

Judge Says Stream Job Threatened Blames Engineers As Plans Changed On Martin Work

The long-planned stream improvement project intended to afford flood protection for the town of Martin and vicinity may be lost, after all, it was conceded here this week.

County Judge Henry Stumbo admitted he is discouraged — and, perhaps, a bit disgusted.

He pointed out that after the county and the city of Martin had worked for months to acquire easements over private property for the stream work, had acquired easements over some 100 tracts and had filed condemnation suits in a number of these, the U. S. Corps of Engineers has informed both the Floyd fiscal court and officials at Martin that the boundaries must be changed on various strips of land and new easements acquired.

"It's all the fault of the Corps of Engineers," Judge Stumbo said. "We got what they asked for, made some people mad doing it, and now they say they need more."

He expressed doubt that an attempt to get more land after all the months of negotiations and court action would be worthwhile. "It looks like all we have got out of this is time and money spent while making some people mad," he commented.

The stream improvement project, now in the planning almost five years, would cost almost $3 million. The work would have involved straightening and deepening of the stream channel from the confluence of the Right and Left forks of Beaver Creek, above Martin, downstream to a point near the Sammy Clark Branch, below Arkansas Creek.

Judge Orders Reservoir Halt Following Suit

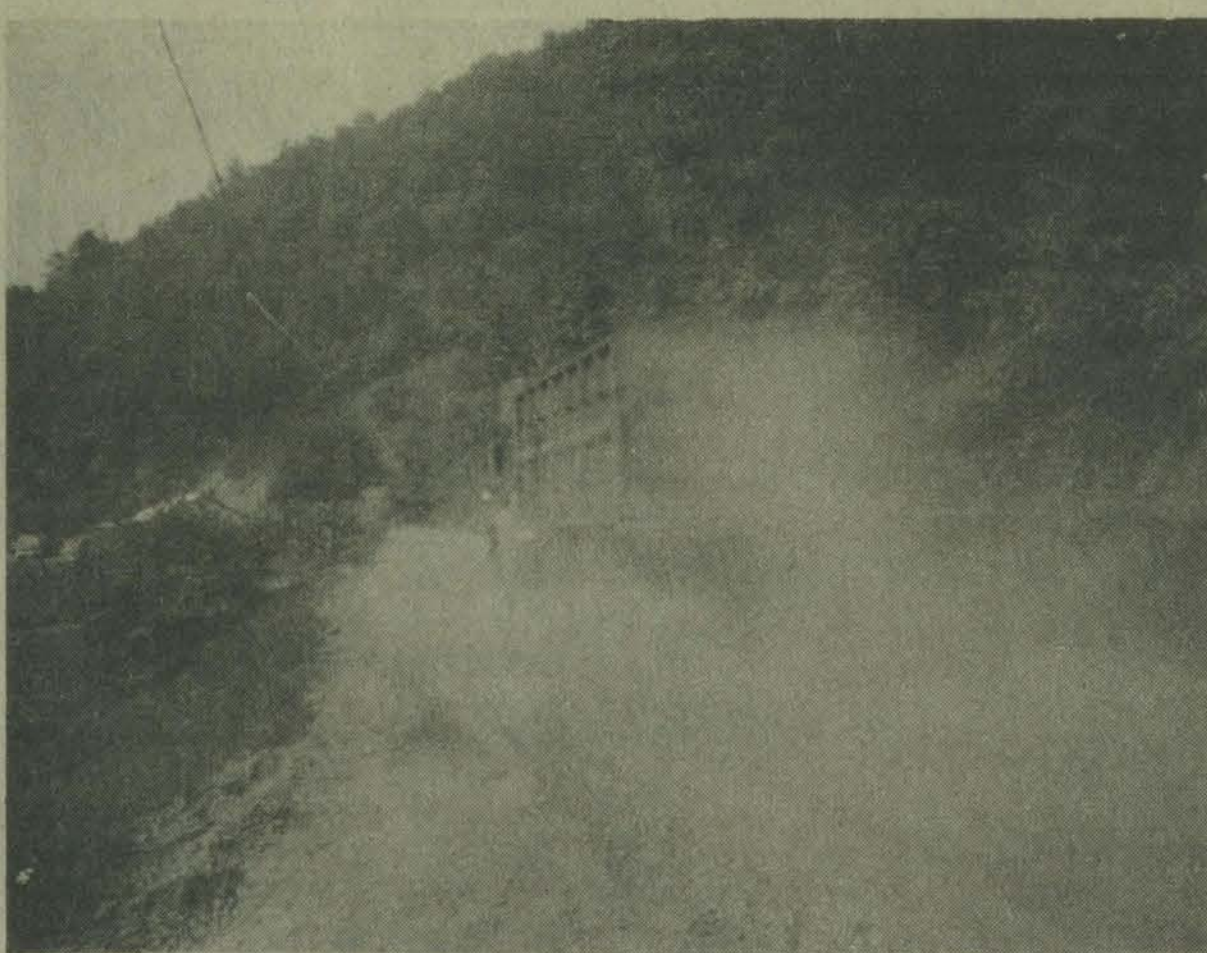

U. S. District Judge H. David Hermansdorfer last week ordered the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to halt all construction connected with the Paintsville reservoir project. The stop order included further land acquisition.

The order resulted from a suit filed against the Corps of Engineers by the Committee of Paint Creek consisting of 17 residents of Johnson and Morgan counties.

The stop order will be in effect, it was stipulated, "until satisfaction of this order has been acknowledged by the court." The Corps was, however, per-

Dusty Road Draws Protest

A coal truck kicks up a cloud of dust on Frasure's Creek. Residents of that area were protesting the situation this week.

Residents of Frasure's Creek, near McDowell, protested the condition of their road Tuesday morning by establishing a picket line.

"A cloud of dust in the summer, a river of mud in the winter," was the description of the road given by one protesting resident.

Community representatives said they were at a loss as to whom to blame — state or county — but all were emphatic about getting something done. Just now they say, the dust from coal trucks and

This Town... That World

I just knew those cosmonauts and astronauts blasting off into space would cause some kind of weather, didn't you?

NO RERUNS EXPECTED

The Hooper ratings aren't in yet, but I'd say that if that sky hookup had lasted another day they would have cancelled the show.

And a show it was. Pardon me if I seem to have the blahs, or am blase, or even cynical, but the meeting out there in space was patently contrived and studied, if not rehearsed.

The whole production was a costly one. We, I assume, didn't profit by adding to the sum of human knowledge, since a blastoff into space and the business of docking and returning to earth are old hat. If that is true, we must hope we gained something in human relations if not in the area of international friendship.

And — please pardon the cynicism — I wouldn't risk even an inflated dollar betting on that.

PROOF

John Milton Stumbo, he who boasts of the big cabbage he grows, brought me a specimen which weighed more than eight pounds, just to prove he wasn't raising radishes. A picture was made of the presentation, and I am holding it for possible use later if the Japanese beetles get any worse. J. Milton hasn't reported this year, as he did last, that his big cabbage were keeping the neighbors awake, nights, as the cabbage heads crack open. Reason: The neighbors have been on vacation.

County Losing $72,000; Loss Of Jobs Seen

Floyd county apparently is scheduled to receive $72,000 less in federal Title II and Title VI funds this year for its employment program, and a loss of jobs is feared.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said Monday he is disturbed by the cut and that he is contacting the offices of Senators Ford and Huddleston and Congressman Carl D. Perkins. He also said he had called on Dr. Norman Willard, Manpower Services commissioner, to supply him with complete information showing the allocation of funds to other Kentucky counties, their unemployment percentages and the formula employed in arriving at the amount of the allocation for individual counties.

Floyd county has had 46 working under Title II and 12 are paid from Title VI funds. The two funds, officials have been told, will be consolidated and administered through the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program (EKCEP) office at Hazard.

"We think this county's allocation is incorrect, and we know it's not what is needed," Judge Stumbo commented. "If it stands as is, we're going to lose some job slots."

A TRUCKLOAD OF BEER? No, this load of 40 cases and two "fifths" of whiskey came from beneath the hood and from the seating area of a Volkswagen. Commonwealth's Detective Doug Lewis, shown in photo, identified the owner as Carmel Howell, of Galveston.

Coal Roads May Get Severance Funds Cut

Floyd county's share of the coal severance tax this year will be a whopping $1,189,000, according to state estimate, and it and other coal-producing counties will be given greater latitude in their use of the money.

The broadened guidelines for spending coal tax funds now permit expenditures for roads and almost any other legitimate purpose, and the allocation of the money to various projects will be a job for the fiscal court.

County Judge Henry Stumbo commented this week that he thinks the court should invite community leaders to meet with it for an exchange of views on needed projects. "It's the people's money, and it should be spent where it will do the most good," he added.

Magoffin Jail Fire Sends 20 Prisoners Here

The population of the Floyd county jail had an abrupt increase Thursday night after a fire at the Magoffin county jail necessitated the transfer of 20 Magoffin prisoners to the jail here.

The fire, which caused an estimated $7,000 damage, was said to have started after a prisoner, Oscar Allen, allegedly set fire to bedding in his cell. The bedding, which was reportedly "guaranteed not to burn," blazed out of control, setting fire to beds in adjoining cells. Six prisoners were reported overcome by smoke inhalation and all the prisoners narrowly escaped asphyxiation. Allen was charged with arson in connection with the fire.

In addition to the Magoffin prisoners, heavy activity by law enforcement officials in the county added to the near "full house" conditions at the jail.

One of the week's two liquor raids, carried out by Commonwealth's Detective Doug Lewis last Wednesday at Pike-Floyd Hollow at Betsy Layne, may have established a new record for the quantity of booze to be removed from a Volkswagen. Forty cases of beer and two fifths of whiskey were removed from the auto. Its driver, Carmel Howell, of Galveston, was charged with illegal transporting and possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale. Lewis said 11 cases were under the hood and 29 were stacked where the back seat had been removed. The vehicle, registered to Sandy Hall, of Branham's Creek, was impounded and Howell was released on bond the following day.

A raid Saturday by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis, Commonwealth's Detective Lewis and Deputy Sheriff Bobby Edwards resulted in the arrest of Arnold "Red" Salisbury on a charge of possession of alcoholic beverages. Acting on a search warrant, the officers removed 179 cans of beer from his home on Toler Creek and from Salisbury's pickup, which was impounded. Salisbury executed bond the following day.

Constable Bob Hackworth arrested William K. Allen, of Maytown, last Tuesday at Maytown after he found approximately an ounce of marijuana and a small quantity of pills in Allen's van. Allen was booked at the county jail on charges of possession of dangerous drugs, possession of marijuana and giving false information and was released on bond the same day.

Others booked at the jail, charges against each and arresting officers follow:

Ashland Oil's Subsidiary Buys Coal Acreage

A subsidiary of the Ashland Oil Company has bought coal mining rights to approximately 50,000 acres in Floyd and five other counties of the area.

The subsidiary is Ashland Coal, Inc., and in addition to this county the coal lies in Morgan, Johnson, Lawrence, Magoffin and Elliott counties. A part of the coal purchased includes a portion of the mining rights and properties formerly owned by Homer Short, of Paintsville.

A statement released by a company official described the coal company as a wholly owned subsidiary of Ashland Oil and the acreage acquired as "largely... unexplored and undeveloped coal mining rights in Eastern Kentucky. It is ex-

Murder on Rise But Generally Crime Is Less

Major crime in Floyd county decreased three percent from 1973 to 1974, although the murder rate was up, according to official figures released by the Kentucky State Police.

The Uniform Crime Report (UCR), which is published annually by the state police, shows the following comparisons:

Crime	1973 Total	1974 Total
Murder	4	7
Rape	10	8
Robbery	3	4
Assault	40	39
Burglary	135	93
Larceny-Theft	98	122
Auto-Theft	12	21

The UCR also indicates that police made at least one arrest in 46 percent of the incidents of major crime in the county, which is up 16 percent from 1973.

Statewide, major crime increased by 22 percent with property-related crimes rolling up the largest number of offenses and biggest percentage increases. For example, burglary was up 22.7 percent and larceny-theft up 28.9 percent.

City Commission Cites Operating, Expansion Costs

The City Utilities Commission announced this week that, effective August 1, water and gas rates will be increased here for the first time since 1968.

The rate boost, adopted recently by the utilities commission and approved by the City Council at its meeting last Thursday, was necessary, it was explained by Bill H. Howard, superintendent of the city-owned water, gas and sewerage system, to meet annual operating and maintenance costs, including wage and salary increases and projected higher costs of necessary expansion of the water treatment plant, the sewage treatment plant and replacement of the old gas system.

The minimum water rate in Prestonsburg was increased from $3 to $3.50 for the first 2,000 gallons, and the old sliding scale of charges thereafter was eliminated. The new rate fixes the charge for water for the next 98,000 gallons at $1.35 per thousand gallons.

The minimum 2,000-gallon charge outside Prestonsburg was set at $5. The rate for the next 98,000 gallons will be $1.80 per 1,000 gallons.

The minimum for gas (2,000 cubic feet) was increased from $3.25 to $4 inside Prestonsburg. Outside, it was raised from the $3.90 minimum for the first 2,000 cubic feet to $5.60. All gas used after the first 2,000 MCF in Prestonsburg will be charged for at the rate of $1 per 1,000, while the same volume will be at the rate of $1.40, to users outside the city limits.

The sewer charge of 70 percent of the water bill was not changed, although an increase was suggested by Howard K. Bell, Engineers, Lexington, the firm which studied the rate structure and suggested rates needed to do, as Mr. Howard put it, "what we have to do."

2 Offices To Close Saturdays As Half-Day Break Frowned On

The office of the Attorney General handed down an opinion last week to the effect that county offices may stay open five days or six days a week but may not close for half a day, and so at least two Floyd county offices will comply by being closed all day, Saturdays.

The opinion, given by Asst. Atty. Gen. Charles Runyan, was based on a 1960 statute, which says: "Public offices in counties containing a city of any class may close any one work day of any week."

Runyan said another law says circuit and county clerks' offices are to be open "at all reasonable times, except Sunday."

County Judge Henry Stumbo and County Attorney James R. Allen announced Monday that they will close their offices all day Saturday, beginning this week.

State offices have long closed on Saturdays.

Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett said his office will continue to be open till noon Saturday, because, he said, "many of our people have no opportunity to come here for drivers' licenses except on Saturday, unless they miss work. I just can't afford to close all day," he added.

County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson said he will continue to remain open till 1 p.m. on Saturday through the summer, and, beginning in September, will be open all day, Saturdays, and till 8 p.m. on Thursdays through the fall and winter.

Tax Commissioner Lovel Hall proposes to maintain his usual 5½-day schedule, remaining open till noon Saturdays. He also said Saturday is the only day some can come to his office without missing work.

Sheriff Joe W. Lewis said his office is unlike other offices and that it cannot operate on a fixed schedule for closing.

Said Runyan, in his written opinion: "Out of the six-day work week... (Monday through Saturday), each office may close one full working day. That day of closing must be one full day."

"In other words, the county clerk's office cannot be closed for one half-day of Tuesday, for example, and one half-day of Wednesday."

Previous attorney general opinions also have said county offices could not close two half-days a week.

But Runyan's opinion, requested by J. Henry Martin, a Bardwell attorney, appeared to go further and say the offices cannot be closed even for one half-day.

Runyan corroborated that interpretation in response to a newsman's question, saying an office could stay open for five or six days but not 5½ days.

"The practical effect of the two statutes is to guarantee a five-day work week (offices open to public) for all county offices," Runyan said. He said the legislative intent was to have the day offices are closed to be a full working day.

"The statutes do not expressly prescribe the duration of a work day," he added. "However, a work day of seven to eight hours would appear reasonable."

Jerry Frocht, executive director of the Kentucky Association of Counties, said many county offices now are open Saturday mornings. Those are primarily in rural areas, he said.

Comm. Development Club Is Discussed At Wayland Meet

Citizens of Wayland gathered Thursday at the Wayland Town Hall to discuss and organize a Wayland Community Development Club.

Representatives of the Weeksbury Development Club and Weeksbury Junior Development Club spoke to the Wayland group tracing the 13-year history of their club and stressed the importance of not becoming easily discouraged in the early organization of such a development group.

Some of the projects and goals discussed for the Wayland club included the establishment of a Senior Citizens Club, voluntary work with area rest homes, the establishment of a community playground, a meeting place for community youths, establishment of mass transportation for the elderly, and fund raising to help toward the purchase of a new fire truck. The importance of obtaining a club meeting hall was also discussed.

The next meeting is scheduled at the Wayland Town Hall, July 28 at 7 p.m. Bill Bridges, development specialist from the University of Kentucky, will be the featured speaker. County Extension Agent John Sparks said that everyone in the Wayland vicinity (Lackey, Estill, Dema and Steels Creek included) are urged to attend.

Representatives from the Weeksbury Development Club included Peggy Bradford, Ida Burke, Elbert Gibson, Causley Branham, Barry Tackett, Debra Smith, Robin Humphrey, and Gordon Mullett.

New Food Markets Open for Business

Two of the county's newest retail businesses are the Country Choice Meat Market, which will open in the Sears building here tomorrow (Thursday), and Martin's Bestway Market now open at McDowell.

The meat market opening here is owned by Miles Gibson, Jr., of Langley, and will retail meats prepared at his slaughter house near Langley. Mr. Gibson said all meats distributed from the market will be USDA-inspected.

The Bestway Market, owned by Demorris Martin, opened a few days ago in a new building constructed especially as a food center, with adequate parking.

The need to relieve human suffering and stop the downward spiral of purchasing power, production and employment formed the background for establishment of the unemployment insurance program in the 1930s.

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
Director of Environmental Studies
Morehead State University

In this article, some of the effects of noise on man will be listed.

In 1968 Dr. David Lipscomb of the University of Tennessee's Noise Study Laboratory reported on the effects of rock music on the ears of guinea pigs. To do this, he recorded music in a Knoxville discotheque and played it back to his guinea pig audience. After 90 hours of exposure, some inner ear cochlea cells, the primary source of sound transmission to the brain, had shriveled.

Some guinea pigs lost as much as 20 percent of their cells. The experimental animals also developed swollen adrenal glands, atrophied thymuses, and duodenal ulcers. It is true that guinea pigs are not men, but similar results were later obtained with humans as experimental animals. Loud rock music has been implicated in a number of studies.

Dr. Lipscomb also tested motorcycle-riding freshmen at the University of Tennessee and found that some had hearing equivalent to 60-year-old men! But deafness from modern society's products is not the only ill effect of noise. In 1965 and in later studies, Dr. Samuel Rosen of Mount Sinai Hospital, New York, found there was a definite correlation between sustained noise levels and arteriosclerotic heart disease.

He found that 70-year-old members of an isolated Egyptian tribe had hearing acuity similar to that of young boys in the U.S., and that the tribe had lower blood pressures. The explanation, later substantiated, was that noise causes a narrowing of the arteries which raises the blood pressure and limits the blood reaching the inner ear, which somehow impairs hearing.

Dr. Rosen also found that excessive noise caused excessive adrenalin to be produced. This adrenalin increased tension and nervousness. Another study showed that mental hospital admission rates were substantially higher in areas classified as "maximum noise areas" because of their proximity to airports than in comparable areas not near airports.

Other effects of excessive noise are interesting. One large insurance company recently campaigned to eliminate commonly-accepted office noises. Once accomplished, this noise reduction had some surprising results. Typing errors dropped 29 percent, machine operator mistakes fell 52 percent, absenteeism fell 37 percent and employee turnover fell 47 percent. Efficiency, morale and cooperation simultaneously rose significantly.

It is no wonder many U.S. cities have undertaken noise reduction programs. However, governmental inaction and program costs have hampered the efforts. Worker and public apathy towards such protective devices as ear plugs and sound proofing structures has also been a factor in the lack of successful programs. Things are changing, though, because some public agency leaders are beginning to recognize the problem and take corrective steps.

Next: Chemical environmental hazards.

School Lunch Prices May Rise in Many Districts

By PAULA ALEXANDER
Frankfort, Ky. — Many Kentucky schools soon may be forced to raise the prices of their lunches to keep up with the inflationary costs of food staples, according to C. E. Bevins, director of school food services for the state Department of Education.

"I just don't see any other alternative than a price increase for many of the districts," he said. Bevins noted that most school lunches now fall in the 40-60 cent price range.

He added that "several" recommendations for higher fees recently had been made by his department following periodic visits to school cafeterias by Education Department consultants. He explained that such recommendations were not mandatory and that final decisions were made by the local school district.

Bevins also said his office never suggests more than a nickel increase, as parents seem more receptive to that amount than to a 10 or 15 cent jump.

When asked if the quality of cafeteria lunches was being sacrificed in order to hold skyrocketing food prices in line,

Bevins replied, "This is another alternative, but not one that is recommended. In some districts this may be true, but we try to help maintain at least the status quo."

Local school districts are aided in this inflationary battle by government subsidies. Only recently the federal reimbursement rate increased by 3 1/2 percent, a rise that may temporarily offset school lunch prices in some districts. These subsidies help feed some 40 percent of Kentucky's 575,000 public school students who receive their meals at no cost or through a partial payment, Bevins said.

Several Eastern Kentucky counties recently contacted indicated that they could forego no price increase, although careful budgeting is necessary to maintain proper food service. Pulaski County Supt. Roy Holt said his school system last had a price increase at the beginning of the 1973-74 session. "We haven't increased our prices because the schools are making it. We're running about the same as last year," thanks to government reimbursement," Holt said. Juanita Kocio, Ashland's food services director, noted, "We've got our feet on the ground. We just want to feed the kids and pay the bills." Ms. Kocio added that Ashland had an increase in lunch prices at the beginning of the present school year.

Whitley county's food director, Archie Hill, noted that his county had a nickel increase during the 1973-74 term. "We will not change now," he said.

The price range for school meals in the three Eastern Kentucky counties contacted falls in the 35 to 50 cent category for students.

Hoedown Island Art Show At Natural Bridge, Aug. 10

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Hoedown Island at Natural Bridge State Resort Park in Powell County is the place to be August 10 when 75 to 100 artists will be exhibiting original paintings. Most of the works will be for sale and if the 10th annual exhibit follows past custom, may visitors will carry hom a work of art.

Mrs. Jerlene Rose, president of the Powell County Art Club, annual sponsor of the event through cooperation with the Kentucky Department of Parks, points out that the show is for art work only. A crafts exhibit and sale is being planned later in the year.

A number of families make it to the resort park, a short distance from Mountain Parkway, the week-end of the Mountain Parkway Art Show to view exhibits and buy a painting or two. While some of the family visit the show, others will be hiking to famous Natural Bridge (or riding the chairlift), fishing in the park lake or Red River, swimming in the pool within sight of Hoedown Island, enjoying a lagoon cruise via paddle boats, shopping in gift and souvenir shops, visiting the Red River Gorge or taking advantage of recreational activities that abound in the area.

But focus that Sunday will be on art, artists, art enthusiasts and collectors. In addition to members of the Powell County Club, artists from throughout the Commonwealth and surrounding states will exhibit their paintings. Prices of paintings will range from a few dollars to a few hundred dollars. All media and art styles will be represented.

Most of the Kentucky Heritage Artists, a group of 18 well-known painters, will be among the exhibitors, as will be artists known for print reproductions. Some will provide demonstrations of their art.

"It is hoped that all exhibitors will have their paintings set up on Hoedown Island by 10 a.m.," explained Mrs. Rose, who is editor of the Clay City Times. "Surely it won't rain, but should that happen, a place will be provided so the show can go on."

She said the show was open to all artists with a registration fee of $2 to be paid on arrival at the island.

The Hoedown Island show is one of the state's most popular outdoor exhibits. Hundreds of paintings will be set along the benches and bleachers and patio space, adding color to an already scenic spot.

Rimmed by shade trees and surrounded by a lake formed by the Middle Fork of the Red River, Hoedown Island is shadowed by craggy mountains and dense forests, with handsome Hemlock Lodge perched on the mountain overlooking the scene.

At Last—Organized Effort

The Times is glad that, at last, an organized effort is being made to get the U. S. Corps of Engineers to take some sort of positive action at Dewey Lake. We refer to the petition which is apparently ready for circulation in several counties of the area, calling for a silt dam or levee in the headwaters of the impoundment.

The improvement that is being asked will not cure the deadly disease from which the lake is suffering but it would be an improvement. The proposed work would catch some of the silt and much of the surface debris.

The wonder is that no organized effort was made, years ago when the siltation threat to Dewey Lake was first publicized.

American School Daze

(An editorial in the Dallas Morning News)

The National Education Association, meeting last week in Los Angeles for its annual convention, talked about the usual things — money, jobs and politics.

A pity the NEA, as usual, showed so little interest in education — in the molding of bright and intelligent youngsters — for then it would have found much else to discuss besides the paucity of federal aid to the schools.

That the public schools are educating more and more pupils with less and less success becomes plainer every year. In 1966-67, 32,800 students scored 700 or higher on the verbal Scholastic Aptitude tests; by 1973-74, the figure had plunged to 16,200; for students scoring 600 or more, the comparable figures are 178,000 in the earlier period, 134,000 in the more recent.

"I'm appalled," said Denver University Chancellor Maurice Mitchell the other day, "by the general trend of nearly all college applicants to have enormous deficiencies. They are afraid of math and science. They write and speak in an informal manner which shows they have no real understanding of their language or anybody else's."

In a similar vein, Stanford University's admissions dean, Fred Hargadon, said recently that "In general . . . students coming to Stanford — to any college, really — do not know how to write very well. They have not had to do so in high school, for the most part."

The question before the house is, simply: What in Horace Mann's name is going on, when America's expensive and compulsorily patronized public schools cannot do the job they were meant to do?

Mitchell blames society — rightly, we think — for trying to construct a royal road to learning, complete with rest stops and by-passes. "Russian education," he argues, "is working in a deadly way for the creation of brain power as a means of world domination, while we are fumbling around to deal with society's wish for instant success for everyone."

"Schools have been responding to the general pressure to make it easier to get through, and teachers are desperately scratching around for ways to teach subjects without making it hard to learn."

The indictment is all too true, as most schoolteachers will privately admit. To command a student is autocratic; to expect excellence of him is undemocratic. Well, we have a vast number of nonautocratic pedagogues and an even vaster number of democratized pupils. We have also an educational system that is failing.

It has not failed yet; the public schools lumber along, turning out a fair number of literate graduates. The trouble is that the number of literate graduates diminishes yearly. The colleges are presently chafing at the dropout in student quality; soon, the business world will be. But perhaps meanwhile the NEA will have elected to office a Congress pledged to doubling the federal education subsidy. For all the good that will do.

Shriners Seek Tots Who Need Treatment

Lexington Unit, Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, serving Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia, and Ohio under jurisdictions of their 13 Temples, is continually seeking children who need orthopedic treatment to make them useful citizens, regardless of race, creed or religion and whose parents cannot take financial responsibility. Children are accepted up to the age of 15 years. Severely burned children are treated in the Burns Institute, Cincinnati.

Citizen readers of this newspaper are asked to report cases if they know of such needy children. Contact any Shriner, or physician, or write direct to Recorder Marvin Whitton, Oleika Shrine Temple, 326 Southland Drive, Lexington, Ky., 40503 for applications.

No public money, federal, state or local, supports the Shrine orthopedic hospitals in the 50 states. They are entirely supported by the more than 920,000 Shriners who each contribute annually, by endowments, bequests in wills, personal contributions, and fund-raising events such as athletic events, national, sectional, and local, football games, paper sales, horse shows, and a large proportion by circuses.

The Lexington unit gains through circuses staged annually by most area Temples; Oleika Temple is holding its 27th annual circus this year in Prestonsburg, August 11, and Lexington, August 14, 17.

"Trees on the Mountainside"

The enclosed check is for another year's subscription to the Times. I'd hate to miss a copy.

Today, there was a picture of Mayapples in the deep forest — what a thrill for me! Last week you had a picture of a part of Dewey Lake, I believe, but what shook me was the trees — trees on the mountain side! Those quiet, misty hollows! There is no place on earth like the mountains in Kentucky; green with beeches, my favorite, and oaks, maples, poplars, evergreens, buckeyes. There used to be plenty chestnuts and hickories — how I used to roam those hills for the first wild flowers, "Mountain tea," nuts, Mayapples, paw-paws — and how I loved to see the hillsides covered with redbud and dogwood.

Arizona has its beauties but there are no trees on the mountains in the desert. Give us more pictures!

'Head Mystery' Thought Solved

The recent discovery at Paintsville of a human head, with the torso missing, had all the ingredients of a murder mystery, but the plot failed to thicken.

The head, presumed to be that of a woman, was sent to the Kentucky State Police laboratory at Frankfort, and there it was determined that the find was not the result of a homicide; instead, it was a part of a cadaver and had been surgically removed.

Next, The Paintsville Herald reported last week, the head apparently had been used by a dentist for teaching purposes. That newspaper reported:

"Unofficially, the cadaver's head apparently made its way into Johnson county as a result of a Huntington, West Virginia, man visiting the Paintsville Livestock Market on Saturday, July 5, to sell some antiques. The man, it seems, was a relative of a dentist who was using the head for teaching purposes.

Wrapped in plastic and soaking in formaldehyde, the head was apparently stored in a box that the man picked up by mistake, thinking the box contained antiques. Upon his arrival at Staffordsville, the smell issuing from the box reportedly got to the man and he disposed of the box in a trash pile . . ."

Mead Ends 17-Year Conservation Work For Mining Position

Don Mead last Wednesday ended 17 years' work as conservation officer with the Kentucky Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources.

Mr. Mead resigned the post to become a mine inspector with the Martin office, Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals.

A resident of Hi Hat, Mr. Mead was recognized for his impartial handling of violations and his close attention to the various phases of fish and wildlife conservation.

"I appreciate the support given me and the conservation work by the courts, the county's fish and game clubs, the Floyd County Times and the public in general," Mead said upon his transfer to the new work.

The Department of Fish & Wildlife had not employed a successor to Mead as of last week, leaving Dalton Ray Conley the only conservation officer in the county.

QUESTION

I have an idea the manufacturers of ski belts are as unhappy about it all as the manufacturer of mountain dew after a visit from the revenooers. Ski belts, you know, are no longer accepted as safety devices for skiers, swimmers, boaters or just about anybody else in any situation.

I learned that, several days back when I had two of the grandchildren on the lake and had supplied each with a ski belt. The Lake Patrol, who seems to be omnipresent any time I am on the water, brought me up to date on the latest regulations which read, from left to right, that you may not wear a ski belt; instead, must wear a life jacket or use a Coast Guard-approved seat cushion.

The idea is, you can use one of these seat cushions and if you do a pratfall out of the boat your buddy can toss you one of these cushions to which you can hang onto for dear life, keep afloat and come back alive.

Mind you, I am not blaming the Lake Patrol. That's what the regulations say (in effect), and the man was simply telling me the facts, son. But I have a question which seems not to have occurred to the boys who drafted those regulations. It's this:

Suppose I go out alone in my boat with a Coast Guard-approved cushion, and I fall out of the boat. Who's going to throw me the cushion?

Some of those counties close offices another half-day during the week to make up for working Saturday mornings, despite the previous attorney general opinions saying that could not be done. Other counties keep some offices open Saturday mornings in addition to five full work days.

Runyan also noted that different elected county officials could close their offices on different days.

Attorney general opinions are advisory only and do not have the force of law.

State Police Commissioner Truett Ricks says the sick economy and high unemployment have had as much as anything to do with the 23.7 percent increase in property-related crimes.

But Ricks pointed out that while Kentucky's crime totals registered an overall increase in 1974, many of Kentucky's 120 counties recorded decreases.

For example, 74 — or 61 percent — of the counties either recorded decreases or the same totals in murder and rapes; 59 percent in robberies and 61 in assaults. Counties recording decreases in at least four of the seven major crime categories were Anderson, Bourbon, Boyle, Breathitt, Clark, Daviess, Harrison, Ohio, Oldham, Pendleton, Robertson, Scott, Spencer, Washington, Webster, Whitley and Woodford counties.

mitted to proceed with construction of an access road to the site of the proposed dam.

Judge Hermansdorfer directed the Corps of Engineers to supply a detailed statement as to the effect of oil seepage in the reservoir basin and another showing the benefit-to-cost ratio. He said the suit alleged failure to discuss oil seepage, although the Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) does take note that "chlorides were found in the stream, indicating the presence of oil and gas in the area."

The environmental impact statement shows a benefit-to-cost ratio at this time of 1.3 to 1.

In the conclusion of Judge Hermansdorfer's opinion, he said, "I find that the corps in the circumstances surrounding this case exercised a high degree of good faith and professionalism. I find no evidence of any arbitrariness, capriciousness, abuse of discretion or illegality of acts done. Nevertheless, I find that the EIS is technically deficient in the statement as to oil seepage; as to the statement on the benefit-to-cost analysis, and as to the failure to file a supplemental EIS with the Congress in support of annual appropriations. These matters will be corrected."

The Rev. Thurston B. Taylor supplied the pulpit of the Rev. Wm. Thomas at the First Presbyterian church here last Sunday. The pastor was on study leave for two weeks.

The sewerage rate was not increased, it was said, despite the system's expense in the construction of a secondary treatment plant required by the state Water Pollution Control Commission. The $1,100,000 plant is now 90 percent complete, it was said this week.

It also was explained that the water system's proposed expansion program to meet mounting water needs will cost more than originally expected. A loan of $150,000 from a federal agency at 5 percent interest will not be made, as expected, Howard said the commission has been advised. "That means we will have to get the money elsewhere and more than likely at higher interest," he added.

The system superintendent said the average water consumer uses about 5,000 gallons per month. He cited these figures to show that the increase in water rates will mean an increase to the average consumer of $1.36 a month.

Under the present rate schedule the minimum 2,000 gallons costs $3. The next 3,000 gallons cost $1.25 per thousand, or $3.75, making a total of $6.75. The added 70 percent sewerage charge is $4.73, bringing the current average bill to $11.48. The new rates have the minimums at $3.50, and the next 3,000 gallons at $1.35 per thousand will add $4.05. The 70 percent sewerage fee would add another $5.29, bringing the total monthly bill, on the average, to $12.84.

Water from the Prestonsburg plant is sold, wholesale, to the Parkway water district and the Auxier Water Company. The wholesale rates to these are also due for a raise.

RECC Strike Ends With Parley Here; Wage Boost Gained

The four-day strike of nine clerical employees of the Big Sandy RECC at Paintsville ended last Thursday when the workers appeared here for a circuit court hearing and wound up in a productive negotiating session with management.

Net result of the conference was an agreement giving the employees, members of Local No. 78, Office Professional Employees International Union, a 33-cent per hour wage increase in a one-year pact extending from July 1, 1975. An employee who had been dismissed after the strike began was also reinstated.

The union membership later accepted terms of the agreement by a narrow margin.

The hearing which was forestalled by the settlement of differences was on a contempt motion after Circuit Judge Hollie Conley had issued a temporary restraining order against the union.

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Kentucky sportsmen are noticing something different on fishermen's lapels these days. And many fishermen are making room on their den walls for a certificate from the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The department reports a predator fish survey is in high gear. The pins and certificates acknowledge cooperation by the fishermen. So far, scales from about 115 black bass, rockfish, walleye and muskie have been mailed to the department.

Jim Axon, a research biologist and leader of the predator fish study, is asking anglers to send him four scales from any legal muskie, rockfish or walleye or black bass five pounds or over. The scales aid in determining a portion of the life history of the fish and from them the department hopes to gain information on these predator fish stocked in Kentucky waters.

As of July 1, 60 bass had been reported to Axon, the largest a 9½ pounder from Kentucky Lake. Scales from 40 rockfish over 15 inches in length, mostly from Lake Herrington, with some returns from the tailwaters of Kentucky and Barkley Lakes and Lake Cumberland, have been received. The largest rockfish came from the Barkley tailwaters. It weighed 32 pounds.

Thirteen walleye over 15 inches have been reported to Axon, primarily from the tailwaters of Rough River and from Lake Cumberland, the biggest weighing in at 6 pounds, 1 ounce, from the Rough River tailwaters. A 19-pound muskie has been submitted from Cave Run Lake.

Axon is asking for at least four scales from each fish. The scales can be mailed in an envelope available from boat docks, conservation officers and the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in Frankfort.

The envelope also serves as a questionnaire. Such information as when and where the fish was caught and how it was taken is obtained through the form.

After Axon receives the scales, a certificate and pin are mailed to the fisherman who submitted them. In less than two weeks, a pin modeled after the fish the angler submits and the certificate should be in the fisherman's hands. The best scales come from behind the opercle, or gill cover, of the fish, midway between the lateral and dorsal fin, Axon said.

The scales and questionnaires are evaluated to determine age and growth of the fish and will be used in gauging the effectiveness of the department's stocking programs.

Fisheries officials say the study has no termination date. As long as it proves useful, it will continue. The fish scale survey is expected to run several years. Fisheries biologists hope this survey can supplement information from creel surveys.

The next time you're angling on Kentucky waters and hook into a big bass, walleye, rockfish or muskie, remove about half a dozen scales and go looking for an envelope to mail them in. That could result in a lapel pin and certificate which tells other sportsmen you caught a big one and aided the Department of Fish and Wildlife.

A lot of folks still believe in the groundhog theory — if he sees his shadow on February 2 there will be six more weeks of winter; if he doesn't, spring is on the way. There are a few nonbelievers in a North Dakota town, however. Five days after a shadowless groundhog day last year the temperature was 38 degrees fahrenheit below zero. Some spring!

Why is this bear smiling?

You'd be smiling too, if people listened to you the way Americans have listened to Smokey.

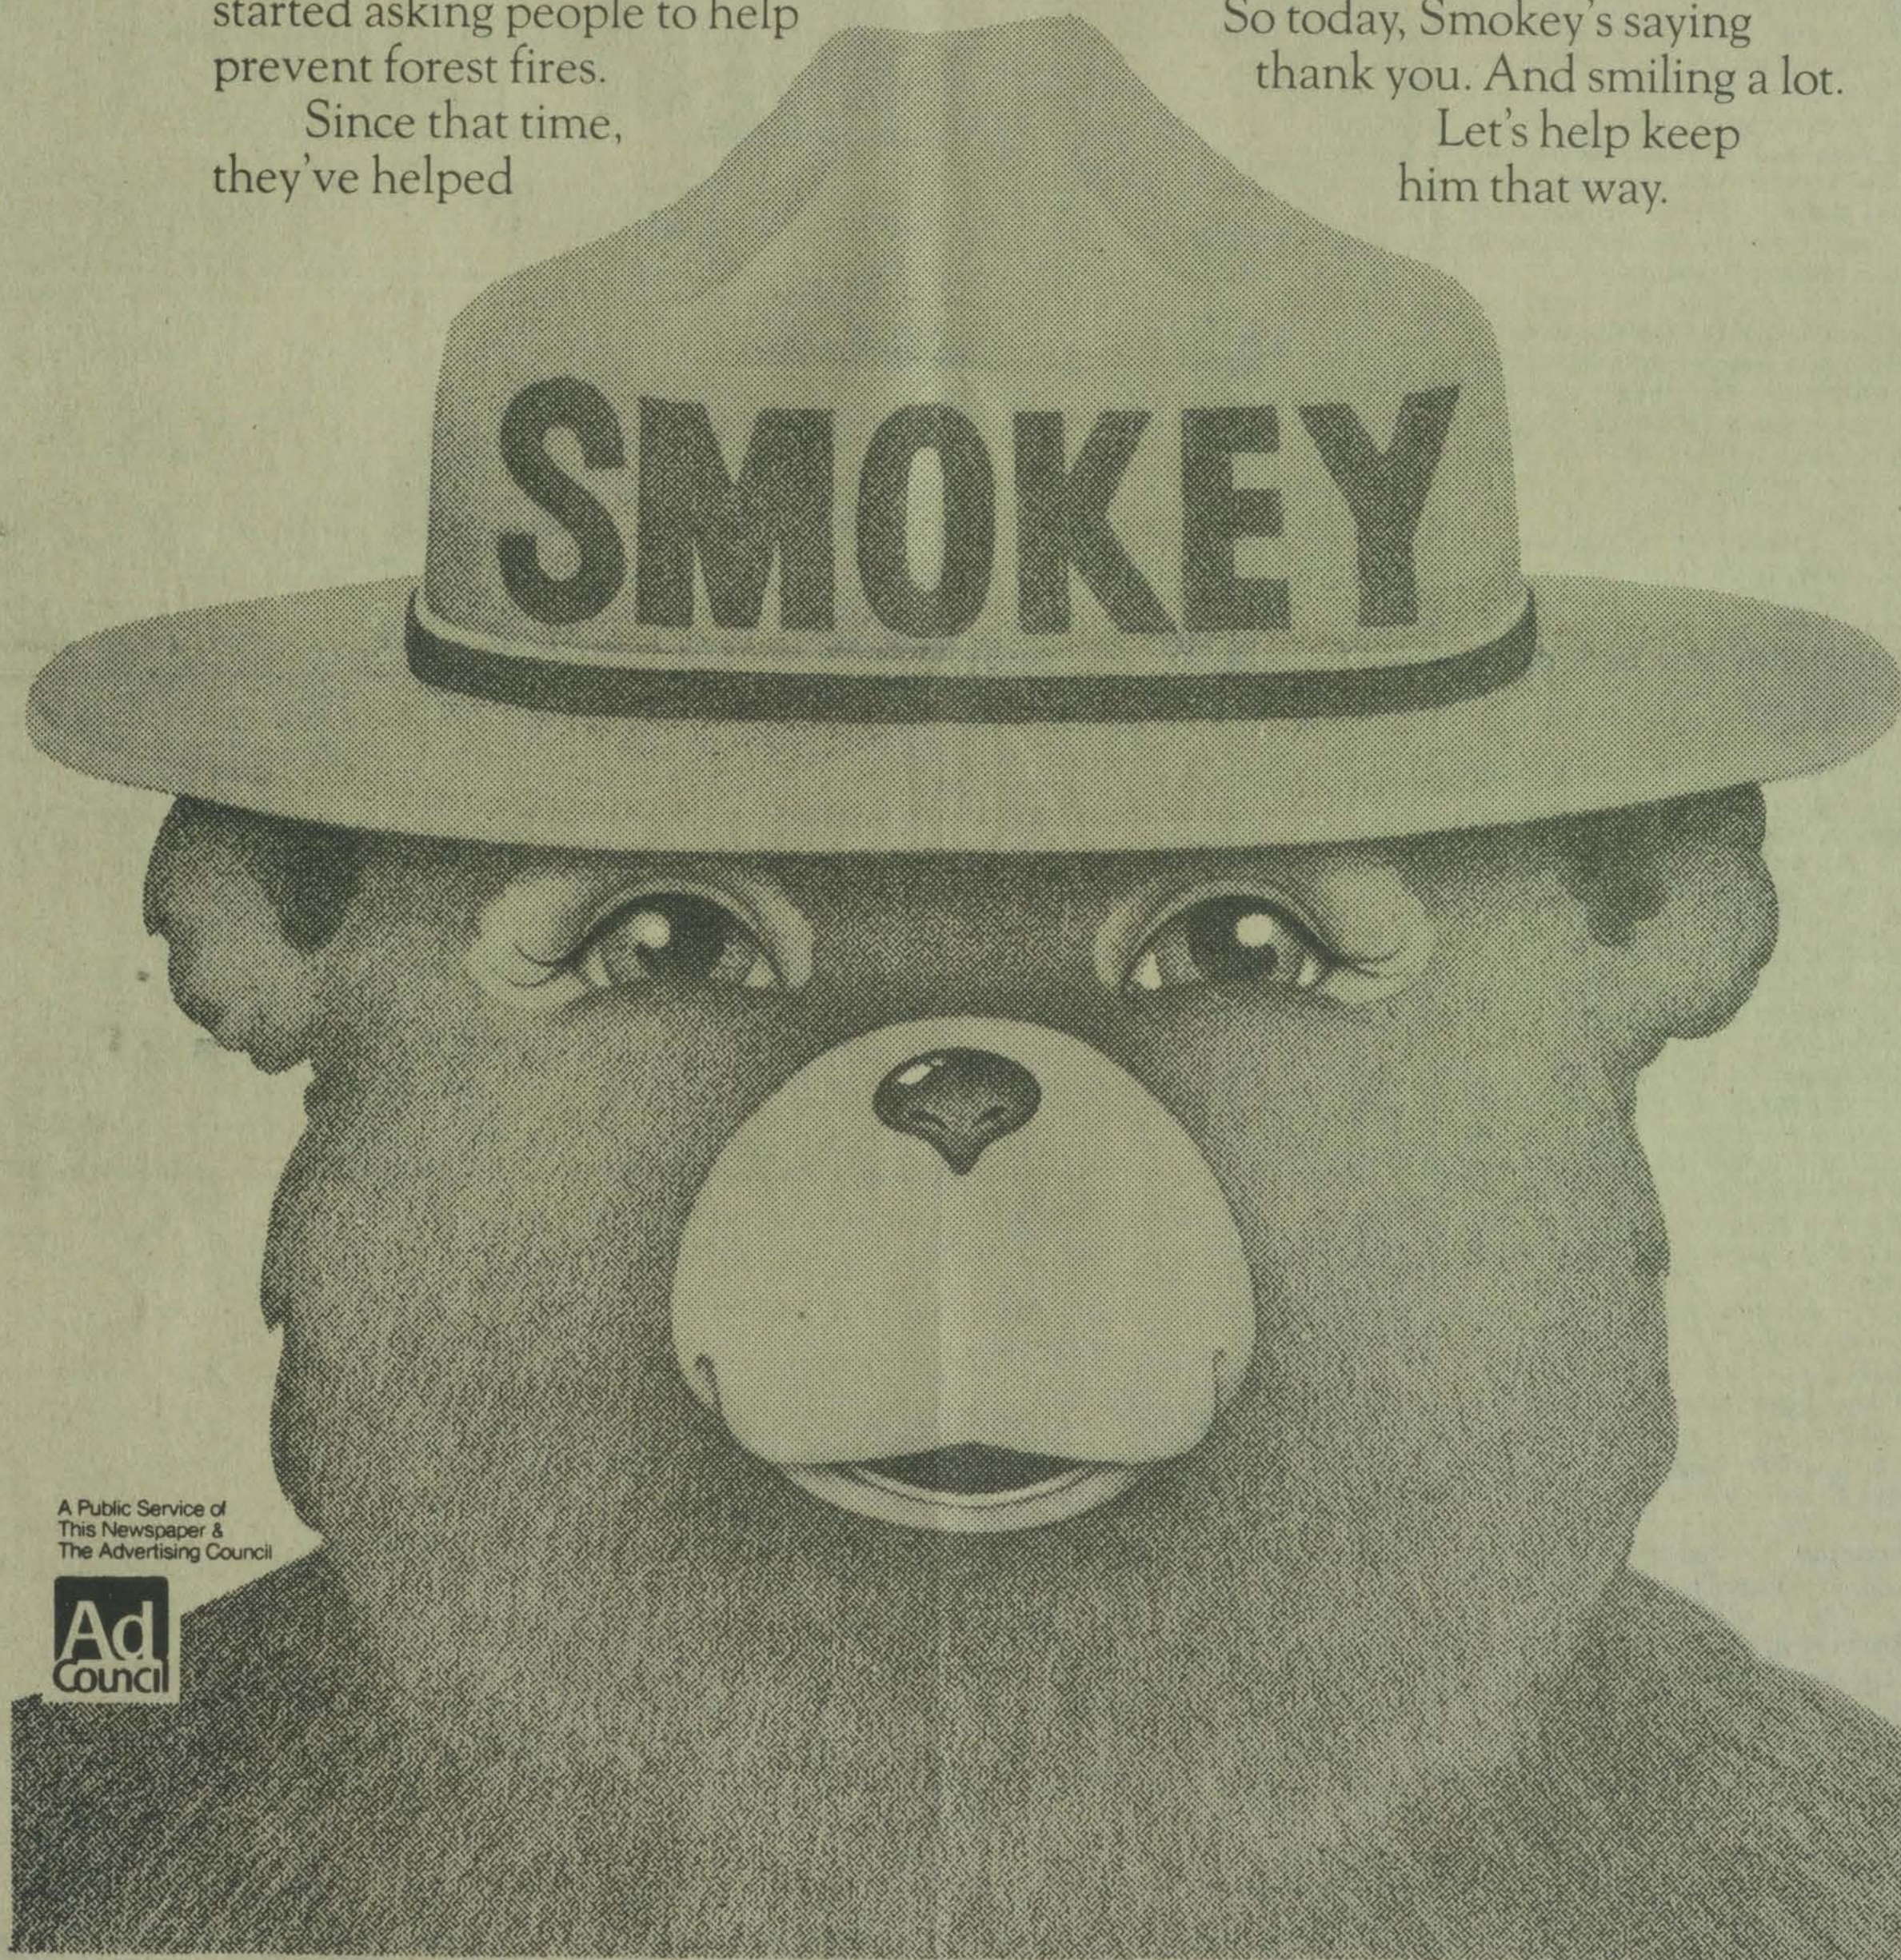

Over 30 years ago, Smokey started asking people to help prevent forest fires.

Since that time, they've helped cut the number of careless fires in half, even though ten times as many people use the forests today as they did back in the 1940's.

So today, Smokey's saying thank you. And smiling a lot.

Let's help keep him that way.

I'll Make You a Way

I have come to a place in my walk with the Lord, Though I've left Egypt's bonds and gone out at His word, That the foe pursues closely from which I must flee But before lies an awful, uncrossable sea. Then I fear not to trust the unchangeable God, He has chosen my pathway and before me has trod. I have heard as He calls me to trust and obey, "When you come to your Red Sea, I'll make you a way."

"Child, the wind which you feared for its power to harm, I have chosen to use as the strength of my arm, And while your soul suffers the darkness of night, I'm dividing the waters to the left and the right. And at last when the light dawns and once more you see, There will be an escape made for you, by Me. Though the host of the enemy is still close at hand, You can walk through your Red Sea upon the dry land.

"I've made just a pathway, not a billowless sea, For I want you to walk in reliance on Me. I will use all your trials, your heartaches, today, To guide you and keep you in my chosen way. There'll be wind, there'll be billows that foam and toss high, But the waves cannot touch you for I am still high. You will walk upon dry land in the midst of the sea, And the great walls of water will press you to Me."

Now a new song I sing to my glorious Lord! He has triumphed again by the power of His word. All the enemy riders in my Red Sea are thrown Once more I see God's hand deliver His own. He's the strength of my day; He's the joy of my song; He's become my salvation; to Him I belong. I will make Him a dwelling in a heart that can sing. And give thanks for my Red Sea—in it I found Him.

Safety First Advised When Buying Mower

Nancy was mowing long wet grass, and the grass began to back up at the discharge opening. She reached into the chute to brush away a clump of grass, but she reached to far; her fingers were struck by the blade and one had to be amputated.

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, this is a typical accident—one of over 50,000 injuries associated with power lawn mowers last year.

Reel lawn mowers are frequently considered safer than rotary mowers, basically because their blades move more slowly. However, most consumers choose the more efficient, if more dangerous, rotary mowers, with blades reaching speeds of 200 miles per hour, hurling objects 50 feet or more.

If you are in the market for a lawn mower, keep safety as well as cost in mind.

Safety instructions on use and maintenance should be provided with the mower and the machine itself should carry a warning label. The lawn mower handles should have "upstops," which prevent them from rising up when the machine hits an obstacle. The discharge opening should be aimed downwards. There should be a rear guard to prevent your hands or feet from coming in contact with the rotating blade. The engine exhaust should not be directed at the grasscatching bag; sparks from a backfiring engine could ignite the bag.

If you would like information on the safe use of power lawn mowers, write to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, D. C., 20207.

If you have a consumer complaint, contact the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection. Write to: Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, The Capitol, Room 34, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. Kentucky consumers may call toll-free on the consumer hotline by dialing 1-800-372-2960.

Cleary To Pay $8,000 Damages

4 Floyd Students Work with ALCOR

Four Floyd county students are working in Alice Lloyd College's ALCOR Program this summer. (ALCOR stands for Appalachian Leaders in Community Outreach.)

ALCOR workers are spending the summer living with area families and working in small ALCOR centers. The students serve as a bridge between area families and health-education agencies, in addition to providing recreational facilities.

The four workers from Floyd county are William Hook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Music, of David; Ruthie Bailey, daughter of Trilby Bailey, of Hueysville; Rita Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mullet, of Wheelwright, and Sheila Isaac, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Isaac, also of Wheelwright.

William Hook is working at an ALCOR center in Drift. Ruthie Bailey is spending the summer at the Salt Lick center, and Rita Hall and Sheila Isaac are both working at the center located in the Wheelwright Community Center.

ALCOR grew out of a Family Horizons Project begun at ALC in 1965. Because ALCOR was so successful, the College quickly extended it as a joint venture among six Appalachian colleges. Alice Lloyd College is operating 12 ALCOR centers in four Eastern Kentucky counties this summer.

Free Medical Care For Medicaid Children

Children up to age 21 who are eligible for Medicaid can get free-of-charge medical attention in every Kentucky county.

Approved agencies in Floyd county for the screening program are the Floyd County Health Department and Big Sandy Health Care, both of Prestonsburg, and the Regional Medical Clinic at McDowell.

Through the Early Periodic Screening, Diagnosis and Treatment Program (EPSDT), available at local health departments or clinics, these children receive a complete examination for physical and mental problems from qualified health personnel.

In the Eastern region of Kentucky, 70 agencies in 34 counties have contracts with the department for Human Resources (DHR) to conduct EPSDT clinics.

C. Leslie Dawson, secretary of DHR, explained how EPSDT works:

"While the department's Bureau for Social Insurance is responsible for the program's operation, the Bureau for Social Services workers, who are in close touch with all of our clients, refer individuals to the screening clinics, make appointments for them and make sure they have transportation to the clinic sites."

Children whose mothers receive Aid to Families with Dependent Children are automatically eligible for EPSDT services, Dawson said.

"The program makes health care available to people who cannot afford it. If the child needs follow-up care — such as a pair of glasses — he or she is referred to a practicing physician."

In 1974, more than half of the children screened needed follow-up attention.

Floyd County Jail Holds 'Good' Rating

The Floyd county jail has received a "good" rating in the latest survey conducted by the state Bureau of Corrections' office of jail consultants.

In 1974, the first year the survey was taken, the jail received the same rating.

The survey, which rated such factors as plumbing, lighting, ventilation and security conditions, indicates that 39 county jails are rated "good" or "very good" as compared with 30 a year ago.

Last year, 25 jails were ranked "fair" and that figure is now 24. Last year, 64 jails were rated "poor" or "very poor" as compared with 57 now rated that way.

Overall, 25 jails rated higher this year while 10 dropped in rating. Three county jails rose in ratings due to new construction; 10 rose due to correction of minor deficiencies. Six of the 10 that dropped are currently being renovated or being replaced by new facilities.

The study predicts that when current renovation and construction is completed within the next two years, the state will have at least 63 county jails rated in the upper two classifications.

Car Theft Arrest Made Easy Once

Frankfort, Ky.—Has the day come when police officers can just prop their feet up and wait for law-breakers to turn themselves in?

Not quite. But troopers at the Henderson state police post might think so after what happened there early yesterday morning.

At 2 a.m., on Monday (July 7), Tim Allen Neverman, 25, from Wisconsin, pulled into a parking area at the Henderson post looking for a place to sleep. This aroused the law enforcement curiosity of Trooper Bruce Keugal, who ran a check of the 1971 Vega in which Neverman was slumbering and found—alas—that it was not Neverman's automobile.

Keugal arrested Neverman, charging him with auto theft, and seized the car. Neverman has been extradicted back to Wisconsin.

Lt. Richard McQuown, commander of the State Police Auto Theft Section, said in an interview today that most auto theft-related arrests don't come that easy—but they are coming in record numbers, thanks to the "Screaming Eagle" incentive program launched at the beginning of the year to increase arrests of auto thieves and recovery of stolen vehicles.

A recent report covering the first five months of the year shows that, during January-May, 1975, state troopers recovered 594 stolen vehicles and made 350 arrests. For the same period in 1974, 343 vehicles were recovered and 209 arrests made.

The value of stolen vehicles recovered in the first five months of this year—$1,432,673—already exceeds the total for all of 1974, as well as handily beating last year's five month figure of $421,150.

Plan Open-House at Betsy Layne

MR. GELS

Removal of the Betsy Layne postoffice to its new quarters in the Betsy Layne Development Corporation building will be marked by open-house Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, it was announced last week by Mrs. Aileen Hall, postmaster.

The postoffice section of the building, embracing 1,000 square feet of floor space, was completed two months ago.

Special guests will include Regional Postmaster General Clarence B. Gels, Chicago, Ill., who will speak at the function; District Manager Charles Oxley, of Louisville, and Congressman Carl D. Perkins, who will present a flag which has flown over the Capitol in Washington. Emmett Conn, of Harold, will represent the development corporation.

Postmasters from various parts of the state have also indicated they will attend. The Stanville Boy Scout troop will participate in the celebration.

The public is invited to attend.

The only physical evidence of the Lewis and Clark expedition existing today is in Montana just off Interstate 94 near Billings. Captain Clark scratched his name on a giant rock, Pompey's Pillar, on July 25, 1806. It's still legible.

Immunization Check Recommended by Floyd Health Department

The Floyd County Health Department issues this reminder to parents whose children will be enrolling in the first grade this fall: It is extremely important that parents check with their doctors or the county health department now, to see if their children have had all their required immunizations.

Certain immunizations are required by state law before a child can be eligible to enroll in school. All children should be immunized against Diphtheria, Tetanus, Polio, Measles and Rubella. These immunizations are important because a serious illness from any of these diseases can cause death or severe complications.

Every youngster should have had all his shots by the time he is two years old — in which case only booster doses will be required before he enters school.

CITY UTILITIES COMMISSION
BILL H. HOWARD,
SUPERINTENDENT (Adv.)

Do people go fishing to catch fish? It would seem to be elementary, Dear Watson. It isn't. In fact, there's nothing elementary about it. Quite complex human motives are at work, at least among the 524 salmon anglers extensively interviewed recently in the Vancouver, B. C. area by Canadian Environmentalists. Almost ¼ (22 percent) of the anglers were fishing as an excuse "to be outdoors." Almost as many (18 percent) were there "to take it easy and get rid of tension." A mere 13 percent wanted to "eat fresh fish." Almost the same number (12 percent) fished as a "change from working pressure."

Wherefore, it being unlawful after July 1, 1975, to operate any collection system or disposal method within said district, or to dump any garbage or refuse at any site other than one so established by the fiscal court and approved by the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection pursuant to KRS 109.090.

THEREFORE BE IT ORDAINED by the Board of Trustees of the City of Wheelwright, Floyd County, Kentucky, that said City shall join in and become a part of the garbage and refuse disposal district established by the fiscal court of Floyd County, and shall contact the holder of said franchise (Floyd County Sanitation, Inc.) to have garbage pick up service to commence on a weekly basis no later than July 1, 1975.

Miss Damron, Mr. Looney Wed

Miss Judy Damron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clemit Damron, of McDowell, Ky., became the bride of Mr. Randy Looney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Junice Looney, of Pikeville, Ky., in a double-ring ceremony solemnized at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of June 14.

The wedding vows were exchanged at the Left Beaver Regular Baptist church at Hite, Ky., with the Rev. Ray Collins officiating. The ceremony was performed beneath a gold-colored arch which was decorated with pink roses, white satin bows and greenery.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor-length gown of white satin covered with white organza. The dress was accented with lace from the neckline to the empire waist. The sheer, billowy, long sleeves had lace at the wrists and a cap of lace at the shoulders. From the high waistline, the dress flowed into an A-line skirt which ended in a full-length chapel train at the back that was also trimmed with lace. The headpiece was made of lace, satin, and pearls with a soft, filmy veil that flowed to the waist. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations, pink roses, and baby's breath with pink and white satin streamers.

Miss Rita Howell, of McDowell, served as the maid of honor. The other bridesmaids were Miss Sherry Skeans, of McDowell, Miss Louise Foley, of New Jersey, and Miss Elaine Morgan, of Ohio. Each of the attendants wore full-length gowns which had pink organza over satin to the empire waist and floral pink organza over satin skirts. The dresses had V-necklines with a cape of ruffles. They wore white picture hats with pink ribbons flowing from the back and each girl carried a long-stemmed pink rose with white satin streamers.

The flower girl was Miss Patty Howell. Mr. Kenneth Damron, brother of the bride, was the ring-bearer.

Mr. Philip Bartley, of Pikeville, served as the groom's best man. The ushers were Mr. Larry Thompson, Mr. Roy Scott, Jr., and Mr. Rodney Maynard, all of Pikeville.

The mother of the bride wore a pink and tan ensemble with accessories to match, while the mother of the groom wore a pink and white ensemble with matching accessories. Each wore a corsage of pink and white carnations with pink and white satin streamers.

The music was supplied by Mrs. Libbie Hall, a former band instructor of the bride.

The table on which the guest book was placed was covered with a white lace tablecloth and had a pink and white flower arrangement. Mrs. Juanita Stephens registered the guests.

For the reception immediately following the ceremony at the church, the table was centered with a four tier white cake decorated in pink. There was a pink flower arrangement with candles on each side of the cake. Reception aides were Mrs. Alice Skeans and Miss Pamela Allen.

The new Mrs. Looney is a graduate of McDowell High School and is now a music major at Pikeville College. She is a senior and will graduate next May. Mr. Looney is a graduate of Pikeville College and is presently employed by United Parcel Service.

After a short wedding trip, the newlyweds are now residing at Rt. 2, Pikeville.

Bride of Mr. Tallent

Miss Eileen Teschner became the bride of Robert J. Tallent recently in a ceremony solemnized in Our Lady of Mercy Chapel, Whippany, New Jersey.

The bride, who entered the Chapel on the arm of her father, Albert Teschner, wore a long, white chiffon gown, with a train, long puffed sleeves and a bodice covered with lace inserts. Instead of the traditional veil, she wore a white picture hat banded with white satin ribbon and decorated at the back with flowers which matched her bridal bouquet. She wore a double string of pearls as her only jewelry.

The bride was preceded to the altar by her sister Joanne Teschner, who served as her maid of honor. Miss Teschner wore a flounced lime green frock with ecru lace, long puffed sleeves, and a laced bodice. In her hair, she wore a band of pink sweetheart roses, and carried a straw basket of the same roses. Mr. Tallent had as his best man his oldest brother, William A. Tallent, and the ushers were another brother, Michael Tallent, and a brother of the bride, William Teschner.

The mother of the bride was attired in a long, blue dotted swiss frock with matching jacket. Mrs. S. J. Tallent, mother of the groom, wore a pink flowered gown with a V-shaped neckline and a cover-up jacket. Both wore orchid corsages.

Following the wedding, the bridal party and guests were entertained at a dinner-dance reception at the Wedgewood Inn in Morristown, New Jersey.

The groom's relatives attending the wedding and reception were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Tallent, and his brother, Patrick, of Langley; his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Tallent, of Miami, Florida; his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Stewart and Tom Stewart, of Ohio; his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Dixon, Jr., of Miami, Florida, and his brother, Michael S. Tallent of Washington, D.C. Among the friends of both the bride and groom from Washington, D.C. were Mr. Tallent's coaching staff at George Washington University and their wives.

The young couple spent a two-week honeymoon in Maine before returning to Arlington, Va., where they will reside.

Chicago Gasification Plant Model for State Facility

By KEN W. SNYDER
FRANKFORT, Ky.—A pilot coal gasification plant in Chicago that could serve as a model for a similar facility in Western Kentucky was inspected recently by officials of the Kentucky Development Cabinet and Texas Gas and Transmission of Owensboro.

The inspection, part of the Development Cabinet's study and evaluation of gasification processes to select the most promising, is included in phase one of a two-part project for establishing a Western Kentucky plant to produce pipeline-quality gas from high-sulfur coal.

The gasification method, known as the Hygas process, is in operation at the Institute of Gas Technology—the first large-scale conversion facility to produce pipeline-quality gas from coal.

The plant presently is producing gas from lignite coal but has pretested Kentucky coal. It will request permission from the Federal Energy Research Development Administration to use Illinois bituminous coal, which is very similar to coal found in Western Kentucky.

Dr. Dee Ashley Akers, secretary of the cabinet, termed the Hygas process a "viable" conversion method.

"Once we have selected the best gasification method, we can begin preliminary engineering design on the Western Kentucky plant," he said.

The Hygas process, developed in the 1950s, incorporates two coal conversion methods within one reactor. Pre-treated coal is fed into the top of a reactor where it comes into contact with hydrogen. The coal is then maintained in a fluid-like condition and reacts with the hydrogen to produce methane.

Residual char from the process moves into a steam oxygen gasifier section in the bottom of the reactor to produce gases rich in hydrogen. These gases pass upward through the reactor to mix with the pre-treated coal to produce more methane.

The methane, or raw gas, moves to a purifier where sulfur is recovered in its elemental form as a by-product, thus reducing environmental impact.

The mixture is then cooled and steam condensate is removed to produce pipeline-quality gas.

IBM TESTS BUBBLE MEMORY
WASHINGTON—At its research center in Yorktown Heights, N. Y., the International Business Machines Corp. is experimenting with a new type of computer memory using special magnetic bubbles that were patented recently.

CHANGES TO BE MADE

Food stamp recipients are alerted of possible changes on July 1, 1975 in their food stamp eligibility and of the purchase prices in accordance with federal law. The amount of stamps a household may purchase is also being increased. Additional information may be obtained by calling Gail S. Huecker, commissioner of the Bureau for Social Insurance.

Employment of keypunch operators is expected to decline to 235,000 in 1980, from 300,000 in 1970, says the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Health Clinic Stops Scheduled for County

Clinics at Drift and Wheelwright are scheduled within the next two weeks by the East Kentucky Health Clinic's mobile unit.

Offering physical examinations, vision and hearing screening, dental exams, hematocrit and urinalysis testing, the mobile unit will be at the old Drift grade school on July 25 and at Wheelwright High School, July 31 and August 1. Services are free to people of all ages and economic levels and the clinics will begin each day at 10 a.m.

HEADS PUBLIC INFORMATION

James C. Vernon was sworn in Wednesday as the new commission of the Kentucky Department of Public Information. He replaces Bob C. Whitaker, who resigned in June to become executive director of Kentucky Historical Events Celebration (Bicentennial) Commission.

JULY FOURTH ACTIVITIES AT MOUNTAIN MANOR

Residents and staff of the Mountain Manor nursing home here celebrated the Fourth of July with a cookout. During "Old Fashion Days" in Prestonsburg, Mountain Manor's display in the window of the Stop and Shop store, a replica of Uncle Sam and Betsy Ross along with the American and Christian flags, won second place in the window display contest. Theme of the display was "200 years of pioneer courage, faith, and hope."

Antiques and crafts made by Mountain Manor residents were also displayed during the week-end. Activities Director Patsy Evans said that participation in such community affairs generates much enthusiasm and joy among the residents and staff of the home.

Fatalities Said Most Frequent On State's Secondary Roads

Frankfort, Ky. — Seventeen persons were killed in traffic accidents in Kentucky during the July 4th weekend. The long holiday weekend lasted from 6 p.m., Thursday, July 3, to midnight, Sunday, July 6.

Last year, 11 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents during the Independence Day holiday. The worst July 4th highway death toll on record was in 1966, when 22 died.

State police officials said traffic was much heavier this holiday period than the one last year, which was marked by a significantly reduced traffic flow brought on by concern over the energy crisis. The American Automobile Association at Louisville has reported that both long- and short-distance auto travel has increased by as much as 20 percent this summer over last year.

Traffic was reported heaviest on Kentucky interstates on Thursday and Sunday. The heaviest congestion was on Interstate 65 between Lebanon Junction and Shepherdsville and on the Kentucky Turnpike at Elizabethtown, where police said many motorists apparently were slowing down to pay the toll, which is no longer required.

All but two of the accident victims this year were killed on secondary roads, pointing up concern state police officials have expressed over mounting death tolls occurring on such roads.

State Police Commissioner Truett Ricks has ordered heavy patrols on the secondary roads during the holiday and also the formation of roadblocks and use of all available manpower, speed-clocking gear and air traffic patrols.

Ricks said these efforts won't stop with the end of the July 4th weekend, adding that they will continue to be applied to roads where death tolls are high. He said his office is developing a selective enforcement program which will focus on the state's least safe roads.

In addition to the fatalities, state police also reported at least 188 injuries resulting from 97 traffic accidents.

The 350 or more troopers on duty issued a total of 4,117 citations and 1,293 warnings — both figures are up over last year. Of the citations, 247 were for drinking-while-driving (DWI) violations. At least one of the persons arrested for DWI was the driver of a car in which one of the passengers was killed.

This year's July 4th weekend traffic victims were identified as:

— Bobby Eugene Polley, 44, and his son, Randall Eugene Polley, 15, both of Vanceburg, killed when the elder Polley's car ran off KY 8 near their hometown;

— Lydia Blankenship England, 44, of Feds Creek, killed when her car ran off US 460 near Mouthcard, also in Pike county;

— Thelmer Lee Whitaker, 43, of Somerset, killed when his car ran off a Rockcastle county road 13 miles from Mt. Vernon;

— Everett Banker, 89, of Madison, Ind., killed when a car driven by his son plunged over an embankment near Nicholasville;

Pike County Strip Mine Permit Debated at Hearing Last Week

By MARVAGAY Frankfort, Ky.—Revocation or continuation of a permit to strip mine 69 acres in Pike county seems to hang on technicalities. And, those technicalities were argued in detail by both sides at a hearing last week in Frankfort.

The permit was issued to Hurricane Elkhorn Coal Corp. for a mining site on Poor Bottom Fork of Marrowbone Creek, about 25 miles south of Pikeville, Jan. 3 by the Division of Reclamation, Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. That permit was modified May 23.

Residents of Poor Bottom Fork, who have continuously protested issuance of a permit to strip mine in that area, requested the recent hearing.

During the lengthy hearing, John M. Rosenberg, of Prestonsburg, attorney with the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund which represents the Poor Bottom Fork residents, attempted to show that the Division of Reclamation should not have issued the permit because too few technical aspects of the operation were examined.

The division and the coal corporation argued otherwise.

Both sides did agree, however, that the mine site probably was situated in the most populated area ever permitted for mining in Kentucky. They agreed that the closeness of the mine to a populated area did present a potential danger to persons and property. They disagreed on whether or not that danger could be and was being controlled.

The dispute over the Poor Bottom Fork began last November when Hurricane Elkhorn Coal Corp. first applied for a permit. Then, residents of the area were notified and several protested the impending issuance of a permit.

On Dec. 4, the reclamation division rejected the permit. According to John Roberts, division director, the permit was rejected primarily because the mine was so close to houses. Roberts said there also was no blasting plan, which is generally required when the mine is near buildings.

The map submitted with the original application not only was the wrong type; silt control measures also appeared to be inadequate.

The permit application was revised, resubmitted and approved Jan. 3. Roberts said the approval was based on technical changes and additions to the original application. According to Roberts, those changes—inclusion of a blasting plan, use of a back-haul mining method, enlarged silt control structures and deletion of part of the lower of two coal seams—should insure the safety of the Poor Bottom Fork residents.

Last February, about 95 persons from the Poor Bottom area signed a petition protesting the issuance of that permit. On May 23 the permit was modified to change the method of operation.

Renewed protests which resulted in the hearing followed the permit's modification. Those protests were stirred last month when a boulder about five feet in diameter came off the mine site and stopped about 100 feet from a trailer.

Fears were further heightened by division of reclamation inspection reports that document some problems on the site. Those problems included exceeding the fill bench width, improper blasting, failure to keep a dam in good repair and failure to keep grading and backfilling up to date.

Roberts said the problems were not serious and had not resulted in non-compliance citations. He added that some problems are common on most mining jobs and that an inspection report calling attention to them is generally considered a recommendation or warning and does not result in a non-compliance citation unless they are repeated or serious.

Roberts said the permit was evaluated in the usual manner and that the Hurricane Elkhorn mine was similar to several others in the state. At least one of those mines is closer to houses than is the one at Poor Bottom Fork.

Hearing officer Allen Prewitt will submit the finding of facts and recommendations to John S. Hoffman, secretary of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, who will decide if the permit will be revoked.

There was a quote in a paper the other day: "Trivial matters take up more time for discussion because some of us know more about them than we do about important matters."

When we read this, we started thinking. It's true that about 75 pct. of all conversations are about trivial and unimportant matters. Few people have the time to get into deep and important discussions any more. Is this good—or is it bad? What are important matters? Someone has said—"It's important if it helps you—your neighbor—your country or the world."

Think back over the matters you have discussed this week. Were there many that were important, or were the majority of your discussions trivial?

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: "IF IT IS HELPFUL—TAKE TIME TO DISCUSS IT."

The Treasure Hunter of Sinking Creek

By GEO. L. MOORE

It is doubtful if there is a county in Eastern Kentucky that has not had, in some period in its history, a rich mineral find reported within its borders. The approximate location of such finds of precious metal were usually attributed to information that had been leaked by some ancient Indian chief just before he departed this mortal life.

Many years ago there was a saying in the mountain counties that ran something like this: "If the people of this county just knew what the Indians knew, they would be shoeing their horses with gold and silver." Whatever the Indians knew, they seem to have kept the secret well. No deposit of precious metal has ever been discovered in appreciable amounts in any county in Eastern Kentucky.

It would probably be a tossup which has had more written about it, the Elliott County diamond mines, or the Swift Silver Mine. The main difference seems to be the location. The Elliott County Diamond Mine has remained in the same location; the Swift Silver Mine has migrated all the way from Paint Creek in Johnson county down through the Red River Gorge in Wolfe county. Whether or not anything of value has been taken from either place I do not know, but the many stories written about them have made interesting and entertaining reading.

Just after the Civil War period, there was a man in these parts who devoted his entire life in an apparently fruitless search for a silver mine. Although more than a century has passed, you can still see mounds of earth above the high cliffs on Arab Fork of Sinking Creek in Elliott county. This little stream is a tributary of Little Sandy River. Today these mounds remain as a silent reminder that one man spent his entire lifetime in a futile search for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

They called him Old Bob Tabor, not for any notoriety he had achieved, but perhaps on account of his particular mode of living. A noted writer has said that we all need the tonic of the wilderness. Admittedly, old Mr. Tabor had more than his share of this commodity. He literally lived in the woods. He had no known source of income except the herbs he sold in summer and the few skins he marketed in winter. The basic needs of man concerned him very little. He took his food where he found it; the overhanging cliff provided his only shelter; and little money was needed to provide such clothing as he wore.

At the break of day he began his arduous toil. He had what was called a churn drill. He lifted it up and let it fall with its own weight rather than striking it with a hammer. It was a very slow and laborious process. After a week's toil, he would sink a hole six feet in depth through the rock and earth. After he had set off a charge of blasting powder, he would pick through the upturned mound, selecting the stones with ore-bearing streaks.

In the summer he had no permanent place of abode. He would move from rockhouse to rockhouse, depending on where his diggings were located. At the first blast of winter, he retreated to a more protected shelter. For his winter quarters, he selected a place under the cliff near a good source of wood and water.

As a small boy I heard an old man tell about visiting him in his winter quarters. He said that his bed consisted of a deep mound of leaves covered with a few animal skins. He had one heavy castiron kettle in which he did all his cooking. He would kill a deer and, after removing the entrails, would hang it, head downward, under the cliff. He would cut chunks of meat from the carcass each day until the animal was consumed. Crowfoot grew in abundance under the cliff. This provided him with greens during the long winter months.

My informant said that the old man had a heavy castiron kettle which he used in the smelting process. He had a huge pile or rocks piled up to work on during the winter. He would crush each ore-bearing stone with a heavy hammer and, little by little, would fill the heavy kettle to the brim. After this process was completed he would start a huge fire under the kettle. After several hours of intense heat, the mass would begin to melt. He would keep skimming off the impurities as the mass boiled and finally all that was left would be a small, saucer-shaped disc in the bottom of the kettle. After he had collected a number of these, he would bury them in a secret hiding spot under the cliff on Arab Fork.

So many stories have been told about Old Bob Tabor that it is a very difficult matter to separate fact from fiction. Whether the stuff he made in the kettle had any value or not I do not know. However, old settlers were convinced that he did find a source of lead from which he manufactured bullets; that he did find a source of salt peter which he used in making blasting powder.

After many years of arduous toil, the silver hunter's strength began to wane. It is said that he used his last remaining strength to bury his tools and kettle in some secret spot. Although many people have searched for miles up and down Arab Fork to locate the place where he buried his treasures, the place has never been found. Finally, as it must to all men, death came to Old Bob Tabor. It was here on Arab Fork beneath the towering cliffs they laid him to rest.

Below his final resting place still flows the clear sparkling water of Arab Fork as it did in his day, a hundred years ago.

Clinics Bring Medical Aid to Isolated Area Children

By MARY GEHANT

MANCHESTER, Ky.—Regional, traveling clinics can help fill in gaps in the distribution of health services. In the past 12 months, over 700 children have received care they might not otherwise have had, because pediatric specialists from the University of Kentucky Medical Center came to them.

Under a contract with the Department for Human Resources (DHR), the UK team conducts alternate-month clinics in five Eastern Kentucky counties—Clay, Lee, Magoffin, McCreary and Wolfe. These counties are isolated from the state's two major medical centers. Except for the traveling clinics, families in Manchester would have to travel to Lexington, 100 miles away, or to Somerset, 55 miles west, in order to take a child to a pediatrician.

The traveling clinics are not "primary care" clinics; patients must be referred to the clinic by a local health professional who thinks they should be examined a second time, by someone with advanced training in child development and childhood diseases. Public health nurses can make direct referrals to the specialty clinics if they see some unusual condition in a child.

Dr. Priscilla Lynd, assistant professor or pediatrics at the University of Kentucky College of Medicine, directs the regional pediatric program conducted through the DHR contract. She takes direct charge of those held in Manchester, at the Clay County Health Center.

"I see our function as a direct service in areas where pediatricians are not available," she explains. "We're also a back-up for the local medical community—we get a lot of referrals from family physicians who want us to examine a child they've been following. Usually, they'd like to confer with us on one of the less-common pediatric problems."

Dr. Lynd also points out that under the DHR-UK contract, there is a "well-oiled mechanism" for getting a child into the Medical Center or to special clinics such as those conducted by DHR's Services for Physically Handicapped Children. "We can also provide follow-up services to youngsters who have been at the Medical Center. They don't have to make that 100-mile trip as often. For example, we'll see a diabetic child every three months—twice here and twice in Lexington."

During a recent clinic in Manchester, the UK team consisted of Dr. Lynd, a pediatric resident, Dr. Claudia McEwen, liaison nurse Grace Jones, R.N., two senior medical students and a medical records clerk. This team was augmented by staff from the Cumberland Valley District Health Department, which covers Clay and Jackson Counties. This local group included public health nurses, a nutritionist, a nurse's aide and clerks.

SHERIFF'S SALE

By virtue of Execution No. 9471, directed to me, which issued from the clerk's office of the Floyd Circuit Court, in favor of Jarvis Allen and against Hi Prater, deceased, for the sum of $8,191.94:

I, or one of my deputies, will, on Monday, the 28th day of July, 1975, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 11 a.m., at the courthouse door in the City of Prestonsburg, Floyd County, Kentucky, expose to public sale, to the highest bidder the undivided interest of Hi Prater, deceased, being a one-fourth (1/4) undivided interest in the following described property, subject to funeral expenses of $1,500.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy plaintiff's debt, interest and costs, to-wit: Being a tract of land located on Buckeye Fork of Middle Creek, and described as follows: BEGINNING at a white oak tree near the mouth of Ivy Fork; thence running up the point with Field Bolen's line to the drain; thence running down the drain to Johnny Bradford's line; thence to the bottom; thence running straight across the branch to a white oak tree; thence a straight line to the top of the hill; thence joining Jasper Slone's line joining Wiley Watkins line; thence running with Wiley Watkins' line to the mouth of the branch; thence up the branch to the beginning.

LESS that tract of land previously sold to Mari Fuel and Processing Company, a corporation, by Jarvis Allen and that Portion sold by Hi and Pearl Prater. But including all the rights and interests retained by Hi Prater in that deed to Mari Fuel and Processing Company, a corporation, recorded in Deed Book 220, page 40.

And being the same land described in Deed Book 216, page 600, Floyd County Clerk's office, less that land sold as stated above, and levied upon as the property of Hi Prater, deceased.

Terms: Sale will be made on a credit of 6 months; bond with approved security required, bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from the date of sale, and having the force and effect of a judgment.

This July 8, 1975.
JOE W. LEWIS
Sheriff of Floyd County

Before the morning was over, 42 children from Clay and several surrounding counties had arrived at the building. In many instances, the UK specialists called upon Clay County professionals for additional information on patients—the public health nurses carry the major portion of the follow-up care between clinic visits. At the end of each clinic day, the UK team briefs the county staff on the patients seen that day.

"We perform a definite educational role in this clinics," Dr. Lynd adds. "It's a good experience for our students, since they see patients away from a large medical center. They can learn something about how a community, the University and Human Resources work together."

The specialized clinics are a cooperative effort between the local health department, DHR and UK. Dr.

McEwen says that "We see youngsters we'd never see otherwise, because they'd never come to Lexington. They might not get the care they need."

DHR provides financial assistance, when it is needed, to insure that every child receives the services he requires. This can include hospitalization, medicine or other treatment.

Other special clinics conducted through similar contracts are:

—Neurological clinics staffed by another UK team in Eastern Kentucky and by private physicians in Western Kentucky.

—Traveling developmental disability clinics from the Child Evaluation Center, University of Louisville School of Medicine.

—Other regional pediatric clinics conducted by private physicians.

—Regional cardiac clinics conducted by UK and U. of L. teams.

Challenge Grants Available For Arts

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Non profit, community-supported organizations in Kentucky which present, study or support the arts are now eligible to receive challenge grants to stimulate fund-raising efforts in their areas.

These grants, recently announced by Gov. Julian Carroll, are available to groups which raised at least as much money this year as the previous year from private and local donations.

If the groups meet all qualifications, the Kentucky Arts Commission will award them up to 25 per cent of the base amount of funds they raised last year. The challenge grant funds must be used by the organization for an appropriate, high quality project. The commission is presently drawing up guidelines for administration of the grants.

For further information call or write the Kentucky Arts Commission, 100 West Main St., Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Sports Afield

By TED KESTING

"I've observed the hook-setting antics of a heap of fishermen, and I have reached the conclusion that there are more kinds of hookers than you can shake a rod at," says Angling Editor Homer Circle of Sports Afield.

Here are some of the most popular types he describes:

The Happy Hooker: This is the guy with a stringerful of fish. Didn't miss one all day. His earjoining grin and wordy manner reveal that he has hook-setting down to a science.

The Unhappy Hooker: This is the happy hooker the very next day when he couldn't hook a fish to save his face. His inverted grin and hunch-shouldered silence reveal a "something's rotten but I don't know where" mood.

The Brawny Hooker: This gorilla type believes in might makes right. He advises all his companions how to set the hook with such expressions as "cross his eyes . . . tear his head off . . . break his neck!" You don't need to see him to know he has set the hook. The rocking boats tell you.

The Gentle Hooker: This type either sets the hook with a twitch of his body and a stationary rod, or he just casually begins reeling in line when he feels a tug at the end. Some days, amazingly, he catches more than the brawny guy.

The Patient Hooker: He'll drive you wacky when he's fishing a plastic worm. He patiently lets a bass take line until you know that bass either has 50 yards in its stomach, or it has fled to the next county.

The Hair-Trigger Hooker: He sits there hour after hour, tense, leaning into his rod, his mind locked in, eyes glued to the line, waiting for a pickup. When it comes, he goes bananas, strikes too soon, misses everything including his lunch.

The Acrobatic Hooker: This type reacts instantly to a pickup by reeling all slack out of his line, reaching as far toward the fish as he can, and then setting the hook so violently he throws himself off the seat into his open tackle box.

"I have made some revealing tests with a Tensiometer," says Homer, "and I have been able to come up with a hook-setting method that tops everything else by a convincing margin. I call it the 'Reach-Draw-Strike' method.

"Reach out as far as you can, extending your rod toward the fish and reel slack out of line as you do so. Draw the rod butt toward you to put maximum tension in the line. Strike by placing your right hand ahead of the handle and using its power to give speed to the rod tip as both hands whip the rod overhead. The three-part maneuver is done quickly and in one fluid motion."

A recently completed Bureau of Labor Statistics study estimates that approximately 765,000 systems analysts, programmers, computer operating personnel, and data processing machine repairers were employed in 1970 — a growth of several hundred percent since 1960.

A/G Membership Increases

Springfield, Mo. — Bartlett Peterson, general secretary, will report to the General Council a gain in every area of the Assemblies of God during the past 2 years, including record-breaking gains in two areas.

While American church membership in general declined slightly last year (as reported in the 1975 Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches), Assemblies of God membership continued to grow and hit an all-time high in membership gain.

A gain of 75,277 members in the past 2 years has brought total membership in A-G churches in the U.S. to 785,348.

This 10.6 percent increase in membership is a record gain, Peterson will report to the General Council next month.

Another record was broken in the number of conversions reported during the biennium. For the 2-year period there were 344,642 people who accepted Christ as Saviour.

The Assemblies of God now has 19,478 ministers. The net gain for the biennium is 503 ordained and 448 licensed ministers.

The net gain of 148 new A-G churches in the past 2 years has raised the total number of churches in the U.S. to 9,019. Sunday school enrollment now is 1,239,197.

Assemblies of God membership growth outside the U.S. has continued and the total of members and adherents overseas now is over 4 million.

Worldwide Assemblies of God membership totals almost 6 million making the Assemblies of God the largest of the world's Pentecostal denominations. Its missionaries are active in 95 countries.

Betty Cox Receives Gold Quill Award

For the first time, a Kentucky editor has received the Golden Quill award — journalism's highest writing award from the International Society of Weekly Newspaper Editors.

Betty Cox, editor of the Madison County Newsweek in Richmond, topped a field of more than 300 entrants from the United States and Canada in the 15th annual competition for excellence in weekly press editorial writing.

The Richmond editor's winning editorial called for a special grand jury investigation of the death of a black man lodged in the Madison County jail for public drunkenness.

In judging the editorial, the society, in its June meeting in DeKalb, Ill., wrote, "The plight of Bill Harris was one that easily could have been ignored. Black, arrested on charges of drunkenness, and in ill health, he was nothing but trouble. But his lack of treatment by public officials drew the wrath of Mrs. Betty Cox, who weaves an editorial path through untruths and coverup to demand — in the name of the public — a grand jury investigation. A gutsy editorial and one which calls for justice in Madison County, Ky."

Although Betty Cox is the first Kentucky editor to receive the society's highest award, another Kentucky editor was honored by the society last year. Tom Gish, editor of the Mountain Eagle in Whitesburg, was last year's winner of the Elijah Lovejoy award for courage in journalism.

The Owls of Our Region

(PART 2)

The barn owl is noted for its wide distribution, being found in every continent and in such remote islands as Madagascar, off the east coast of Africa, also in Curacao of the West Indies. Its range in our region is given as "the mountains of West Virginia."

A few barn owls have been seen in the Tug Valley Region, but those who sighted them couldn't identify them. A barn owl can be readily identified; it is the only owl with a face shaped like the human heart; it is long-legged and slender, with a white breast and dark brown eyes; it is rusty-red on the back and head, and has a white face, with a look of perpetual dignity.

When seen in the dark about some old barn, this owl presents a ghostly appearance, with its white breast and the eyes glowing like live coals in the dark. If these is a nest of young nearby, they may be heard hissing like a nestful of snakes.

The barn owl holds the world's record as an eater of mice. As a test, it was fed nine mice in quick succession and quickly swallowed them all, hair and hide; it soon digested them, ejected the hair as pellets, then clamored for more. It was given five more mice, which it gulped down greedily. This owl can eat its own weight in mice every 12 hours. So it is a most useful owl to have about the farm.

A pair of barn owls once lived in one of the towers of the Smithsonian Institution. At the end of the season, a scientist examined the pellets he had collected—454 of them. A study of these showed the owls had consumed the following species of rodents: 224 field mice, 179 house mice, 2 pine mice, 20 rats, 6 jumping mice, 20 shrews and 2 moles. This establishes the barn owl as a champion eater of destructive rodents, and a bird of a great value to the farmer.

I hope my readers will be on the watch for barn owls and if any should be found in our region, give them the best of protection. They're worth their weight in gold to any farming community. They scour the fields, gardens and orchards, gulping up the rodents they find.

NO-FAULT ACCEPTABLE

Insurance officials in Frankfort indicate that no-fault insurance coverage is being welcomed by Kentuckians. The Department of Insurance had estimated at least 80 per cent of the state's inhabitants would have to accept no-fault insurance for the system to work well. As many as 90 to 93 per cent may opt for this coverage.

The total number of women in the civilian labor force grew from 10.4 million in 1930 to about 33 million in 1972.

Mine Deaths Puzzling

FRANKFORT, Ky.—News item: Homer Hugh Cartwright, 50, of Madisonville, was electrocuted shortly after starting work on the third shift at the Fies No. 9 mine in Hopkins County.

H. N. Kirkpatrick reads such reports as this and he is puzzled. As commissioner of the Department of Mines and Minerals, a report will soon be on his desk concerning the details of Cartwright's death.

Last year, only 20 persons were killed in mine related accidents through the entire 12 months. So far this year, Cartwright was the 25th Kentucky coal miner to die at a mine site.

"We've been pulling our hair out," said Kirkpatrick. "We just can't put our finger on why more people are being killed in mine accidents than last year."

The 20 deaths last year was the lowest ever in Kentucky. However, in 1973, only 28 men died in the coalfields which was the lowest up to that time.

"We could pin it down if the deaths were coming from roof falls or fires, but we've had three electrocutions," said the state official. "We are trying to do what we can but the number of deaths is mounting."

There is, of course, the one obvious reason for the mounting accident rate. "When you have a coal boom, you have more people working and more exposed," said Kirkpatrick.

Kirkpatrick said his office is stressing safety now more than ever before. "We have seven full-time instructors holding classes nightly in the field," he said.

However, he added that mine deaths such as that of Cartwright are hard to explain.

"The man went under the trolley wire. He's probably done it hundreds of times. Only this time was the wrong time, and he made the right ground and was electrocuted," said Kirkpatrick.

In another recent mine accident, Kirkpatrick said a man was electrocuted when he sliced through a cable. "He thought the power was off and it wasn't," he said.

In yet another incident, the owner of a mine went into an area without a hard hat on, he said. There was a rockfall and the man died three hours later.

"It isn't that the mines are not in safer conditions than in the past," said the state office. "The union has a safety committee at the mines and under the contract they can withdraw the men when they believe a mine is not safe."

"It's just that mining is a hazardous occupation," he added. "And these things seem to run in cycles. The curve is going back up and we are going to try to do what we can to stop it."

The Nifty Weather Machine. It's a total heating-air conditioning system.

There have been a lot of changes in comfort systems since Dave Lennox rolled out his first furnace in 1893. Now there are Lennox nifty weather machines that warm, cool, clean the air and even control the moisture in homes and buildings.

And there's a super-service organization to back them up. Just in case. Get out from under the weather with a Lennox nifty weather machine.
