Sheriff Posts Reward After School Looted

Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis announced Monday that he is offering a reward of $100 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the looting last Saturday night of the Garth Vocational School on Left Beaver Creek.

Lewis said those involved broke out a window into the carpentry section of the school and then apparently proceeded to the automotive training area where a reported $1,400 in automotive tools were heisted. The operation appears to authorities to have been the work of one familiar with school equipment, since the items stolen were selected from among other tools which were faulty but otherwise identical in appearance. State Police Detective Sgt. Cornett as well as Lewis and several deputies are involved in the investigation.

Arrested Wednesday night at Mc-Dowell by Deputy Sheriffs Denver Newsome and John D. Martin were three youths charged with possession of marijuana. Robert Campbell and Kevin C. Garlick, both from out of state, and a juvenile were booked after the sheriff's office here received reports that the three had been loitering in the vicinity of McDowell high school. A small quantity of "grass" and smoking pipes were taken from the youths.

Ed Wright, Jr., Crit Butler, and J. C. Butler, all of Drift, were arrested Friday on charges of grand larceny after $100 worth of copper wire was reported missing from the Hargus Hall mine in thinking how lonesome I would be. Stumbo Hollow, near Drift. Sheriff Lewis and deputies discovered where some of the wire had been hidden and a watch

Clothing Center Funding Delayed By Fiscal Court

The Floyd fiscal court meeting last Friday attracted more attention by what it didn't do than by what it did.

It delayed action on a request for funds to continue the staffing of a used clothing center for the needy which for almost a year has been operated at Drift in unused school property. The center was established by a steering committee representing state and federal social service agencies located in the county, churches of the area and the Floyd County Board of Education.

Funding was voted by the fiscal court last July. Its contribution was the salary of one employee who repairs and distributes the clothing as recommended by the steering committee. In the last 10 months, according to Mrs. Eva Allen Horn, social service supervisor of the Public Assistance office here, clothing has been issued to around 3,800 persons.

If the fiscal court fails to renew an appropriation of about $3,000 to meet the salary of the center's lone employee, the program could be terminated, July 1.

City To Invest Part of $109,099 For Machinery

Environmental protection involving the purchase of machinery for operation of the city's solid waste landfill has been given the lion's share of the $101,099 of revenue sharing funds recently allocated to Prestonsburg.

The revenue sharing budget was adopted by the City Council at its meeting last Thursday evening. For the purchase of a bulldozer to be used at the landfill $55,000 was earmarked, and an additional $4,000 was allocated for a wood chipper for use in reducing bushes and The public is invited to attend the free tree branches to disposable material.

> Streets and sidewalks were scheduled to receive $20,000 of the revenue sharing total, and $6,000 will be spent for parking lot gravel. Miscellaneous phases of public safety received $7,799, and the remainder was marked for parks and recreatioon: Equipment, $2,000; recreation director pay, $1,800; chemicals for swimming pools, $1,500; fencing, $1,000, and $2,000 for miscellaneous items or services.

> The council at the same meeting established a Mini-Park board of five members, Sam Wells, Joan Rose Adams, Delbert Wells, Ollie Mae Jervis and Jewel Bayes. Named as alternate members were Ken Blick, James Funkhouser and Belle Short > Jimmy Joe DeRossett and Jack Hyden to the tax assessment equalization board. Phil Scott, South Central Bell manager, Paintsville, appeared at the meeting to explain the delay in restoring streets damaged last winter in the laying of underground telephone lines here. Mr. Scott said inability to find blacktop surfacing for the job is responsible for the delay but said he has been promised by Adams Construction Company "top place in the line" for blacktop when it gets into production. The company's Jenkins asphalt plant has been on strike but a settlement was expected this week.

Mike Wells was employed as dispatcher for the Fire Department, and Oscar Allen for the public works program in the construction of curbs and sidewalks.

80-Year-Old Floyd Chairmaker Plans a 'Break' after He's 100

By MAXINE KENNY

He is a sprightly old man with a twinkle in his eye and a whittling knife in his hand. He is the master of one of the oldest crafts in the mountains.

Dewey Thompson is a chairmaker.

His tools are simple—an ax, saw, brace and bit, drawknife and whittling knife. His chairs are steady, though a little rought-not unlike the gnarled hands that shape them.

"It's the old-fashioned way of doing it, the way chairs were first made in this country. Then they got lathes and started making them a little smoother," he explained to a recent visitor. They stood amidst chairs in various stages of completion in his home on Sugarloaf Creek, near Prestonsburg.

"Never could interest my boy in helping me work or in learning to make chairs hisself," he said. "Young people, they just don't take an interest in it. No, they've got their minds on something

Dewey is one of the few remaining craftsmen who works only with hand tools. He recalls that there were one or two other chairmakers when he came to Floyd county 15 years ago, but they've stopped making chairs as far as he knows.

chair-maker's craft.

In July, he will be 80 years old. Since his wife died last year, he has been living alone. His three children live in Columbus and Detroit.

Dewey was born and raised on Buffalo Creek in Pike county where his father farmed and logged. When Dewey was big enough to carry an ax he started logging with his father and uncle. "I seen Daddy make many a chair.

When I got to be big enough-oh, I was just big enough to hold a piece of timber to hew with an ax-I though I ought to try it, too. I made me two little rocking chairs. Didn't make any mistakes. And I sold 'em, too."

My brothers went to work in the mines. I did a little mining, but I never did like it much. Got married when I was 23. Been married three times. I've mostly farmed and worked on logging jobs-driving a team and cutting timber. I made a few chairs. But in 1957 I started making them

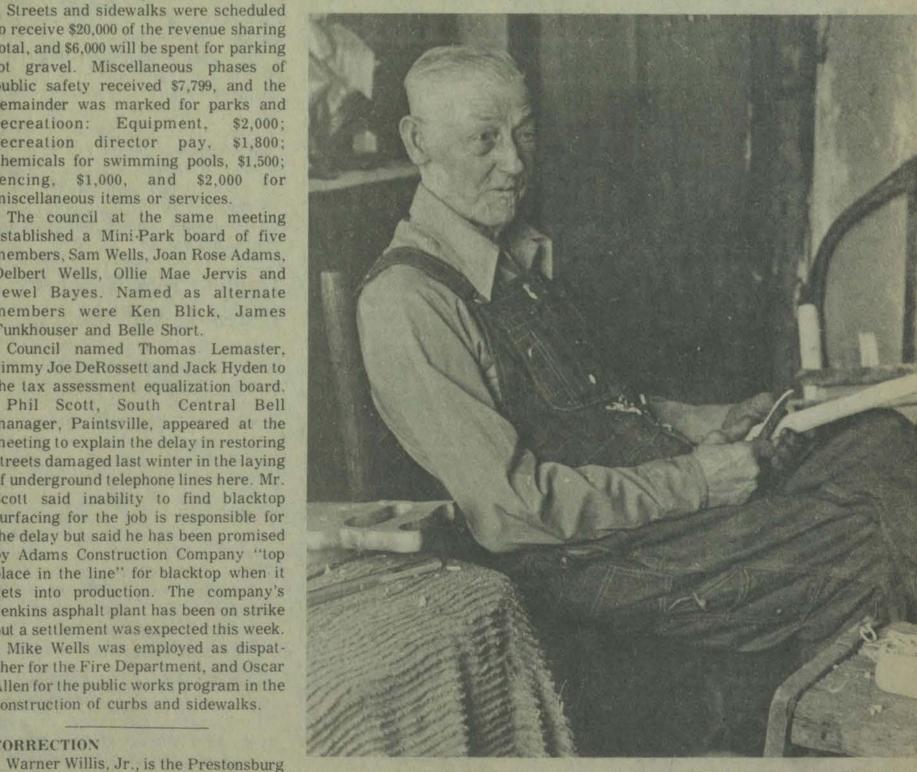

Since he decided to make chairs on a regular basis, he figures that he has made at least a thousand of them.

"I reckon they're scattered all over the United States. I know for a fact they're in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and as far away as New York. One time a man

That first-round game was begun last Wednesday, but wasn't completed until Saturday afternoon. Prestonsburg held to its 3-2 lead behind the pitching of sophomore Mike Dixon to earn the win.

That same afternoon Bath County defeated Boyd County, 7 to 1. There were also two lower bracket upsets as Rowan County defeated Virgie, 7 to 2, and the toruney favorite, Paintsville, was upset by Greenup county, 5 to 2.

During the Prestonsburg-Phelps game, bury, who scored the seldom-achieved Prestonsburg scored two runs in the shot on the sixth hole at Jenny Wiley golf second inning, thanks to two Phelps of the Prep All-American basketball miscues. Magoffin county has numerous other old and tall trees. Some of those on the Gardner place in Salversville are said to be at least 200 years old.

Close to the Magoffin-Floyd county line stands a Georgia pine—tallest tree and only one of its kind on the hill—that traveled as a seedling in a wood coffin bearing the body of Civil War officer Capt. Wiley Patrick from a Georgia battlefield cemetry.

Naval Academy Program Needs Reserve Officers

The Naval Academy Information Program, or Blue and Gold Program as it is commonly called, is in need of additional Reserve Officers or friends of the Naval Academy in the Prestonsburg

The Blue and Gold organization exists to recruit, counsel and assist young men who are interested in attending the U.S. Naval Academy. Blue and Golders assist young men from their initial interest in the Academy through the admission process, hopefully culminating in an offer of appointment.

Those interested in obtaining additional information concerning the Naval Academy Information Program may contact LCDR Gayle H. Rees, 1829 Dalna Drive, Lexington, Kentucky 40505.

Where Help Is Needed—Now

There is no system available for the disposal of solid waste in this county except the landfill method. It is a means successfully employed by Prestonsburg and other population centers for years now, and it could with equal success be used to serve all the county.

But now, more than a year after the search for a landfill site in each magisterial district began, only one location has been made. Landowners and residents in the vicinities of such sites refuse to lease or sell land which could be used.

Meanwhile, the county has not one place where waste materials may legally be dumped, with the exception of the landfill leased by the city of Prestonsburg. And the piles of waste-plastic jugs, cans, all types of refuse-rise daily to make the word, "cleanup," meaningless for the county and to create a very real threat to the people.

County Judge Stumbo speaks feelingly of the frustrations encountered in the search for landfill sites and in the failure of residents to understand how isolated heads-of-hollows areas may actually be improved by the continued process of dumping wastes and covering them until they form level, solid land. Ahead, even after landfills are located and prepared for use, lies the task of developing a waste collection system, its financing and enforcement.

This waste disposal program ranks at or near the top of the priorities for this county. No farmstead or home, however prosperous, can be livable or beautiful, buried or littered by trash. And without these landfills there is no place to hide the unsightly, unsanitary mess.

The help of citizens and members of the fiscal court is an urgent necessity. The streams of the county must not continue to be the surreptitious dumping ground for every householder threatened with entombment in his own wastes.

Access Roads, An Urgent Need

Some of the finest level or rolling lands in Floyd county which might be residential or industrial sites are served only by the railway, and C. & O. in this section doesn't haul people, any more, only coal and inanimate objects.

Because there is little or no highway access to such areas lying "on the railroad side of the river," they are almost as isolated as the most remote head of the hollow.

These are areas which government—county, state, federal should reach. They have great potential, and in mountainous areas such as this are desperately needed.

KY 80, a highway which links this county with Knott and Perry and connects with new US 23 at the Floyd end and with the Mountain Parkway at the other, cries for the improvement that has been promised it. But the building of a dozen or more smaller access routes to open up "new terriotory" is perhaps needed even more than this.

> What to do about them is a question heard at the county Extension office here by gardeners and others who fear damage or destruction of flowers, shrubs and garden plants So John Sparks, of the Extension Service, gives this information and advice:

After years of living in underground tunnels, millions of cicadas, issued from the earth as if by a predetermined signal, undergo startling transformations. In a few weeks after mating and laying eggs they die.

Egg punctures by female cicadas can severly damage or even destroy young, transplanted apple trees in nurseries and orchards. Older trees also may be damaged. The female usually chooses twigs and branches up to seven-eighthsinch in diameter, but when pressed for laying surfaces she lays in every accessible area.

Small trees and shrubs may be protected by covering them with openweave cloth such as heavy cheesecloth. Cicadas can be controlled with carbarvl (Sevin). Prepare the spray by mixing 2 pounds of 50 percent wettable powder with 100 gallons of water. For one gallon of spray use two level tablespoons of 50 per cent wettable powder. Pesticides used improperly can be injurious to man, animals, and plant. Follow the directions and heed all precautions on the labels.

The Rising Cost of Health Care

(Second in a series by Paul Stark, admr. of Our Lady of the Way Hospital)

The implementation of a National Health System is now in the development stages in Congress with a number of diverse proposals presently being studied. A unified health delivery system is necessary; however, it will not in itself solve all our health problems if it does not address the problems of high cost as well as availability of services. The health care problem is threefold; convenient access to care, financial support for services, and controlling cost. Merely developing an efficient access system and pouring more money into it will reduce the quality of care, as well as vastly increase the cost of care. An examination of our present system yields the information necessary to control spiraling health care cost. Four basic cost concerns are:

A. Disequilibrium in the Supply and Demand Schedule: It is in the financial administration of health care legislation that the federal government has been most negligent. The implementation of Medicaid and Medicare programs caused a rapid increase in health care demand without the corresponding improved ability to meet the increased demand, either with more providers of care, or a more efficient system to better utilize available resources. Thus, the government stimulated demand greatly but allowed the supply of service to remain more or less constant. The result was tremendous inflation, higher cost for lesser service. To repeat this action, with a national health system without attending to the supply problem, would mean more inflation to health consumers and a poorer quality of services ren-

B. Lack of Cost Benefit Analysis in Decision Making: Health consumers have very little incentive or encouragement to carefully purchase health services as they base their buying of services on the judgment of their doctor. Physicians, in general, follow the patient's health insurance in assisting their patients in the purchase of services. Orly those without coverage or inadequate coverage seek to find the least expensive method to receive medical services. This often means going without until minor medical problems become major ones. Most insurance plans emphasize inpatient hospital care rather than outpatient clinic care, even when outpatient care would be more suitable and better for the patient. Therefore, third payers (insurance or government programs) force the health consumer to utilize the most expensive type of service, even when it cannot significantly benefit the patient over the less expensive service as it is what the patient's health insurance pays. Thus, without a major change of philosophy on the part of third party payers (government and third party payers), cost will continue to rise while not increasing the amount or quality of medical care purchased.

C. Lack of Cost Conscientiousness by Consumers, Payers, and Providers: Unfortunately, in most cases, no one is truly concerned about the cost of care as the market is largely one of third party payers. With neither the provider nor the consumer directly affected by cost, the normal market mechanism that adjusts the price structure is not operative. Increasingly, one party sets prices for services, a second receives them, and a third party pays for the services, thus there is little concern over the rising cost

Decision Makers: The physician is the key decision maker in the health industry. It is the physician who prescribes drugs, orders tests and X-rays, seeks advice of consultants, admits to and discharges from a hospital and sets the overall attitude toward health care expenditures. According to a leading economist, Victor Fuch, "... nowhere else in the economy do technologists have as much control over demand . . . the only parallel . . . is the military control of the defense budget in time of total war." Presently, there are few methods available to insure that economical decisions are made by physicians, as there is no incentive to be cost conscious on their part. Independent decisions without adequate management type information often means costly mistakes are made by medical professionals. However, as third party payers increase control of the purchase of medical services, and with the advent of national health insurance, great efforts are being made to correct this lack of accountability by key decision makers. E. Lack of Management Controls:

Somewhat related to the lack of accountability is the lack of management controls over the delivery of health services by institutions, due again to the inordinate amount of key decision making by physicians. This strange relationship is described by Dr. John Knowles, "Doctors today are responsible for more than ninety percent of the cost incurred by the hospital . . . they have a great deal of authority over what happens in the hospital with virtually no responsibility for what the hospital has to do to meet its needs." The coming of a national health insurance system is causing institutions to revise their thinking concerning management responsibility. Lines of authority are to be drawn with the Chief Executive Officer (administrator; receiving the power and authority to control the entire operation of the institution. Once the Chief Executive Officer is able to act as his counter part in industry, the president of an organization, a hospital is better able to control management functions. This ability promotes efficiency and effectiveness in the provision of medical services. Legally, it is the Board of Directors acting through the Chief Executive Officer that is responsible for maintaining a well organized and managed institution. The Medical Staff is accountable to the Board of Directors to maintain a proper level of medical care, not for managing the hospital. When this relationship is clearly understood, then an institution has the ability to effectively manage itself.

To control health care costs, it is necessary to restore a healty equilibrium between the classical economic principle of supply and demand, utilize cost benefit analysis in decision making, gain control of the management of health institutions, create a cost conscientiousness on the part of providers, purchasers and consumers of health services, and institute systems of accountability for key decision makers in the health system.

DWI Law May Add To Court Convictions

By SUE ANNE SALMON

Frankfort, Ky.-The person who Department of Transportation will be drinks or takes drugs before driving on authorized to issue a restrictive license to Kentucky's highways should be aware of a new law effective June 21 which may increase the likelihood of convicting a person arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated.

The 1974 General Assembly enacted the legislation to put mandatory license revocation in more realistic terms, said E. Hugh Morris, assistant director of research for the Legislative Research Commission.

Currently, the license of a person convicted of DWI is automatically revoked for six months. But the automobile has become such a necessity that courts have been reluctant to revoke a driver's license, Morris said, so it's become commonplace for courts to amend DWI charges to lesser convictions such as "drunkeness in a public place" or "reckless driving," he explained.

In 1973, Kentucky State Police arrested 12,441 drivers on DWI charges, but only 45 per cent (or 5,556) DWI court convictions resulted.

Courts were especially reluctant to convict persons arrested on a first offense of driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

a first offender. The secretary of the one year.

a first offender-provided the convicting court recommends such action.

Thus, workers might be permitted to drive only a couple of hours, five days a week, or a traveling salesman might be restricted to weekday travel, Morris explained.

In addition, a person convicted of DWI must enroll in a drivers' education course sponsored by the Department of Transportation. The federally funded drivers' education courses taught across the state will stress alcohol abuse, said O. B. Arnold, commissioner of the Bureau of Vehicle Regulations.

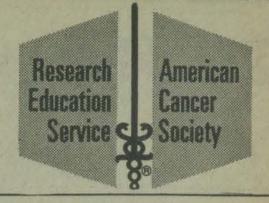

However, revocation of a license becomes mandatory if the driver violates his or her restrictions or does not complete the driver's education course. Also, all convicted DWI offenders must pay a fine of $100 to $500. A second DWI conviction brings a mandatory one-year license revocation, and a third conviction results in a twoyear revocation.

In addition, a person convicted of a second DWI offense must be sentenced to jail for three days to six months under the new law. Conviction on a third offense But the new law makes allowances for carries with it a jail sentence of 30 days to

Dr. Norman Polansky, professor of social work and sociology at the University of Georgia, will present a twosession lecture on "Child Neglect in the Appalachian Culture" at the Prestonsburg Community College auditorium, June 17. The lecture is being sponsored by Mountain Comprehensive Care Center. The sessions will be from 10 a.m. till noon and from 2 to 4 p.m.

Dr. Polansky is the senior author of "Roots of Futility," a comprehensive study of the impact of the poverty stricken, apathetic Appalachian woman on her children and of the resulting "apathy-futility syndrome" which seems responsible for the cyclic nature of much of Appalachia's poverty and futility. His lecture will consist of a discussion of (1) child neglect in the Appalachian culture, (2) the causes of such neglect, (3) its consequences, and (4) treatment of the child neglect syndrome.

Attendance of the lecture is being limited to the first 235 registrants. Those who wish to attend must make reservations before June 10 with Mrs. Betty Cleaver, Janie Boyd, Danny Oney, Lana Peters, David Mahaffy, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, 205 North Arnold Avenue, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Frog Season Now Open, season starts at 12:01 a.m., May 15, and runs through midnight October 31, according to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Frog limits, unchanged from previous years, remain at 15 daily and 30 in possession after two or more days of "frogging." The legal "day" for the frogger extends from 12 o'clock noon to the following noon. During this time he may have no more than 15 frogs in possession while he is in the field.

Gigging is the most popular method for narvesting frogs, but a variety of other means are quite legal and effective, and the type of license required depends on the method used. If frogs are taken by means of a gun or bow and arrow, a hunting license is required. If frogs are taken with a fishing pole and line, a fishing license is necessary. If the frogger wishes to capture his quarry by hand or with a gig, then either a valid hunting license or fishing license will suffice. Resident froggers with the combination hunting and fishing license may use any of the methods above to harvest their limit of frogs.

Crisis in Long-Term Health Care Said Result of Mounting Costs

Long-term health care facilities in 22,000 long-term health care facility beds Kentucky are caught in a tight in- in Kentucky as compared to apflationary squeeze due to the increase in proximately 13,000 hospital beds. He says the minimum wage effective May 1 and the many other cost of living increases that have evolved over the past two $17 per day while he estimates average years, according to the Kentucky daily cost in a hospital at $60.00 a day. bursed for the cost of services but the other two types of care are on a flat rate basis. Herein lies the most critical area. The flat rate basis just hasn't been increased enough to meet the increase in costs, the Association claims. The increase of the minimum wage alone is enough to add $1 to $2 a day to health care costs. This doesn't take in consideration the increase in the cost of living and all other costs down the line. Chuck Carty, executive director of the Kentucky Association of Health Care Facilities (who represents these three types of care), says there are approximately the long-term health care facilities are expected to care for patients from $7 to

"Government responsiveness to the There are three types of care furnished programs is slower than the rising costs and if the state does not make some kind of adjustment for state aid patients, we are facing a situation where our facilities will have to stop accepting state patients," Carty said.

There is also a danger that some facilities may notify the state to remove their patients. According to Carty, the The skilled nursing home is reim- long-term care facilities are facing three alternatives: (1) stay in business and offer quality care while losing money; (2) reduce the quality of care and this is definitely against the philosophy of the industry; and (3) close their doors and go out of business. The latter alternative would leave a lot of patients needing this care with no place to go.

Kentucky has some of the strictest regulations governing long-term health care facilities in the United States. Reducing services, serving cheaper foods and offering less care would naturally be in violation of regulations. If a facility is losing money, it eventually has to go out of business. This would mean a reduction of facilities for those needing them while actually there is an increase in need for facilities in the state.

"What's sad about it all is that those who will suffer most will be our aged and needy," the Association spokesman said. "If government is to accept the responsibility for this segment of our society as they propose to be, then their system should be geared to and capable of responding to the ever-changing needs we are experiencing in today's hectic life

Mansion on National Register

By J. NEACE

Renowned for its architecture, the John C. C. Mayo Mansion in Paintsville has been added to the National Register of Historic Places.

The three story, 40-room brick building was constructed between 1905 and 1912 at a cost of $250,000. Herman Geisky, of Ashland, was the architect of both the mansion and the Mayo office, a 112-story structure also added to the register.

Mayo owned the Sandy Valley and Elk Horn Coal Co. and in 1901 organized the Northern Coal and Coke Co. After the extension of the railroad up the Big Sandy River Valley, his fortune continued to increase until, at the time of his death in 1914, it totaled an estimated $20 million.

Paintsville Mayor John Chandler said, "Who else but John C. C. Mayo could signify the fierce pride, gutty determination and independence of our Highlands people. What other structure than the Mayo Mansion could exemplify the net wealth interpreting times that came with the first bloom of the mountains when thousands came to dig the rich, black seams of coal."

The Mayo Mansion is owned by the Covington Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church and is known as Our Lady of the Mountains. Presently it is serving as a convent and an elementary school.

ROPES Directors Receive Reports

Public Instruction, speaking at the May 21 meeting here of the ROPES Region 11 board of directors discussed inservice meetings and said that the regional inservice meeting to be held October 7 at Paintsville High School is an opportunity for an inservice meaningful to all teachers. Mr. Bale also discussed 1974 legislation as it applies to instruction.

Jim Gambill, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, discussed the objectives of the Alcohol-Drug Abuse Task Force for the coming summer and the tentative objectives of the Task Force for the 1974-'75 school year and the following summer. He told the group that this plan could culminate in a complete curriculum guide in the area of drug abuse education.

Ann Hamilton, staff librarian with the Department of Education, reported on the services available from the Department of Education Library and briefly discussed the ERIC system.

Virgil Osborne, executive director of the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program, announced that $1,371,179 is available for summer inschool NYC programs this summer for the seven school districts comprising ROPES Region 11. He said that it is anticipated that this amount will provide opportunities for approximately 949

... And the Beetle Goes On

The car that started the small car revolution in the United States 25 years ago is alive and well and will continue to be sold here indefinitely, according to to be held June 7 at the Charles F. Clark Palmer Vance, president of Vance Inc., authorized Volkswagen, Volkswagen sales, service and parts Media," and the meeting will be devoted facility here.

"There are no plans to stop production materials for use in the classroom. of the Beetle," the local VW official said, and rumors that our new series of water-cooled, front-wheel drive cars will replace it are without foundation." The Beetle, he noted, is presently the world's best-selling model and the mostproduced car in history.

"You don't scrap a winner," he said. Since 1957, Mr. Vance pointed out, there have been persistent reports that the Beetle was on its way out.

"That," he explained, "is due to the fact that it's more newsworthy to report the possible end of a love affair than the continuation of one. And anything that's been selling year after year without any major changes in appearance—and still looks current-is not likely to make headlines by coming out again next year, but rather only by not coming out."

According to Mr. Vance today's Beetle is the best built "bug" ever to roll off the VW factory's Wolfsburg, West Germany, assembly line. It's also, he admits, the most expensive Beetle to be produced in 25 years-but, he is quick to point out, everything costs more today than it used to "and everybody knows that."

Don Bale, assistant superintendent of students in the region. Mr. Osborne stressed that the development, implementation, and administration of the program will be delegated to the local school district superintendents and their staffs. Student selection and work-site assignment will also be controlled by the local school districts. Eligibility will be determined by EKCEP.

> In addition, board members and guests heard presentations by the following ROPES staff members:

Reo Johns, executive director discussed the second quarterly ARC report for the second year of program funding and the projected activities for the second year.

Bronelle Skaggs, assistant director, discussed vocational programs and expansion in Region 11 and told the group that no definite word had been received concerning the status of the Practical Arts Application Project application filed by the ROPES office.

Shirley Beard, administrative assistant, told the group that a First Aid and Safety Training course will be provided representatives of local school districts as a combined effort of the ROPES office, the Department of Education, the Department of Labor, and the American Red Cross. This course, which will be held on June 13 and 14 at the Prestonsburg High School cafeteria, will qualify participants to train others in the school system to meet the new OSHA requirement for personnel trained in safety and first aid.

Audrey Pratt, regional Special Education supervisor, told of progress made in the special education program since the inception of Project Lead. Mrs. Pratt also told the group of an inservice for special education teachers and aides Elementary School. The theme for the meeting is, "Sharing Instructional to the preparation of teacher-made Board action included the following: Endorsement of the Magoffin County Board of Education project to provide a Vocational Education Department at Magoffin County High School.

Endorsement of a Department of Education project for continuation of ROPES Region 11.

Endorsement of a Johnson County Board of Education project to provide a personnel management system for Johnson county Schools.

Endorsement of a Bureau of Vocational Education project to provide an exchange system for vocational education personnel and personnel of industry and business.

A motion that the ROPES board of directors go on record as endorsing the concept of a school year extended by five days, coupled with an increase in teachers' salaries, to allow additional days for inservice. A motion that a letter be written to Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, secretary of the Education and Arts Cabinet, endorsing the concept of a national heritage museum in the Mayo Mansion at Paints-

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hall, of Teaberry, observed their 49th wedding anniversary, May 12.

A gigantic coal-burner to gladden the hearts of the most avid environmentalists.

As soon as you mention "coal-burning power plant" many people respond "guilty of pollution".

The automatic response is often without awareness that such a plant can be innocent.

We're about to build a giant of a one in West Virginia that will meet all environmental standards in a state that maintains some pretty impressive standards.

1,300,000 kilowatts big, it will burn locally produced low-sulfur coal. And will be fitted with multi-millions of dollars worth of modern pollution controls that make it a virtual environmental dream house.

Its precipitators will remove 99.7% of the fly ash.

The remainder (three-tenths-of-one-percent) will rush up a stack about as high as the Empire State building to be dissipated at a point 200 times taller than you are.

Every minute its 500 ft. cooling tower will change 600,000 gallons of hot water back to cool water. Result: the river is protected against harmful thermal change.

Clean water-vapor plumes are the only evidence to anyone driving by that this Gargantuan servant of man is working.

To make a coal-burning power plant so innocent of pollution it would elicit ovations from the most avid environmentalist, only two things are needed.

First, a willingness to invest millions in controls to protect the environment.

Second, the availability of low-sulfur coal-which is in cornucopian abundance in the West, but so limited in the East for use in boilers we doubt if many plants "Innocent" could be built without those Western reserves.

There's a third thing, of course: the dedication to being a good neighbor in the first place.

Mrs. Hoffman Speaks At Club Installation

Wayland, Ky.—Exhorting her listeners to remember that their club's achievements could never rise higher than the expectations of its officers and members, Mrs. Anna Hoffman, past Seventh district governor of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, installed the newly elected officers of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club. The occasion was observed with a breakfast in the Wayland Methodist Church basement, May 11.

Stressing that hard work and a willingness to work are requisites for every good officer and member, Mrs. Hoffman listed other necessary virtues. She said resolution, enthusiasm, joy, gratitude, patience, humanity and persistence are required for achievement.

The officers installed were: Mrs. Glenn Pack, treasurer (not present, but represented by Mrs. Marcella Bradley); Mrs. Otto Martin, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Rex Martin, recording secretary (not present, represented by Mrs. Anne Castle); Mrs. James E. ## Opinion on Binding Effect Of Agreements Challenged

An attorney-general's opinion that school boards may unilaterally void negotiation agreements with local teacher associations at any time has been challenged by Kentucky Education Association (KEA) president, John Basham, who called for a court test to resolve the issue.

Noting that an attorney-general's opinion does not have the force of law, Basham said, "We are not going to let it rest there. This matter is now a prime candidate for litigation."

Basham, who teaches at Daviess County High School in Owensboro, said the opinion also points up the necessity for a law guaranteeing negotiation rights for teachers. KEA has sought such a law for four successive legislative sessions. It passed by a large margin in 1972 but was vetoed by Governor Wendell Ford.

The attorney-general's opinion, written by Assistant Attorney-General Carl Miller, was in response to a question from Taylor County Superintendent Walt

Green had asked, "Can a superintendent recommend or a board of education adopt an agreement with a teachers association that would bind all future boards of education to this agreement, unless it was mandated by state legislation?"

Answering negatively, Miller said that under KRS 160.290 "and school board may repeal the rules and regulations enacted by a prior school board by the affirmative vote of three members."

Miller also gave the opinion that a school board entering into a negotiation agreement "may not bind the school district to such an agreement for any set duration."

"The school board can rescind the agreement at any time," Miller wrote. KEA records show 23 negotiaton contracts currently in effect in Kentucky. Eighteen of them are procedural agreements—as in Taylor county—that merely establish the negotiation process; most of these do not have termination dates. The other five agreements are master contracts that establish the negotiation process and set forth

"A negotiation agreement is a contract," Basham said.

"We contend that when a board enters into a contract it should honor that contract," said Basham, "Local education associations that have signed agreements with their local school boards did so in good faith. Therefore, if contracts are abrogated what effect will this have on the trust level of teachers?"

"School boards enter into contracts with architectural firms, for example, and these contracts carry arbitration clauses that establish third-party resolution of disputes," Basham said. "If school boards can enter into such agreements with architects then it seems logical that they could enter into such agreements with local education associations.'

To Meet at 'Breaks'

The summer get-together of the Big Sandy Valley Historical Society will be held Saturday, June 8, at the lodge of the Breaks Interstate Park near Elkhorn City, according to Henry P. Scalf, president.

The Executive board and interest groups will meet at 11 a.m., the luncheon at noon, and the business session at 1

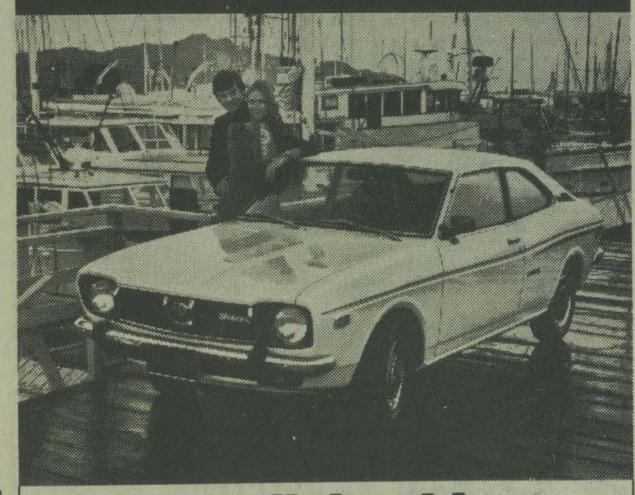

The speaker for the occasion will be Prof. Virgil O. Turner, teacher at Pikeville College and a former superintendent of the Floyd county schools, who will talk on the subject, "Great Man of the Mountains."

Members are encouraged to bring books, monographs, and pamphlets for display and for sale. There is a possibility that the Society's first book, "The Hatfields," will be available for distribution. If members have not requested a copy or have not paid their dues for 1974, they should send checks to Dr. Leonard Roberts, secretary, Pikeville College.

State's Only Female Architect Is Designer of Martin Complex

By ANN LATTA

(In the Lexington Herald-Leader)

Ask Elizabeth May Atinay why she went into the field of architecture and her first answer is apt to be, "To get out of girls' schools."

While choosing a field dominated by men as a sure route into a coed university may have been a dominant factor at the time, the 34-year-old Prestonsburg native now calls it "an incredible piece of luck."

After graduating in the University of Kentucky's first class of the College of Architecture in 1964—the only female in her class-she is now Kentucky's only resident, registered and licensed woman architect, and is an associate in the Lexington firm of McLoney and Associates.

Becoming a registered licensed architect previously required three years as an apprentice before taking and passing the week-long state examinations; however, a recent rules change did away with the apprentice program.

Ms. Atinay-the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. May Sr., Prestonsburg-did her apprenticeship in a firm located in a Washington, D. C. suburb and is also licensed in Maryland. She returned to Kentucky and joined McLoney and Associates in 1968.

She plans and designs projects for the firm throughout the state, but only recently visited Floyd county to make an on-site inspection of her first local design-the city of Martin's low-cost housing project for the elderly.

"It is the first time I have worked on the construction end with people from my own home town," she said.

W. R. Kendrick, Prestonsburg, superintendent on the job for contractors, Bradley & Powers, Paintsville, has known Ms. Atinay since she was a young girl.

"She's a fine architect," he commented, as the two of them went over blueprints for the project and discussed structural and technical points.

Ms. Atinay was enthusiastic about the 28-unit project which is under construction a block away from Martin's main street.

"Housing for the elderly is an important concept, especially in this area," she said, "And a project like this also helps the local economy while it's under construction."

The project itself includes onebedroom and efficiency apartments, and has three units designed for handicapped.

Ms. Atinay drew all the plans for it other than site engineering.

Asked about her choice of fields, Ms. Alinay said, "I fell into it by sheer girls' schools, after four years at St. Catherine's High School for girls in Richmond, Va., and one year at all-girl Hollins College in Roanoke, Va.

"It sounds flippant and rather vacuous, I know," she adds, "but there's really no sounder reason."

After 10 years in her field, however, she obviously enjoys it and is enthused over its challenges.

"My own definition of architecture chronically changes, and I'm beginning to realize I've only been exposed to the tip of the iceberg.

priority to education and I know of no other profession which for me could be such an endless source of continuing education."

In addition to her parents—her father is chairman of the Board of R. V. May Co., Inc., Prestonsburg, and Kentucky Welding Supplies, Inc., Lexington-her family includes two brothers and a sister.

Julia Mayo May holds a Law degree and Masters of Tax Law degree, and is director of the Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Authority; Robert V. May, Jr., has a Master's degree in Business Administration, and is president of the family companies, and another brother, Walter May, holds a Master's degree in Theatre Arts and is presently enrolled in the UK Law School.

"Sometimes I think I'm 'underdegreed' in this family," Ms. Atinay

She and her husband, Tom, also have two children of their own: Emma, 6, a first grader, and Charles, 5, in kindergarten. While the Martin project is the first locally for Ms. Atinay, she devoted her college thesis-the entire fifth year of the UK architecture program-to the creation of a Municipal Government Complex for Prestonsburg.

Half the year was spent in researchinto the city's role as a county seat and other social and economic data—and the second half in designing and building a model complex.

Ms. Atinay would like to do away with the distinction of being the only Kentucky woman architect, and says, "I hope more women will get registered and practice."

She is a founder and past president of the Alumni of the College of Architecture of UK-a group primarily devoted to raising scholarship funds for architecture students—and is a corporate member of the American Institute of Architects.

Before that, there was the patent on an ejector bucket mechanism which hydraulically clears the shovel of all its contents. And in 1970 there was the important mechanical interlock, another Elkhorn Industrial patented exclusive, which prevents electrical shock.

The firm manufactures seven basic models of the Scoop which range in weight from 14,000 to 34,000 pounds, and it is now producing one unit per day, which "is better than twice as good as we were doing, a year ago," Mr. Reed said. The company recently extended its welding area by 75 feet. The 100 who are employed by Elkhorn Industrial Products are all skilled workmen-among them, draftsmen, electricians, welders. The plant, which occupies two large buildings, has only one certified inspector. "Every one of our men are inspectors," Reed explains.

Rex Ankrom, of Prestonsburg, general manager of the plant, said recently that the company now has a part-time night shift at work.

Elkhorn Industrial Products' business boom is concurrent with the "coal rush" which has swept Eastern Kentucky at a time when business in some parts of the country is in the doldrums, but the Floyd county firm was working and doing well, long before the boom.

UMW Threatens It May Cancel Hospitals' Pay

The United Mine Workers union threatened last Thursday to recommend that nine Appalachian Regional Hospitals be removed from a list of hospitals eligible to receive money from the UMW Welfare and Retirement Fund.

UMW President Arnold Miller said the inability of the hospital chain and a Methodist hospital in Pikeville, Ky., to negotiate with striking unions "is clearly in conflict with the massive amount of union-generated money which the hospital receives."

In letters to David K. Herdinger, president of the ARH, and Lee D. Keene, administrator of the Pikeville hospital, Miller noted that the welfare fund paid approximately 18 million to ARH and $500,000 to the other hospital last year.

Members of the United Steelworkers of America have been on strike for about five weeks at the ARH hospital, while Communication Workers of America members have been striking for more than a year at the Pikeville facility.

Miller told the heads of both hospitals that "we deplore this strong deterioration in medical services which is now taking place in your hospital because of the absence of large numbers of your employes who are needlessly on was traveling and saw a chair I made. He traveled a day and a half to get here and hunt me up. Now, you know he come a long ways."

When Dewey first started making chairs in Floyd county, he sold some through a store in Prestonsburg. Now, he relies on word of mouth to sell his chairs. When neighbors see unfamiliar cars heading up Sugar Loaf they can guess they're heading for Dewey's. He says that he can hardly keep up with all the

To spend a work day with Dewey you have to be part owl and part mountain goat. Rarely does he get out of bed later than 2:30 a.m. After a cup of hot coffee, he sits at his workbench to hew, whittle and weave seats of hickory bark.

If it's a nice day, he may head up the mountain to look for more hardwood. He prefers working with ash, but it's hard to find. So he may settle for oak, walnut or hickory. Once the tree is down, he drives a spike in the butt end, hooks a chain to the spike, and drags the log down the hill.

"People bigger'n me and younger'n me say they don't know how I do it. But anyone who don't care to do hard work can pull a pretty good load down the hill. People who say they can't do it-well, they just don't put out. I've worked hard all my life. And I have strained myself sometimes with hard work, now, I sure

Once the log is home, he puts it on a rack and begins preparing it. If it's hickory, he strips off the bark in long, inch-wide pieces for chair bottoms. One good-sized tree will bottom about four big rockers. Then the wood is rough-hewn with an ax into lengths for posts, rounds and backs. He works the log until dark. Then he eats supper and works by the fireplace until 9:30 or 10 p.m.

Dewey can complete a large rocking chair in about a day and a half. Baby rockers and straight-backed sitting chairs take a little less time.

"I'm here by myself. Making chairs passes the time. And I make a little spending money, too. I see men look at something they want and hold back. They have the money, now, but they hold back from getting something they really want. I'm not like that. When I see something I want, I want to buy it then. It's what a Visitors notice that there are't very many material comforts in Dewey's coalheated cabin. Once in a while he watches the news or takes a peek at the Grand Ole Opry on the TV he bought his wife shortly before she died. He loves music, but prefers to listen to the radio or records so as not to be distracted from his work. His plain surroundings tell that most of his pleasure comes from the work he does with his hands.

"I'll make chairs as long as I canuntil I can't make them no more at all. But I do plan to retire when I get to be 100 years old-and rest up for two or three months 'fore I go back to work." (Copyright, Appalachian News Service)

THE NAUGHTY PROF Richard Howard writes me from the

We have a professor here who is noted for his rough language in the classroom. The girls don't like it and they decided that all would walk out on him, the next time he told a risque joke or used profanity. One of the male students heard of their plot and told the professor what was afoot.

The next day, the prof began the class by saying, "Have you heard? All the prostitutes in town are going to New Orleans today."

The girls rose, en masse, to leave the room, and the professor hurriedly sang out, "Wait a minute, girls, the train doesn't leave till this afternoon."

IRS REPORT

The Internal Revenue Service may check and double-check on the rest of us, but if what a Texas newspaper reports is true, maybe it might well take a look into how it handles its own affairs.

This report says a young woman who has been working in the Tom Green county courthouse there claims she did seasonal work for the IRS in Covington, Ky. last year but still hasn't received her W-2 slips from that job.

Now, the law clearly states that employers must send out these forms to their workers by the end of January each year. But she has made two phone calls and written at least one letter to the regional IRS office-and no luck.

Finally some brain in the IRS office reached a happy solution for her. He told her she could pick up her W-2 forms, in person-in Kentucky.

For 1973 as a whole, civilian employment rose to a record 84.4 million, up by 3.3 per cent over 1972's average and the largest such increase since 1955, according to the 1974 Manpower Report of the President.

Speaking for a delegation appearing at the court meeting, Mrs. Allen pointed out that the clothing is donated, that the distribution center is supplied without charge by the board of education and that the only cash outlay is the one worker's salary. Prior to founding of the center, clothing was issued by various churches and agencies on an individual basiswith the result, it is claimed, that there was duplication of effort.

County Judge Henry Stumbo told the group that he "would personally like to see this program carried on," but that some of the four magistrates may oppose it. He added that if the magistrates' vote on the question develops into a tie he will break the deadlock, voting in favor of continuance of the center.

A report on the center's operation was requested by Magistrate Dewey Roberts, and members of the court were told the records are available and "we would welcome your going through them."

Opinions from Office Of Attorney General

Among opinions released last week from the office of Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock were the following:

In response to a question asked by Bob Dixon, of Royalton, Asst. Atty. Gen. Carl Miller said that the use of school property for public purposes is governed by the local school board. Miller said that it is for the school board to decide whether to permit the use of school facilities by outside organizations and to prescribe the conditions under which the property may be used.

To a question asked by Robert Lee Rose, Winchester, Asst. Atty. Gen. Walter C. Herdman replied that petitions should be filed with a fiscal court no later than 90 days after the date of the first signature on the petition. Herdman added that where initial petitions have been filed but the 90 days have not expired supplemental petitions may be filed prior to the deadline. Kentucky statutes require that all petitioners be qualified voters who voted in the last general election.

Replying to a question asked by Walt Green, Campbellsville, Asst. Atty. Gen. Carl Miller said that any school board may repeal the rules and regulations enacted by a prior school board by the affirmative vote of three members. However, Miller added, a provision adopted by a board of education would be considered void, according to Kentucky statutes, if it restricted the governing power of future school boards.

Others showed off skills, learned in vocational training classes, which, they hope will become their ticket to a more productive life once they are on the outside again.

A No-Holds-Barred Look At Kentucky's Prisons:

For the first time in history, the public has been allowed to look behind the thick, granite walls that seal off inmates from the outside world in the State Penitentiary at Eddyville and the high, close-meshed fences rising around the State Reformatory at LaGrange and the women's institution at Pewee Valley.

Inmates buttonholed newsmen to air their feelings on such subjects as prison food, overcrowding and idleness to one--a convicted murderer--who said he favored reinstitution of the death penalty.

Holmes expressed his hope that press reports will generate greater public support for future improvement and reform. "Unfortunately, most correctional systems suffer today largely because of their almost total isolation from the public." he said.

$5,000 Approved For Floyd Part In New Program

Officials of the Kentucky Forest Industries Association have urged "an increased level of public participation" in a federally-funded Forest Incentives Program currently being implemented in 79 Kentucky counties.

Floyd county has been selected for participation in the Forest Incentives Program and an initial allocation of $5,000 has been approved for the county. James M. Clayton, of Hawesville, Wescor Corp. executive and chairman of the KFIA Tree Farm Committee, said that "continued effectiveness" of the program depends "almost entirely" on landowner initiative in taking advantage of FIP provisions as they apply locally.

The program, administered through county offices of the Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, provides for federal cost-share payments as high as 75 per cent of actual cost for tree planting, site preparation, erosion control on fire lanes and logging roads, timber stand improvement, fire break or fire line construction, protective fencing.

At the urging of KFIA and other groups, Congress created FIP in 1973 to intensify management of the nation's commercial forests and to increase the supply of forest products from privatelyowned woodlands.

Congress authorized a total of $25 million for implementation of the program: Kentucky's initial allocation was set at $427,000. Future appropriations, Clayton warned, may depend on how well Kentucky landowners respond to the program.

There are nearly 250,000 eligible landowners in Kentucky, he said. These include private individuals, corporations, groups, associations or other legal entities owning less than 500 acres.

Specifically excluded are those that manufacture forest products and those that provide public utility services.

More than 90 per cent of Kentucky's commercial timber land-some 12 million acres—is privately controlled in holdings that average less than 100 acres. Timber ranks second only to tobacco as the state's largest cash crop with an annual value at market of more than $146.5 million.

KFIA represents timber growing, harvesting, production, fabricating and marketing among a selected, statewide membership. It is dedicated to the orderly development and expansion of the state's timber resources using established principles of forest management and conservation.

Editor, The Times:

When I think of Kentucky with fertile soil, favorable climate, agriculture, beautiful scenery, compulsory education, and natural resources, it brings some thoughts to my mind.

Kentucky has furnished a number of leaders for our country. With all these wonders which Kentucky holds, I am thinking of the many boys and girls who finish college and have to leave this wonderful state to seek employment or a livelihood elsewhere. I wonder if the leaders ever think of the wonderful talents, and potential these young folk have, that have to leave their families, friends and close ties in order to get employment.

Kentucky's sister state, Virginia, I have taught school in the same school system since 1942, close to my home, and have never wondered if I would be reemployed each year. You are given credit for your merits. Nothing is political to the robin. Said the sparrow to the robin, I should really like to know Why these anxious human beings Rush about and never think of others. Said the robin to the sparrow, Friends, I think that it must be That they have no Heavenly Father Such as cares for you and me.

I'm thinking of an old proverb: Happiness does not depend upon a full pocket book, but upon a mind full of rich emotions. It is measured by the spirit in which we meet the problems of life. This proverb gives us a clue. Help thy brother's boat across the stream and lo!

thine own has reached the shore. I would like to conclude by expressing the hope that the day will come when, that Kentucky has to offer, some of the leaders will project into the future and provide opportunities for our youth with their great potential to be able to find the kinds of opportunities that other states have to offer.

Who knows how great some of these people could become and how great they Being one of those who were forced to could make Kentucky in the sight of seek employment elsewhere, I came to others? Most of these people who leave Kentucky find success in whatever they do. How wonderful it would be if they were able to use their talents for friends and neighbors at home.

Road and Bridge Spending Lower

Frankfort, Ky.-Funds spent on road and bridge construction in Kentucky during the first quarter of 1974 fell 27 per cent when compared to the initial quarter

But Bureau of Highways Director of Construction Cy Layson said that while there was a decline in comparing first quarter figures, overall construction spending for fiscal year 1973-74 was down only 1.5 per cent from last fiscal year.

Bureau of Highways' figures show that $20 million was spent on road and bridge construction during January, February and March of 1973, while $14.5 million was spent during the same months of this Layson said, during the first three months of 1973 the Bureau of Highways purchased a large quantity of materials needed for a number of major construction projects that were just beginning.

"During the early part of 1973 we purchased material needed for the construction of five bridges we were building across the Ohio River.

"Since this was a one-time expenditure, it resulted in the difference between the amount of money spent during the first quarter of last year and the first quarter of 1974," Layson noted. "Last fiscal year we spent approximately $135 million onconstruction projects, while to date this fiscal year we have spent approximately $133 million."

"In addition, we anticipate increased construction activity, during the prime construction months of the summer,' Layson said.

CATNIP. This old-fashioned garden plant seems much too scarce nowadays. Old timers of our region always took great pride in their patches of catnip growing about the premises, often in the garden.

Catnip tea was once the widely used remedy for the baby's colic, or any digestive disorders. The tea had a soothing, healing effect and expelled the gas causing the distress.

Catnip—so named because it is often nipped and eaten by cats—was a favorite plant of the Indians, who made wide use of it. They dried the leaves and mixed them with their smoking tobacco, to impart a fragrant odor. They called this "Duke's Mixture" by the unusual name of "shinnecock." Catnip tea was also the main Indian remedy or nervous headaches. It was also used to treat scarlet fever and that dread disease, smallpox.

One obstacle to keeping a nice patch of catnip around the premises is the wway cats raid the plants. They wallow in the leaves, perhaps to get doused with the aromatic odor. The odor has been called "the cats' perfume." They eat the leaves ravenously, then mash down the plants and wallow on them. Some say this acts as a sex stimulant for cats, a sort of "cat aphrodisiac."

This plant is a member of the Mint Family and has a square stem, which grows to a height of three or four feet. The leaves are soft and silky and grayishgreen. The flowers are formed on a spike and are lilac-lavender, sprinkled with purple. The plants are thickly covered with fine silky down. Catnip is a valuable plant for the flower garden or as a source of medicine.

INDIAN PIPE. This plant is often called "ghost pipe" and corpse plant. It thrives on the dead humus of the forest. It blooms in early summer and sometimes forms small colonies in deeply shaded woods. The plants look white as ivory and are as fragile as dry ice. The whole plant seems to warn the beholder: "Don't handle me." Many persons have plucked Indian pipe to take home for study, but alas, the plants seem literally to melt away in the hands, leaving a' black

Indian pipe is a rare creation of nature and is made to be admired and left strictly alone. Some naturalists call it "he white-robed nun of the forest solitudes."

Indian pipe was used by the Indians to make medicine for sore eyes. They used it much as we use murine to clear the Indian pipe is a saprophyte, having no green chlorophyll. It produces flowers which nod over from the top of the stalk, forming a crook like a pipe-hence the name, Indian pipe. The flowers have 5 petals, formed in a tubular corolla. They produce an urn-shaped seed pod. This plant seems aloof, ghostly; it is nature's own rare creation from the deep, unfathomable mysteries of forest solitudes.

BLACK-EYED SUSAN. This one is the state flower of Maryland and had been featured in song and story. In our region, black-eyed Susan adds a vivid splash of organe-yellow to old fields and roadsides. The plant rarely grows in deep woods but prefers to hobnob with Queen Anne's lace, in wide, open country. The plant is a bristly biennial, quite hairy and rough. It is a member of the Daisy clan. The large, showy flowers are formed at the top and each has a dozen or so orange-yellow rays, which radiate from a globularshaped disk.

Lawyers Defend Quick Payment In Floyd Black-Lung Case

By KYLE VANCE (In The Courier-Journal)

opposing interests in a black-lung case have defended in depositions easy benefit award to a Floyd county

The arrangements included having an agent of the state Special Fund-which pays claims approved by the Workmen's Compensation Board—file the claimant's application form, the depositions reveal.

That is why, the lawyers said, the application and the state's notice that it would not contest the claim happened to be timed for filing at the same hour on the same day.

Concurrent filings by the plaintiff and defendant are considered unusual because, normally, the Special Fund-a defendant in all claims cases—learns of a claim only after being notified by the compensation board that it has been filed.

claim will be contested is routinely filed by the Special Fund. The unusual joint filing recently

With rare exception, a notice that the caused the compensation board to call upon D. B. Kazee, Prestonsburg, lawyer for the claimant, and Robert D. Hawkins, Frankfort, Ky.—Two lawyers with chief counsel for the Special Fund, to tell how it happened in sworn depositions.

The depositions were taken behind closed doors April 23 but became public when they were filed last week with the compensation board.

The questions dealt mostly with arrangements that permitted the concurrent filing, but Hawkins was asked at the end of his interrogation if he received anything of value for filing the state's notice of none-resistance.

"No," Hawkins replied. Involved was the claim of Carl Bingham, a veteran Floyd county miner. No questions were asked about nine other cases filed by Kazee under identical circumstances for which benefit awards had been approved. The board said it knew nothing about those cases.

In the course of outlining communications with Hawkins' office before the filing, Kazee provided some insight on how some lawyers work for an increased fee.

He detailed the lawyer's work in preparing a claim, such as proving the client's work history and obtaining medical evidence to support the claim for

After this has been done, he said, the application for benefits can be filed with statements from two doctors as required by the compensation law.

"Now, the approach differs considerably on this point because one method of bolstering or increasing an attorney fee in these cases is to file with the Form 11 (application form) reports from two doctors who are not considered as expertise as other doctors in the field of occupational disease," he said.

"I'm not going to list any specific doctors, but I say that there are certain doctors who have very little credibility with the employers, their insurance carriers, the Special Fund, and the board myself.

"If you file with your Form 11 copies of these doctors with less expertise than others, then the automatic procedure is to file a notice of resistance on the part of the employer and on the part of the Special Fund.

"Another approach is to file the claim with credible or more expertise medical reports; reports that are commonly accepted by employers and their insurance carriers, Special Fund and generally with the board, and wait for the 60-day period to elapse within which to file resistance to determine whether or not the claim will be defended. If it is defended, of course, you proceed from

"Another manner is to seek out doctors with a high rating as far as reputation goes in the occupational disease field, have the claimant examined by these doctors, and submit these doctors' reports both to the employer and to the Special Fund to determine whether or not they wish to defend the case . . .

"Now, the latter approach is seldom used because (uncontested cases) result in a very low attorney fee."

Kazee said the latter approach was used in the Bingham case to save both the employer and the claimant considerable

He said the claimant was saved the time and expense of going to several doctors. How the employer saved was not explained. However, he pointed out that the claim involved a last exposure to coal dust in 1972. "The insurance carriers and the employers weren't defending a lot of these (1972) cases because most of the liability was in the special Fund, the employer only being liable for a medical award, which was seldom used," Kazee said.

Since Jan. 1, 1973, the last employer of a claimant has been required to pay 25 per cent of a claim with the Special Fund paying the other 75 per cent.

Kazee explained that his firm, a partnership with Fred G. Francis, seldom takes the side of a plaintiff in a black lung case because, as a general rule, it represents coal employers. It will take no case, he said, if the employer plans to resist.

Kazee said the completed Bingham file was sent to Hawkins for review and to have the claim investigated "to see whether or not the Special Fund intended to defend this claim or not."

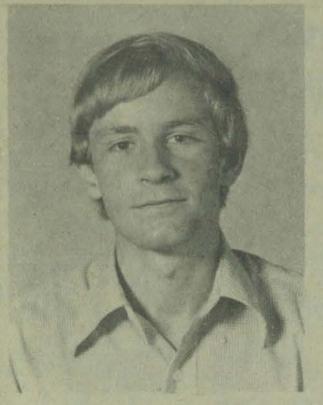

Hawkins said the case was first called to his attention by Francis, either by telephone or on a trip to Prestonsburg. "He, as many lawyers do almost daily, they call me and inform me of cases . . . wanting to know an off the cuff opinion on what the opinion of the Special Fund would be," Hawkins said, "and at that time I gave him the opinion that I usually give most attorneys, and that is, 'Well, send me what you got and I'll take a look and see, and we'll take it from there.' "

He said he agreed to file the application only after the information on the application torm had been fully investigated.

Wins Two Berea College Awards

Berea, Ky.-Mrs. Marshia Austin Gologlu, of Prestonsburg, won two awards at Berea College's annual Scholarship Day program. She won the Francis S. Hutchins Award for creative effort with her series of four black-and-white ceramic sculptures, and the Art Major Award given to help finance a summer design project. She plans to work with luster glazes on porcelain, a technique which produces an iridescent metallic film on the surface of a piece during firing.

The wife of a Berea College graduate from Turkey, Adnan Gologlu, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Austin, of Route 1, Prestonsburg. She is a junior art major.

An Era Ends—Another Begins

By LOYCE KIRK

(In The Martin County Mercury) Martin county has reached the end of an era. Whether that is good or bad depends upon the opinion of the individual.

The era that has ended is one of the unemployment, chronic welfarism, and the lowest per capita income in Kentucky and perhaps the nation. The era that has ended is one of slow and lazy living, of swimming and fishing in relatively pure streams. The era that has ended is one of plowing the corn field with the old mule, of milking the cow and gathering the

The era that has ended is one of living

The era that has ended is one of living

A new era has arrived.

And, the new era was born from the coal industry. Activity in the county resembles Silver City of 1870 with land agents, coal agents and lawyers going about the county in droves.

Although the coal business has been with and of this county for 50 years, never has it been everywhere, even in the times of the Himlerville boom of the 1920's and the Eartson mining activities of the period from 1935 until 1950, like it is today. The activities of coal pioneers William Coleman, Frank Justice and Earl Webb are insignificant when compared to the scope of the activities in the mining industry in Martin county

Even the mammoth efforts of John Cline, the man perhaps more responsible than anyone else for the rapid development of the coal industry here, are overshadowed by the developments of the coal industry here in recent

The reasons are obvious. The idea tht this country runs on oil is only half true. In fact, it runs on oil and coal and the importance of the latter has never been greater than it is today.

Martin county coal markets at between $20 and $30 a ton. Mineral owners are selling their coal up to $1.00 a ton and the ceiling has not yet been reached.

Today, over 35 coal companies are at work in this county.

Of the most importance, by far, to the county's economy are the operations of Massey Coal Company This company employs in excess of

1,000 men in mines in Kermit, W. Va., and Wolf Creek. Another venture is underway up the river at Rawl, W. Va. The social and political implications of the mining activities heretofore have not been overly broad. With the recent appearnace of Mid American Pipeline Company, (MAPCO) and its subsidiary, Webster County Coal Company, in Martin county, an economic, social, political and environmental upheaval has resulted. An entire area of Martin county, lying on Pigeon Roost and Peter Cave mainly, will be so changed as to literally disappear as the residents have known it.

Landscapes familiar for generations of families with the surnames of Fletcher, Cline, Moore, Preece, Jude, Howell, Fields, Maynard and Staten will vanish

In 1890 through 1910, land agents for Federal Oil and Gas and other farsighted corporations came here to buy the coal and other minerals from the ancestors of the families named above. Many of these families had received the lands in fee (surface and minerals) for service in the Union army during the Civil War.

But the companies got the coal, usually paying fifty cents an acre for it.

As expected, many of the descendants of the early landowners, still living on the property when MAPCO's agents came, claimed the coal. The company, however, had leased the coal from Pocahontas Land Company who had spent several years acquiring the title. The major portion of Pocahontas' title came from rights it had purchased from Federal Oil. Most of the deeds going to Federal Oil and Gas were acquired by an agent named Arthur Bright (or, as one disappointed land owner called him, Bright Arthur). The deeds were usually signed with an "c", often without witnesses, and the deeds were so broad as to give the companies the right to almost unlimited use of the surface.

Under these 'broad form' deeds, the mineral owners acquired the right to remove the surface to mine the coal, cut the timber, build roads, tipples or do whatever else was necessary in the process of mining coal.

In a period of about 10 months, MAPCO has paid over $3.6 million for surface deeds and have turned the Martin County real estate picture upside down. Many houses selling for $5,000 a year ago are now worth $10,000.

The question arises as to why would MAPCO (or any company) pay such a sum of money for something it already legally had?

Perhaps the scope of the mining activities to be done by MAPCO is so broad as to stagger the imagination making an expenditure of $3.6 million a relatively small sum.

Perhaps the company made a value judgment and decided to pay rather than face a rash of lawsuits by the surface

Perhaps the company felt the 1890 'Arthur Bright' deeds, many of which were signed with an "X" and not witnessed, would not withstand a court test. Under the theory, MAPCO would have been willing to pay inflated prices for the surface instead of risking loss of the coal.

Whatever the reasons, presumably known only by MAPCO's policy makers, this company has flooded the Martin county real estate market in a period of a few months and at this point in time it appears that MAPCO, set to ship its first coal late this summer, is only about half finished with its land buying.

Besides the obvious effect the company's appearance has had and will have on the Martin county economy, both short range and long range, the implications to the county's environment and political structure are very broad.

To date, approximately 120 families' holdings in the Wolf Creek area have been sold to MAPCO. Some of them have been able to relocate at other places on Wolf Creek but most have moved to other parts of the county, many to the Inez

Consider the political implications of this many families leaving such a small area. Precinct lines, magistrate lines and Board of Education lines may have to be redrawn to meet the one-man onevote law. MAPCO is purely and simply a strip mine concern, at least in Martin county. This Oklahoma corporation leased 17,000 acres of coal from Pocahontas Land Company. Pocahontas is owned by Norfolk and Western Railway Company and, although neither Pocahontas nor MAPCO will officially say, this writer has good information that another railroad spurline will be shortly forthcoming up Pigeon Roost.

The writer did considerable research to discover the details of the land transactions to MAPCO.

Under new state law, when property is conveyed the purchase price must be disclosed, either in the deed itself or in an affidavit accompanying the deed. None of the MAPCO deeds recited the purchase

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK (Kentucky Attorney-General)

Consumers, be smart. Anything you sign might be a contract.

CONTRACT RIGHTS

A contract is a promissory agreement between two or more persons that creates, modifies, or destroys a legal

In a contract, certain disclosures regarding the credit terms or the transaction must be made to the consumer, in writing, at the time he or she signs, and a written copy of the contract must be furnished to the consumer before the first payment becomes due.

Blank spaces relating to price, charges or terms of payment must be filled in at the time a contract is signed. Consumers must receive without request a receipt for cash payments. Look at the contract and see if the guarantee is specific. Be sure all charges are itemized.

Consumers are legally bound by the terms of a written contract, not by the glowing words of the salesman. Never sign a contract where the blank spaces are not filled in. Keep a copy of the agreement, and if, after reading, you still do not understand all provisions of the agreement, consult an attorney.

Remember, "as is" means no warranty. Read the small print. Beware of the legal double talk.

Follow these rules before signing any contracts:

Be sure you need what you are signing for. Read every word-even the small print. If you do not understand, don't sign-get help from someone you trust or ask a legal aid agency.

Don't be rushed - smart people take their time. Remember, it's your money. Be sure all the seller's promises are written in the contract. Never sign a contract without getting a copy and know the total cost. Never sign a paper to get rid of a salesman or a contract with blank

Flower of the Sun

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD (UK College of Agriculture)

With its big dark disk and radiant petals, the sunflower is much more than a cheerful summer blossom.

The leaves provide fodder for livestock; the petals yield a brilliant yellow dye, and the seeds furnish highgrade cooking oil. In fact, this floral emblem of the sun, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture spokesman, may sometime become a major food crop in many areas of the country.

Already sunflowers represent a valuable cash crop in many parts of the world. In Russia, the golden oil-bearing plants gild almost 10 million acres. Farmers in the rich Red River Valley of Canada's Manitoba province began growing sunflowers commercially about 30 years ago and have turned it into a multi-million dollar business. These flowers also spread a yellow blanket across America's northern plains where farmers process the seed for bird food and human consumption.

A native of North America, the common sunflower, Helianthus annuus, has enthusiastically responded to cultivation. A stem up to 14 feet tall may support a bloom more than a foot in diameter and contain more than 2,000 seeds.

This lofty plant awed and intrigued the ancient Incas who actually worshipped it. The seeds were eaten during religious ceremonies and glittering facsimilies of the flower were made of pure gold and worn as breast plates by priestesses.

Carried back to Europe by Spanish explorers, the plants thrived in the Old World. In the 16th century, Old John Gerard grew it in his English garden and wrote that it grew 24 feet tall. He also said that the buds when "boiled and eaten with butter, vinegar, and pepper, after the manner of artichokes, were very pleasant meate."

Another 16th century English herbalist described the "Herbe of the Sunne as a straunge flower, for it casteth out the greatest flowers, and the most perticulars that hath ever been seen."

Legend followed the plant back to the New World. Tradition says that early Utah blazed a trail with sunflower seeds, so wagon trains headed "westward ho" the following year had only to follow a path of blossoms.

There are some 60 different species of sunflowers, both wild and domesticated. Many of the wild ones still follow the paths of man. They line the banks of rivers, the sides of crowded highways, and do a wonderful job decorating vacant lots, railroad yards, junk heaps, and other unsightly areas created by civilization.

But contrary to popular belief, the sunflower doesn't always face the sun. It does not, as Calderon, the early Spanish dramatist, wrote, "gaze ever true and tender on the sun's revolving splendor." The blossom heads, instead, often turn in a direction determined by prevalent winds. At least, this is true in the writer's garden and has been the circumstance for several years. Early herbalists were surprised, too, to discover a variety that bore several blooms at once, each facing a different direction.

Indian Reunion Days Set in Boyd

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Those who missed the first annual American Indian Reunion Days last years in Greenup county will have an opportunity to correct the oversight July 13-15 at the Boyd County High School athletic field, near Ashland.

The reunion this year is part of the state's Bicentennial Celebration, Mrs. Marcella Rye, of Ashland, of the sponsoring group and herself part Cherokee,

"We'd like any area group to enter a float in the big parade," said the promoter of PIPE (Preserve Indian Peoples' Environment), "and also sponsor exhibits of historical nature to be set up on the high school grounds or in the auditorium.'

Theme of the event, including the parade, is "America, Then and Now."

Adena Indians are known to have been in Eastern Kentucky as early as 800 B. C., and the Shawnee and other tribes came later to hunt and roam the wilderness, searching for game and

Attending the reunion will be Indians from throughout the United Stats. "Indian traders will set up booths on the grounds," Mrs. Rye said, "and will demonstrate the making of authentic Indian crafts and will sell their arts and crafts items."

Popular features are Indian dancing and music. Among drummers who will participate are Teofilo Lucero, Taos Pueblo from Arizona, and Benny Bearskins, a Winnebago from Chicago. "I expect twice as many Indians this year," said Mrs. Rye.

An added attraction will be a replica of an Indian village which is being erected at the reunion site.

Among tribes expected are Cherokee, Potowatomi, Pawnee, Chippewa, Apache, Piaute, Blackfoot, Santee Sioux, Seneca, "and many others."

Authentic Indian foods will be prepared at the site, with other foods available at concessions.

"The Indian reunion days at the Boyd County High grounds will serve many purposes," said Mrs. Rye. "We need to meet and get acquainted with Indians to foster greater understanding among all peoples, and we hope we can realize a profit from some endeavors in the event in order to continue our help of medicines and foods for needy Indians on reservations. The fact that the reunion is a part of the state's celebration helps emphasize the Bicentennial."

More information may be obtained from Mrs. Rye at 606-325-8327.

Lake Fertilizing Work Resumed: To Get 80 Tons

Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources personnel were scheduled Tuesday to make the second of five additions of fertilizer to Dewey Lake which during the year will introduce approximately 80 tons to enrichment of the impoundment.

The fertilization program which was initiated a few years ago has proved beneficial, fish biologists concede.

Five applications of 334 50-pound bags each are scheduled this season. The first was added last month, from Arrowhead Point upstream to the vicinity of Clark Branch. Tuesday's fertilizing was scheduled to begin in the vicinity of the Jenny Wiley Boat Dock and extend as far upstream as the supply lasted, Conservation Officer Dalton R. Conley said.

The carp population at Dewey Lake has within the last 10 days decreased as a number of large carp have died, and the occurrence has created wide conjecture. All the dead fish are of about the same size and are large, and a state biologist was quoted as saying they have been victims of a parasite such as has decimated the carp population at Kentucky Lake.

Apparently, no other species has yet been affected here.

Fire Destroys Home On Cow Creek Sun.

Destruction by fire of the new, fourbedroom home of Don Shepherd, Prestonsburg insurance man, with most of its contents, on Cow Creek Sunday night represented a loss that may exceed $60,000, it was said Monday.

Despite efforts of the Prestonsburg and Allen fire departments, two-thirds of the split-level residence was levelled. The Shepherd family had occupied their home since last Christmas.

Cause of the blaze had not been definitely determined Monday. The family had attended the high school baccalaureate service here and had returned home when the fire was discovered in the kitchen. The Shepherds were quoted as saying, however, that no appliances were in use at the time.

Rangers Report 48 Fires in County

During the spring fire season, which began March 1 and officially ended today (Wednesday), a total of 48 woodland fires were reported by the Kentucky Division of Forestry in Floyd county with 1007 acres of county forest land claimed.

A forestry spokesman reported that the total cost of bringing these fires under control amounted to $2,517.69 with each fire destroying an average of 21 acres. The fire season was said to have been slightly worse than usual due to lighter rainfall than has been experienced the past few spring seasons. Debris burning was listed as the most common cause of the fires, with campfires and smoking second and third, respectively.

Suppression costs were collected between April 1 and May 15 from the following: Elmer Rice, Prater Creek, $45.60, by Rangers Johnson, Brackett and Sowards; Lois Johnson, Eastern, $28.45, by Ranger Brackett; Vonnie Ousley, Risner, $41.00, by Ranger Brackett; T. Hackworth, Prestonsburg, $23.25, by Ranger Brackett; Monroe Osborne, near Allen, two separate counts with suppression costs totalling $114.45, by Ranger Brackett.

Citations issued for burning before 4:30 p.m. (a regulation in effect during all fire seasons) during the same period included the following: Gladys Dotson, Middle Creek, by Rangers Brackett and Johnson; Georgia Robinson, Auxier, by Brackett and Johnson; Johny Porter, Auxier, by Brackett and Johnson; Crit Mitchell, Grethel, by Brackett and Johnson.

Follow-Up Brings More Overweight Citations

"Weighing In"

Inspector Amon S. Ray checks the scale reading on a coal truck prior to issuing an overweight citation. The citation was issued during a recent series of Eastern Kentucky follow-up checks conducted by officers of the state Bureau of Vehicle Regulation's Division of Highway Enforcement. Almost every truck the inspectors weighed was found to be carrying loads between 65,000 and 75,000 pounds on roads designed for weight limits of 30,000 and 44,000 pounds.

At right and below are roads typical of those being used extensively for coal hauling operations in Eastern Kentucky.

By PAUL HOWARD

Frankfort, Ky.-During As Murphy and Ray made An overweight violation in The judge said that, as has Murphy and several officers of the state Division of Highway Enforcement (Bureau of Vehicle Regulation) were in Eastern Kentucky doing a follow-up check on some coal hauling operations which had caused severe road damage and, subsequently, numerous complaints from area residents.

The following describes what these officers called a "typical" day.

The first truck stopped on the rainy morning of the second day out was an empty one met returning from the coal tipple to the mine, presumably to pick up another load. The mine entrance and the railroad tracks where the coal was being loaded were about 100 yards apart on opposite sides of the road.

During the process of inspecting the driver's necessary hauling authority papers and giving the truck a once over, Inspector Amon Ray noticed the truck was not licensed and so wrote out a citation and advised the driver not to bring the truck back out on the road until it was licensed.

In the meantime, the mine's foreman had walked the short distance from the mine to the road and was complaining to Captain Murphy that the truck being cited was not normally used on the highway. Because of the rain all the regular drivers weren't there and the vehicle operator being cited was a victim of circumstances. Two trucks heavily loaded with coal sat at the mine's exit waiting for the Highway Enforcement officers to leave so they could drive their trucks the 100 yards to the coal tipple.

After issuing the citation and telling the driver when to appear in county court, Captain Murphy and Inspector Ray got into their vehicle and began driving down the road.

Before the officers had gotten as far as the coal tipple one of the trucks that had been sitting at the mine's exit (couldn't have been inspected because he wasn't on the road) pulled onto the road and fell in behind Murphy and Ray.

The officers stopped their car and got out the portable scales. The truck operator was issued a citation for being 30,000 pounds overweight.

The mine foreman came out on the road again, accompanied by several other mine employes, asking, "Aren't you fellows going to let us haul any coal today?"

Captain Murphy told him as long as they kept coming out it was his job to inspect and weight the trucks.

About this time the other truck which had been sitting at the mine exit pulled out onto the road and pulled up behind the other truck.

The second truck was weighed and issued a citation for being 34,000 pounds over-early May Captain Russell ready to depart, the mine excess of 5,555 pounds can be been his practice, he had foreman said to Murphy, "You're wasting your time writing those citations.'

Twenty-nine citations, most for overweight, had been written in this county a couple of weeks before. At the end of the day, Inspector Ray was going to visit the county court to see what disposition the county judge had made in the

Berea Admissions Applications Up

The Berea College Office of Admissions reports that applications for the fall of 1974 are up 31 per cent over the previous year, at a time when many colleges are experiencing a decline. Acceptance letters had been sent to some 470 students as of April 22, and about 150 more will be accepted.

Applications may still be requested by writing to the Office of Admissions, CPO 2344, Berea, Ky. 40403. To qualify for admission to Berea a student must come from a family of modest income and must be above average academically. Berea charges no tuition. Eighty per cent of Berea's students are selected from a 230 county area of southern Appalachia.

Any student who has need of financial help to meet the cost of attending Berea is assured of aid. A limited number of $220 scholarships are still available to students who have shown qualities of Christian leaderhip in their home communities and who meet the other requirements for admission. These are made possible by proceeds from the DeWitt Wallace Reader's Digest Endowment Fund.

DAVIS-BACON ACT

In actuality, no fine at all had records show, however, that of ever been paid. This particular county judge's way of dealing with overweights was not unlike the measures taken by other county judges in the coal producing counties of Eastern Kentucky.

Captain Murphy and Inspector Ray, along with two other officers in another vehicle, spent the entire morning on various coalhauling roads in this particular county. Not as much hauling was taking place as usual because of heavy rains. Many of the trucks couldn't have gotten to the strip mine sites which are often high on a hillside.

In all, 11 citatios were written in the county on this morning; 10 for overweight and one for no license. All of the trucks cited were hauling between 65,000 and 80,000 pounds on roads designed for 30,000 and 44,000 pound capacity weight. The roads bore the mark of the excess. Some were barely passable, as the holes in the blacktop filled with rain and turned into mud. Before leaving the county at noon, Inspector Ray stopped at the courthouse to see the county judge with regard to disposition of the 29 citations which had been written in the county during the previous

After Ray looked through the first few citations in the file the judge told him that he wouldn't need to go through them all.

Mining Engineering Grants Available

Kentucky high school graduates and college students who have demonstrated scholastic avhievement, particularly in the physical sciences, are being encouraged to apply for scholarships in mining engineering.

The director of the Kentucky Mining Engineering Scholarship Program at the University of Kentucky said successful applicants can receive a maximum of $1250 per school year. Pre-engineering subjects may be taken at the UK Community Colleges.

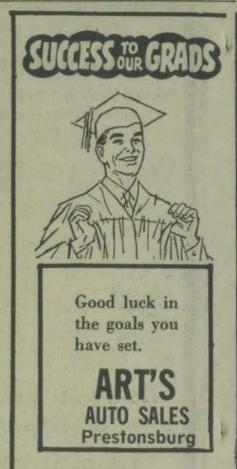

Prof. Ted D. Haley, UK Department of Civil Engineering, said that the scholarship program was established by the General Assembly and is being administered by the Kentucky Development Office through the Institute of Mining and Minerals Research at UK.

"Successful applicants for these scholarships must agree to several stipulations such as seeking summer employment in the mining industry and in seeking employment in the industry graduation," Professor Haley "Starting salaries for mining engineering graduates are the highest being paid to any fouryear degree graduates," the educator added.

He said his office will furnish complete information on scholarships to high school graduates and college students who are interested in the mining engineering profession.

ARH Spokesman Replies to UMW

The "threatened" whithdrawal of United Mine Workers union welfare funds from payment to Appalachian Regional Hospitals in Kentucky, West Virginia and Virginia would apply not to "donations" but only to payments for treatment of miners, pensioners and their families, a spokesman for the ARH said last week.

UMW President Arnold Miller noted in a letter last Thursday to David Herdinger, president of ARH, and to Lee D. Keene, administrator of the Pikeville Methodist Hospital, that the welfare fund of the union had paid approximately $8 million to the ARH and another $500,000 to the Pikeville hospital last year.

Miller's letter concerning the possible withholding of funds noted the "inability of the hospital chain and a Methodist hospital in Pikeville (a former UMW hospital sold to the Methodists) to negotiate with the striking unions is clearly in conflict with the massive amount of union-generated money which the hospitals receive."

The amount, said Ed Easterly, of the ARH office in Lexington, was paid only for hospital services to miners, pensioners and their families.

Easterly said that all ARH hospitals last year treated 9,275 UMW patients, representing only 20.1 per cent of the total of 46,024 patients treated. He also said the hospitals served 16,345 Medicare and Medicade patients, who represented 35.5 per cent of the total.

Easterly said the strike had affected nine of the hospitals-the one at West Liberty not being involved—since April 1. A 39-month contract with the union expired March 31.

About 950 employes, including maintenance and service workers and nurse aides, are involved. The remainder of the 2,800 employes have been working 12-18 hour shifts, Easterly said.

Financial Fate of Many Rests Upon Workmen's Compensation

By MARVA GAY

Frankfort, Ky.—About 50 Kentuckians awaited verdicts Monday which decided their financial fate and that of their

The scene is repeated every week as the five-member State Workmen's Compensation Board rules on the cases before it.

The board rules on claims filed under the Kentucky Workmen's Compensation Act. That act, administered by the Kentucky Department of Labor and arbitrated by the board, was designed to compensate employes for injuries or occupational diseases incurred as a result of their employment.

It is a no-fault law, since the employe may be entitled to benefits even though his injuries were due to his own negligence.

There were some major changes made in the act in 1972 and because of those changes, the board is hearing a lot more cases than ever before. In the first year after the law changed, the number of claims filed jumped from 2,425 to 3,443.

The 1972 law requires almost all employers to provide their employes with workmen's compensation insurance. Before, it was elective except for employers in some hazardous occupations. Agricultural workers, as well as some domestic and temporary workers, are still excluded. With the new law, the number of employers covered increased from about 49,000 to more than 60,000.

Now, employers must either obtain workmen's compensation insurance from an insurance company or they must be self-insured. The self-insured must provide proof of financial ability to pay their workmen's compensation liabilities.

An employe may decline coverage, though very few do. If covered by workmen's compensation insurance, an injured worker may receive up to half his average weekly wage-but, he will not receive more than $84 a week. Also, he will get unlimited medical expenses and, in some cases, rehabilitation. The 1972 Legislature raised the maximum weekly payment from $60 and made it payable for an unlimited time. Before that, benefits were paid for only 425 weeks. And, the rehabilitation program was added. Now, the employer or the insurance carrier must also furnish job rehabilitation for seriously injured employes. And, the employe must accept rehabilitation or his compensation will be cut by half for each year of refusal.

If the injured worker dies, the surviving spouse may receive up to $70 a week plus benefits for dependent children. Payment for burial expenses also was raised from $500 to $1,500 by the 1972 General Assembly.

Despite the law's making it a criminal

Sherry Lynn Stanley, daughter of Willard Stanley, of Melvin, was awarded a bachelor of science degree in pharmacy from the University of Kentucky at special commencement ceremonies for the College of Pharmacy in Lexington, May 11. offense for an employer to fail to obtain workmen's compensation insurance, such failure still occurs. So, the 1972 Legislature passed a law to deal with that, too.

The law set up a special fund to provide for injured workers if the employer doesn't have insurance or if the insurance company has gone bankrupt. So far, no benefits have been drawn, but, many new cases have been filed requesting money from the fund.

The process for obtaining workmen's compensation benefits works is simple. After an accident, the employer files an accident report with the State Labor Department, Workmen's Compensation Division, and notifies his nsurance carrier. That report is filed in a computer where the injured person is matched with information sent in earlier by the em-

In 90 per cent of the cases, the insurance carrier and injured person make a settlement. The board then approves the settlement and benefits begin.

If there is no settlement, the injured worker files a claim. The department processes the application for a claim, prepares a case and files it withthe board. After the board rules on the claim, the Labor Department notifies all persons involved of the decisions and the injured person begins receiving benefits, it that was the board's finding.

In cases where a settlement has not been reached, the board's decision may be appealed to circuit court.
