

Hager Is Named Assistant Supt.

Board Approves Grigsby Request For New Posts

Ronald Hager, former principal of Prestonsburg High School, was employed by the Floyd County Board of Education last Thursday, on recommendation of the new superintendent of schools, Pete Grigsby, Jr., as assistant superintendent-instruction under a one-year contract.

Mr. Hager's employment in effect fills two vacancies on the administrative staff—that of Woodrow W. Allen, supervisor of instruction, who retired, and the assistant superintendent's post vacated by Mr. Grigsby when he became superintendent last Thursday.

Supt. Grigsby said this week that emphasis will be placed on improvement of instruction in the school system.

Three new positions were created on the superintendent's recommendation: a system-wide athletic director, an assistant transportation director and an itinerant counselor.

Denzil Halbert, of Martin, was named the county system's first athletic director, a post which he will fill in addition to his duties as visiting teacher. Supt. Grigsby explained that, with the addition of girls' basketball, school

Gas Firm Wins Surface Mine Damage Suit

A Floyd circuit court jury last week held that the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company is entitled to recover from the Blackhawk Mining Company $31,895 for damages done to its lines by the coal firm's surface mining operations in the lower Bull Creek section, near here.

Kentucky West Virginia sued Blackhawk last Dec. 8, asking $35,995 damages and alleging that the coal company caused the damage despite warnings and knowledge of the location of the gas lines.

Later, Blackhawk counterclaimed for $50,000, claiming that the gas company's refusal to relocate its lines prevented the mining of coal which could have been done at a profit of $10 a ton.

Individuals involved in the suit were listed as Max Kofford and Wesley Blackburn, doing business as Blackhawk Mining Company. The court action was said to have been the first to have gone to a jury in a Floyd case involving two segments of the fuel industry.

Strip Permit Hearing Slated To Begin Here Monday Morning

The thrice-delayed hearing on the application of the B. & H. Coal Company for a permit to strip-mine land in the Finance Hollow-Clark Branch section, between Martin and Allen, is scheduled to begin next Monday morning at the courthouse here.

The hearing was first set for May 13 at Martin, then was changed to June 1, and finally to July 12. The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8 a.m.

The hearing on the permit is the result of the signing by 400 persons of petitions protesting the granting of a permit. The protest movement, headed by Former State Representative Everett Akers and the Rev. Dan Heintzleman, claims the petitioners fear damage to their homes which are located near the foot of the

This Town...That World

Why not do this column, early Tuesday morning, rather than wait till it becomes a must, an emergency, do-or-die, now-or-never project? Better yet, we might try skipping it, or turn to doing those summer re-runs, a la television... if I could find anything worth rerunning.

THE LONG WEEK-END

Yes, we were in yesterday, July 5, while luckier folks were still celebrating July 4. Sure, it's a free country, and we could have closed up shop, walked off and kicked up our heels—or, what's more likely, cooled them while taking it easy. But that would have meant the paper would have been a day late, and several people, including us, wouldn't like that. So... we were busy learning just what these "long week-end" holidays mean: closed public offices, closed postoffice, closed private offices, closed businesses, closed shops (except ours).

But that's our problem. We're thankful, this Bicentennial year, as in all other years, for the freedom to publish, even if the conditions aren't always ideal. We're thankful, too, for the sense of responsibility our staff shares with us, which kept them on the job while others were gambling over the green, so to speak.

You youngsters who swallow that myth about the romance of newspapering might drop by on such occasions and learn the facts of newspaper life.

Want to be envied, to be the achiever among all your fellows, to have little boy look, starry-eyed, on you as their hero? Catch a bass 12 inches or longer this month from Dewey Lake. That's all.

A SLIGHT DIVERSION

If you're not clear about what is meant by the expression, "diversionary tactics," consider this as a fairly good example.

Several days ago, John T. Arnett, who operates a store at the mouth of Howard Branch in Magoffin county, received a telephone call from a friend in Royalton, five miles or so away, that the caller's Royalton store had been looted by a band of "gypsies" and were headed in Arnett's direction. The caller told how the marauders operated at his place: The gang pulled up in several cars, unloaded, and the women started a disturbance, then while all the ruckus was going on the men rushed the store and helped themselves to the stock.

Arnett knew he had only a few minutes to prepare for his visitors. Puzzled about what to do, he finally told his wife to bring his pistol, assuring her he wasn't going to kill anybody. Just then, the caravan arrived.

Pete Grigsby, Jr. (left) becomes superintendent of Floyd schools as the oath of office is administered by John M. Stumbo, chairman of the Floyd County Board of Education.

Grigsby Takes Office As Clark Successor

The meeting room of the Floyd County Board of Education was crowded last Thursday evening by relatives and friends of the two principals gathered for the conclusion of Charles Clark's 16-year tenure as superintendent of Floyd county schools and the passing of the reins to his successor, Pete Grigsby, Jr.

The change in the office, planned months ago, was effected with John M. Stumbo, chairman of the board and a notary public, administering the oath of office to Mr. Grigsby. Then Mr. Clark, who has been superintendent since 1960—the longest tenure of any Floyd schools superintendent—spoke briefly, and left for his home, near Hueysville.

Addressing his remarks to board members and citizens present, the former superintendent expressed the feeling that the school system has made substantial progress during his years in the office and that the board of education had made a good choice in naming a successor who would continue this progress and even improve on it.

Upon the ex-superintendent's departure his successor and the board turned to the business at hand.

Crime on Holiday During the Fourth

The observance of the nation's "birthday" July 4 and the week-end celebration lasting through Monday was unmarred by major violence in Floyd county, and most of the arrests made within the week involved drunk driving.

The only liquor law violation reported involved the arrest, earlier last week, of Anthony Akers by Deputy Sheriff Melvin Martin on charges of transporting and possessing alcoholic beverages.

Other arrests, the charges against each defendant and names of arresting officers follow:

Donald B. Doan, drunk driving, by State Troopers Forsythe and Weedman; James L. Griffith, terroristic threatening, by Deputy Sheriff Doug Lewis; Kenneth Allen, on a warrant charging rape, by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and ABC Agent Ted Salisbury; Wayne Martin, illegal possession of alcoholic beverages, by Harold and Mildred Bates, Wheelwright police; Thomas Reynolds, drunk driving, by Troopers Shelton and Stephens; Ralphie Deboard, drunk driving, by State Trooper Stumbo; Roger Wayne Hall, reckless driving, speeding and attempting to elude an officer, by Wheelwright police; Gene Hayden, Jr.,

Public Meeting On Route Plans Slated Thursday

All who are interested in learning the route which the new KY 80 will follow through this county may do so at the informal public meeting scheduled by the Kentucky Bureau of Highways at 7 p.m. next Wednesday (July 14) at the Allen Central High School gymnasium, it was announced this week by E. V. Hilton, assistant state highway engineer.

Maps, plans and other data will be available for public inspection at the school from 1 p.m. till the close of the meeting, and representatives of the Bureau of Highways will be available to discuss the plans with any interested individual.

At the meeting itself all who desire to do so may make statements and ask questions concerning the project. Procedures and tentative schedule for acquiring rights-of-way, making utilities adjustments and other pertinent information relating to the project will be discussed.

The 14.5-mile Floyd county sector of the proposed four-lane highway from its intersection with US 23 and KY 3 at Water Gap to the Floyd-Knott line east of Garrett will be involved in the discussion. Earlier meetings were held at Hazard and Hindman on the Perry and Knott sectors of the highway construction project which will, in all, cover a distance of 42 miles.

Of particular interest to Floyd counties is the proposed routing of the new four-lane road to bypass Allen and

Lie Detector Motion Denied In Jones Case

In addition to denying a change of venue for the trial of Eddie Jones on a charge of murder, Special Judge Caswell P. Lane's official pre-trial order lodged with Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett last week overruled a second defense motion.

This motion asked the court to require the defendant and the chief prosecuting witness, John Martin, to submit a "lie detector" test. Judge Lane held that the result of such tests would not be admissible (as evidence) and overruled the motion.

Two other defense motions were approved and a third may be on the way to approval. One of these asked for an order directing the Commonwealth to produce any exculpatory evidence that would constitute a defense. Sustaining that motion, Judge Lane said it was "the duty of the Commonwealth to reveal any evidence it had that would tend to prove the innocence of the defendant."

The second defense motion to be approved asked permission to withdraw a prior plea of guilty. (This plea was made only in response to a promise that the charge would be reduced and that the five-year pen sentence would be probated.)

On the defense motion to suppress any

New Schedule Gives Teachers $1073 Pay Raise

Floyd county's lowest-paid teachers will receive $8,263 for their services during the coming school year, and all teachers are due for a raise of $1073.

The Rank I teacher receiving top pay in the county will be paid $11,623.

Across-the-board increases were made in the salary schedule adopted by the county board of education last Thursday on recommendation of Supt. of Schools Pete Grigsby, Jr. and officers of the Floyd County Teachers' Association.

The joint recommendation was to the effect that the entire state allotment be passed on to teacher salaries.

The salary schedule follows, in brief: Rank 3 minimum salary (degree, no teaching experience), $8,263; Rank 3 maximum (11 or more years' experience, and 20 hours toward master's degree), $10,433.

Rank 2 minimum (master's, no experience), $8,833; Rank 2 maximum (master's, plus 16 hours toward doctorate and 11 years or more experience, $11,023.

Rank 1 minimum (no experience and 1 to 9 hours above master's), $9,408; Rank 1 maximum (11 or more years' experience, 20 or more hours above master's), $11,623.

The board of education had a budgeted payroll of $4,404,123 for 452 certified teachers last school year. The per-teacher increase will raise that total to an estimated $4,889,119 for the coming school year.

Old-Fashioned Fourth Draws 5,000 at Martin

Martin's Fourth of July celebration went over all the way with the sparkle and spirit of its Sunday night fireworks display. Even the downpour which marked the opening parade Saturday morning failed to dampen the enthusiasm of those taking part or of spectators.

"I've lived here 27 years," one man said, "and, honestly, this is the biggest and best thing we've ever done. These women (the Martin Woman's Club) really deserve a lot of credit for the job they did."

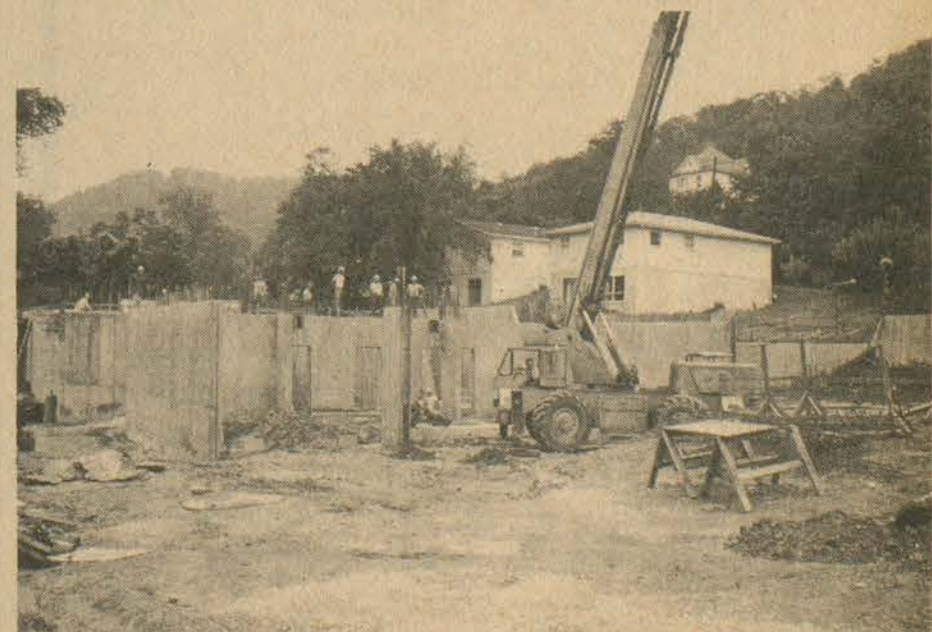

There were 75 entries in the parade Saturday which was led by Congressman Carl D. Perkins, grand marshal, who later spoke, as did State Representative James "Jitter" Allen, and County Court Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson.

Entering floats in the parade were the Amvets, Martin Methodist Youth, Our Lady of the Way Hospital, the Drs. Ray and Virginia deGuzman Clinic, as well as two coal trucks entered by Morris Isaacs of the Switchback Coal Co., and Paul Harris.

A band composed of local musicians and the Color Guard, National Guard unit, Prestonsburg, lent a martial air and beauty was well-represented by Miss Floyd County, Kathy Mullins, of Wheelwright; Music Festival Queen Sara Allen; Pikeville College's Mountain Laurel Queen representative, Susan Compton; Miss Pre-Teen Floyd County, Lisa Spradlin; Tiny Miss Springtime and Little Miss Patriotic, Valerie Mosley; Little Miss Springtime Belinda Click, all of Martin; Miss Red, White and Blue and Miss Springtime Becky Collins, of Wayland, as well as contestants in all four categories of the Miss Bicentennial contest.

Adding color to the proceedings were members of El Hasa Shrine, Ashland, Trail 70's Motorcycle Unit, two of the youngest motorcyclists in any parade, Marjalee Turner, 4, and Clint Barnett, 3, members of the Martin Fire Department manning the fire truck, and Frank Cancrow, official clown.

David Receives $75,000 Grant

Gov. Julian M. Carroll has announced an Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) grant for $75,000 has been awarded to the David Community Development Corp., to assist in financing a community sewer system in the community of David.

The grant is associated with a $43,500 planning grant awarded by the ARC to the David Community Development Corp., earlier this year. Both grants are part of an effort to stimulate housing construction in the energy-producing areas of the Appalachian region.

In addition to the ARC grant, the Farmers Home Administration will provide a grant of $25,000 and local sources will fund $75,000, to meet the total project cost of $175,000.

State Police Aid In Car Pool Order

Frankfort, Ky.—The first day of the new fiscal year dawned with Kentucky State Police manning check points at the major entrances to Frankfort to survey all state cars coming into the city.

The state police action was ordered by Gov. Julian Carroll to ensure that his executive order revoking state vehicles assigned to individuals and transferring other vehicles to centralized motor pools is fully implemented. The action comes more than two months after the issuance of the order, which took effect at midnight June 20.

Police stopped all state vehicles entering the capital city this morning and obtained information about the cars, the drivers and their points of origin and destination.

In the two-hour canvass of seven check points, about 50 vehicles were stopped. Gov. Carroll's press secretary John Nichols reported that more than a dozen of the cars were on legitimate state business but "there were 35 or so people whose use of state cars on this particular day might require further inquiry."

Peter Conn, the governor's executive secretary for program administration, said the main purpose of the survey was to determine how many vehicles have not been transferred to the motor pools and to find out if some individuals had not been informed of the executive order.

"... this is not to harass state employees or to make them feel uncomfortable, but to see how the motor pool is coming along and to remind them that an executive order is in effect," Conn said.

About 1,500 cars have been transferred or are being transferred to the motor pool, according to figures compiled thus far in a cooperative effort of the Governor's Office, the Executive Department for Finance and Administration and the Department of Transportation. About 300 cars were previously assigned to individuals in state government.

While specific figures are not yet available, many of the 300 cars were assigned to employees directly related to such activities as Disaster and Emergency Services, where specially equipped vehicles are required for 24-hour-a-day access. Other vehicles, assigned to state policemen, constitutional officers and transportation regulation enforcement officers were also exempt from the executive order.

The few vehicles that will remain assigned to individuals will be distributed by Transportation Secretary John Roberts after a review of written requests which must be certified by Finance and Administration Secretary Russell McClure. McClure has final authority in the approval of the car assignments.

McClure called the current effort in Frankfort the "first stage in establishing an efficient, well-oiled motor pool operation... so that we get the maximum efficiency for a minimum of dollars spent."

Martin and the possible departure from the present KY 80 at Eastern to cross the mountain on Goose Creek to join the Knott county section of the highway east of Garrett.

The deadline for all preliminary line and grade inspection work for the entire project was June 1. The final deadline for all preliminary engineering work has been set for January, 1978.

Governor Carroll has said he hopes to cut the ribbon officially opening the new KY 80 before the end of his term of office.

Mr. Hilton was named to serve as project engineer to expedite planning for relocation of the road.

"Hilton will be working, full-time, as a coordinator, problem-solver and engineering idea man between us and the five private consulting firms which will draw up the design, final right-of-way and construction plans," John C. Roberts, secretary of the state Department of Transportation, said.

Acting on the governor's urging for action, the Bureau of Highways contracted with five engineering firms for preliminary engineering work. Brighton Engineering Co., Frankfort, was assigned overall design supervision and preparation of the final preliminary engineering report. In this county Haworth and Associates, Inc., of Frankfort, is doing the engineering and right-of-way planning between the KY 77 junction, south of Langley, to the intersection with US 23 at Water Gap; and Johnson, Depp and Quisenberry, of Owensboro, are doing the same work from the Floyd-Knott line to the point south of Langley.

FERTILIZED MARIJUANA CANCER THREAT, DOCTOR SAYS

A University of Illinois pharmacologist warned yesterday that fertilizing marijuana plants to increase their potency may expose smokers of the weed to a serious cancer threat.

Dr. Norman R. Farnsworth of the university's College of Pharmacy said fertilizers can increase the formation of cancer-causing agents as much as a thousand times in marijuana plants.

"Using fertilizers with these plants is supposed to give you more potent 'grass,' but most of these fertilizers contain nitrate," he said in a statement.

"One year after I was operated on for cancer of the breast, David Sawyer fell in love with me!"

Pat Sawyer

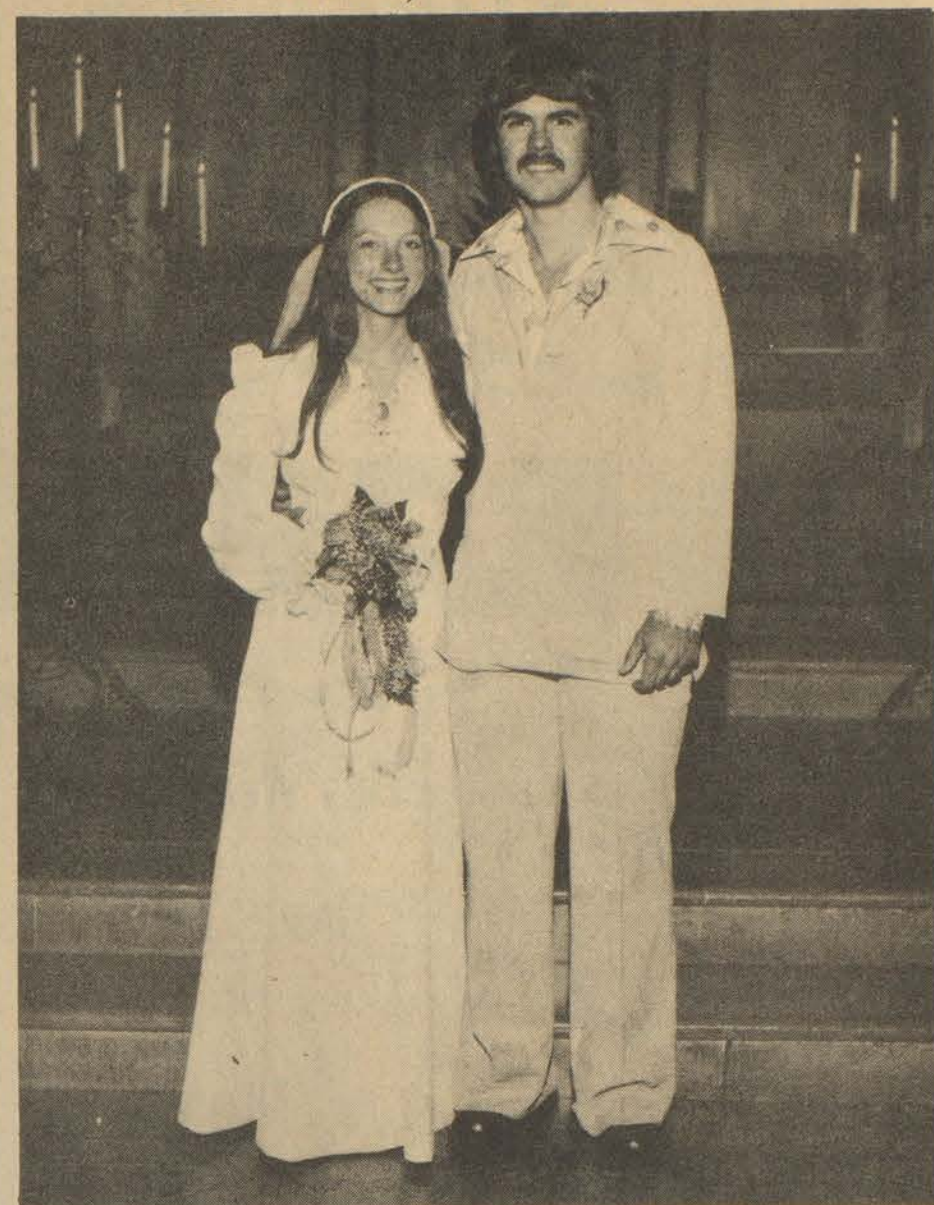

"When I was told the lump that I found in my breast was cancer I thought my life as a woman was over. About a year after the operation I met David. A few months later we were married.

"And here we are, ten years later, living proof that cancer not only can be cured but that you can live happily ever after.

"Listen to me. Life is so precious, so beautiful. Don't allow vanity to kill you. Learn breast self-examination and get regular checkups. "And please, give to the American Cancer Society. We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime."

Miss Turner, Mr. Hommel Wed

Berea, Ky.—Miss Glenda Turner and Mr. Randy James Hommel were united in marriage May 22, at 12 noon at Danforth Chapel on the Berea College campus.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Turner, of Langley, Ky., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hommel, Sr., of Kingsport, Tennessee.

The Rev. Randy Osborne, campus minister of Berea College and Danforth Chapel, officiated at the double-ring ceremony. A program of nuptial music was provided by Mr. Pat Shipley, a student of Berea College. Sandra Hensley, also a Berea student, sang "More".

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride fashioned her own gown of candlelight ivory polyester. Its long sleeves, v-neck, and bodice were lace trimmed. The veil, made of the same material of the gown, was also fashioned by the bride. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Miss Clara Turner, of Lexington, Ky., a sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a full-length gown of baby blue polyester and carried a single long-stemmed yellow rose with a blue ribbon.

Mr. Roger Herron, of Kingsport, Tenn., served as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the Fireside Room at the Chapel. The wedding cake was made by the maid of honor. Miss Wanda Baisden, Miss Shirley Ann Mills, and Mrs. Jeni Osborne served cake, punch, and mints to the guests. Following the reception, the couple left for a wedding trip to Gatlinburg, Tenn.

The couple will make their home in Berea where both will be seniors at Berea College this fall.

As they poured from their cars Arnett fired two shots in the floor near the front door, dashed out, yelling that he would kill the so-and-so, unlimbered his six-shooter into the ground, turned and fired more shots over the roof toward the woods, reloaded and let go with another salvo.

The story is that the gypsies and a couple of coal operators who were inside the store when it all began ran a dead heat the first few miles and that a couple of drunks with whom Mr. Arnett had been annoyed sobered up instantly.

Asked later why he went on the shooting-yelling spree, the merchant said he had an idea that if he created a disturbance himself, the visitors might not get around to starting one of their own.

Some scientist who may or may not have been mad predicted, a few years ago, that insects "will take the world." With pine beetles, Japanese beetles, tomato blight and now a bean-killer at work in this and other parts of the country, he doesn't seem so kooky. Just a few days ago the beans in the Browns' pretty garden, just outside this window, had to be dug up. This is happening all over the county. And it makes even a non-gardener sad, because even lazy bums like beans.

It says here that somebody has figured out what a worker would receive by the year 2076 if he were employed now at $5 an hour and received a 7 per cent raise every year. By the time the Tricentennial rolls around, 100 years hence, this trafficker in figures says the rate would be $4,339 an hour and his annual pay $9,049,418 . . . I figured on this up to 10 years, then decided I would take the guy's word for it.

Pike County May Sue for Funds In Bid Squabble

The controversy arising between the Pike fiscal court and the state Department of Finance and Administration over the court's rejection of a lower bid and acceptance of a bid that is approximately $24,000 higher for heavy road equipment may develop into court action, with the fiscal court seeking to require the release of coal severance tax funds to finance the purchase.

Involved is $552,635 in severance funds. The low bid of Kentucky Machinery, Inc., based near Allen in this county, was rejected and the bid of Wayne Supply Co., which has a branch in Pike county, was accepted. Therein lies the bone of contention.

County Judge Wayne T. Rutherford insists that Kentucky Machinery failed to meet specifications. But KMI has maintained that the specifications stated in the court's advertising for bids excluded other bidders. In a letter to Russell McClure, Judge Rutherford also pointed out that KMI had left Pike county for Floyd.

McClure held that the specifications requiring disc brakes for the machinery being purchased "apparently limited the bidding to Wayne only." Judge Rutherford also pointed out that service on the machinery purchased could be more prompt if it was bought from a dealer in the county.

The questioned purchase included eight graders and eight endloaders for use in the Pike county road program.

Minority Rules Big Sandy ADD, Pike Judge Says

County Judge Wayne Rutherford, of Pike county, contends that his county, largest and most populous in the district, deserves more representation on the Big Sandy Area Development District board, and he has written Joseph L. McCauley, director of Big Sandy ADD, that he will ask the Pike fiscal court to take action to increase that representation.

Since Judge Rutherford indicated that the fiscal court may delegate the county attorney to go to federal court, his letter is interpreted as a threat to institute suit against the ADD board.

Rutherford's letter was written June 2. Mr. McCauley replied that the executive committee of Big Sandy ADD in a meeting June 28 voted unanimously to seek no changes in the present bylaws. It is the bylaws of the organization to which Judge Rutherford objects. Because each of the five counties in the district is equally represented on the board, and since Pike has a greater area and population than any of the others, he terms the bylaws as operating the district "under minority rule."

"The Supreme Court ruled some time ago and upheld the concept of one-man, one-vote," Rutherford wrote. "It was my understanding that the recommendation had been made and that all area development districts comply with this Supreme Court ruling and mandate."

The Office for Local Government notified Mr. McCauley, however, that the one-man, one-vote ruling by the Supreme Court is not applicable to area development districts, since they have no taxing or legislative powers.

"As you will recall," Mr. McCauley wrote, "this question arose earlier in the official formation of the area development districts. The general consensus statewide at that time was that larger counties and cities should have the same representation as smaller units of government. This was done in keeping with the spirit of 'helping our neighbors' and was believed to be in the best interest of the areawide development program."

"We are hopeful that this spirit can continue to prevail in the Big Sandy Area, since this office is unable to recall a single case of discrimination during the eight-year life of the Big Sandy ADD. A good example of the spirit which has prevailed in this District is illustrated in the allocation of EDA funds to the Warfield-Lovely-Beauty area in Martin county for the much-needed water distribution system."

Big Sandy ADD is composed of Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Pike counties, and each of the counties is represented on the board by its county judge. Other members of the board are the five county-seat mayors, five mayor-judge appointees, and three special appointees—one school superintendent, one low-income representative, and one representing fifth and sixth class cities.

The Pike county members are Rutherford as judge, Pikeville Mayor W. C. Hambley, Mayor John Moore of Elkhorn City and James Dotson as superintendent of schools. Its judge-mayor appointee has not been named.

Members from other counties: FLOYD—County Judge, Judge Henry Stumbo; Mayor county seat town, Mayor William O. Goebel, Jr.; Judge-Mayor appointee, Dr. James D. Adams; Executive committee, Dr. Henry Campbell.

JOHNSON—County Judge, Judge James Witten; Mayor county seat town, Mayor James Trimble; Judge-Mayor appointee, O. T. Dorton; Executive Committee, Allen M. Perry.

MARTIN—County Judge, Judge Ray Fields; Mayor county seat town, Russell Williamson; Judge-Mayor appointee, Eugene Ward; Executive committee, Homer Marcum.

MAGOFFIN—County Judge, Judge Earl Borders; Mayor county seat town, Luther Carpenter; Judge-Mayor appointee, Grady Conley; Executive Committee, O. J. Arnett.

In addition to Supt. Dotson, of Pike county, the "special" board members are Ronald Wright, of Prestonsburg, low-income representative, and Delbert Davis, chairman of the Wheelwright board of trustees, representing fifth-sixth class cities.

The new board was elected June 28 for one year. Rutherford said Pike has four members on the board, including himself and Mayor William C. Hambley of Pikeville, who is chairman of the ADD. "There are two others who live here, but they don't represent the geographic county, they represent areawide interests. Chester Smith was selected by transportation and Supt. Tom Dotson by education."

Hambley was the only member of the executive group absent at its June 28 meeting. Present were O. J. Arnett, O. T. Dorton, Floyd Judge Henry Stumbo and Martin County Judge Ray Fields.

Rutherford said he has not been attending meetings of the ADD, but sent a representative in the past. "I'm going to attend in person from now on." He also voiced a desire to see the board meeting rotated from county to county instead of remaining regularly at Jenny Wiley State Park and that ADD bank accounts should be rotated. "And another factor, I don't believe it's good business for the ADD to do business with members of the board, if that's what's happening."

"My county is a region within itself, it's that large," he added.

Orphan Land Fund Reorganized, June 21

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Julian Carroll has announced the reorganization by executive order of the Orphan Land Revolving Fund, effective June 21.

The administration of the fund has been vested in the Division of Special Programs, Department for Human Resources, since its creation.

"It now appears that the Division of Reclamation within the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection is the proper agency to administer the fund since such land has been the subject of mining activity under the jurisdiction of that division," Gov. Carroll said.

The fund, created by the special session of the 1972 Kentucky General Assembly, was established to provide the vehicle through which the state could acquire and reclaim land which had been affected by strip or auger mining.

CENSORSHIP RELAXED ON BRAZIL MAGAZINE

SAO PAULO, Brazil—An editor of one of Brazil's leading weekly news magazine said recently that the government is relaxing censorship on his publication.

Urico Andreade said the magazine Veja would be under self-censorship as of its next edition.

"We never understood why there was any prior censorship against our magazine. We are not against the government and have never stood up against it."

The editors have submitted their material to the federal police department every week. The police would return it with the cuts they deemed necessary.

The government did not explain the change.

Book on Kentucky Has Wide Appeal

Frankfort, Ky.—It has been said that experience is the best teacher. In the case of Kentucky Heritage Artist and former high school instructor Robert A. Powell, experience as a teacher has combined with artistic talent to produce a book described by historian J. Winston Coleman as "a valuable collection of historical sketches . . . that will soon become an indispensable reference work."

"This is Kentucky," a collection of 80 drawings, each accompanied by a brief description, covers subjects ranging from wheat threshing in Clark County to the St. Louis Transfer Ferry boat to Alice Lloyd College. The book is, as the artist-author expresses it, "an attempt to cover all areas of Kentucky."

"The concept is to cover the first 200 years in Kentucky's history, covering all elements of the state industry including the Airdrie Iron Furnace in Muhlenberg County, the colleges, and even Loretta Lynn's Butcher Hollow home," said Powell.

"One-third of the things in the book are no longer in existence. Another third are tourist attractions and the remaining third are things that you see everyday that are part of Kentucky's heritage."

Powell says the book took most of 1975 to complete and involved extensive research and travel. "I compiled a topic list using materials from the Kentucky Historical Society and Filson Club, among others, and wound up with 350 different subjects," said Powell. "I then separated the topics geographically as much as I could selecting aspects of life that would relate to every region of the state, like the transfer train ferry in Western Kentucky," he added.

Carroll Asks Funds For Youth Program

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Julian M. Carroll has requested $87,844 from the national Community Services Administration to provide recreational opportunities for an estimated 5,000 disadvantaged youths in 89 Kentucky counties.

Called the Summer Youth Recreation Program, the project, according to Carroll, is designed to "provide economically disadvantaged youth with educational, cultural and recreational opportunities which might not otherwise be available to them."

Carroll said the youth to be served "are those too young to have summer jobs—primarily those eight to thirteen years of age."

The money will cover costs of administration, activities, equipment and transportation. The program includes such activities as tours, festivals, fairs, music, drama, short educational courses and camping.

"Our hope is that the programs motivate these youngsters to strive for greater achievement through development of new attitudes or mental or physical skills," Carroll said.

Carroll explained that whenever possible the operation of programs will be subcontracted to public, private, non-profit and governmental agencies. These agencies will be responsible for selecting participants.

The programs will begin on receipt of funds.

Funding for the program is provided to the Community Services Administration by the U. S. Department of Labor under Title III of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). The Governor is the prime sponsor for CETA programs in the 89 counties, called the "Balance of State."

Kentucky has four other prime sponsors for CETA programs. They are the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program (including 22 counties), and the areas of Louisville-Jefferson County, the Bluegrass Employment and Training Program (seven counties) and Kenton County.

Pine Mountain Fire Tower Overnight Radio Station

For 24 hours, two Floyd countians, Norm Green, of Pyramid, and Paul Combs, of Langley, recently maintained an amateur radio station, which they set up high atop a fire tower on Pine Mountain, near the Virginia-Kentucky border.

The two were participating in a contest sponsored by the American Relay League, Newington, Conn., designed to test the ability of those taking part to prove that they can set up a station and maintain it for a 24-hour period. Through this experience, ham operators develop skills needed in emergency situations when normal means of communication are not functioning.

Green, who attends Prestonsburg Community College, assisted by Combs, student at Allen Central High School, had logged more than 400 contacts when they broke camp, with the farthest contact being in Sweden. They were the only contestants entering from Floyd county.

Floyd County Health Notes

The Floyd County Health Department will be conducting a pap smear clinic Thursday, July 8, from 9 to 11:30 and from 1 to 2. The public health nurses remind all women that a pap smear is not just a once-in-a-lifetime event. The possibility of cervical cancer continues throughout your life and having a pap smear at least once a year is the best way to protect yourself.

Also, while this clinic is being conducted a six-minute film regarding detection of breast cancer will be shown to all women who are interested. This clinic is a free service and all women are welcome to attend.

An outpost clinic will be held Monday, July 12, in the basement of the Methodist Church at Wayland. Clinic hours will be from 10 to 12 and from 1 to 2 and the following medical services will be available, free of charge: immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening, and blood pressures.

The health department would like to remind all parents with children enrolling in school this fall that they should check their children's immunization record to make sure all their shots are up to date, since certain immunizations are required before a child is eligible to enroll in school.

The Veterans Administration has guaranteed about 5.8 million home loans to World War II veterans.

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
Director of Environmental Studies
Morehead State University

This article traces the history of one of our most spectacular birds, the ivory-billed woodpecker. A recent debate among ornithologists has been concerned with whether the bird is extinct or not because a supposedly reliable sighting in the Big Thicket Area of Texas in the early '70's gave new hope that the bird still exists.

The ivory bill is the largest woodpecker in North America, somewhat bigger than the common crow. A black body with white patches and a red pointed crest make this bird strikingly beautiful. It has often been called a "disaster species" because it feeds on insects in recently dead or dying standing hardwood trees and makes its nest in the limbs or trunk of these hardwoods. These eating and nesting habits have contributed to the bird's plight because the species will not eat insects in second growth or smaller timber, nor will it drop to the first floor and search for food. Its three-inch long pointed bill and stiffened tail permit it to rapidly chisel large chunks from the sides of decaying trees in its search for particular insects.

This specialized habit caused the birds to begin to disappear as the southern swamps were logged over because as the trees went, so went the bird's food. By 1915 the ivory bill was to be found only in a few localities in South Carolina, Louisiana, Texas and Florida. Until the early '70's report, the bird had not been seen since 1952.

The ivory bill's solitary habits and preference for living in large open swampy areas with mature hardwoods has also contributed to its decline. The bird does not adapt well to man and appears to avoid him. Encroachment on the bird's habitat, whether mature hardwood trees are logged or not, probably has also helped to lower the population.

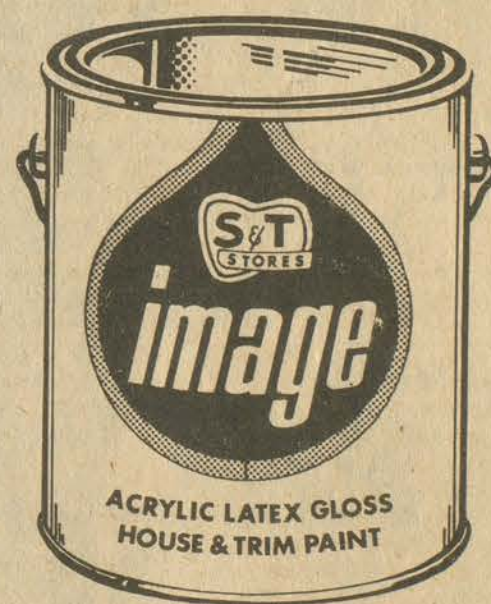

The Big Thicket Area in Texas has been the focal point of a typical developer-preservationist fight in recent years. Gradual development at the edges of the ivory bill's only remaining habitat has been of concern to environmentalists for decades, but recent rapid expansion of the area for housing and recreation caused the matter to be thrown into the courts and prompted preservation bills to be introduced into Congress. Some of the original area has been preserved, but it is doubtful that the ivory bill, if it does exist, will survive because its numbers are probably too low to maintain itself. A natural disaster could end the bird's struggle for survival or the last bird could be killed for novelty's sake by an unaware hunter.

There is little hope for this bird, but perhaps, despite our track record of not gaining from past mistakes, we have learned something.

Miss Woodrum-Mr. Click Wed

Miss Debra Kaye Woodrum and Mr. Ralph William Click II were united in marriage on Saturday, May 15, at the Cottageville Methodist Church, Cottageville, W. Va.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Woodrum, of Ripley, W. Va., and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Click, of Cottageville, W. Va.

The Rev. M. D. Boggs, of Evergreen Hills, solemnized the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Sharon Rodgers, pianist, accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Sandra Moore, who sang wedding selections including "We've Only Just Begun", "There Is Love", and the "Lord's Prayer".

At the front of the church were two large arrangements of white mums and yellow gladioli. Two nine-branched hurricane candleabra decorated with spider mums and daisies were placed on each side of the altar, and an arrangement of daisies, baby's breath and gladioli was placed on the piano.

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white jersey knit, fashioned with an empire waist, high neckline and long full sleeves with fitted cuffs. The full skirt fell into a chapel length train. Alencon lace edged the sleeves, waistline and the keyhole neckline of the bodice. The bride's silk illusion headpiece was a two tier chapel-length veil which fell from a camelot cap with matching alencon lace on the cap and edges of veil.

Her bouquet was a cascade arrangement of yellow sweetheart roses, white daisies and baby's breath.

Miss Cindy Woodrum, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Mila Click, of Cottageville, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Kim Thomas, of Ripley.

The bride's attendants were attired in long V-neck dresses of yellow knit sprinkled with white daisies, and featured short butterfly sleeves. The attendants carried colonial lace-backed bouquets of miniature carnations, daisies and baby's breath.

Nicole Mounts, neice of the groom, served as flower girl and carried a white basket filled with yellow daisy petals.

Rod Woodrum, brother of the bride, acted as ringbearer.

Ralph Click, father of the groom, served as best man for his son. Ushers were Jerry Mounts, of Cottageville, brother-in-law of the groom, Jeff Fox, of Ripley, Kim Sizemore, of Sissonville, and Mike Crosier, of Evans.

The bride's mother wore a long yellow knit dress and a corsage of miniature carnations. The grooms' mother chose a long dress of mint green chiffon and a corsage of miniature carnations.

Immediately following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held in the Cottageville Fire Hall. A three-tiered wedding cake decorated with yellow daisies and topped with bells and miniature rings centered the bridal table. Those assisting were Miss Katy Click and Mrs. Brenda Mounts, sisters of the groom, Miss Sue Dillon, of Fairplane, Mrs. Doris Sizemore, of Evergreen Hills, and Mrs. Micki Miros, of Williamstown, W. Va.

The bride graduated from Ripley high School with the class of '75 and attends Parkersburg Community College. The groom graduated from Ripley High School with the class of '73 and is presently employed with Lane Construction Company.

Following a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Click are residing at 328 7th, St., Ripley, W. Va.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Esta Jones, Rhonda, Sherri, Brian and Melissa, of Printer.

Mrs. Click is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cole, of Printer, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Woodrum, of Julian, W. Va.

First Coal Road Contracts To Be Awarded July 15th

The first highway improvement projects to be funded under the state's Energy Road Fund, established by the last General Assembly to support road repairs in Kentucky's coal counties will be let for contract July 15.

They are part of a larger package of highway and bridge improvement projects now being advertised for contract by the state's Bureau of Highways.

According to state Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts, the Energy Road Fund projects will provide for the surfacing and patching of some 80 miles of roads in eight Eastern Kentucky counties.

The counties and approximate mileage to be improved were listed as Bell (8.8), Breathitt (7.5), Johnson (3.8), Knott (5.8), Lawrence (18.1), Letcher (11.2), Martin (14.7) and Perry (10.8).

Under the Energy Road Fund measure a total of 28 coal-producing counties in Eastern Kentucky, plus another 11 counties in the west, will spend about $25 million in coal severance funds over the next two fiscal years (1976-'77) on road work projects.

Dollar allotments to each qualifying county are being made according to their annual coal production tonnage figures. In other words, the larger their production, the greater the number of dollars allotted.

According to state transportation officials, the Bureau of Highways must accept recommendations from each county fiscal court as to how the money will be spent. The final decision, however, rests with the bureau.

In addition to the surfacing and patching work to be carried out under the Energy Road Fund program, the July 15 bid-letting package also includes nearly 200 miles of other road surfacing projects.

The largest is located in Scott and Fayette counties where 9.8 miles of Ironworks road will be surfaced between US 460 and US 25. A major patching project also is planned for 21.1 miles of Louisa-Catlettsburg Road (US 23), between KY 3 and I-64 bridge, in Lawrence and Boyd counties.

During fiscal 1975, a total of 45,799 youths were newly enrolled in the Job Corps program, according to the 1976 Employment and Training Report of the President.

DHR Services Plan Effective July 1

Frankfort, Ky.—The Department for Human Resources has announced its final plan for social services for the year beginning July 1, for the Kentucky River area which includes Breathitt, Knott, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Owsley, Perry and Wolfe counties, and the Gateway area, comprised of Bath, Menifee, Montgomery, Morgan and Rowan counties.

The program, which are funded under Title XX of the Social Security Act, cover a broad range of services to individuals and families and in Kentucky are administered by Human Resources' Bureau for Social Services.

Although there were no changes in services for the Kentucky River Area, there are some changes, made statewide, in other areas of the proposed plan.

The median income for persons eligible for the services, listed originally for October 1, 1976, will become effective July 1, 1976 for simplification purposes.

According to federal legislation, all services under Title XX are directed at one or more of five national goals.

In Kentucky there were no changes related to Goals I and II from the proposed plan. Goal I is "achieving or maintaining economic self-support to prevent, reduce, or eliminate dependency," while Goal II services are directed at "achieving or maintaining self-sufficiency, including reduction or prevention of dependency."

All Goal III services for child and adult protection may be used without regard to income to more adequately serve these client groups. Goal III, in part, aims at "preventing or remedying neglect, abuse, or exploitation of children and adults unable to protect their own interests."

Contracts with Comprehensive Care Centers and allocations to the Bureau for Health Services are itemized in the final plan.

Goals IV and V were added to Family Planning to cover the mandated client group and the day care fee scale was adjusted to conform with the new median income.

Goal IV aims at "preventing or reducing inappropriate institutional care by providing for community-based care, home-based care, or other forms of less intensive care." Goal V aims at "securing referral or admission for institutional care when other forms of care are not appropriate, or providing service to individuals in institutions."

Minor revisions were made in seven service definitions to delete unallowable activities or add additional activities.

Every Kentucky meeting certain income limitations as well as all those already eligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) can receive, within limitations of the budget, any of the services offered under the act.

Services for the Kentucky River Area include: adoption; adult activities and-or work activities; adult protection; alcohol abuse, prevention and treatment; alternate care; child protection; continuing care; counseling for the emotionally disturbed child; day care services for adults; day care services for children.

Education, training and rehabilitation services; emergency shelter care for children; employment related services; family or individual counseling services; family planning; foster care services for children; health-related services; home management-homemaking services; housing and home improvement services; juvenile services in the community; residential treatment services; social service planning; and unmarried parents.

One copy of the final plan may be obtained free of charge by calling toll free 800-372-2992 during regular working hours. Additional copies of the plan are available for $5 each.

The final plan will be available for review throughout the program year. It may be seen at any office of the Department for Human Resources' Bureau for Social Services in the state.

Health Systems Agency To Meet July 7th

Dr. Charles Dupier, chairman of the East Kentucky Health Systems Agency has called a meeting of the EKHSA governing board for Wednesday, July 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the RECC Building, Route 60-West, Winchester, Kentucky.

Discussion will include comments from federal officials on the application for designation and funding, development of subarea councils, election of a new representative from Northern Kentucky, and selection of an executive director. The meeting is open to the public.

Due to the rising demand for eyeglasses, employment for ophthalmic laboratory technicians is expected to increase faster than average for all occupations through 1985, reports the 1976-'77 edition of the U. S. Labor Department's "Occupational Outlook Handbook in Brief."

State Asks TVA Compliance With Air Pollution Rules

Frankfort, Ky.—Although a Kentucky air pollution control official has expressed dissatisfaction with a court decision prohibiting states from requiring permits for federal power plants, he does not believe it will hamper efforts to get needed information. The U. S. Supreme Court has ruled that federal facilities must meet state clean air and water standards, but that federal law does not allow states to license or permit the facilities.

"We will have to develop some way of having these federal plant meet emission limitations and prove compliance the same way private sources do," said John Smither, director of the division of air pollution control in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

The Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) operates power plants at Shawnee in McCracken county and at Paradise in Muhlenberg county. The two facilities burn coal and are considered by Smither to be the largest sources in Kentucky for sulfur dioxide emissions.

The permitting process under Kentucky regulations requires regular reports on emissions, use of control methods that are approved by the state, and the use of legally binding compliance schedules for reducing future emissions. The director said state law also provides for standby plans that must be followed during air pollution emergency episodes.

Smither said he does not interpret the high court's ruling as meaning the state will be unable to obtain needed information from TVA. "We have usually gotten the information we requested," he explained.

In a related matter, the U. S. Supreme Court recently refused to review appellate court decisions which said TVA's program of "intermittent" controls does not meet federal Environmental Protection Agency and state standards for "constant" controls. Smither said recently that TVA officials have told him they are working on proposals to comply with "constant" control requirements. He said one of several methods may be applicable: the use of low sulfur coal, washing or blending of coal, or the installation of scrubbers to reduce substantially the sulfur content.

TVA previously suggested methods for dispersing emissions over a wider area, along with cutbacks in operation and borrowing electricity from producers in other areas during periods of air stagnation. But air pollution division officials said state and federal laws and regulations require constant control programs to meet specified emission limitations.

Graydon (Soup) Martin, of Langley, above displays a fine collection of cauliflower heads weighing from 2½ to 3½ pounds per head, grown from his garden. One hundred families from seven communities recently heard presentations on growing and preservation of broccoli and cauliflower by the County Extension agents. These vegetables are high in vitamins and nutrition. For free bulletins on growing and preparing broccoli and cauliflower call the County Extension Office (886-2668).

Rules for the Communist Party
A. Corrupt the young, get them away from religion, get them interested in sex. Make them superficial; destroy their ruggedness.
B. Get control of all means of publicity, thereby:
1. Get people's minds off their government by focusing their attention on athletics, sexy books, plays and other trivialities.
2. Divide the people into hostile groups by constantly harping on controversial matters of no importance.
3. Destroy the people's faith in their national leaders by holding the latter up to contempt, ridicule and disgrace.
4. Always preach true democracy but seize power as fast and ruthlessly as possible.
5. By encouraging government extravagance, destroy its credit, produce fear of inflation with rising prices and general discontent.
6. Incite unnecessary strikes in vital industries, encourage civil disorder and foster a lenient and soft attitude on the part of government toward such disorders.
7. By specious argument, cause the breakdown of the old moral values, honesty, sobriety, self-restraint, faith in the pledged word, ruggedness.
8. Cause the registration of all firearms on some pretext, with the view of confiscating them and leaving the population helpless.
How many of the above rules have already come true?
How many of these rules are being carried out in this country?
PS. If you love America, protect it, don't try to tear it down or wreck one of the finest gifts of all times—freedom. Stand up for your country and beware of the people or forces that would destroy us.
Sincerely Yours,
JOE WHEELER LEWIS, Sheriff 1t.

I Attended a School for Janitors

By GEORGE L. MOORE

When Dr. Palmer Hall, of Morehead State University, became superintendent of Floyd county schools, he attempted to update the janitorial services in the schools. This was in the early '50's, and about the only person selected for janitor was someone who was not qualified to do the job. It was thought that all a janitor had to do was sweep the floors. An applicant for janitor would say: "I am broke down and unable to do any work and I want you to help me to get to be a janitor; I can't do the work myself but my old lady is a real good sweeper."

Mr. Hall induced Mr. James Patton, then the head of the Mayo Vocational School at Paintsville, to install a training school for janitors a few weeks before school got under way in the fall. The janitors from the nine high schools and the large consolidated grade schools were required to attend. I was selected to accompany the Floyd county group. There were also janitors attending from Pike and Johnson counties.

When we arrived the first day, I went to the cafeteria and made arrangements for the group to have their meals there. The first day at lunch, the main item on the menu was corn-on-the-cob. This proved to be a disaster as more than two thirds of the janitors had false teeth. Near the end of the meal I noticed a whispered conversation among them. As they filled out of the cafeteria, a huge pile of unedible ears of corn was left beside my plate. Somehow they thought I was responsible for having it prepared.

One thing that I noticed: if the instructor told how to do something different from the way the janitors had been doing it, they seem to resent it. This was best illustrated, I think, in considering the proper care of a furnace. He began telling how the ashes should be removed from under the grate bars daily. He said if the ashes packed against the bars the air could not circulate. The bars would become warped and useless within a few months. A set of grate bars cost around $300. Acting as a gadfly, I asked, "How long should a set of grate bars last?" The instructor answered, "They should last almost indefinitely if properly cared for." One janitor expressed himself angrily, "Listen, Mister, I've fired saw mill b'ilers all my life and I know more about them than you do—I say you don't need to remove the ashes every day."

After we finished with the use and care of fire extinguishers, we took up the problem of cleaning windows (This was a major problem). The instructor asked how each school cleaned the windows. In our school we used old newspapers and vinegar (the children in the homerooms did the work). In one school they used Mr. Clean. The janitor complained that it took longer to remove Mr. Clean than it did to remove the dirt. Some schools used soap and water and a few didn't use anything.

Each janitor was required to make a written list of all the tools needed by a janitor to do his work well. As I was about the only one in the group that could read and write, I wrote out most of the lists that the janitors made.

Perhaps the hardest task they had to perform was to make out a complete work schedule to follow for the entire school day. This required quite a bit of homework on my part after I reached home in the afternoon.

Just before the course was finished, Mr. Patton was called in to address the janitors. He was a master of making people feel that their work was important. He told them that he had relied on the advice of the janitor when he was principal of the school at Salyersville. He said that it was graduation time and he had overlooked the fact that one senior girl had not taken the required course in Plane Geometry. He went to the janitor for advice. He said, "Mr. Patton, I would just let her go ahead and graduate, for she will probably be able to bake biscuits just as well as the rest of them." Mr. Patton said it turned out that the janitor was right, after all.

George Ramey, later head of the school, was the instructor. He was a kind, understanding man. I've since talked with him and we thought that the course was worthwhile. For me, it was an interesting and rewarding experience.

I also had the dubious honor of being the only principal in Eastern Kentucky with a janitorial certificate.

Eastern Kentucky Vocational Schools Get $655,178 Funds

Congressman Carl D. Perkins has announced that the Appalachian Regional Commission is allocating $655,178 for the fifth year of operation of Eastern Kentucky vocational training schools.

Perkins, as chairman of the Education and Labor Committee, as well as chairman of the House Subcommittee with jurisdiction over vocational education, is the main sponsor of existing vocational legislation. He is also one of the major supporters of the Appalachian regional program.

"The program which is covered by this grant provides vocational training for high school students, young people just out of high school, and for adults, and will continue to be of great benefit in our area," Rep. Perkins said.

The counties covered by the grant which are in Rep. Perkins' Seventh Congressional District, include Floyd, Rowan, Montgomery, Morgan, Menifee, Boyd, Carter, Greenup, Johnson, Pike, Martin, Perry, Letcher.

MAILMAN ADMITS HE WAS LAXY IN DUMPING LETTERS

MIAMI—A part-time mailman, confronted with 63 pieces of mail he threw into a trash can, admitted he was "a little laxy," officials said recently.

Postal Service inspectors said the 24-year-old employe, whose name they refused to release, had resigned.

Officials said a "concerned citizen" told authorities he retrieved the mail after seeing the postman dump it.

Gish-Oakes

It was like taking a little of today and saving it for tomorrow... taking a little of 1976 and securing it for 2076, the burying of a Bicentennial Time Capsule in Frankfort last week, not to be opened until July 4, 2076.

Governor Carroll, the constitutional officers, members of the news media, the Kentucky Historical Events Celebration Commission staff and a few children pitched in their versions of what parts of today were a must to be saved for the Bicentennial.

The Governor gave a copy of his Inaugural remarks, his State of the Commonwealth speech and his budget address. For good measure, he added a copy of The Courier-Journal, one of Joe Creason's coffee bean pods symbolic of the Kentucky State coffee tree, a photo of the current constitutional officers and one of his family.

Lt. Governor Thelma Stovall contributed copies of the certification papers officially declaring her the first woman Lieutenant Governor of the Commonwealth.

Attorney General Bob Stephens dropped in a copy of a commencement address he delivered this spring and one of his gasoline credit cards.

State Auditor George Atkins wrote a poem, "Prophecy Ode 2076." Of note, he ended his verse with the question that had plagued Bicentennial staffers all week as they looked for signs of a Centennial Time Capsule to open and found none: "Will they ever find the Time Capsule buried under the big Christmas Tree?"

Atkins also added Bicentennial Task Force member J. L. Jackson's Falcon wine (Falcon Coal Company is among the first producers of Kentucky wine under the new 1976 statutes) made from vineyards growing atop reclaimed stripped-mine spoil banks in Eastern Kentucky.

Morehead State Trio To Conduct Services At Maytown Church

Langley, Ky.—An outstanding youth team from Morehead State University will lead the 11 a.m. services of the First Baptist Church here Sunday, July 11. The three-member team comes here from a highly successful revival at the Greenup Baptist Church.

All three members of the team are seniors at MSU. Jim Forrest, of Ashland, who is interim pastor at Owingsville Baptist Church, is preacher. Charlie Stephens, also of Ashland, and pastor of Wayside Baptist Church, is song leader. Reuben DeBord, of Catlettsburg, is accompanist.

"This is an outstanding group, and we invite the public, particularly young people, to hear their message in sermon and music," a church spokesman said.

GROUP ISSUES CALL FOR NUCLEAR PROTEST

VANCOUVER—The simmering question of limiting nuclear power continues to create controversy with a call for a mass protest at the final plenary session Friday of the United Nations Habitat Conference.

A conference of leading world thinkers, organized by British economist Barbara Ward, issued a plea for a worldwide moratorium on nuclear power development.

Capsule Buried for 100 Years

Frances Jones Mills, State Treasurer, contributed a Bicentennial check to the Citizens of the Commonwealth. Clerk of the Supreme Court, Martha Layne Collins brought her copy of The Living Bible, a miniature Texas Instrument calculator and a plastic spoon.

Wendell Butler chuckled when he told the Governor his contributions were secret, private papers, but later disclosed he had tucked in his first speech, a photo of his family and a check for $100 to cover his outstanding debts from the 2076 vantage point.

Senator Walter 'Dee' Huddleston sent an autographed Congressional Record and Senator Wendell Ford forwarded an autographed brochure of the 94th Congress with an inscription of "I pray 2076 is all you have hoped for and all I have worked for it to be."

Barbara Barker, of the Bicentennial Commission, donated a pair of her faded cut-off jeans. Another Bicentennial staffer added paper clips, a staff photo, and a Bicentennial brochure.

Page Atkins, 11-year-old daughter of the State Auditor, added a felt tip pen.

Reynolds Aluminum executive Billy Reynolds added a roll of aluminum foil and told the crowd the time capsule itself was the creation of former Kentuckian, Ed Gardner.

Various members of the news media contributed news articles, photographs and ticker tape.

But eight-year-old Gregg Hanson, of Clinton county, stole the show. Gregg, visiting the capitol with his parents, had stopped by for the ceremony. Governor Carroll began to look through his pockets for a two-dollar bill.

Gregg produced one, autographed it at the suggestion of the Governor, and dropped it in the capsule.

His generosity paid off when the Governor autographed two one dollar bills in repayment.

All items tucked away for another hundred years, Governor Carroll and Lt. Governor Stovall sealed the tank. Capitol maintenance men then buried it on the north front side of the Capitol beneath the big Christmas tree.

KHECC Executive Director Lois Mateus assured the media the Time Capsule buried would be dutifully documented and an appropriate marker placed as it's head stone.

"We've had such trouble locating previous time capsules, we are determined this one be adequately documented and pin pointed for Kentuckians of 2076," Miss Mateus said.

She also noted many Kentucky communities have already buried time capsules.

KHECC encourages others to do likewise.

"We encourage saving a little of 1976 for 2076. The time capsules will most likely be the most lasting project any community can sponsor in this Bicentennial year," a representative said.

New Batteries for Electric Cars Studied at ERDA's Livermore Lab

A new type of powerful battery, which could store about 20 times more energy for its size and weight than the lead-acid battery in present-day cars, is being investigated by a government-sponsored research team.

The investigation is being carried out by researchers at the Energy Research and Development Administration's (ERDA) Lawrence Livermore Laboratory in California.

In the 18-month, $300,000 ERDA-sponsored effort, Livermore researchers will be exploring the fundamental properties of the new battery which consists of a reactive metal such as lithium, a water-based medium (electrolyte) and an electrode which uses oxygen from the air.

An electric auto powered with such a battery could perform comparably to today's compact, gasoline-fueled cars, according to preliminary calculations. Operating costs now appear to be about two or three times greater, but could be reduced with further development.

Lithium is a high energy yielding metal. The water-based medium permits high-power battery operation because it is a good conductor. A battery using this combination should be an extremely powerful device.

But normally lithium and water are not compatible; when mixed they react to form lithium hydroxide, while giving off hydrogen gas. The lithium hydroxide then acts as a protective coating to slow down further chemical reaction.

A method of harnessing these materials to make a useful battery was discovered by engineers at Lockheed Missiles and Space Company in 1969. The engineers found that when an electric current is passed through the battery the reaction is virtually stopped.

The discovery opened the door to a series of possible batteries having remarkable energy storage properties.

As part of their studies the Livermore researchers will explore similar batteries based on reactive, but potentially less expensive, metals such as calcium, magnesium, aluminum, sodium and their alloys.

These new batteries are "primary" batteries. They are "recharged" by replacing the lithium, rather than being recharged electrically. This has the potential advantage of saving time in applications such as cross-country travel. ERDA also is sponsoring research by several private firms and national laboratories to develop a variety of other types of long-life, high-power batteries.

ERDA is presently negotiating a separate contract with Lockheed to participate in the battery studies.

NORWAY DEFINES DEATH

OSLO—A committee appointed by Norway's Ministry of Social Affairs has made its recommendation regarding guidelines for a definition of death. It says death has occurred "when a total destruction of the brain with complete and permanent cessation of all functions in the cerebrum, the cerebellum and the brain stem is present."

9 Kentucky 4-H'ers Visit Europe, Russia

Nine Kentucky 4-H'ers are learning how people live in Europe and Russia this month during a 38-day trip as participants in the 4-H Citizen Ambassador program.

They left June 26 for an orientation program prior to their people-to-people visit to England, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany, Denmark, the Netherlands and Russia. Traveling by air and by bus, the 4-H'ers are spending some time with host families, visiting 4-H and other groups, learning about the way of life and touring historical sites in the countries they visit.

The Kentucky 4-H citizen ambassadors are: Cara Jane Brown, Rt. 1, Oneida (Clay county); Becky Buis, Rt. 5, Somerset (Pulaski county); Matthew DeHaven, 119 Comanche Trail, Carrollton (Carroll county); Kelle Brooke Emmons, Bethel (Bath county); Lisa Lewis, Rt. 4, Mt. Old Memories To Ride Rails

It's been more than three years since trains have run over the rails of the Morehead and North Fork Railroad, but rail fans and their families will have an opportunity to renew their acquaintance with this four-mile railroad at the first Railfan Day on July 25.

Visitors may take rides on a diesel Baldwin RS-12, view a steam locomotive, tour the railyard and station, participate in special photography sessions and attend a flea market, swap meet and fish fry. In addition, the newly-named Morehead and Morgan Fork Railroad has a scale model steam-powered train for visitors to ride.

The Bluegrass Railroad Museum, an organization devoted to the restoration and preservation of the state's railroad history, will sponsor the first Railfan Day.

The M & NF Railroad, which began operation in 1905, has had a colorful past. During a season of heavy rainfall, Supt. M. C. Crosley and Engineer L. C. McClelland were bringing a 12-car train of coal from Redwine in Morgan County to Clearfield in Rowan County. When they reached Adkins Curve in Morgan County, five cars left the tracks. After leaving Wrigley Station, the men lost four more cars at Lost Point Cut in the Winding Stairs. Near Paragon on Licking River, another car jumped rail, leaving the men with "faces redder than a switchman's lantern" by the time they reached Clearfield with the remaining two cars.

Oldtimers also remember the day a car vanished. The late Elmer Sulzer, in his book "Ghost Railroads of Kentucky", described the embarrassment of the conductor when he stopped at Wrigley to cut off the last car.

"One can picture his surprise when the car could not be located, although his crew was certain the train left Clearfield with it," wrote Sulzer. "On its return trip the crew sighted the missing car reposing in the waters of North Fork at Cuba, another point in the Winding Stairs section."

Citizens in both counties loved the M & NF. Crews ran specials when revivals were in session anywhere along the line. They ran a special at a moment's notice if a group got a picnic crowd together or if anyone needed a doctor in a hurry. There were specials to Riffe Springs at Wrigley, a noted spa, and to other points along the way.

The era ended in 1933 when the tracks, except the four miles in Rowan County, were removed.

The Railfan Day, beginning at 10:00 a.m., will feature a mid-day fish fry with corn-on-the-cob and hush puppies. Information is available from Dr. Wesley F. Ross, 1749 Bahama Road, Lexington, Ky. 40511.

Knott Official Is Convicted, Trial of Second Postponed

One Knott county official was convicted recently of forgery charges in Lawrence county while the trial of another in Knott circuit court was being postponed.

County Clerk Gillis Combs pleaded guilty in the Lawrence circuit court to nine counts of third degree forgery involving more than $55,000 and was fined $500. A 12-month jail term will be suspended if he repays the money involved, it was said.

The charges against Combs arose from checks allegedly drawn on the account of the Louisa Stockyard in which he was a partner.

County Clerk Combs later said the indictment against him resulted from a misunderstanding and that after the case was reviewed both Circuit Judge William B. Hazelrigg and Commonwealth's Attorney Eugene Rice agreed that "only a misdemeanor offense had been committed during this misunderstanding."

Combs said that books of the stockyard were kept by Mrs. Judy Arnett, sister-in-law of Ronnie Arnett, who made the indictment, and that the court subpoenaed these books for an audit. He added that Dan Howard, Louisa accountant, later reported that the books were "unauditable"—a situation which, Combs said, made it "almost impossible to pursue my case further and prove my innocence."

The trial of Knott Sheriff Hilton "Cuch" Chaffins on two counts of unlawful imprisonment in the second degree was postponed in the Knott circuit court June 26 for the third time. The case will be heard at the August court term but a definite trial date has not been set.

Trouble in empanelling a jury before the end of the June term and inability of Cordell Martin, the sheriff's attorney, to be present on June 26 were given as reasons for continuance of the case.

The Old Whiskey Road

By GEORGE L. MOORE

Two of my neighbors were helping me improve a stand of timber. We were pruning the pines and cutting away the thick tangle of small bushes and grapevines between the rows. The thicket was so dense we could scarcely see ten feet ahead of us. It was quite a relief when we emerged at the end of a row of pines on the Old Whiskey Road.

Although three quarters of a century had passed, the deep ruts left in the soft earth by the steel rims of the wagon wheels were clearly visible. The old road ran from near the stillhouse spring on Sinking Creek, up through a gap in the high cliff to the top of the ridge. After it reached the summit, it made a sharp turn to the right and followed around the ridge to the bondage house about 200 feet from where I now reside.

Since the road was used as a route to and from the distillery, it was referred to as the Old Whiskey Road. It was as steep as a road could be and still be traveled. They would load a wagon bed full of barrels of liquor and head for the summit with a six-mule team. When the mules stopped to rest, it was necessary to place huge chunks of wood behind the wheels to prevent the wagon from rolling backward to the creek. After the wagon had deposited its cargo at the bondage house, the wagon was filled with corn for the return journey. When they turned over the steep hill, both of the rear wheels of the wagon were "rough-locked." They slid rather than rolled down the steep hill.

The man who operated this distillery was one of my numerous uncles, Eli Johnson. He was a school teacher and farmer before he engaged in the distillery business. He lived on a portion of the Old Clabe Jones place, which, at that time, had many large, fertile fields that produced great quantities of corn.

He conceived the idea that the best way to market the corn was by processing it through a registered distillery. It was a considerable operation. There were a number of 500-gallon stills and one small one. After the corn mash had been converted into liquor, the spent residue was used for fattening hogs. He had a large hog lot just below the still. Uncle George Stone would sometimes slaughter hogs here and market them in Olive Hill.

The only thing I can remember about the distillery was the big sign in letters two feet high. It read: "Eli Johnson, Wholesale Liquor Dealer". At first my uncle sold liquor both wholesale and retail but later, when Elliott county became dry, the business was confined to the wholesale trade.

The barrels of liquor were hauled to the railway freight station at Limestone in Carter county, from which point it was later shipped to Mt. Sterling. It was placed in the freight station at Limestone to be picked up by the local freight. The floor of the station, made of two-inch pine boards, was high above the ground. One night some men got under the floor, bored a hole up through the floor and on through the end of the barrel, inserted a hollow elder stem, and drained all the contents from the barrel.

Emery Stone, of the Stark community, remembers the operation of the distillery quite well. He recently told this story. He said that after the retail sales were abolished, a man appeared late one wintery evening, pleading with my uncle to sell him a quart of liquor. The stranger said that his wife was desperately ill and he wanted that amount for her sake. My uncle finally agreed to sell it to him. As the stranger turned to leave, he asked, "What is your name?" My uncle replied, "Why don't you know me? My name is George Stone."

In due time the man was brought before the grand jury in Carter county. He was asked if he had purchased any liquor in the last 12 months. He told them he had bought some from a George Stone in Elliott county. The case was promptly transferred to Sandy Hook and Uncle George was indicted. He went before the judge and told him he had never sold a drop of liquor in his life. The circuit judge, the late Jeff Hannans, was about as tough as they came. He would have none of Uncle George's story. He told him he would have to get a lawyer and stand trial.

In the meantime, my uncle found out what was going on, went before the judge and explained the matter. He said, "Judge, this old man never sold liquor in his life, I'm the man who sold liquor to the stranger." Uncle George was released, much to his relief.

The old building with the big sign on it remained for years after the distillery had ceased to operate. In later years it was moved on skids by means of several yokes of oxen, and converted into a blacksmith shop. The only thing that remains today is the big limestone spring beside the beech tree. From beneath this ancient beech, the clear, sparkling water flows into Sinking Creek as it did in my uncle's day, 75 years ago.

Theatre To Present "Waiting for Godot"

Pippa Passes, Ky.—Alice Lloyd College's Appalachian Summer Theatre, in cooperation with EKCEP, will present a tragi-comedy by the Nobel prize-winning playwright, Samuel Beckett, "Waiting for Godot." The play will be performed on Saturdays, July 10 and July 17, at 8 p.m. in Cushing Hall at ALC and at Clinch Valley College in Wise, Virginia, on Friday, July 16.

"Waiting for Godot," an early absurdist play, is, according to Director Bob Arlett, "one of the first dramatic statements of the current condition of mankind." The production includes some of ALC's best actors and actresses: Cindy Fassnacht and John Camera, as two old hobos named Didi and Gogo; Mike Hughes as Lucky, a slave; Dwight Bratcher as Pozzo, his master; and Chris Bergman, as the boy—a messenger for "Godot."

Consumer Comments

Newspapers across the Commonwealth carry advertisements proclaiming special savings on items at local food stores. These advertised specials can mean real bargains for the food buyer who compares the advertisements and shops where the lowest prices are advertised. But what if an advertised item is sold out when the shopper arrives or is almost impossible to locate in the store? Anyone who has encountered this situation knows that it is frustrating.

It is not as well-known that the situation may constitute an unlawful act by the grocer. Rules of the Federal Trade Commission, reinforced by Kentucky's Consumer Protection Law, provide certain guidelines for the use of advertised specials by food retailers. You should be aware of these requirements.

For an advertised special to comply with the FTC regulations, four conditions must be met:

1. The grocer must have, in stock, an amount of the advertised item sufficient to meet the expected demand;
2. The advertised item must be conspicuously displayed in the store, for easy location by shoppers;
3. The advertised item must, for the period of the sale, be priced at or below the advertised sale price;
4. The advertisement must clearly state any specific restrictions on, limitations of or exceptions to the availability of the advertised item. These include limits, if any, on the quantity of the item each shopper may purchase, as well as the minimum amount of total purchase necessary to take advantage of an advertised special. Also, if the advertisement is made by a food chain, it must indicate which of the chain's stores, if any, are not participating in the special.

a "raincheck" on a sale item that has already sold out when the shopper arrives. If you find a sale item missing from the shelves, you should ask the grocer for a "raincheck" so that you can purchase the item at the sale price at a later date. The availability of a "raincheck," however, does not exempt the store from the requirement of stocking a sufficient amount of the advertised item in time for the special.

Getting the most for your food dollar is easy, if you make wise use of advertised specials. Compare the advertised prices and read the advertisement fully. Don't be a victim of "bait-and-switch"—drawn into the store by sale price "bait," and then "switched off" to a higher-priced product because the sale item is already "sold out." If you have trouble locating a sale item, don't hesitate to ask the store manager.

If you suspect foul play in the advertising of food or of anything else, report it to the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection. You may write the division at Room 34 in the Capitol, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. For urgent advice, you may call toll-free on the Attorney General's Consumer Hotline, 1-800-372-2960.

Mullins Brothers, Knott Natives, Walk Boone's Route of Escape

They're good, old Kentucky boys, Bob, Adrian and Comer "Moon" Mullins, originally from Sassafras in Knott county. During the last week in June they spent some time in the wilderness, retracing the 200 year-old steps of another good, old boy, Daniel Boone.

Traveling on foot, the three brothers followed the route taken by the famous frontiersman in the spring of 1777 when he escaped from the Shawnee Indian camp at Chillicothe, Ohio, and fled to Boonesboro, Kentucky, some 130 miles south. Boone covered the distance in four days at a dead run—the Mullins boys, traveling at a more leisurely pace, completed their journey in seven.

"It all began as a dream three years ago," explained Bob, spokesman for the group. "We were all born in Kentucky. We love this part of the country and the history that goes with it." And so as a bicentennial project sponsored jointly by Kentucky and Ohio, the expedition began on June 22.

Dressed in authentic buckskin and cowhide outfits, which they made themselves, the three woodsmen were dead ringers for a band of 18th century pioneers. Even their artifacts were true to form—hand-made long knives and long rifles, one of which was an original, dating back more than 175 years.

"We couldn't follow Boone's route to the letter because it goes through downtown Cincinnati and there's no way we could do that on foot," said Bob. Instead they chose an alternate course through the backwoods and rolling forest which more closely resembled the original flight.

"We traveled 20 miles the first day and Moon's back gave out on him. My wife came down in the truck from Mt. Sterling (Ohio) and picked him up, and they met us in Boonesboro," said Bob. "We traveled in the daytime except for two nights when it rained so much that sleep was impossible. We kept going until about midnight then."

Crossing the Ohio River was facilitated by Ed Meyers, president of the Ohio Historical Society. "Ed came down from Mt. Sterling with a canoe and took us across," Bob stated. "He's rifle-builder, tomahawk-maker and very well known in Ohio."

"Once we got into Kentucky the going got rougher and a little slower but we pushed on," he continued. "We got to the Kentucky River (June 28) and we missed our point by about a mile or a mile and a half. We were picked up there and taken into Fort Boonesboro where we spent the night in the park."

"Our principal source of food was what we brought with us," Bob explained. "Some beef jerky, parched corn, dried dates, figs and raisins. We did eat some raspberries along the way, and a few blackberries that were ripe. Our water was taken right out of the streams, but we did have water purification tablets, which was a necessity."

"We suffered no ill effects except for chiggers and blisters," he added. "I took up my belt three notches and (Adrian) took up his four."

Their mission accomplished, the Mullins brothers turned to the comforts of modern transportation and motored to Harrodsburg, Kentucky to visit Old Fort Harrod State Park, and watch a performance of The Legend of Daniel Boone. The well known outdoor drama contains a reenactment of Boone's capture and subsequent escape from the Shawnee Indians. However a thunderstorm preempted that evening's production of the play. The Mullinses went on to Frankfort the following morning where state officials presented them with special bicentennial awards of merit.

Bob and Adrian, who both live in Ohio, say they plan to return to Kentucky sometime soon and make their homes here. Comer lives in Englewood, Florida, and made a special trip to Ohio to take part in the project with his brothers.

Grants totaling more than $2.9 billion under three titles of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) were made to 403 units of state and local governments during fiscal 1975, according to the U. S. Department of Labor's Annual Report.

The proposal is for the reconstruction of KY 80 to four lanes beginning at the easterly terminus of the Daniel Boone Parkway at its intersection with KY 15, extending easterly to US 23 at its junction with KY 3 at Watergap approximately three miles south of Prestonsburg. The length of the entire project is approximately 42 miles.

The project traverses segments of Perry, Knott, and Floyd counties. The Floyd county section of the project from the Knott County Line east of Garrett to the intersection with US 23 and KY 3 at Watergap is 14.5 miles in length and is the section that will be discussed at this meeting. Meetings have previously been held in Perry and Knott counties.

This meeting will be held on July 14, 1976 at 7:00 P.M. at the Allen Central High School gymnasium located at Eastern, Kentucky. The public is invited. Each person who desires will be given the opportunity to make statements and ask questions concerning the project.

Please God, I'm Only Seventeen

The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheeled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded, "all the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning. I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident

Elk Horn Elects Board Chairman

Richmond, Va., June 29—C. Raymond Hailey has been elected chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Elk Horn Coal Corporation, a 96-percent owned subsidiary of Ethyl Corporation.

In a related move, Hugh H. Baird, Jr., was named vice president-finance for Elk Horn. Announcement of the appointments was made by Bruce C. Gottwalk, president of Ethyl.

Elk Horn owns approximately 130,000 acres of coal land primarily in Floyd and other Eastern Kentucky counties, part of which it leases to others for mining. An Elk Horn subsidiary, West Virginia Belt Sales & Repairs, Inc., makes and markets mine and mill supplies.

happened. I was goofing off—going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard the deafening crash and felt a terrific jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened; it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled, I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head. I can't be dead. I'm only 17, I've got a date tonight. I am supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did I have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please... somebody... wake me up! Get me out of here, I can't bear to see my Mom and Dad so broken up. My grandparents are so wracked with grief they can barely walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody. No one can believe this. And, I can't believe it either.

Please don't bury me. I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do. I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance. Please, God, I'm only 17!

Restrict Red River Camper-Climber Use

Camper and climber use of the Red River Gorge Geological Area will be modified for greater visitor safety and protection of the natural resources under regulations issued recently by the Daniel Boone National Forest.

Climbing at Chimney Top Overlook will not be permitted from April through November, according to John Moore, ranger for the forest's Stanton ranger district. Moore, who administers the 25,660-acre geological area, says climbing at the overlook will be limited because of congestion and the safety of the some 55,000 visitors to the precipice, especially on weekends and holidays.

"Climbing attracts spectators, and this becomes a hazard," he explained. The weekend mountaineers scampering up and down the formation nearly 400 feet above the Red River attract and hold other visitors, causing overcrowding along the narrow ridge and in the small overlook. Moore said several persons risk falling by leaning too far over the sheer edge to get a better view of the activity.

He also cites examples of how some climbing groups occupy much of the overlook's limited parking facilities during the peak visitation days. Also, climbing ropes stretched across the narrow trail or tied to the guard rails are dangerous to both the visitors and climbers, according to the ranger.

"They can still climb the thousands of other cliffs we have out there," Moore said, and emphasized the climbers are allowed to use the overlook during the off season.

Many trained climbers work with the Forest Service to rescue unskilled persons along the steep ridges or remote areas.

The Sky Bridge area will be closed to all climbing and rappelling year-round, according to Moore. A scenic trail passes under the portion favored by climbers, and the activity causes a safety hazard and damage to the fragile rock formations. Rappellers often cause rock and debris to fall on the trail, endangering unsuspecting hikers.

In another measure to prevent resource damage, backpackers are again asked to pitch their camps at least 300 feet from the roads and out of sight along the many Gorge trails.

The regulation, which was put into effect a few years ago, was strongly enforced last season. According to Moore, this allowed the vegetation to return to areas bordering the roads and trails, making them more pleasing and preventing erosion.

Fiddlin' Dewey for 2nd Time Performs in National Fest

Fiddlin' Dewey Shepherd, of David, is in Washington, D. C. this week as an invited performer in the Festival of American Folklife for the second time.

This year's festival, the tenth, will begin today (Wednesday) and continue through next Sunday. It will be staged on the National Mall.

The Smithsonian Institution, which invited the Floyd man to participate in the festival, wrote that musicians, craftsmen, artists and others from all over the country were considered in the selection of participants. Mr. Shepherd was among the 100 finally chosen. These, the Smithsonian wrote, "are those who, we feel, represent the multi-traditional heritage . . ."

Shepherd's fiddles—a gourd fiddle and two others—were shipped to Washington, ahead of his arrival by plane.

The David man a few years ago also participated in the Newport, R. I. Folk Festival.

Floyd County's Assessment Up by Almost $18 Million

Floyd county's total assessment for tax purposes this year is $183,518,638—almost $18 million above the 1975 assessment.—Lovel Hall, Floyd property valuation administrator (tax commissioner), said this week.

The real estate assessment for this year is up approximately $6 million—from $87,187,844 last year to $93,450,898. Tangible property values, with motor vehicles leading the way, rose almost $3 million—from $8,794,055 last year to $11,719,509. Intangibles—stocks, bonds, etc.—, on which a state tax of 25 cents per $100 is collected, increased from $11,877,077 in 1975 to $13,053,792 this year. Bank shares increased from $6,444,940 to $7,792,050.

The only decrease was on other intangibles which are taxed for state purposes only at 1½ cents per $100. This assessment dropped from $4,004,986 last year to $1,316,656.

Residential lots assessments jumped this year to $5,437,970, approximately $4 million above the 1975 figure. Farm land values increased little more than $400,000—from $14,576,720 to $14,998,979.

In the tangibles motor vehicle assessments this year total $39,645,025 as compared with last year's $32,173,225. Aircraft valuations dropped from a 1975 total of $947,650 to $821,550, and watercraft also showed a slight drop—from $759,800 to $741,100. Merchants' inventories rose from $6,490,657 to $8,758,399, and drilling, mining and construction equipment totals rose from $8,794,055 last year to $11,719,509.

Mr. Hall said a bill enacted by the Legislature this year provides that unmined coal is subject only to state tax. Last year, the tax on such coal netted Floyd county $13,000 and the county's schools $38,000. The state Department of Revenue, he said, now has the responsibility of assessing unmined coal but has not yet done so.

Another new law which will become effective with next year's assessments will remove 30 cents of the county school tax rate and add it to the 1½-cent state rate. The state then will presumably apportion the additional funds it thus collects to the counties. This equal apportionment is designed, it was said, to help poorer counties of the state.

Knott County Officials Deny Owing Money

HINDMAN, Ky.—A state audit of Knott county books for the year 1974 indicates that three county officials owe money for over-collected fees. But the three men each dispute the apparent findings of that audit.

"We have not had an audit as far as I'm concerned," said Knott County Judge Sid Williams. The audit said that Williams owes $129.94 to the county's fiscal court. "I feel strongly that I do not owe anything," said Robert Morgan, county attorney. The state audit indicates that Morgan owes $1,823.09.

"We've got a budget set up, but if I've got prisoners in jail and it runs over that, I've got to be paid," jailer Worley Slone said. The state auditor said he owes $11,462.83.

Judge Williams said no auditor, to his knowledge, ever visited his office, "and the county attorney said they never were in his office, either."

"I don't know where they got those figures," Williams said. The jailer said a representative of the state auditor's office did visit him, but added that the apparent shortage in his books came from expenses he paid in cash during the year in question.

"I did pay for a lot of things and paid cash, right out of my pocket," said Slone, adding that he since has been paying jail bills by check and keeping records of where the money goes.

Jailers are paid on a per diem basis for the number of prisoners they house, and they have to pay for food for the prisoners and help for the jail themselves.

"I should have kept a record of it (in 1974), but nobody did before. I guess everybody should keep records. I know they get stricter all the time," Slone said. "I don't see why people have got to come up here and run our business," Slone added. "We've got enough problems of our own."

Morgan said the apparent shortage in his office reflects, in part, money he received a year later in delinquent taxes.

"Nobody is going to require you to report money a year before you get it," he said. "I clearly feel the audit was way off base," adding that his office often collects large sums of money just after the first of the year that should be credited to the previous year.

In addition, "in several years, I lacked by about $2,000 making the limit, but nobody ever says anything about that," he added.

The county judge said that he plans to consult with Morgan about asking for a new audit for the year 1974. "We have no definite plans at this time," Williams said.

He said he became aware of the present audit figures about a month ago. "It may have been more or less," he said, but the $1,200 a year he pays a judge pro tem "was never mentioned," he said.

The jailer said the county "paid me what was coming to me. It just ran over what they had set up."

"I don't like it. People don't understand that it was coming to me. It looks like I stole it and I just don't like it worth a damn," Slone said. "I'm not going to keep any prisoners for nothing," he added, saying he sometimes has 150 to 200 a month in his jail. "I might as well resign if I'm going to keep them for nothing," he said.

PRESBYTERIANS ADOPT $7.8 MILLION BUDGET

TUSCALOOSA, Ala.—The 116th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U.S., ended June 19 after a week of discussions on church and national issues.

In closing session business, the denomination adopted a $7.8 million budget for the coming fiscal year. Of that, 65.7 per cent is to go to overseas missions with the rest allocated to domestic activities.

Also, the assembly: —Adopted a resolution urging President Ford to grant a full pardon "to all in legal jeopardy for refusing to serve or for assisting others to refuse to serve in the Vietnam War."

—Approved a report saying exorcism "does not usually belong to the work of the minister of the Word in the reformed tradition."

—Delayed voting on a proposal to condemn homosexuality until next year's meeting.

Those Cave Run Snake Tales Pure Fiction, Ranger Says

If you want a woeful tale about people, snakes and rumors, ask Dick Bonyata, Morehead district ranger for the Daniel Boone National Forest. For several weeks Bonyata has been on local radio stations denying there is a snake problem at Cave Run Lake.

Even the district's clerk is becoming expert at explaining to the many callers that no danger exists, and neighbors are asking other forest employees about the phantom serpents.

Yet the rumor keeps spreading. Most people in Morehead have heard it, and visitors from West Virginia and Ohio seem to be familiar with its highlights. What finally got the normally easy-going ranger upset were erroneous CB broadcasts about the hissing hordes residing around the lake and that the beach was being dug up to remove the reptiles.

"We don't have a snake problem at Cave Run Lake," the Forest Service ranger protested for the umpteenth time. For the record, the beach is not being dug up to remove the snakes.

Still visitors to the Twin Knobs Recreation Area ask about fictional populations of rattlesnakes and copperheads slithering among the campsites and waiting to nibble on an unsuspecting bather.

Because the Forest Service requires everyone entering the recreation area to pay a fee, the rumor persists when those only wanting to "look for themselves" are told they have to pay the fee to satisfy their curiosity. The rumor has some visitors jumpy, especially one youngster. Two weeks ago, lifeguards alarmed by his screams, "A snake's got me!" scrambled to his rescue, only to find a strap from his life jacket wrapped around his leg.

Fighting fiction with facts, the ranger insists there is no problem with snakes at the lake.

Bonyata's maintenance crew, which mows the grass at the beach and campground, reports seeing only one snake this year. "It was a six-inch green snake," the ranger said.

While the ranger admits there are probably some snakes somewhere on the Twin Knobs peninsula, they're not stalking their victims, as many picture the boa constrictors in old jungle movies. People and snakes seem to have mutual feelings about each other.

According to the Forest Service, a visitor has reported seeing a poisonous snake at the recreation area—in fact, employees who handle accident records don't remember when the last person was bitten by a snake in the entire forest.

If for nothing more than to redeem the reputation of Cave Run Lake, Bonyata murmured one more time, "We don't have a snake problem."

By LARRY BURKE

How important is today? Someone has wisely said: "It is our most valuable possession. And we all agree, after a few moments of thought, that this is absolutely true."

Did you know that if you lived to be seventy-five years old, you have only lived some 27,300 days? Just imagine less than 30,000 days.

It is not really important that we count our days as how we make our days count. Our riches are compiled on a day-to-day basis. The great challenges of tomorrow will come tomorrow—and the accomplishments of today can only be made today.

We don't mean that a person should live in disregard of tomorrow—that would be foolish! But if you miss the fullness of today, you will never recover it.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: "... As a man thinks so shall he be."

Maytown Homecoming Plans

Violet Allen, chairman of the 1976 Maytown Homecoming, announces that free trailer space is available on the Maytown school campus, with power, water and restrooms for all homecomers needing such facilities. The board of directors will meet Saturday evening with Mrs. Allen. The Registration Committee, co-chaired by Misses Bertha and Myrtle Ratliff, is meeting this week, as will a special committee for the brief Homecoming Royalty Pageant to be presented on the Friday night program, July 23, with Mrs. Paul Donald Hagans as master of ceremonies.

Those desiring to exhibit something special may do so on bulletin boards, tables, et cetera, in the lobby of the Allen Central administration building, but all who do this do so at their own risk, since the Homecoming Association cannot be responsible for loss or damage in any way. Persons wishing to display something should contact Lorena Hall, Otha Hopkins, or Marie Martin. Chalkboards will provide space for class names, so others attending may know who is present from certain classes. Guests are asked to write their names under the years of graduation immediately after registering. The 1976 News Sheet will be free with registration ticket. Homecoming booklets can be purchased from Mrs. Rondal Hayes, near the registration booth. A large number of 1968 and 1971 books are available. Visitors are cautioned not to lose tickets, since one admits to both sessions.

The Friday evening program will conclude with a "corn popping" session, when homecomers from coast to coast, Michigan to Florida, pop up and down to tell who they are, where from, et cetera. All awards and recognition features will take place on Saturday evening July 24, in Allen Central gymnasium. On Sunday everyone will be welcome to attend Bethel Baptist Church at Wilson Creek, United Methodist Church or Maytown First Baptist. Church services will conclude the homecoming.

Kentucky To Advance Notch from Bottom?

By Education News Service
Louisville, Ky.—Kentucky's lowest-in-the-nation record in per pupil spending may change for the school year just ended to second-from-the bottom.

The annual Kentucky Education Association (KEA) research publication, "How Kentucky Ranks, 1976," estimates that 1986 from state, local, and federal funds was spent on each Kentucky public-school child in average daily attendance for the 1975-'76 school year. That will put Kentucky in 49th place among all the states, according to KEA public relations and research director Charles Whaley. Only Tennessee's $969 per pupil is expected to be lower.

Final figures now in for the preceding year (1975-'76) put her pupil spending in Kentucky at $891, the same amount spent in Arkansas. Since the two states tied for bottom spot in the nation, there were two 49th-place rankings that year but no 50th. This year's Kentucky figure of $986 per pupil should be compared with a national average of $1390 and a surrounding states average of $1255. New York ranks first with $2179.

Whaley pointed out that six of the seven states with a lower per capita income than Kentucky put a higher percent of their personal income into local and state funds for public schools.

This demonstrates, he said, that Kentuckians are not making the effort that the six poorer states are making to support schools.

The six states are Louisiana, West Virginia, South Carolina, Arkansas, New Mexico, and Mississippi.

Whaley said Kentuckians put only 3.9 percent of their personal income into local and state school funds compared with a national figure of 5 percent. He noted that the Kentucky effort was down considerably from the previous year's 4.3 percent.

The difference between 3.9 percent and 5 percent may appear small, but an additional $164,032,000 would be available for the state's public schools if Kentuckians matched the national effort.

In that category—local and state revenue receipts for public schools in 1974-'75 as percent of 1974 personal income—Kentucky dropped from 46th place to 49th place, Whaley said.

Kentucky's per capita personal income of $4442 in 1974 was 81.5 percent of the national average, putting the state in 43rd place.

In per capita spending from state and local funds Kentucky ranks this way in new state-by-state comparisons, Whaley said: Highways, 23rd; welfare, 30th; higher education, 30th; local schools, 46th.

In dollar amounts Kentucky's per capita spending is $75.56 for welfare, $86.21 for higher education, $11.79 for highways, and $177.71 for local schools.

For the 1975-'76 school year Kentucky's public schools got 54.3 percent of their funds from the state (ranking 17th in the nation), 31.1 percent from local sources (ranking 39th), and 14.6 percent from the federal government (ranking 8th). Those ranks are for percents, Whaley emphasized, not dollar amounts.

He also noted that Kentucky has the 14th highest pupil-teacher ratio in the nation, up one notch from last year's rank. Kentucky enrollment per teacher is 22.1 compared with a national figure of 20.9. Only Arkansas, Oklahoma, Mississippi, and South Dakota pay their classroom teachers less on the average than Kentucky, Whaley reported.

Kentucky's 1975-'76 average salary for classroom teachers is estimated at $9,770 in the publication, putting the state in 46th place. The previous year's average was $8921 for a 47th-place rank.

(The Kentucky Department of Education says the actual salary average for classroom teachers will be $9,744 for 1975-'76. That is not expected to change Kentucky's rank, however.)

The nation salary average for classroom teachers is estimated at $12,524, while the average for the seven states bordering Kentucky is $11,872.

Average salary for instructional staff (teachers and administrators) is estimated at $10,135 for Kentucky, ranking the state 44th. The national average is $13,005.

The percent of Kentucky teachers who are men rose slightly this year, from 27 percent to 27.5 percent, but the state's 39th-place rank did not change. The national figure is 33.5 percent.

"How Kentucky Ranks, 1976" draws on data from the National Education Association (NEA) research report entitled "Rankings of the States, 1976." It shows Kentucky's relative standing in 139 categories.

The publication is available at $1.50 from the KEA Division of Public Relations and Research, 101 West Walnut Street, Louisville, Ky. 40202.

$19,364 Grant Made FIVCO

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Gov. Julian M. Carroll has announced that the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) has awarded a $19,364 grant to the FIVCO Woodlands Resources Cooperative for acquiring equipment for a timber management field crew operating in Eastern Kentucky. In addition, the funds will be used to meet training costs for up to three five-man crews.

The ARC funds will cover 75 percent of the $25,818 total project cost. The remaining costs are to be met by the Cooperative, a non-project cost. The remaining costs are to be met by the Cooperative, a non-profit timber management organization operating out of Catlettsburg.

According to ARC representatives, since the crews would be trained on-the-job and be generating revenue, additional crews might be trained. The exact number of crews would depend upon amount of revenue and the potential employ-ability of each additional crew trained.

Carroll said the project "can demonstrate the effectiveness of sound timber management practices in increasing income from forest resources."

Equipment to be acquired by the grant includes a five-passenger pickup truck and various tools necessary to perform timber management services.

Taxes Due on Oldest Cars

Frankfort, Ky.—Effective July 1 used cars to old to be listed in auto reference manuals can be assigned a definite value for tax purposes.

The change, one of several made in the state's vehicle tax law by the 1976 General Assembly, will determine the value of earlier model cars by the number of years the vehicle has not been listed (the earliest models in the current National Automobile Dealer's Association manual is 1969).

If the vehicle has not been listed for a year, the retail price shall be 75 per cent of the figure for the same make vehicle last appearing in the manual. If the vehicle has not been listed for two years, the retail price is 50 per cent of the last manual listing and if the used car hasn't been listed in three years the price is 25 per cent of the last listing.

For older cars, the retail price will be 10 per cent of the retail price of the last listing with a minimum of $100.

In other changes: —The taxable value of new motor vehicles is reduced from 100 per cent of the federally required sticker or manufacturer's retail price to 90 per cent. Also, trucks having a gross weight in excess of 10,000 pounds will have a taxable value of 81 per cent of the manufacturer's retail price.

—One motor vehicle traded against another must be transferred before the same county clerk at the same time if credit between the book values of the vehicles is to be allowed for tax purposes.

—If a car is purchased from a Kentucky dealer and is returned within 10 days for a new vehicle replacement, the purchaser is entitled to a refund of the usage tax received by the state Department of Revenue as a result of the registration of the returned vehicle.

The U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics predicts 6,100 annual job openings through 1985 for waste water treatment plant operators due to increased construction of new plants to process growing amounts of domestic and industrial waste water.

The first Congress (1789) passed a federal pension law for veterans, according to the Veterans Administration.
