

Bond Issue To Finance Plant Job

Council OK's Bonds For $150,000; Second Project Is Delayed

The Prestonsburg City Council last Thursday evening authorized the issuance of $150,000 of water, gas and sewer bonds to finance water system expansion here and also arranged for interim financing of the project, but delayed action on a May's Branch project which may require $175,000.

A special service charge to residents was discussed, and a committee was named to discuss the problem with them and ascertain what they are willing to do. The committee is composed of three community representatives, Ben Hek, Roy Ramey and Oscar Collins, and three members of the council, Hansel Cooley, Harold Cooley and Paul Phillip Hughes.

The city will benefit in its water plant expansion work from a $150,000 FHA loan, the remaining $25,000 to be paid out of water system funds. The low bid on the May's Branch water and sewer work was $169,261, and engineering fees and other costs will bring this total outlay to around $175,000. But no federal loan or other aid is in sight.

Three bids on a new garbage truck were opened at Thursday's meeting, and the lowest, that of the James Municipal Equipment Co., Louisville, for $22,668, was accepted.

Installation of the new Dialomatic phone system for the fire department was approved. Dialomatic records a fire alarm, then with the push of a button the recorded alarm goes out simultaneously to all firemen. The fire department also was authorized to apply for a grant for equipment on a 50-50 basis for equipment to render rural service. The department qualifies because it has helped in suppressing brush fires and rendering other service outside the corporate limits of Prestonsburg.

Other council action included: —The employment of John David Evans to assist City Manager Curtis Clark with the city tax program for a period of a few weeks.

—Advertising for a fireman to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mike Wells.

—Granting permission of two firemen to attend the Lexington fire school.

—Accepting job specifications presented by the Park Commission.

—Employment of Haroletta Potter as assistant bookkeeper.

Estep Charged As 85-Year-Old Woman Beaten

Jackie Estep was jailed here Saturday by State Trooper Stumbo and Allen Policeman Virgil Conn on a first degree assault charge, shortly after he allegedly had severely beaten 85-year-old Sallie Wright at her Allen home.

Mrs. Wright, who is the widow of Marion Wright, was taken to Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, where, according to a report received here, more than 40 stitches were required to close her head wounds. She reportedly was beaten with a hoe handle. She was conscious Monday and is expected to recover.

There is no known reason for the assault, it was said.

Gary Allen, of Abbott Creek, who escaped custody last Friday after hearing Circuit Judge Hollie Conley sentence him to a year in prison, had not been located as of Tuesday afternoon.

Allen and Clarence Slone pleaded guilty to two-year-old charges of obtaining money under false pretenses, and, after hearing the sentence and learning that probation had been denied

Stumbo Says Court's Action On Prisoners Here, Illegal

The move made last week by the Floyd fiscal court to close the county jail to city prisoners within a matter of 60 days is illegal, County Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said later in the week.

Stumbo, who said he expressed doubt of the illegality of the court order at the time it was voted, did some research later. He found Kentucky Revised Statute 441.020, which reads, in part:

"The United States may use the jail of any county, and any city may use the jail of the county in which the city is located, by paying the jailer the fees allowed by KRS 64.150 for the type of services rendered . . ."

Holiday Campers Jam Park Area

Although intermittent rain slowed down boating on Dewey Lake, Memorial Day week-end campers made of the new Goble Branch camping area at Jenny Wiley State Park a bustling, if temporary community comprised of all manner of tent and mobile camper. This view looks up the hollow while at least as many more campers were set up nearer the entrance.

Court Again Upholds Mineral Rights Deed

The Kentucky Supreme Court last week denied strip-mining rights to owners or lessees of coal lands in Western Kentucky but failed to nullify the sweeping rights to mine that are conveyed in the so-called Broad Form deed under which companies hold most Eastern Kentucky mineral rights.

Broad form deeds were not specifically attacked in the case in which the Supreme Court upheld a lower court in ruling that three disputed Muhlenberg county mineral deeds did not allow strip mining because of the way they were written.

The court said such restrictions on strip mining could be written into mineral deeds, but it also noted it has consistently held that broad form deeds "grant such overwhelming mining rights that the mineral owner, in fact, has the right to use the surface of the land, part or all of it, in recovering the coal acquired by the deeds."

But, Justice James Stephenson, of Pike county, in a separate concurring opinion, sharply disagreed with previous court rulings on broad form deeds, and criticized the controversial mineral rights.

Stephenson said strip mining should be limited to those mineral deeds which specifically grant such a right and "otherwise, the consent of the surface owner should be necessary." Justice Pleas Jones, of Whitley county, concurred with Stephenson.

Stephenson argued with two previous court rulings which have been the basis for upholding the broad form deed, saying the decisions "and their progeny are aberrations in the law of minerals."

"They should be overruled, and the right to strip-mine should be limited to those mineral deeds specifically granting or reserving such right," Stephenson said.

Stephenson said he is "not at all impressed with the mystique that has been attached to the broad form deeds."

He said the expressions used in last week's opinion concerning broad form deeds granting "overwhelming rights" and being tantamount to granting all of the surface "leave me with a feeling that indeed such a document should contain strange and wonderful language, but I find none."

"The broad form deeds in all their manifestations clearly and expressly provide for those installations and operating procedures routinely found in a deep mine," Stephenson said. "With the occasion inclusion of 'subsistence rights' and more frequently the express rights to use standing timber of a certain size in the mining operation, all else is usual in a deep-mine operation.

"The fact that the scrivener felt some compulsion to go into tedious and minute detail in describing the mining rights does not, in my opinion, elevate those documents to the degree of significance that has been ascribed to them," Stephenson said.

Public Hearing On Mine Permit Again Delayed

The public hearing on the application of the B & H Elkhorn Coal Company to strip-mine in the Finance Hollow section of Beaver Creek, near Martin, was again postponed last week.

The hearing was continued from Tuesday of this week to 10 a.m. July 12 in the courthouse here.

The continuance was granted on motion of Jim Hammond, attorney representing 400 residents of the area who had signed a petition in opposition to the strip-mining permit application. His motion cited as grounds for the delay: (1) the claim that some witnesses for the landowners could not be

THE NOSTALGIA MARKET

At hand is an article headed, "Profits in Nostalgia," and containing a list of items bordering on the antique which bring a right pretty figure in inflated dollars. For instance: A 1900 model Coke tray, selling for $2,650; Playboy's first number (1954) with Marilyn Monroe featured in the centerfold, around $250, and so on.

As might be expected, I am loaded with nostalgia—so heavily so that I must take care not to indulge in it too often in this column—but it's the kind you can't hang on the wall or put on a shelf. Fact is, my brand, worth nothing to any other soul, is composed of fond recollections that I wouldn't part with at any price, even if there was a market for it.

As if this desk does not reduce me to the desired state of dizziness, this guy who operates under the name of Mumpsimus now pastes on the wall, where the eye can't miss it, a card bearing these words:

"I know you believe you understand what you think I said, but I am not sure you realize that what you heard is not what I meant."

Run that one through again, boy!

Everything these days runs to alphabetical names such as WPA, HUD and the like. Now it appears the politicians are at it:

ABC (Anybody But Carter), HHH (Hubert H. Humphrey), and now an alphabetized slogan some southerners in Congress have. It's BBC (Better Be Carter).

Gas Worker Strike Vote Is Expected

U. S. District Judge H. David Hermansdorfer has set aside the restraining order he had entered earlier enjoining Local No. 3-510, Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers, from initiating a strike against the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, and a strike vote of union members is slated within the next 15 days.

The original injunction was issued March 25 when workers threatened to strike after an employee had been discharged. The company sought to compel the union to submit the dispute to arbitration, and the injunction followed.

In his May 17 memorandum opinion the federal judge held that he does not have the power under the Labor Management Relations Act "to enjoin a work stoppage and compel binding arbitration of a grievance over the discharge of an employee in the face of a contract containing both a broad mandatory arbitration provision and an express reservation of the right to strike."

Although the restraining order was rescinded, a 10-day stay was granted. Kentucky West Virginia has appealed the case to the Sixth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The hassle between the company and union arose over the discharge last January of James Morris, who later filed a grievance. The company contended that the union has no legal right to strike under the existing agreement over this type of dispute and that the issue should be submitted to arbitration.

Hubert Halbert, president of the local, indicated the strike vote will follow expiration of the 10-day stay of the order dissolving the injunction.

Search Continues For Missing Woman

Members of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad spent Memorial Day in a search for Mrs. Elizabeth Burchett Schell, well-known Prestonsburg woman, who disappeared from her home early Monday morning.

Mrs. Schell's whereabouts remained unknown Tuesday morning, and the Squad was preparing for a search of the banks of the Big Sandy. Monday's search, which extended from Prestonsburg to Knotley Hollow, covered the hills on the east side of the river, abandoned

7th District Figures Heavily In Kentucky Primary Results

The Seventh Congressional district was instrumental in President Ford's Kentucky preferential primary victory last week over Ronald Reagan, and at the same time it gave Jimmy Carter the heaviest victory margin for the Presidential nomination on the Democratic ticket.

The Seventh gave Ford a lead of about 4,500 votes, which was only about 1,000 shy of his lead for the entire state. Likewise, it led all districts in Carter's landslide win.

In Floyd county Carter led in 43 of the 44 precincts. George Wallace, who had followers in every precinct except Branham's Creek, where he polled no votes, outscored the Georgian in Martin Precinct No. 10, 156 votes to 93. Carter edged Wallace, 33 to 32, in Antioch precinct, and the Head of Mud precinct was split three ways: Carter 26, Wallace 20, Udall 24. In all other precincts the vote tilted heavily in Carter's favor.

Although Ford received 303 of the 499 Republican votes cast, Reagan polled all six G. O. P. ballots in Middle Creek No. 8, led 4-1 in Rough and Rough, tied Ford (10-all) in John Possum at Martin and 4-4 at Garrett and had the edge in these precincts: Lackey (7-3), Martin (15-8), Halbert (6-5), Clear Creek (5-4), Little Mud (6-4), Weeksbury (7-4), Branham's Creek (9-6), Beech Grove (6-5), Arkansas (8-3), Allen-Dwale (9-7).

Apparently, Carter will take 36 of Kentucky's delegates to the Democratic national convention. Wallace, with 16.8 per cent of the statewide vote, will have eight, and Udall will get the remaining two.

The Seventh district delegates for Carter are his district chairman, William Weinberg, of Hindman, who is a son-in-law of Ex-Governor Bert Combs) State Rep. James "Jitter" Allen, of Martin, Marie Turner, Breathitt county; Kitty Hutchings, Maysville, and State Senator Kelsey Friend, Pikeville.

Ex-Governor Louie Nunn, a leader of the Reagan forces in the state, downgraded the Ford victory, pointing out that the President's Kentucky win was "more psychological than anything." He added that the vote gives Ford the majority of delegates only on the first ballot at the national G. O. P. convention. After that first ballot, 28 of the 36 convention delegates are Reagan's, as decided at the party's state convention.

Reagan's Kentucky campaign manager, Olney Owen, admitted strong disappointment with the Seventh district returns which gave Ford a lead in every county but Menifee. "I thought we would carry the Seventh by 400 votes," he said.

June 30, Last Day For Nominations To Health Group

Nominations to the Big Sandy Sub-Area Council, which is to serve as a local advisory body to the East Kentucky Health Systems Agency, Inc. (EKHSA), will be accepted until June 30, it was announced last week by Sallye Hill Stumbo, health planner.

The nominee, as well as the group or individual submitting the nomination, must be a member of the EKHSA and must reside in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin or Pike counties. (The Agency membership form and nomination form may be found in the Classified section of this edition of The Times.)

Election of the Sub-Area Council will take place in July. Announcement of the election date and procedure will be made later.

LIKE THE DECAYING automobile which rests beside it, this one-room school on Salyers Branch, near Hueysville, stands as a memento to years past.

This was Pack 21's last Pack meet until fall when they will resume their scouting program in September.

Trailer Owners Warned

Frankfort, Ky.—Owners of the familiar recreational travel-trailers that dot the state's highways during the summer months are being warned to pay careful attention to the weights and load distributions of their trailers.

According to Bennie Maffet, transportation safety coordinator for the state Transportation Department, serious accidents can happen due to the failure of the travel-trailer suspension.

Maffet said suspension failures can be caused by overloading, poor handling of the trailer and two vehicle at highway speeds due to overloading, or poor weight distribution in the trailer.

Maffet cited single-axle trailers over 14 feet long as especially susceptible to overloading.

"This is because some manufacturers build several sizes of trailers on the same frame and suspension. This leaves less load-carrying capacity for the suspension for each extra pound of trailer weight," he explained.

Maffet said federal surveys have found that about one-third of all trailers being towed have too much weight on the tongue of the trailer.

"Automobile manufacturers recommend the tongue-weight be no more than 10 per cent of the total trailer weight," he said.

"It is extremely important for trailer owners to know their trailers' load-carrying capacity. This special warning is needed because some trailer manufacturers have failed to educate the owners of the dangers of overloading," Maffet continued.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) had already had eight recall campaigns in which the manufacturers have replaced wheels, tires or axle components with stronger equipment for heavier loads.

"Any owners who have experienced suspension problems on their travel-trailers, or who need assistance in determining their particular trailer's capacity should contact NHTSA's Office of Consumer Services, 400 7th St. SW, Washington, D. C., 20590.

Maytown Homecoming Plans Developed by Committees

Langley, Ky.—The board of directors of Maytown Homecoming, 1976 met recently with the chairman, Mrs. James E. Allen, to make additional plans for the colorful event which is scheduled July 23-25.

It was decided to name and honor the Mother of the Year and Teacher of the Year as well as the Man and Woman of the Year. Homecoming songs, "Parody of Maytown School Song," and "Glory to Old Maytown," written by the late Elsie Patrick, will be led by Alicia Mayo, accompanied by Suzan Compton at the piano. Dr. Henry Martin, former V. P. of E.K.U., Maytown class of 1931, and County Court Clerk, Ollie Robinson, class of 1948, will assist Mrs. Allen in presiding over the two sessions.

On Saturday evening five distinguished alumni will be honored, and presented plaques and ten outstanding citizens who have achieved distinction in some way will be recognized and awarded framed certificates.

Mrs. Ralph O'Quinn, art instructor of Allen Central, is supervising the making of wall charts, posters, etc. Various chairmen and committeemen are being appointed from time to time as the date for the celebration draws nearer. Residents of Maytown, Eastern, Hueysville and the surrounding area are being asked to invite and welcome relatives into their homes, since few motels are available nearby. Trailer space is to be provided for all desiring it.

All registration will be at Allen Central. One ticket will suffice for both nights. Those wishing to revisit Maytown school facilities will be received in the Maytown school cafeteria by the Welcome committee, headed by Elizabeth Boughton Wilcox and Thomas Patrick. Individuals requested to send resumes of others to be honored are reminded to get them in immediately.

The Broad Form—Still Supreme

The Kentucky Court of Appeals is no longer known as such. It is the Supreme Court. And with it, as with its predecessor, the so-called Broad Form Deed still holds supremacy.

Last week, the high court held that strip-mining could not be done on certain Muhlenberg county lands in western Kentucky because the deeds do not contain language "so extensive" as to permit owners of the mineral rights to remove the coal by surface mining or by the open pit method.

At the same time, only two members of the court—both Eastern Kentuckians who know from personal experience the utter abuse of human rights that has been sanctioned by the courts under these old conveyances—agreed that strip-mining of coal acquired under the Broad Form Deed should not be permitted without the consent of the owner of the surface.

A few years ago, it was Floyd county's Judge Edward P. Hill who wrote a notable dissenting opinion under similar circumstances, pointing out that surface mining was unknown at the time the Broad Form Deeds were executed and that it was the intent of the surface owners to convey only such mining rights as were known to them.

Last week, it was Justice James Stephenson, of Pike county, who led the dissent from another affirmation of the inexorable, unbreakable power of the ancient deed. Another mountain member, Justice Pleas Jones, of Whitley county, agreed with him. Judge Stephenson rightly argued that strip-mining should be limited to those mineral deeds which specifically grant such a right and that if such specific right was not granted in the deed the consent of the surface owner should be necessary.

The outspoken defense of the rights of the individual by these justices makes us prouder than usual to be born in and rooted to these hills.

Meanwhile, the justices of the opposing view thread their way through a legal maze, winding in and out between cases and decisions, the letter of the law and the intent of contracts.

Judge Hill, in his 1968 dissenting opinion, stressed this matter of intent and quoted for the court its own words in the case of Parrish vs. Newbury. In this case the Appellate Court said:

"Notwithstanding these general rules, always, as a fundamental and supreme rule of construction of contracts, the intention of the parties govern."

Yet the Broad Form as it rules in Eastern Kentucky and in the minds of the majority on the Supreme Court bench, overrides all intentions of the surface owner. Who can say a landowner here or in any other part of the world intended to convey rights to mine by methods of which they had neither heard nor dreamed?

These mountain justices, Hill, Stephenson and Jones, want to destroy the coal industry no more than this newspaper does; all are aware of the importance of the industry to the area, state and nation. But to them the intent of the landowners when they signed that Broad Form Deed is plain.

Indeed, it is the letter of the law that killeth.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Says People Sold Out

For the past 15 years we have sat back and watched our beloved country and people being sold out to the Communists by shrewd politicians and the upper rich. Our constitution was written for the people, by the people and with the people. But the public is being confused by the government as to the limit of their power.

The government has betrayed the American people since who knows when, and they will keep on doing it as long as the people will accept it. In 1976 everyone is looking for a deliverer, to bring our nation to where it stood 50 years ago. But it's not really going to make a difference who will be president, because the only deliverer we're going to get is another Hitler.

The only resolution I have is, sever the ties with the Communist and eliminate the upper rich.

But this is almost impossible, so, America, we must face the truth—we are being taken down the road to Socialism, and the sad part about it is, the people don't realize it nor will anyone do anything about it.

MAYBE IT WAS A CAT

Fellow did a piece on dogs for the Knight Newspapers recently after his own had died—something I have been tempted to undertake, only I have a feeling most folks don't like to see a grown man cry. The writer did a good job, but he spoiled it when he wrote about the kiss that comes "from the wet, rough tongue of a dog."

The only dogs I have ever known, and I have known more than several, had soft, velvety tongues.

WHO?—ME?

You know, there are compensations for letting the years creep up on you. Only the other day, a fellow suggested that I with my great knowledge of the sport should teach his wife how to fish.

There are those who are critical of Jimmy Carter because he has, when asked about the matter, unashamedly confessed his Christian faith. I haven't committed my vote to Carter, but if that's the worst they can say about him he begins to suit my taste in candidates.

Our Yesterdays

Ten Years Ago

May 26, 1966

Two explosions at the mine of Tim Jones at Teaberry on Mud Creek late Tuesday night destroyed the mine and fan at an estimated loss of $2,500. Frost revisited Floyd county, both Monday and Tuesday nights, and ice was reported Tuesday morning. Louis Collins, 37-year-old miner, of Eastern, died Friday at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, of injuries sustained earlier in the day in an accident in the mine of the Export Coal Company at Langley. Floyd county's property assessment for taxes for this year, before any adjustments were effected by the supervisors, totalled $81,410,529, less than five times that of last year, the first recapitulation of the new assessment, released this week by Tax Commissioner, Orpha Akers, shows. County Judge Henry Stumbo, whose tenure as a Floyd county official is the longest in the county's history, was presented the Distinguished Service Award of the Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce at the Jaycees' annual installation of officers and Awards banquet, last Saturday evening. Born: to Pvt. and Mrs. Raymond Schoolcraft, a son, May 29, at the military hospital, Ft. Bragg, South Carolina. There died: Alex Morris, 87, of Hippo, Tuesday at the McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital; Bill Smith, 79, of Hite, last Thursday at the McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital; Mrs. Dovie Hicks, 74, of Hueysville, last Thursday at the Paintsville hospital; John E. Campbell, 72, of Garrett, Wednesday morning at St. Mary's hospital, Huntington, W. Va.; Mrs. Virginia Lee DeLong, 82, of Lancer, Friday at the Jenny Wiley Rest Home; Beverly "Dick" Hicks, 84, formerly of Middle Creek, Monday at Portsmouth, Ohio; Charlie Berry, 82, of Martin, last Thursday at the Pikeville Appalachian Regional hospital; Mrs. Victoria Hunt Lewis, 79, last Wednesday at her home at Ivel; Mrs. Inez Ward, 42, Friday at her home at Martin; Willie Johnson, 67, of Risner, Sunday at a Lexington hospital.

Twenty Years Ago

(May 31, 1956)

With most precincts of the state tabulated Wednesday afternoon, U. S. Senator Earle C. Clements had rolled up a lead of 80,412 votes over his principal opponent, Joe B. Bates for the Democratic nomination in the Senate race, and in the Seventh Congressional district, where 142 of 716 precincts remained unreported, Congressman Carl D. Perkins had a lead of 17,110 over Ralph N. Walters, his nearest competitor at that stage of the county. Floyd county's population now stands at 43,680, a decline of 9,820 persons since the decennial census of 1950. Judge Bert T. Combs, of Prestonsburg, definitely removed himself as a probable choice of Kentucky Democrats to complete the unexpired term of the late Senator Alben W. Barkley. U. S. Deputy Marshall Winice Trimble, of Paintsville, made heavy hauls of illegal liquors on Left Beaver Creek last week, with the Sheriff's office here joining in the confiscation of a part of the find. There died: Alex Collins, 77, of Bull Creek, last Wednesday at his home.

Thirty Years Ago

The two-months-old soft coal strike ended Wednesday, with the miners receiving, under a contract negotiated with the federal government, a base wage of $1.18 1/2 an hour instead of the former $1, and among other concessions, a welfare fund provided by a royalty of five cents a ton on coal. A second Floyd county town is slated soon to end its existence as a mining center. This announcement came with the advertisement of the Central Elkhorn Coal Company, offering for sale its dwellings and store building at Estill. Proving that some women—at least this one—are no slouches at the wheel, Mrs. O. G. Pennington, of Prestonsburg, brought her car off Abbott Mountain, near here, Friday evening without the benefit of brakes. However, after a wild ride saw them safely at the foot of the mountain, the last curve on the approach to the Cliff Bridge proved too much. Mrs. Pennington's car struck the side of the span. She and a passenger, Mrs. N. M. White, Jr., also of Prestonsburg, suffered only minor cuts and bruises. Brady Shepherd, of Prestonsburg, was seriously injured last Thursday when the truck he was driving plunged over an embankment on Bull Creek. Married: Miss Minerva McGuire and Mr. Farley Gibson, both of West Prestonsburg, May 25. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Douglas Williamson, of Betsy Layne, a son, Harry Douglas; to Mr. and Mrs. Claude Webb, of Maytown, twins, at the Stumbo Memorial hospital, Lackey; to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Slone, of Maytown, a son; to Mr. and Mrs. Don Ratcliff, of Drift, a daughter, at the Gearheart hospital, Thursday. There died: Joe Kackermyer, 52, at home near Hunter, Sunday; Mrs. Willie J. Kelley, 44, of Wheelwright, May 22 at Chattanooga, Tennessee; Sam Calhoun, 84, at his home near Dwale, Sunday; Robert Lee Ratliff, 69, near his home at the mouth of Caney Fork of Middle Creek, Friday.

Forty Years Ago

(May 29, 1936)

Bids were not received Monday, as had been planned, for construction of the addition to the Floyd county courthouse, and Forrest D. Short, County Attorney and a member of the Floyd County Building Committee, said that date of the opening of bids would be set ahead to such time as when sufficient number of bids are received to insure the county the benefit of competitive bidding. Bill Hunt, 18, was shot through the right side of his chest Monday night on the Mayo Trail here. Approximately $20,500 will be available for rural highways in Floyd county this year, Floyd county officials were told a few days ago in a meeting with highway official at Frankfort. Though the new state law providing that all roadhouses outside of incorporated towns must be licensed by the county court, no applications for such permits have been filed by roadhouse operators in this county, it was said Tuesday. Contracts covering the expenditure of more than $14,000 on five school buildings were awarded by the Floyd county board of education, Saturday. Dr. R. S. Johnson, of Pikeville, this week was named director of the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, succeeding Dr. S. B. Casebolt. Married: Miss Mabel Underwood and Mr. Raymond Hopson, both of Prestonsburg, May 23 at Paintsville. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Spradlin, a daughter, May 27 at their home here. There died: Mrs. Eva Alice Eisnagle, 59, at her home at Garrett, Saturday; Minnie Bradley, 13, of Estill, at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, Monday.

After the First 100 Years

Frankfort, Ky.—The United States of America officially began its Centennial on May 10, 1876, with President U. S. Grant participating in the opening day ceremonies at Fairmont Park, Philadelphia. Admission was 50 cents, and during the 159 days of the celebration, 9,910,966 attended.

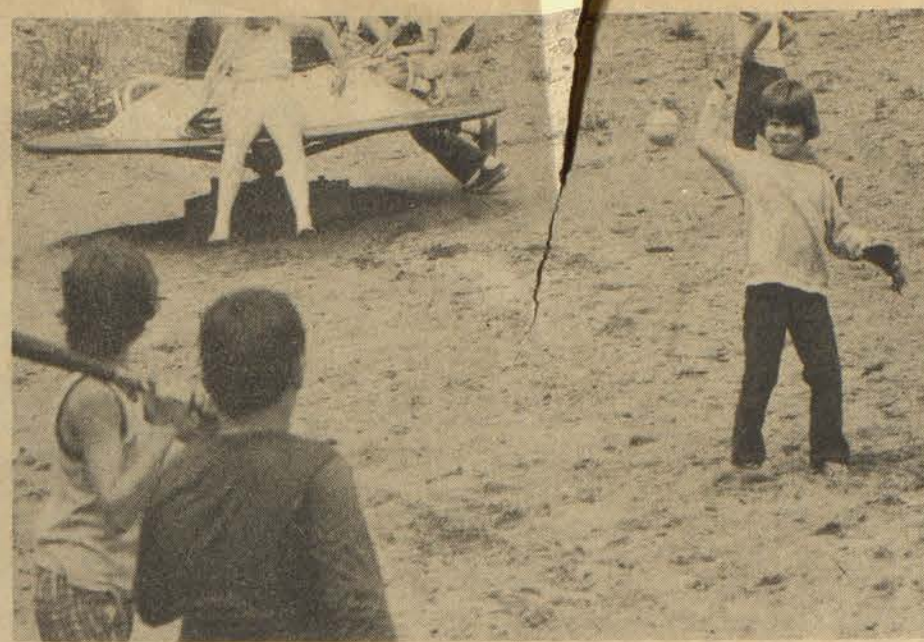

There was much to see at the 1876 Centennial, which covered 236 acres, with the main Exposition Building requiring 21 acres for its construction. Other massive U. S. structures included Horticultural Hall, Machinery Hall, Agricultural Hall, Memorial Hall, as well as 39 states and territories plus 38 foreign countries represented with buildings. There were also numerous structures for the pleasure and comfort of the public. A total construction of 190 buildings made up the Centennial.

Perhaps the single most awe-inspiring exhibit was the 13-foot high, full-scale replica of the arm and torch of the Statue of Liberty, created by the Frenchman, Frederick Auguste Bartholdi. Bartholdi himself was in Philadelphia trying to drum up interest and funds for the construction of the Statue of Liberty. He was not the only notable person making a pitch. A gentlemen by the name of Alexander Graham Bell was on hand trying to sell the public on his new invention, the telephone. Bell was all but overlooked, but the Brazilian Emperor Don Pedro was impressed by the invention, insisting the judges take a second look. Actually the judges were still not overly enthusiastic until Bell recited Hamlet's Soliloquy, which resulted in an Award of Merit for Bell. Either his rendering of Shakespeare was sensational, or the judges decided they liked the telephone.

In 1976 Kentuckians can celebrate the Bicentennial with Capitol EXPO-Homecoming '76 on June 4, 5, and 6 in Frankfort. The festival will use the grounds and buildings of The Capitol, Old State Capitol and Capital Plaza. Throughout the Bluegrass State Kentuckians are planning to take part in this folklike festival, with exhibitors or performers or in the many food booths which will feature pioneer and ethnic foods.

Continuous live entertainment, a fashion show reflecting 200 years of ladies' apparel, heritage crafts, fireworks, banners, giant balloons, puppet shows, an old-time fiddling contest, an antique show, arts, and a film festival are just part of the many attractions on view.

THE PLAYGROUND at the Goble Branch camp ground at Jenny Wiley State Park received heavy use by younger campers over the week-end. In the above photo, a pint-size pitcher "gives it all he's got" in a round of softball.

This is the time of year when a camper, hiker or fisherman is most likely to encounter young wild animals in the woods. The first impulse, in many instances, is a desire to "adopt" the baby skunk, raccoon, fawn or whatever.

But the best course of action, according to Joe Bruna, fish and wildlife's director of game management, is to leave baby animals—even those seemingly "orphaned"—where they are.

Although this advice may at first glance seem hard-hearted, it is actually kinder in the long run for both the animal and the humans involved, Bruna says.

In the first place, the baby animal may not be orphaned at all. A fawn, for example, that seems all alone in the big woods probably has an anxious mother waiting nearby that will not show herself while a human is in the vicinity.

The care and feeding of a young animal is demanding and complicated. Most of those taken from the wild will die unless they are given the expert care that only a knowledgeable person can provide.

And if the animal does survive past infancy, other problems arise. Unlike dogs or cats, which have been domesticated for centuries, wild animals him, Allen reportedly broke free from a bailiff and sprinted out the front door of the courthouse.

Sheriff Joe W. Lewis, Deputy Sheriff Doug Lewis and Pike county deputy sheriffs arrested Ireland Boyd last week in the Pike-Floyd Hollow, near Betsy Layne, on a charge of illegal possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale. After recovering 15 cases of beer and 10 half-pints of liquor from the Pike county side of the hollow, Sheriff Lewis discovered an additional 90 half-pints of liquor and 10 cases of beer on the Floyd side. Ireland was booked at the Pike county jail.

James K. Hall, of Beaver, was charged with illegal possession Thursday, by Deputy Sheriffs Doug Lewis, J. D. and Melvin Martin, after the officers seized 190 cases of beer, one fifth and one pint of vodka, one half-pint wine, and a half-pint of whiskey.

The same officers arrested Theda Branham, Friday, at Auxier after they reportedly discovered 403 cases of beer in her home. She was fined $45 in Magistrate Wells' court.

Others booked at the county jail, charges against each and arresting officers follow:

Jack Wallen, drunk driving, by H. Lester, Martin Police Department; Elisha Castle, drunk driving, attempt to elude police officer, and speeding, by State Trooper Williamson; Olen C. Puckett, drunk driving, by State Trooper Shelton; John Burchett, reckless driving, by State Trooper Weedman; Eugene Howell, drunk driving, by State Troopers Sizemore and Stephens; Grady Nelson, drunk driving and attempt to elude police officer, by State Troopers Stephens and Shelton; Randell Stewart, drunk driving, by Wheelwright Police Harold and Mildred Bates; Thomas J. Duty, drunk driving, by State Troopers Shelton and Stephens; Joe Crisp, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Trooper Weedman; Gary Neil Blackburn, reckless driving and attempt to elude police officer, by State Troopers Sizemore and Weedman; Eddie A. Holbrook, attempt to elude police officer, by State Trooper Weedman; Willimer Conn, drunk driving, by State Trooper Goble; Gary E. Ryan, drunk driving, by State Troopers Stumbo and Weedman and Sgt. Akers; Stanley Ray Burchett, wanton endangerment in second degree, by Deputy Sheriff Linzie Hunt; Anthony McClanahan, drunk driving, by Prestonsburg Policeman Lawson; James R. Holly, drunk driving, by Prestonsburg Policeman C. E. Kilgore; Carl D. Minix, assault in third degree, and reckless driving, by Prestonsburg Policeman C. E. Kilgore; Tony R. seldom lose their "wild" nature. An adult deer, particularly a buck, can be extremely dangerous; and a raccoon, even one raised in the house, starts thinking he can whip anybody in the family when he gets to weigh about 25 pounds—and he's right.

Wild animals raised in captivity can seldom be successfully returned to the wilds, presenting their owners with the problem of what to do with an unmanageable adult fox, raccoon, skunk or deer. Often the animal must be destroyed, since it is almost impossible to get zoos to accept wild pets.

Then there's the problem of disease. Wild animals can carry and transmit to man several diseases, the most serious of which is rabies. Often, an animal which allows itself to be captured is diseased, and any animal which does not show a normal fear of man or displays signs of distress should be left strictly alone.

Skunks are particularly dangerous, since they can carry the rabies virus for six to eight months before symptoms appear. Even a skunk bought from a pet store and certified disease-free could develop rabies months after it is purchased.

Skunks and foxes probably represent the most common reservoirs for rabies in the wilds, although virtually all mammals are capable of carrying this disease and transmitting it to man. The danger of rabies, by itself, is reason enough to leave wildlife in the woods.

Finally, there's the legal aspect. To keep wildlife as pets, a permit from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is required, and a permit will be granted only for those animals taken during the open season for that particular species.

Without permit, the animal is subject to confiscation and the owner can be fined. A conservation officer, upon application for a permit, will check to see if the animal was obtained legally and if the facilities for keeping it are sanitary and of adequate size. The officer also will make periodic checks to make sure the animal is being well cared for.

So for both animals and people, the best course of action is to leave wildlife in the wilds. Although the impulse to adopt a wild creature can be great, it's better to enjoy birds and animals in their natural surroundings instead of subjecting both them and you to unnecessary hardships.

Multiple-Death Wreck Results In $750,000 Suit

A suit filed in circuit court here last Friday asks $503,236 damages in the auto wreck deaths here of two sisters and an additional $250,000 for injuries to a third passenger in the car.

The suit involves the deaths last Dec. 1 at the junction of KY 3 and US 23 at Water Gap of Shirley Collins, 22, and Velvet Lee Collins, 12, and allegedly permanent injuries to James F. Spears. Mrs. Annie Collins, mother of the two girls, and driver of the car in which they were passengers, also was killed.

The suit was filed by Woodrow Collins as administrator of the estates of the two girls and by James F. Spears. It names as defendants the Adams Construction Corp., owner of the truck which collided with the auto at the intersection, and the estate of Annie B. Collins.

The contention against the estate of Mrs. Collins is that she was negligent and careless in pulling her car out in front of the Adams truck. Then Adams is accused of negligence and carelessness in failing to avert a collision after Mrs. Collins had placed herself in "a position of peril."

The complaint estimates that deaths of the two girls cost their estates $250,000 each of their earning power. The same amount was set for the earning power of Spears.

The Checkbook as Math Test

This practical approach to math was introduced in the school after Larry Jervis, state Department of Education curriculum consultant, and John Pitts, principal at Clark, visited the middle school at Russell. Working with Earl Ousley, Clark's junior high math teacher, they evolved a program whereby each student was theoretically paid for school attendance. After figuring gross and net earnings, he or she deposited the earnings in a "bank". From this account, the student paid rent, bought a car and insurance, shopped for groceries, made mail order purchases, and could begin a savings account. If necessary, money was borrowed from a lending institution. At the end of the month-long course, each student's check book had to be balanced and spending evaluated.

Comments of students such as "I have learned the importance of money . . . Next month I hope to do better . . ." This kind of work was really fun and educational . . ." reflect the practical importance of such a program which the school plans to extend in both time and number of students involved next year, according to Mr. Pitts.

Perkins Urges Senate Action On Corps Bill

Quick action by the Senate on the Young Adult Conservation Corps bill has been urged by Representative Carl D. Perkins, chairman of the U. S. House Education and Labor Committee.

The Perkins request was contained in a communication addressed to Senator Henry M. Jackson, chairman of the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, to which the House-passed bill has been referred.

The bill, co-sponsored by Rep. Perkins, passed the House of Representatives recently by a vote of 291-70.

The bill enlarges upon the present small-scale summer youth conservation corps and authorizes a year-round program on public lands, forests, and parks.

Perkins said that presently there is a tremendous backlog in erosion control, flood damage, recreation development, rehabilitation maintenance, range management improvement, tree nurseries, planting, pruning and trimming of forests, forest insect disease control, road and trail improvement, wildlife preservation, and general sanitation, and maintenance of lanes and park areas.

For a number of years Rep. Perkins has advocated a youth conservation corps patterned after the Civilian Conservation Corps of the 1930s.

Following extensive hearings in 1961, a House subcommittee chaired by Rep. Perkins obtained full committee clearance on legislation to institute a youth conservation corps. Based on the Perkins legislative recommendations, youth conservation work was initiated in national parks and forests as a component of the Job Corps in 1964.

Perkins told the House that "to my way of thinking, one of the great failures of the Congress has been its refusal to inaugurate an effective conservation program for the public lands and forests, for the improvement, operation and maintenance of our public parks, utilizing the hundreds of thousands of young people 16 through 25 years of age who are out of school, unemployed, and looking for job opportunities.

"Our nation's forests, our nation's streams, our nation's soil lying within our public forests and lands are a precious trust that we owe future generations an obligation to preserve and enhance. Our youth are also a precious trust which we must not waste when the opportunity for constructive employment—useful training presents itself," he said.

Rep. Perkins said that there was a specific need for youth conservation corps work in the Daniel Boone National Forest in Eastern Kentucky. The often dangerously dry condition and the outbreak of forest fires is just one illustration of a need for a youth conservation corps, said Perkins.

MORE IS THE SPORTS CAR KICK WITHOUT THE SPORTS CAR BITE.

If sport is where your heart is, but economy is where your head is, rally round a Toyota Celica. They're about as close to true sports cars as you can get without spending thousands more. Biting the bullet at the gas pump and giving up comforts such as a grow-up-size back seat and a trunk that'll hold a week's groceries.

Even our lowest priced ST sports standards like a hefty 2.2 liter hemi-head engine, front-end spoiler, 4-speed synchromesh and MacPherson-strut front suspension.

For a few dollars more, our Celica GT adds 5-speed overdrive, bigger radials, vinyl-wrapped steering wheel, racing stripes and more.

And for not much more, our new Celica Liftback adds, well, you've got to see it to believe it.

More. It's the look, feel and fun of a sports car, for thousands less.

And more is: 22 Toyotas to choose from: • 4 small wagons to choose from • 4 small pickups to choose from • 19 Toyotas that get 34 mpg or better on the highway • 6 Toyotas that sell for less than $3600 • 39 features standard equipment on our Corolla SR-5

Toyota dealers give you more because Toyota is more. That's why Toyota outsold all other imported cars in America in 1975.

Power Cooperative Wins Rate Increase

East Kentucky Power Cooperative, which supplies electricity to the Big Sandy Rural Electric Co-Op and 17 other cooperatives in Eastern and Central Kentucky, has been granted a rate increase of about 3.7 per cent by the state Public Service Commission (PSC).

The new rates will produce about $1.6 million more each year for East Kentucky.

The amount approved is about half the amount requested by East Kentucky.

Of the $1.6 million granted, about $750,000 will be passed on automatically to consumer-members of the 18 cooperatives through fuel-adjustment rate clauses.

None of the 18 so far has filed to pass along the rest of the increase, a PSC staff member said.

In another case, the PSC approved the full $320,405 per year rate increase—a 34 per cent raise—requested by Campbell County Water District.

Knott Countian Gets Life Term In Dancer Death

James Amburgey, the Knott county man charged with the slaying of a go-go dancer in Lexington last Feb. 29, was convicted in Fayette circuit court last Thursday and sentenced to life imprisonment, plus two 20-year terms which will run consecutively.

The 34-year-old Pippa Passes man was held guilty of one count of murder, one of rape and one of sodomy. He was acquitted of a second sodomy charge.

Through his court-appointed lawyers, Amburgey indicated he intends to appeal the convictions.

Amburgey and David Jacobs, 28, also of Pippa Passes, were accused in the death of Janet Whalen, 18, whose body was found in a shower stall in a Lexington motel room.

Jacobs is to be tried July 26. He was granted a delay in his trial because his court-appointed lawyer was involved in a traffic accident and was not able to appear in court last week.

The jury found Amburgey guilty of killing Miss Whalen, raping her and forcing her to have illicit sexual relations with him. It acquitted him of forcing her to have oral sex relations with a 17-year-old girl who was with Amburgey.

The juvenile, Glenna Faye Shepherd, testified against Amburgey in exchange for immunity. She was arrested with Amburgey at an Indianapolis bus station two days after Miss Whalen's body was found.

Miss Shepherd said Amburgey and Miss Whalen went into the bathroom at the motel here and she heard the woman scream. Minutes later, she testified, Amburgey came out and closed the door.

Miss Shepherd said she never saw Miss Whalen again.

Amburgey showed no emotion when sentence was passed.

The prosecution completed its case last Wednesday, after calling 40 witnesses. The defense called no witnesses.

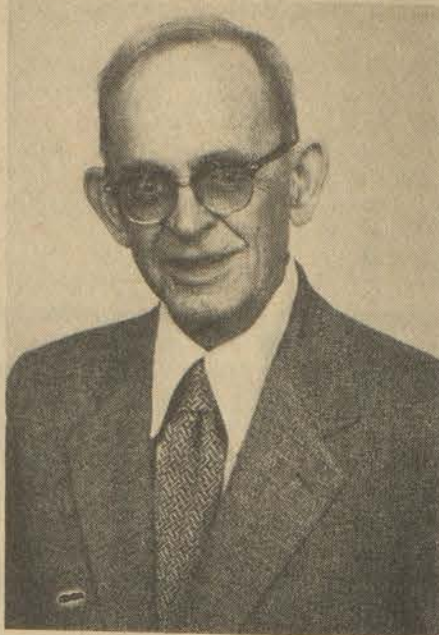

Other prosecution witnesses testified about the whereabouts of Amburgey on the night in question and afterward and about evidence found in the motel room, including an olive pit that contained saliva from Amburgey's mouth.

Dr. James T. McClellan, a pathologist, was the final witness, telling the jury that Miss Whalen had lost nine or 10 pints of blood through a slash in her throat and probably died within 10 minutes. Amburgey and Jacobs also face charges at Columbus, Ind., in connection with the death of a Louisville man, whose body was found alongside I-65. No date has been set for the trials.

FARM LABOR CONTRACTOR DEFINED BY LABOR DEPT.

A farm labor contractor, according to the Labor Department's Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act, includes anyone who, for a fee for himself or another, recruits, solicits, furnishes, or transports a migrant worker for agricultural employment either within a state or across state lines.

Ky. Bar Association Honors Atty. Hopson

The Kentucky Bar Association has conferred the title of Senior Counsellor on Joe Hobson, Prestonsburg attorney, in recognition of 50 or more years of honorable service at the bar of Kentucky and for his continued interest in the advancement of the profession of law as a member of the Bar Association. The honor was accorded him May 14 at a luncheon held at the Galt House, Louisville.

The state bar assessment of the veteran attorney's service reads:

"He has set an inspiring example of devotion and fidelity to the duties and obligations of an attorney and counsellor at law, of leadership and unselfish participation in the public affairs of his community, state and nation, and of those commendable personal qualities that characterize those who best exemplify the high ideals of the profession of the Bar as officers of the courts in the administration of justice."

Those from Prestonsburg who attended the luncheon were Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Cottrell and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Schoolcraft.

Sewer Construction To Armory Location Talked by Carroll

Awarding by the state of a contract for sewer line construction from the Kentucky National Guard site on US 23 (the Auxier road) to the Prestonsburg sewage treatment plant is expected soon, County Judge Henry Stumbo said after a telephone conversation last week with Governor Julian Carroll.

"Governor Carroll called me to say that the work would be advertised this week," Judge Stumbo said.

Sewer construction is a prelude to the building of the National Guard armory at the mouth of the Lick Branch, between Prestonsburg and Auxier. Advertising for bids on the armory is expected around July 1.

BOTTLE OF WINE BRINGS $14,200 AT PUBLIC AUCTION

The term "high-spirited" probably has a different meaning for David Lyons now that he has paid $14,200 for a 170-year-old bottle of Chateau Lafite-Rothschild bordeaux.

Lyons of West Hollywood, Calif., outbid others at the eighth National Auction of Rare Wines for the oldest Chateau Lafite-Rothschild ever auctioned in public. In 1971, $5,000 was paid for an 1846 vintage.

The bottle, described as an outstanding example from the first quarter of the 19th century, was recorked in 1953 in France.

Asked if he will drink it, Lyons said, "I really don't know."

Scholastic Ratings Of U.-K. Athletes Shows Improvement

Athletes at the University of Kentucky increased their grade point average from 2.51 in the fall to 2.63 in the spring, two of their number were awarded Phi Beta Kappa keys, a third received an NCAA post graduate scholarship and three received conference All-Academic honors.

In announcing the scholastic accomplishments of the group, UK athletics director Cliff Hagan noted that 32 Wildcats exchanged their "Big Blue" sports apparel for the traditional black boards and gowns at recent graduation exercises.

The top people in academic pursuits in their respective sports were: Chuck Long, baseball; Merion Haskins, basketball; Mark Keene, Jim Kovach and Ed Smolder, three-way tie in football; Mike Nelms, golf; Nancy Lausten, rifle; Dan Ewen, swimming; Glen Booth, tennis; John Perry, track and cross country, and Jo Ott, wrestling.

Receiving Phi Beta Kappa keys were Tennis player Chet Algood and swimmer Rick Rubenstein, who also won the honor of Superior Scholar Athlete for the year. Football player Tom Ranieri won an NCAA Post Graduate scholarship and was named to the SEC All-Academic team along with teammate Kovach and basketball's Haskins (second team).

Dr. Frank M. Downing, academic athletic advisor, also noted that the various spring academic honor rolls contain 127 names as compared to 101 in the fall.

That increase, along with increases in athletic grade point averages, and the number of UK student athlete degree winners who will be attending graduate schools in the fall indicate that academic performances are on the upturn at UK, Dr. Downing said.

The athletes who received their degrees at the recent graduation exercises were:

BASEBALL: Billy Fouch, Ed McCaw, John Koenen, Darrell Saunders.

GOLF: Mike Nelms, Alex Romanoff, Joe Wheeler.

RIFLE: Nancy Lausten, Phil Reel.

TRACK AND CROSS COUNTRY: James Swan.

SWIMMING AND WATER POLO: Tim Cunningham, George Klumper, Rick Rubenstein, Steve Wilson.

TENNIS: Chet Algood, Glen Booth, Jamie Howell, Tom Jones.

Magoffin Boy Seriously Shot

A 12-year-old Magoffin county boy is in serious condition with a bullet wound in his abdomen at Highlands Medical Center here after a Monday night shooting affray.

The youth, Johnnie Prater, underwent surgery early Tuesday. His father, James Monroe Prater, was grazed by a bullet, and his aunt, Ressie Manns, was twice wounded in her arm and once in her hip, but she was not seriously hurt.

Robert Carl Poe, 28, was arrested by State Police Detective Kenneth DeBoard and charged in the shooting. The officer, who is continuing the investigation of the shooting, said details of the fray and incidents leading to it are not clear. Two rifles and a pistol were found at the scene and will be given a laboratory check.

The boy and his father were said to have been inside the house when the firing began. A report of an earlier shooting was being probed. One report said the trouble began with a dispute over custody of a child.

'Wilderness Road' Cast Dominated By State Actors

The 1976 production of "Wilderness Road" will feature a cast made up predominantly of Kentucky actors and actresses, according to director Paul Power.

Power announced that the 59-member cast is complete for the coming season of the Civil War musical drama, which will open June 30 at Indian Fort Theatre in Berea.

"We have drawn actors from the ranks of professionals, college students, teachers, and every other place we could find exceptional talent," Power said.

Heading the cast in the role of John Freeman, the pacifist hero of the drama, is Samuel H. Green, from Athens, Ga.

Green has appeared professionally as Bottom in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," MacDuffin "MacBeth," and Jesus in "Smoky Mountain Passion Play." This past year he acted under the direction of Zygmunt Hubner of the National Theatre of Poland.

Green will complete his Master of Fine Arts degree from the University of Georgia in June.

Elsie Sims, the female lead, will be played by Ellen Bach, the first Kentuckian to play this role. Miss Bach is a student at Eastern Kentucky University where she has appeared in "Twelfth Night," "Oklahoma," "The Music Man," "Kiss Me Kate," and "Dark of the Moon."

David Dannehl, who has had experience in summer stock, outdoor drama, repertory theater and dinner theater, will act the part of Davie Freeman, the hero's younger brother. Dannehl, from Goldsboro, N. C., has played the role of Manteo in "The Lost Colony." He has appeared in several musicals, including "The Fantasticks," "Guys and Dolls," and "South Pacific."

He has played the role of MacMurphy in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." The role of Jed Willis, staunch supporter of the South, will be portrayed by Edmund Desiato. Among the many plays he has appeared in are "Once Upon a Mattress," "The Odd Couple," and "Three Penny Opera." His television experience includes appearances in "The Edge of Night," and "The Jackie Gleason Show."

Uncle Eph, the comic relief of "Wilderness Road," will be played by Martin Ambrose, a veteran of the stage circuit.

Ambrose appeared in the original "Wilderness Road" in 1955. After appearing in "The Stephen Foster Story" in 1959, he headed for New York and Broadway where he appeared in "How Now, Dow Jones," "Love Match," and "A Joyful Noise."

The 1976 production will run from June 30 to Sept. 5 and will play nightly except Sunday at 8:30 EDT at Indian Fort Theatre, Berea, Ky.

Non-Agriculture Workers Increased by 26,000 in April

Frankfort, Ky.—Non-agricultural jobs totaled 1,042,600 in Kentucky in April, an increase of 26,000 over the same month last year, according to Secretary of Development William L. Short. Short, who is the overseer of the state's economic development program, said manufacturing plants accounted for 9,000 added jobs.

"The economic signs of the first four months of 1976 indicate that Kentucky is moving steadily along the road back from the 1975 recession," he said, "and the increase in non-agricultural jobs is a particularly pleasing indication since that is the most viable sector of the state's economy and it reacts quickly to economic influences."

Short contrasted this April's figures with those from April, 1975, when non-agricultural wage and salary jobs were off by almost 27,000 compared with 1974, and manufacturing was down by 40,000 jobs from the previous year.

"These most recent figures show an acceleration of the trend that started at the first of this year," he said, "and bring us to the point where we have just about offset the effects of the 1975 recession had on the Kentucky economy."

"Let's face it—Kentucky's economy during 1975 was hit harder than during any of the previous post-war recessions," said Short. "Non-agricultural wage and salary employment for all of last year averaged 1,041,700, a level almost 27,000 below 1974. Manufacturing was severely hit by the economic slump and averaged 34,000 jobs below 1974. Industries relating to the production of automobiles and home appliances were hit particularly hard."

"The Kentucky outlook for 1976 is for solid, if not spectacular, growth and the outlook over the next several years is even more optimistic. Kentucky resources enabled us to increase nonagricultural employment by 65 per cent since 1959—a rate of gain well above the nation's. Kentucky's rate of manufacturing growth for the past 15 years has been triple that of the nation. We still have excellent resources and important improvement have been made in the financing and organization of our development programs."

Short said that although Kentucky faces problems involving energy and the environment, there are sound programs in place to cope with these.

"Our growth will continue, it will be balanced, it will be high quality, and it will be environmentally acceptable," he said.

Despite the recession, Kentucky's per capita personal income increased by 5.1 per cent from 1974 to 1975, a rate of gain, however, that was below par performance of recent years. Even with this below par performance, Kentucky's year-to-year rate of growth exceeded that of other fast-growing states such as Florida (1.0), Arkansas (4.4), Georgia (4.6), North Carolina (4.0), South Carolina (4.9) and Tennessee (4.7).

Kentucky's per capita personal income of $4,668 is now 80 per cent of the national average as compared to 65 per cent 15 years ago. The per capita income gap between Kentucky and the National average is being steadily narrowed and this trend is expected to increase, Short said.

Graham Criticises Overload Of Paperwork and Restrictions

Washington, D. C. —In a recent breakfast meeting with Kentucky Congressmen, Superintendent of Public Instruction James Graham raised the twin issues of federal regulations and local control.

"The problem," Dr. Graham said, "is that there are too many forms, too much paperwork and too many restrictive guidelines accompanying federal funds.

And, in the same vein, I would say that we don't need any more boards or commissions. We already have more boards and commissions than you can shake a stick at. Why don't we let the people at the local levels make the decision?"

There may be a solution to the first problem at least, according to Third District Congressman Romano L. Mazzoli. He said there is now a bill in the rules committee which would require, basically, that all regulations be submitted to Congress after they are written, but before they become law. Such a provision for Congressional review would probably serve as a deterrent against excessively complicated regulations and guidelines, Mazzoli said.

Others who attended the breakfast were Senators Wendell H. Ford and Walter "Dee" Huddleston and Representatives Carroll Hubbard, William H. Natcher, John B. Breckinridge and Carl D. Perkins.

Perkins, Seventh District Congressman and chairman of the House Labor and Education Committee, discussed Graham's concern with new boards, specifically the new state board required for vocational education by the Senate version of pending vocational legislation.

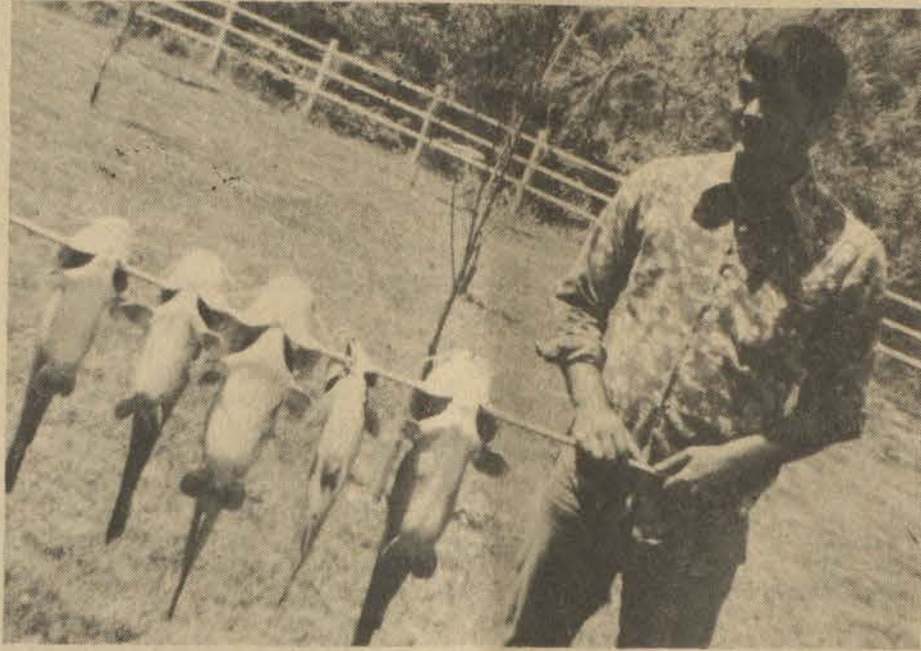

"I wanted the boards as presently constituted," Perkins said, adding that he thought a good compromise could be worked out.

Natcher, Second District Congressman and member of the House Committee on Appropriations, turned the discussion to the importance of federal appropriations for education.

"A lot of people call us big spenders," he said, "but they need to be told what would be lost if the appropriation didn't pass. There are many Kentucky counties involved that would have to cut back on teachers and everything else without these funds."

PRATER CREEK

HOMEMAKERS END YEAR
The Prater Creek Homemakers Club met May 24 at the Prater Creek Elementary School for the last meeting until September 27. The president, Lynn Boyd, presided. The lesson for the month was on antiques. Frances Pitts showed slides of different antiques. Several members brought pieces of glass for inspection and discussion. The club welcomed these new members: Anna Ray Boyd, Toda Tackett, Lois Johnson, Wanda Hall, Gail Taylor, and Janice Akers. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Thelma Conn, Lucille Akers, Lizzie Spears and Emodel Boyd, to Lynn Boyd, Ruth Slone, Doris Akers, Loretta Conn, Kathryn Akers, Joan Watson, Alpha Kidd, Gail Taylor, Toda Tackett, Wanda Hall, Lois Johnson, Anna Ray Boyd and Janice Akers.

BIG SANDY RIVER CATFISH. Mitchell Williams, of Betsy Layne, recently caught 50 pounds of catfish on a trotline across the river at the rear of the R & S Truck Body Company, near Allen.

4-H Week Scheduled, June 10-13

Kentucky 4-H Week, with a Bicentennial theme "4-H '76—Spirit of Tomorrow", will bring 1,000 young people from throughout the state to the University of Kentucky campus in Lexington, June 15-18.

Kentucky Governor Julian Carroll will be the conference keynote speaker, addressing the 4-H group at the opening general assembly, Tuesday afternoon, June 15.

Seminars on topics related to careers, 4-H teen leadership and the Kentucky 4-H program will be featured during the conference. The delegates, ranging in age from 13 to 19, also will take career-related tours of the UK campus.

Campaigning for state 4-H offices also will be a major part of the program. Nominations for state offices were made by the different area 4-H groups prior to Kentucky 4-H Week and, at a multi-area meeting early in the conference, the 4-H'ers will narrow this list to three candidates each for president, vice-president and secretary. Campaign speeches and elections, using voting machines, are scheduled Thursday morning.

In addition, the Kentucky 4-H Fashion Revue will be held on Wednesday night during the conference, and 150 Fashion Revue participants will join 4-H Week delegates for some of their sessions. In the Fashion Revue, county 4-H Fashion

RECEIVES NURSE DIPLOMA
Miss Vickie Frazier, daughter of SMSgt and Mrs. William Frazier, Dyess Air Force Base, Texas received her diploma from Bismarck (N.D.) Hospital School of Nursing at graduation exercises May 23. The exercises were held at the Faith Lutheran Church, Bismarck. The Fraziers are former Floyd residents.

Revue winners compete for state honors, modeling outfits they made in 4-H clothing project work.

The conference program was planned by 4-H'ers themselves—the state 4-H officers elected at the 1975 Kentucky 4-H Week and the young people chosen by their fellow 4-H'ers to serve as representatives for their respective Extension areas this past year. In addition, all 4-H'ers attending the conference will have committee responsibilities, with each area group assigned to a particular program committee.

By LARRY BURKE

Someone said years ago: "An adult who ceases after youth to unlearn and relearn his facts, and to reconsider his opinions, is like a blindfolded person walking into a familiar room where some-one has moved the furniture."

Life changes! When we were children it seemed like five years elapsed between Christmas and the Fourth of July. Today we can scarcely turn around until another year has passed. This is a case of relearning the facts. It is not that Christmas is of any less importance to us, but that each day, each hour has more value to us, and we are more concerned with the activities of the present than the months of the future.

The happiest of all people are those who say: "There just aren't enough hours in the day." It is a way of saying—"I failed to do all the wonderful and exciting things today I wanted to do."

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: Break time into bits, and enjoy every morsel to its fullest.

Birds that Winter with Us

Various species of birds are non-migratory. They stay with us all winter and can withstand bitter cold. Others are compelled to fly south or perish from cold and hunger. The martins leave early and fly to Brazil for the winter. The swallows fly to Central America; the barn swallows, to Brazil; the chimney swifts, to faraway Peru. The wood thrush winters in Castro's Cuba. The hummingbirds fly across the Gulf of Mexico to winter in Central America. All the warblers fly south, most of them heading for South America.

Why do all these birds have to go south? Because most of them have small, needle-sharp bills for capturing insects to eat. The martins will starve to death in three days when it is too cold for insects to fly.

The birds that stay with us all winter have superior features for winter survival. Take the pert little chickadees; they have the sharpest eyes of any birds. On cold winter days, one may see a chickadee turning upside down to peer under the bark of trees, or into hidden crevices. This bird can spot the hidden eggs of many different kinds of insects and he quickly devours these. He finds hidden grubs and larvae which most other birds cannot find. So he is a valuable protector of the trees. It has been estimated that the chickadees in the state of Michigan alone devour over 4 billion insects in a single season.

Consider the flicker, or yellow-shafted woodpecker. He has the sharpest ears of any of the birds. He can hold his ear against the trunk of a hollow tree and can hear the ants inside chewing on wood. I've watched this bird do his thing—listening for ants. He quickly drills a hole in to the ants' nest and devours them. He can eat 4,000 ants in a single day.

All the members of the woodpecker tribe are non-migratory; they can survive the cold winters, as they know how to drill holes in dead trees and get the worms and grubs to eat.

Most other winter birds have heavy bills for cracking seeds and nuts. The cardinal cracks seeds and grains of corn. He likes sunflower seeds and the seeds of muskmelons. We should save the seeds of melons to feed the birds in winter.

All the warblers fly south, as they cannot crack a seed with their weak bills. Many of our summer birds such as the whippoorwill use their wide mouths as a scoop which they open wide and literally scoop the insects out of the air. But they would soon perish from hunger when there are no insects flying.

Our bobwhites are non-migratory. They are mostly seed-eaters and can survive when they can find plenty of weed seeds to eat. When snows cover the weeds, they search for grain around farms. Farmers usually scatter some grain to tide them over the winter snows.

Our ruffed grouse are also non-migratory, as they scratch in the leaves like chickens and find many nuts and seeds to eat. In a lean period, grouse seek out old orchards and eat all the fallen apples they can find.

Our handsome and mischievous bluejays are non-migratory. They are great eaters of acorns and can survive the coldest season. They hide a supply of acorns in the fall, usually in hollow stumps or trees. They help to plant the oaks, as they carry acorns in their bills and drop these in old clearings. So they do a good work of reforestation.

Our crows are non-migratory. They eat more than 600 different kinds of food. Of late years, the crows have filled the place of the almost extinct buzzards; one sees them almost every day cleaning up the mangled bodies of animals killed by cars.

Our pretty little goldfinches are also non-migratory, as they are seed-eaters and get many seeds to eat from the winter pods of evening primrose and giant ragweeds. Most sparrows remain with us during winter, as they are seed-eaters and can survive. Already the song sparrow has begun his pre-spring chorus and his merry songs can be heard, almost any warm day now. He is the earliest songster of all the birds.

GULF IS ASKED TO RESUME OIL PRODUCTION IN ANGOLA

PITTSBURGH—Gulf Oil Corp. says the Soviet-backed government of Angola has invited it to resume oil production there, and the firm says it will do so as soon as possible.

Gulf stopped operations in the African nation last December during a civil war. About 140,000 barrels of oil a day had been produced in the former Portuguese colony.

Gulf also had withheld about $102 million in taxes and royalties due the Angolan government but released the funds last month.

GUARD MAY GET NEW AIRCRAFT

The National Guard Association of Kentucky yesterday elected officers and heard Maj. Gen. Richard L. Frymire, adjutant general, hint that the state might be getting new reconnaissance aircraft soon.

Elected for fiscal 1977 were Lt. Col. Armando J. Alfaro of Lexington, president; Capt. Larry C. Hall, of Louisville, vice president-Army, and Maj. Joseph Kottak of Louisville, vice president-Air.

In a speech to the guardsmen at the association's 45th annual conference at the Executive Inn in Louisville, Frymire said that assignment of new aircraft is "classified and we can't talk about it."

The National Guard in Kentucky now has RF-101s that are used for reconnaissance, and Frymire said he publicly had stated that the Guard would like to get the new RF-4s.

Before Frymire's public remarks, Thomas E. Little, public information officer for the Kentucky Department of Military Affairs, said that four RF-4s already were at Standiford Field.

In this bicentennial year. . .

Let's hear it for free enterprise

When the U.S. began 200 years ago, "there was a Holy Roman Emperor, Venice was a republic, France was ruled by a king, China by an emperor, Japan by a shogun, Russia by a czar, Great Britain was a monarchy; and among the world powers the only government that stands essentially unchanged is the Federal Union put together in the 1780s by 13 states on the east coast of North America."

However, the free enterprise system which helped produce the stability, is not really free. It must be paid for by vigilance, and by the realization that government can't give to the people, without first taking from the people. Free men who band together and invest a little to protect their private property have built the insurance industry into one of the keystones of the private enterprise system. We're proud to be part of it. Forty years ago, a handful of Ohio farmers formed a co-op which has blossomed into Grange Mutual Companies.

Today, more than half a million Grange policyholders have a partnership in protection. They join us in saying "Let's hear it for free enterprise".

On the farm, in the church, in the garden, and in Nature, June is a busy month. In Nature, bees are busy gathering and carrying home nectar and helping fertilize flowers. Some mother birds brood over clutches of eggs while others hustle about in search of food for young already hatched.

In the garden, weeding and cultivation commences in earnest, and there is much to be cut on the farm. In the church, young maidens are eagerly getting married and everywhere roses are blooming, poets are writing poems, and the overall scene is one of undiminished activity.

Summer really gets down to business in June. During the month's long "perfect" days the poet sang about, plants and vegetables rush to maturity before the "letting down and drying up" season in the hotter months of July and August puts a damper on growth activities.

No other month, not even December, enjoys the popularity of June. In the opinion of the ancients, it was the best month in which to get married, especially during the periods when the moon was full. The beauty, freshness, and luxuriance of its flowers and its usually fine weather fit well in all and for all its festivities and activities.

If by chance there is a let up in weeding and hoeing in the garden, cutting hay, getting married, attending "infares", and writing poems, June is a fine time to mow the grass. If moisture is favorable, cut the grass about two inches high. If dry weather prevails, raise the height to three inches.

It is also a fine time to rejuvenate the strawberry patch. Check with your county Extension agent if you do not already know the best way to do this. Also by mid-month, plant seeds of broccoli, cabbage, and cauliflower for fall transplants. Later in the month, spray peach tree trunks with Thiodan for peach tree borers. For best results, follow with other sprayings in early August and September.

Like several of our other months, June was named by the Romans. Some calendar authorities insist that its name was taken from Juno, special genius of the female sex, great queen of the gods, and the patron saint of marriage, geese and cuckoos.

This seems reasonable enough, but other historians claim the name was derived from "juniores", because in early Roman times this month was specially dedicated to young men fated for matrimony.

By name and by nature, June is a pretty month as well as a busy one. It is a time when bees swarm, butterflies hover over milkweed blossoms, students graduate, and maiden aunts swoon to the strains of Mendelssohn. It is a glorious month.

Unmarked Grave Hides Sad Story

By HELEN PRICE STACY
(In The Lexington Herald)
WEST LIBERTY, Ky.—Many strange tales are told about cemeteries. Some of them are frightening, some sad, some humorous.

For the most part, cemeteries and country graveyards are beautiful and peaceful, and in instances are outstanding in their flower, shrub and tree landscaping and design.

The Ezel cemetery in Morgan county is located beside the United Presbyterian Church. The church is a handsome, white frame with architectural lines similar to "Paul Revere" storied church in old Boston. Its white columns and soaring belfry and steeple overlook graves of early settlers in the county as well as newer ones.

In 1880, a 17-year-old daughter of a Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler died in a typhoid epidemic. For some reason, it later was decided to remove bodies from this cemetery to another a short distance away. George Knowles and Bill Combs were employed to move the coffins.

"When they got to the coffin of the Wheeler girl," recalled the late Jim Davis, of Morgan county, "they were unable to lift it."

They called for more ropes and more help and then drilled a hole in the casket to let out any water.

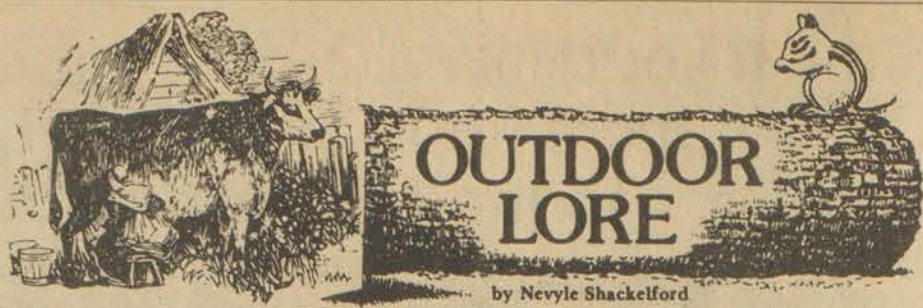

The casket was still heavy, but working together they raised it to the top. The father was standing by and told them to open the casket to see what was making it heavy. The men opened it and discovered the girl's body—and her clothing—had petrified.

The father chose not to look. Some discussion took place about the occurrence being rare and that "good money" was paid for such things by traveling shows.

The father would have no part of such talk and ordered the girl's casket closed. "Put her in an unmarked grave," he added.

The workmen completed their job and left for their homes in another county. The father advised them to tell no one about the girl, afraid that later some one would disinter her for viewing in a show of some kind. Davis knew where the grave was and kept the secret his lifetime.

The father lived in West Liberty until he died an old man in the 1960s, but never allowed himself to visit the new cemetery, afraid he would give away the secret.

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY • COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Putting one's head in the sweaty flank of a fly-tormented cow and milking her down by hand in summer is a tiring, exacting, and often disagreeable business. It is almost as bad in winter, and maybe it is for this reason that such a method for securing milk and butter for the table is rapidly becoming a forgotten art. Not one person out of a hundred, says a USDA spokesman, now knows how to hand milk a cow, even in rural areas of the land.

But it wasn't always that way, and it can be recalled when every farmer and his family worth their salt could go out and "juice a cow." But, alas, that skill has slipped into desuetude, and to keep the knowledge of hand-milking from being completely lost, here are the fundamentals.

The first thing to remember when starting out for the milk gap is that skill and perfection comes only from experience and practice. So, if you first don't succeed, you must try, try again.

Then, you should know this: a cow only lets her milk down for about 10 minutes at a time, and this comes about as a result of a combination of circumstances that put her in a good frame of mind. These include a washing of her udder in warm water, giving her some food, and petting her a little. This show of kindness will start the production of a hormone which some dairy specialists call "oxytocin," which, in turn, starts her milk flowing to the udder. Loud noises—such as cussin' when, in an attempt to dislodge a pesky fly on her back, she slaps you in the face with her tail—may replace the hormone with adrenalin, and the milk will stop.

With all this in mind, sit down on your stool, grasp a faucet firmly but gently in each hand, and pull down slightly with the thumb and forefinger. This will trap the milk in the teat and block its escape back up into the udder. Then with a squeezing action of each curled finger, progressively force the milk downward until the final action of the little finger against the palm of the hand sends the milk streaming into the bucket or the open mouth of a waiting cat.

One important thing to remember about handmilking is this: the udder must be emptied at each milking and the teats "stripped" with the thumb and index finger. Otherwise, the teats may become clogged with dry milk. Old-timers used to swear that, if the udder wasn't emptied and the teats stripped at each milking, the cow would "go dry" long before her time.

Savings Bond Sales Highest Since 1945

Not since the War Loans of 1945 have Americans purchased more Series E Savings Bonds in any quarter of any year than this. First quarter 1976 E and H sales of $1,979 million were the highest on record, since the H bond was issued in June 1952, and they exceeded redemptions, at cost price, by $606 million.

Kentucky has attained 24.5 percent of its 1976 U. S. Savings Bonds goal for the first quarter of the year with total sales of $23,849,581.

Miss Burieta Gearheart, volunteer Savings Bonds chairman for Floyd county, reported sales of Series E and H Savings Bonds during the first quarter of the year were $103,573, which represents 28 percent of the county's Bicentennial goal of $369,360.

CONSUMER COMMENTS

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS (Attorney General)

"This is your lucky day, you have won absolutely free . . ."

Many Kentuckians have received certificates through the mail informing them that they have won a "free" sewing machine. Others have received "checks" for a portion of the purchase price. The prize is described, including its value at a retail store. Frequently, the winner is requested to come into the store to see the merchandise and either to accept or reject the offer. The trick to this scheme is that the prize can end up costing YOU money.

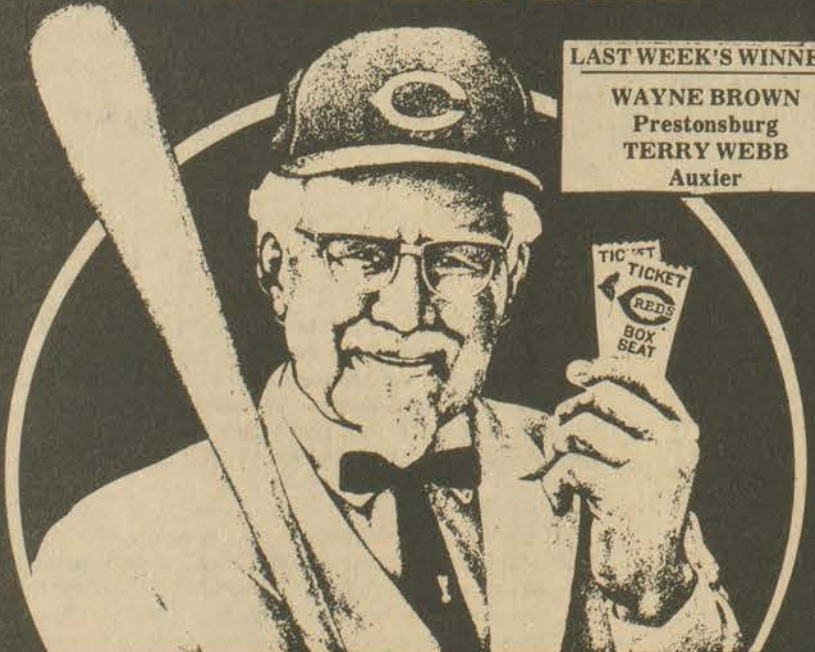

Those who read further and examine the very fine print discover that the consumer who won a "free" sewing machine must pay 10 dollars a month for three years on a service contract. This means that the "free" sewing machine will cost the consumer over $300. This amount may be higher than the retail cost of the machine.

To be a contest, there must be losers as well as winners. Did other people in your area receive this offer? Why must the coupon be redeemed so quickly? How long has the company been in business? What service agreement or warranty is included? Who does repair work for the company?

You can protect yourself against fraudulent business practices by remembering to be skeptical. If an offer sounds "too good to be true" it is usually neither good nor true.

If you have a consumer complaint, write to the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, Room 34, The Capitol, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the consumer hotline. The number is 1-800-372-2960.

Floyd County Health Notes

A public health nurse from the Floyd County Health Department will conduct an outpost clinic Monday, June 7, at the Beaver Valley Clinic in Martin. This clinic will last from 10 to 12 and from 1 to 2 when the following medical services will be available, free of charge: immunizations, TB skin tests, blood pressures, diabetes screening and Pap smears.

All persons in the Martin area are welcome to attend.

Did you know that diabetes is the sixth leading cause of death in Kentucky? And the third leading cause of blindness? Or that half of the diabetics don't even know they have the disease? Do yourself a favor, get a simple blood test from your own physician or from the Floyd County Health Department.

The health department offers free diabetes screening Monday through Friday from 8 to 12 and from 1 to 4.

College for only pennies a day

Nowadays, it takes a bundle of money to pay for a college education. No matter how you figure it.

But with United States Savings Bonds, you can count on having the money when you need it.

In fact, when you join the Payroll Savings Plan or the Bond-A-Month Plan, saving can work out to just pennies a day.

You see, a little is set aside to buy Bonds for you. Regularly. Automatically.

And before you know it, those pennies add up to a pretty nice education.

So buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

They make saving for college more than just an educated guess.

Series E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4 1/2% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Carroll Asks $700 Million Aid for Coal Roads

Gov. Julian Carroll went to Washington last week to ask that the nation's taxpayers pick up most of the cost of building and repairing roads needed to carry Kentucky's coal to market.

Testifying before the Senate Transportation Subcommittee, he said such roads would cost at least $100 million each year over the next 10 years and that Kentucky would put up $30 million per year.

Kentucky Sens. Wendell Ford and Walter (Dee) Huddleston also testified.

"To complete a billion dollar program—after this contribution by Kentucky—would take $70 million in federal aid annually," Carroll said.

"What would you get for your money? Assurance that Kentucky's coal-haul roads will not fail the nation's energy needs in the decade ahead."

Carroll said Kentucky—the nation's No. 1 coal producer—had doubled its production between 1961 and 1973, and might double it again by 1985.

But because more than one-half of future production will come from scattered strip mining operations, he said, most of the coal would have to be hauled by trucks rather than by rail or barge.

The reason, he said, was that trucks already hauling coal were "destroying" the state's highways.

In response to questions by Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the governor conceded that the federal highway trust fund would not be sufficient to pick up the cost of maintaining the coal-haul roads in Kentucky and other coal-producing states.

"I think we're going to have to face the imposition of a new tax," he said.

The governor said Domenici was "apparently" correct in estimating that the cost would range from $3.5 to $5 billion if Kentucky's estimate of $1 billion over 10 years was extended to other states.

"I really don't think we have any choice," Carroll said, in arguing that the need for getting coal to market was such it makes the program necessary.

The New Mexico Republican suggested similar arguments might be advanced for a "whole list" of other commodities, including uranium and oil shale.

In his testimony, Senator Ford said, "A critical situation exists in Kentucky because of unprecedented increases in loads on coal haul roads."

Ford added that "roads are not adequate to sustain these burdens and inordinate burdens have been created for the communities and residents of Kentucky's 60 coal-producing counties."

Ford also said, "We have the coal and the nation needs it. But it is not right to ask the people of Kentucky—or any coal state—to assume the responsibility for the entire nation."

Ky. Weather Radio Network Completed

The Kentucky Emergency Warning System has announced the completion of the eight-station National Oceanic Atmospheric Administration Weather Radio network in the state.

According to Paul A. Warneke, coordinator of the system, the National Weather Service is now programming weather information around the clock for transmitters at Ashland, Covington, Lexington, Louisville, Mayfield, Hazard and Somerset. Each transmitter carries weather information and forecasts prepared specifically for the area its signal covers. Normally, a good signal can be received within a radius of 40-50 miles around the transmitter.

In addition to normal weather information service, the system is capable of sounding an alarm that will trigger special receivers to warn of predicted severe weather conditions, Warneke said.

The system went on the air at Lexington on May 1 when the first transmitter was placed in operation. Kentucky is the first state in the nation to offer weather radio service on a statewide basis.

Pesticide Officials Warns Farmers About Direct Sales Contacts

Frankfort, Ky.—If a pesticides salesman makes a claim of "miraculous" performance for a product, think twice before you buy. That's the advice for farmers from Fred Waters, chief of the pesticides section in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

"We are already hearing from people this Spring," Waters said, "who are being contacted directly at the farm, the place of business, or by telephone and they are wondering what they should do. Many of these contacts may be legitimate, but in some cases they are not because the salesman is promoting a chemical that is extremely diluted when it is received, or it may be for industrial use only."

Waters cautioned that when a salesman claims the product "will kill any weed or insect, be especially suspicious." He said the product may not be cleared by the environmental department for crop use. "All pesticides sold in Kentucky must be registered with us, and if they are not they are being sold illegally and we want to know about it," Waters said.

Caution was also suggested when answering published advertisements. "Sometimes a person may think he is buying a five-gallon container of a product when he responds to an ad, then he receives a 30-gallon drum of a very diluted chemical," Waters commented, "and when he reads the label he finds he can't use the chemical."

The pesticides control official suggested how a person should respond if he is contacted directly:

1. Write down the name, address, and telephone number of the person making the contact.
2. Ask for the name of the company being represented.
3. Record the name of the manufacturer, the name of the product, and the claims made by the salesman.

"If the salesman refuses to give the information, you can almost bet the pitch is not legitimate," Waters commented, "but if the information is given to you and you intend to make the purchase, call back the next day to verify the information before you agree to buy the chemical."

Waters suggested the standard practice should be for pesticides purchases to be made from local dealers or in-state suppliers. "This is the most prudent practice, because unless you deal with a firm you know, or with one that is located within your state, it is often very difficult to locate the salesman or the company he represents. There is no one to go back to and it results in a lengthy legal hassle when we attempt to determine who the person is or where his company is located," Waters said.

Waters said there have been instances of a direct salesman representing a firm that is one of 26 or more subcorporations of a corporation formed in New York. He added, "This makes them almost impossible to trace."

Anyone with questions regarding direct sales contacts or anyone who has made such purchases may call the pesticides section in the office of special programs, Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, in Frankfort.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

White bass fishing around Kentucky is about to enter the second phase of its yearly cycle. The fish are returning to the main lake after their spawning runs into the headwaters and tributaries, and they're hungry.

The most productive angling method to take advantage of this post-spawning feeding spree is night fishing. By shining the rays of a lantern or other artificial light into the water directly beside the boat, the fisherman attracts schools of bait fish. This in turn draws in the white bass, and the angler is set for a night of fast action.

The best areas of the lake for this type of fishing are usually along a deep bank, off a point or beside a hogback. The secret of success is attracting the bait fish. Usually an overcast or moonless night is better than bright moonlight, since the darker conditions seem to cause the bait fish to concentrate around the lights more readily.

Most fishermen like to make night fishing a dusk-to-dawn affair. While most activity seems to take place after midnight, it's a good idea to be on the lake before dark to find a good location, anchor the boat at both bow and stern, get the rods rigged, the lanterns fueled up, and so on.

To find the depth at which the white bass are feeding, lower a baited hook to the bottom and retrieve it slowly toward the surface. When a fish takes the bait, count the number of turns of the reel handle it takes to bring him up, and you'll have a good idea of how far down to fish.

Either spinning or bait casting tackle is suitable for this type of fishing and the most popular hook is a number four or five Aberdeen. Two to three inch minnows are the usual bait. Some other helpful items are two anchors and plenty of line, warm clothing, rain gear, an extra light and several gallons of coffee.

If you plan to run your boat at night, make sure that the lighting conforms to regulations. Running light requirements are rather specific, so if you're not sure, better check with the Division of Water Enforcement, Department of Transportation, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

If the fishing gets really hot, don't get carried away and forget that the daily and possession limit on white bass is 60 per person. That's a lot of fish, but when conditions are right, limit or near limit strings aren't unusual for the night fisherman.

After being up all night, that's also a lot of fish-cleaning to be done before finally hitting the sack. But any confirmed night fisherman will tell you this kind of fishing is worth losing sleep over.

Carroll Says ADDS Aid Local Planning

Gov. Julian Carroll, addressing the Southeastern Federal Regional Council meeting in Atlanta, May 4, explained Kentucky's progress with Area Development Districts in cutting bureaucratic red-tape.

The governor, accompanied at the meeting by his state Cabinet members, told the federal officials that Kentucky's 15 Area Development Districts have improved state relationships with local units of government and made them more involved in local planning processes.

The team of Kentucky state officials traveled to Atlanta seeking approval of the state's application for $5,740,351 in federal funds to be allocated to the Area Development Districts. The application is being reviewed by the council's integrated grant program task force.

Gov. Carroll explained the money would be used to improve local government management and to add Law Enforcement Assistance Authority planning to Area Development District responsibilities.

For the federal government to follow Kentucky's lead in increasing the involvement of local units of government and cutting red-tape, Gov. Carroll recommended the council become a full partner with the states in mutual problem solving and establish training sessions and unify policies and funding procedures within federal agencies and the states.

Mine Safety Panel Continues Study

FRANKFORT, Ky.—A special study commission continued work Tuesday on developing recommendations on mine safety legislation for consideration by a special session of the legislature later this year.

Although a task force of the Deep Mine Safety Commission came up with recommendations on the licensing and training of miners at the group's initial meeting two weeks ago, chairman Ken Gibson said he doubted if those specific recommendations would be the final ones from the task force.

"I doubt if all those will be final," said Gibson, a Democratic state senator from Madisonville. "This is something the deeper you get into it, the deeper you find you can explore. But it is nice to have something to start with."

The commission is composed of representatives of mine operators, the United Mine Workers Union, state and federal mine safety officials and a mine safety expert from the University of Kentucky.

The first meeting resulted in formation of three task forces to study training and licensing of miners and mine inspectors, the effectiveness of the state Department for Mines and Minerals and the feasibility of full-time safety inspectors for all underground mines.

Gibson said Tuesday's meeting would include an over-view report from the federal Mine Safety and Enforcement Administration, the state Mines and Minerals Department, and the UMW on their responsibilities and approaches to mine safety, followed by work sessions of the task forces.

He said the next meeting of the commission would probably be held in Madisonville, followed by a meeting in Eastern Kentucky.

Gov. Julian Carroll, in creating the commission, gave it the mid-October deadline to make recommendations for the special legislative session, which is expected between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

ISRAELIS CAN'T SEE WHY CARS, WATER ROLL UPHILL

JERUSALEM—A curious phenomenon is puzzling Israeli scientists: What makes cars, water and footballs roll uphill?

Recently motorists travelling down towards Jerusalem from the tiny village of Djabal Moukaber found that their cars would stop at one point on the road and start rolling backwards uphill if the gears were in "neutral."

An Israeli television report on the phenomenon also showed experiments involving a football and a liquid. Both stupefied bystanders by rolling up the slope instead of down.

No logical explanation has yet been found.

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS
(Attorney General)

After June 30, Kentucky residents will have access to additional information when buying used cars. This will be made possible through a new Kentucky consumer protection law.

In the past, upon request of the prospective buyers, the car salesmen were required to furnish the name of the previous consumer-owner. Under the new law, you will also be given the address and phone number of the previous consumer-owner. To remind you to ask for this information, a sign will be posted on the windshield of every used car. This sign will state that:

"Notice: Kentucky law requires that, if requested, we shall furnish you with the name, address, and telephone number, if available, of the previous consumer-owner of this vehicle (KRS 190.080)."

"Previous consumer-owner" means the last owner of the vehicle who could reasonably be expected to have operated the used car for personal, family, household or business purposes, but does not mean the owner who possessed the vehicle primarily for resale purposes.

When you have obtained this information, you should use it. Contact the previous owner of the used car you are considering. Be sure to ask at least these questions about the car:

- Why was the car sold?
- How was the car primarily used by the previous owner?
- When the car was sold to the dealer, how many miles did it have?
- Has the car ever been wrecked? What kind of damage did it receive? Who repaired it?
- Did the car have any major or minor defects? What were they? Have they been repaired and if so, when?
- What type of gas mileage does the car get in the city and on the highway? How much oil does the car use?
- Check on the service the car has received. Was it maintained on a regular schedule?

The answers to these questions and others that you will have should aid you in deciding which used car to buy. But remember the effectiveness of this law depends on you. The best protection any consumer has is the wise use of information available to him.

If you have a consumer complaint, write to the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, Room 34, The Capitol, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the consumer hotline. The number is 1-800-372-2960.

KYDOT'S "MOUNTAIN MAN" TACKLES MAMMOTH CHORES

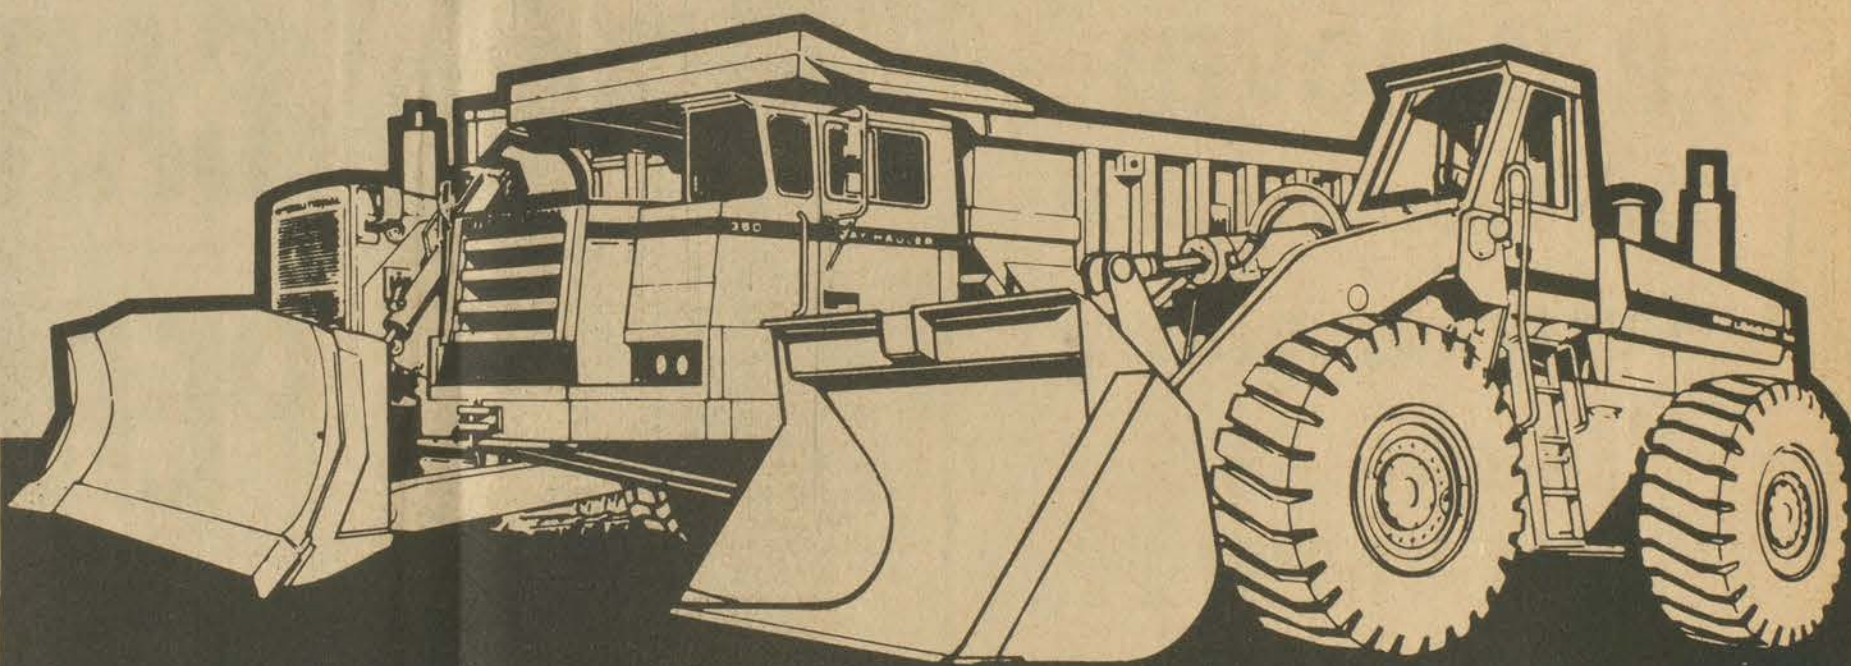

(ABOVE) Moving mountains isn't something you do overnight, but the Kentucky Department of Transportation's district highway office at Pikeville has made impressive headway in slicing through 13.5 million cubic yards of rock in Pike County. The huge cut is the heart of a multiple agency, model city project, which will provide more building space in Pikeville. It will allow removal of a railroad line from the city, rechanneling of the Levisa Fork of Big Sandy River away from the city, and building a new four-lane section of U.S. 23.

(RIGHT) Gail Mullins, district engineer there, describes the job as the biggest on his $50 million construction schedule.

(ABOVE) His district -- which includes Lawrence, Johnson, Martin, Floyd, Pike, Knott and Letcher Counties -- also is working to rebuild more than 200 additional miles of major highways under the Appalachian Regional Development Program which Mullins hopes to see completed before he retires. Another continuing problem for his office is the difficulty of maintaining some 2,600 miles of other roads in the unusually rugged and mountainous terrain of eastern Kentucky.

Reading Council Ends Year With Honors to Clark, Moore

The Jenny Wiley Reading Council's activities and events for the year culminated recently in a covered-dish dinner held in the McDowell School. The evening's program included the installation of new officers, presentation of awards, and recognition of council members' efforts to promote the goals set for both local and state levels.

Among the guests and members were Floyd County Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark, Assistant Superintendents Pete Grigsby and Ray Brackett, Title I Director Harry J. Wallace, McDowell Assistant Principal Philip Chaffins, Clark Principal John K. Pitts, Mark Rice, Frances Brackett, and Jane and David Pitts. A musical invocation was given by guest Joan Chaffins, who sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Elsie Stephens, Floyd county reading supervisor who served as official Jenny Wiley delegate, told of events at the National IRA Convention held recently in Anaheim, California. Other council members attending the convention were Anna Lee Rice, Lexie Allen, Delphia Hicks and Bertha Ratliff.

Superintendent Clark was presented a copy of the council-endorsed IRA Bicentennial Declaration. John K. Pitts, who made the presentation, told members and guests that it was the intention of the IRA in this Bicentennial year to recognize a person who has contributed significantly to the field of education because of the role education had played in the development of our country. "Therefore, it's very appropriate that we present Charles Clark with this declaration," said Mr. Pitts. "A graduate of Caney College and the University of Kentucky, Mr. Clark has served as both teacher and principal in Floyd County before assuming his duties in 1960 as the Superintendent of Schools. In a few days he will have been our Superintendent for 16 years."

The recipient of this year's Honorary Membership Award was George L. Moore, well-known area educator and writer who is best remembered in his role as principal of the McDowell School for almost 30 years. Former council president, Marie Stumbo, who made the presentation, related incidents regarding Mr. Moore's professional and private life. "He truly was a great educator who took a special interest in the lives of each of his boys and girls. He's been known to make teachers out of his students, and was very influential in my own decision to become a teacher," she said.

Mrs. Stumbo spoke of the interest his former students still hold for George L. Moore. "It tickles him to death," she said, "whenever he hears from one of his students or they drop by the farm to let him know what they are doing." She commented upon his vast knowledge and love of nature and the fact that "he can cite not only the common names of most plants but also the botanical ones."

Mr. Moore retired from the Floyd county school system to his farm in Elliott county in 1965. For the past three years he has written a weekly column for The Olive Hill Times.

Because of Mr. Moore's inability to attend, due to family illness, Mrs. Anna Sue Stumbo accepted the award for him. "Had he been here tonight we would have had to move our meeting over to the gymnasium," Mrs. Stumbo remarked in speaking of Mr. Moore's popularity with the people in and around McDowell.

Pauline Hicks displayed the Jenny Wiley Council's annual yearbook of activities and events which was dedicated also to the former educator.

Adding to comments about the former McDowell principal, Superintendent Charles Clark spoke of the excellent choice of this year's Honorary Membership recipient. "I am moved greatly by your efforts to honor an old man of education. George L. Moore can be referred to accurately as the Grand Old Man of Education. He is not only a man I admire but a man I tried to copy as a principal. It is very appropriate to pay him honor because there's no human being in public education that I admire more."

This year's state awards were given to classroom teachers, not remedial reading teachers. Each year the KSC-IRA presents awards to council members who have made outstanding contributions to the attainment of the goals set by the state council. Earning the 1976 state recognition were McDowell teacher, Myrtle Ratliff, and Pauline Hicks, of the Clark Elementary School.

Bertha Ratliff presented the KSC-IRA President's Service Award to Council President Nadine Hicks. She also recounted to members and guests the three council awards won by the Jenny Wiley Council at state and regional levels: (1) the 1976 Outstanding Council Achievement Award (the council tied with the Murray Council for first place); (2) the Fourth Southeast IRA Regional Conference Distinguished Teachers Award presented for council participation in the Jacksonville, Florida event; and (3) a silver tray given personally by KSC President Dorothy Jones in recognition of outstanding council achievements.

New officers installed for the coming year were: Kathleen Keithman, president; Larry Jervis, president-elect; Marie Stumbo, secretary; Delphia Hicks, treasurer.

Columbia Cites Lower Gas Use

Columbia Gas of Kentucky's 105,000 residential customers used eight per cent less natural gas than normal last winter as a result of conservation.

Figures released by the gas company show that, adjusted for weather, Columbia's residential customers used one billion cubic feet less natural gas during the Nov. 1, 1975, through Mar. 31, 1976, winter heating season than during a comparable period in 1972-1973.

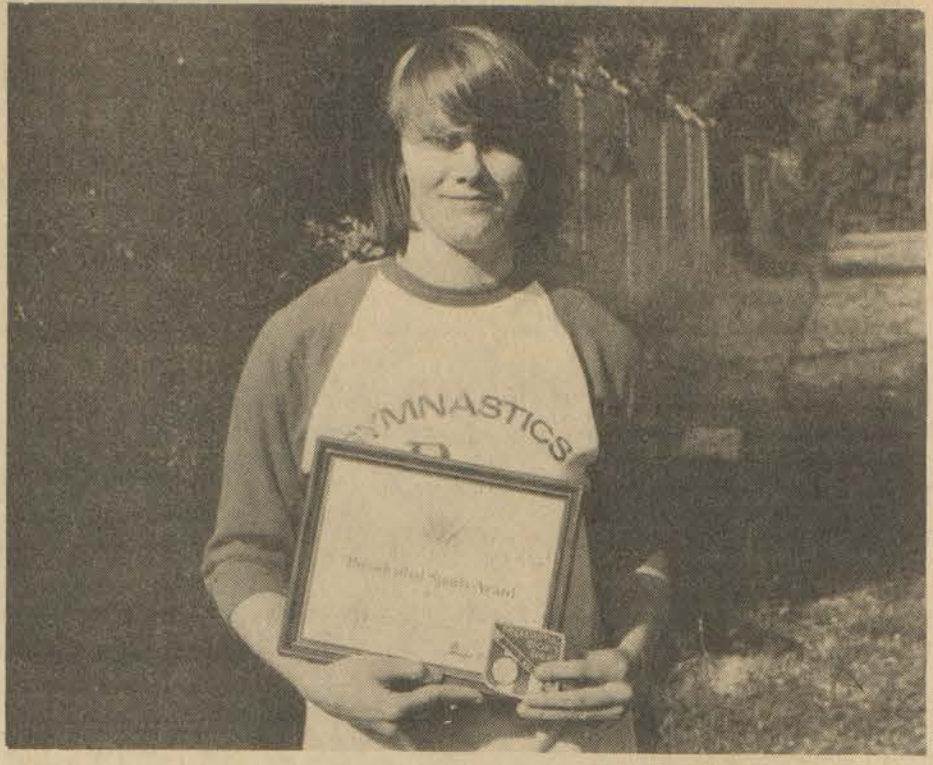

Jack Stumbo, Prestonsburg, area manager for the gas company, said the 1972-'73 period was selected as the base year, since it was the last winter heating season with normal consumption before the Arab oil embargo and resulting energy crisis publicity generated an interest in conservation.

The figures also showed conservation efforts on the part of Columbia's residential users resulted in 1.3 per cent less gas being consumed last winter than during the 1974-'75 heating season.

Stumbo said this effort to conserve by residential users meant not only that more gas than anticipated was available to industry last winter—helping to ease projected heavy curtailment levels—but also helped provide additional gas for Kentucky industry this summer.

Pointing out that the natural gas shortage is far from over, he urged customers not to relax conservation efforts throughout the spring and summer months.

Miss Clay Wins Presidential Citation

Bridgette Clay, Prestonsburg High School girls' basketball standout, is pictured displaying the Presidential Sports Citation and patch which she was awarded recently. Working through the PHS physical education department and under the supervision of phys. ed instructor Judy Music, Miss Clay earned the honor by logging 50 hours of athletic practice in addition to her regular team sports activities. To record the required 50 hours in a time allotment of three months, Miss Clay worked approximately three hours each week in various skill sharpening and endurance activities. She accomplished the feat in spite of a leg injury which she sustained during the past basketball season.

Miss Clay, a 16-year-old junior, is a member of the girls' basketball team, track team, gymnastics club, softball team and advanced physical education class. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clay, of David.

Maytown Woman's Club News

The Maytown Woman's Club held its regular monthly meeting at their club house at 7:30, Thursday evening, May 20. Mrs. Judy Banks, president, presided at the meeting. Lorena Hall presented the minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer, Judy Halbert, reported that the recent style show and beauty pageant was a financial and artistic success.

Among the items discussed at the meeting was the selection of the recipient of the club's annual scholarship. The scholarship will be presented at Allen Central's graduation, May 27.

Also the club's annual picnic was scheduled to be held at the home of Lorena Hall on Wilson Creek, June 24. The president read a letter commending the club for its outstanding work with the blood drawing for the Central Blood Center which was held at Allen Central High School in April.

Plans for a club activity for the week-end of Maytown's Homecoming were discussed and will be announced later. This will be a bicentennial celebration for the woman's club.

Members present contributed personal donations to defray transportation costs for the Girl Scouts week-long Day Camp. The club had a short program honoring two charter members for many years of good and meritorious service. Engraved plaques were presented to Shirley Stewart, who was the first president of the club, and Mossaleete Patton, the only member who has been a member for the entire 25 years of the club's existence. The outgoing president, Alisha Mayo, was presented a gift for her two years of dedicated service.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Kathy and Judy Halbert, to the following members: Kathy Halbert, Mossaleete Patton, Shirley Stewart, Sandy Patton, Judy Halbert, Judy Banks, Lorena Hall, Peggy Jean Gibson, Alisha Mayo, Bonnie Hubbs, Norina Moore, and Irma Tallent.

TAIL TELLS THE TALE
Biologists have discovered that the social status of a wolf can be determined by the way it carries its tail. The pack leader carries his tail high in the air, while a subordinate wolf will carry its tail low or even between its legs.

THE WELL-FITTED YOKE

What sort of yoke do you wear? Each of us is hitched up to something or other—to pleasure, or health, or business, or family, or science. How is it with you? For whom—or for what—do you plow?

One who knows about men and the yokes they wear has said, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me . . . For my yoke is easy and my burden is light" (Matthew 11:28-30).

This invitation from Jesus is addressed to everyone trying to face life alone; to those who know the awful weariness at the end of the road marked "sin";

to all who bear the intolerable burden of guilt;

to the person sick of himself, wishing that he could break free, start over, walk out of his skin and become someone else;

to the man who works hard, drives relentlessly, plays compulsively, in a fruitless effort to get the weight off his back so that he can straighten up and walk like a man; to the man who knows the emptiness and the exhaustion of life without a purpose big enough to claim him, and who vainly tries to fill the void with satisfactions called "getting ahead" or "being successful."

Do you wear one of these yokes? If so, Christ offers to help you, not by removing all your load so that you may float through life like an unguided balloon. He proposes instead that you exchange the burden that is breaking you for one you can carry. And in the transfer you will find the life for which you long. Listen to him again: "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me . . . For my yoke is easy and my burden is light."

Do not suppose that this means being a Christian is a simple, easy matter, making no demands of you. The yoke was a wooden collar placed around the ox's neck to harness him for work not to free him from work.

Jesus was a carpenter, a maker of yokes. He knew what happened to the shoulders of the ox harnessed with an ill-fitting yoke. Give a good ox a bad yoke and you could ruin him in a week, leaving ugly, sore places on his neck. That's why he said, "My yoke is easy." It does not gall or injure. It fits well. It meets the need. It is the only "harness" that fits so well you can pull life's load.

Does the emptiness of your life compel you to wonder if Jesus is right? Are you missing the Big Thing, perhaps because you have thought being a Christian is to deprive yourself of life? Jesus says this is not so. It is his yoke that fits. All the others you may try can only bring unhappiness and hurt.

Christ does not make empty promises. Those he healed and helped in the days he walked this earth tell us we may trust him. Millions since have proved he always keeps his word. Hear him, then, as he says again to you: "Take my yoke upon you . . . For my yoke fits well." Don't look any further for life's answers. Take the yoke he offers. Take HIM. Let life with him begin now.

Our Fragile Earth

By DR. JERRY HOWELL
Director of Environmental Studies
Morehead State University

With the possible exceptions of strip mining, timber clearcutting, and dam building, there is no environmental issue more controversial today than hunting, in philosophy and practice. The next few articles will discuss this issue by presenting several different viewpoints. Why is this issue so controversial? Why do no two people have exactly the same opinion on every ramification of it? Perhaps an American historical perspective would help us understand this issue.

Archaeologists tell us that the primitive hunting way of life adopted by the North American Paleo-Indians expanded into a broader food gathering, trapping and hunting way of life from about 9000 to 6000 B.C. and from 4000 to 1000 B.C., these early Americans built up their population, began using copper to make weapons and tools, and started using pottery. Even after the introduction of primitive agriculture in North America around 1000 B.C., early man expanded his hunting and gathering, presumably to feed an increasing population.

Indian agriculture and their use of fire created openings in the vast forests blanketing the United States at that time. These practices helped some species of wildlife at the expense of others. Populations of quail, grouse, rabbit, deer, fox squirrel, turkey, woodchuck, red fox, and crow expanded their range and increased while the gray squirrel, raven and gray fox suffered because of their dependence upon mature forests. Even the American bison moved as far east as Pennsylvania and Georgia.

These conditions were much the same as those that greeted Europeans attempting to colonize America in the 1500's. These invaders met with little success until the 1600's when pelt hunting for profit spurred interior exploration. Because the European market for pelts expanded, America turned to hunting for food and profit, instead of relying solely on agriculture. This period lasted for 200 or so years and was characterized by natural resource abuse.

Western lands were fought over and changed hands several times until the early 1800's, when the United States purchased most of them. Western explorations and mappings were undertaken primarily to find routes for beaver trappers and traders, but expeditions, such as that of Lewis and Clark from 1804 to 1806, brought back information regarding vast numbers of previously unknown (to the white man) birds and furbearers. These tales of animal abundance gave rise to 100 years of exploitation as evidenced by the beaver, hunted to extinction in many areas primarily because there was an excellent European market for beaver hats. As silken hats replaced the natural ones, another mammal, the buffalo, began to be exploited for its hide.

The near extinction of the buffalo and the destruction of forests by early settlers were primary factors motivating the first legion of conservationists in the late 1800's. Although a few persons decried natural resource wastage earlier, it was up to men like John Muir, a naturalist and founder of the Sierra Club, Gifford Pinchot, a forester, and Presidents Cleveland and Roosevelt to sew a new conservation ethic into the American fabric.

The flames of the fire started by these pioneers have ebbed, flickered and often raged for three quarters of a century. The flames have been fueled by a variety of environmental sins and many people now consider hunting a dubious activity and a volatile fuel for the fire, but this part of our past has endured.

Next: More about hunting.
