

Dock Area Silt Work Completed

Expect Lake Level Soon To Be Raised As Work Continues

Dredging in the dock area of Brandy Keg Cove, Dewey Lake, has been completed by the P & N Construction Co., Lexington, contractor on the $750,000 overall dock improvement project, and the return of the lake level to its winter pool is expected to begin shortly.

Work reported as completed to George Barker, new director of boat docks and camping areas, State Department of Parks, area, in addition to the excavation of silt from the head of Brandy Keg Cove to elevation 641, which is near where the metal dock section ended, are:

Road grading, water line installation, rock retaining wall and concrete dock anchor points.

Electrical work was said to be 90 per cent complete. Work on the extension of the launching ramp at the dock was expected to be completed this week, and a concrete bridge leading from the parking lot to the ramp was ready to begin. Steps and sidewalks remain to be done. "Fingers" for boat slips are ready for installation.

Construction of the main dock and the dock office building are scheduled for completion within a month, and final cleanup date has been set at May 1.

Mr. Barker said dock construction will possibly include repair and reinstallation of the metal dock section which was blown from its moorings and heavily damaged about 10 days ago. Insurance on the dock will cover a large part of the damage, he said.

The removal of silt from the area of the dock installation and extension of the launching ramp are designed to permit boats to be launched after the annual drawdown and to permit safe navigation of the area in the shallower water.

Mining Company Asks Injunction, $60,000 Damages

The Triple Elkhorn Mining Company asked in a suit filed here Monday against Everett Akers, of Martin, $30,000 for loss of coal production and $30,000 punitive damages and also filed for a temporary injunction to restrain the defendant from interfering with its truckers or mine employees.

The coal company, which is headed by Harry Hale Ranier, of Prestonsburg, points out in its suit that it has for more than a year been mining coal on Prater Creek under a contract with the B & H Elkhorn Coal Co., working along the head of a hollow and along the ridge to the rear of Finance Hollow, near Martin, where Akers resides. The company added that

Parkway Total Tolls Increase No. 2 Last Year

Kentucky's toll road receipts increased by $1,270,219 in 1975, and the Mountain Parkway contributed approximately one-fifth of that gain.

Tolls collected by the Mountain Parkway for the year totalled $2,549,350, a gain over 1974 of $232,133. Only another Eastern Kentucky road, the Daniel Boone Parkway, showed a greater increase.

(See editorial, "Not Another Lost Cause," in this edition.)

Excluding the old Kentucky Turnpike, from which tolls were permanently lifted at the end of last June, the other nine toll roads and two bridges brought in $14,963,002 during 1975. The total was $13,692,783 for 1974.

Tolls on the Kentucky Turnpike for its last six months of operation (Jan.-June 1975) were $3,695,141, compared to $3,952,301 for the first half of 1974.

Comparative receipts for the ten facilities follow:

Shawneetown Bridge, $398,206 in 1975; $387,856 in 1974; Western Kentucky Parkway, $3,264,633 in 1975; $3,324,549 in 1974; Purchase Parkway, $508,251 in 1975; $480,861 in 1974; Pennyrite Parkway, $1,730,789 in 1975; $1,703,709 in 1974; Sebree Bridge, $57,565 in 1975; $47,839 in 1974; Audubon Parkway, $590,890 in 1975; $511,123 in 1974; Daniel Boone Parkway, $982,536 in 1975; $436,290 in 1974; Green River Parkway, $1,754,364 in 1975; $1,513,679 in 1974; Cumberland Parkway, $1,040,899 in 1975; $886,971 in 1974; Bluegrass Parkway, $2,085,489 in 1975; $2,082,589 in 1974.

Health System Protest Group To Seek Allies

Fifteen persons reportedly representing the East Kentucky Citizens for Better Health Care, a coalition of 16 organizations, decided Saturday at a Hazard meeting to solicit the help of powerful political allies in their effort to block the new East Kentucky Health Systems Agency which is to supervise health planning for 68 counties in the eastern half of the state.

They voted to call on or write Governor Carroll, the state's two U. S. Senators and three of the Congressmen who represent the area.

Their target is the 30-member board of governors seated Feb. 19 by the Health Systems Agency in a meeting at Lexington. The dissidents claim the board is dominated by "upper class" representatives of existing health-planning agencies and that most of them do not understand the health needs of Eastern Kentucky's poor.

One of the groups embraced in the new East Kentucky Citizens for Better Health Care is the Kentucky Black Lung Association. George Tucker, of Ligon, president of the Back Lung Association, said at the Hazard meeting: "We're poor people, but we do exist. We're American citizens, we've got full rights and we want representation . . . we should let (Carroll) see we're not going to take this lying down."

The East Kentucky Health Systems Agency was formed as a part of the state's effort to bring itself into compliance with federal health-planning legislation. It is designed to replace

First 60 Miles Of Hiking Trail To Open in April

The first 60 miles of the hiking trail through Jenny Wiley country, all the way from South Portsmouth in Greenup county to Jenny Wiley State Park, will be open by the end of April, it was announced last week.

The first section of the 200-mile Jenny Wiley Trail, complete with overnight shelters and supplies, will extend eastward from its Greenup county terminus.

The trail is expected to be completed by next fall.

And, said Richard Howrton, director of the project, "When it's finished, the Jenny Wiley Trail will rival any hiking trail in the eastern United States."

Over its 200 miles of ridgetop length the trail will follow the route taken by the pioneer heroine, Jenny Wiley, in her flight from her Indian captors to Harman Station in what became known as Blockhouse Bottom. It will touch 10 counties.

Twenty shelters, spaced approximately 10 miles apart, will be built at a cost of approximately $3,000 each. Water storage facilities at each shelter will be of the cistern type.

The Appalachian Regional Commission made available $150,000 for the work. Future plans envision spur trails leading from the main route to Greenbo, Grayson and Carter Caves state parks, and the Kentucky Forest Service is said to be considering a trail through the Daniel Boone National Forest to connect the Cave Run lake area with the Jenny Wiley Trail.

Forest Blazes Hit This Area

Unseasonably warm, windy weather brought a rash of forest fires to Kentucky during the last week-end in February, the earliest that a serious spring forest fire problem has developed in several years.

Between Feb. 27-29 more than 377 forest fires occurred, burning an estimated 10,761 acres in Kentucky. Most of the fires were in the eastern half of the state. The largest fire reported covered 800 acres on Long Fork in Pike and edging into Floyd county. More than 300 acres burned in the Rock Fork area of Knott county.

According to Harry Nadler, director of the division of forestry in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, a serious situation began to develop Thursday and continued over the week-end.

Senate, House Memorialize Bus Victims and Rescue Squad

The Kentucky State Senate last Friday adopted resolutions introduced by Senator Jim Hammond in memory of the Floyd county school bus tragedy which on Feb. 28, 1958 claimed the lives of 26 school children and the driver, and honored the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad which was born of that tragedy.

The resolution provided that adjournment of the Senate that day was in memory of those who lost their lives and to honor the rescue squad.

Both the House and Senate issued identical certificates honoring the rescue squad and commending its "faithful and devoted members . . . for their unselfish services to the people of Eastern Kentucky, the Commonwealth and surrounding states in times of emergencies, tragedies and crises."

The certificates were presented to Graham Burchett, captain of the squad since its formation, and other members last Saturday afternoon by Senator Hammond and Representative James "Jitter" Allen.

The two sections of the Senate resolution read:

"That when the Senate adjourns this day, Friday, February 27, 1976, it does so in honor and memory of those who lost their lives aboard Floyd county school bus No. 27 on February 28, 1958," and . . .

"That the Floyd County Rescue Squad, born from this tragedy, be commended for the outstanding job performed on that day and in the years following."

Legislators and the state were reminded of the Floyd county tragedy by a feature written recently by Billy Reed for The Courier-Journal.

At the presentation here Saturday afternoon of certificates from the Kentucky House and Senate honoring the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad were, from left, Graham Burchett, who has been the squad leader since its organization 18 years ago; Bud Alexander, squad member; State Senator Jim Hammond; Roy Roberts, David Chaffin, and James B. Goble, squad members; the Rev. W. D. Jagers, squad chaplain, and State Representative James "Jitter" Allen.

Interior of tunnel shows where supporting timbers were torn away by wreck.

Wreck Inside Tunnel Blocks Coal

Coal shipments from the Right Beaver section of this county were brought to a standstill for five days when seven loaded coal cars derailed inside the Stephens Branch tunnel of the railway line serving that section. The wreck occurred Feb. 21 and service was not restored till last Thursday morning.

Tracks were ripped and timbering was torn out through a large portion of the tunnel, longest on the Right Beaver Creek line. There was no estimate of the damage.

The wreckage was so extensive inside the tunnel that machinery could not be used to clear the tracks, and most of the work was of necessity done by manpower, Charles McDavid, trainmaster at Martin, said. Chessie System employees from the Big Sandy Division and from Logan and Huntington, W. Va. worked from 16 to 18 hours a day in an effort to restore service.

Work on the tunnel itself will continue for months, it was said.

A broken rail was blamed for the wreck. Working in the cramped confines of the tunnel, workmen were obliged to use manually operated jacks and other devices to lift the wrecked cars back onto the tracks.

WORD WITH A STORY

A young friend came looking, the other evening, for examples of mountain dialect, and we tried to be helpful, but it wasn't till later that perhaps the most interesting word of them all occurred to us.

It's "hippo," and there's a word with a story. It's more than likely a corruption or contraction of "hypochondriac." Anyway, there was a time when if an individual took to bed and stayed there and nobody could determine what the ailment was, the inevitable diagnosis was that he or she was "hipped."

The story belongs to the treatment of the "disease." It was known as "sledding." An example:

Some years ago, not so far from where I was domiciled at the time, there was a man who had taken to his bed and stayed there over a period of years. His appetite remained reasonably strong, despite the lack of exercise, but he had, so to speak, to be "turned in a sheet." Doctors failed to find any cause for his condition, so finally members of the family took matters in their own hands and decided to give him a ride. They hooked to the family sled a young, half-broken span of mules, tenderly deposited the "sufferer" on the sled and took off down the rough, dirt road. Then the driver contrived to let

She's 81 and Slowing Down, but Red Cross Worker Refuses To Quit

During the 46 years that Ella Noel White has served as executive secretary of the Floyd County Red Cross Chapter, she has spearheaded the activities of that organization in this county through a depression, a world war, and more than a few natural calamities.

At age 81 she shows little indication of slowing down in her current position, although, she says, relatives have suggested she give up her duties with Red Cross. "The Floyd county chapter is one of 3,000 active Red Cross chapters in the country, and I'd hate to see it discontinued here," she remarked, "and anyway, I'm not the type to sit at home and do nothing. This is what keeps me going."

Miss White has been "going" nearly every day since she started work for the Red Cross in 1930 upon the suggestion of the late Dr. W. W. Richmond, of Prestonsburg. Her earliest years with the organization came during the Great Depression at a time when the services of Red Cross were needed most.

"Things were pretty rough around here then," Miss White said, "and our main duties were to distribute flour and commodities to people in different sections of the county."

As in all Red Cross operations, local residents served as volunteers.

By far the busiest period for Floyd Red Cross chapter came during World War II. It was during those years that the Red Cross made surgical dressings, working in the Masonic hall here. "A lot of local people, women and men, helped out then," Miss White pointed out, "and we'd work every day in several different shifts."

She said the chapter was involved in a continuous fund-raising effort during those years. "People really pitched in then," Miss White recalled.

Aside from the Depression and war, area floods have necessitated the involvement of the Red Cross and Miss White recalls the flood of 1957 as "a nightmare."

Budget Satisfies Hammond, Allen

Alcoholism Seminar To Begin March 16

Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's seminar on alcohol abuse, "A Community Looks at Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism," presented for the first time last semester, will meet Tuesday, March 16 from 7-9 p.m. at Prestonsburg Community College for the first of 10 two-hour sessions which will comprise the current semester's seminar.

Stephen Knowles, coordinator of alcohol services for MCCC and moderator and coordinator of the class, pointed out that according to 1974 statistics, 7,998 public drunk arrests were recorded for the five-county Big Sandy area which includes Floyd. This accounted for 9.4 per cent of the public drunk arrests in Kentucky, although, according to the 1970 census, the Big Sandy Valley contains only about 4 per cent of the state's total population.

Each of the seminar's sessions will feature a different speaker who is familiar with alcohol abuse and alcoholism through personal or professional experience.

Offered as part of PCC's community services program, the seminar is free to area residents, and anyone with an interest in alcohol-related problems, whether personally or professionally, is urged to attend one or all of the sessions.

Floyd's Share Now Estimated At $1.7 Million

Governor Carroll's budget, which included $13 million a year for Resource Recovery Roads (four-lane construction of KY 80 from Water Gap to Hazard) sailed through the House last week with a 95-0 vote, and this week the Senate is expected to act on Senate Bill 142, which, in effect, is enabling legislation to implement the budget.

Senate approval of the budget may run into some opposition, with the Lexington Herald apparently being the main media roadblock, Senator Jim Hammond said. Hammond and Senator Kelsey Friend, of Pike county, are co-sponsors of SB 142.

Hammond, Senator Lowell Hughes and Representative James "Jitter" Allen were in enthusiastic agreement that the coal counties will fare well under Gov. Carroll's Economic Development Plan which is financed in great part by the coal severance tax.

"When we got the county-by-county breakdowns, everybody was in favor of it. It was just a real good package," Allen said of the governor's plan.

Under the governor's plan Floyd county will receive, for instance:

Energy road fund (road repairs), $463,068 in fiscal year 1976-'77, $501,657 in

Not Another Lost Cause

It is interesting, from where we sit, to study the income earned last year by Kentucky's toll roads.

The Mountain Parkway—the road which, it was once said, "goes nowhere"—had the greatest increase in receipts last year over those of the preceding year, with the exception of the Daniel Boone Parkway which was not in full use till 1975, and this same Mountain Parkway ranked next to the Western Kentucky Parkway in total income last year among all the toll projects operated the entire year by the state.

The $2,549,350 total of tolls collected in 1975 from travelers of this road from the Blue Grass to the Mountains, or vice versa, was $232,000 more than it yielded the preceding year. No other toll road in Kentucky, except another mountain highway, the Daniel Boone Parkway, had an increase of more than $79,000—and the Western Kentucky Parkway actually showed a loss of about $60,000.

The boom in the coal industry, of course, is responsible for the marked increase in tolls on these mountain highways. But that is all the more reason to point to the faulty reasoning of those lowlanders who oppose Eastern Kentucky road development as an investment in a lost cause.

Among the vehicles which contributed some of this toll money to the Mountain Parkway were many from Lexington and other cities, all carrying men who were anxious to get in on "a good thing" during the coal boom. We say this, not in criticism of these investors, but to point to the fact that the Mountains which long have figuratively gone to Mahomet have their part, a very real part, in the life of Kentucky, and that they do on occasion draw Mahomet in this direction.

And now another important road for Eastern Kentucky appears to be a certainty. And that road, KY 80, modernization of which some of our Blue Grass friends have been less than enthusiastic about, will make a contribution commensurate to that made by these other roads that have cut the bonds of isolation for this area.

it has constructed a haulway down the Becky Clark Branch, which is adjacent to the branch on which defendant resides and that Akers has previously filed a claim against Triple Elkhorn and its insurer for damages allegedly caused his property by the coal company's blasting operations.

The suit alleges that the defendant or his agents on March 1, and previously, obstructed the haulroad and that defendant made threats of violence to truckers or mine employees attempting to use the haulroad either for the purpose of hauling coal or going to and from work.

As a consequence, the suit alleges, three days' work, or a minimum of 6,000 tons of coal, have been lost. It also claims the profit from sale of such coal could reasonably be anticipated at $30,000.

Another coal producer, Homer Short, filed suit Feb. 24 against the Adams Construction Co., Pikeville, and the Second National Bank of Ashland, claiming Adams owes him $632,078.38 for coal, which Short delivered to the company. The bank, the plaintiff claims, is jointly responsible for $371,201.70, the total of checks which Short claims the construction company issued to him for coal, then stopped payment on them.

Plaintiff contends the bank shares responsibility "because it did not act within the scope of its authority" when the Adams firm failed to follow the proper legal procedure in stopping payment on the checks.

SIRICA LEAVES THE HOSPITAL FOR 'LONG REST' AT HOME

WASHINGTON—U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who collapsed after suffering a massive heart attack Feb. 5, was discharged from the hospital yesterday.

The Watergate judge's law clerk, Robert Ruyak, said Sirica's doctors have prescribed "a good long rest" at home.

Ruyak described the judge, who will be 72 on March 19, as being "very chipper, although he tires easily."

Contractors' bids for the construction of the Dewey dam will be publicly opened in the office of Col. B. B. Lalley, district engineer, U. S. Engineer Office, at Huntington, Friday morning. Mrs. Thelma Burnette Gill, 30, of Cincinnati, Ohio, formerly of Wayland, died Saturday, in Bethesda hospital, Cincinnati, of injuries sustained February 19 when she was struck by a street car there. Mr. and Mrs. Estill Hyden, of Prestonsburg, last week received official notification that their son, T-Sgt. Eugene Hyden, missing since November 14, 1943, in the South Pacific, had been declared as killed in action.

Chief of Police Epp Lafferty this week said two Prestonsburg "rook parlors" where gambling had allegedly been practised had closed on his orders after complaints had been filed by Prestonsburg church and club women. Edgar Dale, superintendent of the Elk Horn Coal Corporation operations at Wayland, was elected president of the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Mining Institute at the Institute's annual meeting, Friday. Forty Years Ago

(February 28, 1936)

With the signing by Gov. Chandler last week of the bill giving towns of the second, third and fourth classes the right to own municipal waterworks, Prestonsburg citizens and officials began laying plans for municipal ownership of the local water system within the next four years. Otis Thacker, 24-year-old Weeksbury miner, died in the Methodist hospital, Pikeville, of bullet wounds received Saturday afternoon at a Weeksbury liquor store. As the result of a shotgun wound sustained Friday when he fell, accidentally discharging his gun, Wallace Blackburn, 17, of Wonder, died Wednesday at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin. Epp Lafferty, former Garrett officer, was shot through both arms early Sunday morning in the poolroom of the Elk Horn Coal Corporation at Garrett. Strong flow of oil in three wells drilled in the upper end of this county indicate the possible development of a rich oil field in Floyd county. Fire which broke out Monday morning in the new brick addition to the Valley Inn here, caused damage estimated at five thousand dollars. Married: Miss Norcie Elizabeth Sturgill, of Hindman, and Mr. Woodrow Wilson Burchett, of Woods, here February 13 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Houston, who had the rug made from a black bear he bagged in Alaska, donated the rug to be displayed in the conservation camp's nature museum.

1977-'78 for a total of $964,722 economic aid fund (flow-through fur for industrial development, etc.), $73,560.56 each fiscal year; total of 7,121.12; schools, in addition to Minim Foundation fund, $251,554 for 1978. The total allocated the county is $13,400.12. Big Sandy Area Development District was allocated $513,600.

Other Big Sandy counties received these totals:

Johnson, $463,309; Magoffin, $3,687; Martin, $1,657,602; Pike, $6,054.3.

The allotment figures are based on present coal production and export prices.

The six areas of the governor's proposed expenditure of the tax money are:

1. The creation of a Resource Recovery Road Authority for the initial purpose of issuing bonds for the construction of Kentucky Highway 80 connecting the Daniel Boone and Mountain Parkys. Citing the growth of tourism in Kentucky and needed economic development in Eastern Kentucky as overriding reasons for the highway's construction, Gov. Carroll explained that the bonds for the 45-mile, four-lane project will be repaid by earmarking eight cents per ton of coal severance tax for that purpose. The estimated cost of construction is $3 million.

2. The completion of the Jefferson Freeway. Announcing that the House appropriations and revenue committee voted unfavorably for an $8 million appropriation to repay the predominant Jefferson county losses suffered when Prudential Savings and Loan went bankrupt, Gov. Carroll anticipated that this money would be appropriated, in turn, for the completion of construction of the Jefferson Freeway.

3. The direct allocation to coal-producing counties of an annual $5 million appropriation. Each county's allowance would depend on the amount of severance tax the county generated and the county's poverty level based on per capita income. The uses of the money would be determined by a five-member Coal Severance Economic Aid Board in each county composed of the county judge, the mayor of the largest city in the county, a representative of the largest school board in the county and two at-large members appointed by the governor.

4. A $6 million annual appropriation to be divided among the 15 Area Development Districts. Sixty per cent of the fund will be apportioned to the districts on the basis of population. An inverse ratio of the percentage of the state's average per capita income in the district would be the basis for 20 per cent of the funds, while the remaining 20 per cent would be appropriated on an inverse ratio of the percentage of the total state manufacturing employment found in each district. The funds in each district would be used for local development projects.

5. A direct appropriation to coal counties for an Energy Road Program. The governor's recommendations include $12 million for fiscal year 1976-'77 and $13 million the next year for entitlements based entirely on coal production tonnage to be spent upon the recommendations of local fiscal courts through the Department of Transportation.

6. A $9 million annual allocation to Coal Miners' Pneumoconiosis Fund from which disability benefits for coal miners will be paid. Pledging that this appropriation would lower workmen's compensation premiums statewide, Carroll explained that the state would be paying about 40 per cent of the premiums while non-coal industries would be paying about 30 per cent less and coal operators about 10 per cent less than they are now paying.

Explaining the sources of income for the proposed coal severance tax expenditures, Gov. Carroll listed a $24 million fund reserved in his proposed executive budget, an increase in the coal severance tax from four to four and one-half per cent which would be primarily an Eastern Kentucky tax, and an increase from 30 cents to 50 cents on the minimum tax per ton of coal which would be mainly a western Kentucky tax.

The governor's coal tax legislative recommendation prohibits local units of government from levying a license or franchise tax on the sale, use, production, transportation or processing of coal.

Stating that in keeping with his campaign pledge of not putting any new taxes on Kentucky consumers, Gov. Carroll announced that he will ask the General Assembly to approve a $150 increase in the standard deduction for Kentucky taxpayers. This is in addition to the $500 standard deduction he has already recommended.

He also stated that he will ask that the five per cent sales tax be removed from purchases of coal for home consumption.

Nadler said burning debris was the chief cause of fires over the week-end. The warm weather apparently induced many people to clear gardens and burn brush piles. To compound the problem, high winds hampered fire fighters in bringing the fires under control and were responsible for numerous fires breaking over control lines.

Officials are investigating a number of fires of incending origin, concentrated in eastern Kentucky.

Several fires were still burning Monday morning, but forestry officials hoped to have those under control early that day.

Nadler asked Kentuckians to refrain from burning anything until their land receives rain, and then to take care.

the mules get scared. The result was a runaway.

I did not witness the incident but have been told on good authority that the invalid took a hasty assessment of the situation, arose from his reclining position, leaped from the sled and finished in a dead heat with the mules.

UGH!

This story was told me by a sedate lady. So, at the risk of a blackballing by the lodge, I retell it.

It concerns the Indian whose squaw had grown along with him into the 50's and a little uglier than she was to begin with. So he went to the chief of the tribe and asked to trade her to a 16-year-old. The chief informed him that he had no 16-year-old maid around his teepee but that he would, for a consideration, trade him two 20-year-olds—a proposition which was accepted.

A few days later, the Indian showed up at the chief's teepee, sorter bedraggled and a bit pale around the gills. "Me wantum squaw back," he announced.

"Why? Why not keep the two twenties I traded you?" the chief wanted to know.

"Ugh!" said the Indian, or words to that effect. "Me not wired for two 20's."

The worst nightmare of all, she recalls, was the 1958 school bus tragedy near here in which 26 children and the driver lost their lives.

She stressed the point that, aside from the relief duties during crises and natural disaster for which the Red Cross is noted, the bulk of the organization's work comes as its function as a link between the U. S. armed services and families at home.

"If, for instance, a service boy wants an extension of his leave because a relative is critically ill, then it's my job to verify that the relative is, in fact, in serious condition and that the request for leave extension is valid." Red Cross also helps service men by financing trips and from bases when it is necessary.

In the early days when telephones weren't common as they are now, Miss White said, "some women volunteers and I would have to make long trips up hawks to deal with cases . . . and it always seemed that the house would be in the very head of the creek."

Today, Miss White conducts similar business each day, although most of her calls are handled by telephone. "I'm in the office from about 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. during the week," she said, "but I'm on call 24 hours a day and a lot of calls come while I'm at home."

Another activity of the Floyd chapter is first-aid training classes. "We've conducted 15 classes in first-aid training since we've been here, and anyone 17 or over can benefit from these sessions," she pointed out.

At present, Miss White is involved in the chapter's annual fund-raising drive which will continue through March—Red Cross Month.

The Floyd county chapter has never received any sort of federal grant and it operates completely on local contributions. Miss White said the chapter had its fund drive quota only once since World War II.

"If every person in this county who has been helped in some way by the Red Cross would give a dollar to the fund drive, we'd go 'way above our quota,'" she said.

This year's quota for Floyd county is $5,500 plus an additional $500 to go to the relief effort for survivors of the recent series of earthquakes in Central America.

Miss White's salary from the Red Cross is negligible and social security benefits comprise the bulk of her income. "Red Cross just can't raise the money to keep chapter employees on good salaries," she said.

"My pa is feeling like I'm helping," Miss White said. "When you think you're doing something for somebody it really makes you feel good. It gets in your blood."

existing regional and local health-planning councils.

EKHA leaders have said that a board of governors of experienced health planners is needed during the agency's infancy. They said they hope local people will participate in nine regional "sub-area" councils and gradually rise to the board of directors.

The protest group rejected this proposal, saying poor people are excluded from the board of governors, which could block sub-area proposals.

Ousley Fined $250 On Marijuana Plea

Greeley Ousley was fined $250 and costs in quarterly court here recently on his plea of guilty to a charge of marijuana possession, and Leon Hall, who also entered a guilty plea to the charge of indecent exposure, was fined $100 and costs.

Four truck drivers, all of whom pleaded guilty to overweight charges, were fined $25 and costs each but all amounts assessed of them were suspended. They were listed as William Harmon, Hershell Kitchen (two offenses), Lumie Click, Jr. and Terry L. Newberry.

Thomas Haynes pleaded guilty to a drunk driving charge, was fined $100 and costs and his driver's license was revoked. Danny Martin was given trial in absentia on a drunk driving count, and his fine was set at $75 and court costs.

WESLEYAN CIRCLE MEETS

The Wesleyan Circle of the First United Methodist Church met February 24 at the church, with Mrs. Fanny Runnels and Miss Alice Harris as co-hostesses. The president, Miss Alice Harris, opened the meeting with prayer and led in the Salute to the American and Christian flags. Mrs. Shirley Callihan presented the program on health. The hostesses served a dessert course to Mrs. Shirley Callihan, Mrs. Vera Ford, Mrs. Edna Carol Greenwade, Mrs. Virginia Shivel, Mrs. Tom Field, Mrs. Bonnie Applegate, Mrs. Anna May Mellon and Miss Ella Noel C. Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

"Making the best of a bad situation" is a good way to describe a project now under way at Lake Cumberland.

The "bad situation" resulted from the tornados which swept through Kentucky on April 3, 1974. Among the destruction these storms left behind were several tracts of fallen timber along the shoreline of the lake.

Working together, the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources have come up with a way to use these downed trees to try to enhance fishing at Cumberland.

The trees are being dragged into the lake and anchored to form fish attractors. Some will be left between the timberline and the water's edge, where they will be submerged when the lake returns to normal seasonal pool after the current repair work on the dam is completed, and others are being submerged now, so fishermen can take advantage of them as soon as possible.

When the lake is at normal summer pool, many of these attractors will extend from the shoreline to depths of around 50 feet, according to Charles Bowers, director of the fisheries division for the Department of Fish and Wildlife. Fisheries is furnishing the manpower for this project, and the Corps of Engineers is providing the heavy equipment and machine operators.

Currently the work is taking place in the Whiteoak Creek area, but there are also sections of Beaver, Otter, and Indian Creeks where these attractors will be placed if time permits. Work will continue for another one and one-half months, Bowers says, after which time previously scheduled projects by both the Department and the Corps will necessitate halting this phase of the fish attractor program.

After the attractors are in place, their effectiveness will be monitored regularly by the fisheries division. Depth-finder readings will be taken to see if fish are using the attractors, and scuba divers will determine which species of fish are actually there.

Bowers expects almost all species of fish to use the attractors, including crappie, white bass and largemouth bass. If these brush piles are successful in attracting fish the technique may be expanded to other lakes around the state using fallen trees whenever they occur.

These attractors should be easy to find at Lake Cumberland—just look for a series of brush piles from the timberline down to the edge of, and extending into, the water. When the lake comes up to seasonal pool they may be harder to spot and they may eventually be marked with signs to make them easier for fishermen to find.

So when you see a pile of old trees along the shore of Lake Cumberland, remember that it's not a bunch of trash, but a potentially good fishing spot.

Essay Winner at Blue-Gold Banquet

This year's theme was "Horizons, U.S.A.", and was a celebration of the nation's bicentennial with an emphasis on looking to America's future.

The boys presented the program. Each boy had earlier written an essay on what he could do to make America a better place for the future. A winning essay was selected from each den and these boys read their essays, then lit candles on a birthday cake and led everyone in singing "Happy Birthday, America". This was followed by some patriotic songs, led by Mrs. Bonnie Hughes.

The guests of honor for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Leach, of Prestonsburg, who have been active in scouting for many years.

Mr. Leach is still a Boy Scout leader, and Mrs. Leach has been a Cub Scout leader in Prestonsburg for 16 years, starting in 1960. She received the Silver Fawn in 1972, from the Cub Scout Council, which is the highest award that can be earned by a leader.

Columbia Plans 1976 Program At Estimated $159.9 Million

Columbia Gas Transmission Corporation has announced a $159.9 million supply development and construction program for 1976. It plans to spend approximately $127.6 million on natural gas supply development and an additional $32.3 million for other construction projects.

In the program are three test wells in Kentucky.

An estimated $101.9 million of the gas supply monies are to be used for advance payments to other producers in exchange for rights to purchase gas developed by the producers. An estimated $6 million of that will go for 175 weeks in the Appalachian area, and $95.9 million goes for Gulf of Mexico gas development.

The remaining $25.7 million of the gas supply monies are for Columbia's Appalachian production expenditures, with $10.4 million of that amount going for actual well drilling costs.

Columbia Transmission's drilling program calls for the completion of 50 regular wells and three research and development shale formation wells. The shale wells will test massive hydraulic fracturing (MHF) techniques and are a joint project with the U. S. Energy Research and Development Administration.

Another 25 experimental shale wells are planned, if the Federal Power Commission permits their cost to be classified as research and development expenditures. If approved, the 1976 costs would be $3.3 million, a figure included in the $25.7 million production budget. These wells are part of a three-year, 50-well program which will explore areas where there have been no previous shale production. Another $5.2 million would go into drilling the second 25-well group and the other work needed to complete the experiment.

Of the 50 regular gas wells, 28 are development wells (those drilled in areas where the existence of gas has been proven) and 22 are test wells.

Here are the states where wells are planned for this year: West Virginia—nine test, two development, three MHF shale, and five experimental shale; Kentucky—three test and 10 development; Virginia—two test, 12 development and five experimental shale; Ohio—three development and 15 experimental shale; New York—eight test and one development.

To help move gas from production areas to market, Columbia is planning the construction of four new compressor stations and the modernization of two existing stations in West Virginia, Ohio and Pennsylvania at a cost of about $4 million.

Carter Backers Meet at Lodge, Study Strategy

Presidential politics came to Kentucky last week-end with the arrival of the campaign of former Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter. Some fifty persons gathered at Jenny Wiley State Park to plan strategy for the Georgian in Eastern Kentucky.

These represented 12 of the 27 counties in the Seventh Congressional district. From Ashland to Hazard to Maysville, including Paintsville, Prestonsburg, Hindman and Morehead, they gathered to hear J. B. Blakely from the Carter campaign in Atlanta talk about the plans for the Kentucky campaign. Bill Weinberg, of Hindman, was elected chairman of the Seventh district. A temporary steering committee for the District was also formed.

Speaking of Carter, Blakely said, "Carter is a man with a proven record of effective, honest government. He represents the unifying force of moderation so badly needed in our country today." Blakely indicated that Carter intends to wage an active campaign in Kentucky and will come to the state to campaign personally.

Weinberg announced a district-wide steering committee meeting to be held March 6 at Jenny Wiley.

Amburgy Faces Second Charge

One of three Kentuckians accused of murdering Janet Mae Whalen, of Lexington, and John Simmons, of Louisville, last month was indicted for first degree murder by a Jackson county, Ind., grand jury last week.

James Edward Amburgey, 34, of Pippa Passes, was indicted for the Jan. 30 slaying of Simmons, 46, whose body was found along Interstate 65, near Columbus, Ind.

Police said Simmons had apparently agreed to give Amburgey, David Jacobs, 28, also of Pippa Passes, and 17-year-old Glenna Fay Shepherd, of Gunlock, a ride from Louisville to Indianapolis. Amburgey and Miss Shepherd were arrested the next day after Jacobs surrendered to police.

The grand jury indicted Jacobs on a charge of being an accessory after the fact. Miss Shepherd was not charged.

Amburgey, Jacobs and Miss Shepherd were removed to Lexington. The two men were scheduled to be arraigned on the Lexington murder charge last Wednesday in quarterly court.

The body of Miss Whalen was found Jan. 30 in the shower stall of a Richmond Road motel. Her throat had been cut.

Bill Asks "Career Education" For Pupils of State Schools

Frankfort, Ky.—The age-old cry to make education more relevant to students may be answered in House Bill 70. The bill, which calls for "career education" in Kentucky's schools, was passed by an overwhelming 86-3 vote in the Kentucky House of Representatives and has gone to the state Senate, where passage is expected.

The legislative intent of the bill, which was sponsored by Rep. Don Stephens, D-Lexington, is to "guarantee each student in the common schools the opportunity for programs and services appropriate to his needs in the areas of basic academic and learning skill development, career awareness, coping with life situations and enabling continued personal education and enrichment."

In non-legal language, that means the goal of education should be preparation for work.

"A large percentage of dropouts from high school give as a reason for doing so the failure to see the benefit of learning something which they will never use in jobs following school," Stephens said.

"Career education is aimed at stressing what is relevant to a career in all aspects of education," he added. As explained by Stephens, who is serving his second term in the House, career education is not a separate entity like vocational education, but is a concept to be incorporated into the total curriculum of elementary, secondary, post-secondary and adult education. The bill states that the concept is to be taught in conjunction with courses involving personal development, career and occupational awareness, economic understanding, citizenship, family life and human relations.

According to a report by a legislative subcommittee on career education, of which Stephens was chairman, general implementation of career education has been divided into three major phases: an awareness phase from kindergarten through sixth grade; and exploration-orientation phase in grades six through nine; and the preparatory phase in grades nine through the sophomore year in college.

Progression through these three phases involves an introduction to the world of work and the various types of work followed by an understanding of the variations between and within work types and, finally, preparation for students to move into a chosen occupational field.

The bill will appropriate $2 million for in-service training for teachers and $50,000 for administration by the Kentucky Department of Education.

At least 25 other states have already earmarked funds for career education, according to national education magazine.

The Age Discrimination in Employment Act promotes the employment of the older worker based on ability rather than age and prohibits arbitrary age discrimination in employment.

Miss Bingham-Mr. McKinney Wed

The marriage of Miss Deborah Lou Bingham and Mr. Allen Reed McKinney was solemnized by the Rev. LeRoy Thompson in a candlelight, double-ring ceremony at the Del Norte Baptist Church in Tucson, Arizona, January 10. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bingham, formerly of Tucson, now of Prestonsburg, and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McKinney, of Tucson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace accented with seed pearls. The Victorian-styled gown was fashioned with high neckline and long sheer sleeves enhanced with appliques of Chantilly lace. The full skirt fell to a sweeping train with a wide band of accordin-pleated lace sprinkled with seed pearls. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of red and white roses.

Nuptial music was presented by Elizabeth Ericksen, organist, and Nancy

Hayes, pianist. Don Hedrick sang "Because He Lives", "Where Thou Goest", and Kenneth Hartman sang "How Great Thou Art."

Members of the wedding party were Toni Rice, matron of honor, and bridesmaids, Connie Noreen, Cheryl Lynn McKinney, and Ciny Herrera.

Tom O'Dell was best man and groomsmen were Don Gibson, Kevin McKinney and Skipper McKinney.

Candlelighters were Tammi and Susan Tripp.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs Bingham wore a gown of pale blue with silver accessories. The groom's mother, Mrs. McKinney, chose a gown of mint green with silver accessories. Both wore shoulder corsages of white orchids.

Following the reception held in Guadalajara Room, Braniff Place, the newlyweds left on a wedding trip to White Mountains Ski Resort in northern Arizona.

GOP Reorganization To Begin this Month

Frankfort, Ky.—In about two weeks Kentucky Republicans will take their first large step to reorganize their party.

The party will hold elections March 13 at the precinct level, choosing precinct captains, cocaptains and youth captains.

It hopes the process will have cumulative importance, for the precinct officers will comprise the county Republican committees.

"It is the first time we'll have titles at the precinct level, plus a youth captain," state Republican executive director Larry Van Hoose said yesterday. "One person will be clearly in charge."

After the precinct caucuses, county conventions will be March 20.

"This is a kind of changing of the guard," Van Hoose said. "We intend to revive the grass roots at the county level and give the party a wider spectrum."

The Republicans will concentrate on selecting delegates for the party's national convention in August in Kansas City, Mo.

Another series of county mass conventions is scheduled in county seats April 3. Delegates will be elected to the district and state conventions.

The state convention will be held at Frankfort April 24, preceded by congressional district conventions April 22 or 23.

Twenty-one national delegates will be elected at the district meetings and the remaining 16 at-large from the state convention. The GOP central committee will apportion the 37 Republican national delegates on the basis of the May 25 primary results.

But because the conventions are held before the primary a complication could result.

If one candidate grabs the bulk of delegates at the district and state conventions and the other comes on strong in the May 25 primary, some delegates might have to cast the first ballot at the national convention for the candidate they did not favor, regardless of their feelings.

After the first ballot they would be free to vote as they please.

Kentucky Democrats hold their state convention the month after the May 25 primary. They will apportion delegates according to the votes each successful candidate received.

SA Reports Food Stamp Quality Control

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) reported the results of quality control activities, in the administration of the food stamp program, during the year from January through June.

Quality control is an administrative function for determining the extent to which non-public-assistance households are eligible for food stamps and are receiving the proper amount of food stamps. Usual quality control program is now only for non-public-assistance households (a household in which at least one member is not receiving public assistance). This non-assistance segment of the food stamp program was approximately 55 percent of the total program for the six months covered by this report.

A total of 91.1 percent of the households reviewed were verified to be eligible for participation based on satisfying financial and other basic program criteria, but 8.9 percent of the households were determined to be ineligible for these reasons. In the six-month period, this error rate was 8.8 percent.

For each bonus dollar issued, a total of 10.1 percent were issued to households determined to be ineligible on the basis of financial and other basic program criteria, but 8.2 percent of the bonus dollars were issued to households found ineligible for these reasons. In the preceding six months, this error rate was 8.4 percent.

An additional 10.1 percent of the households reviewed were determined to be ineligible because of administrative complexities such as work registration, and procedural omissions like failure to sign the application. These cases represented an additional 10.7 percent of the total bonus dollars issued. In the preceding six months, this error rate amounted to 8.5 percent of the households reviewed, and represented 9.1 percent of the total bonus dollars issued.

Errors were found in determining the food stamp allotments to which eligible households are entitled, and in establishing their purchase requirements. These errors were significant in the basis of errors from the previous six-month period. A total of 19.9 percent of the households reviewed had errors or paid too many stamps or had received stamps than they were entitled to. Errors represented only 7.6 percent of the bonus dollars issued. In the preceding period, overissuance had occurred in 26 percent of the cases and represented 8.4 percent of the bonus dollars issued.

Artists' Guild Exhibit on Display

The annual traveling exhibit of the Floyd County Community College Art Guild is now being shown at the County Library here. Included in the exhibit are 27 paintings by artists from Johnson, Pike and Magoffin counties. The paintings will remain here through Friday, March 12. Following this the exhibit will be displayed in public libraries in Johnson, Pike and Magoffin counties for a two-week period.

The Department's Bureau of Statistics had published its latest Employment and Earnings, Areas, 1939-'74. This Bulletin 1370-11, is available from the BLS regional office or the Department of Documents at $9.70 a copy.

The Days of Old Wagon Roads

By GEORGE L. MOORE
If old wagon roads could talk, what a wonderful story they could tell. It has always been a puzzle to me why the early settlers selected the most difficult terrain for the location of these roads. They would go up to the summit of the highest hill and down the other side rather than follow the bench around the hill on level ground.

When these roads descended into the valley, the creek bed rather than bottom land was the favorite location. As I recall, the old wagon road between Limestone and Olive Hill dipped into Tygart Creek several times. The most hazardous crossing was at Clark's Ford, just above Olive Hill. This was especially true in the early spring when the team would sometimes have to swim and the water would rise several inches in the wagon bed.

Before the days of the motor car, these old wagon roads, as many will testify, were quite difficult to travel. In the early spring they were always muddy. In the low places they seemed to have no bottom. In the winter when there was a hard freeze, they became quite rough but you could get over them with less difficulty. When a deep snow fell, traveling salesmen—or "drummers," as they were then called—would sometimes visit country stores by horse and sleigh. The late Governor Fields would often travel in this manner. These old wagon roads, as bad as they were, provided a network for travel that held the mountain counties together.

These roads were usually at their best in the late fall after the overseer had warned all male citizens over 21 to perform their six days of free labor toward the upkeep of a particular section of road. The overseer was appointed by the county judge and one of his first duties was to warn the hands on his section to work on the road. The warning had to be delivered in person and if you could keep out of sight of the overseer, you could avoid doing any work on the road.

Each overseer had his own ideas about how to build the road. I can recall one such who had a long steep hill on his section. He insisted on placing "dead men" from the bottom to the top of the hill. A dead man, as it was then called, consisted of a heap of green brush placed at an angle across the road. The brush was then covered with a thick mound of earth. When the construction was finished, it had a striking resemblance to a fresh-made grave in a country cemetery. These mounds served a dual purpose. They made a good place to rest the team and provided a drain for leading the water off of the road.

There were two old wagon roads from the section of Elliott county to Olive Hill in Carter county. One of these followed the creek bed up Sinking Creek and crossed into Carter county through Grocery Gap, and proceeded down Thompson Branch to join the Tygart road to Olive Hill. The other route was by the way of Tark Hill up Rolly Hole Creek and out Tick Ridge.

The Limestone route was used in summer; the Tark Hill route in the winter. The Thompson branch of the Limestone route had one thing in its favor—it could not get any worse. It ran over successive layers of flat limestone rocks as it stair-stepped its way up the valley. When you traveled this road at night, you could see the sparks fly from the steel shoes of the horses as they moved over the flinty stones.

Many stories were told about the haunted cliff on the Tark Hill route. According to tradition, a woman had been brutally murdered at the foot of the cliff. At the point where the road began to ascend the cliff, the thick foliage from the overhanging spruce shut out all traces of light from the narrow road. This particular spot was the favorite habitation of the hoot owl. This awesome bird, it seems, was always stationed here to usher in the darkest part of the night with its mournful sounds. According to Thoreau, this bird emits the most depressing and melancholy sound in nature. Any youngster who was brave enough to travel this road at night would sing at the top of his voice to drown out the sound of this doleful creature. One ancient teamster who approached this spot at night as he returned from town would tell you this story:

He said as he approached the overhanging cliff there would always be a woman standing there, dressed in white. She would get up in the wagon and sit silently beside him until he reached the clearing at the top of the cliff. At this point she would disappear in a thick growth of pines.
Another man who traveled by horseback would relate how the woman in white would always be waiting for him at the foot of the hill. This was always late at night. He said the woman would effortlessly mount the horse behind his saddle. She would ride silently up the hill

Martin County Layoff Costs 300 Jobs in Mines

(From The Martin Countian) While Martin countians have been enjoying the "coal boom" that has embraced us for the past few years, the cold, hard realization that all is not well with the economy hit close to home last week when nearly 300 coal miners received their lay-off slips.

Last month, Martin's unemployment rate was the lowest in the state, at 4.5 percent.

But not anymore. Island Creek's mines on Middlefork laid off the most men—295.

Wolf Creek's No. 3 mine laid off 24 men. At Island Creek, where approximately 20 companies mine Island Creek's coal—and Island Creek sells it, the entire second shift was laid off. In all, 259 men got the ax.

The sharp cutback in workers at Island Creek, half of the nearly 600 miners, resulted from the low selling price of coal on today's market, a company spokesman said.

Reportedly, the market price of coal is such that Island Creek simply can't turn a profit on it at today's low prices.

A quote has been set for each of the contract mines at the Island Creek facility. They reportedly have been cut back sharply in the number of tons each company is allowed to mine each day.

For instance, Western Coal, the largest employer at Island Creek, laid off 52 men, and is now only allowed to mine 2100 tons per day. Before last week's lay-off, they had no limit.

Rumors had been flying for several weeks at Island Creek that the personnel cut-back was coming. For most of the winter, the work week there has been less than five days. Recently, it was down to two or three days.

According to a company official, the men will be recalled to work as the selling price of coal and Island Creek's ability to sell it—improves. That will be at least three or four months away, one spokesman said.

However, a note posted on the Island Creek bulletin board says the lay-offs are permanent.

At Wolf Creek Collieries No. 3 mine, 24 men who worked on one section were laid off because, a company official said, the old mine had worked out.

"We've known the mine would be worked out soon for quite sometime," one official said.

The men will be recalled as new openings develop at one of the Wolf Creek mines, a spokesman said.

Wolf Creek Collieries No. 5 mine was recently opened and several of the miners from No. 3 were transferred to the new site. It is located just across the hill from No. 3, it was learned. When in full operation, most, if not all, of the 24 laid off men will be recalled to work there.

Allen Central Hosts District; First Game Scheduled Tonight

Floyd county's five high school basketball teams will be put to the final test this week in the 58th District tournament which gets under way tonight (Wednesday) at the John E. Campbell arena of Allen Central High School.

The 58th district is considered strong within the 15th region with three Floyd teams recording 20 or more wins during the season. Only Martin county's Sheldon Clark High School has matched this record in the region.

Betsy Layne has the season's best record with 23 wins and 7 losses. Following the Bobcats are Wheelwright, 20-5, and McDowell, 20-9. Allen Central and Prestonsburg turned in records of 15-15 and 10-17, respectively.

In tonight's opening contest, the Allen Central Rebels will meet the Prestonsburg Blackcats at 8:30. The two teams have met four times during the regular season with the Rebels winning in each contest.

In Thursday night's game, Wheelwright will face Betsy Layne with the winner of the contest moving into Saturday night's championship game.

Wheelwright Adds Two Wins To Record

The Wheelwright Trojans picked up win number 18 and 19 this week-end, against only 5 defeats.

Last Friday night the Trojans played host to the Virgie Eagles.

Wheelwright won 108-92, but with five minutes to go in the contest, Wheelwright was leading 102-77. At that time Coach Francis took out the starters to let the "super subs" in.

Leading scorer was Marty Gore with 32 points, Jeff Riley 24, Sheldon Berger 15, Gary Anderson 15, Dewey Jamerson 14, Ricky Thornberry 4, and Greg Mathews 2.

The following night the Trojans traveled to Johns Creek to take on the Bearcats, defeating them by a score of 77-62.

Leading scorer for the Trojans was Jeff Riley with 20. Dewey Jamerson had 16, Gary Anderson 14, Sheldon Berger 12, Marty Gore 10, Bobby Isaac 5.

The Trojans close out their regular season's play next Friday night against Millard.

that of the boys, with girls' games beginning each night at 7.

The 15th regional tournament begins here next week at the Prestonsburg High School fieldhouse.

FBI Agents Arrest Johnson Co. Sheriff

Johnson county Sheriff Ray L. Melvin, 52, and former Johnson county Judge pro-tem Robert J. Stafford were arrested last Thursday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Kentucky State Police for alleged violation of the Hobbs Act.

The Hobbs Act prohibits the obstruction or delay of a commodity moving in interstate commerce by "extortion under cover of official right."

State Police Detective B. J. Music said the arrests followed indictments by a federal grand jury last Monday in Lexington.

Stafford and Melvin are alleged to have demanded and received payoffs from individuals engaged in the sale of alcoholic beverages in Johnson county and threatening them with the authority of their office if the payoffs were not made, according to Stanley S. Czarnecki, special agent in charge of the FBI for Kentucky.

Melvin was charged with 11 counts and Stafford with five counts of violation of the Hobbs Act.

Czarnecki said both were arrested at Paintsville transported to the U. S. marshal's office in Lexington, after which they were released on $5,000 surety bond each.

Arraignment is set for March 8 in Lexington.

If convicted, Stafford and Melvin could be sentenced to prison for 20 years each or receive a $10,000 fine or both.

The charges stem from testimony arising out of the bribery and extortion trial of Melvin in the fall of 1975 which resulted in a hung jury.

The maximum interest rate on GI home loans was reduced from 9 to 8.75 per cent effective January 5. VA Administrator Richard L. Roubush made the announcement in Washington. An increased supply of mortgage money was attributed to this first reduction in GI loan interest rates since last March. The peak interest rate was 9.5 per cent in August 1974. There have been 27 changes in the interest rate since the program began in 1944.

Floyd Teams Close Out 1975-76 Season

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

Coach David Turner's McDowell Daredevils won their 20th game last week, defeating Letcher county by a score of 104 to 75.

This will be the final game in the old McDowell gym as the new gym should be completed by the 1976-77 basketball season.

Coach Frankie Francis and the Wheelwright Trojans won their 20th game by winning over Millard at Millard by a score of 77 to 68. Sheldon Berger and Jeff Riley each racked up 21 points each in the season's closing game.

Coach William Newsome and the Betsy Layne Bobcats won over Whitesburg by a score of 67 to 52 and downed Johns Creek by a score of 64 to 57. In the Johns Creek game Bruce Stapleton scored 23 while teammate Rick Roberts hit for 21 points. Betsy Layne's record now stands at 23 and 7.

Coach Howard Wallen's Allen Central Rebels won two games during the week winning over Johns Creek by a score of 85 to 58 and on Saturday night they closed out their regular season with a 87 to 67 win over the Pikeville Panthers. Allen Central evened their win-lost record at 15-15.

Trojanettes Close Season Saturday

The Wheelwright Trojanettes won three of four games played last week to conclude the season with a record of four wins and 14 losses.

In the first game played on their home court, Tuesday, February 23, the Trojanettes won over Dorton, 50-36. Cathy Hall led with 18 points, followed closely by Jo Howard with 17. Kim Hall scored 12 points and Kim Perry, 3. For Dorton, Osborne led with 16, and Mullins was next with 10 points. Tackett made six points and Osborne, four.

On Thursday night, February 25, at Betsy Layne, the Trojanettes had trouble finding their range and lost with 37 to Betsy Layne's 53. The scoring was as follows:

GW Salutes Tallent Family At Last Home Game for Pat

Washington, D. C.—A fabulous era in George Washington University basketball history came to a close Saturday night (Feb. 28) when the last of the Tallents, Pat, played his final home game for the Colonials as GW concluded the 1975-76 regular season against crosstown rival American University. In pregame ceremonies, tokens of appreciation were given to the two individuals who made it all possible, Mr. and Mrs. Jones Tallent, of Langley, Ky.

Beginning with the brother combination of Bob and Mike Tallent in 1968, there has been a steady stream of "Tallent" in the GW lineup over the past seven years. Bob, who now coaches the Colonials, played only one season but set six GW records. Mike led the Southern Conference in scoring during his tenure at GW, and Pat last Thursday night became GW's all-time leading three-year scorer.

As Pat Tallent finishes out his senior year, he is doing it with a flourish. In three wins the week of Feb. 15-21 that ran GW's record to 17-6, he scored 75 points, shot 55 percent from the field, 82 percent from the foul line, had 17 assists and 14 rebounds. One of the leading scorers in the country, he upped his average to 22.5 and has now scored 1,620 career points. The Colonials, with Tallent scoring 28 points, posted a big 89-76 victory Feb. 21 over West Virginia in Morgantown. It was GW's fifth straight win, fifth in a row over West Virginia and ninth victory in the last 11 games. The victory left GW one-half game behind Georgetown (17-5) in the ECAC Southern Division standings with a meeting between the two slated for Wednesday (Feb. 24) at Georgetown. Both teams will make the Southern Division playoffs, March 5-6, in Morgantown with only the seedings still in question. The 17-6 mark is the best GW record at this stage of the season in 20 years.

Coach Tallent was particularly pleased by the play of his guards, brother Pat, and John Holloran against the Mountaineers. "I wouldn't trade them for any guard combination in the country," he said. Holloran hit seven of eight shots from the field, five of six from the line, scored 19 points and had 12 assists.

The Colonials appear to be peaking for the ECAC playoffs. Coach Tallent added, "I think we're just starting to play up to our capabilities."

What To Do in March

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

"O, March that blusters and March that blows,

Beauty you summon from winter snows,

And you are the pathway that leads to the rose."

Named for Mars, the god of war, March is, indeed, a "blustery" month and as the poet Celia Thaxter insinuates, ushers in spring.

In character, March is partly winter and partly spring and more than often displays the traits of both seasons. It is nearly always a month of chilly days and raging winds interspersed with days of warm sunshine and real spring mildness.

Quite without foundation, there are an unusual number of superstitions connected with March, one of which concerns its unsettled weather.

"If March comes in like a lion," as one old saying goes, "it will go out like a lamb."

On the other hand, if the first day of March is warm and animated only by gentle, twig-shaking breezes, the last day is certain to be wild and ferocious like a lion.

Another old superstition holds that the first three days of the month were borrowed from April. For some obscure connected reason, this makes the days unlucky, and at one time—not so long ago either, many back-country farmers wouldn't think of planting a seed or starting any major farm project during these first three days. The "dark nights of March," however, was considered the best time of the year to plant Irish potatoes.

If, around mid-March, the day is sunny, the soil is dry enough, and the gardener is beset with that overpowering, winter-induced urge to get out and plant, UK horticulturists say it will be reasonably safe to plant cabbage, onions, cauliflower, and lettuce.

Other cool season crops such as broccoli, brussels sprouts, kale, radishes, turnips, mustard, and peas can be planted in the last part of the month. March is also high time to sow tomato, pepper, and eggplant seed indoors for home-grown transplants. Sow annual flower seed indoors and have the plants ready to set outside in about 8 weeks.

If you haven't already, purchase the fertilizer and insecticides you will need later in the spring. Prune fruit trees and grape vines but wait until after they have bloomed to prune spring-flowering ornamentals. Seed thin or bare areas on the lawn, and check on and divide canna and dahlia bulbs for planting in May.

March is a good month in which to plant many trees and shrubs, the UK horticulturists add. It is an especially good month in which to transplant dogwood, birch, redbud, magnolia, and tulip trees, while they are still dormant. In removing these trees, it will be well to remember that transplanting is a severe shock to any plant. Unless removed with a great ball of soil, the root systems are stripped of extremely fine root hairs which absorb soil, water and nutrients. Until this network of root hairs is re-established, the plant cannot function normally. This, in part, is why most perennials do not attain full flowering potential until the second year after planting.

Internat'l Womens' Day To Be Observed

An International Womens' Day Celebration will be held Sunday, March 7 at the Martin Elementary School from 1-4 p.m.

The observance will feature exhibits, entertainment and a program which will include speakers from Highlands Regional Medical Center, a representative of the Mountain Workers Unity Organization, a slide show of the current status of women in China, and a presentation of specific needs of women in this area. Small workshop group discussions will follow the presentations and a pot luck supper will conclude the afternoon's activities.

International Womens' Day was first observed on March 8, 1908 as the culmination of a series of womens' rights rallies which protested "sweat shop" working conditions to which woman laborers were being subjected and called attention to such things as womens' rights to vote, and organize into unions.

Child care will be provided and all—single women, entire families, young and old are invited.

MAJOR FIRE REPORTED IN BOONE FOREST

McKEE, Ky.—U. S. Forest Service officials brought under control a "major" forest fire yesterday in the Daniel Boone National Forest in Jackson County.

Forest Service spokesman Joe Nadolski said fire fighters dumped over 3,000 pounds of fire retardant from a DC-6 on a large area of the forest near here. Nadolski said he did not know how large the affected area was.

Nadolski said a small fire was reported yesterday near Cumberland Falls State Park on national forest land.

He said between 70 and 80 forest rangers are on standby in a 1,000-square-mile area in south-central and Eastern Kentucky.

A MESSAGE FROM SHOPPERS CHOICE HOME ECONOMIST
FOOD — AN AMERICAN HERITAGE BY SHARON SHOPPER

Have you heard all you want to hear - and then some - about America's Bicentennial? Let Shoppers Choice bring you one more aspect of America's history - our food heritage. Although very few of us make our own donuts and cookies, there was a time in our culinary heritage when no American kitchen was considered to be well equipped unless it had metal stamps. Emigrants from Europe brought with them rolling pins and boards with surfaces that bore indentations of birds, animals and humans. cookies shaped in this way are called Springerles. Even the word "cookie" is a take-off from the Dutch word "kookje" which means "little cake". Although the British still call these flat cakes biscuits, cookies have definitely developed as an important part of the American oven. (American Food by Evan Jones) For a truly all-American cookie, try the following recipe for Chocolate Chippers.

- Chocolate Chippers
|-----------------------------|--|
| 2/3 cup shortening | 3 cups all-purpose flour |
| 2/3 cup margarine, softened | 1 teaspoon soda |
| 1 cup granulated sugar | 1 teaspoon salt |
| 1 cup brown sugar (packed) | 1 cup chopped nuts |
| 2 eggs | 2-6 oz. pkg. semi-sweet chocolate pieces |
| 2 teaspoons vanilla | Heat oven to 375 degrees. |
- Mix together thoroughly: shortening, margarine, sugars, eggs and vanilla. Stir in remaining ingredients. Drop dough by rounded teaspoonfuls 2 inches apart onto ungreased baking sheet. Bake 8-10 minutes or until light brown. Cool slightly before removing from baking sheet.

Life of Penguin Subject of KET-TV

One of nature's most unique and remarkable creatures, the Adelie Penguin, is the subject of a dramatic documentary, "It's Hard To Be A Penguin," Saturday, March 13, at 1:30 p.m. (ET), 12:30 p.m. (CT), on Kentucky Educational Television (KET).

This special acquisition for FESTIVAL '76, KET's second annual fund-raising drive, traces the penguins' life cycle in the remote and barren arctic wastes.

For four months, R. H. Materna and his crew followed the penguins, often caricatured as jaunty, tuxedo-attired birds, on a 1000-mile journey across Antarctica. Traveling in flocks across the earth's coldest continent, the penguins go from pack ice to the icy wastes where they rejoin their last year's mate and establish nest sites.

Nestbuilding, breeding, egg-laying and hatching, and rearing of the young chicks are documented along with bitter fights over nest sites and mates and the awesome fury of an arctic blizzard.

Black tie and tails may not be all that much fun, especially if you're trying to escape from a leopard seal. It's hard to be a penguin.

DECIDES FOXHUNTING INHUMANE

LONDON—The 150-year-old Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has decided officially that it is inhumane for hounds to pursue a fox over miles of countryside and tear it to bits.

The RSPCA, after resolving an internal dispute on the matter, also announced that it condemns hunting stags, hares or other animals with dog packs and said it is starting an immediate inquiry into all aspects of angling.

Former Governor's Wife Dies in Washington, D.C.

WASHINGTON—Sarah Blue Clements, wife of the former Kentucky governor-senator Earle Clements, died in a convalescent home Feb. 26. She was 81.

A native of Morganfield, Ky., she was graduated from Morganfield High School. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church in Morganfield, where she and her husband were married in January, 1927.

Mrs. Clements declined to be a news-maker, preferring "to be a homemaker." She was, however, constantly with Clements during a political career that included 20 years as a Union county official, a term in the U. S. House of Representatives, four years as governor of Kentucky and six years in the U. S. Senate.

Clements, 78, is now a consultant to the Tobacco Institute, a lobbying association in Washington.

Although Mrs. Clements was ill and unable to join her husband when he was honored in Morganfield in 1973, Clements said "she is always at my side. When I try to use the pronoun 'I' within myself it becomes 'we' to include Sarah . . ."

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS
Attorney General

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky residents often see advertisements concerning buying beef in bulk. When you investigate this method of meat buying, be sure to refer to the following checklist to make the wisest buying decision:

1. Check for the USDA wholesomeness inspection mark, assuring safe, clean meat.
 2. Know the types of meat. "Prime" is the top quality. "Choice" is the next highest grade of meat and is most often found in retail markets. "Good" is the third highest grade of meat, followed by "Standard" and then "Commercial." Names such as "fancy," "Grade A," or "supreme" mean nothing.
 3. Learn about yields, which tell you the amount of usable meat on a carcass. Yield 1 is the highest, yielding about 80 per cent edible meat. The higher the yield number, the higher the percentage of waste. Yield 4 should yield from 66 per cent to 70 per cent edible meat.
 4. Know how much storage space you have available.
 5. Study a meat-cuts chart to learn the various cuts and how they are prepared.
 6. Consider the different kinds of cuts your family prefers, and buy the type of meat that will give you these cuts. For example, a hindquarter of beef will yield more steaks and roasts. The forequarter has more of the less-tender cuts, but also contains the rib roast.
 7. Don't be misled by the hanging weight—that means the untrimmed weight. The actual take-home weight will be less. Find out how much less.
 8. Inquire if the cutting and wrapping cost is included in the price per pound.
 9. Above all, beware of bait and switch tactics. This office has had complaints that such tactics have been used by some Kentucky bulk beef dealers. The bait took the form of an advertisement, offering meat at very low prices. A consumer who responded to the ad was shown fat, wasty, unattractive meat. The salesperson tried to discourage the consumer from buying the advertised meat, and attempted to switch the consumer to much more expensive meat hanging nearby.
- If you suspect a company of bait and switch tactics, write the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, The Capitol, Room 34, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

INDONESIA'S OIL TROUBLES

JAKARTA, Indonesia—Pertamina, Indonesia's state oil company, is virtually bankrupt. Government and private industry officials now believe that only massive infusions of private capital and a complete restructuring of all contracts with foreign oil companies can save it.

Almost every week, auditors examining the tangled records of the Indonesian oil system discover new evidence of management catastrophes that have drained first the company and now the national treasury nearly dry, while at the same time dealing a severe blow to Indonesia's hopes of entering the 20th century under its own steam.

Indonesia's government has entered into a series of negotiations with many of the world's oil giants. The country wants hundreds of millions of dollars more each year in oil revenues and is willing, Indonesia's minister of mines said, "to change the law, if we have to, to get it."

Comedy-Drama To Be Presented on KET

"The Evacuees," a wartime story about two English boys who try to escape from the safety of their foster home and roller skate across England to their parents, is a delightfully funny drama airing Saturday, March 6, on Kentucky Education Television (KET), at 8:30 p.m. (ET), 7:30 p.m. (CT).

During the first days of war in 1939, English children are being evacuated from the heavily bombed industrial cities to the safety of the northern coastal resorts. Danny and Neville Miller, from a happy Jewish family in Manchester, find themselves placed in a tight-lipped, rigid gentile foster home. The boys learn that children speak only when spoken to and are told to be eternally grateful for their "foster parents."

Written by Jack Rosenthal, "The Evacuees" is semi-autobiographical. Filmed on location in Manchester and Blackpool, director Alan Parker staged his own air raid by burning down the shell of an unused factory.

ONE-LITER RETURNABLE BOTTLE

ATLANTA—The Coca-Cola Co. will begin converting to the metric system next month when it introduces a one-liter returnable bottle.

Richard H. Horsey, executive vice president of the Atlanta-based firm, said consumers will get the one-liter bottle, which equals 33.8 ounces, for the price of the present 32-ounce bottle.

Horsey said Coca-Cola USA, the firm's domestic marketing division, will participate with the local Coke bottler in Portland, Ore., in introducing a two-liter bottle later this year.

Environment Educ. Program Offered

Frankfort, Ky.—During high school and college, Terry Wilson found that his job as a summer camp counselor combined an opportunity to enjoy the outdoors and teach younger children about nature. Now, he heads the state Department of Education's effort to teach Kentucky schoolchildren about their environment.

In January, Wilson joined the department's division of program development as an environmental education consultant. In his new job, he is responsible for developing materials and conducting workshops on methods to help instructors teach about the environment.

Wilson began his educational career as a math teacher, but his interest in environmental science led him to Ohio State University for graduate studies in outdoor education.

For the past two years, he has worked in Kentucky with a regional environmental education program, leading workshops for teachers and developing curriculum materials. The program, supported by federal funds and with a grant from the state's Environmental Quality Commission, involved 17 of Kentucky's 180 school districts.

As statewide consultant, Wilson will enlarge the scope of those workshops and will develop new environmental programs for all grade levels. A major project he has begun is organizing a statewide environmental education conference, scheduled for May, 1976, to bring together teachers, school administrators and industry representatives, to discuss teaching children environmental awareness.

Wilson, like the 13 other curriculum consultants in the division of program development, is available without charge to help Kentucky teachers and schools in environmental matters. He can be contacted at 1809 Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

TAKING A BREAK.—Kelly Dingus, of Allen Central High School, takes a rest break during the recent Morehead State University band clinic. He was among 600 high school musicians and 250 band directors attending the three-day event. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Dingus, of Martin.

The Dangerous Weed

"Marijuana is a perverse and dangerous drug," says Francis A. Davis, MD, "and the attempts to portray it as nearly harmless are irresponsible in the extreme. As a practicing physician, I have seen the tragic human wreckage left by heavy marijuana use."

Dr. Davis, publisher of Private Practice, a monthly journal for physicians, and president of the Congress of County Medical Societies, deplored the recent federal government statements about the drug: "We know that marijuana has very serious mental and physical effects on anyone using it regularly."

"Writing in the January issue of Private Practice, Dr. Hardin B. Jones, professor of medical physics and physiology at the University of California at Berkeley, and assistant director of the Donner Laboratory, described these effects for practicing physicians. This top scientist pointed out that, (1) Marijuana's effects are cumulative, since it is stored in fat cells and brain cell membranes; (2) it causes irreversible brain changes; (3) it quickly produces precancerous lesions in the lungs, which usually appear only after thirty years of heavy cigarette smoking; (4) It changes the personality—for the worse, usually causing paranoia; (5) It lowers the male hormone level; (6) It lowers the body's immunological responses; (7) It causes chromosome damage. It is truly called 'the dangerous weed.'"

Prospective Buyer's Visit Kills $20 Million Knott Land Deal

The latest episode in the continuing story of outsiders' claims to Knott county lands was recorded last week when a New Jersey man visited Knott county to view the holdings he would acquire if he and his partner paid $20 million for it.

The visitor, Morris Tucker, president of a Haddonfield, N. J. construction firm, learned that the claims of the would-be seller, Hugh N. Rakes, of Salem, Va., may not be valid and that they are being contested. So the purchase of the 53,680 acres of coal-rich land which Rakes claims under an old land patent did not materialize.

Tucker met with Knott county landowners, early last week, and he was told that many families and some large coal companies hold deeds to the property which Rakes claims.

Last week's installment of the land story was a rehash of the earlier eruption of high feeling when the claim was first made.

At the meeting held in the office of Knott County Clerk Dillis Combs, Tom Sutton, minister and retired merchant and teacher, told Tucker:

"Hugh Rakes, Donna Rakes, Bob Bales, Piedmont Land Sales and all, they don't own anything over here, and they never will."

Bob Bales, a coal and land agent from Glade Springs, Va., attempted in 1974 to strip-mine some of the Knott county land that is in dispute but left when opposition grew and tempers became short. State reclamation officials later announced they would grant no strip mining permits for land claimed under the Rakes deeds.

The land in dispute consists of 119 tracts averaging around 200 acres each. All but 1,000 acres of the land is in Knott county. It is occupied by around 80 families, two schools, several churches and cemeteries, a church camp and small segments of the University of Kentucky's Robinson Forest.

The New Jersey man said he was offered by Rakes and his attorney, William P. Sheffield, not only the Knott county property but also mineral rights to 23,500 acres in Clay, Leslie and Knox counties and mineral rights to 5,400 acres in Clay county which reportedly are owned by the Red Bird Coal Company. One of three Clay county men who have held an option on this latter tract said Rakes bought their option.

Tucker said at Hindman that Rakes and his attorney pressed him for a $2 million down payment on the property during a meeting with them in Lexington before he went to Hindman.

Leaders To Talk Area's Problems

A forum for community leaders in the Big Sandy Area Development District will be held at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, March 24. The Department of Commerce will sponsor the meeting, entitled "Developing Kentucky Communities," from 9:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Primarily, the seminar will provide area leaders with the opportunity to discuss their problems and make their thoughts and wishes known to state agencies that are in a position to provide help.

Larry G. Townsend, commissioner, Department of Commerce, and staff members will report on progress of the Department toward achieving Mr. Townsend's earlier priorities of increased assistance to existing industries, more intensive selling of Kentucky to both national and international firms, and increased exports of Kentucky products. They also will present ideas on how leaders may develop their communities for industrial growth, and will assist in evaluating communities in order to establish both short and long-range goals.

Program To Reduce Pine Beetle Damage

Frankfort, Ky.—State foresters have devised a plan for reducing damage to timber that is being caused by southern pine beetles in several eastern Kentucky counties.

The plan emphasized control on 308,711 acres that include Whitley County and two state forests—Kentucky Ridge and Kentenia, which are located in Harlan and Bell Counties.

According to Harry Nadler, director of the forestry division, those three counties are the hardest hit by the southern pine beetle invasion that began last spring throughout the southern part of the nation. Nadler estimated that 10,800 trees in the control area are infested or dead as a result of the southern pine beetles. The trees represent about 750,000 board feet of timber.

Nadler said the insects have also been detected in 10 other Kentucky counties—McCreary, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Jackson, Laurel, Knox, Floyd, Martin, Johnson and Lawrence.

The primary objective of the control plan is to reduce timber resource losses from the southern pine beetle by using beetle-infested and killed trees for saw-timber and other products.

Following is the general course of action that will be pursued to execute the control plan by removal of infested trees through commercial timber sales and salvage by the division of forestry's mobile sawmill:

1. Division officials will locate spots of timber, which have been killed by the beetles, by periodic aerial surveys.

2. Owners of the affected land will be identified and notified of their problem.

3. Assistance will be provided to owners in determining the need for salvage control, designating trees to be cut and engaging forest product operators to cut infested and dead trees. A 50 to 70 foot buffer strip will be marked adjacent to the most recently infested trees to minimize the occurrence of breakovers.

4. The same procedures for salvage will be used on state forest lands.

5. When it is apparent that small spots of infested trees will not be profitable for an operator to cut and the division's forest insect and disease specialist determines that removal of those infested trees is essential to the success of the control efforts, options for personal use of the infested timber will be presented to the landowner.

Cost-Sharing Programs Told

The Floyd County ASCS Office announces the opening of the 1976 Agricultural Conservation Program. The ACP program is designed to promote soil and water conservation, prevent erosion and improve forest management through cost-sharing with farmers of needed conservation measures.

This year's practices will include establishing permanent vegetative cover; improving permanent vegetative cover; planting trees; improving a stand of forest trees; water impoundment reservoirs; diversion terraces, ditches or dikes; channel clearance and streambank stabilization; permanent wildlife habitat; structures to protect water outlets and channels; sediment and liquid control measures; application of agricultural limestone or an equivalent material; livestock watering facilities; permanent open drainage system; underground drainage system, and interim cover crop.

To be eligible for cost-sharing, an applicant must have filed an application with the county ASCS office before starting any component of his practice.

Participation is open to all farmers, regardless of race, sex, creed, color, or national origin. Anyone interested in any of these practices should contact the county ASCS Office at 886-2802.

CHOOSE A CAR LIKE MOTOR TREND'S EXPERTS. CHOOSE DODGE ASPEN.

Why did Motor Trend magazine choose Dodge Aspen and Plymouth Volare over AMC Pacer, Chevy Chevette, and Cadillac Seville?

"...the bodies were designed with the aid of computers and extensive wind tunnel testing... the feel and response of a small car with the comfort of a much larger vehicle... visibility and ease of entry and exit were the motivations for the interior... taken as a complete package... one of the highest overall rankings we have ever seen, and certainly the highest this year..."

These are some good reasons why Aspen beat the competition. And some good reasons why you should have a good look at the unbelievable Dodge Aspen.

A Different Kind of Shoot-Out

Students watch preparations for rocket launch.

Model rocket members of S.W.A.T. (Science Watchers Acting Together), a club promoting different areas of science at Allen Central High School, had a ModRoc Shoot-Out at Maytown Elementary School, Feb. 25. Members participating were: Launch Control—Aero 1st Class Glen Ison and Aero 1st Class William Petry; Safety Officer—Aero 2nd Class Byron Coburn; Tracking Officers—Aero 2nd Class James Layne and Aero 2nd Class Richard Salisbury; Recovery Officers—Aero 2nd Class Jeff Wicker and Nova Melvin May. S.W.A.T. adviser is Lowell Martin, biology instructor at Allen Central.

A model rocket information program using Estes rockets was presented to approximately 70 students at the Maytown school. Rockets owned by individual members as well as club-owned rockets were on display. The parts of a model rocket were shown, and the function of model rocket engines were discussed. Information on model rocket safety and how to get into model rocketry was given, plus a short history of model rocketry and the aerospace industry.

An Estes Alpha model rocket was then launched from Launch Base Wildcat. Using an altimeter to attain the angle of the rocket (at its highest point in flight) in relation to a tracking group a certain distance away from launch base, the altitude of the Alpha was determined to be approximately 552 feet. The club used data from the tracking group and a bit of trigonometry to calculate this altitude.

An A8-3 solid fuel reaction engine was used for this launch. The rocket was recovered.

She is presently attending Morehead State University where she is majoring in business administration. Mr. Perry is a 1974 graduate of Rowan County High School, Morehead, Kentucky. He is also attending Morehead State University where he is majoring in agriculture.

From the Diary of a Bible

January 15—I've been resting quietly for a week. The first few nights after New Year's Day my owner read me regularly. But now I guess I've been forgotten.

February 2—Clean-up day? I was dusted along with some other things—but was put back on the shelf.

February 24—Owner used me for a short time after dinner. Looked up a few verses. Went to Sunday School.

April 10—I was dusted today and put on the center table in the sitting room. Special company was here, but now I'm back on the shelf again.

May 12—Busy day. My owner had to lead a devotional lesson and had to look up some references. Had quite a time finding me, and then hunted and hunted to find those references.

June 5—I'm here in grandma's lap. She's here on a visit. She let a tear fall on Colossians 2:5-7.

June 6—In grandma's lap again. She has spent most of her time reading I Corinthians 13 and the last four verses of the 15th chapter.

June 7, 8, 9—I've been in grandma's lap each afternoon. It is such a comfort to be appreciated and loved. She reads me part of the time, and then just sits and talks to me.

June 10—Grandma is gone and I'm back in the same old place. She kissed me before she left.

July 4—Had a couple of four-leaf clovers stuck in me today.

August 1—Packed in a suitcase with clothes. Off on a vacation, I guess.

August 7—Still in the suitcase.

August 12—Still in the suitcase although everything else has been in and out many times. Other things first I guess.

August 15—Home again and on the shelf. Quite a journey. Can't see why I went.

September 3—Rather stuffy and hot. Two magazines, a novel, and an old hat are on top of me.

October 18—Used by Mary a few minutes today.

November 10—Was carried to church today and held up to be counted.

December 16—Dusted again. I'm lonesome. Wish grandma would come and visit again.

December 31—Tomorrow I expect to have a knife run into me by each member of the family blindfolded in turn and then a finger placed on a "good-luck" verse (Suppose a finger rests on John 5:39 or Matthew 4:4? Or Hosea 4:6!)

Approve Floyd or Knott Site For Primary Care Center

The Comprehensive Health Planning Council at its February meeting reviewed 70 applications from health services and facilities across the state, and among those approved was a primary care center to be established at either Wayland in this county or Topmost, Knott county.

The application for the two sites—the applicant to decide which will be used—was filed by the East Kentucky Health Services Center. The application covers both construction and operation of a primary care center.

Of the total reviewed, the Council approved 57, approved three with stipulations, disapproved four and deferred five back to the regional health planning councils. One application was withdrawn at the request of the applicant.

The 57 approvals will come before the Certificate of Need and Licensure Board in March for final action.

Other applications from Eastern Kentucky health facilities and services approved were:

Nim Henson Geriatric Center, Jackson, Breathitt county, to convert 22 personal care beds to intermediate care beds. Lee county Personal Care Home, Inc., Beattyville, Lee county, to convert 20 personal care beds to intermediate care beds.

The Laurels, Inc., Harlan, to construct 20 new personal care beds to an existing 30-bed personal care home; Diagnostic and Evaluation Center, Corbin, to establish a Region C inpatient diagnostic and evaluation center for mentally retarded and (or) developmentally disabled children.

Proffitt Family Care Home, London, to establish a three-bed family care home. Oneida Nursing Center, Oneida, Clay county, to establish a primary care center to provide midwifery, pediatrics, general health and emergency services. Golden Years Nursing Home, Monticello, Wayne county, to construct a 50-bed facility with 30 intermediate care beds and 20 personal care beds. Hancock Family Care Home, Monticello, Wayne county, to establish a three-bed family care home. St. Claire Medical Center, Inc., Morehead, Rowan county, to add 56 acute care beds, subject to satisfactory results from a survey. Tri-City Medical Complex, Valley View Hospital, Cumberland, Harlan county, to delicense the 14 acute care beds and to develop the medical center complex, to be done in two phases. Phase one will be the establishment of a primary care center to include emergency care and to develop 27 intermediate care beds. The second phase will be establishing 55 personal care beds at the complex.

Lynch Medical Services, Lynch, Harlan county, to establish a primary care center was disapproved as the council had already approved Tri-City Medical Complex to provide multi-levels of care in the same area.

Terry Family Care Home, London, to establish a two-bed family care home, was disapproved because of failure to meet licensure standards.

And a Little Bit of Ireland Lives On in Eastern Kentucky

"In Down three Saints one grave do fill Brigid, Patrick and Columcille." Patricius Succatus died March 17, A.D. 493, and to choose a final resting place for the crusader of Christian faith in the Emerald Isle, two wild oxen were allowed to pull his bier, stopping where they pleased.

It was in County Down, and the graves of the three Saints today are marked by a single monolith of unhewn granite in the churchyard of Downpatrick Cathedral. Saint Patrick, native of Wales at the time of Roman occupation, was a son of a British church deacon and suffered imprisonment and punishment before he was visited by an angel directing him to freedom.

Saint Patrick was revered through the ages by the Irish. Much later when the New World began to open to immigrants, followers of Patrick showed the same courage in embarking on strange seas and alien paths. Who were some of the Irish who for various reasons took passage (or stowed away) on ships bound for America?

William Orr left County Clare in 1763. His son William was born in 1780 in Northumberland County, Pa. and in 1805 married Elizabeth Turner in Bourbon County, Ky. She was a daughter of William and Martha Ricords Turner who came from England to Maryland, then to Kentucky and were at Bryan's Station during Indian fighting.

Richard Thompson was born in Ireland in 1742 and was in America before the Revolutionary War. He was in Col. Abraham Buford's regiment in North Carolina and Virginia and moved to Lawrence County where he died at age 80 on Blaine Creek. His wife Margaret was an Englishwoman. Among their children was a son Samuel who married Hannah Kirby in Floyd County.

Thomas Rhoden, born 1751 in Ireland, arrived in America in time to serve in the Revolutionary War. He married Susannah Beaty, and they lived 40 years in Fleming County.

Two kinds of chicken from one great chicken place.

One place called Kentucky Fried Chicken. You see, Colonel Sanders knows that different folks have different tastes. Take Original Recipe for instance. Almost everybody loves its secret blend of 11 herbs and spices the Colonel spent a good chunk of his life perfecting.

But some folks like a crunchier crust on their chicken. They're the types who go for Extra Crispy. It's tender and juicy on the inside like Original Recipe, but crispier and crunchier on the outside. Whichever type you are, come on in for some of our "finger lickin' good" chicken. And be sure to bring these coupons with you.

Bill Would Give Prison Inmates Voc Education

Frankfort, Ky.—A bill which allows a prison inmate to participate in a vocational training program during the last 90 days of his confinement is now before the Kentucky General Assembly. The bill, Senate Bill 214, reflects Gov. Julian Carroll's interest in making vocational education available to a larger segment of Kentucky's people. During a recent U. S. House Education subcommittee hearing in Lexington, Gov. Carroll said the bill would provide him the authority to permit an inmate in a penal institution to leave three months early for vocational education training if the prisoner is going to be paroled.

"By the time he (the prisoner) really in effect would be out," said the governor, "We could get him a job. Obviously, one of the major problems we have in this whole area would be releasing somebody for short term employment when they're not really trained for the job."

Gov. Carroll told the subcommittee, chaired by Congressman Carl D. Perkins (D-Ky.), that he thinks the value of vocational education is sometimes overlooked in criminal justice. Money put into a vocational education program for inmates could prevent many young offenders from returning to correctional institutions, said Gov. Carroll, and would prevent them from becoming a burden to society. "If we can put money in the right place, we save dollars rather than cost us dollars," Gov. Carroll stated.

Red Cross chapters are accepting contributions of money, with checks to be marked for Central America Relief Operations. Individual donations of food and clothing are not encouraged, since the shipping costs often offset the value of the contribution. Cash donations permit the purchase of needed items in the country affected, thereby not only helping the earthquake victims but also helping to stimulate the economy.

Only Green That's Fit To Eat

By PHILIP H. LOVE
 (In The Washington Star)

As long-time readers of this column know, I've been dedicated for the last dozen years or so to the proposition that (a) the most delectable and nutritious of all greens is poke and (b) it should be recognized officially as our national weed.

For several years, I had the support of Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., who told me she considered poke "the only green that's fit to eat." Unfortunately, however, Mrs. Griffiths has retired from Congress and other members are too busy bickering with the administration, and among themselves, to give poke the push it deserves.

For the benefit of anyone who came in late, I'd better explain that pokeweed (Phytolacca americana) grows wild in open fields, along fences and roadsides, and wherever the earth has been disturbed. In some areas it is known as the "inkberry bush" because of the purple fruit it bears in early fall.

Its stalks and leaves can be eaten until late summer, but it is at its best in April and May, when its shoots are small and tender. These should be broken off about an inch above the ground (to avoid the roots, which are poisonous) and boiled twice.

Poke can be served the same way as any other green, or it can be added to fritters or omelets. The Chinese call an omelet filled with bean sprouts "egg foo yong." I call one infolding my favorite green "egg foo poke."

No matter how it's served, according to Dr. George B. Green, medical adviser to the Society for the Propagation of Pokeweed (SFTPOP), it's rich in vitamin C and minerals. Even the berries are nutritious when cooked, he says. He once gave me a pokeberry pie, and last year Drew Smith of Harlan, Ky., sent me a jar of poke jelly. Both were delicious.

With food prices reaching for the moon and the unemployment rate mounting, Congress could earn the gratitude of millions by declaring poke the national weed and enacting a program for its propagation. What isn't eaten this summer can be canned or frozen for next winter, when astronomical heating costs may make all but the very rich thankful for free food.

To encourage Congress to act now, Col. L. L. Haseman of Alexandria has come forward with an offer so generous that I'm happy to pass it along.

"By great good fortune," he writes, "I happen to have access to an unlimited supply of this ambrosial weed. In order for it to receive the official recognition it deserves, it seems appropriate to introduce the members of Congress to its delights.

"Therefore I propose to make available to Congress one bushel of fresh, tender poke stalks, young asparagus size. If you can arrange to have it properly prepared and served in the Senate and House dining rooms on a suitable day, with appropriate advance publicity, I feel that you will have taken a giant step forward in your campaign for its recognition. A write-in campaign by the poke lovers of the nation would provide additional emphasis to your efforts."

Eager as I am to acquaint Congress with the deliciousness of poke, I can't make the arrangements Col. Haseman suggests. All I can do is bring his proposal to the attention of Congress and hope that some member or members will recognize its potential.

But I don't want poke to become a partisan issue. I'd like to see the leaders of both parties in both the Senate and the House push through a joint resolution designating a National Poke Week culminating in a National Poke Day. On that day they should have Haseman's poke served in the Senate and House restaurants, and they should invite the President to sample it in both places.

Once he and Congress get a taste of the delightful stuff we should have a national weed in little more time than it takes to say Phytolacca americana.

And think what a fillip that would give to the Bicentennial.

Short Rows

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD

Some fine varieties of garden vegetables do extremely well in certain areas and have been grown for generations from seed saved from year to year by the growers. In special cases and with special seed, this is good practice but generally speaking, it is best that a gardener purchase most of his seed from a reputable seedsman. Many vegetables readily cross with those of their own kind with unsatisfactory results when seed from these crosses are saved and planted the next year.

According to UK Extension vegetable specialist C. R. Roberts, vegetables that are entirely, or readily, cross-pollinated with plants of their own kind include corn, cucumbers, melons, squash, pumpkins, mustard, brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, collards, kale, spinach, onion, radish, beet, and turnip.

Those less readily cross-pollinated are eggplant, tomato, pepper, celery, and carrot. Beans, peas, okra, and lettuce are generally self-pollinated but will occasionally cross with other varieties. As a general thing and with the exception of limas, beans do not cross easily and their seed may be saved. On the other hand, sweet corn will cross with field corn, and it will be wise not to save sweet corn seed if a patch of field corn is growing anywhere in the neighborhood. Hybrid sweet corn should not be saved at all for seed.

The custom of saving seed from a choice watermelon is safe, says Roberts, but only if no citrons or other varieties of watermelons are growing nearby. Likewise, seed from muskmelon is safe, even when grown side by side with cucumbers. Cabbage, kohlrabi, kale, collards, broccoli, and cauliflower all intercross freely, so each must be well isolated from the others if seed is to be saved.

As has been recommended several times before in this column, seed should be ordered well in advance of planting time, but only after the preparation of a garden plan that shows the size of the plantings and the quantity of seed required to fill the space.

In purchasing seed, select only those varieties that are known to be adapted to your own area or locality. If in doubt as to which variety to buy or order, check with your county Extension agent. Each year the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture issues a list of recommended varieties of vegetables adapted to the area. County agents usually have copies of these lists to pass along to interested gardeners.

Then, too, a gardener can never go wrong in planting standard sorts of vegetables of known quality and performance. If, for example, the "Aunt Mary" bunch beans that have been in the family for a hundred years or more and have always been disease free and produced well, then by all means plant these beans instead of some variety never heard of before.

'Killer Bees' Held No Kentucky Threat

Frankfort, Ky.—State Beekeeper William Eaton, of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, has predicted that the deadly South American "killer bees" are not likely to pose any problems for Kentuckians.

According to Eaton, killer bees were created in the early 1960s by crossing local bees in Brazil with imported African honey bees. Biologists were attempting to increase the productivity of the local honey bee, but their experiments produced an aggressive bee, very sensitive to disturbance.

However, Eaton said that it is an exaggerated problem. While they are more aggressive than the domestic honey bee, reports of their murderous tendencies are inaccurate, he said. In fact, said Eaton, South American beekeepers are pleased with the hybrid bees now inhabiting their hives. By culling the worst colonies and replacing them with gentle strains, the keepers are benefiting from the high productivity of the imported bees.

Eaton claimed that the bees are not moving north as fast as was first reported. An original estimate of 200 miles per year was probably due to Brazilian beekeepers moving colonies of bees long distances before they were aware of the problems caused by the bees.

Eaton believes the natural spread is probably more like 50 miles a year.

In any case, Eaton predicted even if the bees get as far as Kentucky, they would not constitute a threat. Since the bees originally came from a tropical country, they lack the domestic bees' inherent capability to cluster in winter to preserve heat and therefore would not last through one winter, he said.

TAX CUTS FOR 1975

QUESTION: I know there is much talk about continuing to lower taxes for 1976 but what exactly are the reductions that might affect my 1975 income tax return?

ANSWER: Under the Tax Reduction Act of 1975, called the largest tax-cut measure in the history of the United States, taxpayers this year benefit handsomely from five significant tax changes: (1) tax credit of $30 for each personal and dependent exemption is granted individual taxpayers, (2) the standard deduction has been raised from 15 to 16% and the low-income allowance boosted in five filing categories, (3) low-income levels at which individuals are required to file tax returns have been raised in seven categories, (4) a refund in the form of a negative tax, called the earned income credit, is in effect for low-income workers who qualify, and (5) the new-home purchase credit may entitle a taxpayer to a direct deduction of a maximum $2,000 against his 1975 income tax if the home-buyer meets various IRS conditions.

Worth Looking Into!

A NEW CONCEPT FROM

Janitrol WattSaver

Until now, it was thought that the answer to high energy costs was a heat pump, because it can operate at two and a half times the efficiency of an electric furnace. But that was before Janitrol Research Engineers came up with the ingenious Wattsaver. It's a totally unique system which is nearly 25% more efficient than a heat pump!

Unlike heat pumps, the Janitrol Wattsaver can, in most cases, be installed without disturbing your present system. Add the Wattsaver to your existing furnace and get increased efficiency and remarkably lower fuel costs. Clearly, the Wattsaver by Janitrol has an edge over heat pumps; so, look into it by calling Brock-McVey for the name of your nearest dealer.

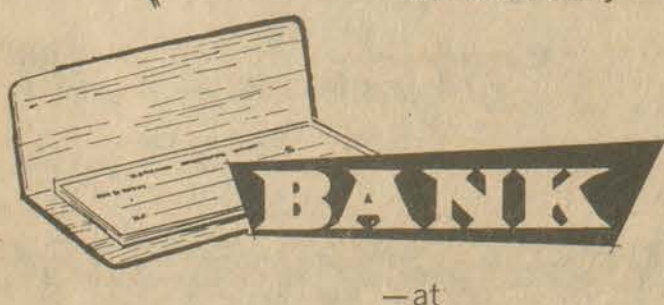

A split system specially designed to reduce the high cost of heating.

Outdoor Recreation in Kentucky

By ARTHUR B. LANDER, JR.

From Derbytime in May to Indian Summer in October, sunshine and mild weather whet the appetite of outdoor enthusiasts in Kentucky.

Day hikers, enjoying spring's first warm days at one of Kentucky's state resort parks in the Cumberland Plateau (Natural Bridge, Cumberland Falls or Pine Mountain State Resort Park), search the woodlands for ferns and early-blooming wildflowers—trailing arbutus, pink lady's slipper or large-flowered trillium, perhaps.

From deep in the rough, a golfer makes a shot he will be proud to tell his buddies back at the clubhouse about, a sizzling five-iron that rolls onto the narrow green, pin-high, 10 feet from the cup. Meanwhile, at the tennis courts, friendly rivals exchange ground strokes from the baseline. (The recent upsurge of tennis popularity has encouraged Kentucky's resort parks to install more and more courts.)

Spring through fall, outdoor recreation in Kentucky means hiking, golf, tennis, sailing, camping and fishing, just for starters. Whether for spirited competition or just relaxation, outdoor enthusiasts find Kentucky has a diverse recreational life-style.

Forested expanses of Daniel Boone National Forest, more than 600,000 acres, provide plenty of room for the adventuresome wilderness pastimes of rock climbing, whitewater canoeing and backpacking. The Red River Gorge, east of Stanton, is perhaps the most popular unit in the forest. The largest concentration of natural rock arches east of the Mississippi River is there, and the 25,600-acre geological area is crisscrossed with 40 miles of hiking trails. Red River, one of six Kentucky "wild rivers," offers excellent fishing for smallmouth bass, muskellunge and panfish.

Canoeing and kayaking, constantly attracting more sportsmen nationwide, have found a home in Kentucky where there is a wide variety of streams suited for paddling, ranging from the flat-water Class I streams, ideal for float fishing or family outings, to the Class IV whitewater rivers for advanced kayakers.

Ten streams in Daniel Boone National Forest are stocked each year with rainbow trout, providing angling opportunities on a hike-in basis for some of the more remote mountain streams. (Further information on trout fishing in Kentucky may be obtained by writing the Kentucky Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky.)

Kentucky's 15 major impoundments are favored for family recreation—water-skiing, fishing, tent camping, houseboating and sailing. Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley, which surround Land Between the Lakes, a 170,000-acre national recreational area in Western Kentucky, and southcentral Kentucky's Lake Cumberland, are the state's largest man-made waters.

Cave Run Lake, near Morehead, and Laurel River Lake, west of Corbin, are producing good fishing, as all new reservoirs do in the first few years after impoundment.

Free publications on many aspects of outdoor recreation in Kentucky can be obtained by writing Travel, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, and asking for "Guide to Canoeing Streams of Kentucky," "Kentucky Golf Courses" or "Kentucky Campgrounds."

Helps Driver Education

Tommy Hall, driver education instructor at Betsy Layne High School, said this week that the B & D Motor Company has for the last four years supplied cars for use in his classes. He expressed his and the school's thanks to Jerry Lafferty, of the motor company. Photo shows the teacher receiving from Mr. Lafferty keys to another car for use by the class.

DRIFT DAY CARE SPONSORS SARAH COVENTRY PARTY

A Sarah Coventry Party, sponsored by the Drift Day Care Center will be held today (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. at Annette's Country Kitchen, across the road from McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital. All proceeds will go to the day care center for roof repairs. The public is invited to attend.

Ash Wednesday Rites To Be Observed Today In Catholic Parish

Ash Wednesday will be observed in the Floyd County Catholic Parish today at 12:30 p.m. at Our Lady of the Way Hospital chapel in Martin and at 6:30 p.m. at Saint Theodore Church in Prestonsburg. Ashes made from burned palm fronds are imposed on the foreheads of believers in the celebration of the Eucharist as a reminder of the mortality of man.

At the Ash Wednesday evening service at Saint Theodore, First Presbyterian Church and Saint James Episcopal Church will participate in the liturgy. Rev. William Thomas will deliver the sermon, marking the start of the 40-day Lenten season preceding the Easter celebration. Rev. Bruce Boss will read the scriptures on the need for mortification and self-imposed penance. Host pastor is Rev. William Poole, who will lead the liturgy. Minister of music is Frank Canero.

On Friday, March 5, an Eucharistic liturgy followed by a meatless pot-luck supper will take place at 6 p.m. at Saint Theodore Church. The public is invited. Guests at the dinner will be the faculty of Our Lady of the Mountains School in Paintsville.

March 9 at 7:30 p.m., the Ladies Society of Saint Theodore Church will meet for their regular monthly meeting. Also, after the 10:30 a.m. Sunday liturgy on March 21, a film produced by a Baptist pastor on the charismatic gift of tongues will be shown. (This film will also be shown at the Presbyterian Church, through which it is made available. Those wishing to screen it in their church may call Steve Hodges, of the Christian Service Ministry in Drift, at 377-6781.)

On Saint Patrick's Day (March 17), a special service honoring the Irish patron will be held at the chapel of Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin.
