

ADD Board Approves 5 Area Works Asks Federal Funds For 'Package' Plan; Prospect Said Good

The Big Sandy Area Development District board, last Monday night, reaffirmed its support of five projects which it had earlier designated as being of highest priority to the five counties included in the district.

The "October 16 package", so named for the date last fall when the board first outlined the projects, was given A-95 review approval at Monday night's board meeting at Jenny Wiley State Park, officially designating the projects as those most vital to the valley. The A-95 designation amounts to the ADD board's official OK to proposals and projects seeking federal funding which are reviewed in the board's function as a regional clearing panel.

Approved by the board were the following projects, listed with federal funds asked:

1. Beaver-Elkhorn water district, involving extension of water service to 150 families, $300,000.
2. Prestonsburg water plant expansion, $900,000.
3. Paintsville water plant expansion, $900,000.
4. Pike county-Shelby water and Douglas industrial sites, $1.6 million.
5. Salyersville cut-through, $1.4 million.

Funding for the projects would come through federal agencies such as the Appalachian Regional Commission, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Economic Development Administration and Farm, Home Administration, as well as a significant amount of local funding.

Joe McCauley, Big Sandy ADD executive director, said the approval of the "package" reflected the board's (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

State Police Book Three Garrett Men In Johnson County

Three Garrett men were booked at the Johnson county jail on burglary charges last Monday afternoon shortly after their arrest by state police in connection with the apparent breaking and entering of a Staffordville home.

Death Penalty Ruled Invalid by Judge

In what could prove to be a landmark decision in Kentucky jurisprudence, Johnson Circuit Judge W. B. Hazelrigg Monday struck down the state's capital punishment statute as unconstitutional.

The ruling came during pre-trial motions in the trial of George Herman Cleaver, 21, of Michigan, on charges of murder-armed robbery.

Hazelrigg, in his ruling, declared unconstitutional the discretionary powers of the commonwealth attorney to ask for the death penalty in crimes involving murder and armed robbery.

This is in opposition to those state statutes passed by the 1974 General Assembly which say that commonwealth attorneys can "elect" to try a murder-armed robbery charge as a Class A felony.

Judge Hazelrigg, however, based his ruling on the 1972 U. S. Supreme Court decision which struck down the death penalty because of the arbitrary discretionary powers it granted juries in the area of death penalties.

In pre-trial argument, Cleaver's defense attorney, James Early, had argued that Kentucky law had shifted discretionary powers ruled unconstitutional for juries by the Supreme Court to commonwealth attorneys in the state. Early contended that giving commonwealth attorneys such power is also unconstitutional. Hazelrigg's decision upheld this argument.

Judge Hazelrigg asked Johnson County Commonwealth Attorney Eugene Rice, who had asked the death penalty in his pre-trial motions, to appeal his decision to the Kentucky Supreme Court "immediately" and to ask the Attorney General's office for instruction on procedure.

Cleaver is charged with intentional murdering by robbery in the first degree in the slaying of Mrs. Sandra Ward Penix, of Boons Camp, last May. The 31-year-old mother of two was in charge of the postoffice-grocery which she and her husband, Postmaster John Melvin Penix, operated at Boons Camp.

Cleaver was brought from Johnson county to the jail here for safekeeping the day of the slaying, May 22.

Federal authorities did not enter the case.

The trial opened Monday with 11 jurors selected. It was resumed at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Parking Lots, Day Care Among Points Cited

Months of preparation and planning by a group of Prestonsburg-Floyd County Area Chamber of Commerce representatives were rewarded Friday when Prestonsburg was among 16 communities statewide receiving the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce's "All-Kentucky City" designation.

Announcement of the winning communities, which were selected from a total of 49 finalists, came at the state Chamber's All-Kentucky City Awards luncheon held at the Bluegrass Convention Center in Louisville. The actual presentation of the awards was made by state Chamber President John A. Reisz, and William L. Short, state development secretary.

Friday's award was the second time Prestonsburg has received the honor, the first being in 1968.

The award was the culmination of work begun by the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Area Chamber in August of last year. It was then that Chamber President Ted Nairn and the Chamber's All-Kentucky City committee, headed by Estill Lee Carter, began the task of identifying instances of community improvement and development. These were compiled in the form of a slide presentation-narrative and submitted first to judging in regional competition at Paintsville in November, and later in the finals held December 16 in Frankfort.

Including the communities entered in regional competition, a total of 73 vied for the All-Kentucky City awards.

Communities compete in 11 categories and must score "excellent" in at least six of these. Competition categories include such areas as utilities and services, streets and parking improvements, industrial development, energy conservation, and others, such as hospitality. Presentations are limited to 15 minutes.

Prestonsburg's presentation stressed such community accomplishments as the doubling of off-street parking space, opening of two new day-care centers, a broadened recreational program for residents of city housing, sewage and water plant improvements and expansion, sidewalk construction on South Lake Drive and the paving of alleys and other street improvements.

Nairn said the judges, who in all cases are made up of out-of-state residents who are themselves involved in community work, look not so much for the procurement of huge federal grants, for example, but for indications of community involvement and enthusiasm as

Workman Extradition Delay Caused by Michigan Inaction

For almost a year now Governor Julian Carroll and the Kentucky attorney general have been trying to help Floyd county get Bobby Workman returned to this county from Michigan for trial on a murder charge—without success.

It began with Workman's indictment on a charge of slaying James M. Chafins, whose body was found at the roadside on Arkansas Creek, May 4, 1969. Harold Stumbo, commonwealth's attorney at that time, asked the governor to make requisition on the governor of Michigan for Workman's return here. Stumbo was told extradition was "in the works," but nothing came of it.

Shortly before leaving the prosecutor's office for that of county attorney, he called on Frankfort officials for help.

Governor Carroll on Jan. 8 wrote Michigan Gov. Wm. G. Milliken, reminding him that he had made requisition for Workman's extradition last April 24 and that "all attempts to expedite his extradition have been unsuccessful." Again he asked Gov. Milliken's immediate attention to the matter.

On Jan. 6 Attorney General Robert F. Stephens wrote Stumbo that all papers supplied by him were in order.

Big Sandy CAP Awarded Funds

$1,113,000 in federal funds has been awarded Big Sandy Community Action Program, Paintsville, which is the Community Action Agency for this and surrounding counties.

The funds are to be used to implement the Job Opportunities program to provide jobs for low-income unemployed who fall below federal poverty guidelines.

In addition, the funds will be used to subsidize winterization and transportation programs already underway. Both programs are geared to the low-income and the elderly.

Funds in lesser amounts have been announced as $15,000 for a full-time Head Start program and $21,384 for energy conservation.

Head Start furnished pre-school training for children from low-income families as well as providing social, nutritional, medical and dental services. Under the energy conservation program are included prevention of utility cut-offs, repair and winterization of homes.

Announcement of these funds for CAP was made by Gov. Julian M. Carroll and C. Leslie Dawson, secretary of the Young Man Is Victim of Crash

Nineteen-year-old Kenneth Russell Webb, Jr., of West Van Lear, was the victim last Friday evening of injuries incurred when his car ran under the bed of a coal truck on U. S. 23 near the Porter Elementary School in Johnson county.

After a door was removed from the car, Webb was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center where he died a short time later. Ironically, the driver of the ambulance was his brother-in-law.

The truck, driven by Gary L. Keever, of Raceland, reportedly came onto the highway some 200 feet north of the scene of the accident. Keever and passengers

No charges have been filed by state police who investigated the accident.

The victim was a son of Kenneth Russell and Marguerite Webb, of West Van Lear and was a student at Mayo Vocational School.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Cornelia Reffett, of Paintsville, and Mrs. Jennifer Caudill, of Auxier, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh Wagner, of West Van Lear.

Funeral services were conducted at 1 p.m., Monday, at Preston-Jones Funeral Home in Paintsville, and burial was made in West Van Lear.

Protest Condition of Road

Residents of the Right Fork of Big Branch of Little Mud Creek at Honaker informed school personnel at Betsy Layne and Harold Elementary school, Tuesday, that they would no longer allow their children to attend either school until the road on which the children must travel each day is improved.

More than 30 school children must walk the long, muddy road each day which winds up the Right Fork, and in wet periods deep "pot holes" and mud several inches deep makes the walk difficult at best. Residents claim that during much of the year, older people, and those sick or handicapped do well to negotiate the road at all. Travel by all but truck is extremely difficult and the road is far too narrow for a school bus.

Residents say the county bought the road in 1974 and blame the condition of the road to a lack of official attention. Four months of almost daily requests for action, they claim, have gone unanswered.

Fire Closes School At Maytown Monday

A fire Monday morning at Maytown elementary school forced evacuation of the school and postponement of the day's classes, although actual damage to the facility was light.

Maytown Fire Department Chief Edward F. Robinson said the blaze originated between two concrete walls where scrap paper had apparently been deposited by students through a hole in the outside wall. The only real damage, he said, resulted when it was necessary to open another hole into the school's basement to make sure the flames had not spread.

Classes at Maytown were resumed Tuesday.

Name Local Leaders For C/F Fund Drive

Dr. Virginia DeGuzman, of Martin, and Mrs. Donald A. Willis, of Prestonsburg, have been named chairmen in their communities of the Breath of Spring Bike-A-Thon to fight children's lung-damaging diseases, according to Stanley H. Tichenor, president of the Bluegrass Chapter, Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Mrs. Willis and Dr. DeGuzman will lead local volunteers in organizing a Bike-A-Thon in Prestonsburg and Martin. The funds that are raised will support research and care programs for children affected by lung-damaging diseases like cystic fibrosis, severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, and bronchiectasis.

The Bike-A-Thon will be held sometime during March or April, 1976.

Approximately one of every 1,500 babies are born with cystic fibrosis, which is still incurable. Cystic fibrosis is inherited when both parents are carriers of the recessive gene which causes cystic fibrosis and it is believed that ten million Americans are symptomless carriers of this gene. Current research funded by the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is seeking a practical test to identify these carriers, as well as a cure for cystic fibrosis and better methods of treatment for all lung-damaging diseases.

'75 Very Good Year For KET in State

Frankfort, Ky.—Seven-day-a-week programming, an interview with gubernatorial candidates, a 66-page report of KET's impact on Kentucky, nationwide distribution on its GED series, public affairs programming, a translator at Falmouth... these are but a few of the achievements for Kentucky Educational Television (KET) during 1975.

The year began with GOV. Julian M. Carroll's State of the Commonwealth address, Feb. 7. This was Gov. Carroll's first address to the citizens of the Commonwealth and marked the first time a State of the State address had been presented live in the KET studios. Gov. Carroll was sworn in as the state's chief executive Dec. 28, 1975, following the resignation of Wendell H. Ford.

Two weeks later, KET telecast live the drawings for both the boys' and girls' high school basketball tournaments, another first. Also in February, the first executive cabinet meeting ever televised went out on KET.

March was a big month for KET. March 7-17 the public television network conducted Festival '75, a statewide campaign to raise funds for expanded programming. KET also presented the March USDA Crop Report and the semifinals and finals of the state girls' high school basketball tourney, live from Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond.

July 5, KET began seven-day-a-week programming, a result of the funds received during Festival '75. July 28, the network broadcast public hearings by the Interim Committee on Judiciary. The committee heard testimony on proposed legislation dealing with parole, judicial sentencing, and a special grand jury for Jefferson County.

July also brought a 66-page report from a 10-member KET Study Commission. The commission, chaired by retired Lt. Gen. John H. Hay of Cadiz, studied the short- and long-range goals of KET and assessed KET's impact on the Commonwealth. The commission, composed of lay citizens from across the state, felt that KET has made great progress since it went on the air in 1968 but that it has not yet reached its potential. With the study came a series of recommendations the commission felt would help KET obtain its potential.

In September, KET celebrated its seventh birthday with the addition of a translator for Falmouth residents (giving KET 13 transmitters and six translators covering Kentucky), an announced power increase for the Covington transmitter (Channel 54), the September USDA Crop Report and an earth-space science series produced by KET. The latter, The Universe and I, is designed for Kentucky's junior high school students.

Sunday, Oct. 19, Gov. Julian Carroll and his Republican opponent in the November general election, Robert Gable, were interviewed in the KET studios by Al Smith, president of the Kentucky Press Association and other journalists. The program was carried live by KET, as were other productions organized by and offered to radio and television stations across Kentucky for live or delayed broadcast.

KET also televised the inauguration and inaugural parade of Gov. Carroll on Dec. 9.

During 1975: —KET's General Equivalency Development (GED) series, designed to help adults finish high school, was utilized in several other states. The Department of Defense purchased 32 complete sets for use at American military bases overseas;

—KET began extensive public affairs programming with Comment on Kentucky. Al Smith interviewed key Kentucky figures such as Gov. Carroll, former Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler and U. S. Sens. Walter (Dee) Huddleston and Wendell Ford; Kentucky Magazine, a television program with a magazine format about people, places and events in Kentucky; Distinguished Kentuckian, a conversation with noteworthy citizens of Kentucky, such as former UK Coach Adolph Rupp, former Gov. Bert T. Combs, Barry Bingham Sr., Chloe Gifford and Joy Bale; The (Kentucky) Penal Code, a 14-part series explaining the penal code which went into effect in Kentucky on Jan. 1, 1975; legislative hearings; programs from Kentucky's universities and colleges; and special programs of interest to all Kentuckians, produced in cooperation with commercial stations;

—KET continued its on-going reception campaign to help Kentuckians receive better signals from KET's transmitters.

During 1975, KET made strides toward fulfilling the needs of Kentucky's citizens an effort which will continue during 1976 and coming years.

a charge of possession of stolen property. Sheriff Lewis said a knife found in Robinson's possession has been traced to the Right Beaver Food Market, which was broken into on January 13. Robinson was also charged with sale of illegal drugs after an affidavit by Jerry Combs (see preceding paragraph) told of a purchase of marijuana from Robinson. Robinson remained in jail Tuesday.

The apparent lull in activity of lawbreakers in the county over the past two months seems to have ended this week, as 27 persons occupied the county jail Sunday morning. In weeks before, the jail cells held as few as six.

Those booked at the jail over the past week, charges against each, and arresting officers follow:

James Smith, drunk driving, by State Police Sgt. Delmar Laferty; Henry Lewis, drunk driving, by State Trooper Shelton; Darrell Stratton, drunk driving, by State Trooper Shelton; James E. Gibson, drunk driving, by State Trooper Weedman; Leonard Anderson, drunk driving, by State Trooper J. Goble; Joe D. Stumbo, drunk driving and carrying a concealed deadly weapon, by State Trooper Stumbo; Tommy Greene, drunk driving, by State Trooper Goble; Randall Gilliam, drunk driving, by State Trooper Shelton; Shelby Mullins, drunk driving, by State Trooper Hardin; Calvin Ousley, drunk driving and no operator's license, by Constable Bob Hackworth; Randall Bowling, drunk driving, by State Trooper Goble; Jerry Smith, drunk driving, by State Trooper Hardin; Dave Collins, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, by Constable Bob Hackworth; Glenn Kidd, drunk driving, by State Trooper Castle; Larry D. Lafferty, drunk driving, by City Policemen Darrel Conley and D. Chaffins; Richard Fairchild, drunk driving, by City Policemen Darrel Conley; Ruby Hardee, drunk driving and no operator's license, by City Policeman Dick Campbell; Marvin Fannin, Jr., drunk driving and reckless driving, by City Policemen Darrel Conley; Jeff Stacy, drunk driving and reckless driving, by City Policemen Darrel Conley.

Drug Cases Tried In Circuit Court

Two men were tried during the past week's session of Floyd Circuit Court on separate charges of the sale of illegal drugs. Verdicts returned by the jury saw the dismissal of one charge and a reduction in the other.

Indictment against Roger Voelker was dismissed during last Wednesday's session after the jury concluded that evidence against Voelker, a bag of marijuana, was illegally seized by officers who, it was claimed, searched his car without first obtaining a warrant.

A similar charge against Mike Halbert stemming from an alleged marijuana transaction on February 7, a year ago, was amended to a charge of possession of marijuana on the recommendation of the Commonwealth's Attorney. Halbert was fined $500.

Of six cases involving theft, two were dismissed, one was continued, and three were found guilty.

Paul Shepherd pleaded guilty to a charge of third degree burglary which stemmed from the May 17 robbery of the East Ky. Auto Parts store here. Similar charges against Perry Conley, also named in connection with the incident, were dismissed, and the case against an alleged third party in the burglary, Odie Rife, of Knott county, was continued, since whereabouts of Rife could not be ascertained.

Charges of first degree burglary and knowingly receiving stolen property against James Dennis Shepherd were reduced to third degree burglary and he was given a one-year probated sentence in Monday's court session. Shepherd was charged with the theft of a chain saw and a quantity of tools in June of last year.

Also given a one-year, probated sentence was Elzie Webb, Jr., who pleaded guilty to charges of stealing a bicycle last July 4th.

Theft charges against Harold Lloyd Prater were dropped during last Tuesday's session after he was found not guilty of stealing a quantity of toys.

In other cases during the week, terroristic threatening charges against Ray, Joyce and Byrd Adkins were dismissed; a child desertion case against Danny Anderson was stricken from the docket; and a child desertion case against Sterling Daniels, Jr., was continued.

Friday will be the last meeting of the January term of Circuit Court.

The sermon was entitled "From Abraham to Augustine."

well as such things as commercial development. "You don't compete against other communities, actually," said Nairn, "you compete against yourself." The goal of a presentation, he explained, is to convince the judges that a community has not stood still in terms of development, but has, in fact, bettered itself in the past year.

Besides Prestonsburg, All-Kentucky City award winners in Eastern Kentucky included Harlan, Middlesboro, Somerset, Monticello, and Ashland. Other winners were Providence, Richmond, Warsaw, Georgetown, Fulton, Elizabethtown, Central City, Carrollton, Bowling Green, and Ashland.

contention that the designation of a few projects which are considered of greatest importance to the district would result in a more productive strategy in terms of procuring federal funding for the area than if a whole host of projects were submitted for possible funding.

"We feel that approval of these five priorities is the best approach," McCauley said, and he added, "I'll be extremely surprised and unhappy if everyone of the projects are not federally approved and funded."

McCauley said because only five projects were approved for federal funding he expects protest from sections which will not be affected by federal money. "We have to think about what's best for the five county area as a whole," McCauley pointed out, and "people will hopefully realize that we're simply trying to identify the most pressing needs in the area."

There was some disagreement to the board's philosophy in approving the package voiced by those who contended that HUD might look more favorably upon an area that had a multitude of applications, indicating a multitude of needs. Board chairman Dr. W. C. Hambley, of Pikeville cautioned the group that it was "virtually impossible to second guess HUD."

McCauley told the ADD directors to expect a more active role in implementing programs. "We are moving from the Ford-Nunn-Breathitt era, as planners to become implementors. This has been done to some degree on family planning and aging services for some time." He added, "Gov. Carroll is encouraging ADDs to move gradually into implementation of certain types of programs. Additionally, more and more responsibility or decisions and priorities are being handed you on the local level," he concluded.

The board tentatively scheduled a training and information session for February. The meeting would consist of a number of seminars, each designed to educate board members and familiarize them with programs which they would likely encounter.

The Big Sandy Area Development District includes the counties of Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Pike.

walkie-talkies and two pistols from the home of Bill Pelfrey.

According to Mrs. Pelfrey, who was alone at the time of the incident, she was called to the store which she operates in a front section of the house by one of the Shipley brothers. A dog barking in the house aroused her suspicion that something was wrong and she called state police as soon as the man had left the store. The three were soon arrested in a wooded area behind the house and the stolen goods, which had been discarded near the house, were recovered.

Bond for the three was set at $10,000.

Mrs. Tommy Kidd, who informed the schools of the Right Fork parents' decision said, "The principals of the schools don't blame us and are behind us 100 per cent." She said she hoped this action would bring official response to the residents' needs. "If they can send a man to the moon," she said, "I know they can fix a little stretch of road."

INVITE BIRDS TO YOUR HOME

By ROSLYN H. BURCHETT

More and more people enjoy having attractive, colorful birds around our homes during cold, snowy weather, such as we have recently had. One of our greatest thrills around our home is seeing a new variety of bird come to our feeders in the backyard. A few days ago, we observed eight different varieties all at the same time, including cardinals, blue jays, wrens, a tufted titmouse, chickadees, towhees, robins, song sparrows, and American redstarts.

Since we live on the edge of a wooded area in Prestonsburg, we see the birds feeding on sumac, elderberries, dogwood, pokeberries, and other kinds of natural food, but these don't last all winter. To keep them around, we feed them corn, birdseed, suet, cornbread crumbs and other things we have around thehouse. They particularly seem to enjoy cornbread crumbs.

My parents have always fed, protected and kept birdhouses for the birds. My father protected the bluebirds' nests from cats and other predators which would harm them, by placing screen wire or other barriers around the posts where they build. We were taught to appreciate birds and were never allowed to shoot them with BB guns, slingshots, or other missiles which children sometimes thoughtlessly use.

For a free copy of "Invite Birds to Your Home", call the Soil Conservation Service in each county, or the Big Sandy RC&D Project office in Prestonsburg, at 886-8012, or come by either office and pick up a copy.

Add a little color to your life during this dreary weather—"feed the birds".

IT WASN'T SPRING, BUT HOW WAS SNAKE TO KNOW?

The year's first report of a black snake sighting came Tuesday from the Big Branch of Abbott Creek.

The serpent was spotted Saturday after it had apparently surfaced in response to Saturday's mild, wet weather, and was quickly dispatched by Big Branch residents Forest Conley and Tom Allen.

Mrs. Conley reported that her little girl first told her of the sighting, saying, "Mommy, it must be spring, daddy just got through killing a black snake."

Flood Plan Adopted By Fiscal Court

The Floyd fiscal court, which has for months resisted compliance to the Federal Flood Insurance Act, approved last Wednesday a resolution adopting emergency flood insurance for the county.

The Act which offers little in the way of alternatives demands that counties and incorporated communities comply with the provisions it sets forth or be penalized with denial of loans for construction in areas not covered by the insurance program.

The fiscal court, early in December, chose non-compliance, reflecting the fear of the court concerning the complicated zoning and land-use regulations which fiscal court members felt would be likely to result from compliance.

Wednesday's official approval of the adoption of emergency flood insurance coverage came in response to mounting pressures stemming from the likely consequences of non-compliance to the federal regulations. Under the provisions of the Act, non-compliance would mean that no financial institution which is federally regulated would be permitted to loan money for construction to persons proposing such development in areas not covered by flood insurance.

Actually, few have taken a firm stand on the issue of compliance vs. non-compliance since almost no one has come close to fully understanding the ambiguous nature of the federal regulations.

One point which was cleared up as the result of a recent study by an attorney for a Prestonsburg financial institution, was that concerning uninsured areas which are not necessarily cut off from borrowing at federally regulated lending institutions. The study showed that although Prestonsburg and Wheelwright are the only incorporated communities in the county which are in compliance with the Flood Insurance Act, property located in any area of the county that has not been identified as flood prone by the Housing and Urban Development Administration (HUD) may retain borrowing privileges from banks or other institutions which operate under federal regulations.

Flood-prone areas have been delineated by maps provided by the U. S. Corps of Engineers and which set the flood-hazard area boundary at the highest flood stage on record. Objections to this basis for formulation of the maps have been argued by those who point out that the maps do not take into consideration the flood protection offered by recent construction of dams and flood walls.

Rep. Deskins Asks Higher Jurors' Fees

Frankfort—A bill to raise jurors' fees has been introduced in the House of Representatives by Herbert Deskins, Jr., (D). He stated that House Bill 277 would raise the pay given to citizens for jury service from the present $5. per day to $15. per day. Another feature of the bill provides for payment of $30. a day to those who serve on sequestered or guarded juries such as during murder trials.

Deskins commented, "With today's high price of gasoline and food, the average citizen loses money by serving on a jury. This bill will not make jury service a profitable experience financially but will at least allow a person to serve and not have to spend his own money to do so."

Another Deskins sponsored bill would provide for a county attorney to hire as many assistants as the local fiscal court would authorize. The assistants could be paid by the fees collected in the office.

Currently, only one assistant is allowed by state law in counties with a population less than 75,000.

Both bills have been referred to committee.

Deskins is state representative from the 94th District, Pike and Floyd counties.

Woman's Club News

The Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club program on international relations was presented by Mrs. J. T. Spillman in the form of current events at last Monday evening's meeting at the home of Mrs. S. M. Martin, Wayland.

Mrs. Spillman gave a rundown of happenings around the world, not only in the various areas of upheaval caused by war, but also on the home front where the country is beset by crimes of violence. The speaker stressed the importance of being informed through all means of communication.

Prior to the program, Mrs. Otto Martin read the Club Collect and Mrs. J. T. Spillman gave the devotions, followed by the Pledge to the Flag by Mrs. Don Hughes. The American Creed and the Freedom Pledge were read by Mrs. Otto Martin.

During the business session later, motion was unanimously carried to continue support of the drive for the purchase of a fire truck for the Area Volunteer Fire Department which will include Lackey, Garrett, and Wayland. It was pointed out by the president, Mrs. J. C. Wells, that even after the initial purchase is made and the truck is in service, it will take a continuing effort to secure the monthly payments for the balance of the purchase price. A number of the club members have worked through the past year with local townspeople in cooking, sewing, selling, to help bring the fund to its present amount. A nominating committee was selected to nominate officers for the coming club year: Mrs. Marie Mullins, Chairman, Mrs. Mervil Dixon, Mrs. Otto Martin, Mrs. Bobby Joe Castle, and Mrs. J. T. Spillman.

Mrs. Wells reminded the members of the club's practice of giving cupcakes to the Golden Years' Rest Home on Valentine's Day and ladies were appointed to be responsible for collecting the cupcakes at both Wayland and Garrett and transporting them to the rest home. PLANS FOR SHAH OF IRAN'S FAMILY CHANGE AFTER THREAT ZURICH, Switzerland—The shah of Iran's family changed plans for their annual Swiss holiday after being warned that an international terrorist, "Carlos," might strike this month in Switzerland, official sources said Friday.

Sources in Switzerland said Empress Farah Diba and her children canceled reservations they had made in a Zurich luxury hotel. The sources said the empress went instead to an unidentified spot in the French Alps.

"Carlos," an alias for Ilyich Ramirez Sanchez, was reported to have led the terrorist raid on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' headquarters in Vienna last month in which three persons were killed and more than 100 taken hostage, including Iran's oil minister.

Hagan To Appear On KET, Feb. 12

Frankfort, Ky.—Former University of Kentucky All-American Cliff Hagan, who is now athletic director at his alma mater, is one of Curt Gowdy's guests Thursday, February 12 at 8 p.m. (EST), 7 p.m. (CST) on Kentucky Educational Television's "The Way It Was."

Hagan, an Owensboro native who played in both the NBA and ABA professional basketball leagues, played in the 1957 and 1958 NBA championship series for the St. Louis Hawks against the Boston Celtics.

Hagan and former teammates Ed Macauley and Bo Pettit team with the Celtics' former coach Red Auerbach and players Bill Sharman and Tommy Heinsohn as they talk about some of the highlights from both championships.

The program discussion centers around a telephone call. The trade that sent young Bill Russell to the Celtics and triggered a championship dynasty unparalleled in sports could have collapsed but for a single phone call that held the deal together.

That inside glimpse into heretofore untold National Basketball Association history is told by Easy Ed Macauley, who went to the St. Louis Hawks with Hagan for the right to Russell in the deal.

"The trade almost wasn't made," Macauley says, revealing that he got a phone call from an anxious Walter Brown, owner of the Boston team.

"He told me that Red wanted to make the deal. And Walter said, 'But I don't want to make it. You're a Celtic,' he said, and to this day I believe he was sincere about it."

"We had a situation in my family where my oldest son had meningitis in Boston that past winter. So my wife and I didn't know whether I would even be playing basketball the next year. And I said to Walter, 'You know, it would help me to come back (for another season), because that is my home (St. Louis). You'd be helping me to make the deal.'"

Auerbach, the cigar-munching firebrand of the hardwood, explained that trade from another viewpoint—why he as a coach dealt away two of the game's big names for Russell.

"It was kind of a risk," he admits. "However, we never could get anywhere without the guy to get the ball. Our game is predicated on the fast break. To start, you've got to get that ball and get it out."

PHS Beats Morgan; Loses to Rebels

The Prestonsburg high school Blackcats made Friday night's 1976 Basketball Homecoming a happy one by easily beating Morgan county, 79-62. Prestonsburg failed to make it two in a row, however, as they were dealt a 62-55 loss the following night by the Allen Central Rebels.

In the game with Morgan county, P-burg led 37-30 at halftime and held the lead for the remainder of the game. High scorer for the Blackcats was guard Greg Dixon, with 15 points. Others contributing points for PHS included Grady Stephens, 12; Mike Dixon, 11; Ricky Morgan, 8; David LeMaster, 6; Tim Crisp, 6; Jeff Burchett, 2; Gary Shepherd, 9; David Harmon, 4, and Jimmy Patton, 6.

Saturday night's halftime score saw Allen Central leading the Blackcats by a score of 31-28. The Rebels maintained the lead, increasing it to the seven point winning margin which they held at the game's end. Rebel forward Rick Pack was high scorer for Allen Central as well as high scorer for the game with a total of 20 points. Wayne Scarberry turned in a fine performance with 19. Other Rebel scorers included Doug Bailey, 12; Charlie Slone, 2; Wes Pace, 5; Rick Prater, 2, and Jack Holthouse, 2.

Prestonsburg's high scorer was Ricky Morgan with 14. Others hitting for the Cats were Tim Crisp, 10; Jeff Burchett, 7; Grady Stephens, 10; David LeMaster, 6; Gary Shepherd, 4; Mike Dixon, 1; Greg Dixon, 3, and Jimmy Patton, 1.

1975 Death Rate Up On Waterways

Frankfort, Ky.—Deaths from boating and other water-related accidents in Kentucky rose nearly 15 per cent during 1975.

And according to figures just released by the state's Division of Water Enforcement here, that increase presented a marked contrast to 1974 when the total number of boating and other water-related deaths dropped by an even five per cent.

Boat-related fatalities, which include such incidents as collisions, falling overboard and capsizing, accounted for 54 deaths in 1973, 34 in 1974 and 45 in 1975.

Other water-related fatalities—principally drownings where a boat was not involved—resulted in 103 deaths in 1973, 115 in 1974 and 126 in 1975.

Slightly over 60 per cent of the 1975 boat-related deaths were attributed to capsizing and falling overboard. Approximately 15 per cent of the deaths in both those categories were further attributed to drinking.

Of the 126 persons killed in non-boat-related accidents during 1975, most—or about 68—drowned while swimming, diving, trying to save someone else or wading into deep water or a hole.

Next in line were drownings in cars that ran off the road (12) and drowning-suicides (10).

The Ohio River, which claimed 40 victims, stood out in the report as the state's most dangerous waterway last year. The Kentucky River, with 12 deaths, was next.

The report also discussed that the highest percentage of boat-related deaths fell into the 20-29 age group. The age group hardest hit by non-boat-related fatalities was between 13-19 years.

Harbison Is Named To New State Post

Frankfort, Ky.—The appointment of J. R. Harbison, of Frankfort, as Executive Engineering Assistant to the Commission of Highways was announced today by Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts.

The appointment is effective February 1, Roberts said.

Harbison, who has served as State Highway Engineer since 1970, resigned that post effective January 31.

In making the announcement, the secretary pointed out that he, Roberts, holds both assignments, Secretary of Transportation and Highway Commissioner. "In this position Bob Harbison will act as my assistant and professional advisor in matters involving the highway program," he explained.

Harbison, a professional engineer, started his career with the old department of highways in 1950 after graduation from the University of Kentucky with a degree in civil engineering. Since then he has held a number of progressively responsible assignments in design, construction and planning.

He was away from Kentucky between 1963 and 1965 when he served as advisor to the government of Thailand under a U. S. aid program.

Harbison is a native of Ashland. He and his wife, the former Sue Chandler, of Paintsville, now live in Frankfort. Their daughter Susan is a student at Franklin County High School.

In 1946 Willard Jilson and Victor Doge made new excavations near the main Blue Lick Springs and discovered many bone specimens, including a fine tusk. They were placed in the park museum here.

The main purpose of the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of International Labor Affairs is to represent the interests of American workers in trade and tariff matters and to administer a trade adjustment assistance program for workers adversely affected by import competition.

List Chief Causes Of Death in State

Frankfort, Ky.—Heart disease, cancer and stroke claimed the lives of nearly 23,000 persons aged 35 and over in 1974 according to vital statistics released by the Department for Human Resources (DHR).

Heart disease caused the death of some 13,000 Kentuckians over the age of 34. Cancer killed almost 6,000 in the same age group and nearly 4,000 died of stroke (cerebrovascular disease).

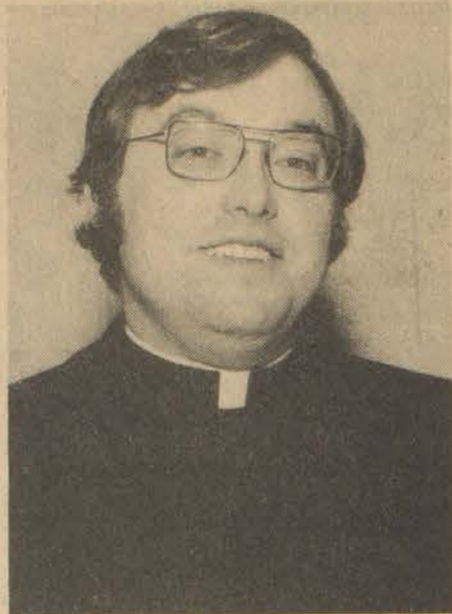

"Heart disease, the number one killer, is accountable for two out of every five Kentucky deaths," said DHR statistician Bill Mackey.

"Kentuckians under 35 die most frequently of accidents, especially highway accidents. But heart disease jumps from number five to number one on the list of leading causes of death for persons 35 and older," he said.

The 953 lives lost due to heart disease in the 45-54 age group is more than triple the 238 heart victims aged 35 to 44. The number more than doubles again among persons 55 to 64 who died of heart disease (2,088).

Accidents are the fourth leading cause of death among Kentuckians over 35. More than 200 of the total 294 deaths from falls were persons 65 and older.

Consumer Comments

Some Kentuckians who are subscribers to book, record or other mail order programs returned from extended Christmas vacations and found notices asking them if they wanted to purchase one of the selections. They also had received the selection in question. This results when a business uses a negative option plan.

Frequently book, record and other businesses offer this type of buying arrangement. The company periodically sends subscribers an announcement which identifies merchandise it proposes to send to the subscriber. The subscriber will receive it and be billed for it unless he or she notifies the company on a specified form and by a specified date that the company is not to send the offered merchandise.

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) requires that companies allow at least 10 days for the consumer to return the form stating they do not want a particular month's offering or selection. If you feel that you are not receiving adequate time to return the form, report this to the Kentucky Attorney General's Office, Division of Consumer Protection, or the FTC.

Many consumers who join these plans find they are receiving and reluctantly paying for merchandise they do not want. If you receive merchandise which was previously rejected through a timely mailing of your option card, you are due a credit for the merchandise and reimbursement of return postage. While the company has a right to have its merchandise returned in this situation, you don't have to pay for their mistake in sending it.

Other consumers receive unwanted merchandise because they neglect to read and understand the conditions of the negative option plan. These conditions must be conspicuously set forth for a consumer to read and consider prior to electing to be bound by the company's offer of a negative option plan. Subscribers also receive unwanted merchandise simply because they neglect to return the option form.

Consumers who are considering utilizing one of these negative option plans should decide whether this is a good purchasing plan for them. If you travel a great deal, you may find unwanted merchandise awaiting your return, just because you were not there to receive and return the option card. Other consumers are plagued with the "put-it-off-until-later" syndrome. If you tend to forget details like mailing cards or meeting deadlines, consider this before you do business under a negative option plan.

Remember, it is your responsibility when you join a club with a negative option plan to be sure that you do not receive unwanted merchandise.

If you have a consumer complaint about the negative option plan or any other consumer complaint, contact the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, Room 34, Capitol Building, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. Kentucky residents may use the toll-free hotline: 1-800-372-2960.

Grant Assures Jobs As CETA Is Funded

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection recently received $145,000 to extend its CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) program through June 30. Forty persons are employed under the CETA program as conservation aides in the department's division of conservation and four persons are working as environmental control inspectors for the division of water quality.

The CETA program, which began last May, is funded by a grant through the Bureau for Manpower Services in the Kentucky Department for Human Resources.

"I'm very pleased to have this program extended for another six months," said Stanley Head, director of the division of conservation. "It's helped us provide aids to the state's conservation districts and it has eased the state's unemployment situation by opening up new job slots."

Head noted that a few of the conservation aides have found other jobs. "We're glad to see these people gain the training necessary to enter other jobs outside the CETA program," he said.

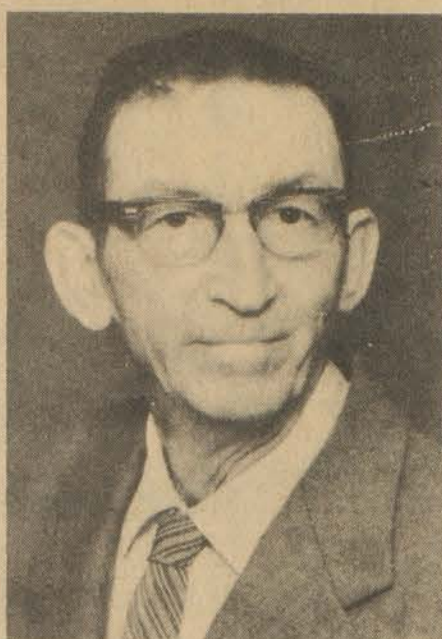

The 40 aides plan farm ponds, waterways, terraces and other conservation measures throughout Kentucky. Working out of conservation district offices, the CETA aides operate survey levels and survey equipment, design permanent conservation practices and assist with the layout and installation of many of those conservation measures.

Environmental control inspectors in the division of water quality observe and assist the division's field staff.

Retire from Columbia Gas Service

Tolva C. Likens

Bert Salisbury

Two employees of Columbia Gas of Kentucky in the Prestonsburg area will retire February 1, each with more than 23 years of service.

Tolva C. Likens, customer serviceman, and Bert Salisbury, street serviceman, both joined the gas company April 28, 1952 as laborers in Prestonsburg.

Likens, born at Grethel, served in the Navy from 1941 to 1947 and was associated with the Turner Elkhorn Mining Co. in Drift before joining the gas company. He and his wife, Jewelle, live at Route 1, Harold. His mother, Mrs. Emma Tackett, also is a resident of the Harold area.

Salisbury, born in Hunter, served in the Air Force from 1942 to 1946 and was employed in farming and timber work before joining the gas company. He lives at Hunter.

The U.S. Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration provides benefits to disabled federal employees and to longshoremen and harbor workers under workers' compensation laws.

Restricted Pesticides Are Listed by State

A complete list of restricted-use pesticides, for use by farmers as well as pesticide applicators and dealers, now is available from the state.

Fred Waters, head of the pesticide section of the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, said the list includes fungicides, herbicides, rodenticides and insecticides. Another list released recently by his office contained only insecticides.

The restricted-use fungicides are: acrolein, bis (tributyltin) sulfide, chlorinated levulinic acids, Actidrone, Biomet-14, ethylene oxide, formaldehyde, hexachlorobenzene, methyl bromide, methyl isothiocyanate and pentachlorophenol.

Herbicides on the restricted-use list are allyl alcohol and dinoseb and salts. The restricted-use rodenticides are: Gophacide, Bayluscide, fluoroacetamide and phosphorus.

"Growers, applicators and dealers should obtain a list of pesticides officially classified for restricted use by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency," Waters said. "And it's a great help in clarifying which of the 4,000 pesticides registered in Kentucky are for restricted use."

The list also gives the reason for the restriction, saying whether a pesticide is harmful to breathe, to the skin or to the environment generally. And, it provides the recommended concentration and ingredients of each product and whether special equipment is required for applying it.

To obtain a restricted-use pesticide list, contact the pesticide office, division of special program, Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, 6th Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call (502) 564-7274.

Southern Pine Beetle Target of Foresters

A major outbreak by the southern pine beetle, which already has a foothold in 12 southeastern Kentucky counties, is being battled by timber specialists at the Daniel Boone National Forest.

The tiny, rice-sized insect already has bored into the bark of thousands of pine trees scattered through some 151,700 acres of forest land in McCreary, Whitley, Leslie, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Laurel and Jackson counties. State forests and private woodlands in these and Knox, Bell, Harlan, Perry and Martin counties are affected. The infested spots vary from one to 250 trees.

This is the northern-most thrust by the insect which in 1975 ravaged 46 million acres of timber in 12 southern states. Although figures on the dollar value of damage are not available, the U. S. Forest Service estimates more than $1.6 million will be needed during the present fiscal year to battle the beetle in the southern states.

The Forest received in early January an initial $8,600 to mark infested trees under a salvage program similar to sales after the 1974 tornadoes. The recent cold spell slowed the beetle's spread and sales have been approved in an effort to remove the trees before warm weather, when the beetles become more active. In warmer months the insect could spread rapidly through the state's remaining pine areas, predominantly in the Daniel Boone National Forest and parts of eastern Kentucky.

The outbreak was detected in Kentucky this summer during an aerial survey by entomologists from the Forest Service's Pest Management Group, and the Kentucky Division of Forestry. Other aerial surveys were made during September and December. Based on plottings from the December flight, the forest is asking for several additional thousands of dollars to continue salvage operations through the remainder of the fiscal year.

The worst portion of the outbreak is in McCreary and Whitley counties, on the Stearns Ranger District. Curtis Cullum, a forester on the district, said most of the infestation is in the New Liberty area, where spots from one-half to 20 acres are affected. The district's first salvage contract was let December 11, and presently five operators are working to remove both infested trees and a buffer area up to 100 feet.

Kentucky's onto something!

Energy! All we need with plenty left over for the rest of the country. And raw carbon, that big basic used in everything from rubber to surgical steel.

Kentucky's onto coal. Just because coal's been around for several million years doesn't mean there's nothing new. We're learning how to dig it and not leave tracks how to burn it so nobody knows. We can convert it into gas, dissolve it into oil, even make fertilizer or the side. And we can do it all right here in Kentucky!

Coal is energy and energetic. Kentucky supplies more than one-fifth of all the nation's coal. In the future.

Kentucky coal could be providing forms of natural gas and oil as well. Science is clearing the way for a new age of coal, and Kentucky has plenty of it. Kentucky has an Ace in the Hole!

Floyd County Health Notes

A public health nurse will offer the following medical services Monday, February 2, at the Beaver Valley Clinic at Martin: immunizations, diabetes screening, Pap smears, TB skin tests and blood pressures.

These services will be available, free of charge, from 10 a.m. to 12 and from 1 to 2 p.m.

The health department reminds all women in the Martin vicinity that they should have a Pap smear at least once a year and that holding this clinic in your community provides a good opportunity for you to do so.

Venereal disease is the number one communicable disease in the nation. It is a "social" disease that is now epidemic. But you can help fight venereal disease by learning something about it. Learn what the symptoms are, how serious it can be, and where someone who is infected can be treated.

Remember, minors in Kentucky can be tested and treated for V.D. without their parents knowledge or consent. Anyone who suspects they have been exposed to venereal disease should get help from their private doctor or the Floyd County Health Department immediately.

Day Care Food Plan Open To More Units

ATLANTA, Ga.—The U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced regulations—effective until July 1—for the administration of an expanded food program for children in day care centers.

Officials of USDA's Food & Nutrition Service (FNS) said the Child Care Food program, created by Public Law 94-105, replaces and expands the old USDA day care program which operated under the Special Food Service Program for children. The program provides federal reimbursements for breakfasts, lunches, suppers and snacks served in eligible day care centers.

As a result of the new legislation, public and nonprofit private day care centers are now eligible for the program, FNS officials noted. This includes settlement houses, Head Start centers, family day care homes and recreation centers. Previously, the program was limited to day care centers serving areas of economic need or areas with a high concentration of working mothers.

The program is authorized by the new legislation to run to Sept. 30, 1978. To participate in it, the new regulations provide that day care centers must either have a tax exempt status, be moving toward that status, or participate in another federal program requiring nonprofit status. The day care program must also be non-residential and licensed or meet federal interagency day care requirements.

At the state level, the Child Care Food Program will be administered by the state education agency (or an alternate agency designated by the state), or the regional office of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service.

FNS officials said the regulations for the child care program also provide that:

—State agencies administering the program will review and approve applications, execute operating agreements, establish accounting procedures, and monitor participation;

—Sponsoring organizations for child care centers and family day care homes will be responsible for developing a plan for program management, providing supervisory assistance, maintaining food service records, and reimbursing the child care homes;

—Meals served under the day care programs must meet prescribed nutritional standards.

The regulations for the Child Care Food Program became effective Jan. 1 and appeared in the Federal Register of Jan. 2. Comments on the regulations are invited and will be accepted for a period of 45 days after publication. Revised regulations—taking into account comments received—will be published for implementation by July 1. These comments should be submitted to William G. Boing, National Program Manager, Child Nutrition Division, Food and Nutrition Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

Red River Gorge, Natural Landmark

WINCHESTER, Ky.—The Red River Gorge geological area has been designated a natural landmark by the U. S. Interior Department, a Daniel Boone National Forest spokesman said last week.

The 25,600-acre portion of the national forest was one of 25 areas nominated in October by the U. S. Forest Service, which manages the area.

"The designation will not change the Forest Service's management or protection of the area," said Jo Nadolski. "Under another Department of Agriculture designation, as a geological area, the Forest Service already manages the gorge to protect its natural and cultural resources."

"This does not mean additional money or additional management. It's just a way of saying this area is special."

Summer Food Program Proposed by USDA

ATLANTA, Ga.—Proposed regulations have been announced for a children's summer food program administered by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Food and Nutrition Service (FNS).

The Summer Food Service Program provides free meals to needy children during summer and vacation periods when schools are closed and lunch programs are not available.

William F. Griffith, Director of FNS Child Nutrition Programs in the Southeast, said the new regulations enact program changes legislated by Congress in the fall (P. L. 94-105).

The new law expands the summer program by making it available to residential summer camps. Before the new law, the program was limited to non-residential public and private (non-profit) institutions, Griffith noted.

As spelled out in the proposed regulations, summer camps and non-residential institutions can join the summer food program if one-third of the children they serve are from needy families.

USDA reimburses camps and institutions for meals they serve based on the number of children in their programs, and their food service costs, Griffith said. Maximum rates of reimbursement are established at 81.5 cents for lunches and suppers; 45 cents for breakfasts and, 21.25 cents for snacks. By March 1, these rates will be adjusted to reflect the change in the Consumer Price Index for the past year, Griffith added.

To help sponsors gear up for their summer and vacation feeding programs, the regulations note that start-up funds are available at the discretion of the states for initial planning and training efforts. While start-up funds are optional, however, states are required to advance funds to sponsors for actual program expenses. At the state level, the Summer Food Service Program for Children will be administered by state education agencies (or an alternate agency designated by the state) or the regional office of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service. In addition, two per cent of the money given to states for the program will be available for state administrative expenses, Griffith said.

In order for camps and institutions to join the Summer Food Service Program, the proposed regulations state that they must accept financial and administrative responsibility for the program; provide an adequate and trained staff to monitor and operate the program; certify that all places where children are to be fed have been visited and evaluated as adequate; and document the need of the area or children they serve.

State or regional offices administering the summer program are required under the proposed regulations to make sure sponsors don't offer more than the necessary number of food programs in an area; assure school food service facilities are used whenever possible; and, evaluate the capability of the sponsor's proposed food facility to serve more than one meal a day.

Three Floyd Countians Featured in Current Mountain Review Issue

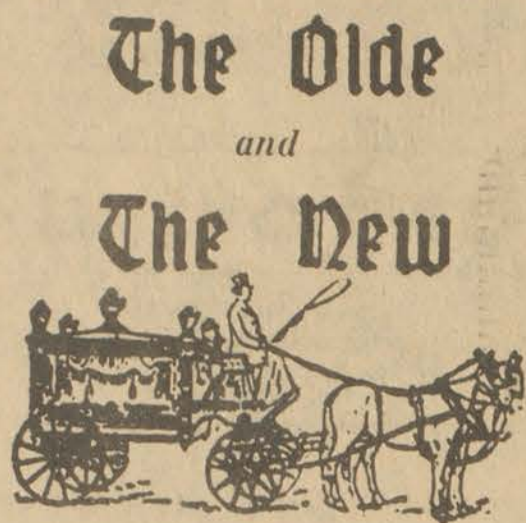

Work by three Floyd countians appears in the current issue of Mountain Review, a quarterly magazine published by Appalshop, Inc., in Whitesburg.

"The Last Hanging in Floyd County", an article by Charles Harmon, of East Point, recalls the local legend of the hanging of Gus Findley. The article is illustrated by artist Ken Ratcliff, a Floyd county native who now lives in Morehead.

An article by Henry Scaif of Stanville also appears in the current issue. Titled "The Unmaking of Appalachia," the article traces some of the history of the area, from the early settlement of Johns Creek in 1790 up to the stripmining controversies of today.

Mountain Review publishes articles, stories, poems, photography and art work by mountain people dealing with all aspects of life in the mountains.

Copies of the current issue are now on sale in some Floyd county stores, or they can be ordered by writing to Mountain Review, Box 743-A, Whitesburg, 41858.

Receives Army Commendation Medal

Sp-4 James E. Robinson (right) receives the Army Commendation Medal from Colonel Robert H. Clark recently in ceremonies at Washington, D. C. The citation stated in part: "The Army Commendation Medal is awarded to Specialist Four James E. Robinson for meritorious service while assigned to the 3rd United States Infantry (The Old Guard) (The Honor Guard) from May 1973 to January 1976. As a rifleman in Company B, Specialist Robinson displayed the highest standards of personal appearance, military bearing and proficiency in all assigned tasks, especially in his ceremonial duties."
Mr. Robinson is a 1972 graduate of Maytown high school and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Robinson, of Langley. He and his wife, Jerri, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Samons, of Martin, will remain in Washington, D. C. until September while he is attending school.

Senior guard Reggie Warford, the "old man" of the team, started his third consecutive game against Georgia and came through with a career high 12 points plus playing a nifty floor game. The quick southpaw from Drakesboro has logged 133 minutes in 10 games compared to only 22 minutes during his first two years. Warford has improved his control of the ball, too, committing only nine turnovers during that span.

Kentucky Testing Roads For Skid-Resistance

Frankfort, Ky.—The car's windshield wipers rhythmically swept away the spatter of a slow evening shower. It had been a long, hard day and the weary driver was daydreaming about a quiet evening at home.

Suddenly, rounding a curve he'd traveled a thousand times before, he was jarred back to reality as his car began sliding sideways, uncontrollably toward a deep water-filled ditch at the edge of the road.

Most Kentucky motorists have experienced that same sinking feeling of helplessness and fear at one time or another in their lives, but now the state's Department of Transportation has begun looking for new ways to reduce the chances of those wet weather accidents.

According to state Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts, the department's division of research is currently inventorying the state's primary road system to evaluate skid-resistant qualities.

Roberts said that the research division has purchased a highly sophisticated second truck and trailer unit specially designed for the work.

According to Assistant State Highway Engineer W. B. Drake, the $58,000 unit looks like any ordinary compact camper attached to a pick-up. The inside of the truck, however, is outfitted with a control panel resembling that of an Apollo space capsule.

"Water is sprayed on the pavement in front of the trailer's wheels by nozzles controlled from the tow truck," Drake explained. "and the operators of the test vehicle then apply the brakes of the trailer, gradually or all at once, locking the wheels."

As the trailer skids, controls in the truck allow the driver to direct each stage of the test or place it fully on automatic. The sensitive electronic equipment in the two truck measures speed, distance and per cent of slip for each wheel, plus traction on the pavement.

Drake said the research division is testing some state's highway surfaces now with a similar unit purchased several years ago. The second unit will significantly speed up the rate of progress, he said.

"These will be continuing tests. Depending on the classification of the highways, some will be checked yearly," he said.

Drake said, "When we discover a problem area, we first place signs about to warn motorists and eventually, we will try and correct the situation by resurfacing the substandard areas with one of several new pavement mixtures developed in our lab."

Women Take Place In State Coal Scene

By JENNY PULLIAM

Frankfort, Ky.—Many women are out to prove that it's not a man's world. Among them are three women who have invaded the eastern Kentucky coalfields—two are equipment operators and the other's a state reclamation inspector.

Headquartered at the Prestonsburg field office of the division of reclamation in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Nuckols handles about 50 active permits covering 20-25 mines in the Floyd-Johnson counties area.

Title IX, Topic of KEDR Meet

Attending the KEDR XI workshop were (left to right)—Reo Johns, executive director, KEDR XI; "Shorty" Jamerson, principal of Wheelwright high school; Larry Jervis, KEDR XI curriculum consultant, and Robert Gover, superintendent of Warren county schools.

Title IX (sometimes called the sex equality bill) of the Education Amendments of 1972 was the subject of a meeting sponsored by KEDR XI and held at Jenny Wiley State Park on January 22. The purpose of the meeting was emphasis provisions of Title IX as they relate to school operation.

Reo Johns, executive director, KEDR XI, welcomed participants and introduced workshop consultants.

Robert Gover, Superintendent of Warren county schools, discussed school district compliance with Title IX and shared with the group copies of materials he and his board developed to meet Title IX regulations. Mr. Gover, a recognized authority on Title IX implementation, stressed that Title IX has implications for all school districts and that im-

Tony Harvey, director of KEDR VI, conducted a questions and answers period to allow workshop participants to discuss questions relating to their school districts.

Bill Doane, of Kentucky Educational Television, presented a taped overview of the background and purpose of Title IX.

Title IX workshops are scheduled for each of the 15 Kentucky Educational Development Regions.

Blue Lick: Indian Battles To Resort Springs

By HELEN PRICE STACY

Water at this particular location was found to have medicinal qualities. The word spread and no time was lost in building a bottling house. Water was shipped throughout the United States and to some foreign countries.

Business flourished and soon two shops opened to make staves, kegs and barrels in order to ship water in larger amounts. A hotel was built, cottages erected at the site and another inn rebuilt to accommodate visitors who came by the thousands.

Bands were hired to provide constant entertainment, a bowling alley, billiard room, even bathrooms were part of the improvements. Visitors came from throughout the country to drink the waters, bathe in it and enjoy the social whirl.

The year was close to 1860. "To the astonishment of all," wrote Joan W. Conley of Carlisle, "the famous Blue Lick Springs completely dried up in 1896!"

Catastrophe sometimes creeps in in soft-soled shoes, but at Blue Lick Springs it marched in suddenly, clod-hopper boots kicking open the door. Hotel owners, frantic at the disastrous turn, offered rewards of $500 to any one who could find out what happened to the water.

In a book, "History of Nicholas County," written by Mrs. Conley and to be published in July, 1976, by the Nicholas County Historical Society, Mrs. Conley wrote that different theories were made concerning the stopping of water at the springs. One was that drillers seeking oil and gas had released pressure that brought the water to the top; another was that pioneer William Bartlett had ordered one-half the mineral water be given to the public free of charge and since a charge was being made for each glass or jug of water, Providence had intervened.

Thomas Wilson Hunter was among those seeking an answer and the $500. He was aware of a new spring spurting suddenly across the river, and knowing about a geological fault at the springs, he was sure he had discovered the reason for water failure.

"Although he failed to discover the cause," said Mrs. Conley, "he made an important discovery, one that was to take up where the water left off in the future of the springs."

Hunter dug trenches between what today is called Blue Lick Well and Licking River and found instead of water a depository of bones, "forcing nature to reveal a secret kept for thousands of years!"

At eight feet Hunter discovered buffalo, elk and deer bones and at 20 feet "enormous bones of prehistoric deposit of pebbles, indicating an ancient change of course for the river.

Even more surprising was finding at still lower levels, a walk or floor and stones of a bluish-gray substance on which were letters and numerals.

For Hunter at that time, the bones were poor pay for his work and a miserable substitute for the mineral water he had tried to find. He had two wagonloads of bones.

Despite the lack of mineral water, the area was historic ground.

In ancient days animals in their travels to the spring to get salt had trampled a roadway 60 feet wide. This buffalo trace between Maysville and Blue Lick Springs today is US 68. Frontiersmen Daniel Boone, Simon Kenton, Christopher Gist, John Finley, George Rogers Clark and others scouted here. David Tanner was the first to settle permanently.

Salt-making flourished. This need for salt by settlers and scouts resulted in Indian raids and shedding of blood on both sides.

On one of the trips for salt, a 14-year-old son of historian John Finley decided to wade in a nearby stream. When he was missed and searched for, he was found killed and scalped. Young Finley became the first to be buried in White Settlers Graveyard here.

On Aug. 19, 1782 an event at the springs destined it a place in history. Here on that date the last battle of the Revolutionary War was fought. The river ran red with the slaughter. Disaster had come early to the springs and the loss of lives spread grief "to practically every Kentucky home."

Col. Daniel Boone, experienced in fighting Indians, had observed signs leading him to believe Indians were actually luring frontier fighters into a trap. His advice went unheeded. Lives were lost in the entrapment. Col. Boone went to the side of his son Israel, and later carried his body to a nearby cave to await the time he could return and properly bury him.

Mrs. Conley's book will include many chapters in the history of Blue Lick Springs, as well as names of officers and other men who fought this last battle. She will describe excavations at the site and the finding of other bones and ancient mysteries.

In the way that misfortune and tragedy turn into blessings, Blue Lick Springs continued to be popular with visitors. Work started in 1931 to make the area a state park.

At a meeting Aug. 19, 1975 of the Buffalo Trace Tourism committee, it was pointed out that more than 200,000 had visited Blue Licks Battlefield State Park in 1974. The council would like to see improvements, including a lodge, at the park.

During the nation's Bicentennial, visitors to Blue Licks Battlefield State Park near Mt. Olivet will be walking deep into the region's history. Here are a museum and countless historical items, a granite shaft bearing names of the 60 pioneers.

Those white men and Indians who fell here did not know that the future would honor them or that their sacrifice would ensure a certain prosperity to a place that seemed destined for oblivion that year the water in the well went dry.

In 1917, Revolutionary War Patriot William Bartlett platted a town in Nicholas County to be called Bartlettsburg. Bartlett died in 1820, as did plans for the new town.

December Shows Jobless Increase

Frankfort, Ky.—Unemployment has increased from 7.1 per cent in November to 7.7 per cent in December, according to statistics released by the Department for Human Resources (DHR).

Kentucky's unemployment rate is now only one-tenth of one per cent lower than the national rate, according to Robert MacDonald, chief statistician for DHR.

The December rate represents an increase of 8,200 unemployed persons since November, MacDonald said.

In December, 114,300 persons were out of work, the largest number since August, 1975, when 117,600 persons were unemployed. This is an increase of 31,200 unemployed over last year.

Brighton Engineers Open Office Here

Brighton Engineers, one of three engineering firms which has conducted feasibility studies for improvements and re-routing of KY 80, have recently opened offices here.

According to Brighton Vice-President James A. May, Jr., the Frankfort-based firm is using its Prestonsburg offices as a base from which to work while involved in a highway project in Pike county.

May, a native of Prestonsburg, stressed that although the company's presence here has no relation to its involvement with the Route 80 study, he hoped that the proposed re-routing of KY 80 between Water Gap and Hazard would soon become a reality. "We think it's a viable project," May said.

The U.S. Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration enforces affirmative action equal employment opportunity requirements for federal contractors.

Kentucky, Three Other States To Begin Work In TVA Orphan Mine Reclamation Project

Gov. Julian Carroll, along with Aubrey Wagner, chairman of the board of the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA), announced last week plans to begin work this spring on a demonstration program to reclaim abandoned "orphan" coal strip mines in portions of Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Virginia are also involved in the project.

Congress recently approved $2.9 million in funds for TVA to begin the long-sought multi-state demonstration program, of which Kentucky's share is almost half. This will carry the initial stages of the program until the beginning of the new federal fiscal year in October. A similar amount is provided in the President's budget request for fiscal year 1977.

Gov. Carroll explained that the program involves orphan lands mined and abandoned before effective reclamation laws were enacted and include 12 Eastern Kentucky counties that adjoin the Tennessee River watershed. Also included in the program are 26 Tennessee Valley counties in Tennessee, Alabama and Virginia.

Some 40,000 acres of orphan land and 1,450 acres of coal haul roads are involved in Bell, Breathitt, Clay, Harlan, Knott, Knox, Laurel, Leslie, Letcher, McCreary, Perry and Whitley counties.

Kentucky is expected to receive $10 million during the five-year program.

The reclamation work that will begin this spring is the first phase of what TVA expects to be a five-year demonstration program in the four-state area. Under the TVA proposal, some 87,000 acres of orphan strip mines and coal haul roads would be reclaimed over a five-year period at a cost of about $22.8 million.

TVA, which has for many years promoted orphan mine reclamation, will serve as administrator of the demonstration program and funnel appropriations to each state for the reclamation work.

Kentucky's share of the initial $2.9 million funding is $1.2 million. The other shares are: Tennessee, $650,000; Virginia, $650,000; and Alabama, $150,000. The remainder of the initial funding will be used by TVA for planning and technical assistance to the states, training reclamation specialists, inspection and additional related research.

The proposed demonstration is the first multi-state attempt at reclaiming orphan mines and coal haul roads. Mined and abandoned before state reclamation controls were passed, the orphan mines have been left to revegetate and stabilize naturally.

In addition to returning thousands of acres to productivity, the administrative and technical procedures used in the reclamation program are intended to serve as a guideline for federal-state-landowner cooperation in similar orphan mine reclamation efforts needed throughout the United States.

Summer School Benefits Seniors

Three college-credit classes for high school seniors will be offered at Berea College this summer.

The month-long summer program, now in its fifth year, is adding a Theater-Acting Workshop to the previously-held classes in Wildlife Biology and Astronomy.

The intensive course of study is open to students of high ability who have completed the junior year in high school. It offers four hours of college credit. Classes begin June 13 and end July 10. As in other Berea College programs, preference in admission is given to students in Southern Appalachian schools whose families have limited financial resources. Scholarships are available, and each student will also earn some of his expenses in a student labor job related to the course he chooses. The cost is $123 including room and board in a college dormitory.

Both science courses have been funded the past two years by the National Science Foundation.

The Astronomy class combined laboratory work using the several college telescopes with classroom lectures and discussion. Material covers the nature of the universe; origin and evolution of the stars, elements, galaxies and planetary systems; methods of detecting life; and the probabilities and consequences of interstellar communication. Twenty-five students will be accepted. It is taught by Dr. Smith T. Powell, assistant professor of physics.

The drama course provides basic acting techniques for 20 students, emphasizing physical and mental acting readiness; preparation for a role; make-up; group improvisation techniques; and audition preparation. Students will observe rehearsals and performances of the Berea College summer outdoor drama, "Wilderness Road", and other regional professional companies. Dr. John S. Bolin, assistant professor of English, teaches the course.

Wildlife Biology offers a study of life under natural conditions in the 6000-acre Berea College Forest which adjoins the campus. Detailed field observations will be combined with laboratory investigation and classroom study. It is open to 50 students, directed by Dr. Claude Gentry, professor of agronomy.

Detailed information and application blanks are available from the Berea College Director of Admissions, Berea, Ky., 40403.

Gov. Carroll and Wagner stressed that the reclamation program is aimed at returning the land to useful productivity, such as for forestry and wildlife benefits. A major goal in the demonstration effort is to eliminate future offsite damage, through soil stabilization and water control.

While the extent of the work will vary from mine to mine, the scope of work will include correcting surface water drainage problems, constructing silt traps, covering toxic mine waste, preparing planting sites and establishing vegetation.

Gov. Carroll said that Kentucky's share of the project will require about 110,000 man-days of labor and 12,000 man-days of equipment operation during the five years of its life.

As administrator of the program, TVA will help set reclamation standards, assist in overall planning, help train reclamation specialists, provide continuing technical assistance, inspect work and progress and carry out related research.

Gov. Carroll pointed out that Kentucky will conduct its own reclamation of orphan mines and coal haul roads, including hiring labor, securing necessary equipment and material, developing reclamation plans and conducting fieldwork. Other states involved will do the same.

Since orphan mines lie on private lands, the states will make the necessary arrangements with the landowners to allow the work crew access to the mines. The landowner must also agree to protect the reclamation for at least 10 years.

Two Escape Serious Injury

Two Prestonsburg residents, Miss Debbie Lafferty, and Cliff Latta, III, escaped serious injury when the car shown above went out of control on icy pavement near Morehead Monday evening, January 19. Miss Lafferty, student at MSU, who suffered shoulder injuries, has been released from the hospital and is recuperating at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Lafferty, on the Abbott Road. Mr. Latta, passenger in the car, escaped with minor injuries.

Organ Donor Program Now in Second Year

Frankfort, Ky.—No one who knew him expected that he would live to the year's end. But he did. And now, he is amazing his friends by making plans for a bright, near year of nearly normal activity.

Last year, Paul (not his real name) was one of 195 Kentuckians who, having lost the use of both his kidneys to disease, depended totally upon a medical procedure called dialysis to survive. Without the cleansing action which dialysis provided to remove deadly, toxic substances accumulating in his bloodstream, Paul would have died.

But, for Paul those fears are only an unhappy memory now, thanks to the foresight and concern demonstrated by another young man before his own death last year in an automobile accident.

According to the medical reports, the young man's body was rushed to the University of Kentucky Medical Center where a team of skilled surgeons removed one of his kidneys and transplanted it into Paul.

The surgery was possible because the young accident victim had taken the time some months earlier to fill out a simple form imprinted on the back of his Kentucky driver's license authorizing the procedure in the event of his own death.

The story of Paul and his benefactor was revealed here recently by a spokesman for the Kentucky Kidney Foundation which, along with the Kentucky Department of Transportation, backed 1974 legislation making it possible for motorists to use the reverse side of their state-issued drivers' licenses to voluntarily will their organs for surgical transplantation after death.

The form first began appearing on Kentucky driver licenses just one year ago.

Would-be donors may specify which organs they are willing to donate, or make an anatomical gift of "any needed organ." Among those organs which currently may be transplanted successfully are the kidneys, heart and cornea of the eye. Research into liver transplantation is still going on.

Space also is provided on the form for the signatures of two witnesses as required by the law, KRS 186.412 (2), under which the volunteer program was established. Parental consent is required for donors under the age of 18.

State Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts said that while there is no way to determine how many motorists issued licenses in the past year have actually filled out the organ donor form, "we do believe that more and more people are doing so."

Roberts said he based his remarks largely on the number of inquiries being received by Eugene Hodges, director of the Driver Licensing Division, from people seeking more information about the program.

"The one question raised by almost everyone," said Hodges, "is how they can go about filling out the card when it is encased in plastic before it is handed to the driver at the circuit court clerk's office."

Hodges said that the procedure still is not understood by much of the public, and that many clerks do not have the time to explain to each license-holder that they can write directly on the laminated material.

"Any pen will work," he said, "and, after drying for only a few seconds, the ink will remain on the card permanently."

Ombudsman Named For Nursing Homes

Frankfort, Ky.—Mrs. Betty Jo Gillispie has been named nursing home ombudsman in the Department for Human Resources. Her appointment was announced Monday by C. Leslie Dawson, secretary by DHR.

The new federally funded project will be housed in, and administered by, the already established DHR Office of the Ombudsman.

"The federal funding for this program is part of my commitment to improve services for the aged," Gov. Julian M. Carroll said. Activities of the new project will be directed toward recipients of services in mini-homes, personal care homes, intermediate care facilities and nursing homes.

Dawson explained that the new program would provide a means for the public to ask questions and find solutions to problems and inquiries concerning nursing homes. Inquiries can be made through a direct toll-free line to the ombudsman. These inquiries will then be directed by Mrs. Gillispie to the proper agency.

Mrs. Gillispie is a resident of Stamping Ground and a native of Greensburg. She has been employed as assistant coordinator of Scott County Senior Citizens, Inc., and is chairperson of the Bluegrass Area Development District Area Agency on Aging.

He Leadeth Me

In pastures green? Not always; sometimes He Who knoweth best, in kindness leadeth me
In many ways where heavy shadows be,
Out of the sunshine warm and soft and bright—
Out of the sunshine into the darkest night,
I oft would faint with sorrow and affright,
Only for this—I know He holds my hand;
So whether in the green or desert land
I trust although I may not understand.

And by still waters? No, not always so;
Ofttimes the heavy tempests round me blow,
And o'er my soul the waters and billows go.
But when the storms beat loudest and I cry
Aloud for help, the Master standeth by
And whispers to my soul, "Lo, it is I."
Above the tempest wild I hear Him say,
"Beyond this darkness lies a perfect day.
In every path of thine I lead the way."

So whether on the hilltops high and fair
I dwell, or in the sunless valleys where
The shadows lie—what matters? He is there.
So where He leads me, I can safely go,
And in the best hereafter I shall know
Why in His wisdom, He hath led me so.

By LARRY BURKE

Very few battles of life are concluded with a once-and-for-all victory. Most of them have to be fought again and again.

We shape our lives by making choices and decisions. We become creatures of habit, and join the throng that moves along in a rut. Or we choose to be creative and launch out into new experiences and feelings of accomplishments.

The kind of person we happen to be was largely determined by the way we have fought the battles of life, either through habit—or the adventures of creativity.

This is certain, too! Each of us is deciding today just the kind of person we will be tomorrow.

No person rises above his ambitions and neither does he sink below his darkest defeats.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: "You are you as a result of yourself."
