

KY 80 Planning Costs $479,349

But State Has Trouble Finding Funds for Work

The state has spent, or has contracted to spend, almost half a million dollars for studies and planning of a route for a new, four-lane KY 80 from this county to Hazard but was said this week to be very uncertain about where it will get the estimated $75-$150 million needed for its construction.

If built, the road would supplant the present 57 miles of narrow, twisting KY 80 between Allen and Hazard and would link the new, four-lane US 23 at Water Gap in this county with the Daniel Boone Parkway at Hazard.

State Representative W. J. Reynolds, of Allen, who is no stranger to Frankfort thinking, predicted this week that the money will be found and the road built. "Even though ARC money may not be available, federal 50-50 help is," he pointed out.

It was recalled here, too, that Governor Carroll in a campaign speech here with Senator Wendel Ford pledged that he "will complete the work Governor Ford began."

One of Ford's firmest pledges while he was governor was that KY 80 would be rebuilt, and planning studies were initiated before he left the office to become U. S. Senator.

The Courier-Journal in its Monday edition quoted Transportation Secretary

This Town . . . That World

Labor Day has come and gone, the summer is ended, the thermometer and the calendar to the contrary. The younger set has gone back to school, and the older set sits. The days die to a requiem voiced by a zillion insects. There are more jays around the place than starlings. Change is in the air. And I can't warm to the thought of these hills soon in the glory-color of autumn for the chill that thoughts of leafless trees and dead grass and flowers and whistling winds bring in spite of myself. I expect no thanks for the information, but the great days of a long, hot summer will be only a bittersweet memory within another sixty days. Then we will have something else to gripe about.

PUTTING IT BLUNTLY

Perhaps lacking in the gentility department, an old woman once upon a time asked one of her brood who was complaining about the heat: "Which would you rather do—wipe the sweat off your face or an icicle off the end of your nose?"

Haven't seen Lenna Moore much, of late, but the last time he was in he was—I have his own word for it—a very happy man. His neighbors had finally decided to believe him.

Officers Probe Death of Crider, Gunshot Victim

State Police early this week were continuing their investigation of the shooting death in the Goble-Roberts Addition here early last Saturday morning of Harold Dean Crider, 27-year-old construction worker.

The blast of a 12-gauge shotgun in Crider's forehead caused instant death, it was held. His death was reported by his wife, Phyllis Foley Crider, shortly after 6 a.m.

The investigation seeks to determine if the wound was self-inflicted or if the shot was fired by another. State Detectives Fred Bailey and Dennie Williamson and Prestonsburg Policeman Darrel J. Conley were involved in the probe.

Coroner James J. Carter, who said he arrived at the Crider trailer-home around 6:45 a.m., said he found the victim dead, his body covered by a sheet from head to foot, with the exception of his left hand. The shotgun lay across a nightstand at the head of the bed in which the victim lay. The shot, Carter said, had been fired through the sheet covering Crider's head.

The coroner said Mrs. Crider told him she had touched nothing but her

Strike Spreads, Tho Union Fined; Floyd Mines Hit

For the first time since District 30 of the United Mine Workers of America founded its annual Labor Day observance with a giant rally 10 years ago, the 1975 event, scheduled at Archer Park here, was called off.

Instead of a Labor Day crowd of several thousand miners, members of their families, friends and union officials, only a drawing for prizes advertised by the district was held.

No official reason for the cancellation was given, and an attempt to contact Squire Feltner, District 30 president, was unsuccessful. "Turmoil and stress in the coalfields" as a consequence of a strike which began in West Virginia was one reason heard.

Another, which is unconfirmed, ran to the effect that word had come from District 17, in West Virginia, that the rally here would be picketed.

During last week hints to the effect that "there'll be trouble" were heard.

Whatever the real reason for the cancellation, UMW leaders left, after announcing there would be no rally, for Washington where they reportedly were attempting to iron out strike issues.

The strike, which began in West Virginia, has spread to half a dozen states, including Kentucky, and some

Criteria Changes To Provide More Acute Care Beds

Programs for the treatment of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease which have been set up at the Highlands Medical Center her, the McDowell Regional Hospital and at the Mud Creek Health Project won approval of the State Comprehensive Health Planning Council last Wednesday.

Funded by grants from the Appalachian Regional Commission, the programs are primarily for coal miners but are not restricted to them. A similar respiratory clinic was approved for Muhlenberg Community Hospital, Greenville, Ky., and a fifth to be located at Harlan is expected to be approved later.

New criteria adopted by the Health Planning Council for allocating hospital beds for acute care could later solve a problem at Highlands Medical Center which, under Hill-Burton criteria, cannot use unneeded beds marked for extended care to meet the urgent need of more acute care beds.

Under the new criteria this area, which is Region 11, will get an increase of 18 acute care beds. How many of these, if any, will be given to Highlands Medical Center may not be determined before October, however.

Under the new system each of the 15 regions within the state will have responsibility for planning its own acute care.

Acute care patients are those who

Damage Actions Asking $126,400

Two damage suits filed in circuit court last Wednesday seek to recover a total of $126,400.

In one of the actions Karen Risner, 15, suing by and in the name of her father, James Risner, names as defendant Ollie Watts, doing business as Watts Mobile Homes, and asks $100,000 damages for injuries received in a collision of a mobile home owned by the defendant and a car driven by her brother, Gary, and in which she was a passenger.

She claims that the November, 1974 wreck, near the forks of Middle Creek, resulted from the neglect and carelessness of the defendant. Involved in damages claimed are loss of earning power and permanent disfigurement.

In the second suit, Dave Bailey seeks to recover from the Highlands Hospital Corporation $26,400, claiming he failed to receive proper treatment when taken to the hospital emergency room after having been injured in a Magoffin traffic accident. Dr. Rosalie Gaurano is named as co-defendant.

(Reports of damage suits reflect only the claims of plaintiffs.)

Strip-Mined Wastelands May Be New Industry Base

Top—A former spoilbank, now filled and ready for planting. Lower left—Mr. Wright and some of his hilltop "stands" of bees.

Lee Wright is extremely convincing when he talks of his ideas concerning a venture which he is certain could prove a significant economic boon to the area, provide jobs for the handicapped as well as the able-bodied, and utilize land rendered virtually useless by strip-mining. And it all revolves around bees!

About the time Wright retired from a long career with the Air Force and moved back with his wife, Jean, to this area and a home on the Auxier road, he bought six bee hives from a Maytown resident and decided to try his hand at apiculture, or bee raising.

"I more or less staggered into this," he said. "I learned almost entirely by trial and error, which is a really effective learning method when it comes to beekeeping, because when you do something wrong, the bees have a very definite and painful way of letting you know about it."

Wright soon acquired the knack involved in his new-found pursuit and was

Missing Man's Body Is Found Beneath Truck

A two-day search for Hansford "Hammie" Burchett, 42, Ivel trucking company owner, who had been missing since the preceding Saturday, ended shortly after 10 a.m. last Wednesday when his body was found pinned beneath his truck on Cow mountain.

Burchett apparently had been dead since the time of the wreck, sometime Saturday afternoon. He and his family had regularly enjoyed week-end camping at Dewey Lake, and he had reportedly left home alone to prepare the campsite for the later arrival of Mrs. Burchett and others of the family. When they arrived that afternoon they found no trace of him, and inquiry revealed that he had perhaps been last seen when his red truck was sighted ascending the mountain.

The Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad dragged Dewey Lake in the German area last Tuesday. Next morning, the search was shifted to the mountain which must be crossed from Cow Creek to reach the lake area. At 10:10 a.m., about 20 minutes after the second day's search began, the body was found.

The truck had left the highway and plunged more than 300 feet down the mountainside. Cause of the wreck is not known. There were no visible skid marks at the spot where the truck left the highway, approximately 100 yards from where the road crests the mountain.

A native of Wonder on Buffalo Creek, the victim was a son of John and Myrtle Cecil Burchett and was the owner of the H & B Trucking Company. Survivors include his parents; his widow, Mrs.

Three Murder Trials Of Five Are Doubtful

The Floyd circuit court's September term opened Tuesday morning with five murder cases on the docket, but no more than two of the cases may be heard this month.

Trial of these cases during the term remained in doubt this week:

1. Eddie Jones, charged with the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley at Garrett. Continuance of the trial has been asked beyond the Sept. 8 trial date by his attorney, John Y. Brown, of Lexington, on the ground that Brown must be in U. S. district court for a trial beginning this week.

2. Bobby Workman, whose trial was set for Sept. 11 in the slaying of James Chaffin. Extradition of the defendant from Michigan has not yet been made.

3. Robert Sykes, slated for trial Sept. 19 on charge of venue from Pike county, where he was indicted with others in the shotgun death of Mrs. Boone Deskins. The trial may not be held as scheduled unless witnesses in widely scattered federal prisons can be brought here, as requested by Sykes, to testify in his behalf.

More certain of trial are those of Tom Puckett for the slaying of Vernon Hopkins, set Sept. 11, and of Herbert Gene Salisbury, whose case is docketed for Sept. 15. He is charged with the slaying of Crit Butler.

Fifty-eight cases in all were on the court docket when court opened, but others may be added through grand jury action this week.

A modern record was set by the court when only two child desertion cases appeared on the trial docket. For years this has been the most frequent offense appearing on circuit court dockets here.

The docket includes the cases of 12 defendants charged with liquor law violations, four for narcotics, eight for grand larceny and one as an accessory after the fact.

After a grand jury of 10 men and two women had been empanelled Tuesday, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley reminded the jurors that they will have one murder case to investigate. Judge Conley especially emphasized the illegal dumping of refuse and the littering of roadsides, strongly urging indictments if evidence of violations could be procured.

"It's amazing to go to other places . . . you don't see highways littered," he remarked.

Instructing the grandjury to investigate violations of all types, he added that the court "will not stand for any harassment of any juror" and that what the jury does is its own business.

Thomas Flanery, of Langley, was named foreman of the grand jury.

Where Help Is Needed

Red, White and Blue Day, now an annual event which at first seemed no more than another dream, has surprised all the skeptics with its success. Its return to the old ways and its unashamed tribute to God, home, country, freedom, and the like has piqued the interest and enthusiasm of a public grown tired of the drift away from first principles.

But, now that the day has established itself and attracted many outside Floyd county, there again is the temptation to take a rest at the oars, to let others do the work which is necessary to keep alive the patriotic observance.

From outside Floyd county comes encouragement from various sources. Others are interested in having a part, some write to inquire the 1975 date of the observance (it will be on Saturday, Oct. 25), units of the Armed Forces have to a surprising extent indicated a willingness to do their part.

But help must come, too, from the people here at home. This could be a major part of Floyd county's contribution next year to the nation's Bi-Centennial observance. But if it is permitted to die this year, it will not be here in '76.

was found dead. In the meantime, I was informed that the "striped kittens" we have in this country are not polecats; that the polecat, a more vicious critter than his American cousin, belongs to Europe.

Then, too, I received a clipping of a Mr. Frank X. Tolbert's excellent column in a Texas newspaper which tells of a place called New Harp whose most prominent citizen is a Mr. John Anderson, owner of the local skunk works. This Mr. Anderson raises skunks, catches them in the wild on occasion, de-scents 'em, and sells them for pets at around $18 a head.

Mr. Tolbert recalls that he once got this fellow Anderson on one of these television shows which features a panel engaged in trying to guess the occupation of the guest. The reply Mr. Anderson, keeper of the skunk works, made to Tolbert's suggestion that he might get him a spot on another game show in New York is worth reprinting. Said the skunk man:

"I don't want to go back to New York. That town stinks."

ON THE USE OF MONEY

An anonymous friend sends in the following compilation on the proper use of money and charitably refrains from mentioning the stuff as a means of settling such mundane matters as taxes. It reads:

He who works only for money seldom gets far. Hard work is the yeast that raises the dough. One reason why it's hard to save money is that our neighbors are always buying something we can't afford.

People are funny; they spend money they don't have, to buy things they don't need, to impress folks they don't like. A banker is a man who will loan you money if you prove to him you don't need it.

Henry Ford once said, "If money is your only hope for independence, you will never have it. The only real security that a man can have in this world is a reserve of knowledge, experience and ability."

Budget: a system of reminding yourself that you can't afford the kind of living you've grown accustomed to.

Some people are in debt because they spend all their neighbors think they make. In the old days a man who saved money was a miser; nowadays, he's a wonder.

Money is an instrument that can buy everything but happiness and pay your fare to every place but heaven.

Happiness is the proper use of money.

husband's hand. He said she told him that she and her husband talked till around 2:30 a.m. when he went to bed in their room and she slept on the couch. She was quoted as saying she was awakened around 6 a.m. by a train and that she heard a noise which she thought could have been the backfire of a motor. Later, she went to the bedroom, saw the bloodied sheet and called an ambulance, according to this report.

Mrs. Crider was later taken to Highlands Medical Center and was described as near collapse.

Two sisters of Mrs. Crider who spent the night at the trailer, said they heard no shot.

The victim was a son of Mrs. Avanelle Prater Crider, of Prestonsburg, and the late Ottway Crider. He was employed by the Pike Construction Company, of Ashland.

Surviving, besides his widow and mother, are two daughters, Robin Lynn and Eugenia, both at home, and one brother, Ottway Crider, Jr., of Auxier.

The funeral was held at 1 p.m. Monday from the chapel of the Floyd Funeral Home by the Revs. W. D. Jagers and John H. Woods, and burial was made in the family cemetery on Stratton Branch.

Roberts as saying: "That road is being handled no differently than any other road." "You just hope that when you get to the time to build it, you're not short of money.

"Before, we proceed any further to final design, it would behoove us to have the financing worked out." "And I wouldn't speculate on how that would be worked out."

One possible source is $65.7 million in surplus construction funds from the last two toll-road bond issues.

Roberts, however, said he "could never recommend spending all that" on the Hazard-Water Gap project, although "some portion . . . would be of some help if we had other funds."

One of four firms selected to do location study in Brighton Engineering Co., Frankfort, which was overall consultant for the Daniel Boone Parkway and several other state toll roads.

In a contract amendment signed by Roberts on Aug. 11, Brighton assumed supervision of the other three firms' work and agreed to prepare an "overall report" on location studies and cost estimates.

Despite similarities to past toll road projects, the new road is not being planned as a toll facility, Roberts indicated.

"I don't see how we could afford another toll road," Roberts said.

There has been mounting concern over the size of the state's toll-road debt. Last year, debt payments were $54.5 million while only $14.6 million was collected in parkway tolls, the difference coming from road-fund tax revenue.

(An interim legislative committee recently recommended that the 1976 session require legislative approval of new toll-road bonds. Under present law the governor has effective control over issuance of bonds.)

Highway Design Director E. B. Gaither said present design criteria for the Hazard-Water Gap road call for partial access control, rather than the complete control needed for a toll road. It would be "difficult" to switch a toll-road design, Gaither said.

Negotiations on all four engineering-consultant contracts began last year during former Gov. Wendell Ford's administration, Gaither said.

Contracts with Bluegrass Engineering Co., Louisville, and Adam K. Grafe & Associates, Lexington, for location studies of two Floyd county segments were awarded before Ford left office.

Contracts with Brighton and with Hazelt & Erdal, Louisville, were not approved until after Carroll succeeded Ford. Brighton's original contract was signed by Roberts on Feb. 4.

Brighton's original fee was to be "cost plus $20,000," with a "total estimated fee" of $194,471. In the Aug. 11 amendment, the fee was made a "lump sum payment" of $194,471.

For studying shorter segments in Floyd county, the other firms are to receive: Bluegrass, $89,069; Grafe, $116,809, and Hazelt & Erdal, $79,000.

The contract change by which Brighton assumed overall supervision was due to the Bureau of Highways' heavy workload, Gaither said.

union mines in Floyd county have been closed.

U. S. District Judge K. K. Hall last week handed the UMW a $500,000 fine for civil contempt and announced that the fine would increase by $100,000 a day for each day the strike continues after Tuesday of this week. Hal added that the fine would be reduced by $100,000 a day for each day the miners are on the job for the next 10 working days. Hall ruled District 17 and 34 locals in contempt.

District 30 President Squire Feltner estimated that 5,000 of the 8,500 miners were idle a week ago. "The majority of our people want to work but they feel they have to honor picket lines," he said. Judge Hall commented, in handing down the $500,000 fine:

"This court is of the opinion that the UMW has a duty to discipline its members in such a manner as to compel compliance with its contract."

On an earlier occasion Judge Hall held that miners cannot be forced to cross picket lines but was reversed by the U. S. circuit court of appeals. Last week, however, he termed the traditional refusal of miners to cross a picket line as "fraught with danger . . . Any group could shut down the entire coal-producing section of the United States."

The mushrooming strike began in Logan county, W. Va., Aug. 11, reportedly over the firing of a miner, and this was followed by such issues as the slowness of new grievance procedures under the 1974 contract, the lack of right to strike over local issues and monthly shift rotation.

Mounting opposition to Arnold Miller as president of the UMW has also been cited as a factor in the unrest.

require 24-hour medical attention on a short term basis for an illness, injury or other disability.

The council's action came as a result of a study by a committee named last year to research the most effective way of determining the need for beds for acute care patients.

The basis for need determination has been the Hill-Burton formula, by which the federal government allocates funds for expansion and renovation. Under the new criteria, district health planning councils within the state will be able to vary the Hill-Burton formula to figure their need. It changes the mechanism by which the planning council makes recommendations to the Certificate of Need and Licensure Board for licensing of acute care facilities.

"You'll see a better distribution of beds," said Jack McVey of the Center for Comprehensive Health Systems Development in the State Bureau for Health Services.

Since the Hill-Burton formula is based partly on the square footage of a facility, it may not accurately reflect the number of beds devoted to acute care at a given facility.

Wade Mounz, who chaired Wednesday's meeting of the Health Planning Council, said the formula has meant that "we have paper beds—they don't exist."

In other words, the hospitals are listed as having beds to which they have never committed space.

soon keeping hives that produced 200 pounds of honey per hive. "I was a real novice at that time but I was producing much more honey than the state average of about 26 pounds per hive, so I was greatly impressed. I soon realized what a money-making proposition this could become," Wright related.

When two Johnson county miners, Homer Short and James Witten, reopened a large tract that had already been strip-mined below Dewey Dam, Wright, owner of part of the land, moved his growing collection of hives to the flat, high benches formed by the strip-mine operation. While the miners worked to recover coal left from the former mining operation, Wright tended his hives nearby. The land was ravaged by the older stripping scars which were made before much in the way of reclamation laws or environmental awareness even existed," Wright pointed out, "and the miners and I all agreed that all possible efforts should be made to make the acreage and soil worth something."

According to Wright, bees kept on mountain tops will produce 20 per cent more honey than those on a hillside or in the valleys. "It is thought that the longer period of daylight on the hilltops is the answer to the increased production," Wright said. "At any rate," he emphasized, "all these abandoned strip mines are the perfect location for bee hives."

Wright and his miner-friends agreed that plants more valuable than locust trees should be tried on the land, and immediately he began researching and consulting various agencies in an effort to identify adaptable plants—more specifically, nectar-bearing plants which would be advantageous to honey production. Having achieved success with such plants as fescue, lespedeza, sweet clover, white clover, hubam and nectariferous trees such as autumn olive and the Siberian pea tree, Wright has proved that strip-mined land can be reclaimed by plants which, in turn, enhance the hilltop bee operation.

Wright pointed out that the larger, flatter acreages will be sown for hay production, while the slopes and "spoil" banks will be planted in nectar producing plants. "The bees don't care how steep the grade is," he quipped. Witten and Short are working on head-of-hollow fills where steep slopes with overburden (trees, boulders and dirt pushed over the slope) are being filled with earth and smoothed and contoured. Pointing to one such area, Wright said, "All of this will be planted in fescue, clover and autumn olives—the bees will have a field day here."

"I think we're into a real good thing for the community," Wright suggested. "It can help the economy, utilize strip-mine spoil banks, and, it's a heck of a good product." Wright pointed out that one hive of bees will earn the bee man as much or more money than one head of cattle. "And they're a lot less work and trouble," he emphasized. He said that currently honey sells for a dollar a pound, "and when you figure as much as 200 pounds of honey per hive, that adds up," Wright currently keeps about 150 hives.

Wright thinks another "plus" to the whole concept is that many handicapped persons could handle the work. "One bee man I know has one leg and walks with crutches, yet he raises a bunch of bees. I think the work is also tailor-made for the many fellows with lung diseases in this area. The exertion is not that great and it keeps you out in the clean air on those hilltops."

The ultimate development of Wright's idea would be the formation of a local cooperative with all the honey marketed under the same label and processed at an area facility. "Why, we couldn't supply enough honey to meet the demand," he said.

There are those who are impressed by Wright's "experiment" and sound logic. Joseph S. McCauley, executive director of the Big Sandy Area Development District, has requested that Wright compile his ideas into the form of a proposal to be submitted to the Appalachian Regional Commission for possible future implementation of such a program.

For a man who "more or less staggered into" the bee business, Lee Wright's work may be setting an important precedent to the possible development of a thriving area industry.

"I'm convinced it would work on a large scale. It just makes good sense," he maintains.

Ruth, Four Firms Face U.S. Count

The United States is seeking $1,231,434.08 from four construction companies and an individual allegedly involved in a bid-rigging scheme on segments of Interstate 64 through Carter and Rowan counties and U. S. 60 in Boyd county.

The amount sought in a suit filed in U. S. District Court at Catlettsburg is double the amount actually involved. The suit, filed by Assistant U. S. Attorney James F. Cook, says $615,717.04 was paid to the defendants under fraudulent circumstances.

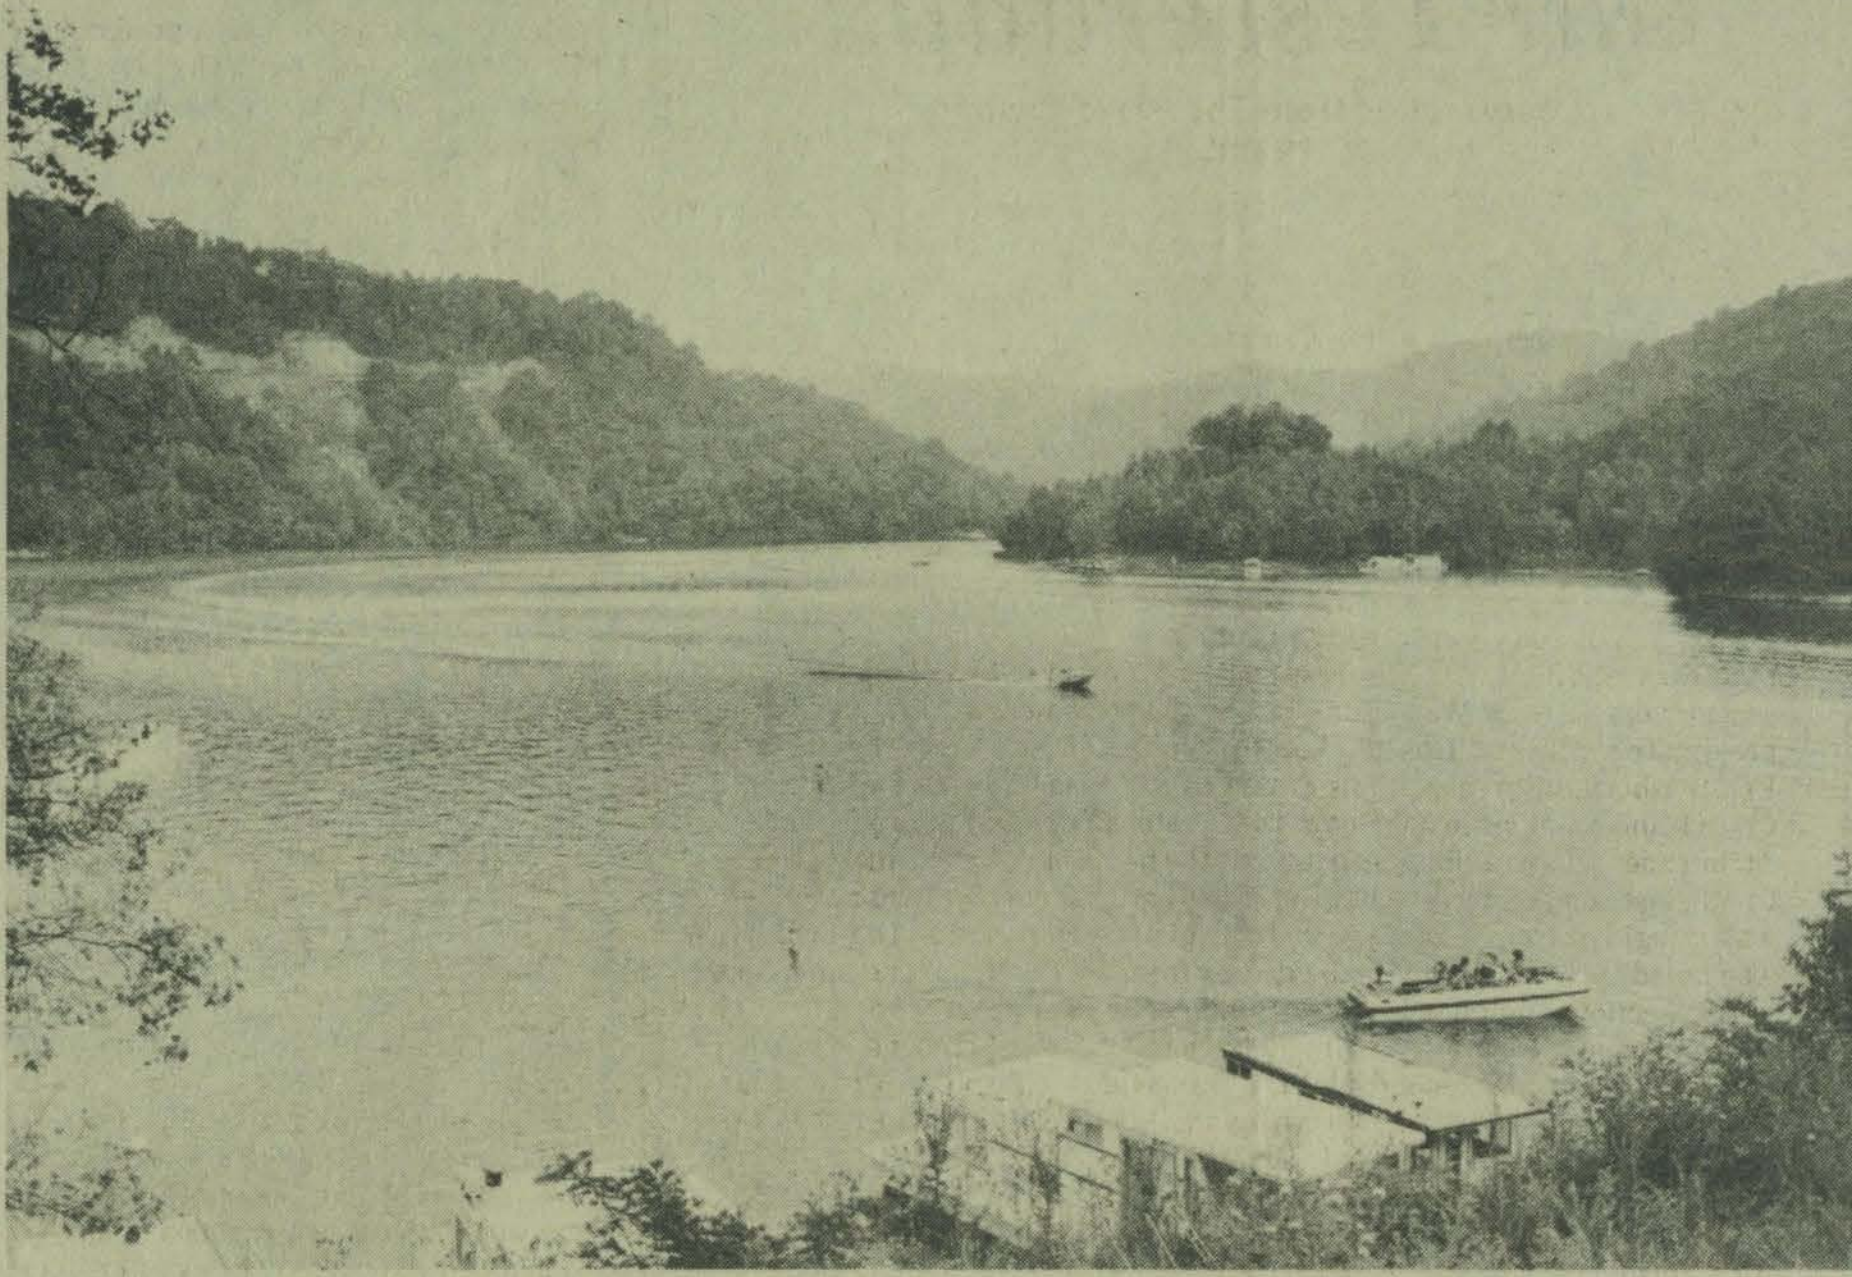

Named defendants were Jack E. Ruth, president of East Kentucky Paving Corp., Hot-Mix Inc. of Nashville, Tenn., Hoover, Inc. of Nashville, East Kentucky Paving Corp. of Grayson and Standard Slag Co. of Youngstown, Ohio.

The suit alleges the defendants, along with other co-conspirators not named as defendants, conspired beginning in January, 1969, to inflate bids on the two federally-funded highway construction projects for personal gain.

The civil suit is a follow-up to criminal charges now pending against the four companies and four of their top officers: Ruth, Eph Hoover, Jr., president of Hoover Inc., John Jenkins, vice president of Hoover Inc., and Robert S. Jones, sales manager for Standard Slag.

The criminal charges allege the companies and the men conspired to defraud the government.

The criminal case is scheduled to go to trial before District Judge H. David Hermansdorfer today (Wednesday.)

The accused woman, Mrs. Fern Preston, has been quoted by Sheriff Melvin as saying her husband, Johnny, killed Deputy Sheriff Robin Fairchild. The only known eyewitness to the shooting says Mrs. Preston fired the shot.

Fleming-Neon Pass Costs Wheelwright In Closing Minutes

Wheelwright High School had another football game won, last week-end—if the last 4½ minutes could have been lost.

The Trojans were leading Fleming-Neon at that point, 24-21, but the Letcher countians then connected on a 33-yard scoring play to take the lead and win, 29-24.

Two long runs featured the Wheelwright attack. Dewey Jamerson scored the first touchdown of the game with an 88-yard dash, and Darrin Little added another marker on a run of 70 yards.

Letters to the Editor

ERA—a Pandora's Box?

My apprehension grows as I observe that the Equal Rights Amendment is now only four states short of being ratified.

I read an analysis of ERA from the Yale Law Journal, Volume 80, No. 5, April, 1971, and this amendment does not speak for me.

Under the guise of "equal pay for equal work," ERA will open the following Pandora's box upon us and our children:

1. Registration for the draft of women at age 18, subject to all military duties, including combat and the sharing of barracks and all military facilities by both sexes.

2. Complete integration of the sexes in prisons, school and public restrooms, college dormitories and hospital rooms.

3. Revolutionizing of existing divorce laws, exempting husbands from paying alimony and making him eligible for child support if he gets the children.

4. Homosexuals will be allowed to marry and adopt children.

5. All protective labor laws for women in industry will be abolished.

Naturally, proponents of ERA do not inform others that equal pay is guaranteed already by the Equal Opportunities Act of 1972.

If you do not want this in the future of your children, write to your state legislators and ask them to vote to rescind ERA in 1976.

Reo Johns, executive director of KEDR XI (formerly ROPES Region 11) announced that he has been notified that his agency's Project Lead has been refunded for fiscal year 1976 by Title VI-B, in the amount of $25,800.

Project Lead provides for a teacher-consultant and other services for exceptional children's units in Region 11. During the preceding two years of operation, the project has provided funds and leadership for the following services: regional inservice for teachers and aides of exceptional children, dissemination of instructional materials from the University of Kentucky, purchase of supplemental instructional materials for Region 11 units, consultant services, workshops for the construction of teacher-made teaching aids, out-of-state visitations to exemplary programs, curriculum planning assistance, assistance with long-range planning for education of exceptional children, and publication of a regional brochure on exceptional children's programs.

Johns said that services provided under earlier grants to Project Lead will continue, but the primary thrust of the project for the fiscal year will be the attempt to develop a system of identification-location-evaluation of exceptional children who are not now receiving educational services. Efforts will be made to involve school personnel, parents and the general public in an attempt to develop a system to find children and provide services to them. Johns said that the main drawback to the placement of exceptional children is the lack of funds to screen children adequately. Effective testing is expensive and school districts have neither the funds nor the personnel to carry on elaborate testing programs. The price of testing purchased from private agencies is too expensive to use in any but the most obvious cases.

"Hopefully, Project Lead will help to define a system that will be helpful to local school district," Johns cautioned, "but the only real answer to the problem is to provide more funds to local school districts for testing purposes."

Mrs. Audrey Pratt, of Paintsville, will continue as Teacher-Consultant for the project. She has served in this capacity since the beginning of the project in 1973.

Says No Garbage Pickup

I wish to register a complaint about the newly-formed Floyd County Sanitation Service. I have tried, by phone and by mail, to have garbage pick-up at my home for three months without result. We had service when private haulers existed, but by county ordinance they have been eliminated. Every request I make for service is ignored, and the result is excessive garbage, drawing rats.

Appalred Serves 2,000 Yearly

LEXINGTON, Ky.—"There's an abundance of lawyers in this state—for people of the right class," says a young Lexington attorney.

For those others—who can't afford an attorney's services—there's the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund of Kentucky Inc.

Born in the last years of the War on Poverty and funded by the now-defunct Office of Economic Opportunity, the organization known as "Appalred" has survived where many other poverty programs have died.

It has survived and grown because, according to director John Rosenberg, of Prestonsburg, "people in all areas felt that legal services for poor people are a necessity" as much as education or medical care are.

The corporation was founded in Charleston, W. Va., in 1970. The Kentucky office incorporated separately two years ago for funding purposes, Rosenberg said, and is now financed mainly by a grant of about $330,000 per year from the Community Services Administration.

Ten attorneys staff three offices in Prestonsburg, Barbourville and Lexington, serving about 2,000 clients a year.

Appalred tackles issues ranging from strip mining to water pollution to black lung disease, and handles individual civil cases involving pensions, disability benefits, welfare appeals and divorces.

Although its mandate is to serve the 49 Appalachian counties east of Lexington, Appalred focuses on about 22 coal producing counties in the far eastern part of the state, Rosenberg said.

Most of the cases relate in some way to the coal economy of the region, he said.

Legal services are provided free to those who qualify under federal poverty guidelines. An individual in the non-farm category (which most of Appalred's clients are in) must earn no more than $2,590 a year. A family of six is allowed to earn $6,690, with an $820 increase for each additional family member.

The attorneys are "mostly young, mostly unmarried," according to J. T. Begley, who has been with the Lexington office for several years. Their work requires a great deal of travel, and the Lexington staff of two attorneys puts as many as 9,000 miles on the corporation's car in a ten-month period.

When Appalred began operations five years ago, it was met with suspicion by the mountain people and skepticism by others that it would last, Begley said.

"Now it's established that we've done good things, that people can obtain high quality legal service," Begley said.

"People don't always agree with our lawsuits," Rosenberg said, "but if you handle it responsibly and win the case, then they know you were right to bring it."

"That has brought us credibility," he said.

Perkins To Address Mental Health Board

Willis Haws, president of the District Eleven Mental Health-Mental Retardation Board, Inc., announced this week that Congressman Carl D. Perkins will be guest speaker at the Board's annual meeting Friday, October 24, at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park near Prestonsburg.

The Board is a private, non-profit organization composed of 25 local representatives, five from each of the five counties served by the Board (Pike, Johnson, Floyd, Magoffin and Martin). Its task is to monitor the mental health, mental retardation, and drug and alcohol abuse services delivered by Mountain Comprehensive Care Center. Acting in a policy making capacity, the Board also sets direction for the program's development, and it serves as the primary link between the program and the community, seeking to coordinate program and service development with community need.

In announcing Perkins' acceptance of the invitation, Mr. Haws remarked that the Congressman's presence at this year's meeting will be of particular significance in the light of the recent passage of the Community Mental Health Services Amendments of 1975 which were a part of the Health Services Act that was passed in a veto override during the July session of Congress.

"The future of our community mental health program as well as numerous others around the nation depended upon the passage of that Bill," Mr. Haws said, "... and it is fitting that we here in our district who are concerned with the cause of mental health have the opportunity to be addressed at our annual meeting by one who played a direct and active part in bringing us that victory."

Planning Meeting For Oct. 25 Event Slated at Lodge

A meeting of all persons interested in planning and preparing for the annual Red, White and Blue Day here Saturday, Oct. 25, will be held at 7 p.m. Monday at May Lodge, it was announced this week.

Red, White and Blue Day will be the last major event of the season, and its success this year is necessary if it is to be a major factor in the county's observance next year of the nation's Bicentennial, it was pointed out.

Mrs. Marcella Bailey, of Langley, who initiated the patriotic observance, said help is needed particularly from Floyd county residents. Several units of the Armed Forces have indicated they will participate in this year's Red, White and Blue Day, and interest has been expressed by many from outside the county.

"But what we need so badly is help in making plans and preparing for the day by the people of this county where the celebration will be held," she added.

Idle Rate Here Over Ky. Average

Eastern Kentucky's unemployment rate continues to be higher than the state rate, according to statistics released Friday by the Department for Human Resources (DHR). In July, the state rate was 6.9 per cent but the area's rate was 7.5 per cent, or an estimated 19,500 unemployed persons.

Floyd county's unemployment rate was 7.4 per cent—higher than the state average but 1 per cent below the Eastern Kentucky average.

Robert MacDonald, chief statistician in DHR's Bureau for Manpower Services, explains that while coal mining has been "booming," the return of many former residents who have been laid off jobs in other states has contributed to Eastern Kentucky's unemployment problem.

The unemployment picture statewide is brighter than it was in June, when the state posted an 8.1 per cent rate. MacDonald credits the improvement to two factors, a decrease in unemployment claims and in-school youths who have dropped out of the labor force.

In Eastern Kentucky, Magoffin county has the highest rate (13.4 per cent) and Martin the lowest (3.2 per cent).

Statewide, 63 counties have a 6.5 per cent or higher rate, ranging from a high of 16.1 in Powell county to the lowest rate of 3.1 per cent in Hopkins. Only seven of the state's counties did not have a lower rate in July than in June.

Following are the July unemployment rates for the Eastern Kentucky area:

Bath, 10.2; Bell, 9.3; Boyd, 6.3; Breathitt, 9.3; Carter, 10.1; Clay, 11.8; Elliott, 5.8; Floyd, 7.4; Greenup, 7.4; Harlan, 7.1; Jackson, 11.4; Johnson, 5.8; Knott, 7.2; Knox, 8.2; Laurel, 5.2; Lawrence, 6.1; Lee, 10.1; Leslie, 9.5; Letcher, 7.5; McCreary, 8.8; Magoffin, 13.4; Martin, 3.2; Menifee, 13.1; Montgomery, 7.7; Morgan, 8.7; Owsley, 11.1; Perry, 7.5; Pike, 4.8; Pulaski, 6.9; Rockcastle, 7.8; Rowan, 4.3; Wayne, 8.3; Whitley, 10.3; Wolfe, 10.9.

Blackcats Win Opener, 20-6 Over Breathitt; Pikeville Next

Prestonsburg's Blackcats started the football season off here Friday night with a 20 to 6 victory over Breathitt County. In this first game the Cats, with only three veteran players, scored three touchdowns and gained 360 yards on offense.

The first touchdown for Prestonsburg was scored by William O. Goebel, Jr. on a four-yard run, with a two-point conversion also scored on a run. Goebel scored again on a 35-yard run in the third quarter. The try for extra points failed. In the fourth quarter, Tim Patrick scored on a 30-yard pass from Greg Dixon. Again the extra-point attempt failed.

Breathitt County's lone t.d. was made on a 96-yard run in the fourth quarter.

Coach Phillip Haywood said of the game: "We played a pretty good ball game, but we made a lot of mistakes." He added that Breathitt County played a better game than the score indicated.

This Friday night, the Blackcats face a tough Pikeville team at Pikeville where the going may be a little rougher.

Perry Headed For Mayoralty

Paintsville, Ky.—Paintsville will be due its third mayor in four months, when Mayor J. T. Newman plans to submit his resignation to city council.

Newman was appointed to the seat in July following the resignation of John E. Chandler. Chandler resigned during a confrontation with council concerning city finances. He had served one and a half years of his second four-year term.

Councilman Robert W. Marsh resigned last week, and assistant to the mayor Neil Hansen had announced earlier that he will resign at the end of this week.

Allan S. (Bud) Perry is expected to be the next mayor, both by being appointed to fill Newman's seat, and by being placed in a special election in November to fill Chandler's unexpired term. Perry was appointed to fill a council vacancy in July.

Perry said he did not know what council's plans for filling the seat area, but said he would accept the appointment if asked.

A petition to have Perry's name placed on the ballot in November is being circulated by Chandler with Perry's knowledge and consent. Chandler said Perry is familiar with the city's programs and he knows "the people in Frankfort and Washington."

No candidates have filed for mayor or council seats. All council seats will be up for election in November, and since Chandler's unexpired term is for more than one year, it must also be filled by election. Filing deadline is Sept. 10.

Perry is publisher of the Paintsville Herald and president of First Federal Savings & Loan. He also serves on the boards of the Highlands Regional Medical Center, the Paintsville Industrial Development Corp. and the Big Sandy Area Development District.

The health department urges all persons in the Wayland vicinity to take advantage of these free services in their community.

The health department also reminds all Floyd countians that it conducts a weight control class every Tuesday at 7 p.m. Anyone interested in joining this class should call the health department at 886-2788 between 8 and 4:30.

Floyd Schools Show 250 Gain In Enrollment

At the first day of school last week Floyd county's school population stood at 9,233—a gain of 250 over the enrollment on the same day, a year earlier.

The increase was a sharp jump but was a continuance of the climb registered last school year, which had 50 more enrolled than for the preceding year.

More grade schoolers enrolled this year, but the enrollment in the county's five high schools, over all, was down by 29 from the 1974-'75 enrollment at the beginning of the term.

Only Betsy Layne and Wheelwright high schools show gains this year, and in neither of these more than five. The only elementary schools to lose enrollment are Home Branch, Prater, Drift and Stumbo. Heaviest grade school gains were made at Betsy Layne and Clark.

The first-day enrollment for the last two years follows:

Why is this bear smiling?

You'd be smiling too, if people listened to you the way Americans have listened to Smokey.

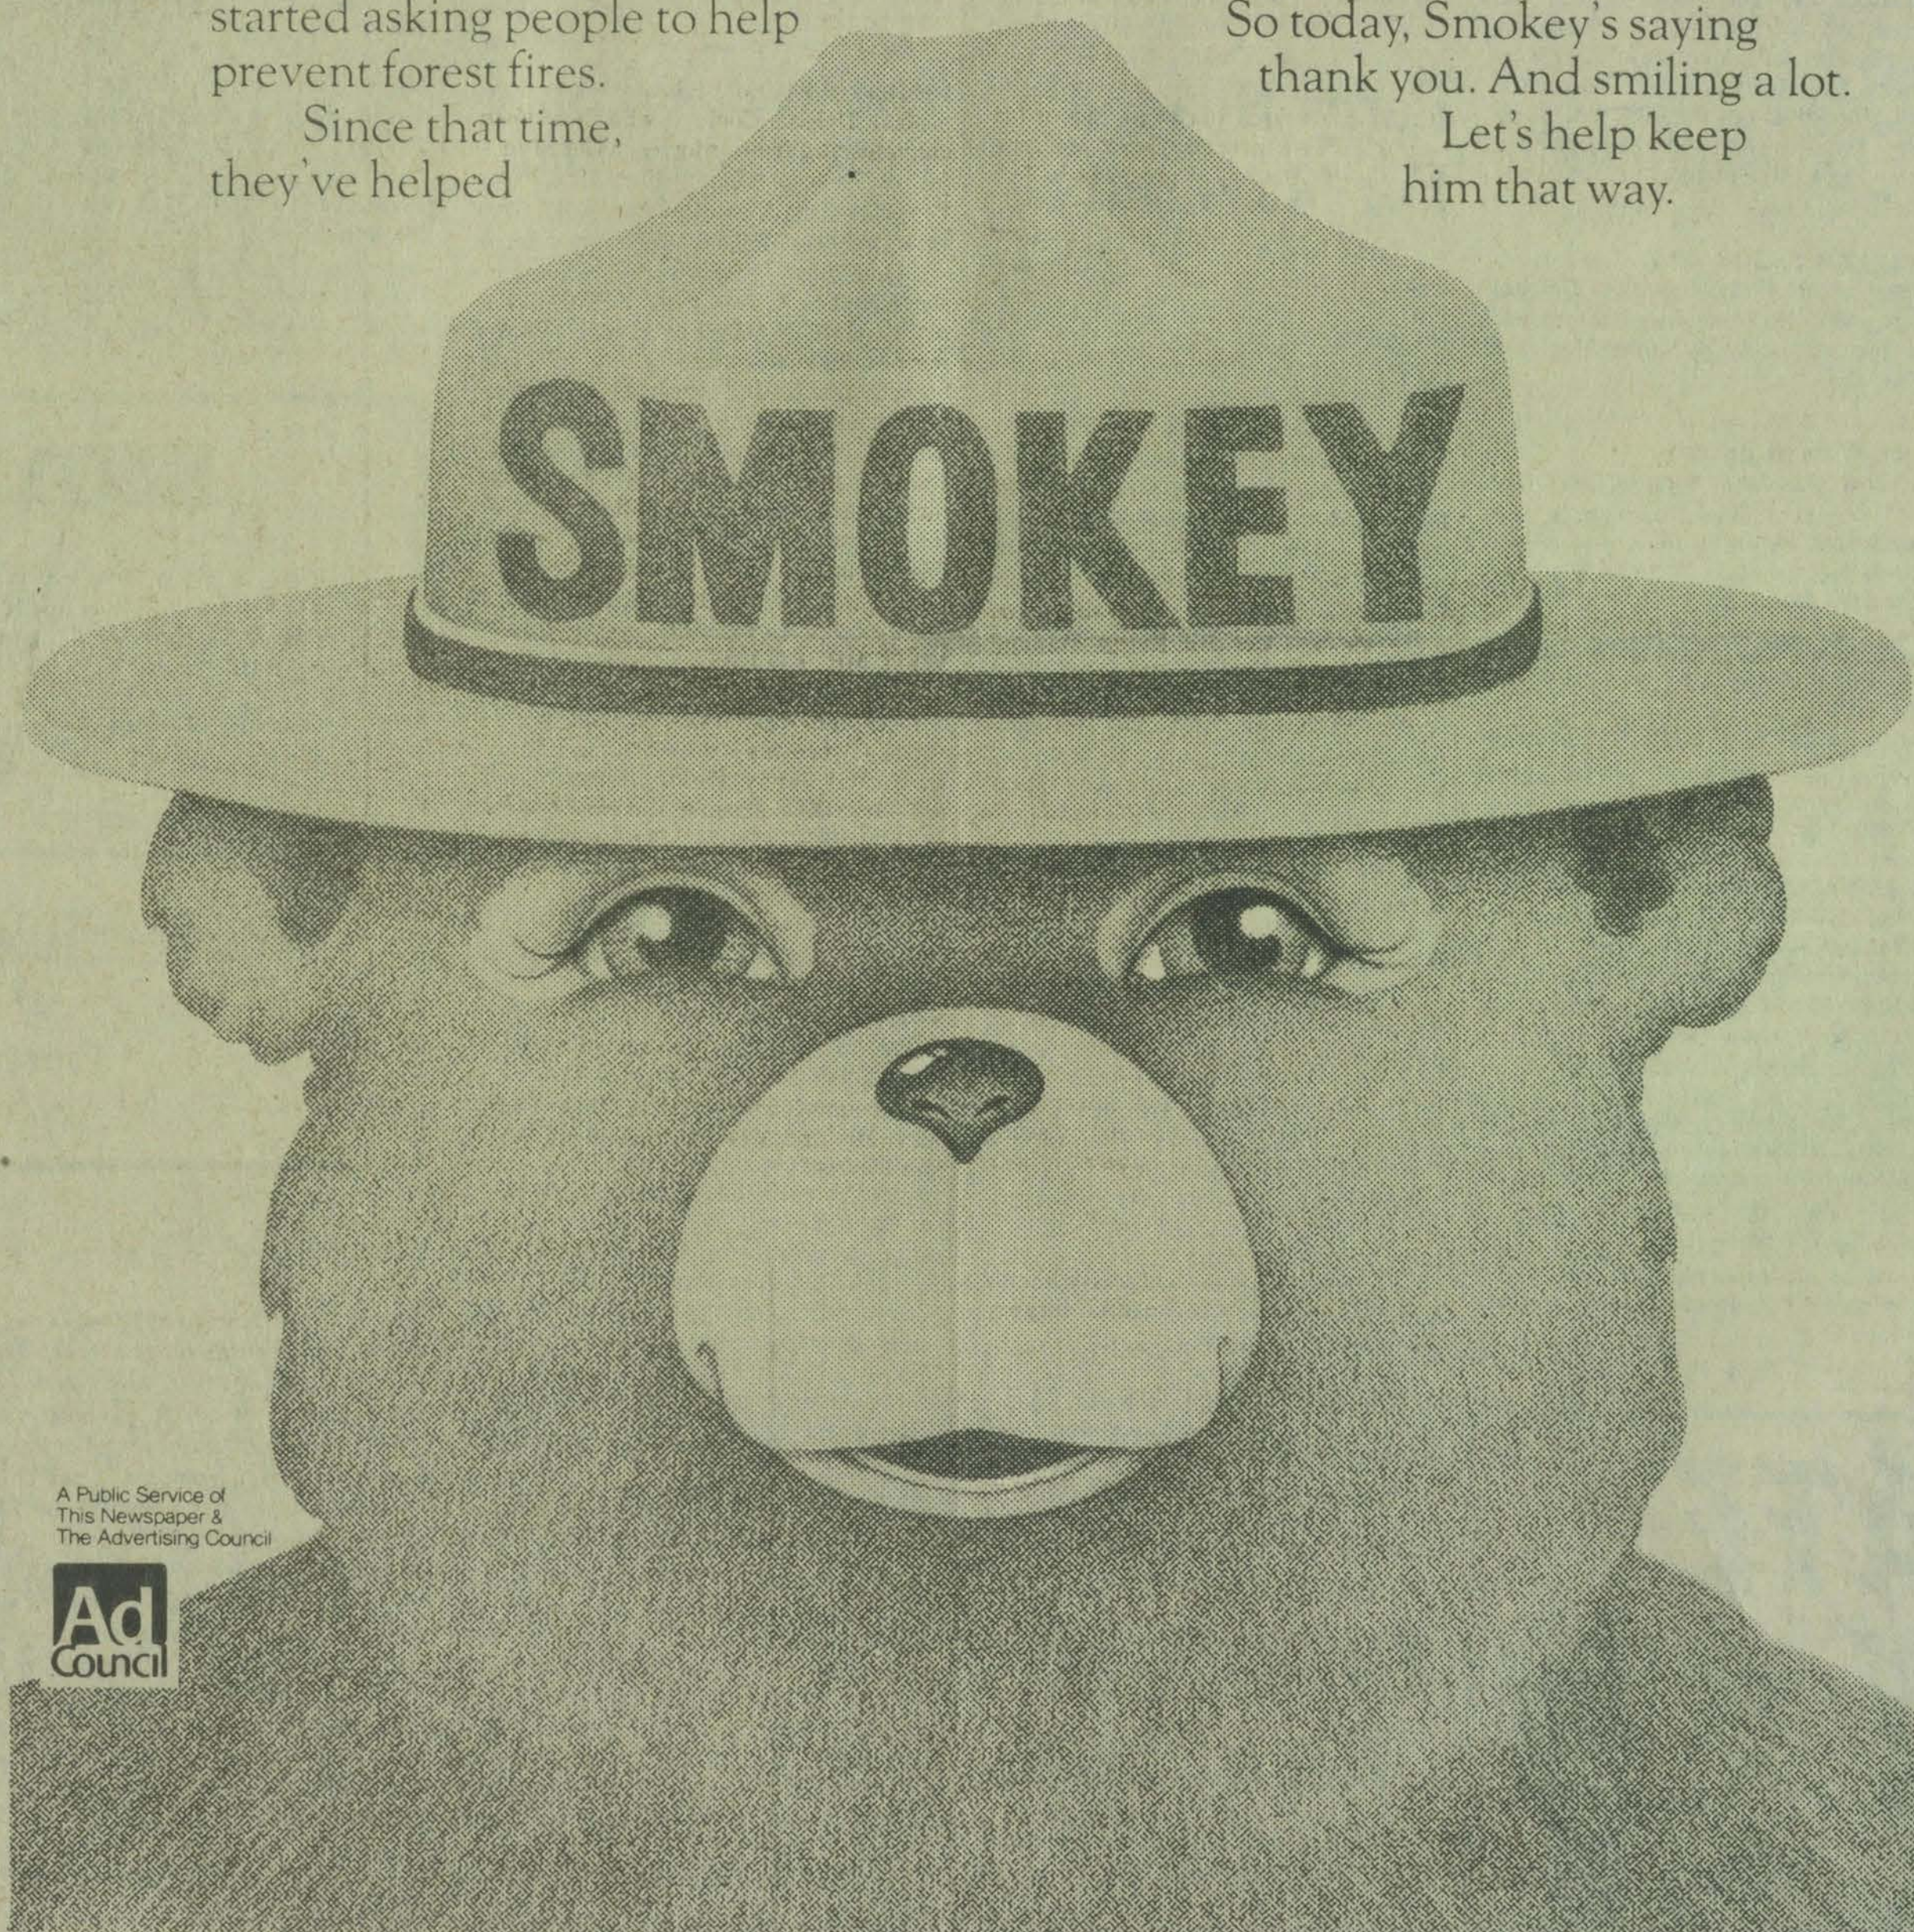

Over 30 years ago, Smokey started asking people to help prevent forest fires.

Since that time, they've helped cut the number of careless fires in half, even though ten times as many people use the forests today as they did back in the 1940's.

So today, Smokey's saying thank you. And smiling a lot.

Let's help keep him that way.

Invest In Quality

For centuries Europeans have invested a substantial amount of their earnings in good "Works of Art" — hand crafted Silver, quality Furniture, fine Paintings and Porcelains — and they have proven to be one of the best investments yet! Since World War II "good" works of art have proven to be a better investment than most stocks and bonds in your lock box! Think about that — Please accept our invitation to visit and let us show you one of the largest and finest collections of Antique furniture and silver in the country.

We do our own buying in the British Isles and import directly to Kentucky — with no middleman — so our prices are more reasonable than in the East. There is so much to see — including our Gallery of Limited Edition Porcelains from all the important studios in the world. Write for our illustrated catalogue, available for $2.00. We're located on I-64 between Lexington and Louisville and are open every day, except Sunday 9:00 a.m. — 5 p.m. Our latchstring on our front door is always out!

PCC Program Offers Variety Of Courses for Current Term

From tennis to karate, from personal development to the New Testament run the variety of courses being offered this year by the Community Service Program of Prestonsburg Community College.

Beginning Drawing and Composition will be taught by Thomas Whitaker. The class will meet in Room 106 of the Pike Technology Building, 6:30-8:30 p.m., Wednesdays, Sept. 17-Oct. 22. This is a basic art drawing class for adults and children 12 years or older who desire a course in fundamentals.

William Thomas, minister of the First Presbyterian Church here and the Drift Presbyterian Church, will be teaching Introduction to the New Testament. This course introduces the times, setting and writing of the New Testament. The class will meet in Room 208 of the Pike Technology Building, 7-8:30 p.m., Tuesdays, Sept. 9-Nov. 25.

Emphasizing self-confidence, self-discipline, and weight control, a basic karate course will be taught by Bill Tom Fannin, holder of a first degree black belt in Shorin Rye (Okinawan style). Classes will meet in the student center, 6-8 p.m., Mondays, Sept. 8-Dec. 1.

Things Women Should Know is a course emphasizing personal development for the homemaker, vocabulary building, note writing, fashions, social skills and many other items helpful to women in their varied social, professional and personal circumstances. The class, taught by Carolyn Francis, will utilize professional expertise from the community. The meeting time is 7-8 p.m. on Thursdays, September 11 to November 13, in Room 105 of the Johnson Administration Building.

Those interested in learning to read braille may avail themselves of a new course, Basic Braille, which will be taught by Diantha Hodges. The class will teach the student to read first grade braille and to write it with a stylus and slate. It is appropriate for parents of the visually handicapped or those who work with them as well as for the blind themselves. Attention will be given to the particular student's abilities and needs. The class will meet on Thursdays, Sept. 11-Dec. 11, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in Room 104 of the Pike Technology Building.

Okey Jackson, who last year designed and constructed a downdraft pottery kiln for the Potters Guild at Prestonsburg Community College, will teach a ceramics class for beginning potters. The class will begin September 8, meeting each Monday evening from 6:30-9:30. In addition to the Monday evening sessions, there will be a Thursday evening practicum for those who desire it.

Mr. Jackson earned his B. S. in industrial arts at Berea College and his masters of fine arts at Claremont Graduate School (California) with a major in ceramics, with emphasis on raku, stoneware, porcelain and kiln construction.

While on a Claremont grade fellowship in 1967, Jackson distinguished himself by winning the Purchase Prize in the fifth annual Southern California exhibit, first award in the tenth annual Art Unlimited Festival in California, and was nominated for representation in prize-winning sculpture. After serving as Teaching Assistant in Ceramics at Berea College and Claremont Graduate School, Jackson taught at Potters Place, New Hampshire (1966-'68) and was Land Art Gallery Assistant at Scripps College (1967-'68). From 1968 to 1972, Jackson was chairman of the Board of Ceramics Department, Brooks Institute of Fine Arts, where he developed the ceramics program from its genesis. Since leaving California he has served as regional project coordinator for Mountain Comprehensive Care, Paintsville.

A course called Fundamentals of Tennis is now available to the absolute beginner through the Community Service Program. The instructor is Ronnie Chaffins, of the PCC faculty. Classes will meet 5:30-6:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays from September 9 through October 9 at the Archer Park tennis courts (in the student center at PCC in the event of rain). Each participant will be required to have a can of balls and a racquet.

Further information on any course offered by the Community Service Program may be had by contacting James Ratcliff, coordinator, telephone 886-3863, extension 208.

A Plea for Help

Concerning three recent deaths in the Henderson family: I am asking for help because my husband is disabled to work, and we live on a very small income. We have lost three children in the past 22 months, two of whom have passed away within the last seven months. We couldn't buy insurance on them because of an incurable disease.

Anyone who wants to and is able to donate a few dollars toward funeral expenses for the children, it would be greatly appreciated, and I am sure God will bless you for it.

Their mother,
MYRTIE HENDERSON

Immunization Required For School Children

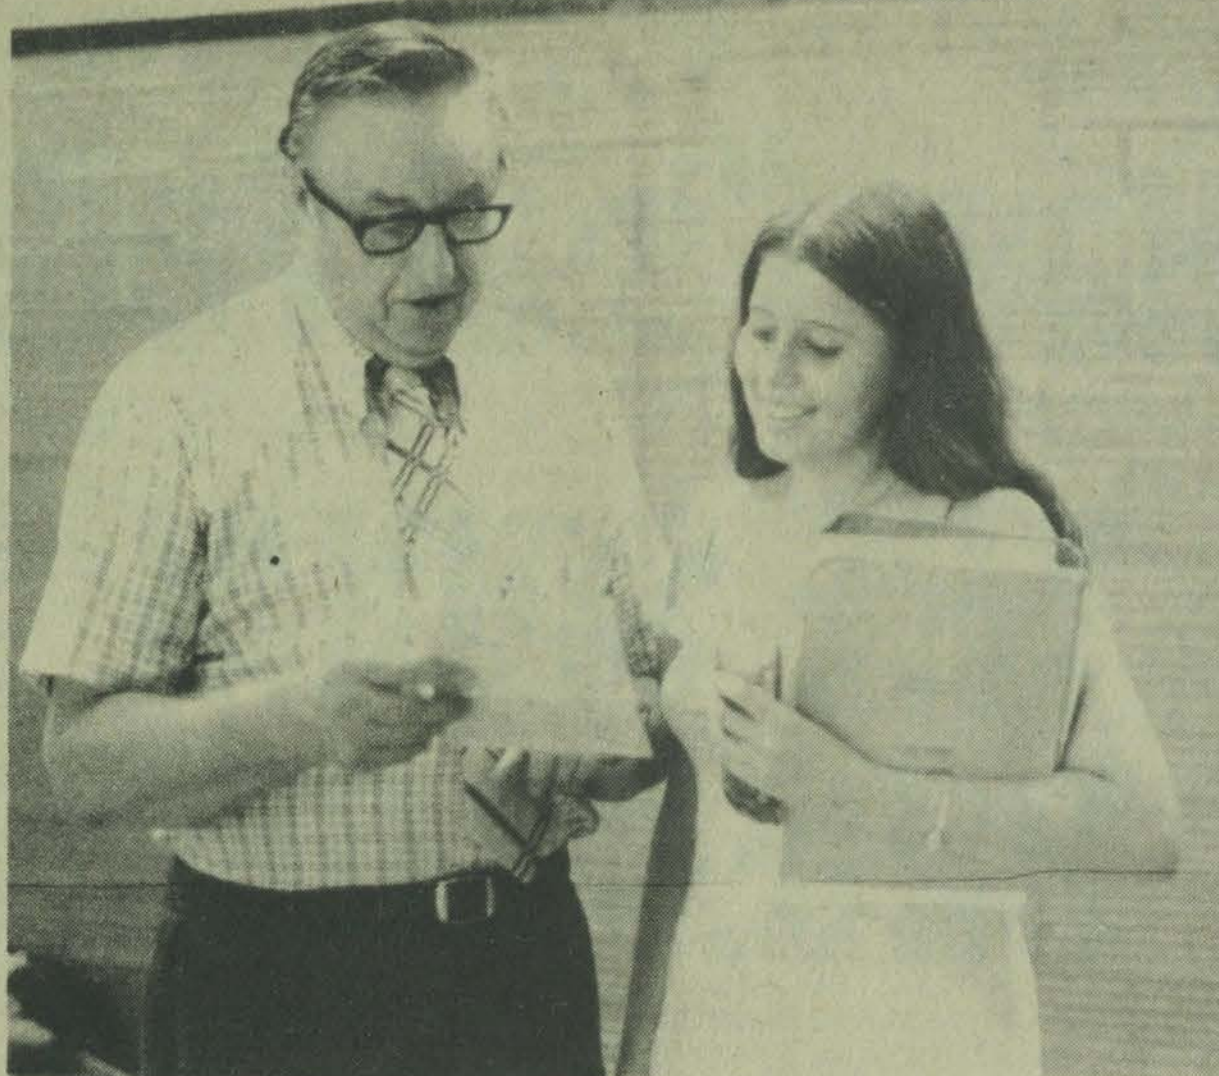

Frankfort, Ky.—State law requires immunization of children entering school for the first time.

According to Diane Cains, supervisor of school health programs in the Bureau of Pupil Personnel Services of the Kentucky Department of Education, all local boards of education require each child beginning school for the first time to have a medical examination within six months prior to entering school, or one month after he has been admitted to school. According to state law, each child must be immunized against diphtheria, tetanus, poliomyelitis, pertussis and measles.

All children must have a valid immunization certificate when they enroll in school. An up-to-date immunization certificate must be kept on file by the school for each child.

The medical examination and immunizations may be given by the family's private physician or by the county health department personnel.

Repatriated, Collector of Antiques Says Was Always Headed Home

A native Floyd county woman who during her 39 years as a resident of Michigan became known as the owner of one of that state's finest collections of antiques, has returned home.

She is Mrs. Josephine Hall Akers, wife of Homer Akers, and she now has her antique shop at Betsy Layne. The subject of several articles in Michigan newspapers, Mrs. Hall recalls that she has always had something nice to say about Kentucky when interviewed. "I suppose I was headed for home, all the time, and didn't know it," she says.

That's what motivates Mrs. Akers. She enjoys sharing her knowledge of antiques and the beauty of the many collector's items she owns with others.

There's a little bit of everything in Jo's Antiques. There are figurines, vases, china, trunks, paintings, wall hangings, jewelry, lamps and even a little furniture.

"Most of my antiques are more than 100 years old and are collector's items," said Mrs. Akers. She said she doesn't regard anything as "antique" unless it is more than 100 years old.

"And I don't have any reproductions. I hate them and if I do have one it's because I'm blind or I've been taken," said Mrs. Akers who has been collecting antiques since she was 10 years old. She became acquainted with antique hunting when she spent summers with a widowed aunt who enjoyed collecting.

She has a special reason for studying the history of her antiques. "The value of an antique is based on where it is made, who it is made by, and what it is made of. The price does not constitute the value of an item," she said.

Among the collector's items found in Mrs. Akers shop are an original John J. Audubon; a collection of Kashmir shawls much like the ones found in the Cleveland Art Museum; an oil of St. Cecilia painted by Mignard, the artist for King Louis XIV; a trunk made by the trunk maker for the Prince of Wales in 1842.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Delzie Boyd, who passed away Sept. 5, 1972:

It broke our hearts to lose him,
But he did not go alone,
For a part of us went with him
The day God called him home.
The flowers we placed upon his grave
May wither and decay,
But love for him who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away.

Black Lung Law Reform Target of Scheduled Rally

Calling major reforms of the federal Black Lung compensation program "the UMW's No. 1 priority in Congress," United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller announced last Saturday that the union has scheduled a giant rally in Washington on September 17 in cooperation with coalfield Black Lung associations as part of an intensive lobbying effort in support of improvements in the Black Lung law.

"I've seen too many miners in the coalfields and hollows of Appalachia who are suffering from the deadly, choking effects of Black Lung but who are unable to receive compensation that they are legally entitled to," said Miller, who himself suffers from Black Lung. "H. B. 3333, sponsored by Representative Carl Perkins (D-Ky.), would put an end to the bureaucratic red tape which has stood in the way of an effective compensation program mandated by Congress."

The union said that since the Department of Labor assumed responsibility for determining eligibility for Black Lung compensation, only 879 claims have been approved by the DOL out of nearly 60,000 filed. One of the main provisions of the Perkins Bill is an automatic granting of Black Lung benefits to any miner or his widow who worked at least 15 years underground in a mine.

It's time to end the cruel, impossible eligibility standards used by the Department of Labor," said Miller. "The automatic 15 year rule would also eliminate the costly and time-consuming hearings and appeals process which has created a logjam of back claims."

What To Do In September

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

In her beautiful descriptive poem of the same name, the American novelist and poet, Helen Hunt Jackson, calls September the month with "Summer's best of weather and autumn's best of cheer." Truly it is that and more. The month marks the transition period between summer and fall and possesses many of the characteristics of both wonderful seasons.

In the far South, it is one of the hottest months of the year and even in the northern tier of states, hot days are often frequent. The nights, however, are usually cool and there is often more than a touch of that nostalgic blue haze that marks the advent of that incredible season known as "Indian Summer."

September is a fairly busy month in rural Kentucky because it is the harvest period for many crops and the "storing up" period for many housewives. It is apple and shucky bean-drying time; pickle-making time; and watermelon-eating time. It is also apple-smoking time; potato-digging time; grape jelly-making time; and time to store away other rich fruits of the wild, the field, and the garden.

In the Calendar of Charlemagne, that great Roman and Frankish king, September was called the "Harvest Month" and in Switzerland, as research reveals, it still is known by that name. The Anglo-Saxons, ever known for their self-sufficiency and personal independence, were more specific in their choice of a name and called September the "barley month."

Many months have undergone changes in their number of days, but calendar makers say that since old Roman times, September has always had 30 days. It has not, however, always been the ninth month. Before the calendar was revised by Julius Caesar, it was the seventh month and its name is from the Latin "septim," meaning seven. When the month was shifted in the Julian calendar the name was not changed.

Checking with the calendar on the wall, the only holiday of any great significance in September is Labor Day. This fact will give more time for the homeowner, farmer, and gardener to get some recommended jobs done around the old homestead. According to University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service specialists, these are some of the many things that can be done in September with profit.

In the yard, many trees can be successfully planted. Broadleaf evergreens should be planted as soon as possible during the month. Birch, magnolia, redbuds, and tulip trees do best when planted in spring.

Clip hedges for the last time this year. Select vegetables for winter storage. Sow cover crops in the field and garden. Harvest apples, grapes, and nuts.

If needed, renovate the lawn, but first check with your county Extension agent for more information on the subject. Control broadleaf weeds but, as on the subject of lawn renovation, check first with your Extension agent.

September is a good month also in which to plant spring flowering bulbs, to plant peonies and daylilies, and to bring in cuttings of plants that will freeze out during the winter. And don't forget to water plants in dry weather.

Then for fall and winter house decorations, this is the month to gather the materials. Milkweed, foxtail, bitersweet, sumac, curly dock, hydrangia, okra, and many, many other plants, both wild and domesticated, which are excellent for drying, can be gathered during this month.

Like all other months, September is a great month in which to be alive. Do the jobs that must be done but by all means enjoy it.

Floyd Countians Accepted At Chase Law College

David H. Neeley, of Prestonsburg, and Hershel R. Griffith, of Auxier, are among 75 first-year students accepted for the newly-established day division of studies at Salmon P. Chase College of Law of Northern Kentucky State College, Covington.

Both are graduates of the University of Kentucky.

Founded in 1893, Chase College of Law is one of the oldest evening law schools in continuous existence in the nation. In 1972 it moved from Cincinnati to become part of Northern Kentucky State College.

Kentucky is the only state in the nation without an auto title law. An effort to get such a law passed by the 1974 General Assembly failed, but it will be renewed in the 1976 session.

Indian Sect Members' March Ends Protest

WASHINGTON—Some 230 supporters of an Indian sect called Ananda Marga marched from the Washington monument to the Capitol yesterday to protest alleged political persecution in India.

Only a handful of the marchers were Indian. Most, however, wore the bright orange shirts and white pants that mark members of the sect.

The march and rally on the Capitol steps signaled the end of a month-long vigil during which one Ananda Marga member said he fasted while telling tourists at the Capitol of the plight of India.

Five additional Floyd county members received special recognition in the state project record judging.

Some Chemicals in School Labs Cause Cancer, Warning Given

Frankfort, Ky.—Department of Labor officials in Kentucky's Occupational Safety and Health program are notifying all Kentucky high schools and universities that certain chemicals used in some school laboratories can cause cancer if they are improperly used or stored.

Dr. J. Bradford Block, the department's medical consultant, said explanatory letters have been mailed to 350 high schools and 42 institutions of higher learning along with a list of cancer-causing chemicals that are commonly used in school laboratories.

Federal and state laws require these chemicals to be registered with the Department of Labor. Registration forms were sent with the letter, Dr. Block said. He added that so far none of the chemicals have been registered with the department, explaining that "probably the schools were not aware of this requirement."

Dr. Block urged immediate registration of the chemicals. He said registration will "allow the Department (of Labor) to better assess the extent of the use of these chemicals and will allow the department to provide the schools with more detailed information as to how each of them can be controlled."

"Students and their families should not overreact," Dr. Block said. "There is no significant risk associated with these chemicals when used under proper supervision and handled by responsible students. The real danger occurs when the chemicals are misused."

The research staff of the Kentucky Bureau of Corrections has estimated that it would cost more than $6 million to accommodate the increased inmate population which would result if the state legislature adopts a law requiring all prisoners to serve at least one-third of their sentence.

American Electric Power System

AMERICA'S MOST EFFICIENT
POWER PRODUCER

Who cares? Because you benefit, we care.

We're proud.

For the third year in a row we are America's most efficient electric utility in power generation—an achievement based upon the use of the most advanced technology available today and the burning of coal.

At American Electric Power and all our operating companies, striving for greater efficiency is a never-ending process.

On the basis of latest industry reports, we managed to squeeze more electricity out of the fuel burned than any other electric power company in the U.S.A.

And the benefits are big.

If, for example, last year we were average instead of best, we would have had to burn 3 million more tons of America's coal. An expense of over $60,000,000 our customers would have borne.

Or, looked at another way... if we had been burning oil instead of coal, America's fuel saving would have been over 12,000,000 barrels!

That's conservation... pure conservation in keeping with Federal Energy Administration goals. When anyone conserves, all America benefits.

If every American will commit to conserve through the efficient use of energy... and if our government will make a full commitment to coal, our most plentiful fuel, America will have the basic ingredients for solving our energy problem:

Coal and conservation.

Together they can blunt the inflationary effect of cartel produced foreign oil prices.

Together they can further our country's magnificent production record, which will make possible a fuller life for every American—especially the less privileged.

Show you care.
Join the movement to coal and conservation.

The BANK JOSEPHINE
 A FULL SERVICE BANK
 PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY

All that's required is the filling out of a simple form -
Form No. 1199, as shown here:

The Bank has these forms and will be glad to help fill it out for you.

Watch for this insert with your September check.

Check Insert

You can deposit your check directly ...

Do you have a checking or savings account in a bank, savings bank, savings and loan association or similar institution, or a Federal or State chartered credit union? Did you know you can have your check deposited directly in your account in one of these organizations? If you don't have an account now, you can open one and have your check deposited directly.

Direct deposit of your check has certain advantages. For example:

- ▼ Even if you are away from home, your check would be deposited instead of sitting in your mailbox.
- ▼ You don't have any problem in cashing your check because it goes directly into your account.
- ▼ You don't have to stand in line to cash your check or to deposit it.
- ▼ You don't have to worry about losing your check after you receive it or having it stolen from your mailbox.

The decision is yours. It's entirely up to you whether you want your check deposited directly.

(please see other side)

If you want your check to continue coming to your present address, don't do anything. It will keep on coming just as it has in the past.

But if you do want your check mailed to a financial organization or if your check already is mailed to one, this is what you should do:

Contact the financial organization where you now have or where you want to have an account and ask for a direct deposit form SF-1199.

(Completion of the form does not permit withdrawals from your account by anyone other than those authorized by you.)

If you want more information, get in touch with your financial organization or contact any social security office.

READ THESE FACTS ABOUT DIRECT DEPOSITS

- 1 Why is there so much interest today in the direct deposit of social security checks?
 The Treasury Department has initiated a program to encourage the recipients of all recurring Federal payments to deposit these directly into a financial institution. Under this plan, an individual can have his check sent directly to his financial institution for deposit.
- 2 How will I benefit from direct deposit of my social security check?
 It saves a special trip to the bank just to deposit your check. It eliminates worry about the check being lost or stolen in the mail. And, any time you are away from home or cannot come to the bank, your check is automatically deposited for you.
- 3 Can I have it deposited to my savings account as well as my checking account?
 If you want a portion to go into the savings each month, ask your bank about an automatic transfer of a specified amount each month from checking into savings. By law your Social Security check must be directed to one specific account, either checking or savings.
- 4 How do I sign up for this service?
 Simply complete the government form (SF1199) available at any bank. Personnel at your commercial bank will be glad to help you complete the form.
- 5 How do I get the information needed to complete the forms?
 All the Social Security information you will need is on your monthly check or in your initial awards letter from Social Security. If you need any assistance or have any questions, your bank will be glad to assist you.
- 6 Do I send the form directly to social security?
 No, you should complete the top half of the form only and take it or mail it to your bank. They will complete the form, sending one copy to you and one to Social Security.
- 7 After I sign up, when will the bank start receiving my check?
 It should take about a month for the form to be processed. At the start of the program, it could take slightly longer.

It's easy and safe and saves you a trip to the Bank each month.
 Your check will come right to us on checking or savings, or both.

By LARRY BURKE

The story is told of the great Dutch artist who was commissioned to paint the portrait of a famous man of his country.

After weeks of work the artist completed the painting. It was beautifully executed. Wonderful in detail vibrant in color.

In the foreground of the picture the artist had painted some tulips. The flowers were so beautiful and colorful that those who viewed the painting never saw the portrait of the subject they could not take their eyes beyond the tulips.

Sometimes we all tend to major in minors. In doing so we place importance on trivial matters and fail to see the entire picture. It is difficult in many instances to see beyond the "tulips."

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: Those who look beyond small things see more of the world.

Brother-Sister Found Crafts Club

Eddie Collins and his sister, Katie Collins Newsome, display some of their crafts.

A brother-and-sister team in the southern tip of the county that has, over the past years, been making handcrafts have joined together to organize their own "Craftsmen Club".

Katie Collins Newsome, of Buckingham, co-ordinator of the club, is an enthusiastic member in the world of arts and crafts. She has worked with handcraft projects for about 10 years. Her crafts involve fabric flower arranging, picture making, wall hangings, nature crafts, punch and pull rugs, sewing and needlepoint.

Her brother, Eddie Collins, of Weeksbury, club treasurer, has been doing crafts since the age of 14. His handiwork includes needlepoint, painting, crewel embroidery, quilting, basketweaving, knitting, rug hooking, embroidery, crocheting and nature crafts.

Elsie Collins, of Weeksbury, is a member from which much of local heritage crafts is learned. She works in flower arranging, canning and preserving food, candleholders and quilting.

Liza Newsome, of Melvin, a member in absentia, has been quilting for more than 40 years. Also added to her line of crafts are pieced throw pillows, fabric flower making, caning and preserving food, decoupage, antiques furniture and upholstery. Mrs. Newsome is currently in the UK Medical Center at Lexington suffering multiple injuries when struck by a car, August 12. She will be at the Center for an indefinite period, due to a series of operations.

An open invitation is extended to any who are interested in handcrafts to visit meetings of the club to observe projects currently in progress. The first meeting will be Monday, September 8, at the Weeksbury Community Center at 7 p.m.

Purpose of the club, according to its coordinator, is to preserve the Appalachian heritage pertaining to local handcrafts and to initiate community involvement. The club is non-profit.

State and Texas Firm Ask Coal Gasification Plant

Gov. Julian Carroll announced Wednesday that the Commonwealth of Kentucky and the Texas Gas Transmission Corporation have filed a statement of interest in a demonstration plant for the production of pipeline quality gas from coal.

The formal statement was filed in response to a request from the Federal Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA).

The federal request specifies that the coal to be used in the demonstration facility is to have a high sulphur content. If the Kentucky bid for the plant is successful, it will be built in Western Kentucky where Texas Gas has extensive high sulphur coal reserves.

"We have every reason to believe that we will be successful in our bid to have this plant located in Kentucky," Gov. Carroll said. "The Texas Gas Transmission Corporation and our own research and demonstration staff people have been working together for the past several months in anticipation of this opportunity."

Gov. Carroll added, "As a result of this foresight, Kentucky is remarkably well-prepared to make this response."

The work that the state and Texas Gas have been doing on this project is part of a joint program to promote and evaluate advanced technology for the conversion of Kentucky coal into clean energy in the form of pipeline quality gas.

This program involves joint funding of the cost of preliminary engineering design, cost estimates and environmental studies. Under this agreement Kentucky is also committed to cost sharing in the construction of the demonstration plant if it is located in Kentucky.

Gov. Carroll pointed out that this demonstration plant will constitute a market for 6,200 tons of Kentucky coal per day and will produce 82,300 million cubic feet of pipeline quality gas per day.

On successful completion of the demonstration phase the plant is expected to be tripled in capacity. In its full commercial scale operation this facility could be expected to produce gas in amounts equivalent to half of the current consumption of gas in the whole state of Kentucky.

"This plant", the governor emphasized, "will not only convert high sulphur coal into clean-burning fuel, but the project itself involves a very clean process, complying fully with every requirement for the maintenance of a healthy environment."

The statement to ERDA cautions that the costs of such a demonstration plant is beyond the reach of private capital. Current estimates have placed these costs beyond a half a billion dollars.

The Kentucky statement urges that ERDA consider the federal government share of these costs at well above the usual 50 per cent formula normally followed in federally-funded demonstration projects.

Kentucky and Texas Gas are hopeful that the federal request for formal proposals will be issued within the next several months.

Gov. Carroll has urged ERDA on several occasions to speed up this process so that the plant can be constructed and in operation before the end of this decade.

It is estimated that this process will take about four years to complete.

Cannons Evidence Of Treasure Ship

KEY WEST, Fla.—Divers say five bronze cannon they found about 40 miles west of Key West are proof that they have located one of the richest treasure ships that ever sailed.

Beth McHaley, vice president of Treasure Salvors, Inc., said the cannon were spotted in 50 feet of water near the Marquesas Keys.

She said the guns once were mounted on the deck of the Neustra Senora de Atocha, a Spanish galleon laden with 47 tons of New World gold and silver when it was blown onto a reef by a 1622 hurricane. The value of the complete cargo is estimated at $10 million to $400 million.

"We've known since 1971 that we were working a wreck of the 1622 fleet," said Miss McHaley. "And we were convinced in 1973 that three silver bars we found were from the Atocha. But this is the capper."

Critics have long disputed that the Atocha is at the site.

If it is, they asked, where are the 900 other 60-pound silver bars that were aboard when it went down? And where are the ships' other cannon, which because of their bulk are usually among the first items found by treasure hunters?

The cannon will stay on the bottom while archaeological studies are made, Miss McHaley said.

To Enter Med School

Jack Stewart, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Stewart, Huntington Beach, Calif., formerly of Prestonsburg, will enter Northwestern University Medical School, Chicago, this fall.

A member of the Honors Program in Medical Education at Northwestern University, he completed premedical work at the Northwestern University College of Arts and Sciences on the Evanston campus in two years following graduation from Marina High School, Huntington Beach, Calif.

Mr. Stewart attended Prestonsburg High School prior to his family's moving to California.

Landowners Advised Of Trespass Changes

Frankfort, Ky., August 27—Squirrel hunting season has returned to Kentucky and many landowners are discovering a change in procedure dealing with hunters and fishermen on private land without permission.

Due to a change in Kentucky's penal code the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources no longer has jurisdiction over those hunting or fishing without permission on private land. The power of arrest has shifted to local peace officers. The change occurred with no prior knowledge of the department, which worked for passage of the former law in 1960.

Under the 1960 law, a conservation officer could arrest a person hunting or fishing without permission on written complaint of the landowner if the CO was already on the land. An arrest could also be made on the CO's initiative.

Under provisions of the new penal code, a landowner must swear a warrant to be served by a local peace officer, sheriff or state policeman. Conservation officers can no longer arrest those hunting and fishing without permission.

According to A. H. Henson, director of the department's Division of Law Enforcement, landowners should first record the license number from any unauthorized vehicle on his land. The landowner should then locate trespassers and ask that they leave. A warrant can then be obtained from the county judge for the arrest of the guilty parties.

Landowners can also contact a local peace officer. If the peace officer witnesses the trespass, no warrant is needed. Otherwise, a warrant must be obtained.

Under the former law on hunting and fishing without permission, a fine of not less than $15 or more than $100 was levied. The current penal code divides trespassing into three degrees. The two applicable to hunting and fishing trespass both carry a fine of no more than $250. A trespasser is also liable for damage he may cause while hunting or fishing without permission.

It is the legal responsibility of any person to obtain permission from the landowner before entering private property to hunt or fish. Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Commissioner Arnold Mitchell says, "Good sportsmanship demands abiding by any restrictions a landowner may place on the sportsman and a respect for crops, fences and other private property. Without this, criminal and civil court action and more closing of private lands to hunting will result."

Wonders of the Forest

To sit on an old, mossy log deep in summer woods and watch the slanting sunbeams filter down through the green leaves to form a checkerboard pattern on the brown-leaf earth is a beautiful thing to see. And to sit quietly in late summer woods and listen to the sad lament of a lone cuckoo as she mourns the fast dying of the summer—this is a mournful lament that stirs the heart and brings a feeling that summer is about to bow out and autumn is knocking at the door.

The rich, black soil of the forest is also a fascination. We studied its composition and found it was made up of many ingredients—decayed animal and vegetable matter, decayed wood, dead bodies of millions of tiny creatures; also, fine rock dust made by the grinding process of erosion. In the soil of the forest there lives millions of tiny creatures—it is their home, where they work and rear offspring. One square foot of forest soil contains about one billion living organisms, from bacteria and molds to larvae and worms.

Did you ever estimate the number of plants and trees living on a small area of the forest—say, about half an acre? Such an area of good soil has about 100 trees, one thousand small shrubs and saplings, about 1000 million larvae of all kinds, one million earthworms, 250 trillion fungi and bacteria—all working and living in the soil and deriving their nourishment from it.

Another wonder we notice in the forest is the tiny hummingbird, which saddled its lichen nest on a horizontal limb, to keep it safe from the sharp eyes of predators. Last spring, we watched it hovering over flowers like a tiny, feathered helicopter, reaching down deep into the tubular corollas with its needle-sharp bill. Well, how does it get the nectar, 'way down deep? It has a soda-straw tongue for sucking it out. Very soon now these beautiful little creatures will be zipping away toward Central America, making the long flight across the Gulf of Mexico in a few short hours, to spend the winter in Central America.

It is also a wonder to probe into the dead wood of an old hollow-sided beech, to discover what kinds of creatures lives in the dead wood. You'll often find the wood honeycombed and full of galleries. Large carpenter ants make their home in the dead wood. They chew up the wood and make it ready for mixing with soil. In the dead wood we also find a large, black beetle which has horns and makes a harsh grating sound when disturbed. We identify it as a "bessybug," and its comical ways remind us of the old saying: "Crazy as a bessybug." The bessybug eats dead wood and helps to pulverize it for adding to the humus of the soil.

Another wonder of August woods is their deep and profound sense of peace. It is a solemn stillness that creeps into the human heart and lulls it to a profound state of rest and a feeling of at-oneness with nature.

Flaming Torches Or Dying Lamps

There is a terrible falling away from Righteousness. Repentance must begin at the house of God. What is needed is a prophet who can disturb the godly and the ungodly. Pray that God in these last, terrible moments of this dispensation will send us pleading prophets like Jeremiah and John the Baptist—men who identify themselves with the sins of the nation. We must be flaming torches or dying lamps. It is not enough to have burnt—but to be burning when Christ comes. Of thousands of churches today and probably hundreds of thousands of believers, the cry is true at this moment. "Our lamps are going out." Read Matthew 25:1-13. God's remedy for a sin-sick land is still the same - 2 Chronicles 7:14.

Carrol Confident Coal Resources To Be Developed

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—More than 300 Kentucky business leaders heard praise for the state's energy programs and words of confidence in the development of the Commonwealth's coal resources at the governor's first Economic Growth Conference, held Aug. 27-28 here.

Kentucky has accomplished "some of the most far-reaching and effective energy planning" in the United States, Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb told conference participants. The nation's top-ranking energy official, Zarb called the state's energy research and development programs "an example to the rest of the country."

Optimism about Kentucky's economic development came from Gov. Julian Carroll, who told his audience that the state's vast coal reserves could stimulate growth. "There is more energy in the Appalachian Mountains than in the Middle East," Carroll said, adding that coal conversion processes producing oil, gas and char could serve as the basis for industrial development across the state.

The two-day conference brought members of the governor's Economic Development Commission together to discuss growth of Kentucky's economy. Seminars at the conference featured panel discussions with speakers from state and federal agencies and the business world.

U. S. Senators Walter "Dee" Huddleston and Wendell Ford headed a panel of the state's congressional delegation, which fielded questions on current issues from conference participants.

In a seminar on the national and state energy picture, Kentucky's "active program" of energy development was cited by Roger Saleeby, an official of Coalcon Corp., who said he knew of no other state as involved in energy research.

Each month more than 40 per cent of the cases handled by the State Police Narcotics Section involved either trafficking or possession of marijuana.

Small Grants Made To Help Teaching About Environment

Frankfort, Ky.—A little money can go a long way toward educating Kentucky's young people about the environment. That's the philosophy behind a series of mini-grants presented to 31 Kentucky school districts by the Environmental Quality Commission (EQC).

Eight Eastern Kentucky school districts—Boyd, Elliott, Lawrence, Montgomery, Pike and Wayne counties and Fairview and Corbin independents—have received grants averaging $450, according to Bill Blankenship, environmental education consultant for the state Department of Education.

Blankenship said that, though the grants are small, they are helping to start environmental education programs where none existed before. In districts that already have environmental education the funds are being used to help build and equip outdoor classrooms—natural sites near schools where students can observe and study the environment.

Some school districts, such as Wayne county's, are near natural sites that are suitable for environmental studies. Wayne County High School has initiated a student project to determine what effect, if any, strip mining has had on nearby Lake Cumberland and its tributaries.

An EQC mini-grant will supply chemicals for laboratory tests, field trips to streams and strip mines, as well as printed and audio-visual materials for study of the environment.

Pike county and Corbin independent schools will hold workshops to stimulate interest in environmental education and to help teachers carry out environmental education within a variety of subject areas.

Corbin has set aside part of the EQC grant for materials teachers might want to buy after attending the workshops.

The influence of the weather on the environment is a popular approach to environmental education in Eastern Kentucky. Four school districts—Lawrence, Elliott, Boyd and Montgomery counties—are using mini-grants to buy weathervanes, thermometers, rain gauges, wind indicators and other weather-watching equipment.

Part of Montgomery county's grant will supply a bird blind, binoculars and a feeding station for each of three elementary schools. Fairview is also building bird watching stations, with bird houses, fencing and the like paid for by the EQC mini-grant. Parents and custodians will build the stations.

Originally, the mini-grants were part of a larger project funded with $10,000 by the EQC in December, 1974 "to develop an environmental ethic in the young people of Kentucky," according to Jackie Swigart, EQC chairman.

The grant sponsored a series of Department of Education workshops that trained environmental education coordinators to administer programs in school districts around the state. Money left after the workshops were held in the spring of 1975 was to be distributed as mini-grants to interested schools.

However, the mini-grant idea proved so popular, Blankenship said, that the requests far exceeded the amount left in the EQC grant.

The EQC awarded a subsequent grant of $5,000 to support environmental education projects proposed by school districts throughout Kentucky.
