendent of the Prestonsburg Water and Gas System, said 2.42 inches of rain fell here between 9 a.m. last Wednesday and 2 p.m. Thursday. The rainfall at Dewey Dam, according to Dean Murray, Dewey Reservoir manager, was 3.11 inches from Wednesday through Friday. Some streams in the county were reported at record highs, and the damage to land by washing could not be assessed.

Highways closed by the water were those on Left Beaver Creek at McDowell, KY 468, 194 and 119 in Pike county, and at Salyersville where the business district had a reported two feet of water.

Allen Central Building Bonds Sell at 5.73%

The Floyd fiscal court last Wednesday accepted as lowest of the four bids offered on the $1,825,000 Allen Central High School building revenue bond issue that of John Nureen & Co., Inc. and Associates, of Chicago, which asked an interest rate averaging 5.73 percent over the amortization period ending in 1995.

The bond sale makes possible completion of Phase II at the new high school. The work, to be done by Akers & Akers, Dana contracting firm, will include an auditorium-gymnasium, departments of the school and an indoor swimming pool.

The Chicago firm's bid on the bond issue was $1,793,883.75. The interest rate begins at 5 percent for bonds maturing in 1975 through 1984, and after that time ranging upward .1 percent to 1992. Then the rate goes to 5.8 percent for 1992 and 1993 and to 5.9 percent for 1994 and 1995.

The rate at which the bonds were sold was considered highly satisfactory by Supt. Charles Clark, who said buyers were attracted to the school bonds by the school system's reputation for meeting its obligations and by data supplied Standard & Poor supporting the fiscal soundness of the system.

The auditorium-gymnasium section of Phase II is expected to be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the 1974-'75 school term.

Hospital Work Contract Near

The Mountain Comprehensive Care Center will open bids at 10 a.m. Monday on renovation of the ground floor of the old Prestonsburg General Hospital building which was purchased last year by the Mountain Mental Health-Mental Retardation Holding Corporation.

The renovation job will include conversion of the entire first floor of the hospital into offices. Remodeling plans were provided by Forrest G. McCloskey & Associates, Lexington, and its local coordinating office, Crider & Ratliff, Prestonsburg architects.

The work will provide 19 offices, conference and computer rooms, an accounting room and lobby.

It was said second and third floors of the building will later be converted to office space.

Mayor Says New $377,882 Budget Demands Income

With a budget of $377,882 set for 1974 by the retiring City Council last month, Mayor William O. Goebel, Jr. said last week there is "no way" for the city of Prestonsburg to reduce the city's occupational tax, the city's biggest single source of revenue.

The occupational tax revenues for the year were placed at $136,500, and minimum occupational license fees are calculated to add another $16,000 to that.

The income from property taxes was set at $94,782; the insurance license fee, at $37,500; police court fines, $15,000; parking fines, $3,000; sanitation fees at $48,000.

Public safety will take the biggest slice out of the income total with a budgeted expenditure for the year of $137,926. Of that total, $67,355 was allocated for the fire department, $62,571 for the police department, $5,500 for the parking system and $2,500 for prisoner expense.

General government, which covers all salaries except in the police and fire departments, was budgeted at a total of $97,796. This includes Civil Defense, rent, insurance and employee benefits.

The total earmarked for streets and public works is $28,558; for sanitation and waste removal, $43,760; parks and recreation, $16,572; debt service and funds, $30,600.

'Detector' Test Wins New Trial On Rape Charge

Denzil Martin, who entered a plea of guilty to a charge of detaining a woman against her will and was sentenced last November to a five-year pen term, was granted a new trial last week when new evidence was presented.

Martin, who said he was frightened into his guilty plea, later underwent a polygraph (lie detector) test administered by a State Police examiner. He said during the test that he did not force the prosecuting witness to have sexual relations with him, and Circuit Judge Hollie Conley was sufficiently convinced of the truth of his statement to grant the new trial. The action was not contested by Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo. Martin's bond was set at $2,500.

Billy Ray Jarrell was acquitted at the conclusion of his trial last week on an arson charge, and two others named with him in the indictment, Glada and Oma Jarrell, were cleared by directed verdict.

The Commonwealth filed a motion to revoke the probation of Willard Kidd, who was convicted at an earlier court term on a hit-run charge.

Community Chorus To Begin Rehearsal

The Prestonsburg Community Chorus will meet at 7 p.m. Monday at Prestonsburg Community College and the chorus will begin work at that time on the Mozart Requiem which it will perform with the Lexington Symphony Orchestra in April.

The chorus, which has been in existence since years, is composed of lay musicians. Anyone interested in singing good choral literature is eligible and is invited to join the group. According to Gus M. Kalos, director, the chorus will need to add many new voices this semester in order to balance the orchestra. Persons interested in joining the group should attend the first meeting Monday evening.

Bicentennial Tags Received Here

"The Kentucky '74 Bicentennial commemorative license tags for this county have been delivered to the Floyd County Bicentennial Committee and are available to residents desiring to purchase them," according to an announcement made Monday by Paul P. Hughes, Prestonsburg, chairman of the license plate sales for Floyd county.

"Although we received only a partial shipment of those plates ordered for the county, we anticipate that the remainder of the shipment will be arriving soon, so we decided to go ahead and put those we have on sale immediately. We can take orders for additional tags, if necessary. We expect to have to reorder, since many people will want to buy these attractive license plates," Hughes said. "One fact about these license plates that people are sure to like is that they are dated '74-'76, and can be used during the 1976 celebration of the Bicentennial for the United States."

The license plate project represents the only statewide effort on the part of county committees to raise "seed money" to support the various activities which will be held in each county in conjunction with the celebration of the Bicentennial year.

Co-chairmen for the project are Gwendolyn Dingus and Marjorie Francis, and acting chairman is Betty Rowland. Paul Phillip Hughes is license plate sales chairman. Bicentennial committee members include Charles Clark, Dr. Henry Campbell, Jr., Mrs. Kathryn Frazier, Gus Kalos, Russell May, Mrs. Frances Rose, Mrs. Doris Prater, Mrs. Frances Turner, Mrs. Laura Weddle, Gordon Moore, Pete Grigsby, Jr., Mrs. Margaret D. Collins, Bert N. Porter, W. J. Reynolds, Jr., Barkley J. Sturgill, Mrs. Ann Latta, Jack Friar, and Norman Allen.

Residents may order the commemorative license plate by contacting Mr. Hughes or any member of the Floyd County Bicentennial Committee.

The Kentucky '74 Bicentennial commemorative license tags shown above are among the first to be received in this county. They are displayed by (from left), Prestonsburg Mayor Bill Goebel, Jr.; Mrs. Betty Rowland, acting chairman for the Floyd Bicentennial committee; County Judge Henry Stumbo; Paul Phillip Hughes, chairman of license plate sales; Gwendolyn Dingus, committee chairman; Margie Francis, committee co-chairman, and Circuit Judge Hollie Conley.

Mountain Manor Nursing Home is one of approximately 1,800 long term care facilities throughout the nation that have earned this recognition.

Officials Hear Perkins' Views On Federal Aid

More than 100 county and city officials and public program administrators from the Seventh Congressional district heard and joined Congressman Carl D. Perkins Friday at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, in a discussion of Eastern Kentucky needs and the help that may be anticipated from the federal government.

The congressman in the day-long seminar held for the benefit of officials blasted the impoundment by President Nixon of $3 billion authorized by the Congress for the building of waste-treatment facilities. The funds impounded are a part of the $7 billion appropriated for the national water cleanup effort. Beginning July 1, it would represent federal aid in the building of sewage treatment plants and allied facilities.

"We cannot tolerate impoundment of funds where the health and welfare of people is involved to the extent that it is dangerous for people to reside in communities because of disease from the lack of sanitation," he said.

Perkins said that fewer Eastern Kentucky communities have applications pending for assistance under federal water, sewage and community facilities programs than at any time in recent memory.

"Because of discouragement over impoundments and cuts in funding of programs, people just aren't applying. We've got to turn that around," he said.

The Congressman told the seminar that he believes Congress soon will increase funding for federal public works programs to combat rising unemployment, caused in part by the fuel shortage. He predicted later that appropriations for the program in fiscal 1975 will be increased from the $275 million presently projected to between $3 billion and $5 billion, which would create between 540,000 and 900,000 federally financed jobs.

This met with the approval of most officials at the seminar.

Johnson, Knott Women Killed, Two Men Held

Earl Raymond Cantrell, 31, of Red Bush, remained in the Johnson county jail at Paintsville last Saturday after failing to post bonds of $7,500 asked for his release on charges of murder and rape. The charges against him were the first heard by the grand jury Monday.

Cantrell is charged with the murder of his 28-year-old wife, Patsy Lorraine, whose nude body was found Jan. 8 in a shallow grave on an abandoned Johnson county farm, and with the rape of an eight-year-old child.

A hand and a foot of the murdered woman were found protruding from the thin shield of earth piled over the body where it had been buried beneath the eaves of a barn on the Elsie Burchett farm at Elan. Two hunters, who had been asked by State Detective B. J. Music to maintain a watch for the woman, made the discovery. Her husband had reported her "disappearance" to authorities.

Mrs. Cantrell had been missing since Dec. 10.

In Knott county Clavern Jacobs, 26, of Pippa Passes, is charged with the murder of Katie Gibson, 55-year-old widow, of Pine Top, whose body was found in a stream at Mallie, Jan. 5. Officials are not certain where the slaying took place but are confident it occurred in Jacobs car, the interior of which was blood-spattered. The woman was shot beneath the shoulder blade and a deep gash had been inflicted in her temple by a blow, officers said.

James L. Ousley

James L. Ousley, 81 years old, of Risner, died Monday at Highlands Regional Medical Center.
A retired miner from Stephens-Elkhorn Mining Co., he was born at Portsmouth, Ohio, Sept. 15, 1892, a son of the late Hager and Lucinda Ratliff Ousley. He was a member of United Mine Workers of America Local No. 6282. His wife, Nancy Jane Pitts Ousley, survives.
Other survivors include five sons, Gardis and Vernon Ousley, both of Risner, Claude Ousley, of Columbia City, Indiana, and James and Edgill Ousley, both of Warsaw, Indiana; one daughter, Mrs. Eva Thornberry, of Risner; three brothers, Ed Ousley, North Judson, Indiana, Billy Ousley, of MacArthur, Ohio, and Alonzo Ousley, of McGuffey, Ohio and a sister, Mrs. Alice Poe, of Alger, Ohio. Fourteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren also survive.
Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at the Cod Springs Regular Baptist Church with Bill Justice and Banner Manns, officiating. Burial will follow in the James L. Ousley cemetery at Risner under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Lake To Stand At Winter Pool After Big Rise

Dewey Lake, which had been drawn down to elevation 635 feet to permit waterline construction for Hager Gap to the dam, rose 34 feet last week after the gates of the dam were closed at 4 p.m. Thursday to protect downstream areas from flooding.
The gates were opened at 9:30 a.m. Monday, and within the week the lake level will be dropped to 645 feet, the normal winter pool, and no further, Dean Murray, reservoir manager, said.
Return to winter pool became possible because construction of the 8,000 feet of water line to serve the dam and nearby recreation areas and two lakeside picnic areas across the impoundment from the Terry boat dock was completed before the rise in the lake.
The sedimentation study begun about two months ago by the U. S. Corps of Engineers continues at Dewey, with most sedimentation "monuments" erected. A report on findings is expected in March or April.
Johns Creek, which rose in places to what residents called record stages, poured into the lake a heavy load of waste—brush, cans, hundreds of plastic jugs, as well as sediment—and Corps of Engineers personnel have a big cleanup job ahead.

Garrett Native Burns to Death In Hospital Bed

Claude C. Napier, 50, formerly of Garrett, burned to death the night of Jan. 8 in the bed in which he lay ill in Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, Ohio.
Mrs. Hauley Conley, of Prestonsburg, a sister of the victim, said the circumstances surrounding the fire were not clear. She said she was told a nurse at 3 a.m. checked the room occupied by her brother and another male patient and found "everything in order." At 4 a.m., Mrs. Conley said, the nurse returned to the room to find Napier's bed on fire and the other patient fighting the flames. How the fire started and why no alarm was spread were unexplained.
The victim was a son of the late Alonzo and Ila Perkins Napier, who resided in this and Knott counties. He is survived by two sons, Kenneth Ray Napier, New Carlisle, O., and Claude Napier, Jr., of Dayton; a daughter, Mrs. Sandra Jo Geering, of Dayton; three brothers and seven sisters, Vernon Napier, Waynesville, O., Elmer Napier, Orlando, Fla., Gregory E. Napier, Indianapolis, Ind., Mrs. Delores Conley, Prestonsburg, Mrs. Erma Gayheart, of Eastern, Mrs. Dale Taylor, Parvis, Miss., Mrs. Gladys Brackney and Mrs. Pauline Grady, both of Lima, O., Mrs. Annette Baldrige and Mrs. Glenna Chambers, both of Florida.

Gov. Shelby Once On "Wanted" List

By PAULA ALEXANDER

Indian fighter, surveyor, cattle herder, Isaac Shelby, Kentucky's first governor, was all these and was once even wanted—"dead or alive."

Shelby's knowledge of the wilderness, tempered with a refined background, contributed to Kentucky's emergence as a state. The state's first settlers realized that unity could be achieved through this man and accordingly elected him as the first, and later fifth, governor.

Shelby's rise from cattle herder to statesman is synonymous with Kentucky's rapid growth. His brief career as a cowboy occurred in his early years when untamed cows roved through parts of Virginia.

He spent his youth in Maryland but moved with his aristocratic family in 1773 to the region that is now East Tennessee.

Shelby's knowledge of surveying enabled him to visit Kentucky a few years later for the Transylvania Company.

Serving as a captain in the Virginia militia during the Revolutionary War, Shelby dispensed supplies to frontier posts and equipped George Rogers Clark's Illinois campaign.

He also served in the Virginia legislature in 1779.

During the later years of the war, Shelby, Col. John Sevier and Col. William Campbell gathered a contingent of settlers to head off a raid by 1,200 British under the command of Maj. Patrick Ferguson.

Hearing of this, Ferguson offered a reward for Shelby—"dead or alive."

The patriots were greatly outnumbered but their sniper tactics took a deadly toll of Ferguson's men at the Battle of King's Mountain.

The battle has been termed the turning point of the Revolutionary War in the South.

Shelby's battle strategy provided concrete evidence of what the patriots could do, although the odds were heavily against them.

Shelby repeatedly advised his men to "never shoot until you see an enemy, and never see an enemy without bringing him down."

The war hero was elected to the North Carolina Legislature in 1782 after a portion of Virginia was annexed to that state.

While visiting Kentucky, Shelby met the daughter of Nathaniel Hart, the founder of Transylvania College. After his marriage to Susannah Hart in 1783, Kentucky became his home for the rest of his life.

Although Kentucky's boundaries were still within Virginia, her inhabitants were expressing a strong desire for statehood. Shelby was chairman of a convention that met to consider this move as well as an expedition against the Indians.

Several other conventions followed at Danville before Kentucky's constitution was written in 1792 and Shelby was appointed as the state's first governor.

After a successful four years as governor, Shelby retired in 1796.

However, with the onslaught of the War of 1812, he again ran for governor, defeating his opponent by 18,000 votes.

Kentuckians feared that the British and their Indian allies would attack them from Canada.

Shelby issued a call for volunteers and 4,000 men responded within 30 days.

The Kentucky forces joined Gen. William Henry Harrison at Port Clinton, Ohio. Commodore Oliver Perry transported them to Canada where they fought the Battle of the Thames.

Gen. Harrison later said of Shelby: "I am at a loss how to mention the merits of Gov. Shelby, being convinced that no eulogium can do him justice. The governor of an independent state and greatly my superior in years, in experience and in military fame, he places himself under my command, and was not more remarkable for his zeal and activity than for the promptitude and cheerfulness with which he obeyed my orders."

In 1818 Shelby accompanied Andrew Jackson to Tennessee to negotiate with the Chickasaw Indians for the "Jackson Purchase," which included southwestern Kentucky. Despite his age and the rugged traveling conditions, Shelby made the trip on horseback.

President Monroe later requested that Shelby serve as Secretary of War. He declined the honor because of his advancing age.

Shelby's final years were spent at his famous residence, Traveler's Rest—so named because of the family's warm hospitality. He had a stroke in 1820 and died six years later.

Shelby's fame extended far beyond Kentucky's boundaries as counties in nine states are named for him.

Solid Waste, 'Third Pollutant'

By SUE ANNE SALMON

Kentucky's 120 counties dispose of their solid waste at illegal and unsanitary open dumps due to the absence of collection and disposal service.

The study notes the weakness of Kentucky laws dealing with solid waste disposal.

For instance, it is against the law to dump solid waste without a permit from the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection but the law can only be enforced if a person is caught in the act of dumping.

The 776 illegal roadside dumps throughout the state provide breeding grounds for rats, flies, and other rodents and insects which carry more than 20 human diseases.

To solve this problem a new law should make it unlawful to operate or maintain a non-permitted site, the study stated.

The report termed the sanitary landfill "the only true form of solid waste disposal." These operate in 76 Kentucky counties.

The sanitary landfill, however, must be maintained properly to keep it from polluting the water supply or becoming a dump.

A present-day consumer is more likely to find a glass milk bottle in an antique store than in a grocer's dairy case.

Unless a person profits from selling antique milk bottles, money is lost by businesses and consumers using no-return containers. So why are they used?

Because of "the convenience of not taking the trouble to return milk bottles to the dairy," asserts James Claycomb, milk marketing and anti-monopoly commission director.

"Actually, the savings gained by returning milk bottles is about 46 cents per gallon jug," he said.

Of course, the immediate savings of 46 cents is just part of the extra cost to consumers for convenience. The cumulative pocketbook squeeze is felt when it's time to pay for disposal of each consumer's annual output of 600 pounds of refuse packaging material.

This cost is discussed in a report, "Solid Waste: The Third Pollutant," prepared by Greg Freedman of the Legislative Research Commission (LRC).

"Much effort has been directed to combat air and water pollution while the third pollutant, solid waste, has all too frequently been ignored," LRC Director Jackson White writes.

An important solution to the solid waste problem is prevention or curtailment of wastes, the report stated.

Public education must make citizens aware of the annual load of urban waste dumped on the environment, including 30 million tons of paper, 4 million tons of plastics, 28 billion metal cans and 26 billion bottles and jars a year, according to the report.

Federal action should be taken to lessen the burden on the environment, the report added.

"Perhaps the best way to prevent the accumulation of solid waste is to re-use materials normally discarded," the report noted, giving examples: remolded metal cans, recycled newspaper, ground-up glass as a road building material and old tires made into filters for sewage treatment plants.

White explained that residents of 44 of

The waste must be dumped at the landfill or at a station where it can be transferred to the landfill in a controlled manner. There it is spread and compacted in thin layers, covered daily with a layer of soil and compacted in total.

Funds to construct and maintain the landfills can come from taxes, loans, service charges or by utilizing private service contracts, the report stated.

The report asserts that the funds would be well invested since infrequent collection and disposal of solid waste can result in the spread of potentially fatal diseases such as encephalitis and rabies. Unregulated solid waste disposal practices can also result in toxic hazards.

The auto disposal law should be streamlined to eliminate the red tape involved in contacting the owner of a junked car before the vehicle is compacted by a car crushing company, the study stated.

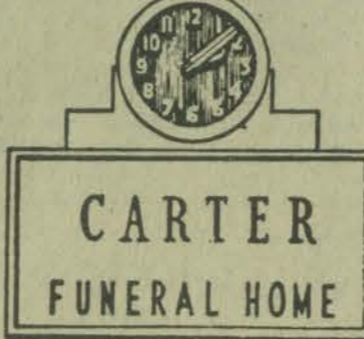

Vermont's state highway department contracts with private companies to dispose of old cars as soon as a community has collected at least 200 automobiles, the report noted.

Pond owners are often unaware of how many snapping turtles they may be providing a home for. New York conservationists gave a turtle hunter permission to take turtles from a 17-acre pond they controlled and considered relatively free of the predators. The hunter removed 54 turtles, weighing over 20 pounds each.—SPORTS AFIELD

State Genealogy Publications Often Provide "Missing Link"

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Kentucky genealogy publications such as Kentucky Ancestors, published in Frankfort; The Kentucky Pioneer, Richmond, and The East Kentuckians, of Stanville, Floyd county, have much to offer those interested in researching family history.

These journals devote space to queries from readers hoping to find a missing link in their family tree, and frequently the answers are found.

One of the first office holders in Montgomery county, Ohio was Benjamin Van Cleve whose father bearing the same name was killed by Indians at Cincinnati. The younger Van Cleve compiled a history of his family, making four handwritten copies for his children. It told much about the family which migrated from Amsterdam, Holland, and later found themselves neighbors to the Boones from Schuylkill.

Van Cleve's grandfather, Benjamin Van Cleve, and Rachel Covenover (pronounced Conover) were married Sept. 9, 1734, in Middletown, N. Y. The grandfather, his brother Aaron, who married Rachel Schenk, and a sister, Anna, who married a Wilson, settled in Brunswick, N. J. and another brother John built a home at Maidenhead.

Part of the Van Cleve history was published in The East Kentuckian:

"Aaron Van Cleve and my grandfather were in partnership until they had large families. The first of whom being alarmed about some suretyship which he had entered into, removed to Carolina about the year 1751 and this was the means of reducing my grandfather and obliging him to remove to the country near Freehold (N. J.). Aaron settled in the forks of the Yadkin River in Rowan County, North Carolina. A Mr. Boon from Schuylkill settled as a neighbor. Squire Boon, a son of the latter and brother to Col. Daniel Boon and who I believe was the first representative of the Kentucky country in the Legislature of Virginia, married Jane, the only daughter of Aaron Van Cleve."

After the Boones settled in Kentucky, Aaron's sons, Benjamin, John and William, settled there also. "Aaron moved there in 1785. Benjamin was the only survivor in 1811. He then lived in Henry county and the descendants of this family resided mostly in Shelby and Henry counties."

The East Kentuckian noted that many descendants of the Van Cleves live in Kentucky. A post office in Breshitt county bears the family name.

Scouts Receive $3.6 Million Fund From Watzek Trust

North Brunswick, N. J.—The Boy Scouts of America has received an endowment of $3.6 million from the estate of John W. Watzek, Jr., a Chicago philanthrop, who died October 29, last year.

The announcement was made by Arch McClure, Illinois chairman of the BSA's BOYPOWER '76 development campaign, and group vice-president of Quaker Oats Company in Chicago.

The Watzek endowment is the largest single gift in the $65 million BOYPOWER '76 development fund. The goal of the BOYPOWER program is to increase the quality and expand the scouting program to 6 million American youth by 1976.

According to McClure, approximately $2 million has been willed to the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, and bequests of $800,000 each will go to the Chicago Area Council and the Dupage Area Council, headquartered in Wheaton, Ill.

According to the trust provisions, each council will establish a John W. Watzek, Jr. Fund from which only the income of the endowment will be used for BSA purposes.

The money will be used to upgrade and expand the Cub Scout, Scout, and Explorer programs in which one out of every four American youths is a member.

To Men and Women Who Gossip

When the gossip starts to travel
And the people move about,
A little tiny whisper
Becomes an ugly shout;
A little word of kindness
Is twisted into scorn,
And a little friendly meeting
Is of all its purpose shorn.
What makes the idle talker
So anxious to be heard?
Why must he or she be untruthful
In his or her thoughtless spoken word?
She or he causes so much heartache,
She or he causes many tears;
She or he adds discord to harmony
And turns content to fears.
The world would be much better
If only age and youth
Would turn their backs on gossip
And strive to tell the truth.

To Men and Women with Gossipy Ears

A gossipy tongue is a dangerous thing
If its owner is evil at heart;
She or he can give whom he or she chooses many a sting
That will woefully linger and smart.
But the gossipy tongue would be balked in its plan
For causing heart burning and tears,
If it were not helped out by the misguided man or woman
Who possesses two gossipy ears.

Oh, the gossipy ears are the ones that believe
The evil reports that are told;
The sly, subtle tales which they gladly receive
Would tarnish the purest of gold.
The cruel "They said" which goes floating about
Like a hidden foe, fostering fears,
Would lose all its force were it firmly shut out
By the man or woman with gossipy ears.

When the man or woman with the gossipy tongue happens by
With his or her stories of evil and strife;
We surely should look him or her right square in the eye,
And ask his or her mission in life.
We ought to refuse him or her a chance to retell
The false, idle rumor he or she hears;
She or he ought to be locked up somewhere in jail,
With the man or woman with the gossipy ears.

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

In a plea for more unhurried and unhurried fishing, Angling Editor Homer Circle of Sports Afield says: "Today's fishing is hectic in places. On opening day, on some trout and salmon streams, fishermen stand so close together that when one hooks a fish he can foul up dozens of lines as he plays it."

Some perch and walleye holes have 25 to 50 boats concentrated in an area smaller than a football field. Unthinking characters troll across other fishermen's lines. Some of these "bunch" fishermen were introduced to the pastime in this manner, and know nothing of its more sporting and enriching aspects. Hopefully, they will learn as they meet fellow fishermen who do know.

Certain fishing lodges have outpost camps as an answer to the problem of crowding. However, these take a pounding, too, so that when you fly to the outposts you will have a boat ride of an hour or two before you reach the lunker holes.

Mobile houseboats that would sleep four fishermen and guides could make unhurried fishing possible. These floating mini-lodges could be moved to where the best fishing is, thereby reducing running time. Some fishermen cuss because they race to a hole and find someone already there. Others smile, and say: "I hope he latches onto Ol' Bigun. He's fishing right where he lives."

Unhurried fishing means unhurried fishing, and perhaps no one ever had a better insight into its benefit than one of fishing's all-time greats, Dr. J. A. Henshall. This physician-philosopher-naturalist summed it up this way: "The very idea of perfect rest is associated with mossy banks and cool, sparkling waters. It is doubtful if there is a sweeter line in human language, or one more expressive of perfect bliss and lasting peace than that of the Psalmist: 'He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters.' Then, the season for angling—coming during the midsummer vacation, in the pleasantest weather and during the lull in active business matters—presents the means and the opportunity for enjoyment and rest, for recreation and peace."

Basketball Roundup

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

Teams in the 58th district (Floyd county) are beginning to shape up with the district tournament about six weeks away. Betsy Layne, Allen Central and McDowell were impressive this week. Prestonsburg lost two games and won one, while Wheelwright won one and lost one. This week's action has several key games, not only in the district but in the region as well.

Prestonsburg lost to Mullins in four overtimes with a score of 83-81. Prestonsburg had the game won, but of all things, goal tending was charged against the Cats and the game went into the fourth overtime.

Coach Pete Grigsby, Jr. and the McDowell Daredevils participated in the 22nd annual Paintsville Invitational Tournament and won two games, losing only in the championship game to Johnson Central. On Wednesday night in the first-round play of the P.I.T., Paintsville won over Salyersville, 73-63. Salyersville is coached by Johnny Ray Turner, of Drift. In the second game, McDowell won over Louisa, 65 to 59. James Tackett came up with one of his better nights and teammate Ricky Roberts in one of his usual good nights as the two combined for 33 points and dominated the boards. On Thursday night second-round play found Johnson Central winning over Ashland Holy Family by a score of 51 to 38 and Sheldon Clark over Morgan County, 76 to 64. On Friday night in the semifinals, McDowell won over Paintsville, 62 to 50, as Glenn Heinisch ripped the nets for 21 points and Ricky Roberts abetted him with 20 points. McDowell in the title game lost to Johnson Central, 69-63.

Friday night, the Blackcats traveled to Wheelwright and were leading at half-time by a score of 28 to 20, but the second half was a complete turnaround. The Trojans tied the game and went on to win by a score of 62 to 60. Steve Crabtree had 16 points for the Blackcats and Riley had 17 for the Trojans.

Coach Gene Frasure's Allen Central Rebels won here over highly rated Lexington Lafayette by a score of 79 to 77 as Don Hansford led the Rebels with 22 points and Keith Gearheart had 16 points. Saturday night, Coach Fred Setser's Blackcats got back in their winning ways as Gormie Collins led the Blackcats with 17 points and won over Mt. Olivet (Robertson County) 78 to 48. Robertson County is coached by a former basketball star of Martin High School, Mike Reitz. McDowell in the championship game of the P.I.T. lost to Johnson Central, 69 to 63.

Coach Tommy Boyd and the Betsy Layne Bobcats won game No. 12 as Larry Woods led his team to 69 to 53 over Wheelwright with 29 points. Wheelwright's Jamerson had 18 points. Coach Boyd has added new opponents to the Betsy Layne schedule: on January 18, Louisville Shawnee at Betsy Layne; January 22, Hazard at Betsy Layne. Betsy Layne will be at Mt. Sterling on February 16 and Estill County on February 23. Betsy Layne needs a game for February 9, and any coaches who have an opening are requested to contact Coach Boyd.

Couple Claims $75,000 Damage By Roads Dept.

A Floyd husband and wife, owners of a business at Allen who claim their place of business has been fenced off and made inaccessible to the public during the construction of US 23, filed a $75,000 damage suit in circuit court last Saturday against the Kentucky Department of Highways.

The plaintiffs, Jack and Georgie R. Allen, say in their action that they have been leaseholders since 1960 of property at Allen which is owned by the Wesley N. Martin estate and that they have operated the Triangle Restaurant and service station and the Greyhound bus station at the location. They contend the state has taken the property without due process of law or compensation to them, has set up "spurious and fictitious claims" and are asserting these claims by trespassing, having enclosed the property with a wire fence approximately six feet in height to the extent that the travelling public and Greyhound are prohibited from using the property.

Earlier last week, John M. Stumbo, Jr. and his wife, Pauline, sued Greer Brothers & Young, contractors on construction of new US 23, for blasting damages allegedly caused to their home at Harold. The house, they allege, has been damaged throughout and the basement is unusable because water stands in it at all times. The suit claims value of the house has been reduced from $50,000 to $30,000. They seek recovery of $50,000, including punitive damages.

In a third civil action Clyde and Evelyn Griffie sued Nick A. Cooley and Henry Hamilton, doing business as Hillindale Coal Company, for $7,500 which they claim as damages inflicted on two houses through blasting of rock, dirt and other debris onto the buildings during strip-mining work on Spewing Camp, near McDowell.

Trio Jailed Here On Arson Count; 3 Held in Perry

Three Mud Creek men who were jailed here during the week-end by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis, Deputy Sheriff Green Stone and State Police Detective Gary Rose are accused of arson in the burning last Friday night at Teaberry of a dwelling owned by Homer Hamilton.

The prisoners were listed as Ralph Akers, Sterling Hall and Claude Isaacs. All three denied connection with the fire. The building had been vacated but furniture remained.

The same officers arrested David Johnson, 18, and two juveniles on a charge of breaking and entering the home of widowed Minda Tackett last Thursday night at Melvin.

Sheriff Lewis said breaks made Saturday night into the Wayside Market at Garrett and Moore's Hardware at Lackey had been solved with the arrest by state troopers in Perry county of James Lee Hall, Charles Ramey and Darrell Bentley and the recovery of the loot taken from both places of business. The three, who were jailed at Hazard, were charged with knowingly receiving stolen property. They later will be charged here with breaking and entering, Lewis said. The haul made at the Garrett market included 220 cartons of cigarettes, 50 pounds of steak and $25 in coins. A variety of items was reported taken from the hardware store.

Others arrested and jailed here within the week, charges on which each was booked and names of arresting officers follow:

John Martin, resisting arrest, by Transportation Officer Eugene Mullins; David Ealey, shooting into the trailer of Naomi Ealey, by Deputy Sheriff Otto Fannin; Charles Lee Roberts, drunk driving, by Policemen Lawson and Messer. Roberts was fined $157 by Police Judge Tom Lafferty.

Old Christmas Among First Of Bicentennial Events

"Old Christmas," the first event in this county's part of Kentucky's Bicentennial celebration and one of the first of such events in the state, was held January 6 at May Lodge, and Mrs. Edith Fitzpatrick James, who revived the old mountain tradition more than 40 years ago, called the celebration "the most successful ever."

About 100 persons attended the party which began at 4 p.m. Mrs. James said, "This was by far the biggest crowd we'd ever had." Guests were served fresh ginger bread and spice tea, which was prepared by lodge cooks.

Guest of honor for the evening was Mrs. Millie Dickinson, of Somerset, regional director for the Kentucky Historical Events Celebration Commission. Mrs. Dickinson commended Mrs. James and the community as a whole for seeing fit to "preserve such a precious part of your heritage."

Father William Poole told the group the story of the Epiphany and gave background information on the origins of Old Christmas. Mrs. Kathryn Frazier's group of young folk dancers performed a version of the Virginia Reel (originally the Sir Roger deCoverly dance from England).

Other performers, including singers, fiddlers, banjo pickers and guitar players, were Dennie Slone, Dave Sizemore, Marcus Owens, Robert Rennie, Rev. John Barry, Paul Fitzpatrick, Homer Wright and Paul Allen.

for me and the human race. You can see it in her eyes. I would have shot her off that can, but sure as shootin' she wouldn't have been there by the time I pulled the trigger, and I decided I might shoot somebody that didn't have anything to do with the trouble this rat and I have been havin'."

After that, he says, an Army Reserve truck pulled up for gas. "I saw the rat crawl aboard, and it might not be patriotic of me to let such a varmint invade the premises of our boys, but I understood they were headed for Camp Lee, Va., and I didn't say a word, hoping she would wind up down there. But wherever she went, she didn't stay. Two or three weeks later, there she was, thumbin' her nose, in a fashion, at me."

"Where is she now?" he was asked. "Don't know. Haven't seen her for a day or so. May be out ridin' Clorox jugs down the river."

Just at that time a trap clicked. The man said he was trapping mice now, and he hurried out to claim his victim. He was a bit crestfallen when he returned. "Derned mouse swiped the bait," he drily announced.

Somehow, I got the idea this fellow wasn't the greatest trapper since the days of Kit Carson.

Kentuck's Oil Production Drops

By MARVA GAY

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky produced enough crude oil each day last year to run the United States for 15 seconds - and that was less than the year before.

In spite of the energy crisis and a plentiful oil reserve, state Department of Mines and Minerals records show Kentucky's production of oil is decreasing.

In 1973, both oil production and number of producing wells took a dip. Production dropped by almost a half million barrels to a 24 year low. The 9.3 million barrels were only a third of that taken in peak year 1959.

Still, last year's yield was enough to give the state a rank of 17th in the nation in value of oil and gas produced. The take from 15,000 producing oil wells - 200 less than in 1972 - could have supplied Kentuckians with oil for about two months.

Gas, on the other hand, showed a slight upswing last year. About 125 new producing gas wells brought the state total to 8,000. Though the mines and minerals department keeps no official records on gas production, Frank H. Walker, director of the division of oil and gas, estimates gas production stayed about the same as in 1972 - around 70 billion cubic feet or enough to have supplied Kentucky for about three months. Walker expects an increase in gas production this year.

According to Walker, cost is the reason more gas wells and fewer oil wells were drilled last year. "While oil prices only began increasing significantly a few months ago, gas prices have been rising since 1972," he said.

Despite the upturn in oil prices, Walker does not expect a sudden increase in Kentucky production. The two reasons cited are a serious shortage of pipe for oil-well casing and a low profit return in recent years. The high risks and expense of drilling drove many persons out of the business.

For instance, less than half the nearly thousand wells drilled last year produced gas or oil. Nearly a third were dry or abandoned. The rest were non-producers such as gas-storage and experimental wells. In fact, only about 20 per cent of all recorded wells ever drilled in Kentucky are still producing.

Walker estimates, even without complications, that it costs at least $10 a foot to drill a well for the first 2,000 feet and from $20 to $50 for each foot below that. One well drilled in Johnson county cost a million dollars and was dry.

"The shallow oil in Kentucky is playing out but there is much rock below 2,000 feet that might contain oil," continued Walker. "As the price of oil goes up, I think we'll go after that deep oil."

Walker predicts that other developments could increase Kentucky's oil production. He cited research being done to develop an economical way to extract the remaining oil from "depleted" wells. When a producing well is drilled about a third of the oil is removed by standard methods, he said. Then, secondary recovery methods in which water or gas is injected into the wells after the earlier production has stopped, remove another third. That leaves about a third of the oil to be recovered. "The remainder would yield a lot of oil in Kentucky," Walker said.

Walker added another optimistic note. "While down somewhat, last year's oil production was better than in 45 other years. In fact, it was more than a hundred times greater than that for our first recorded year - 1900."

Gov. Wendell H. Ford, in his State of the Commonwealth Address, told the 1974 General Assembly that Kentucky's economic progress has been substantial over the past two years but also warned that the energy crisis "looms as a definite threat." He cited the state's net farm income, the highest employment ever in the coal industry and the state's per capita income, which increased faster than the national average, as examples of Kentucky's growth.

Diabetes Is Sixth Floyd Death Cause

Diabetes is the sixth leading cause of death in Kentucky and the ninth leading cause of death in Floyd county, Donna J. Griffith, Floyd County Health Department health educator said this week.

The disease is most likely to occur in people who have diabetic relatives. Other likely candidates for the disease include white females ages 45 and over; persons who are overweight and women who have given birth to a baby weighing more than nine pounds.

It is estimated that there are between 293 and 300 hidden cases of diabetes in Floyd county.

Any person may find out for sure if he or she has the disease by having a simple blood test, free of charge, at the Floyd County Health Department, Miss Griffith said.

Jesus is the Editor of the times in which we live; Jesus is the Treasurer of the time and money we give. All or not at all, for Jesus every day. There is only one way to live for God—and that one way is God's way. (St. John 14:6-7). Jesus is the answer to the big question of today. Jesus is all truth for all the world. One-Room Schools Fading From Scene

A VANISHING SCENE—The one-room school, once an institution in public education, will soon be a thing of the past. Only 15 remain in Kentucky, and the number declines every year as consolidation into larger schools occurs. One remnant of the fading era is the Daniels Creek School, near Allen in this county. First through eighth grades are taught at the school. Above, Mrs. Helen Martin teaches a lesson and then watches as the students take a recess break.

By ELIZABETH SMITH

One-room, one-teacher schools—the state's first form of public education—will soon exist only in the memories of many Kentuckians as these rural facilities are being phased out as quickly as possible.

The state Department of Education recently reported that only 15 one-room, one-teacher schools, with a total enrollment of 301 elementary pupils, are now operating in Kentucky.

Thirty-three such schools were open during the 1972-73 school year in contrast to 695 just 10 years ago. The largest number of one-room schools in the state—7,150—operated during the 1917-18 school year.

The reason for this drastic decline, said Don C. Bale, assistant superintendent of instruction, is the consolidation of the small schools into larger facilities.

"Larger schools can provide more and better educational programs and more qualified teachers," he said. "In the past, emergency teachers (those certified for one year under emergency conditions) were often the only ones willing to teach in the small rural schools."

"Consolidation has been the attitude of educational leaders in Kentucky for a long time and Kentucky has made more progress toward consolidation in the last 20 years than possibly any other state," he added.

Under provisions of the Black Lung Benefits Act of 1972, the U. S. Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration on July 1, 1973, became responsible for all new claims of miners for black lung compensations.

Better roads, which facilitate the transportation of pupils, are the main reason consolidation has been so successful. "Even though the total pupil population is decreasing, the state transports more pupils each year because of consolidation," said Louis Yandell, director of the Division of Pupil Transportation.

T. O. Thompson, director of the Division of Buildings and Grounds, added that the foundation program, initiated in the 1950's for financing public education, also speeded up the consolidation of small schools. This money provided needed funds for instruction, transportation, operating expenses and capital outlay for construction, he said.

Fourteen of the one-room schools are in Eastern Kentucky. Two are in Floyd county, four in Knott, two in both Lawrence and Letcher counties, three in Perry county and one in Wayne county.

The George H. Goodman School, near Big Clifty in Grayson county, is the only one-room school operating outside of Eastern Kentucky. A spokesman from the Grayson County Board of Education said that this fall, the school's enrollment dwindled to 24 pupils, so they were put in one room of the school. This is the 1st year for the Goodman school, he added; the students will be sent to the new Clarkson Elementary School next year.

The other schools are also operating on an interim basis, Bale said, until adequate roads can be built to accommodate buses and other vehicles to transport students living in isolated areas.

Although the one-room schools have been called "a last resort" in modern education, they are not as backward and primitive as one might think, said Omeda Salyers, supervisor for the Perry county school board. All schools have a certified teacher and offer the same basic courses as the larger schools. Most of them have their own small libraries and all have access to bookmobiles. Most of the schools also offer a hot lunch every day.

Mrs. Helen Martin, teacher of the one-room Daniels Creek school in southern Floyd county, said she feels she has certain advantages over teachers at larger schools. In her third year of teaching there, she knows every child and the families very well. "We're much closer than those in larger schools," she said.

She noted that this factor helps her group her 27 pupils, who are in the first through eighth grades, on ability rather than grade levels. While some subjects, such as reading and math, are geared to particular grades, Mrs. Martin said she teaches basic, general courses to all her students.

In addition, she also conducts a regular art class and an outside gym class when the weather permits.

Mrs. Martin said that the small size of her class enables her to give each child individual attention and she often depends on the older students to help the younger ones in their work.

Palmore Seeks Court Reforms

By ELIZABETH SMITH
Frankfort, Ky.—The reform of Kentucky's court system is a major issue facing the 1974 General Assembly and one that many judicial experts feel is greatly needed and long overdue. One advocate of court reform is Justice John S. Palmore of the state's highest court, the Court of Appeals.

"The most pressing need, in my opinion," Palmore said, "is the establishment of an intermediate court to relieve some of the present burden on the Court of Appeals. There are far too many cases coming from the state's circuit courts to the appellate court, he said. "We receive about 1,200 cases per year. Of these, over 700 are decided by written opinion and another 300 or so are dismissed. "It's conceded that to do a good job, a maximum of 30-40 opinions per man should be handed down each year," Palmore continued.

As the seven justices and four commissioners on the Court of Appeals handle many more cases, "we've had to sacrifice quality to some degree because of quantity," he added.

An additional appellate court is among proposals in a preliminary draft of a constitutional amendment. The amendment—drawn up by committees appointed by the Court of Appeals, the Kentucky Bar Association, the Governor's Judicial Council and the Kentucky Crime Commission—is now being readied for submission to the General Assembly. If approved by the legislature, the amendment would go on the ballot in the November, 1975 election.

The amendment calls for a restructured court system consisting of a Supreme Court made up of the present Court of Appeals, a new Court of Appeals, circuit courts and a consolidation of the lower courts into district courts.

In the proposed system, appeals would not involve a two-step process, Palmore said. "Routine appeals from the circuit courts would go to the new appellate court for a final decision. Those appeals involving a constitutional question or those of major public interest would go to the highest court."

Rules would be established by the state Supreme Court to determine each court's jurisdiction.

Also, the new appellate court would be able to add more judges if needed to sufficiently handle all the cases, he noted.

Another proposal concerning the new court is to divide it into panels of three judges who would travel throughout the state.

This feature would speed up the appellate process and at the same time, save money, Palmore said. "The original lawyers could argue before the panel and the judges could view the original court record. This would save the litigants the expense of having a copy of the record sent to Frankfort."

A recent public poll conducted for a citizens' group indicated that, in general, Kentuckians favor a revised court structure that includes the intermediate appellate court.

However, if the new structure is grouped in the amendment with more controversial issues, such as the merit selection of judges, the amendment may be defeated at the polls, Palmore said.

The preliminary draft of the amendment contained provisions for appointing judges rather than electing them by public vote. Palmore said he feels that this reform may be rejected because "there's an old feeling in this country that appointed judges become arrogant and less responsive and responsible to the people."

The final draft of the proposed amendment will probably modify the original merit selection plan to conform with public opinion, he added.

Since the amendment, if passed, would not be effective until 1976, Palmore is backing a legislative bill that would give interim relief to the overburdened Court of Appeals.

The bill provides for three additional commissioners to be appointed to the court and that three of the seven commissioners exclusively handle all Workmen's Compensation appeals.

It also repeals the statute imposing the $2,500 minimum amount that a case must involve to be appealed to the high court. "We feel the court should regulate what cases can be appealed and not work on a dollar basis," Palmore said.

Palmore said that legislative and constitutional help is needed if the Court of Appeals is to continue its efficient operation. "Right now we're probably turning out more decisions per man than any other appellate court in the country."

State-Financed Road Work Halted for Three Months

Frankfort, Ky.—No specific projects are involved in a move to stop new state-financed road construction for three months, Transportation Secretary James E. Gray said last week.

Little work could be started, anyway, he added, because of the normally bad winter weather during January, February and March.

Gray said the state will award no more construction contracts on strictly state roads until after March 31.

He said the action involves mostly a loss of time, because the period is used usually for taking bids on future work. Contractors cannot bid now on projects 90 or 120 days in the future, he added, because materials suppliers are unable to quote future prices.

"We decided to take this action," he said, "because of a late revision on road fund estimates that came to us last Friday. I cannot quote a figure, but the estimate was down enough to show us that we shall have to do some belt-tightening."

The lower estimate was a result of the fuel and energy crisis, he said.

Gray said the state will continue to fund federal-aid projects to preclude the possibility of losing federal money.

"If worst comes to worst," he said, "our road work will be restricted to matching federal money. We can't let that money get away from us. Federal allocations that we are unable to spend are withdrawn and passed along to other states."

The only highway work involved in the stop order, he said, is that which is financed strictly with state funds. There will be no slowdown on any projects for which contracts have been awarded, he added.

Gray said he could say "with some certainty" that the state's rural seconddary and municipal aid road programs will be cut by at least 10 per cent the first six months of the year.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky Division of Forestry has announced that over 10 million tree seedlings will be available to Kentuckians this spring through the division's three nurseries. And despite a slight increase in cost, tree seedlings remain one of the biggest bargains around, said Division Director Harry Nadler. This year's price increase—the first in four years—was necessary to counter the higher costs of growing and shipping the seedlings, he explained.

This spring for the first time, all species may be bought in bundles of 250 seedlings as well as the usual 500 and 1,000 seedlings size bundles. Prices will vary according to species and bundle size. Nadler said that the supply of pine seedlings such as Loblolly, Shortleaf, White, Virginia and Scotch Pine should be sufficient to meet demands, but the hardwood species such as Yellow Poplar, Black Walnut, White Oak, White Ash, Sycamore and Cottonwood will be in short supply. The scarcity of hardwoods is the result of last year's low supply of hardwood seeds, he said.

Interested landowners should place their orders for seedlings as early as possible to be assured of getting the species they want. Orders will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis. Price lists and order forms may be obtained from the Division of Forestry, Soil Conservation Service, Cooperative Extensive Service and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices. Assistance in determining the best species for a particular planning site is available from the division's service foresters. For assistance or further information, landowners should contact the nearest division office or write Director, Division of Forestry, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.
