City Promises All Employees $50 Pay Raise

Return of Prestonsburg policemen and firemen to duty after a shortlived walkout was followed last Thursday morning by a special meeting of the City Council at which salary differences were at least temporarily resolved.

In effect, the Council agreed to raise salaries of all city employees $50 a month, effective Jan. 1, next, and if possible to make the raise by November 1. Council also agreed to pay premiums for employees' health coverage, beginning Nov. 1.

Harold Cooley remains as police "commissioner" and Edgille "Shag" Branham in the same capacity with the fire department until January 1. They had at last Monday's special meeting been reinstated after the Council had at the regular meeting four days earlier accepted the demand of the police and fire departments that they be replaced.

Demand for non-interference with police were complied with at the meeting held Oct. 7, and the so-called "moral issues" first raised by police were not at stake at the later meetings, officials said.

The proposed pay increases and assumption by the city of the full cost of health insurance premiums will mean an added outlay of $40,000 or more a year in city funds, it is estimated.

Flu Vaccination To Begin Today

Two teams of nurses and technicians from county and state health departments will begin this afternoon (Wednesday) the inoculation at four clinics of Floyd county residents against the danger of a swine flu epidemic.

Tomorrow (Thursday) the same effort will be made at four other clinics.

The immunization effort against both swine and the Victoria type influenza is continuing across the county after the fear of effects of the serum has to great degree dissipated.

Both state and federal health officials claim that deaths of some elderly persons after receiving flu immunization were not caused by the vaccine, and most of the states which temporarily suspended the immunization program have resumed the vaccinations.

Head of Local Sees No Early End of Dispute

Approximately 300 employees of Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, represented by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, Prestonsburg Local 3-510, went on strike at 12:01 a.m. Sunday when the existing labor agreement expired and the parties were unable to agree to new contract terms through negotiations.

Negotiations for a new contract began August 23, in Paintsville, and ended on October 13, when the company submitted an offer of settlement to the union committee for presentation to the membership. The offer was rejected by the membership, three days later.

Included in the company's offer for a two-year contract was a two-phase wage offer which provided for an increase of 50c per hour, effective immediately, and an additional 44c per hour, effective October 16, 1977. Improvements in fringe benefits such as hospitalization insurance and pension benefits were also contained in the offer. The offer of settlement also included revisions in work rules which would help the company to improve the productivity of its employees and increase the efficiency of its operations. The first year cost of the package offer is equivalent to 58c per hour, or 10 per cent, the company estimated.

Hubert Halbert, of Langley, president of the striking local, said the company and its employees are far apart on several proposals and that it may be a long strike.

Halbert added that "money is not the big issue." He said there are six or seven issues on which the parties are widely separated—among these, the 60-day strike notice, contract work and operation of wells.

There have been three strikes of Kentucky West Virginia workers since 1973. "We feel we might have been wrong some of those times but not all the time."

Stumbo Elected ADD Board Head

Directors Agree On Housing Plan At Monday Meet

The Big Sandy Area Development District's board of directors Monday evening elected a new chairman and found amity on the regional housing problem which had left the board divided at its September session.

County Judge Henry Stumbo was named board chairman to succeed Dr. W. C. Hambley, of Pikeville, who was serving his third term.

The matter of succession was raised at the September meeting when it was decided to ask the Attorney General for an opinion. Assistant Attorney General Walter C. Herdman wrote, in response to a letter from Joseph L. McCauley, executive director of Big Sandy ADD, that no member of an area development board may serve more than two terms consecutively. Mr. McCauley had asked if Dr. Hambley, who was in his third term as chairman, was affected by a Department for Finance and Administration regulation which limited board members to two consecutive terms. Herdman said Hambley is "automatically disqualified" from serving the third term.

Announcing that he was not resigning, Dr. Hambley said the assistant attorney general's opinion was "just another lawyer's opinion" and was without legal effect. Mayor William O. Goebel nominated Judge Stumbo, however, and his election finally was by acclamation.

Judge Stumbo has by virtue of his office been a member of the ADD board since its organization, and was vice-chairman at the time of the meeting.

When Hambley announced his intention not to resign, O. T. Dorton, Paintsville, suggested that it might not be judicious to defy the state, since much funding comes from that source. Hambley replied:

"I believe the board elected me because they wanted me as chairman, and I'm not going to resign. I'd like to see what kind of spiteful thing they (the state administration) could do to us."

At the September meeting a move to defeat creation of a regional non-profit housing corporation was led by Judge Rutherford of Pike county and Judge Witten of Johnson county. Their motion lost, however, on a split vote. At Monday's meeting, however, Judge Witten approved the regional concept, and later the board approved the "packaging" of

Wrecks at Allen and Auxier Claim 2 Lives as 5 Injured

Two persons were killed on Floyd county highways on consecutive days last week and five others were injured in the same mishaps.

The head-on collision of a jeep with a school bus Wednesday morning on U. S. 23 near the Jenny Wiley Motel claimed the life of 23-year-old James A. Stapleton, of Tutor Key.

Dulcie Caudill, 50, of Jeremiah, Letcher county, was almost instantly killed the following day at about 1 p.m. when the car in which she was a passenger collided with a loaded fuel tanker truck at the intersection of U. S. 23 and KY 20 at Allen.

Kentucky State Police Trooper Tommy Shelton said Stapleton, driver of the jeep, was northbound, apparently attempted to pass another vehicle, striking the Our Lady of the Mountains school bus in the southbound lane. The bus overturned in the collision and its driver, Betty B. Ward, 34, of Sitka, suffered a broken arm and lacerations. Mrs. Ward's four-year-old daughter, the only other occupant of the bus, escaped injury.

According to State Police Trooper Roger Castle, the Letcher county car, driven by Maxine Whitaker, 22, of Jeremiah, was northbound on U. S. 23 when it attempted to turn left onto KY 80 into "Old" Allen and was struck on the right front side by the southbound tanker. The Coleman Oil Company truck from Pikeville jackknifed and overturned, spilling its 9,000 gallons of diesel fuel. Its driver, Frederick Rife, 24, of Shelbiana, was thrown from the cab. He sustained multiple cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Whitaker was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center and later to St. Mary's hospital, Huntington, W. Va., where she is reported recovering from a fractured shoulder and head injuries, and two other passengers in the car, Dana Sexton, 14, and her mother, Mrs. Goldie Sexton, 54, also of Jeremiah, were admitted to Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin, the girl suffering a broken arm and other injuries, and her mother sustaining a fractured shoulder and cuts.

Units from the Prestonsburg Fire Department were called to the scene to take preventive measures against the

This Town...That World

At the risk of repeating myself for the hundredth time, I launch into this weekly space-killer with the unqualified statement that these hills in their autumn dress are a veritable wonderland.

Last week, in an unguarded moment, I hauled off and declared without equivocation that I would put this hillside across the river from here against anything and everything this side of Vermont for fall beauty. On reflection I must admit that I might have been a bit over-enthusiastic. There are possibly a hundred rivals, and since inditing those lines I've probably seen half that many myself.

AND NO CARRYING INSIDE

My neighbor, George Brown, sends along this note:

"You hinted for something for your column some time ago. But, actually, I have been too busy carrying in flowers from front porch, back porch, side porch, carport and yard to reply. Come to think of it, my favorite flower is the stickweed. Set it out once in a lifetime, costs nothing, hoe none, water none, and it yields beautiful, yellow blossoms every fall."

Father and Son Trial Continued

The trial jointly of Eddie Jones and his father, Agnel Jones, in connection with the Floyd slayings of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley and James Clayton Conley was continued in the Pike circuit court last week till the December court term of Circuit Judge Venters.

The continuance was granted on motion of the defense which cited the need for time in which to prepare for the defense of the elder Jones who had only recently been indicted.

The trial of Eddie Jones was docketed for trial at Pikeville last week on a change of venue granted here by Special Judge Caswell P. Lane. Agnel Jones later was indicted by the Pike grand jury on a charge of conspiring, aiding and abetting in the slayings, and the cases were consolidated.

Certain other pre-trial motions are expected to be heard, and among these is one attacking the validity of the indictment against the elder Jones on the grounds that the indictment was made in Pike circuit court which does not have jurisdiction since the slayings involved took place in Floyd county.

Saturday Celebration Is Viewed Area's Top Bicentennial Event

To the color of the surrounding hills will be added Saturday the varied hues of Floyd county's annual Red, White and Blue Day with its thousands of spectators and its pageantry.

This year's event is regarded as "extra special," because it is the county's climactic effort in celebration of the nation's Bicentennial.

"This promises to be the greatest Bicentennial event held in Eastern Kentucky," Mrs. Marcella Bailey, Langley housewife who originated the annual celebration and continues as its leader, said this week.

The tone of the celebration will be set with the opening of the day's program at 9 a.m. with a gospel sing and will be continued with the emphasis of God, Home and Country in addresses, floats and other displays. Military units, school, church, civic and service organizations, Boy and Girl Scouts—some from outside Floyd county—will participate.

Following the gospel sing, the Pledge of Allegiance will be led by three children, and National Guardsmen will raise the colors. The invocation will be given by Superintendent of Schools E. P. Grigsby, Jr., and the welcome will be spoken by Mayor William O. Goebel, Jr., of Prestonsburg. The principal speaker for the morning program is yet to be announced. The release of thousands of red, white and blue balloons by Prestonsburg Kiwanians and gospel and country music will follow the lowering of the flag at 11 a.m.

The parade of many floats—each depicting a historical event or a phase of life in the region—will be at 2 p.m., with a mounted figure depicting George Washington leading the long march.

City and county officials are expected to be joined in the parade by Governor Carroll, Lieut. Gov. Thelma Stovall, Appellate Clerk Martha Layne Collins, State Auditor George Atkins, State Treasurer Frances Jones Mills, Attorney General Robert Stephens, Lois Mateus, executive director of the Kentucky Bicentennial Commission, Public Relations Director Crit Blackburn and Col. Alafair, of the Kentucky National Guard. Oleika and El Hasa Shriners will again take part in the parade.

Immediately after the parade, the Red, White and Blue beauty pageant will be staged at the Prestonsburg High School fieldhouse under auspices of the Allen Woman's Club.

After the parade what is heralded as "America's biggest birthday party" will be held at the municipal parking lot, across Third street from the courthouse. There "George Washington," will cut the fabled cherry tree and, with the help of Governor Carroll and Mrs. Bailey, will slice a huge birthday cake—cherry, naturally—baked and given for the celebration by Mary Zemo, of Prestonsburg.

Then, from 7 p.m. till midnight will be held the square dance which each year closes the day. Taking part in the dancing will be the dance group from Natural Bridge State Park's Hoedown Island and the Hillbilly Hoedowners, Irvine, Ky. group which has for two consecutive years won the Middle Elementary Division at the Festival of World Champion Square Dances.

EASTERN KENTUCKY HILLS aren't the Scottish Highlands, but both have their thistles.

Order Restrains Floyd Company

Frankfort, Ky.—Powder Mountain Coal Co., of Wayland, recently was issued a restraining order by Franklin Circuit Court Judge Squire N. Williams following action by the state environmental protection department.

The Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection had charged the coal company with strip mining without first obtaining a permit from the state division of reclamation. Powder Mountain Coal's alleged illegal mining activity disturbed a three-acre site located on the Cox Branch of Williams Creek, about one mile from Highway 172 and approximately three miles west of Flat Gap in Johnson county.

The environmental department is asking that a bond of $21,000 be posted as the cost of performing reclamation of the affected area. The department also is seeking a penalty of $1,000 for the initial violation and $1,000 a day for each day that a company continues to violate state standards. Also sought by the department is submission of a reclamation plan to the division of reclamation for approval to insure adequate reclamation of the affected area and fulfillment of the reclamation plan according to departmental standards.

EGYPT-LIBYA DISPUTE APPEARS TO BE GROWING
WASHINGTON—Egypt's prolonged feud with Libya appeared to be sharpening Friday, with a report from U. S. sources of an Egyptian troop buildup along its border with Libya.

There was no confirmation of a published report that the buildup involves the transfer of 30,000 troops to the border area, but American officials said a movement of Egyptian troops and equipment to that zone has been under way for some time.

An Expression of the Spirit

The observance of Red, White and Blue Day and its unusual attraction for so many is proof that there is—in Floyd county, at least—a yearning for a return to basic principles. This is no show of super-patriots. It is simply an expression of the spirit of a people who, for all the changes and scurryings of modern-day life, have never strayed far from the old, the solid, ways and ideals. We congratulate all who are having an active part in this event. We invite all others to join us in proudly viewing here Saturday the results of their work.

Who Speaks for This Road?

Because somebody, some years ago, looked on the recently completed US 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville and enthusiastically declared it, "adequate," that part of the highway has been relegated by the Appalachian Regional Commission to remain a twisting, cliff-shadowed, two-lane road while all other parts of the same highway from the Kentucky-Ohio line to the Kentucky-Virginia line are to be of four lanes. Surely the ARC can be shown that this old assessment of the road was not only hasty but ridiculous in the light of present traffic loads, and that a two-lane bottleneck between these two major points on the highway will in large part nullify the improvements made on all other sectors. But the Appalachian Regional Commission will do nothing unless the people affected by this cruel mistake do something. And if anything is being done, it is being kept so quiet that we here on the scene haven't heard anything about it.

words, "Praise the Lord," and to halt when he said, "Amen." The time came, when traveling a particularly steep mountain road and while on the way down, with the horse and buggy picking up speed, he saw ahead at a sharp curve that the road had slipped away. Terrified, he couldn't think of the stop signal, and it was not till the wheels of his huggy were within a foot of the drop into the hollow a hundred feet below that he remembered. "Amen!" he said, and the old horse stopped. Then he said, "Praise the Lord!"

The search for the Loch Ness monster continues, according to the public prints. With about as much success as my search of Dewey Lake for a mythical monster bass.

THE DEAR, DEAD DAYS

Before it became sullied by mantricks, the moon was the delight of every romantic in or out of captivity. Poets spun moonlight and scattered moonbeams, and lovers grew more loving in the moonlight, darling. Men spoke of the Hunter's Moon and the Harvest Moon. Maybe they do yet, although they think they know better.

Time was at this season, back when we were more innocent, the social event of the season for this community or that might be a huskin' bee. Not exciting, you say? Did you ever see a bunch of young louts spring into action, husking corn, frantically looking for that white ear with a patch of red kernels? Some called such an ear a "scueball," and it was a prize, indeed. For the young fellow who first found it had the bittersweet privilege of blushing from the tips of his brows to the crown of his head before kissing the prettiest derved girl on the barn floor. Yes, that was fun, too, as romantic as a wistaria-bordered path flooded with moonlight—before we got the crazy idea the moon was to be walked rather than gazed upon.

Halbert commented. He added that the company has had new management since 1972 "and there's been trouble ever since."

The last Kentucky West Virginia strike was in 1974, and it lasted 95 days.

Future meetings between the company and the union will be determined by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. No such meetings are scheduled at this time, it was said.

Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, established in 1927, has operations in 11 counties in Eastern Kentucky and provides a substantial portion of the natural gas supply of Equitable Gas Company in Pittsburgh, Pa., which has more than 235,000 residential customers. The company also provides natural gas service to approximately 4,000 domestic consumers along its pipelines in Eastern Kentucky, to the Columbia Gas System, and to the towns of Prestonsburg, Paintsville, Hazard, Allen, Wheelwright and other small communities in Eastern Kentucky.

Kentucky West Virginia will exert every reasonable effort to maintain gas service to its customers, a company spokesman said.

ILL HERE

ARC housing applications and adoption of articles of incorporation for the regional program.

Competition between individual communities or counties inside the proposed regional organization had been cited by opponents of a regional housing corporation. Maury Flood, housing specialist, said, "There should be no competition; we need to promote housing without competing. . . Our housing crisis is so severe that we should ask for whatever we can get."

Allen Perry, Paintsville, pointed out that there are built-in mechanisms in the by-laws to safeguard the policies of the individual counties. Mr. McCauley, the district ADD director, said he could not see "anyone with a regional housing corporation being opposed to anything that a local authority might want to do. It merely provides some additional expertise to the existing housing authorities."

The package of ARC housing applications approved by the board included these projects:

A grant for Prestonsburg Housing Authority for 94 units at Cliff, $100,000; loan for Paintsville site, $7,500; loan for Burning Fork site (Magoffin county), $34,000; Loan (Martin county), $56,000; Grant for Douglas site (Pike county), $157,000; Technical assistance grant for Regional Nonprofit Housing Corporation, $61,907.

Louisa-Ft. Gay Bridge Planning Gets Go-Ahead

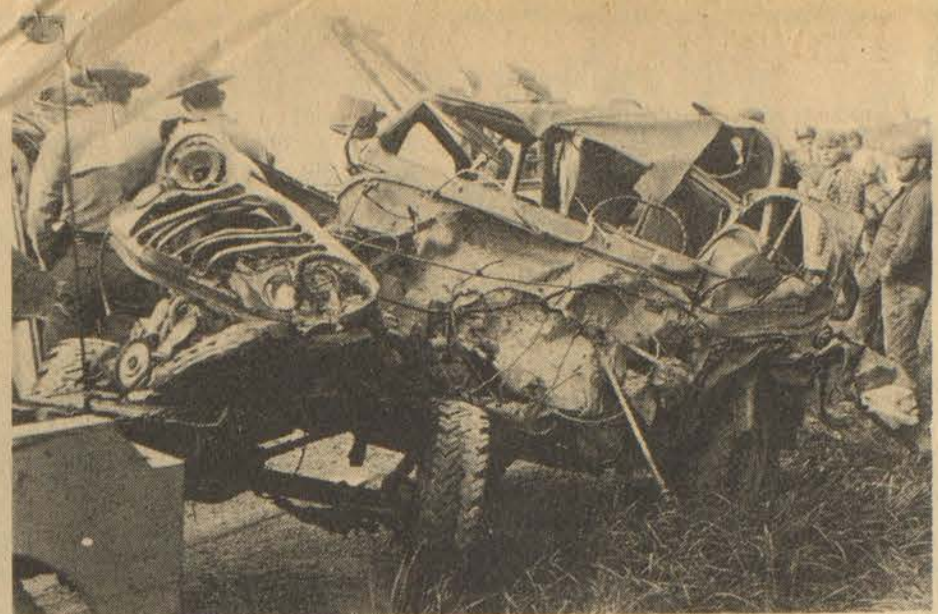

Frankfort, Ky.—The consultant for the Louisa-Ft. Gay Bridge has received the go-ahead to continue preliminary design of the structure, State Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts said here today.

Frankland and Lienhard of New York will proceed with the work following a preliminary line and grade inspection conducted last week by Charles Cook, director of the Transportation Department's Division of Bridges.

Cook said that the bridge line and profile grade have been established with the exception of a minor portion on the West Virginia end where a railroad track may require some modification.

The go-ahead to the consultant also means that final right-of-way plans can be made and the required sub-surface research can begin, Cook said.

Cook, who is also chairman of a task force named earlier this year by Roberts to expedite the project, said that a meeting of the task force will be held sometime in October, but a date has yet to be established.

Former Capital Postmaster Discusses Postal Mess

The United States Postal Service was made a quasi-government corporation in 1970. The law which established this corporation gave it authority to unionize the same as private industry, with one exception—the right to strike.

The National Labor Agreement, which started immediately with the corporate structure, has provisions which are above and beyond anything in the private sector, such as no-layoff. Also, when labor disagrees with management's decisions, management cannot act. The decisions must go to arbitration, etc.

The Postal Service is responsible to no one for its expenditures. Any deficit must be paid by the taxpayers.

The salary structures which the U. S. Postal Service set for itself for management and labor have a ceiling of $63,000. A large number of management officers receive salaries which far exceed those of Senators and Congressmen. The Post Office labor force receives salaries which far exceed those for government employees. Prior to the formation of the postal corporation, these were comparable.

Overstaffing and idle hours in the Postal Service is now a way of life. The law requires eight hours work for eight hours' pay in other agencies.

The union contract which the Postal Service negotiates with itself supersedes the law of our land. The financial problems in the Postal Service have been created because of this labor agreement. Excessive increase in postage has caused a decrease in mail volume. Many of the major users are now finding alternate means in lieu of paying this price. The no-layoff provision in the contract leaves a fixed number work force with a decrease in mail volume. Postal employees receive high pay for doing nothing. Unless the attrition rate equals the workload decreases, the imbalance between the manhours and the workload will continue. The no-layoff clause does not permit management to reduce the work force to correct the imbalance. An effective work measurement system has been eliminated, and each office is permitted to set its own work standards which supports this type of imbalance. Efficiency and economy in the operation of the postal service under this labor agreement are impossible.

The upper management of the Postal Service has committed various acts to shield its truth from the public. Hearings before the subcommittee of the Congress when properly reviewed will clearly identify the fabrications. How can Congress or the President ignore this when conduct of a similar nature in the Executive Branch of the government brought about the removal of the President of this Nation.

The investigative arm of the Congress, known as the General Accounting Office, has presented reports and testimony which are absolute fabrications. Documents proving these fabrications are in the hands of Congress. For Congress to use these reports while in the process of preparing legislation for laws to govern this Nation is a damnable act. The need to refer this to the Justice Department for an in-depth probe is of the utmost importance if our government and the nation's business is to function properly. The Board of Governors, the Postmaster, the entire upper management of the United States Postal Service should be held responsible and accountable for the multi-billion dollar waste which they and they alone are responsible for.

I invite everyone interested in an efficient U. S. Postal Service to write their Congressman and make their views known.

CARLTON G. BEALL

Washington, D. C., retired)

IN BAND DAY PROGRAM

Richmond, Ky.—The Betsy Layne High School band participated in the 15th annual Band Day program at Eastern Kentucky University recently. Rain prevented the traditional parade of the 36 bands through downtown Richmond, but the 3,000 musicians presented a massed concert at Hanger Field during the halftime of the EKV-Murray football game.

VISITS IN BEREA

Miss Jane Ann Kendrick spent the week-end with her cousin, Mrs. Paul Hager, Dr. Hager and children, Julia and Eddie, of Berea.

Appreciation

Thank you will mind my sending a personal kind of letter in appreciation to you and all who helped expose our fine apple butter to all who read your fine newspaper. My husband, who is chairman of the East Point Area Development Club, said he thought it a fine gesture too of writing to you.

Since I am one of the group of people who helps with the making and selling of the apple butter during the Kentucky Apple Festival, it's always a pleasure to see all who come out to help with the making and selling of it. Thanks to all of them! The help is all volunteer, so that makes it really fine that enough folks help to make the apple butter so that we of the club have been able to increase the amount each year.

In 1976 we have made and sold 2027 quarts of applebutter, and many of our buyers came from other counties and states. This we give credit to all of you who have given them the news of our apple butter. Thanks so much for that!

Thanks also go to all who bought tickets on the case of apple butter, with proceeds going to Hope Haven Children's Home in Paintsville, the winner being from your own county of Floyd. She is Mrs. Nola Jenny, Drift, Ky. She seemed such a fine person, too.

We talked much about the "damp" weather, but it could have been much worse. Maybe, next year, the sun will shine so pretty. We shall wait and see.

MRS. ESTAMAE TACKETT

Objects to Political Stickers in Courthouse

One would have to be blind not to see one thing in the Floyd county courthouse. It is a blaze with posters for one candidate for president. My belief is that the courthouse is a public building that is to serve Democrats, Republicans, Independents, and all other voters, to present one party's views is at best a form of discrimination against anyone who does not like that party or candidate. At its worst, it could be a clear violation of the First Amendment of the U. S. Constitution which guarantees political freedom.

To be fair, there should be stickers for all political parties, even small third parties such as the Human Rights Party. Fair is fair.

Cites Cruel Practise

Yesterday we were out shoveling sand and gravel out of a creek when a car stopped and a man set out a box with two pretty kittens in it. We took them home with us.

Not long ago I was driving down Right Beaver and was very nearly involved in an accident. The reason? Someone had put out a little, sick kitten and cars stopped quickly to avoid hitting it. I took this one home, but we were unable to save its life.

We have taken in five dogs where they have been dropped off, or strayed to us. We find that by advertising we can find good homes for cats and dogs.

Don't people realize that it is cruel and heartless to "take a dog off" or "take kittens off"? I wonder if people would get rid of unwanted old folks or children by "taking them off"?

I am sure that many people who do this are fine and good people who have never realized that these animals will freeze and starve until they die, or until some "softie" comes along and takes them in.

Laws won't change people's hearts, so let's all work together to see that this wicked practice stops. Animals aren't human, but the Lord's words, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," can certainly apply to some extent here.

No Complaint Here

Many times we have heard complaints about the Floyd County Road Department, but we feel it would be unfair not to offer another opinion. The Floyd County Road Department has recently completed work on our road and did so with much skill and efficiency. We would like to say, "Thank you" to them and the taxpayers of Floyd County.

Property Tax Appeals Down

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals is processing fewer property tax cases this year than in 1975, according to Ellis Merrifield, clerk of the three-man board.

Mrs. Merrifield said the board has received 211 property appeals thus far, 154 of which are from Jefferson county. She explained that this was due to a reassessment of property in the Louisville area this year. However, 405 property appeals had been filed with the board at this time last year, Mrs. Merrifield said.

"I'm amazed that we have received so few Jefferson County cases this year," Mrs. Merrifield commented. She explained that some 4,600 local appeals had been filed with the Jefferson county board. (A property owner may appeal a decision to the state board if he or she is unsatisfied with the local ruling.)

Although the board may hear any tax appeal, property appeals outnumber all others. However, they usually require less time for consideration from the board since most appeals cases are those of individual homeowners instead of large corporations. Mrs. Merrifield estimated that 98 per cent of the Louisville hearings were individual cases.

The county property valuation administrator, an elected official, makes the initial assessment. Should property owners wish to appeal that determination, they may file their request with the county board of assessment appeals.

Mrs. Merrifield said that board not only has the power to decrease taxes, but may also increase them as well.

The Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals is next in line for the appeals process. Property valuation administrators can also present cases to the board if they have strong objectives to a lower board's ruling overturning their original assessments.

If the state board's decision is unsatisfactory to a petitioner, he or she may then go to the judicial system, starting with the local circuit court in the county where the property was assessed. Large companies protesting their property assessments can sometimes even go to the Supreme Court, Mrs. Merrifield said. She added that the state board's decision is usually released within a few weeks after a final hearing.

Mrs. Merrifield said the board was now in the midst of its "busy season." She explained that a property valuation administrator must have assessment records open for public inspection during the first week of June, unless extensions are granted by the Department of Revenue.

MINNIE NEWS

Lisa Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Collins, celebrated her 5th birthday at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Collins, on Sept. 11. There were many games played and a Holly hobbie cake and other refreshments were served to: Mrs. Kevin Daniels and daughter, Lora, Mrs. Terry Mosley and sons, Scottie and Allen, Mrs. Warren Collins and daughter, Beth, Mrs. King Osborne and son, Dougie, Misses Erica Turner, Jan, Judy, Barbara Collins, and Mrs. Grover Sammons. Those attending from out-of-town were Mrs. John Collins and children, John and Shena, of Wheelwright; Miss Kathy Barnett, Water Gap; Miss Micki Wright, Prestonsburg and Mrs. Rosie Ferguson (grandmother), of Prestonsburg.

Any appeals must then be filed with the local board during the inspection period. That period varies from county to county, Mrs. Merrifield said. Following that board's ruling, property owners are given 30 days to file with the Kentucky Board.

All county boards have processed their appeals for 1976 except those in Leslie, Knott and Powell counties. Thus, the state board has received virtually all cases to be processed for 1976. The board has not yet issued any rulings on the property appeals received.

Although the entire board meets in its Frankfort offices, individual members often travel to the county or origin of an appeal for the convenience of the taxpayers. While only one member is required to hear an appeal locally, all three men help determine the final decision.

John Stanley Hoffman, Henderson, is chairman of the board. Other members are Jessel Moore, Lexington, and Robert Wright, Elizabethtown. All are appointed by the governor to four-year terms.

Board Can Withhold Teacher's Paycheck

Frankfort, Ky.—Local boards of education can withhold a teacher's paycheck until all required reports are turned in, according to an opinion from the Attorney General's office.

The opinion was written Sept. 29 by Robert L. Chenoweth, assistant attorney general, in answer to a letter from Ken Campbell, who is on the Kentucky Education Association's staff.

Campbell had asked whether a board could legally withhold payment of the last school month's salary to a teacher until the teacher accurately completes all required records and turns them in.

Chenoweth responded that the board could legally withhold the pay until a teacher completed the reports to the board's satisfaction.

The Scrooge of Appalachia

By GEO. L. MOORE

Some people would say that Joe Stringer was the stingiest man who ever walked the face of the earth. Others would contend that Joe was not all that stingy; all he was trying to do was to get even with his mother-in-law. All of the people who knew him best maintained that Joe never accumulated enough worldly goods to be stingy with. There was a certain amount of truth in each evaluation. There was one fact on which all agreed—Joe never did get over the opposition that his mother-in-law had expressed to his marrying her daughter.

It was true that his mother-in-law, affectionately known to the neighbors as Aunt Mollie, did everything she could to keep her daughter from marrying Joe. She said, "Annie, honey, you will never have nothin' to eat or nothin' to wear if you marry that onery thing. If you have young'uns, they will go half-naked all the time. Honey, if for my sake, your sake, and God's sake, stay away from that no-good trapper and possum hunter."

Despite all of Aunt Mollie's pleadings, Annie was determined to marry Joe Stringer. She said to her mother, "Joe will do better after we get married; I just know he will." Aunt Mollie replied, "That's what they all say."

The wedding took place in November, and Joe and his bride moved into a lean-to on the lower side of his father's double log house. They were permitted to stay there for the winter but were told they would have to move out in the spring.

They were given some cull lumber from the sawmill and with the help of his two brothers managed to put up a large, one-room shack at the mouth of Clayton's Branch. As the boards seasoned and dried out, inch-wide cracks appeared in the walls. There was a stepstone in the center of the room. It served as a cooking stove and the only source of heat. It worked very well during the summer and fall but as the first frosts appeared and the chilly winds began to sweep down in the valley, it became a necessity for Joe to raise enough funds to cover the sides of his house. He made a bank note in the amount of $10 to secure the necessary funds. This bank note became a financial burden to him for a ten-year period. He paid out twice the amount of the note by having it renewed. There was another problem with the house in the winter. It was covered with chestnut clapboards which had rolled up like meat skins in the hot summer sun. This permitted powdered snow to sift down through the roof in many places.

Circumstances beyond her control made it necessary for Aunt Mollie to move in with Joe. To say that she and Joe hated each other was putting it mildly. What little domestic bliss there was in the home rapidly disappeared after Aunt Mollie moved in. Aunt Mollie was always complaining that Joe was too lazy to chop wood to heat the place; that he would not buy enough food to keep his wife and children from starving.

Aunt Mollie was well liked by her neighbors. When she told them her story, they were very generous in supplying her with food. She received several pieces of side meat, pickled corn and beans, and Irish potatoes. She would manage to let Joe have none of her food and he would manage to let her have none of that belonging to him.

In order that Aunt Mollie would not have access to any of his food, he hid the bulkier items, meal, flour, etc., in a nearby woods; the lesser items he carried on his person. One could often see him with his large overall pockets stuffed to capacity with bacon, sugar, salt and soda.

In 1917 there was a terrible winter; one Arctic blast after another swept down from Canada, keeping the earth wrapped in a white blanket of snow. The bitter cold wind blew through the cracks in the walls of Joe's shack and the fine, powdered snow sifted down through the cracks in the roof.

Annie became quite ill and passed away in December. The neighbors saw to it that she had a decent burial. Some said she died of exposure to the elements; others maintained it could have been a lack of food.

Somehow, Joe survived the remainder of the winter; however, the community's attitude toward him was one of hostility.

Years later, he migrated to Northern Ohio, where his oldest son was working in a brickyard. Joe secured employment as a sweeper. He worked long enough to qualify for the "Old Age Pension." From that point on, Joe never failed to take a ride on every Federal Gravy Train that came along. When he died at 94, he had accumulated a huge sum of money but he still lived in a house that wasn't much better than the one he occupied at the mouth of Clayton's Branch, a generation earlier.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

When you buy your Kentucky deer tag this year, you should receive a list of check stations. If you plan to deer hunt during the Dec. 4 through Dec. 8 gun season, hang on to that list—it's important.

All deer taken during the gun season must be reported to a check station or to a conservation officer. There is a section of the deer permit which must be filled out by the hunter and retained by the officer or check station operator and another space on the permit for validation.

According to this year's deer hunting regulations, all deer taken during the statewide gun hunt must be checked in at the nearest check station or by a conservation officer by 9 a.m. on the day after the deer was taken. Check stations will operate on Dec. 9 for those who take deer on the last day of the season.

The purpose of this check station system, according to Game Management Director Joe Bruna of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, is to provide information on Kentucky's deer harvest as quickly and accurately as possible.

In past years, hunter harvest was estimated by complicated mail and telephone surveys, with the results extrapolated by computer. This process takes so long, Bruna says, that the results are not available for game biologists to use in setting seasons for the next year.

With the new check station system, Bruna hopes that the results will be both faster and more accurate and will give game managers data to estimate the statewide deer population and the distribution of this population throughout Kentucky, as well as providing much other valuable information.

Bruna also emphasizes that the check station system was instituted for survey purposes, not for law enforcement reasons. Many of the check stations will be at service stations or country stores, with the proprietor or employee of the establishment doing the actual checking.

The information asked for is the date and sex of the deer taken, the county in which it was harvested and the hunter's name and address.

The hunter fills in the appropriate section of the tag, and the check station operator or conservation officer detaches and retains the stub. After the season closes, these stubs will be sent to the division of game management, providing an "instant survey" of the deer harvest in the state.

Bow hunters are exempt from this check station requirement, and hunters who participate in special hunts scheduled before or after the regular season on certain wildlife areas or military reservations are also exempt, since these areas will have their own check station system.

The list of check stations are now distributed and are available wherever deer permits are sold, or from any county clerk's office. If you have already bought your tag and did not receive this list, you may now pick one up where you purchased your tag or from your county court clerk or write to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Public Relations, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 for a list of check stations and a copy of the 1976 Deer Hunting Guide.

Opinion Says City Utility Commission Independent Body

Frankfort, Ky.—A city utility commission is independent of city government, according to an opinion from the Attorney General's office.

The opinion issued Sept. 29 by Walter C. Herdman, assistant deputy attorney general, was in answer to a letter from Mr. Dan A. Marcum, city commissioner of Corbin. Marcum had asked who had jurisdiction over a city utility commission.

In his opinion Herdman wrote, that the utility commission "is independent of the city . . . and the city has no control over the management of the utility or its employees."

In regard to another question regarding the commission, Herdman said that under the city manager form of government which Corbin has, the mayor is considered a member of the commission and has the same voting rights as other commission members.

A Statement to the People

(Statement made by Councilman Cloyd Johnson at the Meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council, Oct. 14, 1976)

I was elected to the Prestonsburg City Council in November, 1973 by the people of Prestonsburg and was re-elected in November, 1975 by the people of Prestonsburg. I believe that I was elected because these citizens believed that I would do what is right and good for this city. For the past three years, I have tried to do this. I believe in equal consideration for all people, from the humblest house in this city to the richest. I have no political ambitions beyond my present representation of the citizens of this city.

I charge that the current problems are a result of, and, are, another step in the seizure of political control of Prestonsburg.

I charge that the present city council acts in the best interests of the number of votes to be gained, rather than for the good of the people.

The Mayor has stated that he and the members of the council have been publicly embarrassed. I agree with this statement. I am embarrassed. And the citizens of Prestonsburg are embarrassed.

Prestonsburg has once again made headlines in newspapers throughout the state. And do not be fooled in thinking our current problems stem from the desire for more money for the Police and Fire Departments. The reasons go much deeper than this.

I call for the following:

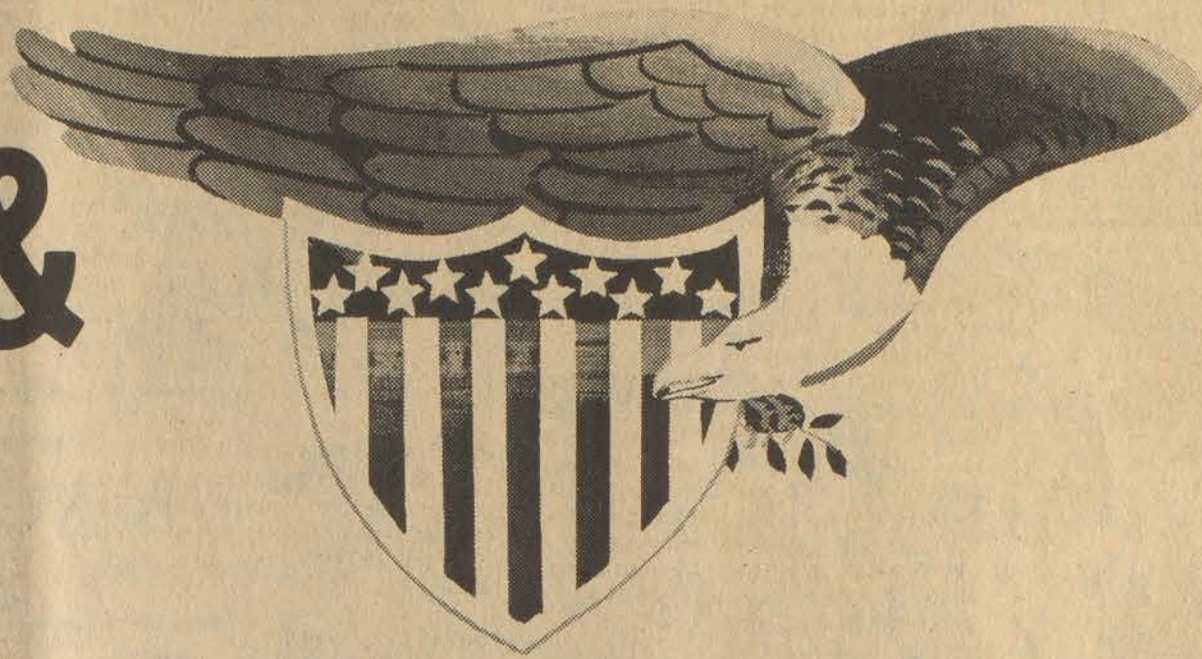

1. Reactivation of the Prestonsburg Planning Commission. (The city has no purpose, no direction and no long-range planning.)
2. Open meetings and open workshop sessions with all nine of our elected officials present. (When meetings are held in secret, the majority of our citizens are getting the short end of the stick)
3. A complete restructuring of the "Commissioner" system. At present there are one Fire Commissioner, one Police Commissioner and three Garbage Commissioners.
4. Attendance by the citizens of Prestonsburg and members of the news media at all council meetings, even the dull, routine meetings. People, these are your tax dollars being spent.
5. If all else fails, then I call for the removal from office of the entire group of elected officials and petition for a new election.

If these nine officials can't do their job, let's "throw the rascals out".

I Am Joe's Soul

Various parts of my body have learned the art of speaking and writing. The Reader's Digest has carried a series of articles in which parts of Joe, such as his heart, his thighbone, and his hair have described their structures and duties. Millions read these articles with avid interest and reprints were in instant demand.

No doubt other parts of Joe's body are, even now, seated at a typewriter.

So I thought I'd try too. I really don't expect that what I write will be read by millions. I've long been accustomed to neglect. Joe's toenails receive regular attention, but I don't. I ought to, for actually, nothing is more significant about Joe than I am.

I am Joe's soul. Overlooked by so many, the fact is that without me Joe just isn't Joe. It's true that you can't see me as you can see Joe's nose. Even a microscope doesn't help. But it's wrong to think that just because I'm invisible that Joe is merely the sum of his physical parts. He isn't.

Actually I shouldn't say I'm Joe's soul. I'm really Joe! The body is just the house that I live in for a little while. Even when the body dies, I'm still Joe and I still am.

Joe can get along without his hair or his appendix. Other parts are far more vital. When Joe loses his blood, a coroner pronounces him physically dead. That's bad! But inconceivably worse is when Joe loses me. Jesus Christ said, "What does it profit a man if he gain the whole world but lose his own soul?" If Joe loses me, someone higher than all of us pronounces him spiritually dead.

When some parts of Joe's body get sick, they can restore themselves in amazingly wonderful ways. And doctors do a terrific job. Unfortunately when I'm ailing, it takes a miracle to cure me.

But the good news is that this miraculous cure is available to me and to everyone else. There's no doctor or hospital fee! The price was paid by the Son of God when He died on the cross. That mighty act cleansed me of all guilt and pollution—which is the sickness that all of us souls are contaminated with.

Now I'm healthy and joyful and free. Joe's body is important, but it's not the main thing. As Jesus said, "Fear not them who are able to kill the body but are not able to kill the soul, but rather fear him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." (Matthew 10:28)

It's not considered nice to talk about hell, but when the way of escape is free and when the pleasure of being healthy is so great, it would be selfish of me not to tell my story.

If you want to hear more about all this, ask a good spiritual doctor. They're called pastors. Or read all about me in the book on spiritual health. It's called the Bible. But please! Don't neglect me!

Local AAUW Meets At Library, Oct. 14

The Prestonsburg Branch of the American Association of University Women met October 14 at the library. The president conducted a brief business meeting which included an announcement that the local branch was again listed as giving one of the highest per capita amounts to the Educational Foundation. The Foundation not only provides scholarships to women who have completed course work for Ph.D. degrees and are working on their doctoral theses, but also makes grants to members who are renewing their education after an absence. For applications to receive these awards, contact Maria Fitzpatrick.

Besides seeking individual and organizational donations to the Foundation, the Prestonsburg branch sells coal items such as jewelry and statuettes, made by Koal Kraft, Inc. Kathryn Frazier, local chairman for the Educational Foundation, accepts donations and also orders for coal items. Helen Ankrum may be contacted at Turner Elkhorn Mining Co., Drift, for similar purchases.

The program was "What Every Woman Should Know About Wills", and was presented by Maria Fitzpatrick.

It has been brought to the attention of the local branch that many people have the impression that AAUW is an organization of college professors or wives of professors. This is incorrect—it is an organization of women who are college graduates. Any woman who is a college graduate may join by presenting proof of graduation, filling out an application, and paying $12 annual dues. Roberta Davidson, of Prestonsburg, is membership chairman and has applications.

Sauce for the Goose— Or for the HUD Gander

What's sauce for the goose (the ordinary citizen) ought to be sauce for the gander (the federal government). It doesn't seem to work that way, though. The city of Midland, Tex., like many others, knows what it's like to wade through the maze of red tape that ensnarls federal agencies. When the Dallas office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HUD) asked the city for a reserved parking space at its airport, Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr., saw an opportunity to serve the bureaucrats some of their own medicine. In a lengthy letter to HUD, his honor replied that he would be happy to process a proper application, "but a simple request by telephone or letter just won't do at all. In order to justify as many public employees as possible and to make things as difficult as possible for anyone trying to do business with the City of Midland, we have adopted a few regulations and guidelines with which you must comply: "1. You must submit three executed and 14 confirmed copies of this application which we will then distribute to our Department of Aviation, Fire and Police Departments, the Public Works Department, the city attorney's office and anyone else we can think of. "2. Submit the make and model of the proposed vehicle, together with certified assurances that everyone connected with the manufacture, servicing and operation of same were paid according to a wage scale that complies with the requirements of Davis-Bacon Act.

"3. Submit a genealogical table for everyone who will operate said vehicle so that we can ascertain that there will be a precisely equal percentage of white, blacks and other minorities, as well as women and the elderly. "4. Submit an Environmental Impact Statement (showing) the number of times the vehicle will be operated, times of day, the name of the operator of the vehicle, the number of other vehicles that might be coming into or leaving the parking lot at the same time, as well as the number and type of aircraft that might be landing or taking off at the airport at the same time and an exact conclusion as to the effect this will have on the atmosphere in West Texas. " There was more, but by this time it should have been obvious that the mayor was just giving his funnybone (and his frustrations) a good workout. To make sure, however, he added in a postscript that the city would, of course, be delighted to authorize a place for a HUD vehicle in its airport parking lot. That was last October. So far, nothing further has been heard from HUD on the matter. "I was a little disappointed," said Mayor Angelo, "at their lack of a sense of humor. . . ."

Clifton-Edwards Vows Exchanged

On Saturday, August 7, Miss Dinah Ray Clifton, daughter of Sylvia Clifton Eden and Felmer R. Clifton, both of Allen, and Roger Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Edwards, of McCarr, Ky., exchanged vows at the Allen Baptist Church.

The candlelight ceremony was performed by the Rev. Earl Waugh before an altar and candelabra decorated with blue and pink roses, interspersed with white lilies of the valley. Music was provided by Rosemary Frasure, of Allen.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding a white chantilly floor-length gown styled in the "Gay 90's" period with a high mandarin neckline ending in a double ruffled "Bertha" collar, wrist-length sleeves with double ruffling, semi-empire bodice, with a very full A-line skirt with matching double ruffle ending in a chapel train. Her cathedral-length veil of imported French net was held in place by a matching lace capulet trimmed with tiny lace roses and seed pearls. Her waist-length blusher was trimmed with Chantilly edging and scattered lace roses. She carried a white Bible, a gift from her mother, and rosebuds tipped in blue and baby breath nestled in silk net and tied with satin floor-length streamers and stephanotis.

The maid of honor, Miss Pam Orsborn, of Martin, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Sue Wells, matron of honor, Miss Mary McCalister, of Martin, cousin of the bride, Miss Juanita Conn, of Martin, and Miss Gail Sammons, of Martin, were bridesmaids. All wore blue floor-length gowns of polyester imprinted with pink flowers. They wore white hats and each carried a single white rose with flowing white streamers.

Ricky Hatfield, of McCarr, served as best man. Ushers were Donald Shepherd, of Prestonsburg, Ronnie Edwards, brother of the groom, Mike Alred and Tommy Hankins, all of McCarr. James Staggs, II, nephew of the groom, served as ringbearer.

The mother of the bride wore a multi-color floor gown of blue, white and pink imprinted with pink roses, of polyester and nylon, and a white rose.

The mother of the groom wore a floor-length gown of blue polyester. She wore a white rose.

A reception was held in the church educational building.

Brandeis Names Strange Sales Representative

Mike Kronn, division manager, Appalachia Division for Brandeis Machinery and Supply Corporation, recently announced the appointment of Norman Strange to the position of field sales representative in the Appalachia Division headquartered at Allen.

Statement of Council Members

This is a rebuttal of a statement signed by four council members in an article appearing in the Floyd County Times on October 13, 1976. The article referred to secret meetings by council members on Monday and Tuesday, October 11 and 12, 1976.

On Monday evening October 11, 1976 the Prestonsburg Firemen and Policemen walked out of the City Council Meeting and off their jobs leaving the residents and business establishments of this City unprotected from vandalism or fire. At that time Councilmen Branham, Nunnery, Hager and Harold Cooley along with Mayor Goebel went to the Prestonsburg Fire Station No. 2 to call the state police for protection to our residents and to alert neighboring community fire departments in the event they were needed in an emergency. Councilmen Branham, Nunnery, Hager and Harold Cooley, along with Mayor Goebel and several citizens of Prestonsburg, manned the fire station in the event of fire in the city. Some of the citizens and councilmen had been volunteer firemen in the past.

There was no secret meeting at the fire station Monday night or early Tuesday morning. Individuals there were only interested in the protection of our citizens and community by manning the fire station. As a matter of fact, none of the above councilmen met with the striking firemen or policemen to discuss any of their grievances at that time. The only councilmen attending any meeting in the early hours of Tuesday morning, October 12, was Councilmen Paul Phillip Hughes. We were not invited to attend any meeting nor were other councilmen present. The only statement made by councilmen at the fire station in regards to police and firemen wanting to meet with the Mayor was "whatever you negotiate will have to be taken up in a Council meeting with all council members present." Any action outside of the council meetings must be brought to a council meeting for a vote before they become official.

According to the State Sunshine Law, all Council meetings are open to the public excepting those involving personnel, at which time the Mayor may call for an executive session. The council meetings are scheduled on the first and third Thursday of each month and all elected councilmen are responsible to attend regularly.

Student of Month

Carolyn Sue Click, fourteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Click, of Garrett, has been designated the Outstanding Piano Student for the month of September at the Patricia Flanery Klatka School of Music at Allen.

Among those criteria a student must meet in order to achieve such distinction is perfect attendance for private lessons and theory classes, daily practice, and consistently well-prepared lessons.

A freshman at Knott Central High School, Carolyn began her piano education in the fall of 1974. Having achieved rapid success she was chosen "Most Outstanding Beginner" in 1975 and "Best All-Around Junior-High Student" in 1976. This past spring, she earned a superior rating in KMEA regional competition at Pikeville College.

Carolyn's future plans include earning a degree in music education and eventually operating her own piano studio.

Did You Know? County Escaped Board Election

Something most Floyd county residents, including The Times, didn't know:

Three members of the Floyd County Board of Education are to be elected at the November election.

And—this is news!—none of the three has opposition.

To be elected without opposition are three incumbents—John M. Stumbo in Educational Division 3, Dr. Mary Hall in Division 4 and James Arville Duff in Division 5.

Also unopposed is Harold J. Stumbo, Democratic incumbent, for the unexpired term for County Attorney.

Unopposed for the full term on the non-partisan ticket are the recent appointees to the Court of Appeals in the Seventh district—Elijah M. Hogge, of Morehead, in the First division, and Harris Stephens Howard, of Prestonsburg, in the Second division.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins, Democratic incumbent, has only token opposition in the person of his Republican opponent, Granville Thomas, of London.

Candidates representing nine parties will be on the November ballot in the race for the Presidency, and that includes two Libertarian hopefuls. The candidates for President and Vice President, respectively, from each of the nine parties follow, as they will appear on the ballot in Kentucky:

Republican—Gerald R. Ford and Robert Dole; Democrats—Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale; American Party—Thomas J. Anderson and Rufus Shackelford; Communist Party—Gus Hall and Jarvis Tyner; American Independent—Lester C. Maddox and William D. Dyke; U. S. Labor Party—Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. and Wayne Evans; Socialist Workers Party—Peter Camego and Willie Mae Reed; Libertarian—Roger L. McBride and David P. Bergland; Independent—Eugene J. McCarthy and Rollie J. Bartlett.

Although a few varieties ripen in early summer, autumn is really the heyday of the apple, and in contemplation of the subject, there is much more to this fruit than that which meets the eye.

A most healthful and delightfully-tasting tidbit from the outdoors, it is a fruit old as man.

Since the day of Adam and Eve, the apple has been a celebrated fruit. It was important in the lives of the ancient Greeks, Romans and Scandinavians. In Greek mythology, it was considered so precious that dragons were set to watch over it; only heroes were employed to pick it; and goddesses contended for it.

According to Prose Edda, a collection of stories of early Norse people, the gods remained perpetually young by eating apples. A box of this fruit was always kept handy, and when any of the gods or goddesses felt old age approaching, they had only to taste an apple to be restored to youth and beauty. It may be from this Icelandic tale that came the maxim: "An apple a day keeps the doctor away."

The apple tree is mentioned in at least three places in the Old Testament and its fruit in two or three more. Solomon was comforted with apples and the noblest feature of man is named from this fruit: "The apple of the eye."

The apple tree is also mentioned by old Homer and Herodotus. After being shipwrecked on the Island of Corfu, Ulysses saw apple trees bearing beautiful fruit in the glorious gardens of Alcinous, king of the island. And, according to Homer, apples were among the fruits which the unfortunate Tantalus could not pluck, the wind ever blowing the boughs beyond his reach.

If Greek mythology serves us right, Tantalus, son of Zeus, as punishment for a crime, was sentenced to stand in water up to his neck while all around him were trees bearing fruits. When he tried to drink, the water receded. When he tried to pick an apple or an orange, the wind moved it away. Etymologists say that it was from this incident that we got the word "tantalize."

The apple belongs chiefly to the North Temperate Zone and, according to some botanical authorities, has been in cultivation longer than any other fruit. As one horticulturist wrote: "It is as harmless as a dove, as beautiful as a rose, and as valuable as flocks and herds." It has migrated with man and, in a sense, is the most civilized of all fruits.

In writing of the apple, Henry David Thoreau stated that no mortal ever enjoyed the perfect flavor of this fruit and only the godlike can recognize its ethereal qualities. Our palates, he said, are too coarse to taste this ambrosia.

MOSCOW—Ivan Grushetsky has retired from the Ukrainian Communist Party politburo, officials say. Grushetsky, 72, former resident of the Republic of the Ukraine, the second-largest republic in the Soviet Union.

State Planner Leads 500-Mile Bike Tour

Frankfort, Ky.—John Moisan-Thomas is not your ordinary, run-of-the-mill planner.

As the state Department of Transportation's (KYDOT) project planner and coordinator for the development of new bike trails across Kentucky, Moisan-Thomas decided earlier this year that he should get out and see a few of those trails first-hand.

So he registered with "Bikecentennial," a non-profit group of bicycle enthusiasts based in Montana, attended their training program for group leaders and, upon his return home, began looking for a chance to try out his new found trail savvy.

Late in June, the opportunity arrived. Moisan-Thomas was to lead six other cyclists from Carbondale, Ill., to Berea, a 10-day, 500-mile excursion which included Kentucky's portion of the nationwide Trans America Bicycle Trail. The group included his wife Pat, as well as a mechanical engineer, an attorney, a metallurgical engineer, a housewife and a free lance writer, ranging in age from 22 to 35.

Following Kentucky's portion of the 4,100-mile trail along little-traveled rural roads, the group passed through such small, out-of-the-way towns as Dixon, Guffy, Utica and Sebree.

"The reception we received from the townspeople was fantastic," Moisan-Thomas said. Members of our groups were invited into people's homes for coffee or tea and, every one in a while, farmers along the route would offer us fresh tomatoes."

A number of restaurants also opened their doors to the bikers, offering them special prices or other extra services. "Some of the restaurants even roped off a special section for bicyclists," he said.

The trip through Kentucky was made even easier by the availability of Bike Inns situated along the trail about one day's ride apart. Some of the inns used by Moisan-Thomas' group were located at Berea, Harrodsburg, Hodgenville, Falls of the Rough, Sebree and Marion.

Moisan-Thomas said that many of the inns, established at the urging of "Bikecentennial," were set up in local schools and community centers. None of the inns charged the bikers a direct fee. Instead, the proprietors were reimbursed by "Bikecentennial" which collects one set fee from each biker before the start of the trip. Moisan-Thomas and his group paid a fee of $20 each, or $2 per night per person, for lodging.

Possibly one of the most surprising facts discovered by Moisan-Thomas was the unexpected economic benefits that Kentucky, and especially rural Kentucky through which much of the Bikecentennial Trail passes, reaped over the summer.

Moisan-Thomas estimated that approximately 3,000 cyclists journeyed through Kentucky over the summer months.

"Some were taking short trips, like between Virginia and Missouri," he said, "but most were traveling the entire trail from Reedsport, Ore., to Yorktown, Va., and all of them spent $6-$10 per day while in Kentucky."

At that rate, KYDOT estimates a return of $4 for every $1 spent by the state in the work it did to mark Kentucky's portion of the national Trans America Bicycle Trail, he said. The total cost to Kentucky for marking that trail was $50,000.

"And many of those dollars were spent in rural Kentucky as opposed to our more urban and industrial areas which get the lion's share of those dollars being spent by the interstate traveler," he said.

"Probably the most interesting of all the charming people we met on the trail was Clarence Pickard," Moisan-Thomas remembered.

He was the oldest rider on the trail—86 years—and, only 10 years earlier, had been a Peace Corp volunteer in India. His enthusiasm was incredible, Moisan-Thomas said.

"Every town he passed through, he would call the local newspaper, and since he was headed west and we were traveling east, every paper we saw carried his picture and a story about him."

Armed with the experience of the ride, Moisan-Thomas has a new feeling for his work with the bikeways at KYDOT.

"The trip afforded me the opportunity to evaluate the criteria we used in selecting that particular route through the state so future routes now being planned will be even more enjoyable and attractive," he said.

Police Seek Two In Powers Death

Kentucky State Police are looking for two suspects in the slaying of Bill Powers, 38, of Riceville, Johnson county, that occurred sometime last Wednesday night.

Powers was shot in the right side of the head with a 12-gauge shotgun at his home on Narrow Fork road in Riceville, police said.

State Police Det. Jack Music said the Paintsville police dispatcher received a telephone call about 6:30 p.m. Thursday from persons identifying themselves as Powers' wife, Nellie, and her brother, Frank Edward Ferguson. The two persons confessed to the shooting and said they were making the call from a phone booth in Ironton, O. According to the Paintsville police dispatcher, he suggested the two surrender themselves to Ironton police or return to Paintsville.

Ironton police and the Lawrence county sheriff's office said at 10 a.m. last Friday that the two suspects had not surrendered.

Music said the coroner reported that Powers had been dead for 12 to 14 hours before the body was discovered by Powers' sister, Joyce Powers, at 1 p.m. Thursday, placing the time of death at sometime Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Powers and Ferguson were seen leaving the house at 7:45 a.m. Thursday. The body was found in bed covered as if Powers were asleep, according to Music.

POSTAL WORKERS FIRED OVER STAMP INCIDENT
TULSA, Okla.—Seven U. S. Postal Service employees who admitted finding 1,200 potentially valuable stamps last December and selling them at a huge profit have been dismissed, it was learned yesterday.

The employees, including a security officer, admitted they paid the face value of $5 for each sheet of stamps and then sold them to collectors at prices ranging from $800 and $2,500 a sheet.

Collectors believe the price per sheet might rise to as much as $25,000, depending on how many such sheets are found.

Some of the sheets were perforated through the middle of the stamps instead of between them while others were not perforated at all.

The Christmas issue stamp, depicting the Madonna, also showed no denomination.

Although the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad was called to the scene, the body has been recovered by the father when the squad arrived. The death was the second in the Gibson family in three days, the child's great-grandfather having died Wednesday at Garrett after a long illness.

Health Notes

Friday, October 22, the health department will hold a glaucoma clinic from 9 to 11:30 and from 1 to 2. Glaucoma, a serious disease that can cause blindness, usually strikes persons age 35 or over.

It is estimated that over 1.7 million Americans have unsuspected glaucoma since many times it strikes people slowly and painlessly. However, blindness from glaucoma can be prevented if detected early enough.

The community health nurses urge all persons age 35 and over to take advantage of this free glaucoma screening, because early detection is your best defense.

Then, on Monday, October 25, a Community Health Nurse will conduct an outpost clinic at Hamilton's Kentucky Food Store in Teaberry, Kentucky. This clinic will last from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. and the services offered will be immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening and blood pressures.

All persons in the Mud Creek area are welcome to attend this clinic and take advantage of these free medical services.

Also, there will be no nursing services available at the health department on Tuesday, October 26. The Community Health Nurses will be attending a continuing education program on burns this day. Regular nursing services will resume Wednesday, at 8 a.m.

To Eat or Not To Eat

(Published in response to the Sept. 22 article, "Watch That Meatless Diet," by Suzanne Darland)

Vegetarians, in America at least, used to be generally considered crackpots. Just within the past few years, vegetarianism has become respectable. It was once thought that a diet without meat could not provide the proper amount of nutrients but recent research has found that vegetarianism has all the advantages of a meat diet without its hazards.

A 1974 report by the National Academy of Sciences on studies comparing the health of meat eaters to vegetarians found that total vegetarians get enough of all essential nutrients except vitamin B12 and the lacto-ovo vegetarians (those who included milk and eggs) got all essential nutrients including B12. Unless a person has a good understanding of nutrition, this is the recommended of the two.

The main nutrient of concern is protein. Proteins are made up of amino acids. There are eight essential amino acids (those that must be supplied by diet). Every food we eat has some amino acids. A food containing amino acids in proportions and amounts needed by the body is considered a complete protein such as milk, milk products, and eggs. Foods that do not contain proper proportions are called incomplete.

Complete protein foods, however, can effectively supplement the incomplete. Also a surprisingly good amount of supplementation results by serving two unlike, incomplete proteins. Americans do this already without realizing. For example: cornbread and beans, milk and cereal, macaroni and cheese, beans and rice, bread and peanutbutter, and many more. These combinations of a legume and grain, or incomplete with a complete protein give a meal sufficient protein without adding meat.

"The large expenditure for meat in our daily diet as a source of protein is not warranted in view of the quantity of protein actually required," says Thelma Waylor, Nutrition Instructor and chemistry professor at Long Island University. Population studies have even shown adverse affects of too much protein according to Dr. M. G. Hardinge, M.C., Dean of the School of Health at Loma Linda University in California. The Recommended Daily Dietary Allowance (RDA) for protein as determined by the National Research Council is 46 grams per day for women and 56 for men. Two meals a day can easily meet these requirements. To illustrate, a breakfast consisting of 1 cup of oatmeal, 1 slice of whole wheat bread, 1 tablespoon of peanutbutter, 1/2 grapefruit, plus 1 cup of milk and a supper of 1 piece of cornbread, 1 cup of beans, 1 cup of milk, a lettuce salad, 1 brownie with nuts will yield 50 grams of protein. Most vegetarians eat more than this and meat eaters even more. Therefore the concern that the vegetarian diet is inadequate in protein is unfounded.

Another advantage of the vegetarian diet is overall health benefits. Everyone knows meat is very high in saturated fats. A growing number of population studies have linked America's high fat diet to some of the countries most prevalent cancers including cancer of the colon, rectum, breast, prostate, pancreas, and kidney; said Dr. Earnest L. Wynder, president of the American Health Foundation in New York City. The American Health Foundation found that Seventh-Day Adventists who do not eat meat have 25 per cent fewer cancers than the average American and the males live an average of six years longer. Little needs to be added to the current flood of publications concerning heart disease, strokes, and hardening of the arteries with its secondary diseases. The Americans sedentary life cannot tolerate a meat diet high in saturated fat without paying a price.

Vegetarians can also save money on groceries. By following the simple rule of supplementation and eating a wide variety from the basic four food groups there is no need to visit expensive "Health" food stores. The Four Food Groups are: 1. fruits and vegetables, 2. cereals and breads, 3. protein foods, 4. milk products. Also, often people shy away from seemingly more expensive but wholesome foods such as nuts, fruit, and unrefined foods, yet think nothing of spending even more on "junk" foods (those high in sugar, salt, and often nutritionally depleted) such as soft drinks, candy, and snack foods. Comparative cost of protein based on food costs in Pennsylvania, April 1974, showed vegetable proteins ranging from 3-11 cents per 15 grams, whereas that from meats ranged from 19-59 cents.

Not only should the individual cost be considered but a worldwide economic and nutritional crisis exists. Senator Mark Hatfield explained in a speech given in St. Paul, Minnesota, in June 1974 this: "An acre of soybeans will yield about 667 pounds of protein. For every acre of land in America devoted for raising beef, we yield a mere 9 pounds of protein." Food companies are realizing this problem and much is being done to produce non-meat protein foods to meet the already developed customs and tastes of Americans. These are appearing more and more in your own grocery stores.

A final point favoring vegetarianism is efficiency. Some have argued that vegetarian meals are difficult to cook. This is not so, at least not anymore than meat diets. Anybody can fry a hamburger. It takes thought and planning to prepare any well balanced and appealing meal, vegetarian or meat. The American housewife is in a rush. If only she could realize that a well planned and prepared meal now could save much inconvenience later. A menu made a week in advance will eliminate much time spent with the refrigerator door open pondering the next meal. A family's nutritional needs cannot be met on skipped breakfasts, skimpy lunches, and between-meal snacks of candy bars and cookies. Vegetarian cooking also eliminates greasy pots and pans, messy stoves and ovens, and clogged drains. Not to mention clogged arteries.

So if you are looking for a better lifestyle, both healthfully and economically, then take a serious look at a vegetarian diet.

A PERSONAL MEMOIR

by C. MITCHEL HALL · 1976

The publication deals first with the social life and economic conditions of the communities in which he lived. Later chapters are devoted to general subjects as Human Biology, disappointments, current day systems and the lack of confidence in government; looking ahead and his evaluation of conditions in recent years.

He tells the story of his life and experiences, including service in World Wars I and II, during which time he traveled extensively on assignments in practically every state.

Like his previous books, he has written a delightfully literate and well informed account of the early development of this century, which makes good reading for both young and old.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

Nature, Healer of Earth's Wounds

No matter what severe wounds man may inflict on the face of this good earth, given enough time nature will heal them and restore a measure of the beauty that was lost. Although it may take nature thousands of years to heal and restore the devastation brought about by strip-mining, she will some day complete the work so that where there exists ugliness she will restore lush, green beauty.

I noticed that most of the seedlings appearing in the old field were from trees that bear winged seeds, such as ash, tulip poplar, maples and lindens. In the course of some 12 years after the field was abandoned, I began to see seedlings of these trees springing up all over the field. I also noticed some sprouting tree seedlings which had been scattered by the birds. Among these were those of rebuds, staghorn sumacs, blackgum, dogwood and others.

The bird also "planted" some highly valuable vines, among which I began to see the blackberry and dewberry vines. In time, these produced a fine crop of berries; soon more birds began to range in the field. I was glad when I saw that some of them had begun to build nests in the shrubs and vines. Among the first birds to nest in the field were the chipping sparrows, cardinals and field sparrows.

IN MEMORY

of Harry Hyden, who passed away Oct. 22, 1974

My Dad was a coal miner,
He worked hard all his life
To provide for his family;
He loved his children and wife.
He would go to church on Sunday,
And give God thanks for all he had.
After he became a Christian
You never saw him mad.
Dad was a trusting man;
His word was good as gold;
It all stayed the same
After he had grown old.
When it came time for him
To cross over on the other side,
My Dad just went to sleep—
I don't believe he ever died.
He is sitting there with Jesus watching from heaven above.

Sadly missed by his Wife and Children
(Poem written by Herman May)

I was also glad the day I found a dozen or so tiny cedars springing up in the field. These would soon add a touch of evergreen beauty to the field. These cedars were in the juniper family and bear large, blue berries, which is the favorite food of cedar waxwings. I envisioned the time when I'd see a flock of cedar waxwings stopping in the field to feed on the berries.

Any old field with plenty of birds ranging in it will not long remain without some fine trees. In due time, I began to see the grasses and clovers appearing like magic. The clovers soon clothed the land with scenic beauty. The grasses spread up hill and down dale and clothed the old field with a plush green mantle every spring.

For some 60 years, that rock-strewn hillside field has been solely under the care and keeping of nature and her many helpers. Now it has been fully reclaimed. It has become a piece of lovely woodlands, with birds, wild flowers and trees. The climax plants that dominate the field are tulip trees, white ash, redbud, dogwood, persimmon, pawpaws, black locust, black and white oak and sumac. There the tulip trees (yellow poplar) have formed dense stands of tall and slender trees, about 60 feet high; in due time, they will make valuable lumber trees. Today there is a great drain on the supply of yellow poplars which furnish the bulk of pulp for books and newspapers.

Many beautiful wild flowers have appeared in the field, and these readily adapted themselves to the acid soil. The last summer I visited the field, I found the following: Horsemint, bergamot, black cohosh (rattleweed), violets, thimbleflower, daisies and black-eyed Susans.

The most interesting birds, and the last to establish a residence in the reclaimed field, were the ovenbirds. I knew there had to be a layer of fallen leaves on the ground for them, as they build their oven-shaped nests on the ground, out of dry leaves. I soon began to hear the loud-ringing cries of these birds, and their songs seemed to rejuvenate the field and restore its original beauty. Their cries of "Teacher—teacher—TEACH!" resounded far across the hills and were heart-warming for me to hear.

Nature, working over a period of some 60 years, has done a marvelous job of restoring the woodland beauty of the abandoned field. One of my students of Ecology wrote the following tribute to Nature's good work:

"I am nature, the mother of all life, the builder and guardian of the earth; the healer of the wounds and scars inflicted by man; I abhor the nakedness of the land and I clothe it with velvety grass and green verdure. Let man learn of my ways, respect my laws and refrain from destroying the beauty I have created for the delight of his heart and the inspiration of his soul."

Examination Scores Held Open Record

Frankfort, Ky.—There is no legal prohibition against releasing licensing board examination scores in Kentucky, according to an opinion from the state Attorney General's Office.

The opinion, written by Carl Miller, assistant attorney general, was issued to J. H. Voige, executive secretary for the Kentucky Board of Pharmacy. Voige had questioned the propriety of releasing such information to colleges of pharmacy and other institutions of agencies.

Citing KRS chapter 315 and Kentucky's Open Records Law, KRS 61.870-61.884, Miller concluded that Kentucky has no statute setting up a special right of privacy as to scores made on licensing board examinations.

Census Report Says Farmers Lost Money

You wouldn't call farming one of this county's more profitable businesses. The market value of all agricultural products sold by the 228 farms in Floyd county in 1974 amounted to $234,000, while production expenses were $291,000. This is the farm picture in the county according to a preliminary report of the 1974 Census of Agriculture by the U. S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of the Census. The figures are for farms qualifying under the definition first used for the 1959 Census of Agriculture: A farm includes all agricultural operations conducted at any time during the census year under the control of an individual management, provided that sales of agricultural products amounted to, or normally would amount to, at least $250 for places of less than 10 acres or $50 for places of 10 acres or more. Figures for farms with sales of $2,500 or more are shown for 1974 and 1969. These farms accounted for $118,000 of all agricultural products sold in 1974 and $103,000 in 1969. There were 17 of these farms in 1974, compared with 20 five years earlier. The average size increased from 257 to 436 acres during the five years. The value per acre increased from $154 to $308 raising the average value per farm from $39,597 to $134,444. Farms reporting less than $1,000 in sales numbered 74 in 1974. The value of agricultural products sold on these farms totaled $11,000.

East Kentucky Power May Buy 90 Million Tons of Coal

Frankfort, Ky.—East Kentucky Power Cooperative has signed a 60-day option for the purchase of some 90 million tons of low sulphur coal still underground somewhere in Eastern Kentucky, according to the utility's president and general manager, Ronald L. Rainson. Rainson revealed this during a Public Service Commission (PSC) hearing on East Kentucky's proposal to add a second generating unit of 500 megawatts to its present 300-megawatt plant near Maysville. He said East Kentucky would not have to build an $89 million "scrubber" system for the removal of sulfur dioxide at the unit if the coal transaction were to be completed. East Kentucky estimated that the second generator will cost more than $380 million.

Under cross-examination by Mason County Atty. Bernard Hargett, Rainson said East Kentucky was presently testing the coal's sulphur content. He said the name of the seller and the location of the coal could not be revealed until the business proposition was finalized. Rainson has stated that East Kentucky's power requirements have doubled in the past six years. Utility officials contend the second unit will be needed by 1980. East Kentucky presently serves some 225,000 customers through 18 co-ops. Richards H. Breckencamp, East Kentucky's engineering manager, said the utility hasn't extensively researched the possibility of obtaining extra power from neighboring utilities in 1980. He did conclude that the second unit would be required, however. Commission member William Gentry allowed each side 15 days to file written briefs with the PSC. The Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office is also intervening in the case.

About 25 Maysville residents attended the Oct. 11 hearing in protest of the construction. Dennis Redmond, Maysville city manager, had testified at a Sept. 23 hearing on the issue that East Kentucky had not followed through on a commitment to share the cost of a nearby industrial park. Redmond said 100 of the initial 247 acres set aside for the park could now be used for sludge deposits from an East Kentucky "scrubber" system. During that previous hearing Redmond stated the park was "dead." Maysville residents have claimed that the town is polluted by an existing power plant in nearby Ohio fueled by coal. East Kentucky's first Maysville unit is scheduled to begin operation next spring.

Italian Journalists Tour Bluegrass Farm

Lexington, Ky.—The fluid accents of Italian blended with the soft neighing of thoroughbred horses here recently when a group of Italian journalists visited Spendthrift, the Bluegrass horse farm owned by Leslie Combs II. Visiting the farm on a tour coordinated by the Kentucky Department of Commerce, the editors and business writers from throughout Italy were the guests of the Florence, Ky., firm, Swedcast Corporation.

On the Spendthrift tour, the visitors saw such well-known horses as Nashua, Wajima, Majestic Prince and Proud Clarion. The visit was described as a public relations tour sponsored by Swedcast's Italian parent company, Montedison Chemical Corp., one of the largest chemical companies in the world. Among the company officials attending the tour were Swedcast Corp. president, Achille Passi, who did double duty as an interpreter, and plant manager Jerry Powell.

The journalists and editors attending the American tour represented leading newspapers and financial magazines throughout Italy. Officials of Swedcast said that in addition to seeing the actual plant operations, the journalists were being shown some of the facets of American life in the area of plant locations. Although Montedison is not currently planning any additional plants in Kentucky, Swedcast officials did not rule out the possibility of plant expansions at the Florence facility in the future.

The Florence company employs approximately 350 persons engaged in the production of acrylics, a type of plastic with an assortment of uses. Montedison also operates an American plant in Neal, W. Va., and is constructing a $100 million plant in Houston, Texas.

FCEA Board Meet Termed 'Democratic'

The Floyd County Education Association board of directors convened last week for what could be termed an extremely democratic session, since most of its final decisions are to be based on rank-and-file consultation.

Attending the meeting held in the local KEA office were Edgar Bingham, president; William Patton, vice-president; John Maddox, president-elect; Shirley Stewart, secretary, and district directors, Shelby Draughn, Joyce Watson and Blanche Dingus. Assisting in an advisory position was Betty Rowland, KEA Uni-serve Consultant.

The Association's president pointed out that the Education Finance and Salary Scheduling Committee will definitely be working for the benefit of the teachers. It was decided to canvass the membership to ascertain feelings toward committee composition and salary distribution. Nadine Hicks, a Clark Elementary reading teacher, has been named chairman of this committee.

Personnel of several local schools brought before the board of directors the question of teachers' personal leaves. The board decided to act as a committee to examine the whole area of leaves, with an emphasis on personal leave. Following consultation with the membership, the board will devote most of its November meeting to this matter.

President Bingham announced the resignation of James Stratton, educational district director from the Mud Creek area. Unanimously elected as his replacement was Forrest Cury, assistant principal at the Betsy Layne school.

The possibility of rendering to the EKEA Resolutions Committee a resolution pertaining to life certificates for teachers on a basis of experience instead of a fifth year program was discussed and tabled for the present.

The board concurred that teachers who contribute to KEPAC are due representation. An IEPAC Committee is to be established before the first of the year by membership election. In addition to the Floyd education association president and vice-president, who are automatically members in view of their positions, three persons will be named. The building representatives will be responsible for the distribution and collection of ballots in their individual schools.

The board of directors reaffirmed its past policy in serving as the Program Committee. Members are to be consulted as to choice of assembly location and program preference for the annual FCEA meeting to be held in April. Teachers are requested to submit their choices to the building representatives in their individual schools.

The FCEA executive board will meet next at the Martin Elementary School Monday, November 8, at 4:15 p.m.

Woody Herman's Big Band To Be Here

Woody Herman, one of the giants of the big band era, will be here Tuesday evening at the Prestonsburg High School gymnasium where he will lead his Thundering Herd in the opening of the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series. A legend in his own time, Herman, whose "Caldonia" and "Woodchopper's Ball" were not just hits but bywords in the 40's, is an important part of today's music scene. In addition to conducting college seminars where he and members of the Herd not only perform but instruct, Herman also does many high school lecture concerts where he and the band perform several numbers and then discuss the drug problem. Last October, Houston, Texas declared "Woody Herman Day" which was concluded with a televised concert by Woody and the Thundering Herd in the Astrodome.

The concert here will begin at 8 p.m., and season tickets are still available for this and the following five presentations.

Carroll Says U.S. Help On Coal Roads Necessary

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Julian M. Carroll today called upon U. S. Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. to visit Kentucky and see for himself the desperate condition of the state's coal haul roads.

Gov. Carroll's invitation came at the end of a statement made here this morning in which he suggested that federal passage of a national fuels severance tax might be one way to fund a program of maintenance and rehabilitation for coal-carrying roads, both in Kentucky and other coal-producing states.

It was delivered before a public hearing convened here by the Federal Highway Administration to investigate energy transportation needs nationally. Speaking for nearly 30 minutes, Gov. Carroll began by saying: "Kentucky's roads are inadequate to meet the present demands placed on them by coal traffic, much less the increased demand that our federal government has estimated we will have to transport to supply our share of the nation's energy requirements."

An immediate program of maintenance and rehabilitation for Kentucky's coal haul roads is needed, he said. "(And) a national severance tax—not limited to coal but applied to all fuel—would assign the cost where it belongs and distribute it fairly."

As part of such a tax formula, he also stressed that those states already collecting a fuels severance tax—Kentucky's severance tax on coal will bring in $118 million this year, he said—should be granted a credit against any national tax that may be enacted.

He also called upon Congress to establish a national energy policy which would encourage all levels of government and private industry to address all aspects of the energy problem.

The Governor went on to note that Kentucky has for three years been the leading coal producer in the nation, last year producing 144 million tons of the needed fuel. The federal government has estimated that Kentucky's production could reach a quarter-billion tons a year by 1985.

Between 80 and 90 per cent of that production is being used now for power generation by electric utility companies in 22 states.

But "The road system on which much of the coal industry depends is breaking down. We are not even holding our own in 1976," he said.

"Engineers of the Bureau of Highways tell me that a complete solution of the problems we face on coal-haul roads in Kentucky could cost $2.7 billion spread over a 10-year program—if we started today," he said.

Even if it were possible to cut that estimate to a minimum, the state still would be unable to come up with enough money by itself to provide for an adequate coal haul road system, he said.

The current biennial budget already includes $25 million to be spent on improving the "so-called energy roads in coal-producing counties," he said.

An additional $175 million also will be allocated through the sale of bonds, financed by an increased coal severance tax, to link the Appalachian highway system in the Eastern Kentucky coal fields with the Daniel Boone Parkway.

But, Gov. Carroll indicated, those two programs alone are far from giving Kentucky the coal road relief it needs.

"Kentuckians and all Americans should expect the federal government and the Commonwealth (of Kentucky) to work together to provide the roads needed to move the coal," he said.

The Governor reiterated the program which he proposed before the Senate Public Works Subcommittee on Transportation last May 26 in Washington when he testified that Kentucky's immediate dollar needs for coal road improvement and maintenance amounted to at least $100 million annually over the next 10 years.

Calling his proposal both "reasonable and realistic," Gov. Carroll said again that Kentucky would meet 30 per cent of the cost of such a program.

"I repeat it now simply to give evidence that Kentucky expects to be a partner (with the federal government), and carry its weight in any program for coal haul roads," he said.

The Governor also touched on the state's longstanding problem in the enforcement of weight restrictions on Kentucky's coal haul roads.

SENATE VOTES END TO 'EMERGENCIES'

WASHINGTON—The Senate has passed a bill to end the state of national emergency under which Americans have lived for 43 years.

Upon agreement by the House to technical amendments, four presidential declarations of national emergency will be terminated two years after President Ford signs the bill into law.

The four emergencies still in effect that will end are:

—The March 9, 1933, proclamation of President Franklin D. Roosevelt to order a bank holiday and deal with the economic crisis of the great depression.

—The Korean War emergency proclaimed by President Harry Truman Dec. 16, 1950.

—The postal strike emergency proclaimed by President Richard M. Nixon March 23, 1967.

—The international economic emergency proclaimed by Nixon Aug. 15, 1971, to implement currency restrictions and control foreign trade.

The bill provides that future presidential proclamations of a national emergency will end automatically in one year, unless renewed.

Auxier, Martin Rate Increases Granted on Gas

The Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) has granted rate increases to the Auxier Road Gas Co. and to two Martin gas companies.

Auxier Road received a $25,122 rate increase. The utility had requested an additional $39,938.

The Sept. 30 PSC order noted that Auxier Road's requested 32.9 per cent rate increase would produce rates in excess of those found "fair, just and reasonable." The order further stated that Auxier's allowed increase would permit the company to have a reasonable return on its investment while also covering operating expenses.

Auxier Road customers will now pay minimum monthly bills of $4.

A public hearing was held in the commission's Frankfort office June 29 on the request: The consumer protection division of the attorney general's office intervened.

The two Martin increases were due to an increase in the wholesale cost of gas from the firm's supplier, Columbia Gas of Kentucky.

A Sept. 28 commission order grants a $3,625 increase to the Martin Gas Co. The utility's customers will pay minimum monthly bills of $3.15.

A Sept. 29 order allows the Buck's Branch Gas Co. to pass on a $875 increase to its customers. Customer bills will be a $3.20 minimum.

A purchased gas adjustment clause adopted by the PSC in November, 1975, outlines conditions for rate adjustments due to an increase or decrease in the wholesale cost of gas.

Prestonsburg—Almost 100 Years Ago

This photograph, made in the 1880's, shows Prestonsburg when "the great open spaces" was the predominant feature. The photo shows the river bank at the upper limits of the village, with Second Avenue the only main street visible, although Court street was in use. Along hillside (right background) is the old county road. (Photo from Photographic Archives of Alice Lloyd College.)

Consumer Comments

By ROBERT F. STEPHENS
(Attorney General)

Buying a new car? If you are purchasing a new car this fall, you may wonder why the sales tax isn't based on the amount you actually pay for the automobile. The reason is that the motor vehicle usage tax is computed in a specific manner prescribed by Kentucky law and is not the same as the regular 5 pct. sales tax.

In Kentucky, consumers pay a 5 pct. motor vehicle usage tax on 90 pct. of the retail price. The retail price is computed by adding the factory-advertised delivery price, better known as the "list price" and shown in the "National Automobile Dealers Association's Official Car Guide," plus the advertised delivery price of any optional equipment and transportation or destination charges. The list price on imported cars is based on the price at port-of-entry, plus the other charges. Thus, if you buy the car for less than the "list price", you will pay taxes on an amount greater than what you actually paid for the car.

The same is true of used cars. The retail price of a used car is based on the "NADA Official Used Car Guide", plus optional equipment, minus the trade-in allowance. The trade-in allowance is equal to the value of the car taken in trade, but may not exceed the fair market value of the used car.

The retail price of older-model used cars not listed in the NADA price manual is determined by taking a percentage of the last value appearing in the NADA manual. The amount deducted is 75 per cent of the value one year after removal from the list, 50 per cent for two years, and 25 per cent for three years. All other model used cars are computed as 10 per cent of the purchase price with the minimum taxable retail value being $100.

Besides the motor vehicle usage tax, be sure that you know exactly what is included in the price you pay for your car. Know the price, finance charges, insurance charges, if any, license fees, and all other costs. Make sure all of these are accurately computed.

If you have a consumer complaint, write to the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky., 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the consumer hotline, 1-800-372-2960.

OFFICIALS TO TESTIFY IN COAL ROAD HEARING

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Gov. Julian Carroll and Sen. Walter Dee Huddleston, D-Ky., will be among those testifying today at the Federal Highway Administration's public hearing on coal haul highways.

Huddleston said Monday that the nation's demand for increased energy production has increased road damage particularly in Eastern Kentucky.

"I think it is entirely proper that the federal government help meet the cost of maintaining these highways," he added.

BOND ORDINANCE

ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF PRESTONSBURG, FLOYD COUNTY, KENTUCKY, AUTHORIZING THE ISSUANCE OF FORTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS ($45,000) OF THE CITY OF PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY, "IMPROVEMENT ASSESSMENT BONDS - SEWER PROJECT OF 1976," IN ORDER TO PROVIDE THE COSTS (NOT OTHERWISE PROVIDED) OF CONSTRUCTING AND INSTALLING SANITARY SEWERS AND NECESSARY APPURTENANT AND INCIDENTAL FACILITIES TO PROVIDE SEWER SERVICE TO BENEFITED PROPERTIES...

WHEREAS, It has been and is the opinion and judgment of the mayor and members of the City Council of Prestonsburg, Floyd County, Kentucky, that it was and is necessary and desirable in the interest of the public health, safety, and general welfare of the owners and inhabitants of benefited properties within the Mays Branch Area within said city, as identified with particularity in this Ordinance...

WHEREAS, The City Council of the City has determined that said proposed sewer facilities, consisting of collection lines, intercepting sewers, manholes and necessary appurtenant facilities, identified hereafter in this Ordinance as the "Sewer Project of 1976," may feasibly be financed under the provisions and authority of KRS Chapter 107, through the authorization and sale of the City's "Improvement Assessment Bonds," payable as to principal and interest solely from annual assessments to be made against all benefited properties upon the "assessed value basis," as described and authorized in KRS Chapter 107, and

WHEREAS, in and by the Ordinance of said City adopted by the City Council of the City in a meeting held on June 21, 1976, then and there signed by the Mayor, attested, and subsequently published, and now in full force and effect, the City Council proposed and initiated proceedings for the undertaking and financing of said "Sewer Project," under KRS Chapter 107, and provided for a public hearing which was thereafter duly held at the designated meeting place on June 28, 1976, upon which occasion the owners of all properties to be benefited by said Sewer Project were given an opportunity to appear and be heard, and WHEREAS, at a regular meeting of the City Council duly held on July 1, 1976, the City Council received a written report of the proceedings had at said public hearing and thereafter, upon due consideration, adopted an Ordinance determining that said proposed Sewer Project should be undertaken and financed pursuant to the provisions of KRS Chapter 107 (being the "Second Ordinance" designated by KRS Chapter 107), and thereafter said Ordinance was signed by the Mayor, attested by the City Clerk, and duly published as provided by law, and

WHEREAS, on August 11, 1976 a Notice to Property Owners in Mays Branch Area was published in the Floyd County Times which stated that if no action was taken by the owners of such properties within thirty (30) days after the publication of such notice, all such actions should thereafter be forever barred, and

WHEREAS, competitive bids for the construction of such Sewer Project have been duly received, publicly opened, considered, compared and awarded to best bidder or bidders, it has been determined to the satisfaction of the City Council that the aggregate of the costs of such project will be such that issuance of Forty-five Thousand Dollars ($45,000) face amount of bonds will be sufficient to furnish sufficient funds, which when added to other funds available for such Sewer Project, will be sufficient to finance same, and on the first day of November, 19__

and in like manner to pay solely from said special fund, interest on said principal sum from the date hereof until the payment of principal at the rate of _____ percent (____pct.) per annum, payable semi-annually on April 1 and October 1 of each year, beginning May 1, 1977, until payment of principal in full, except as the provisions hereinafter set forth with respect to prior redemption may be and become applicable hereto, such interest accruing at and prior to the date of maturity hereof, to be payable only upon presentation and surrender of the interest coupons hereto attached, both interest and principal being payable in lawful money of the United States of America, without deduction for exchange or collection charges, at the main office of the Bank of Josephine, in the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

This Bond is one of a duly authorized series of Bonds, numbered from 1 to 90, inclusive, in the aggregate principal amount of Forty-five Thousand Dollars ($45,000), issued in the denomination of Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00), all of like form, tenor and effect (except possibly for numbers, maturities, interest rates and provisions as to prior redemption), and this Bond and the issue of which it forms a part and all interest coupons appertaining thereto (hereinafter sometimes collectively referred to as "the Bonds" or "these Bonds") are authorized and issued for the purpose of providing funds for the payment of the costs, not otherwise provided, or constructing and installing, solely at the cost of the owners of properties to be benefited thereby, a sewerage system, to provide sewer service to the "benefited properties," being generally described as all of the lots and parcels of land within the Mays Branch Area of the said City of Prestonsburg, and which benefited properties are more particularly described in the Ordinance (the "Bond Ordinance") of the City Council of the City authorizing the issuance of the Bonds, and in all previous proceedings required by the provisions of Chapter 107 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes, reference thereto, as shown in the official records of said City, being hereby made for particular identification of each and every lot and parcel of such benefited properties (said Project being identified in said Bond Ordinance as the "Sewer Project of 1976.").

These Bonds have been authorized by said Bond Ordinance duly enacted by the City Council of said City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, under and in full compliance with the Constitution and Statutes of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, including among others, Chapter 107 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes. The Bonds do not constitute an indebtedness of said City, but are payable solely from the special fund herein referred to.

The Bonds of the issue of which this bond is one as may be outstanding from time to time, are subject to redemption by said City prior to maturity, as a whole or from time to time in part, in inverse numerical order, on any interest payment date falling on or after May 1,

This Bond is fully negotiable, shall have all of the qualities and incidents of a negotiable instrument and shall pass by delivery unless registered as to principal upon the registration books of the City at the main office of the Bank of Josephine, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, as Bond Registrar, and such registration noted hereon, after which no transfer of this Bond shall be valid unless made on said books at the written request of the registered owner or his authorized representative and similarly noted on the reverse side hereof; but this Bond may be discharged from registration by being in like manner registered to bearer, whereupon full negotiability and transferability by delivery shall be restored; but this Bond may thereafter be registered again from time to time in the name of the owner, as before. Registration of this Bond, as aforesaid, shall not affect the negotiability of the coupons appurtenant hereto, which shall continue to be transferable by delivery merely and shall remain payable to bearer. The City and Trustee may deem and treat the bearer of any coupon hereto appertaining, whether or not this Bond be so registered, or if this Bond be registered as herein authorized, the person in whose name the same is registered, as the absolute owner for the purpose of receiving payment and for all other purposes.

This Bond is exempt from taxation in the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

IT IS HEREBY CERTIFIED, RECITED AND DECLARED that all acts, conditions and things required to exist, to happen and to be performed precedent to and in the authorization, sale and delivery of this Bond, have existed, have happened and have been performed in due and proper time, form and manner; that the Bonds do not constitute an indebtedness of said City within the meaning of any limitations imposed by the Constitution or Statutes of the Commonwealth of Kentucky; that said City has made provision for the levying of annual assessments solely against the properties to be benefited and provided sewer service by said "Sewer Project of 1976," at such rates in each year as to produce such amounts as will provide for payment of the principal of and interest on the Bonds, as said Bonds and interest coupons mature from time to time; that provision has been made for the setting aside and segregating of the proceeds of said assessments into a separate fund for the payment of the principal and interest on said Bonds, the same to be known and designated as the "City of Prestonsburg Improvement Assessment Bond and Interest Redemption Fund - Sewer Project of 1976," that said City has, and does hereby pledge its full faith that it will diligently and in timely fashion exert every effort and exhaust, at the City's expense, all remedies available to it for the benefit and protection of the holders of any of said Bonds, including enforcement to judgment and decretal sale of liens upon benefited properties, all as provided in Chapter 107 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes; and that this Bond has been authorized and issued under and in full compliance with the Constitution and applicable laws of the Commonwealth of Kentucky as aforesaid.

SECTION 7. COUPONS AND INTEREST PAYMENT DATES MATURING BEFORE DELIVERY.

Before executing any Bond, the City Clerk shall detach and cancel all matured coupons, if there are any such matured coupons thereon and if any such coupons have been printed, and shall deliver to the Paying Agent and to the purchaser a certificate as to such cancellation.

SECTION 8. LEVY OF ANNUAL ASSESSMENT; CAPITALIZED INTEREST.

In accordance with the mandatory requirements of KRS Chapter 107, the first annual Improvement Benefit Assessment is hereby levied upon benefited properties, as defined herein, for the calendar year 1977; and the City of Prestonsburg covenants that so long as any of the Bonds authorized by this Ordinance shall remain outstanding and unpaid, there shall be levied and there is hereby levied (beginning as of January 1, 1977) and there shall continue to be levied hereafter until the retirement of all Bonds issued pursuant to this Ordinance, an annual improvement benefit assessment against (the land values of) each and every one of the real properties benefited by said "Sewer Project of 1976," which properties are herein defined and identified as all of those properties which have heretofore been identified with particularity in the previously adopted "Second Ordinance" required by KRS 107.050, and constitute the same properties identified with particularity in Section 1C of this Ordinance.

As required by KRS 107.130, such annual improvement assessment against (the land values of) said benefited properties shall be in the proportion that the assessed value of said benefited lands in each year, as shown by the assessment records which are used for the basis of general City taxation from time to time. The rate of such levy or assessment in each year shall be sufficient to generate or produce, in the aggregate, a sum sufficient to provide for the prymant of principal of and interest on the maturing Bonds and interest coupons, as authorized by the Ordinance and as required by KRS 107.090, and shall be sufficient, in the case of the initial levy for the calendar year 1977, to produce, in addition, a sum equal to 20 pct. of future average annual principal and interest requirements of said Bonds, and such rate of levy or assessment shall also be adjusted in each year to the extent necessary to generate or produce said required funds with a due and proper allowance for failure of collections and for a margin of safety to afford reasonable assurance against default, and may, upon order of the governing body of the City, be further adjusted by surplus amounts, if any, out of the proceeds of the Bonds, required by KRS 107.110 to be deposited into the Sinking Fund, to the extent, if any, that such funds cannot be used to purchase or redeem Bonds under the provisions of Section 12 hereof.

In the case, if any, of properties as to which there is no record assessment for general City taxation, as in the case of public property or property owned by religious, charitable or educational institutions, the same (except that which may be owned by the Federal Government, unless the Federal Government shall have consented by appropriate action of Congress to the assessment of the same for local benefits) shall be specifically assessed by the proper assessing officers; and for their services in making such special assessments, reasonable compensation may be made from the special fund herein provided for; and the rate of the annual assessment in each year shall be such as to take into account the cost, if any, of making such special assessments, in addition to the sum required to produce funds adequate for the payment of maturing interest and principal, with proper allowance for failure of collections and for an adequate and sufficient margin of safety, as hereinabove provided.

There shall be set aside from the proceeds of the Bonds issued pursuant to this Ordinance, as expressly authorized by KRS 107.110, an amount equal to the accrued interest collected from the purchaser of said Bonds from the most recent interest due date to the date of delivery of the Bonds, plus an additional amount, which when added to such accrued interest, will be sufficient to pay the interest on such bonds until there are sufficient collections from the special improvement assessment to pay such interest. Said sum shall be deposited as soon as the bond proceeds are received by said City into the "City of Prestonsburg Improvement Assessment Bond and Interest Redemption Fund - Sewer Project of 1976," hereinafter created, and shall be applied in due course as above set forth, or to defray interim financing interest costs during said prior of construction of the Project. The rate of such special improvement assessment against said benefited properties shall, in each year, be not less than a rate adequate to produce sufficient funds for the payment of the maturing principal of and the interest on the outstanding Bonds authorized by this Ordinance, at such respective coupon rates as may be established at the time of their public sale and made applicable, and to provide and maintain said 20 pct. reserve (the Debt Service Reserve) and with due allowance, as aforesaid, for failure of collection and for a margin of safety to provide reasonable assurance against the occurrence of default. Any surplus accumulated from time to time in excess of principal and interest requirements to become due and payable prior to the due date of the next ensuing assessment, and in excess of said 20 pct. Debt Service Reserve, may be used and employed to redeem Bonds in advance of maturity in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance.

Beginning with the year 1977, the levy of the annual improvement assessment shall be made concurrently with the levying of taxes for general City purposes, and such levy shall be payable in the same manner and at the same time or times, as general City taxes, and shall be placed upon the general City tax bill in each year, in accordance with the provisions of KRS 107.150, unless the governing body of the City is able to devise a more convenient or practical legal method of effecting such collections.

If and to the extent that any improvement assessment levy or sewer usage charge shall be inadequate for the respective purposes thereof, the City may, and when necessary shall, levy additional sewer improvement assessments and/or additional sewer usage charges if and to the extent needed to meet such requirements; and may further, in order to meet the respective requirements as aforesaid, borrow against the respective anticipated proceeds of such levy and/or of such sewer usage charge.

If there shall ever be a failure on the part of the City to make a levy of such special improvement assessment in any year, the levy made for the preceding year shall automatically become effective.

Pursuant to KRS 107.160, a lien shall exist upon all benefited properties for the amount of each and every annual levy of said special improvement assessment.

If the payment of any portion of such assessment payable in whatever manner is determined by the governing body of the City, shall remain delinquent for a period of thirty (30) days or more after the due date thereof, the amount of such assessment, with an added penalty of six percent (6 pct.) thereof, and with interest thereon at the rate of six percent (6 pct.) per annum, may be collected, and the lien for said assessment, together with such penalty and interest, may be enforced by a suit in equity in the name of or by the City for the use and benefit of the Sinking Fund hereinafter created.

SECTION 9. CREATION OF SINKING FUND.

There is hereby created on a special fund (herein sometimes called the "Sinking Fund"), separate and apart from all other funds, accounts and moneys of the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, designated as the "City of Prestonsburg Improvement Assessment Bond and Interest Redemption Fund - Sewer Project of 1976," the same to be maintained and deposited from time to time in the Bank of Josephine, Prestonsburg, Kentucky (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the "depository bank"). There shall be deposited into said Sinking Fund as received from time to time, the amount of accrued interest collected from the purchaser of the Bonds, the sum hereinabove provided in Section 8 above to be set aside from the proceeds of the sale of the Bonds for payment of interest during construction, and there shall further be deposited into said Sinking Fund all proceeds of the special improvement assessment levied by this Ordinance. Said Fund shall at all times be maintained separate and apart from all other funds and revenues of said City, and the same shall be applied (except insofar as necessary for the payment of the reasonable expense of assessing tax-exempt benefited properties solely to the payment of principal of and interest on all Bonds authorized by this Ordinance as the same shall mature and become payable from time to time. All moneys held in said Sinking Fund and in said Debt Service Reserve portion thereof shall be deposited in the payee bank and to the extent that same shall cause deposits of the City in said Bank to exceed the amount insured by the FDIC, the same shall be continuously secured by a valid pledge of U. S. obligations, as defined herein, having an equivalent market value, or such portion of such account as is designated by the governing body of the City shall be invested for the benefit of such account in such U. S. obligations having a maturity date prior to the date when the sums invested will be needed for meeting interest and/or principal payments, to mature or be called, as provided in KRS 66.480.

Such investments shall be liquidated and/or changed from time to time upon orders of the governing body of the City. All sums received from said special assessments and so deposited (except as to the expense of assessing tax-exempt benefited properties, if any, as above set forth), are hereby irrevocably pledged for the payment of the principal of and interest on the Bonds authorized by this Ordinance and shall never be applied for any other purpose until all of the Bonds have been retired.

SECTION 10. PAYMENT ACCOUNT.
On or before the fifteenth day of March and September in each year, the Bank of Josephine, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, which is the depository of the Sinking Fund, shall transfer from the Sinking Fund (and from the Debt Service Reserve, if necessary), a sum equal to the interest, or a sum equal to the principal and interest, as the case may be, becoming due on the next following respective April 1 or October 1, and deposit the same in a "CITY OF PRESTONSBURG 1976 BOND AND INTEREST PAYMENT ACCOUNT," hereby created.

SECTION 11. MONTHLY OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE CHARGE.

The City Council further covenants and agrees that so long as any of the Bonds authorized by this Ordinance remain outstanding and unpaid, it will charge and collect or cause to be charged and collected from all users of its entire sewer system, a monthly sewer rate or charge as is necessary to provide for the operation and maintenance of said sewer system (Project), including any applicable charges or fees for the collection of said annual assessments and/or said additional rates and charges.

SECTION 12. DISPOSITION OF PROCEEDS OF SALE OF BONDS.

Whenever the Bonds authorized or permitted to be issued by this Ordinance shall be sold and delivered, there shall forthwith, out of the proceeds of the sale of said Bonds, be deposited in the Sinking Fund hereinabove created, an amount equal to the accrued interest collected from the purchaser of said Bonds, representing accrued interest from the date of the Bonds to the date of their delivery, plus an amount equal to any premium in excess of face value received by the City as a part of the sale price of said Bonds, plus any capitalized interest, as noted in Section 8 herein. All temporary financing obligations, if any, of the City incurred in anticipation of the issuance of said Bonds, shall next immediately be paid, and all evidence of such interim financing shall be cancelled forthwith. Said amount so deposited, or representing interest which will accrue during such period on the Bonds and/or on interim financing arranged in contemplation of the issuance of said Bonds, shall be held in said Fund and may be used to pay interest coupons as same mature, or to pay interest on any temporary loans borrowed by the City in anticipation of the sale of the Bonds.

Thereafter, the entire remaining proceeds of such sale shall be applied to the extent necessary, toward defraying the cost of the construction of said Sewer Project of 1976, including administrative and legal expenses. Pending expenditure of such remaining proceeds for such purpose, such remaining proceeds shall be deposited in a special construction account at the depository bank, said account at said bank to be called the "City of Prestonsburg Sewer Project Construction Account," hereinafter sometimes called the "Construction Account." As provided in KRS 66.480, said deposit in said Bank, to the extent that same may cause the aggregate deposits of the City in said Bank to be in excess of the amounts insured by the FDIC, shall be collateralized by U. S. obligations (as defined herein), having a market value equivalent to such excess; or to the extent that such deposits exceed the amount estimated by the Engineer to be required for disbursements during the ensuing ninety days, such Bank may invest for the benefit of such account whatever portion of such account is designated by the governing body of the City in U. S. obligations maturing at such time or times as to make such funds available when needed for construction purposes, and in any event not later than eighteen (18) months from the date of such investment. Prior to the expenditure of such proceeds, same shall be subject to a first and paramount lien and charge in favor of the holders of the Bonds authorized herein, and said funds shall be held as further security for such holders until paid as herein provided.

Payment from said Construction Account for such construction costs shall be made upon vouchers approved by the Engineer having charge of supervising such construction, he certifying in each instance that the voucher represents a sum actually earned by and due to the proposed payee under a contract with said City for work performed and/or materials furnished in connection with the construction of said Sewer Project of 1976, or represents a sum necessary to be expended for land or rights-of-way necessary to be acquired by the City in connection with said Project, or for any other related portion of the cost of said Project as set out herein.

To the extent that any such payment shall be for items not relating to construction contracts and compensation of the Engineers, it shall be certified by the City Treasurer, with the approving countersignature of the Mayor, that such payment represents an expenditure which may be properly made from the proceeds of the aforesaid Bonds.

All checks drawn against said Construction Account shall be signed by the City Treasurer and countersigned by the Mayor or by such other City officials as may be designated by the City Council of the City, and accompanied by such voucher before being honored by the depository of the Construction Account.

A true and accurate accounting shall be made of all deposits in and disbursements from said Construction Account, and at no time shall there be any commingling with other moneys of said City of Prestonsburg. There shall also be deposited in said Account by officials of said City, from time to time, all moneys received from any and all sources which are obtained for the purpose of the aforesaid Project, in order to assure sufficient available funds to complete the construction of said Sewer Project of 1976.

In the event that any unexpended balance shall remain in said Construction Account after completion of the Sewer Project of 1976, and payment of all of the costs thereof, as certified by the Engineer, such unexpended balance shall be deposited in the Sinking Fund.

SECTION 13. SALE OF BONDS.

The entire $45,000 of Bonds authorized by this Ordinance shall be offered for sale, which shall be publicly advertised, upon the basis of sealed, competitive bids, which shall be publicly opened and acted upon by the City Council; to that end, the Mayor and the City Clerk are authorized to sign an appropriate form of notice soliciting purchase bids, and to cause the same to be published in conformity with Chapter 424 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes, at least one time, not less than seven days nor more than twenty-one days prior to the designated sale date, in the Floyd County Times, which is the newspaper having the largest bona fide circulation which is published in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, and is the newspaper meeting the requirement of KRS 424.110-120, for publication, in which official publications of the City of Prestonsburg are required to be published, and one time in The Courier Journal, a daily newspaper published in Louisville, Kentucky, and having general circulation throughout the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

The published Notice, the Official Terms and Conditions of Sale of Bonds and the Official Bid Form, shall be in the customary form or forms.

Suggested forms of a "Notice of Bond Sale," the "Official Terms and Conditions of Sale of Bonds" and the "Official Bid Form," having been prepared and submitted to this Council, and the same having been examined by the City Council and found to be in order, the same are hereby approved and may be used in substantially such forms for the purposes of this section.

SECTION 14. SIGNATURE OF OFFICERS.

If any of the officers whose signatures or facsimile signatures appear on any of the Bonds or coupons cease to be such officer before delivery of the Bonds, such signatures shall nevertheless be valid for all purposes the same as if such officers had remained in office until delivery, as provided in KRS 61.390.

SECTION 15. CONTRACTUAL NATURE OF ORDINANCE.

The provisions of this Ordinance shall constitute a contract between the City and the holders of the Bonds herein authorized to be issued, and after the issuance of any of the Bonds, no change, variation or alteration of any kind in the provisions of this Ordinance shall be made in any manner except as herein provided until such time as all of said Bonds issued hereunder and the interest thereon have been paid in full; provided (a) that the governing body of the City may adopt an Ordinance to evidence the succession of another Bank (s) or Trust Company as payee bank, depository, and/or Bond Registrar and may enact any other Ordinance for any other purpose not inconsistent with the terms of this Ordinance, and which shall not impair the security of the bondholders, for the purpose of curing any ambiguity, or of curing, correcting or supplementing any defective or inconsistent provisions contained herein or in any ordinance or other proceedings pertaining hereto; and (b) provided further, that the holders or eighty percent (80 pct.) in principal amount of the Bonds at any time outstanding shall have the right to consent to, and approve the adoption of ordinances, resolutions or other proceedings, modifying or amending any of the terms or provisions contained in this Bond Ordinance, subject to the provision that this Ordinance shall not be so modified in any manner that may adversely affect the rights of any certain holders without similarly affecting the right of all holders of the Bonds then outstanding, or to reduce the percentage of the number of holders whose consent is required to effect a further modification.

SECTION 16. PUBLICATION OF ORDINANCE.

That the City Clerk is directed to publish this Ordinance in the Floyd County Times, pursuant to KRS Chapter 424, and pursuant to KRS 107.090, at the earliest possible time.

SECTION 17. THIS ORDINANCE IS THE THIRD ORDINANCE OF CHAPTER 107.

For the purpose of identification, this Ordinance is the equivalent of the "Third Ordinance" as contemplated and provided for in KRS 107.090.

SECTION 18. SEVERABILITY CLAUSE.

If any section, paragraph, clause or provision of this Ordinance shall be held invalid, the invalidity of such section, paragraph, clause or provision shall not affect any of the remaining provisions of this Ordinance.

SECTION 19. PROVISIONS IN CONFLICT REPEALED.

That all ordinances, resolutions and orders, or parts thereof, in conflict herewith, are, to the extent of such conflict, hereby repealed.

SECTION 20. EFFECTIVE DATE OF ORDINANCE.

That this Ordinance shall take effect from and after its adoption, approval and publication as provided by law.

Ky. Rivers Coalition Attacks State Cost-Sharing on Dams

Governor Julian Carroll and eight other state officials have been alerted by a "demand letter" that four contracts approved by former Governor Wendell Ford covering cost-sharing obligations at four planned Army Corps of Engineers' reservoirs were unconstitutional. The letter, issued by William B. Martin, a Louisville attorney representing the Kentucky Rivers Coalition, said the contracts violate six separate sections of the Kentucky State Constitution and several sections of the Kentucky Revised Statutes. Martin requested Carroll and other officials to "file a declaratory judgement action to void" the four contracts.

The contracts involve state assurances for the Paintsville reservoir in Johnson and Morgan counties, the Kehoe reservoir in Carter county, Yatesville reservoir in Lawrence county, and the Taylorsville reservoir in Spencer county. The contracts commit the state to obligate monies out of general revenue receipts for 50 years and to hold the federal government harmless for any damages incurred by the construction, operation, and maintenance of the projects.

The four contracts, signed in 1973 by then Governor Wendell Ford, obligated the Commonwealth to pay, at current estimates, $15 million. Chuck Hoffman, Coordinator for the KRC, a statewide landowner-environmentalist organization, stressed that $15 million is "only an estimate. The contracts provide that the Corps will determine the final costs to the state when the projects are completed five to ten years from now. In reality, the Corps has Kentucky's blank checks."

The demand letter alleged that, unless voided, the contracts will impose on Kentucky taxpayers "unconstitutional and otherwise illegal obligations; tax revenues of the Commonwealth will be dispersed illegally, landowners in the areas of Paint Creek, Blaine Creek, Tygarts Creek, and Salt River will be illegally deprived of their lands; and recreationists will be deprived of their enjoyment of these areas if not left in their natural state.

The letter is termed "demand letter" to legally advise Gov. Carroll that these contracts appear to be "clearly and plainly" in violation of specific sections of the Constitution. These sections are 28, 29, 49, 50, and 230 which:

1. Prohibit the obligation of state tax money without the approval of the General Assembly;
2. Prohibit the obligation of state tax money beyond the biennium for which the General Assembly may appropriate;
3. Prohibit obligation of anticipated future revenues beyond the biennium;
4. Prohibit obligation of the state and its taxpayers to indebtedness of a type other than that specifically permitted by the Constitution.

Martin High Class of 1956 in Reunion

The Martin High School class of 1956 held its 20-year reunion, September 4. A banner, "Welcome Home, Class of '56," greeted class members as they came into town. A smorgasbord dinner for the members and their families was held at the Hut Restaurant. Each member gave a summary of his or her life and of their families in the 20-year span.

One of their favorite teachers, Coach Denzil "Hoss" Halbert, as the principal speaker reminisced about "the good, old days." Only one member of the class, James Butler Hamilton, has died out of the 54 who were graduated. After the dinner and speaking, a dance was held at Halbert Memorial Gymnasium. The group picture was made during the dance and some of the members had already left. Not pictured are Eula (Mayo) ReFalo, Frankfort, and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Layne, Garrett. Red, White and Blue Day, Echoes 'When Boys Came Marching Home'

By HELEN PRICE STACY

When soldiers started drifting back home from service in World War I, some in Floyd county were greeted by rousing addresses made by the county's and area's most noted men. Returning Doughboys were lauded for their heroism and for their devotion to the Stars and Stripes. "Patriotism is a most noble quality," said one speaker.

In the audience was the father of Mrs. Marcella Bailey, of Langley, who a few years ago conceived the idea for Red, White and Blue Day—a day to be set aside each year to emphasize patriotism and to honor the flag and all that goes with serving one's country.

Oct. 23 is the date for this year's celebration in Prestonsburg which will see one of its biggest crowds since last year's event.

A full program is scheduled, with outstanding speakers and entertainers, according to the founder who prides herself on being a down-home type person who loves her country, family and home county as well as the flag.

This year's celebration will be the highlight of Floyd county's Bicentennial contribution to the national bicentennial, and therefore will be the biggest and best planned observance of all.

"We are expecting thousands of visitors in Prestonsburg," Mrs. Bailey said. "We invite everyone, old or young, child or grandparent. There will be something important for every age group. During October our Floyd county hills are the prettiest. I can sit in my red, white and blue swing on my front porch and look to the hills and pick our colors of the flag."

In addition to Saturday's big parade, there will be an arts and crafts show directed by Phillip Price, concession booths in charge of Mrs. Joyce Rowe, the Little Miss Red, White and Blue contest sponsored by the Allen's Woman's Club and a Little Miss Patriotic contest under the direction of the Martin Woman's Club. Ronald Frasure will be parade marshal.

"We hope everyone takes time to drive around the city and visit the park," said Mrs. Bailey. "We think Red, White and Blue Day is a good time to show off our town and county."

Anyone or any business or industry wanting to enter floats in the parade or participate in Red, White and Blue Day may contact Mrs. Sid (Marcella) Bailey at Langley or Mrs. Gorman Collins, Phone 886-2126, and Mrs. Ed Ousley, Phone 886-2163, who are in charge of entries.

"I'll see you in Prestonsburg," said Mrs. Bailey. "in my red, white and blue outfit." Then she said, "I guess everyone will be wearing bunting colors. Just come up to me and tell me who you are. I want to shake hands with everyone who still feels patriotic about our wonderful country and our flag."

By LARRY BURKE

We hear often these days about the poor in America, and we are all aware that this great country of ours has poor people. What makes a person poor? The lack of money, yes! But that is not all that makes a person poor. Money is needed to keep them alive and healthy. But something more is needed. These people must be understood. In other words, more hearts need to go out to the poor.

It must be wretched to not have the food and clothes a person needs, but the deepest feeling of despair must come when no one seems to care.

Friendliness and concern is something all people can offer. It doesn't cost much. To greet a person with a smile is a costless effort. To greet them with concern requires greatness, and how many possess this?

OUR THOUGHT TO REMEMBER: "Care and concern go hand-in-hand."

THE DANGEROUS ROAD WEIGH THE ISSUES Consider What's Best For America

Mr. Carter is for:

- Abortion, the murder of the unborn.
- Gun control, taking our guns, leaving our homes defenseless.
- Forced unionism on everybody - Hence, lost freedom.
- Increased bureaucracy, created for the one-party control, or Monopoly - hence, onward to Socialism, Communism.
- For energy sources competitive to coal - hence, Kentucky suffers.
- Easy on drugs, his connection with Rolling Stone magazine.
- Anti-moral standards, playing around with Playboy.
- Anti-free enterprise; he's not for small business.
- Forced busing, a colossal waste and consternation.
- Pardoning the draft-dodgers, even though thousands of others fought and died for America, (Is one mother's son more valuable than another's? - No, No, Never!)
- Spending us dry on wild domestic outlays.
- Tax increase for more money to waste. Who pays? The hard-working class and the small business of this country.
- Laxity on interest in defense.
- Dangerously cutting defense.
- Inflationary and inflammatory ideas.
- His flagrant, dangerous, explosive foreign policy statement in regard to Arabia on oil; very undiplomatic.
- Wavery on his ideas, vague on the solutions.

Capt. Lykins Retires As Post 9 Commander

Commissioner Truett A. Ricks, Kentucky State Police, announces the retirement of Captain Billie Lykins of the Pikeville State Police Post.

Lykins, appointed to the State Police in 1949, has served the Morehead Post and was appointed Commander of the Pikeville State Police Post in 1957.

He has received many citations from the state police for bravery and was cited by Commissioner Ricks as having "admirably fulfilled the duties and responsibilities of a commanding officer within the Kentucky State Police."

Lykins was honored at a retirement dinner on September 28 by his fellow officers, state, and county officials.

Jehovah's Witnesses Banned in Argentina

Freedom of worship has been denied the Christian society of Jehovah's Witnesses and their 604 congregations throughout Argentina, by decree signed by Jorge Rafael Videla, President of Argentina, August 31, 1976. According to Arthur D'Entremont, presiding overseer of the Allen Congregation, the branch offices of the society and all meeting places have been closed. Publishing and distributing Bibles and Bible literature is forbidden.

Mr. D'Entremont said a communication received from world headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses in Brooklyn, New York, was considered by the Allen Congregation. "We were shocked and surprised at this move by the Argentine government," he said.

The letter reported, "In ordering 'the activity of the religious association . . . prohibited in the whole territory of the nation,' the decree, issued by President Videla stated that 'freedom of worship consecrated by Articles 14 and 20 of the National Constitution of course finds itself limited in the sense that the religious ideas should not imply the violation of laws or an attempt against public order, national security, morale or good customs.'"

"According to a bill passed by the Argentine Congress in 1949," Mr. D'Entremont explained, "all religious groups except the Catholic Church were required to register. Registry of Jehovah's Witnesses was denied and in August, 1950, our work was officially proscribed.

"For five years following this proscription, close surveillance of Jehovah's Witnesses was maintained, but with the fall of the Peron government in 1955, pressure began to ease somewhat and the following year a national public assembly was held attended by over 5,000 persons.

"In 1957, however, another national assembly was interrupted by the police who invoked the Public Meeting Edict of the Chief of Police. This abridgement of the freedom of worship and of meeting guaranteed by the constitution was challenged by Jehovah's Witnesses, and on March 14, 1958, the sentence of the Chief of Police was revoked and eight articles of the Public Meeting Edict were declared illegal and unconstitutional."

Following another change in government in 1958, a number of appeals were made to various government officials and agencies to have the ban against the Christian society of Jehovah's Witnesses lifted, but despite favorable responses from several officials, the government responded negatively in 1959.

Despite the de jure proscription of the work, however, de facto acceptance continued, two public assemblies being held that same year. In the years that followed, a new building housing branch offices and a printing plant of the society of Jehovah's Witnesses was built and later enlarged, and many new meeting places or Kingdom Halls were constructed. During the last twenty-five years, the preaching work of Jehovah's Witnesses was well received by people all over Argentina, the active number of Witnesses growing from 1,416 in 1950 to 31,140 in 1975.

"With this background of favorable activity and the response our work has received among the people of Argentina," Mr. D'Entremont said concerning President Videla's decree of August 31, 1976, "we find it difficult to understand why this action should be taken after twenty-six years, when obviously no attempt has been made by these Christians 'against public order, national security, morale or good customs', as stated by President Videla in his decree. Obviously the position of Jehovah's Witnesses is misunderstood. It is our hope that liberty will soon be restored to Jehovah's Witnesses in Argentina."

Black Lung, Mine Safety 'Caught in Senate Logjam'

Pikeville—Black lung and mine safety legislation—both of which died during the final days of the 94th Congress—should be priority items on the legislative agenda when Congress reconvenes in January, Senator Walter (Dee) Huddleston said today.

Huddleston said both bills were "caught in the legislative logjam that always comes at the end of a session, but I am confident that both will be revived and pushed early during the next Congress."

The Kentucky senator said he felt that both measures would have passed the Senate "on an up and down vote," but that opponents killed them through threat of filibuster and legislative delay.

Huddleston's comments came during a one-day visit to Pikeville during which he and his staff met with constituents from the Pike county area at the courthouse.

He pointed out that both the black lung and mine safety bills passed the House and the appropriate Senate Committees, but with opponents "threatening to filibuster by amendment and the administration threatening a veto," the Senate leadership was forced to withdraw both bills from consideration.

Huddleston said opponents of the mine safety bill were prepared to introduce more than 50 amendments in order to kill the bill. Several time-consuming amendments were also ready to be offered by those wishing to kill the black lung bill.

The black lung reform legislation would eliminate administrative delays, shift the financial burden from the federal government to coal operators, and establish an automatic presumption of black lung in cases where a miner has worked underground for 25 years.

The mine safety bill would transfer the Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration from the Interior Department to the Department of Labor, establish mandatory safety training for all miners, strengthen existing safety standards, and upgrade the administrator of M.E.S.A. to the level of assistant secretary.

Huddleston pointed out that one aspect of the mine safety legislation—mandatory training—is likely to take effect early next year despite failure to pass the bill.

That is because M.E.S.A., under existing authority, has issued proposed regulations mandating safety training for all miners. Those regulations should take effect early next year.

In addition, Huddleston pointed out, the governor's Deep Mine Commission will propose legislation during the upcoming special session of the legislature establishing minimum mandatory safety training standards.

JUSTICE REFUSES TO BLOCK JOB CUTS AT ARMY DEPOT

WASHINGTON—U. S. Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart refused Friday, Sept. 3, to prevent job cuts at the Bluegrass Army Depot near Lexington. Stewart refused to stay a mandate issued by the 6th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals that allows the Army to proceed with the job reductions.

Rep. John Breckinridge, D-Ky., had asked the Supreme Court to block the mandate.

The Army's proposed reduction of 2,600 employees at the depot had been blocked by lower court orders that would have required the Army to submit an environmental impact statement. But the Court of Appeals ruled that no such statement was needed.

YAMAGUCHI, Jampan—The candidate of Japan's ruling Liberal-Democratic Party, Toru Hirai, was elected governor of Yamaguchi Prefecture (state) despite the party's problems with the Lockheed bribery scandal.

A "Sang" Hunter's Dream

George Brown, of Prestonsburg submitted this wild ginseng root for a snapshot this week as one of the finest he'd ever seen in his many years as a buyer for area "sang" hunters. The root, which weighed in at a full three ounces, was dug by Dow Webb, of the Auxier Road. Webb reported that the root came from a "four-pronger," which Brown explained was a very old and relatively hard to find plant which is marked by four branches. A number of area residents supplement their income each year by combing shaded coves and hollows and digging the root (much of which is exported to the Orient where it is believed to be of considerable medicinal value). Current prices for good quality ginseng root are from $68-$70 a pound, Brown pointed out.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

Cardinal, Most Popular of All State Birds

The cardinal leads all other birds in its choice as state bird. He is the state bird of seven states—Kentucky, West Virginia, Indiana, Illinois, North Carolina, Virginia and Ohio.

The cardinal is non-migratory. He doesn't fly south to escape the rigors of winter, but stays with us the year around. Suppose the cardinal should migrate about September and come back in April. In that case, we would have no state bird within the state for more than half the year. So it was a wise choice on the part of the states which voted him the official bird.

The male cardinal has a dignified, somewhat aristocratic bearing. He seems to know that he is superior in many ways—in his brilliance of plumage, his black throat and face, red crest and red bill. He is the only known red bird that sports a crest.

He is usually too cold to do much singing in winter, but he starts off with a soft series of whistles about the middle of February. His favorite spring song predicts good cheer and rain for the wheat, as "Wheat—wheat—wheat—wet year . . . wet year." On seeing a farmer coming to the field, he whistles a welcoming note: "Greet you . . . greet you!" My father used to say: "Listen to the ol' redbird, won't you? He's calling up the rain!"

College To Offer Course In Far East Literature

Scheduled to meet at 6 p.m. on Mondays beginning October 25 and continuing through December 6, is a novel course which Prestonsburg Community College is adding to its Community Service Program. The course is designed to aid students and citizens in understanding and appreciating "what makes educated Asians tick."

Both classical and more recent literary masterpieces in English translation from the cultural treasures of China, Japan, and Hindu India are the materials for this course—ranging from the ancient Indian "Vedas," the "Analects" of Confucius, and Japan's early novel "The Tale of Genji" down to modern Asian short stories and even the poems of China's late dictator, Mao Tse-Tung. The course will be enriched by color-slide programs displaying backgrounds of each nation's life and arts, by recordings and cassettes enabling students to hear native speakers singing or reading Asian poems, and by unique original exhibits of Chinese picture scrolls, Japanese prints and figurines and Indian fabrics, etc.

The instructor will be Dr. Ben W. Fuson, living now on Route 1, Louisa, and recently retired as professor of English at Kansas Wesleyan University, Salina, Kansas. Dr. Fuson, who was born in China, the son of American Missionaries, has lived and taught in China, India, and Japan, and also in Iran.

Area students and citizens interested in enrolling for this non-credit "Far Eastern Literature and Culture" course this fall are asked to contact as soon as possible the Office of Community Services, Prestonsburg Community College, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653, telephone, 886-3863, extension 243. Registration will take place in Room 105 of the Johnson Administration Building.

Whiffed Indictments Miff Lawrence People

(From The Martin Countian, Inez.)
An ongoing and simmering controversy in neighboring Lawrence county, flared up anew recently when Circuit Judge W. B. Hazelrigg dismissed the five indictments handed down against Former Superintendent of School Bill Cheek.

In dismissing the indictments, Judge Hazelrigg said that he felt they had been politically motivated.

In a letter to the editor of the Louisa paper recently, nine members of the 1974 grand jury which returned the indictments, said they resented Judge Hazelrigg's accusation. They questioned the need for a grand jury when a circuit judge can so easily throw out indictments.

The controversy began shortly after the judge took office in January, when Hazelrigg, in effect, "took back" the indictments which had been transferred to Boyd county court by former Circuit Judge W. D. Sparks shortly before his retirement. Judge Hazelrigg signed an order returning jurisdiction to the Lawrence circuit court, and then signed an order dismissing the indictments.

The controversial action was not officially sanctioned until last month when Boyd County Circuit Judge William Fanning ruled that the case had been properly moved back to Lawrence county by Judge Hazelrigg in January.

That action, prompted the letter by the grand jurors, who realized that finally the indictments had indeed been dismissed.

Blackcats Roll Over West Carter In Quest for District I Title

The Prestonsburg Blackcats continued their quest for the Region 4, District II title last week by defeating West Carter, 39-8.

This leaves the Blackcats with a perfect 3-0 district mark with only the Morgan County Cougars remaining in their path. A win over the Cougars would give Prestonsburg their first district title in the school's history since the play-offs began in 1959.

The Cats rolled up an awesome 539 yards in total offense, including 428 rushing, as the Doctor (quarterback Greg Dixon) and his staff had a field day against the Comets. William Goebel picked up 175 yards in only 6 carries, including touchdown runs of 15, 40, and 80 yards. Thomas Slone also scored on a 10-yard option play while Kerry Slone rushed for 117 yards on 12 carries. Greg Dixon completed 4 of 5 passes for 99 yards and 2 TD's. Tim Patrick was on the receiving end of both touchdown passes, one for 25 yards, the other for 15. Dixon kicked two of the extra points, while Dwayne Rodebaugh kicked for one.

The offensive line of Bobby Osborne, Greg DeRossett, Gene Holland, Mike Click, Mark Chaffin, Scotty Walker, Kenneth Campbell, Paul Ackerman, and Patrick again did an outstanding job of sealing the defense inside as the Cats stuck basically to their triple option play in rolling up a 26-0 halftime lead.

Coach Haywood said, "We were sharp offensively and our defense once again did a real good job. Our kicking game was also sound. It was a good team effort by everyone. I was also well pleased with the play of our younger players. The backs (Alvin Hall, Ricky Morgan, Dewey Layne, Stewart Wright, Dwayne Rodebaugh, John Davis, Danny Daniels) ran the option well while our offensive line and receivers also did a good job (Eddie Prater, Randy Robinson, Monty Branham, Gary Harris, Marvin Marsillett, John Holland).

"Speaking of Morgan County", Haywood said, "they're not a real big team, but they do have good quickness. They have a pretty good passer (Perry Allen) and throw the football well. Due to this, they are capable of scoring from anywhere and we'll have our work cut out for us."

"Morgan County will be tough," Haywood continued, "and it will be the biggest game we've played so far this season. This one's for everything our team has worked for this year—the district championship. I think we'll be ready to play."

The Blackcats will take on Morgan County this Friday night at the Prestonsburg High School football field at 8 p.m.

RETURN FROM VACATION

Mr. and Mrs. Joe P. Tackett, Jr. have returned from a vacation spent with her sisters in Pennsylvania and New York.

Miss Trojan

Wheelwright High's football queen for 1976 is Miss Kim Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Little, of Price. Chosen by popular vote by the football team, she was escorted by Dewey Jamerson. Attendants were Kathy Hall, escorted by Gilbert Tackett; Sherry Huff, escorted by Ricky Thornsburg, and Ginny Harris, escorted by Bobby Isaac. Exactly 20 years ago—in 1956—Miss Little's mother, Pat Colwell Little, was Wheelwright's football queen. Kim is a varsity cheerleader, a member of the Beta Club, band and Library Club.

The Local Sports Scene

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The Prestonsburg Blackcats and the Wheelwright Trojans rolled to easy district wins in games played last Thursday. The Blackcats picked up their third straight district win and their sixth of the season as they defeated West Carter, 39 to 8, while the Trojans rolled to their sixth straight district victory over Mullins, 40 to 26.

Coach Don Daniels' Trojans will close out their season Saturday at Jenkins in a district game. Wheelwright's district record is 6-0, and overall is 6-3.

Coach Phillip Haywood's Blackcats could wrap up their first district title Friday night when they entertain the Morgan County Cougars. The Cats won over West Carter, with the starters playing very little. Wm. O. Goebel ran the ball only five times but raced for 175 yards, scored three touchdowns on runs of 27, 80 and 15 yards. Going into the game Goebel had scored 13 touchdowns for a total of 80 points. He now has 98 points. Quarterback Greg Dixon also had a fine day with his passing and running. Although sitting out much of the game, he connected for two touchdown passes to his end Tim Patrick, one for 25 yards and the other for 15 yards. Dixon connected on four of five passes for a total of 100 yards. During the game Coach Haywood used two other quarterbacks, Alvin Hall and Danny Daniels. The Cats led at halftime 26 to 0. Terry Slone scored the final touchdown for the Cats in the fourth quarter on a 40-yard run. Greg Dixon kicked two extra points while freshman Dwayne Rodebaugh kicked one.

Should the Cats win over Morgan County, it would be the first district win for Prestonsburg in the school's history since the new system of district championship play was initiated several years ago.

The Wheelwright Trojans won over Mullins Thursday night as Coach Daniels substituted freely throughout the game. The Trojans were leading by a score of 24 to 8 at halftime. In the first quarter the Trojans amassed 24 points as Lanny Hall scored on a 55-yard run, with Tackett's run for the two points good, Ricky Thornsburg scored on a 25-yard run, and again Joe Tackett scored the two point conversion, and Darren Little scored his first of three touchdowns on a one-yard jaunt and again Tackett scored the two point conversion. Little scored his second touchdown in the third quarter on a 10-yard run. Rick Thornsburg picked up the two point conversion, and in the 4th quarter Little scored on a 30-yard run with Thornsburg getting the two point conversion.

Wheelwright, with a record of 6-3, will face Jenkins (3-5) at Jenkins, Saturday afternoon.

Last Monday night Coach Jim Cecil's young Betsy Layne Bobcats lost to the Paintsville junior varsity, 30 to 8. It was a much closer game than the score indicates. Betsy Layne got on the score board first when Jeff Scott's pass to Glenn Lawson was good for a 73-yard touchdown. Paintsville scored twice in the first half and led at halftime by 14 to 8. In the last quarter, with Paintsville still leading by only 14 to 8 and only two minutes to play, they scored a touchdown and then came right back and made a pass interception for another touchdown to wrap it up, 30 to 8.

Betsy Layne was led on defense by Danny Akers and Paul Hall. Hall punted four times for an average of 34 yards. Betsy Layne's two-point conversion was made good by Don Chaffins. On Monday night, October 18, Betsy Layne lost to Mullins, 32 to 14. Don Chaffins scored with a 2-yard run, and Jeff Scott scored from the same distance. The two-point conversion was made on a pass from Jeff Scott to Glen Lawson. Good defensive plays were made by Paul Hall and Wayne Finney. Showing good offensive plays: Jeff Scott gained 82 yards, and Scott's longest run was 52 yards. Good blocking was performed by Byron Akers and Ricky Newsome.

Revenue Sharing Rise after 1977 Told by Perkins

One of government's most successful programs—revenue sharing—should be getting a boost through additional funding, Rep. Carl D. Perkins said this week.

In discussions with citizens in the Seventh Congressional district, the Congressman said that "revenue sharing was one of the hardest fights of the Congressional session, and I am very glad to be able to say that not only did we win, but we were able to expand the program, starting after the 1977 fiscal year."

The program basically provides federal revenues to communities and counties for projects which are decided on locally. Each community or county gets funds based on several considerations, mainly adjusted tax figures and per capita income, as well as population.

Congressman Perkins said that the regular appropriation of $6.65 billion annually will continue through 1977. But in the three following years it will increase to $6.85 billion, a $200 million annual increase.

The only thing which would prevent the increase would be a sudden drop of federal revenues during those years.

Perkins pointed out numerous projects in the Seventh Congressional District which had been helped through revenue sharing, and he emphasized that many of the projects provided employment during construction, as well as in the facility resulting from the construction.

"Congress did not complete work on the revenue sharing extension until the very last hours we were in session, and I was among those voting to keep it going, as well as to expand it," Congressman Perkins said.

Figures for all of the communities and counties in the Seventh Congressional District under the entitlements which will go into effect after 1977 are not yet available, but Congressman Perkins said he would make them public as soon as they are complete and accurate.

ON TOP OF IT ALL, BRITISH TOWN FACED HIGHER WATER RATES NOTTINGHAM, England—First came inflation and labor troubles. The British muddled through.

Things got a little better and the pound started to skid. When the skid stopped at around $1.80, the home of the stiff upper lip was in the midst of its worst drought in 500 years.

The authorities begged people to use less water. The British tend to heed authority, although they grumble about it, so they obliged.

Their reward in Nottingham will be higher water rates because, the local water board explained yesterday, lower consumption has cost it hundreds of thousands of pounds that must be made up.

One citizen's comment: "They're asking us to pay more for going thirsty and dirty. Talk about heads you win, tails I lose."

Eastern Kentucky Highways Slated for Letting This Month

Frankfort, Ky.—Two Appalachian highway projects along KY 80 in Pulaski county have been scheduled for a November contract letting, State Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts announced here today.

The projects involve grade and drainage construction and surfacing from Shopville to Buck Creek—about 3.5 miles—and grade and drainage work from Buck Creek to the Price Valley School, another four miles.

According to Roberts, the finished project will be a two-lane facility.

The Pulaski county projects are part of an estimated $16 million Appalachian highway package recently approved by the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC). Other projects approved are located in Laurel and Wayne counties and are scheduled by the state Transportation Department for a December letting.

Roberts said the funds for the Kentucky projects came from unused money that had previously been allotted to other states in the Appalachian Development Program.

In Wayne county, the Appalachian project will involve grade and drainage construction and surfacing along KY 90 from the Clinton county line to four miles southwest of Monticello, a distance of about 4.7 miles.

Roberts said the Wayne county project will also result in a two-lane highway with a passing lane added where necessary.

Grade and drainage work will lay the foundation for a 6.6 mile, four-lane route along KY 80 from Bernstadt to the I-75 interchange in Laurel county.

Also included in the ARC approval was a provision to initiate right-of-way acquisition in Pike county. Roberts explained that the purchases would follow KY 119 from Collins to a point about a mile west of Shelbiana.

The Appalachian Development Program, which includes the Appalachian highway system, was created by the US Congress to assist in the anti-poverty drive focused on the Appalachian region in the late 1960's.

Since its inception in 1965, more than 200 miles of roads through Eastern Kentucky have been upgraded to modern traffic and safety standards. Roberts said this amounts to almost one-half of the improvements currently planned.

"So far, Kentucky has spent about $450 million on the Appalachian system," the Secretary said.

The state's available allotment for the 1976 fiscal period is over $296 million, including money allocated in previous years but obligated to a specific project.

Roberts explained that each state's allotment is determined by giving consideration to the estimated cost needed to complete each state's remaining portion of the Appalachian highway system.

Roberts estimated that Kentucky needs about $1.1 billion to complete the remaining projects in Kentucky.
