

Carter Suit Would Halt Ex-Partner Callihan Connection With Funeral Home Court Action Target

Participation of William R. Callihan in the management and operation of the new Highlands Funeral Home here was attacked Monday in a suit filed by James J. Carter and wife, Geneva B. Carter, against Callihan and others.

The suit alleges that when the partnership of Callihan and Carter, which operated the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home here, was dissolved in 1964, Carter buying Callihan's interest in the business, Callihan and wife signed an agreement to the effect that he would not compete with Carter, "jointly or severally, directly or indirectly," for a period of 20 years.

Other defendants named in the action are Highlands Funeral Home, Inc., Geneva, Paul, Morgan, Ashland, Charles R., Dayton and Harold Joseph, Jr. and Harold Yates.

Plaintiffs' petition says that in the summer of 1964 Callihan was employed by the state of Kentucky and that that position necessitated his withdrawal from the partnership with Carter in the operation of the funeral home. Carter says he bought Callihan's interest for $6,126.13, plus the assumption of $43,532.09 partnership indebtedness.

To induce Carter to purchase his interest, the suit alleges, the defendants covenanted not to compete with the plaintiff for 20 years. Plaintiffs claim that at that time the business was far less profitable than it now is and that they could not have afforded to pay the amount specified and assume the obligations listed without the protection provided by the agreement and that

Auxier Man Named In Joseph Shooting

Orville Curnutte, of Auxier, executed $2,000 bond Monday to answer to a shooting and wounding charge against him in connection with the shooting at Auxier last week of Herschell Joseph, of Prestonsburg.

Joseph was shot in his left leg by a revolver bullet and was expected to be able to leave the Highlands Medical Center this week.

Circumstances surrounding the shooting are not clear. A relative of the wounded man said Joseph was shot as he was leaving his car which had been driven by Curnutte. Curnutte told authorities he had been begging Joseph not to harm Joseph's brother-in-law but declined to explain the shooting.

NEW PHYSICAL EDUCATION BUILDING FOR MARTIN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

Martin School Work Up for Bids Today

Bids will be opened by the Floyd County Board of Education today (Wednesday) at 1:30 p.m. in the county courtroom here for construction of a physical education building to serve the Martin Elementary School. At the same time bids will also be let for renovation work on the old Martin high school building.

Total cost of the 9,240 square foot physical education facility is projected at $130,558 and construction will be of block masonry and pre-fabricated steel. The new structure will be located at the lower (downstream) end of the campus. Architects for the project are Forrest G. McCloskey and Associates, of Lexington.

Renovation of the former high school structure will involve improvements at an estimated cost of $89,500. The building, which will be used by the grade school, will undergo a complete facelift, with new plumbing and electrical fixtures, lowered acoustical ceilings, tile floors applied to plywood sub-floors, new toilet facilities, a new roof, new fireproof stair construction, and new paint throughout.

This Town . . . That World

Did you notice, Tuesday morning? Distant hilltops were clearly visible for the first time in two weeks. The terminology varies from place to place. In the city they call it smog. Here, we use the more euphemistic "haze." From an outlying precinct comes word that one oldtimer had reported that his wife's asthma was worse since this collusion had messed up the air.

I hasten to add: This is no laughing matter. What we have had may be only a small sample of what may come later.

THANKS

Robert Samons, of Arkansas Creek, brought me some honest-to-goodness cornmeal recently, the kind that is ground slowly and well with the old-type grist mill. The bread from this meal is so good I would recommend it others, but I doubt if you will be able to get the meal at the price I didn't pay.

HORNET TROUBLE

There has been an air of expectancy around our place since the day some weeks back when a family of hornets began a construction project under an eave. This expectancy mounted till, finally, we decided somebody had to go, and so we entered upon the logistics of an anti-hornet campaign.

I am never averse to advice or help in such matters. First of all, the police department had an idea. They suggested

Alcoholic Unit Plan Announced

Plans for a specialized emergency unit to provide care for persons dangerously affected by the consumption of large quantities of alcoholic beverages were announced last Thursday by Bob Marsh, director of public information and education for the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center.

Medical Alcohol Emergency Detoxification Services (MAED), through an affiliation agreement between Mountain Comprehensive Care and Highlands Regional Medical Center, will provide a three-bed unit at Highlands Regional to deal exclusively with the health problems of excessively intoxicated persons who normally would be admitted to the "drunk tanks" of county jails where adequate medical facilities are not available.

"One of our biggest problems," according to Mr. Marsh, "has been that the only holding facility for such persons has been the county jail." He pointed out

Suits Swirl Around But Not On Princess

Although its creditors have been enjoined temporarily against filing suits against it, the Princess Manufacturing Company at Auxier figures in two new court actions filed within the week.

Nu Look Fashions, Inc., of Columbus, O., last Thursday asked the Floyd circuit court to mandamus the return of goods which it has at the company's plant and a temporary injunction to keep employees and others from interfering with Nu Look's right of possession.

The following day, The Bank Josephine filed suit to recover from six Princess

Budget $425,190 For Fiscal Year Revenue Sharing

Solid waste disposal will get the lion's share of the $425,190.01 revenue sharing budget adopted last Friday by the Floyd fiscal court and approved by State Finance Officer D. M. Magill.

A total of $188,000 was allocated for the founding of a waste disposal program designed to serve every section of the county.

The county began the fiscal year with a cash balance in revenue funds of $121,242.95. Its estimated receipts for the fiscal year are:

July, 1974, $53,030; October 1974, Jan. 1, 1975 and April, 1975, $83,639.02 each.

Second highest appropriation was for public safety, on which $101,000 will be expended. Salaries of some county officials are included in this category.

Another $50,000 was earmarked for highway maintenance.

Other allocations were: Courthouse repair, $40,000; rights-of-way (mainly for the Martin stream improvement project), $22,000; mini-parks, $6,600; Senior Citizens Program, $4,800; tax commissioner and auditor salary, $5,200; county planner, $6,600.

The funds appropriated for solid waste disposal included $20,000 for salaries and wages, $35,000 for materials and supplies, $100,000 for equipment, $25,000 for landfill sites and $5,000 insurance.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said the first waste disposal landfill, planned for Turkey Creek, awaits only approval of state agencies. Three others are sought, one for each magisterial district.

The $101,000 marked for law enforcement includes some salaries which will be shifted from the general fund budget. The amounts allocated are: County judge, $14,300; county attorney, $12,000; assistant county attorney, $7,200; juvenile judge, $7,200; sheriff's fees, $6,500; constables' salaries, $4,800; juvenile probation officer, $8,400.

Funds to cover social security and other fringe benefits were provided for all officials and employees paid under the revenue sharing budget.

In addition to the $67,000 marked for salaries and wages in the law enforcement

'Lone Rum Raid Tops Arrests

The week's only reported liquor raid resulted Saturday in the arrest of 75-year-old Dora Johnson and her grandson, Bill See, after state police officers uncovered a cache of illegal booze on the Johnson premises near Melvin.

State Police Detective Gary Rose, Troopers Roger Castle and Dave Estep confiscated a total of 200 half-pints of whiskey and 492 cans of beer. The two were booked on charges of possession of alcoholic beverages for purposes of sale in Magistrate Leroy Akers' court.

Others arrested during the past week, charges against each and arresting officers follow:

Otis Lee Wallen, drunk driving and failure to yield to an emergency vehicle, by State Trooper Williamson; Robie Johnson, no operator's license, by Deputy Sheriffs Green Slone and Linzie Hunt; F. Wallace, drunk driving, by Allen Policemen Hall and Rickman; Cleveland Can Collins and Michael Kent Martin, separate charges of speeding, by Deputies Doug Lewis and Linzie Hunt; James C. Case, drunk driving and hit and run, by State Troopers Simpson and Bevins; Tony Caudill, no operator's license, by Deputies Doug Lewis, Linzie Hunt and Ray Reynolds; Phillip Keathley, no operator's license, by Deputies Doug Lewis, Linzie Hunt and Ray Reynolds; Winfield Moore, Jr., drunk driving, by Allen Policemen Hall and Rickman; Cline Tackett, assault and battery, by Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis and Deputy John D. Martin; Draper Williams, drunk driving, by Allen Policemen Hall and Rickman; Jack Alfred Banks, drunk driving, by State Trooper E. B. Allen; Stephen Alex Anderson, reckless driving, attempt to elude police officer, no operator's license, no registration plates, no helmet, by State Trooper Estep; Robert Hall, drunk driving, by Park Ranger Craig Kilgore; Marvin Moore, drunk driving, by State Trooper Webb; Willard Goble, drunk driving, by State Trooper Simpson; Monk Conn, drunk driving, by City Policeman Lafferty.

Troopers Seek Three In Holdup at Lackey

State police continued this week the investigation into the armed robbery early last Thursday morning of Mrs. Beatrice Adams Collins, widow of Dr. M. M. Collins, at her Lackey home, and the identity of at least three men being sought in the case.

Diamonds and jewelry valued at $3,000 to $4,000 and approximately $100 in cash were taken from a safe in the Collins home.

State Detective Gary Rose, who is heading the investigation, indicated Monday that there is a lack of tangible clues.

Mrs. Collins and her widowed sister, Mrs. Ellen Hornsby, were alone in the residence when three men suddenly appeared inside the house between 6 and 6:30 a.m. and demanded of Mrs. Collins her money and diamonds. They bound the hands and feet of both women, threatened to kill Mrs. Collins if she made outcry and later gagged them.

Mrs. Collins said she was forced to lie, face down, and that she had no opportunity to get a clear view of the two who came into her room or of a third man who apparently was acting as lookout from a room fronting on nearby KY 80. She gave the combination to the safe, then was asked for the key to the inner compartment. Her vision was blocked with a pillow when she was placed in a wheel-chair and wheeled across the room to find the key.

Officers surmise that the robbers were familiar with the home and Mrs. Collins' possessions. Little ransacking was done outside the room where Mrs. Collins slept and where the safe is located.

Mrs. Hornsby, who occupied an adjoining room, apparently knew little of the episode. Mrs. Collins hastened the departure of the robbers by pleading with them not to kill her son, Scott Collins, Prestonsburg attorney, who was expected to arrive there. The lookout then urged the others to leave.

Neighbors said they saw a car draw up as the men left the house. There was some variance in the descriptions given. One said the car was maroon with a white top; another, that it was purple or wine-colored with white top.

Entrance to the home was made through a window.

Minutes after the robbers left, Mrs. Collins contrived to free her hands, then make her way to the telephone.

Named Juvenile Court Judge

Richard E. Fitzpatrick (center), Prestonsburg attorney, Tuesday became Floyd county's first juvenile court judge. County Judge Henry Stumbo (left) administers the oath of office as County Attorney James R. Allen looks on.

Mr. Fitzpatrick was admitted to the Kentucky state bar in 1970 and has been in legal practice here since 1972 with the law firm of Latta, Damron and Fitzpatrick. He served as law clerk in the office of Appellate Judge Edward P. Hill in 1970 and 1971, after which he was assistant attorney general till he entered private practice here.

He is a son of Mrs. Opal Fitzpatrick, of Lexington, and the late Richard Fitzpatrick.

His $7,200-a-year salary will be paid out of revenue sharing funds.

SHERIFF LUTHER COX

Virginia Sheriff Renames Stream In Honor of Knott Birthplace

The Sheriff of Fauquier county, Virginia was born on Rock Fork Creek, near Garrett, and he still lives on Rock Fork.

The Rock Fork which flows through his farm near Warrenton, Va. was so called by the former Eastern Kentuckian because, after all, it was on a creek of that name where for him it all began.

The sheriff is Luther Cox—another Eastern Kentuckian who has found success in politics in places far from kith and kin and his native region.

And the Rock Fork (Knott county) native who has renamed a Virginia stream so that he could have that much of Eastern Kentucky in his day-to-day living, is one of the Old Dominion's most respected sheriffs. He is a past president of the Virginia State Sheriffs' Association, the Northern Virginia Crime Clinic and the Rappahanock Area Law Enforcers and an active member presently of all these groups.

Mr. Cox is one of the 13 children of Mrs. (See Story No. 3, Page 2)

Announce Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Earl Butler, of Hager Hill, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Shelia Lynn, to David Thomas Nellipowitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul James Nellipowitz, of Silver Spring, Maryland. The marriage will be solemnized at 6:30 p.m. August 16 in the First Church of God, Paintsville.

Miss Butler, who is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Layne, of Ivel, is a 1972 graduate of Johnson Central High School, later attended Morehead State University and is now employed by the East Kentucky Rehabilitation Center at Telma as an occupational therapy assistant.

Mr. Nellipowitz, also a Johnson Central High School graduate, attended Morehead State University and presently is senior recreation assistant at the East Kentucky Rehabilitation center.

The gracious custom of open church will be observed.

Swinford Hits Kentucky Law On Drunk Test

U. S. District Judge Mac Swinford ruled last week in a case originating in this county that the Kentucky law automatically revoking the driver's license of a motorist who refuses to take the Breathalyzer test is unconstitutional.

The Appalachian Research & Defense Fund (APPALRED) represented Denver Sloane, of the McDowell area, in the case. The drunk driving charges were dropped against Sloane but his driver's license was voided on the affidavit of the arresting officer that Sloane refused the Breathalyzer test.

Judge Swinford held that the driver's license, once issued, is such a fundamental entitlement that its revocation requires prior notice and hearing. The court agreed with APPALRED's contention that the license revocation procedure cannot be justified even by the unquestionably valid state interest in highway safety, noting that under the statute, "while the license of the recalcitrant motorist is summarily suspended, the submissive imbibor may continue to drive until convicted."

The Commonwealth has indicated it may appeal the district court decision.

Project Engineer, New Griffith Post

Paul R. Griffith has been promoted to project engineer in the exploration and development section for Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation in Charleston.

Columbia Gas Transmission is one of the nation's leading natural gas pipeline companies. It has operations in seven states and provides gas through 87 affiliated and non-affiliated retail companies to more than four million customers.

In his new assignment, Griffith will be working on special drilling assignments throughout Columbia's seven state operating area.

Griffith joined Columbia in 1968 as an engineer in the production department at Clendenin, W. Va. In 1971 he was promoted to assistant superintendent, production and pipelines at Hamlin, W. Va. and in 1973 he was transferred to Prestonsburg in the same capacity.

He is a graduate of East Bank (W. Va.) High School. He received an associate degree in electronics and a B. S. degree in civil engineering from West Virginia Institute of Technology in 1966. From 1952-57 he served in the United States Navy.

Griffith is a member of the American Institute of Mechanical Engineers and the Paintsville Country Club. Mrs. Griffith is the former Christine Taylor, of Cedar Grove, W. Va.

Carter would not have agreed to dissolution of the partnership and the purchase of defendant's interest except for that agreement.

Plaintiffs asked that Callihan be temporarily restrained and permanently enjoined from continuing to participate as manager or otherwise engage in the promotion and operation of Highlands Funeral Home, from representing to the public that he has any connection whatever with the business and from otherwise engaging in the business of undertaker or embalmer or in other activities similar or related to the business previously carried on by Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

The contract referred to in the suit conveyed to the Carters, in addition to the funeral home properties, its accounts receivable, 26 shares of stock in the Moore Funeral Home (at that time known as the Floyd Funeral Home), 250 shares of stock in Teachers National Life Insurance Company, 125 shares of the same company in the name of Callihan and wife and 125 shares in the name of Carter and wife, stock in the Kentucky Funeral Burial Association, a lot adjacent to the funeral home, all leaseholds and two parcels of land on Middle Creek and Abbott Creek.

Shrine Circus Coming Monday For Two Shows

The 26th annual Oleika Shrine circus—"the circus with a purpose"—is coming to Prestonsburg August 5 for shows at the Prestonsburg High School football field with matinee at 2:30 and an evening performance at 8:15 under the sponsorship of the Floyd County trail 70 and 750 units of the Shrine.

With animals galore, clowns and amazing feats on wire and trapeze, spectators will thrill for two hours and a half at the best that America and foreign countries can provide—all gathered by the famous Clyde Brothers.

Besides the Barrada Brothers' performing chimpanzees, outstanding animal performances include Jose Barrada's exhibit of royal nubian lions and lionesses in the huge steel arena; trained American and Canadian black bears riding motorcycles and performing other amazing stunts; three dromedary camels, "ships of the desert"; and a miniature white stallion; Rudy Dockey and his astounding basketball boxer dogs, returned by popular demand; the Suarez Troupe, America's greatest performers of "rosin-back" riders, featuring great equestrian acrobats; and, last but not the smallest, the performing elephants.

Intermingled with these "not-so-human" performers will be feats on the cross-bar and trapeze far above the heads of onlookers; the aerial ballet of beautiful young ladies; the Oriental hair-hanging artistry of lovely Myoshy Amoto; the difficult routine of aerialists Pete and Petrova, the skillful Columbo Duet, and the Great Joslaito who walks up the slender incline-wire to perform his daring routine on the high wire; and the dexterous juggling of Lottie and Michael Bruin.

Clowns with their antics throughout the performances will tickle the funny bones of the young and old, all to the music of the circus band under direction of Miss Virginia Lee Fenton. El "Lucky" Larabee, ringmaster, will return to introduce the audience to the performers, both animal and human.

Under the sponsorship of Shrine nobles, Kelly Moore, chairman, the Trail 70 and 750 Units invite children of all ages to attend this annual event. Tickets may be procured in advance from the local Shriners or at the gate. The Shriners will also entertain hundreds of local underprivileged children as their guests.

Lura Gearheart Cox, now of Lima O., and the late Winfield Cox who grew up on their Rock Fork farm, four miles west of Garrett, and attended the local public schools. After working at Wayland three years in timber and other jobs for his uncle, Walter Martin, he spent two years as a miner for the Carter Coal Company at Caretta, W. Va. Soon after his marriage in 1941 to Dawsie Vanderpool, of Garrett, (who died in 1965) he entered the Armed Forces and there got his first taste of police work, completing FBI and Military Police training courses and seeing service which ranged to the Far East, Hawaii, Japan, Okinawa and the Marshall Islands.

A month after his return in 1946 from wartime service to Garrett, he was offered a place with the Warrenton, Va. police department. Little more than two years later he was chief of the department, a position he held till November 1, 1951 when he joined the staff of Fauquier county Sheriff S. S. Hall, Jr. When Sheriff Hall—a man for whom Mr. Cox holds a great affection and respect—resigned in September, 1970, because of ill health, Cox was appointed to fill the unexpired term.

In 1971 he was a candidate for the full four-year term as sheriff, an office which in Virginia also includes the duties of jailer. His opponent was a former deputy of Ex-Sheriff Hall, but Cox polled 82 per cent of the vote and "carried" every precinct in the county of some 35,000 population. His staff includes 16 deputies, one of whom is his son, Donald R.; four jailers and seven others in various capacities. His office handled 18,492 calls last year.

How does a Kentuckian, an Eastern Kentuckian, transplanted to a part of the Old South with all its traditions, win such popularity? Sheriff Cox doesn't detail the steps. He speaks of "fine people," of "doing your best," of "treating people right." But it's easy to suspect some of the attraction he brings into politics. Luther Cox is a big, genial, soft-spoken man. He would prefer to talk about his predecessor, Ex-Sheriff Hall, and how like a father Hall had been to him, than to extol his own virtues. And he likes people.

Some of his activities outside the area of law enforcement indicates the tenor of his life. He is chairman of the deacons of the Broad Run Baptist Church, a Life member of the Jaycees, a charter member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and chairman of the No. 9 Planning District which includes Fauquier, Culpepper, Rappahannock, Madison and Orange counties.

Of the county where he now lives he speaks of "beautiful, rolling hills and the grazing land and purebred cattle and thoroughbreds in its northern end and the beautiful flatlands and dairy farms of the southern part of the county." Fauquier county extends from the Blue Ridge Mountains on the north 59 miles to the south toward Fredricksburg.

Sheriff Cox remarried in 1969, and he and Mrs. Cox, the former Doris A. Barron, enjoy life on their farm near Catlett, Va. They share a common interest in life there at the new Rock Fork, enjoying horseback riding and walks "about the place," daily. And in winter there is the ancient sleigh which he has renovated for jaunts over the snow-covered landscape.

Just now, Mr. Cox is thinking of a family reunion which he hopes will be held at the old home on the Knott county Rock Fork. The old place is unoccupied but is waiting and ready. For, he says, "one of our family sweeps and dusts it, every week."

a substance which I took to be Mace. I was assured that all insects silently folded their wings and gave up the ghost at the slightest hint of this spray.

Well, Henry and his Flit went to work, but he may have done more fitting than working as the hornets seemed to take a dislike to the intrusion upon their privacy. Ever see a hornet frown? They were there, next day, busy as little bees, which they weren't.

Next, the Department of Highways suggested another spray which had never in highway history failed. Since this stuff didn't get into your eyes, other members of the family atomized the gang with it. I suspect they fired "on the dodge," as their predecessor had, keeping one foot deep in the bucket—anyway, the hornet population was not reduced.

Next, the wife went back to the time-honored "scorched earth" policy. She rigged up a mass of paper at one end of a long pole, set match to it and then applied the flaming mass to the nest. The daughter stood by with water hose, in lieu of the fire department, to keep the house from burning, and it may be that she didn't give this method a fair chance. Anyway, only half the nest burned, and by morning the hornets were back in business at the same old stand.

I am now waiting on the results of my latest attack. This was the crudest of all: Simply gouge the nest free of the building with a piece of pipe.

If those hornets are there after all this, I shall lose whatever respect I have had for their intelligence or sensitivity. For, surely, if they have any sense at all, it should be apparent to them by now that they aren't wanted.

His calculation was based on a median wage effective after production changeover.

Employees of the firm hold a lien on the entire inventory. They claim that approximately $48,000 in wages and vacation pay is due them.

National Apparel posted $15,000 bond because of this lien, but it has not removed any materials.

Nu Look's suit to recover its materials also named Mary Zemo, employee representative, as a defendant. The company claims its contract with Princess provided that it supply the materials and that Princess would do the work of manufacturing the jackets ordered. It added that 825 jackets have been made but that no goods have been delivered.

The Bank Josephine named as defendants Stefan Magura, of Paintsville, Michael Magura, of Prestonsburg, M. W. Nixon, Fred T. Riley, W. C. Peurifoy, Jr. and Fred W. Suther, all of Concord, N. C., as defendants. The $150,000 note was due in three installments of $50,000 each, payable on Jan. 31, 1975, 1976 and 1977. The suit was based on the individuals' failure to pay interest due.

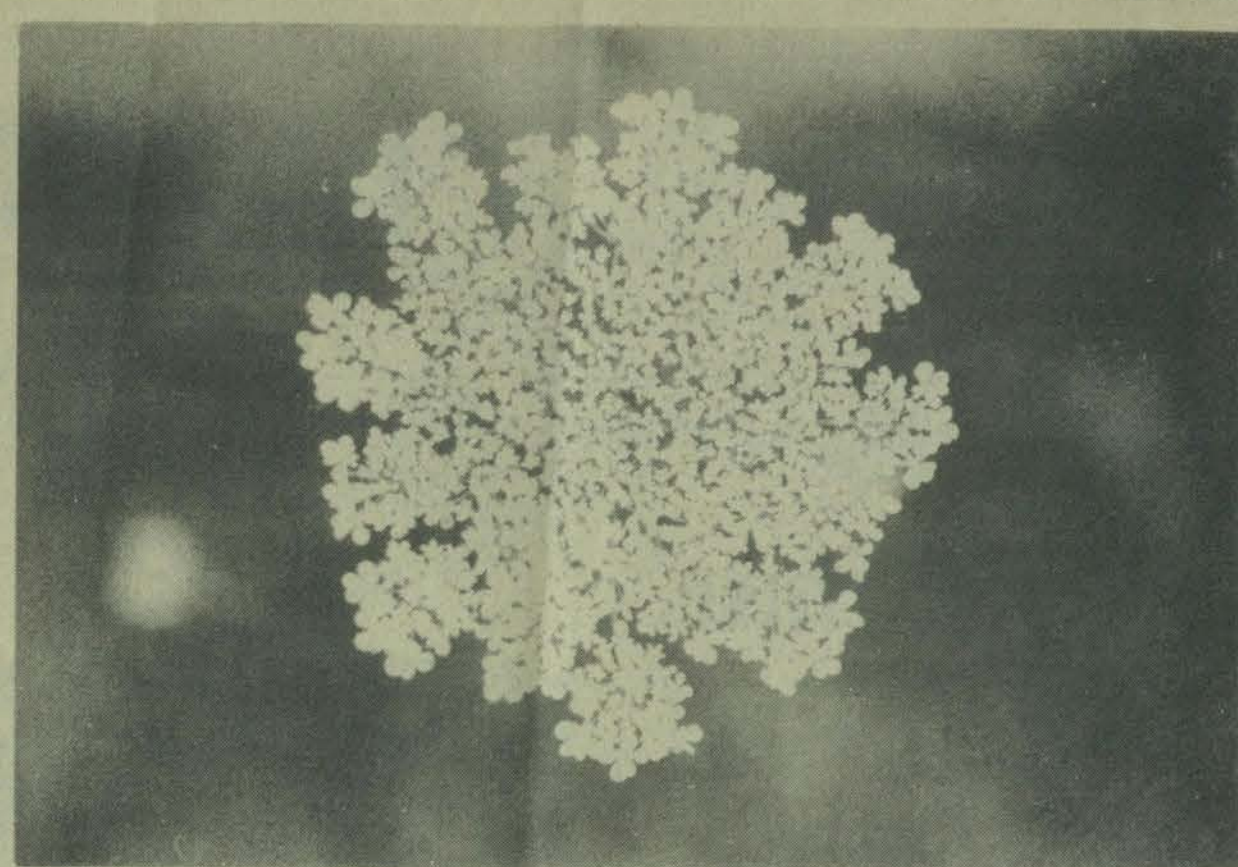

Two damage suits following automobile wrecks were filed in circuit court. The first, filed July 25 by Frank DeRossett, Jr., seeks to recover a total of $57,000 from Capitol Truck Rentals and Herbert Wayne Burgher. DeRossett alleges that negligence of Burgher, the driver of a tractor-trailer, caused the crash in which he was injured. He asks $50,000 for injuries and physical suffering, $2,000 medical expenses and $5,000 for loss of wages.

In the second suit Ervin Salisbury, his wife, Bernice, and children, Danny, 17, and Letha, 8, claim a total of $36,000, naming as defendants Charles Walker Prater, Charles G. May and Wallis Alley. They claim negligence of Prater and Allen caused their vehicles to collide with the Salisbury car which was occupied at the time by Mrs. Salisbury and children. May was named as a defendant because it was alleged Prater was his employee at the time of the wreck.

Heart Clinic Scheduled At Pike Health Dept. To Serve 5 Counties

A one-day consultative and diagnostic heart clinic for medically indigent children will be held in the Pike County Health Department, Pikeville, Wednesday, August 7.

Physicians from the departments of Pediatrics and Medicine at the University of Kentucky Medical School will conduct the clinic.

Co-sponsored by the Kentucky Heart Association, the Bureau for Health Services, and the County Health Departments, this clinic provides a diagnostic service for the patient along with recommendations for treatment and management of the case. It also provides an opportunity for the referring physician to consult with the clinician regarding his patient.

Necessary expenses of the clinic are being underwritten by the Kentucky Heart Association and the Bureau for Health Services. Clinic personnel, as well as space and equipment will be provided by the Pike County Health Department, the Bureau for Health Services and the Kentucky Heart Association.

Only those patients who have been referred by a physician and have a written referral will be admitted to the clinic. Counties in this clinic area are Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike.

SHOWER AT ALLEN

Miss Ramona Lynn Hall was honored with a miscellaneous shower July 23 at the home of Mrs. Walter Frasure at Allen. Miss Hall is the bride-elect of Mr. Philip Neal Bradbury. The living room was arranged with summer flowers. The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of pink flowers intermingled with white daisies. Pink candles in silver candelabra flanked the centerpiece. Decorated mints, cakes, nuts and cranberry punch carried out the color scheme. Gifts of china, crystal, silver, linens and electrical appliances were displayed. The 1974 amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act increased the coverage of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act to include a total of 13.8 million federal, state and local government employees between 40 to 65 years of age.

Miss Prater, Contest Runnerup

Miss Bonnie Prater (left), beauty contest runnerup, and new Miss Big Sandy RECC, Kathalene Casebolt.

Miss Kathalene Casebolt, 16-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forest Casebolt, of Williamsport, was named Miss Big Sandy RECC of 1974 in the beauty contest which was one of the highlights of the 34th annual membership meeting of Big Sandy RECC. Approximately 1700 persons attended this year's meeting, which was held July 18 at Johnson Central High School, Paintsville.

Seven young women from this area participated in the beauty contest. Among other honors, Miss Casebolt won an expense-paid trip to Louisville to participate in the state finals of the Miss Kentucky REC Beauty Pageant to be held during the Kentucky State Fair in August. The winner there will represent the state in the national finals to be held in New Orleans, next January.

First runner-up honors in the contest went to Miss Bonnie Prater, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Prater, of Water Gap.

In addition to the beauty contest, this year's annual meeting of Big Sandy RECC featured entertainment by The Kinsmen, well-known Gospel group, and Wandi, the Magician. The Randy Charles Trio of Nashville supplied the background music for the evening.

During the business session, members of the cooperative heard a discussion of the increased cost of generating electricity due to coal prices.

In other action, the members re-elected to the board of directors Henry Stapleton, of Thelma, and Lee G. Davis, of Sitka, for three year terms.

The major prize, a trash compactor, was won by William Handshoe, of Hueysville.

Other all-electric prize winners include irons to Herman Ratliff of Staffordsville, Arville Adams of Prestonsburg and Earl Horne of Barnetts Creek; electric knives to M. A. Davis of Chandlersville, Paul D. Fraley of Stambaugh and C. V. Walters of Prestonsburg; coffee makers to Otis Ousley of Risner, Mrs. Cornealis Ousley of Risner and John H. Holbrook of Red Bush and can openers to Dockie Prater of Hueysville, Jewell Salyers of Oil Springs and Arlie Daniel of Sitka.

The boy's and girl's bikes awarded by the cooperative went to Ronnie Shepherd, ten-year-old son of Angelo Shepherd of David and Teresa Anita Caudill, eleven-year-old daughter of Raymond Caudill of Swamp Branch.

One Reason for Hope

Surely few thoughtful Americans will find pleasure in viewing the Washington scene as scandal after scandal breaks and the feeling grows that the White House itself is under siege.

Many are sustained by the belief that, once the storm is over, the air will have been cleared of a lot of pollution, that government will function in a way that is more consistent with the concept of American justice and liberty, and that the United States will be the stronger for its time of trial. We hope this will be the case. But first we must ride out the storm.

Out of it all one event is the ray of sunshine breaking through the dark clouds. That was the unanimity of the Supreme Court in holding that the Presidential tapes must be made available. Conservatives and liberals on the court, justices appointed by President Nixon himself, men of divergent political ideologies—all agreed that Law is supreme, that no man is above it, not even the President of the United States.

And it is encouraging to note that the President bowed to that order of the court.

As long as Law holds it power to govern those who govern as well as those who are governed, there is reason to hope.

Nature Trails

The Plucky Catbirds

Once when I lived on the farm, I kept a large pilot blacksnake at the barn to devour the rats. He was a better rat-catcher than any cat and would ram his head down in the rat holes to get them.

The huge, six-foot snake respected me, even as I did him. He never showed fight when I was about the barn, and I could pick him up when I wished.

The only time the snake gave me trouble was in the spring when he invaded the orchard to swallow the young birds. The catbirds and other species nested in the apple trees. One fine, June day, I missed the snake from the barn and when I made a search I found him hiding in the weeds at the edge of the orchard. His beady eyes glistened as he watched the parent birds feeding their young. I knew he had become tired of a diet of rat meat and was craving the tender flesh of young birds.

I chased the big snake from the orchard and ordered him to stay at the barn with his rat-catching.

The catbirds had a nest in an apple tree at the side of the orchard. There were five of the little ones and they were starting to feather out nicely. I figured the big snake had spotted the nest and that at the proper time he would slither back to the orchard to gobble up the young birds. I needed all the young birds to grow up and protect my crops, and didn't intend for that snake to devour any of them. He was a wily, old serpent, though, and seemed to know I was keeping watch over the young birds.

One day he slipped from the barn and crawled, silent as a shadow, to the edge of the orchard. I can well imagine he stopped there to see if I was anywhere about.

He raided the nest of young catbirds one day at noon while I was in the house having lunch. There issued a loud outcry from the orchard as birds began scolding and shrieking in an excited frenzy. The children heard them and ran out to see what was wrong. Ten-year-old Jim rushed back into the house to tell me he saw my big blacksnake climbing the apple tree where the catbirds had their nest. "Hurry, daddy," he urged, "and don't let that ol' mean snake swallow the little birds."

I jumped up and ran. As I neared the apple tree, I saw a weird drama unfolding. It brought me to a quick stop. As the big snake eased toward the nest, the parent birds fought him with relentless fury. Their loud shrieks brought all the other birds roundabout. They joined in the fight, shrieking and scolding the snake. All the birds recognized him as their common enemy and would have killed him if they had had the power. The birds proved no match for the ruthless snake. He lashed out at them in savage fury and kept easing toward the nest. . . . The mother catbird fought the snake from the rear, grabbing his tail and yanking back with all might. The male catbird fought him at the head end, flogging him with all he had. I was fascinated by the scene and almost waited too late to intervene. Just as the snake reached the nest, I grabbed a pole and knocked him out of the tree. Soon all grew quiet in the orchard. The kids had run out to see the fight.

"Kill him, daddy,!" they cried. "Don't let him swallow the little birds!" "No," I said. "I'm going to teach him a good lesson."

I cut a long, keen willow limb from a bush by the branch and began whipping the snake furiously. He reared up in great fury and patches of white burst out all over his black hide. These patches appear when a blacksnake is angry or excited. I made it so hot for him, he turned tail and lit out for the safety of the barn, while I kept after him, switching him good. He slid into the barn and hid under the floor. He didn't come out for several days afterward and when he made his first public appearance, the catbirds had flown from the nest. Somehow, the mother catbird knew I'd helped her save her precious young, and after that she would greet me with a thankful mew when I saw her about the orchard.

Gov. Wendell H. Ford has announced the allocation of more than $33.2 million in surplus state funds. The surplus was derived from receipts which exceeded budget estimates and from unused budgeted funds.

Kentucky Kinfolk The Crager Family

By C. E. SHEPARD

The Crager family was rather late in coming to the Floyd-Magoffin counties area. This family originally came to the Colonies in the second quarter of the eighteenth century, arriving primarily through the port of Philadelphia. They were German in origin, from the Palatinate, a district in southwest Germany, west of the Rhine River. At one time this area constituted an electorate of the Holy Roman Empire.

The name is variously spelled Crager, Creager, Crieager, Cregger, Crigger, Criger, Creger and even Grigger. The German Spelling was Krieger, Kroeger or Kruger.

The Cragers settled in the Frederick county area of Maryland and migrated to the Wythe county, Virginia area prior to the American Revolution. The Crager family we are interested in settled about halfway between Wytheville and Rural Retreat, in the present-day Wythe county, Virginia. Michael Grigger acquired better than 500 acres of land on the South Fork of Reed Creek which was surveyed for him in February of 1774. This was known as the Elk Pond Tract. It is believed that this Michael's first wife was named Catharine. He is believed to have been the son of Michael and Susannah, of Frederick county, Maryland, this Michael being the immigrant from Germany. The Elk Pond Michael married a widow, Mary Kullop, about 1795. He died in Washington county, Virginia in 1807. He had no children by his second wife.

His children by his first wife were: Elizabeth who married John Corvin; Catharine who first married Michael Walters and by whom she had all of her children, and next to William King, a widow; Margaret who married Christly Summar; Eve who married Henry Wryrick; Mary who married Nicholas Cline; Barbara who married Daniel Repass; Michael, Jr. whose wife's name was Mary; Jacob; Peter; Dewalt and perhaps others.

Michael Creager, Jr. lived on the Main Stage Road which was the primary route to the Cumberland Gap from the East. He owned about 200 acres there at the time of his death in 1832. Some of the lines of this property are visible on aerial photographs of the area today.

The children of Stage Road Michael were: Elizabeth who married Richard Gilman, who was an invalid the last twenty years of his life; Jacob; Polly, married, first, a Bush, next, Frederick Kinser; Catharine married Lewis Grubb; Nancy married to John Catron; Dianna married Joseph Headrick; Peter moved to Green county, Tennessee prior to 1825; Celia married first a Hounshell, second, Henry Elter; Benjamin, who appears to have been the youngest son; and Michael, Jr., whose wife was Elizabeth, a daughter of Adam Miller, and his wife, Catharine Phipps. Catharine Phipps was the daughter of William Phipps, who died in Wythe county, Virginia in 1818.

Michael Crager and his wife moved to Hawkins county, Tennessee prior to 1830. The 1830 census indicates that they had three sons and four daughters. At that time, all were under the age of 15. Both Michael and his wife were listed as between 40 and 50 years of age. This was probably a late marriage, but we have no way of knowing because many of the early marriage records of Wythe County, Virginia are lost. Michael moved his family to Floyd county, Kentucky between 1837 and 1840, if we are to believe the tax records. He apparently lived in that part of Floyd county which became Letcher county in 1842, for in 1843 he is on the tax list of Letcher county. His son Harvey is also on the tax list for the year 1843. His son, James, appears on the tax list in 1848 as having 300 acres of Carrs Fork. His son, Adam, first appears on the tax list in 1849.

The children of Michael Crager and Elizabeth Miller, daughter of Adam Miller and his wife, Catharine Phipps (William), were: Elizabeth who married about 1838 to Bryson Shepherd, I have been unable to locate a marriage record for them; Cynthia, who married Sylvester Shepherd, son of Jacob Shepherd (John), in Letcher county February 13, 1849; Adam Crager, a deaf mute, born about 1825 who never married; James who married in Letcher county, Kentucky June 6, 1848 to Louise Sexton, Harvey apparently married in Hawkins county, Tennessee to Mary Miller, daughter of Hugh and Elizabeth Miller. Mary died October 1, 1854 in Letcher county, and Harvey then married to Elizabeth Boman in Letcher county February 15, 1855. There was one other daughter, whose name is unknown to me at this time. Michael was born about 1781 and Elizabeth Miller was born about 1788. They both apparently died between 1860 and 1870, or else moved to another area, for they were not in either Floyd county or Magoffin county in 1870.

Cynthia Crager was the second wife of Sylvester Shepherd. He first married in Floyd county to Susan Banks, daughter of David Banks, January 7, 1847. The minister was John Morris. There were no children by this first union. The children of Sylvester and Cynthia were: Wesley, born 1849, married Amy Baldrige, daughter of Robert Baldrige and Eleanor Hicks; Lurana, born 1852; Bryson R. Shepherd born January 27, 1853, died in Greenup county in 1920; Martha Jane, born 1855, married James Rose, son of William (Buck) Rose and Sarah Hale; Kelsey, born in 1857, married Martha England; Lewis, born October 6, 1859, died before he reached the age of 10; William; Woodson; John, born 1867, married Poppy Conley, daughter of David Conley; George, born 1869, married Bird Collins; Dora Ellen, born 1871, married Samuel Horn; Mary Elizabeth, born 1873, married Benjamin Shepherd in 1887.

Elizabeth Crager, daughter of Michael Crager and Elizabeth Miller, married Bryson R. Shepherd. Bryson R. Shepherd was a brother of Sylvester Shepherd; they were sons of Jacob Shepherd (John) and his wife Elizabeth. I have thus far been unable to find a marriage record for Bryson and Elizabeth. Their children were: Cresa, born 1838; Florence, born 1839; Mary, born 1840, married James Hale, son of John Hale and Tobitha Mainard; Susannah, born 1841; Brice, born 1845, married his first cousin, Minerva Shepherd, a daughter of John E. Shepherd (Jacob-John) and Sarah Hale; Amanda, born 1849; Albert, born about 1854, married Louise Jane Marshall; Rosanna, born June 15, 1856; triplets John, Wilson and Cynthia, born September 2, 1858; John, known as Big John, married Sarah Hale, a daughter of Vincent Hale and Delana Howard; Wilson, married twice—first, to Mary Ann Stephens, next, to Margaret Vanderpool; Cynthia, married Thomas Benton Whitaker; Joseph, born 1861, married Frances Stephens, a daughter of Reubin M. Stephens and Nancy Jane Hicks; Eliza A., youngest daughter of Bryson R. Shepherd and Elizabeth Crager, never married.

Harvey Crager, son of Michael Crager, and Elizabeth Miller, daughter of Adam Miller and Catharine Phipps, married first, Mary Miller, daughter of Hugh Miller and his wife, Elizabeth. Mary must have been a widow because the eldest child, based on the 1850 census records, was born when Harvey was only 13 years of age. The children in this family in 1850 were: Elenda, born 1833; Margaret, born 1835; Nancy, born 1837; Thomas, born 1839; and Rebecca, born 1845. The writing in the 1850 census shows this name to be Harry, but the tax list show the name as Harvey. I have not seen the 1860 census records for this family. Mary died in 1854 and Harvey married Elizabeth Boman in Letcher county, February 15, 1855. Harvey is in Magoffin by 1870. The census record there shows his wife to be Elizabeth, and the children: Wesley, born 1855; Alexander, born 1861; Nancy J., born 1863; and Polly A., born July 1879. By 1880 Harvey was probably dead, for his wife is then the wife of David Coburn, 30 years her senior. The stepchildren are listed as: John W. (Wesley), age 22; Alexander, 21; and Polly Ann, 12. My sole source of information concerning the family of Harvey has been the census records, tax lists and marriage records of Letcher county, Kentucky.

James Crager, son of Michael and Elizabeth Miller married Louise Sexton in Letcher county, Kentucky June 6, 1848. Their children were: Ambross, born 1850; William H., born 1852; Rebecca, born 1853; Joseph, born 1858. I have not seen an 1870 census listing for James Crager. He may have lived in Morgan county at that time. He was back in Magoffin county by 1880. He apparently lost a wife and remarried prior to 1880. Based on the 1880 census, his wife's name was Elizabeth and she was 25 years younger than he. Their children were, at that time: Caroline, born 1868; and twins, George W. and Samuel, born in April, 1880. Joseph Crager, son of James, was married by 1880. His wife's name was Vina. I have been told that she was a Hale and by others that she was a Shepherd. I have not checked the marriage record, so I don't know who she was.

Adam Crager, son of Michael and Elizabeth Miller, lived with his nephew, Albert Shepherd, son of Bryson R. Shepherd and Elizabeth Crager, in 1880. Adam is buried in the Albert Shepherd cemetery on Grassy Fork of Licking river. Adam was a deaf mute and was never married.

Scutchfield To Head Department At the University of Alabama

Dr. Frank Douglas Scutchfield, University of Kentucky field professor of Community Medicine in the Gateway-Buffalo Trace region, has accepted the post of professor and chairman of the Department of Community and Family Medicine at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa.

Dr. Scutchfield, who is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Beecher L. Scutchfield, of Martin has been based in Northeast Kentucky since 1969. He initially was director of Continuing Professional Education at St. Claire Medical Center, Morehead, but his responsibility expanded to the total Fivco, Gateway and Buffalo Trace area.

His work in the last five years has resulted in the development of the Menifee County Ambulant Care Center, the Home Health Agency, the Health Development Association of Northeastern Kentucky, and the BT-GW Area Health Education System.

Of all the projects and proposals with which Dr. Scutchfield has been involved, he felt happiest about the funding of the Area Health Education System for the Buffalo Trace and Gateway region. The educational opportunities that will be available to health professionals and health students through AHES programs are goals for which he has worked since 1971, when the Carnegie Commission's report on Higher Education first mentioned Area Health Education Centers.

Dr. Scutchfield looks forward to his new position as an opportunity to do some additional innovative rural primary care development. "The state of Alabama previously had not set health as a high priority. However, the governor this year has committed 60 per cent of the Revenue Sharing Funds into health programs. It will be exciting and interesting to try new directions in combining medical education and rural primary care. I feel as though I am a builder, not an operator, of health programs, and, hopefully, this opportunity at the University of Alabama will allow me to do this. In addition, I have a love of teaching and will have a more direct involvement in establishing curriculum and will be able to spend more time in direct student contact."

Medicine." He has also published numerous articles in various medical and medically related journals. Dr. Scutchfield, his wife, Phyllis, and son, Alex, will move to Tuscaloosa Oct. 1, when he will assume his new duties.

MY NAME IS DON BOYD
My home is in Martin, Kentucky. I am employed by the C. & O. Railway Company. I was born on Prater Creek. I lived in Allen most of my adult life. I am taking this opportunity to ask all my friends and relatives to get to work and elect
Donald L. (Donnie) Lafferty
Representative from District 2
FLOYD COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION
I have never before taken an active part in any election. I am taking a part in this one because I believe IT IS IMPORTANT that the people elect a man for the school board who wants ONLY to represent the school children of District 2. DONNIE LAFFERTY knows that you can only begin to build a good school system after the DIRTY DEALERS are voted out. He knows that THE ABUSE OF POWER IS THE ESSENCE OF TYRANNY, and that this is where we have come in the Floyd County school system.
For the sake of your children and Floyd County's future, I say to my friends and relatives—

Harris-Hyden Vows Exchanged

Miss Ellen Lynne Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Harris, of Allen, and Jack Clark Hyden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hyden, of Prestonsburg, were united in marriage in a ceremony, June 29.

The candlelight double-ring ceremony was performed at 7:30 p.m. by the Rev. Lee J. Caudill at the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church.

Mrs. Joe Buchannan rendered organ music, and Miss Marcie Magura and Paul Magura were vocalists.

For her wedding Miss Harris wore a designer gown of white chiffon enhanced with chantilly lace and crystal ruching. Fashioned with a high neck, shadow sleeves, empire waist and sculptured bodice, the gown had a softly flowing skirt that ended in a sweeping train. Her headpiece was a lace-strewn mantilla.

The bride carried the Bible that her mother had carried on her wedding day. Atop the Bible was her bouquet of yellow sweet-heart roses, white stephanotis, ivy and an orchid which she wore when the couple left for their wedding trip.

The maid of honor, Suzanne Harris, sister of the bride, wore a yellow dacon polyester dress flocked with white daisies. A wide, brimmed yellow picture hat completed the ensemble. The bridesmaid, Judy Anne Hyden, sister of the groom, and the flower girl, Kimberly Burchett, cousin of the bride were in identical dresses and wore halo headpieces of yellow roses and white daisies. The attendants each carried one long-stem yellow rose.

Best man was Franklin D. Fitzpatrick, and the groomsmen were Michael Wade Meade, Dickie Jarvis, and Herbert Salisbury, III. The ringbearer was Robert Clayton Burchett, cousin of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a long floral gown depicting the bride's colors, and the groom's mother was in a long pink gown with matching jacket. Each wore an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Franklin D. Fitzpatrick registered the guests. Assisting with the reception which followed immediately after the ceremony were aunts of the bride, Mrs. David Holden, of Riverside, California, Mrs. Clayton Burchett, Jr., of Jackson, Ohio, Mrs. Taylor Harris, of Prestonsburg. Others assisting were Miss Amy Zemo, Mrs. Franklin D. Fitzpatrick and Mrs. Raymond Hall. Coordinator for the wedding was Mrs. Virgil Webb.

The couple will be at home to their friends at Allen.

REVIVAL TO BEGIN SUNDAY EVENING

The Highland Avenue Free Will Baptist Church will conduct revival services beginning Sunday at 7 p.m. The Rev. James Arthur Hayes, of Louisa, will be the evangelist.

A service of communion and foot-washing will be held at the Sunday morning service.

The Rev. Clifford Austin, pastor, invites the public to attend.

VISIT AUNT HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cardle, of Whitehouse, Ohio visited their aunt, Mrs. Fred R. Mann over the week-end.

VISITORS FROM FLORIDA

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Hatcher, of St. Petersburg, Fla., were here Tuesday. They have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Quentin Terry at Van Lear and other relatives in this county.

VanHoose-Marsh Vows To Be Said August 18

Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. VanHoose, of the Abbott Road, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Miss Jennifer Lynn VanHoose, to Mr. Paul Nicholas Marsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Marsh, of Paintsville.

The open church wedding will be solemnized at 3 p.m., Sunday, August 18, at the Community Methodist Church here.

WILL RETURN HOME THURSDAY

Mrs. Fanny Jarrell will return home Thursday of this week from a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. George Glenn Hatcher in Frankfort, where she rested a few days after two weeks' medical treatment at St. Joseph's Hospital in Lexington. She is improved.

McNally-Burchett Vows Said

Miss Cindra Ruth McNally, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. McNally, of Prestonsburg, became the bride of Mr. Thomas J. Burchett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde B. Burchett, of Prestonsburg, on Saturday, June 8, at 7:30 at St. Michael's Church, in Paintsville.

The wedding music, "Ave Maria" and "The Lord's Prayer", was provided by David Marthey, soloist, and Mrs. Joe Buchannon, organist. Rev. William Poole performed the ceremony.

The bride's sister, Miss Charla McNally, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Sally Music, Miss Sharon Stevens and Miss Aileen Waugh. Miss Laura Burchett, cousin of the groom, was flowergirl.

The bride wore an original design gown of white satin organza. The bodice was in Peau d'Ange lace encrusted with pearls and crystals. The same lace adorned the skirt front, hemline and cathedral-length train. The bride's veil of gossamer silk illusion bordered in lace drifted the length of her train, draped from a headdress of jeweled lace. She carried a cascade of white stephanotis, baby white roses and white cymbidium orchids.

The brial attendants were attired in matching gowns of peppermint chiffon and carried smaller cascades of yellow rosebuds and yellow baby cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. Charles McNally, mother of the bride, chose a floor-length gown of yellow chiffon, with the bodice of patterned embroidered pearls, crystal and bugle beads. Mother of the groom, Mrs. Clyde Burchett, selected a floor-length formal gown of maize chiffon, with a crystal and pearl embroidered bodice.

The reception was held at the Paintsville Country Club immediately following the ceremony. Assisting at the reception were Miss Nancy Short, Miss Sandy Roberts, Miss Nancy Stevens, Miss Karen Burton and Miss Sheila and Susan Gondringer.

After the summer here, the couple will be moving to Lexington where Mrs. Burchett will be a senior at the University of Kentucky and Mr. Burchett will be entering the University of Kentucky Medical School.

ARCHER CITIZENS' CENTER HOLDS COVERED DISH DINNER

Approximately 60 people enjoyed a covered dish dinner last Friday at the George P. Archer Senior Citizens Center. Areas represented that day were Garrett, Printer, Bypro, Wheelwright, Bevinsville, Martin, Langley, Allen and Prestonsburg. The menu consisted of fried chicken, corn on the cob, spoon bread, green beans, baked beans, slaw, potato salad, cakes and pies. Another is being planned for the month of August.

Earlier in the week several ladies from Martin made floral arrangements using dough flowers. Another lesson in the making of these flowers is planned for August 2. The art of corn shuck flowers will be demonstrated on August 1.

Miss Wright, Mr. May Wed

The marriage of Miss Sharon Leigh Wright, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Elder Wright, of Water Gap, to Mr. George David May, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. May, Jr., Prestonsburg, was solemnized June 21 at 7 p.m. in a candlelight ceremony at the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, Prestonsburg. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. D. Jaggers.

A program of nuptial music was provided by Gary Wright, organist, and Ronald Wright, pianist and vocalist, brothers of the bride. Selections included a solo, "For You Love," and instrumentals of "You Send Me" and "Summertime". The wedding march was played by Alice Gray Buchanan, organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Rudolph Griffith, Jr., wore a formal gown of dotted swiss. The A-line skirt was accented with a ruffled v-neckline and venise lace. The camelot headpiece was of venise lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and stephanotis entwined with ivy. The bride's jewelry consisted of a cameo necklace which had belonged to her mother.

The maid of honor, Miss Mary Lynne Wright, sister of the bride, wore a formal gown of yellow tafetta with a chiffon overskirt, and a matching wide-brimmed hat. She carried a single yellow rose.

E. B. May, Jr., father of the groom, served his son as best man. Guests were seated by Gary Alan May and Leslie Brian May, brothers of the groom.

The mother of the groom wore a floor-length yellow knit dress, with matching accessories, and a corsage of yellow orchids.

Immediately following the wedding, a reception was held in the Church Annex. Coleen Wright Griffith, sister of the bride, and Lynn Rice May, sister-in-law of the groom, registered guests. Assisting with the reception were Edna Carol Greenwade and Sue Spradlin. The wedding cake was served by Peggy Wright Hall, sister of the bride, and punch was served by Imelda B. Wright, sister-in-law of the bride.

Following a honeymoon in Florida, the couple is residing at Water Gap, Kentucky.

CONTEST ENTRIES

Two bridges, designed and built for the Kentucky Bureau of Highways, have been entered in the US Department of Transportation "Highway and Its Environment" Contest. The bridges, entered in the Outstanding Bridge and Overpass Category, were chosen for their aesthetic structure and compliment to the surrounding environment. The Glen Lily Road No. 2 Bridge (above), spanning the Western Kentucky Parkway in Warren County, was the 1973 winner of a beautiful bridge contest sponsored by the American Institute of Steel Construction. The US 27 Bridge (below), over the Kentucky River at Camp Nelson, was opened to traffic on May 6, 1974.

Kentucky's Izaak Walton

By JOHN CLOWES

Ten years ago (August 15, 1964), a highway marker was dedicated to "A RENOWNED PISCATOR" on US-27 near Cynthiana. It commemorates Dr. James A. Henshall, an adopted Kentuckian who wrote "Book of the Black Bass," a work that practically revolutionized the sport fishing world and brought fame to the rivers and streams of the Kentucky Bluegrass.

Although he was born in Baltimore, he spent a large part of his life in Cynthiana practicing medicine. During the Civil War he ministered to both the Blue and the Gray. It was in the Bluegrass that he discovered sportsmen fishing for bass with fly tackle.

In fashionable sporting circles at that time, gentlemen just didn't fish for bass. Their flies were reserved for trout and salmon. The fishermen of Kentucky apparently pioneered in the art of fly fishing for bass, paying no mind to the lowly social status of bass.

It was a sport that captivated Dr. Henshall completely. He learned all he could from friendly neighbors, all the while busy healing the sick and wounded, and he became an expert on lures and tackle. Soon he was exploring area streams and becoming more and more knowing in the ways of the bass.

Then, in 1881, he published his "Book of the Black Bass" and practically revolutionized the art of sport fishing. He didn't distinguish largemouth bass from smallmouths at the time. He just wrote a highly instructive paean of praise about the bellicose bass and the lovely waters he inhabited. He described him in the much repeated words as, "... inch for inch and pound for pound the gamest fish that swims."

He also predicted that, "... he (the black bass) will eventually become the leading game fish of America." That was many years, of course, before the advent of bait and spin casting. So millions of ardent anglers, spending millions of dollars a year pursuing the wily bass wherever he lives, would seem to prove the good doctor a real prophet.

Henshall finally abandoned the profession of medicine and became a renowned ichthyologist, working with the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries and, among other things, devising new methods of propagating and distributing fish.

Early bass enthusiasts are responsible for the almost universal distribution of bass in this country. On a long train trip they would load up perforated containers with small bass and suspend them in the engine's water tender. When the train crossed a river or sizeable lake they would dump some of them over.

In 1923, two years before his death, Dr. Henshall completely revised his famous book, now a rare and much sought after volume indeed. He was 89 when he died. For true believers his benign spirit still sends phantom flies sailing gracefully across the sparkling waters of the Bluegrass streams. In any event, the skills and scientific knowledge that he handed down are now used by millions of fly fishermen and spin casters who have never even heard his name.

Fraleley Family Folk Festival Scheduled

The fourth annual Fraleley Family Mountain Music Festival will be held at Carter Caves State Park Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The festival will feature mountain music and traditional Appalachian dancing and a meal of soup beans and cornbread will be offered. The site of the event will be the Cascade area of the park.

The Fraleleys, who have recently recorded an album of old-time fiddle music, are widely-known for their performances of Appalachian music and J. P. Fraleley is respected as one of the finest mountain fiddlers currently performing. The entire Fraleley family along with scores of other authentic mountain musicians will be performing at this year's Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival scheduled for August 30, 31 and September 1 at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre here.

ENERGY CONSERVATION TIP

It saves time, hot water, and electricity. If you must wash a partial load, select the water level to fit the amount of clothes. Avoid overwashing clothes. It's just a waste. Use cold water and cold water detergents wherever they can do an adequate job. Don't over-dry clothes. This wastes electricity and sets in wrinkles.

A list including 1,700 academic scientists and engineers and more than 5,000 scientific dissertations and theses has been compiled to provide a computerized listing of Kentucky's scientific manpower. Gov. Wendell H. Ford said the program is "an unprecedented approach to fulfilling the greatest potential of Kentucky's scientific and technical manpower."

95 Drownings Recorded In Kentucky

Frankfort, Ky.—Ninety five drownings have occurred this year on Kentucky's waters through July 17, according to the Department of Transportation's Division of Water Enforcement.

Water Enforcement Administrator Doug Shoulders believes this figure could be reduced if more boaters and swimmers were aware of what they can do to assist a person in trouble in the water.

In most cases the best course of action is to throw something bouyant into the water to keep the person afloat, he said. "Even a strong swimmer," said Shoulders, "may have trouble saving a drowning person. Often the drowning person is so panicky that he works against the would-be rescuer by not relaxing in the water and allowing himself to be pulled in."

Rescues attempted in this manner sometimes result in two drownings instead of one, he added. "You should swim out to save a drowning person only as a last resort, when there is no other means available."

"You can use anything handy, such as a tackle box, thermos jug, or any wooden object like a deck chair, tree branch, paddle or water ski. Any of these objects will keep a person afloat long enough to enable you to get help to them."

If the person is too weak to reach shore with a bouyant device, you should swim out with something capable of supporting both of you, said Shoulders.

"If a person can't swim, they should wear a U.S. Coast Guard approval personal flotation device anytime they are out in a boat or engaging in recreational activities in water over their head."

"In addition," he said, "all swimming areas should be equipped with flotation devices available to be thrown to anyone who might find themselves in trouble in the water."

Of the 95 drownings which have occurred in Kentucky this year, 25 were the result of boating accidents and 70 were non-boating fatalities.

Senate Drops 3 State Dams In Works Bill

The Senate Appropriations Committee last Friday deleted from a public works bill all federal funding for three controversial reservoir projects in Eastern Kentucky—the proposed Paintsville, Red River, and Falmouth dams.

The Senate is expected to vote on the Appropriations Committee's recommendations within a week, according to Senator Marlow Cook's office.

The House version of the public works bill, passed June 3, calls for funding of the projects.

If the Senate committee's recommendations are approved by the Senate, the bill will be sent to a House-Senate conference committee to reconcile differences.

The Paint Creek dam, subject of a two-year controversy in Johnson and Morgan counties, is being opposed by landowners and their allies in Morgan and Johnson counties who have filed suit in federal court for an injunction to halt the project.

Opponents of the Red River dam announced recently they also plan to file suit in federal court in an attempt to halt that project, which has become a statewide issue in the U. S. Senate race between incumbent Marlow Cook and Gov. Wendell Ford.

Cook, who opposes the project, said Friday he was pleased "that the Senate committee has realized the project neither fulfills its objectives nor serves the interests of the people."

Gov. Ford backs the project, which he claims is needed to prevent flooding and provide water for downstream cities.

Senator Cook has opposed the Paint Creek and Red River dams on the grounds that they are environmentally and economically unsound.

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE

And now a stop to think!

Kentucky Division of Water Enforcement officials say that speeding in no wake zones such as near boat docks (above left) and other places where boats are anchored is a most serious violation of state boating laws as it endangers boaters and their vessels. It is also a violation of state boating laws for anyone to ride on the side or on the bow of a motorboat (above center). State boating officials advise that wearing a U. S. Coast Guard approved vest-type life preserver (above right) during boating activities is one of the best safety measures boaters can take.

Magoffin-Co. Officials Ask Transfer of Troopers

(From The Salyersville Independent) A complaint against four Magoffin County state troopers has been filed with the commissioner of the Kentucky State Police Department by seven county officials in an attempt to have the four transferred or replaced.

According to Commissioner Ron Johnson, he received a letter signed by the county judge, county attorney, sheriff, jailer and three magistrates charging the troopers with a lack of cooperation and deterioration of relationship with the general public.

State Troopers Larry Yocum, Ralph Hall, Chalmer Wireman and Ron Newsome are on the receiving end of the charges.

Commissioner Johnson affirmed by telephone to the Independent Wednesday morning that a letter submitted by the forementioned officials complained that the troopers involved should be replaced because of a lack of "cooperation with county officials and a deterioration of relationship with the general public." Johnson also pointed out that no specific or individual charges were mentioned in the letter, nor were any specific instances referred to concerning the troopers dealings with the public.

The commissioner told the Independent that his department will conduct their normal procedure of investigating any charges brought against Kentucky State Police personnel.

"Yes, I'm going to investigate the situation and try to determine if there is in fact the kind of problem that has been described to me in the letter," Commissioner Johnson said. He added, "Under no circumstances will I be investigating the troopers, but instead, the situation. If it has reached the point, as described to me, that the troopers cannot perform their duties efficiently, then a decision will have to be made on what changes are necessary to improve the situation."

He also indicated that support from county officials is necessary for a trooper to perform his duties efficiently.

Regardless of the outcome of the investigation, which will be conducted by the commissioner with the assistance of Captain Bill Lykins, commander of Pikeville Post Nine, the number of state troopers stationed in Magoffin County will not be reduced.

Rumors of the move by county officials have caused quite a stir among local residents. A relative rumor concerning a petition bearing the signatures of several hundred citizens supporting the attempt proved to be false. No one connected with the State Police Department has seen such a petition.

While the Independent attempted to contact all officials signing or supporting the complaints, only County Judge Earl Borders and County Attorney Robert E. Adams were available for comment.

In summary, both Borders and Adams contend that the public has miscomprehended the situation and an attempt to completely remove the state police from Magoffin county is completely false. While both remarked that they didn't necessarily want to sign the letter, they both felt that the four troopers presently in Magoffin county should be replaced.

Police Report 11 Auto Deaths In Six Months

The Kentucky State Police released its activity report this week for Post 9, Pikeville, which covers Floyd, Pike, Magoffin, Johnson and Martin counties.

During the period, January 1 to June 30 of this year, a total of 919 accidents were investigated. These included 11 fatalities and 544 injuries. Seven of the fatalities occurred in Pike county, two in Johnson, one in Floyd and one in Martin county. None was reported for Magoffin.

During the month of June, 98 persons were arrested in the Post 9 area for drunk driving. Pike county reported the greatest number with 35, Floyd 19, Magoffin 34, Johnson 4 and Martin county 6.

Under the command of Lt. Chester D. Potter, Kentucky State Police detectives opened 37 criminal cases, one drug case and one murder case. Twenty-two criminal arrests were made.

Activities of state troopers in the area follow:

Moving hazardous violations (traffic offenses)—Floyd, 92; Pike, 127; Johnson, 42; Magoffin, 48; Martin, 33.

Accidents investigated—Floyd, 36; Pike, 76; Johnson, 21; Magoffin, 17; Martin, 12.

The Kentucky Crime Commission has made available $323,600 to Kentucky's 16 regional crime councils for the new fiscal year. The crime councils evaluate crimes, crime rates and criminal justice system performance in their area and make recommendations for upgrading criminal justice agencies. The money generally will be used to pay staff salaries, compensation, traveling expenses and council operational costs.

Opinions From the Office Of the Attorney General

Among opinions released this week from the office of Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock were the following:

In response to Martin County Judge Ray Fields the Attorney General's office said that a county attorney does not have the authority to issue an arrest warrant. Under state law a county attorney has no judicial functions.

Glenn Wooters, of Shelbyville, was addressed that all employees of a public school district are state employees and therefore even non-certified employees such as lunchroom workers, bus drivers and custodians are entitled to paid leave for jury duty.

MONEY PROBLEM TOPS LIST

"If I had to pick the No. 1 problem facing education today," says Philip B. Swain, new president of the National School Boards Association, "it would have to be finance. We just have to raise more money to be able to operate the kinds of schools people expect and deserve."

Announcing...

The Highland Funeral Home is now open under the management of Bill Callihan. Bill has 28 years' experience in the funeral profession and is a former partner of the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home. The many friends of Bill will remember the fine and proficient service he gave them. Bill was appointed a member of the State Board of Embalmers and Funeral Directors' Examining Board by former Governor Bert T. Combs, and he served three years of a four-year appointment. Bill resigned this appointment to become Field Counselor for the state board. His duties were to call on all funeral homes in the state. In 1971, Bill resigned this position to become Juvenile Probation Officer of Floyd county, working under the direction of County Judge Henry Stumbo, where he worked until assuming the management of Highland Funeral Home.

Kentucky Afield

By HOPE CARLETON
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

To many of Kentucky's sportsmen, summer is a time for fishing and family vacations, but to the ardent hunter, it is also a time to make preparations for the upcoming hunting seasons.

Dedicated squirrel hunters in particular should start getting ready now, for the squirrel season will soon be here, opening Aug. 17 (the season runs through Oct. 31, with the second part of the split season opening Nov. 21 and continuing through Dec. 6, when it will close for the gun deer season, reopening Dec. 12 through Dec. 31.)

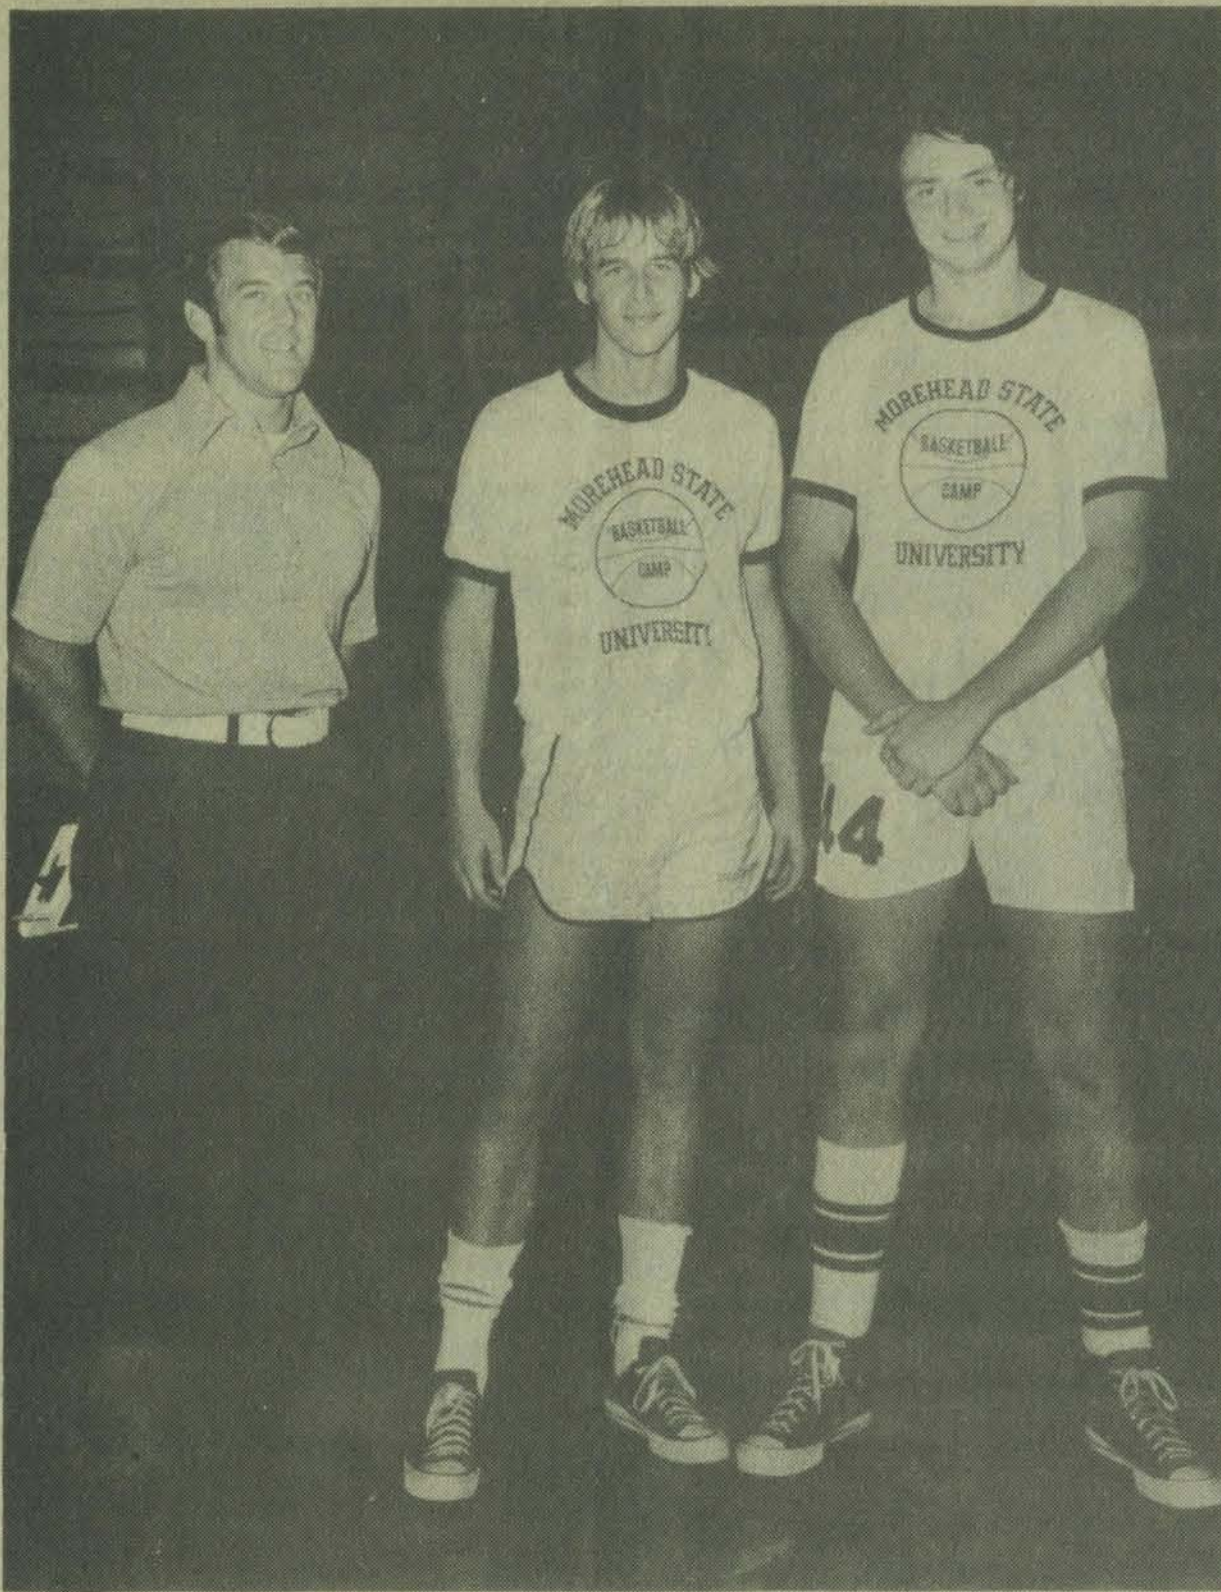

Now is a good time to scout prospective squirrel hunting areas and to obtain permission from landowners to hunt on their property. Remember, obtaining permission is not only required by law, it is also the courteous thing to do. Many "no hunting" signs have gone up on prime hunting lands because some hunters failed to observe this courtesy as well as others.

Although it is too early for the mast-producing trees to have ripe nuts, the hunter who can locate good stands of walnut, hickory, oaks or beech trees which are laden with new mast will have a pretty good idea of where the squirrels will be this fall. Although early season squirrels will likely be in the general area of mast and den trees, they will be more scattered than later in the season, so several scouting trips, particularly just before the opening day, may be necessary.

This is also a good time to give all your firearms a good going-over to make sure that they are functioning properly. A gun which needs a trip to a gunsmith for adjustments or repairs should be taken now, so you will be sure to have it back in plenty of time for opening day. Another productive summer activity is some target practice, both to sharpen the shooting eye and to make sure that all your firearms are sighted in properly.

Shotguns should be tested to see which size shot gives the best pattern. Although most hunters prefer a number 5 to 6 shot for squirrels, what is best for your gun can only be found through experimentation.

Another worthwhile summer pursuit is initiating a boy or girl into the ways of hunting. There are many lessons a child needs to learn before he first goes into the woods with a gun, and there is no better way to spend your summer leisure time than teaching a child safe gun handling, sportsmanship, game identification, conservation, and the many other things every good hunter should know.

ATTEND BASKETBALL CAMP.—Kiple McNally, center, and Gorman Collins, Jr., right, both of Prestonsburg, talk with Morehead State University Head Basketball Coach Jack Schalow during the MSU basketball camp. More than 70 youngsters attended the second week-long session.

"SUCKERS" NICE FISH

Seven-year-old Brian Keith Holbrook, of Allen, caught this 18-inch sucker last Saturday while fishing with his grandfather, Henry Setser, of Allen in Johns' Creek near the German Bridge.

Dist. 37 Softball Tourney To Begin Thursday at Park

Archer Park will be the scene of the District 37 Softball Tournament beginning Thursday and running through August 11.

Three games will be played Monday through Friday beginning each afternoon at 6:30. Four games are scheduled Saturday and Sunday's action will include five games.

Clean seats, concessions and plenty of free parking are available to the sports fan who wants to see the very best in softball competition in Eastern Kentucky.

NEW YORK—Approximately 2.3 million students completed driver education courses during the 1972-73 school year. Close to 50,000 instructors are now certified to teach the subject, which is offered in most public high schools.

A Lament for Appalachia

By HELEN PRICE STACY
GOODBYE, Appalachia! Goodbye! Goodbye! Goodbye!
Weak words have told of the beauty of mountains, early sun making prisms of color through clouds and evening twilight washing in peaceful waves over the sea of peaks and forests.
Words lose their power to marks on planning boards that make lines at particular locations on creeks and rivers and dark masses above thick coal seams.
Water bucket of the world! Coal scuttle for the universe! Prosperity for everyone?
Man sees a dollar in his pocket now, but who is there to forsee 20 years from now or 10 years from now? And it's too frightening to look beyond two decades.
Through the years, counties whose livelihood has been based on agriculture now are being sacrificed to a power-hungry world. What the counties are not realizing is that when the coal is gone, so is their farmland, their marketable timber, their last hope. Who is rich then?

If proud Anglo Saxons, scions of Britian's Isles, have nurtured a future filled with money, automobiles and boats, they are due an awakening to reality. Landowners have leased their coal lands, but who will be the millionaires ten years from now, and where will the landowners be?
Who got rich in the late 1800's and at the turn of the century when industrialists from New York and Pennsylvania tapped coal and timber in the Eastern Kentucky hills? Some Appalachians made it to the top, but they were so rare their names have become history. The bulk of the region's population continued to live out life in a former company-owner house, white-washed in many ways other than the exterior.
The energy crisis (and all that's come with it) poses a dire threat to Appalachia. If things now being planned materialize, then it's goodbye hick and hicktown, country hayseed and bumpkin, for your creeks and rivers all will be dammed and damned; and if your land is underlaid with coal, then it's goodbye corn crop, burley tobacco, bean patch and cabbage row.
What has made the region expendable to the point that planners have gone so far as to chart new towns and housing complexes on which to move Appalachian? Perhaps the American dollar and perhaps American coal as bargaining agents for oil.
Industrialists with an eye on coal and vast supplies of water don't see the great green Caney Valley in Morgan County, tree-covered hills in Floyd and lush meadowland in Johnson. What do most of them see?

They see the hillbilly, backward and dense, shy to strangers, patches on his overalls and straws sticking from his slouch hat. They see barefoot children, unpainted shacks and rickety outdoor toilets, cow paths, dusty country roads, hound dogs and long guns.
They don't know that from the region have come more educators, jurists, more lawyers, more skilled craftsmen, professors and college presidents and even industrial leaders than from any region with comparable population.
They don't know that for every Appalachian child who has made it through college, aided by a sacrificing family, there are scores of metropolitan children who could have made it but lacked the push.
But the plans are in high gear, and it's goodbye, Appalachia.
Dam builders are building, and miners are stripping coal from what were lush, green hills with grazing cattle. These hills could have produced corn and other grain in the years ahead when all the money in the region won't be enough to buy food for the people. And the people, what about them?
Whereas they had been a proud people, proud of their ancestry and their land, proud that they could educate their children, proud that they could enjoy gardens and homes surrounded by beloved and familiar hills, they will revert once again to typical, backward, shuffling, passive, government handout humanity. Only they won't have their beloved hills around them; they'll be in trailer courts or so-called new towns.

Maloney Opens Store In South Williamson
Maloney's new store in South Williamson, Ky. will open tomorrow (Thursday). The 20,000 square foot metal building will replace the former store which was destroyed by fire, January 1.
Originally opened in the early '60's as a bowling alley, the former building was converted to a retail store by Maloney's in February, 1970. The new building is 6,000 square feet larger than the old. Most of the additional space will be used to display home improvement materials for the do-it-yourself home owner.
The opening of the new store will give Maloney's Discount Department Stores 12 operating locations in eastern Kentucky and southern Ohio. Main offices and central warehouse facilities are located in Mt. Sterling.
The amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act that went into effect May 1, 1974, brought to 538,000 the number of farm workers with federal minimum wage protection, according to the U. S. Department of Labor.

State Crime Rises 16.3 Per Cent

Frankfort, Ky.—In 1930, the Federal Bureau of Investigation introduced uniform crime statistics to measure increases and decreases in major crime. Now, State Police Commissioner Ron L. Johnson thinks that those figures are beginning to measure a good deal more.

Referring to a preliminary report released by his office which shows a 16.3 per cent rise in reported crimes for Kentucky during the first quarter of 1974, Johnson said the increase was not altogether unexpected.

While statistics for a three-month period do not provide enough information on which to base a trend, they do indicate that crime still is on the increase, he said. The FBI already had reported a 15 per cent increase nationally for the same period.

However, vast improvements in crime reporting procedures, investigative techniques and criminal justice systems, as well as a changing sense of public morality toward what ought to be considered criminal, also were cited by the commissioner as having an effect on the statistical increase in crime rates.

"For one thing, corruption in government and a sick economy where prices rise faster than salaries has made it easier for some otherwise honest people to justify in their minds pocketing a little ground beef at the supermarket, siphoning a bit of gasoline from a parked car or butchering an occasional cow along a dark highway," Johns said.

Larceny-theft, up 19 per cent in the FBI first-quarter report, topped all other crimes. In Kentucky, only a larger increase in reported rapes kept larceny-theft—up 23.7 per cent—from also topping the state's list.

Johnson also pointed to regional first-quarter figures supplied by the FBI which show that thievery generally was a greater problem in the predominately rural South where the per capita income is lower than in the industrial North.

According to those figures, property crimes increased only 10 per cent in the north-central United States as compared to a 24 per cent rise in the South.

Kentucky fared considerably better than her regional sister states. Property crimes in Kentucky rose only slightly above 17 per cent. Kentucky also made a better showing in the violent crime category, reporting a 7.3 per cent increase as compared to a 10 per cent rise for the entire region.

Johnson was "no convinced that all the reported crime increases were bad," however. At least part of the larger figures is a result of changing public attitudes toward police, he said.

"As the image of the officer improves, we are seeing more citizens beginning to report many crimes that once might have gone unreported."

One measure of police improvement in Kentucky is seen in recent case clearance rates collected by state police uniform crime reporting technicians. During the first quarter of 1974, the number of cases solved by arrest increased 4 per cent, from 3,700 for the same period in 1973 to 5,100 for 1974.

Johnson said that understanding crime statistics now means recognizing that they no longer show only increases in new crime. They also show that police are becoming more professional in uncovering crimes that once went undetected, or unreported, and the public is beginning to take a more active interest in crime prevention.

"We ought to keep on worrying about the first part of that formula," he said. "But we also ought to applaud the second. It's the deterrent we've all been looking for."

Currently, Johnson is discussing a multi-million dollar grant proposal with the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration which would fund an all-out crime prevention program in Kentucky. At least two features of that program will be implemented, even if the grant is not approved.

One is a state-wide, toll-free telephone line which anyone can use to report a crime in police in their own locality. The other will urge citizens to engrave an identification number on their personal property which will aid police in recovering those items, if they later are stolen.

The state's first-quarter crime percentages for 1972, compared with the national figures:

Crime	Kentucky	National
Murder	+16.7	+7
Rape	+26.2	+10
Robbery	-4.4	+1
Aggravated Assault	+13.2	+7
Breaking and Entering	+17.4	+15
Larceny-theft	+23.7	+19
Auto Theft	-12.1	+15

A family reunion was held Sunday, July 21, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Osborne, of Hite, for their children, Mr. and Mrs. Don Osborne and family, Donita, Darrell, Dawana and DeAnn, all of Middletown, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. Gary Osborne and daughter, Debbie, of Louisville, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Crisp and family, Mr. and Mrs. Earnie Moore and son, Chris, of Price, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Crisp, of Minnie, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Osborne and son, Todd, of Hite, granddaughters Connie, Ella and Tammy Crisp, all of Hite. Also attending were Mr. and Mrs. Leymayne Dingus and daughter, Keesha, of Martin. An old-fashioned dinner was served and enjoyed by all.

arrested last year for major crimes were under the age of 18.

According to the latest uniform crime report for Kentucky, 31.9 per cent of all arrests reported last year—murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, breaking and entering, larceny-theft and auto theft—involved a juvenile.

Still, the 1973 juvenile arrest figure of nearly 32 per cent represented a decrease of slightly more than 2 per cent from 1972 when juveniles accounted for 34.1 per cent of all arrests for major crimes. It also failed to eclipse the second highest mark of 33.5 per cent set in 1971.

Juvenile arrests figured in 6 per cent of the murders; 11 per cent of the rapes; 22 per cent of the robberies; 6 per cent of the assaults; 36 per cent of the burglaries; 37 per cent of the larceny-thefts; and 43 per cent of the auto thefts.

And yet, despite that apparently impressive degree of involvement, major crimes during 1973 still showed a sizable 8.8 per cent drop since 1972, dipping from 6,699 to 6,109.

Adult arrests for major crimes, however, generally inched upward by nearly 1 per cent.

Work at Dam Won't Hinder Recreation, Engineers Claim

Frankfort, Ky.—The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers says repair work now going on at the Wolf Creek dam, which impounds Lake Cumberland, will not hinder recreation on the lake.

A Corps spokesman adds that the lower water level needed for the work will prove beneficial to future fishing in certain lake areas.

Although water levels are 10-30 feet lower than in the past, Corps officials say that access to all boat launching ramps, recreation areas and concessions will be maintained.

"Some coves on the lake may be too shallow for fishing now," Corps Officer Clyde Wisner said. However, a lower water line will allow vegetation to grow on the shore, which will help fishing when the water rises to normal levels, he added.

The work on the dam, maintained by the Corps' Nashville district, is part of a continuing exploratory and corrective program begun in 1968 after seepage through the dam was discovered. The current drilling, Wisner said, will provide data necessary for the construction of a concrete wall in the earthen portion of the dam.

He said that no completion date had yet been set for the work.

The Roving Doctor of the Hills

By GEORGE L. MOORE

In the 1890's my parents settled in a remote section of Elliott county. They lived in a log house on a high hill overlooking Clay Fork of Sinking Creek. Since their house could be reached only by following a long, narrow trail up the mountain, they had few visitors during the day and none during the night.

But one cold, wintry night as they prepared to retire, they heard a high rasping voice calling: "Hello, in there! Hello, in there!" When my father opened the door, a voice called to him from the darkness and said, "I am Dr. Campbell; I have just lost my horse in an accident and am looking for lodging for the night."

My father invited him inside. As he moved into the light of the fireplace, one could see in a glance that he was not a native of these parts. He was short, a rather heavy-set man with a dark, swarthy complexion. He had heavy, dark eyebrows and an abundant black mustache that was neatly trimmed. He wore a new black suit, a high celluloid collar and a round-topped plug hat.

The following morning, he made a deal with my father to rent a horse and saddle for a dollar per day. He had a pair of huge, black saddle pockets that were well stocked with medicine. The liquid was stored in large, amber-colored bottles; the powders were stored in small cloth bags and numerous boxes. He relied heavily on a medicine which he called Nurade Ammonia. Evidently, he invented this term himself.

He was an unusual doctor, to say the least. That the Dr. title was not authentic did not seem to matter much in those days. The patients did not seek him; he sought the patients.

He would ride up to a farmhouse and introduce himself as Dr. Campbell. He would inquire if there was any sickness in the family. There usually was at least one person who was ill. He would offer a free examination to the ailing patient. He had a standard procedure of examination which he followed religiously. He would take the patient's right hand in his right hand and grip it firmly before he began his conversation. He would always say to the patient, "Now don't you tell me but let me tell you what hurts you."

The amazing thing about his diagnosis was, as many old-timers will swear, his uncanny ability to tell the patient in detail where his aches and pains were. When asked if he could cure the malady, his answer was always yes. It was something to watch him go to work. He had a long-bladed pocket knife with a blunt point. He would dip the point of the knife into the powdered substance and deposit the content on a small square of paper, then fold the squares of paper and force them into an envelope that bore the name of Dr. Campbell printed in large, black letters. He would write on the outside of the envelope for the patient to take three doses a day. The powder in each square of paper was a dose. The liquid he poured from a large bottle into a smaller one. The instruction here was to take so many spoonfuls per day.

He attributed most of the ailments of the human race to some malfunction of the liver. His cures concentrated mainly on this organ of the body. He used bitters to cure all forms of rheumatism. His bitters were just what the term indicated. You could not imagine a more vile-tasting stuff. The concoction consisted mainly of alcohol in which a variety of herbs had been submerged.

Although Dr. Campbell may have never seen the inside of a medical school, he was nobody's fool. He induced my father to buy a two-horse rig and in it they made long trips into the south.

They traveled in the back country, avoiding the cities as much as possible. They did, however, pass through the cities of Knoxville and Chattanooga Tennessee. They roved as far south as the state of Mississippi. On their return journey, they were caught in a severe thunder storm atop Lookout Mountain. As the storm persisted for a long period of time, they were forced to spend the night in a costly resort hotel. When they settled the bill the following morning, the proprietor said that he would just charge them $54," because they were not regular tourists." The doctor paid the bill without protest but as he turned to leave he said, "Mister, there is one thing I must tell you; your wife is going to die." He gave his usual free examination. It is needless to say that treatment followed. The man asked for the bill. Dr. Campbell said, "Since you are just an inkeeper, your bill will just be $54."

Although they roved far and wide in many states, perhaps his most lucrative practice was in the Big Sandy country. He worked this region in this manner:

He had a large number of handbills printed. An advance agent would travel ahead and distribute these at population centers. These bills informed the people that Dr. Campbell would be there on a certain date and would give free medical examinations to all who wished to avail themselves of the opportunity.

Eventually, more M.D.'s began to practice in the mountains and there was less demand for the Roving Doctor's service. He went back to the one-horse practice of former years. He rented a horse and saddle from my father and rode off in the early morning as was his custom. No one heard of him again until he stepped from the train at Olive Hill, 30 years later.

He had now reached an advanced age and his method of medical treatment had become obsolete.

My father never asked where he had been or what he had been doing all these years. I was much more curious to find out where the good doctor had been for this long period of time. He told me this story.

"When I left here I headed for the high country in the Big Sandy. Business was no longer good there as in the old days I stayed here for a few months and passed through the Pound Gap into Old Virginia. I practiced here for a while and the moved on to North Carolina. This was a good place to doctor; I stayed here for a bout two years. Then I moved through the Red Oak hills of Georgia; I was headed for Mississippi. This was the best state that I ever practiced in. I don't remember how many years I stayed here but it was a long time. When I left here I traveled through Louisiana to Texas. Texas—boy, that is a big state. It took me more than a year to doctor my way across the state. When I reached the Mexican border, I bought a two-horse rig, hired a Mexican boy to assist me and crossed the border into Old Mexico. We didn't do much good the first few days. I couldn't understand them and they could not understand me. They seemed to be very suspicious of my Mexican helper. As we journeyed along, we came up on three officers who were peering into the thicket above the road. Suddenly three shots rang out and the three men fell dead in the road. We thought the men in the thicket might kill us so we got away from there in a hurry. We whipped the horses as fast as they could go and thought we had escaped. A few miles further down the trail a bunch of officers appeared and blocked the road. They forced us to return with them to where the dead men were lying. We were arrested and placed in jail. In a few days we were tried and sentenced to 15 years in prison. After we were released, I returned to Texas. Just as soon as I raised a stake, I boarded a train and headed for Kentucky."

I took the story, especially the Mexican part of it, with a grain of salt. I had no way to verify the story one way or the other, but at least it was interesting to hear him tell it.

Ironically, his career ended where it had begun almost a half century ago. My parents were still living near the site of the original log house. It was in the late autumn and the chill of winter was in the air. My parents had now reached the eventide of life. They retired for the night early, as did most rural people. Suddenly there was a rap on the front door. A messenger brought the news that Dr. Campbell had fallen from his horse and was lying in the road at the foot of the hill.

My father secured the help of a neighbor and hauled him to our house. He never regained consciousness. In a short time he passed away and was laid to rest in a cemetery at Limestone, Kentucky.

School Bus Driver Training Set 2 Days At Porter School

Serving the school districts of Floyd, Elliott, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, Morgan and Pike counties and the Paintsville and Pikeville independent districts, a driver training school will be held at the Porter Elementary School, near Paintsville, August 12-13, beginning at 9 a.m. (CDT).

Classes in driving techniques will be tailored to driving conditions in each area.

A team of school bus driver trainers is composed of two field supervisors from the Division of Pupil Transportation and an officer from the Kentucky State Police. Two such teams will be in operation from mid-July until late August when the public schools begin to open. Training programs cover these areas: traffic laws, State Board of Education regulations that pertain to pupil transportation, first aid, vehicle inspection, emergency procedures and pupil behavior management.

All new school bus drivers and all drivers who have not attended a training session within the past two years are urged to attend a driver training school that will be held in their area.

To help drivers acquire and maintain the skills and attitudes essential to their job, the Department of Education has for the past 10 summers conducted school bus driver training programs throughout the state.

Local transit drivers, operators and conductors and employees of certain state or local seasonal recreational facilities are among government employees exempt from overtime provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Morehead State University President Adron Doran, right, and his wife Mignon, left, talk with the Ray Heinisch family, of McDowell, during MSU's freshmen orientation and pre-registration program. The Heinisch's son, Glen, is enrolling at MSU next month. He is a graduate of McDowell High School and was an honorable mention all-state basketball player.

EKCEP TAKES APPLICATIONS

The Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program is taking applications for training in the following trades: welding, clerk-stenographer, nurse aide, auto body repair, auto mechanic, mine mechanic, heating and air-conditioning, electricity and drafting. Interested persons should apply at the EKCEP office in Archer Park, Prestonsburg.

U. S. District Court Convicts Pen Inmate In Floyd Car Case

Paul Wayne Fitzpatrick, 19, who is currently an inmate of the Indiana state reformatory, was convicted in U. S. district court last Wednesday in connection with the interstate transportation of a stolen 1971 Oldsmobile from Indiana to Floyd county.

John M. Compton, assistant U. S. attorney, detailed that Fitzpatrick and another inmate escaped from the custody of Indiana authorities, stole the automobile and brought it to Kentucky where it was stripped and sold. The automobile was owned by the state of Indiana and was provided for the use of an Indiana Court of Appeals judge.

Judge H. David Hermansdorfer held that Fitzpatrick would benefit from the provisions of the Youth Corrections Act and sentenced him to an indefinite period of confinement. Under the provisions of the Youth Corrections Act, Fitzpatrick will be required to pursue some vocational educational training.

The U. S. Department of Labor's Labor-Management Services Administration administers representation elections and standards of conduct for relations between federal agencies and unions under Executive Order 11491.

ARLEY BROS. PERFORMING BEARS

ARH, Union Reach Agreement Ending 115-Day-Long Strike

An agreement to end a 115-day strike was announced jointly last Wednesday by Appalachian Regional Hospitals and the United Steelworkers of America (AFL-CIO-CLC).

A new three-year contract affecting nine hospitals of the non-profit health care system in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia has been ratified by a majority of the union's membership and approved by the ARH board of trustees.

The settlement provided for the return to work of approximately 1180 employes on the midnight shift Sunday, July 28. These workers include 950 union members and 230 non-union workers who left their jobs April 1 when a 39-month contract expired.

The contract provides for a 10 per cent wage increase, to be granted in two stages: 7 per cent on Sept. 16, 1974 and 3 per cent on Jan. 6, 1975. In addition, the contract will be reopened for negotiation of additional wage increases and fringe benefits on June 2, 1975 and May 3, 1976. The increases will apply to all of ARH's 2800 employes, Dr. David K. Heydinger, ARH president, said.

Other major provisions of the contract include:

1. The contract opens the way for the Steelworkers, who have been bargaining agent for maintenance and service workers and nurse aides, to represent additional employes among classifications such as licensed practical nurses and clerical and technical employes.

2. The union agrees not to strike during the life of the contract, including the two reopenings for new wage negotiations.

Dr. Heydinger explained the provisions for expansion of union membership as follows:

"Those non-union employes who have signed union cards petitioning for union representation can join the union if they sign check-off cards authorizing ARH to deduct union dues from their paychecks, and

"Any new employes hired by ARH in certain classifications, such as licensed practical nurses and clerical and technical employes, will have a choice of whether they will or will not become members of the union."

Dr. Heydinger said the agreement does not require anyone to join the union.

Mowry and Dr. Heydinger praised the new no-strike clause as "historically significant." They pointed out that it not only prohibits strikes throughout the three-year contract and during reopenings, but it provides for binding arbitration of disputes not settled by negotiation.

The agreement affects nine hospitals and the Homeplace Clinic operated by ARH. The hospitals are located at McDowell, Harlan, Hazard, Middlesboro, South Williamson and Whitesburg, Ky.; Beckley and Man, W. Va., and Wise, Va. The clinic is at Ary, Perry county, Kentucky. ARH operates a tenth hospital at West Liberty, Ky.

LARRY RAY HOWARD
Eastern, Ky. 1t.-pd.

Once this was famished farmland, then our stripmine. We reclaimed it into lovely woodland and lakes—a tiny part of our investment in environment.

We were environmentalists long before it was popular.

We've got nearly a billion in investments to prove it.

We've never been reluctant to invest in projects or workable controls to enhance and protect the environment.

Like electrostatic precipitators that today remove 99.7% of the fly ash. We began with mechanical dust collectors as early as 1918. Installed and tested our first electrostatic precipitator in 1941. That's 26 years before the Clean Air Act.

Today we're in the midst of a massive five year program of new installations and backfitting of existing precipitators. The cost? Over five hundred million dollars.

Or cooling towers, where they are needed to safeguard water quality. We were the first in the Western Hemisphere to build a natural draft cooling tower. We have more power generation cooled by towers than any electric utility in the country.

Today we are operating, building or designing 13 cooling towers to eliminate the discharge of heat into adjacent waterways. The cost? Over one hundred million dollars.

Or tall chimney stacks that disperse sulfur-oxides over a wide area in the upper atmosphere.

We couple these tall stacks (as high as 1200 feet—that's slightly less than the Empire State Building) with an extensive, computerized, system of ground-level monitoring to assure that the quality of air is not harmful to human health, animals or plants.

We've invested tens of millions of dollars in these tall stacks and ground-level monitoring because it's a system that works. A system that permits full compliance with ambient air standards of the Clean Air Act.

These major investments, plus many less dramatic ones are proof of our nearly one billion dollar commitment to enhance and protect the environment.

Proof too, of our historic concern for the environment. Even before it was popular.

America has more coal than the Middle East has oil. Let's dig it!

"THOSE CRAZY EPISCOPALIANS"

such an unfriendly bunch!

It's true that Episcopalians don't make chit-chat during services. Or before. Or immediately after. Visitors occasionally go away saying, "What an unfriendly bunch."

Next time, don't rush away so fast.

Episcopalians don't mean to seem rude. They do mean to pay respect to God... until they're well outside the church proper.

Next time, give them a few minutes to "warm up." Stick around and get acquainted. Join them for coffee in the nearby parish hall...and perhaps some of their funny ideas will even make sense.

If you'd like to learn more about the Episcopal Church and its views, your nearest Episcopal neighbor or minister would be flattered to discuss them...without "twisting your arm." Who knows? He might even make sense.

PCC To Offer New Music Courses

Persons of all ages who have wanted to study violin, viola, cello or string bass will now have the opportunity to do so as the result of a new development in Prestonsburg Community College's Community Service Program.

Evening strings classes will be taught by Buddy Ratcliff, of Martin, on Tuesdays, beginning September 3. There will be two sections: high strings (violin and viola) which will meet from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and low strings (cello and string bass) which will meet from 7:45 to 8:45 p.m. In addition to these classes there will be individual studio lessons available for those who desire them. The strings program is open to all who are serious about learning correct technique and who hope to develop artistically, whether in the area of classical music or traditional fiddle playing. The young are especially encouraged to participate.

Also on Tuesdays from 4:30 to 6:15 p.m., a course entitled, "College Preparatory Music," will be offered, beginning a week later, September 10. This class, taught by James Ratcliff, is especially appropriate for the high school student who is serious about music and is thinking of pursuing music as a vocation or hobby. It is designed to better the student's competency so that he or she may confidently apply for admission at the college, university or conservatory of his or her choosing. The course will include music theory, ear training, musical form and music history. It may be convenient for those taking this class to enroll in strings as well, since both are offered the same evening without a time conflict.

Another new development in the program is the addition of two piano instructors, Nancy Lyon, of Hager Hill, and John Ward Williamson, of Inez. Miss Lyon is a graduate of Cincinnati Conservatory where she studied with Mme. Olga Conus. Mr. Williamson is a graduate of Georgetown College and is presently teaching in the Martin county school system.

Other music activities at the college will include private lessons in voice and band instruments, concert band and community chorus. Rehearsals for community chorus, directed by Gus Kalos, will begin Monday, September 9, at 7 p.m.

For further information, call the office of James Ratcliff, coordinator of Community Services, 886-3863, ext. 208.

"West Side Story" Now Showing At JW Summer Music Theatre

"West Side Story," the musical drama about Puerto Rican-American feuds in New York slums that shocked and delighted New York audiences for more than two years with its tender but terror-ridden story, is now being performed at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, and will run through August 4, Wednesday through Sunday at 8:30 p.m. (C.D.T.).

Hailed by all the critics in New York and London as one of the major achievements of mid-century musical theatrical history, "West Side Story" is a re-telling of the Romeo and Juliet story, with its action set amid the swirling street-feuds of youthful Americans and Puerto Ricans in Manhattan.

As in the case of Shakespeare's romantic tragedy, the Arthur Laurent's libretto of the musical tells how the blossoming of a romance between a girl and boy belonging to mutually antagonistic factions leads to intensification of their strife, to heartbreak and the death of the impassioned lovers.

"West Side Story" was originally based on a conception by the celebrated choreographer, Jerome Robbins, and it is consequently a story that is told as much by tense and dramatic dances as by words and music. Scott Lawrence, of New York, portrays Tony, the American lover of Maria, a Puerto Rican girl, played by Linda Marks, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The show is directed by Miss Susan Rosenstock, of the University of Maryland. The musical direction is in the hands of Dr. Michael Cerveris, of Marshall University, and Eric Gustafson, of Washington, D.C., and the drab but picturesque backgrounds have been designed by Miss Johniene Papandreas, of Morgantown, W. Va.

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK (Attorney General)

"Congratulations, Mrs. John Doe, you have been selected to receive a special, valuable prize. There are no obligations—no strings attached... we only ask you to allow our company to demonstrate our new product."

Variations of the above sales "pitch" are often used as a "door opener." If the consumer accepts his prize, he invites a company representative to come into his home. The prize may be a small token of trading stamps, discounts of merchandise, usually of little value and conditioned upon picking it up at the seller's place of business.

Because "door openers" have been abused by some companies in the past, consumers should be aware of the pressure-sales tactics often used after the "door is open."

There are several important tips that a consumer should remember if he is notified that he has been chosen as a "winner," conditioned upon a demonstration of a product:

—Before inviting a salesman to his home, a consumer should request information about what product is to be demonstrated, who manufactures the product, and what is that cost.

—If the consumer decides he may wish to purchase such a product, he should compare the price of similar items selling in the area.

—If the consumer has questions regarding the company or the manufacturer, he should check with the local Chamber of Commerce, Better Business Bureau, or the local or state consumer protection agency.

My Name Is Jake Layne

I live at Manton, Kentucky

MY SUBJECT IS DICTATORSHIP AND TYRANNY in Floyd County as demonstrated during and after the July 18 Martin PTA meeting.

Because my family and I dare speak out against the oppression, domination by the minority, denial of the right to vote on the issues, refusal of the executive committee to invite local ministers to address the PTA, illegal maneuvers and all afflictions inherent in the abandonment of democratic process, MEMBERS OF MY FAMILY WERE INTIMIDATED. One was directly threatened with loss of business because she was taking advantage of her God given right as an American citizen to stand up and vote, her way. She was so upset by the intimidation she came home in tears. Another family member was berated because of a supposed favor once rendered.

I take a great deal of pride in raising my children to exercise their privilege to vote. When their livelihood is threatened because of this expression of freedom, I must speak out against it.

I am asking all of Floyd County to wake up, to realize that when any man's freedoms are threatened, yours too are in jeopardy. How far will we Floyd Countians allow this malignancy in our school system to spread?

I say that if we are to rid ourselves of this scourge which deprives the people of a voice in school policy and denies our school children the advantages to be gained from this voice, we must first rid ourselves of CHARLES CLARK. There is a way this can be accomplished. At the polls in school board elections. There is an election this November.

Seek the truth; don't be deceived by false candidates; become involved; participate in this campaign, and elect a representative that will be the true voice of the people.

If you choose a candidate that will continue the Charles Clark policies, YOU OR YOUR FAMILY MAY BE NEXT TO BE THREATENED.

Floyd County Health Notes

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH (Health Educator)

The Floyd County Health Department reminds parents that children need a thorough dental examination at the start of the school year because many children are hampered by dental defects which could affect their school work and cause absenteeism.

Most of children's dental problems can be avoided with twice-a-year visits to the dentist. Also, children should be taught that excessive sweets in the diet should be avoided as they can cause more cavities than normal. It is also important to teach children that a balanced diet, including such foods as raw vegetables, meats, milk and cheese, is effective in hindering the formation of cavities.

Of course proper dental care at home is extremely important in the prevention of cavities. Children need a soft-bristle toothbrush that won't damage the gums and a supply of dental floss.

SLATE PAP SMEAR CLINIC

Cervical cancer is the second leading cause of cancer deaths in women, but is potentially curable if caught early enough. Cancer experts believe that these deaths would be completely eliminated if all women would get a yearly Pap Smear.

The Floyd County Health Department will hold a pap smear clinic Wednesday, August 7, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Patients will be seen by appointment only. If you need an appointment, call the health department at 886-2788 from 8 to 4:30, Monday through Friday.

OUTPOST CLINIC AT MARTIN

The Floyd County Health Department announces that a public health nurse will hold an outpost clinic Monday, August 5, at Dr. Claude L. Allen's office in Martin from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. All persons in the Martin area are welcome to attend this clinic for the following free services: TB skin tests, immunizations, diabetes screening, blood pressures and pap smears.

The health department reminds all women that they should have a pap smear at least one a year.

Local transit drivers, operators and conductors and employees of certain state or local seasonal recreational facilities are among government employees exempt from overtime provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

NOTICE

To gas companies and individuals in Floyd county magisterial District 2: From date of this publication gas lines should be buried at an adequate depth or otherwise situated so as to avoid damage by scrapers, graders and general road improvement work. ENERGY CONSERVATION TIP
Always remember that you can save energy by using the lowest heat setting that will do the job. Clean surface unit reflector pans also increase efficiency. When you're cooking, cover the saucepans. Foods cook faster, conserving energy and your kitchen stays cooler. Use pans that cover the surface units. You'll avoid wasted heat or a prolonged cooking time.

Free Teaching Service For Handicapped Tots

Any parent whose child is unable to attend regular school because of a physical handicap and desires a homebound teacher for part or all of the coming school year should contact Richmond Stone at the office of the Floyd County Board of Education. There is no charge to the parent for this service.

THE FIGHTINEST RABBIT

"The rabbit is a rank coward," most people say. "It will turn its cotton tail and flee at the first sign of danger." So we are prone to say of cowardly people, "They have rabbit blood in their veins."
But the mother rabbit I saw standing up boldly and fighting a savage snake in defense of her young was no coward. She was one of the bravest animal mothers I've ever seen. It taught me to realize that any animal mother, no matter how timid, will fight to save her young from a horrible death—being swallowed by a snake.

Early in the spring the expectant rabbit mother carefully made a nest for the arrival of her babies. She hid it in a dense clump of brown broom sedge at the back of the pasture. She made the nest of grass and dry leaves and prepared two "doors," one on either side, so that if a predator attacked the young through one of the doors, there was a way of escape by the other door.

The big Pilot blacksnake is fond of your rabbits and will swallow a whole litter of them if he gets the chance.

In the last days of March the mother rabbit gave birth to four tiny pink babies that were totally blind and naked. It would take about two weeks for them to open their eyes to the light of day. She knew that cold spring snaps might freeze the naked babies to death, so she lined the nest with soft fur plucked from her own breast.

The big blacksnake was prowling about the pasture, looking for most any small animal to swallow. Any young and tender one would serve to break his long winter fast and satisfy the gnawing pangs of hunger. He had just crawled out of his winter burrow under the roots of a large black oak tree on the point not far above the pasture field.

While slithering about through the broom sedge in the first warm days of April, the snake discovered the nest of young rabbits. Here was meat a-plenty to satisfy his famished stomach! Being much experienced in finding the nests of young rabbits, the wily snake knew that all of them were snugly asleep in their nest of soft fur. He at once crawled closer to ram his head inside the nest. But the mother rabbit was keeping watch nearby. She stamped her feet to warn the snake, then leaped violently for the attack.

About this time I appeared on the scene, drawn there by the violent thrashing in the broom sedge I stood still to watch the weird drama unfold. I didn't have a club or other weapon to kill the snake. So I just stood still and watched.

The mother rabbit stood up boldly in front of the opening to the nest and fought savagely to keep the snake from ramming his head inside. He lashed out at her, trying to drive her back. But she stood her ground and fought him like a trained boxer. He tried to ram his head into the nest, but she leaped at him and struck him with quick, savage blows of her forepaws. He turned then to circle the nest and she chased him, kicking him with all might. They wily snake knew there was a second door to the nest, and as she fought him every inch of the way, he kept looking until he located the second door. Then he rammed his head inside, with the mother rabbit squealing and slapping him with all the strength she could muster.

When the snake withdrew his head, he had one of the pink baby rabbits firmly clasped in his greedy jaws. The desperate mother tried in vain to rescue it. She made it so hot for him, he glided away through the brown sedge, holding fast to his prize catch. She chased him but he soon eluded her in the thick sedge. A dejected, heartbroken mother came limply back to the rest of her little ones. I felt pity for her and decided to hunt the snake and kill it. I figured as soon as he had swallowed this one, he would come back for another.

I located him at last. He had the baby rabbit almost down. I looked around for a club but by the time I had found one, the snake had disappeared. I hurried back to the nest to help the mother rabbit stand guard. I stayed there about an hour but the snake did not return. I knew then he feared me more than he did the mother rabbit. Ever since then I have had much respect for the cottontail rabbit, which is not so cowardly as people think.

Mountain Parkway Art Show Slated

By HELEN PRICE STACY

The ninth annual Mountain Parkway Art Exhibit is scheduled Sunday, Aug. 11, on Hoedown Island, Natural Bridge State Resort Park.

Registration of artists will begin at 10 a.m., according to Mrs. Jeryln Rose, president of Powell County Art Club which sponsors the popular event.

Mrs. Rose, editor of the Clay City Times, said that paintings in all media are welcome, "but all work must be properly framed or matted." She adds that artists from anywhere may exhibit and sell their art work.

"No one will be disappointed this year," states Mrs. Dena Shepherd of North Fork Road, Stanton, vice president of the club, "for more than 500 paintings are expected to be displayed."

The display area is the concrete island, surrounded by a lake formed by Middle Fork of Red River and rimmed by massive shade trees. Several tiers of bleacher seats provide convenient areas for artists to set up their works for viewing.

Due to the increasing number of paintings which are exhibited each year, the club has announced, paintings will be given priority and pieces classified as crafts will be exhibited only as space permits.

The annual show is not a judged event, but is a showcase for all artists and an opportunity for art lovers to purchase paintings in a wide price range.

Wed in June 8th Ceremony

The wedding of Miss Sally Elizabeth Horn and Mr. Gill G. Rhodes was solemnized at 6 p.m., Saturday, June 8, at the Calvary Baptist Church, Lexington, Kentucky. The Rev. L. Reed Polk, Jr. performed the double-ring ceremony. The altar was decorated with summer flowers and candelabra holding lighted tapers.

A program of organ music was presented by organist, Richard Dwyer, and vocalist, Robert LaFontaine, who sang "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Eva Allen Horn, Prestonsburg, and the late Joe W. Horn. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Rhodes, of Bowling Green, Kentucky.

Given in marriage by her brother, Joe A. Horn, of Prestonsburg, the bride wore a princess-style gown of white satin, trimmed in lace. The train was of satin covered with lace. Her fingertip-length veil was secured by a headpiece of seed pearls and lace. She carried a bouquet of pastel flowers.

The bride's maid of honor, Marsha Fields, Lexington, wore a pastel princess-style pink dress with long, lace sleeves and a matching picture hat. She carried a bouquet of pastel flowers. Linda Yeary, Lexington, and Evelyn Tolliver, Winchester, wore pastel yellow and mint green dresses and carried bouquets which were identical to those of the honor attendant. The flower girl, Elizabeth Snow Hughes, of Lexington, wore a pink satin dress designed like the bridesmaids' gowns. Master Donnie Moats, Bowling Green, served as ringbearer.

Ronald B. Stewart, Lexington, served as best man for Mr. Rhoads. Ushers were Jim Jones, Harrisonburg, Virginia; Glen Ford, Bowling Green; Roger Burlew, Lexington; and Glen Ed Bradley, Louisville.

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother chose a long, princess-style, pale blue knit dress with white accessories and wore a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Jack Allen, grandmother of the bride, wore a floor-length, lavender dress trimmed with pearls and rhinestones and a white orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. M. M. Rhodes, wore a pink, floor-length dress with white accessories and a white corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Ronald Stewart, 3607 Salisbury Drive, Westmoreland Estates. Assisting at the reception were Nancy Watkins, Lexington; Carol Bradley, Louisville; Ann Moats, Bowling Green; Carol Ann Horn, Prestonsburg; Carol Ann Bradley, Louisville.

The bride is a graduate of Pikeville College and the University of Kentucky School of Social Work. She is presently employed by Lexington Blue Grass Comprehensive Care Center.

The groom is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and is employed as assistant to the deputy director for Kentucky Educational Television, Lexington.

Upon their return from a honeymoon in Bermuda, the couple will be at home at 1232 Centre Parkway, Lexington.

Guests attending from this area were Mrs. Rea Hatcher, Mr. Sam D. Hatcher, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hughes, and Miss Gail Wilson, of Prestonsburg; Curtis Chandler, Paintsville; Trent Prater, of David; Ralph J. Allen and daughter, Julia, of Bluefield, West Virginia.

Genealogical Seminar Scheduled

By CELIA BREWER

Frankfort, Ky.—The first annual Kentucky genealogical seminar will provide a unique opportunity for genealogists and interested beginners to share their interests in tracing family trees and related subjects.

The Kentucky Historical Society and the Kentucky Department of Library and Archives will co-sponsor the all-day seminar to be held at the Highland Christian Church, Versailles Road, Frankfort, Aug. 10.

Mrs. Alex Hamilton, acting president of the Kentucky Genealogical Society and coordinator of the seminar, said the seminar will be "for anyone wanting to trace his or her family tree." It goes beyond this, too, she said. "There will be several talks on various related subjects. For instance, someone interested in tracing migration routes would want to attend the talk on that subject."

Copies of all talks given that day will be printed and be made available to those who attended the seminar for $1 each and to all others for $2 each.

She added: "Although the seminar is for everyone, we are urging all librarians throughout the state to attend, as it will be quite an educational experience for them. The study of genealogies ranks as the third most popular hobby in the United States today."

With 300 people, already preregistered the deadline has been extended to Aug. 1. For those who preregistered the cost of the seminar is $5 per single person and $7.50 per married couple. Registration at the door will be $7.50 per single and $10.00 per couple.

Preregistration payment, by check or money order, should be made payable to Seminar and sent to Mrs. Vivian C. Moore, Route 4, Box 89, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

ALC Sets Workshop On Mountain Music

Pippa Passes, Ky.—A workshop dealing with mountain music will be offered at Alice Lloyd College this fall. The workshop will be directed by Guy Carawan, director of music at Highlander Education and Research Center in New Market, Tennessee.

ALC students participating in the workshop will earn three hours college credit. The workshop will seek to evaluate and compare various forms of mountain music, from Old Regular Baptist hymns to bluegrass to strip mine protest songs.

Carawan is a musician, writer and teacher who has performed throughout the United States and in several European countries. An important component of the course, according to Carawan, will be opportunities for students to hear and talk to area musicians in a classroom setting.

The workshop will be offered during ALC's four-week term which begins Aug. 28 and ends Sept. 24.

"The four-week term allows each student to begin his or her college career in a positive way," said William R. Hughes, ALC dean.
