

Court Asks Hiway Bids For May 24 Improvement Work On Roads, Streets Seen This Summer

The Floyd fiscal court this week advertised for contractors' bids on approximately $400,000 worth of road, street and bridge construction. Bids will be received at the county courtroom at 1:30 p.m., May 24.

The court also advertised for 50 railroad tank cars and a large quantity of pipe for drainage purposes.

If acceptable bids are received, work could begin this summer on two miles of the Left Fork of Abbott road, .35 mile of the Stamper Branch road, .35 mile of the Shop Fork road at Wayland, .5 mile of the Millard Allen road at Lackey, .7 mile of the Baptist Bottom road at Garrett, 2.13 miles of the Frasure's Creek road at McDowell, a total of .9 mile of the Cedar Hill road, 2 miles of the Little Mud road, streets in Auxier, Emma and Maytown and a bridge across Right Beaver Creek at Eastern.

Class I bituminous surfacing is asked for the roads and streets.

The fiscal court at its meeting Monday authorized County Judge Henry Stumbo to enter into a supplementary agreement with the Department of Highways for the rental of equipment in the amount of $15,000. Only two magistrates, Bill Wells and Dewey Roberts, were present for the meeting.

The court also voted the purchase for $700 each of two dump 1967 model dump trucks from the state, and provided for the part-time employment of six persons with the county road department during the coming summer.

Mrs. Pluma J. Stumbo, wife of County Attorney Harold Stumbo, was appointed to the Floyd County Board of Health to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. Ruth Reynolds, of Allen.

Council Okehs Humane Society Lease of Site

The Prestonsburg City Council last Thursday authorized Mayor William O. Goebel and City Clerk Beverly Hackworth to execute to the Floyd County Humane Society a lease on a two-acre Middle Creek tract as a site for a future animal shelter.

The lease provides the Society a site for the shelter at a cost of $1 a year for 20 years and is renewable for four 20-year periods at the same rental. The site is on the old Middle Creek road and was formerly used as the city garbage dump. Its availability makes possible an early beginning on construction of the shelter, it was said.

Representatives of two firms appeared at the meeting to present lease-purchase plans to enable the city to acquire monitors required by the State Fire Marshal as an alert system for firemen. A lease-purchase plan over a period of five years was submitted, but Council asked more detailed information and figures. The city already has six monitors. It will be permitted to buy two a year until a total of 30 is reached.

This Town...That World

This is news. Eastern Kentucky hasn't had a frost in almost a week.

Before the smoke of press-day had lifted I asked the Paintsville Herald's Bud Perry today if he fared well, or something to that effect, and he countered with, "Compared to what?" And I said, "Waterloo."

SPEAKING OF NAME TROUBLE

I offer The Times' own Jimmy (James E.) Goble as the prime example of one whose name gets bandied about. There were at last count 10 James Gobles hereabouts and at least five James E.'s. You speak of a similarity of names—this is a multiplicity, even a passel. And here's a rundown on what it has brought this James E. Goble:

- Laywayered by State Police.
- Had name published as a drunk driver.
- Been threatened by a finance company.
- Had notice of delinquency from the bank he does business with—and two in the same mail from banks that he doesn't.
- Had a high-priced auto that he doesn't own listed on his tax bill.
- Accosted by the Internal Revenue Department.

And still he contrives to maintain a pretty good reputation. Without asking us to clear his name.

Officers Seize Booze In Raids

Two raids by county officers over the past week netted a sizeable quantity of beer and liquor.

Gary Ross Yates, of West Hamlin, W. Va., formerly of the Mud Creek section, was arrested Saturday near Honaker for selling beer from his automobile. Deputy Sheriffs J. D. and Melvin Martin charged Yates with possession and transporting alcoholic beverages and confiscated 10 cases and 16 cans of beer. Yates paid a fine in Magistrate Dewey Roberts' court.

Arrested Tuesday for the illegal sale of alcoholic beverages from the home of J. W. McIntosh here was Lon Clay "Shank" Gibson. Acting on a search warrant, Deputy Sheriffs Doug Lewis and Linzie Hunt and Prestonsburg Policemen Thornsberry, Potter and Kelly recovered 54 pints of whiskey and vodka, nine fifths of whiskey and 16 cans of beer. Gibson admitted ownership of the intoxicants and was fined $67 in Prestonsburg Police Judge Tom Lafferty's court.

Others booked at the county jail here, charges against each, and arresting officers follow:

- Harlos Hall, drunk driving, by State Trooper Castle; Richard Scarberry, drunk driving, by Wheelwright Police Bates; Lewis E. Hall, reckless driving, by State Trooper Goble; Glen E. Moore, drunk driving, by State Troopers Stephens and Goble; Ivan Darrell Gunnels, drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriff Bradley; Joe Conn, drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriffs J. D. and Melvin Martin; Dennis Salisbury, drunk driving, by State Trooper Shelton; Gary R. Newsome, drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriffs J. D. and Melvin Martin; Walter G. Rose, drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriffs J. D. and Melvin Martin; Doy Isaacs, Jr., drunk driving, by State Trooper Shelton; Martin Thomas Hicks, wanton endangerment in the 2nd degree, by State Trooper Stephens; Harry Johnson, drunk driving, no operator's license and attempt to elude police officers, by State Trooper Castle; James Shepherd, destruction of private property and assault in third degree, by

Jury Here Clears Charles Of Knife-Slaying Charge

A Floyd circuit court jury held last Friday that Johnny Wayne Charles was not guilty of the murder charge lodged against him in the knife-slaying last October of William Adkins.

His is perhaps the only murder trial that will be heard during the current term. The court session will resume next week after a vacation this week while the Kentucky State Bar was in convention. The Commonwealth offered testimony of five persons who said they were eyewitnesses to the slaying in support of its contention that the killing was unprovoked and took place outside, or in the edge of, the yard of the home where Charles was staying at the time. The slaying took place at the Velva Kidd home on Toler Creek.

The defense countered with the testimony of nine who were described as eyewitnesses. They claimed Adkins and his brothers-in-law, Don and Bob McKinney, came to the Kidd place the night of the killing and that Adkins came into the yard after Charles, who cut Adkins in self-defense. It also was testified that Don McKinney was armed with a shotgun.

Arnold Turner, Jr. was defense counsel. Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen was assisted in the prosecution by County Attorney Harold J. Stumbo.

The current criminal court session will be followed by a civil term which will convene June 1. The coming term has 68 cases on its docket and will probably run into July. Jurors drawn for service at the civil term are:

- Joe H. Garrett, Endicott; Georgia Davis, Martin; Harry Burke, Prestonsburg; Frank Childers, Melvin; Vera Ford, Prestonsburg; Berniece Miller, Prestonsburg; Mrs. Ray Howard, Prestonsburg; Harmon Mitchell, East McDowell; Ella Jane Howard, Prestonsburg; Peggy Carter, Prestonsburg; Mrs. Hargis Hall, McDowell; Hazel Goble, Prestonsburg; Willie Bates, Jr., Weeks-

A widely known restaurant chain apparently are ready to establish a good outlet in Prestonsburg.

Louisville-based Burger Queen Enterprises has stated its intention to buy from Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. McCoy the Old Kentucky Restaurant at the corner of North Lake Drive and Friend street.

The restaurant building, which was erected by the McCoys in 1973, has interior seating facilities for 96, with adequate parking.

Supreme Court Affirms Joseph Conviction Here

The Floyd circuit court conviction of Harold Joseph, of Prestonsburg, on a charge of possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale in "dry" territory was upheld last Friday by the state Supreme Court.

Joseph, whose conviction drew a 60-day jail sentence and a fine of $100, contended he should have been granted a mistrial because two prospective jurors made prejudicial remarks. He also claimed he should have been permitted access to an informant in the case who was not named by the Commonwealth as a witness. He claimed, too, that it was never proved during the trial of the case that he owned or had access to the building involved.

The Supreme Court overruled all these arguments, commenting: "This court has long protected the right of a defendant in a criminal trial to a fair trial. That does not mean, however, a perfect trial."

In another Floyd county case the high court reversed the Floyd circuit court, directing Circuit Judge Hollie Conley to affirm the Workman's Compensation board's ruling in support of Eugene Webb's claim for compensation. Judge Conley had overruled the board.

Magoffin Circuit Judge Ben Mann was reversed in one case and upheld in another. Mann in one of the cases had ruled that a deeded 20-foot right-of-way across property owned by Lowell and Joyce Patrick was surplus because a public road wider than that had been established. The Supreme Court ruled that Leonard and Eva Mae Collett are

Heavy Protest Lodged Against Strip-Mine Plan

The date of the hearing on the application of the B. & H. Coal Company for a permit to strip-mine 130 acres of land in the Finance Hollow-Click Branch area, near Martin, has been changed, it was announced Tuesday afternoon.

The hearing had been scheduled for tomorrow afternoon (Thursday), but Herring Officer Virginia Collins was notified that the coal company attorney, Gibson Downing, has a federal court case set on that date and cannot be present.

The date has now been set for June 1 at 10 a.m. Ed VanHook, of the Department of Natural Resources, said the hearing will be held at Martin.

The hearing was originally slated for Frankfort, but many of the 400 persons who had signed a petition protesting the proposed mining operation complained that they would not be able to make the trip to the capital, and so the hearing site was shifted to the Martin school by the Kentucky Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

Petitions drawn by the Rev. Dan Heintzelman and Former State Representative Everett Akers protest the granting of a permit, claiming the petitioners fear damage to their homes which are located at or near the foot of

Cancer Society Quota Is $5,500

The American Cancer Society needs to raise $5,500 in Floyd county this year in order to continue its program of research, education and help, and an intensive canvass of the county has been planned.

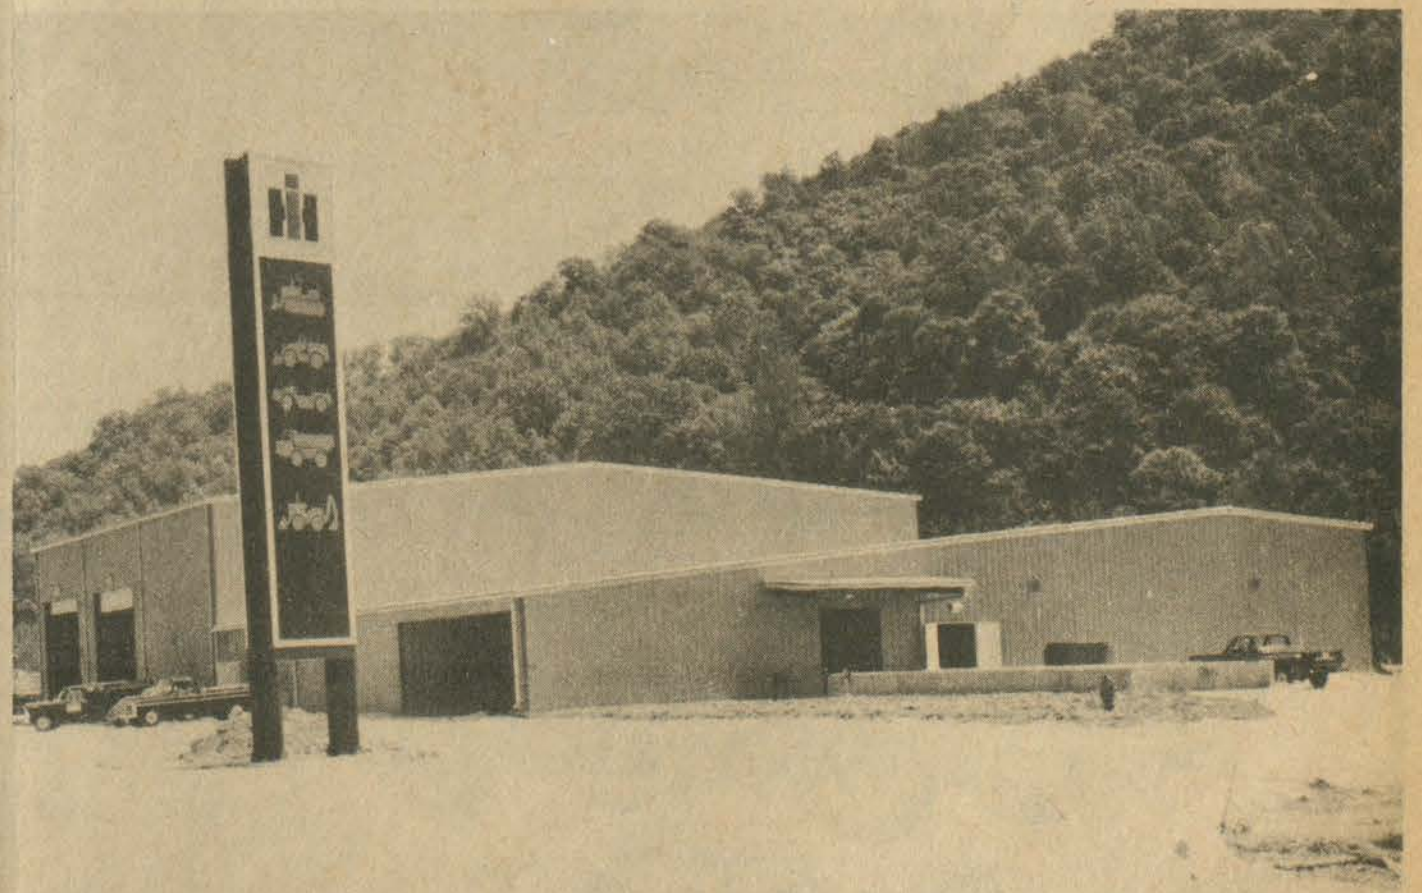

The Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce has as its current project that of helping the Cancer Society by a canvass of the business community for contributions. John Horn is president of the Jaycees, and Tom Rose is chairman of the Jaycees' effort.

Mrs. Doris Prater, of Prestonsburg, is county chairman of the business canvass.

Six women—Lydia Howard, Barbara Keith, Ella Faye Music, Mary Lou Layne, Eva Collins and Patrice Webb—comprise the committee which is soliciting funds here. Melissa Hicks is leading the work elsewhere in the county.

Also planned as a cancer fund drive aid is a Walter Hagen golf tournament, with $100 set as the fee for each entrant and the Cancer Fund to benefit from the proceeds. Both women and men will compete. The male and female winners of the county tournament will go to the district, the winners of which will go to the state meet, and the winners there to go to Disney World.

Brandeis in New Facility

Brandeis' new building at Mare Creek. The city of Allen acted as fiscal agent in its construction.

Brandeis Machinery and Supply Corporation has moved its operation from Pikeville into a new facility on Mare Creek road, off U.S. 23, at Stanville.

Milo D. Bryant, Brandeis executive vice-president and general manager, said the new facility is the largest of its kind in Eastern Kentucky and is equipped to handle undercarriage work, complete engine rebuilding of all International, Cummins, Detroit diesel, and Deutz diesel engines, and general repair work on all sizes of construction and mining equipment.

Brandeis is headquartered in Louisville and is a multi-line distributor of construction, mining, and industrial equipment representing International, Robbins Machinery, Ingersoll-Rand, Barber-Greene, Bucyrus-Erie, Rexnord, Nordberg, Galion, and other lines of equipment.

NO ONE enjoyed Saturday's Music Festival parade more than did these young spectators.

Mt. Laurel Queen Nominee

Miss Susan Elaine Compton, 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Compton, of Martin, has been selected to represent Pikeville College at the 1976 Kentucky Mountain Laurel Festival to be held at Pineville, Ky., May 27-30.

A senior music major at Pikeville, Miss Compton was also named first runnerup in the Miss Pike County Pageant held recently at Pikeville. Sponsored by Ramsey's Greenhouse and the Pikeville College Music Department, she won the pageant talent award for her piano performance of "Toccata" by Khachaturian. Miss Compton was awarded a $150 scholarship in the competition.

The crowning of the 1976 Mountain Laurel Queen will be held May 27 at 2 p.m. at the Laurel Cove Amphitheatre, with Gov. Julian Carroll presiding at the ceremonies.

A Matter of Priority . . .

A Library or Basketball?

The State Board of Education has voted to invite representatives from 21 school districts to its June 16 meeting to discuss improving their accreditation.

Thirty-two schools in 20 districts have a "basic rating, the lowest level of full accreditation. Cordia High School, Knott county, has only an emergency rating and is not fully accredited.

The Rev. Bob Brown, of Lexington, board chairman, pointed out that many schools rated basic in the past are still so, even though the board has requested them to improve.

"Either we must say the standards we have set are right and must be reached or we're just complimenting schools with good ratings," Brown said.

Dr. James Graham, state superintendent of public instruction, said he felt local boards were trying to improve and often had problems that had to be taken into consideration. Some districts want quality education but don't have the money to provide it, he said.

But every one of them has a basketball team, Brown said.

Referring to some school's claims that they don't offer music or art because students aren't interested, Brown said: "Well, they don't want math or English either, but we've assumed for a long time that we know the things that a child should at least have the opportunity to learn."

Graham said he hoped school representatives wouldn't misinterpret the invitation and "feel we don't have good faith in their efforts to improve. I know they're trying to improve and want to do well. All the superintendents and board chairmen are concerned."

When Brown asked if it were right for a school to choose a basketball team rather than a library, Graham replied, "Yes. That's what I'm saying. That's a local matter and their choice. I'm sure they've considered that choice carefully."

The county schools involved are Western High School, Anderson county; Austin Tracy, Hiseville, Park City and Temple Hill junior high schools, Barren county; Henderson Settlement High School, Bell; Elliott County High School; Cuba, Fancy Farm and Farmington high schools, Graves county; Tollesboro High School, Lewis county; and Adairville, Auburn, Chandlers, Lewisburg and Olmstead high schools, Logan county; Salyersville High School, Magoffin county; Pine Knot High School, McCreary county; Metcalfe County High School; Gamaliel High School, Monroe county; Buckhorn High School, Perry county; Dorton High School, Pike county; Burnside, Eubank, Nancy and Shopville high schools, Pulaski county; Deming High School, Robertson county; Taylorsville High School, Spencer county; Uniontown Junior High School, Union county, and two independent schools, Augusta High School, Bracken county, and Barbourville High School, Knox county.

In other action, the board voted 3-2, with one abstention, not to hold a summary hearing on charges brought against Tom O'Hara, chairman of the Boone county board of education.

Two members of the Boone County board, Paul Dickmann and Bernard Hogan, accused O'Hara of misconduct in office, incompetence and neglect of duties. The charges stem from the process of selecting a new school superintendent there.

In recommending against the hearing, Graham said he felt it was a case of the old problem of a school board being split 3-2 and that the problem should be solved locally.

The board also determined that redistricting of schools in Scott county, following a school merger there, was done properly. Saying that displeasure with current districting should be handled at the local level, the board voted not to take any action.

Agency Names Key Personnel

Frankfort, Ky.—State environmental officials have announced four "key" appointments in the division of reclamation, allowing it to carry out better Gov. Carroll's objective of strict enforcement of Kentucky's strip-mining laws.

John Witt, commissioner of the bureau of land resources in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection said: "The reorganization of the division is beginning to take shape and we have come to the point now that we can announce the selections."

Heading division sections are Forrest Roark of Lexington, operations; Clay Snedegar of Frankfort, design; Ira Gray of Stamping Ground, orphan land program; and Edward Spencer of Frankfort, administration.

Roark, a registered professional engineer who has been with the division since 1974, will supervise the department's monitoring of operators' mining and reclamation efforts. The section also issues noncompliance orders, monitors all construction and supervises the area offices.

Before coming to the reclamation division, Roark had worked with the state transportation department for 17 years. He first began with the bureau of highways in 1957 as a design engineer. Soon promoted to chief right of way agent in the Flemingsburg district office, he continued in that position until he transferred as a civil engineer to the division of reclamation in the environmental department in 1974. Roark recently became a chief civil engineer in that division.

Snedegar the new design head, is a registered professional engineer and land surveyor who took early retirement in December, 1971, following 34 years with the state bureau of highways where he was chief design engineer in the Frankfort central office.

The design section he will head is responsible for the review process and approval of all mining permit applications.

In the orphan land section, Gray will oversee the Tennessee Valley Authority program for land reclamation in 12 eastern Kentucky counties that was strip mined prior to enactment of the state's reclamation laws in 1964.

The section will also administer the revolving fund program, which enables the state to purchase mined property, reclaim it, resell the land and return the money to the fund for the continued support of the program. Gray's section also supervises reclamation bond forfeitures; the money is used to finance reclamation.

The division of reclamation's administrative section is responsible for all administrative and fiscal matters. Since 1968, its new head, Spencer, worked in the state Department of Education's division of finance. There he initiated administrative procedures for local school districts in personnel, finance, and accounting.

Teri regional veterans employment representatives were added to the field staff of the U. S. Department of Labor's Veterans Employment Service during the 1975 fiscal year to increase efforts to produce jobs and training opportunities for veterans, according to the Department's annual report.

Mr. Allen holds a B.S. degree from Pikeville College and a M.A. degree from Morehead State University. He has been employed by the Floyd County Board of Education for the past 16 years and is currently a school social worker in the Floyd school system.

The Attempt To Buy Crime Prevention Fails

After spending millions, perhaps billions, on it, the federal government is reported ready to give up on its much-publicized Crime Prevention Program.

It simply fails to prevent, they say. After all the dollars that have gone down the drain on electronic devices, including radio communications which communicated as much to the criminal as to the enforcement officer, our government finds that crime is increasing.

This country needs to ask some questions before wasting its citizens' money on programmed panaceas. For example:

How much is gadgetry worth in such a cause? How much more is the worth of the officer on the beat, unhampered by a multitude of technicalities, and given the support of the law and the courts?

And another question:

What the profit to the country and its peace, if criminals are to be turned loose upon society by juries, judges and parole boards—what profit, even if every criminal is arrested?

All this sympathy with human rights, which, admittedly, include the rights of the criminal, has its place. But such concern should not be permitted to interfere with protection of these to the hurt of all those others who abide by the law and live at peace with their neighbors.

A "hard line" on crime will achieve more than hard cash.

WAS IT THE TIMES?

Saw one of Scott Collins' hounds gnawing to bits a certain newspaper, the other morning. Fellow remarked: "If I was Scott I wouldn't blame the pup for tearing up the newspaper, but if he likes that paper as much as he seems to, and if it's the one I think it is, I'd shoot him."

SUGGESTION

I have never understood why some scuba diver doesn't get down under, some day, and seize onto some fisherman's line and take off, just to hear later a wild-eyed man tell about hooking the biggest fish ever heard of in these parts.

BEFORE THE FOG LIFTS

I still don't like this "fast" time, but it has its points. It gets me up—occasionally—at an hour when the first sleepy bird opens an eye and ventures to sound the first note. The poet refers to it, I believe, as the first matin call. Whatever you call it, it's a delight at an hour when all else is quiet, especially when you know you have long hours ahead that will be filled with screeches and squawks and a cacophony of sound the human ear should not have to put up with.

Don't like that sentence ending with a preposition? Remember Winston Churchill's jibe at pedantry with his clause, "up with which I will not put."

One of the ordinances adopted updated fire zones, increasing the number of commercial districts from two to four. Another completed incorporation of a part of the May Branch section. It was zoned Residential-2.

City Manager Curtis Clark was asked to write the Department of Highways, requesting that one speed limit be fixed for all of US 23 (new and old) that is in the city limits. Varying speeds are required at this time on different parts of the highway here, and officials expressed the feeling that one limit in the 25-35-mile range would be more effective and less confusing to motorists. Excessive speeds have caused several accidents locally in recent months, it was pointed out.

Aaron Sherman was employed as a sanitation department helper, and Wayne Cleatis Jervis, Charles Lee Burchett and Jimmy Walker Endicott were added to the street department.

the mountain where the mining is planned. Between 30 and 40 homes are located in the area, and some residents claim their homes have already been damaged by blasting on the other side of the mountain.

Akers, who owns the Akers TV cable system, has a 580-foot television tower on top of the mountain, and he contends the tower would be moved if the coal company is granted a permit.

Harry Hale Ranier, of Prestonsburg, is the head of B & H Coal Company, as well as Triple Elkhorn Coal Company, and owns the coal rights on the mountainside which is in dispute. Triple Elkhorn, which already is operating on another tract, damaged the Akers residence in Finance Hollow by blasting, the former legislator claims. It was after this alleged damage that Akers blocked a road being used by coal company trucks. He was jailed here for three hours on a charge of terroristic threatening.

His and other claims for damages have not been settled.

$250,000 Work Begun by Firm In Banner Area

The area along new US 23 south of Allen continues to attract distributors of mining machinery, equipment and supplies.

With at least two such firms already in operation, another began construction last week of two structures near Banner to house its operations.

The construction work is being done by Quisenberry Construction Co., Big Stone Gap, Va., for the Central Supply Company of Virginia, which will spend an estimated $250,000 on buildings, equipment and parking area, exclusive of the cost of the 10-acre tract on which the buildings will be located. The site was purchased from Cline Mitchell.

Buildings to be erected are a brick office structure of 3,000 square feet floor space and a prefabricated steel warehouse 7,500 square feet in area. Construction is expected to be completed in time for a September opening.

Central Supply Company of Virginia is headquartered in Andover, Virginia, and has branches at Beckley and Clothier, West Virginia. It supplies roof bolts, conveyor belts, electrical equipment and tools.

The Banner branch will at first employ from 8 to 10 persons. Russell King, now a resident of Beckley, W. Va., will be branch manager.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that almost 22 million youths 16 to 24 years old were in the labor force in October 1975.

Buyer's Clubs Investigated

Frankfort, Ky.—Certain buyer's clubs recently have come under the close scrutiny of the state Department of Banking and Securities, according to the securities director, Jack Bunnell.

Bunnell said his office has received some 20 complaints about the clubs and added that there is "no telling" how many of the organizations are operating in Kentucky.

The securities director said farm families frequently are solicited, with many clubs charging a $289 membership fee. This fee supposedly entitles a member to a substantial discount on an item purchased through the club.

To illustrate the process, Bunnell cited a hypothetical case of a farmer needing a tractor. As a member of the club, the farmer would first obtain a signed statement quoting the tractor's price from the most reasonable dealer in the area.

The club, which may have claimed to have exclusive contracts with manufacturers, would then supposedly find the tractor at a better price and charge the member 20 per cent of the total amount saved. For example, if $1,000 were saved, the farmer would pay the club $200.

However, Bunnell said his office has learned of only one incident in which money was saved through an agriculture buyer's club. A man told him of receiving a $1.50 discount on a spool of barbed wire after paying the $289 membership fee.

A firm operating in southern Kentucky sold memberships for $100, but left the state soon after collecting the fees. Bunnell said the inflationary cost of living has been responsible for a growing interest in buyer's clubs.

Board Accepts $437,489 Bid On Water Work

The low bid of $437,489 submitted by Pearson Bros., Portland, Tenn. contractors, on Phase II of the Brush Creek-David water system extension was accepted last Thursday by commissioners of the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District.

The bid covers laying of water mains, Brush Creek to David, and the setting of 150 or more water meters on the Beaver Creek sections served by the water district.

Contract on a second project connected with the Brush Creek-David extension, the construction of a water storage tank, foundation and valve pit, was awarded to P & P Construction Co., London, Ky., on its low bid of $42,000.

Construction of the storage tank on top of the mountain between Brush Creek and the left fork of Middle Creek will make delivery of water to Middle Creek residents possible by gravity flow, it was explained.

A work order on the water mains and meter setting work is expected to be made within the next two weeks. The contract sets the completion at eight months after issuance of the work order.

The water system extension is expected to add from 125 to 150 customers to the Beaver-Elkhorn system which already is serving more than 900 on Beaver Creek and its two tributaries, Right and Left Beaver Creeks.

Residents of the Brush Creek-David area will be contacted soon for the sign-up of water-use contracts. The tap-on fee for that area will be $75.

J. C. Wells, commission chairman, cited the necessity of acquiring easement rights for the laying of water mains. "I would hope, since this water system will be so beneficial to the area, that acquisition of the necessary easements will be no problem," Mr. Wells said.

Wells was appointed Monday by County Judge Henry Stumbo to a fourth four-year term as a commissioner of the water district. That day marked the beginning of his 13th year on the board. Other commissioners are John Milton Stumbo, of McDowell, and LaFaye Hughes, of Garrett.

Take Off Sunglasses At Sundown, Advised

A safety suggestion to Memorial Day drivers: Take off those sunglasses at sundown. Sunglasses should never be worn when driving at night or at twilight, cautions the Kentucky Society for the Prevention of Blindness. They will reduce the ability to see and may cause a driver to miss road signs or signals that could mean an accident. The same is true for fog and mist, the Society advises. "Sunglasses will not sharpen vision in bad driving weather," Mrs. Zollinger said. "The wise driver will wear sunglasses for the purpose intended—to give eye comfort when the sun is bright."

Record Coal Production Said Possible Again in 1976

If the current high demand for coal is maintained, production will hit record levels for a second consecutive year, according to estimates released by the National Coal Association (NCA). Carl Bagge, president of NCA, says the surge, in demand for coal expected to materialize in the third quarter of 1976 already has happened. Whether it will be sustained depends largely on congressional actions, he says. Soft coal production is expected to rise from 640 million tons last year to 664 million tons in 1976, Bagge said, provided Congress supports the Ford Administration-backed Clean Air Act modifications. Increased production also hinges on congressional action on strip mine legislation and a "viable" coal leasing program, according to the industry chief. NCA predictions may be well-founded in that the House has already killed a measure to restrict strip-mining (March 23) and amended the Clean Air Act to allow some decline in air quality in certain areas. Peter Muchunas, a Federal Energy Administration staff member, said if other amendments were passed to allow the use of high sulfur coal, industries would certainly be attracted to coal as a principle fuel. In addition, a Senate committee is reconsidering a proposal made last year that would require all electric power plants and major industries to burn coal as their principal fuel. The bill, sponsored by Sens. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., and Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., would give plants now burning oil or natural gas several years to convert to coal as part of President Ford's "energy independence" program.

Tree Seedling Sales Near 9 Million

Frankfort, Ky.—The forestry division in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection has sold and shipped approximately nine million tree seedlings since last November, an increase of more than one million over last year. Division director Harry Nadler said the buyers were private landowners, who pay from $15 to $25 per thousand according to the species of the one, and two-year-old seedlings. Nadler termed the program one of the state's most important in forestry—including the reforestation of idle, barren land and the reinforcement of our understocked woodlands. "This is essential if we are to produce the forest products needed for an increasing population. We must be able to produce the wood products that will be required," Nadler said. He noted that after current stocks were shipped the division's three nurseries now are preparing and reseeded/beds for next year's crop. The nurseries are located near Gilbertsville and Dawson Springs in western Kentucky and in Morgan County in eastern Kentucky. This year's shipments included more than two million black locust, nearly 1.5 million loblolly pine, one million short leaf pine, more than 1.5 million white pine, and approximately 200,000 black walnut. In addition, the division sold 1,077 wildlife packets which contained 100 seedlings that were suitable for small wildlife plantings. The packets cost $5.

CARD OF THANKS

We the family of Donald Adams wish to thank our dear friends for their kindness, sympathy and condolence—during the illness and upon the loss of our loved one. To all who assisted in air and auto transportation and to the blood donors, we are most grateful. The flowers, contributions to the Memorial Fund of the American Cancer Society, food, cards, visitation, and all your thoughtfulness were greatly appreciated. We especially desire to thank the Rev. Lee Caudill and Rev. Paul Killom for their words of consolation, the Lancer Chapel Messengers for the lovely music, Hall Brothers Funeral Home for their service, and those who offered or assisted in any way.

Mrs. Hazel Adams and Family

In memory of Minnie Connors who died at Estill, Ky., August, 1968: SHE IS JUST AWAY

Our saddened family has lost its smile and haste Since my mother left us in August of Sixty-Eight.

A voice once joyful speaks no more, She's gone to heaven after doing life's chores,

And to live with Jesus forevermore. A woman, who only yesterday was good and strong, was weary and tired,

And for her family worked long and hard. She loved her family, her friends were great,

But when it came to God's work it took first place.

She visited the sick, the widows, the poor, She was never too proud to knock on their door.

A widow lady once was minus a leg, She took up donations to buy the lady an artificial leg.

She is not dead as some have said, She is in Heaven where the angels tread.

Sadly Missed by Husband, children, Regenia, Laeuna and Ballard Connors, grandchildren, and many friends.

This represents a drop of about 1,200 in the number of people unemployed in the eastern part of the state, Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst for the department, said. Arrowood Announces Retirement Following Sale of Hardware Firm Months after the sale of his hardware business, the Arrowood Hardware Co., William Arrowood last week officially announced his retirement to his farm at Drift and to other interests.

The business, which dates back to its founder, J. M. Morell, and subsequent operation by James Morell, Jr., was sold last September to Robert C. Branham, of Prestonsburg, who was described by Mr. Arrowood as "manager, buyer and main sparkplug" of the firm for more than 30 years. Mr. Arrowood and his wife, Ruth Turner Arrowood, acquired the business May 5, 1946, and developed it into one of the largest of its kind in the area.

Mr. Branham began work with the hardware company when it was the Morell Supply Company and while he was yet in school.

Arrowood attributed the success of his business here to Branham and other "hard-working and loyal employees." He added:

"I still am very much interested in this business and hope my friends and customers will continue to trade there. Without considering financial gains, I can truthfully say, the experience of making new friends and loyal customers is more rewarding than any monetary gain. I wish to thank these friends and customers, because without them I could not have stayed in business and prospered for 30 years."

Four-Year Term Set for Melvin

U. S. District Judge H. David Hermansdorfer passed sentence Monday on Johnson county Sheriff Ray Melvin, who was convicted last week on seven counts of violation of the Hobbs Act by accepting bribes from bootleggers.

On each of four counts he was sentenced to four years in federal prison, the terms to run concurrently, and was fined $7,500 (This means a pen term of four years and total fines of $30,000.)

On each of three other counts Melvin was sentenced to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine, but this sentence was suspended on five-year probation.

Melvin is being held in the Boyd county jail, pending execution of appeal bond set for Monday. He will appeal the conviction to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

In the trial at Catlettsburg three prosecution witnesses testified that they had given Melvin payoff money. Taped recordings of conversations purportedly between the sheriff and one or more admitted bootleggers were admitted as evidence.

Robert Stafford, former Johnson county trial commissioner, was acquitted on all counts of an indictment voted against him for violations similar to those of Melvin.

Support Is Asked For Jenny Wiley Drama Association

The Jenny Wiley Drama Association is opening its final drive for patrons and advertisements for the 1976 summer season.

The Association will offer the following plays during the 1976 summer season: "1776," which will begin June 30 and end July 11; "South Pacific," to begin July 14 and end August 1; "Showboat," to open August 4 and close August 15, and "Grass Harp" will open July 16 and will run every Friday night for the remainder of the season.

All four shows are musicals, and the Association feels that the music this summer will be of the very highest caliber. The selection of these four shows includes something for everybody, and all four have historic significance in terms of great periods of American history.

In the next six weeks teams headed by Mrs. Lon Rogers in Pike county, Mrs. Katherine Frazier in Floyd county, Mrs. Raymond Bradbury in Martin county, Mrs. Tommie Jean Hazelrigg and Miss Pat Preston in Johnson county and Mrs. Warren Clevinger in Lawrence county, will be making personal calls, asking for support for both patron tickets and for advertising for the summer program.

"There is no way that the Drama Association can survive except through support from the entire six-county area," a spokesman said.

Further information concerning patron tickets or advertising may be had by contacting Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., Prestonsburg Community College, 886-3863, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The Strange Story of Stephen Early

By GEORGE L. MOORE

The most prized possession of Jim Clayton was a large, double-frame gold watch. It was unusually large and Jim found it most difficult to force it into the pocket of his bibbed overalls. Jim liked to pull this biscuit-size timepiece from his pocket and show it to anyone who cared to look at it. Jim would say, "This old ticker is the best friend I ever had." Little did he know at that time that the old ticker would later save his life.

Jim's closest friend was Stephen Early. Stephen was a man of mystery. His life had a strange beginning and a strange ending. He never knew who his father and mother were, or whence he came.

Jody Stephen and his wife lived in a large two-story house just beyond Old Olive Hill. They had no children and lived alone in this rambling two story structure. They had always wished for a son or a daughter but this wish never came true. Early one day in April, Mrs. Stephen thought she heard the whimper that came from a newborn infant outside the house. She opened the front door and there on the front steps, wrapped in a soiled towel, was a newborn baby. It was obvious that it had been placed there just a few minutes before. She tenderly took the infant and placed him in the bed. They looked all around but none could help them solve the mystery of the baby's parents.

In casting about for a name for the new found infant, they decided to call it Early. This seemed quite appropriate since it was found so early in the morning. As the child grew up it became known as Stephen Early. Stephen was a nice, quiet boy, and his foster parents were proud of him. By the time he reached the age of 18 he had attained the size of a full-grown man.

One morning he did not come for breakfast. Mrs. Stephen went up to his room to see what was wrong. He had left the only home he had ever known and no trace of him could be found.

The C & O railroad was pushing into the upper reaches of the Big Sandy country. Stephen had been drifting from place to place, doing any kind of work he could find to do. It was in the late teens that he signed on as a laborer on railroad construction. It was 1918 and there was a great demand for coal. They were pushing the railroad into the hill country at a rapid rate. By the time the railway would reach a mining location, the coal company had already constructed a number of houses and the development of the mine was well under way. Many of the railroad workers as well as the miners carried revolvers in shoulder holsters in those days. They said they did this for the reason that so many copperhead snakes infested the area.

Even a preacher—or at least he called himself a preacher—adulterated his religion by carrying a .45 Colt. When joshed about this by the other workers, he would say, "Gentlemen, this old friend increases my chances that I will see the sun rise again in the morning."

Sometimes the rail workers and the miners complimented each other. It was not unusual for them to use a common mess hall. It was at this time that Stephen Early met Jim Clayton and they became very close friends. They were both cooks and they worked together. There was a large, unfinished room at the boarding house that served as a recreation room. After the evening meal, the workers would gather around a long table to enjoy a couple of hours of relaxation.

The recreation consisted mainly of playing poker and drinking straight corn. The poker players would place their guns before them on the table. Stephen Early went to the pump to fetch a pail of drinking water. While he was out, some of the men removed his gun from the table and hid it. When he asked about his gun, they told him he would have to search for it. He was suddenly enraged. He snatched a revolver from the table and began to fire at random. Two men fell dead on the floor. Jim Clayton was outside but as soon as he heard the shooting he rushed into the house. As he came through the door, he was knocked flat on his back by a bullet from Stephen Early's gun. After a few minutes, he rose to sitting position. The double frame gold watch in his bibbed overall pocket was bent double. It had stopped a .45 slug from a revolver and saved his life.

Stephen Early consulted with his closest friends and it was decided that he take refuge in the nearby forest until the sentiment against him subsided. He told them he would leave a notice in the crevice of a rock on a high knob overlooking the valley. The note would tell exactly where to find him. Two young women, disguised as hunters, took to the woods the following day and found his note in the rock. They were instructed to meet with him at a cave about half-way up the mountain. They retraced their steps and delivered a three-day supply of food to him. He hid out in this virgin forest for about a month before he decided to leave Kentucky. He walked 50 miles through the forest and boarded the early morning passenger train from Pikeville to parts unknown, never again to be seen by a Kentuckian known to him. He settled near Toledo, Ohio and secured employment on the railroad under an assumed name. He kept in contact with his wife and children through a third party. They left to join him in a short time. They left at night, leaving all their furniture behind. As his sons grew to manhood, they were informed of what their father had done. They urged him to return to Kentucky and pay his debt to society. He made three attempts to do so. The first time he got as far as Ashland but after wrestling with his conscience all night in a hotel, he returned home. In the other attempts he got as far as Louisa in Lawrence county, but could go no further. He died at the age of 90. Most people said he died of old age; others said he died of a broken heart.

Mrs. Grace Sutherland requested that all retired teachers be represented in the Bicentennial scrapbook by sending in information concerning their experience in professional service in Floyd county.

State Plumbers Unhappy about Changing Code

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky plumbers did not mince words in protesting proposed changes in nine state plumbing regulations at a recent public hearing in Frankfort.

The public hearing was held by the division of plumbing in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

The affected regulations cover definitions; license applications and examinations; installation permits; plumbing fixtures; soil, waste and vent systems; joints and connections; traps and cleanouts; water supply and distribution; and inspections and tests.

The major changes with which the plumbers were concerned were the definitions, the soil, waste and vent systems and the inspections and tests regulations.

The addition of the term "basement" is the main change in the definitions regulation. The proposed revision defines a basement as a dwelling unit's lowest level that is entirely or partially below ground level and does not necessarily have an entrance at that level.

John Mirlisena, legislative chairman of the Kentucky Plumbing, Heating and Cooling Association, said the plumbing contractors feel the definition is not in agreement with the dictionary or with practices that have been allowed in the past.

Other plumbers felt that by using the word "dwelling," the regulation excluded all other buildings.

The soil, waste and vent system regulation controls the materials and design of those systems that will be used in the construction of all types of plumbing systems throughout the state. The proposed section troubling the plumbers requires the vent to be the same size as the drain it serves.

"In the past, we've been able to install plumbing with smaller pipes than the regulation now specifies, so the plumbing contractors of the state don't concur with the Kentucky plumbing code committee on this regulation," Mirlisena said.

Ronald Erpenbeck, a plumber from northern Kentucky, said he has always used four-inch drains under houses for cleaning purposes and for ease in cleaning basement floor drains.

"If the change goes through," said Erpenbeck, "I'll be forced to run a three-inch drain. Then I'll have to be called in for maintenance work. And a hand, any size, can't get into a three-inch drain."

KSP Council Says Charges Irresponsible... Unwarranted

I read with interest the article appearing in your April 21, 1976 issue wherein Magistrate Kenneth Roberts is quoted as accusing Trooper Roger Castle and ABC Agent Ted Salisbury of violating the law by taking an accused before a magistrate in a district other than the one in which an offense was alleged to have occurred.

The article adversely reflects upon the character and integrity of these two specific officers by stating that these officers violated the law by their actions in this case; however, the statement of the existing law attributed to Magistrate Roberts is in error.

Under Section 142 of the Kentucky Constitution, the jurisdiction of a Justice of the Peace is coextensive with the county, and the courts have held that the magisterial district in which a crime is committed is of no jurisdictional consequence so long as the offense occurred in the presiding magistrate's county.

Copies of the Attorney General's opinions written over the years which interpret the law in this matter as stated above have been forwarded for your consideration.

Anything that you can do to alleviate the embarrassment caused these officers by the irresponsible and unwarranted charges made against them would be greatly appreciated.

Seeks Family Information

I am doing research concerning my ancestors who settled in Floyd county, Kentucky during the late 1700's. The two ancestors that I am descended from are Charles Rowe (known as Charley Rowe) who settled at Feds Creek (Sims Creek), which is now a part of Pike county, Kentucky; and George Belcher who was born about 1760 in Amelia county, Virginia, and moved to Floyd county, Kentucky during the late 1700's. I would like to hear from any of the Rowe descendants of Charles or Charley Rowe, or any of the descendants of George Belcher. I would like very much to obtain the name of the parents of these early settlers of that area. Would you please print this letter in your newspaper? Do hope to be hearing from any cousins living in that area, soon.

Agrees that Coal Trucks Create Highway Hazards

I am no one famous, just an average citizen, but I would like to add my comments to the letter of Mr. James Williams, of Williamsburg, Ky., letters to the editor, in your May 5, 1976 paper.

I drive from Auxier through Prestonsburg every morning to my place of employment and back through Prestonsburg, to my home in Auxier every afternoon.

One very foggy morning this spring, I came upon a coal truck, stopped on the highway to make a left-hand turn. There were no signals of any kind on it and the tail lights were so dirty I just saw them in time to pull off onto the shoulder and pass on the right side in order to avoid an accident.

Another afternoon, I was driving behind a coal truck with large lumps of coal piled so high it was falling off with each bump he hit. I saw one large lump fall off and hit the grill of a small sports car meeting this truck. It destroyed the grill of the car. The license plate was so dirty you could not read one number on it.

These trucks piled so high happen often and coal keeps falling off all the way down the highway. Also they will drive so slow that traffic will be lined up for miles behind them. You cannot get close enough to pass them because of coal flying at you and all over the highway. A lump could fall off and hurt someone and destroy your property. Will they pull off and let the traffic pass? No!

Many times I have met these trucks driving across the yellow line and have to pull off on the shoulder to avoid being hit. This happens on curves and also on straight stretches.

I do not mean to infer all drivers are as discourteous as those described above. Many are courteous and cover their coal to avoid it falling off and drive on their side of the road.

I agree with Mr. Williams that we have a double standard of justice in our county and surrounding counties.

Protest Theatre Prices

In the April 28 issue of the Floyd County Times, the Strand Theater ran an advertisement announcing that they will be raising their prices from $2 for adults to $2.50 and from .75 cents for children under twelve to $1. We find this very appalling.

After spending a year at Eastern Kentucky University, we have found that the conditions of the Strand Theater are far below those of the Richmond and Lexington area. Therefore we do not believe that the Strand is justified in raising their prices while the conditions of the theater continue to deteriorate. Even though the Strand's proposed price will be fifty cents cheaper than the finest theaters in Lexington, the environment between the two differ drastically.

Until the management improves the conditions of the theater, there should be no increase in prices. If and when the Strand improves the standard of its service, to where it is comparable to others, then a price increase could be accepted.

Claims Forest Fires Helpful, Not Harmful

During the past Spring cleaning time for farmers I watched the news on television and read several stories in The Times of how forest fires had destroyed thousands of acres of forest. This letter is just to inform you and all the Floyd County Times readers, especially the Forestry and Department of Game Division, that the idea of forest fires destroying the forests simply makes me sick. I don't mean the idea of them being destroyed makes me sick, it's the idea that people are stupid enough to believe that forest fires destroy all that much.

I'm only 41 years old but you can ask any oldtimer how much these fires destroy. I haven't been able to figure out what has been destroyed yet, so perhaps someone with an objection to this letter will be so kind as to explain what has been destroyed other than the things mentioned in this letter.

First of all, let's look at the recent fire on the Bull Creek Mountain. As much fire as was there and all the effort in trying to extinguish this blaze, the only thing I have seen so far that was destroyed was a few little, scrubby pines that would never amount to anything, anyway. While passing through this area one should take notice to both sides of the mountain and compare the difference in the one that was supposedly destroyed and the other side where the fire didn't burn. The big difference is that the one which was supposedly destroyed has a much deeper color of green in the timber area and there is no underbrush or weeds for our much-dreaded copperheads and rattlesnakes to hide in. Another noticeable difference: If one were to take the time and effort to climb both sides of these mountains, I would wager that the burned out side would be much more pleasant to walk through, but from experience if I were to venture on the other side I would take special effort to rid myself of wood ticks, chiggers and, of course, our well known poison ivy.

Our beautiful pine forests which have become a major attraction in this area which the Forestry Division was so careful in planting are to any eye a beauty to behold from a distance. They even make beautiful pictures for post-cards but, of course, the cameraman or the person who reads the cards doesn't have to scratch the poison ivy or strip naked to rid himself of the wood ticks. This doesn't include the danger of a major fire that could destroy homes after years of falling stuff (dead pine needles).

As our forests stand now I would like to know what we're protecting our forests from when we extinguish a blaze that has erupted in one season's falling of leaves. Most of our timber resources that aren't hollowed out from damp rot starting in the center of the trees and caused by a blight and lays its eggs in the leaves are being destroyed by myrtle, black jack, honeysuckle and poison ivy vines. It's almost impossible to find a squirrel now that doesn't have what we call "wolves" in them. These larvae comes from a type of fly which lays its eggs in the leaves we're so anxious not to get destroyed by fire. Our poisonous snake population within the past five years has increased at a tremendous rate equivalent to 100 snakes in the protected areas to almost none in areas that have been burned out. Proof? When Dewey Lake was first brought to the public attention it was an inhabited area where several small areas were farmed and several times fires raged in that area. We still have our forests there but it has been several years since a fire has burned the area out. Last year, in September, from the area of Terry's Boat Dock to the curve across from May Lodge on one trip at 10 at night I counted not less than 19 copperhead snakes and only managed to kill three of them. In another area last year a lady with small children in her car had to stop and take a few steps down a river embankment and was pulled out later with no less than 119 poison snakebites on her, and no less than some 40 copperheads and rattlesnakes, some of them cross-bred, were still hanging to her.

In our hospitals last year several people were treated for tick fever and to my count five dogs died from this disease also. Where do these ticks come from? Where do these snakes live? Why are our forests so grown up they are almost impossible to penetrate? Do forest fires really destroy the forests? These questions can mostly be answered by using a little commonsense. A small, very inexpensive experiment can answer one of these questions, as I have used it myself. If you have trees on your land, clear it off in the spring. After one falling of leaves in the fall, stick several or even one ordinary pencil, or a small stick the size of a pencil in the ground, in the center of the leaf area. Simply burn the one falling of leaves and see for yourselves if the stick or pencil burns in two or is destroyed.

I have no personal gain from this information or in writing this letter, but I wonder what we, the public, are paying for in that we support our Forestry Division. It is my personal opinion that in what is termed as protecting our forests we are threatening our own personal health and safety.

Any different opinion that can be proven beyond that which I have stated would be appreciated. I would like to read it in The Times.

Johnny Appleseed Lives Anew With Springtime Apple Bloom

A Pike county farmer pointed to apple trees in full bloom in his orchard about 15 years ago and remarked that the trees were grown from seeds given to ancestors many years ago by a strange fellow named Chapman.

The strange man was, of course, Johnny Appleseed, familiar in children's textbooks, and whose real name was John Chapman.

A Childhood teacher once commented that "Johnny Appleseed belongs to everyone." And so he does. As settlers from the colonies moved westward to brave Indian country on the west side of the big river and as others stopped in Boyd, Lawrence and particularly Mason county to take up land, many carried with them a small packet of apple seeds for the beginning of fruit trees.

Chapman was a native of Massachusetts, born about 1775, but later moved to Ohio. He was described by various early historians as strange, eccentric, weird and even by one as "a bit teched in the head."

Miss Rosella Price was a friend of Johnny's and felt that his withdrawal from marriage and the usual life of a pioneer was due to disappointment in love. "He was scrupulously honest," recalled Miss Price. "He was never known to hurt any animal or to give any living thing pain—not even a snake."

With such intense feelings about everything, it was natural that the man should go about doing good, scattering his apple seeds and planting his seedlings and hailing every canoe or boat on river and stream to hand out his bounty.

He visited most of the cider mills of Western Pennsylvania to get his seeds. Frequently he pulled his boat to stream banks and put apple seeds in the soil. He was getting a start on early settlers he knew would brave Indian country. When families informed his they were stopping at Limestone, now Maysville, to travel the Buffalo Trace or lesser Indian paths, he asked their preference: "Be ye wanting the trees started or merely the seeds for easier packing?"

He was ready to fulfill every request with apple seeds from his sack or pouch or seedlings he had pulled from his countless small orchards along the way. Instead of a hat for his head, Johnny wore a pot that served as headgear when walking and as a cooking pot when camping. One historian observed him as he broke camp and used the pot to pour water over his campfire. "God forbid that I should build a fire for my comfort that would destroy any of His creatures."

His moral feelings about creatures would not allow him to hunt. He slept in the forests in all weather and seldom wore shoes even in snow. He moved his campfire once because he had built it too close to the den of a bear and her cubs. He was a scholar and carried books inside his shirt.

With all his learning and feelings of compassion for people, animals and plants, he gave away all that he had and roamed the countryside up and down the Ohio River and other streams in the region garbed in tattered clothing. To Johnny Appleseed, a better use could be made of money than buying fancy clothes.

Miss Price remembered that, strange-looking as he was, he was well-versed in grammar and the arts, and endeared himself to children and entire families. This included Indian families who had no sympathy for settlers making inroads on their land.

She and others were inclined to think that wherever an apple tree stood in fields cleared by pioneers, it was a monument to Johnny.

"His deeds live anew," said Rosella Price, "every springtime in the fragrance of apple blossoms he loved so well."

Many Kentucky Bridges Faulty, Study States

Frankfort, Ky.—Nearly one Kentucky bridge in every three is deficient by federal engineering standards, says a study released here.

A total of 3,763 of the state's 1,947 bridges are structurally deficient or obsolete, according to The Road Information Program (TRIP) of Washington, D. C.

The research and information agency's findings are based on projections of data in the National Bridge Inventory conducted by the Federal Highway Administration.

The most serious category of deficiency involves 24 bridges that are too weak structurally to handle the maximum vehicle weights and traffic volume on connecting roads, says TRIP. These are the bridges with major structural deficiency according to federal standards. All need to be replaced.

Another 2,939 bridges have minor structural deficiency. These are adequate to handle all traffic for now, but need substantial repairs to prevent serious deterioration, says the study.

A third category involves 800 obsolete bridges with narrow clearances, poor deck surface or roadway approaches that make passage difficult, the study says. Most of these bridges are more than 40 years old.

TRIP emphasizes that there is little danger of bridges collapsing because spans weakened by age and use are posted for maximum safe loads. A far more prevalent safety hazard exists where narrow clearances, dangerous approaches and badly worn deck surface increase the chance of accidents on bridges, the agency says.

The report points out that the posting of low weight limits on old, weak bridges as a safety precaution often requires farm trucks, school buses and other heavy vehicles to go miles out of the way to use stronger bridges. The result is time and fuel wasted and higher vehicle operating costs, the report adds.

TRIP estimates it would cost $266.2 million to restore the 824 most seriously deficient bridges, on the basis of national average bridge replacement costs.

"We've fallen behind in bridge renewal because of a lack of funds," said TRIP director Buckner Hinkle, who released the report. He is president of Hinkle Contracting Corporation, of Paris, Ky.

Hinkle said the state, counties and cities could not raise the needed bridge renewal funds without borrowing or increasing motor fuel taxes. Instead, he urged that the federal-aid program for helping states upgrade deficient bridges be expanded. The program provides 75 per cent of the cost of bridge repairs, and the states make up the remainder.

The study says the 1976 federal-aid highway bill provides $180 million a year for bridge modernization. This amounts to only 10.6 per cent of the $1.7 billion needed annually to rebuild an estimated 80,000 deficient bridges throughout the nation, the study adds.

The Kentucky Department of Transportation has applied for federal-aid funds to rebuild 354 bridges at an estimated cost of $93 million. But as of March 31, 1976, the Federal Highway Administration had allocated only $8 million for bridge work in Kentucky, says the study.

TRIP reports that a $266.2 million bridge renewal effort would create an estimated 1,160 jobs a year for the next 10 years for construction workers and employees in related industries. The resulting $14.1 million annual payroll would generate $2.7 million a year in taxes and corporate spending would amount to $12.5 million, the study estimates.

Rate Hike Denied
Floyd Gas Company

The Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) has denied a $19,529 rate increase requested by the Mike Little Gas Co., of Melvin.

The commission ruled that the company's present rates produce sufficient revenues to permit it to pay operating expenses, debt cost and to also have a reasonable return on investment.

The PSC order noted that the company had not undertaken adequate protection of its facilities, as required in an April 17, 1974 rate increase.

A hearing was held to discuss the request in the commission's Frankfort office Dec. 10, at which time the consumer protection division of the attorney general's office intervened.

UMWA Strongest Financially in Its History, Patrick Says

The United Mine Workers of America is in the strongest financial position in its history, according to International Secretary-Treasurer Harry Patrick.

Patrick said that as a result of "tremendous increases" in the value of UMWA holdings over the past three years, the UMWA's real assets total over $85 million. The UMW Secretary-Treasurer made the remarks in the latest issue of the UMW Journal.

Patrick cited as one example the increase in value of the UMW-owned National Bank of Washington. He said the UMW was offered $32 million for its interest in the bank in early 1973, but recently was offered $50 million for the same holdings.

"The United Mine Workers of America is one of the richest labor unions in the nation," Patrick said. "If you compare our financial assets per member with most other unions, you'll find that the UMWA is in much stronger financial shape than almost every other union in the country."

Patrick said that the UMWA has over twice the assets per member than the United Auto Workers Union and three times the assets per member of the United Steelworkers Union. Other UMWA holdings which have increased greatly in value, according to Patrick, are the UMWA's ownership in Rocky Mountain Fuel Corp., a company with extensive western coal lands, which were first purchased by John L. Lewis. The land, which is listed on the books as worth $176,282 was valued at above $3 million in the company's last annual report. The UMWA has been offered $1.9 million for its International Headquarters, Patrick said, which is listed on the books as worth about one-fourth that amount.

Patrick explained that his annual financial report to the membership reports the UMWA's assets according to their book value—the value the assets were purchased for rather than their current or market value. Thus, the 1974 financial report lists the National Bank of Washington as worth $31 million although its actual value on the market is at least $50 million. As a result, he said the UMWA's real value today is at least $185 million.

Patrick said also that the UMWA's membership has grown from 200,000 members in 1973 to 255,000 today and that another 15,000 members will be added to the rolls in 1976 as a result of increased organizing and expanded coal development.

"That added membership means two things," Patrick said, "increased dues income for the union and more members needing vital services."

"It's important to manage our assets well because it's the membership's treasury," Patrick said, "but it's just as important to make sure that the treasury is used for the membership's benefit. Money sitting in a bank getting dusty over the years isn't going to make the mines safer or provide contract education or win a black lung bill."

Four Appointed To Nominating Commission

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Julian Carroll last Wednesday appointed four members to the new Judicial Nominating Commission for the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals, thus filling out the membership of that commission.

The Kentucky Constitution provides that the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Kentucky be the chairman of the seven-member commission, that members of the Bar elect two members and that the Governor appoint the four remaining members, none of whom are to be members of the Bar.

Named to terms that expire on January 1, 1978 are Bruce Ferguson, of Union, and John E. White, of Manchester. Appointed by Gov. Carroll to terms that expire on January 1, 1980, are Frank Paxton, of Paducah, and L. D. Gorman, of Hazard.

Kentucky law provides that the terms will hereafter be for four years, that they will be staggered, and that the major political parties share in the staggered terms.

Ferguson and Paxton are Democrats and White and Gorman are Republicans.

The task of the Judicial Nominating Commission is to nominate individuals from whom the Governor will select persons to fill vacancies on the bench.

The Commission's first task will be to prepare for Governor Carroll's consideration a list of nominees for the filling of 14 vacancies on Kentucky's new Court of Appeals. The Commission must forward three nominations for each vacancy to be filled.

VETERANS' COUNSELOR HERE EVERY FRIDAY

Bill Queen, veterans' counselor for the Kentucky Center for Veterans Affairs, will be present every Friday at the Economic Security office here to assist veterans and their dependents with claims for benefits due them as a result of their military service. Office hours are 9 a.m. till 3 p.m.

Ed Asner, known to millions of TV viewers for his role on the "Mary Tyler Moore" Show, says, "The American Cancer Society wants to wipe out cancer in your lifetime. That's more than a slogan...it's a commitment we must all make. More money helps continue vital research projects, and educational programs for the public, as well as services to cancer patients and their families. So do your share. The fight against cancer is everybody's business."

Hatfields and McCoy's Mark Official Close of their Famed Feud

Hardy, Ky.—Descendants of the feuding Hatfields and McCoy's—including two who were alive at the time of the battles—gathered May 2 at a tangled, vine-covered cemetery beside Blackberry Creek. About 300 persons stood in a steady downpour as a granite monument was dedicated at the McCoy family cemetery. Two ministers, one a Hatfield and the other a McCoy, called for "peace in the valley" as the two famous families formally buried the hatchet. An inscription on the monument read: "Six of the 16 children of Randolph and Sarah McCoy lie buried here, having suffered untimely death. Three died bound to paw paw trees at the mouth of Blackberry Creek in August 1882." The three, Tolbert, Pharmer and Randolph Jr., were killed by William Anderson (Devil Anse) Hatfield and several of his relatives in retaliation for the earlier murder of a Hatfield.

Before the feud was finished, more than 100 men, women and children had been killed or wounded, and the states of West Virginia and Kentucky were on the verge of open warfare. The cause of the feud between the two clans was never clear. Some said it was over the theft of a McCoy hog by the Hatfields.

Others said it stemmed from a grudge left by an incident during the Civil War, when the Hatfields fought for the South and the McCoy's for the North. A buffet luncheon followed the dedication. Two men who remember the feud cut the cake. Willis Hatfield, 88, of nearby

Logan, W. Va., said he had long since given up any ill feelings. "Some of those McCoy's are pretty good fellows," said the last living son of Devil Anse. Hatfield, who was only a youngster during most of the fighting, was standing beside "Grandpaw" Jim McCoy, 92, of Hardy. McCoy still lives near the old homeplace and says he well remembers the night in 1888 that the Hatfields burned down his family's log cabin and killed two of his cousins. "My daddy pulled me out of the cabin," he said. "All we were able to save were our nightclothes."

Like Hatfield, McCoy said he also bore no grudge. He said he soon forgave the Hatfields and even drank moonshine with Devil Anse a few years after the cabin burning. "The Hatfields are my good friends," he added. "Just the other day a Hatfield boy brought me over three squirrels he had killed. Imagine that—a Hatfield doing that for a McCoy."

The monument which was dedicated was donated by Leonard and Joseph McCoy, coal operators from Phelps, Ky. The massive block of granite was carved and delivered by the Hatfield Monument Co. of Sarah Ann, W. Va.

The McCoy cemetery is just across a narrow valley from the old McCoy homeplace and is some 10 miles south of the Tug River, which divides the two states. Back in the 1880s, the McCoy's were the most powerful clan on the Kentucky side of the river, and the Hatfields called the tune on the northern bank in West Virginia.

The shooting stopped before the advent of the 20th century. Pike County, Kentucky, school Supt. James Dotson, a relative of both families, presided over the dedication and referred to those bloody days in his speech. But he also pointed out that the two families have lived together peacefully for many, many years.

"Perhaps too much of the memory remains," Dotson said, "because like many other things, the Hatfield-McCoy feud has become a product of commercialization."

(Mrs. Sadie Hatfield Click, wife of Melvin Click, of Emma, said her son of her first marriage to the late Tennes Hatfield, Henry Drury Hatfield, erected the granite marker which stands in the McCoy cemetery. Tennes Hatfield was a son of William Anderson (Devil Anse) Hatfield, and was sheriff of Logan county, W. Va. at one time. Mr. and Mrs. Click attended the dedication ceremony at Hardy.)

Mountain Laurel Festival Scheduled

Kentucky's 40th annual Mountain Laurel Festival, to be held the week-end of May 27-30, will be highlighted by the crowning of the Festival Queen in Laurel Cove Amphitheater at Pine Mountain State Resort Park, Pineville.

The festival celebrates the beauty of the Cumberland foothills which, in the spring, bloom with white and rose-colored mountain laurel.

Four busy days of events include an opening program on Thursday, May 27, featuring a musical program by the Harlan Musettes, introduction of the college co-eds who will vie for the title of Mountain Laurel Festival Queen, and a fireworks display. Activities also feature the 11th annual Mountain Laurel Gold Classic, played on the nine-hole Pine Mountain golf course in the park. An art exhibit on the Bell county courthouse lawn, a parade through downtown Pineville and the Governor's luncheon, at 12 noon Saturday, are also parts of the festival program. Coronation of the Mountain Laurel Festival Queen will be Saturday at 2 p.m. in the park's amphitheater where the outdoor drama "The Book of Job" plays each summer.

Meeting in Support of KET Draws Large Group to Lodge

A large group of area citizens and several local officials gathered Friday evening at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, in a show of support for Kentucky Educational Television (KET).

The Floyd County KET Mini-board, a group of county citizens who work toward increasing public awareness in the area concerning KET, hosted the dinner meeting, at which Leonard Press, state director of KET, and Virginia Fox, associate director, addressed the gathering briefly on the history of KET, its present status and future prospects.

Miss Fox spoke specifically on the requirement of the FCC that educational television stations do more evaluation studies to determine audience receptiveness to programming. A questionnaire was distributed at the dinner to each person present as part of a KET evaluation study.

Several representatives of area schools attended the dinner including Floyd County Schools Superintendent Charles Clark, Assistant Superintendent Pete Grigsby, Jr., Eugene Frazier, Paintsville Independent Schools, and Dr. Henry A. Campbell, director of Prestonsburg Community College. State Representatives James "Jitter" Allen, and Dr. William Blair, of Johnson county, also were present.

Buddy Ratcliff and daughter, Angela, of Martin, and Alicia Crisp, music teacher at Allen Central High School, entertained the group with violin, flute and piano numbers.

Several KET mini-boards have been organized in different sections of the state with the Floyd county board counted among the most active. Floyd's board was organized in large part by Mrs. James D. Adams, of Prestonsburg, who is a member of the state board of Friends of KET. Chairman of the Floyd county board is Denzil Halbert and vice-chairman is Thomas Hereford, III.

Reading Workshops Held at 3 Schools

The final school-based Right to Read workshops were held on May 3, 4 and 5 at McDowell Elementary in this county, Sycamore Elementary, Pike county, and Grassy Elementary, Martin county.

The workshops, conducted by KEDR XI and funded through a Right to Read Program grant to KEDR XI, were held in one school in each of the seven KEDR XI school districts. Each district's participating school was chosen by the school superintendent. Larry Jervis, KEDR XI curriculum consultant, has coordinated all Right to Read Program activities. Reo Johns, executive director, KEDR XI, stresses that all Right to Read activities focus on the correction of student reading problems before they become so severe as to cause the student difficulty in his other subjects.

Audrey Pratt, KEDR XI special education consultant, assisted Mr. Jervis in conducting the workshops. Anna Sue Stumbo, Floyd county schools supervisor, and Phillip Chaffins, McDowell Elementary principal, assisted with the McDowell workshop.

Right to Read Program activities in Region XI began with the appointment by the seven school superintendents of a regional planning team to assess reading program strengths and weaknesses and to recommend teacher activities to alleviate the identified weaknesses. Team members and KEDR XI staff members planned a nine-day workshop, which was held at Clark Elementary School in the summer of 1975. The workshop, which involved teachers and principals from seven Region XI schools, featured nationally known reading consultants—among them Don Drouble, principal of Lincoln Model Non-Graded School, Staples, Minn., and members of the Jenny Wiley Council of the IRA. From the regional workshop came the individual school workshops just completed.

A regional followup for participating schools will be held later this month. Participants will be notified of the date and location of the meeting.

Cleda Wells Attends Knoxville Conference On Mountain Children

Cleda Wells, teacher-director of the Floyd County Developmental Child Care Center, Prestonsburg, attended the State of the Child in Appalachia Conference held in Knoxville, Tenn., April 27-30.

This conference, the first comprehensive meeting of its kind, reported on what is happening to children in Appalachia today in all areas of their lives. An unexpected response swelled the anticipated 250 participants to over 400. All 13 Appalachian states were represented.

The Appalachian Regional Commission and Save the Children Federation of Atlanta, Ga., in conjunction with the Kentucky Youth Research Center, Southern Regional Education Board, West Virginia Wesleyan College, and Appalachian State Child Development Contracts planned the four-day meeting.

"We were delighted, and a little overwhelmed, by the interest the conference created," said Mrs. Barbara Clay, one of the planners. "However, this is the first time people from both private and public sectors who are concerned with the planning and delivery of services to Appalachian children have been together."

The conference was developed on the assumption that the experts on the state of the child in Appalachia are those who work directly with the Region's children. As a result, nearly every participant could contribute from personal experience to many of the 25 workshops.

Dr. Cratis Williams, special assistant to the chancellor, Appalachian State University, Boone, N. C., was keynote speaker for the conference. He also appeared on the program of the opening session which was a mountain supper. Dr. Williams, who is widely known for his interest in Appalachian folklore, numbers among his many honors the 1975 Brown-Hudson Award of the North Carolina Folklore Society which recognized him as Master Folklorist of Appalachia.

During the conference, every aspect of the Appalachian child's life—mental, physical, emotional health, education, and social service needs—was examined. Family and outside influences, both private and public, that touch the child were carefully explored.

"I think this was one of the most informative conferences I have ever attended," said Cleda Wells. "The in-depth workshops enabled me to get an overall view of what is happening to children in Appalachia. Because the people who are actually doing the work were the speakers, we were made aware of both the successes and problems with programs now under way for children. If we implement some of the programs we heard about at this conference, we will be able to learn from the experiences of others. Another important accomplishment of the conference was to show us how we can work together in order to have more political influence in improving conditions for our children in Appalachia."

Kentucky Leads in Funds Use

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky currently leads the nation in its use of federal aid highway funds.

According to state Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts, "We are spending federal highway money as fast as we can get it."

"In fact, our planning and coordination programs—which must precede the actual start of highway and bridge construction—have gone so smoothly we are already using federal aid money allocated to us for fiscal year 1977," he said.

In some instances, the secretary added, Kentucky has committed state money to cover project costs without waiting for the federal money to become available. When this situation arises, the federal Highway Administration will reimburse the state for the federal share of the costs as soon as the funds do become available.

Roberts' remarks followed a recent report by the U. S. Department of Transportation which shows Kentucky as the only state using fiscal year 1977 interstate funds. As of last March, Kentucky already had used 26 per cent of that money.

Those statistics also show that the Commonwealth has over $53 million obligated for federal aid highway projects for the 1976 fiscal year.

Roberts explained, "Washington has designated allotments for each state's transportation program based on a multifaceted formula including miles of roads, population and physical area. When the money becomes available, the states must have projects developed sufficiently to qualify for the financial assistance."

"We are using up our allotments as fast as they become available to us," he continued.

Roberts said the state DOT spent $437 million during fiscal 1975. Of that, he said approximately 28 per cent ($124 million) was federal money.

Even though Kentucky had $24 million left in federal interstate funds as of March, Roberts said "in terms of building a modern interstate highway, $24 million is not very much money."

Roberts cited the example of a contract to build only the superstructure of a bridge on I-275 spanning the Ohio River in the Covington area. The contract was recently let by the state DOT for approximately $22 million.

Other interstate programs still under construction in the state include I-24 in western Kentucky, I-64 through Louisville and I-471 which is also in northern Kentucky.

Roberts said other categories that are also sunning low in federal funds include: the urban systems which have only $9 million left; rural road system with $1.8 million remaining; and bridge replacement with $3.5 million remaining.

Frog Season Will Start At Midnight, May 15

Frankfort, Ky., May 7—Anyone for froglegs? If so, it won't be long now till the giggers and other bullfrog "hunters" may take to the ponds and streams in quest of these amphibians which are considered gourmet fare by so many Kentuckians.

The season for taking frogs will open one minute after midnight May 15, Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Arnold Mitchell said, and will continue until midnight October 31. The daily creel limit is 15 (a "frogging" day begins at 12 o'clock noon and ends at 12 noon the following day) and the possession limit, after two or more days of frogging, is 30.

Gigging is apparently the most popular method for taking frogs, Mitchell said, but, according to fish and wildlife regulations, the bullfrogs may also be taken by hand, bow and arrow, firearm or hook and line.

As for license requirements, if the frogger chooses to use a firearm or bow and arrow, a hunting license is required; if taken by pole and line, a fishing license is needed, and if by the use of a gig or by hand, then either a fishing or hunting license is sufficient.

Fish and Wildlife Set Phone Survey

Frankfort, Ky., May 4—The telephone will ring at least once in 3,000 Kentucky households sometime between May 10 and 20.

If yours is one of those 3,000 phones, don't hang up when the caller, a woman, asks: "Is there a hunter in your household?"

The call will simply be a part of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' annual telephone survey, one phase of an effort to determine how much game was harvested by Kentucky hunters during last year's hunting season.

If there isn't a hunter in your household, the caller will thank you and hang up. Should you answer, "yes," however, she'll ask you to cooperate with the Department by filling out a brief questionnaire about the number of hunting trips, kinds and numbers of game killed. The questionnaires will be mailed from the Game Management Division and, the information gleaned from them will help biologists in recommending lengths of future seasons and bag and possession limits.

All calls will be made between 5 and 9 p.m.

National Honor Society Induction Held

The National Honor Society held its annual candle induction ceremony, April 8, at the Prestonsburg High School fieldhouse, with the program theme depicting men from the years 1776 to 1976, who showed qualities of character, scholarship, leadership, and service, the symbols of the National Honor Society. All new members inducted into the National Honor Society must have a B-plus scholastic average, and are judged on character, leadership, and service to the school and community by the Prestonsburg high faculty.

Health Notes

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH

The Floyd County Health Department reminds all women that a pap smear is not just a once-in-a-lifetime event. Since the body changes continuously, the possibility of cervical cancer continues throughout life. Having a pap test regularly, once a year, is the best protection.

The health department is conducting a pap smear clinic Thursday, May 13, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. This clinic is a free service and all women are welcome to attend.

A public health nurse will hold an outpost clinic Monday, May 17, at Ethel Osborne's store at Bypro. Clinic hours will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Free medical services to be offered include immunizations, diabetes screening and blood pressures.

Air, Rail, Water Transport To Share Funds with Roads

Frankfort, Ky.—"Our responsibilities run far beyond roads and, in years ahead, the time and money devoted to air, rail and waterways will receive a greater share of the state budget," said Calvin G. Grayson, state planning engineer for the Kentucky Department of Transportation (KYDOT).

Addressing over 100 persons attending the 1976 Kentucky Airports Conference recently held at Rough River State Resort Park, Grayson emphasized: "The department has a commitment to a total transportation program, even though about 90 per cent of our personnel and funds are devoted to the highway system."

"But," Grayson said quoting a study entitled Kentucky's Future Transportation Needs, "the annual aircraft operation at all Kentucky airports was estimated at 1.6 million in 1975."

"This is expected to reach 3.7 million by 1990. The number of aircraft based in the state in 1980 is forecasted to be 1,800 and by 1990 there will be over 2,800."

"These simple figures show how much we expect aviation to grow in the next two decades," Grayson said.

"Grayson attended the conference representing state Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts.

In highlighting KYDOT's efforts to provide an efficient state aviation program, Grayson mentioned:

—Since the Airport Development Loan

Fund's initiation in 1962, 31 loans involving $850,000 have been made and Gov. Julian Carroll's 1976-78 budget includes an additional $200,000 for the fund.

—With 50-50 support from local governments, KYDOT expects to build 40 heliports as close as possible to emergency hospital entrances during the next two years. The heliports are expected to cost about $10,000 each.

—The Department of Transportation has entered into a contract with the Cincinnati consulting firm of Landrum and Brown to update Kentucky's 20-year airport plan, developed in 1970. The revised aviation systems plan will consider financing, passenger, commuter and freight air service, and air space as well as airport development.

—KYDOT's budget includes a two-year subsidy for the Air Kentucky commuter air service.

Henry Pflanz, staff assistant on the U. S. House of Representatives aviation subcommittee, reported to the conference on the progress of Congress in passing the Airport Development Aid Program (ADAP) legislation.

According to Pflanz, the bill now under consideration would allow a few states to participate in a demonstration program to determine the state's abilities to effectively manage the general aviation portion of ADAP.

Grayson said Kentucky was interested in becoming a demonstration state and, if chosen, "it would mean we (KYDOT) would be responsible for allocating about a half-million dollars of federal funds."

Pflanz said he hoped President Ford would sign the ADAP bill by May 15. Other officials attending the Airports Conference were Deputy Secretary of Transportation Steve Reeder; Director of KYDOT's Division of Aeronautics and Airport Zoning Ed LaFontaine; William McGill, chief of the Airports Branch of the Federal Aviation Administration's (FAA) southern region; John Dempsey of the FAA's district office in Memphis.

The statewide conference, the first since the late 1960's provided a forum for aviation and airport interests to discuss the problems encountered in the construction, operation and management of airports.

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS
(Attorney General)

Starting in July you will be seeing new signs about generic drugs in Kentucky pharmacies. These signs are a result of legislation enacted by the 1976 Kentucky General Assembly which can help a greatly reduce the cost of your prescription drugs.

It is important for you to know what is meant by the term "generic" drug. The generic name is the universal or scientific name of a drug. One generic drug may have several different brand names, and brand name drugs often cost many times more than their generic counterparts.

Often, the consumer pays for the advertised brand name, when the medication could be bought more cheaply under its generic name. When the brand name is bought, it usually costs more because much of what is paid goes for the advertising that makes a brand name well-known among doctors.

The Kentucky General Assembly has addressed this problem with a new generic drug law which will go into effect in mid-June. Thereafter, notices must be posted in drugstores stating:

"This pharmacy is required to dispense the lowest priced generic drug which is therapeutically equivalent to the one prescribed for you by your doctor unless you or your doctor do not approve. The Commonwealth's Kentucky Drug Formulary Council has approved these therapeutically equivalent drug products. Ask your pharmacist."

When your pharmacist receives a prescription for a brand name drug for which he has one or more acceptable equivalent drugs in stock, he must select the lowest-priced therapeutic equivalent drug unless he is otherwise instructed by you or your physician.

These equivalents given by the pharmacist must be approved by the Kentucky Drug Formulary Council. The label on your prescription will indicate if a substitution has been made, as well as the prescribed brand name.

When you need prescription drugs, be sure that you are getting the lowest-priced quality generic drug possible.

If you have a consumer complaint, write to the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, Room 34, The Capitol, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the consumer hotline. The number is 1-800-372-2960.

Lexington Firm Buys In Perry-Breathitt

Mid-Continent Energy Corp., a Lexington-based coal and publishing company, has purchased the assets of North American Mining Co., Inc., located in Perry and Breathitt counties, for an undisclosed sum.

Announcement of the acquisition was made by Daniel H. Slone, Mid-Continent chairman. Previous owners of North American include Jim Joyce, of Joyce Western Corp. and the Alaskan Pipeline Co., and Jerry Coons, its former president.

In addition to the machinery and equipment included in the sale of North American's assets, the acquisition includes an operating deep mine, extensive land holdings and millions of tons of in-place coal reserves.

Sturgill and Griffin Reappointed to UK Board of Trustees

Gov. Julian Carroll has reappointed to four-year terms expiring on May 1, 1980 two members of the board of trustees of the University of Kentucky.

The reappointed members are George W. Griffin, of London, Ky., and William B. Sturgill, of Hazard and Lexington.

Gov. Carroll appointed L. D. Gorman, of Hazard, as a new member of the board, replacing Stanley W. Bulew, of Owensboro, whose term has expired. Gorman's term also runs until May 1, 1980.

Barbers To Renew Licenses by June 30

Gene Record, recently appointed administrator of the Kentucky Board of Barbering, has cautioned active and inactive barbers to renew their licenses before the June 30 deadline.

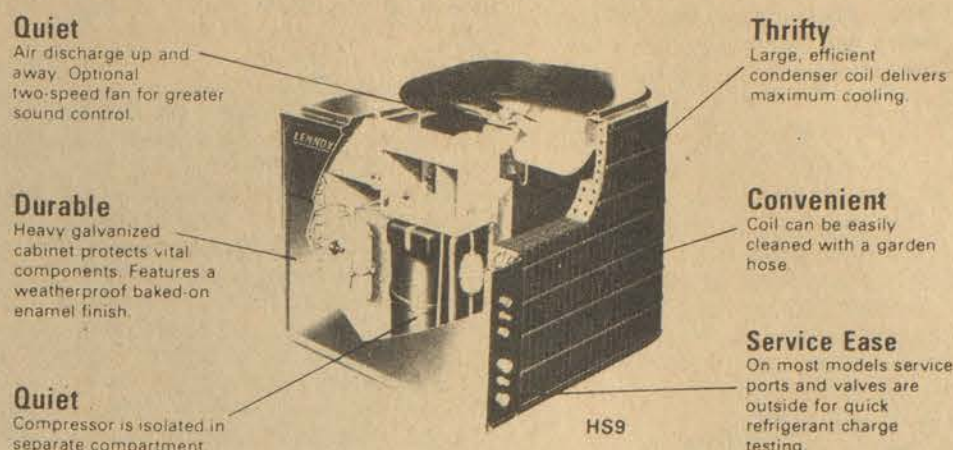

The necessity to renew promptly stems from the Kentucky legislature's passage into law of Senate Bill 151. The new law raises regular and apprentice license fees from $12 to $20 per year, shop license fees from $10 to $20 per year and stipulates a $15 penalty restoration fee for barbers who let their license lapse.

A Thought to Remember

By LARRY BURKE

Here's an interesting thought which we might do well to ponder. When an engineer plans a building he does not provide merely for normal stresses. He multiplies his estimates of probable strain by three, six or even twenty, to make the structure safe no matter what happens.

The reserves are important! Our reserves as humans are always amazing. Whether it is spiritual, or physical strength, we were all made to meet and master strains. We are designed to face life, and any situation life creates, undismayed.

When we see sorrow or some other great crisis facing us—it is well for us to remember that God designed us, and He will never put more on us than we can bear.

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: Reserves of strength, physical and spiritual, lie hidden within us.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

We're right in the middle of what is usually the best fishing time of the year in Kentucky—particularly for many anglers' favorite pan fish, the crappie. And as a pan fish, the crappie is hard to beat fresh from the frying pan and served with hush puppies and cole slaw.

But if that fresh fish dinner doesn't live up to your expectations, don't be too quick to blame the cook. Chances are you (or whoever caught the fish) are responsible for "strong" tasting or watery fish. Probably more fish are spoiled by improper handling between the time they're pulled from the water to the time they're brought to the kitchen than are ruined by improper cooking. To assure a tasty fish dinner, the fisherman should handle his catch with its ultimate destination—the frying pan—in mind.

First, the fish should be kept alive until they are ready to be cleaned. On boats equipped with live wells, this is usually no problem, but make sure that the well will return water when the boat is running at speed. If the well is above the water surface while the boat is planing, it will drain and leave the fish inside high and dry. If you use a stringer, string the fish through both lips rather than through the gills, and don't drag them through the water while motoring from place to place. Wrapping the fish in a damp cloth will allow them to survive fairly short periods out of water, but if a long ride is necessary, it's best to put the fish in an ice chest or to "field dress" them by removing the intestines and gills and wrapping them in damp cloths. Any fish that die before the trip is over should be treated the same way.

Never keep dead fish, cleaned or uncleaned, in water. This makes the fish flabby and watery. If you transport your fish in an ice chest, protect them from the melted ice by placing them in some kind of a container or in a sealed plastic bag.

Back at the dock, the fish must, of course, be cleaned and the method used can sometimes have an influence on how the fish taste. Most of the strong flavor or "fishy" taste is concentrated in the skin, bones, or kidney. Filleting removes all three sources of strong flavor and is thus advisable for those who don't like their fish strong or bony.

Fish are at their best if cooked as soon as possible, but if properly frozen, they can be kept for several months with very little loss in flavor. A handy way to freeze fish is to immerse them in a container of water (leave at least a half-inch space to allow for expansion) and freeze. Most ice-cube tray compartments of refrigerators are unsuitable for long-term storage of fish, since they do not maintain the near-zero temperatures required to completely prevent changes in flavor or texture.

Water District Kicks off Drive At Friday Meet

The kick-off meeting for the sign-up campaign for the Water Gap-Bull Creek Water District was held at Trimble Chapel at Water Gap last Friday evening. Approximately 100 residents of the area attended the meeting to hear the water commissioners and consulting engineers explain the project.

Approximately 20 percent of the needed signers were obtained at the meeting.

During the meeting, Joe Sisler, engineer with Kenco Associates, Inc., Ashland, Ky., explained that the Farmers Home Administration is considering making a grant and loan in order to construct a water distribution system for the area. Sisler said that the sign-up campaign will run until May 30. The tap fee between now and May 30 will be $100. After that date, anyone wishing to sign up for water service must pay $150.

Sisler also explained that, once the tap fees are collected, Kenco Associates, Inc. will make a feasibility study which will determine exactly those houses that are feasible to serve with the water system. Those people who have signed up and cannot be served will be refunded their tap fee at that time.

Dave Osborne, another Kenco Engineer, explained that the Farmers Home Administration requires the people to sign up and pay the tap fee in order to show good faith and interest in the project. Osborne said, "There have been water districts where everybody indicated they wanted the water, and then when the system was built, only half of them actually took the water. This doubled the water rates for those people that then had to pay back the money borrowed from the Farmers Home Administration."

Basically, the water district will serve the area on Route 3 between the Big Sandy River at Lancer and U.S. 23 at Water Gap and will also serve U.S. 23 approximately two miles on each side of its intersection with Route 3. In addition, water lines are planned to run up the branches and hollows off Bull Creek.

The representative from Kenco Inc. predicted that, if everything went right, construction of the system could begin early next year. In that event, completion of the project would most likely be next summer.

Education Stresses Told by Brackett At Club Meeting

"American education is under stress from the Right and from the Left and from the Middle," Ray Brackett, assistant superintendent of Floyd schools, said speaking recently at a meeting of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Women's Club.

Mr. Brackett pointed out that education must answer the questions, "What should be the role of the schools in a democratic society? Should they reflect the social order or direct the social order?"

The Pledge to the Flag was led by Mrs. S. M. Martin at the beginning of the program, followed by the Club Collect by Mrs. Otto Martin.

It was reported that Jennifer Mullins, daughter of Mrs. Marie Mullins, of Garrett, won second place in the recent 7th district sewing contest at Prestonsburg.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Stanley Bamer, Mrs. Hansel Bradley, Mrs. Felix Coburn, Mrs. E. E. DeCoursey, Mrs. James A. Duff, Mrs. Dorothy H. Conley, Mrs. Don Hughes, Mrs. Charles F. Hughes, Mrs. S. M. Martin, Mrs. Ronnie Patton, Mrs. John Reed, Mrs. J. T. Spillman, Mrs. Otto Martin, and one guest, Mrs. Bill Wamburton.

The next meeting will be May 21 at the Masonic Lodge recreation hall, Wayland, when the club will celebrate its golden anniversary.
